Summit's failure...

Reagan's talk slated tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan reports to the American people tonight on the frustrating failure at the Reykjavik summit, where potential agreement on a sweeping arms treaty fell apart over "Star Wars" testing and dashed plans for another meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The two-day meeting at the little house on Reykjavik Bay was one of the most disappointing superpower encounters of the post-war generation, and in the downbeat aftermath, there were recriminations all around.

Following the suspenseful final act, Gorbachev said it "would have taken a madman" to accept Reagan's proposals. Soviet official Georgi Arbatov blamed the United States for an arms control "dead end."

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan said: "The Soviets are the ones who refused to make a deal. It shows them up for what they are. The Soviets finally showed their hand."

After bidding farewell to Gorbachev, Reagan flew back to Washington late Sunday. Asked for comment on his trip upon returning to the White House, Reagan said, "Tune in tomorrow night."

Reagan plans to deliver a speech today from the Oval Office of the White House, beginning at 8 p.m. EDT.

The dramatic, discouraging climax of the summit came after the two sides had reached a surprising agreement to eliminate all nuclear ballistic missiles within 10 years.

Q. — When are the results of no-pass, no-play going to be known for Snyder?

A. — School officials say they may have lists completed as early as Monday afternoon.

Marching group advances to area

The Snyder High School "Pride of the West Black and Gold Marching Band" earned a first division rating Saturday and qualified for the UIL area marching contest.

The band earned the right to compete by earning the highest rating of any AAAA band in zoned regional competitions held simultaneously in Abilene and Wichita Falls Saturday.

The area contest will be Nov. 1 at Wichita Falls. Winners there will advance to state, scheduled Nov. 10 in Austin.

Also qualifying for the area contest from this region was the Graham High School Band. It competed Saturday in the north zone.

This will be the fourth consecutive year for the Black and Gold Band to appear in the area contest.

At area, six class AAAA bands will be competing for the right to advance to state. They will include Snyder, Graham, Canyon, Borger and two others from the Fort Worth area to be named later.

Choir singers gain All District status

Twenty-six members of the Snyder High School choir were named to the 88-member All District choir following tryouts Saturday.

The tryouts were conducted at Abilene Cooper High School and included students from eight schools ranging from Class 5-A through A. The contest was sponsored through the Texas Music Educator's Association.

Singers were grouped into eight voice categories with 12 individuals normally chosen for each. Two alternates were selected also.

Selection to All District now qualifies the students to compete for All Regional honors. These tryouts are scheduled Nov. 15 at Abilene High School.

Those chosen from Snyder Saturday were:

—First soprano: Sheila Martin, Shannon Strickland and Amy Miller.

—Second soprano: Kelli McLarty, Elaine Smylie and Deone Farmer, first alternate.

Indigent law tasks allocated

Following nearly an hour of discussion, commissioners Monday named themselves as the final appeal body for indigent health care cases and concluded that Cogdell Memorial Hospital personnel should assume responsibility for identifying indigent eligibility.

The new health care law, which requires counties to absorb medical costs for those otherwise unable to pay, became effective Sept. 1.

The court said hospital personnel should be responsible to determine eligibility primarily because the hospital would have access to its own records at any hour. Commissioners also noted that the hospital would also be required to inform responsible persons in other counties in the event an out-of-county indigent was hospitalized here.

County welfare director Marge Sealy, who attended Monday's session, added, "Our office will cooperate 100 percent with them to provide information and necessary legwork."

The court had considered placing responsibility for identifying indigent health care recipients with the welfare office.

In addition, noting that they believe stringent financial guidelines determining eligibility will limit the number of applicants for the program, commissioners opted to handle ap-

A 34-year-old Snyder woman was listed in satisfactory condition Monday morning at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital after sustaining a shotgun wound to the hip Sunday evening.

A suspect in the shooting case, said to be the woman's estranged husband, was arrested Sunday night.

According to police reports, Nancy Martinez of 1003 Ave. U was wounded shortly before 9:30 p.m. following an argument with her husband — Paul Martinez, 34, of 4503 College Ave.

Martinez reportedly went to his wife's house with the shotgun around 9 p.m. and an argument

WTC trustees tonight face mostly bid items

Bid items will take up the majority of time Monday at the October meeting for Western Texas College trustees.

The board will convene at 5:45 p.m., then go into executive session to consider personnel matters.

Among the bid items due consideration is liability insurance for the college.

The board has sought bids for several areas of coverage to include general liability, personal liability insurance extended to board members and a special "theft rider" clause which covers the possibility of theft of college funds.

Official approval of the hiring of a new WTC staffer, Leeon Pettitt, employed as assistant plant director, is scheduled also.

Action items listed under old business include ratification of bids for golf carts for the WTC golf course. At the September meeting, it was proposed to replace the 14 carts, which are offered on a rental basis to players.

It was noted the carts have "paid for themselves" over a

In Brief

Barge fire out

DEER PARK, Texas (AP) — Traffic in the Houston Ship Channel remained restricted today in the area where a barge fire burned for several days, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

Lt. Christopher Roberts said no-passing restrictions remained in effect today in the channel where a fire and two explosions erputed on board a barge early Tuesday. One seaman was killed, officials said.

The restriction was implemented because officials wanted to reduce water disturbances and also avoid traffic problems in case the fire reignited, Roberts said.

The blaze burned out late Saturday night, but a fire boat remained at the site this morning as a precautionary measure, Roberts said.

Agent Orange plagues family

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnam War was raging and the casualty rate for Navy river patrol crews had soared to almost 75 percent a year when Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr. ordered the dense riverbank jungles sprayed with Agent Orange.

The chemical defoliant burned away the ambush cover where enemy snipers hid, and Zumwalt felt confident he had minimized the risk for his men, including his own son, Elmo Zumwalt III, commander of a "swift" boat.

Today the Zumwalt family is haunted by that decision, convinced that Agent Orange exposure caused two forms of cancer that may kill the younger Zumwalt, and a brain disfunction suffered by his own young son.

But in their newly published autobiography, both the retired admiral and his cancer-stricken son say although they didn't learn until after the war that Agent Orange was carcinogenic, they would make the same decision to use it even with that knowledge.

In fact, the elder Zumwalt said in a recent interview, he feels that as commander of naval forces in Vietnam, he helped his son live longer by destroying enemy cover with Agent Orange.

In "My Father, My Son," which also contains passages written by other family members and friends, the 66-year-old admiral and his 40-year-old son tell of their admiration for one another and the close family bond sustaining them through the cancer crisis.

"He's always been a fighter and courageous beyond measure," Zumwalt said of his son. "I have found myself for 35 of Elmo's 40 years tremendously inspired by his courage," he added in reference to his son's childhood bouts with polio and a heart ailment.

Elmo III suffers from two rare cancers, the deadly, fast-spreading Hodgkins disease, and lymphoma, a slow-moving cancer of the lymphatic system. Both were contracted within the last three years, 13 years after his return from Vietnam.

The Zumwalts also believe the father's exposure to Agent Orange caused his 9-year-old son's learning disability, called sensory integration dysfunction.

The admiral and his son have criss-crossed the country in recent days to promote their book and to tell their tragic story.

"I've been absolutely amazed," at the supportive reaction from veterans, cancer victims and others, the younger Zumwalt said in a telephone interview as he headed back to his wife and two children in Fayetteville, N.C.

He accompanied his father on the 10-day book tour even though he is still undergoing the slow recovery from a February bone-marrow transplant that he described as "the most physically agonizing thing anybody can put himself through."

His purpose, he said, is to focus attention on the plight of Vietnam veterans and the Agent Orange issue, and to show that "even in this day and age, deep feelings can make a difference," whether in the brotherhood of Navy comrades or the family support for a cancer victim.

Diet Pill System Sweeping U.S.

Super Dream Pill Guaranteed Weight Loss

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — An amazing new super Dream Pill System has recently been perfected that guarantees rapid weight loss. Best of all, it allows you to eat your favorite foods while losing weight from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure.

The Dream Pill System features the extraordinary Dream Pill. The Dream Pill combines natural substances L-arginine, L-lysine and L-ornithine which can stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident. Sandy fell and broke her foot and started taking L-arginine because of its well-known healing qualities. Much to her amazement Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 5 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Durk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

Researcher led Communist party

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Houston cancer researcher who moved to the Soviet Union with his family was an official of the Southern California district of the U.S. Communist Party in the early 1970s, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Arnold Lockshin, 47, who surfaced Wednesday in Moscow with his wife, Lauren, and their three children, was district organizer and executive secretary of the chapter from about 1971 until at least 1973, the Times said in its Sunday editions.

The paper, quoting three unidentified sources, said Lockshin enjoyed considerable power within the chapter, which saw its membership rise during the early 1970s, but that he and his wife were extremely dogmatic on party issues.

At a Moscow news conference and in interviews, Lockshin has denied being a Communist, although he acknowledged being a Communist Party organizer at one time.

Lockshin said he moved to the Soviet Union because he and his family were harassed for their political activism, including opposition to U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War.

He said he was fired from a cancer research center associated with St. Joseph Hospital in Houston because of his political beliefs, but the hospital said he was fired for poor job performance.

The Times said prominent former members of the party requested anonymity because they didn't want to be linked to Lockshin.

One source, described as a longtime party member who left in 1973 because of differences with party leadership and with the Soviets' 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia, said Lockshin's political views were "rigid, totally without any human feelings — he and his wife as well."

Another said Lockshin came to Los Angeles from Boston, and had been a member of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation. That group dedicated itself in the 1960s to the abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which investigated admitted and suspected Communists.

Lockshin wrote a position paper against an Al Richmond book on the author's early years as a Communist organizer "that was so dogmatic as to be incredible," a source said.

The book, "A Long View From the Left," officially was condemned by national and local Communist Party leaders, resulting in some moderate members quitting the party.

Lockshin also wrote a paper in which he ordered Los Angeles party members to attend a meeting at which Angela Davis, the black activist and former UCLA philosophy professor who was a frequent spokeswoman for party causes, was to speak, one of the former party members said.

A few members who missed the meeting were expelled from the party, the source said.

Young Mother's Faith Won't Cover Up Her Topless Career

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was disappointed in your answer to "Concerned and Praying," the young single mother who says she is a good Christian, yet she supports her children by dancing topless in a nightclub. I admire her for going to college and living a respectable lifestyle, but when she asked you if a person could believe in God and dance topless, you should have replied with a firm no!

This woman is mistaken if she considers her job harmless to her spiritual life. No woman can dance topless and be a Christian. If she reads her Bible, she will know that merely believing in God does not make her a good Christian — it's how she lives in front of others that counts.

This woman is actually instilling lust in men, and the Bible tells us that any man who looks upon a woman with lust has already committed adultery in his heart. So even if (as she says) she doesn't go out with anyone after work, she has already done the damage. I will pray for her.

I am a Christian counselor. Please forgive this poorly typed letter, but it isn't easy sitting in an office trying to write a letter while the phone is ringing and people keep bursting in unannounced. Perhaps you can pray for me, too. Ha ha!

SINCERELY IN CHRIST IN OHIO

DEAR SINCERELY: My mail has been running 100-to-1 in your favor. But in the interest of fairness, let's give the other side a chance to be heard:

DEAR ABBY: I read in our local paper, The Daily Reflector, the letter from "Concerned and Praying," who was concerned about her topless dancing. In my opinion all good things cometh from the Lord! I also believe that a thing of beauty is a joy forever.

May I also add that there is none of us righteous. No, not one, and if there be in us any righteousness whatsoever, it is not in ourselves, but we are made righteous through the sacrifice of the blood of Jesus who died on the cross.

If "Concerned and Praying" never does anything worse than dancing topless, she is a better Christian than many of those she sits beside in church.

MARVIN TURNER, GREENVILLE, N.C.

DEAR MARVIN: Amen, brother.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Different in Indiana," who wanted to be married in black, called to mind this little poem I've known since childhood:

Married in white, you've chosen right,
Married in blue, you will always be true.
Married in green, ashamed to be seen,
Married in red, you'll wish you were dead.
Married in brown, you will live out of town,
Married in gray, you will go far away.
Married in yellow, you're ashamed of your fellow,
Married in black, you will wish you were back. (single)

I never thought I'd ever write to Dear Abby, but I couldn't resist the temptation.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Quiet, Please," who hated "background music" while dining, has prompted me to write.

Years ago I played the organ in a popular restaurant in the Midwest. I often was asked to play special numbers, and with those requests was usually sent a dollar or two.

The waiter once brought me a note with a $10 bill, which was a lot of money in those days. The note read: "Will you please take a 10-minute break so we can hear each other talk?"

More than one-fourth ticketed do not pay

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Failure to pay parking tickets isn't unusual in any town. But in this West Texas city, more than one fourth of all parking violators fail to cough up the fines, city officials say.

Municipal Court Administrator Fred Rivera said car dealers, drivers with out-of-county license plates and people who rent cars account for 70 percent of the unpaid tickets.

Rivera says city prosecutors generally dismiss those tickets when they can't track down the name of the person who was driving the car.

Since new parking rates took effect in April, 1985, calculations show, the city has lost more than $63,000 in revenue. But only $18,000 of that stems from tickets that can be traced back to drivers, Rivera said.

A total of about $44,322 from 14,774 unpaid tickets come from citations issued to the more elusive out-of-town or rental car drivers, Rivera said.

Rivera said compliance with city parking laws jumped dramatically after the City Council passed a schedule of stiffer fines that can go as high as $7.50 per ticket.

Since the new rates took effect, the city has collected about $210,887 in fines and $175,000 from meters, Rivera said.

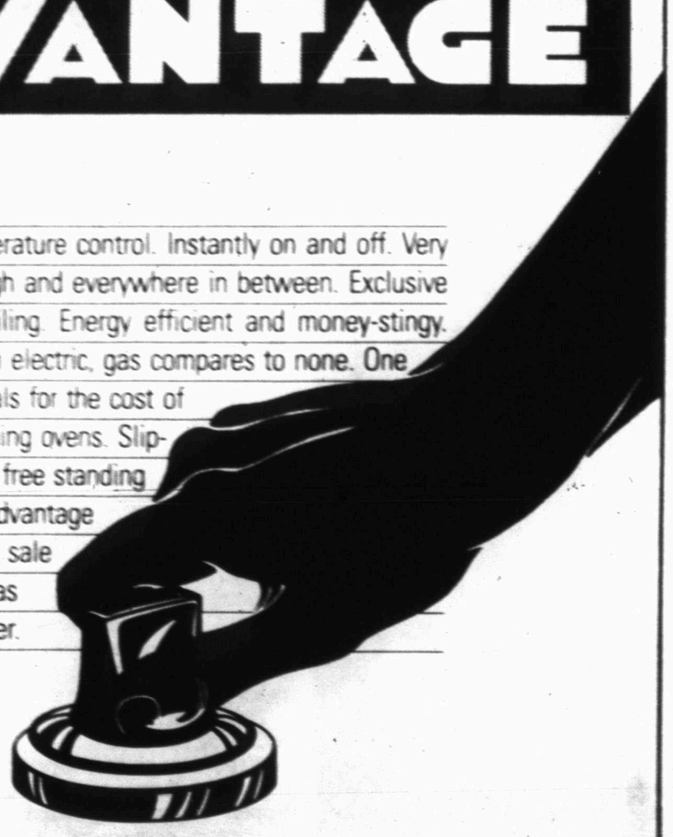

Meter maids issued 73,391 tickets during the 18-month period, and parking law offenders paid 71 percent, or 52,488, of those tickets.

Ernest Shelton, owner of Shelton Music Co., said the parking meters drive potential customers away from downtown stores because most shoppers don't like finding change for the meters.

"Customers don't have to pay (for parking) out at the mall," Shelton said.

RR commission must plug wells

DALLAS (AP) — As the money-troubled Texas Railroad Commission struggles to fill abandoned wells, the chances increase that oil, gas and saltwater will seep from leaky well shafts into streams, lakes and water tables, officials concede.

The task of pouring concrete down a tapped-out well is falling to the commission as more drillers and industry-related companies are driven under by depressed oil prices.

And as more and more wells need tapping, less and less funding is available.

The average well costs about $4,000 to plug, said railroad commission spokesman Brian Schaible.

"The size of the problem is big in terms of the number of wells," said Schaible. "They're inactive wells, unplugged, and something needs to be done about it,"

Schaible says the commission is not certain how many unplugged wells dot the Texas landscape, but some estimates put the number as high as 50,000.

Farm plan is better than PIK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional agency says a privately designed model "farm program" produced greater farm income, on paper, than did the Agriculture Department's payment-in-kind plan, while costing the taxpayer less.

The General Accounting Office, in a report to Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng, said its analysis underscores the need for decision-makers at USDA to study alternatives "before committing to major program changes like the PIK program."

The GAO, the watchdog arm of Congress, commissioned the consulting firm of Missouri Valley Research Associates to fashion an alternative farm program to serve as a basis for comparison and demonstrate that there are other types of policies that can be considered before opting for a plan such as PIK.

Under the 1983-84 PIK program, wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton and rice farmers were paid with government surplus commodities instead of cash to take land out of production. The object was to reduce the surpluses and the number of acres planted to keep down future oversupplies while increasing farm income without an excessive burden on the taxpayer.

The model program for 1983 through 1986 developed by the consulting firm would have relied on increased cash payments instead of in-kind payments.

Compared with the PIK program, the GAO said, the model program, over the four-year period, would have resulted in:

—Farm program costs $3.7 billion lower.

—Planting of program crops reduced by 47.4 million acres.

—A 23 percent reduction in commodity inventory levels.

—A $6.2 billion increase in farmers' net cash income.

The GAO did put some qualifications on the findings, saying that "a comparison was not made of the possible overall societal impacts of the two program options on consumers, U.S. export sales and rural economies."

"For example, the MVRA-designed program, while reducing government costs, could boost commodity prices more than the USDA-designed program would have, contributing to higher consumer costs and a dampening of commodity exports," it said. "On the other hand, higher cash incomes could have a positive impact on rural economies."

The PIK program was designed as a supplement to other government payment programs designed to reduce surpluses.

They include acreage reduction programs under which farmers take a certain amount of land out of production to be eligible for price support loans and other payment plans.

Another form of government payments supplemented by PIK were paid land diversion programs under which farmers are paid directly to take acreage out of production.

The model developed by the firm covered a four-year period because the PIK program, although it did not extend four years, was designed to dovetail with other elements of the farm program over a four-year span, the GAO said.

The findings of the GAO report received a cool reception at the Agriculture Department.

Robert L. Thompson, assistant secretary for economics, replied in a letter that was reprinted in the report that PIK was not part of any four-year program.

"The secretary of agriculture clearly indicated that the 1983 PIK program was a temporary emergency measure necessitated by congressional inaction," Thompson said. "There never was any intent of extending the 1983 PIK program into 1984 as the GAO report indicates."

Another criticism from Thompson is based on the theme that is sounded repeatedly among farmers: "The vagaries of weather necessitate that any long-term plan be extremely flexible."

During the American Revolution, the siege of Boston began April 20, 1775.

Altering destiny

By James Jacoby

When the opening lead is obviously a singleton, declarer does not have to be a genius to see into the future. If he can identify the circumstances that will defeat his contract, he should then look for a way to change them.

In a recent pairs competition, many declarers who arrived at four spades were confronted with the opening club lead. Why not all? Because it is not usually best to lead a singleton in declarer's suit. Often partner holds cards that will produce a trick or two if declarer is left to his own devices. That was not the case with the current deal.

Those ordinary declarers who won the club and played a trump to the 10 in dummy got their comeuppance quickly. East won his trump ace and shot back a club for West to ruff. West then played a heart to East's ace, and another club ruff sealed declarer's fate. But one shrewd declarer altered his destiny. After winning the opening club, he played A-K of diamonds and then the jack. When East followed low, he pitched his heart. West won the diamond queen, but now East had only one entry — the spade ace — to give his partner a single club ruff, and the contract could no longer be set.

Local church gives support to Otwell

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Rev. W.N. Otwell, wanted in Texas for failing to appear at a court hearing, preached at an Indianapolis church Sunday, receiving the support of a local pastor and members of the congregation.

"We do not consider him some kind of a rebel against the state (of Texas)," said pastor Greg Dixon.

Otwell, 49, faces heavy fines for ignoring a court order to close the unlicensed boys home operated by his Community Baptist Church in Forest Hill, a suburb of Fort Worth, Texas.

He has been on the move since last Monday, when he failed to appear at a contempt of court hearing in Austin, Texas, before the judge who ordered the boys home closed.

After Otwell failed to appear, State District Judge Paul R. Davis issued an arrest warrant for Otwell for contempt of court.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has ordered the sale of parts of Otwell's church for collection of fines.

Politics still out for ex-mayor

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Mayor Louie Welch, who lost a bitter election battle last year that was marked with controversy because of his comments on AIDS, says he is not interested in running for office again.

Welch, a private consultant or board member for companies ranging from an accounting firm to a hospital, said he may actively support a cause from time to time, however.

"I'm not looking for issues, but I suspect if we had a crying need for a bond election at this time that I'd be out there beating the drums for support," Welch, 67, said in an interview published Sunday in the Houston Chronicle.

But the former five-term mayor is adamant that his name will never again appear on a ballot.

"I am not in it as a candidate, nor will I ever be," he said. "I can't even think of an appointive job that I would seek or any circumstances that would ever put me in elective office."

As a candidate during last year's mayoral election, Welch opposed gay rights and made the moral health of Houston a campaign issue. The city's gay community was enraged when Welch said one way to control Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome was "to shoot the queers."

The remark was made Oct. 24 as he waited for a live television interview on a four-point program he had suggested to control the spread of AIDS. Welch later said the inadvertently televised wisecrack created a controversy that stripped his campaign of momentum at a crucial point.

"I regret the mike was on," Welch replied when asked if he regretted the incident. "I was joking, killing time. I'm not alone in that. I understand the president does that occasionally."

Welch said he remains angry at the media because reporters focused on the incident and his opposition to gay rights instead of the issues he believed were important.

"I could talk about the removal of esplanades and the widening of roads and the recycling of traffic lights, and it wouldn't make a paragraph. But they would go back and recite and recite and recite, over and over again, everything that had ever been said about that incident," he said.

Welch said he has stayed out of the political limelight for nearly a year because he wanted time "to get a little different perspective and a little less pressure."

"(I) also wanted to remove any possibility from anybody's mind that any speaking I was doing was either politically motivated or politically colored," he said.

Welch has just recently started to venture again in the public arena by giving several speeches. Others are scheduled in the next two weeks.

If given the chance to repeat the last campaign, Welch said, "I think I would keep on until I got somebody else to run instead of me."

And if that failed, "I'd check the mikes to see when they were on."

Altering the immune system

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — There are now several drugs that are used to treat diseases that undermine the immune system's normal defense mechanisms. How do they work, and isn't it dangerous to upset the immune system?

DEAR READER — Yes and no. Drugs that are used to alter the immune system usually are given because the immune system is overreacting or is out of control — a case of too much of a good thing. Obviously, a complete neutralization of the immune system would be catastrophic. Therefore, when these medicines are given, they usually are administered for specific reasons and under close medical supervision.

The drugs work in different ways. Fundamentally, they act by suppressing the body's defense responses. This effect can be lifesaving, but, as you suggest, it can be life-threatening unless the medicines are meticulously monitored.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had a thallium stress test and slept for three weeks after it. Also, my hair is coming out. Could the test have done this?

DEAR READER — Sleepiness and hair loss are not consequences of the thallium stress test, in which a small amount of radioactive material is injected during an exercise cardiogram. However, some medicines that are used to treat heart disease can cause these symptoms. Check with your doctor to determine the reason you are having trouble.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I started to feel lifeless and weak. My doctor had blood work done, found my potassium was very low and had me take a potassium liquid twice a day. I started to get bruises all over. These have gone away, but I still have weakness in my arms and legs. Subsequent blood tests have been normal. Do I have leukemia?

DEAR READER — Low blood potassium produces weakness. It is sometimes difficult to treat without using large doses of protassium. If your blood count is normal, you don't have leukemia. However, I would make sure that your potassium level has returned to normal and stays that way.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was diagnosed as having "lower back sprain." After six months of sheer agony and being told "it takes time to heal," I went to a neurologist on my own. Lo and behold, I had a herniated disc. I believe that anyone who experiences lower back pain for more than a few months should be thoroughly checked by a neurologist.

DEAR READER — Hear! Hear! Most reputable M.D.s will refer cases of chronic back pain to specialists, such as neurologists, orthopedic surgeons or neurosurgeons. Unfortunately, many non-M.D. practitioners do not endorse this approach.

DEAR READERS — A recent column erred in stating that an electrical arc can "weld" contact lenses to the eye.

Eye experts unanimously agree that this is impossible, and the American Optometric Association says that "reports" of this hazard are based entirely on rumor and have been thoroughly discredited.

In addition, in 1983, both the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration stated that these reports were false and that there was no such danger.

The American Optometric Association adds that it would be physically impossible for an electrical arc to bind contact lenses to the eye. The lenses could never concentrate rays sufficiently to do this type of damage, and the heat from an electrical arc isn't intense enough to affect contact-lens plastic.

Gunrunning okay may mean deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Praise for private gunrunning operations in Nicaragua, such as that voiced by a high State Department official over the weekend, will only lead to more Americans being captured, killed and put on trial, the vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee says.

Eventually, Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said Sunday, "nobody is going to see a distinction of whether they are there officially working for the United States or only with the encouragement of the United States."

Congress in 1984 barred military aid from the United States to the Contra rebels battling the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua, but later authorized non-military aid.

The question of whether the U.S. government has gone beyond that has come under renewed scrutiny since Eugene Hasenfus, an ex-Marine who once flew for Air America, a CIA-operated airline in Vietnam, was captured in Nicaragua after his arms-loaded plane was downed Oct. 5 by a Nicaraguan missile.

Hasenfus told a news conference in Managua on Thursday that a man named Max Gomez and another Cuban-American "work for the CIA (and) did most of the coordination" for the gunrunning flights he took part in.

Published reports on Friday said Vice President George Bush's national security adviser, Donald Gregg, helped place Gomez at a military airfield in El Salvador from which Hasenfus's plane took off.

The Los Angeles Times said Saturday that Gomez told associates that he reported to Bush in his role as head of the Contra air supply operation.

Shelburne installs sprinkler systems

Do you want the beauty and practicality of a lawn with minimum effort on your part at a reasonable cost? This is what an efficiently designed, properly installed automatic irrigation system can do for you.

And now, from the company that has been building Snyder for over 30 years, automatic lawn irrigation by a licensed irrigator is being offered as a special service to their customers.

A beautiful lawn can be achieved due to good coverage and programmed watering at the proper time. No more hoses and hose-end sprinklers marring the landscape. Watering is done in the early morning hours so it doesn't cause scalding of the grass. Lawn sprinklers are unnoticeable as they rest hidden in the grass, only popping up above it when watering.

Because watering is accomplished automatically on a programmed basis, you are not saddled with moving hoses about or turning manual valves off and on. When on vacation, you need not be concerned about your turf dying from lack of water. You don't have to worry about hand watering after a hard days work. Relieved from the boring, time-consuming tasks of hand watering, you will have more time to devote to the more important things in life. It is one of the few areas in life where you can have your cake and eat it too.

The economy of a system also has great merit. It sometimes feels strange to talk about spending money to save money, but that is what happens with an automatic irrigation system. The system is an investment which increases the value of your house when it is resold. Also, when the system is used properly, it will save on lawn maintenance costs such as fertilizers, insecticides and fungicides which are needed more frequently on a hand-watered lawn due to lack of watering efficiency. Efficiency of an automated system also will reduce wasted water due to flooding runoff and over watering which are almost always the results of a manual or hose-end system.

Beauty, practicality, convenience, economy....four great advantages of an automatic sprinkler system for your home. Call Kent Horsley at Shelburnes today and let him design a system for your yard - 573-6359. Licensed Irrigator No. 2964.

Heart recipient meets family

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A year ago Michael Drummond of Phoenix and the family of Tarro Griffin in East Texas had little in common.

But over the weekend, Drummond and relatives of Griffin met for the first time, drawn together by an emotional bond.

The heart of Tarro Griffin beats in Michael Drummond's chest and is the reason he is alive today.

"From the beginning, I wanted to meet them," Drummond said of the Griffin family.

Last year, Griffin, 19, was killed in a motorcycle wreck. His heart was transplanted into Drummond's chest.

Senator Kennedy sees final chapter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ramon Conte Hernandez, believed to be the last Bay of Pigs veteran still held in a Cuban prison will be freed soon, bringing the final chapter of the failed U.S. government operation to an end, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said.

In 1937, more than 400 persons — mostly children — were killed in a gas explosion at a school in New London, Texas.

'Fatherly' lawyer convicted

DALLAS (AP) — Robin Leann Clark was 21 and pregnant with a third child she didn't think she could support.

She turned to Robert Kingsley, a 61-year-old lawyer who seemed fatherly and supportive. He said he'd help her find adoptive parents for the baby.

"I trusted him at first," Ms. Clark said. "The first time I met him, we went to the 7-Eleven to get a Coke. It was chilly outside, and he let me wear his coat. And then he paid for my Coke."

But four months later, after she said she told Kingsley she wanted to keep her baby, Ms. Clark, who is separated from her husband, had her baby.

Although she says Kingsley pressured her to sign adoption papers, she refused.

But two days later, Ms. Clark said, without her knowledge, her baby daughter was discharged to Kingsley.

"I didn't even get to see her. I have never seen her," Ms. Clark testified in state district court last week.

In that trial, Kingsley was convicted on a felony charge of baby-buying and sentenced to seven years in prison.

Prosecutors claim he was part of an illegal adoption scheme involving at least 26 mothers over two years.

Kingsley was arrested in July 1985 and adoption documents were confiscated at his office. He is free on $10,000 bond while is case is appealed.

Defense attorney Mike Gibson sought probation for Kingsley, who never took the stand during the trial and who has repeatedly refused requests for interviews.

Gibson portrayed the silver-haired attorney as a good Samaritan who paid birth mothers their living expenses because they needed the money.

He also said Kingsley didn't know such payments are restricted to medical and legal fees in Texas.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh's law school, Kingsley was licensed to practice law in Texas in 1967. He became a general practice lawyer who handled mostly bankruptcy cases.

By 1984 he had expanded his practice to include private adoptions.

He had no previous criminal record but was reprimanded by the state bar in February for accepting payment from a client for services not performed.

Most of his clients were young women who had conceived illegitimate children and who found him either word of mouth or through telephone listings, authorities said. Kingsley paid their living and medical expenses.

Authorities allege the private adoptions turned into a black market baby-brokering scheme.

William Aycock, who investigated the case for the State Department of Human Services, said, "We interviewed them and they all had the same basic story.

"They said he seemed like a real nice man at first, the fatherly type. But later on, he wasn't very friendly. He became kind of cold. More or less, he got what he wanted, he kind of turned against them."

Assistant District Attorney Marcus Busch said the first few adoptions Kingsley did at the beginning of 1984 were "relatively innocuous. But by 1985, he was forging documents, threatening women with jail and making them sign documents up front.

"...I think he became greedy and was not going to let any of the cases slip by. There was too much money involved," Busch told the Dallas Times Herald in its Sunday editions.

Evidence in the case shows Kingsley paid the mothers $2,000 or $3,000 and turned the babies over to adoptive parents for as much as $20,000.

'Ray Hill Prison Show' popular program

HOUSTON (AP) — It's 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon and Bobby Bare is singing "Back Home In Huntsville Again" as Ray Hill sits in front of a radio station console in Houston to speak to a literally captive audience.

"It's time for you to rattle down the bars, the 'Prison Show' is on the air," says cohort Shan Donaldson.

The "Ray Hill Prison Show" to be exact — a five-year institution on KPFT-FM and touted by its participants as the only show of its kind in the nation.

The two-hour program, aimed at thousands of Texas prison inmates and their families and friends, can be heard at 12 of the 26 Texas Department of Corrections units. On a clear day, however, inmates outside the station's 90-mile radius are able to pick up the weekly show.

Hill, 45, an ex-con and gay activist, started the program in 1981. Its popularity, however, soared after a woman on her way to visit her imprisoned son called Hill and asked if he could give her son a message on the air.

"She said, 'I haven't seen my son in two years and I finally managed to go visit him. I've been listening to your show and he listens to your show and we've been in an automobile accident and now I can't go (visit),' " Hill recalls.

The message, relayed by Hill, triggered a flurry of similar requests.

"After that, the phones were ringing off the hook from family members," says the show's co-producer, Hugh B. Callaway, also an ex-con, who wants to become a lawyer.

Instead of delivering the messages himself, friends and relatives of inmates telephone the show and give their messages personally.

"We get calls from literally all over the world," Hill says. "They take about 12 to 20 seconds each."

The program's first hour consists of criminal justice news and interviews and tape recordings from inmates, followed by an hour of phone calls.

"A lot of these individuals need to know there is someone who cares about them," says the 30-year-old Callaway, who served four years in Texas prisons for a Dallas robbery conviction.

While Texas prison inmates are not allowed to make calls, prisoners at city and county lockups do have telephone access and also call the show.

The station offers editorials against gangs, violence and prejudice, Hill says. Wardens, prosecutors and attorneys are frequent guests.

"I frequently make appeals to inmates for racial harmony," Hill says.

Many inmates look forward to the program, particularly because most of them have recreation time or visiting time during the Sunday afternoon time period, says Charles Brown, a Texas prisons spokesman.

Hill, who helped start public radio station KPFT five years ago after being released from prison for commercial robberies, does most of the talking on the program.

Austin students raise funds to reunite Vietnamese kin

AUSTIN (AP) — The students at Lanier High School were in grade school and knew little about the Vietnam War a decade ago when Minh Le escaped from the Southeast Asian country without his family.

Now the student council has started a drive to raise $10,000 to help reunite Le, their school janitor, with the family he was forced to leave behind when he fled Saigon in 1976 as South Vietnam fell to the Communists.

The money would be used to bring Le's family to the United States if they get permission to leave.

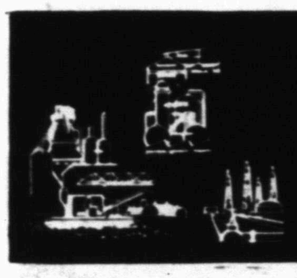

Le, a former police officer in South Vietnam, said he feared he would never see his wife and four of his six children again. One son lives in Austin and another son died in Vietnam after he left.

The slight man with glasses and a ready smile says he now feels hope for the first time.

"To me, this is just like a miracle," Le, 56, said.

"His story really touched our hearts, so we decided to go for it," Julie Ruthven, president of the student council, said.

Cowboys wax Washington

by The Associated Press

Washington Redskins fans marched in Dallas, but the Cowboys rained on their parade.

"They're going to tear them up," Tony Wolfe of Lusby, Md., predicted Sunday during an uneventful mid-morning stroll of about 400 Redskins fans through downtown Dallas.

He was absolutely right, but it was the Redskins who were torn apart by Herschel Walker, Steve Pelleur and the Cowboys defense. Dallas shocked Washington 30-6 - reducing to two the number of unbeaten teams in the National Football League - and moved to within a game of the lead in the NFC East.

Walker caught six passes for 155 yards, Pelleur, replacing injured starting quarterback Danny White, threw for 323 yards, and the Cowboy defense limited the Redskins to just 184 total yards to turn what figured to be a close game between bitter rivals into a laugher.

In other games, it was Miami 27, Buffalo 14; Chicago 20, Houston 7; Detroit 21, Green Bay 14; Cleveland 20, Kansas City 7; Atlanta 26, Los Angeles Rams 14; New Orleans 17, Indianapolis 14; New York Jets 31, New England 24; St. Louis 30, Tampa Bay 19; Los Angeles Raiders 14, Seattle 10; New York Giants 35, Philadelphia 3; Denver 31, San Diego 14, and Minnesota 27, San Francisco 24 in overtime. Pittsbugh visits Cincinnati tonight.

With the victory, Dallas improved to 4-2, one game behind the Redskins and Giants, who share the lead in the NFC East.

"If we go 3-3, we're in a mighty tough situation," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said. "At least we are back in the race again. Of course, you don't expect to score 30 points against the division leader, but we needed it after last week."

Dallas was coming off a 29-14 blowout by Denver.

Giants 35, Eagles 3

Philadelphia Coach Buddy Ryan knows a good thing when he sees it ... even on the other side of the field.

"The Giants were a super team today," Ryan, whose team fell to 2-4, said. "It was a complete team effort and we don't have any alibis."

New York won its fifth straight game, its longest winning streak since 1970, with Phil Simms' throwing two touchdown passes.

The Giant defense, led by linebacker Lawrence Taylor's seven tackles, two assists and four sacks for 25 yards in losses, held the Eagles offense to 117 yards.

Jets 31, Patriots 24

Despite holding a 24-0 halftime lead, New York Coach Joe Walton was wary of New England, with good reason.

"We talked about not letting them rally in the third quarter, but they did anyway," Walton said. "The key was we gathered ourselves in the fourth quarter and stemmed the tide."

Bears 20, Oilers 7

Chicago's Walter Payton became the league's first 20,000-yard man despite a tough battle through three quarters.

Quarterback Jim McMahon, playing with a painful right shoulder, completed just 13 of 33 passes for 209 yards.

Astros, Scott even NL series; to play again this afternoon

NEW YORK (AP) - As most any Texan will tell you, when you've got a good dog you let him hunt. And that's exactly what Houston Manager Hal Lanier is doing with pitcher Mike Scott.

Scott continued his dominance over New York in the National League playoffs Sunday night, pitching a three-hitter as the Astros defeated the Mets 3-1 to even the best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

Houston catcher Alan Ashby hit a two-run homer in the second inning and shortstop Dickie Thon had a solo shot in the fifth to provide Scott with all the offense he would need.

The triumph also silenced 55,038 cheering Mets fans who filled Shea Stadium hoping for another miracle finish like the one New York pulled off Saturday.

In that game, Darryl Strawberry hit a three-run homer and Lenny Dykstra smacked a two-run homer in the ninth as New York overcame a 4-0 deficit to win 6-5.

That prompted Lanier to bring back Scott, who was 18-10 and led the major leagues with 306 strikeouts during the regular season, on only three days' rest.

It showed in Scott's fastball, which wasn't nearly as swift as it had been in Game 1 when he pitched a 1-0 five-hit victory.

"I didn't have the good fastball, so I knew I had to go to the split-finger (fastball) more," Scott said. "I wanted to keep the ball down. I knew I had to keep it down, away and in the ballpark.

"I had a little arm fatigue in about the sixth inning. That's when I decided to continue to go more with the split-finger fastball. There are times when every pitcher doesn't feel that he is 100 percent, but they still have to go out and do all they can."

Scott's five strikeouts, coupled with his 14 in Game 1, gave him a record 19 for the series, breaking the major-league playoff record of 18 by Toronto's Dave Steib last year.

Scott's 16 consecutive scoreless innings and two complete games also are playoff records.

"It was too late to worry about wearing him out," Lanier said. "If the series goes seven games, I'll use him in Game 7 and hopefully he'll be sharp again. I'm going to have my No. 1 man out there.

"We needed this game tonight desperately, or else we were looking at elimination on Monday."

Game 5 was scheduled for 2:05 p.m. CDT today with Mets' ace Dwight Gooden facing rookie Jim Deshaies. Tuesday will be a travel day and the series will resume in Houston's Astrodome on Wednesday.

Netters finish team tennis with victories over Pecos, Lamesa

BIG SPRING -- Snyder tennis team defeated Pecos 14-4 here Saturday to finish District 2-4A play at 4-4 on the season.

Sweetwater and Monahans won the district team tennis title, and will represent 2-4A in an upcoming region playoff tournament.

"We did better in team tennis this year than we've done in any of the years I've been here," said Snyder Coach Charlie Chrane. "We came close to beating the number one and two teams. We played them both real close (lost 10-8 to Monahans and 11-7 to Sweetwater). So overall we had a pretty strong performance. We'll be working on individual singles and doubles now, trying to improve for the spring."

In addition to the victory over Pecos, Snyder also defeated Lamesa 18-0. The Tigers played Lamesa earlier this month, winning six doubles matches before rain forced a postponement. Lamesa failed to show up for singles play last week, thus forfeiting to the Tigers.

Former Tiger great drowns

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) - Norm Cash, a first baseman for the Detroit Tigers for 15 years and the American League batting champion in 1961, apparently drowned Sunday while boating in northern Lake Michigan, authorities said.

The body of Cash, 51, was discovered about 11 a.m. in about 15 feet of water just offshore from Beaver Island, located 32 miles northwest of Charlevoix in Lake Michigan.

He played for the 1968 World Series championship Detroit team, batting .385 in the Series. Cash also had played on the 1959 White Sox World Series team. Cash retired from baseball in 1974 with a lifetime .271 batting average and 377 home runs.

Tigers fight hard but lose to tough Pecos Eagle Team

PECOS -- Snyder's Tigers went down to a hard-fought defeat in District 2-4A volleyball action here Saturday, losing 15-2, 15-10 to Pecos.

The loss put Snyder at 14-13 on the season and 4-7 in loop play as the Lady Tigers prepare to entertain Big Spring at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the SHS gym.

"They are the best team in the district and we knew we were going to have to play without mistakes to beat them and we didn't do that," said Snyder Coach Vicki Nelms of the match with Pecos. "We were disappointed we lost but we were pleased with the overall effort."

Pecos is now 22-2 overall and 11-0 in district play.

After losing the first game, Snyder trailed only 13-10 in the second, but couldn't keep the momentum.

"The second game, we played real well," said Nelms. "The score was 13-10 and we were making a run and there was a questionable call that gave them the ball back. We had them on the defensive in that second game a lot. We were hitting the holes and we got them rattled. They got the ball back and we made a couple of mistakes and they won the game. But it was nice to see we were capable of playing with them. I think it helped our confidence," said the coach.

"As far as the first game, we didn't play that badly, we just didn't have any offense. There were some long rallies and things like that. It took us to the second game to adjust our defense to where they were hitting," the coach noted.

The second game noted the return of sophomore Melody Pickering into the lineup. Pickering had been sidelined for a number of matches with a sprained ankle.

Carrie Fortune also came in and played, and Coach Nelms said, "It was Leslie Ward's best game of the year. She played real well on defense for us."

Serving for points for Snyder were Shondra Robinson 4, Donna Clay and Allison Adams 3, and Ward and Tammy Williamson 1.

JV stumbles to Eaglettes

PECOS -- Snyder was defeated by Pecos 15-1, 15-6 in a junior varsity volleyball match here Saturday.

The Cats, 17-8, will regroup and challenge Big Spring at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Snyder gym.

"We just didn't play like we've been playing. We wanted to win really bad and maybe we were trying too hard," said Coach Patty Grimmett. "The girls were disappointed because they knew they were capable of playing better."

Pecos clips SHS frosh

PECOS -- Snyder freshman volleyball team lost to Pecos here Saturday afternoon, 15-12, 5-15, 15-5.

Serving for points were Jennifer Pate 13, Kathy Armstrong 9, Trina Brown 5, Teena Braziel 4 and Cindy Srna 1.

The Cats were without starter Shelly Tomlin, who was on a band trip.

"The girls played well in the first two games but when you have one of your starters out it's a little different," said Coach Jan Kruse.

The Cats take a 10-3 record into their next match, scheduled against Big Spring at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Snyder.

WTC schedules cage scrimmages

"It took us thousands of years to develop a language, and now you say you don't want to TALK about it?"

DENNIS THE MENACE

"CAN YOU MAKE THESE HANDCUFFS SMALLER, DAD? RUFF WON'T STAY ARRESTED."

Hermleigh students qualify for honors

Two Hermleigh students will take the Scholastic Aptitude Test, an instrument normally taken by college-bound high school seniors. Students qualifying are Renee Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Matthews, and Rebecca Ramey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ramey.

Two other students also qualified but have chosen not to take the test. They are Cris Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones, and Simon Mireles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Mireles, Sr.

Students scoring high enough on the SAT will be invited to state and/or regional awards ceremonies and will also be awarded scholarships, counseling services and correspondence courses. Each of these students will receive "Certificates of Merit" from Duke University, Durham, N. C. for being among the top three percent of the students nationwide.

This is the seventh year for Duke University to sponsor the program. The program seeks out gifted and telented seventh grade students in 16 southern states.

To be eligible, students must score at the 97th percentile or above on a nationally-normed standardized achievement, aptitude, or mental abilities test. A student qualifies if he or she scores high enough in mathematics or language areas, or the total composite score.

Claussen set for top post

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A.W. Clausen, who began at BankAmerica Corp. as a clerk counting cash in a vault and oversaw the company's expansion in the 1970s, is returning to the top post of the embattled financial giant.

"I am eager to get at the job," said Clausen, 63, after he was named Sunday as chairman and chief executive officer for both BankAmerica Corp. and its Bank of America unit. "I don't intend to waste time looking back."

Clausen, who retired this year as president of the World Bank, replaces Samuel H. Armacost, who succeeded him and resigned Friday after five stormy years as chief executive of the nation's second-largest banking concern.

"Clausen is a strong executive who knows the company inside and out," said Don Crowley, a banking industry analyst for Keefe, Bruyette and Woods. "He's got probably as good a chance as anyone to turn it around as quickly as possible."

Joseph Arsenio of Birr, Wilson & Co. said, "Analysts, at least, are going to view Clausen's return to the bank with mixed feelings."

Clausen joined the company in 1949 as a clerk and quickly rose through its executive ranks, displaying a penchant for hard work and attention to detail.

Under Clausen's leadership from 1970 to 1981, Bank of America grew to 83,000 employees, 1,106 branches in California and 116 overseas, and had assets of $110.7 billion.

Nobel medicine prize awarded to 2 people

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An American biochemist and an Italian-American developmental biologist won the 1986 Nobel Prize in medicine today for their work contributing to the understanding and eventual treatment of cancerous tumors, senility and other conditions.

Stanley Cohen, a researcher at the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, Tenn., and Rita Levi-Montalcini of the Institute of Cell Biology C.N.R. in Rome were cited by the Nobel Assembly of Stockholm's Karolinska Institute for their discoveries of mechanisms regulating cell and organ growth.

The two, who worked together during the 1950s, have discovered bodies called "growth factors."

The awarding assembly said the discovery of growth factors was expected in the near future to result in new drugs and improved treatment of various diseases.

The two winners will split a cash stipend of 2 million Swedish kronor, about $290,000 at the current rate of exchange.

Endocrinology professor Kerstin Hall, a member of the Nobel Assembly, said at a news conference that the prize was awarded to the two researchers decades after their discoveries because "only in the last 10 years or so have the meaning of these results been investigated."

"We now stand at the threshold of being able to use this clinically," she said.

"Also, in the last decade the number of growth factors discovered has risen explosively." She said medical science now knew of 40 to 50 growth factors, thanks largely to the pioneering research of this year's winners.

The citation said Levi-Montalcini's discovery of "nerve growth factor," or NGF, was "a fascinating example of how a skilled observer can create a concept out of apparent chaos."

Ms. Levi-Montalcini, 77, was born in Italy but worked for many years in the United States. She holds dual Italian and American citizenship.

When Ms. Levi-Montalcini moved from Italy in the early 1950's to join the Viktor Hamburger Laboratory in St. Louis, Missouri, neurobiologists did not understand how the development of the nervous system was regulated, Nobel officials said.

She demonstrated in 1952 that when tumors from mice were transplanted to chicken embryos they induced rapid growth of the embryonic nervous system, the statement said.

Ms. Levi-Montalcini concluded that the tumor released a nerve-growth promoting factor that affected certain types of cells.

NGF proved to exert a potent growth-promoting effect, the citation said.

Cohen, who was born in Brooklyn, New York, was cited for his discovery of another body called "epidermal growth factor," or EGF.

The assembly said that as "a direct consequence" of the discoveries, medical science had increased its understanding of many diseases including tumors, developmental malformations, degenerative changes in senile dementia and delayed wound healing.

Cohen was educated at Brooklyn College, Oberlin College and the University of Michigan and has been a research professor of the American Cancer Society.

Cohen, who is married with three children, joined the Viktor Hamburger Laboratory in St. Louis in 1953, the statement said.

Three years later the researchers had purified a nerve growth-promoting extract from mouse tumor which contained both protein and nucleid acids.

During his work on NGF in St. Louis, Cohen discovered EGF, the statement said.

Before this year's award, 59 Americans had won the medicine prize alone or jointly since it was first awarded in 1901. Thirty-two Americans have won the prize, often awarded jointly, in the last two decades alone.

Last year's winners were American researchers Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein, both of the University of Texas in Dallas.

They were awarded the prize for research that Nobel officials said could lead to new treatment of cholesterol-related high blood pressure, arteriosclerosis and strokes.

The Nobel Prize in physiology or medicine is the first to be announced in this year's series of awards established in the will of Alfred Nobel, the Swede who invented dynamite.

He died in 1896, leaving a large fortune to be invested and finance the prizes. The prizes, along with diplomas and gold medals, are presented to the laureates on Dec. 10.

The remaining announcements this week are the Nobel Peace Prize, to be announced by the Norwegian Parliament's Nobel committee in Oslo on Tuesday; and the physics and chemistry prizes, both to be announced Wednesday by the Swedish Academy of Sciences in Stockholm.

On Thursday, the Swedish academy will also award the Alfred Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science, a late addition to the series set up and first awarded in 1969 by the Riksbank, Sweden's central bank.

No date has been set for the literature prize, which is usually announced on a Thursday in October.

The Soviet Union ended a 328-day blockade of West Berlin May 12, 1949. The blockade had been thwarted by the Western allies by use of the Berlin Airlift.

England and Spain formed an alliance in 1809 against Napoleon Bonaparte.

OPEC talks resuming amid mixed signals on progress

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC entered a second week of deliberations over production controls today amid mixed signals on the eventual outcome of a meeting that could determine the course of oil prices for the next several months.

Some officials said the cartel had made modest progress toward a new production agreement during the first seven days of talks. Yet there seemed to be little prospect of a final agreement before mid-week, if at all.

Without some sort of production control agreement by OPEC members, oil prices were expected to fall again, possibly below $10 a barrel, from their current range of $14 to $16 a barrel, economists say.

Today's session began with the ministers of Nigeria, Indonesia and the United Arab Emirates reviewing the results of weekend deliberations by OPEC's technical advisers. The full conference was expected to resume in the afternoon or on Tuesday morning.

While the 13 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries relaxed in their hotel rooms or travelled outside Geneva over the weekend, their advisers prepared a set of recommendations on how to end the cartel's costly deadlock.

But the recommendations included a variety of scenarios and were not expected to receive quick approval from the ministers, according to sources speaking on condition they not be identified.

In an apparent effort to intensify the pressure on its OPEC partners to reach agreement, Kuwait issued a formal statement Sunday underscoring its refusal to abide by a temporary OPEC production accord beyond its Oct. 31 expiration.

Many of the cartel leaders had said during last week's talks that as a last resort they would be willing to extend the temporary accord, which covered September and October only, to Dec. 31 in order to avert a possible new price decline.

Members would prefer to reach a permanent agreement on oil production controls.

Kuwait has stood alone in publicly rejecting the idea of extending the interim accord, although the nation is believed to be supported by Saudi Arabia. Kuwait says it must be given a bigger share of OPEC's overall production, starting Nov. 1.

OPEC currently produces an estimated 16.8 million barrels daily, or about 35 percent of world supplies.

Fawzi Shakshuki, the Libyan oil minister, told reporters Sunday that he felt the cartel had been making progress toward agreement on a permanent system of production controls. He declined to predict how long the ministers would continue their talks.

"We have nice weather, sunshine," he said. "Nobody is in a rush to leave."

A ministerial committee created last Tuesday on the second day of the OPEC meeting — comprised of representatives from Nigeria, Indonesia and the United Arab Emirates — was to meet today to review the recommendations of the cartel's technical advisers.

During Monday's session, commissioners also unanimously accepted changes in the county's medical plan to allow retired workers the opportunity to remain under the group plan at group rates. Each person accepting the option will be responsible for premiums incurred.

Employees and their dependents may also continue coverage up to 18 months following termination of the employee.

Additional changes now allow a spouse and children to continue coverage up to 36 months following the death of a covered employee.

A divorced or legally separated spouse and the spouse and children of a Medicare-eligible employee who discontinues the plan are also eligible for the 36-month extension. Dependent children who cease to be classified as dependent children may also accept the 36-month option.

Immigratin plans proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas state and local governments cannot afford to pay the cost of enforcing proposed new regulations for undocumented aliens, some Hispanic leaders say.

"We need 100 percent reimbursement to state and local governments," Rep. Al Luna, D-Houston, chairman of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus, told a news conference Saturday.

Luna and other Hispanic spokesman held the news conference to voice their opposition to several provisions of the immigration reform measure now in a House-Senate conference committee in Washington.

The Saturday session came after the conference committee in Washington recessed until Tuesday. One of its last moves was to reach tentative agreement limiting how much federal money would go to states and cities for enforcing the act.

"This will still leave state and local government holding the bag for the rest of the cost," Luna said, "after all we have been through in this economic crisis."

Luna said Hispanic organizations want the federal government to pay the entire cost of any compromise bill.

Luna told the news conference he expressed the feelings of the caucus, the Southwest Voters Registration Project, Mexican American Demcrats of Texas, and Mexican American Chambers of Commerce concerning the compromise talks..

Willie Velasquez of the voter registration project criticized the House-Senate conference committee for refusing to allow Hispanic organizations to take part in the negotiations.

"They should listen to people from the fastest growing population in the United States," he said.

Day started banal, but turned dramatic

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — It was a day that began looking boringly predictable, turned feverishly expectant and ended in gloom.

President Reagan on Sunday tried to cheer things up as he departed nearly five hours late with a joke about Nancy keeping dinner for him, and promised: "We're going to continue the effort" to abolish nuclear weapons.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who was staying until today, said, "We can still do business with Reagan."

As the super summit circus began packing up its wires and satellite dishes and leaving Reykjavik to its quiet ways, there was no question that a remarkable day had passed into history. The two superpower leaders had come close to agreements that would all but banish nuclear weapons, only to see them collapse over the "Star Wars" issue.

The second and last day of the Reykjavik summit promised no surprises. Both sides had agreed to a news blackout, and the general feeling was that nothing earthshaking would be announced.

In the morning, Reagan drove from his lodgings at the U.S. Embassy to the Hofdi, the house on Reykjavik Bay chosen for the summit, to meet with Gorbachev, who was coming from the boat on which he was staying in Reykjavik harbor.

The atmosphere was so relaxed that security was loosened to allow a 100-yard-wide line of peace demonstrators to stand opposite the Hofdi behind a phalanx of police and orange-coated volunteer guards.

As midday approached, a dozen campaigners for Soviet Jewry arrived.

Earthquake relief efforts under way

by The Associated Press

Texas merchants, mindful of the relief needs after last year's devastating Mexico City earthquake, moved quickly to begin collecting supplies and donations to aid the victims of Friday's tremor in El Salvador.

"We helped the people of the Mexico earthquake and we want to help the Salvadorans as well," said Eddie Garcia, the owner of a Fort Worth record store.

Many of the people making donations were Salvadorans, Garcia told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

He collected several hundred dollars from customers in just a few hours on Saturday. Clothing, food and other items also were piling up in his shop, which stayed open on Sunday.

Several other locations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area also were accepting contributions of money and goods for eventual distribution by the Red Cross.

Spanish-language radio station KESS-FM was interrupting regular programming with news updates about the Salvadoran quake and pleas for donations.

More than $6,000 was collected by late Saturday at a restaurant where the station was conducting a remote broadcast.

In Houston, where the Salvadoran community numbers about 80,000, radio stations also were helping ccoordinate the relief effort.

"We've had a great response," said Nohemy Rios, a spokeswoman for El Salvador's consular office. She said one Cuban businessman donated $50,000 worth of medicine.

"We're asking for things the Red Cross wants, like oxygen, anesthesia and antibiotics," Rios explained. "Right now, blood and plasma are one of the major things."

Salvadoran refugees in Houston also sought information from the consulate on the fate of their relatives in the Central American country.

Computerized system to monitor highways

HOUSTON (AP) — A $275 million computerized traffic "cop" system designed to watch the city's busiest highways will soon be on the lookout for hazardous traffic conditions of one freeway, officials say.

By using cameras, sensors and overhead message signs, the system can close lanes and alert drivers to accidents or vehicle breakdowns, which together cause half of all traffic delays, said Dick McCasland of the Texas Tranportation Institute.

Although the first leg of the surveillance system will be operational in about a month on the Katy Freeway transitway, a section of Interstate 10, city officials said it will take nearly 20 years before the system can command some 514 miles of Houston's busiest highways.

"The magnitude of it is what sometimes boggles my mind," said Dexter Jones, a traffic design engineer for the Texas highway department's Houston district.

Jones has spent a dozen years planning "probably the most comprehensive system in the world ... and we've got about 17 or 18 years to go. I won't ever see it finished in my working life. The max I can work is 11 more years."

The system involves buried sensors that can detect a car slowing because of a problem such as a blown tire. The sensors prompt a nearby television camera to focus on the incident.

Next, a human controller watching a TV monitor miles away eyes the problem, sends electronic warnings for drivers and dispatches help.

"It's almost like you're looking down the throat of a person down there," said A.W. "Ace" Adkins Jr., Metropolitan Transit Authority's manager of communications engineering.

Similar systems exist in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York, Denver, Detroit, New Orleans, Dallas and suburban Washington D.C., officials said.

Metro's computers will be capable of opening and closing transitway gates, changing message signs and sounding alarms whenever the average speed on a lane drops too low.

Transitways are one-way express lanes on freeways used during rush hour by buses and car pools. Traffic on the lane heads into the city in the morning and away from it after work.

A computerized system was once used on part of Interstate 45, but the signs and cameras were dismantled when the Texas highway department began rebuilding the freeway, McCasland said.

McCasland agreed with the move, saying a computer system "will never match adding capacity."

"You're still going to have accidents; you're still going to have disabled vehicles and it's still going to be overloaded," he said. "That's where we need (a computer surveillance system). We haven't seen a freeway that doesn't develop problems."

Chemical Pump Service Serves Many Oil Patch Needs

Chemical Pump Service, owned locally by Tom Machen, serves the needs of the oil patch, by carrying a full line of Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors. The 4100 Series Texsteam Injectors are positive displacement, plunger-type pumps which are gear driven and utilize electric motors, V-belts or other rotating drives as the power source. The unit's gear drive is housed in a precision-bored, heavy cast iron case with anti-friction bearings on the high speed shaft. The output gear, made of high strength alloy iron, is supported in a special bearing arrangement assuring extremely long life with maximum rigidity.

The entire worm-gear drive mechanism runs in a lubricant bath for longer operating life, even under the most adverse operating conditions.

The Texsteam 4100 Series can by used for chemical injection and for handling corrosive fluids.

Because these units can be equipped with from one to eight heads, a wide range of additives may be accurately handled from one installation. This versatile pump has found wide acceptance for use in refineries, LACT units, salt water floods, tank batteries, process plants and in water treatment for boilers

The Texsteam 4100 Series Injectors are easy to install. No expensive foundation or piping is required. These pumps will give you many years of economical and trouble-free service.

In addition to Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors, they also carry Western, Calgon and Percision Pumps and Bendix, Wico, Fairbanks Morse and American Bosch Magnetos.

Also ask about Magneto sells and repair as well as Poulan and Shindaiwa chain saws and all types of chain saw sharpening.
