Soldiers Wanted If War With Italy Is Made, Papers Say

FRENCH FOREIGN OFFICE DECLARES REPORT IS "ABSURD" BUT BRITISH REFUSE COMMENT; ITALY, ETHIOPIA HAVE DISSENSION

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Jan. 3—Paris newspapers reported today that France has asked Great Britain if she is willing to send troops to the German frontier, to replace French soldiers, in case of war with Italy.

A foreign office spokesman, however, said the report was "absurd."

The newspapers Paris-Soir and Intransigeant indicated the question was raised in discussions between the British and French general staffs, in which the two nations were considering how they would aid each other in the event Italy attacked British ships in the Mediterranean.

BRITISH OFFICIALS SILENT ON REPORT

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Whether the British army is prepared to assist France with troops on the German border if France is called upon to aid the British in the Mediterranean went unanswered in Whitehall today.

Authorities refused to discuss talks between members of the general staffs of the two nations in Paris except to say they were strictly limited to the scope of the present situation. The officials it was indicated, did not go into a hypothetical attack in the future.

ETHIOPIA AND ITALY FACING OTHER TROUBLE

BY ROY P. PORTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Officials of two nations at war with each other moved today informed sources reported to strangle any internal dissension in their countries.

In Italy Fascist party leaders called countrywide meetings to repeat to their followers Premier Mussolini's strong declaration 10 years ago that opposition to his regime would be removed by force.

Quell Disorders

Five thousand troops were sent from Addis Ababa to Gojjam province, near Lake Tana, to quell disorders allegedly incited by Italy. Thousands of copies of an appeal for loyalty to Emperor Haile Selassie also were dispatched to the province to combat attempts to stir a revolt against imperial taxes.

A nephew of the imprisoned Ras Hailu, erstwhile governor of Gojjam, was blamed directly for the trouble.

Domestic dissension in Italy —if any — has not been officially recognized. Premier Mussolini was represented in informed quarters, however, as maintaining the same position he did a decade ago when he said "when two elements conflict and are irreconcilable, the solution is force."

Any criticism of Fascist leadership, it was believed, might come from delay in the campaign of conquest on the Ethiopian fronts together with results from League of Nations sanctions.

BRUNO HOLDS STOICAL CALM

HAUPTMANN BELIEVES "SOMETHING" WILL SAVE HIS LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann retains his stoical calm in the belief "something" will leave him from the electric chair, as preparations were made today for his execution.

If precedent is followed the kidnaper and slayer of the Lindbergh baby will die Tuesday night, Jan. 14, at about 8 p. m., unless the court of pardons grants clemency or a reprieve.

About 20 persons will be admitted to the execution chamber, exclusive of guards and prison officials. Among them will be one or two physicians, but the majority will be newspapermen, for whom places will be reserved.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN IS NOTED IN AREA

A gain of from 20 to 25 per cent in the number of persons employed on work projects of WPA district 17, headquarters here, has resulted from closing of direct relief aid Jan. 1 to all employables.

Many projects which had formerly been reported operating as low as half the maximum number have now reached their quota, said W. E. Burke, supervisor of projects and planning. He estimated that some 400 persons, eligible for WPA employment and formerly on relief rolls or at work on seasonal jobs, have secured jobs through the WPA this week.

ACCIDENT VICTIM DIES

FORT WORTH, Jan. 3 (AP)—The fourth auto death in less than 12 hours was recorded here today when John Roy Bentley, 20-year-old Joshua farm youth, died of injuries received in a collision New Year's eve on the Burleson-Cleburne highway.

LEAVE FOR WALES

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Charles A. Lindberghs left Liverpool today for Cardiff, Wales, where, their representative said, they will seek "quiet and rest."

Germany Gives Caustic Answer To Report On Jews' Treatment

LEAGUE IS CHALLENGED TO LOOK TO ITS OWN MEMBERS

BY MALVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BERLIN, Jan. 3 (AP)—Germany's first official reaction to the report of James G. McDonald, former League of Nations high commissioner for refugees from Germany, urging Geneva to act against "persecution" of Jews in the reich, was a challenge to the league today to look first to its own members.

This counter-attack came in a caustic commentary, issued by the official German news agency last night, in reference to McDonald's German immigration report, and his suggestions to the league upon his resignation Dec. 29. He had served since Oct. 26, 7933, in "retaining, reconstruction and resettlement" of German refugees.

Has Other Problems

"German opinion is that the league has every cause to concern itself with how minorities and confessions are treated within league states before it can claim the right to occupy itself with how Germany, from the material and moral experience of her collapse, is rebuilding herself," the commentary said.

Raising anew the question of treatment of Germans in other nations, the official statement said:

"Hundreds of thousands of persons in World-war-defeated countries, who found themselves without countries or without means of existence after the war, have no one in the world to take compassion on them."

Townsendites To Be Active In Territory

"Let The Men Do The Proposing," Spinisters Say

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3. (AP)—The Spinsters' club gave Leap Year the raz today—not the glad hand.

"Let the men do the proposing, if any," was the consensus of the club, an informal social organization, limited to 100 members.

"I don't believe in Leap Year proposals," said one emphatic young woman, "and I don't intend to take 'advantage' of women's prerogative in 1936."

Most of the members could not be reached at home by telephone, the usual reply being, "she is at the office, working."

They do marry, however, despite any antipathy toward making the advances. Last season 23 new members were admitted to take the places of those who had marched altarward.

Very few of the girls who founded the club in 1929 remain members. They preferred to write "Mrs." in front of new names.

GROUP PLANS PART IN POLITICAL CONTESTS IN 3 DISTRICTS

Townsend club members will be active in at least three district political campaigns this year, said J. J. Dillard, president of the Lubbock Townsend club.

A Democrat, who ascribes to the Townsend old-age pension platform, will draw support from club members in the congressional, state senatorial, and state representative races.

Mahon To Have Opponent

Congressman George Mahon of the 19th district, of Colorado, probably will find a Townsendite opposing him. Dillard said that Congressman Mahon had indicated his opposition to the Townsend program.

State Senator G. H. Nelson of the 30th district, of Tahoka, and Representative J. Doyle Settle of the 119th district, of Lubbock, will be asked to commit themselves for or against the Townsend program. If they favor the move, they will draw support from club members. Otherwise, they likely will find opposition.

To Use Convention Plan

A convention system will be used to select the candidates, Dillard explained. The Lubbock delegates to

SCIENCE GIVES MAN A THIRD EYE TO SEE IN DARKNESS; NEW VACUUM TUBE

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 3 (AP)—Science has given man a third eye, with which he can see in darkness.

With it also he can see the world in which there are no colors, a zone which when made visible is twice as broad as that of normal sight, a zone heretofore limited to a few insects' eyes, and to them only in a few areas.

The eye is a vacuum tube, shaped like an overgrown electric light bulb. Its socket end is a new lens, which picks up the invisible rays of infra-red, or heat, and of ultra violet.

Its bulb end is an artificial retina, a round, frosted glass screen. On this screen things hidden in darkness and those of the colorless world become visible, in shades of greenish black and white.

The discovery was announced and the tube shown to the American Association for the Ad-

Probability that most of the 33 families to be located at the Ropesville rural community project would be selected today was announced by C. T. Watson, assistant to the state director of the regional office of Rural Communities, Inc., Dallas.

Announcement of selections was expected either this afternoon or tonight.

Families chosen can move immediately to their new homes, and the entire colony should be instated by Jan. 15, Mr. Watson said.

SOLONS READY TO GO TO BATTLE

PROLONGED DEBATE ON TWO BILLS IS IN PROSPECT

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Convening at noon in an aura of politics, congress found itself confronted at once today by the explosive neutrality and bonus issues.

Hardly had the gavel fallen before the administration bill seeking some discretionary embargo powers for the president and the veterans organizations' bonus measure were introduced.

Ready To Go To Mat

Awaiting what President Roosevelt would have to say this evening, many of the legislators obviously were ready to go to the mat over whether the neutrality policy should be made mandatory by congress and whether and how to redeem the veterans' compensation certificates.

Under the bill introduced by Chairman McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee, the president could have discretion as to embargoes on war materials but would be required to embargo actual war implements. Financial transactions with belligerent governments would be barred.

Open Up On Bonus

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States opened up against the compromise bonus bill, contending it would cost $1,277,000,000 more than congress originally intended. House members back of it went ahead just the same.

Deep and perhaps prolonged disputes appeared inevitable on both questions, this being a residential election year.

Governor Sells An Idea To Hollywood; Plan Texas Movie

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 3. (AP)—Gov. James Allred of Texas "sold" an idea for a scenario to a movie studio (Paramount) Thursday. He said the heroes of Texas history would make a great picture.

Ernst Lubitsch, chief of production at the studio, with whom he conferred, agreed.

Gov. Allred visited the studio with the Southern Methodist university football team. While the athletes were seeing the sets and the sights, the governor was talking Texas to Lubitsch.

Lubitsch ordered the research department to assemble material on the great characters of the Lone Star state.

Wheat Farmers In Hopes Of Big Crop

GUYMON, Okla., Jan. 3. (AP)—Out on the dusty acres of Oklahoma's Panhandle, wheat farmers were poised today for a comeback in 1936.

With land soaked well enough to sustain the crop for at least a month, thanks to rain and snow New Year's day, the Panhandle hopes to edge back into its place as a part of the nation's bread basket.

Across the line in the Texas Panhandle, heavy snow New Year's day made wheat prospects the best in five years.

Missionaries Are In Plight In China

NANKING, Jan. 3 (AP)—Thirty missionaries were in a desperate plight at Chihkiang, western Honan province, with the city cut off and besieged by a communist army, it was reported today to the United States embassy.

FDR TO ADDRESS CONGRESS, NATION

This sketch portrays a scene to be enacted in the congress of the United States tonight when President Roosevelt delivers his message, "The State of the Union" tonight. The president's talk will be broadcast over the national networks. Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns are shown seated in their customary places behind the president.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—The government closed 1935—half of the current fiscal year—with expenditures exceeding income by $1,879,651,192.

This deficit compared with the $3,281,982,000 deficit which President Roosevelt has estimated for the full fiscal year ending next June 30.

The treasury year-end figures were made available as Mr. Roosevelt polished his budget message for the 1937 financial year beginning next July 1. They go to congress Monday.

The public debt at the end of 1935 was $30,557,324,062. This debt figure was an all-time high. It compared with $28,478,663,924 at the end of 1934.

The treasury's statement, showed the government spent $3,781,660,702 in the July 1-Dec. 31 period, while its receipts were only $1,902,009,509.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. — Radio men said that President Roosevelt's message tonight will be available to one of the largest audiences in history.

Preparations for it surpass those for World series basc ball games, the Rose Bowl football game and the Kentucky derby, al lacknowledged as tremendous events for the air waves.

Expect Most Sets On

The National Broadcasting company here estimated most of the nation's 18,000,000 receiving sets will be turned on when Mr. Roosevelt begins speaking.

Three short-wave stations will re-broadcast the message, carrying the words to Europe certainly and to more distant lands if atmospheric conditions are suitable.

Takes Choice Hour

The speech—coming at choice commercial hours—will supplant a soup program, another dealing with "Human Relations," and a third called "Waltz Time."

Twenty-six microphones were set up in the capitol today for the opening of congress and the president's message. Forty technical radiomen and four announcers were being used by the broadcasting companies.

PRESIDENT TO GIVE TALK TONIGHT

CONTROVERSY AFLAME AS 74TH SESSION IS INAUGURATED

BY DOUGLASS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Aflame with controversy from the bang of the gavel, the second session of the 74th congress began today with brief ceremonies before recessing to hear President Roosevelt report on "the state of the union" in the evening.

Political tempers were taut with realization that events ahead would bear profoundly on the presidential campaign. Quarrels over routine procedure attested the deep feelings, while more significant argument was in the offing over neutrality and cashing the bonus.

TO ANSWER TALK

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—Representative Hamilton Fish, New York Republican, advised the National Republican club today he will answer President Roosevelt's address to a joint session of congress, when he speaks at the club tomorrow.

The club announced Fish had telegraphed he would answer the president and had been granted a half hour over a nationwide network. (Red network NBC—12:15-12:45 p. m., C. S. T.).

Future In Balance

Cloakroom talk was quite as much about the Supreme court and AAA. None gainsaid that, if the farm agency follows the way of NRA, the political future would be vitally affected.

Although the Roosevelt message tonight was expected to give his legislative program in broad outline, leaders inclined to place more importance on his budget to be forwarded Monday.

In good spirits during a brief press conference, he denied himself to callers except for the regular cabinet meeting. The 4,000-word

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Jan. 3.—The Potter county grand jury today began an investigation of a wrestling match which Danny McShain was reported to have won by spitting tobacco juice in the eyes of Bob Castle, his opponent.

A riot by wrestling fans threatened for 10 minutes after McShain was awarded the third and deciding fall of last night's main event. Castle appeared in intense pain and spectators were convinced that he had been temporarily blinded by either tobacco juice or pepper.

McShain, Referee Jack Van Bebber and Promoter Dutch Mantell were called before the grand jury. Awaiting his turn to testify, McShain denied the tobacco juice charge.

"I'm not only a good wrestler but a fine gentleman," he commented.

PARKS SYSTEM HAS GROWTH

FROM SEVEN ACRES TO 321,000 IS RISE IN DOZEN YEARS

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 3—A seven-acre park to 56 areas with 321,000 acres was the growth of the Texas park system as the state parks board rounded out a dozen years of existence.

Sixteen parks were completely developed in cooperation with the national park service under the emergency conservation program with Civilian Conservation Corps labor.

Construction of 18 others was started while 10 more were listed as eligible for federal aid and applications were made to the National park service for their development.

Federal Aid Is Factor

Federal aid was the boon that lifted the Texas parks from obscurity to a far-flung system in every section of the state. A recapitulation of 1935 expenditures showed $4,450,000 federal funds were contributed to $47,000 by the state.

D. E. Colp of San Antonio, retiring chairman, said the board concentrated efforts this year upon construction of parks already owned and made no effort to increase materially either the number or acreage.

"However, seven new parks were acquired," he said, "with a total of 5,215 acres. More than one-half of all state park areas acquired in the United States were acquired by the Texas state parks board."

State Now Outstanding

Because of its work, Colp said "this state is now looked upon as one of the outstanding states in the union in this respect."

Federal funds provided for 10 office workers, six national park inspectors, a field force of 200 in Texas parks and an estimated 4,000 CCC enrollees. The state board employed 12 office workers.

Most of the state park acreage was obtained from gifts of individuals, communities, municipalities and counties. Some state-owned land was set aside by the legislature for park purposes.

Coryell Tract Was Starter

The nucleus of the system was the seven-acre tract in Coryell county on the Leon river donated by Mrs. Isabella Shepherd Neff, whose son, Pat M. Neff, as governor, signed the act creating the department.

Upon his retirement from public office Neff became a member of the board and its vice-chairman. An attorney general's ruling advances him to chairmanship in holding Gov. Allred was without authority to designate Wendell Mayes of Brownwood, a new member, to be chairman.

Colp was chairman of the board since its creation. The board indicated he would be retained in a managerial capacity, having actively directed development of state parks during his tenure as chairman.

Parks Are Listed

Parks listed by the board as completed included:

Big Spring, Howard county, two miles southwest of Big Spring, 554 acres; Blanco, Blanco county, one-half miles south of Blanco, 110 acres; Brownwood, Brown county, 13 miles northwest of Brownwood, 538 acres; Caddo lake, Harrison county, one mile west of Karnack, 26,000 acres; Clifton, Bosque county, one-half mile east of Clifton, 104 acres; Davis Mountains, Jeff Davis county, three miles west of Fort Davis, 5,700 acres; Goose Island, Aransas county, 12 miles northeast of Rockport, 157 acres; Grayson, Grayson county, four miles southwest of Denison, 350 acres; Hereford, Deaf Smith county, one-half mile west of Hereford, 340 acres; Lake Abilene, Taylor county, 20 miles southwest of Buffalo Gap, 502 acres; Lampasas, Lampasas county, three miles east of Lampasas, 142 acres; Meridian, Bosque county, three miles southwest of Meridian, 542 acres; Mineral Wells, Palo Pinto county, one mile north of Mineral Wells, 70 acres; Palmetto, Gonzales county, one mile southeast of Ottine, 167 acres; Palisades, Randall county, 12 miles southeast of Amarillo, 320 acres and Stephenville, Erath county, 10 miles north of Stephenville, 300 acres.

Classes In Art At Canyon Are Popular

CANYON, Jan. 3 (Special)—Northwest Texas is art conscious if classes in the West Texas Teachers college are an indication. Thirty-nine students, most of them freshmen, are enrolled in art structure where they learn something of principles, color theory and use, free hand drawing and learn to experiment with art materials.

Thirty-one additional students are enrolled in courses dealing with design and lettering and drawing with charcoal pencil, brush, and pen and ink courses in appreciation of the fine arts.

Miss Isabel Robinson who is head of the art department is a member of the Southern States Art League, a graduate of the University of Missouri, and of Columbia university, and has had additional training in art in Chicago, Los Angeles, at Booth, Bay Harbor, Maine, and at Woodstock, N. Y. She is in charge of the art exhibits which appear in the Mary E. Hudspeth Art gallery, of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society museum.

The department said the basic cash allowance paid enrolled CCC men is $30 monthly. Black-Draught Good Laxative

Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons, of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headache, dull, tired feeling, biliousness."

"And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for sick headache. It certainly is good."

When a man says "Black-Draught is good," it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed. Adv.

HIGHWAY UNIT IS ACTIVE

PAST YEAR HAS SEEN MUCH DEVELOPMENT; MORE PLANNED

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 3—The state highway department, completing one of the busiest years in its history, looked forward today to greater activity in 1936.

At the close of the last fiscal year contracts totaling $24,789,578 had been completed. During the last quarter of 1935 the state put under contract millions of dollars in work financed by the federal government.

As of last Sept. 1 the department made available $49,244,150 in state and federal funds, most of which will be completed during the next calendar year. Construction in many instances, however, will depend on availability of labor from relief rolls.

Officials and employes are working overtime arranging details and preparing plans for the following program:

Works program, highways, $11,...350.
Works program, grade crossings, ...0,855,982.
Regular federal aid, $7,777,504.
Regular federal aid (state funds), ...777,504.
National recovery work relief, ...086,810.
Emergency relief (federal) $378,...

Highway Group To Hold Convention

AMARILLO, Jan. 3 (AP)—Development on the Colorado-to-Gulf highway will be emphasized at a meeting of the Colorado-to-Gulf association here the third week in March.

J. A. Wikoff of Raton, N. M., president said: "The road is so nearly complete that by the March convention there probably will be left not a single gap for attention."

Wikoff said the association's next task would be to publicize the route. He predicted an attendance of from 100 to 150 at the Amarillo meeting.

Former Texan Heads Montana University

AUSTIN, Jan. 3 (Special)—Dr. George F. Simmons, formerly of Houston, has been appointed president of the University of Montana. Dr. Simmons received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of Texas and since has made a notable record in his chosen field of science, that of geology. Following his graduation from the university, Dr. Simmons was for a time a member of the faculty of that institution. He obtained his doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Chicago.

One of the significant accomplishments of Dr. Simmons is a study which he made of the birds of the Austin region. He wrote and published a book on that subject which is regarded as an authority by ornithologists. In 1923 Dr. Simmons was head of an expedition which spent three years visiting remote islands of the South Atlantic ocean for the purpose of studying their wild life.

MUCH PROMISE IN FUTURE

UNIV. OF TEXAS MAN SAYS OUTLOOK GOOD FOR NEXT SPRING

(Special To The Journal)

AUSTIN, Jan. 3—Current business statistics continue highly satisfactory, it is stated in a review by Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician in the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas. The upward trend in general business activity which began in July has not yet been reversed, but during the past three weeks the rate of increase has slackened considerably, and there are indications that a temporary recession in industrial activity may occur early in the new year, Dr. Buechel pointed out. Notwithstanding this possibility, the outlook for next spring and the entire year 1936 is distinctly promising. Such uncertainties as exist are mostly of political origin—the convening of congress, and the tradition, unfounded though it may be, that a presidential election year is detrimental to business.

"Among the reasons for expecting a relatively good business year in 1936 are: the cumulative improvement in farm buying power; the probable cyclical upswing in construction, both residential and commercial, as well as in other durable goods industries; and the present tendency of many industrial concerns to launch programs of plant improvement with the view to lowering costs of production as evidenced by the sharp rise in activity in the machine tools industry," the review says. "Although these constructive forces will, in part, be offset by growing taxes, a widening of profit margins should nevertheless result as industry attains more nearly its normal production stride.

Human Welfare Considered

"More important, perhaps, from the long-term viewpoint, than the actual and probable further expansion of business noted above, is the current reappraisal of our economic structure on the part of industrial and intellectual leaders in terms of its relation to human welfare and the improvement of human character. In the words of one leading industrialist, 'we must challenge industry's thinking, its standards, and its methods in terms of the broader demands of today and tomorrow'; and in those of another, 'as to mechanics and science, we cannot base our claims to progress upon them. The increase of knowledge means little without a corresponding increase of conscience.'

Similar expressions from a broad range of recognized leaders indicate a growing recognition that we are passing through a character crisis as well as an economic crisis; that progress in science invention and the mechanical arts has been far greater than our advance in solving the problems of individual conduct and of human relations.

Should Define Objectives

"If it is true that our present crisis is as much spiritual as economic and that permanent economic advancement is dependent upon corresponding development of individual but all other social institutions should subject themselves to critical analysis and more clearly define their objectives. For example, is the press 'as an instrument of adult education giving accurate information about significant events, encouraging sound thinking and discussion, and leading the masses from darkness into light? Does the radio commission really fulfill its proper social function when it 'conciliates the claims of contending commercial interests?' Is the motion picture industry realizing its possibilities as a medium for cultural advancement when 'the sole object is to amuse a public whose mental age is generously estimated by psychologists to be that of 13-year-olds?' And, finally, are not universities over-stressing a wide range of unrelated vocational subjects at the expense of a sound foundation in science, history and literature? Someone has recently said:

"'The political and economic problems of today cannot be satisfactorily solved in the kind of intellectual and emotional atmosphere which is generated by sensational journalism, commercial radio programs and movies, and universities which train their students only to make money.'"

Valley Experiencing Heavy Tourist Crop

BROWNSVILLE, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Lower Rio Grande Valley now has the largest number of winter tourists since the boom days of 1928 and 1929, registrations at the various chambers of commerce indicate.

A total of 236 tourists have registered at the Brownsville chamber indicating that at least 700 have visited here so far this winter, and that probably 400 still are in the city.

Approximately 645,000,000 incandescent lamps were purchased by Americans last year.

TWO BOOKS BY LLOYD DOUGLAS ARE IN LIST OF MOST POPULAR TWENTY READ IN PAST YEAR; BEST TEN SELECTED

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 — Two novels written by Lloyd Douglas were listed among the 20 public library books most widely read in 1935.

Selection of the big ten in fiction and non-fiction categories was based on reports to the American Library association from 33 libraries in all sections of the nation.

Fiction most in demand were: Green Light and Magnificent Obsession by Douglas, Anthony Adverse by Allen, Vein of Irion by Glasgow, Mutiny On The Bounty by Nordhoff and Hall, Forty Days of Musa Dagh by Werfel, Time Out Of Mind by Field, Lost Horizon by Hilton, It Can't Happen Here, by Lewis, and Europa by Briffault.

The most popular non-fiction included North to the Orient by Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh. The others were:

Life With Father by Day, Seven Pillars of Wisdom by Lawrence, While Rome Burns by Woollcott, One Hundred Guinea Pigs by Kallett, Asylum by Seabrook, Personal History by Sheehan, Nijinsky by Nijinsk, Skin Deep by Phillips and Mary, Queen of Scotland and The Isles of Zweig.

The association said the books were not ranked in the order of their respective popularity.

BANK'S REPORT GIVES DATA

NOVEMBER SALES DROP OVER OCTOBER BUT EXCEED LAST YEAR

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Jan. 3—Although department store sales for November were two per cent less than in October, the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas says, the total exceeded that of the corresponding month last year by six per cent.

The review, released today, states that the November drop was "considerably less than the average decline for this season." Notwithstanding, the review reports "an active demand for merchandise in both wholesale and retail channels was in evidence in this district during the past month."

Volume Larger

A seasonal recession in wholesale distribution was also registered, the review continues, but the volume was materially larger than a year earlier. "Furthermore, late reports from some firms indicate that December business is being augmented by a substantial volume of fill-in orders. Payments on accounts at both wholesale and retail were generally satisfactory for this season. Debits to individual accounts at banks in larger cities declined five per cent from October to November, but the total for the latter month was 24 per cent larger than in November.

The review reports that the position of the agricultural and livestock industries is much improved as compared with a year ago. The heavy rains during the past month furnished much needed moisture in the northwest portion of the district . . . with the result that all sections have an adequate season in the ground.

Weather Has Been Factor

Small gains, the review explains, "have made rapid growth and are in good condition generally. While weather conditions have interfered with harvesting and fall plowing, a period of open weather will enable farmers to go forward rapidly with this work.

"The large production of feed crops has provided farmers with an ample supply of feed to make 1936 crops and will be an important factor in holding down the cost of production.

Crops Produce Well

"Many of the minor crops have produced well and have made satisfactory returns to growers. The cotton crop, while smaller than the 10-year average, was substantially larger than in the previous year. The condition of ranges and livestock is better than for several years and prices are considerably higher than a year ago."

The review explains that the financial situation disclosed no material changes. There was a further expansion in loans while investments of member banks in selected cities declined during the four-week period ending Dec. 11. Federal bank loans to member banks continued in small volume. The daily average of combined net demand and time deposits of member banks amounted to $784,086,000 in November, compared with $775,552,000 in October.

The value of building permits issued at principal cities was 36 per cent less than the large October figures but exceeded November, 1934, by 35 per cent.

"Trick Questions" Banned In Future

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The labor department has ordered its naturalization examiners to stop asking "trick questions" in examining aliens on their citizenship qualifications.

No longer is the prospective citizen to be asked "how many legs has the constitution?" or "how many stars are there on a quarter?"

Questions are to be "designed to disclose the petitioner's inherent qualifications upon which good citizenship is based, and to disclose his knowledge, understanding and acceptance of the fundamental principles of our constitution." The department set forth in the order its definition of the constitution.

Navy Club Is To Get Reservation

PORT ISABEL, Jan. 3 (AP)—The navy reservation here, including about 20 acres of land and 10 structures, will be turned over to the Valley Navy club in the near future, Postmaster William T. Burnett of Brownsville, president of the organization, has been informed.

The Navy department obtained the acreage a number of years ago and for a time operated a radio station. Later the radio was removed to Fort Brown and converted to an Army station. Efforts are to be made to have a state and navy supported nautical academy located on the site here.

Pack-Rats Are Most Inexplicable Of Collectors

ABERDEEN, Wash., Jan. 3 (AP)—Pack-rats are the world's most inexplicable collectors of inexplicable collections, said E. D. Avey, naturalist.

He wondered what use one could have for a turkey wing, part of an alarm clock, two suspender buckles, two tin cans, four collar buttons, a shoehorn, three withered carrots, a bedroom slipper, one tin measuring cup, four pieces of harness, half a package of cigarets and four used razor blades found in a pack-rat cache near here.

BROWNWOOD IS TO BUILD GAS PLANT

BROWNWOOD, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Brownwood city council has voted to build a municipal gas system at an initial cost of between $15,000 and $20,000, and has authorized Mayor W. H. Thompson to sign contracts for the gas supply.

Work of laying the lines will be started in the next few days, Mayor Thompson says. The city has the money for the first cost and extensions and improvements will be financed from earnings, he stated.

Under the contract the city will purchase gas at the city gate for 8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 100,000,000 feet. If more is used the price will be 6 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the entire amount, including the first 100,000,000.

Only one major gas company is operating in Brownwood, this company having recently purchased the other large company which had been operating here for a number of years.

Uniform Policies On Cars Made In 1935

AUSTIN, Jan. 3 (AP)—R. G. Waters, casualty insurance commissioner, points to establishment of a system of uniform automobile policies and endorsements as the greatest 1935 achievement of his department.

"This assures the policy buyer of uniformity of covering and that he will not get a 'trick' policy," Waters said.

Although no changes were made in workmen's compensation coverages during the year an exhaustive study has been undertaken of the year's statistics looking to possible changes.

SNYDER, (Special)—V. G. Young, assistant to County Agent W. R. Lace, in charge of cotton adjustment, has been ordered to Lamesa in a similar capacity. The change is effective January 1. No successor has been named here.

LOST HIS FROG

Chicago Man's Explanation Is Unique

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP)—A case of accidental intoxication came up in the Judge Thomas A. Green's court.

Edward O'Neil, 42, was hailed before the judge on combined charges of drinking and disorderly conduct.

"I haven't seen you in a long while," said the judge. "What happened?"

"It was this way, your honor," O'Neil explained.

"I had a pet frog I'd take with me when I'd go into a place to drink. I'd put him on the bar and when he changed color I knew I'd had enough. Well, somebody stole my frog."

"Discharged," said the judge, "if you'll get a new frog.

Mr. Hogan Is Freed Of Twenty Years Stomach Suffering

Rheumatism Conquered Too; Had Been Unable To Work. Indigestion Would Double Him Up In Pain. Smothering Spells Terrible; Gly-Cas Unfailing

"If I had not learned of Gly-Cas when I did I do not know how I could have stood such suffering much longer." Mr. G. L. Hogan, 1312 East Sixth Street, Amarillo, Texas. "For twenty years before I knew of Gly-Cas my health had constantly caused me no end of trouble. My stomach would not allow me to eat the foods I wished. After eating, my heart often pained me and the attacks of indigestion and gas were so great that it would double me up on the floor for an hour at a time. Then too I would endure such severe smothering spells I would not see how I could stand them any longer, I could hardly get my breath at all. I was told by medical authorities that I had an ulcerated stomach and my entire system seemed to be out of order. Rheumatism caused me much suffering too, I could not walk good at times and it seemed I was filled with poisons. I tried many different kinds of medicines but got only temporary relief and continued to grow worse everyday. Finally I was unable to do my work and it was terribly discouraging in my condition to see what was ahead of me. But finally I began Gly-Cas and from the first few doses I realized I had at last found the one medicine I had been needing.

"At present I have only taken two boxes of Gly-Cas but already I am a new man," continued Mr. Hogan. "I have gained ten pounds and feel better than I have in twenty years. I now work everyday, eat and sleep good, freed of that horrible stomach suffering and that dreadful rheumatism has been relieved. It is wonderful that suffering people can get a medicine like Gly-Cas that is such a blessing to humanity. I hope that many people learn of Gly-Cas through my experience with this new medical discovery for I know they will regain their health as I have done."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

Gly-Cas $1.00 per box—6 boxes $5.00. Add 2c postage for each box ordered. Send money orders made payable Mark Halsey Drug Store. Don't send cash. Checks not accepted—No C. O. D. Mail Orders—Adv.

MATADORS TO MEET LOBOS TONIGHT

BORDER CONFERENCE'S CAGE SEASON OPENS WITH 2 GAMES

On their toes and waiting anxiously for the whistle, Texas Tech's Matador cagers are all set to open their Border conference basketball season tonight with the University of New Mexico Lobos.

First game of the series begins at 7:30 o'clock tonight, and the second contest at the same hour tomorrow night.

A large crowd is expected to take advantage of bargain rates and the promise of colorful basketball and fill the Tech gymnasium to the eaves. Border conference games always have proved big drawing cards here, and the upcoming series should be no exception. The Lobos of New Mexico, ably coached by the veteran cage mentor, Roy Johnson, are figured to be just about as tough as any of Tech's conference foes this season.

Preliminary At 6 O'Clock

As a preliminary in tonight's conference game, the Tech freshmen cagers, coached by Aubrey Butts, will meet a team from Abernathy. The game begins at 6 o'clock.

Both the Matadors and the Lobos won their opening games with ease, Tech taking a powerful semi-pro club from Big Spring and New Mexico defeating a Colorado teachers college.

All the other Border league teams will be gunning for Texas Tech this season, and all of them are on the Matador schedule. Most of them play Tech on New Mexico and Arizona courts. They'll be set for the Matadors because of Tech's three-year monopoly of the championship.

After Fourth Title

Tonight the Red Raiders set out on the long trail they hope will result in a fourth straight title.

Starting tonight's game for Tech will be the 6-foot, 5-inch Curly Wilkinson, a junior, at center; Judge Garrett, 6-foot, 1-inch senior forward; Paul Morris, briefly-built junior college transfer at the other forward; Hugh Snodgrass, junior from Lubbock, and Dan Corbin, junior college transfer, at guards.

Snodgrass and Wilkinson are the only returning letter men. Garrett was a member of the squad last season. Corbin, Garrett and Wilkinson give the team average basketball height for their respective positions, but Snodgrass and Morris are close to the ground.

Reserves due to play a large part in Tech's offense and defense are Bob Case and Maurice Wiginton, two improved players up from the 1935 freshman team, and Robert Hale, holdover guard from last season's varsity squad.

Two of the players Coach Huffman had counted on to serve more or less regularly are ineligible for the series. They are Olen Gaskin and Pete Burke, junior college transfers who will become eligible Feb. 1, or at the beginning of the second semester.

Lobo Veterans

Against the local setup, Coach Johnson will send a team which is little different in personnel from the 1935 Border conference team of Albuquerque. The Lobo offense is built around rangy Ralph Bowyer, all-conference center last year. Manuel Saenz and Bill Stockton are forwards, Bob Scott and Joe Gassaway at guards. Scott was a letter man two seasons ago, but was out last season with an injured knee. Saenz is considered one of the best ball handlers the Lobos have had for several years. Stockton was a sophomore sensation last season.

Local fans will be able to see only two Border conference series here this season. The New Mexico Aggies visit Lubbock Feb. 7 and 8. All other conference teams are played away from home.

LEVELLAND PLANS CAGE TOURNAMENT

LEVELLAND, Jan. 3 (Special)—The second all-West Texas high school invitation basketball tournament will be conducted here January 17 and 18, it has been announced.

More than $100 in prizes will be distributed to various winners. A tall silver trophy cup goes to the winning team, and individual prizes go to each member of the team. Members of second and third place teams, members of an all-tournament team, the best individual player, second best and third best player and the player displaying the most "sportsmanship," will receive prizes.

All entries must be in the hands of Levelland school officials, Coach Bill Stevens announced, by January 10. Each team will be notified of its time to play.

Warrensburg Wins Basketball Tourney

WINFIELD, Kas., Jan. 3 (AP)—The Warrensburg Teachers college of Missouri last night won the annual Southwestern College basketball tournament by defeating the Springfield, Mo., Teachers 42 to 29.

Springfield was away to an early lead and at the half held a 14 to 12 advantage. Warrensburg however overcame the advantage and forged to the front.

AS STANFORD SCORED THE WINNING TOUCHDOWN IN THE ROSE BOWL

The red horde of Stanford struck swiftly against the Texas Mustangs from Southern Methodist University in the celebrated annual game in Pasadena Rose Bowl, before 85,000 spectators. Employing the aerial tactics which brought S. M. U. to national football prominence, the Californians scurried down the field in the first quarter, and here you see the line plunge, by Bill Paulman, quarterback, that brought the only touchdown of the game. The phalanx of Mustangs coming in from the left could not stop the necessary one-yard gain. Final score: 7-0.

TWO FAMED "BOBBYS" OF ROSE BOWL RIVALRY TO BE TEAMMATES IN NEXT GAME; TEXAS PLAYERS ARE SELECTED ON ALL-STAR SQUAD TO PLAY IN HAWAIIAN ISLES

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3—Rivals on New Year's day in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, two famed "Bobbys" of football — Stanford's Grayson and Southern Methodist's Wilson — will be teammates in the next game they play.

The two backfield stars have been named with 19 other outstanding players on a squad which will play a Honolulu team in the islands either Jan. 11 or 12.

The squad, selected by Paul Ford, former gridiron ace, includes two other members of the S. M. U. team and eight other Stanford men besides players who took part in the East-West charity game here Wednesday.

Pop Warner To Coach

Glenn "Pop" Warner of Temple university will coach the team.

Squad:

Backs — Grayson, Reisner, and Todd, all Stanford; Wilson and Shuford, Southern Methodist; Wallace, Rice Institute; Schreiber, St. Mary's; Cheshire, University of California at Los Angeles.

Ends — Topping, Stanford; Erdelatz, St. Mary's; Sylvester, Rice.

Tackles—Smith, Minnesota; Reynolds and Carlson, both Stanford; Spain, S. M. U.

Guards—Oech, Minnesota; Adams and Rouble, both Stanford and Hollwerda, formerly of Stanford.

Centers — Muller and Larsen, both Stanford.

Texan Outstanding In Amateur Fights

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP)—Twenty aspiring heavyweight boxers, each hoping to be a potential opponent for Joe Louis, were tossed into the ring in the Chicago stadium last night, with seven of the ten bouts resulting in knockouts.

Louis occupied a front seat and saw nothing to discourage him. The most promising of the crop proved to be lanky, frail-looking Tom Beaupre, a 21-year-old butcher of Dallas, Tex., "who just loves to fight." Beaupre, a sharpshooter with both hands, knocked out Jerry Johnson of Norway, in the second round, flooring him twice. He weighed 186 pounds to 196 for Johnson.

Struggle For Posts On Olympic Team Is To Start Saturday

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—Amid snow covered surroundings, the struggle for places on the United States Olympic track and field team starts tomorrow at the first indoor meet of the "Olympic year."

While it is not considered one of the "big" meets, the annual games of the Columbus council, Knights of Columbus, in Brooklyn long has held the honor of opening each year's board-track season and has produced from time to time some notable performances.

A few "big time" performers always take part along with the stars of the metropolitan district. They usualy manage to do well despite the handicap of running without spikes on the flat armory floor.

The Olympic prospect gives a special flavor of interest to tomorrow's meet. The winners will not be assured of places on the Olympic squad, but it will give them a good start in that direction. At least four of the 600 odd entries are considered as likely Olympic prospects, and others may turn up.

Three of last year's "big four" of middle distance running, Chuck Hornbostel of Indiana, now a graduate student at Harvard; Glenn Cunningham, the famous Kansan, and Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania's perennial also-ran, are entered in the 800-meter special.

Eulace Peacock, Temple university negro flash, heads the field for the sprint series.

Omaha Is To Sail For English Classic

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—Omaha, champion three-year-old of 1935, was scheduled definitely today to sail next Wednesday for England in quest of the coveted Ascot Gold cup, although his ailment is as much a mystery as the day he was forced out of competition last August.

William Woodward, owner of the big chestnut colt, made the decision after Omaha had been brought here from the Belair farm in Maryland and worked out at Aqueduct under the eye of Captain Boyd-Rochfort, who will have charge of the champion in England.

If Carnera's An Alp, What's This Giant?

The search for a white hope to repulse the threat Joe Louis offers the heavyweight throne has reached as far as Europe. Jeff Dickson, London promoter, has unearthed Gogeo Mitu, a Rumanian giant who soars into the sky something like the Eiffel Tower. Shown here at right, boxing with Lou Brouillard, former middleweight champion, in Paris, Mitu stands 7 feet 8 inches tall, and weighs 330 pounds. He may be imported for duty in the United States soon.

SECRET IS OUT

"Fighting Irish" Ape Popeye And Eat Spinach

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 3 (AP)—The secret came out today—it's spinach that puts fight into the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame.

They eat it by the bushel along with more than a ton and a half of meat daily, and wash it down with a small lake of milk and coffee, said John Kilfether.

And Kilfether, as custodian of the larder at the world's largest boarding school, ought to know, for it's his job to buy the food.

The only rest he gets is during vacations and even then he has before him the vision of 2,700 returning students—every one of them hungry.

If spinach is on the menu, it's Kilfether's job to supply the chef with 35 bushels of it. It's a universal favorite among Notre Dame students whether they're fullbacks on Coach Elmer Layden's football team or just members of the cheering section, said Kilfether.

Twenty-Two Teams Enter Tournament

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 3 (AP)—Twenty-two Texas high schools have entered their basketball teams in the second annual San Antonio High school tournament basketball tournament here Jan. 10 and 11.

The number is too many for a class A tournament and not enough for both class A and class B events, and Claud Kellam, athletic director and manager of the tournament, still is undecided whether he will run off two divisions. He needs more class B entries.

Milby of Houston, Victoria, Del Rio, Hunt and Maxwell are some of the late entries, joining such strong Houston, Austin, Laredo, Beeville and the five local schools.

U. S. STARS TO LEAVE TODAY FOR GAMES

FIRST AGGREGATION TO OLYMPICS TO SAIL AT NOON TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 — The United States Olympic winter sports teams, bolstered by a couple of last minute additions to the bob-sled squad, turned their backs today on the bitterness and controversy that preceded their sailing and headed for the winter games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany.

About 45 athletes — the number was uncertain almost up to sailing time at noon — and a group of officials and coaches made up the squad aboard the S. S. Manhattan.

Others To Sail

The candidates for the women's ski team and a number of men ski runners and jumpers already are in Europe. Gilbert Colgate, one of the bobsledders, sailed yesterday. Billy Fiske and Eddie Eagan of the bobsled squad and the entire figure skating team will sail later this month.

Eagan and Clifford (Tippy) Gray, who rode with Fiske in 1932 to win the Olympic title, notified the bobsled committee yesterday of their willingness to pay their own expenses if they would be permitted to join the squad. This made possible three four-man bob teams. The fastest two in trials will be chosen for the Olympics.

Sugar Bowl Net Tourney Is Next

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3 (AP)—With competition in track, football and basketball completed, interest in the Sugar Bowl athletic carnival turned to the start today of the tennis tourney in which some of the nation's major stars will compete.

Approximately 1,250 persons turned out last night for a spectacular basketball battle between Louisiana State and Pittsburgh, which the latter won, 52 to 47, in a late rally

Warren V. Miller, president of the Mid-Winter Sports association which sponsored the Sugar Bowl program, announced that 34,740 spectators paid $89,069.55 to see the New Year's day football game in which Texas Christian defeated Louisiana State 3 to 2. Receipts for last year's Tulane-Temple game totaled $61,750.

Both L. S. U. and T. C. U. will receive $30,041.25 each as their shares of the gate receipts. Tulane and Temple got $20,751 each.

The tennis competition was scheduled to have started yesterday but was set back until today because the courts were still rain-soaked.

A field of 16, headed by Wilmer Allison, No. 1 American player, is entered. The first and second rounds will be played today with semifinals Saturday and finals Sunday.

Junior High Five Conquers Meadow

The basketeers of Lubbock Junior High school were off to a season's start yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Meadow juniors on the latter's court, 29 to 20.

Harold Parsons, star performer on the Cowboy football team, was an outstanding figure in cage uniform yesterday, defensively and offensively. He shared Lubbock scoring honors with Jerry Nash, a guard, each with 8 points. Parsons and Dutchy Cawthon played forwards, Wynn at center, Johnson and Nash, guards. Simons and Jackson were forward substitutes, and Moxley relieved Wynn at center.

White, forward, with 10 points, led Meadow's scoring and was high point player of the game. Rice, center, bagged 8 points to share with Nash and Parsons. C. Easterwood started at the other forward position with White, and Verner was a substitute. L. Easterwood and Everett played guards for the home team, Everett being relieved by Poole.

Lubbock led, 15 to 12, at the half.

Supreme Court Has Surrendered Itself To Modern Demand

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The supreme court has made another surrender to a modern demand—and appointed a "press contact man," the tribunal's first in the 146 years of its existence.

Veteran court employes, who explained the appointment in the absence of an official announcement, emphasized that the new official was neither a "press agent," nor a "public relations counsellor."

And contrasting with younger government agencies, where "press agents" seldom are known by the title, the court attaches added that there would be no "handouts," or "press releases."

They explained that Helen A. Potter, of the clerk's staff had been designated to handle queries from hundreds of news-writers seeking information on court moves that have captured public attention, especially since the New Deal controversies began pouring into the tribunal.

Four armed men visited Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morris at their farm near Cornavarra, Northern Ireland, at six o'clock in the morning, and forced them to go to Drumquin, where the two were chained to railings outside the Catholic church.

MUSTANGS MINGLE WITH FILM STARS IN HOLLYWOOD; JOKE IS PLAYED ON BELL; LEAVE FOR HOME LATE TODAY

Wins 57 Titles

BY FELIX McKNIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer

PASADENA, Jan. 3 (AP) — The Southern Methodist Mustangs went to Hollywood, traded autographs with the film stars and almost forgot the 7-0 licking they took from Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

Guests of Warner brothers studios, the Mustangs, headed by Coaches Matty Bell, Vic Hurt and Charlie Trigg, and Athletic Business Manager Jimmy Stewart, lingered for hours on the lot.

Mingle With Stars

They mingled with the stars, watched filming of scenes and took a "Hollywood gag" in good style after first threatening to take the studio restaurant to pieces.

Vince Barnett, film actor, posing as a newspaper man, approached Coach Bell at the luncheon table and confidentially reported that he was tracking down a nasty rumor that the Mustangs hadn't exerted their best efforts in the game.

Bell Little Exasperated

Bell colored, vigorously denied the accusation and became more than just a little exasperated at the rumor.

Barnett asked if he might question Bobby Wilson, ace Mustang halfback and a great star of the game, concerning the rumor.

"You might ask him about it," hotly retorted Bell. "But I suggest that you stand at arm's length after you's popped your question."

Reveals Identity

Barnett hastily revealed his identity and Bell's laughter was louder than others "in" on the gag.

The Methodists will entrain for Texas this afternoon stopping off at the Grand Canyon enroute home. They arrive in Dallas Sunday night.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT at the Tech gymnasium. Berl Huffman's Matadors play Roy Johnson's University of New Mexico Lobos. It's Border conference basketball, which is pretty fair basketball.

New Mexico will put a team of veterans on the floor, all of whom played more or less regularly last season. Tech's regular lineup has two letter men, one squadman from last year, and a couple of junior college transfers. Praise Allah for those transfers, Dan Corbin and Paul Morris. There is another who will turn eligible February 1, Pete Burke, from the Cameron Aggie team last year.

Tech should get a split series out of it, judging from the showing made by the Matadors in their opener against the Cosden Oilers, a team of veteran semi-pros. If they click tonight and tomorrow night like they did against the Cosdens, they'll win at least one game from the Lobos.

As a preliminary, Coach Aubrey "Professor" Butts' Tech Picador cagers will play a team from Abernathy. This game begins at 6 o'clock.

IT'S STILL THE season for picking the "all-" teams, and a fan at Tacoma, Wash., turns up with something new in all-star football clubs. It's an all-literary, all-America eleven for 1935.

Tackle—Dickens, Yale.
Guard—Robert Louis Stevenson, Hawaii.
Center—Greeley, Harvard.

End—Lowell, Indio High High school, California.

Half—Emerson, Detroit.
Fullback — William Shakespeare, Notre Dame.

THE BOYS who write boxing around New York are still having a laugh over Senor Mike Jacobs' winter vacation trip to Cuba. Jacobs, as you know, is the successor to Tex Rickard, the million-dollar boxing gate builder, for which Mr. Jacobs may thank the black boy, Joe Louis.

As you also know, Jacobs had booked a fight for Louis against the Spanish mittster, Isadore Gastanaga, on the island for December, and you are aware that the fight was called off. There were vague reasons for this latter move, including Louis' "stale condition," and the fear that the fight would stir up political fires, the latter being one of Cuba's favorite outdoor sports.

There was another reason for the postponement, then the abrupt cancellation of the fight, Harry Grayson, plain-spoken scribe for NEA, tells it, also describes Mr. Jacobs' Cuban vacation for which he is getting the ram.

It proved more of a vacation for Louis, his two managers and a retinue of New York sports writers, all sent ahead to fire up the ballyhoo, than it did for Jacobs himself. Louis outfitted himself with white evening clothes. He was going to knock the senors and senoritas of San Cristobal de la Habana, as well as Gastanaga, plum daid.

Resente pictures of a $150,000 gate were painted by hot-headed fans and promoters in Cuba. Jacobs already had made a down payment on rental of the hall.

The ballyhoo bureau got busy, and the Isle de Cuba suddenly became milti-minded. The natives departed from their pet pastime of firing presidents to pay attention to arrangements for San Cristobal de la Habana's greatest sports spectacle since Jack Johnson shaded his eyes from the sun nearly 21 years ago.

The show couldn't miss drawing more than 40,000 people. The 270,000 members of the Spanish colony had sublime faith in their countryman, Gastanaga. President Mendieta also lent an ear. Bankers, rich sugar planters and influential citizens practically were being trampled upon in the rush to make reservations. And then—

And then, as Mr. Grayson tells us, Senor Jacobs arrived on the scene, and made an astounding discovery. It was that the Isle de Cuba is not populated by Cubans at all, but by Chinese, the well-known term for Annie Oakley.

The rush was on all right, but it wasn't a gold rush. There were enough ex-presidents of the Isle de Cuba alone to fill Tropical Stadium, and the assistant to every assistant to whomis demanded that Senor Jacobs punch more holes in his ticket that Louis could possibly punch in Gastanaga.

There was only $2,000 in the damper, and there would be accommodations for no more than $10,000 worth of paying guests if that many had the price.

So Senor Jacobs, recalling the $6,500 he had already spent on the deal, suddenly remembered that Louis was out of condition. The fight was postponed to Feb. 2. As soon as Jacobs could elude his bodyguard of machine-gunners and got back to Miami, the fight was called off altogether.

So Senor Jacobs doesn't doesn't care for another vacation soon, or at any time in Cuba, we suspect.

RAIN FROM HEAVEN

Youth to Youth—or Middle Age and Security? Fate Intervened to Solve Joan's Dilemma.

By
William De Lisle

THE RAIN was falling in a drenching, silver sheet that gave to the streets a mystic and intangible quality, blurring the outline of tall buildings, merging them one into another.

Joan March, forcing her way along the slippery pavement, found it difficult to maintain a foothold. She felt herself jostled between vague and barely apprehended figures. Umbrellas like small black domes hid all traces of personality. She did not care. She was not interested in personalities nor in faces.

She walked with no definite object; she had merely come out because the four walls of her room had seemed unbearable. The black and orange cover flung over the rickety table, the marigolds bold and flaunting on their thick stems, the bright cushions in which their color was repeated had all looked unbelievably garish and hideous in the thin gray light that came through the narrow window.

She hated the large unframed photographs pinned on the dingy walls, photographs of women with beautifully waved hair and soulful or simpering faces. They were hypocritical in their suggestion of luxury and easily tempered lives. She knew them all so well, these women who snatched at moments of illusion. She, too, had bared her shoulders and smoothed her hair and gazed out with cloying sweetness on the cold austerity of a studio, had forced herself to the same belief as all these others that this was how she would always look.

Day after day as she had trudged off to work she had carried with her this illusory vision of her own face. That was all over now. She had discovered a way out. Her wet glove pressed the heavily-stoned engagement ring against her finger. Her heart beat fast with exertion and the sudden terror that had driven her from her room.

Only last night she had been brilliantly and superbly triumphant. Over the rim of a champagne glass she had looked into a man's eyes and softly murmured a toast to the future they would spend together. The bright restaurant, the gaily dressed crowd, the fact that her solitary evening dress was equal to any there, the knowledge that she would never have to worry any more, that miraculously all difficulties had been swept from her path had filled her with an exuberant vitality.

Brent Warden could give her everything she desired and the glamour of his riches hung about him blinding her to the fact that he was years older than she, that in his comfortable middle-aged complacency he was entirely different from those who in earlier days had formed the substance of romantic dreams.

Later in the lounge of the Ritz-Plaza with its spraying fountain, its rosy lights, its soothing atmosphere of luxury and wealth, Joan had sat beside him and he had slipped the ring on her finger. The stone had held her transfixed. She had stared at it wondering that anything so beautiful could actually belong to her. His voice coming to her in a broken whisper had barely conveyed anything to her excited mind.

"I so hoped you'd say yes," she heard. "That's why I brought the ring. When you're my wife you will have many more. Even now, Joan, if you'd only let me—"

"If only I'd let you what?" she had asked.

"Let me give you money to spend on clothes and all the other things women want. My dear, there is nothing I wouldn't give you."

She laughed lightly. "When we are married I shall probably ask you for more money than you want to give me. Until then—" she had shrugged her shoulders in a faint gesture and smiled at him through long, veiling lashes.

"But you are absurd, Joan. Other women—"

"I'm not other women. I am just myself."

HE HAD driven her back to her boarding house in his great car and she had sat close to him. Her hand had trailed lightly along the thick smoothness of the upholstery. Soon the car would be hers. She abandoned herself to dreams. It was almost as if he had guessed their purport, for he had said:

"When we're married you will have a car of your own. You may have a chauffeur if you don't want to drive."

She saw herself sitting in an expensive limousine behind a smartly uniformed back; she heard herself giving orders in a low careless voice. Life was going to be a gay and jubilant affair.

"Thank you, Brent. You're awfully good to me."

She had edged closer, pressing her shoulder against his and in the gleam of the street lights had met his eyes looking down into hers with dog-like devotion. It unnerved her a little; a shiver ran through her body.

"You'd better look where you're driving, Brent, or we'll have an accident."

"I can hardly believe it yet—that you love me."

Her breath caught sharply in her throat. She had never told him that she loved him, and with a wry smile she had resigned herself to the philosophical acceptance of his taking it for granted.

"You do love me, don't you, Joan?"

"Of course."

In the dark street before the door of The Business Girls' Club he had taken her in his arms. "Kiss me, Joan."

She had turned her beautiful mouth to his, had felt his lips passionately against her own.

"Tell me you are happy, darling."

"Terribly happy, Brent."

"And you don't regret—"

There had been something intensely pathetic in his ponderous insistence that had stirred her heart. Of her own accord she had snuggled closer to him.

"Why should I regret the best thing that has ever happened to me?" she whispered.

"I'll make you happy, Joan. Trust me."

"Let me go now, Brent. Someone may come along."

She had struggled in his arms and with an exquisite gentleness he had released her, pressing his lips on the soft palms of her hands before he let her go.

"I'll call for you tomorrow. We'll dine together. Won't you change your mind about that money? Go out and buy yourself things in the morning — a new dress to wear at dinner.

"No, Brent, I'll stick to my old rags."

Her firmness had baffled him. "Have it your own way," he had said with a smile. "Good night, sweetheart."

His hand had clung to hers as she stood for a last moment beside the car.

"Good night, Brent. Until tomorrow."

WITH LIGHT, excited steps she had run up the darkened stairs to her room and had looked at the radiant reflection of her face in the glass. Impossible to believe that she could ever look so beautiful. Her flaming cheeks, the brilliant light in her eyes made her seem older—less of a girl, as if in one evening her beauty had matured. There had been a certain precision in her attitude, a definite self-assurance about the lines of her slim figure. She had looked as women look when life has treated them kindly. Sleep had come easily, her mind had drifted happily into delirious dreams, but she had wakened early to the depressing sound of rain beating pitilessly against her window.

Joan had drawn the bed clothes more tightly about herself, had buried her head more deeply in the pillow so as to deaden the merciless sound. Slowly the room had grown lighter revealing the garishness of her pitiful attempts at beauty. There had been a time when the arrangement of her room had caused her pride. It had seemed to convey a subtle suggestion of her own personality but she saw it now in all its tawdriness. Those other women whose photographs were ranged on the wall had, like herself, tried to bring a meretricious brightness into their lives. How most of them would jump at the chance that fate had flung so benevolently at her feet! She, too, had jumped at it.

Bathing and dressing had consumed an hour, and then breakfast in the forlorn dining room with its crowd of girls, bolting their food so as to be in time at their offices. Some of them had looked at her pityingly, thinking she was out of a job. They did not know—they did not know. Almost unconsciously she slipped her ring around so that only the platinum circle was revealed. She found herself envying them their alertness, their gaiety and assurance; the way they adjusted their hats as they rushed out of the room. Not very long ago she had been one of them, had shared their jokes and their grumblings.

Breakfast over, she trailed miserably to her room. She had been a fool not to take the money Brent had offered. What a morning she could have had! Gay luxurious shops, lovely silks soft and exquisite to the touch, shoes delicately molded to her feet, frocks—a perfect galaxy of frocks, hats drawn closely down over the eyes or flaunting and wide brimmed. They were hers for the asking, and with them the respectful courtesy their purchase would evoke.

Her unmade bed with its single dingy blanket filled her with a poignant horror. Orange . . . why had she chosen orange for her room? She felt herself treading on dangerous borders, stood on tiptoe staring through the narrow window on the rain-swept street. The hours that stretched before her looked weary and interminable. Somewhere in that great hive of spreading buildings was Brent waiting for her call. Brent who loved her and would give her everything she wanted. But for the first time in her life Joan had been conscious of a baffling conflict of desires.

HER DOOR was flung open—a mumbled expostulation from the maid who stood there duster in hand, her pale, stupid eyes staring at Joan malevolently since she had expected her to be out and resented the fact that she was prevented from getting on with her work. Joan had snatched at a dilapidated raincoat and pulled a small hat over her hair, had glanced for a moment at her haggard face and wondered bitterly at the glowing beauty of last night's reflection.

She went out and trudged the familiar streets, turning around corners, crossing thoroughfares perilous with their speeding traffic. What did she want? Youth to youth! The words ran clamorously through her brain. She paused for a moment speculatively between two swiftly approaching cars, heard vaguely the sound of raucous horns and felt herself grabbed and drawn roughly aside to safety. Her bewildered eyes looked up into her rescuer's irritated face.

"What's the matter with you? Can't you—" he stopped suddenly and his face brightened. "Why, Joan! Of all people!"

"Lonnie!" she cried. "After all these years . . . I can hardly believe it."

He drew her gently away from the streaming crowds.

"And to think that I almost missed you," he said, increasing the pressure on her arm. "Gee, I'm glad I've found you, Joan."

Delightful memories of long forgotten moments, young bodies swaying to the rhythm of dance music none too good, eyes looking into eyes across a narrow table, long dreamy rides around the park. The garden of the people. They were of the people and had delighted in its beauty. Youth to youth!

"Well, what are you doing with yourself, Joan? Aren't you working?"

She flung back her head in a delicious gesture; a ripple of merriment flashed across her face.

"I'm out of a job," she said. "And you?" Delightful, familiar jargon that came so easily to her lips.

"I've been out of one for a month. I'm looking for another."

With a friendly, intimate glance she took in his appearance. His shabbiness matched her own. His cuffs where they showed under his sodden raincoat were frayed at the edges. His smile could not quite hide the careworn expression of his face.

"What are you going to do?" he said.

For the moment she forgot the comforting security of her future.

"Look for another job, I guess," she answered gaily.

"They're damn' hard to find." A battered, wistful smile played around his lips. Then suddenly, "What are we standing out in the rain for, anyway? Let's go and get something to eat."

"At this time of the day? What an extravagance!"

"The hell with it. I haven't had any breakfast and I'm hungry. Let's go."

HE DREW her forward and she followed unresistingly, thrilling to the pressure of his hand on her arm. The rain had brought a shining glow of color to her cheeks, it hung on her eyelashes, giving an impression of laughter rioting through tears.

"Where shall we go?"

"What's the difference?" he laughed. "One place is just as good as another."

Joyous carelessness of youth drawing them together. He had her seated at a table, a dubious waitress eyeing their streaming clothes before Joan recovered her breath.

"Let me have your coat, Joan. It's soaked."

She stood up obediently as he slipped the coat from her shoulders. Once again the casual easy touch of his hands made her conscious of her own eager vitality. They sat opposite each other, debating seriously enough what they should order. Instinctively Joan knew that probably the light meal would be lunch for him as well.

"Joan, do you remember . . ." he began and almost simultaneously they burst into a flood of mutual reminiscence. Laughter hung around them, their voices rose and fell in friendly cadence. They had danced together and made love, they had breasted lightly the drifting wave of time. Emotion had swirled them into its depths and they had scrambled back with smiling faces to the workaday surface of life. Together they had played the game that all young things play, and were all the better for their moments of stolen joy. Their eyes were frank and candid. They had nothing to fear from their previous knowledge of each other.

"You've had a pretty tough time of it, haven't you?" Joan said presently.

"Pretty rotten, but I think it'll soon be over." Everlasting and incurable optimism. "Better times are coming."

"They always do," she laughed.

"How long have you been out of work?"

"Only a week."

"What happened?"

A sudden gravity wiped the brightness from her face. "I quit of my own accord."

He eyed her sharply, his quick mind probing. "Why? Wasn't the job good enough?"

"No, it was something else." She pulled off her glove exposing the scintillating diamond of her ring in all its glory. He stared at it dazzled, and then his lips set grimly.

"What does that mean?" he asked.

She caught his peering, inquiring gaze, felt for a moment as if the room were spinning around her and her eyes swam at him through a mist of tears.

"It's a way out," she said, and would have bitten back the words as soon as they were spoken.

"What do you mean?" The question was flung at her.

"It's all right, Lonnie," she said with a quivering smile. "I'm going to be married."

HIS FACE darkened. It struck he. oddly that he had grown bigger and sterner, that he was taking on himself a right that was not his. She was conscious of a sudden isolation, a definite severing of old bonds. Already she belonged to another world. She fidgeted desperately with her ring, then with a swift movement pressed its rough edge against her cheek.

He went on harshly: "Then why the story about being out of a job and looking for another one?"

Impossible to tell him that for the moment she had forgotten; that, blinded by familiar associations, she had felt herself one with him, that all thought of her coming marriage had drifted from her mind.

"You said that it was a way out. Do you mean that you are marrying him for his money?"

Joan shivered. She thought of Brent, ponderous and kind, felt again the warm protection of his arms, envisaged the security that he stood for, the future solid and impregnable, the things she loved poured in lavish profusion at her feet. She heard his voice telling her that she was beautiful. Loyalty sharpened her perceptions. She glanced across at Lonnie. His eyes had drifted from her; he was half-smiling at a pretty, simpering girl at another table. A slow dawning consciousness spread through her and brought back the light to her eyes. Its was not only money that she wanted from Brent. Her lips curved proudly. She had the feeling of a woman suddenly come into her kingdom.

"You are quite wrong," she said in a low, husky voice. "I'm marrying him because I love him."

HUNT

BY FRAZIER HUNT

Frazier Hunt, in Soviet Russia during his tour of Europe for NEA Service, made a first-hand study of the U. S. S. R.'s glittering new industrial machine. This is another of this famous correspondent's uncensored dispatches.

BY FRAZIER HUNT

(Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

MOSCOW (via London), Jan. 3—We moved slowly down the aisle between the rows of whirling machines and automatic drills and giant hammers. They seemed as alive and responsive as the men and women who operated them.

We stopped in front of an upright lathe and talked with a wide-eyed, smiling girl of 21 who, without the slightest evidence of hurry or fuss, was running this particular machine. Her name was Klavdia Kruglooshina, and she was the pride and joy of the whole factory.

She was a Stakhanovite — a speed-up artist. She had a record of 400 per cent over her "norm". That means she was turning out four times the amount of work that was scheduled as her normal output.

I am not quite sure whether Henry Ford or Charles Kettering or Walter Chrysler would have broken down and cried or have laughed themselves to death if they had been in my place. Now I know nothing about machine efficiency, but I skeptically asked my interpreter to repeat what he had told me about this 400 per cent business. He patiently explained again how this girl was making 800 roubles a month instead of her usual 200, because she was doing four times as much work.

Trick Gets Increase

I SHOOK my head. I still could not believe it. I had seen at work the triple-alliance in American motor factories — the belt, conveyor and assembly line — and I knew what speed-up really was. This had nothing to do with the real thing. This girl could chat and calmly run her machine—and even smoke a cigaret if she chose. Yet she was doing four times her schedule. Slowly it dawned on me that the basic normal production was fantastically small.

I asked her how she had been able to gain this big increase. Through my interpreter she explained that she and the man who ran this machine in the shift following hers, had worked out a system whereby all materials would be brought to them and the finished products carried away. Previously they had had to do all this themselves.

I again shook my head. It still looked odd — and it wasn't until I had completed my tour of the whole lathe-making factory that I saw the light. It was simply that all Russian industry had been geared so low on account of inexperienced labor and amateur foremen that even a 400 per cent increase in individual production was still far below what an American factory would consider passable.

Feminine Spending

THE girl continued running her lathe while we talked. She said she lived with her parents and three brothers and sisters in a two-room apartment, but that now she would have a room of her own.

I suggested that she must be going to get married. She smiled frankly and answered. "Why should I? I want to study and become an engineer. I don't want to get married."

When I asked her what she did with her money — 160 American dollars in the new rouble valuation effective the first of the year —she obviously thought it was a very silly question. "Why, I do what I want with it, of course. I go to the theatre and the movies and buy nice clothes. I do just what I like."

Another Prize Worker

ON a wall across the big noisy room I saw an eight foot portrait of a workman. "That's Boris Mishke," my guide proudly explained. "He's the first Stakhanovite we had in the factory."

We strolled over towards where the real Boris was working. He was putting the finishing touches on a machine-part and he smiled a welcome. He told us he made five times his "norm" — around 1200 roubles or $240 a month. He was married and lived with his wife and baby in one room. He grinned when I asked him what he did with his big pay.

"I dress up like a rich man," he answered. "And I buy what I want to drink."

He wasn't working any harder than the prize girl exhibit. Yet he had the shop record for a 500 per cent increase. By any modern machine comparisons he was still grossly inefficient. But he had a job every work day of the year—that is five out of every six days, with Sundays washed up. After

It's Pain To Marlene Dietrich, But She Airs Opinions; Not So Willing Interview Subject But You Can Get Views

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Miss Marlene Dietrich was receiving the press.

Not without some faint protest had Miss Dietrich consented to be interviewed. As she pointed out, there really wasn't anything that she especially cared to talk about.

In that respect, Miss Dietrich was only a couple of jumps behind your correspondent, who could think of no reason why he should interview Miss Dietrich. There are, of course, a number of subjects on which statements by the actress would be newsworthy, but these happen to be the subjects on which she will not comment at all.

Obviously, though, this was an opportunity not to be cast away lightly. So I went to see Miss Dietrich in her dressing room, a modern dressing room in ivory and yellow leather furniture and interesting pictures here and there.

She wore black and white, and a black hat above a white face. She said, "'Allo," and then sat on the couch, curling long silken legs under her.

Warming Up

I said in a manner supposed to be jovial, "I hope that by this time you haven't run out of answers."

"Ah," responded Miss Dietrich non-committally.

"In this picture you've finished, you have more comedy than you have played before?"

"In this country, yes."

"Do you like to play comedy in this country? Do you want more in your future pictures?"

"It is easier. If the lines are good, it is easier."

"Some people don't find comedy easy."

Hard To Please

"All that is difficult is making a distinguished picture from undistinguished lines, undistinguished story, and with undistinguished support."

"Is 'Desire,' the picture you have just finished, your favorite?"

"Not quite. I liked 'Blue Angel.' And 'Morocco.'"

"How about 'Invitation to Happiness,' your next?"

"The title must be changed."

"Do you read a lot of scripts in choosing your pictures?"

"There are no good stories to keep me reading. This contract I signed in February. Since then I have read only 'Desire' and 'Invitation to Happiness' and 'Peter Ibbetson.' I refused 'Peter Ibbetson'."

Still Patient

The clock ticked. Miss Dietrich maintained her attitude of patient but unhappy composure. Through diligent questioning I discovered that she doesn't believe color pictures will improve the movies. Thinks it's an illusory art and should remain so, not striving for the stage's realism.

Miss Dietrich is not excited over the prospect of three-dimensional projection. Miss Dietrich is not excited over anything.

She uncurled her legs, got a cigaret, and sat down again. That gave me an idea. I said, "Isn't it rather a pity that people don't see your legs any more? Have you thought about maintaining their prestige?"

Miss Dietrich smiled. "I would show my legs if a script called for legs."

Trousers? No!

"How about trousers? You know you're given credit, or are blamed, for the trousers-for-women fad."

"Women should not wear trousers. Very few women can wear trousers."

"Don't you?"

"Oh, yes."

Tick, Tock

The clock ticked. I said: "That's a nice poster." It was a stark, modern head of Miss Dietrich, mostly in red and green.

She was pleased. She said, "Yes. Yes, I wanted it used in the advertising. But they would use it only in Europe. Here they have pictures like the circus."

I asked why she disliked interviews. She said it was because interviewers always were trying to make her say things that would conform to the things they previously had decided to write.

And besides, she added, there was nothing that she really wanted to say.

TODAY'S JOURNAL EDITORIAL

MONEY INTO BUSINESS

One of the reasons retail trade has been improving in the last couple of years seems to be the existence of the Civilian Conservation Corps. Robert Fechner, CCC director, reveals that boys in the CCC camps have sent approximately $240,000,000 to the folks back home.

It is probably safe to say that all but a few dollars of this money was spent just about as soon as it was received. For two years this steady stream of buying power has been flowing into retail markets. Not only has it saved many families from want, but it has also, unquestionably, acted as a powerful stimulant for retail trade as a whole.

To be sure, even so big a sum as $240,000,000 is not large in comparison with the country's trade as a whole, especially when it is spread over two years. But it has helped; and taken with the amount of useful work the CCC has performed, it helps persuade one that this forest army has been an exceedingly worthwhile venture.

Dutcher's News And Views OF WASHINGTON

Dutcher

(Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Your correspondent has been out among the ladies and thus has picked up certain items which could hardly have come to him had he been playing around poolrooms and other haunts of the male.

One of the most exciting of these bits of news is the fact that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt can find her way around her own kitchen.

Some of the girls who attend Mrs. Roosevelt's press conferences give their sworn word that she showed them through the new White House kitchen and demonstrated an astonishing familiarity with all gadgets, fixtures, and employes.

There are no end of cupboards and closets in the new presidential kitchens and the First Lady could tell just what each was used for, without peeking in to see.

Nor did she mind showing whole shelves of canned vegetables to a group of young women who had automatically supposed all such stuff in the White House would be bought fresh.

Incidentally, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke to all the servants and all the servants spoke to Mrs. Roosevelt in a way which showed very plainly that they had met one another before.

A Takeoff On First Lady

Another thing which gents were not allowed in on, but concerning which your correspondent has certain information, was the Gridiron Widows' party at the White House, given for newspaperwomen.

Some of the girls called it the "Flatiron Dinner" just for fun, but they all had a good time when Mrs. Jay Hayden impersonated Mrs. Roosevelt, voice and all. When a lady acting as stooge asked her, "What does Your Majesty think of the latest fashions for women?" Mrs. Hayden grabbed a microphone and said:

"Whether the beret should be worn on formal occasions is a matter of taste. I hope that during the coming summer each little family will get into its motor and inspect the great natural beauties of our land.

"Then when the winter comes you can sit happily by your own fireside and remember the pleasant time you had among the birds and the flowers and the bees. And, besides, the peace of the world lies in women's hands.

Some More Of The Same

"On the picnic we had cold chicken salad, pineapple, and cheese. But the children had hard-boiled eggs. I sometimes think there is better character and more kindness among people in the high income tax scale than there is among people in the low income tax scale.

"On Thursday I am riding a bicycle down to Windsor for breakfast. And on Saturday morning I have an engagement with the Lord Mayor of Dover to swim the Channel to Calais for lunch.

"The World Court must have the support of its friends. In a few minutes this interview will be terminated, as I have an engagement to open a gold mine on the air. I shall proceed immediately thereafter to pilot the China Clipper."

One is assured that Mrs. F. D. laughed very heartily at this takeoff on her press conferences.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth feels the mystery behind her father's sudden trip to his Asteria fish canneries, but is not able to penetrate it. She is further disturbed when here fiance, Rob Crocker, insults a Finnish boy who rescues her from the river, and objects to her talking to Tecla Sorki, her old nurse. At the Asteria hotel Anne's mother asks whether Rob thanked John Neuman, her rescuer.

• • •

Chapter Four
HINT FROM MOTHER

"No, mother, he didn't," admitted Anne. "He insisted Neuman merely made a gesture to put Dad under obligation to him. What do you think?"

"I could be arrested for what I think . . . of Rob," Mrs. Farnsworth confessed, laughing. "I don't believe John Neuman had time to identify our boat or you. He saw the need for action and acted; I understand he's like that."

"Well, Rob was jealous, mother." Anne hastened to defend her fiance. "He seemed to object to Neuman's putting his arms about me. I suppose I should be proud that he thinks that much of me, shouldn't I?"

"That's for you to decide," Mrs. Farnsworth evaded. "Well . . . I suppose we should dress for dinner."

"Mother, you're looking forward to this family dinner about as much as I am," accused Anne. "Rob says the Parleys are going to be there."

"They would be," murmured the woman, with her whimsical laugh. "There are times when I rejoice that my relatives are as distant in kin as they are in geography. As much as I love Luke, the two his brother and sister married are all the in-laws I can stand in one lifetime. Not that I'd let him know," she hastened to say. "Lee is still his funny little brother and Mabel, in spite of her girth, a little sister to be cared for."

"I wonder why Rob has never taken me to see his mother and father," Anne mused. "They don't live so far away; live on a farm in the southern part of the state, he says. I'd like to know them; maybe I'd understand him better."

"Daughter," Mrs. Farnsworth arose and came over to Anne, "what do you mean by that? Do you feel you don't know Rob well enough to go on with your marriage?"

It seemed to Anne that her mother's voice was tinged with hope. "No, not that," she hastened to say, "only I believe that, knowing a person's parents and childhood, you can tell better how they will react to certain trials. I never know how Rob will act in a crisis, like today, for instance."

"Anne," Mrs. Farnsworth leaned over her daughter, dark eyes troubled, "Why not postpone your marriage to Rob until next winter? Will you do that, dear?"

Anne studied her mother in consternation. Put off her wedding with the bridesmaids chosen, the new home they would occupy nearly completed?

"Mother, why do you ask?"

"Oh," Mrs. Farnsworth's mood seemed to change, "just the desire of a silly old hen with a lope duckling," she explained. "I do want you to be as happy as Dad and I have been, and if you feel any uncertainty at all, I want you to know we wouldn't mind making plausible excuses for you."

Anne laughed in sheer relief. "Don't worry, I'm not uncertain."

"Then we'd better dress. I had Yvonne pack that new coral velvet. Charlotte is piqued if we don't dress for her dinners and jealous if we do, so we might as well give her something to be jealous about."

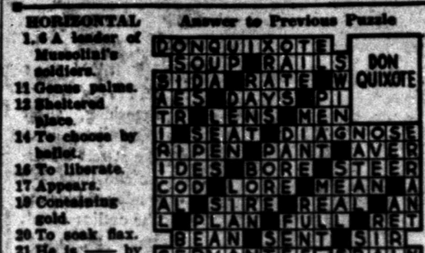

Anne came flushed and rosy from her bath to find Mrs. Farnsworth had gone to the other room. Methodically the girl brushed her long golden brown hair, plaited it, then after slipping into the coral velvet, bound the braids about her head.

She studied her image in the mirror, impersonally. In spite of what her mother had said, she wasn't pretty. Her eyes were a nice rich brown, but they were set too far apart and her brows were too black

PROJECTS ARE CONSIDERED

RESETTLEMENT LEADER SAYS 17 PROJECTS UNDER STUDY

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Jan. 3—D. P. Trent, Rural Resettlement administration director of Texas and Oklahoma, said Thursday resettlement projects were under consideration in the two states.

Nine of the projects are in Texas and eight in Oklahoma. Trent said funds had been appropriated to carry out some of the projects, that land for a number of them is under option and that work orders await Washington approval of final plans and estimates.

To Grade Families

The regional director spoke before county representatives of the Resettlement administration and the Extension Service from northern Texas and southern Oklahoma.

"Noting the trend toward tenancy and ownership of unproductive land, we aim to aid and guide families to better farms," Trent said. "Ten thousand families in Oklahoma alone, in the past five years, resettled of necessity on land that will never yield an adequate living. They are building a greater and more stubborn relief problem for the future unless we help them."

To Choose Best Clients

Trent said the best of the 38,000 "rehabilitation clients" in the two states would be chosen for land ownership under the program.

He said that in the last two months farm and home plans were approved for 5,199 farm families in Texas. These plans called for loans of $1,707,000 to be advanced throughout the year as needed. The average loan authorized for the one year period was $325.

Trent pointed out that under revised regulations, loans must be based on farm and home management plans approved by the county advisory committee as well as resettlement administration officials. Plans require home production of vegetables and fruits, dairy products, eggs and poultry, meats and fuel.

U. S. DEFICIT

$32,232,000 had been forecast.

Of the half-year outlays $1,074,807,226 was attributed to "recovery" and relief, the remainder to general governmental operating costs.

The deficit was more than half the amount estimated for the full year. But the annual figures included $651,000,000 for the sinking fund. On Dec. 31, $338,224,800—more than half—had been paid.

Current receipts are running slightly ahead of the $1,845,000,000 reported during the same period last year, despite a lagging of an estimated $200,000,000 in farm processing taxes. Income taxes brought in $654,814,000 through December 31 to run $124,000,000 ahead of last year. Miscellaneous internal revenue amounted to $274,000,000, or $120,000,000 ahead of last year.

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 3 lower to 1 higher with a moderate evening-up trade. Jan 11.7; Mch 11.43; May 11.20; Jly 11.01; Oct 10.65; Dec 10.66

Trading continued quiet after the call but the market held fairly steady. There was some buying of old crop positions and selling in Oct. There were no sales of Jan. on the opening call but later there was a sale at 11.77, or 2 points net lower. Houses with Liverpool and Japanese connections were among the early buyers. Liverpool cables reported a dull market.

Trading continued quiet later. Prices eased slightly under some scattering liquidation with Jan. selling off to 11.33, or 6 points net lower while other months were net unchanged to 3 points net lower at midday with March selling around 11.43 and Oct. at 10.84.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3. (AP) — Cotton was a few points lower at the first call on the market here today, largely the result of professional selling which always crops out at the reconvening of congress.

Trading was comparatively active during the early dealings and a point-to-point decline met considerable price fixing and buying by the trade.

The activity centered in March, May and July and these positions were off on an average of 2 points in the first trading.

March started the day at 11.42, May at 11.17 and July at 10.96.

A small amount of buying developed in January during the morning and this position advanced to 11.72. Other months held net unchanged or a point or so lower with March at 11.42, May at 11.18, July at 10.95 and Oct. at 10.62.

Both buying and selling dried up around the noon hour and the market was back in its narrow trading range.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (AP) — Sharp setbacks of wheat quotations at Liverpool led to moderate early downturns of Chicago wheat values today.

Opening 1-4 to 3-4 lower, May 1.01 3-4 to 1.02, Chicago wheat futures held near then to these limits. Corn started 1-4 off to 1-8 up, May 61 1-4 to 3-8, and for the time being altered little.

FATAL ACCIDENT

plaining that his machine struck Barnett as he was walking along the highway. Barnett resided on a farm two miles west of O'Donnell, and had lived there since 1931.

Passed Another Vehicle

Mr. Morris said, and reports of investigating officers apparently qualified his statement, that he was driving south and that when he passed another vehicle he struck Mr. Barnett only an instant after seeing him. Mr. Barnett was walking almost in the center of the road, he said.

F. E. Redwine, deputy sheriff, Homer Harrison, city marshal, Mr. Swan, and C. R. Cain, county attorney, agreed evidence tended to show the accident was unavoidable.

Mr. Barnett's automobile had gone dead, presumably, within a half mile of a service station. He was walking north toward the machine, which was several hundred yards away, when he was struck.

It was understood that lights from an approaching machine might have been a contributory cause of the mishap.

Mr. Barnett suffered a crushed head, and both arms and legs were broken. A physician said death must have been almost instant.

Mr. Barnett's widow and 4 children survive.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—Irregularly higher tendencies prevailed in today's rather active stock market.

With congress convening and the president delivering his annual message to a joint session tonight, the financial sector watched Washington closely but without any particular apprehension.

Share gainers of fractions to 2 or more points included Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Western Union, Bethlehem, General Motors, American Sugar, Electric Auto-Lite, Budd Mfg., Standard Oil of New Jersey, Socony, Case, International Harvester, Deere, Loew's American Radiator, Air Reduction, American Seating and Owens-Illinois. Off as much were U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Anaconda, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

BIRTHS GREATER THAN DEATHS IN LUBBOCK IN '35

A decline in the number of births and deaths recorded in Lubbock and Lubbock county is noted in a comparison of vital statistics records of 1935 with the two previous years.

Births for 1935 again outnumbered deaths, although figures for the county dropped for the first time during the three-year period below a total of twice as many in comparison with the number of deaths.

In the city of Lubbock, 1935 totals were: Births, 571; deaths, 360. Totals for 1934 were: Births, 690; deaths, 411; for 1933, births, 563; deaths, 370.

Including the above figures and totals for the county, with exception of totals for the city of Slaton, not available from records here, the following chart indicates records for the period:

Year	Births	Deaths	X
1933	881	414	2.10
1934	980	461	2.13
1935	752	404	1.86

X—Number births for each death.

message went to the printers after a final polishing. Then a relaxation period was scheduled, before the time to don his cutaway and stripped trousers to go to the capitol.

The moontime scene there contrasted with convening of previous congresses. While many visitors were on hand, mostly feminine, the usual crowding was absent. Slushy going underfoot accounted for this in part, but the insistent demand for tickets to hear the president at 9 p. m. showed where popular interest lay.

Republicans Frothy

Some Republicans still frothed over the evening session. To their terming it "politics" to get a big radio audience, Democrats replied the public had a right to have the president talk at a time when most could hear.

Building Campaign Suggested By Texan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—A government-aided private building campaign to construct 1,000,000 new homes annually was proposed today by Rep. Maury Maverick (D-Tex) as a substitute for what he termed the "inadequate Federal Housing administration."

He asserted that 3,000,000 men could be given employment annually and declared the new homes, using pre-fabricated materials in part, could be erected for between $1,000 and $1,500.

He said England had found private financing of this type of new construction "very successful" and proposed that this government create savings institutions to handle private, small loans. These banks, he said, should charge "4 1-2 per cent maximum net," as compared with the FHA's 6 per cent. "The cost of the homes," Maverick said, "should range from $3,000 down and owners could pay from $6 to $10 a month while making the purchases."

GOAL IS SET FOR DINNER

JACKSON DAY DINNER HERE IS PLANNED AS LARGE EVENT

Attempts to secure as large attendance as possible from 10 counties, including Lubbock, for the Jackson day dinner here the night of Jan. 8 were discussed at two committee meetings Thursday afternoon.

A goal of at least 400 was set, with Lubbock reservations limited to 300, committee chairmen announced following the meetings.

Trips Are Slated

A committee working under direction of George S. Berry met at 4 o'clock. Mr. Berry said the group, which is in charge of attendance in the nine counties, other than Lubbock, will make trips to those sections. To Crosby and Dickens will go Charles Whitacre, J. A. Raley, and Daniel A. Blair. Amos Howard, A. C. Jackson, and K. L. Scudder of Slaton will go to Lynn and Garza counties. Judge Homer L. Pharr, Burton S. Burks, and William H. Evans to part of Hockley and to Cochran county. Thomas H. Carter, Wilburn Hudson and George S. Berry to part of Hockley and to Terry and Gaines counties.

L. C. Ellis, vice chairman of the county Democratic executive committee, attended the meeting.

Everyone Is Invited

Every man and his wife of the entire area is invited, particularly farmers and business men, it was announced.

The other committee, charged with attendance from Lubbock, was headed by W. D. Benson, jr., and met one hour later.

Tickets will go on sale this morning, Mr. Benson said, and the campaign will be terminated at 8 o'clock Saturday night. The banquet will begin at 7:30 o'clock, in ballroom of the Hilton. Tickets will cost $1, despite the national committee's request that $5 be charged. Part of the proceeds will be diverted to use of that committee. Prominent Democrats of Texas will be on the program, announcement of their names to be made soon.

Tickets may be bought from Ed D. Allen, Hugh Anderson, Ben F. Condray, jr., Thomas H. Carter, Hurley Carpenter, Joseph R. Griggs, Mrs. Clyde F. Elkins, Glen Hess, Wyatt L. Hester, Mrs. W. A. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Langston, Jess C. Levens, Mrs. Clark M. Mullican, Dan Powers, Miss Della Wilkinson, Mrs. Frank Winn, H. D. Woods, H. C. Pender, A. V. Weaver, jr., and W. D. Benson, who will be at 212 Conley building.

Mauna Loa Kicks Up A Fuss

Mauna Loa, famous Hawaiian volcano, kicked up quite a fuss recently after two years of inactivity. This picture, taken from an airplane at an altitude of 12,500 feet, shows the vast clouds of gas and smoke billowing from the crest of the peak. Lava poured down its slopes for miles. H. E. LOGAN ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR JUSTICE OF PEACE, PRECINCT 1

In a statement in which he said he fully recognized the responsibility of the office and declared he felt his training and experience qualified him for the place, H. E. Logan Thursday formally announced he would be a candidate for justice of the peace in precinct 1, place 1.

"To those who do not know me, I am a native of Arkansas, am married and have a family, and have lived in Lubbock 12 years," he says. "At the outbreak of the World war, I left the university and enlisted as a private in the army, and served throughout the war, having been detailed as a commissioned instructor in the Central Officers Training school.

Law School Graduate

"I am a graduate of the Arkansas Law school and licensed to practice law by the supreme court of that state.

"My several-years office and business experience, coupled with my training along legal lines, I believe qualifies me for the detail work required in that office.

"If elected I shall perform the duties of the office, as laid down by the laws of Texas, to the best of my ability.

"Your vote and influence will be appreciated."

RUSSIA

his seven-hour day he studied in the factory school to become an engineer.

Depression Dulls Admiration

SOVIET Russia still looks up to America's industrial success, but they do not rate it nearl so high as they did before the depression threw twelve to fourteen million people into the streets.

Soviet Russia still plans some day to equal our output records, but she proposes alwas to control her production to meet her demands — and above all else to guard against periods of unemployment. Her leaders are fully aware of the inertia and apathy of the Russian masses. They are determined to break through this lethargy and pull Russian industry up by its own bootstraps.

Back in 1932 Stalin shocked some of his good Marxian comrades by stating: "We must pay workmen according to their ability and not their needs." I was, of course, a violent reversal of one of the ancient Socialist principles.

Enthusiasm was to be exchanged for knowledge. The new heroes were to be the men and women who could build the machines and then make them run. The doers were to take the places of the dreamers.

Again the master propagandists were called in. A national speed-up must be dramatized and sold to Russia's millions. So it was that some three months ago word went out to factory and mine superintendents and foremen to get busy. In one of the great coal mines a mine foreman, in conjunction with a pneumatic pick hammer operator, figured out a scheme whereby the miner would use his pneumatic tool without interruption, and without stopping to shore-up tahe mine chamber as he dug out the coal. It would, as well, be loaded for him, and he would spend all his six hours knocking down coal. It was tried out, and of course the miner, with his team, jumped his production several times the "norm". Other crews followed and soon the pneumatic tool operators, unhampered by the necessity to do other work, had stepped up their production enormousl.

Transformation Of Spirit

THE first miner's name was Stalkanov, and the highly skilled propaganda experts grabbed his name and titled the whole speed-up as "the Stakhanov Movement."

Soon it spread to factories and shops of every kind. Workers were given prizes of portable gramophones, radios, bicycles and even pianos. They had their pay trebled and quadrupled, and had fame and honor heaped on them. And besides all this, many of them had the deep satisfaction of creative accomplishment. They were doing something for the factory they owned. They were adding to their land.

It is one of the secret sources of the growing success of this strange people and civilization. They have replaced the "I" for "we" — the "mine" for "ours."

Calls on Consumers to Help Own Fight

TAKING up the cudgel for the consumer, Donald E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel for the A.A.A. has sounded a call to county councils and other groups to join with him in the fight for a fairer price deal for the nation's army of buyers.

NEW OFFICERS OF CLUB INSTALLED

Ray C. Mowery became president of the Lubbock Kiwanis club at an annual ladies night meeting in Lubbock hotel Thursday night. Dr. Allen T. Stewart, outgoing president, pinned the president's badge on the next executive.

Dr. O. W. English, program chairman the past year, was master of ceremonies. Rev. W. R. Vivrett led singing and also gave the invocation. After the meal the program was given.

Miss Lillian Heard gave a reading and the Arkansas Hillbillies, four in number, presented an entertainment series. Four Amarillo Kiwanians were present and Erwin Ochsner, outgoing president there, spoke briefly.

Dr. Fred W. Standefer, a former president, gave his "personal observations." Kenneth E. Oberholtzer, superintendent of schools and a guest, spoke briefly and the outgoing president reported on his administration.

Dr. Stewart said there were 23 members with perfect attendance records for 1935, fifteen with perfect two year attendance records, fifteen with three year records, nine with four year records and one with five. O. J. Sexton, a former Plainview member, has a record of nearly seven years.

Cash receipts for the year were $3,934.51; expenditures, $3,775.04, leaving a balance of $159.47. Kiwanis Knot Hole gang expenditures amounted to $305.

People regarded the telephone as a curiosity when it was first invented. Bell educated them to use it by giving a series of lectures and entertainments by telephone.

for such pale brown hair.

Fortunately she had perfect teeth, for her mouth was generously proportioned. She leaned forward, surveyed the creamy tone of her skin, it wouldn't be long before it was rosy tan, two or three days in the open . . . Neuman was bronzed, and his eyes were sea blue, no, sailor blue.

A blast of wind struck the building and rattled the windows, then wailed off around the eaves. The storm was coming in, flaying the panes with long streaks of rain.

Anne walked to the windows and looked out. The river was smothered in darkness. Lights on the wharves flickered blue, and the nearby electric signs smouldered in red and unearthly greens.

"Makes me think of one of Tecla's stories," she mused, "one of those weird nights that blow in on seacoast towns. Yes?" she spoke aloud, as someone rattled the door knob.

"Oh, Dad, hello," she greeted, opening the door, "and Tecla, come in."

"Mother dressed?" asked Farnsworth, abruptly.

"Yes, Luke." Mrs. Farnsworth, in a dress as silver as her hair, came from the inner room. "What's wrong, dear?" she asked, apprehensively.

"Tecla wants to talk to us," he answered. "Anne, Rob is due in the lobby in a few moments. Go down and meet him and go on to Lee's with him. And, daughter, it won't be necessary to mention to him, or the others, that Tecla is here with us, will it?"

"No, Dad," she faltered, "not if you don't want it known."

"Good girl, run along now. I wish to goodness we didn't have to stop for that meal but I suppose Charlotte would have a fit if we didn't. . . ." The closed door cut off the explanation which must have followed these words.

Anne threw a long fur cape over her shoulders, discovered a florist's box on the night stand, paused to fasten a spray of gardenias along the lower line of her frock's square neck and then went into the hall.

More mystery from which both she and Rob were excluded, and in which Tecla Sorki, a comparative stranger, was included.

She stepped from the elevator, a regal young figure, chin up, no hint of trouble showing in her eyes, as she walked the few steps to meet Rob. She felt again a thrill of pride in his distinguished appearance.

"We're going on alone," she told him, after thanking him for the gardenias. "Why? Oh, I suppose Dad is having his usual wrangle with his tie. They'll call a cab, so we needn't wait."

Radio Broadcast Is Imitated By Pupils

Several Senior High school students enacted a radio broadcast in a novel assembly program sponsored by the yearbook staff Thursday afternoon to encourage purchase of 1936 yearbooks.

Harry Elliott announced the entertainers, who included Baxter Bardwell, representing Walter Winchell; Billy Baskin and his nine piece orchestra; Mildred Mitchell, tap dancer; June Hanger and Jack Norman, singers; Billy Buford as "Uncle Billy;" Jimmie Schoolar, the sound effects man.

It was announced through the microphone that the title of the Senior play which will be presented Feb. 28 will be "My China Doll," a musical comedy.
