JONES, FIRST; SMITH NEXT; RACE CLOSE

Mrs. Pauline Jones, of Moran leads by a small margin with Mrs. Lois (Richardson) Smith, Cisco a close second at the end of the first lap or period in the Cisco Daily News and Cisco American and Roundup subscription campaign.

Just as a hotly contested political campaign warms up and becomes more exciting and interesting as the campaign progresses, so does the Cisco Daily News subscription campaign increase in excitement and thrilling surprises as the well matched candidates fight out their friendly battle of efforts and ability to enlist, enthuse and hold their friends, and pile up credits.

There is nothing that develops and trains one as does a well managed, fair and clean subscription campaign. It becomes purely a contest of hard work and the ability to use one's intelligence.

Courtesy Found

Rare indeed does one of the candidates ever meet with discourtesy or unpleasant rudeness. Especially is this true of the present campaign. Without exception each candidate reports an almost unanimous ccurteous reception on the part of those they approach for subscriptions, both in Cisco and in the surrounding territory. Many are outspoken in the commendation of the Cisco Daily News and the expression is often made that the Cisco American and Roundup is one of the best weekly newspapers in the state.

Naturally some days are blue days to the young women who are putting forth every effort to earn a valuable prize but each and every candidate is working in a clean sportsman like manner, with no underhand methods attempted or even thought of.

All realize that it is going to be a case of the one who succeeds in getting the largest number of subscribers — the largest number of credits winning the capital prizes.

On account of conditions, some subscribers take the papers for only six months, but a number of those who did so have voluntarily sought their favorite candidate and extended the time of their subscriptions, one two and three years realizing that they are getting a bargain price in he subscription rates at this time and that by doing so they are helping a worthy candidate to earn a valuable prize.

Race Is Close

One of the unusual features of the present campaign is the closeness with which practically all the candidates who have begun to really work are running. Only a small number of credits separate the leader from the lowest and so far it an one's race—either car may be won by either candidate, as no candidate has much of a handicap to overcome. A good break any one day will place the lowest candidate up even if not ahead of the leader today.

As the campaign management has stated often in published announcements the close of the first period will see a reduction in the number of extra credits allowed during the second period. During the third period a still further reduction will be made.

This policy is for the purpose of discouraging candidates from withholding their credits and attempting to take any undue advantage at the close of the campaign. But such a precaution will be almost useless with the present high class, clean sportsman like candidates competing with one another.

Extra Credits

During the second period extra credits of 125,000 will be allowed on each club of $20 turned in during the period.

The young women are taking a sporting chance as to whether they win or not. Can't you show a little sporting disposition and give them your subscription? They may lose. You can't lose. You're playing to a dead cinch. You win whether they win or lose.

The goal first set by the campaign management was 1,000 new names added to the subscription list but so much interest has been aroused and the campaign is going over so much better than was expected that the goal has been advanced just one hundred per cent and its 2,000 bona fide new names, paid in advance, subscribers that it wants added to subscription lists.

Darrow Pleads For Boy Lifer

Hope that he may not have to spend the rest of his life behind bars came to Lyle Messner above, 22, sentenced at 14 to life imprisonment for the alleged murder of a 6-year-old Cedar Rapids, Ia., girl when Clarence Darrow, famed criminal lawyer emerged from retirement and won a promise that the Iowa parole board would consider Messner's case. The lad's mother had begged Darrow to save her son.

FEDERAL MAN CHECKS PLANS FOR OVERPASS

State and federal engineers were in Cisco Friday, checking over plans for the rerouting of Highway One through the city, it was learned by the Daily News.

It became necessary to make another check by the federal government after the plans for the Eighth street overpass were changed, according to J. E. Spencer, Chamber of Commerce secretary.

Those here were Donald Witten, federal bridge engineer; Ft. Worth; A. B. Stanbach, state bridge engineer, Austin; Barnes Hoff, office engineer, Brownwood; and Robert Milligan, assistant engineer, Brownwood.

The survey which the men made dealt principally with the Eighth Street viaduct to replace the old wooden structure over the M.-K.-T. railroad when the new routing goes through Cisco.

Turkeys Start Out For Eastern Tables

By United Press

GONZALES, Nov. 16 — Fat gobblers and husky turkey hens rolled out of Gonzales tonight to bring Thanksgiving cheer to millions throughout the nation and prosperity to local growers.

Almost 4,500,000 pounds of holiday turkeys were bound for the east from Gonzales and DeWitt counties alone, while the total Texas crop was expected to bring $10,000,000 to growers, dealers and workers.

Funeral Is Held For Mrs. L. B. Owens

Funeral services for Mrs. L. B. Owen, 35, wife of Erwin Owens, were held at the Church of God Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Rev. C. S. Moad officiating. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery, Green's funeral home in charge.

Mrs. Owens died Friday evening at 6 o'clock at the family residence, 301 West Fourteenth street. She is survived by the husband and four children.

ANNUAL DRIVE OF RED CROSS SET TUESDAY

By MRS. P. P. SHEPARD

The annual Red Cross drive will begin Tuesday morning with a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce office at 10 o'clock. A number of Cisco men and women have been asked to attend this meeting and the work will be outlined for each volunteer worker.

Mrs. J. E. Spencer has charge of the Cisco territory and her assistants will comprise those whose services have been used from year to year and, in addition, those who care to assist in the cause.

A thorough canvass of the business district will be made, as well as a house to house survey of the residential section.

The membership of a business establishment does not constitute a membership in the homes, too, it was pointed out, so that workers hope every family will contribute to this worthy cause, regardless of the donation at the place of business.

Attention is being directed to the Junior Red Cross organization as carried on through the schools. The contribution of each child is kept intact, and remains in the city of Cisco. The adult membership fees and donations are divided equally with the Red Cross organization, one half remaining in the bank at Cisco, to be drawn on in case of emergency or disaster, by the local Red Cross director under the supervision of the National Red Cross.

The membership goal for Eastland county is 1,500 with 500 allotted for Cisco. Workers are hopeful that Cisco will go over the top in this allotment and will be outstanding in its cooperation with the projects sponsored by the national Red Cross organization.

Many of the business houses are featuring Red Cross posters and, with the coming weeks and through Thanksgiving day, which closes the drive, Red Cross motifs will be seen in all the business windows. The A. and P. store was the first here to feature the Red Cross motif, using red apples to form the organization's emblem. Other original reminders of this annual drive will be appreciated by the Red Cross organization and the decorated windows will be a very decided aid in impressing shoppers with their responsibilities in this preparedness program, it was said.

Robert T. Bridges, southwestern manager for the Red Cross organization, visited Cisco and other western cities during the last week and urged greater stress on the work of the Red Cross in its accident prevention campaign.

50-POUND SALMON

BOOSTERS TO OPEN BANQUET TICKET SALE

Ticket sale for the Cisco Booster banquet on Monday, Nov. 25, will begin Monday of this week, it was announced Saturday by President Johnny Cox.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton will be here for a part of the afternoon and will be the principal speaker at the banquet, which will be at the Laguna hotel roof garden at 7 o'clock.

Wendell W. Mayes, new chairman of the state parks board has also been invited for the afternoon and the banquet in the evening. He is a brother of Bill Mayes, editor of the Ranger Times, and is a resident of Brownwood.

People from rural sections in the Cisco trade territory are especially invited to the banquet. Cox said that the club also expects to have representatives from all nearby towns.

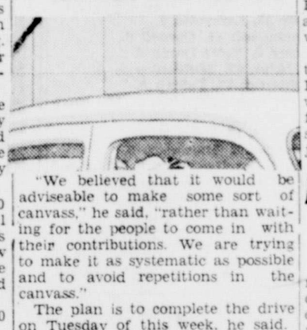

A crowd of between 150 and 200 is expected for the banquet. Local people were urged to obtain tickets early so that the hotel may know in advance as nearly as possible the number of reservations to make and speed up the service.

Tickets will be on sale at 50 cents each, President Cox said.

NAMED SECRETARY

EASTLAND, Nov. 16—Miss Genevive Lyon of Eastland has been employed as secretary to County Agent C. Metz Heald.

WILL ROGERS FUND DRIVE TO OPEN MONDAY

"We believed that it would be adviseable to make some sort of canvass," he said, "rather than waiting for the people to come in with their contributions. We are trying to make it as systematic as possible and to avoid repetitions in the canvass."

The plan is to complete the drive on Tuesday of this week, he said.

"We have no definite goal and are not asking large contributions," Leach said. "But we do want to make a creditable showing for Cisco."

WOMAN HURT IN CAR CRASH HERE FRIDAY

Miss Minnie Henry, 23, of Moran, was seriously injured when the automobile in which she was riding struck a truck and crashed into a ditch five miles south of Cisco.

Taken to Graham's sanatarium in Cisco, Miss Henry was said by attendants to have suffered a fractured pelvis.

The accident occurred when the car in which Miss Henry was returning from a football game at Pioneer, struck a truck and trailer and caromed into a ditch. The car was demolished.

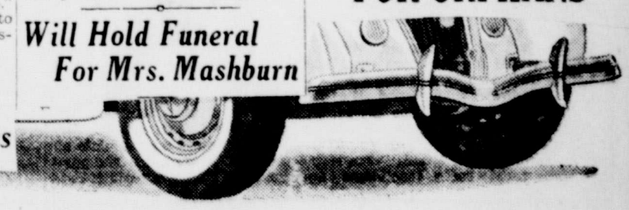

Attendants at the hospital said that Bill Blair, injured on the Breckenridge highway Thursday when his car over turned, rested fairly well Saturday. He sustained several fractured ribs and back injuries.

FARM-MARKET COUNTY ROADS TO GET WORK

Special to Daily News

EASTLAND, Nov. 16 — Approval of three works progress administration projects which will provide expenditure of $60,709.21, employ 264, and begin this week were announced Saturday by County Judge Clyde L. Garrett.

The county judge was informed of the project approvals and work release orders for improvement of three farm-to-market roads by R. C. Hoppe, district supervisor of projects and planning at Abilene.

Approvals were:

Eastland-Grapevine road, 13.8 miles, to employ 115 men for six months, $31,704.75. Work begins Wednesday.

Scranton-Dothan road, six miles, to employ 84 men for three months, $12,320. Work begins Thursday.

Cisco-Canyon road, 4.4 miles, to employ 65 men for five months, $16,684.46. Work beigns Friday.

"We expect approval of other similar projects in a few days," Judge Garrett said, adding, "particularly in the Ranger and Rising Star precincts.

"Other than in the Rising Star precinct, work orders for WPA projects in all precincts in the county have now been issued."

ALL EMPLOYABLES CAN NOW BE GIVEN WORK

The National Reemployment Service office at Eastland is now in position to assign all available employable relief men to work projects. It is necessary that they apply during the next week for identification cards and assignments to projects, it was announced Saturday.

MORE FUNDS FOR TEXAS PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 — Treasury department funds were released today which will permit Texas Works Progress Administration projects to continue. They included.

Nolan county, improve roads, federal fund, $4,970.

Scofield Back From Funeral of Mother

Vincent Scofield, Opportunity club manager of the Cisco Daily News and American, returned Saturday from San Antonio, where he attended the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Helen Scofield, 54, who died Wednesday. He was the only immediate survivor.

FREIGHT CAR TO BE LOADED FOR ORPHANS

Loading of the car annually has been a custom of the association. All churches of the association, which includes Eastland, Stephens, and Shackelford counties and 36 churches, will bring their gifts for the home to Cisco, since no other stop will be made in any of these three counties, it was said.

Any clothing which is wearable, food, and feed for livestock, are being sought for the car.

While the orphans home is owned by the Baptists of Texas, it is nondenominational to the children served. It was pointed out that while the Baptists are sponsoring loading of the car here, others are also invited to bring their gifts to those of the Baptist association.

HOW THEY STAND

Below find the active candidates in the Opportunity Club and their relative standing up to the time of going to press on Sunday, Nov. 17th. At no time will the extra credits be published.

This list shows just who is active and making a race for the two cars and the other rich prizes to be given away by The Cisco Daily News and Cisco American and Roundup.

HOOVER CALLS U. S. REVERSAL FOR FINANCES

By United Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 — Former President Herbert Hoover tonight called for complete reversal of fiscal and monetary policies of the Roosevelt administration, which he asserted was "ambling with the future of the nation and already has brought America to the threshold of devastating inflation."

He proposed an 11-point constructed fiscal program including restoration of the gold standard, stopping unnecessary public work, and "balancing the federal budget, not by more taxes but by reduction of follies".

ONLY FOUR LETTERS NOT IN USE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 — Former President Herbert Hoover, in his address here tonight cited the long list of New Deal agencies and observed that only four letters of the alphabet are missing. "When we establish the Quick Loans Corporations for Xylophones, Yachts, and Zithers," he said, "the alphabet of our fathers will be exhausted."

Britain to Spend More For Defense

By United Press

LONDON, Nov. 16—The general election in which Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's cabinet emerged with an impressive majority has placed the government in a position to spend as many millions of pounds on the rearmament of Britain on land, sea and in the air as it believes necessary to defend the empire.

Although the government went before the country ostensibly on its general foreign policy, the main issue proved to be armament. The labor arty made its chief attack on the policy of rearmament upon which the new parliament will undoubtedly embark vigorously as soon as it convenes.

Dry Texas Is Seen During This Week

AUSTIN, Nov. 16—Texas today promised to be totally dry for nearly a week under the new liquor control act as three members of the administering board sped preparations for licensing and stamping stock in wet areas. The bill, signed by Gov. James Allred Friday, makes sale of unstamped liquor illegal, but control board members expected no provision for legal sales could be made for four or five days.

New Texas Liquor Law

Regulated sale of liquor is back in Texas after being outlawed since 1919. For the first time since statewide prohibition was adopted then, the state has allowed liquor to be sold legally and under restrictions set up by the state legislature.

When prohibition was adopted it was termed an experiment. State repeal likewise is an experiment. Opponents had pointed to the increasing lawlessness due to liquor traffic and the apparent inability to control the liquor traffic under prohibition. They had pointed to the need for a new source of taxation and claimed that repeal and liquor regulation would solve the problem. The people of Texas, dissatisfied with what they had, voted for repeal.

Now the very ones who termed prohibition an experiment will find that repeal is an experiment and that the eyes of the state will be upon them to watch the progress of their theories concerning liquor regulation under the new laws.

When the people of Texas voted for repeal, they voted also for the part of the amendment which said "and providing against the return of the open saloon." When the state's legislators got to Austin to work on the new liquor regulations they apparently forgot what they had been sent there for and, instead of trying to define an open saloon, started a tug of war between the legislative wets and drys.

Finally they passed a measure which provides for the sale of liquor, properly licensed and by licensed dealers, in unbroken packages. Governor Allred signed the measure and it became effective immediately.

Governor Allred signed the bill, he said, not because he believed it to be an ideal form of regulation—it actually was a compromise—but because it was the best he could do under the circumstances. The state constitution now says that the sale of liquor shall be legal where not prohibited under local option. But the constitution does not provide for regulation, leaving that to the legislature. The governor, rather than allow the state to run wide open and anything to be sold as liquor in any way and at a loss to the state, signed the bill.

Cisco and Eastland county are dry under local option. It has already pointed out that it is illegal to sell liquor here. Regardless of how one feels personally about the liquor question, it will be necessary to have enforcement of the local option prohibition until such time as this prohibition shall be removed.

There may likely be a local option election in this county before long. Wets of the county, who appear to be strong, will be seeking repeal of the local laws. At the same time, drys have been carrying on their own campaigns locally for a good while and will fight any move to legalize the sale of liquor in this city or county.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A year from now there may be two American Federations of Labor, one of them operating under another name.

Distillation of confidential reports from labor leaders, certain government observers, and correspondents [illegible] out the insurgents (in the belief that their salvation lay in a split).

It's doubtful whether the insurgents can get a majority, because the craft unions are thoroughly and rightly frightened by the possibility that their own organizations would be destroyed whenever industrial unionism gained an upper hand in the federation.

The split between the factions in the convention vote was about 18,000 to 10,500, and men who [illegible] abilities figure that 10 per cent.

Already there are two important labor movements—the A. F. of L. and the J.L.L., the latter meaning the big following, actual and potential, of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

Most labor students concede that the Lewis group is destined to tramp forward as development of machinery continues to displace skilled workers.

THE question now is whether industrial unionism will grow inside or outside the A. F. of L.

The battle of Atlantic City will continue through the year. Next fall Lewis and his allies will be in the position of trying to get a majority or actually threatening secession. And secession might come either through a walkout from the federation or an attempt by the old line leaders to throw

Lewis, Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and other like-minded leaders will aid such unions all they can, regardless of the wishes of the A. F. of L. executive council's majority—just as the miners and clothing workers recently helped the Camden shipyard strikers.

It will be best to watch closely the convention of the United Mine Workers here in January. Lewis is likely to make more of it than an ordinary convention of an international union. The political implications of events in the labor field probably will become more obvious than ever.

Now Going Into the Last Quarter, Folks

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 — Senate state affairs committee slashed many sections out of the house bill to raise pension money by increasing occupation and natural resource levies, but this did not so much mean that any particular one might be out permanently as that the bill was getting into considerable jeopardy of final enactment at all. Sales tax advocates were becoming Jubilant after getting bad news at every turn all the other session and so far in this. They felt that before the legislature would go home with a bill to pay pensions and insufficient revenues for the purpose, the sales tax in some form could be worked into the measure.

BROOKS

long as it retains the number and an enacting clause.

The danger to the bill as a whole lies in that it may be brought back in such form that one house or the other will refuse to accept it, so there would be no levy whatever for pension purposes.

Governor Allred has announced, based upon his successful campaign on a platform against the sales tax, and upon the democratic party platform declaration against it, that he will not approve any general sales tax for any purpose. That includes pensions.

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 — Senatorial precedent this week controlled the selection of conferees on the liquor bill, so that had not the senate majority on the committee the result would only have been the defeat of all legislation, rather than the passage of the drink-by-drink plain advocated by the minority. Lieutenant governors invariably have named a majority of the prevailing side on the conference committee. Any failure to do so merely would lead the majority to instruct conferees, and refusal to comply with instructions either would lead to discharge of the committee or the failure of the committee to sign a bill or rejection of the bill itself.

The only danger that would have loomed, from the no-drink-sale side would have been the loss of liquor regulation altogether, rather than the thwarting of the majority policy toward this question.

Lack of a law in the regular session to license and tax liquor, effective from date of the constitutional amendment, has cost the state over $1,000,000; and failure this week of a regulatory bill, or its failure to be effective until Feb. 13, 1936, would cost another $1,300,000, according to estimates of liquor revenues. Half this would be lost to the pension fund, in gallonage taxes the rest to other state funds in license fees and additional excise taxes.

The most significant vote in this session of the legislature has been not on pensions or liquor or salaries, but on a resolution offered by the new Senator G. H. Nelson of Tahoka.

He proposed to recommend to the next regular session submission to voters of the question of adopting the one-house system of legislature, like that recently put into effect in Nebraska. A powerful resolution reciting the general failure of the present system, its slowness in responding to the public will, its expense, and that the system of checks and balances applies between executive, legislative and judicial departments aside from the double check of two houses. It recited the injustice to members who must serve the state at a financial loss, and be forced to seek their living from employment and the possibility of conflict in the two; and despite this injustice to members, the system costs more than would its substitute.

The significant thing was that one-fourth of the senators voting on the question supported the proposal.

Out of the 150 house members, between 40 and 50 are known to support the theory of this plan.

Texas is assured, in four to six years of an opportunity to express its sovereign will. The proposal to submit a constitutional amendment will be a magnificent campaign issues; and it will go over as the younger, politically-liberal sentiment is increased by the normal turnover at the polls, and by the selection of avowed advocates of this plan.

The Nelson proposal was for a single legislative chamber of 42 members, two from each congressional district, elected for four-year terms, each to be paid a nominal salary of $5,000 a year and called upon to give his entire time to the business of the state.

This would free the state of long-drawn-out and often futile sessions of the legislature. One -half the body would be elected each two years, so that the trend of public enactment would follow within at least three years of definite expressions of the public will rather than the present system of an average "lag" of 10, to 15 years.

Senator Nelson's resolution came as a big surprise, but still greater was the surprise that one-fourth the senators voting, and including some of the most able and effective members of the upper chamber recorded their approval at the first mention in senate proceedings of the far-reaching change of policy.

It was pointed out that the house of lords was in effect to preserve the rights of property and the commons to look after the public welfare; that long since, the election of both branches from the same electorate had destroyed the quality of purpose, while the commonwealths from which the principle came have nearly all abandoned it.

One argument for the plan was overlooked—that is its workability in a one-party state, such as Texas as compared with other states having closely-divided two - party strength. Texas has been pointed out as an ideal political field to serve as a proving-ground for this plan.

New Bible Class Able to Seat 100

The Walker Bible class, lately organized in the First Baptist church, is prepared to seat comfortably 100 men of the community, young and old.

F. E. Shepard is president of the class; Haywood (Doc) Cabaness, vice president; Parks Poe and Clarence Cleer, secretaries; and E. J. Poe and J. W. Robertson are group captains who are responsible for the attendance each Sunday.

The lessons are conducted by W. F. Walker, who has taught the men's class for years and who is honored in the recent class organization.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE asks her to marry him. At The Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to a MR. and MRS. LEWIS. Bobby sells some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, is trailing WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. Larry believes the car Lewis bought is armored. Bobby undertakes to find out.

Jean agrees to a secret engagement with Sandy. The bank of which her father is president is robbed, and Larry starts a search for the robbers.

Jean goes to see Sandy who has been injured. He and the Lewises are staying at a farmhouse. She soon finds herself a prisoner. The whole party leaves the farm. They stop at a deserted old house and Jean tries to escape. A guard stops her.

Meanwhile Larry has discovered Jean is with the robbers. His men continue their search.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

WHEN Larry Glenn arrived in Portsmouth he went at once to police headquarters, where he found Detective Sergeant Mike Hagan talking with a broad-shouldered, swarthy chap whom he introduced as Sergeant Doyle, of the Portsmouth force.

"Tell us the story again," said Mike.

So Larry outlined the situation in detail, telling how the Jackson gangsters had been traced to the Engle farm, outside of Midlothian, and how a mysterious telephone call had announced that they were going to French Pete's.

"Have you any kind of a notion where or what French Pete's might be?" asked Larry.

Doyle slowly shook his head. "I wouldn't say I never heard the name," he said. "It sounds sort of familiar, somehow. . . . But I'll be hanged if I can place it."

"There's just a chance," said Larry, "that we might get a lead from Washington. Before we left Dover I called the Division of Investigation and asked them to see if they had anything on it. They're to call me here, tonight, if they have. But it's a slim chance—awfully slim."

They fell silent for a time; then the plain-clothes men who had been sent to the bus station from which the call had been made came in to report that a careful check there had failed to disclose any information whatever about the fugitives.

"I didn't expect it would," said Larry glumly.

The desk telephone buzzer sounded, and Doyle answered. He held the receiver up to Larry with the remark, "For you—Washington."

Larry took the phone and held a monosyllabic conversation. At last he hung up and turned to Doyle and Hagan.

"Well, for what it's worth—which isn't much—here's all the Washington files have got," he said. "They've checked their list of gangster aliases and they have one French Pete listed. He was a booze racketeer, back in prohibition days. Used to run whisky from Detroit down through the middle-west. Both Portsmouth and Dover were on his route, apparently.

"But he was shot to death by rival gangsters back in 1928. So that's that."

MIKE HAGAN suddenly banged the desk with his fist. "Hey—I remember, now," he said. "That guy—listen, Larry, maybe there's a lead in this, after all. Back about 1925 he was pulled in for murdering a village marshall who stopped his truck in some little town between here and Dover. And Don Montague, of Dover, was his lawyer."

Doyle's face lit up with eagerness.

"Sure, I remember, too," he said. He paused, frowning in his effort to remember.

"I got it," he said at last. "This fellow French Pete—his real name was Rubidoux. He used to have a sort of resort on a little lake, over in Lycoming county, before he got into the booze-running racket. Anyhow, he'd held onto it, and the talk was that Montague made him sign it over to him as part of his fee."

"Where is it?" asked Larry quickly.

"I never knew, exactly," said Doyle. "I bet old Tom Thornton would know, though. He's been on the force for 25 years, and he never forgot anything in his life."

He opened a door into another room and bawled, "Hey, Thornton—come in here a second, will you?"

A gray-haired, mild-looking detective came in and faced them inquiringly.

"Remember that bird Rubidoux who used to have some sort of a resort on a little lake over in Lycoming?" asked Doyle.

Thornton nodded.

"Where was it, exactly?" asked Larry.

"Well," said Thornton, "it used to be the country home of some rich man from Dover. Later it was a sort of country club. Then Rubidoux got it. Anyhow, it's tucked 'way off in the woods, about two-three miles north of the main highway—U. S. 120—around 10 miles east of here, or such a matter."

"Could you take us to it?" asked Larry.

Thornton pondered, then nodded. "I think I could," he said.

Larry got up. "Then let's go," he said. "It may be a bum steer—but it's all the steer we've got. Take me in and let me talk to your chief, will you?"

SO Larry went in to talk with the Portsmouth chief of police, while Tony LaRocco, at his instruction, hurried to telephone the Lycoming county sheriff; and both of these officials promised full co-operation, to the extent of their ability.

An hour later three police cars drew to a halt at the concrete bridge that marked the county line. In them were Larry Glenn, three other federal agents, Mike Hagan, and the Portsmouth chief of police with half a dozen of his best men—all heavily armed. Beyond the bridge waited another car, with the Lycoming county sheriff and four deputies carrying riot guns. The cars stopped and Larry and the Portsmouth chief held a brief consultation with the sheriff; then they all started off again.

Twice they made wrong turnings. As Thornton said, some of the roads in this part of the county had been re-located in recent years; once they followed an execrable road that petered out, at last, in somebody's farm yard, and a little later they found themselves pulling up in front of a deserted country school house.

But at last Thornton held up his hand as a signal at a crossroads and confidently told the driver to turn to the left.

They proceeded along the dirt road in the direction the detective had indicated. It was dark, now, and their lamps cast long beams of light down the peaceful roadway ahead of them; and the glare suddenly reminded Larry that there was no sense in making their arrival too conspicuous.

At his direction, therefore, they drove past the place where the lane branched off, and parked their cars out of sight around a bend in the road. Then, grouped about the leading car, Larry laid out a plan of attack with the sheriff and the Portsmouth chief.

AS a result, Tony LaRocco, Thornton and Doyle crept off through the woods; and five minutes later one of the Lycoming county deputies got one of the cars, turned it around, and drove slowly for the mouth of the lane that led to French Pete's place. Reaching the fork, he turned down the lane, with his lights on, and slowly followed it. The rest of the party followed on foot, 50 yards behind him.

The car had gone perhaps a quarter of a mile from the road when a man suddenly appeared in the light of its lamps. He stood in the middle of the road, an automatic shotgun in his hands. The deputy slowed to a halt.

"Where you go[illegible]" asked the man with the [illegible]e deputy put his head out [illegible]e window and said, innocently, "Why—isn't this the road to Middleville?"

The man with the gun looked at him scornfully.

"You ought to know it ain't," he said. "This's private grounds. You'll have to go back to the main road."

The deputy, instructed to stall for time, began to make some protest, and the guard came up toward him, gripping his gun menacingly; then, out of the darkness of the woods, came a curt, "Put 'em up, buddy—you're covered!"

The man with the gun faltered back a step, and into the light of the auto's lamps came LaRocco, Thornton and Doyle, levelling revolvers at him. He cursed softly, and hesitantly elevated his hands, still holding the shotgun. LaRocco stepped forward and took it away from him. The man was quickly frisked and relieved of a .32 automatic and a blackjack. Then he was dumped into the rear of the sedan and handcuffed with his arms about one of the rear window stanchions.

The rest of the party came up, and Larry and the sheriff fired questions at the captive. He cursed and refused to answer; so they left him there, with two deputies to guard him—and with the sedan parked in such a way as to prevent any other car from passing along the lane.

Then the officers started on down the lane again, on foot.

"They're here, all right," said Larry softly. "We'll just go on down and surround the place, and then invite 'em to come on out. Be ready for some shooting, all of you!"

MONSTER WHALE TO ARRIVE HERE TOMORROW FOR EDUCATIONAL SHOW

The most spectacular and educational display of deep sea life ever presented in any inland city opens their engagement here tomorrow. It will be housed in a specially built railroad car which will be stationed on the tracks near the T. & P. freight depot and will be open to the public from 2 p. m. until 10 p. m. The big feature of this novel exhibit is a giant whale, which weighs more than 68 tons and is over 55 foot in length. The hugh sea mammal which was harpooned off the coast of San Clemente Island a few months ago is said to be a most amazing sight. This particular whale has achieved fame and unusual mention in the press of the nation, owing to the chapter it has written in the annals of whaling history. It gave the whaling crew of the ship Hawk, the hardest battle in their experience, before finally yielding to the harpoon and bomb.

Captain David J. Barnett who for the past 52 years has been making whaling history, gives a gripping discription of his many thrilling fights with these great sea mammals, and also gives an illustrated lecture on the habits, life and capture of whales.

Other interesting features that accompany the exhibit are the Penguins from the south pole regions. It is a group of real live Penguins from Little America.

Madame Sirwell and her troupe of trained fleas, present the famous London Flea circus. The Madame has over five hundred of these tiny little creatures and they kick footballs, ride bicycles, do a fan dance, push little carts and do many other astonishing feats. Over 40 specimens of deep sea life accompany the whale on its trans-continental tour. The exhibit will remain here until 11 p. m. tomorrow night.

V·8 LEADERSHIP

On October 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out, in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.

Loboes Pass to Victory Over Bulldogs, 14 to 7

LATERALS ARE USED TO GRAB OIL BELT WIN

Unleashing a dazzling lateral passing attack that baffled their opponents, the Big Dam Loboes Friday brought back to Cisco their former prestige in the Oil Belt as they defeated the Ranger Bulldogs by a score of 14 to 7.

It did not matter that Ranger had lost every game this season. The Bulldogs were the champions of 1934 and the Loboes, battling from the start, carried the fight throughout the game to win in glorious fashion and definitely climb out of the dark regions of the district cellar.

Loboes Score

The Loboes scored their first touchdown in the second quarter when Beasley took a lateral for a 53 yard gallop to the goal line and tallied again in the third period when he went over from the four yar dline on a lateral after the same play had placed the ball within scoring distance.

The Rangerites made a bid for the game in the final period and, with their great back, Walsh, doing the ball toting, drove to a touchdown. They took to the air in a desperate attempt to score again but the Loboes intercepted a heave in midfield as the game ended.

Cisco kicked off and, after being held Ranger punted. Stansbury returned to the Cisco 43 and Beasley went around right end to the Ranger 40. After Woods had made two, Beasley reversed the field to give the Loboes a first down on the Ranger 28.

Loboes Threaten

Two plays netted five yards and Stansbuhy heaved to Wende on the Ranger one yard line. The Bulldogs held, though and on fourth down a pass was batted down in the end zone.

Taking the ball on their own 20 yadr stripe, the Bulldogs kicked and on first down the Loboes fumbled and Ranger recovered on the Cisco 20. In four plays they advanced the ball to the five yard line, out there the Loboes held and on fourth down a pass was grounded over the goal.

Taking the ball on their own 20, the Loboes picked up four and Stansbury kicked to the Ranger 40. In two plays Walsh drove to the Cisco 44 but Cisco held and took the ball on downs on the Cisco 39.

Laterals Useod

After a loss of six yards, Stansbury picked up a first down on the Ranger 44, and when the Bulldogs stiffened, kicked over the goal line. When the Bulldogs kicked back, Stansbury returned 18 yards to the Ranger 48 yard stripe. The Loboes completed a lateral for 30 yards but the play was called back and they were penalized five yards.

After a lateral to Woods failed to gain, Beasley took a lateral from Wende and galloped 53 yards to cross the goal line standing up. It was a beautifully timed play and brought applause from Cisco and Ranger fans alike. Burnam kicked goal to give the Loboes a 7 to 0 lead.

In the second half the Loboes started by backing the Bulldogs toward their own goal line, using Stansbury's superior kicking as the chief weapon. Their second touchdown came after Walsh, with the ball on the Ranger 20 yard line, got off a kick that netted only a yard.

Second Score

Then Wende grabbed a pass, whirled, and lateraled to Beasley, who went to the one yard line before being brought down. Cisco was penalized five yards, and on third down the Loboes completed another forward and lateral with Beasley scoring the second touchdown of the day. Burnam converted to make the score 14 to 0 for Cisco.

As the final period opened the Bulldogs started for the Cisco goal line from their own 30. In three successive first downs they placed the ball on the Cisco 15. Three drives and a penalty against Cisco moved the leather to the one yard stripe and on second down Walsh drove over right tackle for a touchdown. He kicked goal to make the score 14 to 7 for Cisco.

The Loboes then came back and placed the Bulldogs on the well known spot when Stansbury's kick was killed on the Ranger one foot line. After they had kicked out and Stansbury had returned to the Ranger 35, he heaved to Burnam on the Ranger 10. When the line held, Burnam attempted a field goal, but the ball went wide.

Norris Littlepage Starring in Ohio

Starring at center on the freshman squad of Kent State university, Kent, Ohio, is Norris Littlepage, son of J. T. Littlepage, 700 West Fourth street.

Littlepage, a member of the 1935 graduating class of Cisco high school was an All-Oil Belt district center and was associate editor of his high school paper.

Jay Littlepage, who starred in the backfield for Kent State two years ago and who is an older brother of Norris, is now head coach at Marlboro, Ohio, high school.

BIG DAM CHATTER

The skeptics who said Cisco couldn't win a game all season already have had the words thrown back in their faces.

The Loboes, it is true, have the lightest and smallest squad in the history of the school. But they have already made a better showing in the district play then they did last season. Last fall the Loboes won one district game —against Brownwood, which failed to score all season.

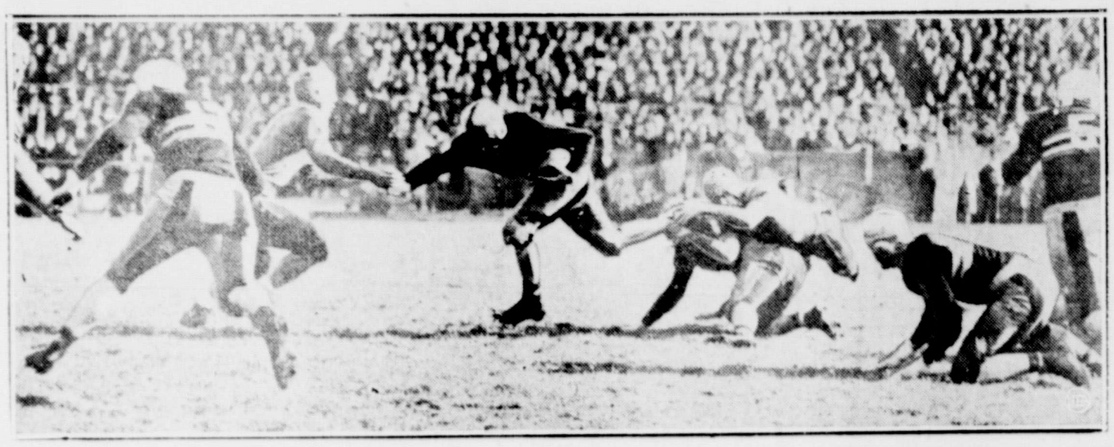

This season the Loboes have defeated the Ranger Bulldogs, champions last year, and have played one scoreless tie with Eastland. They still have a chance at a highly successful season by defeating Abilene on Thanksgiving day.

Queer about the three Eastland county tems. While the Loboes outplayed Eastland and roundly outclassed the Bulldogs, they tied Eastland and the Mavericks and the Loboes defeated Ranger by the same score. Incidentally, Ranger gained more first downs than Eastland did when the two teams tangled at Eastland.

The big-time sports writers and and many college coaches have been saying that the lateral pass is going to blast the grid game wide open. Many of the leading teams of the nation have been using the lateral to advantage during this and last seasons.

But if any local proof of their statements were necessary, it was furnished in ample quantities Friday when the Loboes tossed forwards and followed up with laterals to a fast man in the open. The point appears to be that if a team is light

Desperate Army Offensive Unavailing Against Pitt

The 29-6 score may seem to indicate that Pittsburgh university's eleven had an easy time beating the West Point Cadets, but here's evidence that the score doesn't tell the whole story. The Army defense let four touchdowns and a field goal be scored against it, but the West Pointers struck relentlessly on the attack. Joe Nazzaro (center) Army back, is pictured in a vicious slice through the line, struggling to free himself from the clutches of the Pitt tackler at right even though another foe threatens to block his advance.

it has difficulty in blocking opponents off their feet. If, however, a little blocking and a man in the open can get the ball started toward the goal line at top speed, then the weight much sought in the past is less necessary now.

The high schol boys have been throwing laterals all season, and got to clicking Friday against Ranger.

But their ball handling is nothing when compared with the way the grammar school boys set about taking a team apart. The Midgets fling the oval about with reckless bandon, the ball carrier becoming the blocker the minute he gets rid of the leather. They toss the ball about in the open as well as on carefully arranged plays ,the youngsters being willing to give up the job of leather-lugging and the honor that goes with it for the good of the team.

They will fit into the open style of play used in the high school in a year or so, when they eat a little more spinach and do a little more long division.

Army Holds Irish To 6 to 6 Deadlock

By United Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 16. —Out of shadows of impending defeat Notre Dame came kack today to score a fluke touchdown in the last 30 seconds of play and get a 6 to 6 tie with the gallant army team which had led for three periods of a brutal, bruising, game in Yankee stadium before 80,000 spectators, the largest throng of the Eastern football season.

Army scored its touchdown on a 40-yard pass from Monk Meyer to Ed Grove in the last two minutes of the first period.

Then, for the next forty-six and one-half minutes the strong hearted Army team given only a slim chance hurled back every attempt of the South Bend eleven to batter it down.

Notre Dame scored in the last 30 seconds of play on a two yard plunger over the line.

Tarheel Hope For Rose Bowl Upset

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 16 —North Carolina's hopes for an all-conquering season and a trip to the land of sunshine and flowers for the Rose Bowl game died in the chill rain today when its proud Tarheels were crushed 25 to 0 by an inspired Duke eleven.

Pitt Beats Huskers By Count of 6 to 0

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16 —A horde of big and tough Cornhuskers came off the prairie to storm the gates of Pittsburgh stadium today but a wily Pittsburgh panther turned them back by a score of 6 to 0. The day was cold and at the end of the game more than 35,000 fans in the big stadium saw the Panthers win.

WARS ON THIEVES

BENTONVILLE, Ark. — The anti-horse thief associations in all sections have been abandoned, but Northwest Arkansas poultry raisers met here and organized an anti-chicken thief association.

Frogs Beat Steers In Southwest Game

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 — Texas Christian's Horned Frogs locked horns with the Texas Longhorns today and came off with a 28 to 0 victory.

T. C. U. preserved its record of being unbeaten and untied this season, leaving Southern Methodist the chief rival of the Christians for the Southwest title.

In a series of brilliant plays, badly shot with fumbles, the Longhorns advanced to the two yard line in first half. From then on, due to a fumble on the part of the legislators, the Fort Worth team had the game in the bag.

Minnesota Crushes Michigan By 40-0

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16 — Minnesota, displaying the talent of its four backfield stars, ripped through the Michigan eleven today to win the football game and the "little brown jug" by a 40 to 0 margin.

The Gophers scored three times in the first quarter and crossed the goal once in each remaining period.

Ponies Bear Hogs In Southwest Game

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 16 — Southern Methodist universty boasting its strongest football team in years, smothered the University of Arkansas by a score of 17 to 6 today in a Southwestern conference game. Crippled by injuries suffered in their game with UCLA Monday, the Mustangs were slow to start.

CARROLL, Ia. — Fourteen children, 118 grandchildren and 95 great grandchildren mourned the death of Mrs. Juliana Julich, 85, a resident here for more than a half century.

Smart Hats Are as Swagger as Fur Coats

Designed by Jean King, these two rather dressy hats are perfect with luxurious winter furs. The rust felt (left) finished with a dashing fur bow, tops a handsome gray krimmer swagger with ragian shoulders and wide cuffs. The white velour (right), in the shape of a flower pot, is trimmed with nosegay of white violets and a fine black mesh veil. It goes especially well with the loose-fitting coat of gleaming mink with full sleeves and a narrow collar that extends to the front.

Social Calendar For Week

All members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church are urged to be present each afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church to observe the Week of Prayer and Self Denial.

CARD OF THANKS

The family deeply appreciates the many kind expressions of sympathy from friends on the bereavement occasioned by the loss of our son and brother, Harold LaRoque.

Such tokens of true friendship help lift the burden caused by the death of a loved one and become a comforting solace that travels down through the years as the sharp pangs of loss become dulled into just a sweet memory of a soul gone from a world of suffering into eternal rest.

The Chances Are You Do Not.....

• He is on individual, one of the hundreds of thousands who are engaged in earning an honest living. The results of his work came to you in the form of efficient services. He may be one of the personnel who supply you with food, with automobiles, with gasoline or with any of the other commodities essential to modern living.

• You would probably like him if you knew him. You would find him entirely human, with warm blood in his veins, with likes and dislikes, preferences and feelings like yours.

• But because you don't know him personally—because he is to you the impersonal unit of a system that is mathematically exact in its functionings, you think of him, not as human, but in terms of the organization.

There is a tendency in services while aiming at efficiency to subordinate the personal, friendly element and eventually to present a cold, polished and unsympathetic front.

We believe that personal service is essential to efficient service. We want you to know us as fellow citizens, engaged with you in building a prosperous community. The picture of our company is a picture of the personalities of our officers and employes.

MORE CATTLE FEEDING SEEN THIS WINTER

AUSTIN, Nov. 16—Developments during October gave further support to the expectation that cattle feeding during the winter of 1935-36 will be on a considerably larger scale than during the winter of 1934-35. Shipments of stocker and feeder cattle from stockyards markets into the corn belt states in October were 40 per cent larger than in October 1934, and showed about the usual seasonal increase over September shipments. For the four months, July to October, shipments into the corn belt states were about 5 per cent larger than in 1934 and were larger than the 5-year (1930-1934) average.

Shipments into the five corn belt states east of the Mississippi river continued relatively larger in October, but did not show as large an increase in October, 1934 as did shipments into the western corn belt. For the four months, July to October, the total into the eastern corn belt was largest since 1926 at least, and the proportion of the total shipments into the corn belt going into the five eastern corn belt states was the largest on record. Reports from these states indicate that the number of cattle fed this season will be considerably larger than last.

Large Shipments

The relatively large shipments from stockyards markets into the six western corn belt states in October brought the total movement for the four months, July to October, above the total for the same period last year; but with the exception of last year, it was the smallest for the period in at least 15 years. Reports from these states show a continued heavy movement during October of stocker and feeder cattle through large scale auction markets and direct to feed lots, and the number of cattle fed in all of these states is expected to be larger this season than last.

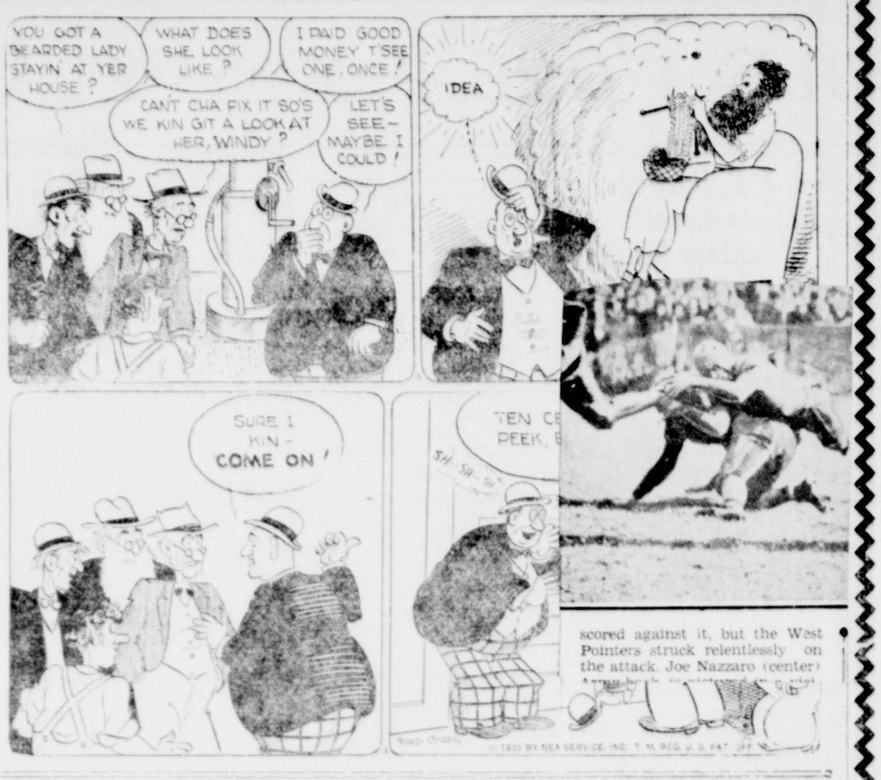

A plentiful supply of hay and roughage and low prices for those in all the corn belt states with relatively large amounts of soft corn in some states and a high moisture content of all corn, generally, in most states east of the Mississippi river, have maintained a broad demand for stocker and feeder cattle during recent weeks, and prices of such cattle made little seasonal decline during October.

More Calves and Cows

An unusually large proportion of feeder calves and of cows and heifers in stocker and feeder shipments this year is shown by records for four leading markets covering shipments from these markets during the four months, July to October; the shipments of calves were the largest in eleven years of record, and of cows and heifers were the largest since 1929 at least. Of the steers shipped from these markets, the proportions of heavy feeders, over 900 pounds, and of light stockers were larger than last year, and the proportions of medium weight were smaller.

Reports from most of the western states and from Texas indicate that the number of cattle fed this season will be larger than last, with the movement to ranch pastures and feed lots in considerable volume by the end of October. Feeder cattle shipments from markets into the Lancaster, Pennsylvania feeding area since July have been relatively larger, being exceeded in only one year of record, 1934, when considerable numbers of government drouth cattle were included.

MEXICO HAILS TOURIST BOOM INTO INTERIOR

By WILLIAM H. LANDER
United Press Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16—Touring to the "real Mexico" is on a boom.

If it keeps growing at the present rate, the tourist business soon will become as important to national economy as silver mining, corn growing, or oil drilling.

Simultaneously, the so-called "frivolous tourism" along the border points has almost vanished due to President Lazaro Cardenas' order prohibiting gambling.

In the old days, millions of tourists every year crossed the United States-Mexico border to go as far as Tijuana, Ensenada, Ciudad, Juarez, and such places, where they visited race tracks, casinos, cabarets and other centers of attraction.

Steady Gain Since 1927 Shown

Nowadays the animation of those resorts is a thing of history, but tourists in increasing numbers are penetrating into the heart of Mexico. The increase is graphically shown in the following figures of the Department of National Economy:

1927	15,600
1928	17,190
1929	19,164
1930	29,775
1931	49,720
1932	46,941
1933	50,243
1934	75,792
1935	100,000

Estimated.

Many are the reasons why Mexico, whose main attractions have existed since ancient days, has only in recent years become "a great tourist attraction." Among them are the following:

1. Mexico has enjoyed an era of peace since the 1929 revolution.

2. Land and air transportation to Mexico has greatly improved. Mexican airlines now connect with the principal United States routes, so that it is possible to fly from Los Angeles to Mexico City in 12 hours, and from New York to Mexico City in 18. Railroad service between the United States and Mexico, via Laredo, El Paso or Nogales has been vastly improved and speeded up. Furthermore, the Pan-American highway, connecting Loredo and Mexico City, virtually has been completed, and is already in use while the finishing touches are being made. On the other hand sea transportation between the Gulf ports and New York is inferior to what it was two years ago, but on the longer route, from the Pacific port of Mazatlan to New York via the Panama Canal there is better service.

Dollar at Premium

3. Favorable exchange. Formerly, a United States dollar was worth two Mexican dollars. Since 1931, however, it is worth 3 and 6-10. And when the "New Deal" took the United States dollar off gold, it thereby indirectly reduced tourism to "gold" countries and encouraged it to such countries as Mexico where the American dollar was still at a premium.

4. Completion—after 30 years of construction—of the marble Fine Arts Palace in Mexico City has served to make it one of the most important convention sites in the new world.

Sites to see in Mexico are innumerable and are as colorful as any, anywhere. It has snow capped volcanoes, deserts and mountain ranges, pyramids and temples of the Toltecs, Aztec and Mayans, tropical sea coasts and inland lakes; floating gardens at Xochimilco; bull fights, cock fights and jai-ali, golf, tennis, baseball, soccer, American football and rugby; motoring and horseback riding; Indian festivities and 20th century jazz; climates of all sorts, and a change of diet for every region.

Amusement Not Manufactured

While the government has done much to encourage visitors coming to Mexico, it frankly does not make any pretense of furnishing them with amusement. As Jose Angel Conicros, the acting secretary of foreign affairs, himself so candidly said recently:

"Present day excursions are not, nor should they be, for purposes of pleasure and idleness, luxury or frivolity. For such purposes Mexico does not present to travelers the attractiveness of other regions where great satisfaction can be derived from the pleasure resorts of the communities, the casinos, the beaches, the bright lights and shadows of the large cities.

"The travelers sense the physical impression of security that permits them to travel from one end of the republic to the other, with all the safety that can be had in any part of the world."

Some travelers are unaware of this situation. They've been told that Mexico City is like Paris. The resemblance is only a physical one, for the Emperor Maximilian, in his boulevards and avenues in Mexico City on a plan something similar to that prevailing in Paris.

NINE MEMBERS ARE INITIATED BY ELKS HERE

Nine new members were initiated into the Elks lodge here Tuesday at a special initiation ceremony. The class, known as the Joseph T. Fanning class in honor of the dean of past grand exalted rulers, consisted of 13 members, but four were unable to be present because of urgent business. They will be initiated at the next stated meeting.

E. E. Jones, exalted ruler of the Circo lodge, who officiated at the ceremony, expressed gratification at the initiation of the new members. "These are the kind of men we like to have in the Elks organization," he said.

The following telegram from President Roosevelt was sent to J. T. Hallinan, grand exalted ruler of the Grand Lodge:

"To each of the 25,000 new members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, constituting the Joseph T. Fanning class, I offer fraternal greetings on the happy occasion of their admission into the fellowship of our order. Their duty is to uphold the ideal of all true Elks which combines urbanity with good companionship, unites benevolence with service and crowns all with charity. May these new members ever be faithful to this ideal."

The organizaiton is sponsoring a bridge party and dance for Elks and their families Thursday night of this week.

McAllen Votes For City Manager Plan

McALLEN Nov. 16—Adoption of the city manager form of government for McAllen appears as an immediate prospect in view of recommendations of a committee of 21 business men to the icty commission.

The recommendations followed a study of the city manager form during a period of several months in which it was decided that this method of centralizing executive responsibilities and actual handling of municipal affairs would result in greater efficiency and reduce administrative expense. The committee voted for the plan, 13 to 7, one member being absent when the vote was taken.

Mayor A. L. Landry opposed the plan offered, but the four city commissioners, Horace Etchison, Ramon Guerra, John Collavo and V. E. Cook, are in favor of its acceptance and operation. Under the city's charter, no election is necessary to change governmental forms within the city. Hence, the proposed change may be made at the option of the commission.

It was learned on good authority that a prospective city manager residing in an upstate city has already been tendered the McAllen position and that his acceptance depends upon action by the commission in making the change. It was also understood that he has been offered a salary of $250 per month, to be paid out of savings effected through the change.

Canvass Sought 50 Years in Library

WINTHROP, Mass. Nov. 16 — Sought for 50 years, Charles Russell Sturgis' painting of Point Shirley in pre-Revolutionary days has been found in the cellar of the town library.

At first thought to have been hidden in the town hall, the water color painting, valued at $1,000, was discovered by the head librarian rolled in a metal tube.

The painting was done in the style of the much-sought American primitives and depicted the houses of Governor John Hancock and Camuel Sturgis owner of the old salt works and father of the artist.

GANGS KILL 14 IN NEW YORK'S USURY RACKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—A racket as old as money itself is blamed for New York Citie's latest gang war and death to 14 racketeers within a month.

It is 1935 model usury in which "collection syndicates" beat small-salaried borrowers when they fail to pay interest of from 20 to 60 per cent a week on small loans. The interest payments amount to $1,000,000 a month, investigators estimated.

Gangsters turned to the racket within the past two years, after repeal of liquor prohibition laws, and added their variations to the illegal Shylock business. Before then borrowers were negligent about paying because there was no agent of law that could force them. Gangland's agents of tough thugs soon built the business into lucrative practice. After a borrower is mauled once or twice by these agents they make arrangements to pay the exorbitant interest when it is due.

Schultz Linked To Racket

Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, one time Bronx beer baron, was the reputed king of the Shylock racket at the time of his assassination with three aides in a Newark, N. J., chop house during the recent gangland outbreak. Police found records that indicated he had made nearly $1,000,000 in a few weeks preceeding his death.

Gangs of the Amberg brothers and Charles (Lucky) Luciana also were in the Shylock racket. The last of the Ambergs fell in the month of terror. Luciana fled to Florida while police sought means to bring him back to question him about the gangland killings.

The small loan business is known variously as the "six for five racket," the "Brooklyn racket" and the "Shylock racket." Loans are made to families in emergencies—generally in case of sickness, death, childbirth and unemployment—the Russell Sage Foundation found in its investigation.

Employers' Rules Cited

Employers are to blame in many cases, the Foundation said, because they forbid employes to purchase goods on the instalment plan or to borrow from personal loan companies. Workers, needing money, were forced to borrow from the illegal sharks rather than risk having their employers learn of their loans through legitimate channels.

Once the loan is made the racketeer lenders prefer to receive only the interest each week, laving the principal out at the usurious rates, of $2 and are mostly for $5 and $10.

One case attracted particular attention of investigators. A negro employed at the New York post-office borrowed from five racketeering lenders and the interest almost equalled his wages. He was seeking still another loan to meet the interest payments before "collectors" returned to beat him.

Some Seriously Injured

Some of the borrowers have been beaten so badly that they were treated at hospitals.

Fear of these beatings or that their employers might learn of the forbidden loans cause borrowers to resort to almost any means to obtain money for interest payments, Russell Sage Foundation investigators said. The result has been, it was discovered, that petty crime has increased.

Encouraging use of legitimate lending agencies or vigorous prosecution of the illegal business are the only ways to combat the racket, the Foundation said.

Deportation Idea Fails at Problem

SOUTH HAMPTON, Mass Nov. 16 Nelson H. Tenney, 85-year-old farwelfare heating problem at a town meeting, but the department failed to adopt the plan.

He suggested that the selectmen confer with state or fedderal authorities and buy some of the old ships in Boston harbor, load all welfare recipents into them and deport them to Porto Rico for the winter .

The welfare voted $1,000 for coal instead.

Michigan to Get Big Solar Tower

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16—The third largest solar tower in the world is being constructed by the University of Michigan at Lake Angelus, near Pontiac, Mich.

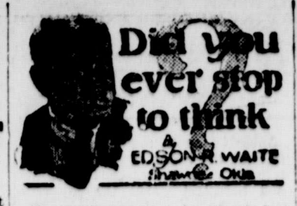

The tower will be 70 feet in length 40 feet above ground and 30 below. It will be second only to two towers at Mount Wilson, Ca., 150 and 80 feet in length, respectively.

The purpose of the towers is to shoot the light of the sun's rays down a long tube to a metal mirror at the base of the tower, ruled with metal grooves at a spacing of 15,000 to the inch.

The resulting spectrum is then refracted back up the tower to a spectro - helio - kinematograph to the peak, a special camera used for the photograph of various wave lengths of the spectrum.

The Michigan tower will be operated in conjunction with the McMath-Hulbert-McMath observatory at Lake Angelus. The three men, all of Detroit, built the observatory several years ago, deeded it to the university, but have continued to operate it. The founders are pioneers in the field of astronomical motion photography.

TEXAS CROPS IN GOOD SHAPE SAYS REPORT

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 — Except for a few counties in the northwestern Panhandle, growing conditions continued favorable during October. Pastures and ranges were very good on November 1, and livestock were in better than usual flesh. In practically all sections of the State, feed supplies are abundant for the coming winter. In those few northwestern counties where the moisture supply is still deficient, the grain sorghum crop suffered further detericration during October, and the sowing of winter wheat has been delayed.

Cotton

A 1935 cotton crop of 3,250,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is forecast for Texas based on information furnished by crop correspondents as of November 1. The present forecast is 25,600 bales or 9.8 per cent below the forecast made on October 1, and compares with 2,406,000 bales produced in 1934, 4,428,000 bales produced in 1933, and 4,642,000 bales the 10-year average (1924-1933). The indicated yield this year is 141 pounds lint per acre compared with 112 pounsd in 1934, 185 pounds in 1933, and 144 pounds the 10-year average.

Corn

The November 1 estimated yield per acre of corn is 19 bushels, compare dwith 9 bushels last year, and 16.9 bushels the 10-year average (1923-32). The total production is forecast at 108,471,000 bushels, compared with 45,873,000 bushels a year ago, and 83,669,000 bushels the 5-year average (1928-32).

Grain Sorghums

Continued dry weather in portions of the Panhandle further reduced the prospective production of grain sorghum. The yield for grain is now forecast at 12 bushels per acre, compared with 4 bushels last year, and 15.2 bushels the 10 year average. A 12 bushel yield indicates a total crop of 64,536,000 bushels as against 17,928,000 bushels a year ago, and 52,882,000 bushels the 5-year average.

Sweet Potatoes

The sweet potato yield per acre is estimated at 90 bushels, and the total production 6,390,000 bushels. The production last year was 3,300,000 bshels, and the 5-year average 4,734,000 bushels.

Rice

The rice production is estimated at 8,910,000 bushels, compared with 7,738,000 bushels last year, and 9,135,000 bushels the 5-year average.

Broom Corn

Production is forecast at 9,600 tons, compared with 2,900 tons last year, and 1,420 tons the 5-year average.

Peanuts

The yield of peanuts is estimated at 590 pounds per acre, and the total production at 112,100,000 pounds, which compares with 51,350,000 pounds a year ago, and 77,230,000 pounds the 5-year average.

Citrus

The production of Texas oranges is forecast at 585,000 boxes, compared with 560,00 boxes produced last year and 292,000 boxes the 5-year average. Grapefruit is forecast at 3,080,000 boxes, compared with 2,750,000 boxes a year ago, and a 5-year average of 1,457,000 boxes.

COW PLOWS FIELD

FLANDERS, Conn. — Locked out of her barn, one of State Representative Wilfred Scott's cows spent the night plowing a portion of his field. The bell rope around the animal's neck became caught on the handle of a plow. In trying to get loose, the cow pulled the plow around the field until dawn, cutting deep furrows

Reduction of Lamb Feeding Decreases

AUSTIN, Nov. 16 — Developments during October indicate that the reduction in the number of lambs to be fed in the 1935-36 season from the number in the 1934-35 season will not be as large as seemed probable early in October. Present indications are that most of the decrease in lamb feeding this year will be in the north-central (corn belt states) and that the number fed in the Western States, including Texas, may be little different from last year. Apparently the largest decreases from last year in the feeding of western lambs will be in farm feeding in oIwa and Minnesota, in feeding on wheat fields in Kansas and Oklahoma, and in feeding at commercial feed lots, generally, in the corn belt states. A considerable decrease in feeding of native lambs in the Corn Belt States is also probable.

HONORS OLDEST PATRON

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Robert Keith, 90, president of the Robert Keith Furniture and Carpet company, was recently presented a silver plaue by the Commerce Trust company of Kansas City, as the banks' oldest individual customer. Keith has been banking with the Commerce Trust company 51 years.

New Partridge To Augment Wild Life

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16 — Breeding experiments carried on by the state fish and game commission during the past five years have proved so successful that in a few years a new game bird probably will be thrown open to hunters.

Five Chucker patridges were obtained about five years ago and placed on the Yountville breeding farm.

Now there are more than 2,500 of the Asiatic partridges on state game farms. The birds seem to do best in the bush country and do not thrive so well in the valleys.

The Chucker, a bird generally unknown in the United States, is easily recognized by its brown and white feathers, distinguishing it from other breeds of partridge.

The usual nest contain 12 to 15 eggs. Dr. E. C. Moore president of the commission says the experimental stage has been passed and it is only a question of time until the state will afford a new lure for sportsmen.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

Text: Ezra 1:1-6; Psalm 126:1-6

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 17.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

IF the downfall of Jerusalem before the armies of Nebuchadnezzar, and the carrying off of the Jewish people in exile to Babylon, was one of the major tragedies of history, one of its bright and glowing pages is the return of the Jews to their own country in a new and merciful plan of colonization put into effect by Cyrus, king of Persia.

The power of Babylon had fallen beneath this soldier and statesman, who, having made himself conqueror of Persia, proceeded to make his country supreme among nations.

Cyrus was a remarkable blending of the ruthless, efficient soldier and the wise and tolerant administrator. He proved himself the friend of the Jews, and the record in our lesson would suggest that the project of re-establishing Jerusalem with something of its religious glory appealed strongly to his interest and vision.

THE people who returned from Babylon were very different in spirit and purpose from the broken remnant that had been carried off in defeat. Their bitter experience, if it had tested their souls, had also had a purifying effect.

They came back with spiritual vision and with the sense of a world mission that was no longer to be found in outward glory, but in devotion to that sense of God's call to Israel as a people to be the witnesses to truth and righteousness.

The brief psalm which is a part of our lesson is a poet's expression of the glory of the new enterprise. It expresses in terse and beautiful words the joy of the returning and the sense of new life and hope in the consciousness that Jehovah is calling Israel to a new mission.

The expression, "they that sow in tears shall reap in joy," has written itself into the records of human life, and the picture of going forth sowing and weeping, and returning with the sheaves and rejoicing, is one that has fitted the experience of every people.

THE lesson has peculiar appropriateness for a period of thanksgiving, especially in a time of depression. Here in America we have not been exiled to another land, but many have been driven forth from their homes and from their jobs in the crash that came when a false prosperity, with too little regard for human values and elemental honesty, went down in temporary ruin.

We have been passing through the experience that again and again has befallen nations when they have failed to order their affairs aright. If we have not learned all the chastening lessons of these experiences, there is evident, at least in some quarters, the return to greater sanity and a desire to discover sound and right ways both of living in personal life and of rectifying social abuses.

Would God that in these days we might have something of the spirit of these returning exiles, their faith, their vision, their courage, their disciplined attitude toward life, and their determination to rebuild, laying true foundations and establishing the temple as the center of their life and organization!

Woman Taxi Driver Smokes Cigars, Says She Is Just Tender Mother of An Artist

DALLAS, Nov. 16—Texas has always been known for its two gun men, but never has it been known before to have a woman taxi cab driver known as Nell (Six-Shooter) Duckett.

Nell is the only woman in El Paso that doesn't own a dress. She does the work of a man and wears men's clothes.

Nell says the taxi business is alright, but with a fair of only 10 cents it's all you can do to make a living.

"You have to pay a boy to keep your car clean, and if you have a good automobile, you have to buy good gas and oil for it, for if you don't it'll cost you more in repairs in the long run," she said.

She is the co-owner of a taxi stand, and for 18 years has transported passengers, sometimes working as much as 18 hours a day. She smokes cigarets, but prefers cigars. "I'd smoke them all the time if it wasn't so expensive," she said.

Nell has a daughter 20 years old, of whom she is very proud. She is studying to be an artist.

"She had some of her paintings on display at the Girl Scouts show the other day, and she likes to paint," Nell said proudly.

"I don't claim to be a hardboiled business "man," but a tender mother, trying to make a living for myself and my daughter."
