AIR SERVICE APPROPRIATION IS $50,000,000

Rivers and Harbors Remembered in Measure Passed House Today.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The annual war department appropriation bill carrying $339,581,924, an increase of $6,965,293 over current appropriations, was passed today by the house.

The measure provides for an enlisted personnel of 118,750 and officer personnel of 12,000.

An appropriation of $50,000,000 for continuing the work of the air service and river and harbor projects were carried in the bill.

NEW CENTRAL WARD SCHOOL IS ASSURED

A practically fireproof, fourteen-room, mission style school building will be ready for the occupancy of the Central ward pupils of Ranger when school opens next September. At a meeting of Ranger School Board last night the character of the building to be erected was taken up, plans agreed upon and R. S. Glenn of Cisco elected as architect. It was definitely decided that instead of asking for a bond issue of $25,000 as first planned, they would ask for an issue of $300,000 to complete the ward building.

The site for the new building has not been selected but the site committee is busy with its investigations and doubtless will report Wednesday night when the School Board meets again. It will not be built on the site now occupied by the frame building, which houses the primary department of the third ward. This spot has been reserved for a junior high school, according to the school board and Prof. R. K. Holloway.

A vigorous campaign for the collection of delinquent taxes will be waged. This amount is large and if collected should yield sufficient funds to properly equip the junior college program and to beautify the high school grounds.

The junior college prospects came in for its share of attention, and it was agreed by all present that the establishment of a junior college in Ranger would be the greatest asset to the town and it was felt that all classes would gladly respond to the efforts of the school board to make Ranger junior college the outstanding institution of its kind in this section. The school board itself will leave no stone unturned in providing the equipment and faculty, both equal to the best in the state, to the end that the high schools of this section will have an opportunity equal to the best, within reach of all.

On Wednesday night when the board meets plans of the architect will be adopted and the site decided upon. Work on the new building will be rushed as rapidly as possible.

Special Correspondence.
HOUSTON, Feb. 16.—The wildcat test of the Roxana Petroleum Company, on the western edge of the Clements State farm in Brazoria county has a fair showing of oil at 540 feet. Preparations are being made to test it.

From present indications the Roxana has proven up to existence of another salt dome structure in Brazoria county. The Roxana's 1 Clements State farm, down 3,608 feet and located some three-quarters of a mile of No. 1 Kropp, has encountered some formation. It was decided to verify the findings and existence of the structure by drilling a hole on top of the hill and location was made for the Kropp test.

Pioneer of North Texas, Who Knew Lincoln Is Dead

By United Press.
FORT WORTH, Feb. 16.—The body of J. D. White, 96 years old, friend of Lincoln and pioneer in North Texas, was forwarded to Decatur Tuesday morning for burial.

White was born in Greenville, Ill., June 5, 1830, and came to Texas from St. Louis in 1850, making the trip in twenty days on horseback. He settled at Dallas when there was but one store and one saloon, and town lots were selling for $3 each.

A member of Governor Throckmorton's command, White served for many years on the Texas frontier, driving back the Indians and making way for the first white settlers. He was personally acquainted with three Presidents of the Republic of Texas and had shaken the hand of every Texas governor with the exception of the first two.

COOLIDGE POWERLESS IN MEXICO

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President Coolidge does not feel that this country can remedy conditions in such resorts as Tia Juana, Mexico, it was said at the white house today.

The president's spokesman said that "no law could be passed barring citizens of this country from crossing the Mexican border, and so long as Americans showed a desire to seek such places for amusement, this government was powerless to prevent outrages."

Former Resident Reads Times And Enjoys Paper

Mrs. J. M. Rust of Abilene, a resident of Ranger for nearly forty years sends a check for her subscription to the Ranger Daily Times, together with a letter in which she states that she enjoys the paper very much.

Mrs. Rust also writes, "I still have a home in Ranger, have children living there and have many loved ones resting in the silent city. I enjoyed the picture and the piece in The Times about Mr. and Mrs. Budd Irwin. Those good people will never know the influence they had over the younger folks. May their lives be a blessing to the community in which they now live, just as they were in dear old Ranger, when we all enjoyed pleasures and hardships in the days that have gone."

DIVES OPEN IN TIA JUANA; PROBE FARCE

By United Press.
TIA JUANA, Mex., Feb. 16.—Tia Juana drinking dives, gambling dens and brothels run wide open today despite the announcement of Mexican officials that most of the places had been closed.

American investigators at Tia Juana sent to probe into the death of the Petet family and avenge the outrages against American tourists deplored the situation and frankly pronounced what they termed the "white washing" methods of the Mexican authorities.

"Not a thing has been done to clean up Tia Juana," declared the head of a group of private detectives, sent here from Atlanta, Ga., by cotton brokers to investigate the death of F. M. N. George.

"The Petet affair and other outrages against Americans are being white-washed by the Mexican investigators. None of the dives have been closed, and the painted women are still on the job," they said.

The Mexican officials will not claim the dives because it would mean the loss of thousands of dollars in revenue to them.

Piedgas Negras School Without Any Teachers Former Head States

By United Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 16.—There are seven religious refugees from Mexico now at Eagle Pass, according to Rev. J. A. Phillips, who is among the number. Two Catholic nuns are among them.

Other refugees are reported traveling towards the border in compliance with the order, said to have originated with President Calles.

Rev. J. L. Phillips, president of the People's institute of Piedras Negras, across the Rio Grande, and seven teachers of the college crossed into this city Monday.

The school was established in 1912 and has been supported by the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

The action of the government follows others which have been promulgated against Catholic priests, but it is believed to be the first ousting of Protestants.

More than 200 students were left without tutelage when the teachers departed. Mexican officials immediately took charge of the stucco buildings which has housed the institution.

The Rev. Mr. Phillips has made no statement concerning the report he will make to his church.

The decree in Mexico which forbids foreign Catholic priests from presiding over churches in the republic is being extended to churches and educational institutions of all denominations, as is the decree which provides that pastors and educational workers must be married. The Eagle Pass institution is the first Protestant school affected by promulgation of the decree.

The Piedras Negras college was in a flourishing condition.

RANGER'S FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

Every town in Texas can practically fix its fire insurance rates. The towns that follow out their insurance of the fire marshal by teaching fire prevention in schools and several other things along with constructing houses that will pass inspection and carefully guarding against carelessness in general and keeping a lookout for incendiaries usually have a low rate. The fire record of the town also has a lot to do with it.
Ranger has made some progress, but not enough to get the rates down to where they should be. Ranger has one of the most efficient departments of any town near its size in the state.
The three years record in Ranger is against it. In the past three years the rag town houses, temporary structures that were erected here during the oil camp days like barriers were burned away. Because of their destruction, which was a blessing in disguise, the rates remain higher than they should be.

There are other improvements to be made before Ranger's fire rates can come down.

Ranger must get busy and comply with the rules. Low fire insurance rates is a big asset to any town. Just what other improvements are needed except that of a stronger pump, we don't know. But we do want Ranger to keep busy on the question of getting cheap insurance.

THAT BRICK PLANT.

It will not be a great while before Ranger will have a modern brick plant that will give employment to a large number and lengthen the payroll. However, Ranger needs something else besides brick plants. She needs paving and sidewalks.

It will not be long before Ranger bricks will be used in the construction of buildings all over Texas, and in the laying of highways all over Texas. When that brick plant is in operation, some of the paving brick should be used in constructing streets here. The brick plant is a big thing for Ranger and is a feather in the cap of Secretary Patterson of the Chamber of Commerce who landed it.
More brick highways, laid with Ranger brick ought to be built. The new brick plant may mean more paving.
More paving means an extension of the free mail delivery system.

Ranger must have something else besides cheap fuel to attract newcomers. She must have good brick residences, pavement and sidewalks.

R. M. H. S. L. I. R. S.

STREET LIGHTS.

Street lights in the residential section is as necessary as schoolhouses, churches, sidewalks and civic clubs.
The number of lighted streets to be found in a city reflect the civic pride of its people. Street lights in the residential section show up a far off.
A traveler approaching a town at night on the train or in an automobile is attracted by well-lighted streets.
A town that is well-lighted is like a beacon light to a sailor. In this Ranger is behind as well as in sidewalks and should have them. This may be taken up through the various civic clubs and the Chamber of Commerce.
Some way could be found to have at least one are light placed on every other block through the residential section.

Let's have more light.

EASTLAND COUNTY NEEDS MORE HOGS.

The question of having a carload or two of pure-bred gilts distributed throughout the county should be solved by the business men and bankers of Eastland county. Eastland county must feed herself, which she can do and will do. More hogs raised in Eastland county means more money in the bank throughout the year. The farmer who raises his own meat and feed is a leader, not a borrower. Hogs and milch cows will put Eastland county out in the front.

If the farmers and bankers of the county will take the production of pork and dairy products up and get behind the movement, the markets will be easily found. Milk trucks like are used between Fort Worth, Dallas and Decatur soon will be plying up and down the Bankhead highway.

A cigarette made with P. A. burns better

P. A. makes one of the finest cigarettes a fellow ever smoked. It rolls easier because Prince Albert is crimp-cut and stays put. Doesn't blow all over the place. For the same reason, a P. A. cigarette burns better . . . doesn't die the instant you lay it down.

Try rolling 'em with P. A. Me-o-my, what a smoke! Cool as a cucumber.
Fragrant as locust blossoms. Sweet as a melon. Never a tongue-bite or a throatparch, because the Prince Albert process took a firm stand on that matter right at the start of P. A.'s career.

The more you know about rolling cigarettes, the more you appreciate this better cigarette tobacco. Yes, Sir—Prince Albert for home-rolled cigarettes every time. Get yourself a tidy red tin or a tippy red bag of P. A. before you do another thing!

Incidentally, if you want to get genuine pleasure out of a jimmy-pipe, pack it with P. A. Many a man has learned that he can smoke a pipe (and enjoy it) with good old P. A. for packing. There's a P. A. sunshine shop just around the corner! Get going, Man!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins and tippy red bags. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

Women Here See That G. F. P. Really Restores Vitality

Many Tell of Remarkable Quick Gains in Weight and Health Since They Have Begun to Use It.

When women seem so anxious to let their friends and fellow women know how St. Joseph's G. F. P. has caused them to gain in weight and strength no further proof of the startling success of this great medicine seems necessary. It is getting to be a common occurrence to hear women, who were formerly thin and frail, gaining strength so rapidly as to astonish their friends and family and cause them to wonder how it could be done.

When they are asked for an explanation of this unusual change in their condition, they invariably attribute it to the phenomenal medicine, G. F. P. "I am now on my third bottle and have gained six pounds," says one woman. "I have just finished my fourth bottle of G. F. P.," says another woman, who had been so frail and weak that her husband and children were alarmed, "and I have gained nine pounds. I am now able to sleep, eat and work like a normal woman again." There is a reason for this. The discoverers of G. F. P. believed that some mysterious malady is causing most of the ailments from which women suffer. After years of painstaking search their efforts were rewarded by the discoverers that this malady—Catastrophe of the Generative Organs is the cause of so much irregularity, pain, nervousness, headache, pains in the side and back, depression and that awful irritable feeling. It is because of its power to stamp out and destroy catarrh that G. F. P. succeeds in building up flesh and tissue and restoring health, and plenty of vitality.

Delay is dangerous where this dreaded malady is concerned, because it so quickly spreads from one organ to another, breaking down the unfortunate victim's power of resistance and creating a condition which often leads to kidney, liver and bladder troubles, and that run-down feeling which is so prevalent nowadays.

Women Now Depend on St. Joseph's G. F. P. To Restore Their Vitality

The T. E. L. class of the Central Baptist Church will entertain the Althean class, in honor of Mrs. A. L. Leake, Thursday night at the annex, at 7:30 o'clock.

The invitations are very clever, embodying the following verse, "Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight, make me a child again, just for tonight." In connection with this it is intimated that the guests and hostesses are to turn backward in the mazes of time, and be children again just for that night. The ladies with bobbed hair will dress like the modern flapper and the ladies with unshorn tresses will dress the part of the old fashioned girl. Mrs. Leake is the teacher of the Althean class.

Ranger to Plant Trees Arbor Day February 22

Prof. R. F. Holloway is the first man in Ranger to state he will be responsible for the planting of one tree on the Ranger High School grounds on Arbor Day. Ranger is to have an Arbor Day. This announcement may seem a little sudden but it was born from the impetus that the Adolphian Club's work of beautifying the high school grounds has given others who would add their bit. Several workmen now are busy preparing the beds for the shrubs and flowers the club is having put in, but the work must go further than that. Arbor Day is Monday, February 22, on Washington's birthday. What can be more suitable for the celebration of the birthday of the Father of Our Country than planting a tree.

Some one has said "He who plants a tree plants it not for himself, but for those who come after him." A tree does not grow in a day, nor a year, and the trees planted on Arbor Day in Ranger, will not mean so much to the boys and girls now in school at the high school, but they will shelter many who come after.

Trees are to be contributed. Hackberry trees are deemed the best for use dynamite to blow it out and to obtain a hole large enough for the tree.

A canvass will be made at once for gifts of trees. Any one who will voluntarily contribute a tree without waiting for a committee-man to see him, is asked to either phone Mr. Holloway at 502 or the Times Publishing company. No one is asked to contribute more than one tree but everyone who can is asked to back up this Arbor Day tree planting at least with one tree.

So far as is known it is the first time that Arbor Day has been celebrated in Ranger since the beginning of the boom and the spirit of the idea is contagious. It grips you. You see the barren high school grounds green with the leaves of trees. You see boys and girls who now munch their lunch in the shade of the school house walls, loitering under the shade of trees—trees that were made possible by the generosity of Ranger men and women—for the ladies are in on this too.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Southern Skies Lure Amateurs From Colleges

By HENRY L. FARRELL
 (United Press Sports Editor)
 NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Influence of southern sunshine is beginning to have a most surprising result upon amateur sport. The desire for publicity has caused promoters of fashionable watering place enterprises to invade the field of athletics for names that look good in print.

Florida lured Red Grange and Ernie Nevers from the college football field and enticed three of the greatest girl swimmers in the United States from the amateur ranks.

From actual returns, the promoters lost money on their investment in Grange and Nevers but the value of the publicity derived was worth infinitely more than it cost them.

The surprising way in which star athletes can be used for publicity purposes was shown recently in southern France, the "Florida" of the old continent, when Helen Wills and Miss Suzanne Lenglen were playing tennis with the French girl holding the role of—your catch me.

It was openly charged in Nice that hotel men in the Riviera district had influence enough to bring about the delay to the last very minute of the season of any possibility that the two girls could meet for the world's tennis championship.

They, it was charged, realized the world wide publicity that the presence of Miss Wills was attracting to the Riviera district and they wanted to keep it going. They feared that if they met in one of the earlier tournaments of the season the American champion would be beaten and the rest of the season would be a bust.

Indefinite postponement of any chance that the two stars could meet could be brought about in a perfectly legitimate, if slightly unethical way.

All that had to be done was to announce that the English ball would be used in every tournament but the last one of the season as the American girl had let it be known that she would not play with the English ball and she had been given to understand that in practically all of the winter tournaments the French or American ball was used.

There was no disposition to criticize Miss Wills or suspect Miss Lenglen. No one questions the honesty and the pure amateurism of the American champion and if she did become a pawn in the game it was the result of her inexperience.

 CANNES, France, Feb. 16.—Suzanne Lenglen today defeated Helen Wills in the Carlton club tennis tournament finals, 6-3, 8-6. Stop Night Cough This New Way

Quick Relief Thru Simple Treatment

Thousands who have been unable to sleep nights due to irritating night coughing can now obtain practically instant relief and sleep soundly the very first night—through a simple but wonderfully effective treatment.

This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at bed-time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real causes of night coughing. So with the throat soothed and cleared, coughing stops quickly, you sleep undisturbed, and the entire cough condition soon disappears.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

Mistrial Entered In Ellison Case Against Humble

The jury in the case of Mrs. M. V. Ellison against the Humble Oil & Refining company in the Ninety-first district court was unable to agree and was discharged Monday afternoon. Mrs. Ellison was suing for $104,000 as the value of one-eighth of the gasoline produced from cadsinghead gas that came from wells drilled on the Ellison farm in the Desdemona field.

The issue was whether or not casinghead gasoline is oil. Chemists from Fort Worth and Austin testified. Grisham Bros. of Eastland represented the plaintiff while the Humble was represented by Scott W. Key of Eastland and Tines Baker of Houston.

The optimist and the pessimist merely look at life through different ends of the telescope.

THE YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

Henry Rand, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theatre ticket.

Jimmy Rand, his son, goes to Waterton, where the theatre is. The stub is traced to a Thomas Fogarty, who says he gave it to Olga Maynard, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with Mary Lovell. Later he encounters Olga Maynard, who faints when she learns she is wanted for murder. Mary, out with Samuel Church, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga in a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief were hers but might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Waterton. He is followed one evening and in the fight that follows is getting the best of his opponent when he hears someone running toward them in the darkness.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: CHAPTER XVIII.

The patter of running feet drew nearer, but the darkness, intensified by the drizzling rain, was like an impenetrable screen, and Rand, with eyes straining, waited for the invisible runner to draw nearer to the light.

The man who had collapsed against the wall was gathering himself together. Jimmy Rand, looking off into the darkness, had his back to him and did not see the stealthy approach, the huge outstretched paws.

A sudden sound behind him caused him to turn just in time to escape the other's grasp. Once more he backed away from his opponent.

A form took shape out of the darkness at his back. "Plug him, Kid!" There was the light of recognition in the big man's eyes. "Plug him, Kid, plug him!"

Jimmy wheeled and caught a fleeting glimpse of a dark face and twisted nose and light glinting from a revolver. Without an instant's pause he left his feet and launched his flying body straight at the legs of the newcomer.

The man's feet shot from under him and he fell to the sidewalk, his right hand still brandishing the revolver. He scrambled wildly to his feet, but the catapult that had struck him had risen in a flash and was flying down the street. He raised his hand and fired.

Rand was twisting and dodging in his flight. The shots went wild. Jimmy pulled up, panting, at the gate in front of his rooming house and ran swiftly up the walk to the porch. There he waited and listened, but there was no pursuit; evidently his assailant had decided to leave before some policeman, attracted by the sound of shots, should appear to spoil their plans.

He opened the front door, went in and slammed it shut, and then stood leaning against it, breathing deeply.

The slamming door brought Mrs. King, the landlady. "Oh, it's you, Mr. Rand—why, Mr. Rand, you're hurt!" Her hands, buried in the capacious pocket in the front of her gingham apron, were hastily withdrawn. They fluttered helplessly about her head. "You're bleeding."

"Someone tried to hold me up, I guess, but I got away all right. My ear's cut a little; that's the only damage I think."

He moved to the telephone. "I'm going to call the police," Mrs. King, in a high state of excitement, left and returned a little later with a basin of water and a towel.

He hung up the receiver, and Mrs. King, in spite of his protests, proceeded to wash away the blood that had oozed on his cheek and neck.

"There was a telephone call for you yesterday, Mr. Rand."

"Who was it?" he asked. "I don't know. I thought it was queer at the time. A man called and asked for you. I said you had left town."

"Was that all?" "Was that all?" "Oh, no. He said, 'Oh, is that so?' and then I told him that you would be back in a day or so. He said, 'Oh, he will, he will' and hung up."

"And that was all he said?" "Yes, that was all. It was just the way that he said 'Oh, he will, he will' that struck me as being queer."

Jimmy had risen. "What do you mean, Mrs. King, when you say it sounded queer?"

"Why, I—I don't just know how to explain it. The man sounded disappointed, in a way, when I told him you were coming back. No, not exactly that, either. Not disappointed, but sort of surprised. I—I didn't like his tone."

"You mean he sounded as if he expected I had left town and was rather taken aback to learn I was returning. Is that it?"

"Yes, you've put it just right. I suppose I'm foolish to imagine things like that. It might have been a good friend of yours—although I should think he'd given his name."

Jimmy was on his way up the stairs. "I don't think you're imagining anything, Mrs. King. I don't know who it was that called, but you may be sure it wasn't a friend."

He turned away. "I'm going to take a bath. Is there plenty of hot water?"

"Yes, Mr. Rand. And you'll find liniment in the medicine chest."

"By the way," he added, "I expect Lieutenant O'Day, a police officer. When he comes show him to my room, please. And—oh yes, Mrs. King, the next time you get a queer telephone call for me will you not the chief operator and ask her to try to trace it?"

He was gone up the steps, leaving his landlady—hands locked together in her large apron pockets, mouth agape—agonized with curiosity.

"And now tell me all about this little party you had, me lad," Lieutenant O'Day comfortably seated in an armchair, removed a fat black cigar from his cap and asked for a match.

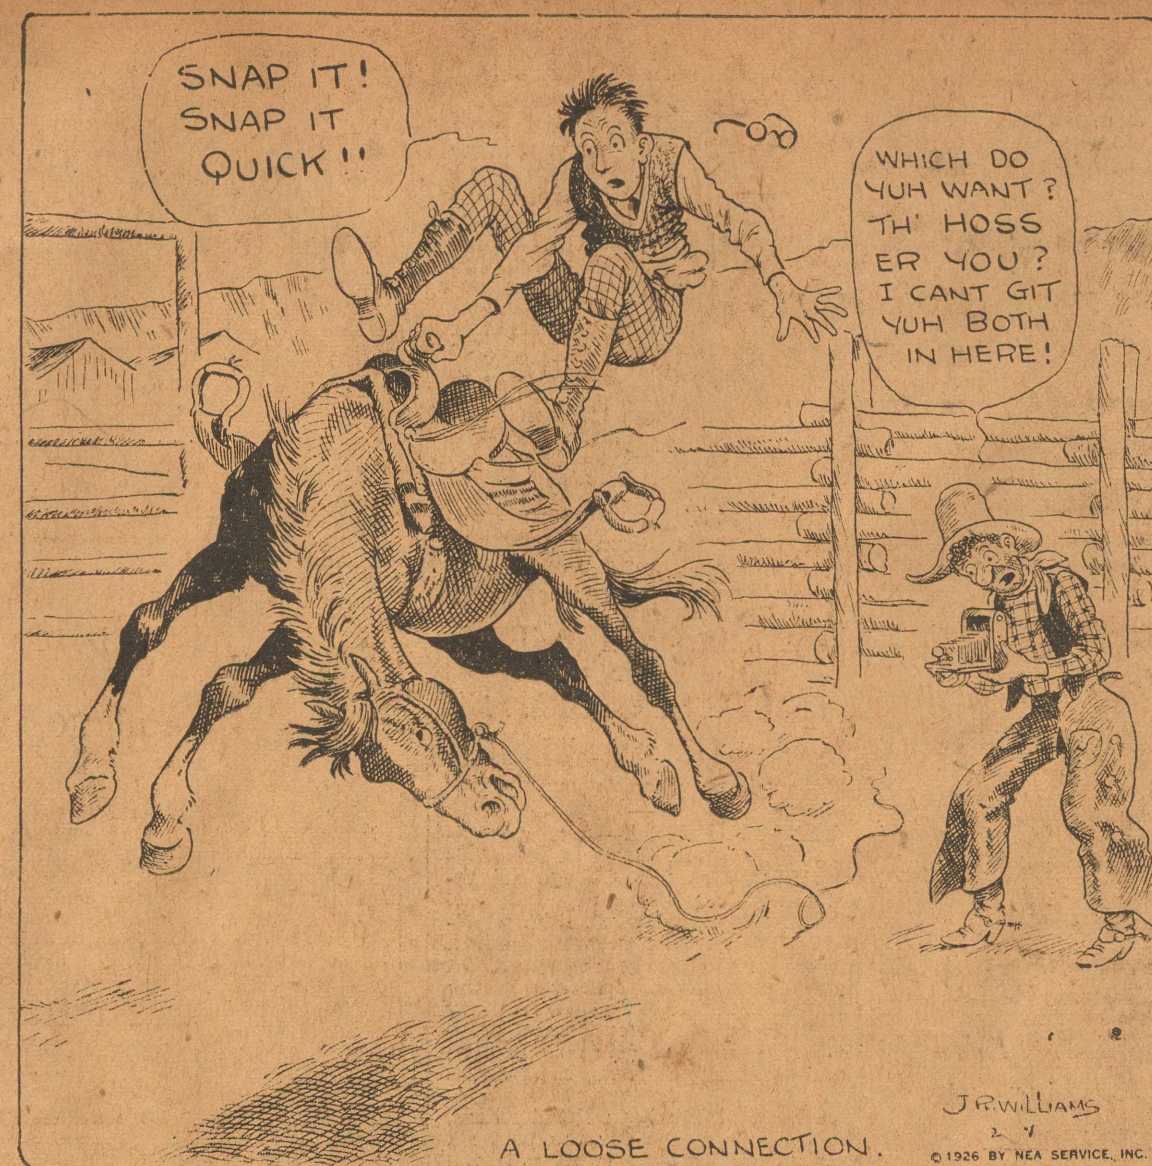

"It's against the regulations—smoking on duty before midnight, but I was never one to look a regulation in the eye when my system's crying out for the weed. Rand, don't take things too—what is it, now?—too literal."

Jimmy, propping himself up on the bed with a couple of pillows, a bathrobe covering his pajamas and his feet thrust in a pair of felt bedroom slippers, laughed and lit a cigar for himself.

"It's not the breaking of regulations that counts so much, lieutenant, but the spirit in which they're broken. I'm glad to find that you don't take things too literally."

"But here's what happened," and he told O'Day of the adventure he had just been through, beginning with the first of those premonitions that had made him so nervous and ending with his flight from the man with the gun.

Relief at Once

"I was subject to constipation, my kidneys were out of order and I was run-down and nervous. I could hardly get along. I was advised by my physician to try Lyko. I got relief at once," is what R. Stegler of Mississippi reports.

Could Not Eat—Now Well

Walter Schultz of San Francisco says: "For many years I tried everything to build me up. I was run-down in health, could not eat, my condition was very bad. A friend recommended Lyko. Today I am a happy man. I have got my health back."

"I got off pretty easy at that," he finished, exhibiting his torn ear. "Just this and a bruised shoulder."

"And what do you make of it?" asked O'Day.

"I'll tell you after you give me your opinion."

O'Day puffed reflectively on his cigar. "Hm-m-m. Did you say this fellow with the gun came running from the direction of this house here?"

"Yes. Evidently he was a partner of the other man."

"Yeah, no question about that. Well, Rand, it might have been a holdup. The smaller fellow with the gun went around the block to head you off at your house and the other man trailed you. They had you headed off both ways. The trouble is you upset their plans by not waiting. You get away with it because you surprised this guy off his feet."

"You say you think it might have been a holdup, but doesn't it strike you as funny that those men should know where I lived?"

"Well, yes. Mind you, I said it MIGHT have been an attempted trivance of leather with a crudely fashioned handle and a heavily weighted end.

O'Day pulled out a pocket knife and ripped the stitches. "Filled with emery," he said after a short inspection. "Heavy" as lead almost, and in a strong man's hands capable of breaking a skull without cutting the scalp. It's home-made, who proves that the owner knew what he wanted with it."

He bit his cigar viciously. "Ran, who in the devil's behind this?"

"Find the man that murdered my father and I'll tell you," said Jimmy.

"You mean the same people who got your father after you?"

"Exactly. Somebody's afraid I'm going to find out something. Perhaps wherever it is thinks that because I'm here in Waterton I know more than I do. And another reason for connecting the two. I blieve it is more than a coincidence that the weapon that killed my father was, as far as we've been able to make out, exactly like that black-jack there. It might even have been the same one, Lieutenant."

Big Yellow Hound Brings Evidence To Jail with Him

Not many culprits present themselves at the police station with the goods on themselves, but this canine did. He was a big yellow hound, and early this morning was seen standing in front of the police station in Ranger, with a yellow chicken foot and leg under his paw, as if he was waiting judgment. Doubtless he stole the chicken, devoured all but the feet and conscience stricken was awaiting execution at the hands of Wade Swain's firing squad this morning, but he had presented the corpus delicti, voluntarily confessed, his guilt and thrown himself on the mercy of the court; his sentence was probably "go and sin no more."

New Hospital Needed at C. of I. A., Insures Health

DENTON, Feb. 16.—A new hospital to insure the health of hundreds of students at the College of Industrial Arts is being urged by Dr. Jessie Louise Hirsch, C. I. A. physician. The present accommodations, she said, are entirely inadequate. In view of a probable increase in the number of students and a possibility of the occurrence of epidemics, proper care cannot be given to half of those attending C. I. A., she pointed out.

A hospital has been listed among the C. I. A. needs for the past six years. Dr. Hirsch expressed the need for a fifty-bed hospital and modern appliances for laboratories.
