

MAN STOPS A SQUAD CAR TO TELL OF CRIME

By United Press
NEW YORK, July 27.—Stanley Martin, Jr., 29, drove his automobile alongside a police radio car today, pointed to the body of Mrs. Florence Jackson, 37, in the seat beside him, and shouted, "She needs a doctor."

A physician pronounced Mrs. Jackson dead from strangulation. Then Martin, an unemployed automobile salesman, told his story.

He and Mrs. Jackson, married and the mother of two children, had been friendly six months. Martin and his wife were separated. Mrs. Jackson lived with her husband and her children.

Last night they had some drinks. Then they started driving. Martin stopped the car and they began to talk of their affair and the fact both were married. Mrs. Jackson took off the red leather belt from her dress and handed it to Martin.

"She asked me to kill her," he told police.

He looped the belt around her neck and pulled it taut. Police charged Martin with homicide.

Right Drinks Are Served Wrong Jury

By United Press
WAXAHACHIE, Texas.—A case of mistaken identity—concerning courts—brought a jury free soft drinks, the court a brief recess, a drug store fountain clerk a bit of advice and a merchant a sixty-five cent loss.

The district court grand jury ordered 13 soft drinks from a Waxahachie drug store.

Ray Clapp, a youth who isn't extensively versed in the judiciary, took the order.

At the Temple of Justice he got into the wrong room. It was district court—and the tribunal was in session.

Losing no time, Clapp hastened to the jury box and in a business-like manner began handing the drinks to members of the civil case jury.

He had one left, so he offered it to an attorney. "Son," the lawyer told the youth, "I'll tell you what you had better do. If I were you, I'd give that drink to the judge."

The boy turned to the judge and offered him the last drink.

Judge Tom Ball, aware that the lad was doing his best to give efficient service, smilingly told the youth of his mistake. He refused the 13th drink but recessed court until the refreshments had been quaffed.

Merchant Arthur Curry, owner of the drug store, came out on the losing end.

"Needless to say, those drinks were on the house," he said.

Grapefruit Shipped Shows An Increase

SAN ANTONIO.—Lower Rio Grande Valley fruit growers' emphasis this year on grapefruit was revealed this week in the Federal Market News Service's report of car loadings.

Valley grapefruit shipments totaled 13,069 carloads, more than three times the number of carload shipments last year, the report showed. This figure represented nearly a fourth of all fruit and vegetable shipments.

Texas grapefruit production this year was 9,231,000 boxes, compared with 2,762,000 for 1935-36.

John L. Lewis Has Control of League

WASHINGTON, July 27.—John L. Lewis, through the CIO, assumed control, today, of Labor's Non-Partisan League, in a move pointing to new political alignments and suggesting a break with the Roosevelt administration.

There were hints of a third party. Some said the first objective of the league may be expected in New York's mayoralty campaign.

It has been reported that Mayor Fiorello La Guardia might run for re-election as the candidate of the American Labor Party alone.

Tiny Plants Often Cause Water To Taste, Smell Bad

NEW YORK.—An unbelievably faint amount of some odorous substance in the air or in water can be detected by the human nose. Experiments have demonstrated that the presence of one twenty-five-millionth of a drop of mercaptan, a liquid with a pungent garlic odor, can be perceived in a whiff of inhaled air, reports the American Institute of Sanitation.

A very minute amount of an odorous substance can make the whole water supply of a city unpalatable. Virtually every city in the country is bothered at some time during the year with unpalatable tastes and odors caused by tiny plants in the water, only about one-thousandth of an inch in size. These plants, says the institute, throw off disagreeable odorous substances which quickly disfigure the water. Despite the prevalence of such odors in drinking water, comparatively little is known about their nature. The quantity of such odorous substances in a million gallons of water is so small that it baffles examination by the chemist. But such tastes and odors do not escape the human nose.

Although science has been able to learn little about the chemical composition of the substances that render public water supplies unpalatable, it has been able to combat them effectively. A remarkable substance, activated carbon, has been perfected which, like a magnet, absorbs such tastes and odors, making the water sparkling, sweet and palatable. Hundreds of cities throughout the country are now using activated carbon to keep the water supply potable and their taxpayers happy.

Contrary to popular thought, the sense of taste is inferior to the sense of smell, says the institute. If we could not smell the odorous odors, most of our food would be relatively tasteless. If you don't believe that, try eating a juicy steak with a clothespin over your nose.

Chairman Marvin Jones of Texas, who called the conference, said the prospects are "not too bright" for action this session.

Previously Chairman Ellison Smith of the Senate agriculture committee indicated there would be no farm bills in the upper house until next session.

"Of course, it all depends upon whether Congress stays here a long time," Jones said.

No land or fresh-water bacteria have yet been found which can live in the saline concentrated waters of the lake, they disclose.

UNDECLARED WAR RAGES IN NORTH CHINA

PEIPING, China, July 27.—Japan and China were in an undeclared state of war in North China tonight, with fighting in progress in scattered points between Peiping, the ancient capital, and Tientsin, toward the sea.

Scene reminding of the Boxer Rebellion occurred in Peiping as foreigners swarmed into their legations for refuge.

United States Marines were issued combat ammunition to protect American citizens.

French citizens were called to their legation. Sandbags were stacked along the streets of the quarter as they were in 1900 during the Boxer Rebellion, where foreigners were slaughtered and besieged before the American, Japanese, Russian, British and French forces relieved the city.

The Chinese ignored two Japanese ultimatums to withdraw their forces from the Peiping area, and word from Nanjing, the central capital, indicated China is ready to fight it out in the belief Japan intends to seize North China.

Japanese troops were pouring into Tangku, port of Tientsin, in transports from Japan, ready to meet China's defiance. The commander of the 29th Chinese army at Peiping was understood to have decided to withdraw to the capital the troops in the Nanyuan barracks, five miles south of the city. Japanese troops, after suffering a humiliating defeat at the city's southwest gates, attacked a Chinese regiment 15 miles east of Peiping and according to Japanese killed or wounded 400 or 500 troops.

Peiping was cut off from the coast by railroad, bus, telephone and telegraph.

Oversea Flay-Waving Is Not in Our Line

The mouthpiece of a nation in any foreign land is its envoy to that land. And when that envoy makes a slip of the tongue, then his nation is usually held responsible for the utterance and may have to suffer all the added constructions that prejudice, favorable or unfavorable, may allow.

Sometimes these slips are harmless enough to be good for a laugh all around—and possibly a red face for the envoy. The case of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was one such example. Five minutes after she took the oath of office as minister to Norway this spring, Mrs. Harriman inopportunely revealed that the United States and Norway were well along in negotiations for a reciprocal trade treaty.

Later, when the new minister arrived in Norway, she was unusually aloof in the presence of newspapermen, one of whom reported that "Mrs. Harriman seems to be strictly instructed not to give positive statements.

All very well, if it amounts to no more than that. But in London, a Fourth of July address by Ambassador Robert W. Bingham threatened to have more serious consequences.

He was quoted as saying that "despots have forced American and Britain to undertake rearmament, and having undertaken it, we must necessarily win the rearmament race." Also: "If dictatorships are better to prepare for war, democracies are better to finish wars." Of these statements, the U. S. State Department said it had no knowledge.

The immediate response was a flareup in a prominent German newspaper, which called the remarks "agitative" criticism of "other European peoples." Regardless of how much the truth may have hurt the editor of that German paper, there is little doubt that he was correct in adjudging in the ambassador's remarks as at least unnecessary.

For one thing, waving the nationalistic flag outside the privacy of the family circle just is not in the accepted American tradition. Even the bombastic stump speaker, who used to spellbind Independence Day picnickers at county seats the country over, was not so hard put for a topic that he had to delve into foreign relations.

Then, too, dealing with Norway obviously is quite different from dealing with any of the dictatorships. In these days of touchy feelings among the nations—and especially among two or three particular nations—the United States has a splendid opportunity to strengthen its reputation for cool-headedness. When these little "slips" occur, they make it all the harder for the nation to dodge the diplomatic squeezes which are bound to come in the future as general tension increases.

But most useless of all is any attempt by the United States to growl and show its teeth. Europe has war dogs who do it so much, much better.

No Floating Palaces for Them!

The fascination which water has for folks these summer afternoons causes perspiring mortals to go down to the sea in some queer-looking ships. At top, Barbara Chase and Anne Holmes of Augusta, Me., achieve solid comfort on their excursions by making a mattress support their outboard motor. Justice Gordon L. Stewart of Kalamazoo, Mich., sans shirt, in the lower photo, wouldn't trade his motorized raft for the fastest powerboat on the lake. The raft will do seven miles an hour.

Unique Ad Sells Two Pigs For a Dealer

By United Press
VAN, Texas.—A Van automobile dealer accepted three pigs on a debt recently. He advertised them in the local newspaper and sold them immediately.

His advertisement:
"For Sale — Three streamlined Poland China pigs, 1937 models. All have beautiful black finish, trimmed in white. Upholsteries slightly soiled. Smooth running with fair pickup. Fuel cost low."

Nurses Fail to Save An Injured Patient

FORT WORTH.—Nurses at St. Joseph's hospital here had no success in their first attempt to "save" a grasshopper with a broken leg that scrambled through a window at the hospital.

The grasshopper, "Tommy," was one of the horde that have infested Tarrant county farms recently. Many of his brothers have died of poison spread in farmers' fields or beneath the tires of automobiles as they sought to cross the highways.

Sympathetic nurses, however, were attracted by "Tommy's" broken leg and they undertook to save his life surgically. Splints were prepared from toothpicks. Then the "hopper" was laid upon a table and administered a small dose of ether. Tommy wriggled twice—then went to sleep.

He never woke up.

A CHANGE OF TEN PER CENT IN THE HEAT OF THE SUN WOULD BE SUFFICIENT TO DESTROY ALL LIFE UPON THE EARTH.

AS may be seen by the enormous sun spots, the head of the solar system is subject to mighty disturbances, but, fortunately for the inhabitants on our planet, it continues to exist in a most stable manner. Geologic history shows evidence that the sun has undergone little change in two billion years.

The early bird gets the worm . . . if he knows where to look!

Watch a robin on the lawn some sunshiny morning. A few hops, then a pause. A few more hops, and he listens again. Then, triumphant, he pulls out a fat, wriggling worm.

A silly bird, you would say, if he merely pecked here and there, hoping to strike it lucky.

Reading the advertisements is for you what cocking his head is for the robin. Advertisers tell you just where are the juiciest buys.

Cock your eye on the advertisements in this newspaper. They may save pecking on barren ground.

THE most exciting event of the day happened in the forenoon. Mrs. Fenwick sent me when I was out in the garden getting some flowers.

"Leave everything and go at once to Miss Pegler's cottage," she said, and she was all "fluttery" like she gets when she's very excited.

"What's happened?" I asked, for not having heard a word from Dick, I felt I must concern him. "I can't tell you," I'm afraid the old lady has some bad news for you.

As I hurried along the private path to her cottage a thousand questions rose in my mind...

Q. What creek in Hutchinson County was named for "Billy" Dixon?

A. Dixon Creek was named for him by Jim and Bob Cator, early English settlers of Hansford county, in recognition of the fact that Dixon built the first dugout there in 1874 and was the first white man to live in the county.

Q. Where is, or was, Meridia, Paeg?

A. Meridian Peak, now known as Johnson's Peak, is 18 miles west of Meridian, and about two miles from the town of Fredell. The name was changed to honor Peter Johnson, a resident of the section, who was killed by Indians in January, 1858, and whose young son, Peter, was captured, but afterward escaped and became a prominent citizen of Comanche county.

Q. Where did Coronado first come across villages of Caddo Indians?

A. In Palo Duro canyon and then lower down on Red river at a place called Cano, in what is now Childress or Hardeman counties, and again in the vicinity of the Spanish Fort settlement in northeast Montague county. These villages probably were abandoned about 1850.

Q. When and where did a group of Texans sign the first declaration of independence made in A. On Dec. 20, 1835, a group of 91 Texans met at Goliad and issued a declaration of independence, which was regarded as kidnaped as he was in desperate straits for money...

WALKING home my spirits felt lighter than they had for many a day. In spite of my grief for the old lady and her troubles, my heart was singing...

WIPING away her tears, Miss Pegler said, "You may as well know the truth... perhaps I should have told you before; but I'm fond of my nephew and I felt if you were married and he got a fresh start, things might have worked out all right."

"The trouble started when he was at college. He got in with a fast set... started gambling... my lawyer arranged the allowance from his father's estate and of course I gave him gifts from time to time... however, he met some crooks... counterfeiters... paid thirty dollars for a hundred dollars' worth of bogus money."

"Things went from bad to worse till he could not afford to buy any more of the counterfeit money, so the man made a deal with him and he was supposed to pay a certain percentage on every hundred dollars' worth of counterfeit money he disposed of. Unfortunately he kept on gambling and got behind in his payments... that was really why he left New York so gladly (though I had no suspicion of it at the time). I'm keeping nothing back from you."

"I think you're very brave, Miss Pegler," I said.

"Don't say that, my dear. But I must tell you the rest of this terrible story. Jigger, the man for whom Dick was working, had to take to cover and shortly after we arrived Dick ran across him here. After that he hounded him all the time... if only Dick had told me everything I would have helped him. However, a friend of mine, a young designer—Roger, I believe he called him though I never knew his last name—warned him that Jigger's friend, Rocco, had planned to have him

WASHINGTON.—Certain men very close to the White House, convinced that the Democratic party is going to split and frothing with impatience over the delay, already have begun to list the goats they expect to go galloping to be pushed toward the Republican party. And the sheep they expect to remain in the fold.

Technically, there are 75 Democrats in the Senate and 333 Democrats in the House.

Actually, says a high official about as close to F. D. R. as any White House secretary—a and whose name would make a large Page One headline if your correspondent were allowed to use it—there are about 55 senators and 275 representatives who can be counted as Democrats. They will go through for a progressive New Deal program such as has been outlined by Roosevelt, the party leader. This man goes on to talk as if he expected the other Democratic members to be sloughed off.

SIGNIFICANT of Republican efforts to honey up to southern conservatives is a bill by Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, who led a regiment of colored troops in the war.

Fish urges a pretentious memorial or statue here in honor of the southern hero, Gen. Robert E. Lee. He keeps pestering Congressman Kent Keller of Illinois, chairman of the library committee which has to do with such things, about it.

But Fish is having trouble getting anything out of a Democratic house, even though it is a tribute to "Marse Robert," since his accusatory exposure of the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt has her radio earnings turned over to charity without paying income tax on them.

Arlington, of course, is enjoying its customary big run, but the other tracks around Chicago haven't had much luck.

Moreover, the widespread pool room system of betting in the Chicago area is charged with bringing ruin to both Washington Park and Aurora.

RACING got its first rebuff since the depression began the way for the pari-mutuel when the Texas legislature repealed the betting law. This no doubt spells ruin for Arlington Downs, Alamo, and another spot or two.

Racing's loss elsewhere is more than offset by California, where a good thing now has lasted long enough to dispel any lingering doubt about the opening gold rush being a dream. Santa Anita, Bay Meadows, and Tanforan had great runs. B-b-b-bing Crosby's Del Mar picture oval already is a proven success. Agua Caliente and an election repeater.

War Admiral, the best race horse since his sire, Man o' War, was three, assured a profit at every meet he attended.

But War Admiral is on the shelf, along with Pompoon, Reaping Reward, Matey, and Rosemont, Wand, and a half dozen other stars among the older heads.

IF, in War Admiral's absence, there is no champion which really stands out, Seabiscuit will do until a more formidable one is uncovered, and Dawn Play is the finest of her sex since Tred Avon smacked Equipoise and Gallant Sur.

Meanwhile, with competition that is not of the highest order, additional proof is furnished that tracks will thrive just as long as racing is close and interesting.

Attendance and mutual play at Detroit's Fair Grounds increased 20 per cent. Clevelanders are dining at Thistle Down.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox NEA Service Staff Writer

WHEN the spirit fails and dinner looms ahead as an insuperable task, try something that seems brand new. For those days of despair, here is a dinner suggestion full of inspiration. It consists of Veal Pie with Cheese Biscuit Crust, Tomato Aspic Salad with Celery and Horseradish Dressing, Green Peas and a simple dessert of fresh pears, a mild cheese and coffee.

Veal Pie with Cheese Biscuit Crust (Serves 8)

One-half cup sliced green pepper, 2 slices onion, 3 tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 cups milk, 2 cups cooked veal cut in fairly large strips, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Melt butter, add green pepper and onion and cook until soft. Add flour and stir until well blended. Add salt. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Bring to boil and boil 2 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into large baking dish and cover with Cheese Biscuits.

Cheese Biscuits Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons tartaric baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, 3-cup milk, or half milk and half water, few grains cayenne, 1 cup grated cheese.

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and cayenne; add shortening and mix in thoroughly with fork. Add cheese; mix well. Add liquid to make soft dough. Turn out on floured board and toss lightly until outside looks smooth. Roll out 1-2 inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter. Place biscuits on top of creamed mixture in baking dish. Bake in hot oven at 450 degrees F. for about 30 minutes until browned.

Tomato Aspic Salad with Celery and Horseradish Dressing (Serves 6)

One package salad gelatin (aspic), 2 cups tomato juice, 1 cup tomato juice to boiling. Heat 1 cup tomato juice to boiling. Pour over salad gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add 1 cup cold tomato juice. Stir again. Pour into individual moulds and chill until firm. Unmould and serve on lettuce with Celery and Horseradish Dressing.

Three-quarter cup mayonnaise, 3 tablespoons horseradish, 2 teaspoons

That Reminds Me

laundries throughout the country made by the American Institute of Laundering under the supervision of Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the College of Medicine, University of Illinois.

In a report to doctors, it was shown that the last rinse waters in the laundries studied were sterile in the case of white wash, and satisfactorily sterile in the case of colored clothes, silks, wools and blankets. In these latter washes the bacterial count ranged from 7 to 42 bacteria per c. c., a count entirely consistent with public health standards.

Pasteurized Process

In the white clothes washing formula, where the temperature goes to 160 degrees and higher, it was found that the fifth change of water had an average count of five bacteria per c. c. The drop in this load is easily explained by the high temperatures, which were held sufficiently long to insure pasteurization of the clothes.

In the colored clothes washing cycle, however, pasteurization could not account for the practically sterile results, since the fabric and colors of the clothes in this washing cycle do not tolerate temperatures above 100 degrees. The drop to practical sterility in this washing cycle occurred in the tenth or last washing operation. Dilution accounts for the loss of many germs in each change of water, but there were still too many left in the ninth change of water for dilution to be the decisive factor.

Sour Bath Last Rinse

It is approved laundry practice to make the last rinse water a sour bath. Sodium acid fluoride is the sour most commonly employed as it is harmless to fabrics. The reasons for the use of sour are because it neutralizes the detergent remaining in the soap, and in the colored clothes wash, it brightens the colors, on the same principle that vinegar added to the water in which sheets are cooking intensifies their redness.

Dr. Arnold found that souring to a low hydrogen ion concentration had sanitary value also. The souring caused the destruction of bacteria by coagulating the living substance in the germs. This was why the bacteria count was practically sterile in the last rinse.

The American Institute of Laundering, established in 1922 by the Laundry-Owners National Association, is the proving laboratory on the laundability of clothes for the laundry industry. The methods and formulas it advocates are followed by thousands of laundries in this country as well as by laundries in Europe, Africa and Australia.
