Apartment Explosion Hurts Four

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Bruce Standifer, who was visiting his grandmother at the Pink Apartments, 17th Street and Avenue C, was being treated Wednesday at Health Sciences Center Hospital for burns suffered when a cigarette spark ignited gas fumes in one of the dwellings about 5 p.m.

Three other residents also were injured during the explosion which spewed cinder blocks and ceiling supports across the street. The force of the blast was felt within a three-block radius.

Fumes Ignited

Fire Department reports indicate Mrs. Hankins had just finished preparing dinner in her apartment, and as she lit a cigarette the fumes exploded. The two boys were in the living room area at the time.

The three persons were temporarily trapped under the rubble.

Mrs. Davis, who was sitting in front of her nearby apartment when the blast occurred, also was buried under the debris.

The main thrust of the explosion was toward the northeast section of the structure. Four other apartments along the eastern side of the U-shaped structure also suffered extensive damage in the blast.

The first officials on the scene said the smell of leaking gas inside the Hankins' apartment "could knock you over" and a small fire erupted before the gas was turned off.

Neighbors who rushed from their homes following the blast said they saw a billowing cloud of brown smoke rising from the crumpled section of the complex.

Debris Covers Victims

Robert Sanders, 47, of 1702 Ave. B, No. 7, said he was walking down the alley behind the apartment complex "when things started crumbling."

Sanders helped officials pull the victims from the wreckage.

Mrs. Hazel Jackson, whose apartment also was destroyed, said, "We (she and a friend) were sitting (in her apartment) talking at the dinner table when all at once the ceiling started falling down on us and then there was this noise."

EXPLOSION EXTRA DUTY — Lubbock fireman Jim Settle Jr. became a temporary answering service Wednesday when he and co-worker Rodney Randolf helped clear debris from one of the apartments at 17th Street and Avenue C destroyed by a gas explosion. Four persons were injured in the explosion that erupted in Diane Hankins' apartment when she lit a cigarette, but only 6-year-old Bruce Standifer, who was visiting his grandmother, was admitted to Health Sciences Center Hospital for treatment of second degree burns he suffered in the blast. Landing Hoped In Paris Today

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Three Americans floated over the Irish coastline Wednesday night, becoming the first persons ever to cross the Atlantic Ocean by balloon, Shannon Airport air traffic control reported.

"We've brought the big one home!" the balloonists yadioed Shannon Airport, and said they probably would try for Paris.

Pass Over Tiny Irish Port

Air traffic controllers said the Double Eagle II — manned by Ben Abruzzo, 48, Maxie Anderson, 44, and Larry Newman, 31, of Albuquerque, N.M. — passed over the tiny west Ireland port of Louisburgh at 9 p.m. Greenwich mean time (4 p.m. CDT) at an altitude of 20,800 feet. It later came down to 10,000 feet but a spokesman said it would shoot back up to 20,000 feet if it is sunny today and the helium gas heats up.

Air controller Gerald O'Connor told The Associated Press the three men were "overjoyed" when informed they had reached Ireland and "there were quite a few shouts of jubilation."

"They couldn't believe their luck," O'Connor said. " ... It's getting quite dark here right now over Ireland ... so we won't be actually seeing it crossing the country at all. Nobody will actually see it from the ground. We can only see it on radar."

'77 Try Ditched

Abruzzo and Anderson tried the same journey a year ago in Double Eagle I but were forced to ditch into the sea off Iceland.

There had been 17 previous recorded but unsuccessful attempts at crossing the Atlantic by balloon. Seven persons, including television actress Pamela Brown, died trying. A month ago, two Britons got as close as anyone previously. They were almost within sight of the French coast when they were forced to ditch 117 miles west of Brest.

In a radio message relayed to Shannon, the three adventurers said they planned to head for England "at least." They said they were heading southeast with hopes of floating over the British Isles and that they were considering a landing today on the European continent, possibly in France.

Course Given

Their southeastward course would take the 112-foot-tall balloon across Ireland, Wales, England, the English Channel and France, if they are able to stay aloft.

A spokesman said the three might keep on floating over Europe, "just to see how far they get." They were communicating with the air controllers and by radio with a small jet chartered by their flight team.

The adventurers stowed a bottle of champagne aboard and intend to share it with whoever greets them after they touch down. They have been eating hot dogs, canned sardines and instant mixes.

In London, press spokesman Jim Mitchell, a business associate and longtime friend of Anderson, told The Associated Press: "The optimism is building up now and I'm a practicing pessimist.

Like Paris Landing

"Maxie always talked about climbing the Eiffel Tower," Mitchell said. "I think they'd like to land in Paris."

Mitchell said he expects the balloonists to "cross the Bristol Channel, England, and the English Channel about lunchtime Thursday, then the French coast in the LeHavre area and land somewhere in the Paris region at around 8:30 p.m. (2:30 p.m. CDT).

"It is too dangerous to land at night with such a big balloon and they will keep going," he said.

The team's ground controllers set up headquarters in several rooms in London's Hilton Hotel.

At the hotel, Anderson's wife, Patricia, said she felt all along they would make it but that when the balloon crossed the Irish coast "most of us were very emotional.

"As of right now, our latest informa-

Carter Tagged 'Failure' As Ford Looks To 1980

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SAN ANGELO — Former President Gerald Ford Tuesday flatly labeled his successor's administration a "failure" and hinted at his own intentions for the presidential race in 1980.

Although he hedged about plans to seek the Chief Executive Office again, explaining "many factors" must be considered, Ford later declared during a press conference:

"I'll be around in 1980 and I won't duck any responsibilities.

"If this administration (President Jimmy Carter's) continues to be a failure, which I think it is," it will be a major factor to weigh, Ford said.

Fund-Raising Mission

The former president, on a campaign fund-raising mission for a local GOP congressional hopeful, arrived an hour later than scheduled, keeping a crowd of about 200 spectators waiting in 101-degree heat. The crowd caught little more than a glimpse of Ford, who paused to shake a few hands only after being asked to by photographers.

Ford made his remarks about Carter's tenure during a closed press conference that lasted only five minutes. The former Chief Executive broke off questioning abruptly and hurried into a car to travel to a fund rising reception for Kerrville Republican Tom Loeffler, who is vying with Nelson Wolff, D-San Antonio, for the 21st congressional district seat. The office is being vacated by Bob Krueger, who is running against John Tower for U.S. Senate.

The 30 minute reception was closed to reporters, but Loeffler said afterwards that Ford only reiterated his endorsement.

Predicts GOP Gains

The blue-suited Ford, who had flown in by private jet from Vail, Colo., predicted during the press conference that the Republican Party will gain 20 to 30 House members and one senator during November's general election. The party also will show "probably significant gains in the gubernatorial races," said Ford, who laid credit at Carter's doorstep.

Carter's obvious "inexperience, the inflation problem and his indecision in major foreign policy matters" will help Republicans, Ford said.

"This will rub off on Democratic candidates," he explained. "It's the way the voters are."

However, Ford softened his line when asked whether Carter's inexperience makes him vulnerable to voters. "It's really too early to tell," he said, adding, "polls don't necessarily two years ahead of time reflect what voters will do."

Ford managed to link his support of Loeffler to his own past record as president.

Explaining that he believes Democrats who are newly elected to Congress will be under great pressure to support Carter's Policies, Ford added, "The tradition of this district is anti-Carter and pro-Ford." And the past record of Loeffler, who worked under Ford as a liaison between the White House and Senate, is in keeping with Ford policies on inflation and the military and domestic scenes.

Mail Fraud Ruled In Land Sales

By DAVE OFFER
A-J Correspondent

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—A federal court jury here Wednesday found both a Florida man and a corporation he heads guilty of 11 counts of mail fraud for selling arid land on the Texas South Plains with claims that it was fertile agricultural property in an area gushing with oil.

The verdict against Louis Beck of Miami and Diversified Realty Investment Corp. followed a three-week trial.

The jury heard evidence that the scheme to sell the sandy, weed-choked land, which is located in Cochran County near Bledsoe, involved glib telephone calls from salesmen in Miami and colorful brochures mailed to potential customers throughout the country.

In addition to Beck and Diversified, the grand jury indicted Irwin Kane and Ed Rich, both of Miami, and Wintex Realty Inc., a Miami land sales firm headed by Kane.

Others Plead No Contest

All but Beck and Diversified pleaded no contest and were found guilty before the trial began.

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert W. Warren ordered a pre-sentence investigation and said sentencing will take place in about 40 days.

Beck faces a maximum sentence of 55 years in prison. He and Diversified could each be fined $11,000. The others pleaded guilty to lesser offenses and face smaller penalties.

Throughout the trial, Asst. U.S. Atty. Stephen E. Kravit sought to contrast the real condition of the land with the things said about it by salesmen.

Brochure Touts Area

Beck called the property "Tierra del Oro Estates, the Golden Land," and the jury was shown maps and a brochure which was used to tout the area. The brochure said the property had "ideal climate, abundant water supply and rich soil conditions" and called it "some of the finest agricultural acreage in the country."

However, witnesses testified that the property lacked water, had very poor soil and had not been cultivated for 15 years.

One said the land was better suited to tumbleweeds than to crops.

The land also has no known oil or gas deposits, witnesses said.

Witnesses included persons from various parts of the country and included Lubbock Better Business Bureau President Mal Cleland.

Testimony indicated that salesmen told potential customers that they should buy the property in hopes of getting rich from oil and gas royalties.

The government charged that Beck and the others had hoped to make more than $2.2 million from selling the 1,500

Panel Asks Contempt On Califano

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee recommended Wednesday that Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to provide subpoenaed documents about drug companies.

Members of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce's oversight and investigations subcommittee said the information is vital to their probe of allegations that major drug companies have put their name brand labels on generic drugs and have hiked prices sharply above what consumers would pay for the same drug under the generic label.

"We have reason to believe that large drug companies have been regularly making profits with up to 5,000 percent markups on generic drugs simply because they were put under their brand name," said Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., who offered the contempt motion.

Sent To Committee

The subcommittee voted 9-8 in favor of the contempt citation, sending it to the full committee. If it is approved there, the contempt recommendation will go to the full House, creating a constitutional confrontation over the rights of Congress to get information the executive branch refuses to furnish.

In an appearance before the panel, Califano contended he cannot give the

Desegregation Case Deadline Disputed

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE U.S. Justice Department apparently has more time than school officials thought to decide whether to appeal the Lubbock school desegregation case.

On July 6, federal attorneys filed a notice of appeal in U.S. District Court here as a means to buy time until a formal decision can be made.

By school lawyers' thinking, the department was to have 40 days from the date of that notice to activate the appeals process — or lose its right to appeal altogether. This 40-day deadline, according to school officials, ends today — and so far, the department has made no effort to pursue the case at the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

But Mark Gross, an attorney in the department's appellate section, said Wednesday he believes that the department actually has another 40 days to make up its mind before it must commit itself to an appeal.

No Decision Reached

"No official decision has been made yet whether to go through with it," Gross said.

He said the first 40-day deadline was the time limit for the U.S. District Court clerk in Lubbock to send to the 5th Circuit in New Orleans the complete record of the desegregation case — such as a transcript of the 1970 and 1977-78 trials, the exhibits and other documents. The local court mailed that information on Tuesday.

Gross explained that after the record reaches the 5th Circuit, the "briefing schedule" begins. That is, the Justice Department will have 40 days to file a brief outlining its appeal. (The school district then would have 30 days to reply.)

Sometime during the 40-day period before its initial brief is due, the department must "make a decision one way or the other" on whether to appeal, Gross said.

If the department decides not to appeal, it simply will allow the 40-day deadline for the initial brief to expire.

Delay Anticipated

If the department decides to appeal and goes through with the filing of a brief, the 5th Circuit probably will not hear the case until fall at the earliest.

Continued delay in resolving the case has barred the school district from selling bonds earmarked for new schools. Because of inflation, school officials say, the delay has cost about $1 million so far.

Woman Faces Fire For Elvis Picture

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — While firefighters battled a blaze in the Dubuque woman's duplex house Wednesday, the woman ran inside to rescue her Elvis Presley memorabilia.

Diane Bush raced upstairs and carried out a large cloth picture of Elvis, along with other souvenirs. No injuries were reported.

The fire caused heavy smoke damage to the second floor where the seven-member family lived, and to many other Presley items owned by Mrs. Bush.

Harriet Bush, 64, Diane's mother-in-law, got out of the building safely with her two daughters.

Authorities said the fire apparently was caused by defective wiring.

FIRE INJURES ONE

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — One crew member was hospitalized following an explosion and fire, Wednesday in the pump room of a Continental Oil Co. tanker. Officials said the vessel was offloading crude oil at the time of the fire. Cause of the explosion was not determined.

FINES ORDERED

AUSTIN (AP) — A Galveston district court has ordered a Galveston builder to pay back wages of $375 and $27,000 in fines for not paying an employee semimonthly, state officials said Wednesday.

Chicago Woman Given Pet Cemetery Burial

CHICAGO (AP) — Lillian Kopp, 69, is the first human to be laid to rest in Paw Print Gardens, a pet cemetery in West Chicago.

"She wanted to be near her pet German shepherd, Rinty," said Barbara Kopp, 31, a daughter who manages kennels operated on the property. "Rinty died at age 15 1/2 years in 1972. We have three other German shepherds left — Cindy, 10; Dutchy, 7; and Jamie, 5.

"All will be buried, side by side, in the cemetery. So will I, my father, Henry, 72, and my brother, Ron, 45," said Miss Kopp.

She said Rinty was raised from a pup and when he died "the family sat down and discussed burial in Paw Print Gardens. Mother was in failing health the last two years, and we all made definite plans to be buried in the cemetery near our pets."

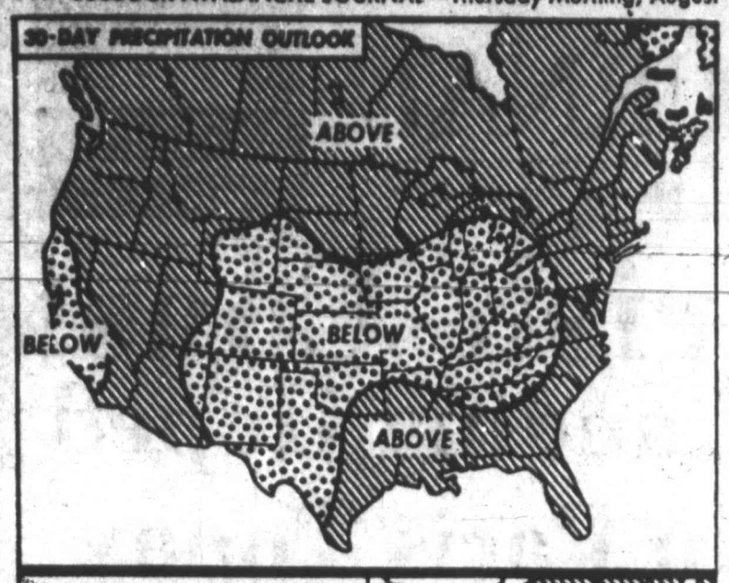

"It just makes a lot of sense to us, although I know some people will not agree," said Miss Kopp. "It makes sense to be all together, not buried in separate cemeteries, and to be together in death with our loved ones — and that includes our German shepherds."

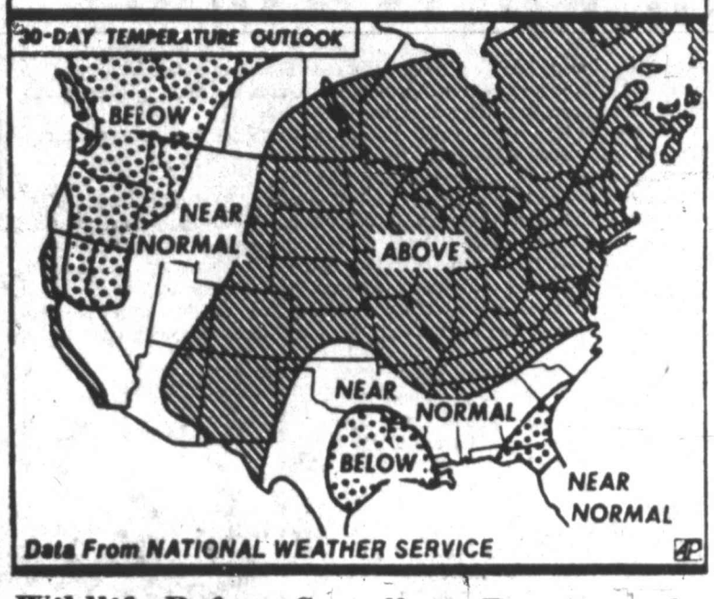

Private funeral services for Mrs. Kopp were on Aug. 7. Only the family and a few friends attended.

"A wake was held in the small chapel at the cemetery and services were conducted there by a Catholic priest," said Miss Kopp.

The chapel was built on the well-groomed grounds for services for departed pets.

The cemetery covers 3 1/2 acres and was opened in 1971 by the owner, Patricia Blosser, founder of the National Association of Pet Cemeteries. The association distributed a news release announcing Mrs. Kopp had become the first human to be buried there.

Solons To Aid ERA Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Wednesday he has 13 or 14 senators lined up to assist him in a filibuster against a proposed extension of time for ratifying the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

The time extension, setting June 30, 1982, as the deadline, passed the House Tuesday. Garn said he believes a Senate vote will not take place until next month at the earliest.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said he was not sure the Senate would debate the issue this year.

"As of now, I just can't say," Byrd told reporters. "We have so many things to get done in so short a time."

Congress is aiming at an Oct. 7 adjournment.

Garn said Sens. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and 11 or 12 senators whom he did not identify have offered to take part in the filibuster.

He said he would launch the filibuster unless the Senate approves an amendment to allow ratifying states to withdraw their approval and a rule requiring that the extension be passed by a two-thirds majority.

Both of these proposals were rejected by the House.

Garn said he had "no idea" how many senators were prepared to vote for the extension or how successful efforts to cut off debate would be. It takes 60 votes to stop a filibuster.

Garn, an opponent of the ERA, said granting additional time for ratification without allowing states that have ratified to change their minds was "like prolonging a basketball game in order to increase the chances of the side that's losing."

"While I personally would prefer to avoid a filibuster, I cannot, in good conscience, allow the Senate to act in a way which will damage the integrity of the constitutional amending process," he said.

The ERA, which would prohibit discrimination based on a person's sex, must be ratified by 38 state legislatures by next March 22, unless Congress approves an extension, to become part of the Constitution.

Carter Compares CIA's Plight To Caesar's Wife

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, spending an hour at the headquarters of the CIA, said Wednesday the agency's employees must be "more pure and more clean and more decent and more honest" than almost any other government workers.

"You almost are in the position of being like Caesar's wife," Carter told employees of the troubled intelligence agency that his administration has been trying to rebuild.

The president flew by helicopter from the White House to the sprawling, campus-like Central Intelligence Agency offices in Langley, Va., about 10 miles from Washington for the pep talks.

He spent more than an hour in briefings on CIA operations and speaking with several hundred agency staff members outdoors and then in private with 56 undercover intelligence agents.

CIA spokesman Herbert Hetu said "none of these people were able to be outside or in the hallway. They're all undercover."

Carter, addressing the several hundred agency employees, said:

"Some who have been here for many, many years have had inclinations to be concerned about ... the willingness of (CIA Director) Stan Turner and myself to let the American people know who you are, what you do, some aspects of your work that don't violate the security of our country."

Voicing strong praise for the CIA employees' work, he said: "There is a growing appreciation for what this agency does, for what you individually do for our nation."

The president acknowledged the conflict posed by "legitimate openness" on the one hand and "careful preservation of security."

Wildlife Refuge Speedboat Ban Argued

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoping to ban high-speed boats permanently on a Nevada wildlife refuge, Defenders of Wildlife, a conservation organization, argued in U.S. District Court Wednesday that pleasure boaters and water skiers disturb nesting waterfowl.

Attorney Jeffrey H. Howard, counsel for Defenders, sought to prove that high-speed boaters already had cut the nesting potential for ducks on Ruby Lake National Wildlife Refuge.

Howard cited government documents declaring that an average of 4,000 canvasback and redhead ducks are produced annually on the refuge.

But in 1975, Howard said, only 2,000 redhead and canvasback ducks were raised on the refuge, and only 3,000 in 1976. Power boats were operating on the refuge in both years.

Defenders already has won a temporary restraining order prohibiting the government from permitting boats to operate on the refuge with motors of more than 10 horsepower.

The government has proposed a plan which would ban motorboating on the northern half of the refuge. The southern half is zoned, with horsepower, seasonal and speed restrictions imposed on portions on the various zones.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service director Lynn Greenwalt testified the proposals permitting high-speed pleasure boating and water skiing after Aug. 1 "should have little impact on (waterfowl) production" because most ducks have finished nesting by that date.

The refuge provides the only lake in the area which can support the activities of pleasure boaters and water skiers.

Carter Inks Executive Orders To Aid Nation's Urban Centers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed four executive orders Wednesday to force, or at least encourage, the federal government to consider the plight of the cities when it acts.

Seen as an effort to restore some life to his faltering national urban policy, Carter's move was quickly and warmly acclaimed by leaders of the nation's cities. They hailed the action as "a turning point in federal policy."

The key order would require all major proposals for legislation or other government action to be accompanied by an urban impact statement — something city officials have been seeking for years.

Such impact statements would not keep Congress from passing a bill or the executive branch from moving on a program, even if the statement said a program would have a negative impact on blighted areas. But it would have the effect of issuing a warning about the consequences of proposed government action.

Urban leaders have long complained since World War II, federal policies have inadvertantly hurt central cities. Now, they say, the potential damage will at least be recognized in advance.

Two other presidential executive orders would encourage more federal purchasing from firms located in areas of high unemployment and the placing of federal office buildings and other facilities in central cities.

The fourth establishes an interagency group to coordinate the implementation of federal urban programs among federal agencies and state and local governments.

"I think the light has turned on all of a sudden and somebody has recognized the problems that we have," said Mayor John P. Rousakis of Savannah, Ga., first vice president of the National League of Cities.

"This action by President Carter confirms his determination to have our nation come to grips with some of the forces that have undermined our urban centers," Rousakis said at news conference held by the league of cities in advance of the signing ceremony.

Mayor William H. McNichols Jr. of Denver, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, also issued a statement praising Carter as well as the urban directives.

"It has almost become fashionable to criticize the Carter administration during the past few weeks," McNichols said. "It is time to change direction. It is time to support the president.

"President Carter is doing something today which may not be highly visible, which is innovative and significant," McNichols said. "These four orders go to the heart of the domestic problems in our country. These actions are significant management tools that can be as important as a new program with new dollars."

Most of the 14 separate pieces of legislation which Carter proposed last spring as part of his $8.3 billion urban policy initiative are stalled on Capitol Hill.

At the signing ceremony held at the Executive Office Building, Carter avoided direct criticism of Congress. But he noted that "a lot can be done without legislative action."

The urban impact order requires all executive agencies to "prepare urban and community impact analyses for major policy initiatives," similar to the environmental impact statements already required by law for programs likely to affect the environment.

The Interagency Coordinating Council will be made up of the heads of 15 federal departments and agencies and will be chaired by presidential assistant Jack Watson, who already is Carter's liaison with state and local governments.

Relative Wealth Of Community Said Factor In Water Usage

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Discrepancies among per capita water-use figures for the various cities served by the Colorado River Municipal Water District are due, in part, to the numbers of lawns and "Mexicans" living in those communities, an engineer for the district testified Wednesday before the Texas water Commission.

F.W. Freese, continuing his testimony in CRMWD application before the TWC for the proposed Stacy Reservoir, said the relative affluence of a community population can make a difference in the amount of water used on a per person basis.

Asked by Lower Colorado River Authority attorney Fred Werkenthin why the per capita figures for Odessa are lower than those indicated for Big Spring, Freese said it relates to the "style of living" in each community... "the numbers of Mexicans they have, the amount of lawns, the numbers of bathrooms."

Freese, who developed the water demand and supply report for the district's application for the Stacy project, acknowledged he had made no study of the differences which would verify the reason for the differences in the figures.

Werkenthin also asked Freese if he had looked into the number of "persons of Latin-American extraction" in Howard versus Ector county.

"I made a mental note of it," Freese said. "I didn't analyze it."

The LCRA attorney failed earlier in Wednesday's proceedings to have Freese's demand and supply report excluded from evidence, with TWC Chairman Joe Carter overrulling his objection.

Werkinthin had complained the document's population and water use projections are based on work done by "unidentified Texas Department of Water Resources employees" and, as such, Freese could not testify as to the accuracy of.

Carter, however, said he believes Freese is able to testify as an expert as to his opinion of the validity of those estimates.

Continuing his cross-examination, Werkinthin asked why Freese's figures indicate widely varying percentages of increase between those projected for population from 1974 to 2030 and those projected for the manufacturing use of water.

"Do you know of any case where has been an increase in employment opportunities and not a corresponding increase in population," Werkenthin asked.

Freese said he knew of no such case, but maintained there is no direct relationship between the projections.

The hearing will continue Thursday with further examination of Freese by Werkenthin.

Carter would make no projection as to when testimony would be completed, but has scheduled a room for the proceedings through October.

Zbig Gets Black Eye

WASHINGTON (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski has a black eye.

The national security adviser sported a small bandage under his left eye as he appeared with President Carter during a visit to the Central Intelligence Agency headquarters Wednesday. The flesh beneath was discolored and slightly swollen.

"You should have seen the other guy," Brzezinski joked with reporters at the White House earlier.

Actually, he said, the shiner resulted from surgical removal of a mole.

Chance For Showers Back Into Forecast

Temperatures over most of the South Plains climbed steadily toward 100 degrees again Wednesday as bright, sunny skies warded off predicted showers until late afternoon.

Scattered storms developed along a line from Littlefield southwestward to Kermit about 4:30 p.m. and then rolled slowly eastward toward Lubbock. National Weather Service forecasters late Wednesday were calling for a 20 percent chance of rain for Wednesday night.

NWS forecasters said the sporadic and widely scattered rainshowers, however, would leave less than one-quarter of an inch of moisture over most of the region with only a few larger totals near three-quarters of an inch of rain. By 9 p.m., only traces of precipitation were reported along the system's path.

While promising a clear, sunny and hot day today, forecasters tossed chance for rain back into forecasts for the weekend.

Today and Friday should be fair and warm, with highs near Wednesday's top reading of 99 degrees and lows tonight near 70. Winds should be southerly at 15 to 20 mph.

Rainshowers and thunderstorms in northern counties could dampen those areas on Saturday before clearing and turning warmer on Sunday. Beginning next week, temperatures should return to near 100-degree highs, the NWS said.

A 'Plug-In' For New Savings

A CLEAR OPTION faces the Lubbock City Council. It can save taxpayers/consumers about $3.5 million or it can save them about $5 million and have precisely the same amount of money in the City treasury.

When the mayor and Council members get around to adopting a final budget and setting a tax rate after next week's public hearing, surely they will want to let the citizens keep that extra $1.5 million.

To do otherwise, in our opinion, would be unthinkable.

The Council's options are to cut property taxes alone, as it has proposed, or to cut property taxes and electric bills.

IF IT ADOPTS the latter course, customers of both Lubbock Power and Light and of Southwestern Public Service Co. would have lower electric bills and that extra $1.5 million left in their jeans at the end of the fiscal year.

A little background is necessary for perspective.

For several years now, the City Council has been skimming 8 percent of the cream off the top of LP&L's fuel cost adjustment.

This was a small amount initially but it has taken quantum leaps as the cost of natural gas and other boiler fuel has skyrocketed.

This has made the Council look good at tax-setting time but it has made electric bills higher than those in Amarillo and other area towns.

As a result, SWPS is enjoying windfall profits on its Lubbock business equal to 12 cents on the City tax rate.

Here is how it works:

WHEN BOILER FUEL costs began skyrocketing in the early 1970s, both electric utilities here—as elsewhere—were granted permission to "pass through" the higher cost automatically to their customers.

In calendar 1977, this automatic fuel cost adjustment (FCA) added $9,898,892 to the bills of city-owned LP&L customers. It added $13,867,263 to the bills of Lubbock customers of investor-owned SWPS.

This fuel cost adjustment for both companies is pegged to LP&L's actual cost of fuel to fire its generator burners, although SWPS' actual cost is less because of its bigger operation.

THE CITY COUNCIL, however, has not been letting LP&L keep the full amount of the FCA it collects from its customers. Instead, the Council rakes 8 percent of the LP &L revenue "off the top" and diverts it into City Hall operations.

By coincidence, the fuel cost adjustment charged Lubbock customers of SWPS now is almost precisely 8 percent higher than its own actual cost, which it passes through to its customers outside Lubbock.

Thus, last year, according to the City's own figures, LP&L paid out $9,898,892 for boiler fuel, passed that cost along to its customers, but saw the Council divert $791,911 (8 percent) into the City's general fund.

During the same period, SWPS pocketed an extra $1,109,381 because of the 8 percent overcharge mandated by the City Council.

FOR THE FISCAL year beginning Oct. 1, the 8 percent FCA rake-off from LP&L revenues will enrich the City treasury by about $1.1 million, according to preliminary budget projections. This is equal to a little less than 10 cents on the City tax rate.

A proportionate increase in SWPS' FCA will give it about $1.5 million in unearned profits. This is equal to about 12 cents on the City tax rate, but the City doesn't get it.

In effect, the City Council is levying an 8 percent tax on its own electric utility but not on the competitive system. Customers of both companies pay the tax but less than half of it goes to the city; the rest goes into SWPS' profit picture.

THE PROPER COURSE of action for the City Council is therefore clear: Cut the fuel cost adjustment by 8 percent and save Lubbock consumers between $2.5 million and $2.6 million next year.

Then, instead of cutting property taxes by $3.5 million, the Council can cut them by $2.4 million. Even after this downward adjustment in the tax cut (to 19 cents instead of 29 cents per $100 valuation), the city's consumers/taxpayers would have a net savings of $1.5 million, equal to 12 cents on the tax rate.

This plan would put more of the cost of running the City on taxes, where it belongs, reduce electric utility bills here in line with those charged in Amarillo, and eliminate SWPS' excess profits which the Council has "forced" on it.

LP&L, incidentally, still would contribute about $900,000 to the City treasury next year in lieu of taxes.

The Council should jump at this chance to save taxpayers $1.5 million without the City losing any revenue.

Watch Your Step

REACTION TO the Big Apple's new dog-litter ordinance has been mixed so far. Some dog owners are dutifully trotting after their charges with appropriate retrieval equipment. Others are resisting. Some are being fined.

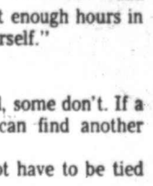

Pets alone, you see, deposit 20,000 tons of waste on the city sidewalks every year, according to NYC health department estimates.

Police are being accused of skulking in the shrubbery ready to pounce upon walkers who fail to tidy up after the big event. To avoid pressuring attitudes into belligerent stands on compliance, looks like New Yorkers are gonna have to step delicately for awhile.

But that's not so bad. They've already had a lot of practice.

ART BUCHWALD:

No Peace In Paradise For Women's Libbers

Art Buchwald is on assignment for a few weeks trying to find out if there are any Cuban troops on Cape Cod. He left behind his all-time favorite columns.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION is working in Tahiti as well as, or better than, any place in the world. I discovered this when I visited the beautiful island of Bora Bora, which inspired James Michener's "Tales of the South Pacific."

We stayed at the Hotel Bora Bora, where instead of hotel rooms visiting couples have their own grass-covered huts overlooking the crystal-clear, fish-happy lagoon.

One of the first things I noticed was that there were only women working in the hotel—at the desk or the bar, as chambermaids or waitresses.

ONE MORNING I made a discreet inquiry as to where all the men on Bora Bora were.

A Frenchman who lives on the island said, "They're probably still in their huts sleeping. They're very tired from celebrating the Fourteenth of July, which as you know has been going on for 10 days."

"But don't they have to go to work?"

"What do the men do?"

"Sleep, sail, fish if they feel like it. They manage to keep busy."

"But if the women work, what do the men use for money?"

"THE WOMEN GIVE them the money they make."

"But that's wonderful," I said. "This is the country of true Women's Liberation."

"It has its advantages," the Frenchman said.

"Who takes care of the children?"

"The women."

"Who does the cooking, cleaning and washing?"

"The women. You see, monsieur, the men here respect their women and let them do everything. As a matter of fact, there aren't enough hours in the day for a woman to fulfill herself."

"What about marriage?"

"Then a woman here does not have to be tied down."

"No. As soon as her man leaves her, she is free."

"This is a Women's Lib paradise," I said. "It must make the men angry to know the women have all the jobs."

"Not really. You must understand that the Tahitian man is not as ambitious as the American man. Many, many years ago, Tahitian men discovered there was nothing they could do that their women couldn't do better.

"Once they made this discovery, they decided it was stupid to compete with them."

"IF ONLY American men could learn this," I said, "we would indeed have a happy country."

"I do not want to give the impression that our men do not work at all. Many of them play musical instruments when their wives dance for the tourists."

"You mean after they work all day, cook, clean, and take care of their children, the women still have time to dance for the tourists?"

"Of course," the Frenchman said. "It is part of their duties. The tourists would be very disappointed to come all this way and not see the Tahitian women dance."

"To think," I said, "they've managed to have all this liberation without a revolution."

"It is a unique position for women to hold, but even in paradise there is trouble. A few women are complaining that they are too liberated. They're starting to demand fewer rights and more time off."

'Huh?'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Carter's Tax Follies

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Carter's tortuous tax course has been guided by a mixture of innocence and ideology, a fact confirmed the morning of Aug. 11 when a high-ranking Treasury official told a colleague that the bill passed by the House the previous night was really not so bad.

That not-so-bad bill had been quixotically opposed by the President in another demonstration of impotence. Innocently Carter and principal aides have consistently misjudged the tax temper of Capitol Hill.

Ideologically, he has insisted on using the Internal Revenue code as a device for the redistribution of wealth.

The White House decision to fight an unwinnable battle with precious little at stake was the capstone of the Jimmy Carter tax follies.

If Carter persists in the same course all the way to a veto, still threatened by the White House, the political consequences would be fundamental and severe.

Caught in the middle has been Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, operating under stresses felt by few predecessors in his famous office. While he has shared the President's innocence about what can be passed in Congress, he has waged a losing battle against ideological rigidity in the White House.

HIS RECOMMENDATION that the White House come to terms with the capital gains proposal sponsored by Republican Rep. William Steiger of Wisconsin only confirmed the wrong-headed contempt of senior Carter aides that Blumenthal lacks true grit.

An obvious compromise was at hand. In return for his amendment, Steiger was willing to deliver Republican support for a few Carter tax reforms which otherwise were stillborn.

Blumenthal, interested in lowered capital gains rates to induce capital formation, was ready to bargain.

"If Mike had been given the power to negotiate," a senior congressman told us, "we would have had a bill weeks ago." But this secretary of the treasury was denied authority to commit his administration.

THE REASON IS the White House mindset: opposition to any tax proposal providing more relief for rich than poor. But that would be true of any conceivable incentive for capital formation.

While domestic policy aide Stuart Eizenstat is widely blamed for inspiring this Catch-22, the real instigator is Jimmy Carter.

That became clear June 22 when three senior Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee—chairman Al Ullman of Oregon, Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois and Joe Waggoner of Louisiana—visited Carter at the White House.

After Ways and Means brushed aside administration proposals and approved its own tax cut, Waggoner implored Blumenthal to accept it as the best possible bill.

EVEN SOME liberal Ways and Means members secretly recommended against a floor fight. But the President insisted on more tax relief for the poor and less for the rich.

In innocence shared between the Treasury and the White House, it was thought the administration might carry its substitute Aug. 10. It never had a chance.

A dozen Democrats who backed it did so only because they were sure it would lose, delaying their votes until the issue was no longer in doubt.

The result was passage by the sword of what might have been done in peace, reviving a bipartisan conservative coalition whose appearance diminishes hope for liberal programs.

THE PRESTIGE OF Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has been diminished; the solidarity of Republicans and their collaboration with key Democrats, including Ullman, has been enhanced.

While the official administration position decries the House bill, Treasury technicians confide they would instantly accept it in preference to what the Senate will produce under the machinations of Finance chairman Russell B. Long.

Yet, presidential aides insist that if the House bill cannot be changed to conform to Carter's notions about redistributing income, a veto is possible.

Hardly anybody believes that. Having first lost his chance at a compromise containing some reform and having then provoked a purposeless and politically damaging fight in the House, it is unthinkable that the President would commit the ultimate folly of vetoing an election-year tax cut. But the unthinkable is commonplace in the Carter tax policy.

ANDREW TULLY:

For Men Only...

WASHINGTON—"It was hard to argue with Midge Costanza," said a middle-level White House staffer. Of President Carter's former extremely feminist adviser, he added: "Midge had a habit of--well—exhaling through her nose."

One wonders if that was one of the reasons Carter gave Midge the boot. As a male, I suspect the Georgia Mafia sought to get rid of a woman who apparently employed one of the female sex's more effective debating weapons—to wit, the derisive snort.

Someone, possibly Jimmy the Greek, once remarked that a girl with a loud, well-cultivated and timely snort was worth two points in any argument. Personally, I have always found a sudden nasal exhalation devilishly devastating, especially when assailed by the fear that a female debater might be right.

FROM HERE, THE villain—or hero—appears to be Jerry Rafshoon, Carter's latest image-maker. It was Rafshoon who cancelled a long-planned talk-show appearance by Midge on the grounds that the administration was adequately represented on the show by Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's domestic policy chief. Midge "resigned" a few days later.

Ten days later, HUD Secretary Patricia Harris, refused to appear before the House Banking Committee when the White House tried to soften parts of her prepared testimony critical of the Federal Reserve's monetary policy.

The impression persists that the Carter administration is finding its women hard to handle.

WOMAN-LIKE, THEY took Carter's promise of sexual equality seriously, and there is unrest among male staffers who feel that the opposite-sex delegation is too aggressive in arguing the issues.

The males' complaints sound like a throwback to those mossback days when women were expected to know their place—which was not exalted.

By a queer twist of fate, I have obtained a "Woman's Manual" drafted by a male White House staffer for internal perusal.

Taken as a serious document, the manual undoubtedly means well, but it is new evidence that there are still men in positions of political influence who know virtually nothing about women.

"NEVER LET YOUR picture be taken while holding a cocktail glass or cigarette, or drink liquor in public places, or smoke on the street, or when dancing, or while sitting at the head table," advises the manual.

It goes on: "Never appear bored. Never talk loud, argue about your husband or his political positions or make controversial statements. A limp or flabby handshake is out, and so is a steely grasp, which is unladylike."

If the manual is a serious attempt to bring order out of the Carter administration's chaos, the author never heard of Women's Lib. He must have been out to lunch when the American female almost overnight turned from a pussycat into a ravening tigress.

Obviously, a second manual should be written, for males. It wouldn't take long to do so, because the manual would consist of only one piece of advice, relevant to the world as all husbands know it. The advice would read: "Never try to tell a woman what to do."

JAY HARRIS:

To Tell A Stranger

THE STRANGER in the snappy sports car already was unhooking the gas nozzle when we drove up to the self-service center.

It was late and half an orange moon hung in the southwestern sky. The temperature hovered in the low-80s, with just a hint of a Fall breeze in the air.

"What sort of place is this?" The Stranger asked.

"It's Lubbock. Where is your home?" we queried, unable to see his license plate as we also played the role of station attendant.

"Chicago...Illinois...My son and I have been to Austin to visit a daughter...Heading west for a few days...This is some town. Didn't even know it existed...Must be a lot of oil refineries or something around from the smell as we drove up...Which way to Clovis?"

WE DECIDED to take it in stride. Then our Chamber of Commerce urge got the better of us...

"Surely you have have heard of Lubbock, even in Chicago," we told the gentleman, who seemed to be draining all the gas in Texas into his auto.

And before he could answer, we rambled on...

"It's a pretty big city, really. The census figures on the highway signs don't show it, but some of us think there may be 200,000 people here now..."

He looked up. "That big! Hell, I don't ever recall hearing anything about Lubbock..."

That was the red flag in front of the bull, as it were. We gave him the rest of the load.

"WELL, AS we were saying, it's a pretty big place.

"The traffic is like this (it was on Avenue Q) far into the night. And look over there, they're still playing baseball and tennis near midnight.

"What really makes things tick around here, however, is not the oil you smelled, although it plays a big part. The real key to Lubbock's booming economy and our low unemployment rate is the area's diversification..."

"How's that?" He had taken the bait. We paused to put the nozzle back on the pump. He just kept pumping away.

"Well, for one thing Lubbock sits almost in the middle of one of the largest underground irrigation areas in the world. We grow half of all the cotton in Texas within a 100-mile radius of here, about 15 percent of the nation's total... And..."

"SO THAT'S where it comes from," he said, leaning over to be sure all 25 gallons really were going into the tank.

"Yes, and we grow about 12 percent of all the nation's grain sorghum in these parts and on the High Plains up north of here. And..."

"You feed it to cattle," he finished the sentence.

"Yes, and then we have one of Texas Instruments' largest plants here, a world headquarters for consumer products. And there's a Litton plant, steel fabricating plants, clothing manufacturing. And they've been building houses and apartments here like crazy for seven years now."

He finally shut off the pump. "They say half of the people in Lubbock live in apartments," we went on.

"WELL, I'M a salesman," he told us. "And I wish I had some time to stop and look it over. It seems like a nice place. Now, which way to Clovis?"

We pointed north toward Fourth and Clovis Road, and gave him the directions.

The convenience store parking lot was full of cars, a couple waiting to get to the pumps. The man and boy got into the snazzy car and drove off.

We slid back under the wheel of our own car, and headed down Avenue Q, sort of proud of ourselves. That wasn't a bad "selling" job, if we did say so.

But almost in the same thought we had some misgivings. Had we really told The Stranger the whole story? What if he stopped to eat some place and got to talking to someone else. What would they say? What else could we have told him...

AS WE EASED through 19th Street, looking all directions for Lubbock's hot-rodders, we thought that yes, there were some other things.

We could have told him about how Lubbock is a college town with Texas Tech University with 23,000 students expected in a few days...How in the Fall the city turns into a chrysanthemum colorama...How we have big-time Southwest Conference sports...A top-notch Air Force Training Command base...

We could have mentioned all those things. And we could have mentioned some other things, too.

Like for instance, we might have warned him to be careful where he stopped this time of night. People have been known to be mugged right on the main streets in broad daylight.

AND WE COULD have told him he might have a hard time finding his way out of the city, let alone in.

Lubbock, you see, is the only metro area in Texas without a major crosstown Freeway, and one of the largest in the nation without an interstate highway through it. And we could have told him about our soaring traffic toll...

We could have mentioned the massive interference in the citizens' lives from a Big Brother bureaucracy...And that those same citizens, strapped for taxes and money as a result of inflation, are shelling out at least $1 million for forced busing...

We could have told him that Lubbock still is a friendly place despite its growth and the fact it has lost some of its spirit of teamwork and cooperation.

As we drove on, we wondered what sort of impression he really got of Lubbock. Was it a place he might like to visit and call home? Or, had we told him the rest of it, would it have sounded like Chicago?

Dominican President Sworn In

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Antonio Guzman was sworn in as the 77th president of this Caribbean country Wednesday and pledged to put an end to the corruption that plagued the 12-year government of his predecessor, Joaquin Balaguer.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, President Carter's representative to the inauguration, was one of hundreds of foreign delegates attending the ceremony in the National Assembly building. He was cheered by the crowd as he stepped from his car in the assembly plaza.

Vance and the Carter administration played an important role in the events that foiled an attempted anti-Guzman coup the day after the May 16 presidential election.

He told reporters the United States "has special sympathy for governments that represent the free choice of their people." He said the United States "will follow with sympathy and interest the program of the Dominican Republic to attain economic growth with social justice."

The United States, through the State Department and public statements by Carter, put pressure on the military officers who stopped the counting of votes for two days after the election. The pressure brought by the United States and other countries of the hemisphere apparently forced the military to back off and the vote count was resumed, eventually confirming Guzman's victory.

In his inaugural speech, Guzman promised to concentrate his efforts on developing the economy, particularly agriculture, working closely with private enterprise. But he said the important thing is that his government will bring a new moral attitude.

"The time has come for dedication to work in the service of the fatherland and not for illicit enrichment," he said. "A public official must distinguish himself for the honesty with which he carries out his duties. Our country has lived a moral crisis in the past few years, generating administrative corruption."

Guzman, 67, noted that Balaguer himself had acknowledged corruption in his government. In a public statement earlier this week, Balaguer said the worst damage to his administration was done by the "illicit enrichment of public officials."

Guzman was accompanied to the National Assembly house by Balaguer. A 21-gun salute greeted the new president as he arrived, and he was cheered by the thousands gathered in the plaza by the Caribbean. There were no visible signs of special security measures.

The oath of office was administered by Senate President Juan R. Peralta Perez.

Balaguer sat behind Guzman as the new president spoke of corruption in the last administration. But Guzman also had some praise for Balaguer, saying he made "possible a peaceful transition of power" to an administration with a different political ideology.

After the ceremony the two presidents shook hands and embraced.

School District Registration Set

Junior high and senior high students who have moved to Lubbock or a new school district in the city during the summer, should register today and Friday.

Students must have clear school records from the last school year and up-to-date immunization records before beginning school Aug. 29. Those without complete school records should see their principals.

Carter Expresses 'Deep Concern' About Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first public statement on the plight of the U.S. dollar in weeks, President Carter said Wednesday he feels "deep concern" over its steep decline and wants his advisers to recommend actions to stop it.

He indicated the plunge in the greenback's value has gone too far. The dollar had its worst day ever on Tuesday, falling to record lows against the German mark, the Japanese yen and the Swiss franc.

It rallied slightly on some exchanges Wednesday after Carter's statement, although most had closed for the day.

One action that appeared to be in the works was an upward push on interest rates by the Federal Reserve Board, which could make holding dollars more attractive to foreigners.

The downward plunge in the dollar, which has been under way for more than a year, has added to this nation's inflationary problems by increasing prices of imports, and has also made travel abroad by Americans very expensive.

But the decline has been worse than ever in the past week.

One congressional monetary expert said, "No one as far as I know has been able to figure out precisely what has caused the wild gyrations of the past few days. I don't know any other way to put it than it (the dollar) has just gone berserk."

In a statement issued by the White House, Carter said the situation is serious and could undermine economies both in this country and around the world if it continues.

"The sharp decline in the dollar and disorderly market conditions, at a time when the U.S. trade position is showing signs of real improvement, could threaten progress toward dealing with our inflation and achieving orderly growth at home and abroad," Carter said.

He said he has asked Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board "to consider what actions might be appopriate on their part and to recommend any future actions on his part to deal with the situation."

In the past 12 months, the dollar has lost 33 percent of its value against the Swiss franc, 30 percent against the yen and 15 percent against the German mark. It has also declined to a record low against the Dutch guilder and has also lost value against the normally weaker British pound and Italian lira.

During much of this period, the decline has been neither alarming nor surprising to administration officials, who said it was a natural consequence of the huge U.S. trade deficit and the trade surpluses in Japan and Germany.

Critics of U.S. policy both here and abroad have felt this apparent official disinterest was encouraging the decline. As recently as three weeks ago, Treasury Undersecretary Anthony M. Solomon said the decline of the dollar against the Japanese yen was "a yen problem, not a dollar problem."

U.S. officials have gambled that a cheaper dollar would solve its own problem by lowering the price of U.S. goods abroad to increase exports, while raising the price of such items as Japanese autos and television sets to trim imports. Some of this has happened, since recent trade figures show both the U.S. deficit and the Japanese surplus are shrinking, although they are still substantial.

The United States had a trade deficit in July of $1.6 billion, down from $2.2 billion a month earlier, while the Japanese trade surplus was $2 billion, down from more than $2.3 billion in June.

It wasn't clear what the administration has in mind to stop the slide in the dollar. An increase in interest rates is one possibility, although that could hurt domestic economic growth by increasing the costs of borrowing for both business and consumers.

Another possibility would be to step up intervention in foreign exchange markets by buying dollars with foreign currencies to create a demand for the dollar and thus support its value.

The cost of a massive intervention policy could be considerable. It is estimated there are $500 billion dollars held outside the United States, which is more than the domestic supply of money. Furthermore, the U.S. trade deficit pushes more dollars into foreign banks and exchange market every day.

The United States has intervened in the past year on a limited basis when there have been so-called disorderly market conditions, which are said to occur when there is a sudden move by currency traders to speed up the sale of dollars for no apparent reason.

Markets have clearly been disorderly in recent days, however, and it appears U.S. intervention, if any, was slight, and certainly not enough to turn them around.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q In that big hold-up in the Wall Street district, the loot included bearer bonds. The newspapers, television and radio called those bonds negotiable, "just like cash."

I have one bearer bond. Every six months, I clip an interest coupon from the bond and either cash it or deposit it at the bank where I have done business for 30 years and where I have a checking account, a savings account and a safe deposit box. I am always asked to put my account number on each coupon.

Why is my one paltry coupon scrutinized more carefully than bonds and coupons held by thieves who steal millions of dollars worth?

A. I doubt that it is. Your account number is used as a means of identifying you. When I cash a pay check or anything else, my bank wants my account number for the same reason. Most banks won't cash a check drawn on another bank, a coupon or a bond, unless you have an account.

Also, a rubber check, a stolen coupon or a stolen bond can be traced to the person who cashed it through the account number — if records are kept of the serial numbers of the stolen coupons and bonds. In this imperfect world, that is not always the case.

Technically, bearer bonds — which do not have the names of the owners printed on them — are negotiable, "just like cash." In practice, however, it can be very difficult to sell stolen securities.

Thieves often fence stolen securities at low prices — like 10 cents on the dollar. The loot might end up in Europe, where bearer securities are much more common than they are in this country. Or the underworld might use them as collateral for loans from banks. That is not an uncommon practice. A bank taken in by that ploy doesn't find out until its "customer" slips town.

Q. A month ago, I bought $5,000 of Series H, U.S. Savings Bonds. Now, from your column, I learn that the interest I will receive on those bonds will be subject to federal income tax. I already pay tax on the money I used to buy the bonds. Isn't this double taxation?

A. No. The $5,000 you put into the bonds isn't being taxed again. The interest you will receive — by check every six months — will be money your money is earning. That's entirely different money. If you had the $5,000 in a savings account, the interest you would receive would be taxable.

Money earned by money is taxable, in most situations. There are exceptions — such as the tax-free interest from municipal bonds.

If it's any consolation, H bond interest is not subject to state and local income taxes.

Q. I plan to move to a different state and will drive there. How should I transport the contents of my safe deposit box — stock certificates, will, car ownership, deeds, etc.? I will have no bank account or safe deposit box near my new home until I get there and make the arrangements.

A. Ask the bank with which you now do business to arrange the shipment for you — from your present bank to a bank in the town to which you are moving.

Q. My sister and my cousin insist that the yield on their stocks is the present dividend rate divided by the prices at which they bought years ago. I know you disagree. But how can I convince them?

A. You probably can't. The correct — and logical — way to figure return on stock is to calculate its "current yield" — the current dividend divided by the current market price. But an awful lot of people have hang-ups on this one. If they bought the stock at lower prices, their method shows higher — but meaningless — numbers.

But try this. Explain that a stock's yield should be counted as what it is doing for the owner — NOW. So, the natural thing is to figure the dividend as a percentage of the going market price. They are collecting current dividends.

Ray Testifies He Did Not Kill King

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted assassin James Earl Ray swore anew Wednesday that he did not kill Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., contending he was set up to take the blame by a man named "Raoul"

JAMES E. RAY

Ray, serving a 99-year prison sentence for King's slaying on April 4, 1968, had recanted his 1969 guilty plea three days after entering the plea. But it was the first time the 50-year-old convict had stated his case publicly under oath.

"I did not shoot Martin Luther King," Ray told the House assassinations committee in a jammed and heavily guarded hearing room.

Testifying under oath, Ray recounted in detail his now-familiar story that he thought he and Raoul were only gun-and contraband-smuggling conspirators until he learned Dr. King had been shot.

Ray swore he turned the rifle that killed King over to Raoul the day before the assassination in Memphis. He recounted that he had had a tire fixed at a service station several blocks away from the Lorraine Hotel, where the civil rights leader was slain, and was still in his white Mustang when he heard news of King's assassination on the radio.

Surrounded at the witness table by U.S. marshals, Ray told his story for nearly two hours. Other U.S. marshals were scattered around the large hearing room, watching reporters and spectators closely. Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., had admonished everyone not to move or stand up when Ray stood or was being escorted to and from the committee room. Anyone violating the order would be expelled immediately, Preyer warned.

When Ray was returned to the committee's chambers for an afternoon session of questioning, both he and his attorney, Mark Lane, pleaded for adjournment. Earlier, Ray had claimed exhaustion after alleged brutality by prison officials at an undisclosed location where he is being held. Federal prison officials denied the charge.

"I had an altercation in prison" at a federal holding cell, Ray said. "I'm kind of sleepy and tired. I think after today I'll be all right."

Lane charged that Ray was beaten during a fingerprinting session by U.S. marshals on Monday, and that the lights in his cell had been left on throughout the night. "My client hasn't slept for 48 hours," Lane said. He said his client is being kept in a Virginia prison that is a 45-minute plane flight plus a 20-minute drive from Washington.

Preyer granted the adjournment request after conferring with other members of the panel.

"The committee wants to be fair. We will adjourn until 9 a.m." on Thursday, he said.

When Ray finished a lengthy opening statement, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, immediately began questioning him about the varying versions he has given of the Raoul story for nearly 10 years.

Stokes asked Ray about a lie detector test to which he consented last year at the request of Playboy magazine. The magazine said the machine showed Ray lied when he denied killing King but told the truth when he said no one asked him or paid him for the murder. Ray later denounced the test as faulty.

Stokes: "Was the substance of your answers true?"

Ray: It was intended to be the truth. I can always make errors in recollection. Generally it was my intention to tell the truth."

Q. What was Raoul's full name?

A. I don't know.

Q. But you knew him well, you say you were in business together?

A. I didn't make no effort to know him well.

Q. Were you friends?

A. No.

Q. Accomplices?

A. Yes.

Stokes asked why he has described Raoul variously as a blond-haired Latin, a sandy-haired Latin and a reddish-haired French Canadian.

Ray said a book writer was wrong about the blond hair, and that his sworn testimony Wednesday depicting Raoul as having had dark hair with a reddish tint was the truth.

Ray told the committee he was giving essentially the same story he would have given at a court trial in 1969, if the court had not made an "in chambers deal" to have him plead guilty.

He accused his lawyer at the time, Percy Foreman, of telling him he could profit financially from pleading guilty and that family members might be arrested if he did not.

"I could have offered conclusive proof," Ray said.

Stokes asked him what the proof was.

"I thought I could establish that I was in various establishments in that area — the drugstore, the tavern, the service station" and not in the rooming house when the shot was fired, Ray replied.

Ray said he met Raoul in a tavern in Montreal in July 1967 and that within days Raoul recruited him to run contraband into the United States.

The following year, he testified, Raoul told him to buy a rifle as a sample for a gun-running operation into Mexico.

Ray said he bought one rifle in Birmingham, Ala., and that Raoul handled it. Ray also said he subsequently exchanged it for the more powerful 30.06 Remington rifle identified as the murder weapon.

Ray said he met Raoul on the outskirts of Memphis the day before the assassination, adding that Raoul took the rifle. Ray said Raoul told him he would show it to prospective Mexican customers.

"And that was the last time I saw the weapon," Ray said.

He said Raoul told him to rent a room at 422½ South Main Street, the rooming house from which Ray is accused of shooting King, and the two were to meet there at 3 or 4 p.m. on April 4.

Ray said he rented the room the next day and Raoul arrived sometime after 4 p.m. at Jim's Grill downstairs.

He said Raoul sent him out to buy a pair of binoculars the customers wanted to see. He said he then went down to the grill for a sandwich and left for the service station about 5:40 p.m.

Dr. King was assassinated at 6:03 p.m. — by a shot from the rifle fired from a bathroom window about 20 feet from the room Ray rented, Memphis police and the FBI concluded.

Ray said he drove back toward the rooming house but a police car was blocking the street and people "were running" so he veered away.

He said he heard on the car radio that King had been killed. Shortly after that, Ray said, he heard police were looking for a white man in a white Mustang.

He said he drove to Atlanta and abandoned the car, took one bus to Cincinnati, another to Detroit and from there got to Toronto, from which he later fled to Europe with a passport obtained under false pretenses.

Ray told black leaders who met with him last Thursday that he financed those travels with $1,100 left from money that Raoul gave him.

In his statement, Ray said Raoul paid him $1,500 for the first smuggling operation in 1967. Late in 1967, he added, Raoul gave him $2,000 to buy the Mustang, $500 for expenses, $500 to buy camera equipment, and in October, $2,000 for a smuggling operation in Mexico.

Ray said Raoul told him he would get $12,000 for the gun-smuggling operation to Mexico but he only got $500.

DR. KING'S TIE — The House Assassinations Committee released this photo Tuesday in Washington which shows the tie that was worn by Dr. Martin Luther King on the day he was shot. The tie was cut when the bullet entered the neck area of King. (AP Laserphoto)

Ray's Prison Security Given To U.S. Marshals

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray's lawyer said Wednesday that he obtained a court order to protect the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King from prison abuse while being held to testify before the House assassinations committee.

The lawyer, Mark Lane, has accused guards at the Federal Correctional Institution at Petersburg, Va., of beating Ray, keeping him under surveillance and under lights that prevented him from sleeping or eating.

U.S. marshals said Ray was not beaten but that he had been kept under television surveillance and constant light had been needed for that.

They said prison guards only restrained him by holding his arms when he stood up and resisted having his picture taken during processing on arrival at the prison Monday night.

After a hearing before U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant in Washington, Lane told reporters that he had won an order for Ray "to be taken out of the hands of prison officials and put in the hands of U.S. marshals."

The judge conducted the proceeding with private consultation with lawyers involved and left without announcing any ruling. His staff refused to confirm later that he had made a ruling.

U.S. Marshal J. Jerome Bullock, in charge of holding Ray for the House committee testimony, said his understanding was that three U.S. marshals will now have to watch Ray themselves rather than leave him under the care of prison officials.

Bullock said that does not necessarily mean Ray will have to be moved, only that marshals must watch him directly whether he is kept in the federal prison or somewhere else.

Lane, who is also a well-known conspiracy theorist, said a 20-minute drive plus a 45-minute plane flight is required to bring Ray to the hearing room on Capitol Hill or return him to the prison.

Earlier, Lane charged that federal prison officials and guards beat Ray on Monday night and put him in a hot, tiny punishment cell with the lights burning 24 hours a day. Federal marshals had transported Ray to Washington from Brushy Mountain State Prison in Petros, Tenn., earlier in the day.

Lane made a predawn telephone call to the White House on Wednesday to complain of Ray's treatment and was referred to the FBI, the Justice Department said.

Lane said Ray reported that he had not eaten in 24 hours because he feared that officials would put something in his food "to deter the function of his mind" in advance of his public testimony Wednesday before the House assassinations committee. He said Ray told him he could not sleep because of the burning lights and had suffered a headache from being punched.

Michael Aun, a spokesman for the Bureau of Prisons, denied that Ray was injured, saying rather that one officer had been kicked and another elbowed in the mouth during the struggle.

And Jerome Bullock, chief federal marshal for the District of Columbia, denied that Ray had been beaten.

Bullock said that at one point Ray had resisted a routine fingerprinting procedure for about 10 seconds, and marshals insisted that he submit to it. But Bullock said there was no scuffling or beating during the incident.

The dispute apparently erupted when officials at an unidentified location where Ray is being held, sought to photograph and fingerprint him.

Ray is serving a 99-year state prison term after pleading guilty to slaying King in 1968, plus an additional 1-to 2-year term for escape. His appearance before the assassinations committee was conducted under tight security.

Lane said federal marshals had told Ray he would not have to be photographed, but prison officials did so anyway, causing Ray to object.

Lane said Ray told him that prison officials and guards punched him in the back of the neck, knocked him to the ground and tore his shirt when he objected, then put him in the cell.

The facility at which Ray is being held has a policy of photographing and fingerprinting all inmates with a history of escape, but the processing of Ray was ended after the scuffle, Aun said.

Witness Seen Out Of Place

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray seemed something of an oddity in that crowd of worldly, well-educated, well-spoken, well-dressed men and women who serve in and work for Congress.

They were polished, or some might call it slick, and Ray bore all the rough edges of the small-time crook he once was and the prison convict he now is.

He appeared to ignore the sea of cameras and the packed rows of spectators, most of them reporters there to speed to the world the news that he had once again denied killing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Nor did Ray pay any attention to the guards surrounding him as he sat at the witness table and told his story to the House assassinations committee.

The room had been clamped under tight security almost at daybreak. As the crowd gathered and the committee members took their seats, Ray waited in an inner sanctum behind the hearing room.

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., presided. He was a judge before he came to Congress, and he slipped once and used a courtroom phrase, perhaps because the witness sounded so much like the defendants in so many murder trials before.

After the opening preliminaries, Preyer summoned Ray to the witness chair. Ray's lawyer, Mark Lane, disappeared behind the door to the inner sanctum. The door stood ajar for several long seconds, a face peeked out and then disappeared, a marshal whispered something to a committee member, the crowd shifted with curiosity, and finally the man they had all come to see stepped out, blinked and ducked his eyes from the searing television lights.

In front of the table, photographers were massed three deep, kneeling and snapping furiously, sounding for all the world like a horde of buzzing June bugs.

The marshals took seats behind Ray and on either side of him, two facing the committee, three facing the audience, their eyes darting, always darting, to catch every movement and weigh its potential for danger.

Ray wore brown slacks and a blue and brown plaid sportcoat and his graying hair was slicked into what used to be called a pompadour.

Preyer asked for his opening statement, and Ray plunged uncertainly into a three-page description of FBI documents his lawyer had obtained the day before. He seemed barely familiar with it, halting and stumbling over the words like a schoolboy required to read in class.

That finished, Ray began with more confidence to read his own 38-page description of his life on the lam after escaping from a Missouri prison in 1967 by hiding in a large breadbox trucked out of the prison.

He had typed the statement himself and apologized for errors of form and punctuation.

The story of his travels through the United States, Canada and Mexico, his faltering efforts to find work, and his few successful robberies for food and subsistence money was by now familiar.

He told of spending nights with a prostitute in Montreal and scanning the ads of underground newspapers for "unattached females." Only one caught his interest, the one who "listed herself as a nympho something."

He told of enrolling at one point in a locksmith course. Except when he first said it, it came out as "lock picking," the skill of a burglar.

By Ray's account, the mysterious Raoul appeared, disappeared and reappeared during these months of travel through the underbelly of American society.

No, Ray said, he never asked Raoul's last name.

He was asked why not.

"I assumed he was a crook," Ray replied. "I never made no effort to know him too well. That's an easy way to get killed."

Alcohol Election Set In Childress

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — A special election to consider legalized alcohol sales in Justice of the Peace Precinct 5 has been scheduled for Sept. 9.

A petition, signed by 13 persons requesting the election, was presented to Childress County Commissioners Monday.

Although commissioners were unwilling to make the necessary motion to call the election, after a two-hour stalemate, County Judge Harper Knight reminded the court of its legal obligation to call such a vote.

A similar election last year failed to bring the sale of alcoholic beverages to the community of Tell, included in precinct 5

Hearing Slated On Funds Use

STANTON (Special) — A proposed hearing on Revenue Sharing Funds for Martin County during Period 10 will be held at 10 a.m. Aug. 28 in the Commissioners Courtroom here.

A sum of $81,717 will be available. Anyone desiring to propose a use should be present for this meeting.

Snyder Teacher Programs Set

SNYDER — Pre-school staff development programs for Snyder Public Schools faculty members will begin Aug. 28 at Snyder High School.

Bud Campbell, principal of North Mesquite High School, will lecture during the general meeting at 10:45 a.m. Aug. 28.

The programs, which will continue through Sept. 1, offer training for teachers of gifted students.

Lamb County Reunion Slated

A-J Correspondent

LITTLEFIELD — Lamb County Pioneer 29th Annual Reunion will be Tuesday in the Lamb County Ag and Community Center on South Hall Avenue here.

Registrations begins at 1:30 p.m. in the community center with the program beginning at 3 p.m. The barbecue will begin at 5 p.m.

Gifts will be presented to the oldest man and woman attending the reunion, to the guest who has traveled the farthest and to the person who has lived in Lamb County the longest.

Howard Coliseum Director Named

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Carl McMilen, news editor of the radio station KBST, has been named director of the new $3 Million Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at Howard College.

He was selected from a number of applicants, officials reported, because of his knowledge of the community and ability at public relations. He will assume duties Sept. 1. at a salary of $13,600.

The coliseum will be opened officially Sept 10, about 11 months after its first anticipated opening.

Plant Slated At Old Howard Airport

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — American Thermo Products Inc. of Fort Worth will open a plant in a vacant building at the old Howard County Airport by Oct. 1.

Oscar Holt, company president Wednesday signed a contract with the Big Spring Industrial Foundation for a factory which will employ up to 50, 42 of them locally, and have an annual payroll of $250,000.

It will be housed in the building which formerly served Trans-Regional Airlines as a terminal facility.

The plant, according to Holt, will manufacture styrofoam cartons used in packaging small electronic equipment. The company contracts with Texas Instruments for these cartons.

Sales for the first year are expected to reach $2.5 million, Holt said.

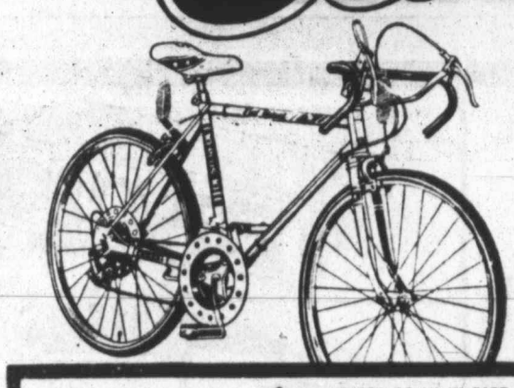

Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., which operates a refinery in Big Spring, will be a major supplier for the new plant, which is one of four planned by the Fort Worth Co. Other locations have not been selected.

Ex-Ag Secretary Injured By Sniper

NEW YORK (AP) — Orville Freeman, former U.S. secretary of agriculture and a one-time governor of Minnesota, was injured by glass which shattered when a sniper fired at a commuter train as it traveled through the Bronx, Conrail officials said.

Both Freeman and another passenger injured by the shattering plexiglass declined treatment for their injuries Tuesday night. Freeman, 60, served as agriculture secretary from 1961 until 1969. For the six years prior to that, he was governor of Minnesota. Freeman now works at Business International Inc. in Manhattan and lives in Ardsley-On-Hudson in Westchester County.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Piano Man Looks Familiar

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The man at the piano in a Printer's Alley watering hole looked familiar, if a bit out of place.

SPIRO AGNEW

He was Spiro Agnew.

The former vice president spent two days in Nashville on business, and he passed parts of Monday and Tuesday nights at the Brass Rail piano bar. Monday, he played into the wee hours, and Tuesday he dropped by to give Frank Sinatra's regards to the regular pianist, Bobbie Joe Walls.

"If we had stayed open until 3 a.m., I know he would have been right there at the piano till then," Miss Walls said of Agnew.

"When we played 'stump the piano player,' he was pretty tough to beat. His knowledge of music is amazing. It's something I didn't expect."

Female Draft Evaders Eyed

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The attorney general's office ruled Wednesday that Israeli defense officials may hire private detectives to track down women who evade the draft with false claims of religious belief.

The ruling was issued after it became apparent that Israeli police were unwilling to make the check necessary to enforce new rules that allow females to avoid military service simply by declaring they keep kosher and do not drive on the Sabbath.

Previously, women had to convince an examining board that their religious way of life would be threatened by conditions in the army. n

"There is something defective in delegating the entire subject of control to a non-governmental organization," acting Attorney General Mai Gabai said.

"However, this does not prevent the controlled use of private detective agencies," he said.

Israeli newspapers said it appears the Defense Ministry — which did not oppose the amendment making it easier to dodge the draft — has belatedly realized there will not be enough girls in the army to meet its needs.

'Cheap Ketchup' Irks Diner

DETROIT (AP) — Self-proclaimed restaurant dining champ Fred Magel says he's only picky about "cheap ketchup."

Magel, a Detroit native who now lives in a kitchenless apartment in River Forest, Ill., was back in his hometown Monday to chomp down meal number 41,300 away from home.

The meal, put away with gusto, was a one-third pound burger with bacon and cheese.

Magel, 68, says he has dined out in 60 countries and claims to be the only person who breaks a world record three times a day. He began counting his restaurant meals 50 years ago.

"It's sort of an obsession," he said. "I just enjoy eating out. The only thing I am touchy about is cheap ketchup. All I want in a restaurant is basic cleanliness."

1903 Grad Misses Reunion

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Lillian Kimball Taylor celebrated the diamond anniversary of her graduation from Kennebunk High School Tuesday, even It has been three or four years since the only other survivor of the class of 1903 has been able to leave a nursing home for the reunion.

So, surrounded by relatives and friends at the Arlington Inn, Mrs. Taylor revived in memory the 18 young men and women who graduated with her 75 years ago.

Phony Hand Fools Officers

SANDWICH, N.H. (AP) — In the cave, it looked like the outstretched hand of the victim of a rockslide.

But the hand was rubber, and "somebody's getting a 'ho ho' today," said State Police Sgt. John Casey.

Several troopers and state fish and game officers spent hours getting to the remote cave where two young hikers spotted what they thought was part of a body.

"Even as I look at this thing before me now, it looks like the real thing," Casey said.

Thief Mystifies Police

His feat is weird. He grabs shoes. One at a time. While women are wearing them.

"It's a little weird but there is not that much to go on," Police Sgt. Dick Ramon said Wednesday.

The latest victim was Cecelia Hartfield, 25. She was walking along a South Seattle street when a hand reached from the bushes, grabbed her leg and ripped the shoe from her foot. Then the assailant took to his heels.

And Ozeal Wrice, a teacher at a nearby day care center, says another aide at the center was knocked down a few months ago by a man who fled with her shoe. And the same thing happened to a teen-ager, she said.

"It's very weird. All he takes is one shoe," said Wrice.

Borg's Estate Courtless

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Triple Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg's new summer estate cost a reported $463,000 — and it doesn't even have a tennis court.

BJORN BORG

Borg bought the island estate about 100 miles south of Stockholm as a summer home, real estate agent Bengt Rosenberg said.

The estate boasts a manor, 12 other houses and a gym and badminton court, but no tennis court, Rosenberg said.

"There is plenty of room for building tennis courts," said Rosenberg of the Kattilo Island estate.

Nursing Home Patrons React To Disco Beat

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Toes tapped and fingertips snapped.

It was proof that if the spirit's willing, the body won't hesitate to follow — even for the elderly living at a nursing home on Cleveland's West Side.

As part of a physical therapy and nursing department exercise program at St. Augustine Manor, people who had been unresponsive now are reacting to the disco beat daily.

"The response to the music was immediate," said Helen Pauper, director of nursing, who notes that even those confined to wheelchairs are caught up in the "Saturday Night Fever" atmosphere.

About 50 residents, whose average age is 78, participate in the program.

And work schedules of staff members have been arranged so most of them can be with the residents during the half-hour morning sessions.

Licensed Practical Nurse Donna miller said 86-year-old Bernadette Kinley could hardly stand up when the program began two months ago.

Postmen Lick Mystery of 15 Flag Stripes

MIDLAND (AP) — Clifford Netter, a stamp enthusiast, really thought he had something when he discovered the U.S. flag on one of the new 15-cent stamps had 15 stripes instead of the usual 13.

The stamp shows the unfurled flag with the words "Land of the Free, Home of the Brave," taken from the Star Spangled Banner.

Netter called the local post office which could offer no ready explanation. He then called the Midland Reporter-Telegram, which called the Postal Service in Washington.

The postal service's consumer advocate office had no answer and consulted its higher-ups, who offered this explanation:

The stamp is the Fort McHenry commemorative, and shows the flag as it looked in the War of 1812, with 15 stars and 15 stripes to designate the 15 states of the Union. It wasn't until 1818 the flag reverted to 13 stripes.

"I always look at stamps," Netter said. "I used to collect them so I always look for mistakes."

Warm Romanian Welcome Greets Chinese Leader

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Thousands of chanting, cheering Romanians gave a tumultuous welcome Wednesday to Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng as he arrived for a five-day visit — a trip that has aroused the ire of the Soviet Union.

Officials of this independent-minded Communist nation, already in disfavor with the Soviets for developing ties with China, regarded the welcome as comparable with that given Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in 1976. But Western diplomats said the crowds were bigger and more enthusiastic.

"It was a tremendous welcome," said one diplomat, who asked not to be identified. "We compared this with all of the other receptions and this was bigger."

Romanian television estimated the flag-waving crowd lining the motorcade route from Otopeni Airport at 100,000. Other estimates were as high as 250,000.

Students, engineers, office and factory workers are routinely given time off when foreign dignitaries make state visits to Romania and are told by their superiors to attend welcoming ceremonies.

The Soviet Union and China have been at odds for years because of deep-seated ideological differences and a border dispute and have been competing for influence in many countries. One of the most recent sources of friction is the Soviet Union's support of Vietnam in its border conflict with Cambodia. The Chinese support the Cambodians.

Hua looked reserved as he walked down the steps of his plane, but that soon melted into broad smiles as he embraced President Nicolae Ceausescu, shook hands with diplomats and waved to the cheering crowds from an open-top Mercedes limousine.

At Victory Square, where the motorcade made one of several stops, Hua kissed a child who draped a Communist youth group's scarf around his neck and a boy who gave him flowers. Hua then was swept into a line of dancers and sandwiched between two women.

The first of several meetings between Hua and Ceausescu began Wednesday afternoon. Ceausescu ushered the Chinese leader into the presidential palace, where photographers were allowed to take pictures. Both men were jovial during the photo session.

Hua and Ceausescu talked privately for about 40 minutes with only their interpreters present before being joined by aides to continue the discussions. The Chinese news agency Hsinhua called the talks "very warm and friendly."

The visit to Romania, first stop on a trip that also will take Hua to Yugoslavia and Iran, was expected to concentrate on economic ties between Romania and China and not emphasize politics.

Hua will tour a heavy-machinery plant in Bucharest, an oil-rig factory near the northern city of Ploesti, a tractor factory at Brasov and a shipyard in Constanta on the Black Sea.

Western diplomats have speculated that China may be interested in Constanta as a possible site for the first Chinese consulate in Europe. The consulate, possible under an agreement signed during Ceausescu's visit to Peking in May, could make the Soviets nervous because it is only 240 miles east of the Soviet naval base at Sevastopol.

However, as one diplomat put it, "Ceausescu is a master of judging the limits of Soviet tolerance" and will strive to keep a balance in his independent course in developing relations both inside and outside the Soviet sphere.

"The Soviets must feel their basic security interests are not in jeopardy," the diplomat said.

The Soviets have been annoyed by recent Romanian moves and have issued a series of communiques criticizing the visit by Hua.

This year Ceausescu has visited the United States, China and the Asian Communist states of North Korea, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. The Soviets were displeased with a Romanian-Cambodian friendship treaty.

But Ceausescu deplores differences between Communist countries and other international tensions and tries to keep good relations with a wide range of countries despite ideological differences.

Confusion Precedes Chess Draw Accord

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi agreed to a draw Wednesday in the 12th game of their world chess championship match but squabbled over who offered the standoff.

The 27-year-old Soviet champion and the 47-year-old challenger, a Russian defector, will continue the match Thursday with their 13th game, Korchnoi playing white.

Florencio Campomanes, chief organizer of the $550,000 tournament, announced the draw just after noon Wednesday, almost five hours before the players were scheduled to resume play. The game had been postponed from Saturday night to give Karpov a rest.

It was the 10th draw of the tournament, which began July 18 and is expected to continue for at least three months. Each player has won one game. The first player with six victories takes the championship, which Karpov gained in 1974 when American Bobby Fischer refused to defend his title against the Russian. The winner gets $350,000; the loser $200,000.

Wednesday's confusion was sparked by Korchnoi's denial that he had offered a draw Tuesday night after Karpov, apparently expecting Korchnoi to seal his 44th move for adjournment, left the stage.

Lothar Schmid, the West German chief arbiter, said that Korchnoi had offered the draw but then went ahead and sealed his move, rook to king's rook 1.

On Wednesday, Korchnoi, 47, denied making the offer, saying, "Probably he misunderstood me."

Korchnoi claimed Karpov offered him a draw after his 43rd move, but the challenger said he rejected, saying the offer should be relayed through Schmid.

Korchnoi declared before the 10th game that he had "cut off friendly communications" with the champion and asked Schmid to require that draws be offered through him. The two players and their delegations have been quarreling over procedure and other matters since the match began.

Karpov insisted that chess tradition be followed and the draw be offered directly to his opponent.

Korchnoi complained to Schmid Wednesday afternoon about Karpov's stand. Reporters heard the challenger tell the arbiter that if Karpov persisted in making direct offers, "I will abuse him. I won't be sparing with my words and will call him a bandit."

"Don't do that," Schmid begged. "If you do, you will be liable for (a charge of) interference. Keep your sense of humor."

At the same meeting, Schmid apologized for the misunderstanding over who made the offer, and Korchnoi agreed to abide by Schmid's statement of Tuesday night that the challenger had offered the draw. Karpov then accepted.

The Soviet camp wasn't spared confusion. "I don't know what happened," said Viktor Baturinsky, Karpov's head of delegation.

Watergate Defendants' Pardons Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four of the original defendants in the 1972 break-in at Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate complex have been denied pardons by President Carter, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Carter denied the pardons without stating any reason, Justice Department officials said.

The four men are Bernard L. Barker, Frank A. Sturgis, Eugenio R. Martinez and Virgilio Ramon Gonzalez. They were convicted of burglary and wiretapping in the June 17, 1972, break-in. All four were released from prison in 1974.

All four men live in the Miami area. Gonzales is a locksmith, Barker a city sanitation inspector, Martinez a car leasing agent and Sturgis works for a book company.

Only former President Richard M. Nixon has received a pardon in the Watergate break-in or cover-up cases. He was pardoned by former President Gerald R. Ford.

G. Gordon Liddy, who was also convicted in the break-in, had his sentence commuted in April 1977 by Carter.

The only two defendants in Watergate-related crimes who are still in prison are former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and presidential aide H.R. Haldeman. Mitchell is scheduled for parole on Jan. 19 and Haldeman is to be freed on Dec. 20.

The effect of a pardon is to grant official foregiveness for past crimes. The practical effect of a pardon in some states is to restore eligibility for certain rights such as voting, running for office and applying for a gun license.

Iceland's Leftists May Govern

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The leader of Iceland's communist-oriented People's Alliance party was asked Wednesday to try to put together a new government for this island republic — a strategically located North Atlantic Treaty Organization member.

President Kristjan Eldjarn turned to Josefsson after former Prime Minister Geir Hallgrimsson, of the relatively conservative Independence Party, failed to form a government.

The Alliance, which holds 14 seats in Iceland's 60-seat Parliament, is a long-time opponent of the U.S.-run Keflavik Air Base in the southwest region of this Ohio-sized nation of 220,000 people.

But if it forms a coalition, ending a seven-week post-election stalemate, the Alliance is expected to have difficulty getting the backing of its partners to eliminate the American presence. One likely partner for the alliance is the moderate-left Social Democrat party, which also has 14 seats.

The Social Democrats, along with other major parties, favor a continued NATO role for this country, which serves as a military watchpost in the North Atlantic between northern Scandinavia and Greenland.

The Social Democrats are strongly on record opposing expulsion of the 3,000 U.S. servicemen who conduct and support reconnaissance of air and sea traffic in the corridor through which Soviet ships, submarines and planes move to the Atlantic. Iceland has no army or defense minister.

The People's Alliance was formerly the People's United Party, a socialist party, and before that it was the Communist Party of Iceland.

Josefsson was chairman of the local Communist Party in the town of Neskaupstadur before World War II. The Alliance insists it is not a Communist party, but a left-wing socialist party along the lines of the French and Italian Communist parties.

NATO officials in Brussels declined comment on the prospect of Alliance-led government here. But they have previously declared their opposition to significant Communist participation in the governments of NATO's 15 member states. Secretary-General Joseph Luns said last January that he would consider it "extremely grave" if "real Communists" gained major posts in an alliance country.

Communists held minor cabinet posts in Iceland in 1956-58 and 1971-74 and NATO officials have acknowledged some sensitive material was withheld from Iceland at that time. Data also was withheld from Portugal's leftist government in 1974-75.

Neither country ever has sat on NATO's highly secret nuclear planning group.

Hallgrimsson's governing coalition of his own party and the Progressive Party came out of the June elections with a majority considered too thin to govern. The coalition parties both lost five seats, dropping to 20 and 12, respectively.

The former coalition has been governing in a caretaker's status since the election. Earlier, Social Democrat leader Benedikt Grondal tried and failed to form a coalition.

Four Arrested In Raid On PLO

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Authorities have arrested four persons in connection with the Aug. 5 attack on the Palestine Liberation Organization office here in which three Palestinians and one Pakistani guard were killed, officials said Wednesday.

The Federal Investigation Agency refused to disclose the identities or nationalities of the suspects.

The PLO mission chief in Islamabad, Yousuf Abu Hantash, said after the raid that the attackers spoke with pure Iraqi accents, but the Iraqi ambassador to Pakistan, Ahmed Zafar al-Gailani, said no Iraqi was involved.

He said the attackers might have been members of a radical Palestinian faction opposed to Yasser Arafat, leader of the mainstream PLO.

The attack on the Islamabad office was part of a surge of violence between the PLO and Iraqi-backed Palestinian militants that began in London July 28 with an abortive assassination attempt on Iraq's ambassdor to London.

There were other shootouts in Paris, Beirut, Lebanon and Karachi, Pakistan. The feuding factions have not fought in recent days.

The radicals say the PLO is not doing enough in the war against Israel. The radicals oppose any talks with Israel and have vowed to destroy the Jewish state. Arafat has said he supports Israel's talks with Egypt if they will lead to an independent Palestinian state.

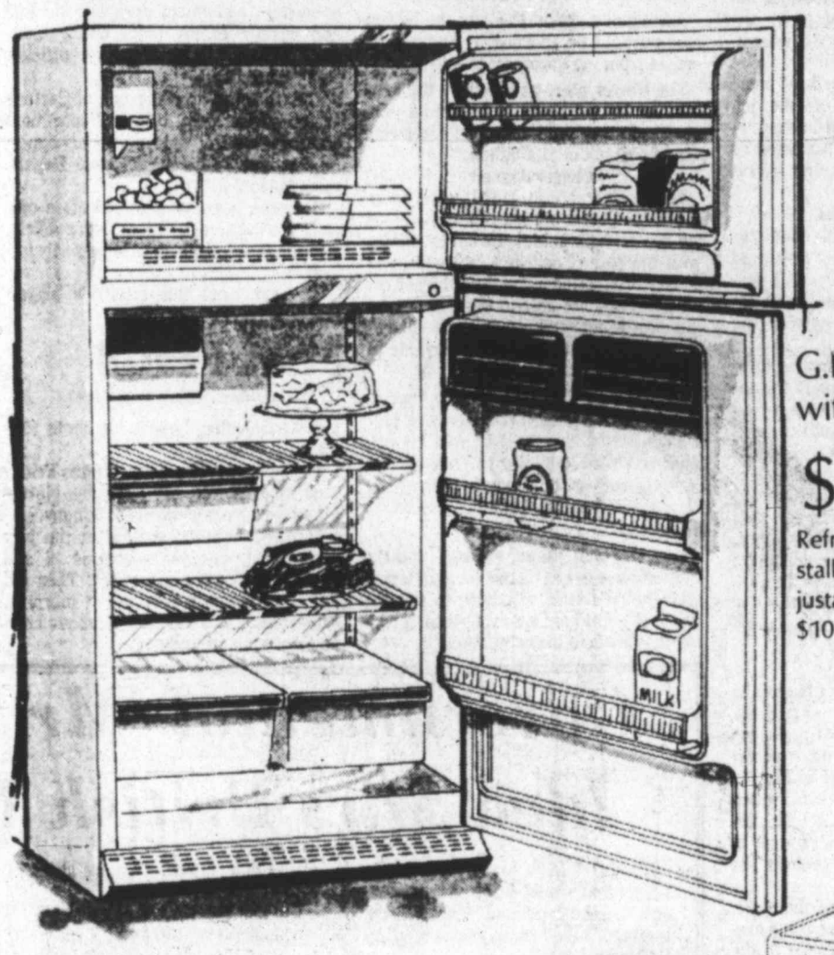

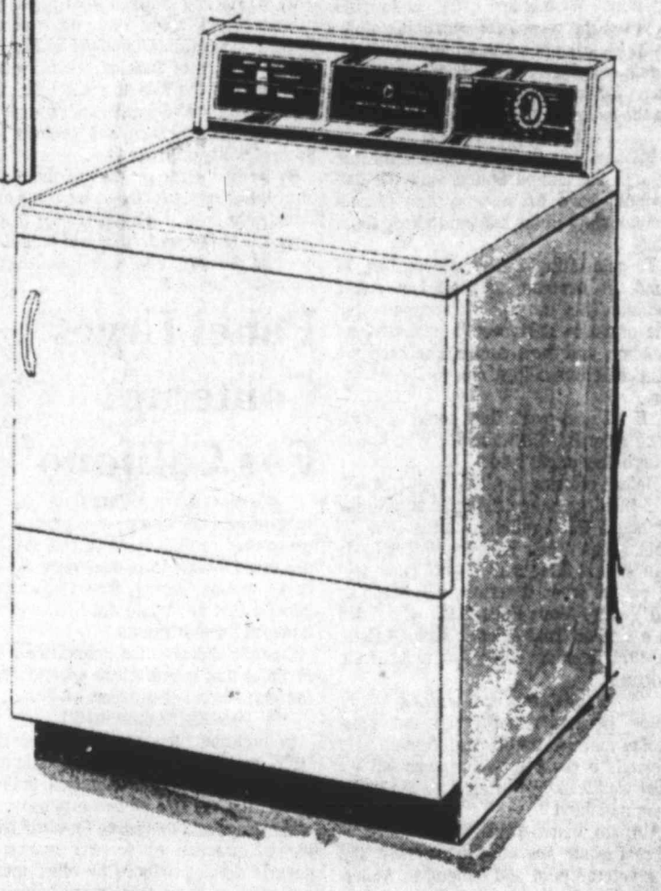

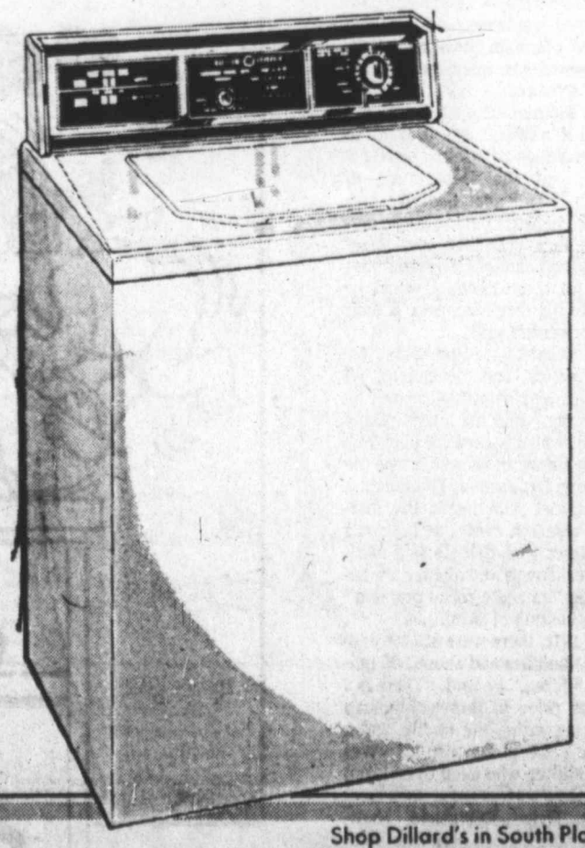

FEW JUKE BOXES LICENSED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only 132,000 of the estimated 400,000 juke boxes in this country have been licensed as required by a new law, according to a Library of Congress study. The law, which became effective last Jan. 1, calls for an annual $8 license for each jukebox.

Middle-Income Aid On Tuition Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, seeking to lighten the burden of rising higher education costs, passed a bill Wednesday that would extend federal college tuition aid for the first time to students from middle-income families.

The aid, similar to what President Carter proposed, was added 63-29 to another program that would allow a college tuition tax credit of up to $500 per student. The Senate passed that program late Tuesday.

A version of the tax credit bill already has passed the House, where prospects are good for approval of the Carter plan as well.

Carter has said the nation cannot afford both programs, leading to speculation the president would veto the tax credit which he has criticized as unfair.

Both bills are aimed specifically at helping middle class families foot the higher education bill.

Here are major elements of the Carter plan as approved by the Senate:

— The basic provision would increase from $16,000 to $25,000 the maximum family income level for which tuition aid would be available. The grants would range from $1,800 a year at the $6,000 income level to $250 at the $25,000 level. Similar increases would be made in college loan programs. The size of the grant would depend on family size and the amount of disposable income available after the family's basic necessities are provided for.

An additional 1.2 million students would become eligible for such aid, with 64 percent of the benefits going to families with incomes of $15,000 to $25,000. Before approving the tuition credit, the Senate ended three days of arguments over constitutionality by eliminating a provision that would have provided a credit for parents of pupils attending private elementary and secondary schools.

Expanded Grants

— Another 182,000 middle-income students with "exceptional financial need" would be helped by expanded supplemental grants of up to $1,500. This program, administered by the colleges, assists mainly middle-income students who might qualify for a small basic grant or none at all. The college determines eligibility and must match the supplemental grant.

— The guaranteed student loan program, currently the main federal aid to middle-income students, would be liberalized. The government would pay the interest on tuition loans while the needy student is in college regardless of how high his family income. The government would guarantee repayment of the loan.

Contribution Doubled

— The contribution to the college work-study program would be doubled. This pays 80 percent of the student's salary for a parttime job in college or another non-profit institution. The government now pays for about 750,000 such jobs; the bill would add about 200,000 more.

The tuition tax credit bill would allow a student (or his parents if he is a dependent) to reduce his income taxes by as much as $250 starting this year and up to $500 a year starting in 1980. The credit would offset college tuition and fees.

A student's ability to claim the tuition credit would be reduced by any aid received from the government grants.

The Carter plan, as voted by the Senate, would cost about $1.2 billion a year above existing programs. The tax credit would cost about $1.4 billion.

Danger Argued

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chief sponsor of the Carter bill, told the Senate, "If we fail to help middle-income America with the cost of college ... we will be in danger of creating a system of higher education available only to the rich — who can afford to pay their own way — and to the poor — who are eligible for federal financial aid."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., noting that 59 senators voted two weeks ago for a balanced budget by 1981, told his colleagues, "We are talking in Congress out of both sides of our mouth. I don't believe the federal government should do everything."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., said the ultimate losers will be the youth of today, who in the future will have to pay the price of continued heavy federal spending that leads to more inflation.

Outage In Memphis Charged To Guard

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A private guard assigned to protect a utility substation during a strike by police and firemen was arrested Wednesday and accused of pulling switches that temporarily blacked out the entire metropolitan area overnight.

Authorities said the man told them he was intoxicated at the time. Inspector William Maley Jr. of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department said there did not appear to be a direct connection between the blackout and the strikes.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler said there had been so few problems — despite looting in the early-morning hours Wednesday — that he was easing the dusk-to-dawn curfew he imposed after policemen walked off their jobs a week ago. Instead of lasting from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m., the new curfew was to extend from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Later Wednesday, the police and firemen's unions made a proposal to counter Chandler's suggestion that voters be asked whether they wanted to pay for a wage increase with a sales tax hike. Details were not made public. Police union attorney Russell X. Thompson said "We are making some progress." He and Allen Blair, lawyer for the firemen, met with Chandler through the day.

Sources said the major differences between the city's offer and the unions' was that the unions wanted a shorter contract and an agreement that no resprisals would be taken against striking workers.

Sometime after the unions' counterproposal, the city requested that the unions be held in contempt of court for striking. It was not known whether that move was in reaction to the counterproposal. Hearings were set for today on the police union and Friday on the fire union.

City labor leaders, meanwhile, threatened to widen the strike.

Roving pickets temporarily kept some garbagemen and teachers off the job Tuesday. School is scheduled to start today, but the teachers' union has urged its 5,500 members to respect any picket lines.

Boycott Threatened

Tommy Powell, head of the Memphis AFL-CIO Labor Council, said he would ask the council on Monday to call a general strike and boycott of the city unless progress was made toward settling the disputes.

The blackout and arrest came as tourists gathered in Memphis to mark the anniversary of Elvis Presley's death a year ago Wednesday. At least 12,000 persons were expected to file past Presley's grave in his Graceland estate during the day.

The city of 650,000 and surrounding Shelby County was thrown into darkness at 12:33 a.m. when the Memphis Light, Gas Water Division's Cordova substation which controls one of two main Tennessee Valley Authority lines into the city was shut down. Power was not completely restored until 3:10 a.m.

Guard Arrested

Richard David Hyder, 29, of Nashville, was arrested at the substation shortly afterward. He was charged with malicious mischief and interfering with power lines. Hyder was an employee of Murray Guard Service of Jackson, Tenn., which was hired by the TVA to protect the substation. National Guardsmen, on duty in the city since Friday, had been at the power facility until Monday.

Hyder had come on duty at midnight, authorities said. "As far as we can determine right now ... it's not related to the strikes," Maley said. "He said he did it, he said he was intoxicated but didn't know why he did it."

Balloonists Sail Over Irish Port

tion is that they will fly to France," she told the AP. "It's night here, and they plan to land in the daylight, which will put them around France.

"Felt Very Positive"

"It's kind of strange," she continued. "I guess we've been under enough tension, although we've felt very positive about them making it. It has been a little tense, just wondering when and how they were doing."

She said her husband and the two others had "prepared very well for this flight" and that the only reason her husband and Abruzzo failed last year was that they ran into "extreme weather conditions that we don't feel most men would have come through alive."

Double Eagle II, trailing a catamaran boat as a gondola, set out late Friday from Presque Isle, Maine. Shortly after 8 a.m. Wednesday, the balloonists eclipsed the record for remaining aloft — 107 1/2 hours set in an attempted Atlantic crossing in 1976. By this morning, they had traveled more than 3,000 miles in the balloon.

Watch Over Helium

Michael Levitt, a spokesman for the trio in the United States, said the balloonists have to make certain enough helium stays in the balloon to keep them aloft.

To gain altitude, they jettison bags of sand. To descend, they release release helium. They did this off and on across the ocean to skirt over or under storm systems, and must continue to keep the proper helium-ballast mix to stay in the air.

"If all goes well, they could set distance records," Levitt said. "Who knows where they might land?"

Before crossing the Irish coast the helium-filled craft was flying at an altitude of about 2 1/2 miles in bitter-cold 40-knot winds. Their balloon, 65-feet in diameter and filled with 160,000 cubic feet of helium when it set off, was made by Ed Yost of Sioux Falls, S.D., who failed in a similar trans-Atlantic balloon flight in 1976, coming down 700 miles from Portugal.

Want European Mainland

Sue Bernard, another ground grew spokesman in the United States, said Ireland "is considered European soil but they would like to bring it to the European mainland."

Abruzzo, married with four children, is in real estate and other businesses, and is a veteran pilot and balloonist. Anderson, who also is married and has four children, is a longtime pilot and balloonist who heads a uranium and copper mining company. Newman, who was married five months ago, is a hang glider manufacturer and a former airline pilot.

Of the previous 17 attempts to cross the Atlantic, 16 went east and two headed west from Europe. Three never got off te ground, four traveled less than 200 miles. Only three managed to stay in the air for more than 2,000 miles.

The first attempt was made in 1873 by W. H. Donaldson, who left New York but crashed two hours later in the Catskill Mountains. The next attempt in 1881 was from Minneapolis, Minn., but it crashed before reaching the Atlantic Ocean.

Yost stayed aloft 108 hours before crashing. Abruzzo and Anderson stayed aloft for 64 hours and traveled 2,950 miles on their first attempt. Their balloon came down in that effort about five miles northwest of Iceland.

Panel Urges Contempt For Califano

subpoenaed documents to Congress because they contain trade secrets that are protected by law from disclosure. He cited an opinion Tuesday from the attorney general that he should not turn over the material for that reason.

Califano did give the committee a list of firms that manufacture generic drugs for name-brand companies.

HEW "Committed"

In addition, the secretary said that HEW and the Food and Drug Administration "are deeply committed both to promoting the use of less expensive generic drugs and to ending the drug companies' practice of secretly marketing generic drugs produced by other manufacturers as their own, more expensive brand name products."

Califano left the meeting before the committee voted in favor of the contempt citation.

Eileen Shanahan, an HEW spokeswoman, said Califano would have no immediate comment on the action. She also said that the list of generic drug manufacturers given the subcommittee would not be made public.

Accepted In Confidence

A subcommittee source said the information had been accepted in confidence, adding that it would not be released unless members voted to do so.

The subcommittee was closely divided on the contempt issue.

At first, members voted 7-6 to table the contempt citation, but that was later reconsidered and four more votes were taken before the final one.

Republicans had proposed putting off a contempt vote until after the three-week recess starting Friday, to give Califano time to comply with the subpoena.

Carter Rejects Iran Electronic Gear Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has rejected Iran's request to buy some of the most advanced U.S. electronic warfare equipment designed to blind and destroy enemy radar and anti-aircraft batteries, administration officials said Wednesday.

The issue has divided some of Carter's senior advisers, with State Department and arms control agency officials opposing the sale while the Defense Department favored it.

However, a senior administration official, declining to be identified publicly, said the turndown is "not necessarily forever."

Iran has been this country's biggest arms customer.

At issue was Iran's bid for 31 F-4G advanced "Wild Weasel" fighter bombers equipped with highly sophisticated electronic warfare gear enabling it to detect and locate radar stations and to fire a range of weapons to destroy them.

The United States has not yet sold any of these advanced aircraft and their equipment to any other country. The first operational models have been in use for only a couple of years in the U.S. air force.

The State Department and arms control agency opposed sale of the F-4Gs to Iran on grounds this would introduce a new weapons system into that region and because they considered it offensive in nature, rather than defensive.

Officials said that, instead of the F-4Gs, the United States has offered to sell Iran less sophisticated F-4E fighter bombers armed with older equipment, including about 1,000 Shrike missiles which are designed to home in automatically on enemy radar complexes. The Shrike originally was used by the U.S. Air Force against North Vietnam in the 1960s, but has been substantially modernized in later versions.

Administration officials said the Shah of Iran is now considering whether to accept the U.S. offer of the F-4Es armed with the Shrike.

acres which they bought for about $90,000.

The jury began its deliberations Friday night and met all day Saturday. No deliberations were planned for Sunday.

Monday morning, soon after the jury reconvened, one juror became ill and deliberations were suspended. They did not resume until Wednesday morning. The verdict was reached at about noon and was announced later.

Ford Holds To Report On Oswald

DALLAS (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford — who served on the Warren Commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy 15 years ago — said Wednesday that he is firmly convinced accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald was the only sniper in Dealey Plaza.

The House Assassinations Committee is to re-enact the slaying early Sunday morning, comparing the sounds of gunshots with those inadvertently recorded at police headquarters when a motorcycle officer left his radio transmitter turned on during the crucial seconds.

The committee reportedly has received an analysis of the tape by a Massachusetts acoustics company. The report is said to speculate that more than one gunman could have fired on the JFK motorcade.

"I still fully support the Warren Commission's conclusions. The basic conclusions were that Lee Harvey Oswald committed the assassination," Ford said.

"I very strongly disapprove of any variation from that," Ford added.

"The Commission had found no evidence of a conspiracy, foreign or domestic. Those conclusions are still valid, in my opinion, and I have seen no evidence developed by the House committee that would undercut the validity or credibility of those decisions," the ex-president said.

Asked whether he had been aware that a tape recording had been made during the shooting, Ford admitted, "that's a detail in all honesty I do not recall."

However, he added, "I can assure you that every bit of evidence the Commission had was either fully examined by the seven members of the Commission, of which I was one, or by our top staff people."

"We ended up with 26 volumes of evidence and testimony and what-have-you, so I think we went into it fairly carefully," Ford said.

Talking about politics, the Republican said "any place you look and particularly on the inflation front, the Carter administration has been a disaster."

"Internationally, a lot of our allies have lost faith in the strength and the capability of the United States and a lot of our adversaries are taking advantage of us, like the Soviet Union in Africa with their Cuban proxy," Ford said.

"I think the Carter administration is very vulnerable, both at home and abroad," the former chief executive said.

Governmental 'Mr. Cupid' Idea Stirs British Uproar

LONDON (AP) — "Who in his right mind would want civil servants mucking around with marriages?" asked one member of Parliament.

"Why not a minister for the middle-aged? A minister for divorce? A minister for death?" asked a London newspaper, calling it "midsummer madness."

The cause of the uproar is a plan under consideration by Britain's Labor government to appoint a minister for marriage — already dubbed by some newspapers as "Mr. Cupid."

The proposal was made by a Home Office committee that recommended the appointment of a junior minister to coordinate the work of groups responsible for marriage guidance and research into why families break up in Britain, where one marriage in three ends in divorce.

The Home Office now pays out nearly $1 million a year in grants to five marriage counseling organizations, and the Department of Health and Social Security says welfare benefits paid to single-parent homes currently cost about $1.5 billion annually, though it says some of those benefits would be paid to the recipients even if their homes weren't split.

"A minister responsible for coordinating and developing all the state help available can only be a blessing," said the London Daily Mirror, which backed the plan.

Also among those welcoming the idea was Dr. Jacobus Dominian, a psychiatrist who heads the marriage research center at London's Middlesex Hospital. He said marital breakdowns and divorce are becoming "an acute social problem" in this country of 56 million.

"In 1971, there were 625,000 one-parent families and about 1.25 million children," he said. "There is a private price in terms of human suffering within the family, and a public price in support for wives and children who need to be taken into care."

Mrs. Helge Rubinstein, chairman of the London Marriage Guidance Council, said, "We are absoluteiy delighted."

But the Rt. Rev. William Westwood, Anglican bishop of Edmonton, said the plan "fills me with terror." He said there is "far too much interference nowadays in the way people run their own lives." The angry member of Parliament, Norman Tebbit of the opposition Conservatives, agreed that government ministers should not "muck around" in marital matters.

In the United States, where more than one out of three marriages end in divorce, there is no post equivalent to the one proposed here. President Carter had planned a White House conference on families, but that has been put off until sometime in the 1980s.

The Daily Telegraph, which supports the Conservative Party, commented: "As a serious proposal, it belongs to the sterile bureaucratic world in which there is a political solution to everything."

House Budget Cuts Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday adopted by a 217-178 vote a budget that calls for spending $489.8 billion in the 1979 fiscal year and trims the estimated deficit to $39.8 billion.

The Senate is expected to act next month on a version of the budget calling for about the same outlays, but forecasting a larger deficit because of different revenue estimates.

Budget Committee Chairman Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., hailed the budget resolution as providing the lowest deficit in five years. The budget is for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Giaimo said it was about $20 billion lower than the red ink figure in President Carter's January budget proposals and more than $10 billion less than the committee's own tentative projections early this year.

Before adopting the budget resolution, the House narrowly voted down amendments that would have cut deeply into spending allotments for government programs.

One amendment supported by the Republican leadership would have reduced the spending ceiling by $10.5 billion.

Man Wanted In California Arrested In Lubbock

Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies Wednesday arrested a 30-year-old man wanted by Pasadena, Calif., officials in connection with an armed robbery.

The man was in a 1972 dark green Cadillac, parked at 17th Street and Avenue B, when deputies spotted him about 6:15 p.m.

He remained in Lubbock County Jail late Wednesday.

In other activity, property crime continued to be the major complaint of city residents.

William R. Steinert, manager of South Plains Communications at 1312 50th St., told police that whoever broke into that firm made off with $4,330 worth of goods, including four CB radios, 16 speakers and several radios.

T.V. Biscoe said whoever broke into his 2708 E. 10th St. residence late Tuesday or early Wednesday took his safe, which contained about $1,900 cash and two diamond rings, valued at $1,100.

Yellowhouse Gin manager Raymond McLaren said someone took a $1,500 cotton trailer that was parked outside the gin at 301 Erskine St.

Keith Taylor told officers that whoever broke into a house that he was attempting to sell at 1927 71st St. caused about $1,000 damage to the structure. Taylor said the intruders entered the residence by breaking out a sliding glass door and then kicked in a bedroom wall and broke several windows.

Burglars who entered John M. Graves' unlocked garage at his 2117 38th St. home took $400 worth of tools and a $75 bicycle, according to reports.

B.C. Coleman said burglars got away with $286 of property from his 2209-B Quirt Ave. home. He listed as missing a television, radio, .22-caliber pistol and assorted jewelry.

Priscilla Young said burglars took a television, clock and pistol, together valued at $235, from her home at 2614 Hickory Ave.

Bobby E. Holmes, a salesman with Credit Motor Co. at 709 Ave. H, told police that burglars took a $150 stereo system and a $100 television from that firm.

A 34-year-old Lubbock man was treated at Reese AFB Hospital late Tuesday for a stab wound he suffered in an altercation in the parking lot outside his residence.

Police found Nelson Frehulfer of 4900 Brownfield Highway, No. 506, on his living room couch suffering from a stab wound in his stomach.

Frehulfer said he did not get a good look at the person who attacked him about 10:20 p.m. Tuesday.

A Big Spring man told Lubbock County sheriff's deputies Tuesday he escaped being robbed when he jumped out of his car and ran to a nearby liquor store at U.S. 87 and F.M. 41.

Raymond Elmer Davis said he picked up a hitchhiker in Amarillo Tuesday morning, and when the two men neared the liquor store, the passenger told Davis he was going to rob him, and then hit Davis over the head with a small stick.

However, the wallop was not hard enough, only prompting Davis to jump from his car and run to the store where he called authorities. The suspect reportedly ran south from the store, and was arrested a short time later at a nearby residence.

Deputies Wednesday also were looking for suspects in a reported theft at Kevin McCain's home in New Deal, where about $1,000 in guns were stolen.

McCain said his wife left their house about 1 p.m. Tuesday, and when she returned at 5 p.m. that day she found the front door open and the firearms missing.

Several Lubbock residents took a heavy loss in stereo equipment and jewelry when their houses were recently broken into.

Dana Best of 1902 42nd St. told police a television, jewelry and stereo equipment, valued at $1,630, were taken during a break-in of her home between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday.

A high-priced stereo system was reported stolen in a burglary at Paul B. Gauntt's 2009 4th St. residence. Gauntt said he apparently became one of Lubbock's many burglary victims between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday.

John H. Hawley of 2015 Ave. K lost a little faith in his watch dog after his home was burglarized Tuesday. He reported $750 in stereo equipment and jewelry stolen. Hawley told police entry was through the back door, and he thought anyone going that route would be scared off by his dog.

Billy F. Stafford of 302 E. Purdue St., Apt. 2, said he was missing two diamond rings valued at about $1,000 when his home was broken into Saturday.

A 20-year-old Texas Tech medical student told police she was met by a man with his pants down to his knees Tuesday afternoon as she walked down the 2400 block of 68th Drive.

She said she called for several of her brothers in the area who caught and detained the man at a nearby park until police arrived.

Blaze Extinguished In Vacant Home

Firemen fought for more than an hour, early Wednesday, to quell a house fire, thought to have started from a faulty water heater, at 920 E. Tulane St.

Lubbock Fire Department Dist. Chief Lee Turner placed the loss at more than $1,000, with heavy damage throughout the vacant house.

Firefighters were dispatched to the scene about 3 a.m. and did not return until shortly after 4 a.m.

Rape Of Child Charged Here

A county resident who allegedly forced his 11-year-old stepdaughter to submit to sexual intercourse has been charged with rape of a child.

The suspect, 37, was released from Lubbock County Jail after posting a $10,000 bond.

The incident is alleged to have occurred July 16, when the child's mother reportedly was at work.

In a statement to investigators, the child said she was afraid she would be hurt if she continued resisting.

Gunshot Kills Lorenzo Man

A 24-year-old Lorenzo man died about 5:20 a.m. Wednesday at Methodist Hospital from a gunshot wound he suffered about two weeks ago during a fight in Lorenzo.

Americans Back Carter On Soviet Dissidents

By LOUIS HARRIS

By 67-24 percent, a decisive majority of the American people approve President Carter's speaking out the way he has to condemn the Soviet Union's treatment of dissidents. In particular, they agree that the United States should cancel the sale and shipment of computer technology to Russia, in retaliation for the recent sentencing of Jewish dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginsburg.

Despite these initial signs that President Carter has struck a responsive chord in the American public, there is a distinctly uneasy feeling about the heavy emphasis Mr. Carter has placed on the human rights issue:

—By a narrow 44-39 percent, a plurality feels that the President's continuing emphasis on the Russian violations of rights of dissidents "has made the Russians much tougher in cracking down on dissidents."

—By 46-40 percent, a plurality denies the claim that Mr. Carter's emphasis on the rights of dissidents "has made the Russians less cautious about cracking down" on them.

—By 62-26 percent, a sizable majority feels that the Carter attacks on human rights violations in the Soviet Union have "made it more difficult to reach agreement with the Russians on SALT arms control and other important issues."

In other words, a clear majority of the American people are convinced that there is linkage between U.S. human rights criticisms and Soviet willingness to negotiate arms agreements.

If there are real doubts about the effectiveness of the Carter criticism of Soviet human rights violations, there is one clear-cut advantage that people see in it:

—By 75-18 percent, a sizable majority feels that the president's pointing up of Soviet repression of dissidents "has made the rest of the world more aware of the lack of freedom in Russia." Basically, the public clearly feels that the Carter emphasis on human rights has put the Russians on the defensive in this regard.

A number of specific steps that have been proposed for the United States to take in retaliation against Soviet violations of human rights were tested in the latest Harris Survey of 1,238 adults nationwide:

—By 51-34 percent, a majority favor cancelling the sale and shipment of computer technology to Russia. This reflects the worry of the American people that the sale of computer capabilities to the Soviets would be employed to strengthen their military.

—By a narrow 45-44 percent, however, a plurality is opposed to "cancelling the deals to sell wheat to the Russians." On a number of occasions in recent years, when Soviet wheat crops have fallen short of objectives, the United States has chosen to sell its surplus wheat to the Russians. This issue has been a controversial one, for the Soviets resold the wheat at a profit in the world market at least once.

—By a decisive 67-22 percent, the American people are opposed to "stopping negotiations on a SALT nuclear arms agreement" with the Soviet Union as a way of retaliating for the conviction of Shcharansky and Ginsburg. Repeatedly in Harris Surveys, no matter how the issue has been put, the public has reiterated its view that SALT negotiations should receive the highest priority in relations between the two countries.

—By 75-15 percent, a lopsided majority also opposes the United States "withdrawing our ambassador to Russia." Some supporters of the President's strong statements on the treatment of dissidents in the Soviet Union had suggested this step toward breaking off diplomatic relations with the Russians.

—By a sizable 68-20 percent, a majority of the public also opposes the United States' "cancelling U.S. participation in the 1980 Summer Olympics to be held in Moscow." Such a step has been advocated by a number of hardliners in this country. But it is apparent that the public opts against any such suggestion.

—By 48-34 percent, a plurality favors the United States' "exchanging two Russian spies we are holding for the two dissidents recently found guilty in Russia."

It is evident that the American people take a selective rather than an emotional approach to what this country ought to do in response to Soviet human rights violations. While they agree with Mr. Carter's objections, they are highly reluctant to see relations between the two countries close down or take a serious turn for the worse.

Soviet Doctor Confirms Asylum Misuse

MOSCOW (AP) — A Moscow psychiatrist said Wednesday that people without mental problems are hospitalized in Soviet asylums as a form of punishment. He was the first medical man to confirm to Western correspondents the accusations brought by dissidents.

At a news conference held by a dissident group, Dr. Alexander Voloshanovich said he decided to speak out because of the conviction Tuesday of Alexander Podrabinek, a young dissident who gathered evidence about the situation in psychiatric hospitals.

Voloshanovich, 37, is on the staff of Moscow's Dolgoprudny psychiatric hospital. He said he checked 27 people who told Podrabinek's group they were wrongly committed for treatment, and "Among those is examined I found not a single case of definite mental illness."

Podrabinek, 24, an ambulance medic who smuggled a 265-page book to the West alleging widespread misuse of psychiatric treatment, was convicted of "anti-Soviet slander" and given five years of Siberian exile.

The dissidents said he rejected the help of his Soviet lawyer, refused to take part in the court proceedings, lit a cigarette in violation of court rules and was finally ejected when he began whistling the toreador music from Bizet's opera "Carmen."

Voloshanovich said he had worked as an anonymous consultant for Podrabinek and his group, which compiled the case histories of more than 200 people allegedly sent to insane asylums after coming into conflict with the authorities.

He said he decided to make his views public, although this is a time of severe crackdown on dissenters, because he felt obliged "to answer for what I say."

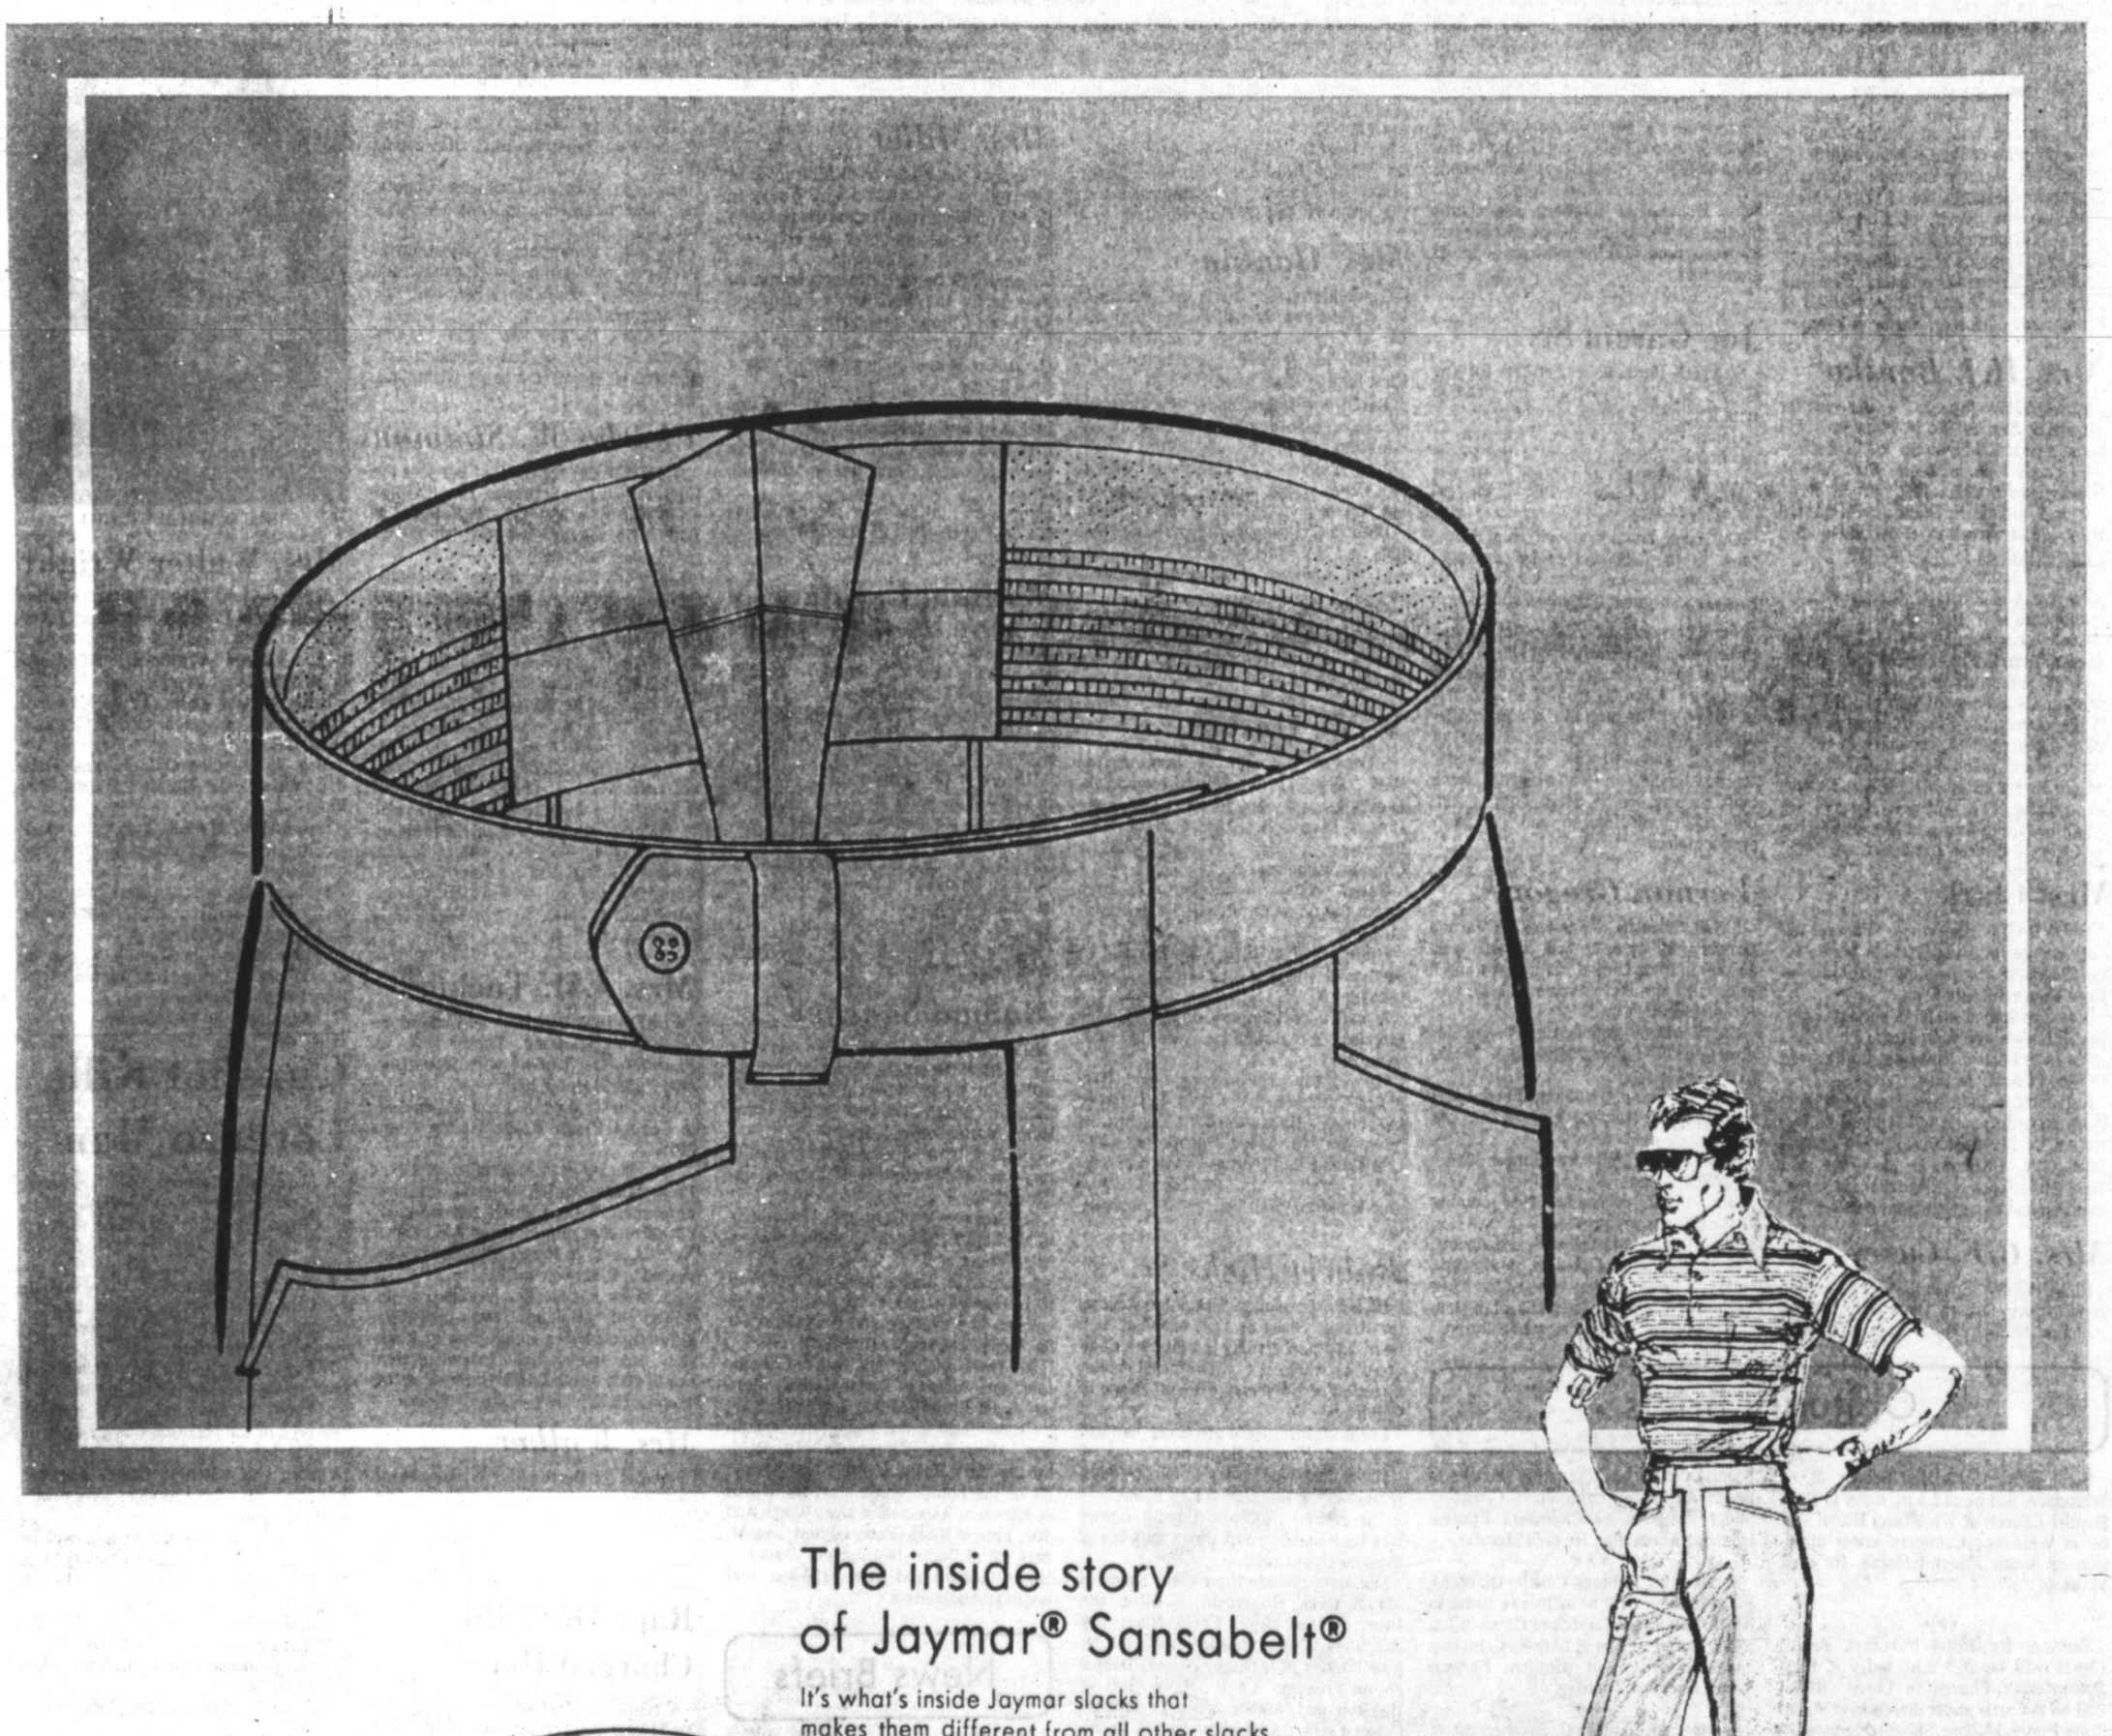

He said many other psychiatrists feel as he does "on an emotional level" but are afraid to speak out.

Voloshanovich said only a few of the 27 patients he examined could be considered real dissidents, with the others committed after having trouble with their superiors at work or applying to emigrate.

He said he had doubts about the condition of one former patient but he believed he should not have been committed without hospital tests to determine a diagnosis.

"I do not consider my reports on them to be the last word of truth, but rather a basis for further examination," Voloshanovich said.

Insurance Policy Accusations Blamed On Misunderstanding

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the House General Investigating Committee said Wednesday it looked like "a big misunderstanding" led to the accusations explored in three days of hearings by the panel.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, indicated, however, there might be further delving into the charges if certain former officers of Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. can be reached with subpoenas.

C. Daniel Hurlbut of Houston, who lost his agent's license in 1976 for selling unauthorized group insurance policies, claims Gulf Atlantic was to blame but was let off the hook by the State Insurance Department.

He acknowledged he and his partner, A. C. Hovater, took more than $58,000 out of the Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust in about three months time but said the money was for expenses and advances on commissions.

Hurlbut said he and Hovater sold group health policies in the name of the trust to such clients as the Pasadena Independent School District at Gulf Atlantic's direction.

An insurance department investigation and hearing ended with the conclusion Gulf Atlantic was not involved.

Former Gulf Atlantic mass marketing director Harold W. Watson of Irving testified Wednesday there had been discussions of Gulf Atlantic underwriting the trust but nothing ever was decided.

He said Hurlbut and Hovater, who had been Gulf Atlantic agents, proposed the trust.

"Is it a fair conclusion . . . that Hurlbut and Hovater were simply mistaken if they believed Gulf agreed to underwrite what they were proposing in South Texas?" Hale asked.

"Yes, sir. . . No formal rates were issued or contract signed that we would accept group insurance from that group in South Texas (the Houston area) or anywhere else," Watson said.

He also testified under oath that he knew of no attempts by Gulf Atlantic to secure favored treatment from the insurance department, or of any offers by department employees to give such treatment.

Hurlbut said in his closing statement that he and Hovater always have been available for questioning and had offered to take lie detector tests, while former Gulf Atlantic officers always had to be subpoenaed when their testimony was desired.

Evidence Complicates Sign Case

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Prosecution of an alleged violation of the city's controversial sign ordinance was thrown into confusion during a pretrial hearing, recessed Wednesday, which could have a major impact on pending cases.

Attorney Bill Wischkaemper, representing a client in County Court-at-Law No. 2, is seeking dismissal of misdemeanor charges, with one of his claims being that the sign ordinance has been unequally enforced.

The defense lawyer earlier during the hearing apparently stunned prosecutors with the revelation that a local pharmacy which, according to testimony, has not been the subject of continued citations, had not in fact acquired an injunction against the city to prevent citations.

The fact not only caught assistant District Attorney Hollis Browning by surprise, it also surprised Jerrel Northcutt, city zoning administrator.

As a result of the development, Browning requested and was granted a continuance in the case by presiding Judge J.Q. Warnick Jr.

Browning said he was surprised by the evidence showing no injunction had been granted in a case involving L&H Drugs, Inc.

Browning said his information when he came into the courtroom to begin trying the case was that there was such an injunction.

"The reason (for the requested delay) is to find out the situation on L&H Drugs," the prosecutor stated.

The prosecution also said it was surprised by learning from Wischkaemper that no injunction has been issued in another pending case involving an individual who reportedly leases portable signs.

Wischkaemper opposed the continuance, saying prosecutors had not exercised due diligence in attempting to find out about the injunction status. He indicated he felt city attorneys should have known, and in fact may have known, about the lack of injunctions in the two cases.

"Obviously, though this is a misdemeanor case, it is also a case of widespread importance to the city," Warnick explained in granting the continuance.

"I will allow the state additional time to prepare its case." The judge gave prosecutors 30 days to further research the case, and said he would continue the pretrial hearing sometime after Sept. 15 if he has not been contacted by prosecutors before then.

Warnick said he agreed there was a "prima facie" showing of unequal enforcement" thus far, but said he, of course, had no way of knowing what additional evidence may be forthcoming.

If charges against Wischkaemper's client are dismissed, it will probably lead to a request for other dismissals on the grounds of allegedly unequal enforcement.

Wischkaemper is representing Mark Corley, operator of a fast food store on 34th Street, in the current case on an appeal from Municipal Court.

The pretrial hearing began Monday, and the Class-C misdemeanor case had originally been scheduled to go to trial next week.

Corley is accused of allowing a portable sign to exist on a tract of land under his charge.

The attorney asked why repeated citations were not filed against the pharmacy.

Northcutt indicated that it was his understanding that a restraining order or injunction had been issued. The official said he had been instructed by the city attorney's office not to issue citations.

Warnick then called for the files on the two cases in question, perused them, and announced there was no record of a temporary injunction in either case.

He announced at that time that the state of the evidence made the defense's claim of unequal enforcement a seemingly viable one.

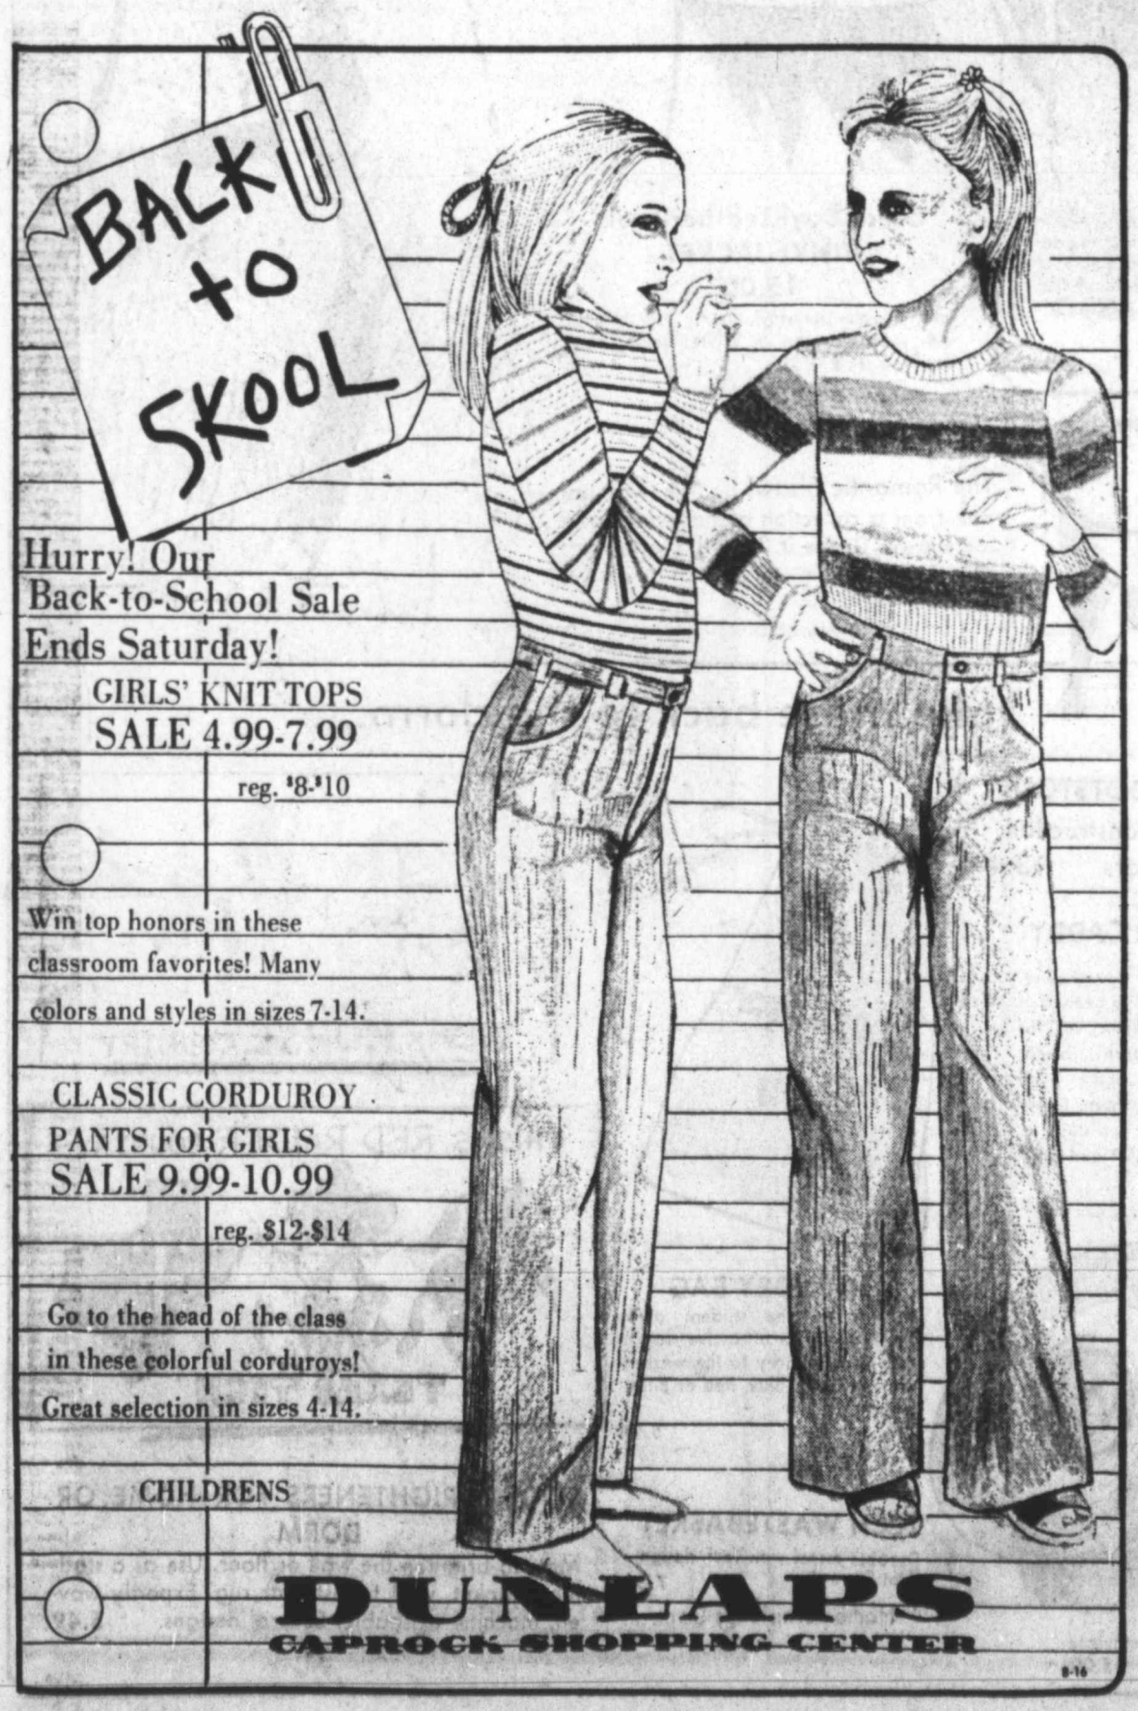

Rwandans Reported Fleeing Homeland

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — More than 300 residents of the central Africa nation of Rwanda have fled to neighboring Uganda to escape "a new policy of their government," the Ugandan government said.

The statement did not elaborate on the "new policy" that prompted the Rwandans to flee.

Haji Isaka Magezi, provincial executive secretary for Uganda's Southern Province, which borders Rwanda, cautioned the refugees not to use Uganda as a base to spread anti-Rwandan propaganda, the statement said.

/ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our little Scotch terrier "Sir Harry" (we named him after Sir Harry Lauder) was run over last week. He died in the arms of our 11-year-old as we were rushing him to the animal hospital.

The children can't get over their grief. Our nine-year-old sleeps with Harry's collar and leash under his pillow. The dog's toys are now cherished keepsakes — the rubber ball, the plastic bone, the beat-up rag doll. We walk around with tears in our eyes.

The man who ran over Harry is heartsick. It was not his fault. The dog should not have been running loose — even though it happened in front of our house and someone was with him at the time.

The question is this: The man wants to buy us another Scotch terrier. My husband says "Yes." The kids are all for it. But I can't bear the thought of risking another sorrow such as this one. What do you say, Ann? — Muncie Mama

Dear Mama: I say yes. Life is filled with risks. Those who are afraid to make an emotional investment may not lose anything, but they miss a lot.

Losing Sir Harry was painful but when you recall the pleasure he gave you, would you have preferred not to have had him? Of course not!

Dear Ann: The apartment we live in has no garage facilities. Some nights we must park four blocks from our building.

Two homeowners on our block have garages and driveways. Last night I parked in front of one of their homes. Mrs. X came out and said, "Sorry, you'll have to move. This space is reserved for our friends." I moved. Does she have first dibs because she's a homeowner? — Miffed

Dear Miffed: She may own her home but she doesn't own the street. You have as much right to park in front of her home as she does.

Dear Ann Landers: Five weeks ago I left a position I liked very much. I worked there a little over a year and it was a wrench to leave because I had made so many friends.

My co-workers surprised me with a beautiful going-away gift. It was completely unexpected and I nearly bawled.

My new position turned out to be a disappointment. After some serious soul-searching, I telephoned my boss and asked if I could have my old job back. He said "You bet! How soon can you come?" I told him I would give two weeks' notice at once.

I feel uncomfortable about the expensive farewell gift and think perhaps I should reimburse those lovely people for what they spent. Do you think they would feel insulted? — The Homing Pigeon In Harrisburg

Dear Pigeon: Don't attempt to reimburse your co-workers for the farewell gift. After all, you DID leave.

Take them to lunch at a "special" place. Call it your "glad to be back" celebration. They'll love it and you will get off to a lovely start.

IMPORTANT CONFIDENTIAL to all who wrote about tickling children for "fun": Tickling is not funny to the victim. In fact, it can lead to hysterics and convulsions. Do not permit anyone to tell you it's harmless or that kids like it. The expression "tickled to death" comes from Chinese literature who tickling was used as a method of torture.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At a recent physical it was found I have diverticulosis and gallstones. I had a slight pain in the abdomen, which is why I had the physical. My doctor tells me there is nothing much to do except to hope I don't have too much trouble with either. He said he could put me on a diet of baby food, but I could still have trouble. He says pretty much the same about the stones, that I may have trouble in a few years, but to hope for the best.

He spoke of a "triad," and told me most people who have these two problems usually also have a hiatal hernia, which he says I do not have. I am a 63-year-old male, slightly overweight, but in otherwise good health. Can you comment, especially about the hiatal hernia? — K.H.

Like all bad news, ailments often come in groups, and groups of three seem to be most common — the triads. One of these is the diverticulosis (colon pouches), gallstones and hiatal hernia. It doesn't mean that a person who has one will have the other two or that a person with any two will have the third. But when two are found, the instinct is to look for the third. This particular triad is known as "Saint's triad."

Stones that give trouble should be removed. They will not improve with years. Too, special diet, if needed for diverticulosis, might be best on the bulk, rather than soft side. The idea is to provide the intestines sufficient work so as to avoid enlargement of the pouches. I think you need further consultation with your doctor about your two legs of the triad — about diet and the stones.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have developed the cholesterol bumps around my eyes. They seem to be getting somewhat larger. I don't use cosmetics except for a little moisturizer. Is there a way I can stop the growth and eliminate what I have now? — Miss C.M.

These are called xanthomata (ZAN-tho-MAH-tuh). They contain fatty material, usually cholesterol. They can be removed surgically, but will tend to recur. Your blood cholesterol level should be checked, and if you are plump or overweight you will have to lose. Such blemishes are usually a sign of high cholesterol, which often accompanies overweight.

You should emphasize reducing the fat content of your diet, avoiding saturated fats especially — the kind of fat that remains solid at room temperature. Getting down to normal weight might prevent a recurrence, or even cause small blemishes to disapppear. See my booklet, "Control Cholesterol Sensibly," for further tips. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter had her ears pierced. There was no problem until she began wearing the earrings I bought for her newly-pierced ears. The doctor said this may be due to nickel in the earrings. Have you encountered this kind of reaction before? — J.P.

As a matter of fact, this is commonly referred to as "nickel itch." Nickel, with which many metal jewelry items are coated, is a common cause of such reactions. You can determine sensitivity by tests.

But don't discount the possibility that the eruptions are a direct result of the piercing itself. Some who have had friends pierce their ears with primitive instruments may develop infections that erupt long afterward.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently, the muscles on the left side of my shins have gotten very sore and it's very painful when I walk. My friends say I've got shin splints, but I don't know. What exactly are shin splints? How do you know if you've got them and how do you get rid of them? — L.P.

Shin splints refer to a strain in the muscles that run along the tibia, the large bone of the lower leg. It is usually seen in athletes after strenuous exertion. They cause pain and tenderness in this area. Relief is by local heat and rest. If you are not a vigorous exerciser, it could be due to faulty foot mechanics or to your shoes.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

West opened the king of clubs and shifted to the queen of hearts after East had followed with the deuce.

The student won with dummy's king, drew trumps and led a second club to West's ace. West won and led a third club. South discarded a heart on dummy's queen of clubs and cashed dummy's ace of hearts and paused to regroup. Finally, he led a diamond, finessed dummy's queen and was down one since he still had a heart to lose.

"What should I have done?" asked the student. "I knew that the diamond finesse was an almost sure loser, but beggars can't be choosers."

"You are right in one respect," said the Professor. "The diamond finesse was an almost sure loser, but your contract was perfectly safe if it did lose."

The student should simply have played his ace and queen of diamonds. West would take his king and be forced to lead a club or a diamond. The student would ruff in dummy and discard his last heart.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Now you and all the rest can go to the foot of the line! I'm the winner! This one is a bamboozler, a dinger and I'm giving it to you! I ought to get a fortune for it from the brush manufacturers. I can just see the crowds at the brush counter...

I bought two new long-handled brushes for the bath. When I took them out of the bag my back started itching. Of course the itchy spot was just out of the range of my fingers.

The brush! Just perfect! Curved just right and long enough to reach any spot. The grandest feeling in the world is to scratch the right spot and now I can do it with ease. That brush will never see the bathroom.

Oh, lots of people have used back-scratchers but I'll bet they never used a bathroom brush before — Mrs. A.C.

Yep, dear friend, you certainly do go to the head of the class with this dilly of an idea.

This is one of the discoveries of the century and I think you're a wizard for stumbling upon this goodie. — Heloise

LETTER OF THANKS

DEAR HELOISE:

Thank you a million and one times for the sponge rubber powder puff in the heel of my shoes. Now I can walk a mile — not just a half a block.

I went one step further and put a powder puff in the ball of my shoes (the thicker the better) and my calluses are disappearing.

Great, just great! What a relief! — Helen Hampe

We're tickled pink that we were able to solve your problem! Hugs, Heloise

I love your column, read it every day but never thought I'd have any "helpful hints" until one day I was straightening up the towel drawer.

DEAR HELOISE:

I've known for years that if you put soap under your fingernails before doing a painting job or working in the garden, cleaning up after the job is done is easier.

Since I can't wear gloves for garden work, why can't I think of putting soap under my nails until I am cleaning up after the job is done? — Elizabeth

DEAR HELOISE:

I've come up with an idea that I think is worth passing on.

My 18-month-old granddaughter came to dinner last night. No high chair, of course. I decided to put her on a pillow on a chair but since the table was so high, she still couldn't reach it.

Then I had an idea. I got the TV table from another room, pushed it up to a cabinet so my granddaughter couldn't kick it over, then put her on a chair in front of the TV table.

It worked great and she was able to feed herself. Wish I'd thought of this years ago when our first grandchild was little. I am only eight years too late. — E.A.

Califano Okays Medical Cost Compromise

DISCUSS HOSPITAL COSTS — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass, left, and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano are mirrored in a tabletop as they face reporters during a news conference Wednesday in Washington. They discussed a plan that calls for voluntary hospital cost containment. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, hoping to salvage at least a part of a top domestic priority in Congress, embraced compromise legislation Wednesday to place a cap on spiraling hospital costs.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano went to Capitol Hill to endorse a proposal designed to save $34 billion in hospital costs over the next five years. The bill would impose controls only if voluntary efforts fail to hold down increases.

The measure, which could require mandatory, government-supervised controls as early as next July, was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Califano was flanked by Nelson and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as he announced his support for the measure at a news conference.

Kennedy is the sponsor of a different bill, patterned after an administration proposal, designed to save about $60 billion.

Califano was careful to reiterate his support for Kennedy's bill. But his endorsement of Nelson's compromise proposal was a tacit admission that a more comprehensive bill such as the administration originally favored, is dead in Congress.

Califano said: "It is our intention to fight to relieve the American people of the hospital tax, that is the most important tax on the American people since the tax that brought on the Boston Tea Party."

Kennedy's proposal would limit inflation in hospitals to between 9 percent or 10 percent a year, with savings estimated at $60 billion over five years.

Nelson's proposal would impose controls if hospitals fail to cut the increase in cost by 2 percent this year and in 1979. Hospital costs have been increasing by about 16 percent a year.

The House Commerce Committee has already rejected the administration's plan, voting last month in favor of voluntary efforts at controlling hospital costs and approving creation of a special board to oversee the effort.

In addition, the Senate Finance Committee has refused to act on Kennedy's proposal, voting instead for a measure to reduce costs in government-financed health care for the poor and elderly programs. Officials estimate the measure, sponsored by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., would save about $373 million over five years.

Califano has denounced the measure.

Kennedy, who also said he will support Nelson's proposal, said at the news conference, "What we have seen...is the power of the special interest groups, particularly the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association, frustrating the courageous action of the administration..." in pushing hospital cost control legislation.

The AMA and AHA both oppose the administration's original plan, and have established voluntary guidelines designed to slow the rise in hospital costs.

Bell Cable Project To Begin Soon

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is scheduled to begin construction later this month on a $573,600 cable project that will provide long distance trunking facilities to serve General Telephone Co. customers around the Idalou exchange area.

"The purpose of the project is to connect General Telephone's long distance facilities with Southwestern Bell's," said Bell division manager Bob Dunbar. "This will enable General Telephone customers to dial into the Bell network."

Dunbar said the aerial cable presently being used by General Telephone will be replaced with buried cable that eliminates many maintenance problems, is less affected by storms and is better able to provide for future growth.

Bounds Construction of Lubbock is contractor for the project, due to be completed next June.

No major inconveniences to the public are expected, Dunbar said.

IMPORT RULES RELAXED

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Private businessmen in Israel will be permitted to import frozen meat beginning Oct. 1 if the meat is certified as kosher, the government said. Until then such imports will remain a government monopoly. The government said it opened up meat importing to encourage competition and lower prices. The government will remain the exclusive importer of meat from Argentina, Romania and Uruguay, which supply 75 percent of Israel's meat imports.

VISIT TO GRACELAND — A-J Correspondent Donna Runnels of Sundown, who recently visited Elvis Presley's home and gravesite in Memphis, Tenn., said she was most affected by the air of peacefulness and serenity that surrounded Graceland. At upper left is the swimming pool adjacent to the home, while at upper right is a photo of the traditional Southern-style columns gracing the front of the home. At middle left, horses graze on the mansion's grounds, while opposite is a view of the tombstone marker at the Presley grave. Below right, an array of flowers surround the gravesite. Elvis' uncle, Vester Presley, poses at the entrance to the mansion and answers visitors' questions. (Correspondent Photos)

Thieves Steal Jewels From Tulsa Store

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Thieves chiseled through a wall, torched open two safes at a Tulsa jewelry store and escaped with diamonds that investigatos said could be worth up to $1 million.

The burglary at Moody's Jewelry Store, reported Wednesday, was described as one of the largest in Oklahoma history. The break-in occurred Tuesday.

Store owner Ernest L. Moody described the loss as "substantial," but said it would be "several days or several weeks" before the exact value of the stolen jewels is known.

Huge Throngs, Wreaths Mark Elvis Anniversary

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Joining thousands from around the world paying homage Wednesday to the heart-throb of millions, Elvis Presley's last travelling road show placed a gold-glittered, flower-smothered, five-foot-tall "Number One" by his grave.

The garland marking the first anniversary of the rock 'n' roll idol's death was signed by "The King's Men."

The gates of Presley's Graceland Mansion swung open at 8:25 a.m., CDT, and several thousand fans of the singer, who was adored by youth and cursed by parents in his quarter century rock 'n' roll reign, streamed up the winding, quarter-mile driveway to The Mediation Garden, where Presley is buried beside his mother, Gladys.

"We're packed," said Al Strada, Presley's former wardrobe manager, who now works in security at the 13-acre estate along Elvis Presley Boulevard. "I'll bet there's a thousand people alone between the gravesite and the sidewalk."

Extending past the 100-yard sidewalk, roped off into four lanes in front of the mansion, fans waited in 90-degree heat about two hours for a chance to pause by the wreath-covered graves.

"All the big wreaths were sent in advance — the one from Elvis' father and one from his daughter," Strada said.

In the early morning light, Strada took the "Number One," covered in blue and yellow chrysanthemums, up to the garden, where Presley and his mother, who died in 1958, were buried Oct. 2 following a purported plot to remove their bodies from a mausoleum at Forest Hills Cemetery.

"The three individual hearts stand for the three of us," he said: "Dick Grob, Dean Nichopoulos, Elvis' private physician's son, and myself were the last three people on the payroll that were on the road with Elvis — the King's Men.

"We normally try to please all fans, you know, do just about anything we can to help them out. Today, some are asking for our autographs but we're turning them down. Today's his day."

Grob, security chief at the mansion where Presley — who was 42 when he died of hypertensive heart disease — lived in luxurious seclusion, said about 1,200 people passed through the gates every hour.

"We're just trying to keep this thing coordinated," he said. "Our primary concern is to keep the fans moving."

Gov. Ray Blanton declared Aug. 14-20 Elvis Presley Week and Wednesday a day of mourning.

A curfew imposed by Mayor Wyeth Chandler because of strikes by firefighters and policemen forced cancellation of a memorial concert, and Andy Warhol's painting of Elvis, titled "Elvis Forty Nine Times," was unveiled Tuesday.

Grob said more than 150 people spent the night on Graceland grounds. Some slept and many stayed awake chatting about their idol — undaunted by a 2½-hour power blackout that Graceland overcame by generating its own electricity.

A six-foot-tall angel of Styrofoam covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold, was a tribute from Ontario, Canada, said Ma Cherie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled Presley's floral arrangements for his mother's grave.

She said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangment from Priscilla, Presley's former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Aneta Watkins, manager of Burke's Flowers, said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Merchants peddled bumper stickers, photo albums and soft drinks to fans lining the sidewalk and, across the street, souvenir shops beckoned the faithful with trinkets and air conditioning.

"This is just a very sad day in my life," Strada said. "Everything that happened last year at this time is coming back to me today but I don't want to discuss it.

"Even though he's dead, I think many of his followers think he's still around — the spirit. That's what makes these people come from everywhere in the world. The man, "the King;" there'll never be another."

Market Chain Agrees To Stop Overcharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Safeway Stores Inc., the nation's largest supermarket chain, was ordered by the federal government Wednesday to sell advertised items at or below its advertised prices.

The order concludes a 3-year-old case in which the Federal Trade Commission charged Safeway with overpricing and overcharging on advertised sale items. The case was part of a series against the country's three largest food retailers.

The FTC's Sept. 15, 1975, complaint alleged that a "significant number" of Safeway stores overcharged consumers by failing to mark down advertised specials. When this happened, consumers were charged the regular prices, the complaint said.

The complaint said charging more than the advertised price was an "unfair act and practice."

Safeway operates stores in 30 states and the District of Columbia. The FTC complaint did not specify where the stores accused of overpricing were located.

The order signed by Safeway does not admit any illegality, but does commit the company to avoid future overcharges. The Oakland, Calif., firm agreed to maintain a program to insure compliance with the order and will be open to heavy fines it it violates the order.

In a statement, Safeway said it already is doing what the order compels it to do. "We feel that resolving the controversy in this manner is fair to all parties concerned and that it would prevent needless expensive litigation," the company said.

At the time of the complaint, Safeway said it the allegation was based on a small survey and that "human error cannot be completely eliminated in the complex and demanding job of checking out grocery products."

The FTC has put A&P and Kroger, the nation's second and third largest supermarket chains, under similar orders.

A&P was accused of failing to have stocks of advertised items readily available, and the FTC issued an order in 1975 prohibiting that practice. Kroger's order last year banned overpricing and overcharging on advertised items and failing to have stocks of sales specials readily available.

Safeway led the industry in 1977 with 2,438 stores and $11 billion in sales. A&P had 1,917 outlets and $7.4 billion in sales, while Kroger had 1,173 stores and total sales of $6.7 billion.

The FTC ordered Safeway not to advertise any item for sale at a certain price unless each item is marked with the sale price or a lower price. However, that would not apply when the price of an advertised item is determined by the total value of a customer's order or the use of coupons.

Safeway also is required to maintain a surveillance program to reveal if all of its stores conform to the order.

Area Authorities Seek Jail Escapee

PLAINVIEW (Special) — South Plains law enforcement officials late Wednesday were continuing their search for a 24-year-old accused murderer who escaped from the county jail here earlier in the day.

Juan DaVilla of Plainview was charged with the July 12 shooting death of Hector Garcia here. He had been in custody since July 26.

Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue said the inmate's disappearance was not discovered until noon, about 1 1/2 hours after he fled.

Tue said that a jailer led DaVilla and 10 other prisoners to the facility's exercise yard about 10:30 a.m. The other inmates told officials that DaVilla, who was at the head of the single file line, suddenly ran and scaled the fence surrounding the yard.

Authorities did not discover the escape sooner, Tue said, because the jailer miscounted the prisoners when returning them to their cells.

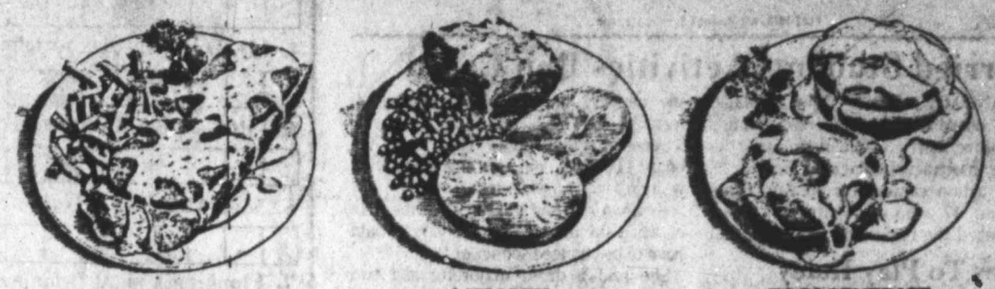

Tue said sheriff's deputies learned about 12:30 p.m. that DaVilla had sold his car and was last seen riding a yellow 10-speed bicycle west along one of the city streets.

Litton ... the leader in microwaves

LITTON is changing the way America cooks and LITTON has changed the way microwaves are built, with many new innovations.

IF YOU HAVE A QUESTION ON MICROWAVES ... LITTON HAS THE ANSWER!

Can you cook a complete meal in a microwave? With the LITTON exclusive Meal-In-One, you can cook one, two, three foods ... even a complete meal ALL AT ONE TIME.

Is it possible to use metal in a microwave? LITTON even uses a metal shelf in the Meal-In-One microwave.

Does a microwave brown meat? Most meats begin browning in 8 to 10 minutes of microwave cooking. For quick searing and grilling of steaks use the LITTON Micro-Browner.

Can I set the time and temperature on a microwave as I do on a conventional range? YES. All you need to do is adjust the Vari-Cook or the Vari-Temp and you cook by time and temperature as you always have, and at any speed.

Do LITTON microwaves cost more? LITTON, the most advanced in microwaves, costs no more than an ordinary microwave.

Filibuster Opposes Capital Representation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate conservatives launched a filibuster Wednesday against a proposed constitutional amendment to give voting representation in Congress to the District of Columbia for the first time since it became the nation's capital in 1800.

Earlier, the opponents of the measure, which has passed the House, failed in preliminary motions to prevent its consideration.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., filed a cloture petition with signatures of 20 senators — a preliminary to a move to cut off debate.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., led off debate in support of the measure saying opposition to it "has seemed to arise from ... the fear that senators elected from the District of Columbia may be too liberal, too urban, too black, or too Democratic."

Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va., who had announced he would lead a filibuster against the measure, took the floor after Kennedy.

The procedural motions that allowed the matter to be taken up passed 64-27 and 71-22. A constitutional amendment requires a two-thirds majority for passage, which is 67 senators if all of the senators vote. It take three-fifths of the Senate, or 60 senators, to cut off debate.

Before debate began, Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the assistant Republican leader and an opponent of the proposed amendment, said he is considering suggesting that the capital be moved to a western state.

"I'm sure there are plenty of places out West that would be happy to have it and all the employment that goes with it," Stevens said.

The district has a non-voting delegate in the House and no senators. The amendment would entitle it to two senators and a representative, all with a vote.

Backers of the proposed amendment point out that the population of the District of Columbia has increased from 14,000 in 1800 to 700,000 in the latest census.

Opponents argue that only states should be entitled to voting representation in Congress.

Married Students Activities Ban Eased

AHANUAC (AP) — The Anahuac school board has voted to erase a policy prohibiting married students from participating in extracurricular activities.

The action came after Jo Ann Glass Neuman, 17, who was married in June, challenged the regulation and asked that she be kept on the school's volleyball team.

Superintendent Gene Best told the board Tuesday he felt the regulation wouldn't stand a court test.

Neuman said she was aware of the policy when she married but knew it "would have to be changed sooner or later."

She said a drum majorette and two band members were forced to quit the band last year because of the policy but they had not challenged the rule.

Jones To Play Haley In 'Roots' Sequel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Earl Jones will play author Alex Haley in the concluding episode of ABC's "Roots: The Next Generations."

He will portray Haley in his long search for his roots that ends in the African village of Juffure where his distant ancestor Kunta Kinte was captured by slave traders in 1767.

Jones has had a long and close friendship with Haley and was his personal choice for the role.

WRITER TO QUIT CARTER POST

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief speechwriter, James Fallows, said Wednesday he is leaving the White House after the November election to return to magazine writing. In another staff shift, sources said Barry Jagoda, Carter's media adviser, probably will transfer soon to the National Security Council as a consultant on international communications.

Textbook Critics, Publishers Spar At Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Farmworker leader Cesar Chavez, history writers and short story authors caught criticism Wednesday at the State Textbook Committee's annual textbook hearing.

"The school is not an institution for social change, but is a place for factual information," said Mrs. Ray Boyd of Houston, who objected to a story on Chavez being included in an eighth grade literature book.

"Cesar Chavez does not deserve to be portrayed in textbooks as a hero-type," she said at one of two simultaneous hearings. More than 40 texts will be scrutinized during the five-day sessions.

"We in no way rally children to his (Chavez) cause," replied Gwen Hiles of publisher Charles Merrill. "The story about his childhood shows he did not become embittered. We feel it's positive."

Critics and publishers exchanged comments in pre-filed testimony that will be reviewed by Texas Education Agency hearing officers and the textbook committee. In the hearings, reviewers will have 12 minutes to comment on each text and publishers will have equal response time.

The committee meets Sept. 11 to recommend selections to the State Board of Education, which votes Nov. 11 on adoption of textbooks for the 1979-1980 school year.

As in previous years, American history, biology and literature books generated vigorous objections from reviewers.

Fredericka Meiner, a Rice University professor and representative of the American Association of University Women, criticized treatment of women in an eighth grade American history text.

"They (women) are hardly shown in an active manner in the community," she said of The American Adventure, Vol.1. "While it may be difficult to include women in discussion of the federal government, it should be easy to show them in the labor force, different religious sects and the reform and abolition movements."

In written testimony, NOW charged not enough women are pictured in books on data processing, seventh grade mathematics and seventh grade life science.

A Russian short story in a 12th grade literature book elicited disapproval from Mrs. Thomas Snow of Mansfield.

"I do not feel it is wise to encourage sympathy towards our avowed enemies," she wrote of the author's nationality.

The publisher, Scott, Foresman Co., replied:

"The story about a young man soon to enter the army and his last night with his girl friend has universal appeal and does not in any way encourage sympathy for the Russian government."

Other literature selections under attack by various reviewers are works by Ray Bradbury, J.R.R. Tolkien, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Stephen Crane, Anton Chekhov, Carl Sandburg, Sara Teasdale and the Beatles.

COAL MINING TO BE TAUGHT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor and Energy departments have a new job training program under which some 400 migrant and seasonal farm workers will go to a coal mining school and, with luck, get jobs as miners.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

City Hall Sets Auto Auction

Although the time is right, city purchasing agent Floyd Nesbitt doesn't call it a back-to-school sale. It's more of a semiannual clearance of vehicles which have outlived their cost-effectiveness.

In plain English, the city will have a car auction Saturday.

"It's really better to get rid of them this way," said Nesbitt. "We've traded them in on new cars before, but the dealers really don't want 40 or so used cars all of a sudden. And we get more this way."

Nesbitt, who first tried auctioning off the cars about 10 years ago, said the sales usually put $25,000 in the city's general fund, depending on the interest in what he has to offer.

Bidders may inspect the vehicles beginning at 7:30 a.m. The auction starts two hours later at the 5th Street and Avenue J parking lot. Terms are cash, cashiers check or personal check with letter of credit.

The city offers no guarantee on the vehicles, which have been serviced regularly but generally have high mileages.

Agency Drops Loan Origination Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has dropped the loan origination fee on various types of loans.

The fee had been $10 or one-eighth of one percent, whichever was greater, on regular business loans and the SBA share of immediate participation loans.

No origination fees had been charged on other types of loans and SBA decided to drop the fee to reduce administrative work which, it said, "can be used for more productive purposes."

The fees were eliminated effective Monday.

Council Members Due Tour

Lubbock City Council members are among 39 area civic leaders who will tour military installations at San Antonio today and Friday.

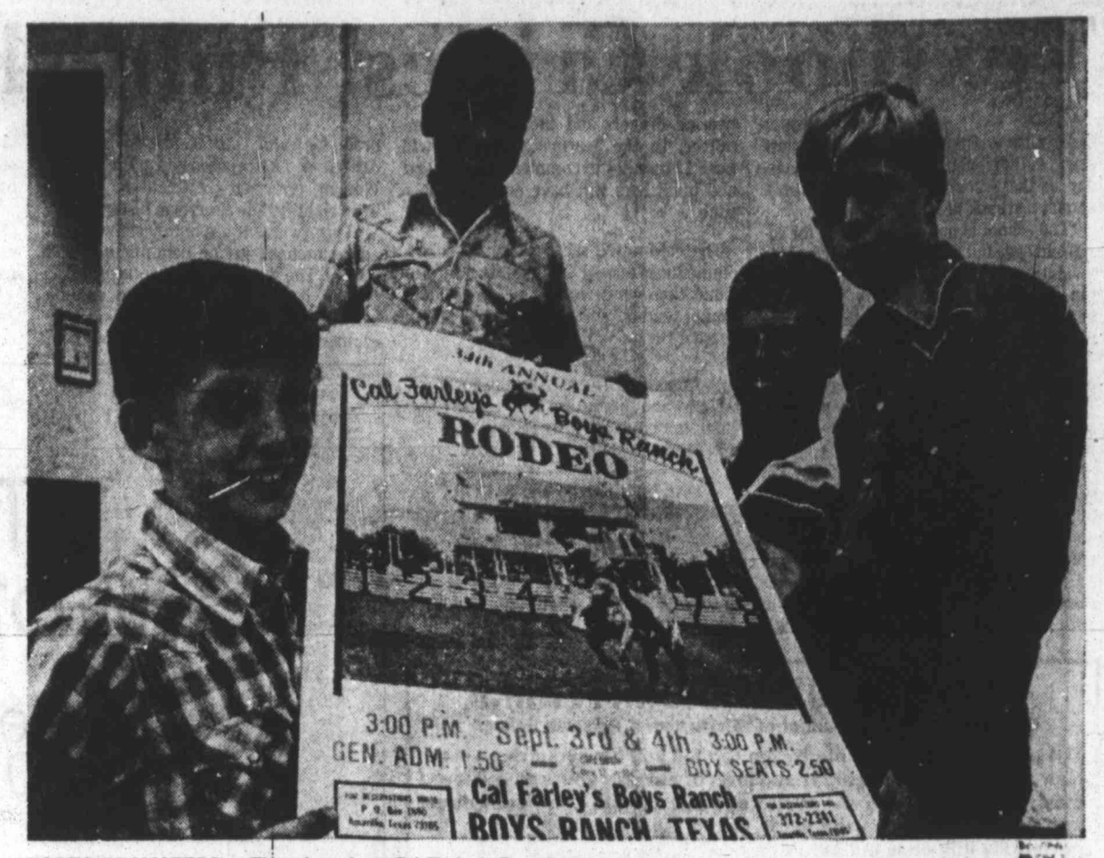

The trip will include visits to Randolph, Brooks, Kelly and Lackland Air Force bases.

The Air Training Command provides tours of facilities each year as part of a community relations program, and Lubbock's Reese Air Force Base was invited to send a delegation of city officials. The Air Force will provide the transportation, but the guests will pay for their meals and lodging.

Council members Bud Aderton, Carolyn Jordan and Alan Henry will make the trip on behalf of Lubbock.

Randolph is headquarters for ATC, and Brooks houses the aerospace medical division, where the effects of flight on the body are investigated and safety equipment is developed. Kelly AFB is an air logistics center specializing in the overhaul of the C-5 and B-52 aircraft. Lackland provides basic training for Air Force recruits.

Government's Energy Use Shows Overall Savings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's energy use, which dropped during the last year of the Gerald R. Ford administration, increased during fiscal 1977, which included the first eight months of Jimmy Carter's presidency, a federal report disclosed Wednesday.

However, the report released by the White House also disclosed that overall federal energy use in fiscal 1977 dropped an average of 3.7 percent when compared with energy use in fiscal 1975 and that a decrease was anticipated during the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

During the same two-year comparison period, energy use by the nation as a whole increased 7.3 percent, the report said.

The overall savings were announced at the White House by deputy press secretary Rex Granum, who said: "Clearly the U.S. government is moving against the U.S. trend in energy use."

During the White House briefing there was no mention of the upward trend in the past fiscal year, which ended last Sept. 30.

"Nobody's kidding themselves that we're going to stop growing in energy consumption," said Gail Bradshaw, an Energy Department spokesman.

The report was compiled by the department following a request Carter made 13 months ago for a check of the effectiveness of the Federal Energy Management Program, a government conservation project.

According to the report, the increase was attributable to major military training exercises and expanded responsibilities in a number of the 66 agencies and departments studied. The defense department uses nearly 80 percent of all federal energy.

The federal government itself is the largest single consumer of energy in the nation, using 2.2 per cent, Granum said. He said the overall drop in energy use represented a saving of $400 million.

The figures provided in the report show that in the base year, fiscal 1975, the federal government used the equivalent of 293.19 million barrels of oil. This figure dropped to 276.35 million barrels in fiscal 1976, but increased to 282.34 million barrels the following fiscal year.

"If it weren't for operations, we'd have been level — evened off — and started down once we got the (energy management) program started," said one energy department official who asked not to be identified by name.

The official, who worked on the study and is involved in the Federal Energy Management Program, said new data indicated the government's energy use could drop as much as 6 or 7 percent this year.

OPEC Price Hike Due Discussion

KUWAIT (AP) — Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait Oil Minister Khlifah al-Sabah met Wednesday to discuss whether OPEC should raise oil prices later this year, informed sources reported.

The two also considered the possibility of an emergency meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the sources said.

Other reports said Kuwait and Saudi Arabia were in agreement that oil prices should be increased at a rate of one percent or two percent four times a year instead of a proposed one-time 10 percent increase in 1979.

Saudi Arabia is the biggest oil exporter in OPEC, a 13-member organization. The current price of crude oil is $12.75 for a 42-gallon barrel.

Inventories Of Gasoline Still Falling

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's refiners stepped up gasoline production sharply last week, but inventories of the product continued to decline, according to the latest weekly supply bulletin from the American Petroleum Institute.

For the week ended Aug. 11, gasoline output rose to 7.4 million barrels daily from 7.1 million barrels daily a week earlier. Despite the stepped up production, gasoline supplies dropped to 214.7 million barrels from 216.6 million barrels in the previous week.

The API also reported that gasoline consumption during the month of July reached record levels of 8.0 million barrels daily and the latest weekly figures indicate that gasoline usage is continuing at high levels.

Crude oil imports in the latest week rose slightly to 6.1 million barrels a day from 6.0 million barrels a day a week ago.

Former Neighbors Remember Norman Rockwell

THEN AND NOW — James Martin, 80, left, shows how he stood 36 years ago when he posed, right, for Norman Rockwell's painting "Freedom from Fear."(AP Laserphoto)

For his work that afternoon, Martin earned $5 — and a place in history. His artistic neighbor was Norman Rockwell, who painted Martin in a series of works known as "The Four Freedoms."

The paintings eventually were reproduced on the envelopes of U.S. Savings Bonds that raised more than $100 million for the war effort.

Martin is among scores of Arlington residents who posed for Rockwell, who came to the southwestern Vermont town in 1939 at age 45 and painted townspeople for 14 years.

"It was like living in another world — a more honest one, somehow," the artist would later say of his years in Arlington.

At Carl Hess' gas station, a short drive from Martin's tidy white house, the proprietor keeps faded copies of Rockwell's famed Saturday Evening Post covers in a glass case next to collections of dusty tires, rusted wheels and other automotive treasures.

Hess jokes about being "100 pounds heavier" than he was when Rockwell depicted him standing up at an Arlington town meeting in a painting titled "Freedom of Speech."

"He told me I had a noble head," grins Hess, now 72.

A stone's throw away, former state Rep. James Edgerton — the artist's one-time neighbor — keeps a vigil over 45 acres still owned by Rockwell, who now lives in Stockbridge, Mass. "I miss him like the dickens," Edgerton says.

Years after Rockwell moved away, some loggers wanted to take timber from his land. "Rockwell said, 'OK, but don't take any of the birches you can see from Jim's house,' he told them.

"He wouldn't let them spoil my view," Edgerton says.

More than two decades after Rockwell's departure, longtime residents still speak admiringly of the artist.

A glossy art book that cost $60 — "Can you believe it?" — sits on Martin's kitchen table. He opens the book and caresses a detailed drawing of an aged hand, touching the etched wrinkles with his own gnarled forefinger.

"If you only knew these people," he sighs, pointing to drawings of residents long dead. "You could count the wrinkles in their hands. Rockwell never missed a damned one."

The result, "Freedom From Fear," shows Martin and a Sunderland woman, Mrs. Edgar Lawrence, standing beside a bed in which two children sleep. In his hand, Martin holds a copy of The Bennington Banner. A few letters of a headline are visible: "Bombings Ki ... Horror Hit ... "

Unlike some celebrities, Rockwell had no qualms about being seen in public, Martin says. "You could find him riding his bike down the road, with his corncob pipe and blue jeans. 'Hello, hello, hello,' he'd say. He had no high hat about him."

The $60 art book reads like a town photograph album. "That's Rose Hoyt, she's retired now," says Martin's wife, Vi, pointing to a woman clasping her hands in prayer in "Freedom of Worship." Martin turns the pages stiffly. Margie Squires, one of the children depicted in "Freedom From Fear" married a plumber. Mary Doyle, who posed for "Rosie the Riveter" is now Mary Keefe of Nashua, N.H. Frank White, who swings a hammer in "The Horseshoe Forging Contest" died in a car accident.

There've been other changes since Rockwell left town, Martin says. "The farms have grown up to brush and bushes. So many new people have come in from New York, from New Jersey.

"I hear Rockwell's 84 now. Doesn't see anybody anymore. I don't suppose he'd recognize me now."

'Information Day' Bus Plans Set For Struggs

As part of "Information Day" on court-ordered integration, school officials have decided to provide transportation Friday for students being reassigned from the former Struggs Junior High zone.

Initially there was to be no such transportation because Struggs students had visited their receiving schools in the spring. But Superintendent Ed Irons now says buses will run Friday to give Struggs youngsters another opportunity to preview next year's assignments.

A bus will leave the Struggs campus at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m. on Friday to take seventh-graders from that area to Atkins Junior High; eighth-graders to Hutchinson Junior High; and ninth-graders to O.L. Slaton Junior High.

Parents also are invited to accompany their children, Irons said.

Under the district's court-ordered integration plan, Struggs has been closed as a junior high and its students dispersed among Atkins, Hutchinson and O.L. Slaton.

"Information Day" also will give students and parents at the elementary level a chance to visit their "sister schools." Buses will leave neighborhood elementary schools at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m. to take children to the campuses they are scheduled to attend this fall.

The event is co-sponsored by the school district and Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids, a desegregation transition group. Parents and children will be able to tour school facilities and pick up information on the desegregation plan.

Urban Renewal Agency Okays Relocation Aid

The Lubbock Urban Renewal Agency approved Tuesday a policy to provide "last resort housing assistance," and designated a committee to review the cases involved.

Under the Uniform Relocation Act, the agency can provide up to $15,000 toward obtaining new housing for the displaced resident.

Upon approval of the new review committee — composed of the agency's executive director, legal counsel and chairman of the board of commissioners, along with the city's community development coordinator — an additional $6,500 would be available for relocation help.

Robert Stack, deputy director of urban renewal, said he did not anticipate use of the new policy in the near future, but the action was taken to make the board aware of the assistance provision.

The board, following up last Thursday's move by the City Council, amended a resolution dealing with the sale of a five-acre tract at 9th Street and Avenue Q.

The council agreed to give Billy Ray Wilder of Henderson a 60-day free option to purchase the land, during which time he hopes to obtain a Holiday Inn franchise. If he wants a four-month option after that, Wilder will have to put up $13,000 in forfeiture money. Total price of the land, part of the Memorial Center acreage, is approximately $455,000.

In other action, the board:

— Authorized a $43,000 contract with the city for water line improvements in the Arnett-Benson area and near Bean Elementary School; — Authorized purchase of remaining interests in incompleted construction at 1307 E. Stanford St., and approved advertisement for bids for purchase and completion of the two-bedroom house;

— Authorized eminent domain proceedings against two land parcels in the Arnett Benson area, although negotiations with the owners may continue;

— Approved a $2,000 supplemental loan to Ignacio Aguero, 4716 Emory St., for improvements to his home, and — Authorized a change in a demolition contract with J.L. Kubacak, so the agreement could be closed.

Meeting Remarks Lead To Suit

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A former Walker County judge, beaten in the May 6 Democratic primary for another term on the bench, has filed a slander suit against County Auditor Art Giroux.

Amos Gates claimed in the legal action that statements made by Giroux before a civic club led to his defeat.

Gates lost the bid for the Democratic nomination to County Judge Ralph Davis Jr., by about 600 votes.

The lawsuit asked for a jury trial and claims the county auditor intended to damage Gates' reputation.

Gates resigned as county judge in 1976 amid a Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission investigation into his 21 years on the county Commissioners Court.

The former judge claimed in the suit that Gates told the civic club meeting that Gates allegedly had committed a crime and charges would be filed if he (Gates) won the nomination.

TOYOTA

A TOUGH CHOICE FOR 1978!

One extra long. Both extra tough. Choose the standard bed or the extra large 7-foot bed. Either way you're in for one tough truck! Both are powered by a responsive 2.2 liter SOHC engine. So you can haul up to an 1100 pound payload, with ease. And, because they're Toyotas you know they're quality engineered and built tough...to last! Standard Bed or Long Bed...either way it's a tough choice. See them today!

The Avalanche-Journal
left in the world that is worth considerably more than the price you pay for it.

The Avalanche-Journal means value. Value that is both tangible and intangible.

Intangible value that comes with the quality of news coverage you receive by reading The Avalanche-Journal — a level of editorial excellence on the local, national and international levels unparalleled in West Texas.

Then there are the tangible benefits derived from reading the Avalanche-Journal. The cash benefits. The money you can save by subscribing to the A-J.

For instance, we publish a variety of store coupons each week. By using just some of them, you can save enough on purchases to more than pay for that week's A-J. Add to this the many advertised sales and your savings are greater.

All this boils down to one point. Subscribing to The Avalanche-Journal is more than getting a newspaper. It's making a profitable investment.

Girl Joins Wisconsin HS Squad

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — For 16-year-old Mary Liebl, the future is now.

Not only is the blonde senior trying out for boys' football, but she is attempting to earn a spot on the Madison West High School football squad that won last year's Class AA state championship.

"I'm trying out for defensive end and runningback," says Miss Liebl, a three-time letter-winner in girls' softball and basketball at West.

Practice began with twice-a-day sessions in sweltering heat only on Monday, and she said late Tuesday that nothing had discouraged her so far.

"The only thing that would make me quit is a serious injury," she said.

At 5-foot-7 and 154 pounds, Miss Liebl says a summer weightlifting program helped her gain the strength she will need when contact drills begin later this week.

She says she previously was limited by a lack of size and strength compared with some of the boys as much as by the years of fundamentals she missed before the federal courts last year ruled that girls could not be barred from boys' sports programs in public schools.

If she had been able, would she have gone out for football in her first three years of high school?

"For sure," she responds quickly. Her parents "think it's fine, and the other players, they're been all really nice."

Miss Liebl credits the attitude of her parents for making it easier for her to become what she believes is the first girl to try out for boy's football in Wisconsin.

Her coaches, she says, have also been supportive.

Assistant coach Dick Falch says she is getting no special treatment.

"She's out for football like everyone else," Falch says. "And we haven't made any special rules for her. She wouldn't want any."

Miss Liebl says her expectations are real: "I don't expect to make the varsity. I hope to play for the junior varsity."

Nationals Reject DH

ST. LOUIS (AP) — By a vote of 9-3, National League owners remained overwhelmingly opposed Wednesday to joining forces with the American League in the use of the designated hitter.

The margin of the vote during major league baseball's summer meeting at the Breckenridge Pavilion Hotel was the same as it had been before although not divided the same way.

"They were not the same people," NL president Chub Feeney said during a news conference at the close of the day-long session. "The status has not changed. Owners do not feel they want to go that route at this time."

Also tabled was a proposal by some American League owners for interleague play. Neither that proposal nor the recommendation for standardization of the designated hitter rule was on the formal agenda before the joint ownership council.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said a proposal to realign both the NL and AL into three divisions instead of the current two was forwarded by the leagues to a 10-man study committee.

"A study committee would be useful to determine exactly what it (realignment) would entail regarding scheduling, etc.," said Feeney. The two leagues, he indicated, will likely hire a consultant firm to help map out such a plan.

AL president Lee MacPhail cautioned, however, against considering the possible realignment the inevitable forerunner of interleague play.

Appointed by the joint ownership council was a four-man committee to study variances in umpiring between the two major leagues and in the minors.

The council also considered proposals to modify rules dealing with player-manager and player-coach movements and another to legalize performance bonuses in player contracts. Neither proposal was adopted, however. The performance bonus proposal, Kuhn said, would be referred further to the owners' player relations committee.

In other action, the owners selected Los Angeles the site for the 1980 All-Star game and awarded the 1982 game to Montreal. The 1979 game will be at Seattle and the 1981 contest at an American League park not yet determined.

Pros Look To Mahaffey In Westchester Classic

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Earlier this year John Mahaffey faced the trials and trauma of the Monday morning qualifying rounds.

Now he faces a shot at a little piece of golf history.

Mahaffey, no longer a hard-luck guy fighting for his golfing life, but a full-fledged candidate for Player of the Year honors, seeks a rare third consecutive victory in the $300,000 Westchester Classic, beginning today on the heat-ravaged, 6,603-yard, par-71 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

"I'm not making any predictions. Winning two in a row is unbelievable. I just want to keep it going as long as I can," said Mahaffey, who has scored gritty, come-from-behind victories each of the last two weeks.

The triumphs in the PGA National Championship and the Pleasant Valley Classic have completed a 180-degree swing in Mahaffey's golfing fortunes, confirmed the bright promise of his earlier years and, suddenly, established him as a major force in the game.

Shattering losses in the 1975 and 1976U.S. Opens sent his game into a decline. Injuries and ailments kept him off the tour most of last season. He didn't make expenses and dropped back into the ranks of the non-exempt players, the Monday morning qualifiers.

Now, however, he has won $95,000 in the last two weeks and is going for a third victory in a row. Only nine others have ever done it. And Gary Player, who triggered a string of three in a row with his victory in the Masters this year, is the only man to win three consecutive tournaments including a major.

Now Mahaffey has a chance to tie that mark.

Opposing him in the 150-man field is an extremely strong lineup, led by Jack Nicklaus, a two-time Westchester champion. Nicklaus, winner of the British Open and three American tournaments this season, failed to make the cut in the PGA, his last start.

Tom Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year and a three-time winner this season, and Jerry Pate, the men Mahaffey beat in a playoff for the PGA title, also are on hand. So are Andy North, the U.S. Open title holder and defending champion here, and Andy Bean, the season's leading money-winner.

Tech Hosts Bulgarians

On the day that coach Gerald Myers left the United States as coach of a team heading for international competition, he announced that another foreign team will be coming to play his Red Raiders this fall.

Myers and Tech athletic director Dick Tamburo announced that Tech will host the Bulgarian national team in a basketball game in Lubbock Coliseum on Nov. 14.

The game is strictly an exhibition, as the NCAA does not allow regulation games to begin before Thanksgiving. Tech's first regularly scheduled game is on Nov. 27 against Central State of Oklahoma.

"We're pleased to have the opportunity to play a game like this early in the year," said Myers. "It will help us a great deal in getting ready for the regular season."

Don Henry

Either Orr

AT THE TIME he was talking, Tim Orr didn't know that this morning was the time when his opening slot would be determined.

Orr is a healthy-looking young man. . . stands 5 inches over 6 feet. . . weighs about 205 pounds. . . runs like a 4.6 deer. . . and likes to carry a football under his arm.

Also, he would like to be Tech's No. 1 runningback this fall. Right now, there are several young men that want that same job.

And, this morning, the pecking order may be established. Workouts do not begin for the Raiders until next Monday, but today, coach Rex Dockery's staff meets again to map out that opening strategy.

"We really haven't talked personnel yet," said Tech offensive overseer Sam Casey commented Wednesday after returning from a week on the road scouting high school talent. "That's one of our matters for in the morning (today). I don't know who will be No. 1 now that Sam left."

Sam is Sam Bailey, the No. 1 runner last spring, the only Tech runner with much experience, who was removed from the team earlier this summer by Dockery, as a disciplinary move.

WHEN THE OFFENSIVE coaches sit down at the conference table, there will be several names tossed on the hardwood. There will be Orr's, along those of Eddie Monaco, Mark Olbert, Sam Dawson, Don Earl, but not the likes of Bailey, Billy Taylor (now a pro) or Mark Julian (now a coach).

"Don is the No. 1 A-back," commented Casey, "but the No. 1 B-back, I'm not sure. It could be Monaco. He had a good spring. We may throw them in a hat.

"Earl has been running the tailback position, and Monaco No. 2 fullback (behind Bailey). But, if Orr and Earl (175 pounds) are in the same backfield, Orr will be at fullback."

But, the job Orr wants is No. 1. He feels he's in physical condition to get it, too.

ORR IS ONLY a sophomore, having come out of Abilene Cooper with credentials as a 1500-yard rusher, with good speed and the size to run over folks. Not many runningbacks go 6-5; that's a big man for the ball-carrying department.

But, to try to earn back a spot he lost in the spring, Orr spent the summer in Lubbock. While not going to class or studying, he was working out.

"Mainly lifting," Orr commented

Acupuncture Heals Pastorini

HOUSTON (AP) — Dan Pastorini took the advice of a teammate and underwent acupuncture treatments for a leg injury.

After the treatments were completed, the Houston Oilers quarterback walked out of an airport hotel room early Wednesday and said he will be ready to compete Saturday night against the Dallas Cowboys.

Pastorini's status has been questionable since he received the painful leg muscle injury in the second quarter of Monday night's game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I know I'll be ready," Pastorini said, reaching down to lift an acupuncture chart off a hotel bed.

"I couldn't do this before the treatment," he said.

Dr. Richard Yennie flew Tuesday night to Houston from Kansas City after Pastorini agreed to the treatment recommended by punter Jerrel Wilson, who formerly played with the Kansas City Chiefs.

"This won't hurt," he told the quarterback.

"You speak with forked tongue," Pastorini answered.

After the needle treatment, Pastorini said he could sit without discomfort.

He then asked Yennie to work on an ankle that had been severely sprained earlier and on a sore shoulder.

Wilson and Mike Barber were among those accompanying Pastorini to the hotel.

Wilson said he was on crutches for one of his visits to Yennie's Kansas City office.

"I walked out carrying the crutches and played that night," he said.

Renewed Grid Interest Aids Program At S-E

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

EARTH — When Radford Taylor was hired by the Springlake-Earth school board in 1977 to coach the Wolverine football team, the school board had just one simple request — win a game. Taylor won two contests.

Taylor was not.

Springlake-Earth won its first district title championship in 1939. The Wolverines have had a winning program up until 1974, where for no apparent reason, Springlake-Earth fell upon hard times.

"I really don't know what happened," said Taylor. " But when I came here I could see that the program had affected our kids' attitudes."

But now that has all changed.

"To give you an example, we only had 42 kids come out last season," said Taylor. "This year 55 showed up. That shows you the interest is there."

Last year, Springlake-Earth finished the season with a 2-8 overall record. The Wolverines were 1-4 in 3-A district action.

"Many people said we shouldn't have won any games last season," said Taylor. "I feel that we played good enough to win maybe one or two more than we did. But that still is not enough. From a coaching standpoint, our goal this season is to win the state championship."

Of course, all coaches are talking state championship this time of year. Taylor, however, points to his team for proof that his intentions are serious.

"There is no way we could have done that last year after the third workout," said Taylor while watching his offensive unit execute a pitchout play. "Last year at this time, we were teaching these kids the basics of football. No way could they have run a play after the third workout."

The Wolverines lost eight lettermen to graduation, and they will return 16 lettermen — eight both offensively and defensively.

"We need an established quarterback," said Taylor. "Currently, we have six kids battling for the postion, but right now nobody has come to the front that can run our I-formation."

All is not gloom if you like to watch a lot of offense and are a Springlake-Earth backer.

"We have an experienced senior line and hopefully will open a lot of holes for our backs," said Taylor. Those senior lineman Taylor is looking to for leadership include Bryan Vaughn (215), Keith Clayton (185), Jimmy Don Randolph (180) and Allen Moore (190). Taylor is also expecting great things out of Rudy DeLeon (190, Jr) offensive guard.

"Of course, we'll have those same senior lineman, but behind them we're going to have young people," said Taylor. "But what impresses me more than anything else is the enthusiasm of these kids. They really have great attitudes, and I believe this will compensate for their lack of playing time."

Sages of the football world say championships are won and lost depending upon the amount of depth a team has. If Springlake-Earth is hit by injuries, will the Wolverines have quality people to fill the shoes?

"One of our big problems last season was wear and tear on our players," said Taylor. "We just didn't have enough personnel. But now I feel we have it. Yes, I believe our bench can pick up the slack."

And if the Wolverines can pick up the slack on the scoreboard, just imagine what the school board's reaction will be.

Single Game Tickets Offered

Texas Tech ticket manager Carol Baker announced Wednesday that individual game tickets to Red Raider home games are now on sale at the Tech ticket office at the south side of Jones Stadium.

According to Mrs. Baker, there are sideline seats avaiable for all games except the Sept. 30 encounter with Texas. Only tickets for admission to the grass slope on the north end of the stadium remain for that game. Grass-seat tickets are priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students high school age and below.

Individual game tickets that were reserved through the ticket office earlier are now being mailed, Mrs. Baker said.

Tech has home games this fall against Arizona, Texas, Baylor, SMU, and the University of Houston.

Korean Moundsmen Impress LCC Coach

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Lubbock Christian College coach Larry Hays remembers those pitchers, but Tim Leslie remembers all those hot Cokes.

Although both coach and player made the same NAIA-sponsored tour of Korea and Taiwan, their memories differ.

Both returned over the weekend from the trip, after a brief stopover in Hawaii.

Leslie started every game on the tour, playing first base or being the designated hitter. Hays, the LCC coach, was one of the coaches on the tour. Another Chaparral, Steve Brigante, made the team, started every game at second base and was named the outstanding defensive performer on the Korean part of the trip.

Leslie recalled the first game, since the team learned when it arrived at the ball park that it was not allowed any water to drink. "We went through eight cases of Cokes the first six innings. Then, we didn't have anything else to drink the rest of the ball game," he remarked.

That left him with not much interest in soft drinks when he returned to the United States. However, one of the first stops for the players, once they reached Hawaii on the way home, was a fast-food stand, for hamburgers and milkshakes.

But, for Hays, the memories were of the players. And he even thought some of recruiting.

"Their (the Korean) pitchers really impressed me," the LCC coach reported. "In fact, I checked into it (recruiting) on a couple of their pitchers, but because of their educational situation, it would be difficult to get them over here.

"Besides, one of the pitchers was going to Japan to play in their pro league as soon as we finished the series with them."

Korean baseball is a game of pitching and hit-and-run, said Hays. "They send a lot of runners. They depended on that—that and the pitching—while we seemed to have more speed and more power.

"But, the Korean team was definitely well coached and well prepared. That was their national team and the best of their college all-stars together."

The NAIA team played seven games in Korea and six exhibition games in Taiwan. Against the Koreans, the U.S. won two, lost four and tied one.

"Over there, you play nine innings, if it's tied, you bow and walk off," chuckled Hays. "There aren't any extra-inning games.

"But, that was really big (the series) for them. The first day, the game drew 17,000, and every other one went about 30,000 people. Six of them were on national TV. To the Koreans, it was their opportunity to display their baseball."

Hays spoke of the educational advantage of the trip, with tours sponsored by the Koreans, "to the DMZ, to meet the mayor and different dignitaries. The Koreans definitely treated us like guests, put us up in the best accomodations."

After the Korean games, which were played in the form of a tournament, with trophies for the winners, MVPs, and the national fanfare, the games in Taiwan were more exhibitions. The NAIA teams went 2-2-2 in that series.

Average attendance at Taiwan was about 7,500.

The tour was the second sponsored by the NAIA, with the Korean team to come to the U.S. on alternate years. Hays said that LCC has a chance to host some of the games next summer, "if we want to take advantage of it. But, that'll be decided later."

Don Henry

Wednesday. "I get my share of running, too, but I really have worked on the weights.

"I'm not too big in my chest--at least when I came up here (from high school).

"In high school, I didn't need it, because I was bigger than everybody else. But, up here, it's a different story.

"I tried to lift 250 pounds on the bench press and 500 on the squats. But, after working all summer, I can lift 275 bench press and 555 on the squats.

"I can feel I'm stronger through the chest."

Orr tried that high school approach — running over folks — last year, and he found that the other guys were as big as he. So, he has had to learn new methods, as well as work on his strength.

• • •

BEING SO TALL, he can fall for good yardage, but on the other side of that coin, there is more of him to be grasped by defenders.

This is both a concern and a pride for him.

"The only thing vulnerable is my legs," Orr says. "Because I have a lot of leg room for them to aim at. But, I try not to let them have it. I try to take a leg away from them, you know? I can tell when they go down low on my leg, and I try to get more body lean, before they can hit my legs.

"Also, I try to run straight at them, not let them get a clear shot at me."

With 205 pounds on that long frame, Orr feels he could handle more weight, but not at the present. He has scaled down 5 pounds from last year and hopes the loss has helped his speed. Further down the road, he would like to get on as much as 20 pounds, if he can carry it.

After a summer of hard work ("so much harder than I worked last summer coming out of high school"), Orr is slowing down on the weights, getting ready for the two-mile run Dockery requires of his troops.

"I've been thinking about Southern Cal all summer." And being the No. 1 back.

Nuggets Get McGinnis For Two Players

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — George McGinnis, the forward who led the Philadelphia 76ers back to respectability only to falter in the playoffs, was traded Wednesday to the Denver Nuggets for forward Bobby Jones and guard Ralph Simpson.

The deal between the two National Basketball Association teams had been in the works since the 76ers were eliminated from the 1978 playoffs by the champion Washington Bullets in May.

Holding up the transaction were the no-trade clauses which both McGinnis and Jones have in their contracts, as well as bonus payments to both players for agreeing to the trade.

Rams' Jackson Goes To Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — All-Pro wide receiver Harold Jackson was traded Wednesday by the Los Angeles Rams to the New England Patriots.

Patriots' coach Chuck Fairbanks said Jackson would come to the National Football League team in return for undisclosed future draft choices.

The 5-foot-10, 175-pound product of Jackson State is a five-time All-Pro and set a Rams record with 48 catches during the 1977 campaign.

The need for Jackson opened up when wide receiver Darryl Stingley was placed on the injured reserve list. Stingley remains paralyzed in an Oakland, Calif. hospital following an injury sustained when he was tackled by Raiders' defensive back Jack Tatum.

Jackson, now in his 11th season in the NFL, has also played with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The fleet pass receiver enters the 1978 season ranked as the 21st best receiver in NFL history.

He has made 415 catches for 7,084 yards and 57 touchdowns.

Jackson was originally drafted by Los Angeles in 1968. After spending that season on the reserve list, he was traded to the Eagles. After four outstanding seasons in Philadelphia, he was traded back to the Rams and played five more seasons.

Tipton Waived

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Rell Tipton, shifted from guard to center by the Green Bay Packers this season, was waived by the National Football League club Wednesday.

The 6-foot-4, 245-pound Tipton, a seventh round draft choice from Baylor in 1977, spent last season on the injured reserve list.

Seahawks, LA Collide

The Rams face the Seattle Seahawks tonight in Seattle and Malavasi talked with Seattle area reporters by conference telephone call earlier.

But he didn't say much.

Asked about a reported revolt or near-revolt which swept Allen out of office, Malavasi replied. "No there was not a revolt. I don't know where you got that idea."

Perhaps it was from a Los Angeles source who said, after last week's 17-0 loss to San Diego, that in the locker room after the game some of the Rams were chanting, "We want Chuck." Chuck Knox, highly successful in five seasons as Rams coach, now coaches the Buffalo Bills.

Asked the mood of the Rams, Malavasi said, "Very good."

Asked if the Rams can produce the type of hyped-up offense apparently demanded by Carroll Rosenbloom, the team's sometimes impatient owner, Malavasi said, "I hope so. It's just a matter of trying to make adjustments."

The Rams will try to snap a two-game losing streak. In exhibition losses to New England and San Diego, Los Angeles has managed to score a total of only seven points.

The Seahawks have won both their exhibition games — 17-9 against San Diego and 20-6 over San Francisco.

The Seahawks on Wednesday announced they put four players on the injured reserved list to bring the roster to the specified 60-man limit. On the list are safety Don Dufek, punter Mike Korvas, tight end Marcus Hatley and tight end Fred Rayhle.

Dufek, Hatley and Rayhle all have knee injuries, a team spokesman said. Korvas has back problems, the spokesman said.

Expos Nip SF; Dodgers Take First In NL West

By The Associated Press

Reggie Smith's bases-loaded homer in the third and strong pitching by rookie Bob Welch carried the Los Angeles Dodgers to 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night and into first place in the National League Western Division.

The Los Angeles victory, coupled with San Francisco's 1-0 loss to Montreal, moved the Dodgers one game ahead of the Giants in the West.

Woodie Fryman pitched a one-hitter and Larry Parrish supplied the only run with a run-scoring triple in the fourth inning as the Montreal Expos edged San Francisco.

Fryman, 7-7, gave up a single to Darrell Evans in the second, walked two batters and struck out four on the way to his fourth complete game of the season. Fryman, 5-3 since joining Montreal in early June, threw the second one-hitter of his career. He one-hit the Mets on May 3, 1975.

PIRATES 13, REDS 2

The Cincinnati Reds got a postgame pep talk from comedian Jonathan Winters, but it was the Pittsburgh Pirates who had the real laugher.

"You guys are going to be all right," Winters told the Reds after they were pounded 13-2 by a Pirates attack that included a pair of home runs by Dave Parker.

Winters, an Ohio native and a long-time Cincinnati boster, is in Pittsburgh to make a movie. He watched the game and stopped by the locker room to wish the Reds well in a series that begins Thursday with Chicago.

"Go out there and beat those little bears. Make them eat some of that poison ivy on their little wall," said Winters.

While Winters entertained the Reds, Parker enjoyed a paper cup of wine in the Pirate locker room after raising his season home run total to 23, one more than he had all last year.

"I'd like to hit at least 30 home runs and drive in over 100 runs," said Parker, who collected five RBI to raise his season total to 77.

PADRES 2, METS 1

Derrel Thomas smashed a two-out, two-run homer off reliever Skip Lockwood in the ninth inning to give San Diego Padres a 2-1 triumph over the New York Mets.

BRAVES 9, CUBS 0

TIGERS 2, INDIANS 0

Jack Billingham scattered seven singles to post his fourth shutout in his last six starts as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Cleveland Indians 2-0.

Billingham seemed to get stronger as the game progressed, retiring 15 in a row at one stretch, beginning in the fourth inning. The triumph was Billingham's eighth straight and improved his record to 13-5.

WHITE SOX 6, RANGERS 2

Claudell Washington singled, doubled and tripled and scored three times as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 6-2.

Rob Baumgarden got the victory in his major league debut. He allowed only five hits, struck out two and walked four in the six innings he worked before yielding to Lerrin LaGrow in the seventh.

The White Sox jumped on Doyle Alexander, 7-9, for five hits and two runs in the first two innings.

Don Kessinger, Jorge Orta, and Lamar Johnson hit consecutive singles for a 1-0 Chicago lead in the first. Washington tripled in the second and scored on Bob Molinaro's fielder's choice to give Chicago a two-run edge.

Texas closed the margin to 2-1 in the second on successive singles by Bobby Bonds and Richie Zisk and a sacrifice fly by Kurt Bevacqua.

ROYALS, TWINS SPLIT

George Brett's three-run homer in the seventh inning capped a four-run outburst by Kansas City and triggered the Royals to an 11-7 victory over Minnesota and a split of their doubleheader. In the opener, Jeff Zahn scattered six hits and Glenn Adams and Rod Carew each drove in two runs as the Twins won 5-1.

Trailing 5-2 in the seventh inning of the second game, Steve Braun singled in Al Cowens for Kansas City's third run. Hal McRae followed with a single and Brett then drilled his fifth homer of the year deep into the right field bleachers for a 6-5 Royals lead.

ASTROS 4, CARDINALS 2

Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro pitched a six-hitter and Art Howe hit a pair of run-scoring singles to lead the Astros past St. Louis 4-2.

Niekro, 10-9, struck out five batters and walked one. He lost his shutout when George Hendrick hit his 14th home run of the season, a two-run shot, in the eighth inning.

BREWERS SWEEP PAIR

Paul Molitor's two-run bloop single capped a three-run seventh inning, rallying Milwaukee to a 3-2 victory over Toronto as the Brewers completed a doubleheader sweep. The Brewers won the first game 8-1 as a two-run homer and an RBI single by Robin Yount, a solo homer and RBI double by Larry Hisle and a bases-empty homer by Charlie Moore backed Mike Caldwell's six-hit pitching.

The Blue Jays broke a scoreless tie in the seventh inning of the second game as John Mayberry singled and pinch-runner Willie Upshaw came around on a sacrifice, a fielder's choice and an RBI single by Dave McKay off Ed Rodriguez, 4-5.

SWC Grid Camps Open

By The Associated Press

Texas A&M, Texas Christian, Southern Methodist and Rice open fall Southwest Conference football workouts today with defending champion Texas the last to start on Aug. 22.

Other opening workout dates include Arkansas Aug. 18, Houston Aug. 19, and Texas Tech and Baylor, each Aug. 21.

SWC teams open play Sept. 9 against nonconference opponents with the exception of SMU and TCU who collide in the Cotton Bowl in the first league outing.

The SWC has 23 intersectional opponents who posted a winning percentage of .544 last year.

Openers Sept. 9 include Texas Tech at Southern California; Texas A&M at Kansas; Iowa State at Rice.

On Sept. 16, Baylor is at Georgia, Houston is at Memphis State; and Arkansas hosts Vanderbilt. Texas opens its season at Rice.

The Baylor-Georgia game will be televised back to Texas via a regional network.

CARRYING THE LOAD — Coach Sonny Wiginton is flanked by runningbacks Bob Graves (31) and Victor King (30). Graves and King will be counted upon to help Sudan defend its share of the District 2-B title this year. The Hornets finished the 1977 season with an 8-1-1 record,and a three-way tie for the title. Sudan Mentor Hopes To Avoid Rebuilding

BY SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche Journal Sports Staff

SUDAN — As the Hornets were finishing their first practice Monday morning, an assistant coach began washing down the locker room. "We want to make it clean," he said.

Although the coaches want to wash away some of the leftover turf and mud from last year's practices, there are some remnants that they hope can be waxed and preserved for the upcoming grid season.

For example, Sudan presented rookie head coach Sonny Wiginton with an 8-1-1 record during 1977, and he sure would like to repeat that success again.

However, with 14 lettermen lost via graduation, Wiginton concedes that — conceivably — 1978 could be a rebuilding year. "But I hope it isn't," he added.

"We have talent at important positions, and if we overcome some inexperience, I feel we could be strong contenders again this year," Wiginton said.

With a lack of size, the Hornets think their overall team speed and quickness will prove damaging for Class B opponents. To utilize the quickness on offense, Sudan will use the potent veer attack.

And leading the threat will be senior halfback John Miles of whom Wiginton admits, "We expect big things." A returning starter, Miles rushed for more than 1300 yards last year, and, with his 5-10, 155-pound frame, runs the 40-yard dash in 4.7.

"He's dangerous, because he is so hard to contain. "Miles isn't a disciplined runner, he runs by instinct and sometimes he can scare you because you never know what direction he's going or where he'll end up," Wiginton confided as a few assistant caoches nodded in agreement.

Mike Jones will draw the signal-calling duties, and record has it that the Hornets are not shy of the pass. "We passed for over 1000 yards last year and averaged about 14 attempts a game; and we hope to put the ball in the air this year, too," Wiginton, a graduate of Eastern New Mexico, explained.

On defense, the Hornets will reley on quickness and speed. "Like most Class B schools — except for Valley — we don't have much size, and I think our quickness and speed will overshadow our weaknesses," said the coach.

With a young team — mostly juniors and sophomores — taking to the field, Wiginton is confident that his troops can jell in time for the district race which the coach says will be real close with Valley, Sundown and Amherst among the favorites — and, of course, Sudan.

LA, IOC Near Agreement?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The now-we-have-them, now-we-don't 1984 Olympics appeared headed for Los Angeles again Wednesday as the head of the city's negotiating team indicated an agreement absolving the city of any financial responsibility for the Games was imminent.

"We're kind of over the points of substance, and we're at a point of refining the language," said John C. Argue, who as head of the Southern California Olympic Organizing Committee has worked for months to bring the 1984 Summer Games to the area.

Argue would not deny published reports that the IOC has agreed to free Los Angeles from financial liability for the Games, an issue which has been the key stumbling block in the signing of a contract.

"We have steadfastly said that the city must protect its taxpayers," Argue said. "We think we're getting close with a concept that will work.

"There has been a breakthrough, but we're not there yet. I learned a long time ago that you don't have an agreement until you have an agreement."

Argue said he hoped to announce a contract later this week.

IOC and USOC officials refused to comment on the reported breakthrough.

The city was provisionally awarded the 1984 Games in May, with the condition that it sign an IOC-approved contract by July 31. However that deadline has been extended repeatedly while the parties tried to resolve the question of financial liability.

IOC rules call for the host city of the Games and the national organizing committee of the host country to jointly sign the contract and thereby accept financial responsibility.

The IOC several weeks ago rejected what was originally described as a "take-it-or-leave-it" proposal whereby the private Los Angeles Olympic Organizing committee, rather than the city, would have signed the contract, and it appeared then that the Games might be held elsewhere. But negotiations continued.

The IOC executive board is to meet Aug. 29-31 in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Coach Likes Chieftains' Size

FRIONA — Coach Lonnie Phillips has a horse trailer parked beside his Friona High School field. It could be the one in which he brings his fullback to practice.

Jeff Peak, a 6-4, 220-pounder, may make the Chieftains' 3-AA opponents wish they had it to take him home come gametime.

Peak, a reformed tackle, is the driving force to the offense Phillips hopes will cap his effort at rebuilding Friona's football fortunes.

In his rookie season, Phillips took the Chieftains to a 3-6-1 regular season mark, but Friona was 3-2 in district play and finished only one game out of the championship.

Last season the ball team improved to .500 overall, finished 4-1 in loop play and earned a share of the conference championship although it lost out on the coin-tossing for the right to enter the playoffs.

This year Phillips hopes he can make it all the way.

"I think we have better size for sure," Phillips said this week. "We've also got a little bit better speed than we have had in the past so I feel like we'll get the job done."

In addition to Peak, the Chieftains are looking for strong running from 160-pound junior Rod Owen, up from last season's junior varsity, and quarterback Chris Barnett, a returning letterman. Mike Hutson, an all-district performer last year, will play either tailback or wide receiver.

Defensively, Friona should be in pretty good shape as it returns six of last season's starters.

"We hope we can make it interesting for sure," Phillips said. "We've got good toughness and good enthusiasm. I feel our kids will work as hard as any one's.

"We're always slow starters, but we come on pretty strong right at the end. This year I hope we will get off to a little faster start."

The Chieftains will open their season on the road against Tulia on Sept. 8. Friona will host Muleshoe on Oct. 20 to open the district play.

Six Lettermen Hold Keys At Farwell

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

FARWELL — Farwell only had a 6-4 record last season, but new coach Don Alana hopes that he, along with six returning starters, can turn that around and make Steer Stadium a happy place once more.

Leading the Farwell returners are linebackers Rowdy Chandler and D.D. Foster. Chandler was all-district at that position last year and Foster made the all-star team at offensive guard.

"Our biggest problem is quickness," Alana said. "Overall attitude is our strong point. I feel like if you've got so good an attitude that it will make up for a lot of things."

Alana is installing a new offense and defense for the Steers this season. They will be running the veer on offense and a 4-3 variation on defense.

One of the kinks in Alan's hopes to put Farwell back on the football map is that District 3-A is extremely strong this season.

"Kress and Vega both have got good ball teams coming back from last year," Alana said. "We should be able to compete in the district though. If we can stay healthy I think we can definitely compete in the district."

Besides the 6-1, 185-pound Foster and 6-0, 180-pound Chandler, the other returning Steer starters are Leonel Jaime (a 180-pound tackle), Robin Roberts, Max Lonsdale and James Castleberry. All three are runningbacks.

Farwell will open the season Sept. 8 in Olton and then play four more games before opening the district contests on the road in Springlake-Earth.

Ex-Baylorite Reed Leaves Falcon Camp

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Rookie defensive back Scooter Reed, an 11th round draft choice from Baylor, walked out of the Atlanta Falcons camp and has apparently quit, coach Leeman Bennett said Wednesday.

Getting angry at the electric company about high bills won't help one bit. Because the problem is probably in your own home. If your heating and air-conditioning system is one of the old, low efficiency types, for example, a General Electric Executive high efficiency system is probably just what you've been wishing for. It's the most energy-efficient GE unit available today.

Imagine what that can do for your pocketbook!

So, don't get mad at the electric company next time your bill seems too high. Replace your old inefficient unit with a GE Executive high efficiency air conditioner. It has the lowest operating costs in the entire GE line. And, that's a pretty good plug, wouldn't you say.

Pokes Plan To Utilize Two Kickers

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)—Free agent placekicker Jay Sherrill will play the first half for the Dallas Cowboys Saturday night against the Houston Oilers in a National Football League exhibition while former Oiler Skip Butler will placekick in the second half.

Sherrill, a free agent from North Carolina State, has been in Thousand Oaks since training camp started for the World Champion Cowboys. Butler joined Dallas in camp after it became obvious Efren Herrera was going to be traded which he was to Seattle.

Sherrill believes he has the edge over Butler in Dallas' countdown for a placekicker.

"I would like to think I have an edge now for the simple reason I've been here all this time and feel I've improved every day," said Sherrill.

Sherrill has connected on all six of his extra point attempts and has been impressive with his kickoffs. He has yet to attempt a field goal.

"I'm confident that when the chance comes I can do the job," said Sherrill. "You have to be confident."

He added "I like the idea of kicking first Saturday night. It makes me feel comfortable. . .like I'm in the driver's seat."

Swimmers Plan More Challenges

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Diana Nyad, rested and in good spirits, called herself a hero Wednesday and said she may again test the vicious Gulf Stream currents that defeated her bid to swim from Cuba to Florida.

She also said she was happy for Stella Taylor, who also gave up Tuesday as she tried to swim from the Bahamas to Florida.

Miss Nyad, 28, a veteran marathon swimmer from New York, admitted she was depressed, as well as exhausted, Tuesday night after she had to give up the marathon effort that began Sunday afternoon on the Cuban coast. She said she was afraid the world was laughing at her.

But she awoke Wednesday morning to a deluge of congratulatory telegrams and telephone calls from well-wishers.

"I am a hero, that's what I wanted. I didn't think I would be if I didn't finish the swim," she said in an interview.

Although she said she felt pleased with her effort, which went for naught after 10 to 20-knot winds blew her 40 miles off course, Miss Nyad said she has been unable to escape the thought of trying the swim again.

"I know I can make it. There's no question I could have kept up if I was on course. As soon as I got out of the water I was thinking 'let's wait two weeks and do it again.'"

Miss Taylor, of Fort Lauderdale, tried to swim from the Bahamas to Florida while Miss Nyad was swimming from Cuba.

"I was heartbroken," Miss Taylor said after the Gulf Stream current proved too much for her to overcome. When she gave up, she was only about 18 miles off the Florida shore.

Miss Taylor said she plans another marathon swim effort at Christmas, trying to go from one of the southern Florida Keys to the Bahamas. "You have to be tough," she said, and added, "Next year I want the St. Lawrence River. That's 20 miles."

Connors Wins First Match

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Jimmy Connors downed Ian Fletcher of Australia at the Stowe Grand Prix Tennis Tournament 6-3, 2-6, 6-2 Wednesday, but not before the feisty Australian put a scare into the tournament's top seed.

Connors, fresh from victory at the U.S. Clay Courts Championships in Indianapolis, emerged for his opening round match here to a standing ovation. Joking with the linesman and mugging for the crowd, won the first set before Fletcher fought back, repeatedly driving Connors to the baseline with a hard forehand and a spinning backhand slice. Before he was done, Fletcher had taken the set and knotted the match.

With the score 3-2 in the decisive third set, the suddenly-grim Connors broke service and went on to win.

The tournament's first upset came later during second-round play as 19-year-old Eliot Teltschler of Palos Verdes, Cal., beat Australian Kim Warwick 6-4, 6-4. Teltschler, who plays for UCLA, controlled the tempo and kept Warwick off balance throughout the match.

Fourth-seeded Bob Lutz defeated Bernie Mitton of South Africa 6-7, 6-4, 6-1 to advance to the quarter-finals.

Mart Shows Good Surge

NEW YORK (AP) — A statement by President Carter that the recent fall of the dollar was a matter of "deep concern" sent the stock market surging Wednesday, despite indications that the Federal Reserve was moving to raise interest rates in an attempt to shore up the beleaguered currency.

A late buying surge, the second in as many days, carried the market over the latter news and the Dow Jones index of 30 industrial issues closed with a 7.45 gain to 894.58. There were almost twice as many advancing issues as declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

The exchange's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks showcd a .45 bulge to 58.93, and volume was a moderate 36.12 million shares.

Carter met with Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller to discuss the dollar, and asked the two men to look into ways of stabilizing the currency.

New York (AP) —Wednsday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE TEXAS AGRICULTURAL STABILIZATION and Conservation Service Committee, headed by J. D. Smith of Sudan, met here the other day to discuss 1979 farm program plans with ASCS county and community committeemen and county executive directors from the High Plains and Rolling Plains.

About 250 committeemen attended. They voiced approval of several state committee recommendations on 1979 program revisions, offered some of their own, and heard suggested ways in which farmers can help themselves on some program matters.

Also at the meeting were Weldon Denny, deputy administrator for state and county operations of ASCS in Washington, ASCS officials from the state office in College Station, and representatives of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

PROPOSALS TO BE PRESENTED AT ASCS "Task Force" meetings in Washington early in September were outlined by W. M. Hott, state ASCS chief of production adjustment.

Noting the confusion that resulted from late issuance and frequent changes of 1978 program regulations, Hott said the state committee's first recommendation to Washington would be that 1979 provisions for Texas be announced firmly by Sept. 1 for fall seeded crops and by Nov. 14 for spring seeded crops.

Denny later confirmed that Washington already has plans for more timely rule-making for 1979.

The state committee also will propose that required set-aside of acreage and payment for additional voluntary set-aside be announced on a comparable basis for all competing crops such as cotton, wheat, grain sorghum and corn.

THIS IS DESIGNED TO PREVENT SHIFTING of acreage from one crop solely to take advantage of program provisions instead of to make the best use of available land and resources.

Hott stressed that the Texas group would seek a payment on voluntary cotton diversion — if it is determined that such diversion is desirable — at a rate to encourage participation.

Another contention of the state committee is that county committees should be given the authority and responsibility for determining what practices would be required on diverted acres so long as wind and water erosion and weeds are controlled in accordance with the law.

PRODUCERS THEMSELVES CAN HELP to make programs more efficient and more beneficial, Hott said, by:

— Commenting on produced rule-making when given the opportunity through Federal Register notices available at county ASCS offices.

— Replying promptly and accurately to Statistical Reporting Service survey questionnaires.

Information from questionnaires, he pointed out, is one of the things used to set county check yields on commodities. These check yields, in turn, often set program benefit limits.

"When you throw survey forms in the wastebasket, you are only hurting yourself and other farmers in your county," he said.

Cattle Futures Soar In Chicago Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures soared 17 to the daily limit of 150 in February and April with nearby August exceptionally 2 to 17 lower Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Back months ran up on bear spreading and climbed to one-week highs. Earlier nearby August fell to the lowest since June, off 325 points in the last week. December was down 65. Total sales was 21,749 cars.

Wholesale beef was off 1 to 1 1/4 cents at 77 1/2 to 78 cents a pound, which is the lowest since April. Cash cattle were off $1 to $1.75 with the best top at $52 per hundredweight, a seven-week low. Omaha's top was $51.50.

There were 20 deliveries and a total slaughter of 139,000 head. The six markets expect 9,300 head today.

Feeder cattle futures rebounded from an early loss of 50 and climbed 40 to 122, led by August. The market closed at one-week highs in the face of bearish fundamentals.

Support was attracted, although cash cattle and beef continued on the easy side despite moderate slaughter. Demand spilled over from other meat futures and there was also technical buying after the protracted decline.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $4 with the best top at $82.50 per hundredweight at Greeley. The major terminals expected 6,000 head to arrive today. There were 15 deliveries yesterday.

Hog futures finished 112 higher to 90 lower on 6,263 contracts. Nearby August was up most, gaining 122 for a time, while distant August fell 110 in earlier trade.

Nearby contracts attracted support after Tuesday's break to three-week lows, even though cash hogs were down sharply. Strength in pork cuts and other meat pits generated buying.

Wholesale hams were up 1/4 to 1 cent at 85 cents a pound for all weight f.o.b. the river points, which was the highest since February.

Cash hogs were off 25 cents to $1 with the best top at $50.25 per hundredweight, a one-week low, at Peoria.

Kill was estimated at 271,000 head. Receipts at the six major markets are expected to be 23,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures ended 120 to the daily limit of 200 points higher led by nearby August. The limit up came after a limit level decline in February, Tuesday. August was then in line with cash hogs.

Aggressive short covering and other buying was mostly technical after sharp losses recently and came in the face of increased hog arrivals and sharply lower prices. However, heavier weight cash bellies firmed.

Wholesale bacon was up 2 to off 3 cents at 49 to 56 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Rate of Cotton Exports Shows Steady Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavy rate of cotton exports continued in June with a 38 percent increase from May to 528,000 running bales, the Agriculture Department says.

But forecasters there are still cautious about market improvement and they are legally forbidden from predicting cotton prices. They say demand is "stable."

When the 1978-79 season started Aug. 1, carryover stocks were 5.5 million bales, nearly double a year ago. The new crop right now is down 18 percent from last season to 11.8 million bales but it's still vulnerable to weather.

Whatever the final harvest, forecasters said Friday, mills have to sell off an excess of denim in their inventories by Christmas if they are going to buy large amounts of raw fiber.

Exports last season, thanks to a spurt that began in January, rose to 5.6 million bales from 4.8 million in 1976-77 and that level is expected to be matched this season.

A tight foreign supply, large U.S. supplies, the devalued dollar and Soviet reluctance to sell at current prices are helping exports, the department said.

Underscoring the surplus, the department says that, as of Aug. 2, farmers had put 1977 crop cotton under loan at a rate four times faster than a year earlier. Loans were still outstanding on 1.23 million bales, compared to the 315,595 left in the program a year ago.

Students Use Ploy To Avoid Busing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — School officials say some students are changing their racial classification to American Indian in an apparent ploy to avoid court-ordered desegregation busing.

The Louisville Times said in a copyrighted story that about 50 students have taken advantage of a provision in the 1976 desegregation order which exempts from busing students classified as non-black minorities, including American Indians. School officials say they are concerned about the apparent trend, but add there is little they can do about it.

Grain Futures

The lower prices partly reflected a sizable pickup in farmer sales at country points. Dealers attributed the selling in cash markets, which ranged from moderate to heavy at most locations, to the recent runup in prices.

Widespread rains in the Midwest were considered beneficial to crops. And the Agriculture Department's increased estimate of worldwide grain production, which it projected would total 1.376 billion metric tons.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed 75 cents a bale lower to $1.25 higher Wednesday.

Some buying by previous short sellers helped prices recover from early declines and close mostly higher, brokers said.

Would you believe it, here's a completely new diet plan that calls for no weekly meetings, no weigh-ins, no criticism from an instructor, no fees or penalties, no forbidden foods, no exercises, no drugs or shots, no hunger pangs, and it lets you eat whatever you like. Best of all, it costs only 38¢ a serving.

Want proof? Ask Rick Meadenall, Sales Manager for Mesilla Valley Lincoln-Mercury. Rick lost 60 pounds using NaturSlim, a pleasant tasting powder that mixes into a weight-saving diet supplement you can enjoy for only 38¢ a serving.

Just another crazy diet plan? "Not on your life," says Rick. One of thousands around the country who knows how effective NaturSlim is at ending your overweight worries, Rick adds. "For 10 years I carried around an extra 60 pounds, now I'm a trim 175 and loving every minute." Look at these dramatic results:

	Before NaturSlim	After NaturSlim
Jacket Size	46	42
Waist Size	39	34
Neck Size	16½"	15"
Shoe Size	10½D	10½B

The clincher? Using NaturSlim, you can eat anything you like. That's right. NaturSlim replaces two meals a day, but for the third you can eat everything the non-dieters in your family eat. Crazy, man.

Advertising Sales Boom Levels For Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big advertisers, despite prices of $60,000 for a 30-second spot on a prime-time network TV show and more than $100,000 for a blockbuster, so far have bought an estimated $1.3 billion in commercials for the upcoming season from ABC, NBC and CBS.

Network executives are predicting another strong year of advertising sales, but they've moderated their price hikes for commercials. That has led some analysts to forecast that the three networks will collect 12 percent more for prime-time commercials during the season, bringing the total spent for that powerful advertising medium to about $2.24 billion.

Anthony Hoffman, a media analyst for the Wall Street firm of Bache, Halsey, Stuart, Shields, said that reflects a more typical growth than either the projected 14 percent rise for the current 1977-78 season, which ends in September, or the 23 percent jump in the boom year of 1976-77.

Industry sources say the change has little to do with reaction to the network's lineup of new programming this fall, which one advertising executive described as 'no better or worse than usual." They added that during the 1976-77 and 1977-78 seasons, the demand for TV time was so great that prices shot up.

"There were just two years of (advertisers) being burned to a crisp. I think in part what's happening now is that the price levels may just be returning to normal this year," said Dick Low, senior vice president for media sales at Young & Rubicam, one of the nation's largest advertising agencies.

But after price hikes of 15 and 20 percent in high-demand spots for the past two seasons, Low said some advertisers are being squeezed out of the network market, especially for long-term "up front" advertising, an industry term used for 52-week season packages.

"Certainly from my perspective, the percent of sales is not as great as it was during this period last year....A fair amount got diverted to other media in large part because of two years of double-digit increases that advertisers experienced," said Low.

Although rates vary widely by time, program and network, the average price for a prime time, 30-second spot now runs about $60,000 and can easily exceed $100,000 for sports or specials, advertising industry estimates show.

But executives at the three networks say the "up-front" sales, now almost completed for the upcoming season, show an increase both in dollars and time sold from last year. And they point to the relatively moderate price increases as one reason they expect strong sales in all catagories of advertising this year.

"The over-all performance is good for all three networks," said James Shaw, vice president of sales at ABC, "basically the (advertisers) budgets are a little higher and so are the prices."

Robert Blackmore, his counterpart at NBC, noting that steep price increases in the past two seasons reflected catch-up from fairly small hikes three years ago, said he expects "very much a return to a businesslike, predictable, strong and steady year."

And Paul Isacsson of CBS predicted the best over-all selling season for any year but 1976.

While prices are pegged to individual shows, analysts say that on average rates are going up 7 percent to 10 percent this year for 52-week advertising contract packages.

Even at that, R.E. Buchanan at the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency, noted major advertisers approached the market with more caution this year after the networks unveiled new programming in May.

"Two years ago it was panic, last year it was controlled chaos, and this year it was very orderly. Nobody rushed in," said Buchanan.

Buchanan said the change in tempo represents in part a return to a more normal pace after a scramble in 1976 when the Olympics and election coverage created a backlog of demand.

Jukebox Operators Get Urging To Pay New License Fees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Library of Congress reports that there are about 268,000 jukeboxes operating illegally in the United States and urges operators of the devices to apply for licenses.

The licenses have been required under the new copyright law since Jan.1 but officials say only 132,000 of the nation's 400,000 jukeboxes have been licensed so far.

Under the new law, library officials explained, every public performance of a copyrighted musical work on an unlicensed jukebox is a separate act of copyright infringement. This means that civil or, in some cases, criminal actions for damages could be brought against the jukebox operator every time a record is played.

The license fee for a jukebox is $8-a-year and this money is used to pay royalties for playing records. The license frees jukebox operators from having to negotiate a separate license with each copyright owner whose music is played.

Jukebox operators can apply for licenses by asking for Form JB from the Licensing Division, Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., 20557.

TV Show Segment Reunites Famed Movie Couple

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — June Allyson and Van Johnson!

She with the trembling lower chin and the eyes that quickly misted and the voice that sounded as if she had cheered too hard at a high school football game. Although they didn't pin up her cheesecake photo, millions of World War II GIs wanted to come home to June Allyson.

Van Johnson was the first of the bobby-sox idols, preceding Frank Sinatra. He was tall, freckled, red-topped, alive with animal charm and romanticism.

Together they were America's favorite couple, and MGM starred them in such films as "Two Girls and A Sailor," "The Secret Heart," "High Barbaree," "Too Young To Kiss" and "Remains to Be Seen."

The other day they were appearing together for the first time in 25 years. They were making a segment of ABC's hit series "Love Boat," which will be on the air at Thanksgiving. She plays a blind passenger, and he is her husband.

Age has served Johnson and Allyson well. "I'm 62," he announces readily. "I never tell my age," she says with the Allyson grin (record books indicate early 50s). They sat in her dressing room between takes and discussed their lives, Johnson seldom lapsing into seriousness.

"I agree, absolutely," she added.

His days are often spent in travel to American cities and towns; he is the most indefatigable player of summer and supper theaters.

"I love them," Van remarked. "I've got an apartment in New York that I only see long enough to pick up my laundry. I'd much rather be doing theater than television. I turned down this 'Love Boat' until they told me June would be in it. Then I said, 'What time do you want me?'"

June said she now lives in Ojai, an idyllic community between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. "I hate to leave. I'm very happy there, thanks to David," she commented. Her third husband, Dr. David Ashrow, was with her in the dressing room.

During the wartime search for talent, both Johnson and Allyson were plucked out of the Broadway chorus by MGM.

"I came out first," Van recalled. "One day (producer) Arthur Freed told me, 'We're going to bring out a girl from your show ('Best Foot Forward'); as soon as she clears up her laryngitis, we'll make another test of her.'

"I told him, 'Forget about clearing up her laryngitis; it's going to make you a million dollars.'"

Both stars were astonished at the hours television actors must endure.

"The other day June was doing a closeup at 8:45 in the evening," Johnson said. "Why, if they asked us to work past 6 at MGM, we'd say forget it. Gable taught me that. He'd just walk off the set at 5:30. Tracy didn't do that; he just took an hour and a half nap at lunchtime."

"You made an interesting observation about the new television actors, Van," June said.

"Yeah, I was watching one of the young actresses the other day," he said. "She never stopped yawning, and when she wasn't working, she had her nose in a paperback of 'The Thorn Birds.'

"Here she was acting in a dining room scene with solid, performers like Larry Storch, Alan Young, Vivian Blaine, Peter Graves (and Allyson and Johnson). You'd think she'd put the book down and try to learn something from them. I haunted the other sets when I started at Metro."

"And we were shown old movies and given tests about what we could learn from them," June added. "We were given singing lessons, acting lessons, dance lessons. Today the young actors don't listen."

Anchorman Seeks Observer's Status

CHICAGO (AP) — Local anchorman Don Craig wants to watch people, not be watched. So he's quit a job most people only dream of having.

DON CRAIG

Ever since the 31-year-old Craig surprised brass at NBC-owned WMAQ-TV by telling them he was quitting, people have been trying to figure out his decision to give up fame, prestige and big money.

Craig, who has been at the network's Chicago affiliate for 19 months, says he's fed up — at the moment, anyway — with the pressure, the spotlight and the superficiality of TV news.

"I'm really tired of TV news as currently practiced," he said in an interview in the small office he shares at WMAQ. "I don't know how I'd change it to make it more satisfying to me. TV has kind of gotten into a rut. It doesn't have the time or resources to do the job good magazines and newspapers can do."

Craig said he's going to travel, read and write. He said he plans a trip to Europe in September, will keep a journal, and maybe write a book when he returns.

"I began to feel my financial and career circumstances were controlling me rather than the other way around," Craig said. "Life isn't that long and there isn't enough time to do all the things you want to do. But I wanted to go out and do a few of those things."

He said he feels a little guilty about leaving the station at the end of August, but that he wants to get out of the business before audience loyalty, money and management pressure prevent such a move.

"I long to be able to observe people rather than the other way around," Craig said.

A bachelor who has no financial or family obligations, Craig said he will live off money he's saved in the last few years. He wouldn't talk about his salary, but acknowledged it's between $50,000 and $100,000.

Technically, he will be on an indefinite leave from WMAQ, where he is still under a two-year contract.

News Director Paul Beavers was taken aback by Craig's announcement. The station had done considerable promotion of its anchor teams and Craig was pulling down high ratings in recent weeks.

"We'd rather that he not take it (the leave) at this time," Beavers said. "There's more value to an anchor as he becomes widely known."

But once station executives felt sure Craig was not going to another station for more money, they moved him off the 10 o'clock news so new faces could be tried.

Craig brought to his position a solid reporting background. He was NBC correspondent in Beirut, Lebanon and worked as a street reporter in Chicago before becoming an anchorman. He began in broadcasting as a disc jockey at a college radio station, then moved on to television.

If and when he decides to return to TV, he said he doesn't think he'll have problems because of his sudden departure from NBC. He said he's had several offers for more money than he's now making.

Old-Time Rivalry Renewed On TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lorne Greene and John Colicos renew their on-screen rivalry in "Battlestar Galactica," airing Sunday, Sept. 17 on ABC, but this time Greene is the good guy.

Twenty years ago Colicos played the title role in "Hamlet" and Greene was his archrival King Claudius on the Canadian Broadcasing Co. In the ABC movie pilot for the fall series, Greene plays Adama, the leader of a space-age immigrant fleet stuggling to survive against the power-hungry Count Baltar, played by Colicos.

"Over the years I have discovered that villains are like blondes — they have more fun," said Colicos.

Solar Cells May Someday Electrify Your Home

A HEAD WITH CELLS — Peter Jaffe, a solar cell test field technician, peeks out over a group of "photovoltaics," or solar cells in the Jet Propulsion Labratory solar cell test facility in Pasadena, Calif., recently. Cells are being used to produce electricity for navigational buoys on the ocean, power remote radio transmitters, and supply electricity to a few U.S. Forest Service stations and watch towers.(AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Solar cells — colorful chips of silicon that power spaceships and satellites — are being developed for more earthly uses such as home power plants you can mount on the roof.

They burn no fuel, produce no smog and leave no waste. They require almost no maintenance and they're supposed to last 20 years.

Better still, they don't send you a utility bill every month.

But of course they only work when the sun shines.

Sun-soaking gear has already begun to adorn rooftops around the country as homes and businesses install solar collectors to supply hot water and heat.

Solar cells, however, are a different concept — they produce electricity, not heat. And they're still a very expensive way to make the stuff.

Many solar engineers, citing dramatic cost reductions in recent years, expect photovoltaics will be economically attractive to homeowners within a decade or so.

"I'm fairly confident people will be putting these things on their roof eventually," said N.W. Patapoff of Southern California Edison's research and development branch.

"The 'when' is more difficult to determine. It's hard to put a timetable on technology, but certainly I would say by the 1990s."

Patapoff said the utility is studying the impact on its operations should solar cells spread across Southern California rooftops.

Thousands of power-producing homeowners might not need the utility at all on sunny afternoons. But when night falls or clouds pass overhead, electricity from the solar cells would stop and Edison might suddenly have to kick in extra generators to take up the slack.

Solar cells were invented about 25 years ago and developed as a power supply for space exploration. They're usually paper-thin, circular wafers two to four inches across and colored deep blue, purple or red. For land-based uses, the are mounted under glass in flat arrays.

Solar cells now run navigational buoys on the ocean, power remote radio-relay stations and supply electricity to a few U.S. Forest Service stations and watchtowers. The Forest Service is experimenting with solar-powered fans to ventilate campground outhouses.

And prices are coming down. Two decades ago, enough space-bound solar cells to generate one watt cost more than $200,000. A single light bulb needs about 60 watts.

But continued research and the first hints of mass production have dropped the price to about $12 a watt. A U.S. Energy Department program hopes to get the cost down to 50 cents by 1986.

Many of the federal programs at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here and at Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., are aimed at large-scale power plants.

But JPL project manager Robert Forney said individuals looking for personal energy independence are not being ignored.

"If those kinds of (production cost) numbers can be accomplished, it looks like it would be competitive and favorable," Forney said. "And we're very confident we can achieve 50 cents a watt.

"But then the next question is, can you bring the other costs — the balance-of-system costs — down. That is receiving a great deal of attention now."

Forney said a household power plant involves much more than just an array of solar cells that take sunlight in and put electricity out.

"The electricity," he said, "has to be handed over to a power conditioning unit."

Solar cells generate direct current, such as that produced by batteries. The power conditioning unit would convert that to the alternating current needed to run most home appliances.

"Then, if I want to operate my house at night (when) I can't get anything out of my array, I'm going to need some batteries for storage or I'm going to have to hook into the utility company."

If the cells cost 50 cents a watt, he said, "I'll need about $5,000 worth of photovoltaics on the roof."
