WTC sets deadline to register

Anyone planning on registering for summer classes at Western Texas College had better do so quickly.

Registration will be terminated at noon Thursday, college officials said today.

Classes began Tuesday and enrollment is approaching 700 according to preliminary figures from the local campus, extension centers in Crosbyton, Stamford and Haskell, and the Price Daniel and French Robertson prison units.

The registration process begins at the admissions office, located in the south wing of the Learning Resource Center.

Because of the placement process for students enrolling in such traditional college classes as English and math, students who are attending WTC for the first time need to bring their TASP scores as well as scores from either the ACT or SAT college entrance exam.

Other items necessary for registration are a driver's license, Social Security card, early admissions form (if applicable), high school transcript and college transcript.

Placement testing is also available at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. There is a $10 fee.

Thursday is also the last day to change a class schedule.

Depending on individual instructors, classes run for six or nine weeks. The six-week classes will end July 8. Nine-week classes will end July 29.

Early vote count exceeds 850 here

More than 300 people took advantage of the final day of early voting Tuesday to cast a ballot in the special U.S. Senate runoff election between Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison and Democrat Bob Krueger.

County Clerk Frances Billingsley reported that 856 people voted during the early period, which began May 19. On Tuesday, 303 votes were cast.

"It was heavy all day long," said Billingsley. "We weren't expecting this kind of turnout."

She said 37 of the ballots were cast by mail. Another 11 mail ballots are still out but will be accepted if received prior to Saturday's election.

Voting on Saturday will take place at four locations in the county, from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Precinct 1, Boxes 14-15, will vote at Scurry County Health Unit. Precinct 2, Boxes 5-6-7, will vote at the county library; Precinct 3, Boxes 8-9-10, will vote at the Snyder ISD Administration Building. Precinct 4, Boxes 11-13, will vote at the Senior Citizens Center.

All registered voters are eligible to cast a ballot in the runoff. Persons need not have voted in the May 1 election.

Both Hutchison, currently Texas state treasurer, and interim Senator Krueger received 29 percent of the vote in the May 1 election. Though Hutchison edged Krueger by 497 votes statewide, 593,479 to 592,982, a runoff was forced because she did not win a majority of the overall votes cast.

The two are battling to fill the final 1½ years of the term originally held by Lloyd Bentsen, before his appointment as U.S. Treasury Secretary by President Bill Clinton.

Krueger, a former state congressman and Texas Railroad Commissioner, was appointed to the U.S. Senate by Gov. Ann Richards.

Refinery fire rocks El Paso

EL PASO (AP) — A gasoline refinery, rocked by a series of explosions, was burning today in this West Texas city after at least one person was hurt, authorities said.

Police Capt. J.R. Grijalva confirmed that at least one person, believed to be a plant employee, was hurt at the Chevron U.S.A. refinery. The extent of the injuries was not immediately known.

A mental health facility near the refinery was being evacuated late this morning, authorities said.

A fire department dispatcher who declined to be identified said the fire was still burning shortly before 11 a.m. Firefighters were summoned to the refinery in the city's east-central section about 8:30 a.m. MDT.

Witnesses said flames were leaping hundreds of feet above the plant, where thick smoke could also be seen.

A blaze last July 16 also damaged the Chevron refinery.

Fund-raiser...

Telethon talent needed

The five Scurry County United Way Agencies will coordinate to sponsor a telethon on Sunday, June 13.

The telethon will be from 2 until 5 p.m., live from Colonial Hill Baptist Church and will be broadcast over local cable Channel 2.

Residents can also attend the telethon in person at Colonial Hill.

Anyone interested in providing entertainment for the fund-raiser is asked to contact Claudia Fields at The Noah Project.

United Way has collected approximately 40 percent of its goal of $60,000 for the current funding year. The telethon is an effort to increase funding, upon which The Noah Project, Boys Club, Snyder Child Day Care, Oil Patch Foster Parents and Snyder Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse rely.

Many local residents have already agreed to appear during the telethon. These include Kim Gorman, Deep Creek Cloggers, John Palomaki, WTC Handbell Choir and the Community Chorus.

To reach Fields and arrange a time to appear on the telethon, call 573-1822.

Challenges have been made between the sheriff's office, police department and fire department to raise pledges for the telethon, as well as the Lions Club, Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club, employees of each county precinct barn, and American State Bank, West Texas State Bank and Snyder National Bank.

Calls will be taken during the telethon by volunteers at Colonial Hill offices. Volunteers will also be available to pick up donations during the event.

State could save $185 million in education, report indicates

AUSTIN (AP) — A state audit identifying $185 million in cost-savings for school districts is off-base and unspecific, says a spokeswoman for the Texas Association of School Boards.

"School districts are always looking for ways to run the most efficient programs possible, especially in these times of fiscal constraint," said Olga Garza, assistant director of governmental relations for association.

"We would hope that the auditor would turn his focus to figuring out how school districts can get more state dollars instead of shifting the focus away from the state, which is underfunding education to local districts," she said.

The report, released Tuesday, says school districts could save at least $185 million a year by improving management outside the classroom.

The audit examined 17 school districts across the state. It cites excessive staff sizes, generous fringe benefits and "serious" weaknesses in purchasing decisions.

"The current public education system does not ensure that tax dollars are spent efficiently," said State Auditor Lawrence F. Alwin.

According to the report, school districts could save an additional $45 million by controlling textbook costs, reducing tax collection costs, and forming statewide insurance purchasing pools.

Release of the audit came just hours after the state presented its latest school funding reform plan to a state district judge for review.

Ironically, Edgewood school district, which brought the original court challenge to equalize school funding, was one of 17 districts reviewed in the report and scrutinized for not cutting costs.

Auditors said Edgewood could save $1.2 million by downsizing its police department and spending less to maintain its facilities.

Two other school districts — Benavides and LaPorte — were singled out in the report as having "serious" management problems. In addition, auditors identified Sundown school district as having an "extravagant" spending system. The report said that district could save $500,000 annually by cutting travel expenses.

"These districts do not have sufficient controls to prevent questionable and inefficient use of tax dollars," the audit states.

Other recommendations in the report include more oversight of school districts by the state.

Auditors also found that dropout rates appear to be understated throughout the state and recommended changing the procedures for reporting dropouts.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Young men start out life expecting to find the pot at the end of the rainbow. By middle age, most have at least found the pot."

It's vacation time, and hardly a day goes past that someone doesn't stop on the courthouse square and have their picture taken with the White Buffalo.

We were coming out of the courthouse recently when a guy in burmuda shorts, with his wife and four kids, started waving for us to come over. He wanted his entire family in the picture, therefore he was soliciting someone to snap the shutter.

Odessa has a giant jackrabbit, Muleshoe has a mule and Fort Stockton's attraction is its roadrunner statute.

In the Texas Valley, the mayor of Hidalgo was skeptical at first. He said a monument to the killer bee wouldn't fly.

He was wrong. Tourists are abuzz about the bee statue, a 20-foot long fiberglass and steel replica painted in lifelike yellow and black.

The Rio Grande town of 3,500 was one of the first places in the U.S. where the aggressive bee was first spotted in 1990. Their arrival had been predicted for 30 years. More than 700 people, none in the U.S., have been killed by the bees.

To make honey out of a negative situation, Hidalgo's chamber president suggested a statue to attract tourists. The chamber head pursuaded the city to shell out $20,000 for the killer bee sculpture.

Observed the chamber president, "There are a lot of wacky roadside attractions around the U.S. Now we're one of them."

A guy in the coffee shop told about stopping at what must have been a swinging motel late one evening after driving all day "enjoying" his vacation.

The desk clerk said the only thing he had left was the honeymoon suite and it would be $50 — plus $5 for each additional person."

Baptist pastor denies being linked to child sexual abuse

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of Midwestern clergymen have rallied around the pastor of a large Indiana church as he angrily denounced accusers who say he is linked to child sexual abuse cases.

Some 800 ministers and other church officials showed up for the rally Tuesday in support of the Rev. Jack Hyles, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hammond and the nation's most successful practitioners of bus ministry, in which inner city children are recruited and bused to Sunday schools.

The meeting was full of evangelical fervor and shouts of support as Hyles said "freedom of the press does not give freedom to lie."

Television station WJBK of Southfield, Mich., accused the First Baptist Church of having ties to child molestation cases elsewhere in the nation.

Reporter Vince Wade said seven independent Baptist churches, including the one in Hammond, are involved in sex molestation cases and that the common denominator is Hyles; that the suspects either attended his church at one time or another or his Hyles-Anderson College in Crown Point, Ind.

Hyles scoffed at the purported connection.

He said that in most of the cases he has never heard of the ministers or churches involved.

The six other churches are in San Diego, Anniston, Ala., Beaumont, Texas, Petersburg, Va., Monroe, La., and Grass Lake, Mich.

"If ever there was a lie spawned by Lucifer out of hell, this is it," Hyles said.

He also derided allegations that his and other bus ministries are cults, that they punish children for not obeying the churchmen and that they are gathering weapons.

"We have been called 'Waco without walls,'" he said. "This is an absurdity, abominable.

"We're not religious fanatics," Hyles said. "We're historic Baptists."

Hyles said that unlike cults, his and other similar churches have an open-door policy and try to unite children with their families, not isolate them.

Hyles conceded that in a church the size of his, like other large organizations, "occasionally you will find a worker of whom we are not proud."

"But there is not a group of people in the world today who are as clean as the men in this room," he said.

Hammond Police Capt. Bill Conner said recently that neither Hyles nor his church is under investigation.

Another minister, the Rev. Bill Wininger of North Sharon Baptist Church in Grass Lake, Mich., said his church was hit with an "unbelievable nightmare" last year when an associate pastor and the director of busing were charged with molesting children.

Museum receives second ornament in limited series

The Scurry County Museum has received the second of its series of Limited Edition Christmas Ornaments and they are available for sale in the museum gift shop.

The 1993 ornament shows the front of the Snyder public school auditorium which stood at the corner of 26th St. and Avenue M for many years. The building was demolished in 1975 and the county jail was constructed there.

The new ornament is 3¼ inches in diameter and is done in black and gold, Snyder High School colors. It is priced at $10 including tax.

The gift shop has some of the 1992 ornaments which depicted the county courthouse completed in 1912. It also sells for $10.

For more information call 573-6107. The museum is open Monday through Thursday under the summer schedule.

Child freed from 50-foot well

LIBERTY CITY, Texas (AP) — A 6-year-old girl has escaped with only a bump on the head and a few scratches and bruises following her plunge into a 50-foot deep water well.

Chelsey Jordan of Cleburne sang "Jesus Loves Me" with her mother as rescue workers tried to free her from the well late Monday at her great-grandmother's home.

"She's doing fine," said Chelsey's mother Regina Jordan.

Chelsey and her 9-year-old sister, Jessica, were playing outside her great-grandmother's home when the accident occurred.

Ms. Jordan said her daughter was jumping up and down on a piece of plywood when it broke, plunging her down the well into 3 feet of water.

"She had no idea it was over a well," her mother told the Longview News-Journal Tuesday.

Jordan ran to the well's edge and saw her child standing at the bottom of it.

"We said a little prayer and starting singing, 'Jesus Loves Me'," she said.

The song calmed the child, so mom and daughter kept singing off and on during the rescue.

T.H. Anderson of Kilgore Rescue Services, said rescue crews rigged a rope and pulley system to raise the child from the well. To protect Chelsey from falling debris, crews lowered a firefighter's helmet and a life jacket to keep her head above water.

"The water was just under her chin," Anderson said.

Chelsey was in the well for about 45 minutes before her rescue.

Nussey completes continuing medical studies requirements

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dr. Gary Arthur Nussey of Snyder has completed continuing medical education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), the national association of family doctors.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years.

Nussey re-located his practice here in May of 1991.

The academy, the country's largest medical specialty association with more than 69,000 members, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

Dr. Nussey has been an AAFP active member since 1986. As a family physician, he is qualified to work in all major medical areas and trained to treat 90 percent of all patients. Family physicians care for all family members — all ages and both sexes.

The academy, headquartered in Kansas City, was instrumental in establishing the medical specialty of family practice in 1960. It is the advocate for patients and endeavors to educate the public in all health-related matters.

The organization works to preserve and promote quality, cost-effective health care. It promotes the science and art of family medicine and works to ensure an optimum supply of well-trained family physicians. The academy also provides advocacy, representation and leadership for the specialty of family practice.

Texas woman falls to her death while hiking near family cabin

HEBER, Utah (AP) — A Texas woman was killed when she fell into a ravine in the Soapstone area of Wasatch County, authorities said.

Nancy Rae Summerhays, 35, Cedar Park, Texas, left a family cabin 20 miles east of Heber to go for a walk Sunday afternoon, the sheriff's office said.

When she didn't return as expected at 3:30, her brother-in-law, Chris Bowden, set out to look for her and found her at the bottom of the ravine about a quarter mile from the cabin.

She apparently had stopped on the east side of a deep ravine to snap a picture, according to the sheriff's report.

As she took out her camera, she apparently slipped on the edge of the ravine and fell to her death.

Her body was found about 4:05 p.m. by Bowden. He attempted cardiopulmonary resuscitation and was assisted by a passing hiker but they were unable to revive Summerhays, authorities said.

"It was just one step that made the difference," said the victim's sister, Carol Bowden. "If she could choose an area that that was going to happen to her, that would be the place."

All her life, Ms. Summerhays spent weekends and part of her summers at the cabin, said her father, Claude Summerhays.

"It seems like she spent all of her life up there," Carol Bowden said. "She knew every flower, every animal up there by name."

Ms. Summerhays attended the University of Utah, Utah State University and graduated from New York University in mathematics and computer science. At the time of her death, she worked for IBM in Austin.

Your Birthday

June 3, 1993

In the year ahead your chart indicates you'll be making lots of new friends from all walks of life. Interestingly, the little guys may prove as helpful to you as the big guys do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have to make an important decision today, be patient and methodical, because your first thoughts might not be your best ones. You need time to reason things out from every angle. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Situations should run rather smoothly for you today, because others will be there to help you over the rough spots. Be sure to acknowledge their assistance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might be a bit of a risk taker today and this could be both bad and good. Gambles in familiar fields may work out, but gambling in the blind probably won't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Lady Luck tends to favor you today in your financial and commercial dealings, but she might ignore you in your personal relationships. In the latter case, you're on your own.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your best asset today is your ability to take the good ideas of others and turn them into something better. You might have two opportunities to utilize your gift.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow your own instincts today in your material affairs instead of the advice of associates. You're more in tune to developments then they are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things will work out more advantageously today if you focus on building good will with the people with whom you're involved. Pushing and shoving won't cut it.

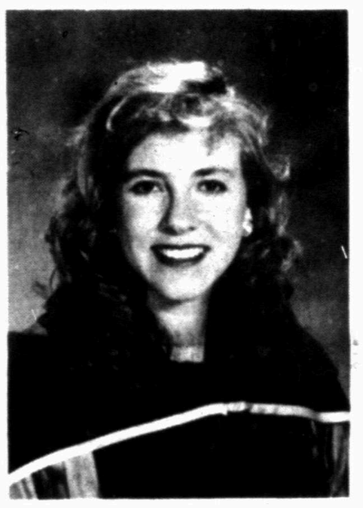

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep a low profile today in matters pertaining to your career. If you do things that draw attention to yourself, they could turn out to be counterproductive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you may be eager to involve an influential friend in your present plans, it might be wise to wait until he/she expresses a desire to participate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those unusual days where you might do as many things wrong as you do right, yet when the final score is tallied, you're likely to come out on the plus side of the ledger.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ideas and concepts for doing things today will be on track, but you might not execute them in accordance with your preconceived plans and fall a bit short of your mark.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In matters that pertain to your career and finances give them the serious attention they deserve today. Save the jokes and small talk for later when everything is tied down to your satisfaction.

Signals must be seen and decoded

By Phillip Alder

Even though it was a long time ago, we still hear a lot about World War II. Spike Milligan included this line in his movie: "At Victoria Station, the Railway Transportation Officer gave me a travel warrant, a white feather and a picture of Hitler marked 'This is your enemy.' I searched every compartment but he wasn't on the train."

An important aspect of World War II was the decoding of secret messages. Being able to intercept and decipher the German Ultra Machine transmissions was pivotal to the success of the Allies.

It is similar at the bridge table. Signals from one defender to the other are being intercepted by the declarer. But although he may make use of the information, more often than not these signals — if sent and interpreted correctly — are vital in the defeat of a contract.

West led the spade five: two, ace, four. East cashed the spade king: eight, three, seven. East switched to the club nine. Declarer won, drew trumps and claimed his contract, conceding a diamond.

"Why didn't you switch to a diamond?" asked West.

"Because you asked me to switch to a club," replied East.

"How did I do that?"

"By playing the spade three at trick two. When I showed you I had a doubleton spade by playing the ace before the king, you were expected to give me a suit-preference signal to tell me where your entry lay. You dropped your lowest spade, so I switched to a club. You should have played your spade jack under my king. Then I would have led a diamond."

"Sorry, partner."

Judge orders psychiatric exam

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A judge ordered a psychiatric examination for a man accused of stalking Tanya Tucker.

Winston Wier, 41, of Hamilton, Texas, has been held on $5,000 bail since his arrest May 14.

Judge Bill Faimon ordered the evaluation on Tuesday and set trial for June 15.

Wier is accused of repeatedly calling Tucker, visiting a Nashville studio where the country singer was recording, and leaving a threatening note for her.

Frostbite said mild

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA astronaut Story Musgrave has suffered frostbite on the fingers of his right hand during a training session for an upcoming shuttle mission to repair the Hubble Space Telescope.

NASA said Tuesday that Musgrave developed a mild case of frostbite during an 8-hour training session last Friday. He was in a space suit testing equipment and tools in a vacuum chamber at Johnson Space Center.

Musgrave's fingers were numb and discolored, but he apparently will not require surgery, NASA spokeswoman Barbara Schwartz said. Although he may miss some training, the injury is not expected to affect the mission, slated for December.

"He just has to be careful with these fingers now," Ms. Schwartz said.

Musgrave is payload commander of the shuttle mission to repair the Hubble, which was launched aboard the shuttle Discovery in April 1990.

Dear Abby

Carelessness in Hotel Room Results in 12 Hours of Terror

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope this letter alerts your readers to an avoidable danger. I am an airline hostess. I spend a good deal of time in hotels and am usually very safety-conscious. A lapse in caution resulted in a very scary incident that could have cost me my life.

I was in a good hotel at one of our western airports. It was 9:30 in the evening, I was tired, and the phone rang. Someone claiming to be from the front desk said there was a problem with the heater on my floor and they needed to check my thermostat. I should have called the front desk to verify this, but I hurried to put on a pair of jeans and a T-shirt, and then I heard a knock on the door.

A nice-looking man with a toolbox came in and went over to the thermostat, fiddled with it for a few minutes, and then pointed a gun in my face. The toolbox contained duct tape and rope; in a matter of minutes, I was on the floor, bound and gagged, watching this man rummage through my belongings. He did not hurt or assault me, but leaving, he plopped me on the bed and left me hog-tied, making it impossible for me to call for help.

A cleaning woman found me at 9:00 the next morning, and she needed help to untie me.

Abby, a little caution could have prevented this nightmare of fear and helplessness that lasted for nearly 12 hours. I am seeing a psychologist who encouraged me to talk about it — so here I am. I am signing my name, but if you print this, sign me ...

BOUND TO BE MORE CAREFUL

DEAR BOUND: Your "talking about it" is not only good therapy to help you put this nightmarish experience behind you, it is a valuable reminder for women (and men) who spend time in hotels and motels.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Recently your readers gave their opinions on whether an office worker should inform the boss that a colleague was going through the boss's wastebasket. Two of the writers who responded asserted that the courts have held that the police cannot search an individual's trash without a search warrant.

Abby, in a 1988 case, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the police did not need a warrant to search garbage that was placed in opaque bags at the curb for collection. The rationale was that the defendants did not have a reasonable expectation of privacy in the garbage, so a search warrant was not required under the Fourth Amendment.

It is possible that some state constitutions provide greater protection. Moreover, the police certainly cannot search garbage that is inside a person's house, since they normally need a warrant to enter a house. But under the U.S. Constitution, garbage left at curbside is fair game for the police.

DOUGLAS F. CARLSON, WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.

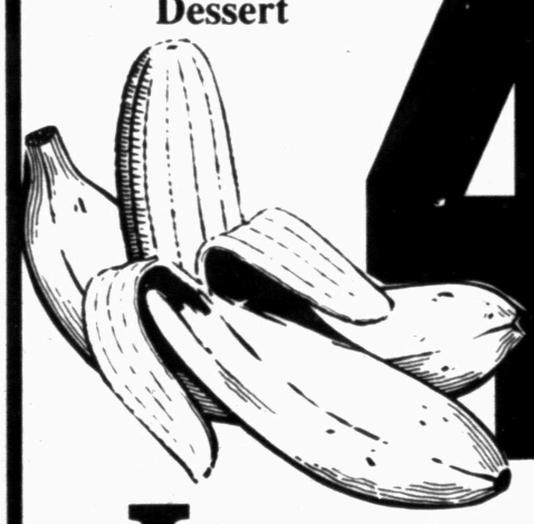

DEAR MR. CARLSON: Thanks for the correction — complete with documentation from the U.S. Supreme Court, no less.

Phoenix takes 3-2 advantage

PHOENIX (AP) — The Phoenix Suns used boxing strategy against Seattle: Dan Majerle jabbing from long range and Charles Barkley providing the body blows.

Majerle delivered the knockout punch, drilling the last of his playoff-record eight 3-pointers with 21 seconds left to power the Suns over the SuperSonics 120-114 Tuesday night.

"This was one of the biggest shots of my career," Majerle said of his last-minute 3-pointer.

Actually, Majerle and the Suns did exactly what the Sonics wanted.

"You want him to take a shot like that to try and beat you; he just hit it. It was a hell of a shot," Seattle's Eddie Johnson said.

Barkley and Majerle had playoff career games to send Phoenix back to Seattle with a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 Western Conference finals.

Barkley had 43 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists — his third postseason triple-double and first in two years — and Majerle hit 8 of 10 shots from 3-point range to finish with 34 points.

"When's he's stroking it like that, it makes everything easier for us," Barkley said of Majerle's long-range bombing. "They were doubling on me and chasing Kevin (Johnson) so much, someone was going to be open."

Being open and making the shot are two different things, Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said.

"It's tough to make 8 of 10 in the gym, by yourself, with nobody on you," Westphal said.

There were 17 ties — including 28-28 after the first quarter — and 11 lead changes, and Shawn Kemp's 20 points in the fourth quarter helped the Sonics eat up a 10-point Phoenix lead in the final six minutes.

Kemp, who finished with 33 points, made it 111-110 with a 15-foot jumper with 34.5 seconds left.

The Suns had not scored since Barkley's putback of an offensive rebound with 2:37 left gave them a 111-102 lead. From then until Majerle released his climactic shot with the game on the line, Seattle looked like the team which stunned the Suns here 103-99 in Game 2.

Ricky Pierce made a 3-pointer and a free throw, and Sam Perkins made two more free throws before Kemp's baseline jumper.

"My shots had been going all night, and we really needed that one, so I let it go," said Majerle, who broke the record of seven 3-pointers set by Indiana's Chuck Person against Boston on April 28, 1991.

"What can you say? When he sets his feet and has his rhythm, basically, he'll hit it," Seattle's Gary Payton said.

Pierce finished with 27 points and Payton 20. Kevin Johnson had 10 assists for the Suns.

Barkley hit 16 of 22 shots and was 11 of 11 from the foul line in surpassing his playoff personal best of 39 points. He had 13 points in the fourth quarter.

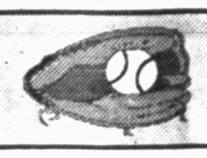

"Charles gives them great leadership by rebounding and pushing the ball," Seattle coach George Karl said. "He played very possessed and very aggressively, but my basketball team played very well, too."

Tom Chambers contributed nine fourth-quarter points to offset the quick-strike ability of Seattle, which had made up a 59-54 halftime deficit with an 11-4 spurt in the first 31/2 minutes of the third quarter.

Iglehart set for Childress all-star game

Former Snyder High School grid standout Todd Iglehart will take part in this year's Greenbelt Bowl, slated for Saturday night at 6:30 at Bulldog Stadium in Childress.

Iglehart is only the second SHS Tiger to play in the game since 1978. The other honoree was Todd's older brother Jody, a 1990 Snyder High grad.

The younger Iglehart was nominated to the game by Tiger defensive coordinator Jack Dorsett.

Todd will play at quick tackle on offense and at right tackle on the defensive side of the ball for Hardin-Simmons University head coach Jimmy Keeling, who will coach the South team.

Iglehart, 6-0 and 215, was an All-District 2-4A honoree on both offense and defense as a junior and senior at SHS.

The game will feature the naming of a Greenbelt Bowl Queen at halftime. The queen will be selected from a group of candidates picked by players.

Karrah Griswold, an SHS sophomore, is Iglehart's nominee.

No. 1 Sampras is eliminated

PARIS (AP) — Sergi Bruguera capitalized on Pete Sampras' errors and serving troubles to oust the No. 1 seed from the French Open in their quarterfinal match today.

For Bruguera, the No. 10 seed from Spain, the 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 victory was a moment of glory — his best-ever showing in a Grand Slam tournament. For Sampras, it was another frustration in his attempt to prove he can be a champion on clay.

Sampras made 60 unforced errors, compared to only 24 for Bruguera, and was able to connect on only 49 percent of his booming first serves.

Despite Sampras' higher seeding, the outcome was not a total surprise; Bruguera beat him in straight sets two weeks ago in their only other meeting.

Bruguera moved into the semifinals to play the winner of today's match between third-seeded Stefan Edberg and No. 11 seed Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine.

The favorites remain No. 2 seed Jim Courier for the men and top-seeded Steffi Graf for the women.

Both qualified for the semifinals on Tuesday without offering any new glimmers of hope for their rivals.

Graf, the top seed, put on a display of shotmaking in her quarterfinals that dazzled Jennifer Capriati.

"She just played too good," the sixth-seeded American said after Graf beat her 6-3, 7-5.

Courier advanced less gracefully over unseeded Goran Prpic, but the anger he vented afterwards at tournament officials may bode ill for his future opponents.

The two-time defending champion was irked at having to play his quarterfinal one day after his fourth-round match. His request for a change was rejected.

"I did not want to play today. I didn't need to play today. It's as simple as that," Courier said. "But the fact of the matter is that they don't care what I think. They just care about their precious little TV and their schedule."

Now, Courier gets to rest until Friday, when he takes on the winner of a suspended quarterfinal between 12th-seeded Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands and No. 13 Karel Novacek of the Czech Republic.

In the women's semifinals Thursday, Graf will play eighth-seeded Anke Huber in an all-German match, and No. 2 seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain will play fifth-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez.

Fernandez staged a spectacular comeback Tuesday against third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini.

Krueger and Hutchison hammer one another

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Kay Bailey Hutchison today blasted a new television commercial that Democratic incumbent Bob Krueger is using to suggest she is not fit for the office.

The ad cites newspaper stories that Krueger says call into question Mrs. Hutchison's performance as state treasurer since 1991.

At a rally near the Capitol, Mrs. Hutchison fired back, calling the commercial "outrageous."

"Can you imagine someone who has already lost his dignity now losing his entire credibility?" she asked. "The only person not fit for the United States Senate is Bob Krueger, and I think we need to make a change."

Krueger had said in a Tuesday statement about his commercial, "In the last eight days, respected journalists have raised serious questions on whether or not Mrs. Hutchison violated the Texas Open Records Act, offered a state job for an endorsement, which, if committed, is a felony and covered up the results of her own lie detector test.

"After reading in the last eight days (of) published reports by respected journalists in newspapers across Texas, I believe that Kay Bailey Hutchison is unfit to be our United States senator," he said.

Krueger campaign spokesman Rafe Greenlee today said, "We stand by everything in the ad ... We think it's time for a full-fledged investigation." He said the proper authority to investigate would probably be the district attorney.

Mrs. Hutchison said the allegations are false. She said that Krueger "is getting desperate ... I think he is really out of control."

Voters on Saturday will determine who completes the final 11/2 years in the seat vacated by Lloyd Bentsen when he became U.S. Treasury secretary. Krueger was appointed as interim senator by Gov. Ann Richards.

Mrs. Hutchison has blasted Krueger for making last-minute personal attacks as he made in previous losing bids for the Senate. Krueger lost to Republican John Tower in 1978 and failed to make the Democratic primary runoff in 1984.

Mrs. Hutchison led Krueger by 99 votes in the 24-candidate May 1 special election that put the two in the runoff.

Clinton health plan will try to cover prescription costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's health reform plan will try to give Americans increased protection against the one medical cost that many people must pay out of their own pockets: prescription drugs.

A new drug benefit under Medicare could help the White House marshal support for its package from the elderly, a potent lobbying force.

But experts say it also makes sense from a cost-control viewpoint, because even expensive drugs can be a lot cheaper than letting someone get so sick they require surgery or extensive hospitalization.

Clinton has yet to make the final decisions on how to pay for the sweeping reform package he plans to send Congress later this month.

Consumers are almost certain to have to pay certain co-payments and deductibles before their drug benefit kicks in.

White House advisers have examined various arrangements, including the possibility of making the elderly — who use the most drugs — pay more out of pocket for prescriptions.

Drug coverage will be part of the basic benefit package guaranteed all Americans under Clinton's plan. But it is not clear whether the prescription drug benefit under Medicare will be the same as the one for the under-65 population.

When Ira Magaziner, the president's senior adviser for domestic policy development, was asked that question at a meeting with consumer groups last month, he replied only, "The intention is to give a drug benefit to Medicare people which they don't now have."

John Rother, the legislative director for the American Association for Retired Persons, said: "The elderly will want pretty much the same benefit that everybody else has. The problem is, you can finance it off the books for everybody else, but when you're talking about Medicare that has to be on-budget financing."

In the standard benefit package, the drug benefit may come with a $50 annual deductible and an "unusually high co-payment" of 40 percent, Rother predicted. That deductible might go as high as $250 for the elderly, although the co-payment would stay the same, he added.

But the White House will find it "hard to explain why the population group that needs the coverage the most has less coverage than everybody else," Rother said.

John Coster, a senior health policy analyst and pharmaceutical specialist for Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., on the Senate Aging Committee, said 70 percent of those under 65 now have some prescription drug coverage, compared with just 46 percent of the elderly.

Police note one arrest

Snyder police made one arrest and responded to several domestic disputes and shoplifting calls Tuesday.

Police were called to the Coleman Apartments at 10:30 p.m. in response to a domestic dispute. A suspect in the altercation left the scene prior to the officers' arrival. However, 30 minutes later, police arrested the suspect, a 35-year-old male, in the 2900 block of Avenue F for Class A assault and family violence.

Police also responded to a dispute in the 4400 block of Avenue U at 7:24 p.m. A report for family violence was filed.

At 12:24 p.m. Tuesday, a woman complained that she had been assaulted by her husband in the 1500 block of 23rd Street. A report for Class C assault was filed.

IGA employees contacted police at 12:11 p.m. in reference to two juvenile shoplifters. The juveniles were released to relatives and no charges were filed.

At 12:38 p.m., Wal-Mart employees contacted police concerning three juvenile shoplifters. No charges were filed and the juveniles were released.

At 1:37 p.m., a runaway report was filed for 15-year-old Alex Ruiz, described as 5-6 in height and weighing 135 pounds. He was last seen Saturday at 6 p.m.

At 2:30 p.m., George Romero notified police that someone had stolen a license plate from a trailer while it was at 2907 Ave. J. A report for Class B theft was filed.

Town & Country employees notified police concerning a gas drive-off at 6:32 p.m. A report for Class C theft was filed.

Two people were treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room following a motor vehicle accident Tuesday.

Police investigated the mishap, which occurred at 8:21 p.m. in the 2700 block of Avenue M. Involved were a 1985 Dodge driven by Jennifer Merritt of Rt. 3, Box 113, and a parked, unoccupied 1978 Ford pickup owned by Frank Martinez of 122 28th Street.

Merritt, 16, and a passenger in the Dodge, 14-year-old Cara Collins of Rt. 3, were treated for minor injuries at Cogdell and released.

Naproxen decision pending

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The arthritis drug naproxen would be sold as an over-the-counter pain killer without a prescription under a proposal under consideration by federal officials.

Food and Drug Administration advisory panels are deciding whether to recommend allowing naproxen to join aspirin, acetamenophen and ibuprofen in the multi-billion-dollar market.

A favorable recommendation today from the advisory committees on over-the-counter drugs and arthritis would leave to the FDA the final decision on whether to allow non-prescription sales.

Naproxen has been sold by prescription as Naprosyn by Syntex Corp. for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis since 1976 in the United States and is marketed in 92 other countries, the company said.

Although the financial stakes are big, the decision was not controversial because unlike new drugs, naproxen has a track record, and its safety and efficacy are proven.

Even a consumer group that has been highly critical of the pharmaceutical industry had no objection to selling naproxen without a prescription. But Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Public Citizen's Health Research Group, said the label for non-prescription naproxen should contain the same warnings as those required when the drug is sold in prescription strength.

Wolfe said the label should carry strong warnings about its use by those with certain medical conditions, especially kidney and liver problems.

The FDA said studies have shown that naproxen's side effects are few and relatively mild.

Buying a home is the largest single investment that many people will ever make. In Texas, potential homebuyers should be aware of the high incidence of foundation problems in much of the state.

Areas of the state that are free of foundation problems have soils with high rock or sand content. Unfortunately, much of the state has clay soil, which expands with moisture gain and shrinks when it dries out.

Today, most builders in Texas have accepted a standard type of foundation called "slab-on-grade" foundation. A solid layer of concrete serves as a sub-floor and a support for the walls. The top of the slab usually is only a few inches above the grade of the soil but it has thick concrete grade beams around the perimeter and at strategic places throughout the foundation. These grade beams extend two feet or more below the surface of the slab.

Typically, the main area of the slab is four to six inches thick with steel reinforcement used throughout. Grade beams are reinforced with steel bars. Where the soil is non-expansive, an adherence to minimal standards for concrete reinforcement and method of placement (pouring) may be adequate. However, in areas with expansive clay soil, foundations that are built to a minimal standard can result in problems for the homeowner long after the builder has finished.

Most potential homeowners spend many hours planning room sizes, wall colors and kitchen cabinet styles. They depend upon the architect, engineer or builder to attend to the technical matters, such as the foundation. Yet, one of the most important decisions that prospective homeowners can make is about the foundation of their custom home.

The saying, "You generally get what you pay for," can certainly be applied to foundation systems.

When selecting a builder and consultants, keep in mind that some architects, engineers and builders are more knowledgeable and reputable than others. Although an architect, engineer or builder may be experienced, the quality of the professional service must be evaluated. Ask these questions to find out more about the quality of their work:

—What specifications does the architect or engineer use for sandy soil and clay?

—What percentage of their custom designed houses has distressed elements resulting from foundation movements?

—Is any type of soil testing done before the foundation design is made?

—Who is the builder generally contracted by the architect or engineer?

—How reliable is the builder?

Some of the above questions may apply to the builder as well. Find out about the builder's past performance by checking the following information:

—Does the builder have a reputable foundation sub-contractor?

—Does the builder always use the lowest bidder even if there has been a record of poor performance?

—On foundation inspections required by a municipality, does the builder have a history of inspections that do not meet requirements the first time?

—Are foundations of homes which the builder constructed five years ago or longer performing well?

Before you build, get a soils report. The architect, engineer, soil scientist or builder may have substantial knowledge of the site and sub-soil conditions of the plot where the house is to be built. However, a soil or geotechnical investigation is recommended. A soils investigation specialist takes samples of the soil at the site to determine soil composition, compaction and moisture content at different levels.

For more details about proper construction of slab-on-grade foundations, ask your county extension agent for the publication "What Custom Homebuyers Should Know About Foundations" ($1) and "Homebuilder Recommendations for Slab-on-grade Foundations" ($2).

SCS Notes

By Michael Squires
Range Conservationist

The National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) has printed some "Environmental Tips" that I would like to pass on about the safe use of pesticides.

Most people understand the benefits associated with pesticide use. But the benefits of pesticides can quickly disappear if accidents occur and injury or environmental contamination results. To avoid accidents, it's important that you "take time for safety" before you use ag chemicals.

How would you answer the safety quiz below?

—Where do you store your ag chemicals? Are they kept in original containers, locked away from weather and unauthorized access?

—What parts of the product label do you read before each use? Do you read the potential hazards to you and the environment in as much detail as you do the directions for use?

—Will the clothing and safety equipment you're going to wear protect you. Do you maintain them properly when not in use?

—Who showed you how to use ag chemicals and safety equipment? Do you feel comfortable that you're using them properly?

—What do you do with the clothes worn when using ag chemicals? Do you wash them separately from your regular clothes? How do you dry them?

—What do you do with the empty pesticide containers or extra spray solution? Do you triple or pressure rinse containers?

—Do you know what to do in the event of a chemical spill or accident?

If any of these questions raises a concern or reveals a practice which you may need to improve upon, take the time to contact the proper authorities and ask for assistance.

Pesticide storage tips: Use a secure location. Use only original containers. Avoid fume buildup. Avoid temperature extremes. Avoid sparks or flames.

Read the label: It is your guide to safe, legal use, proper application rates, precautionary statements for users, wildlife and the environment.

Protective equipment: Read product label for guidance. Routinely wear long sleeved shirt, long pants, rubber gloves and boots. Goggles and a respirator may be needed.

Safety Tips: Wash your hands often. Never eat, chew gum or use tobacco products when working with pesticides. Change and wash work clothing daily. Attend training classes.

Wash contaminated work clothing: Assume they are contaminated. Wash daily in hot water and heavy duty detergent. Keep separate from regular wash. Line-dry clothes after washing. Run an empty wash cycle with hot water and detergent to clean the machine.

Container management: Triple pressure rinse containers immediately after use. Store empty containers uncapped, where they won't collect water. Deliver container to a collection site for recycling or other uses.

Spill clean-up: Control the spill and report to appropriate authorities. Begin clean-up wearing proper safety equipment. Properly dispose of the spilled material.

Contact your local soil and water, natural resource or conservation district office for more information. You may also contact the NACD, 509 Capitol Court, N.E. Washington, D.C. 20002.

Remember, if you use pesticides it is vitally important that you take the time to use them correctly and follow label directions to avoid injury to yourself, employees or the environment.

Making sense out of diet advice

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with diverticulitis and a hiatal hernia. For the first condition, I was told not to eat much fiber and to take Metamucil at night. I phoned a medical information line and found I should eat more roughage, but should avoid spicy foods because of the hiatal hernia. I'm confused.

DEAR READER: Opinion is divided about whether people with diverticulosis (harmless outpouchings of the intestinal lining) should follow specific diets to prevent these sacs from becoming infected (diverticulitis).

In the past, roughage was considered harmful, but this prohibition has been discarded. Now, many doctors advise patients with diverticulosis to avoid small indigestible seeds, such as those contained in figs and berries. Perhaps this prejudice will someday fall out of favor, too.

Metamucil (psyllium fiber) is used as a stool-bulking agent. By increasing the size of the fecal residue, it aids elimination — and may also reduce serum cholesterol. It has no effect on hiatal hernia.

To my knowledge, it is neither advisable nor inadvisable in the presence of diverticulosis; although some people are clearly helped by it, others aren't. Therefore, use your own judgment in this matter; there's no hard and fast rule.

Hiatal hernia, on the other hand, causes heartburn and bloating that may be aggravated by spicy foods. Again, there is no clear-cut recommendation against ALL spices. Patients with this condition, which is a weakness where the stomach meets the esophagus, usually learn by trial and error which foods to avoid.

Because your two conditions are not a hazard to health, you can experiment with your diet, using moderation, of course. In the process, you'll soon learn which foods worsen your symptoms.

To give you more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Diverticular Disease" and "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is lacking in my diet that causes my thumbnails to crinkle and split?

DEAR READER: A diet deficient in protein, minerals and vitamins can lead to cracked, split nails. However, the most common cause for this condition is the aging process in conjunction with trauma (such as cold or chronic wetting) to the nails.

If only your thumbnails are affected, I doubt that any metabolic abnormality is to blame. (Otherwise all your nails would split and crack.) More likely, something that you're doing with your thumbs (or to your thumbnails) is the problem. Analyze your daily activities to find the answer.

Reformers eyeing limits on welfare benefits, child support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's overhaul of the welfare system is likely to include limits on the time a healthy parent can collect benefits, experiments with guaranteed child support payments and greater efforts to collect such support.

"Our assistance programs should help people become economically self-sufficient, not locked on welfare doing nothing," says David Ellwood, a former Harvard University professor tapped to help draft the reform.

Ellwood, in an interview Tuesday, detailed the options under consideration.

The main focus of Clinton's reform is on healthy recipients of Aid to Families With Dependent Children, a $22 billion, state-federal welfare program for single parents and a small number of unemployed couples.

The program reached a record 5 million families in March, according to the Department of Health and Human Services.

"When we see a record-high AFDC caseload, it should be a wake-up call," Ellwood, the new assistant secretary for planning and evaluation at HHS, said. "We need to stop taking the business-as-usual approach of the last 12 years. Our economy and our welfare system both need help."

Ellwood said reform would expand opportunities for child care, education and training to help people prepare for "real-world jobs."

"And we need to call on individuals to take more responsibility. In particular, we need to insist that absent parents support their children," he said.

As a candidate, Clinton promised to "end welfare as we know it," saying recipients should be required to work after two years on the rolls. He estimated the costs of providing education, training, jobs and possibly child care at $4 billion a year.

Some members of his still-unnamed welfare reform task force have just been confirmed to their government posts and others are awaiting Senate confirmation. But Ellwood has said work on the overhaul is under way and a plan should be ready by year's end.

"We don't want to turn our backs on the people who are struggling and trying to do the right thing. Our goal is a genuine alternative," he said.

Reform will concentrate on four main areas, Ellwood said:

— Experiments with government-guaranteed child support payments and efforts at stricter enforcement of support settlements.

Clinton has not endorsed the suggestion that the government guarantee a child support payment when the absent parent refuses or is unable to pay. But Ellwood argued that if single parents could count on child support payments, it could be possible to work part time at the minimum wage and be better off than on welfare.

—Work incentives such as child care, health care for all workers and an expansion in the earned income tax credit.

—Expanding education and training programs. According to Carolyn Colvin, secretary of Maryland's Department of Human Resources, many welfare recipients never finished high school and lack the skills needed to "get a job that pays a livable wage."

—Limiting the time a recipient can receive benefits. Now, people can receive AFDC payments until their youngest child turns 18 or finishes high school.

Governor vows fight to save San Antonio Air Force base

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards says she is joining city leaders and Air Force employees "to fight to the death" to keep Kelly Air Force Base alive.

That ghastly duel commences Sunday when the Base Realignment and Closure Commission holds a public hearing in Corpus Christi on military base closures.

"I am telling you, we are in a fight-for our lives with Kelly Air Force Base. This is as serious as a heart attack," Richards told several hundred Kelly workers Tuesday in a huge base airplane hangar.

"You are going to have to talk to your neighbors, to your friends, to your fellow workers and tell them that we are going to fight to the death to save Kelly Air Force Base," Richards declared, as though she were leading an election-eve pep rally rather than an afternoon government union meeting.

The San Antonio Air Logistics Center, Kelly's main function and its biggest employer with about 12,600 civilian workers, was added last month to the list of bases under consideration for closure by the realignment commission.

City and business leaders previously had not shown much worry that Kelly would be closed but immediately formed a group called the "Case For Kelly Task Force" to promote the base.

"I think we'll state our case in a very dramatic way," said Mayor Nelson Wolff, whose father worked at Kelly in the 1940s.

The logistics center oversees parts and maintenance for a number of aircraft, including the large C-5 cargo planes.

Richards said more than half of all Hispanics employed by the Air Force work at Kelly, and that the base has been selected to work on the new C-17 aircraft as well as computer data for the Base Realignment and Closure Commission.

Richards' staff distributed letters for Kelly workers to sign and asked the employees to attach photographs of themselves to send to commission members.

Richards said she would attend the commission's public hearing Sunday in Corpus Christi along with San Antonio city leaders and Kelly workers and lobby for Kelly next week in Washington.

Jerry Worsham

He says winning isn't the most important thing. He says instilling values is more important. Jerry Worsham has been successful at both.

Speech teacher and drama coach at Snyder High School for the past quarter of a century, Jerry Worsham is well-known for his success with students, especially in State One Act Play competition.

SHS drama coach since 1967, Worsham's students have been to Austin for state competition 24 of his 26 years in Snyder. Making it to state is an accomplishment in itself, but Snyder productions have won the state crown 12 times.

When one thinks of a successful drama department, people throughout the state and nation point to Snyder High School and Jerry Worsham. He has former students who now compete against him and he has other students who have successfully made a career of acting.

The day before the 1993 production of "Macbeth" the State House of Representatives adopted a resolution introduced by State Rep. David Counts in honor of the SHS play cast and its coach. The resolution honored Worsham's success and the example he sets for his students.

A native of Corsicana, he attended high school in nearby Bary where the superintendent of the small, rural school exposed he and other students to the cultural offerings of the cities. Worsham says he tries to be a positive role model for his students and to help develop an appreciation for the arts.

After high school, Worsham attended Navarro Junior College in Corsicana and wanted to be a journalist. After serving as editor of the college newspaper, he discovered that the joy of writing was lost to the drudgery of getting out the weekly publication.

He transferred to North Texas State University where he studied political science and speech. Worsham says he was and is a "generalist" and this has helped him in his teaching career. Prior to coming to Snyder, Worsham taught two years in Corsicana and then joined the Navy in 1964, being discharged in 1967.

Only a few students become professional actors, but Worsham hopes all will gain an appreciation for culture or at least have fun while learning.

In 1984, the Rockefeller Brothers Fund presented Snyder High with a $10,000 Arts in Education Award. SHS was one of eight winners chosen in 1984 from 238 schools from 46 states.

Worsham has received considerable professional recognition as well, including Texas Speech Teacher of the Year, the Founder's Award of the Texas Educational Theatres, and the John C. Barner Award from the American Theatre Association in Washington, D.C.

Worsham has also been supportive of the community-wide effort to establish and renovate the Ritz Community Theatre.

Another honor came in 1982 when the Snyder Independent School District Board of Trustees named the Snyder High School auditorium in his honor — the Jerry P. Worsham Auditorium.

Snyder National Bank is pleased to present June's Hometown Spirit Award to Jerry Worsham, SHS speech and drama instructor.
