MAJOR ACCIDENT — If the men inside this car had not been dummies, they would have stood little chance of survival. Fortunately, they and the car were just part of a stunt in the filming of the movie "Hangar 18-UFO Affair." Crowds lined the perimeter of the filming, and waited for hours until all systems were go for the stunt. Everything went without a hitch, and the film crews had another "car gag" in the can.

Militants given option on captives

Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council on Saturday told the militants holding the U.S. Embassy they must let a United Nations commission interview the American hostages or turn them over to the Iranian Foreign Ministry.

The council announced its order following a four-hour meeting Saturday night after an arrangement collapsed for the transfer of the 50 of so Americans to the Iranian foreign minister.

Tehran radio quoted the militants as saying that regardless of who guards the hostages, their fate must be decided by the new Iranian parliament to be established next month. The militants' conditions for surrendering the hostages remained unclear, and a spokesman said no decision was expected until Sunday.

The militants earlier refused to turn over the hostages to Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh as scheduled, saying he had lied in asserting that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had approved the transfer.

Revolutionary Council spokesman Hassan Habibi, speaking after the late meeting, said the council agreed the best place for the hostages was inside the embassy, where they have been held by the militants for 127 days. But Habibi said the council decided the Foreign Ministry would take custody unless the militants obeyed the council's order to let the hostages meet the 5-member U.N. commission investigating Iran's grievances against the former shah.

In Washington, President Carter was described as dejected over what the administration saw as continuing confusion in Iran. He also was said to be willing to consider making a public expression of concern over past events in Iran in an effort to end the crisis.

Tehran Radio reported tens of thousands of Iranians demonstrated for the third straight day outside the embassy in support of the militants. The demonstrators chanted slogans and urged the militants not to transfer the Americans. They also demanded the Iranian government not compromise with the United States.

The radio also reported demonstrations in support of the students in the cities of Tabriz, Shiraz and Ardebil.

A spokesman for the militants, contacted by telephone, said they might refuse to transfer the hostages altogether if support for their stand continued to build. But other statements from the militants said they had agreed to surrender the Americans.

The major point of contention appeared to be the designation of Ghotbzadeh to receive the hostages. The militants said they would turn over the Americans to another representative of the council, but not to the foreign minister.

In a day of confusion and conflicts that seemed to be building toward another confrontation between the militants and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's government, this was the sequence of events.

— Tehran radio quoted Ghotbzadeh as saying he would "receive" the hostages, held since Nov. 4, following the "order of the Imam," Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and with "the approval of the Revolutionary Council, which was unanimous."

— The militants said they would turn over control of the Americans to council representatives headed by Ghotbzadeh at 5 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EST).

— Only hours before the transfer, Khomeini's office issued a statement denying the revolutionary leader had approved the move.

— The militants balked, saying Ghotbzadeh had falsely claimed the transfer had been approved by Khomeini, and no turnover was possible with the foreign minister in charge.

— Ghotbzadeh announced he would address the nation sometime Saturday night.

— Tehran radio reported tens of thousands of Iranians demonstrated for the third straight day outside the embassy in support of the militants.

— A spokesman for the militants, contacted by telephone, said they might refuse to transfer the hostages altogether if support for their stand continud to build.

— Well-informed sources in Paris said Ghotbzadeh was planning to go to the embassy in the afternoon, but that the demonstration by Tehran University students might prevent him from entering the building.

— The 5 p.m. transfer time passed without Ghotbzadeh appearing at the embassy. Hours later, Tehran radio reported no one from the government had arrived at the mission.

Reagan takes commanding lead

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for clear-cut victory over the Republican presidential field in South Carolina's GOP primary Saturday night. Former Texas Gov. John Connally, who described the contest as the "real start" of his campaign, was running a distant second.

George Bush was third, far behind the leaders.

NBC and CBS News projected that Reagan would win decisively.

The 1980 presidential campaign shifted below the Mason-Dixon Line as South Carolina Republicans held their first primary. Reagan and Connally were already in Florida on Saturday, searching for support in Tuesday's primary contests. Both voiced confidence in the South Carolina outcome.

With 33 percent of South Carolina's 1,675 GOP precinct's reported, Reagan claimed 19,455 votes — 54 percent. Connally had 9,817 votes for 27 percent, while Bush claimed 6,189 votes for 17 percent.

It was overcast and raining throughout South Carolina, but Republican Party officials said the turnout was high and would run about 100,000.

Dan Ross, the state party chairman, said the turnout in rural areas was "exceeding anything we've ever seen."

At stake were 25 delegates to the Republican National Convention in July and whatever psychological advantage a South Carolina victory would give the candidates when voters in Alabama, Florida and Georgia go to the polls Tuesday.

"I have a feeling of optimism," said Reagan, who also had his own poll showing him running well ahead of Bush and Connally.

The former Texas governor and his backers in the state described the contest as between Connally and Reagan, saying that "a vote for George Bush is a vote for Gov. Reagan."

However, Bush said he expected to "surprise a lot of people," and made clear he would consider it a victory if he finished ahead of Connally.

Also listed on the ballot were Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who has withdrawn from the presidential race; Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, who has stopped campaigning actively; Benjamin Fernandez, Harold Stassen and Nick Belluso.

Rep. John Anderson, who ran well in the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries early in the week, was not on the South Carolina ballot.

State Democrats have precinct caucuses scheduled next Saturday to begin the process of choosing their national convention delegates.

Each of the three major GOP contenders in South Carolina had his own particular hopes for the outcome.

Reagan wanted a show of strength in a state where he has run well in the past. A strong start in the Southern primaries would give the former California governor the chance for a sweep of the region and a healthy lead going into the March 18 Illinois primary.

Connally needed to reverse his disappointing showings in Iowa, Arkansas and New England. The Texan chose South Carolina as the battleground and campaigned with two influential allies, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and former Gov. James Edwards.

Bush had the least to lose in a state he never was expected to win. The former CIA director and United Nations ambassador has concentrated his Southern efforts on Alabama and Florida and hoped a stronger than expected finish in South Carolina would boost his chances in those two states.

FEELING GOOD — A confident John Connally gestures while making a point as he talks to the press at Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday. Connally said he "feels good" about the South Carolina primary and expects to show the nation he can overtake Ronald Reagan for the Republican Party presidential nomination.

Carter will try for balanced budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has definitely decided to balance the 1981 budget as part of his anti-inflation strategy, and may even try for a small budget surplus, administration officials say.

"I think there is a definite commitment there," said one official, who did not want to be identified. "At this point, if he doesn't come up with a balanced budget, there will be a lot of explaining to do."

A second official said that while the decision has been made, he still wasn't sure it could be done.

Final decisions will be up to Congress, and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd agreed Saturday that "there's no painless way" to trim spending.

He said Democratic leaders from both the Senate and House were meeting through the weekend with White House officials, trying to reach general agreement on how to cut programs "so we can all walk the plank together."

Officials had said previously that they were looking for ways to cut as much as $20 billion from Carter's original budget for fiscal 1981, but had not before said they were committed to balancing it. The original budget was in deficit by $15.8 billion.

The last time the federal budget was in balance was in 1969 when there was a surplus of $3.2 billion.

Also still under active consideration to help curb inflation, it was learned, are some form of credit controls and a legislative proposal to restrain the growth of Social Security benefits.

The change for Social Security would limit the rise in benefits to possibly 85 percent of the increase in the Consumer Price Index. They now are increased to fully reflect the annual rise in the CPI, although with a delay.

The details of the credit controls are murky even to those who think the administration will propose them. But it was understood they would not include any limits on credit for home and aito purchases.

Such a change would have to be approved by Congress, however, which is no sure bet in an election year.

Other possibilities which have been considered, but are less likely, are elimination of revenue sharing payments to the states and asking Congress to give the Council on Wage and Price Stability authority to require advance notice of price increases by large businesses.

Final decisions on the anti-inflation package still had not been made by the president, but one official said he thought they would be virtually complete early in the week and that Carter might unveil the plan in a speech at mid-week.

Faculty, administrators given salary increases

Across-the-board 15 percent increases were granted to faculty members and administrators of Howard College by the college board of trustees in their meeting Friday.

In addition to the raises voted Dr. Charles Hays and members of his administrative staff, the college president will get an extra $50 a month travel expense.

Jimmy Taylor, a board member, recommended that a pay incentive program be studied by the college. The motion was seconded by Dr. P.W. Malone and carried unanimously.

Jim McWilliams, one of the news reporters present, accepted an invitation to draw the names of trustee candidates out of a box to determine what order the candidates' names will be listed on the April 5 ballot. The names will appear in this order:

1. Russell Devore; 2. Curtis Strong; 3. Sally Rodriquez; 4. Ned Crandall; 5. Curtis Mullins; 6. George Weeks; 7. Harry Spannaus.

It was announced by Dr. Hays that voting booths and voting judges had been picked for the April 5 election. They are: 1 — North Side Fire Station, Dr. E.S. Morgan.

2-3-4-8-15-16-17-18-20-22 — High school vocational building, Mrs. Alton Underwood.

5 — Vincent Church, R.L. Hodnett.

6-11 — Centerpoint Community Center, Mrs. J. Amos.

7-9 — Coahoma Fire Station, Viola Bates.

10 — Forsan school, Emma Lou Baker.

12-13 — Knott Community Center, Larry Shaw.

GOPs lose in effort to negate election

WASHINGTON — The votes of the Texas delegation in Congress this week:

By a vote of 207 to 192, the House narrowly approved a bill Tuesday that sets up a new single comprehensive program to assist refugees in the United States. Previously, individual assistance programs had been authorized as they were needed, providing refuge for persecuted foreigners from Hungary, Cuba, Indochina and elsewhere.

The new legislation, which now goes to the president to be signed into law, would increase to 50,000 the number of refugees allowed to enter the country each year. It would also give the president the authority to increase that number after consultation with Congress.

FOR: Hall, Leland, Wright, Wyatt

AGAINST: Gramm, Hance, Hightower, Kazen, Leath, Pickle, Stenhoms, White, Wilson, Loeffler, De la Garza.

The house voted 241 to 153 Tuesday to dismiss a challenge against the election of Rep. Claude Leach, D-La. Republican opponents contested the election because his campaign staff had been involved in purchasing votes for $5 apiece. Leach won by only a 266-vote margin, and Republicans contended that the number of votes purchased exceeded that margin.

In what was almost straight party voting, Democrats were successful in dismissing the charges. They argued that there was no evidence that enough votes were purchased to change the outcome of the election. Although others were convicted of buying votes, a grand jury acquitted Leach of any personal involvement in November, 1979. The Jury also determinded there was no evidence that enough votes were purchased to change the outcome of the election.

FOR: De la Garza, Gramm, Hall, Hance, Hightower, Kazen, Leath, Leland, Pickle, Stenholm, White, Wilson, Wright, Wyatt

AGAINST: Loeffler

The House voted 219 to 166 Thursday to authorize an additional $2.5 billion in international development banks over the next four years.

The assistance provides increased U.S. participation multinational funding institutions. Under the authorization, the Inter-American development bank would receive the bulk of the funding, $2.7 billion, to make loans to help develop the economy of Latin American nations. Other beneficiaries would be the Asian Development Fund for $180 million and the African Development Fund for $125 million.

FOR: De la Garza, Kazen, Leland, Pickle, Wilson, Wright, Wyatt.

AGAINST: Gramm, Hall, Hance, Stenholm, White, Loeffler

NOT VOTING: Leath

There were no major votes in the Senate this week. Senate leaders had cleared time on the legislative calendar for the SALT II treaty, which has temporarily been pulled off the floor.

Workers hard to come by

Census bureau worried

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

The District Office of the U.S. Census Bureau is experiencing trouble in hiring workers in the 30-county area which Big Spring is in, Mitzi Jordan, Head of the District Census Office in Lubbock, said Friday.

"We are having trouble hiring people in the smaller communities," Jordan said, "and especially in Odessa and Midland because people there already have jobs."

Jordan added that the district office has hired enough people in the Big Spring area to complete precanvassing, which is simply verification of addresses, and the actual enumeration.

The Census Bureau is currently finishing the precanvassing portion of the enumeration. This, according to officials with the Census Bureau, is the heart of the effort.

The bureau after verifying addresses will send out forms to 90 percent of the American households on March 28. Each respondent will be asked to fill the forms out by April 1.

Census workers will then make personal calls or visits to the remaining 10 percent.

Noteworthy is that the Census Bureau is using two sets of employees. After the persons complete the precanvass, they are dismissed.

"After April 1, we will have people visit homes to help people fill out the forms," Jordan said. These employees were not to have worked the preliminary sampling.

The reason the bureau has given for dividing the work force this way is thriftiness.

"The reason I understand," Jordan said, "the government would save money."

There will be two types of forms in this census. The short form consists of seven questions asking for basic demographic data.

"The short form," Jordan said, "is more generalized. It will take about 15 minutes to complete."

The long form, on the other hand, will take about 45 minutes to complete and it inquires for more personal data, Jordan said.

Questions will deal with such things as income level, fuel use, plumbing, employment, educational level and insurance coverage.

She said that one out of every six will be given the long form. The determination of long form recipients is purely random, she added.

Nationwide the Census Bureau is reporting trouble in hiring people to work. This problem is particularly acute when it comes to hiring people to work predominately minority areas.

Jordan said the district office is not hiring enough Spanish-speaking persons to cover the Mexican-American communities.

"The minorities aren't getting high enough scores on the test," Jordan said.

Houston and Dallas offices are also reporting trouble. Cecile Harrison, Head of the Houston Inner-City Office, said her bureau needed 150 Spanish-speaking persons to work in the North Houston area but only a dozen or so persons had applied.

The low wages are one reason given for the hiring problems.

Jordan said that those working the pre-canvass and the enumerator alike will be paid $4.

Arturo Eureste of the Association for the [illegible] Americans said, "How are you going to get people in an area with an unemployment rate of only 2.5 percent to go work for you when they have to know English, be unemployed, and take your temporary job for minimum wages?"

No pre-conceived ideas of job, candidate says

Clyde Angel, who announced last week he would be a candidate for the office of Mayor of Big Spring, has issued the following statement in connection with his candidacy:

"I have lived in Big Spring for the past 51 years. During those years I was employed by the First National Bank for 17 years. I retired Jan. 1, 1976, at which time I held the office of senior vice president of the bank.

"I have no pre-conceived ideas about what should or should not be done about the operation of our city affairs. As a consequence, I will look with an open mind and as logically as I know how at the various problems if I am elected Mayor of the City of Big Spring.

"I feel my 47 years experience in the field of finance and banking qualifies me to make good decisions for a sound city government. I am aware of the importance of encouraging the development of industry and other business.

"In the past, I served six years on the board of trustees of the Big Spring Independent School District, five of those years as president of the board. I served one year as secretary of the 7th District of the Texas Bankers Association. I also served on the board and as president of the YMCA.

"Presently I am on the board of deacons at the First Baptist Church and have been for about 20 years. I am also one of the church trustees. I am on the board of directors of the First National Bank and have been for several years on the board of directors of Malone-Hogan Hospital.

I am a member of the First Baptist Church and the Downtown Lions Club. I also belong to Masonic Lodge 598 and am a Shriner Suez Temple.

"My wife and I have a son, Dr. Robert Angel, Waco.

"Since I am now retired from the banking field, I have as much time as would be necessary to devote to the City of Big Spring."

Trustee candidate can point to public service

Harry Spannaus, who filed March 3 for an elected position on the Howard College board of trustees, has issued the following statement in connection with his candidacy:

"I have been a resident of Big Spring and Howard County for over four years. During this period, I have worked closely with Howard College officials in programs of education, facility expansion, graduation exercises, and other areas related to college growth and area service, while serving in positions of Wing Commander, Webb AFB; manager, Big Spring Air-Industrial Park; Big Spring Service Center, manager; and currently, vice president, The Gerald M. Bailey Company.

"Excluding my interest in Howard College as pertained to my three children when they attended the college as part or full-time students, my primary interest is identified with the Southwest College for the Deaf; a forthcoming academic and vocational learning institution which will benefit participating students, their families, our city and county and Howard College as well.

"During the aspiration, hope and belief period that a school for the deaf was desperately needed in Texas to serve a multi-state area, I was fortunate to assist various officials in initiating procedures and plans for the development of the school and its supporting facilities. I along with other interested citizens, visited the Texas Education Agency in Austin to negotiate with proper authorities for assistance for establishing a Southwest Texas School for the Deaf in Big Spring. It was during this period of initial planning and following developments that I determined to continue my service to assist the college in its full development of the Southwest College for the Deaf.

"I assure all citizens of Howard County, students and future students of Howard College, that my interests in the Howard College Board of Trustee position expands far beyond the Southwest College for the Deaf. As your representative, my devoted interests will be in programs directly related to academic excellence, college growth, curriculum expansion, facility improvement, student benefits and care, college budgets, sports programs, college staffing, equal opportunity, affirmative actions, employee salaries and other areas which relate to the benefit, entitlement, opportunity and accessability for higher education in technical, vocational and liberal arts fields of education."

HARRY SPANNAUS

Spannaus served in the Air Force for 26 years, with his last assignment being Wing Commander, Webb AFB, prior to his retirement in January, 1978. Following his service career, Spannaus served for over a year as the Big Spring Airport and Industrial Park manager, assisting the City in developing Webb Air Force Base into a revenue producing property under the Federal Lands "Reuse Program."

Following city employment, Spannaus became manager of the Big Spring Service Center for a short period before he became employed as Vice President of The Gerald M. Bailey Company. Spannaus is a veteran of two wars, is a member of the Membership Committee, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, is past National Director of the National Association of Industrial Developers, past Vice President of the South West American Association of Airport Executives, a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Big Spring and program chairman, Permian Basin Chapter of the Air Force Association.

Bentsen says it's only way

Emphasis on productivity

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas and chairman of the prestigious Joint Economic Committee, testified Thursday that a 1980 tax cut should be used to promote U.S. productivity by providing incentives for business development.

Bentsen told the Senate Budget committee, which will decide what financial measure to propose to Congress, that an emphasis on productivity is the way to hold down the twin evils of unemployment and inflation.

"The committee recommends a comprehensive set of policies designed to enhance the productive side, the supply side of the economy," he said.

Bentsen said U.S. firms are losing the battle of productivity — which is a calculation of the economy's growth of goods and services each year — to such nations as Japan and West Germany.

"Productivity growth would help hold the line on inflation by boosting our output of goods and services," he said. "One of the three primary reasons our productivity has been going at a downhill rate — along with inadequate investment capital and excessive government regulation — is the decline in research and development."

Bentsen said the Joint Economic Committee, which since 1946 has advised Congress on economic matters, recommends reducing Carter's $537 billion budget with a $25 billion tax cut for Fiscal Year 1980.

"At least half of the tax reduction should be targeted to enhance productivity through savings and investment with the remainder going to help relieve taxpayers of the pressure of increased taxes and higher energy costs," he said.

He said the proposed tax cut, which would have a demonstrable affect on the economy by 1982, was a major philosophical change of direction.

"Moreover, it is important that whatever tax relief is given to the business community it be given on the basis of its performance in expanding plant and equipment expenditures."

He said the number one problem the nation faces is inflation, which he predicted would be more than 10 percent next year.

However, a mild recession, forecast by the Council on Economic Advisers, could be avoided if the money supply was reduced by the Federal Reserve Board and productivity increased, Bentsen said.

"The unused lines of credit available to consumers remain substantial, and it is clear that people's attitudes toward the use of debt have changed dramatically in recent times," he said. "If consumers continue to behave as they did in 1979 and other parts of the economy do not deteriorate, a recession will be avoided."

Bentsen has advocated cutting revenue sharing to the States and readjusting the cost of living index for social security recipients in order to make cuts in Carter's proposed budget.

Bentsen also has sponsored a package of so-called productivity bills intended to spur research and development in the private industry by lifting some of the tax burdens on businesses.

As chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, I think government planners offer the wrong cure when they focus on a planned recession as the only way to fight inflation," he said. "They could fight it more effectively by concentrating on producing more goods and services more cheaply, not by lengthening the unemployment lines."

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) —For two weeks, U.S. armed forces troops have been in a "friendly desert nation," preparing for the invasion of a sophisticated enemy force.

A last-ditch stand in the oil-rich Persian Gulf?

No, the desert is the Mojave, 125 miles northeast of Los Angeles. And the preparation is for a week of maneuvers planned by the U.S. Readiness Command, military spokesmen said Thursday.

"It's a good-guy, bad-guy scenario," said Nellis Air Force Base spokesman Tom Kennington. Dubbed "Gallant Eagle 80," the exercise will involve 25,000 active and reserve troops and assistance personnel.

A simulated air battle to support both sides in the ground maneuvers will cover the airspace of both Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada and Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The desert terrain at the 600,000-acre Army reservation here has led to speculation that the military is gearing up for a possible defense of one of the oil-producing nations in the volatile Middle East.

"That's understandable as far as speculation, considering the world situation," Kennington said, "but the real reason is that these forces are trained in all-weather, all-environment exercises annually."

Construction drops in city

Construction in the city during February totalled less than half that for the same month during the previous year.

Permits were issued for a total of $123,799 worth of construction in February, compared to $256,360.50 for the same month in 1979. The construction for the year-to-date is still considerably more than that for the same period last year; $1,415,264, compared to $724,027.50.

The only sizeable construction project of the month was a new home to be built by Spring Country Builders at 2809 MacAuslan. Estimated cost is $75,000.

Big Cheese Pizza Company will remodel a facility at 208 Gregg, at a cost of $10,000. A total of 25 other permits was issued, but none topped $7,000 in cost.

Three panels will meet

Three committees involved with the city's Capitol Improvements Program will meet during the week.

Members of the Water and Sanitary Sewer Committee will meet at 5:30 p.m. Monday in the City Council Room of City Hall to make recommendations for improvements of the sewage treatment plant system. That same night, at 7 o'clock, members of the Parks and Recreation Committee will meet at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

On Wednesday at 5:15 p.m., members of the Streets and Storm Sewer Committee will meet at Jack Cook's office, 1900 Scurry, to finalize their recommendations.

Harte-Hanks lets each paper chart own course

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Bob Rhodes, executive-editor of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. He authors a weekly column about various aspects of the newspaper business. The following article concerns a recent corporate meeting of Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., of which both the Caller Times and the Big Spring Herald are members. The column reflects the editorial flavor of how Harte-Hanks and its newspaper operate.

By BOB RHODES

In all my newspaper training and experience, I never once learned how to quantify.

To this day I don't know what a consolidated budgeted managerial margin is.

Whenever I wanted to talk about anything working in a combined action with something else, I would never have thought to describe that process as synergy.

But these are among the terms which are the ABC's in the language of the highest corporate levels. I guess the ultimate would be when you quantify the synergy to reach your consolidated budgeted managerial margin. But, you must quickly learn, the whole thing first has to be prioritized.

And, as the man said, be sure to keep your headlights on so you can see all the bumps in the road. Furthermore, it is important that everyone is singing out of the same hymn book.

It should be obvious to all by now that I have just returned from my first excursion into the long-range planning process of a major American corporation.

The corporation was our own parent company, the Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., which owns, besides the Caller Times (and The Daily Sun), 26 other daily newspapers, a bunch of radio and television stations and a host of other communications-related companies. I can't give you the exact number of our holdings because I haven't checked since lunchtime. We are, obviously, a mega-million dollar corporation and are respectfully referred to in the brokerage houses as an excellent growth company.

For me, the meeting offered a fascinating exposure to the highest of business finance. To be sure, there were times when I could have run the giant slalom down the corporaic snow and more than once I felt I was in such deep financial water I needed scuba lessons.

But there was a lot even I could grasp and what I did made it hard to come away unimpressed.

They hold these planning meetings once a quarter, in the corporate offices in San Antonio. They are attended by the corporate officers, group presidents and invited observers, of which I was one. The participants assess last year's performance to find what went right and what went wrong, they define this year's goals, they talk about specific plans they have which are geared to achieve those goals and they discuss anything else either the corporate office or the group presidents have wanted to put on the agenda.

The attitude was startlingly relaxed. There was none of the board room stuffiness. In the one-and-a-half days the meeting consumed, not once did I hear someone speak either just to be heard or to impress someone. I think maybe it was because the people in the room had it made already — they were group presidents or above in the rank and knew with confidence where they stood within the corporation.

There was a lot of levity which frequently broke into the mood of the serious discussions, not as an intrusion but as a pleasant relief. Through it all was the steady pulsing of a strong corporate heart which gave the assurance that this was an organization committed to excellence in its existing properties and dedicated to becoming only more effective through dynamic management and carefully calculated and profitable growth.

While I have worked twice before for newspapers which were owned by a parent corporation, this is the first time I have been engaged in management in such a situation. People often ask me what control corporate headquarters has over our editorial operations, what policies it sends down from its San Antonio offices. I am happy — nay, proud — to say none whatsoever.

I do, of course, have to live within my budget. But it's a budget I prepare, with the help of my editors. We try to be realistic with the budget, we don't pad, we don't play games. The corporate offices have proven sensitive to our needs and have treated our budgets kindly.

Once those budgets are approved, we don't hear anything further from the corporate office about what we are supposed to do with that money, with these editorial staffs, with our two newspapers or the communities we cover and the issues abounding in those communities. It is the best of editorial operation.

DICK NICHOLS

Nichols is candidate

Dick Nichols, who has lived in Howard County all his life, has issued a formal statement that he is a candidate for County Commissioner, Precinct 3, subject to action in the May 3 Democratic Primary Election it says:

"I was born in Howard County, Jan. 31, 1938. I graduated from high school in 1956. I am a third generation of a family that settled in Howard County in 1907.

"I married Jeanette Ray Dec. 1, 1961. We have two children, a son, Brent Nichols, age 17 and a daughter, Antoinette Nichols, age 14. Our residence is south of the City Park on Highway 87. Our church affiliation is Baptist.

"I believe the time has come that we must have unity in our county and city government. We are at a time when everyone is being squeezed by high taxes and inflation. The first place to do something about this is in our own local government. No one person can accomplish these things by himself or herself, therefore, we must work together at all times.

"I am presently self-employed, but prior to this, I was a department head for the City of Big Spring, so I am well aware of the importance of wise budgeting.

"There are many important elections this year that may well effect all our lives. It is very important for every person to make a special effort to vote, regardless of party, then we can be assured that we have exercised our right and duty as an American citizen.

"I respectfully solicit your support in the Democratic Primary, May 3, 1980 and hope you will select me as your County Commissioner of Precinct 3."

Chinese woman given day off for working

PEKING (AP) — China, once a land of bound feet, child brides and concubines, celebrated International Working Women's Day Saturday with time off from work, mass rallies and women's pledges to help modernize the nation.

Women workers got half a day off Saturday to mark the holiday, first observed here in 1924.

During that first observance, women workers in the silk and cotton mills of Shanghai staged a rally and tea party for women's rights. At the same time in Canton, women held demonstrations and passed out leaflets urging equal rights for women, protection of child laborers and pregnant women and the banning of polygamy, prostitution, concubines and child brides.

Many of those demands have been met or are becoming reality. Child brides, concubines and polygamy have vanished and the old Chinese proverb, "Women hold up half the sky," is gaining strength in this nation of nearly 1 billion people.

Women in China today do some of the same work as men, for the same wages. Women ditch diggers or steamroller drivers are a common sight. Schooling for all is compulsory.

However, women still handle most of the housework, cooking and child care in addition to their labors [illegible] attended a stadium rally here Friday, where Kang Keqing, head of the National Women's Federation, urged them to help make China a modern, industrial nation by the turn of the century.

Over the next week, films about women will be shown in China's major cities. An exhibition of products made by women opened Friday in Peking, including electric irons, washing machines, curling irons, rhinestone rings and high heeled shoes.

Updates on crisis attracts viewers

The success of the late night shows on television may prove that Americans had rather do anything than sleep.

Until recently, there hasn't been much substance in the proffered entertainment after the 10 o'clock news. Johnny Carson commands a big audience with his disarming patter but one can hardly remember anything about his little vignettes from one night to the next.

A SUSPENSE SHOW that has held the late, late audience in its grip for better than 100 days now, and may speak volumes for the nobility of man, is the ABC treatment of the situation in Iran.

Someone in the ABC hierarchy may have groaned after the network committed itself to the coverage as long as the crisis over the hostages endured. However, having made the pledge, the network stuck by it and no one associated with ABC has had cause to regret the decision.

The explosion in Afghanistan helped build the suspense. Then a group of Colombia revolutionaries decided to vie for attention by kidnapping and ransoming a gaggle of ambassadors and other legatees.

The nightly segment, in the event you have missed it, provides not only film footage of the day's events, but analysis and interviews, the sort of in-depth coverage impossible on the regular prime-time news shows.

It should be surprising that the ABC-TV nightly news feature developed a following — so much of one, in fact, that it put the network in a stronger competitive position at that hour than it had been.

It is not shocking to learn that the network will continue the late night news show even after the hostage situation has been resolved. It will use the time to provide the same sort of in-depth, analytical coverage of other events impossible in the regular 30-minute newscast.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, as things turned out, have an appetite for meatier fare than the networks have given them credit — at least a significant portion of them do.

It was H.L. Mencken who said, in his own ascerbic way, that no one ever went broke underestimating the taste of the American public. The show about Iran doesn't prove Mencken wrong, but it is a hopeful sign. Even better, it could spawn competitive serious ventures on the part of other networks, given television's commitment to another maxim — monkey see, monkey do.

Who knows, eventually we may limit the dreary succession of seek-out-and-destroy-the-hardware movies during that period from 7 to 10 p.m., nightly. Which brings us around to a question. Why do the producers of prime time shows think the viewing audience is hypnotized by a succession of shows which devote 60 percent of their allotted time to a dreary succession of automobile chase scenes. Such scenes usually end up with the utter destruction of at least one and often a multitude of vehicles. So how many ways can one wreck a car?

'G' rated movie

Art Buchwald

LOS ANGELES — Things keep changing in the movie business all the time. A friend of mine has been working on a movie script about a funny cat who does TV commercials. He has very good connections in the film industry and, therefore, thought he would have no trouble selling it to one of the studios.

But Leo hadn't reckoned with the MPPA ratings systems, which is supposed to be a guide for audiences as to the content of the pictures.

The first knowledge he had that he was in serious trouble was when his agent called and said, "What's gotten into you? You just sent me a movie script which is for kids."

"It's not only for kids," Leo said defensively. "It's for the whole family."

"BUT ALL YOU can get with it is a 'G' rating!" the agent said. "I can't go to the head of a large studio and ask him to make a 'G' picture. They have their standards to think of."

"Maybe they're looking for a change of pace," Leo suggested. "After all, there hasn't been a 'G' picture in years."

"I'll make a stab at it," the agent said, "but they're going to laugh me out of the studios."

Leo later ran into a studio executive at a party and asked him if he had read the script.

The executive was very patronizing. "I loved it. It was really funny and very light. It's a great family picture. We wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole."

Two days later, Leo was having lunch at Ma Maison with a writer friend.

"I think I ought to tell you this for your own good," the writer said. "It's all over town that you wrote a script for a 'G' movie, and I don't think it's doing your reputation any good. Your name came up for a job at one of the major studios the other day involving a picture that included incest, three ax murders and the seduction of a 14-year-old boy by a 40-year-old woman. Everyone knew about your cat picture, and they said that you had lost your touch to write a REAL movie."

"I believe in the cat picture. Maybe I can sell it to an independent producer who will take a chance. You never know when a family picture could take off."

"I'M TALKING to you as a friend," the writer said. This town is dead set against 'G' films. Your best bet is to take your name off the script before everyone in the business has you marked down as a weirdo."

Leo did get one bite on his project. A producer called him in and said, "I don't like the story now, but maybe you could fix if up."

"How's that?"

"Well, let's suppose the cat is owned by this luscious, divorced chick played by Bo Derek, and one night she gets raped in her apartment while the cat is watching. Bo's a mental wreck and seeks help from a doctor like Dustin Hoffman. She goes for him and you have this great nude scene between them, which we watch through the eyes of the cat.

"Then they try to find the rapist. The cat recognizes him on the street and chases him across town with Bo and Dustin in hot pursuit. They finally catch him and beat him up. It turns out the rapist is Bo's ex-husband. What do you think of that?"

"You want to make a picture like that for movie theaters?" my friend asked.

"What do you mean theaters?" the producer said. "I want to make it for television."

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have come down with mono. I got a sore that kept getting worse, so I saw a doctor who diagnosed it. He said there is no medicine for it, and only complete bedrest and a good diet with vitamins would help. What causes mono? Isn't there something to relieve the sore throat? How long will it last and how will I know if I'm recovered? Will it interfere with sports activity? — C.N.

Infectious mononucleosis is a viral disease, and there is effective treatment for only a very few viral illnesses. Mono is not one of them. Rest, fluids and a complete diet is about the only therapy. Aspirin or Tylenol will help keep a temperature down and relieve the aches and pains. For the sore throat, you can try salt-water gargles. A gargle with the numbing agent, xylocaine, is also used.

The length of time you'll be out depends on how sick you were with the illness. I know this is not a very satisfactory answer, but it is the only one I can give. Mono can be so mild that a person feels fine in a week or two; it can be so severe that it takes months to get back on one's feet. How you feel is more important than laboratory tests in determining when you have recovered. Don't let your mind overrule your body in making that determination. You should be free of fever. Otherwise, blood tests should indicate that you are on the mend.

Don't overdo as soon as you begin feeling well. If your spleen was enlarged you should avoid physical sports until it returns to normal. Your doctor can inform you about that.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a cataract in one eye, but 20-20 vision in the other. I do not have trouble seeing, but am wondering how long before the cataract should be removed. I'm not overanxious for surgery, but people keep asking me when the doctor is going to remove the cataract. What do you say? — D.R.

There is no hurry to have the clouded lens removed. In fact, you may never actually need the surgery if you don't mind the cataract and if the other eye continues to serve you well.

Delaying surgery does not affect the outcome, whenever you have it done. The next time you're asked, say, "When my doctor and I think it best for me, the cataract will be removed." See the booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma," which has a more in-depth discussion. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What causes a bladder infection? — Mrs. B.M.

The same things that cause infections anywhere — bacteria and viruses. The urine in the bladder should not have such organisms in it — or very few. If they begin to multiply, it can indicate an obstruction to the flow of urine, like an enlarged prostate (in the male) or a sagging bladder in the female. A female is more apt to get such infections because her urethra (the tube from the bladder) is surrounded by bacteria in the vagina and it is shorter than the male's. If you become a regular reader of this column you'll find that many readers have concerns about bladder problems.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would appreciate your telling me the difference between a perirectal abscess and a fistula. — Mrs. H.Q.

An abscess is a collection of pus surrounded by inflamed tissue. If you will excuse the expression, it is a pocket of pus. A perirectal fistula is a tiny tunnel with two openings, one inside (in the anal canal) and the other outside on the skin of the buttock. A recurring perirectal abscess suggests the presence of a fistula. This is the same situation that can exist with the pilonidal cyst, described here recently. A fistula (the tunnel) can result from a minor congenital defect (one present at birth).

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 53 and my husband is 58. Recently, whenever we have sexual relations there is evidence of bleeding afterward. We are wondering if it's from him or me. We wonder if it is anything to be concerned about. — Mrs. A.P.

The blood could be originating from either of you. Blood in the ejactulate is called "hemospermia." Most often, no diagnosis can be made if there are no other symptoms to go on. Why it happens is not clear. A woman who bleeds with intercourse may have a number of conditions. The most common one is a simple erosion or ucler of the cervix. The time for speculation is past. Bring this to the attention of a doctor who can track down any known cause. This applies to both of you, of course.

"Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of a booklet by Dr. Donohue explaining the causes and cures of bad breath. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am gradually losing my hearing and hate to go out in public because I never understand what people are saying. Do you think God will understand if I quit going to church? — D.S.L.

DEAR D.S.L.: You need the fellowship and instruction which comes from going to church, and I believe you should make every effort to be present. I know you may feel embarrassed by your problem, but you should not. Instead, you might want to speak frankly with your pastor to see if there is any assistance he can suggest. Many churches have special earphones for those who are hard of hearing, and your church might want to install some. (There may certainly be others with your problem in your church, and it would be helpful for them also.) You might even find that sitting in a different part of the sanctuary would help, such as near the front.

The important thing is not to let your pride or your embarrassment keep you from worshipping God with other Christians. Even if you cannot hear everything that is said, you still can sing and read the Scriptures. Remember also that going to church is not just a matter of getting something for ourselves. It is also a public testimony to others. If others do not know of your hearing problem (as you indicate in your letter that they do not), what will they think if you cease going to church? The Bible says: "Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but let us encourage one another — and all the more as you see the Day approaching" (Hebrews 10:25).

You need all the instruction God's Word gives you. It is important for you to read your Bible each day. But it is also important for you to hear the Word of God preached if at all possible. Ask God to help you and give you the desire to continue meeting with other Christians so you can "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 3:18).

New Chavez

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — It saddens me to have to report that the United Farm Workers (UFW) union, which lifted so many stoop laborers out of peonage and degradation, has become a violence-prone, tyrannical empire under the iron-fisted rule of Cesar Chavez.

The able, articulate Chavez gained nationwide fame and sympathy for his determined efforts on behalf of California's downtrodden grape and lettuce harvesters. Years of fighting the good fight earned him and the UFW respectability.

BUT SOMEWHERE along the way, Chavez seems to have lost sight of the people whose welfare earned that respectability. Instead, he concentrates on consolidating his personal power and purging dissident elements within the UFW, often with strong-arm tactics reminiscent of the corporate farmers' methods in the union's fledgling days.

Even worse, organizers in Texas, Arizona, New Jersey and Florida — all of whom asked to remain anonymous for fear of reprisal — told my reporter Sally Ann Denton that the UFW actually meets secretly with grower representatives to sabotage agreements won by other unions. Members of the newly chartered Arizona Farmworkers Union charged also that the UFW incites tension between local and migratory laborers, and has gone so far as to help the Border Patrol locate and round up illegal immigrants from Mexico.

One allegation was particularly disturbing, but there is evidence to support it: An investigative reporter assigned to look into charges of violence and conflict of interest against Manuel Chavez, Cesar's cousin and longtime chief aide, was badly beaten at a UFW rally in Arizona, where he had gone in the hope of interviewing Cesar. Both Cesar and Manuel Chavez witnessed the assault but did nothing to stop it. The reporter was finally rescued by a priest in the crowd.

The reporter was able to document allegations that Manuel Chavez, while serving as a UFW organizer and strike director, was himself engaged in agricultural business ventures in Mexico that exploited the unorganized, low-paid Mexican farmworkers.

MANY OF CHAVEZ' senior colleagues have left the union recently, disenchanted with what the organization has become. One who spent many years with Chavez in the UFW's formative period said that "unfortunately in recent years the UFW has spawned the ugly destructiveness of blind orthodoxy, rigid centralization, hierarchy, dangerous nepotism and even inquisitions and purges."

Leaders of civil rights groups voiced the same complaints about the union they once treated with an admiration bordering on reverence.

A common complaint centers on Chavez' fund-raising tours. With the help of celebrities like Joan Baez, Chavez would appear in agricultural states and raise thousands of dollars, supposedly to support organizing activities in those states. But the money always wound up at UFW headquarters in La Paz, Calif., and rarely if ever was disbursed to the states. Chavez refuses to give local UFW offices control over dues, strikes or other policy matters, and won't permit local charters.

As far back as 1967, Chavez promised that Texas would be the next state organized by the agricultural union. He then made the same promise to workers in Florida, New Jersey, and Arizona. "Finally we decided the workers couldn't wait until Cesar Chavez was ready," said Antonio Orendain of the Texas Farmworkers. "The workers don't even know who Cesar is. They just want healthy working conditions."

Chavez appears to relish his celebrity status, hobnobbing with presidential candidates and junketing to foreign countries. Meanwhile, hundreds of thousands of farm workers continue to live and labor in conditions of appalling filth and poverty, in desperate need of help the UFW could give but won't.

Footnote: Chavez rebuffed repeated requests for an interview. But his critics insist he knows about the misdeeds of his close associates. "Cesar is the 'patron,'" said one UFW member. "Nothing gets done without his O.K."

TOBACCO CHAMPION: Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., is a stout defender of the tobacco industry against the Federal Trade Commission's attempts to regulate it for the public welfare. He is pushing legislation that would prohibit the FTC from going after commercial advertising that is merely "unfair" instead of outright deceptive. The move was suggested by Ernest Pepples, an executive of Brown and Williamson, the Kentucky cigarette maker.

Prior to this, the FTC, in its annual report, had released the results of a confidential survey prepared for the Tobacco Institute. The survey candidly concluded: "Favorable attitudes toward the tobacco industry are at their lowest ebb...Nearly six out of ten (survey respondents) believe that smoking is hazardous to the non-smoker's health...This we see as the most dangerous development to the viability of the tobacco industry that has yet occurred."

The FTC report provoked an irate letter from the tobacco industry's champion in the Senate. "This occurrence indicates a blamant disregard for the confidentiality of any documents that have been subpoenaed by the FTC and marked confidential by the industry." Ford wrote "FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk. "You have raised my ire with what appears to be a reckless disregard for the rights of an industry."

Ford then dutifully added a provision to his bill, also suggested by Brown and Williamson, that "is intended to protect information which, although it may not rise to the definition of trade secrets, is of importance to the conduct of busin[illegible]

Grain embargo not working

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — U.S. grain diverted to the Soviet Union through third-party foreign brokers probably is making President Carter's grain embargo ineffective, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said.

Economist Ron Knutson said an estimated four to 12 million metric tons of American grain is being sold to grain dealers around the world, who in turn are selling it to the Soviets.

"I think in a general context, economic embargoes are not successful, and I don't think this embargo is going to be much different," he said during a press briefing on Texas agriculture in the 1980s.

"These third parties are Italian and French firms . . . and firms from all over the world that are willing to line up grain movements for a price, even if they have to unload and reload the grain ships," Knutson said.

Despite Department of Defense attempts to track the grain shipments with the help of spy satellites, he said, U.S. grain is reaching the Soviet Union.

"If Russia is willing to pay the price, they will get the grain and maybe all 25 metric tons they wanted," Knutson said. "I'm not saying all will come from the U.S., but that economic embargoes are very hard to enforce."

Production of feed grain is big business in the state, extension service officials said.

Of the nation's total supply of sorghum, 30 percent comes from Texas.

Knutson also said a decreasing supply of food in the 1980s may force the federal government to stop paying farm subsidies and begin rationing the sales of food and feed grain to foreign countries.

Selective sales, Knutson said, could become one of the nation's more important diplomatic tools.

As shown in the Soviet grain embargo, the United States would "ration to those who agree with us and ration against those who disagree," Knutson asserted.

For such a policy to work, he said, the government would need some kind of direct control of food exports.

Knutson said he was not advocating more government control, but U.S. consumers might demand it.

"When push comes to shove, the American people are going to want to be assured of adequate food supplies," he said.

"The number of mouths to feed around the world is increasing, and every less-developed nation in the world has the goal of increasing the level of quality of their peoples' lives," he said.

One of the best ways of dealing in food diplomacy, Knutson said, would be a grain marketing board much like those used in Canada and Australia.

Such a board would determine which countries would be allowed to buy American grain and food crops, he said.

Texans to buy, sell cattle by computer

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Quiet, shiny computer terminals will replace noisy, smelly cattle this summer at some of the bigger auction houses in the state.

An experiment by the Texas Agriculture Extension Service will give Texans a taste of buying and selling cattle by computer, extension service officials said Tuesday.

The computer hookup is expected to increase competition by turning local cattle sales into statewide sales.

The experiment should cut cattle producers' costs and could slow beef price increases expected to climb an average of 25 cents a pound by summer, the officials said.

With the help of federal money, the extension service wants to learn if feedlot and stock cattle can be sold "by reputation — sight unseen," extension service specialist Ernest E. Davis said.

Beginning in July, about 20 computer display terminals will be distributed to offices of major Texas cattle buyers and auction houses around the state, Davis said.

The terminals — looking much like the arrival — departure computer displays at major airports — probably will be placed in the San Angelo-Abilene region and somewhere in South Texas, as well as in Fort Worth, San Antonio, Amarillo, Athens and Texarkana, he said.

Sellers will be able to list their cattle lots in the computer and buys will be based on detailed information furnished by the extension service.

Cattle lots will be sold every 12 minutes, Davis said, with the computer terminals listing common names for the herd, U.S. Department of Agriculture meat grades, approximate age, sex, weight, breed, color, where located and condition of the flesh.

Davis also noted that because the cattle will stay at the ranch until they are sold, transportation costs and the spread of disease should show a marked decrease.

With seven to eight million head of cattle moved from auction to auction in Texas each year, the computer system should cut transportation costs "conservatively, by at least one-third," he said.

February prices show big gain for farmers

(Special to the Herald)

AUSTIN — Overall prices paid to farmers in February were up four per cent above January totals and up six per cent from totals a year ago. The increase was due largely to higher prices paid for beef cattle, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said.

Although several crops and products registered losses, increases came in beef cattle, calves, hogs, eggs, milk and mohair, according to the latest monthly report issued by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. But despite the overall increase in prices paid farmers for livestock and several products, "farmers are still far from keeping up with inflation," Brown noted.

"The most optimistic news from the report concerned producers of beef cattle," Brown said. The average price paid for beef cattle was $72.60 per hundred weight (cwt.) in mid-February, compared to $65.40 a month earlier. Prices paid for calves were also up. Calves averaged $89.10 per cwt. above the $84.00 per cwt. a month ago.

Hogs in January brought $33.70 per cwt., compared to $37.00 per cwt. in February. Eggs per dozen averaged 61.8 cents, an increase from January's 59.5 cent totals. Mohair prices were also above last month's totals, yet down considerably from prices a year ago, Brown said.

Average prices paid for feed remained "fairly stable," Brown said. Feeds showing slight decreases were cottonseed meal, middlings, corn meal and mixed dairy feed. Laying feed and bran showed no change.

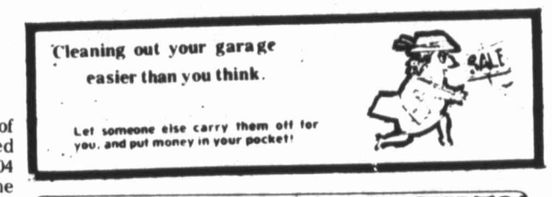

Although most price increases came from livestock and products, slight gains were registered by corn, hay and soybeans. Crops showing lower prices in February included barley, cottonseed, grapefruit, oranges, sorghum grain sweet potatoes and wheat. Livestock products showing lower prices this month were lambs, sheep and broilers.

Scoping slate is announced

The United States Corps of Engineers has announced the agenda for its "404 scoping" hearing on the proposed Stacy reservoir. The hearing is what the name implies, namely to determine the scope and significance of issues which may be dealt with in an environmental impact statement to be prepared by the Corps. It is set for 7 p.m. March 31 in the Coleman County courthouse.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District has filed an application with the Corps for a permit to impound the reservoir as required under the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899 and Section 404 of the Clean Water Act. The reservoir, a maximum elevation, would cover some 19,200 acres, 90 percent of which is rangeland.

Items of interest listed by the Corps for consideration in the outline are topography, vegetation, wildlife species, archaeological sites,

Fryrear plans for meeting

Bill Fryrear, USDA Research Leader for wind erosion and moisture conservation research in Big Spring, has been invited by the Department of State, Office of Food and Natural Resources to meet with a delegation of scientists from Mexico to design a regional desertification monitoring and assessment program.

The program will cover present knowledge and procedures to evaluate desertification. Desertification includes the non-reversible loss of soil productivity and plant resources in areas subject to drought and wind erosion.

The meeting will be held in Lubbock March 19 to 22, under the chairmanship of Dr. Harold Dregne, head of Texas Tech's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies.

At the Lubbock meeting, projects of mutual interest to the U.S. and Mexico will be identified and methods of evaluating desertification will be developed.

Caylor paintings may be in book

Paintings of H.W. Caylor, pioneer Big Spring artist who preserved the fading frontier on canvas, may be published in a special art volume.

Directors of Heritage Museum are entering into an agreement with Texas A and M University Press to produce a top-quality book of some 50 to 60 typical and outstanding examples of the artist's view of his region during the transition from raw frontier to open range and then the end of an area against strands of new-fangled barbed wire. Heritage Museum has an extensive collection of Caylor originals and prints.

The book will be similar to four previous successful volumes by TAMU Press as part of its Texas artist series. These were Mondell Rogers, "Ranches of the Plains;" Michael Frary, "Impressions of the Texas Panhandle;" Buck Schewietz, "Memories;" and seven artists, "Impressions of the Texas Gulf Coast."

Mrs. Frances Wheat, Museum president, announced that John L. Taylor, a past president, is heading a panel dedicated to preserving the works of the self-taught artist who found acclaim among early day cattle barons even before Big Springers realized the uniqueness of "their artist." With Mrs. Susan Lewis, publications chairman, and others, he has been working closely with Howard Duff, a retired naval officer and former Big Spring resident who now lives in Edmonds, Wash., and who shared the renaissance of excitement in Caylor paintings.

Caylor came to Big Spring in the early 1890s and for the next quarter of a century caught the West Texas cavalcade in the interval that Longhorn trail herds and roundups were being fenced in and giving way to new breeds and new faces. died here in 1932.

More than 100 examples of Caylor's works have been catalogued and from these and others which might be made known to the Museum, TAMU Press will select representative paintings for high-fidelity reproduction in the prestige album-size book. Mrs. Wheat urged anyone who may know of an uncatalogued Caylor to advise the Museum.

"We feel this will be a tremendous contribution to the preservation of these exceptional works," she said. "Fortunately, the larger volume of known Caylors is owned by area residents, and many owners have said they are honored to have their paintings nominated for consideration in the book. We hope other owners will be equally enthusiastic in offering to make their pictures available for study by the selection jury."

She stressed that the only use to be made of the reproductions of paintings will be in the book, and not in separate prints. "We emphasize that we will do everything possible to preserve and increase the prestige of ownership to all who help us perpetuate the rare gift of Wallace Caylor," she said.

Publication of the 148-page book is scheduled for the Spring of 1981, the centennial year of the founding of Big Spring. Text and information on individual paintings will be written by Joe Pickle. Because TAMU Press has agreed to join with the Museum in the undertaking, a regional, even national, dimension will be added to the memorial work, Mrs. Wheat declared.

Rains reduced crop slightly

Recent heavy rains in California and Arizona have only slightly reduced the availability of vegetables and fruits, a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) marketing official has said.

"But the quality and condition of some crops, including strawberries and lettuce, and possibly almond supplies, have been affected," said Charles Brader, fruit and vegetable division director with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS).

Brader said the heaviest of the Feb. 24-29 rains fell in the Los Angeles area and eastward through central Arizona. The rains were somewhat lighter in central California, where many of the nation's fruits, vegetables and specialty crops like nuts are grown.

In age caught up in 'me'

Wilson focuses on 'we'

Earl Wilson has been different from the ordinary for 42 years, or more appropriately put he has been an "odd fellow."

He has been serving his community and fellow man, reaching out to people in need. In times caught up with "me," Wilson has been focusing on "we."

Wilson is surely an 'odd fellow,' for the reason that he belongs to the International Order of Odd Fellows.

"We are a benevolence order that works to relieve the distress of our own members and our community," Wilson said.

Wilson is the vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees of the State Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. As a board member, he oversees a fraternity that seeks to work for the community of man.

A writer with the International Odd Fellows magazine said, "The Independent Order of Odd Fellows in this country spans all ages, all educational levels, all professions and vocations, all religious beliefs and all types of personalities."

The writer added, "The organization and structure of Odd Fellowship is based on the theme of Brotherhood."

In Big Spring there are two lodges, the Mullin Lodge No. 372 and the Big Spring Lodge No. 117. Each lodge has a ladies' auxiliary, which is called the Rebekahs.

Statewide, Wilson said, "We have 247 lodges and between women and men 31,000 members."

The fraternal order is structured along the lines of a local lodge, a statewide grand lodge and a sovereign grand lodge, which overlooks the state organizations.

Locally Wilson said of the lodges, "We do anything that is necessary."

The Big Spring lodges have assisted in constructing a swimming pool for youngsters, have sent food baskets each Christmas to needy families and have aided persons needing surgery.

The Texas Grand Lodge is extremely active in caring for the elderly and youngsters.

Programs at the state level include a home for the aged in Ennis, and Odd Fellows Home for children and the Kidney Foundation "Gift of Life."

A person who has been a member for 15 years with the Odd Fellows or Rebekahs can stay at the home for the aged at no cost; even though, the Odd Fellows ask those who are able to pay to do so.

The Odd Fellows Home for Children cares for orphans. The home will take care of a child until he is 18 years old. The organization will finance a college education for the orphan if he chooses to pursue study at a higher education institution.

The Texas Grand Lodge also sends relief to any area hit by a natural disaster. In the case of the Wilmer Hutchins tornado last summer, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were the first on the scene.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge has initiated several projects designed to help their fellow man. The Visual Research Foundation and World Eye Bank is one such project. This commitment to visual research was demonstrated last May when the Odd Fellows gave the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore, Md., $1 million for eye research.

Other programs of the sovereign include recreation camps for the urban youngster; a food program to feed the hundry and an educational foundation.

The Odd Fellows also sponsor a United Nations Educational Tour for high school students. Notable is this fraternity is the only order permitted by the United Nations to conduct an educational program at its facilities.

Each year two Big Spring area students are chosen to go on the tour.

The Odd Fellows are quite proud of their efforts toward this theme of brotherhood. Strangely enough the history of this fraternity is shrouded in mystery.

No historian can pinpoint a date or period when the Odd Fellows started. The growth of the fraternity became evident in the 18th century in England.

The name "Odd Fellow" is also more traditional than historical. One account has it that the name "Odd Fellow" came from a reference the novelist Daniel Defoe made in one of his works.

Wilson said that at one time there was a group of men who were concerned about their fellow man during a era when "dog eat dog" was prevalent. This group of men banded loosely together to relieve distress, and society viewed these men as "odd."

"It was rather unusual back then for people to be concerned about each other," Wilson added.

Hence, the name "odd fellows" emerged.

The Odd Fellows came to the United States in the early 19th century. Thomas Wildey founded the Washington Lodge No. 1 on April 26, 1819, in Baltimore, Md.

Since Wildey's beginning, the Odd Fellows have grown to 17,000 lodges in North America and 17 countries. Over one million persons are either odd fellows or Rebekahs.

The first lodge in Howard County was formed Feb. 8, 1897.

Through this better than 150 years, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs seek to elevate the character of man through its teachings and ceremonies.

Wilson joined some four decades ago to have an impact on his neighbors.

"I wanted to have a social contact with people who were working for their community," Wilson said.

Wilson added he would encourage any person to join the fellowship.

"I would tell him it is a good thing," he said.

Hance wants new force put in import law

WASHINGTON (AP)- Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, wants to "put some teeth" into the enforcement of laws preventing the import of Mexican produce with pesticide levels higher than allowed in domestically grown produce.

"My bill prohibits importation of products in violation of the law and puts some teeth into the enforcement of existing law," the congressman from Lubbock said in a statement accompanying the bill's introduction Friday.

It would authorize the establishment of testing laboratories along the U.S.-Mexican border, specifically near Hidalgo, Texas, and Nogales, Ariz.

"Many (imports) are already on the grocery shelves before the lab sample can reach the labs and be tested," Hance said.

Wiretapping legislation blasted by CLU man

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Proposed legislation that would allow lawmen with a court order to wiretap narcotics suspects should "scare the hell out of everyone in this state," the executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union said here.

During a speech here Friday, John Duncan also called Gov. Bill Clements and Department of Public Safety head James Adams "advance men for a police state" because they favor such legislation.

"His (Duncan's) statements are inconsistent with rulings by the Supreme Court," Adams said later Friday. "The wiretap statutes have been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States as entirely constutional. The Texas proposal would be patterned after the federal statutes with all the safeguards."

There's gold in that sewer

HAINES, Ore. (AP) — There is gold in the hills and gulleys of eastern Oregon — and in the sewers of Haines.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Haines, a town of 370 in gold mining country, had to replace its 80-year-old wooden water lines and put in a sewer system.

The town got a $1 million grant to build the sewer system and digging began Thursday.

"When we pulled out the machine, there was a little gold nugget in the dirt (on the blades)," said the town's mayor, Dick Camp. "We weren't surprised, but we'll start panning around there this weekend."

Camp said the nugget has not been assayed so he didn't know the value. In any event, it belongs to the town.

Camp also has been embroiled in a dispute with the EPA over putting in new water chlorinating equipment. The town couldn't afford the $2,000 cost, he said, "so we invented one that costs less than $20 bucks.

"The EPA wanted us to send all kind of test results on the water. An editor (for the nearby Baker) paper joked that we built it out of an old moonshine still. Of course, we didn't.

"But I sent a letter to the EPA saying the water had a .5 percent bourbon content. Now we can say we have whiskey in our water and gold in our sewers."

Little experience, long time

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Tony Lenzini says he'll never do it again.

The 40-year-old Toledo, Ohio, camera repairman has completed a 6,000 mile journey by snowmobile to Alaska.

"I enjoyed every minute of it," Lenzini said of the 62 day trip from Houghton, Mich. to Anchorage. And the deed may be considered somewhat unusual since he had never had prior experience with a snowmobile.

"The first time I sat on it, I fell off," he said. "The machine had about five times as much power as I thought it did."

Lenzini left Houghton on Jan. 5 and arrived in Anchorage on Thursday. His trip took him along winding back roads of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Montana. Then he moved into Canada, through British Columbia and up the Alaska Highway.

Lenzini undertook the trip with intentions of setting a Guinness record. "At least 30 people had tried and fell apart," he said.

Killer sitting on a mountain of stories

Lifer makes life worth living

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — In the harsh world of the swampy, 18,000-acre plantation known as Angola State Penitentiary, Wilbert Rideau is one of the few lifers deemed to have a life worth living.

Rideau's is a prison success story the likes of which are seldom seen — a murderer who is also an award-winning editor and a writer who free-lances articles on life and death and love among convicts.

As editor of The Angolite, he has a free hand at his work — within reason — and sweet recognition keeps flowing his way.

The latest prize: A George Polk Award, on Feb. 24, for special interest reporting, shared with associate editor Billy Sinclair. The citation praised two articles, one dealing with homosexual rape, the other with the aftermath of murder.

"We are sitting on a mountain of stories and (have) no competition," Rideau said in reaction to the honor.

Rideau has been grabbing awards for the past two years. Once paid in cigarettes for writing letters for fellow inmates, he recently earned $1,000 with a single magazine article. He has a literary agent and a deal with a publisher to do a book when — and if — he is freed.

Now 38, Rideau is working through year 19 of a life sentence. Freedom is a distant memory. "The life I was leading back then, I would have been dead long ago," he said.

"Back then," he was a 19-year-old black kid who tried to end his poverty by holding up a bank in Lake Charles, La. He tried to cover the crime with murder.

The episcde showed little class or criminal intelligence. In fact, it was about as dumb as a holdup can get. In the first place, Rideau was known at the bank — he used to do odd jobs there.

He struck just as the bank opened. He left with $14,279 packed into a cheap suitcase — and all the employees, two female tellers and the branch manager.

On a deserted road, Rideau ordered them out of the car. He shot all three, then slashed Julia Ferguson's throat before fleeing. She was the only one who died.

Rideau was arrested 80 minutes after walking into the Gulf National Bank branch with a drawn gun. But then the law stumbled, and Rideau had his first brush with the news business. It saved him from electrocution in the state's rough-hewn old death chair.

Sheriff Ham Reid, proud of his quick catch, took Rideau to a television studio. In an interview later broadcast on a news program, Rideau admitted his guilt.

That televised confession led to a 1963 U.S. Supreme Court ruling reversing Rideau's murder conviction. He was ordered retried.

But two more convictions were overturned, one because of a fault in jury selection, the other when the Supreme Court ruled the state's capital punishment law unconstitutional. Everyone sentenced to death under the old law had his punishment reduced to life in prison.

By that time, Rideau had spent 13 years on Death Row. Men on Death Row do not sweep or hoe the fields or do any other work. They sit in small cells, catching flies, killing time.

"They didn't even allow exercise in those days," said Rideau. "You went in and were locked down and you stayed locked down. They didn't believe in books, neither. On Death Row, you could read the Bible. It was bread and water if they caught you with anything else."

That regulation was eventually abolished. Other reading matter became available.

"I had to do something to hang onto my sanity so I read," said Rideau. "I came in with an eighth grade education but I passed my time reading. The only other thing to do was write. At first, I wrote letters for guys who couldn't write. For a letter, I charged a pack of cigarettes.

"Then one day they moved me out of the cell and into the Big Yard of what was then the bloodiest prison in the nation — 40 inmates killed from 1972 to 1975. There were 350 who received stab wounds serious enough to require hospital treatment....Everybody had a knife. Some had guns."

Rideau quickly established himself as a man best unprovoked. He wanted to write so he set up Lifer's Magazine, naming himself editor.

In 1976, state Corrections Director Paul Phelps named him editor of the existing newsletter, with a mandate to report news. The Angolite is published every two months and has a circulation of 2,000.

"The magazine was moved to the direct supervision of the warden's office," Rideau said. "The move was important because if a prison official objects to something we write for the magazine, as a prisoner I can't very well tell him to jump off a cliff. Associate Warden Peggy Greham can do that, and she does."

Rideau said The Angolite wins awards because it is unique. "We engage in investigative journalism — which is totally foreign within the context of imprisonment." he said.

Gov. Edwin Edwards refused to commute Rideau's sentence last month.

"I knew it wouldn't go through by what I was reading in the newspapers," said Rideau. "...It was common sense that the man wasn't going to commit political suicide for me."

Install new Arkla Servel Gas air conditioning now and the price will drop $100. But the price is not all that will drop when you install Gas air conditioning. The amount of gas energy needed to keep your home cool will drop, and so will maintenance costs.

New Gas air conditioning systems use less gas because the constantly burning gas pilot has been eliminated, and replaced with a new pilotless ignition system. That makes Gas air conditioning more energy efficient. And using less energy will save you money.

Gas air conditioning is dependable. It's built to last and last, with no loss of cooling capacity. Hand-crafted of sturdy stainless steel components, Gas air conditioning has fewer moving parts and no compressor to wear out or break down. That means less wear and tear, and lower maintenance costs. And to prove its dependability, Gas air conditioning gives you a ten-year no sweat warranty.

Palatable — if not exciting

Party like hamburger

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Democratic Party has always been like hamburger, a mixing of fat and lean under a common name to make something that is palatable — if not exciting — to most people.

It's a political party that encompasses Allan Shivers and Ralph Yarborough, Henry B. Gonzalez and Olin Teague. Anyone not from Texas, or at least from the South, would have trouble understanding how it works.

Texans instinctively understand that it hardly works at all.

"I don't belong to an organized party, I'm a Democrat," comes as close as anything to being the state joke.

The Democrats always had the last laugh in the past, because they had the power. They had almost every political office, from the local courthouse to the state delegation to Congress.

Lately, those laughs have turned into nervous snickers as Republicans captured the Governor's Mansion and made inroads into the legislature and several courthouses.

Loss of the governorship particularly is significant because the governor has been the recognized leader of the Democratic Party for 104 years. Neither rules nor tradition says who leads when the governor is a Republican.

It is an awkward time for the Democrats.

Their party remains by far the dominant political organization in the state, of course. But Republicans, stronger and sassier than they have been since Watergate, are claiming the momentum.

Republican Dan Donney's victory in the recent House of Representatives District 80 race in Houston fuels this enthusiasm.

GOP Texas Chairman Chester R. Upham says Downey's defeat of Democrat Paul Colbert in a runoff signals a shift to the Republicans.

"The party's over for the Democrats, Downey and many other Republicans will (be) in the legislature after the November election," a GOP news release quoted Upham as saying. It didn't say whether the pun was intended.

The Democrats, of course, disagree with Upham's analysis.

State Executive Director Garry Mauro says he expects the November election to produce a decrease in the number of Republicans in the legislature.

He says a Democratic analysis shows at least five of the 26 Republican representatives (24 elected that way and two switches) are vulnerable this year, while only two Democrats appear in danger from Republican challenges.

Mauro also sees the lack of a clear party leader as a healthy thing. Instead of just the governor out making speeches for the party, a half dozen of the state's top Democrats are doing the job, Mauro says.

"The whole party's got a different air," he says. "It's not a one-man show."

Vice President Walter Mondale knows how to get applause.

In Austin last week addressing COPE, labor's political arm, Mondale hit the delegates' favorite issues, such as pro-labor legislation and worker safety.

But he also knew the other interests of the union crowd.

The delegates applauded loudly when he told about going to Lake Placid "to watch our kids win that hockey game" against the Soviet Union.

The old saying about the squeaking wheel getting the oil apparently will apply in the flap over the naming of four Anglos to head the Carter-Mondale campaign in Texas.

Mondale paid special attention to Judith Zaffirini of Laredo during his Austin visit. She will be issues director and apparently the top-ranking Mexican-American in the campaign.

Carter-Mondale campaign leaders say privately that special attention will be given to making Mexican-Americans feel welcome.

Many Mexican-Americans will be reluctant to join Carter-Mondale as long as Sen. Edward Kennedy is in the race, however.

Group seeking to halt 1980 national census

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Stung by a court's quick dismissal of its suit to change U.S. Census procedures, an immigration special interest group Friday asked the District Court for a temporary halt of the national count.

The Federation for American Immigration Reform, which this week had its suit to stop a special federal effort to count illegal aliens in 1980 thrown out of court, wants the count stopped until the dismissal can be appealed.

"We are asking that the census be stopped until the original issue is decided," said FAIR spokesman Barnaby Zall.

In its suit, FAIR claimed Texas, California and Florida could double their seats in Congress if illegal aliens are counted along with the resident population.

Census Bureau projections say Texas is likely to get two new seats in the House based on current estimates of the population.

But FAIR claims the number of new seats could rise to five, depending on the number of illegal aliens the census takers are able to find in the state.

That claim was dubbed "absurd and laughable" by a high-ranking Census Bureau official in an interview last week with the Corpus Christi TIMES.

Cut in defense plan could be counterproductive, rep says

WASHINGTON (AP)- House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth says the anti-inflationary drive for a balanced budget should not include cuts in defense and energy programs.

"I think it would be counterproductive for us at this time to fail to go along with President Carter's request for increases in the military budget, and I think it would be very counterproductive from the standpoint of fighting inflation for us to slow down the drive for energy independence," he said Friday at a news conference.

Wright said he supports the goal of a balanced federal budget for fiscal year 1981 "if it is humanly possible to achieve it."

The Texas Democrat added, however, that a balanced budget will not end inflation automatically.

Its most important effect would be calming inflationary psychology by convincing consumers that the government is serious about fighting inflation, Wright said.

"It becomes a responsibility of government to try and set an example," he said. "I don't think it's a panic situation but I think it's a situation that calls for bold and resolute action."

Wright predicted that the White House will unveil a solid anti-inflationary program in the foreseeable future.

"There will be, predictably, an announcement by the president of the United States--he's the one who deserves to make that announcement, not to be preempted by other people- of what I hope and believe will consist of a bold and effective anti-inflationary program," he said.

Tito entirely dependent on kidney machine

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito is now entirely dependent on an artificial kidney machine, his doctors said Saturday.

The gravely ill 87-year-old Yugoslav leader's eight-doctor medical panel said other intensive care measures also were being continued to keep him alive.

Saturday's medical advisory was the first admission that Tito's kidneys had failed entirely. Doctors had said Feb. 22 that they were using a kidney machine.

"They were trying to fight the battle with this function and with nature," press spokesman Tone Vahen said of the kidney disclosure. "What the doctors meant to say is that now he is only on the dialysis."

The doctors said Tito, secluded on an upper floor of the Ljubljana Clinical Center, remained in grave condition.

'Landmark' decision on Klein school policy

Reducing grades upheld as discipline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In what chairman Joe Kelly Butler called a "landmark decision" for discipline, the State Board of Education Saturday upheld a Houston-area school district's policy of reducing the six-week grades of suspended pupils.

The vote was 14-2, with board members Virginia Currey of Arlington and William Sarsgard of Fort Worth voting "no," to uphold the Klein Independent School District policy.

Ms. Currey accused Butler of "election year rhetoric" about discipline.

Parents of Joseph Rogers, a former pupil of Strack Intermediate School, attacked the policy after the boy — then an eighth grader — was suspended for three days for fighting in November 1978.

Following the Klein school board's policy, Rogers' six-week grade in each course was lowered three points per day of suspension — a total of nine points.

Rogers' six-week grades dropped from two As and four Bs to two Bs and four Cs.

State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen agreed with Rogers' mother and stepfather, Dr. and Mrs. Keith Weaver, that the policy amounted to "punishment for being punished" and exceeded the Klein school board's legal authority.

The state board overruled Bowen's decision, although some who voted to do so questioned the Klein policy.

Butler said upholding the Klein action "would become a landmark decision for this board, showing the 1,100 school districts of this state that this board does stand behind them 100 percent, interlocking discipline aand local control."

Klein is in Butler's state board district. He is not up for re-election this year.

"I know these people. ... They have built one of the finest suburban school districts in Texas. They didn't build it by being namby-pamby in their treatment of kids. They make the law and they expect it to be obeyed," Butler said.

Mary Ann Leveridge, board member from East Bernard, voted to uphold the Klein policy but said, "It seems to me there is bound to be another way of punishing students. ... It is difficult to understand how a student could be punished in an academic area for a disciplinary matter."

Ms. Currey said it was wrong to penalize a youngster academically for an out-of-classroom infraction for which he already had been punished by suspension.

Butler said after the vote, "Discipline is the No. 1 problem in the schools today."

"The board hasn't taken a strong stand on disipline before, and in my opinion, now is the time," he said.

"That's election year rhetoric," Ms. Currey said in a separate interview.

Panel headed by White rejects drafting women

States News Service

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard White, D-El Paso, Thursday dealt another blow to President Carter's already mauled proposal to register women for military service.

In an 8-1 vote, the Subcommittee on Military Personnel of the House Armed Services Committee tabled a bill that would have given legal authorization for female registration.

Last week, a House Appropriations subcommittee denied the administration money for registering women as a prelude to a later vote that scrapped a $60 million package for registering men as well.

But House Majority Leader James Wright, D-Fort Worth, has vowed the administration will get its money when the issue goes before the full Appropriations Committee. "We will not allow the president to be embarrassed," he said.

It appears the full Armed Services Committee will get a chance to vote on the proposal tabled by White's subcommittee, but it is unclear what action the panel will take.

The only vote in favor of the registration bill came from Antonio Won Pat, Democratic delegate from Guam, who agreed with Carter administration witnesses before the subcommittee when they called registration of women "a matter of equity."

White said the current shortages in replacements for combat troops are not slots that women should fill.

"No one desires to see women in combat. Since we are dealing with needs for combat troops, there is no need to talk of registering women at this time," he said.

Subcommittee member Abraham Kazon, D-Laredo, said the sentiment of the country is clear: "The majority of people do not want women registered. I do not believe I could vote to have women registered."

Champagne Ball nearing

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

The swing of the 30s and 40s comes again for a few hours to Big Spring next Saturday with the Spring City Theater's Champagne Ball.

"We will have a 30s and 40s type set up this year," Greg Smith, Ball Coordinator, said.

"The theater and the 30s and 40s seem to go together," Greg Smith, ball coordinator, said. "It is a nice atmosphere to get lost in for a few hours."

The Champagne Ball will run from 7:30 p.m. to midnight at the Ball Room of the Settles Hotel. Smith pointed out that Lawrence Welk had appearances in Big Spring at the Settles Ballroom.

This is the second year for the group of local thespians to put on the ball.

"Last year we were more disorganized than organized," Smith smiled.

This year the group will have a USO show type format. Live entertainment by members of the theater will be provided for hourly.

"This year we thought we would go with an USO set up," Smith said. "This was popular during this time."

Smith added, "As far as dancing it will be a disco type set up." Popular music and music of the swing years will be played.

As far as dress, the theater is encouraging people to come in the styles of the 30s and 40s.

"We would like people to come in period dress," Smith said. "We (members of theater) will be dressed that way."

He added that semi-formal dress is appropriate.

Smith lists two goals the local thespians have with the extravaganza.

"More than anything we are trying to get people out to see the theater," Smith said. "Second thing is to get money to put on some plays."

The Spring City Theater has tentatively planned four plays for 1980; these productions will include a star-light melodrama and a puppet show.

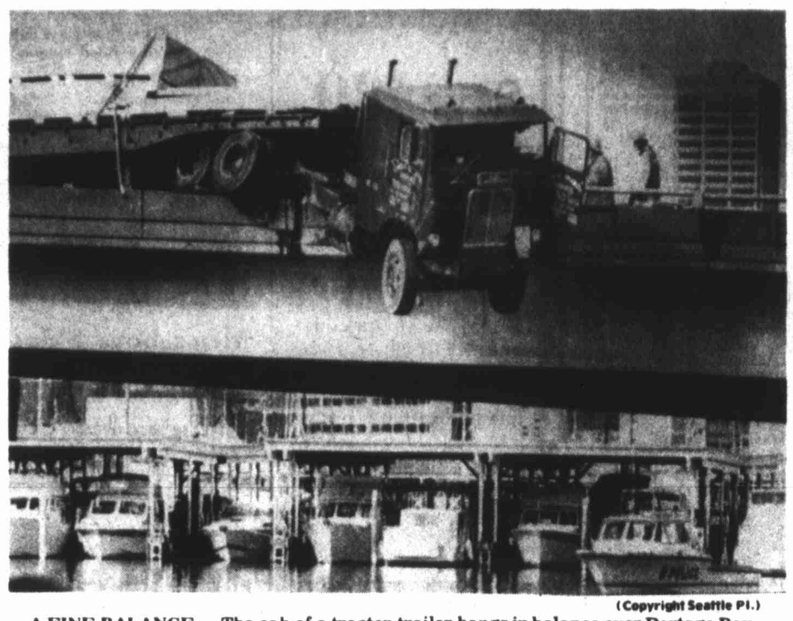

"We are starting from the bottom to get people interested in the theater," Smith said. "People don't see theater as something for everybody, but (something) for a select few."

He added that the local actors are trying to get all ages and all types of people out to see the local theater.

The price of tickets is $7.50; this price includes free champagne and hors d-oeuvres. Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce or from any member of the Spring City Theater.

Smith concluded, "The whole evening is a highlight."

"Hopefully it (Champagne Ball) will become a tradition," he said.

Stafford gets 3 new death sentences

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford, already under six death sentences for gunning down six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers, said, "I didn't do the crime," after a jury handed him three new death sentences.

Stafford was sentenced Friday to die for the killings of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12, all of San Antonio, Texas, during a June 1978 robbery.

"Thank you, your honor," Stafford said to Associate District Judge J. Kenneth Love after Love read the three sentences.

Love set formal sentencing for March 17. At that time, he must set a date for Stafford to die by lethal drug injection unless he rules that Stafford was improperly convicted and declares a mistrial.

The three sentences, like the six handed down in October, will be appealed.

Brazilians disappointed

RIO DE JANIERO, Brazil (AP) — About 50,000 Brazilians hoping for a close encounter with a space ship from Jupiter jammed onto a farm near Rio today, only to have their expectations dashed when the predicted dawn arrival time came and went without a sign of Jovian visitors.

"A lot of people were frustrated of course," said Heralmir Ramirez, police chief of the nearby town of Casimiro de Abreu. "But most are leaving calmly and we haven't had any incidents of violence. What we do have is a tremendous traffic jam."

Ramirez, who estimated the crowd at 50,000, had called in 350 state and federal police to deal with the mass of people flooding his tiny hamlet of 6,000 residents.

Word of the forthcoming "visit" had been hot news in this nation of 120 million since last weekend when a Brazilian farmer told a national television audience he had learned by "telepathy" that the space ship from Jupiter would be landing on his farm today at 5:20 a.m. — 3:20 a.m. EST.

That news brought tens of thousands to the farm, about 75 miles east of Rio. They kept watch through the night, many sitting in cars and others sprawled across the rolling valley ringed by mountains.

Temperatures hovered around 70 degrees as dawn broke and the arrival time passed with the sun the only visible orb in the sky.

Edilicio Barbosa, the farmer and long-time UFO aficionado, who first announced the coming was no where to be seen after the Jovian fiasco. Authorities said they did not know where he was.

"On a scale of 1-10," said one self-styled UFO expert, "Barbosa's credibility has hit zero."

Interviewed on one of the nation's most popular TV talks shows last Sunday, Barbosa said the people from Jupiter were coming to return a Brazilian helicopter pilot snatched in 1976 by the crew of an earlier probe from Jupiter. Indeed, a chopper pilot disappeared mysteriously on a flight off Brazil's Atlantic coast in that year.

Clutch charity shooting makes a big difference

Odessa edges Queens for Region V title

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The third time proved to be a charm for the Odessa College Lady Wranglers, as they used the free throw shooting of Carolyn Burnam and Laura Smith, combined with the clutch baseline shooting of Gloria Simmons to take an exciting 67-64 win over the Howard College Hawk Queens in the championship game of the Region V Tournament here Saturday afternoon.

The win propels the Lady Wranglers into the first round of the national junior college tourney. OC must face the winner of last night's contest between East Texas powers Tyler and Henderson on Thursday night in Weatherford. The winner of that game will advance to the final 16 team tournament, which will be held in Overland Park, Kansas.

It was the third contest between the two Western Conference rivals. WJC champion Howard won the first two meetings, taking a one-point win in Odessa and blowing the Lady Wranglers out of the coliseum here in February.

But Coach Ken Hefner's crew wouldn't be denied in the championship contest.

After Joanne Lefridge put the Queens ahead on a bucket in the first minute, the Odessa team scored eight straight points to take an 8-2 advantage.

But Howard came right back, scoring nine consecutive points to take an 11-8 lead. Things settled down for the time being, as the two teams stayed within two points of each other until the final five minutes of the first half.

But Odessa, who became red hot in the final minutes of the half, erupted to increase their margin to 32-23 with less than a minute to play in the first half. But the Queens scored four much needed points in the final minute to narrow the OC lead to five and gain back some momentum.

The Hawk Queens continued to rally, finally taking a 39-38 lead with 15:49 remaining on a Joanne Lefridge jumper.

The teams were then knotted at 40 and 42, with a Susan Martin field goal giving the Queens their last lead of the game at 44-42.

OC's Smith and Burnam then hit for four points to give the Lady Wranglers a 46-44 lead, and Burnam then sank two more free throws following a foul by Hawk Queen Kelly Lyons to give the Lady Wranglers a 48-44 advantage.

The foul was double costly for the Howard College fems, as it was Lyons' fourth infraction. 8:35 remained at this point.

OC increased the lead to six points, but that was as far as the Queens would allow their foes to advance.

With five minutes remaining, Hawk Queen Shawn Smith canned a field goal to narrow the OC lead to 55-54, with Burnam drawing her fourth foul on the scoring foul.

But Smith couldn't connect on the free throw, and Gloria Simmons hit a field goal and two free throws in the next minute to give OC a five point advantage with just under four minutes to play.

Robbie Freeman and Martin hit outside shots in the next two minutes, but Burnam canned both ends of a one-and-one situation and Simmons hit a short jumper to supply OC with a 63-58 lead with 1:30 remaining.

Pressing furiously, the Queens battled back and proceeded to feed Lyons inside, and the freshman All-Conference performer hit two field goals in the next minute to bring the Howard College team back to within one at 63-62.

But time was a problem. Forced to gamble for the steal, Lyons fouled out of the game with 22 seconds remaining, sending Burnam to the charity line.

The six-foot-one inch sophomore from Los Angeles, who was perfect on seven free throw attempts, calmly sank both ends of the one-and-one situation, giving OC a 65-62 lead.

The Hawk Queens, desperately needing a quick bucket at this point, lost the ball when a deflected pass bounced off Martin, who was ruled out of bounds.

With the Hawk Queens playing very tight defense, Burnam connected on a Hail-Mary bomb to Simmons over the outstretched body of Freeman. Simmons proceeded to convert an easy lay-up with nine seconds left to ice the Region V Tournament title.

Howard's Shawn Smith hit a final field goal with two seconds left, but it was too little too late.

There were many statistics in the game that could give theory to the Odessa win, but the biggest numerical fact, other than the final score, was at the charity line. Odessa connected on 13 of 19, compared to Howard's anemic two of seven performance at the free throw line. OC's Burnam, Smith and Simmons were also doubly deadly when it counted the most, as they converted 11 of 12 free throw attempts in the final nine minutes.

The Odessa College trio of Burnam, Smith and Simmons scored 55 of the Lady Wranglers 67 points. Burnam had 19, while Smith and and Simmons contributed 18.

Lyons, after not scoring in the first 15 minutes of the contest ended her freshman campaign with 19 points. Shawn Smith added 14 for the Hawk Queens, with Lefridge and Martin chipping in with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Odessa College Coach Ken Hefner was naturally happy with the win, and gave special credit to his outstanding sophomore duo of Burnam and Smith. "Howard College played better man-to-man defense than we've ever seen them play," said Hefner, "but I've got to give credit to Laura (Smith) and Carolyn (Burnam). They shot great!"

"Carolyn Burnam and Laura Smith made things happen in crucial situations, and that's something we haven't been able to do. If it weren't for those two players (Smith and Burnam), we would have been blown out of it."

Odessa will take a record of 24-6 into next Thursday's game against the winner of the Henderson-Tyler game.

The loss had to be very disappointing for the Hawk Queens, who had been so impressive in winning the regular season Western Conference title.

"I feel like I just got hit in the pit of the stomach," Hawk Queens ocoach Don Stevens said in a low tone in his office after the loss. "We played very hard, but we didn't play intelligent basketball."

"We didn't get the breaks," Stevens continued, referring to many errant shots that bounced into the arms of Odessa College, "and we didn't create many breaks, either."

The loss in the Region V Tournament championship game ends the Howard College fems season of an outstanding mark of 26-8, and ended an eight-game winning streak.

Howard and Odessa had advanced into Saturday's championship game by posting wins over Weatherford and Amarillo, respectively.

The Hawk Queens shut down the explosive Weatherford team with a tenacious defense, as the Coyotes couldn't score until 15:43 remained in the first half.

This put the Weatherford team, who had set a Region V Tournament scoring mark in a 97-89 win over Western Texas the night before, at a disadvantage that they could never overcome.

The Queens were cold too, as only the inside play of Lyons had the Howard College fems on top. With the score tight, Martin found a hot shooting streak just before the half to boost the Queens into a 35-26 halftime advantage.

The Howard College team then scored 12 unanswered points midway in the second half to boost themselves into a 16-point lead and then waltzed to a 69-59 win.

Lyons led the Queens in the Friday night win with 25 points, while Martin and Lefridge added 12.

Lefridge, Lyons, Smith make All-Tournament

Region V Women's Tournament champion Odessa College and runner-up Howard College each had three players honored at the conclusion of the annual affair Saturday afternoon, which was run at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The four-day tourney which sends its winner to the further national competition was run expertly by Tournament Director Jerry Phillips and Hawk Queens Coach Don Stevens, as well as many members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Howard College team members honored for their performances by being named All-Tournament were Joanne Lefridge, Kelly Lyons and Shawn Smith.

Tournament champion Odessa College was represented by Laura Smith, who was voted the Most Valuable Player, as well as All-Tournament selections Carolyn Burnam and Gloria Simmons.

Five other teams that participated in the 10-team event had players named to the All-Tournament squad.

They included Valencia Douglass of Cisco, Katie Fisher of Western Texas, Lynette Johnston of Weatherford, Jessica Wiley of Amarillo and Lynette Joiner of South Plains.

But loss still hurts

Stevens praises Queens

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

"I feel like I just got hit in the pit of the stomach," a pensive Howard College Hawk Queens Coach Don Stevens said in his office following his team's heartbreaking 67-64 loss to Odessa College in the championship game of the Region V Women's Tournament.

Stevens not the only one who was disheartened by the loss, as the setback in the championship game came as a mild surprise to most Hawk Queen fans.

The Queens, playing in peak form for most of the past few games, had already defeated Odessa College twice, and had to be considered the favorite in Saturday afternoon's Region V Women's finals.

But the expected didn't happen. Odessa College, led by sophomores Carolyn Burnam and Laura Smith, played superbly and outshot the Queens in the decisive final minutes to end the Hawk Queens season.

The Queens played with intensity throughout the contest, but could not shoot with winning results, as the Howard College fems connected on only 43 percent from the field and two of seven from the free throw line.

Odessa ignored the pressure in connecting on 50 percent of their shots from the field and hitting on 13 of 19 free throws, including 10 of 11 in the final nine minutes.

And as in many sporting events, things didn't alway go the way that they seemingly should. In many instances throughout the Region V title game, the Queens had rebounding position, only for the ball to bounce directly to an Odessa player.

"Loose balls and the rebounds seemed to go to them," Stevens philosophized. "Sometimes, it just happens like that."

"At times," he reflected, "I just felt helpless over on the bench."

This is probably as good as any Hawk Queen team that Stevens has had in successful tenure at Howard College, and he and his team no doubt had aspirations at achieving success on a national level this year.

The Hawk Queens had gone 11-1 in conference play, winning the title by two games over Odessa and Western Texas. They were also on an eight-game winning skein. But Odessa College didn't seem to remember that.

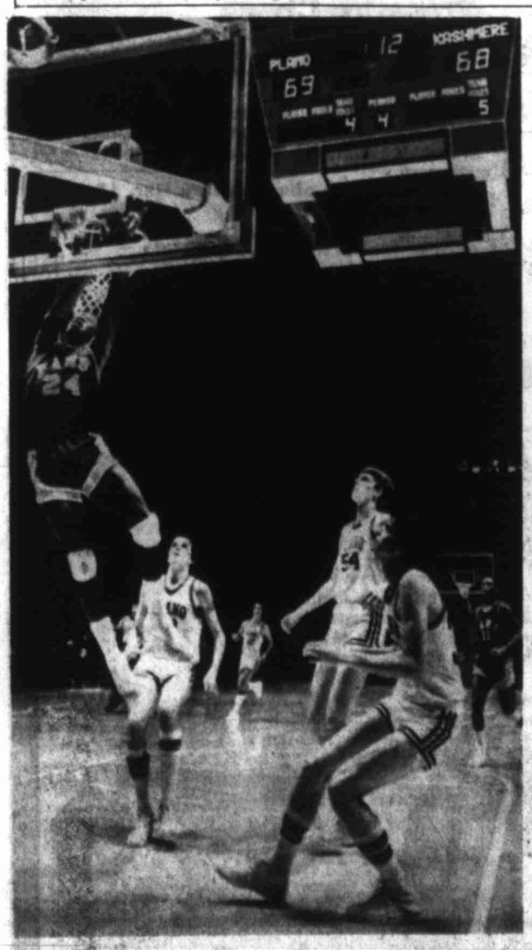

"I really feel like this was our best shot at the national junior college championship," said Stevens. "We had the big people inside and good play at all of the other positions."

"but Odessa College deserved to win. They played a great game," he continued.

"They (Odessa) were one of the better teams to come to the tournament," Stevens said, before further explaining his feelings. "When I say that, there were several teams in that category. But still, I feel that we had a very good shot (at the Region V title and further honors)."

And though the championship game loss was not one of the Queens better games, Stevens still praised the play of his team. There is no doubt that the Hawk Queens themselves, as they quietly ambled back to their dorm, were just as sad about the loss as the Hawk Queens mentor.

Concerning his post-game locker room talk to the Hawk Queens, Stevens explained: "I just told them that I was extremely happy to be a part of them this year. They were a pleasure to coach and gave everything they had. I told them to hold their heads up and I love them."

TITLE WINNING SHOT — Alfred Godine (24) of Houston Kashmere sinks the winning basket with 12 seconds on the clock in the final game of the 4A Boys State Basketball Tournament in Austin Saturday. Plano's (L-R) David Hinnrichs, Kirk Lundblade and Bubba Wesch could only sit back and watch as Godine stole a pass and won the 4A state basketball title for Houston Kashmere with the final score 70-69.

Tip-in gives Kashmere AAAA championship

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senior Alfred Godine made an unchallenged layup with 10 seconds to go as Houston Kashmere wiped out a four-point deficit in the final 28 seconds and beat Plano 70-69 Saturday afternoon for the Class 4A schoolboy basketball championship.

Godine's basket, off a pass from teammate Stefon Chandler on a deflected Plano inbounds play, gave Kashmere the lead for the first time since the first quarter.

Plano led 69-65 with 28 seconds to play when 6-7 senior Kirk Lundblade hit one of two free throws. Eight seconds later, senior guard Wayne Johnson was fouled while making a driving layup, and his three-point play cut the margin to 69-68.

Kashmere pressured Plano into throwing away the inbounds pass, and the referees — after disagreeing on who touched t last — called for a jump ball.

Plano controlled the tip, and the ball rolled out of bounds off a Kashmere player.

Plano then had trouble again on the inbounds pass, and Chandler deflected it to Godine for the winning shot.

Plano, with 8 seconds to go, could not get off a final shot.

Plano used its precision offense and hot shooting to build a 14-point lead in the second quarter. But the Wildcats got sloppy late in the second quarter, and Kashmere ran off eight points to get back into the game.

Luster Goodwin, a junior guard, came off the bench to lead Kashmere with 18 points. Johnson added 17, as Kashmere took its third state basketball title.

Lundblade had 30 points for Plano. Plano point guard Jack Crain, a 5-9 senior, ran the Wildcat offense, which consistently found open shots near the basket.

Snook wins at buzzer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Billy Felder hit a driving layup as the final buzzer sounded today to give Snook a 59-58 Class B basketball championship victory over Petty West Lamar.

In winning its third consecutive state title, Snook spoiled a dramatic fourth-quarter comeback by West Lamar.

West Lamar trailed by 13 points with just over a minute gone in the fourth quarter and rallied to go ahead 58-57 on a tip-in by sub Van Hilburn. Gary Dean missed three free throws for West Lamar in the final 23 seconds that would have clinched the title for the Northeast Texas team.

After his third miss, with seven seconds remaining in the game, Felder dribbled the length of the court and banked the winning shot in as the game ended.

It was Snook's 44th victory this season against a single loss.

Mike Wallace earns All-Region V honors

Howard College sophomore Mike Wallace was one of six players named to the Men's All-Region V team at the meeting of the coaches in Midland during the past week.

The 6'7" Dallas Pinkston produce earned the honor by leading the Western Conference in scoring and rebounding. Wallace finished with a 27.6 per game average and also hauled down 14.3 rebounds per game. He also finished fifth nationally in junior college scoring.

Joining Wallace on the elite All-Region V team were four players from the Western Conference and one from the Northern Conference.

Hill County's Tony Massey was the lone NJC player named.

Region V Tournament champion, who enter the NJCAA playoffs ranked first nationally, landed two players on the team in sophomores Paul Pressey and Greg Stewart.

Rounding out the All-Region V squad were Midland College's Robert Tate and Amarillo College's Vic Mitchell.

Upsets common in NCAA Tourney

Missouri stuns Notre Dame

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Mark Dressler pumped in 32 points, including six in overtime, and triggered a Missouri comeback as the Tigers surged past ninth-rated Notre Dame 87-84 Saturday in the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Missouri and Louisville move now to the Midwest Regional semifinals in Houston.

Missouri, now 25-5, erased a six-point halftime deficit behind Dressler's deadly inside touch and went ahead of the Irish 76-74 on a layup by Steve Stipanovich with 30 seconds left.

Orlando Woolridge, on a feed from Kelly Tripucka, made it 76-76 with one second left in regulation.

Tracy Jackson, who led the Irish with 29 points, scored all eight of Notre Dame's overtime points.

Jackson's jumpers tied it in overtime at 78-78 and 80-80. Then Missouri, the regular season Big Eight champion, took an 84-80 lead on a bucket by Ricky Frazier and a pair of Dressler free throws.

A Jackson bucket pulled Notre Dame within two, then Stipanovich hit a free throw with 14 seconds left to give the Tigers a three-point cushion.

Dressler, who burst into prominence late in the season when he replaced All-Conference forward Curtis Berry, cooly canned two more free throws to make it 87-82 before Jackson's final jumper accounted for the final score.

Cinderella Lamar pulls big upset over Oregon State

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Five players scored in double figures as scrappy Lamar upset 5th-ranked Oregon State, 81-77, in the second round of the NCAA West Regional basketball playoffs Saturday.

The unranked Cardinals, pulling off their second underdog win in three days, advanced to the West third round next Thursday in Tucson, Ariz. They face Clemson, which surprised No. 12 Brigham Young, 71-66, earlier Saturday behind guard Billy Williams' 24 points.

Lamar, seeded 10th in a field of 12 in the region, blew out to a 16-point lead midway through the first half, then hung on as guard Alvin Brooks hit four foul shots in the final 1:38 to preserve the victory.

Second-seeded Oregon State, the Pacific-10 champion, took a one-point lead on a three-point play by guard Mark Radford to make it 46-45, but Lamar never trailed after the 13:55 mark.

Oregon State center Steve Johnson scored a game-high 24 points and 18 rebound, but fouled out with three minutes left and his team trailing 75-71, and OSU scored only three more baskets in the game.

Lamar, Southland Conference champs from Beaumont, Texas, edged No. 17 Weber State, 87-86, Thursday night.

Iowa rallies by Wolfpack

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Vince Brookins came off the bench to score 17 points and lead an Iowa comeback in the second half as the Hawkeyes defeated North Carolina State 77-64 in the second round of the NCAA East Regional Tournament on Saturday.

Joe Barry Carroll shoots Purdue past St. John's

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's unstoppable Joe Barry Carroll, scoring almost at will, poured in 36 points Saturday as the 20th-ranked Boilermakers held off a second-half rally and beat No. 13 St. John's, 87-72 in the second round of the NCAA Mideast basketball tournament.

No. 14 Duke played unranked Pennsylvania in the second game at Purdue's Mackey Arena.

With Carroll scoring nine points during a 13-2 Purdue spurt early in the second half, the Boilermakers jumped to a seemingly safe 18-point lead at 54-36.

But, the aggressive St. John's defense forced Purdue into repeated turnovers, and the Redmen clawed back behind Bernard Rencher and Curtis Redding, and closed within six points with five minutes to go.

Carroll, the Boilermakers' 7-foot-1 All American, then hit 10 straight points. Keith Edmonson and Steve Walker followed with consecutive three-point plays, and Edmonson sank two more free throws for a 75-59 lead with under four minutes left. St. John's, which never led in the game, came no closer than 12 points after that, and Purdue built the lead back to 19 at the free throw line in the closing minutes.

Manning sparks Maryland win

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Guard Greg Manning led a second-half revival, scoring a game-high 28 points, to lead No. 8 Maryland to an 86-75 come-from-behind victory over Tennessee in the NCAA East Regional Saturday.

Maryland goes on to meet the winner of Sunday's Iona-Georgetown game while Iowa will play the winner of Villanova-Syracuse contest.

The Terps led briefly in the first half but went down by as much as 11 points on a 17-point first-half performance by Volunteer forward Reggie Johnson.

The Vols took an eight-point, 40-32 lead at the half.

But Manning, Buck Williams and Albert King led a comeback that saw the Terps tie at 48-all with 14 minutes remaining.

The game was tied three more times before Maryland went ahead for good, 60-58, with eight minutes left.

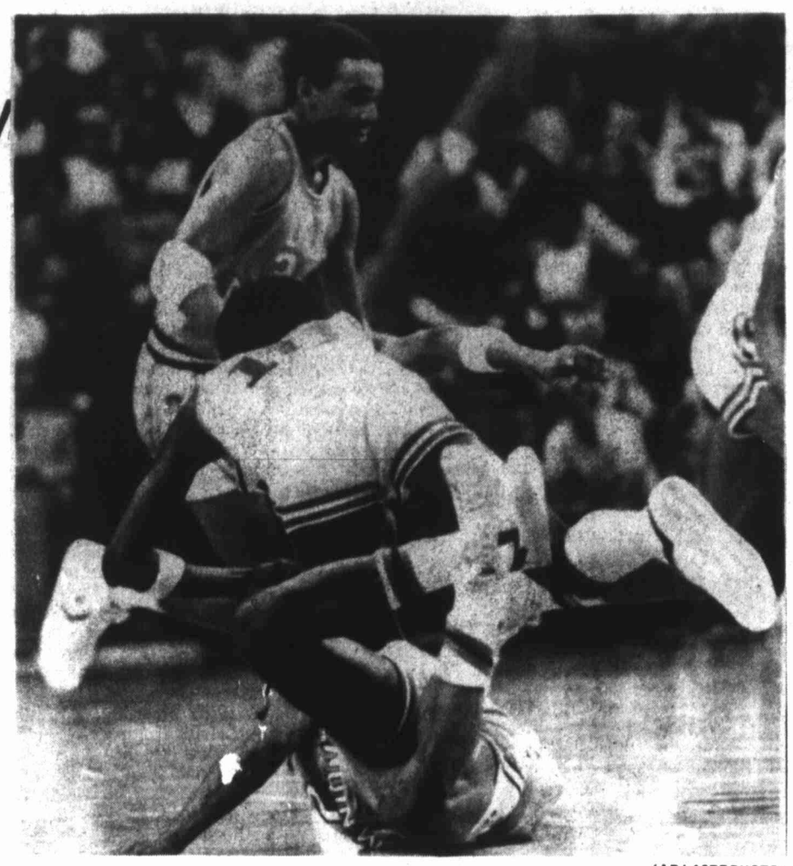

Louisville survives scare

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Tony Branch hit a 15-foot jumper with one second left in overtime, his only basket of the game, and lifted No.2 Louisville past stubborn Kansas State 71-69 Saturday in a nationally-televised second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

The Cardinals, 29-3, got possession of the ball with 2:20 left after Rolondo Blackman's two free throws knotted the score at 69-69.

With all-American guard Darrell Griffith on the bench with five fouls, the Cardinals played for the last shot, winding down the clock to set up Branch's winning shot.

Blackman had sent the game into overtime with a followup shot with one second left in regulation to make it 67-67.

Spinks brawls to a draw

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Leon Spinks spent virtually 10 rounds in a toe-to-toe punching contest with Eddie "Animal" Lopez on Saturday and fought him to a draw in a nationally televised fight.

The draw came on a split decision, with judge Arnold Buck scoring it 95-94 for Spinks and judge Duane Ford scoring it 95-94 for Lopez.

Judge Al Miller scored it 95-95.

Lopez would have won the fight, but lost one point in the fifth round for butting.

The bout had to be a stumble on the comeback trail for Spinks, who captured the undisputed heavyweight title with a one-point win over Muhammad Ali here on Feb. 15, 1978. Spinks was stripped of the World Boxing Council's portion of the title in a dispute over whom he would fight next, and lost the World Boxing Assocation title to Ali in September, 1978.

Virtually the entire fight a the Aladdin Hotel was fought on the ropes.

Spinks received $100,000 for the fight, while Lopez got $17,000.

UPSET HAPPY — Missouri cheerleaders Buddy Gillespie and Nancy Rainey express the Missouri fans joy after their team upset the ninth-ranked Notre Dame team in NCAA game. Missouri won 87-84.

Steer JVs split pair

The Big Spring junior varsity baseball team used the three-hit pitching of Adam Cruse to take a 10-2 win and a split of a doubleheader with the Snyder JVs here Saturday afternoon in Steer Park.

Cruse limited the Tigers to only three hits and two walks in the second game of the twin-bill, and also whiffed 12.

He was aided at the plate by the exploits of Alan Trevino, who had four RBIs on two hits.

Snyder took advantage of seven unearned runs in the opener to take an 8-7 win. Tom Cudd was the victim of the Big Spring JV defensive lapses, as he was credited with the loss.

It was the first action of the year for the Steer JVs.

Sacrifice fly propels Coronado sweep of Steers

LUBBOCK — Bryan Brock's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth inning scored Scott Ewing and propelled the undefeated Lubbock Coronado to a double-header sweep over the young Big Spring Steers in a non-district clash here Saturday afternoon.

Coronado won the opener by a score of 5-3, then took a 4-3 decision over the Big Spring team in the second contest.

Big Spring jumped off to leads in both of the games. The Steers struck for two runs in the opener in the second inning when Tommy Olague walked, Blake Rosson singled, and Greg Armendariz doubled to score both runners.

Big Spring added their final run of the first came in the third inning when Rusty Hayworth, who had tripled, scored on a double by Olague.

This gave the Steers a 3-0 lead, but Coronado rallied to tie the game in the fourth inning off starter Wayne Shipman.

In the Coronado fifth, the first hitter walked, and then was sacrificed to second and third. With two outs, Allen Harp singled to give Coronado a 4-3 lead, and Brock followed with a run-scoring double.

Robert Moran then relieved Shipman and shut off the Coronado team the remainder of the way.

Brock, with relief help from Abel Castro, received credit for the win. Shipman was the losing pitcher.

In the second game, Tommy Rodriquez led off the second with a single. Armendariz and Mark Warren then walked to load the bases. Rodriquez scored when the Coronado first baseman threw home wildly after fielding a Dickie Wrightsil grounder. Armendariz then scored on a fielder's choice by Rosson.

But Coronado rallied to score three runs in the third. Following a single by Johnny Law and two bases on balls, Young sent a single into right that scored two runs, with a fielding error on the play allowing Coronado to take a 3-2 lead.

With time slipping away, the Steers rallied to tie the game in the sixth.

With two outs, Wrightsil bunted safely for a single, and then advanced to second when the fielder overthrew first. Rosson then tied the game by plating Wrightsil with a timely double.

Moran, who relieved starter Moe Rubio in the sixth, then shut down the Coronado team until the eighth inning.

But the Steers couldn't score either.

Ewing led off the eighth for Coronado with a triple, and Big Spring Coach Howell Martin then strategically ordered two intentional passes to set the play for a force out at the plate.

But Brock foiled the plan by hitting a long fly to left that allowed Ewing to tag and score.

Richardson pitched the entire game for the Coronado team in picking up his first decision of the year, and boosting the Lubbock school's record to 5-0 on the year.

Moran, meanwhile, accepted his first loss of the year, and the fourth for the young Steer team in five games.

Martin was pleased with the defensive play on his squad, but is hoping for better production from the plate.

"We had numerous opportunities to score in both games," said Martin, "but we just couldn't get the key hits."

Big Spring and Coronado resume their rivalry on Monday when the Lubbock team travels to Steer Park in Big Spring. Brad Files is expected to start for the Steers in the 4:00 p.m. contest.

In Jackie Gleason Tourney

Johnny Miller red hot

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Miller, again exhibiting the uncanny touch that once made him golf's Golden Boy, birdied five times in a six-hole stretch on the way to a 6-under-par 66 that gave him a two-stroke lead Saturday in the $300,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary tournament.

Eight men either led or shared the third-round lead at one time or another before Miller turned the race into a potential rout with a 31 on the back nine.

Miller, 32, quite obviously over a puzzling slump that dropped him from a record-setting position at the top of the game to a spot among the scrambling also-rans, finished 54 holes with a 204 total, 12 shots under par on the 7,127 yard Inverrary Golf Club course.

He was, simply, the Miller of old; the man who set scoring records in the U.S. Open, scorched the deserts of Arizona and California, collected eight titles in 1974 and later won the British Open. There was no hint of the struggler who has gone four years without winning in the United States.

Only a dramatic, par-saving putt by Mike Hill on the final hole kept Miller from a three-shot lead. Hill, the 41-year-old veteran who had the second-round lead, finished with a 70 and second at 206.

In Class AAA state finals

Hebert routs Snyder

Beaumont Hebert took the 3A title with a record-setting performance against Snyder. Hebert won 88-53 in a no-contest final. The 88 points broke the scoring record for the Class 3A final.

San Marcos set the previous record — 87 — in 1965.

Snyder stayed close in the first quarter and trailed by only three after the first period. But Hebert blew the Tigers out in the second quarter and raced to a 44-22 half-time advantage.

Junior Donald Mickens led Hebert with 24 points and played only three periods. Substitute George Welford added 11 and Bradley Richardson was top scorer for Snyder with 12.

Sabine edges by Bartlett

AUSTIN — Sabine used clutch free throw shooting in the fourth quarter to overcome Bartlett 69-68 and win the State Class A title.

Sabine led by as much as nine in the second quarter, but a quick Bartlett team reeled off six points to pull within three at halftime.

Sophomore guard Charles Smith, who finished with 30 points, got hot in the third period as Bartlett raced to a 44-36 lead with four minutes to play in the period.

But Sabine used its heighth and muscle advantage inside to pull even in the fourth period and the Cardinals hit clutch free throws in the last minute to hold on for the victory.

UT fems rout LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Texas stole the ball from Louisiana State University 23 times Saturday night, with guards Linda Waggoner and Ezwella Munn committing 11 of the thefts in a 96-73 Texas romp over LSU in the consolation game of the AIAW's Region 4 tournament.

Louisiana Tech and Stephen F. Austin played for the regional championship later Saturday night.

In all, LSU committed 38 turnovers including the steals. Waggoner swiped the ball six times, and Munn took it away from LSU five times.

Texas is now 32-3 for the season and almost assured an at-large bid to continue in the AIAW championship playoffs.

Nell Fortner led Texas scoring Saturday night, hitting 22 points. Munn had 16.

Julie Gross led LSU with 27 points.

Texas led 35-30 at halftime but blew LSU off the court with a 25-9 spurt that made the score 76-55 with just under seven minutes remaining in the game.

Hawks stifle Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — John Drew scored a game-high 25 points and his Atlanta Hawk teammates held the Houston Rockets to their lowest point total of the season to claim a 97-79 victory in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night.

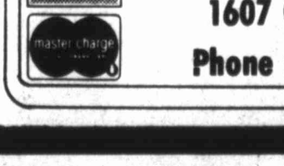

The injury-riddled Rockets, playing without Rudy Tomjanovich and with an injured Rick Barry and Calvin Murphy, could manage only nine points in the last 6:28.

Atlanta, which led 39-35 at the half, outscored Houston by a 12-3 margin in the first four minutes of the third quarter to take a 51-38 lead.

Robert Reid kept the Rockets in the game in the third quarter, scoring 14 of his 25 points to help narrow the Atlanta lead to 71-60 at the end of the period.

Houston, which hit on only 37 percent of its shots from the field, could draw no closer than nine points in the final period.

Foyt missing at Texan 250

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Bruce Hill of Union City, Ga., grabbed the pole position Saturday for Sunday's USAC Texan 250, which is missing perennial champion A.J. Foyt and defending champion Bobby Allison.

Hill, 30, the 1975 NASCAR rookie of the year, turned in a qualifying round of 167.40 mph in his Oldsmobile. He will share the front row with Terry Ryan of Davenport, Iowa, who qualified at 167.20.

Ricky Otis of Houston and Rusty Wallace of St. Louis will be in the second row.

The veteran Foyt, who had virtually owned this speedway less than 100 miles from his hometown of Houston, left USAC during the offseason because of an unexplained dispute.

Foyt has won five stock car races here and has been the USAC national stock car champion for the past two years. He is the top attraction for the fans at Texas World Speedway.

Allison, who won last November's Texan 250, was scheduled to defend his title here Sunday, but snow caused last week's Carolina 500 to be postponed a week. Since Allison is committed to NASCAR, he must run in North Carolina this weekend.

NASCAR standout Richard Childress, who finished second here last November, is also missing the Texan 250 to run in North Carolina.

Hill said he will not miss Foyt and Allison on Sunday.

"That definitely opens it up for somebody like myself," Hill said. "I like to race against those guys, but A.J. is tough to beat here. I can be more competitive now.

"Instead of two cars pulling away, I think there will be five or six cars running together," he added. "A.J. and Bobby not being here has to hurt the turnout of fans, but you might see a better race."

Ricci Ware Jr. of San Antonio agreed.

"It will be a more competitive race with them out. At the end of the race, there will probably be seven or eight guys running together instead of just Bobby and A.J.," Ware said.

Hill, who runs selective NASCAR and USAC races, was surprised to capture the pole position, he said.

He said his Oldsmobile, which he usually runs in NASCAR races, is heavier and usually doesn't qualify as well as the USAC cars.

Indy car veteran Danny Ongais, who is running in his first stock car race, qualified his Camaro for sixth place.

Ongais originally was to have driven an Oldsmobile owned by WAM Racing of Davenport, but a late switch put him in the Camero. Ongais won the most pole positions and was the leader in the most laps last year.

Sunday's Texan 250 starts at 2 p.m. It will be sandwiched between two Texas Race of Champions races which start at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Star forward has baby 31 hours after game

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP) — Star forward Mary West had put on a little weight, and didn't play as well as expected when her high school girls' basketball team won its sectional championship.

Thirty-one hours later, she gave birth to a daughter.

"I felt just a little overweight," said the 16-year-old junior at Glades Central High School, adding she didn't know she was pregnant.

Ms. West, 6-foot-1 and nicknamed "The Tree," was given a clean bill of health by a school nurse four weeks ago, says Graham Frost, the school's athletic director.

Frost said he sent her to the school clinic because she was putting on weight. "I said, 'Mary, you're putting on too much weight. I'd like to have you go to a doctor and have it checked out.'"

And Ms. West said she had a pregnancy test that was negative.

Mary scored only four points — six less than her season average — in the March 1 game, and Frost said her play was off.

"She was not as aware of where she was on the court," he said. "She's a very smart ballplayer. She plays good defensive basketball, knows where to position herself and everything else. But she wasn't quite as sharp that night.

The Glades' 55-47 victory over Hallandale advanced the team to the state championships.

The next day, Ms. West gave birth at home to 6-pound, 2-ounce Cassandra Olympia West. Her 11-year-old sister was the only person at the 4 a.m. home birth.

Ms. West, who is not married, said she felt pains before the birth, but "i thought t was ordinary cramps."

She was taken to a hospital, and she and the baby are doing fine.

"I don't see how she could do it," Dr. C. Jennings Derrick, a Palm Beach County pediatrician, said when asked to comment on the case. "I've never seen anyong pregnant who didn't show."

Frost said Mary asked to come along and suit up for the championship. He said no.

"We explained that we'd bring some souvnirs back for her instead," he said.

Walls, Longhorns race to track title

HOUSTON (AP) — Herkie Walls won the 100-meter dash and Texas won four other events to capture the 9th Rice Invitational Track Meet.

Walls was timed in 10.52 seconds, and the Longhorns placed two other sprinters in the top four to get valuable points and edge second-place Texas A&M, which had 121 points behind Texas' 140.

Aggie pole vaulter Randy Hall cleared 18 feet, one-half inch to become the first Southwest Conference undergraduate to clear 18 feet in an SWC meet.

Indestructible Todd Harbour of Baylor claimed the 1,500-meter run in 3:43.89, then came back less than an hour later to win the 800-meter run in 1:47.42. Both times met national qualifying standards set by the National Collegiate Athletics Association.

Leslie Kerr took the 400-meter dash in 45.45 seconds, then anchored the Aggies to a meet and school record in the 1,600-meter relay by running the final leg in 45 seconds flat, pushing his team to a winning time of 3:05.34.

Rice's Marti Foelick won the 10,000-meter run Friday night in 29 minutes 14.2 seconds, then finished second Saturday in the 5,000-meter run behind teammate Mike Novelli, who posted a time of 14:12.03.

Freshman Jeff Guy of Texas won the high jump by clearing 7 feet, 2 inches.

The Owls finished third in the meet, followed by Baylor and the University of Houston.

Aggies take shutout win

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rick Luecken's 2-hit shutout gave Texas A&M a 2-0 victory over Texas Christian, and the Aggies held off a ninth-inning Horned Frog rally in the second game to sweep a doubleheader.

Luecken, a 6-6 righthander from Houston, allowed only one runner to second and struck out six batters en route to his fourth win without a loss.

The Aggies scored an earned run on two Frog errors in the fifth inning, and Simon Glenn tripled in the sixth and scored on Twig Little's single.

Navratilova whips Wade in tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Martina Navratilova shelled Virginia Wade for the sixth time in two years Saturday night and gained a berth in the finals of the $150,000 Dallas women's professional tennis tournament she won in 1979.

Navratilova, the world's top-ranked woman player, needed only 52 minutes to pick up the 6-1, 6-4 victory, extending her domination over the tall London star who now lives in New York.

Dianne Fromholtz and Evonne Goolagong Cawley played in a later match for the right to advance against Navratilova in the championship match.

"Everything I did clicked for what she wanted to do," lamented Wade, who said she felt sharp going into the match. "When she is good as that, she is terrific."

Navratilova, who beat Chris Evert for the crown last year, said she played into Wade's backhand "and I mixed it up quite a bit."

"I thought I made a more concerted effort, and I went out there fairly confident. I like to play against her because of her good rhythm and forehand, which enables me to play into her backhand," said Navratilova, a Czechoslovakia native who now lives in Dallas.

Norman happy with improved play

POMPANO–BEACH, Fla. (AP) — At times last season, when Texas Ranger shortstop Nelson Norman singled to the outfield, cries would ring out in the pressbox.

"That extends his consecutive month hitting streak!"

Norman was hitting under .200 at the time. A basket full of breadsticks at a restaurant were jokingly mistaken for his Louisville sluggers.

It was about that time that Norman gave in to a suggestion by first base coach Fred Koenig that he try switch hitting.

As last season wore on, his average climbed steadily. His strength improved with the help of 40 pushups each morning and another 40 each night before he went to sleep.

He ended the season hitting .225 overall, but that broke down to .198 from his natural right side and .264 from the left side, and Norman says the move should pay off this season both in his hitting statistics and in his paycheck.

"If I can hit, I know I'll make a lot of money and I'll make it real fast. If I'm only a good fielder, I know I'm not going to make any money," said the youthful Norman, who despite playing in his third major league season won't be 22 until May.

This past winter, he played for Aguilas in the Dominican Republic and batted .301, and of more than 200 at bats, only six were from the right side.

"No lefthanded pitchers in the Dominican this winter," Norman said.

Ranger manager Pat Corrales is happy about the development.

"The big thing is that his problem was on balls breaking away from him. If he turned around, the same pitches would be coming in to him. Hey, this is something he worked at for two months."

The Rangers were so pleased with the way the fleet Norman handled his glove at shortstop that they traded away Bert Campaneris to California early last season.

Norman made six errors in the first two road series of last season in games played in icy weather in Detroit and Cleveland, and criticism from the press, fans and, sometimes other Rangers, rankled him.

Larvell Blanks replaced him for a while when Blanks was inserted into the lineup and began to hit. Later, Corrales moved Buddy Bell to short from third and put Eric Soderholm at third to get more beef into the Ranger batting order.

"Everywhere we went, people asked me why we had a third baseman at shortstop. I tried not to let it bother me. I knew we weren't getting enough hits, four or five one night, two the next, six the night after. The team was in a slump and needed hitting," Norman said.

Once Norman's switch hitting began to pay dividends, he worked his way back into the lineup. He hopes he's there to stay.

TSU players die in tragic accident

SIERRA BLANCA, Texas (AP) — A week-long road trip to California turned into a double tragedy for the Texas Southern University baseball team when two players were killed in a van accident only days after a team member accidentally drowned in Los Angeles.

Seven others were injured when the TSU van overturned Friday near this far West Texas town.

Monday, the body of player Maurice Christian had been found in the swimming pool of a Los Angeles motel. Accidental drowning was ruled.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Bob Newman of El Paso said Friday's accident occurred as the team van was eastbound on Interstate 10, left the freeway, went out of control and overturned twice as the driver tried to steer back onto the highway, about 55 miles east of El Paso.

The dead were identified as Daryl S. Quinn, 18, and Dale Crummie, 21, both of Los Angeles. Quinn, a freshman, was pronounced dead at the scene and Crummie was dead on arrival by helicopter at Sierra Medical Center in El Paso, according to a TSU statement issued in Houston, where the university is located.

Hospitalized were James Brown, 21, of Los Angeles; Michael Felder, 22, of Dallas; and Ira LeRay Lane, 20, of Greenville, Texas. A nurse's supervisor said Lane was in satisfactory condition with bruises and Brown and Felder were in stable, but not serious, condition.

Brown was being treated for face cuts and possible internal injuries aand Felder suffered a possible concussion, the hospital official said.

The others, who were treated and released, were identified as the driver, Edelano Long, 20, of Los Angeles; Lamertine Martin, 22, of Kenner, La.; Larry Cole, 21, of Birmingham, Ala., and Kevin Johnson, 20, of Detroit, Mich.

Other team members were traveling in a second van.

The team was returning to Houston from a week-long road trip that included games with Los Angeles area universities, TSU said.

University President E.O. Bell said, "The administration, faculty and staff and students of Texas Southern University can at this time only express a profound sense of tragedy and shock about the accident in West Texas.

Australian stuns McEnroe, US team

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's Jose Luis Clerc completed a 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 13-11 upset win over John McEnroe Saturday to push the United States to within one match of elimination in the Davis Cup tennis tournament. But McEnroe and Peter Fleming won the doubles match to cut Argentina's lead to 2-1.

Clerc, who led two sets to one when darkness halted the match Friday, outlasted the world's second-ranked player in the three-hour, nine-minute set at the Buenos Aires Lawn Tennis Club. The match lasted a total of 6½ hours, one of the longest in Davis Cup history.

Clerc's victory, and that of Guillermo Vilas over Brian Gottfried the day before, enabled Argentine coach Lito Alvarez to rest both players for Sunday's decisive singles round in the best-of-5 American Zone final playoffs. In doing so, he virtually conceeded the doubles contest to the Americans, who routed Argentine substitutes Ricardo Cano and Carlos Gattiker 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

The United States, seeking its third straight Davis Cup title, needs to win both singles matches Sunday to advance to the next round. McEnroe plays against Vilas in the first match and Gottfried mets Clerc in the second battle.

McEnroe and Fleming, the world's top-rated doubles pair, simply overpowered their rivals. They won 11 straight games before the Argentines managed to hold a service late in the second set.

McEnroe was menacing at the net, smashing repeated shots between the two Argentines. Both he and Fleming held their serves throughout the match.

Williams is defeated by Roy Peden, 2 and 1

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Roy L. Peden of Kermit came on strong on the final nine holes Friday to win the championship at the 28th annual Life Begins at 40 golf tournament.

Peden, a former Texas A&M catcher, overcame a three-hole deficit at the turn and overtook Jack Williams of Plainview for a dramatic 2-and-1 victory on the windswept Harlingen Country Club golf course.

The battle between the two former champions was staged in winds that gusted to 35 mph and more, but Peden was 2-under par for the day and Williams was 2-over.

Williams, who won the 1977 tournament, appeared en route to an easy victory when he birdied the ninth hole to take a three-hole lead.

But Peden, a previous winner here in 1976, sank a 9-foot putt to save par on the 10th hole and parred the 11th hole to cut his deficit to a single hole while Williams bogeyed both holes.

Local team plays in Midland tournament

The Big Spring varsity and several local eighth graders took part in the Midland Invitational Tennis Tournament this weekend.

The local squad turned its attentions to Midland after opposing Abilene High School Thursday in the Figure Seven Tennis Center here. Abilene gained the edge in the competition, 11-7.

In the Midland tournament the results included:

B Boys singles, Aubrey Weaver did not lose out until his third match. The score was 7-6, 5-7, 3-6. Greg Franklin, Rusty Williams, Alan Sizemore, and Tony Childress were all beaten in their first matches of the draw. The boys doubles team in Division B, Scott Nelson and Todd Gilbert, was eliminated in the first round.

In the B girls singles, Alyssa Burns was to return to the tournament Saturday. Terri Miller and Penny Prudhomme were both eliminated in their first rounds. In the B girls doubles, Dawn Estes and Amy Burleson were eliminated in their first rounds. While Marie Lawrence and Charlene Minchew, Lea Kay Moore and Karen Jones, and Kim Madry and Debbie Fulcher were all eliminated in their first rounds.

In the C girls singles Sheri Walker, the only Big Spring entry to play, was eliminated in her round of the draw.

Alan Ladaga and Paul Prudhomme played in C boys doubles, but were eliminated in their first round.

Aggies try Tarheels

Alcorn State, LSU vie

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Alcorn State Coach Dave Whitney said Saturday that the Braves' meeting with Louisiana State Sunday in the NCAA Midwest Regional second round is the biggest athletic event in the predominantly black school's history.

Alcorn State, which has won 27 games in a row including Friday night's 70-62 victory over South Alabama, is unranked, while the Southeast Conference Tigers are No. 3 in the nation.

"There's no doubt about it. If we win the game it would be the greatest thing to happen to Alcorn State because it would be in every paper in the United States," said Whitney.

"A victory over LSU would give us visibility, credibility — you just name it," he said.

Alcorn State is 28-1, while the Tigers are 24-5. They meet at noon in the first game of a doubleheader with Texas A&M, 25-7, and North Carolina, 21-7, meeting in the second game in North Texas State University's "Superpit."

LSU Coach Dale Brown said, "The No. 3 ranking hasn't gone to our head. We know if we don't play our best basketball game we will back in Baton Rouge without a place to go."

Brown said his team had played very well on the road.

"We won 10 straight Southeast Conference road games and have won 19 of our last 25," he said.

Whitney added, "We're not bad ourselves. We're 40-2 away from home over the last several years. And guess who is wearing the visitors' uniform tomorrow? We are!"

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said, "I was impressed with A&M against Bradley last night. They have excellent team discipline and immense front line ability. They have a team that could go all the way to the final four and win it all."

The Aggies nipped Bradley in a first round game, 55-53, Friday night on senior guard Dave Goff's two free throws with a second to play.

Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said, "I haven't seen North Carolina play except for just a little bit on television. We know they have some tremendous players."

Metcalf has had success this season running the four-corner delay offense which Smith invented.

"I bought one of his books and we've been working on it," said Metcalf. "However, we won't learn how to defense the four-corner because we haven't bought Dean's next edition."

The winners of Sunday's games advance to the Midwest Regional in Houston next weekend.

Blizzard of suits swirl around move

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The blizzard of state and federal lawsuits swirling around the Oakland Raiders' effort to move to Los Angeles got another flake with the filing of a second action in the National Football League's breach of contract suit.

And in Los Angeles, to further complicate matters, a Memorial Coliseum lawyer Friday filed an amended complaint to a federal court suit there that demands $53 million in damages in the event the NFL succeeds in blocking the Raiders from their southland season opener

A removal petition aimed at getting the NFL suit switched from state to federal court was filed Friday at 5 p.m. just before wekend closing of the San Francisco federal court clerk's office. The petition was authored by the Raiders' attorney, former San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto.

Court sources said filing of the new petition cannot affect any orders already issued by the Alameda County court in the case until they are dissolved or modified by the federal court.

Alioto said the NFL's opposition to his petition was a "power play" in view of the upcoming league meeting at Palm Springs next week.

After filing a breach of contract suit Tuesday, the NFL was granted a temporary restraining order Thursday that bars the Raiders from signing any agreement to play in Los Angeles.

Also Friday, the state Court of Appeal denied the Raiders' request to overturn a restraining order the city of Oakland obtained Feb. 22 in Alameda County Superior Court to prevent the move south.

A federal court wag said a scorecard would not be out of line in trying to keep track of the profusion of legal gymnastics pulling and pushing on the team's desire to hit the road 400 miles to the sunny southland, where 80 percent of all Californians lives.

The NFL franchise is mired in a bewildering array of state and federal lawsuits filed, including an action by two boys aged 9 and 10.

Jon and Erick Hockaday, aged 10 and 9, sued the Raiders in Small Claims Court, claiming the move would leave them stuck with $200 in worthless team jackets, jerseys and souvenirs.

Cowboys sign QB from Canadian League

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have signed Canadian quarterback Jamie Bone, 23, a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, as a free agent, the club confirmed Saturday.

Bone was cut by the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League in 1978 and afterward appealed to a government agency for another chance to play.

"It's sad when a Canadian kid has to leave his own country to get an opportunity to play," he said in Toronto Friday.

Bone, who was cut after Hamilton's first exhibition game of 1978, argued he wasn't given a fair chance. He also complained the CFL's "import rule" limiting how many Americans can play in the league discriminated against Canadian quarterbacks.

Bone took his case to the Ontario Human Rights Commission which ruled in his favor and ordered the Tiger-Cats to give him another tryout and $10,000. Bone declined the tryout but not the money.

The Cowboys agreed to give him a tryout after he sent them a package of film highlights from his college days.

Cowboys director of player personnel Gil Brandt confirmed the club had signed Bone as a free agent, giving him a chance to try to make the team in summer training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Bone said he will report to Dallas at the end of the month to work out with the NFL club's conditioning coach and to become familiar with the team's offense.

GRADY — Grady's Ronald Chee has been named to the 1979 Texas Six-Man All-State football team, it was announced the past week.

A total of 24 players were honored on the two offensive and defensive teams on the six-man elite list. Trent had the most performers honored, as the school outside of Abilene had four players listed.

League champions highlight All-District 9-B selections

As could be expected, the respective champions in District 9-B dominated the league's All-District selections that were announced the past week.

Girls champion Borden County placed four members of its team on the 10-woman squad. Representing the Coyotes who also won bi-district, were senior Karen Williams and juniors Jana Edwards, Talley Griffin, and Gala Newton.

Sands placed two girls on the 9-B All-District squad. They were sophomore Penny Grantham and junior Jana Long, which should provide Sands Coach Stan Pulliam with hopes for regaining the 9-B title that eluded them this year.

Rounding out the 9-B Girls All-District squad were Klondike's Paige Echols, Dani Cave and Terri Lowe, and Dawson County senior Karen Gartman. Echols and Lowe are seniors, while Cave is a junior.

District 9-B boys champion Sands placed four members of its team on the All-District squad.

The Mustangs, who won bi-district before falling in the regional tournament, were honored with seniors David Long and Bill Wigington, and juniors Dennis Martin and Shayne Wigington.

Dawson County, Klondike and Borden County each placed two members on the boys All-District 9-B squad.

Representing Borden County were seniors Blane Dyess and Craig Peterson.

Dawson County boys honored on the All-District team included senior Wade Bennett and sophomore Joel Bennett.

Rounding out the All-District 9-B boys squad were Klondike juniors Todd Airhart and James Martin.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The credo of the revamped 1980 New York Yankees: Cool it.

The low-key, don't-rock-the-boat philosophy was reflected in the feathery, tentative fashion the club handled the first irritant to surface in the new season: the late arrival of Reggie Jackson, super star, catalyst, by self description "the straw that stirs the drink."

AWOL for three days — how do you punish the main kid in the class, the richest, the most influential, the best known.

Do you lean on him hard, possibly alienating and turning him into a malcontent?

Do you let him off Scot-free with a wrist slap and the admonition: "OK, but don't let it happen again?"

Or do you seek out some compromise that will not be too harsh on the offender yet will placate the other 63 in the room who could start screaming "prima donna," "special privilege," and the like?

The Yankees' bright, new front office wrestled with the dilemma like a flock of fussy hens and then took the mild road.

When Reggie checked in Monday, three days late, after fulfilling a backlog of outside commitments, he was let off without a fine. For recompense, he could write a check to his favorite charity.

Reggie picked the Public School Athletic League, a group that has supported him in the past. The best guess is he will shell out $2,000.

And it didn't hurt a bit.

There was, according to General Manager Gene Michael, no sharp directive from owner George Steinbrenner, sitting in his boat building offices in Tampa. There was no grousing in the lockerroom.

"It came out good," said the beaming Jackson. "I am happy with what happended."

"Reggie should have been here on time," insisted Michael. "We were forced to take action for the sake of team morale, the feeling of the other players."

"I'm glad he's here," said the new manager, Dick Howser, successor to the fiery Billy Martin. "I wasn't worried. He always reports ready to play."

One can imagine what the scene might have been had Martin been manager. There never was any great love between Jackson and Martin, although they tolerated each other up to a point. A lot of times, they came closer to blows.

Too Tall's Vegas bout nixed by commissioner

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Nevada Athletic Commission, fearful a proposed heavyweight bout between Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Yaqui Meneses would damage the state's boxing reputation, has voted not to allow the bout as a nationally televised attraction.

At an emergency meeting Thursday, the commission rescinded its earlier approval of the 10-round bout, which was scheduled to be televised by CBS from the Aladdin Hotel on March 22.

The commission, however, left the door open for Jones to fight, but only with another opponent replacing Meneses and the bout being downgraded from the "main event" of the card. If another main event is televised, a Jones fight could also be shown but only if the first fight ends in an early knockout, the commission decided.

After ruling out the Jones-Meneses bout, commissioners were still not happy with having Jones fight in Nevada but approved him with the two stipulations.

Commission member Sig Rogich said commissioners reconsidered their earlier approval of the bout after studying films of their first fight and reseaching Meneses' 4-5 record. Meneses lost an earlier bout to Jones, the former Dallas Cowboys football star.

Rogich said the bout between Jones and Menesis "would make a mockery of the sport" and could be "detrimental" to Meneses.

Lopez hopes for old form

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The two previous Ladies Professional Golf Association tournaments at Rancho Park have been a microcosm of the Nancy Lopez Melton success story. She hopes to relive that part of her past this week.

The 23-year-old superstar of women's golf has been the dominant force on the LPGA tour the past two years, but wasn't so recognized when she won the first tournament here in 1978.

However, it didn't take long for Melton to be acknowledged as the premiere woman in her sport as she cut a formidable swath through the spring and summer months.

Last year, her victory at Rancho Park was no surprise — it was one of eight tournament triumphs and by that time, she was No. 1.

Melton set an all-time single-year earnings record in 1979 of $197,488 in official earnings in 19 tournaments and $215,987 in 22 total events, eclipsing the high monetary marks she established in her rookie year.

In 2½ seasons, she's earned nearly $420,000 and ranks 11th on the all-time LPGA money-winning list.

But now, although it sounds difficult to believe, she's attempting a comeback of sorts.

Texas Rangers voice support of baseball strike

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers are solidly behind their players' organization, an informal poll indicates.

The players were unanimous in saying they will strike if asked to by the Major League Baseball Players Association.

"Of course, I support a strike. We'd be lost without the Association. We're like a bunch of floundering idiots without it," said pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

Reliever Sparky Lyle agreed.

"We should have struck last week. We have a hundred years of catching up to do," he said.

Outfielder Richie Zisk added, "Everything I have and everything my family has is due to the Association. One thing I'm not is a hypocrite."

Player representative Jon Matlack said the strike, if there is one, might not come until May.

"We could still strike, say in May, when it would hurt them (the owners) economically even more. Schools would be getting out by them, crowds start getting bigger and there are fewer rain-outs.

Ageless Ranger Gaylord Perry still using grease properly

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gaylord Perry, often accused but never caught throwing a grease ball, says the batters can expect his pitches to start doing strange things when they start collecting too many hits.

"See that green fence out there?" asked Perry, pointing toward the outfield wall at Municipal Stadium.

"When the hitters start hitting the ball over the wall, that's when you'll see it."

The 41-year-old Perry, the only pitcher to win the Cy Young award in both the American and National leagues, is back with the Texas Rangers again after a trade with the San Diego Padres.

A little Vaseline or K-Y jelly applied to the ball has a way of making the ball drop at the last moment, turning a potential home run swing into a harmless pop up. It's illegal. Of course.

"The thing with the spitter is you've got to use it discriminately," observed Eddie Mathews, a Hall of Famer and now a coach for the Ranger.

"The fun with Gaylord has always been whether he really was doing it or whether he was faking it most of the time. The more the batters complain, the more he goes to his face and cap and messes around before pitching."

Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, perhaps tongue in cheek, guards the secret well.

"You know, the funny thing is he has never told me for sure if he throws a spitter or grease ball," said Sundberg.

But, he added with a grin, "We do have a set of signals for a certain pitch."

Perry discovered the grease ball in 1964 when he was with the San Francisco Giants.

Catcher Tom Haller told him, "Boy, that pitch is working good. There's a time for it, so throw it."

Perry has been loading up ever since. Or at least that's what the hitters will tell you. He admits it one minute and denies it the next. It's all part of the scheme.

"Nobody knows for sure but him and his pharmacist," says the Texas manager, Pat Corrales.

In 1977, a Perry delivery was fouled back and struck a press box window, leaving a smudge.

"Must have hit a mosquito on the way," Perry reasoned later.

"The first trick is learning how to get the stuff in the first place," Perry admitted then.

"Then you have to get it into your motion. Some pitchers want to throw it, but they're afraid somebody's watching them and will call it to the umpire's attention. That means you've got to go to your cap and face after every pitch. They can never be sure when it's coming."

Mathews adds: "In Gaylord's case, a lot of times he has the batter looking for it so much that it makes his fastball and slider more effective."

Perry's 50 shutouts is third among active pitchers, behind Jim Palmer and Tom Seaver. His 3,141 strikeouts are second only to Walter Johnson's 3,508. He has won 20 or more games five times and has 279 career victories.

Perry was irate at first, after the pictures were published, but calmed down later. Now he's amused about the controversy.

"I once called the president of Vaseline, and I told him he should use me in a commercial since I use his product all the time. He got a little upset when he found out what I use it for. He said Vaseline is only for babies and fannies."

A GIFT FOR TEXAS TECH — The Texas Tech Ex-Students Association, through its executive director, Bill Dean, right, presents a $28,500 contribution to the university. It is accepted for the university by Dr. Clyde E. Kelsey Jr., vice president for Development and University Affairs. The Executive Board of the Ex-Students Association approved the gift at a Feb. 23 meeting. The figure brings the total to $39,624 the association has given the university during the 1979-80 academic year.

Exes donate $28,500 to Tech departments

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Ex-Students Association Friday, (Feb. 29) presented the university $28,500, with a designation of $1,500 each to the six colleges and the School of Law and $12,500 to the association's distinguished professorship in mathematics.

Other recipients were the Undergraduate Library, $1,000, the Law Library, $500, Health Sciences Center Library, $500, Faculty Development Fund, $1,500, and the President's Development Fund, $2,000.

The check was accepted for the university by Dr. Clyde E. Kelsey Jr., vice president for Development and University Relations. Dr. Bill Dean, executive director of the Ex-Students Association made the presentation.

The grants to the university were approved at a meeting of the Ex-Students Association Executive Board last month. Funds designated for the colleges and School of Law are unrestricted.

Dean said it was the association's feeling that the funds for the schools "might be especially useful at this time" relative to a proposal for them "to initiate fund-raising campaigns directed at graduates of the respective colleges late this spring."

In a message to deans, Dean said, "When we first began to discuss with Dr. Kelsey's office the proposal to turn ove rour records to each dean for the purpose of fund raising, I recognized the definite possibility that this would hurt our annual fund drive. However, I also recognized that a dean can raise money that we cannot raise and that this type of thing was something that was long overdue at Texas Tech. I hope you are very successful in your efforts. I assure you that you will have our complete cooperation in this matter."

During 1979 the association funded projects totaling more than $11,000. They included the Spirit Co-Ordinating Committee, Valedictorian Scholarship Program, Student Foundation and Academic Recruiting.

This represents a total of $39,624 that the association has given to the university for the 1979-80 academic year. The association also has secured additional endowment funds that will enable the university to increase the amount awarded to each valedictorian from $100 to $200.

WILLIAM WINDOM

William Windom Plays Thurber" in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — University Center Programs will present "William Windom Plays Thurber," March 11 at the Texas Tech University Center Theatre at 8:15 p.m.

Possibly best-known for his Emmy Award winning role as the lead in the TV series, "My World And Welcome To It," based on the works of James Thurber, Windom has also made numerous appearances on other television shows. Some of his TV crefits include the male lead in "The Farmer's Daughter" as well as appearances on PBS, Night Gallery, Star Trek, Trapper John, M.D., and Blind Ambition.

In addition to his television performances, Windom has appeared in such movies as Escape From the Planet of the Apes, Fool's Parade, Brewster McCloud, and To Kill A Mockingbird.

Enchanted with the works of James Thurber at an early age, Windom has pursued this interest and has compiled a one-man show based on Thurber's soft-pedal satires and fables.

In his show, Windom presents Thurber's drawings and cartoons as well as his prose — a splendid mixture of the hilariously absurd and the brilliantly incisive.

Tickets for William Windom's performance are on sale at the [illegible] at Booth and Hemphill-Wells in the Mall. Prices are $2.50 for Tech students, $3.50 for faculty-stuff, and $5.00 for others. For further information and reservations phone 742-3610.

Big Spring

Six go to Woodrow

By KELLY BROCKMAN

Before delving into the upcoming events of this week, a couple of corrections must first be made.

First of all, the Key Club has had a change of officers. David Phillips was elected lieutenant governor of district, and therefore he could no longer hold a local office as well; so a reelection was held. The Key Club officers for the 1980-81 school year are: Matt Taylor, president; Paul Silva, 1st vice-president; Tony Hall, 2nd vice-president; Mike Stevens, secretary; Martin Solis, treasurer.

Now secondly, the deadline for application for the United Nations trip, which is hosted by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Lodge, were not due in March 3 as previously reported. The deadline is March 19, but remember only juniors and sophomores may enter. Applications are still available in Mr. Fischer's office.

On March 8, a journalism UIL meet was held at Woodrow High School. Participating journalism members included: Lorraine Langford, Daralyn Lawrence, Larry Bloskas, Mary Bair, China Smith, and Kelly Brockman. These members competed in such categories as: newswriting, editorial writing, headline writing, and feature writing. The results of this contest are to be announced at a later date.

Band members recently attended a contest which was held in Frisco, Texas. In competition against 10 other schools, the BSHS bandies came home with 13 trophies, 1st places in flag line, color guard, rifle line, twirling line, and drill team; many "outstanding" positions, sweepstakes, and a 290 meet points total were achieved.

Band members also recently elected twirlers and drum majors. Patty Griffin was elected head twirler. Other twirlers included Sherri Blalack, Anne Mullen, and Teresa Alexander. Prissy Mann was named head drum major, and Kama Minchew was named assistant drum major.

A surprising announcement was made this week directly following the swimming competition in which Morgan Wise made All-State in backstroke. Morgan has stated that he plans to shave his head for the state competition to show the loyalty and pride he has for his school. By doing this, Morgan hopes to set a precedent whereby all future All-Staters in swim team competition will do the same.

On March 20-23, the three head editors of the journalism department, along with Dana Strong their advisor, will attend ILPC competition in Austin. Attending editors are: Lisa Long, Lorraine Langford, and Leanna Tolle. In Austin, they will be attending seminars and entering contests.

This year senior talent night has been scheduled for April 1 to avoid the May rush. Auditions are excluded to only the position of M.C.

West Texas students in livestock contest

LUBBOCK — More than 1,500 high school students from the Panhandle and the West Texas area are expected to participate in the Texas Tech University Future Farmers of America (FFA) Judging Contests in the new Livestock Arena, April 19.

Regional FFA judging events will include livestock, dairy cattle, milk quality and dairy foods, poultry, meats and agricultural mechanics. Winners from these events will advance to the State FFA contests to be held at College Station later. Texas Tech FFA events will include wool, land, cotton, crops and grass.

Contests will be conducted by Texas Tech faculty who will serve as superintendents. Winners will be announced on the same day in the University Center Ballroom.

Registration for the contest will begin April 18 when the Aggie Council, a student body of the College of Agricultural Sciences, will sponsor a "hamburger feed" for the high school students.

The contestants will also get an opportunity to visit with Texas Tech aculty and students to discuss the university's teaching and research program in agricultural sciences.

High scoring teams and individuals will be awarded trophies, banners, ribbons and medals.

The FFA contests are organized by the College of Agricultural Sciences. For more information, write Dr. Marvin J. Cepica, Department of Agricultural Education, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409, or call (806) 742-2816.

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech University's spring 1980 enrollment of 21,169 students set a record for spring registration.

The figures show an increase of 527 students over spring 1979, the previous record.

Figures reveal 251 more women and 276 more men than last spring; but men still outnumber women by 2,653. The total number of men at the university is 11,911, women 9,258.

Three colleges dropped in enrollment from 1979. The largest was 163 fewer students in the College of Education, down from 2,237 to 2,074. Home Economics dropped from 1,612 to 1,597 and Agricultural Sciences decreased from 1,524 to 1,514.

The College of Engineering showed the greatest increase in students, up 354, from 2,918 to 3,272. Business Administration had an increase of 184 students, from 4,362 to 4,546; and Arts and Sciences climbed from 7,514 to 7,628, an increase of 114. The School of Law increased by 63 students, up from 475 to 538.

Garden City

Schedule changes to seven periods daily

By LANI KAY FRERICH

The Jump Rope-a-Thon that was held from 1:00 to 4:00 in the gym last Wednesday was a big success. Over $3000 was pledged to the American Heart Association. The group taking in the most money will be awarded warm-up suits.

There will be a big difference in schedules between this and next year as Garden City changes from the present six period day to a seven period day next year. This will give the opportunity to take more electives. Also, the six-weeks system will give way to the semester system next year.

The annual FHA Parent-Daughter Banquet will be given on Tuesday of this week. It begins at 7:30 in the school cafeteria. All members of the FHA club and their parents are invited.

The high school tennis team has a meet scheduled at Forsan on Thursday. The first matches begin at 3:30. Also on Thursday, the junior high track teams will participate in a meet at Robert Lee.

The high school JV track teams have a meet scheduled at Borden County on Friday.

Several students will be participating in a practice UIL Literary meet in Big Lake on Saturday. Also on Saturday, the high school track teams will participate in a meet at Forsan.

Runnels Stockwell speaks to junior high

By BRONWYN ALLEN

An assembly was held last Tuesday, March 4, in the boys' gym. Mr. David Stockwell was the speaker. A former Rice University football player, he spoke on such things as drug abuse, alcoholism, and religion.

The February winners in the Computer Room Contest were Ester Douglas in English and Buster Keaton in math.

The Choir Solo and Ensemble contest will be held on March 22, here in Big Spring at the high school. Forty-four Runnels choir students are participating.

The fourth six weeks report cards were issued last Wednesday. Honor rolls are being compiled and will be published soon.

Thanks to all the parents and friends who came by to visit Runnels on "Open House Day." There was a good turn-out and we appreciate the attendance. There was an especially good attendance in the "XLRI" computer room.

Next week will be Spring Break from March 10-March 14. School will resume at regular hours on Monday, March 17.

The Calendar Clue this week was "cranberry." The winners were Albert Valencia, Michael Walker, and Tal Logback.

The project for the 5th six weeks in Miss Kathie Sullivan's and Mrs. Cornelia Gary's English classes is a punctuation notebook. This includes such topics as periods, question marks, commas, exclamation points, colons and semi-colons, quotation marks, apostrophes, hyphens, italics, and capital letters. The notebooks are due April 8.

Still has memory lapses

Shooting victim improves

By ANDREA COHEN

Marc Boocher does not remember the circumstances surrounding the events that caused him to be shot.

Nor does he remember the shooting itself.

He keeps wondering why he was shot, what he did wrong.

Boocher was shot once in the head early Monday morning, February 25, at the residence of Katherine Curran.

Her estranged husband, Big Spring Patrolman Sean Curran, has been charged with aggravated assault in connection with the shooting. He is free on $25,000 bond.

Boocher does not remember Mrs. Curran's name, or the fact that he was at her residence at the time he was shot.

Even though she has been to visit him at the hospital, he still says he cannot remember her name. He thinks she might have worked with him.

Mrs. Curran has confirmed information that she and Boocher met at Cameo Energy Homes where they were both employed. Boocher had been an employee there approximately three weeks when he was shot.

He remembers what kind of work he did. However, he cannot remember the name of the company.

"I was working there, I don't know. I was a foreman. I was working on the floors, on the metals, building the trailers for them and the floors. People worked and were building that stuff for me," he said.

Boocher was transferred to a private room at Malone-Hogan Hospital Tuesday after spending a week in the intensive care unit.

His physician, J.W. Tipton, said Boocher is doing well.

"He's made good progress, he's fully awake, and he's able to eat and walk around," said Tipton.

He sometimes complains of headaches and at times has trouble speaking to persons on his left side, where his wound is.

He said he cannot see out of his left eye, however, he expects it to improve.

He was released from the hospital Friday morning.

"I don't think I should have been shot," Boocher said. He said he knew it was someone in a police uniform who shot him. Asked how he knew, he said the man was dressed in a uniform. Asked if he remembered the uniform or somebody told him it was an officer, he said he remembered the uniform. Later he conceded someone had told him it was a patrolman. However, he cannot remember who told him.

I thought it was wrong that he shot me, but I wouldn't know him again if I saw him.

"I can't remember. I can't remember anything. I wish I could. Maybe it was because I was with a married woman. But I didn't know she was married."

He is not sure if he was ever told she was married before the shooting or the fact that he cannot remember now if he was told.

He worries whether women will want to go out with him again.

"I'm damn lucky I'm alive, but look at my face," he said. "I'm all cut up. It's ugly. And I'm not ugly. No girl is going to go out with me now."

He said a brother who is visiting Big Spring while he is in the hospital wants him to go home with him.

"But I don't know if I want to go. I had stopped in Big Spring on my way to another place, but I'm not going to tell which place. I've never been shot before in my life. I almost died. Dummy. I'm a dummy because I got shot.

"I don't know who shot me," he continued. "All I know is I got shot. I don't know why or when or where. All I know is I was shot."

Despite his loss of memory on events since he moved to Big Spring, he has virtually no trouble recalling events before that time. He talks happily about his childhood, his friends, his jobs in other places and his family.

"But I just can't remember anything about the shooting and I'm trying so hard to remember. And then he added, "I remember more today than I did yesterday and I'll remember more tomorrow than I did today."

Mac Perkins is seeking post

COLORADO CITY--Mac Perkins, 35, has announced her intention to seek election to the Colorado City Independent School Board while Rex Beights has withdrawn his name from the ballot.

Beights said he had a relative on the Colorado City faculty. By law, the person could not be re-hired if Beights were elected.

Mrs. Perkins is owner and part-time operator of Perkins' Apothecary and Mercantile.

Chamber info is updated

The Big Spring area Chamber of Commerce has announced the updating of information material made available to visitors, newcomers, and convention delegates.

The lists will only be comprised of motels, restaurants, realtors, and apartment complexes that are currently members of the Chamber of Commerce. Those who are not members of the Chamber and would like to be included on these lists, can contact the Chamber office at 263-7641 and secure a membership.

Workshop set by Chamber

Ken Scarborough, public affairs manager for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Southwest division, Dallas, will conduct a legislative workshop from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday in the Chamber Conference Room.

Chamber of Commerce members have long been active participants in an organization that speaks out for business. A recent study by Public Citizen, a Ralph Nader organization, targets the Chamber and the roundtable because they are "representative" of the increasingly effective business lobbies, and because "Both help shape national policy in important, though often invisible ways.

All individuals, organizations and businesses interested in improving their legislative communication efforts have been invited to attend.

Illegal aliens would pose busing woe

HOUSTON (AP) — A Dallas school official says allowing illegal alien children to attend public schools without paying tuition would present busing problems and "adversely affect some programs somewhere."

Robby Collins, deputy associate superintendent of management for the Dallas Independent School District, testified Friday for the state in a trial that will decide the constitutionality of a Texas law requiring illegal aliens to pay public school tuition.

He said allowing illegal aliens to attend school tuition-free would place a further financial burden on schools, adding that Dallas schools will probably have to raise taxes this year to fund a 15 percent employee salary increase.

He also said an influx of minority children would upset the "delicate balance" of the current busing program.

Collins said inflataion will be a major factor in school finances in the 1980s and predicted a 100 percent inflation rate would lead to a "management of decline."

"Each community and state will be forced to reorder its priorities (because of inflation)," he said.

Director Michael Schultz loves a challenge

Sprawled languidly in his motor home "office" at a San Diego filming location of Melvin Simon Productions' "SCAVENGER HUNT," released by Twentieth Century-Fox, Michael Schultz, the young film director, is analyzing the nearly completed movie.

"It's crazy comedy of the 'Mad, Mad World' genre," he says. "I did it because there's a challenge to working with comedy.

"Comedy is ten times harder than drama and necessary, too. We need an opportunity to laugh. We need some relief and movies can do that."

Schultz is speaking softly, somewhat wearily. The job is almost done. The huge cast is gone and the skeleton crew is filming odds and ends, second unit pickup stuff, and the massive logistical and organization pressure is letting up and Michael is letting down.

"They say film is a director's medium, but this has been the actors' movie," he continues. "Twenty-five or so big names and they all worked extremely hard — people like Richard Benjamin, Cloris Leachman and the servant group..."

By "servant group," Schultz means Roddy McDowall, James Coco, Cleavon Little and the bright, blonde newcomer Stephanie Faracy, who play the mansion domestic staff named as potential heirs to a $200-million fortune. Their late employer, an eccentric parlor games magnate has decreed in his will that the entire sum goes to winners of a five-hour scavenger hunt.

"The four of them worked like clockwork," Schultz continues. "They brought a great deal to their characters and constantly came up with fresh ideas and new approaches. They are the new Keystone Kops.

"Cloris Leachman is so involved in what she is doing that nothing else intrudes on her consciousness. She gives an imput of zany energy like no one else. When she commits, it's 100 percent."

Just the thought of Leachman seems to energize Schultz and he starts speaking animatedly of other performances.

"Stephanie Faracy has talent oozing out of her. She can do anything. She's terrific!

"And Richard Masur is an excellent actor who makes a total commitment to a role. He's a careful student. He took a character that could have been very distasteful, in a way, and made something special out of it — a thirty-year-old 'retard,' a petulant mamma's boy.

"The film has several different comedic approaches," Schultz continues, "Richard Mulligan, for instance, is quite different from Richard Benjamin. Mulligan is very physical. Benjamin is controlled, intellectual."

Michael goes on about others in the cast — Dirk Benedict and Willie Aames, "the charming straight men," Robert Morley, "an impeccable performer," and Tony Randall, "a prepared pro — and a joy on the set and off."

The biggest problem? "The logistics," says Schultz. "Twenty-five principals. More than six hundred props. Car chases, crashes, nearly 1000 extras.

"But once the film starts rolling, it's like a snowball pushed from the top of a mountain, gathering steam as it goes — and, I hope, the laughter the world can use now."

Then the young man from Milwaukee who has swept the Broadway stage awards (Tony, Obie and the New York Drama Critics Award) and has directed such films as "Colley High," "Car Washed" and "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," starts thinking of the weeks ahead, his invitation to present a film at the Moscow Film Festival and the "Ultra High" pilot he will direct for NBC-TV and which will be produced by his company, Crystalite Productions.

"It's going to be an interesting summer," he smiles, and leaves to supervise the next shot.

Singer likes audience involvement

Bette Midler's love affair

Bette Midler has earned gold records, smashed box-office records and appeared on major television broadcasts. Acknowledging her as one of the recording industry's most enthusiastic and unique entertainers, critics have paid tribute to the effervescence and total dedication with which she approaches each new show.

And now her meteoric rise to the top ranks of today's entertainers has been capped by the exciting news of her motion picture debut as star of "THE ROSE," a Marvin Worth-Aaron Russo Production for Twentieth Century-Fox. In the film, which has been termed the "Cabaret" of the 1960's, Bette portrays a hard-rock super star living out the turmoil of that decade in the rock concert auditoriums of America. Alan Bates and Frederic Forrest co-star.

Evaluating the worth of a performing artist is an awesome, challenging task. Of course, soldout concerts and television appearances all figure in the picture. But the sum total must include consideration of an indefinable quality — the artist's relationship with her audience, to what extent they dedicate themselves to her and care about her.

In Bette's case, a performance is as much a treat for the star as it is for her fans. "I just try to have a good time and let the audience in on the secret," Bette has said. "It's like giving a party and I am the Grande Hostess. I always wanted to by Gertrude Stein and have a salon."

The diminutive redhead, who really was named after Bette Davis, was born and raised in Honolulu, Hawaii. Show business always appealed to her and she majored in drama at college in Hawaii. Bette next secured an extra's part during the filming of the James Michener novel "Hawaii" and used her earnings to move to New York where she pursued her musical career in earnest.

Like many other young performers in New York during the late 1960's, Bette began to sing in the coffee houses of Greenwich Village. She diligently pursued theatrical roles and eventually landed a chorus spot in "Fiddler on the Roof," graduating to the featured role of Tevye's oldest daughter.

But Bette, as the performer we know today, was "discovered" singing at the Continental Baths on New York's Upper West Side where her rapid-fire hilarious commentary, in addition to a robust voice that proved gifted at singing everything from standards to rock, resulted in a meteoric rise to national attention, and the first of Bette's two gold Atlantic record albums.

BETTE MIDLER

Every year has brought greater acclaim and more extensive achievements for Bette. When she appeared in her own Broadway engagement at the end of her $3 million cross-country tour, she set that theatre's boxoffice record for advance ticket sales in a single day — $160,000. When she triumphantly returned to Broadway in her "Clams on the Half-Shell Revue," she broke her own box-office record, chalking up more than $200,000 in one day. When the show had concluded its run (which by popular demand, was extended from four to ten weeks) Bette's Revue had grossed more than $1.8 million, the largest gross in Broadway history for a ten-week engagement.

By the time Bette's third album, "Songs for the New Depression," was released in early 1976, she had already been honored with a Grammy Award and a Tony Award. Once again, she barnstormed across America with a twenty-city, eighty-performance tour that was a two-and-one-half-hour extravaganza of songs, dance and the spicy wit which is naturally Bette. The Bette Midler Show was later presented as a major, coast-to-coast home box-office television spectacular.

"THE ROSE" presents a new world to conquer for Bette — the challenge of her first screen role and the demands of portraying a character that is quite different from Bette herself. Director Mark Rydell finds her a natural talent, lighting up the screen with the same charismatic fascination that she holds for concert audiences. One thing is certain. No matter how many movies follow, "THE ROSE" will provide Bette Midler with one of the most memorable roles of her career.

Twentieth Century-Fox presents Bette Midler and Alan Bates starring in "THE ROSE," also starring Frederic Forrest, a Marvin Worth-Aaron Russo Production of a Mark Rydell Film, produced by Worth and Russo and directed by Rydell. The screenplay by Bill Kerby and Bo Goldman is based on a story by Bill Kerby. Executive producer, Tony Ray. Director of Photography, Vilmos Zsigmond, A.S.C.

Elvis' name fame ruled fair game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Elvis Presley's fame and name live on, and anyone can try to cash in on them, a federal appeals court has ruled.

Fame is not an inheritable right extending beyond death, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Thursday in overturning a lower court ruling on a company's claim to exclusive rights to exploit Presley's name and likeness.

"The memory, name and pictures of famous individuals should be regarded as a common asset to be shared, an economic opportunity available in the free market system," said Judge Gilbert Merritt.

If fame were an exclusive right and not a common asset, all sorts of legal problems might result, Merritt said.

The decision reversed a ruling by U.S. District Court in Memphis, Tenn., that Factors Etc. Inc. of Bear, Del., had the exclusive right to exploit Elvis Presley's name and likeness after his death in 1977.

Factors Etc., granted the right by Presley's father, Vernon, and his manager, Col. Tom Parker, had tried to bar the Memphis Development Foundation from selling miniature replicas of a monument it was raising to the singer.

For clean ups, fix ups

Make library first stop

By REBBECCA TAYLOR
Reference Librarian

In spite of small interruptions like 12 degree weather and income tax reports, the Spring clean-up-fix-up season is well on its way to Howard County. In preparation for the flurry of domestic improvement projects, the Howard County Library has beefed up the home improvement and repair section with over a hundred new volumes in the last month.

A previous article described the highly advertised Time-Life series. Now, new volumes from Easi-Bild, Sincere Press, Garden Way Research, TAB, and others have greatly expanded our resources in these areas.

Easi-Bild books are directions and patterns aimed at the do-it-yourselfer, from rank amateur to accomplished professional. These books, usually cover one project in depth, i.e., "How to Construct Built-in and Sectional Bookcases" or "How to Install a Fireplace." Others in the series cover, in depth, a single phase of general construction, i.e., "Roofing Simplified," "Concrete Work Simplified," or "Forms, Footings, Foundations, Framing."

Many Easi-Bild books cover several projects of a similar kind, for example, "How to Build Pet Housing" covers, not only dog houses, but also a Catpartment, Duck Inn, rabbit hutch, parakeet cage, etc., and "How to Build Greenhouses — Sun Houses" ranges from a window box greenhouse to a free-standing sun room.

Sincere Press books are directed primarily to equipment and machine maintenance and repair. The new manuals range from small tractors to sewing machines repair. A few titles of interest are: "Small Engines Service Manual," "Auto Body Repairing and Painting," "Outboard Motor Service Manual," and "Sincer's Vacuum and Small Appliance Manual."

Garden Way and TAB books emphasize consumer advocacy and energy conservation, i.e., saving you money nerg "Home Energy for the Eighties," "How to Buy Solar without getting Burned," and "547 ways to Save Energy" are prime examples of this type. Both publishers also issue more general types of books like "Planning and Building Your Fireplace," "Wood Heating Handbook," and "Designing and Building a Solar House," etc.

Adequate planning is the first step to a satisfactory completion of your home improvement pro jects, so make your library the first stop on your list.

FIREFIGHTERS COME BACK — At the end of a 23-day strike, firemen shake hands on their return to a fire station in Chicago where a platoon assembled Saturday morning. Striking firefighters approved a back-to-work agreement at a midnight membership meeting of the firefighters' union Saturday.

Wants 1981 Legislature to have say

Clements asks deduction delay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is asking all state agency heads to delay action on deducting union dues from state employee salary checks until the 1981 Legislature gets a say on the issue.

Clements told a news conference Friday there will be no union dues withheld from salaries of the governor's employees, no matter what Attorney General Mark White or Comptroller Bob Bullock say.

"The attorney general's opinion will most assuredly be reversed by the next regular session of the Legislature, if not earlier by court action," Clements said in a letter addressed to each of the state agency chief executives.

"In view of the questionable legal authority, the contemplated legislative action and the attendant costs to your agency, you would be well advised not to implement this practics."

Bullock told Texas AFL-CIO political leaders Thursday he will institute a union dues checkoff in his department by June 1. Bullock earlier urged state employees to organize in labor unions.

The dues checkoff system, where union dues are automatically deducted from a paycheck before it is delivered to the employee, was approved by White in a legal opinion about a year ago.

Clements also told reporters that he did not agree with Speaker Bill Clayton that the 1981 Legislature may have to raise some new state taxes.

"As I have said before that is all nonsense," Clements said. "I do not agree with that at all I do not know what his purposes are in advocating a tax increase."

The governor said he would repeat a statement he has made before. "I will veto a tax increase if the Legislature passes it," he said.

On other subjects Clements said:

— He does not agree with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby that the Department of Public Safety should stop using unmarked patrol cars to snare speeding drivers. Hobby said Wednesday that DPS Director Jim Adams overstepped his authority by not getting approval first from the Legislature. "I fully support the DPS and Mr. Adams," Clements said. "By enforcing the speed laws we are not only saving energy but we are saving lives. Mr. Hobby is wrong and we have no intention of changing our methods of enforcing the law."

— He has no intention of changing his policy of not taking part in the GOP presidential campaign until after the May 3 Texas primary.

Fire kills five children

Houston woman indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — Grand jurors indicted an 18-year-old woman on a capital murder charge in the death of a 6-month-old boy, one of four children killed in a fire allegedly set by the woman.

Pearl Mae Taylor, who reportedly set the fire after an argument with her boyfriend, was being held without bond Friday after she was indicted in the death of Frankie Dewane Wells.

"We picked this case partially because the state can't seek four life sentences or four death penalities," said assistant district attorney Doug O'Brien.

He said the woman was charged with the death of the infant because "he was six months old and he had no way of getting out."

Tolisa Williams, 5, Gwendlin Ann Wells, 14, and Brigit Chenett Gray, 1, all died in the fire, which occurred about 3 a.m. Thursday.

Four other persons sustained minor injuries and five escaped from the flaming three-bedroom home unharmed. Officials said the woman's boyfriend was not in the home when the fire broke out.

Ms. Taylor was arrested by arson investigators who found her about nine hours after the fire hiding under a vacant building near the scene of the blaze.

Shirley Ann Wells, the mother of the dead infant, said she awoke early Thursday to find her bedroom filled with smoke.

"I was reaching for my baby (Frankie)," she said, "and couldn't find him and I ran outside. I busted out a window and flames hit me in the face. I could hear him crying."

Barbara Williams, mother of Tolisa, said the suspect came to the house late Wednesday night and accused her boyfriend, Donald Ray Wells, of being involved with another woman.

Relatives said the woman had argued with Wells several times in the past and that fires had been set. But they said the fires were extinguished each time and neither the fire deparment nor the police were called.

TEA points out local CAI program

Irving representatives come here for ideas in computer education

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

See that diapered, dirty-faced little boy playing with the building blocks over in the corner?

Although it may be difficult for you to imagine, someday he may be a future president of the United States of America.

And that petite, red-headed, freckle-faced girl across the street playing hop-scotch. The future possibly holds for her a successful, world-changing career in medical research.

For other pre-school or school-aged children, their eventual destinations may venture them through the worlds of technical engineers, astronauts or psychologists.

Whatever their roles, the children of today will be the world leaders of tomorrow. How well they lead the world of tomorrow depends upon the quality of education they receive today.

As of December, 1978, the educationally deprived students enrolled in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Big Spring Independent School District at Goliad Middle School and Runnels Junior High, haye been engaged in a relatively new program aimed at better educating students who need the most help.

Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) is just one more advancement in the world of educational aid. It was developed at Stanford University in Stanford, Calif.

CAI, a program from the Computer Curriculum Corporation, is a technique which enables teachers to provide individualized instruction for each student.

Sixty-eight terminals were installed (40 at Goliad, 28 at Runnels) allowing over 400 students to study from the computer every day.

Mrs. Harold (Jean) Wilder, Title I Supervisor, grades kindergarten through eighth, is in charge of this computer addition to the school system which is funded through title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA).

The act, passed in 1965, provides special assistance to schools through funds to public education agencies to meet the needs of educationally disadvantaged pupils. Title I is the major component of ESEA.

"Since the CAI program is funded by the state and federal government through Title I, it is important that parents understand that funds must be spent properly, allowing children who need help the most, receive it. Federal and state laws must be followed in distributing and using the funds," revealed Mrs. Wilder.

Therefore, only children with learning disabilities are allowed to participate in the CAI program.

Although Big Spring's computer program has been in operation less than 2 years, the Texas Education Agency in Austin is impressed with its progress.

Just as recently as Feb. 18, a principal, teacher, math consultant and reading consultant from the Irving Independent School District made their way to Big Spring to observe the computer system in action.

They chose Big Spring on the recommendation of TEA.

"We asked Austin to recommend a good school utilizing the computer program successfully," revealed Reading Consultant Anne Ferrell. "They said the Big Spring program was among the best, especially in reading.

"In our district," Mrs. Ferrell continued, "we feel that computers will play a big part in future learning techniques. We came to Big Spring because we're looking for the best way to successfully teach through computers."

Others from the Irving Independent School District who toured Big Spring's computer systems at Goliad and Runnels were Myrna Lancaster and Kay Neely, principal and teacher, respectively, from Bowie Junior High; and Kay Pranzitelli, math consultant.

"We tried to bring along enough educators," Mrs. Ferrell explained, "in case we did some things we could use in our curriculum, we could all four decipher the benefits from each different angle."

Mrs. Ferrell explained that the Irving School District was looking for new possibilities through computers for average and gifted students as well as the educationally deprived.

At the present time, the Irving Independent School District is operating a few computers, but nothing comparable to the program in Big Spring.

"I believe technology is highly going to be a part of the educational future," predicted Mrs. Ferrell.

"Probably all over the nation, people are going to be involved with this thing."

In addition to Irving, other school districts interested in the computer program which have toured the Big Spring system include Lubbock, Tyler, Brownfield and Midland, according to Mrs. Wilder.

"We have averaged approximately three guests a month." Mrs. Wilder said.

Odessa presently operates a large scale computer program. Midland has implemented a smaller one.

The amazing system assists the students with math, reading and language courses geared to each student's individual ability. Each child is on a terminal 10 minutes per day.

The first 100 minutes, students are evaluated by the computer and placed in certain levels. As the student progresses, the computer presents further advanced material according to the student's accomplishments.

Students are evaluated according to grades and months. If a child's level is 3.5, he is classified at third grade and five months level.

"Through use of the program," Mrs. Wilder said, "students should progress one month per one month of use."

Courses are divided into content areas or strands.

ONE ON ONE — Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) is predicted to be the way of the future in learning technology. Here, a Goliad student works conscientiously on a math problem presented to him by the Blue Max. It allows the student to do his work without added peer pressure.

"The computer breaks levels up into fractions. Therefore, if a student is poor in subtraction but good in addition, the computer meets these needs," explained Tom Henry, Runnels principal.

The computer is able to determine the level of understanding displayed by the students' answers to exercises given by the computer to the pupils. If a student's understanding increases, the computer increases the difficulty of the items presented. If the student needs remedial assistance, the computer lowers the level of difficulty.

Another unique feature of CAI is instantaneous feedback. All answers are instantly checked by the computer.

In some cases, students are provided with hints and error messages enabling them to obtain the correct answer.

Following the lessons, students are able to see how many questions they attempted and how many they answered correctly.

Each class is furnished with an aide, or proctor. Alice Munoz serves as Goliad's proctor and Shirley McNallen is the proctor at Runnels.

Their jobs consist of supervising terminals, distributing printed reports to teachers, assisting pupils with problems related to use of terminals and keeping records of student's activities and progress.

They also assist in setting up the laboratory for class use, cataloging, organizing, filing and issuing materials, preparing instructional bulletin boards and performing other duties assigned by teachers in the implementation of the program.

CAI is a great asset to students who utilize it. It helps low-achieving students overcome frustration of repeated attitude and self-confidence. CAI is a private interaction between students and the terminal.

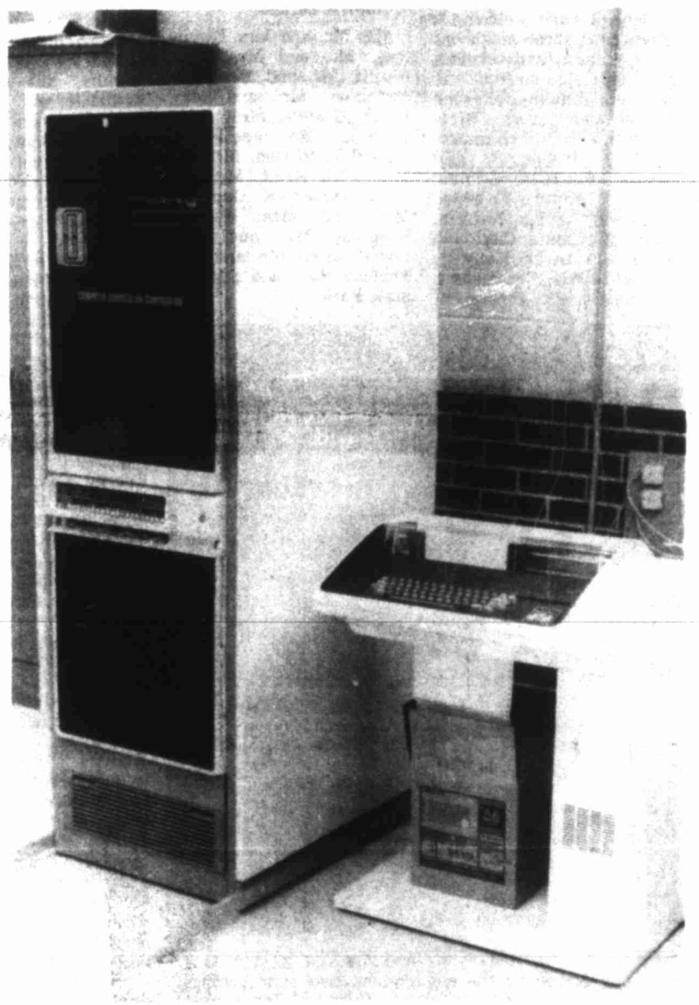

A terminal greets each student by his first name and bids him good-bye when he leaves. This enables the student to perform without peer pressure.

Students obviously respond enthusiastically to this form of teaching. It presents a game-like atmosphere. In short, the students are literally fascinated.

Both schools have names for the main computer which is housed at Goliad. Runnels calls it XLR8 while Goliad students know it as the Blue Max.

Although students receive the greatest benefit from the CAI program, teachers also benefit in a number of ways.

Other than assisting teachers in understanding each student's learning ability, the program provides drill and practice extremely important in learning skills.

THE BLUE MAX — It controls, it computes, it reports. That's what this mind-boggling computer is capable of doing. However, its purpose is to better educate students needing the most help. This computer is housed at Goliad Middle School but it also controls the terminals at Runnels Junior High. Runnels students know this intelligent piece of equipment as XLR8.

The teachers receive printed reports from the computer on each child's progress. Reports can be obtained at any time. These reports reveal areas students are having difficulty in and show where students are lacking comprehension of concepts.

Reports are complete with each student's name, number of sessions at the terminal, time spent on the course, student's average grade level and the student's grade equivalent in each concept area.

Students with physical and mental handicaps benefit in addition to those with learning abilities.

Through conversing with various representatives from each school district who have observed Big Spring's CAI program, Mrs. Wilder has found that "it gives each of us new vim and vigor concerning other ideas and problems.

"In addition," she continued, "there's so much to be done. We want to share ideas. Anytime we can help each other, it saves times, errors and money."

Mrs. Ferrell is convinced that computer technology will be the mode for the future in new educational techniques.

"A few years back," she said, "the trend was 'English as the second language.' Each year it's something different. This year it's the 'Year of the Computer.'"

"Anything for motivation," Mrs. Wilder added, "and computers seem to be the main motivator."

What makes Big Spring's program so successful?

According to Mrs. Wilder, it's team work — staff involved with children.

"And after all," she concluded, "kids are our business."

MEET THE TEACHER — In the CAI classes at Goliad and Runnels, the teachers look somewhat different than they do in other classes. Even though they have no arms and legs, they are able to teach students individually on their particular levels.

'We got cold'

Optometrist and staff dare to be different

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

If you're one of many who has walked in or passed by the offices of Dr. D.H. McGonagill and Texas State Optical in the last several months, this article was written for you.

Its purpose is to ease your rightfully confused mind and to assure you that, even though Dr. McGonagill is a skilled optometrist, your eyes aren't playing tricks on you.

The fact of the matter is that the optometrist and his staff, all clad in coordinating warm up suits, aren't converting the offices into sporting good stores, they're just cold.

"It all came about last summer," recalled Dr. McGonagill, "when we received the rules from the Energy Commission which stated that thermostats had to be kept at 78 in the summer and 65 in the winter."

Dr. McGonagill said he and his employees made it through the summer months "just fine."

But when the first cool snap in winter came ... "We got cold."

"It's hard to keep it at 65 degrees in here," said one employee, Peggy McWhorter. "The thermostat is always set at 65 but the temperature usually stays around 61 or 62 degrees."

"And that's not a real comfortable temperature to work in," pointed out Dr. McGonagill. "Especially when the doors are always opening and closing. That north wind is cold.

"Needless to say," continued the doctor, "I was quickly confronted by my employees. I either had to do something to keep them warm or experience 'Mutiny on the Bounty' right here in the office."

In an effort to thaw out himself and his employees, Dr. McGonagill sent Mrs. McWhorter down the street to a nearby sporting goods store.

"He told me to ask for white warm up suits so we would all still have the appearance of wearing uniforms," Mrs. McWhorter said.

After being all but laughed out of the store, the group decided on blue warm up suits. Dr. McGonagill bought each of his seven employees and himself, two warm up suits apiece.

"He thought it was well worth it to keep us all warm and in a good mood," added employee Juanita Smith.

Even the doctor himself goes through his day of eye examinations clad in a blue warm up suit, complete with a tie.

"Are y'all going jogging?" "How many laps have you done today?" "That's the first time I've ever seen anyone wear a tie with a jogging suit."

Those are just a very few of the many questions and comments bewildered patients conjure up enough nerve to ask when they are visiting the office.

"You can see it on their faces when they come in," said Mrs. McWhorter, "they're just dying to ask what we're all doing in warm up suits."

One curious patient asked if any other place of business had resorted to similar tactics.

"I told him that I'd learned a long time ago not to wait for someone else to make the first move. We were all cold, so I did something about it," explained Dr. McGonagill.

By wearing the brightly-colored warm-up suits, the employees are able to add to or subtract from their clothing, depending on the temperature.

On colder days they wear a layer or two of clothing underneath their suits. On warmer days, they wear less clothing.

"But we always keep on the blue warm-up suits to give the appearance that we're wearing uniforms," Mrs. Smith said.

Over the years, uniforms have become an accepted way of dress for employees of the medical or similar professions.

"People coming into our office identify us by our uniforms as employees," Mrs. McWhorter said.

Although uniforms have become the accepted way of dress, it is not necessarily the required way of dress.

"A lot of offices are getting away from the basic white uniform and going to pastel colors," Dr. McGonagill pointed out.

Pastel colors they may be going to, but few have gone to such extremes as those at TSO.

"The main purpose for our getting the jogging suits," Mrs. McWhorter said, "was to conserve energy and at the same time, keep warm. It has turned into a delightful experience."

Others jogging around the office in warm-up suits at TSO are Karen Porter, Tammie Proctor, Cathy Baird, Jesse Garcia and Pauline Banks.

As warmer months hurriedly approach, one might wonder what the McGonagill staff have in mind for their summer office attire. Tennis suits? Short sets? Swimming suits?

The matter, as of yet, is undecided. However, the initial consensus is that they will probably revert back to their less-than-exciting white uniforms.

This will, of course, be to the disappointment of all those whose days were brightened by the employees at 120 E. Third who dared to be different.

"But just in case," Mrs. McWhorter added with a sly grin, "we bought the doctor a summer uniform for Christmas. We wanted to repay him for being so gracious in purchasing our winter warm-up suits."

So if you happen to be in the neighborhood sometime this summer, peek through the window. You just might get a glimpse of Dr. McGonagill examining eyes and writing up prescriptions in a blue tank top and matching jogging shorts.

MAY PLANS — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Crown, Sterling City Rt., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Patricia L. Fader, to Bobby G. Morrow, 502 E. 17th, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Morrow. The couple will marry May 10 in the Central Baptist Church of Elbow.

Dear Abby

Whole Family Goes to Pot

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for 23 years, and have always thought you were fair and intelligent, but when you said that the parents who smoked marijuana in front of their four-year-old child were guilty of "child abuse," I couldn't believe my eyes!

I am a 37-year-old housewife married to a psychologist. We have four teenagers.

My husband and I do not drink, but we do smoke marijuana. We have smoked it for over 20 years (nearly every day), and we've never hidden the fact from our children. We do not allow our children to drink, or to associate with people who do, but there is nothing wrong with pot.

In case you didn't know it, pot is legal in Alaska. Are all Alaskans guilty of child abuse?

Alaskans are allowed to grow their own for consumption.

I think you are guilty of column abuse! Please get the facts, Abby!

INFORMED

DEAR INFORMED: I did. Marijuana is no more "legal" in Alaska than it is in any other state of the United States. It is decriminalized (under Statute No. 17.12.110.) Some of the restrictions are: Nobody under 18 years of age can possess or use marijuana. If over 18, a person may not have more than one ounce on his person in public (this means on public streets, sidewalks, buildings, buses, etc.). He may not use marijuana while operating a motor vehicle, airplane, etc. If convicted it would be a misdemeanor with a fine of not more than $1,000.

Marijuana may be used in private by those who are 18 or older.

Nothing is said about the legality of growing marijuana for one's own use.

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see your warning about angel dust. Everything you said about it was true. It makes you violent, and can really mess up your head. I know, I was in high school, ready to graduate, when I smoked that dust. I didn't even know it. I smoked some pot and had been laced with angel dust. I didn't get high. I just went crazy.

I was sent to Camarillo State (a mental hospital) where I spent three months. I put my poor parents through hell. I'm out now, but I have to see a social worker every week. I'm still on medication, and my head still hurts. But as least I can dress myself and comb my own hair. My biggest fear is that one day I will go completely crazy again and end up back in the hospital. I saw kids at Camarillo who'd had that experience.

My God, what a terrible price to pay for wanting to get high! Abby, please keep telling kids to stay away from pot. You never know what's in it. I am signing my name and address just to prove this letter is not a phony, but if you print it, sign me . . .

PAID A BIG PRICE

DEAR PAID: If your letter makes just one person say no to pot, it will have been worth space in my column. Thanks for writing. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: Do I need a nose job? Many of my friends think I do, but my nose has never bothered me. It's big, but it's not a real schnozzola like some I've seen.

An aunt even offered to treat me to a nose job when I graduated from high school, but I never took her up on it. People hardly know have asked me how come I never did something about my nose. It must be pretty bad, but I never thought it was.

I honestly don't think I should fool around with the nose that God gave me, but then people never see themselves as others see them.

I am enclosing my picture. What do you think, Abby?

NOSE TROUBLE

DEAR NOSE: It matters not what I think, or what anyone else thinks, what counts is what you think! As long as it doesn't bother you (and it runs all right), leave it alone.

Mary Griffith becomes bride of Shelton Castle

Mary Katherine Griffith and Shelton Castle stood before a crescent candelabrum decorated with Laura foliage as they spoke their wedding vows.

The candlelight ceremony was performed Saturday evening at the First United Methodist Church. Dr. Edwin Chappell, pastor, officiated.

Flanking either side of the altar setting were matching tree candelabrums entwined with greenery. Massive Edwarinan arrangements of peach gladiolus, wedgewood blue iris, peach spidermums and sonya roses set atop white colonial columns completed the scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Griffith, 2718 Central. Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Castle, 3307 Drexel, are the parents of the groom.

Wedding music was provided by Charles B. Parham Jr., organist, and Mrs. Vince Hatfield, vocalist.

She chose to wear a gown of silky finished satin accented with Alencon, Venice and Bristol laces to fashion the high molded bodice gown by Priscilla of Boston.

The high neckline, above the sheer yoke, was encircled with a combination of laces. Lace appliques highlighted the long slender sleeves. A deep scalloped border of Alencon and Venice laces encircled the skirt which featured a ruffle of dainty Bristol lace from underneath the hemline.

Her magnificent mantilla was edged with an arabisque of Bristol lace, Venice motifs and Alencon appliques.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white bridal roses and stephanotis sprinkled with baby's breath.

Tammy Fryar, attended the bride as maid of honor. Mavis Griffith, sister-in-law of the bride, Austin, and Rebecca Griffith, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids.

David Nichols served as best man. Groomsmen were Vince Hatfield and Terry Peterson. Guests were seated by Gary Hopper and Robert Roten.

Serving as flower girl was Rachael Harland. Stephen Rinehart was ring bearer. The candles were lit by Chris Williams.

Immediately following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the Nail Room of the Brass Nail.

Lace cloth draped the bride's table which featured a three-tiered cake decorated in light blue.

German chocolate cake was served from the groom's table which featured a lace cloth and brass appointments.

Out-of-town guests attended from Austin, Cameron, Arlington, Irving, Odessa, Midland, and Lamesa, Tex.; Jackson and Winona, Miss.; and Eunice, N.M.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, Bauder Merchandising College, Arlington; and Howard College.

The groom is a Big Spring High School graduate and is an employee of Cottingham Bearing Corp.

Science Talent Search reveals two top winners

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Forty teen-age scientists from 17 states successfully completed a series of eliminations to win a trip to Washington, D.C. for final judging in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search, an annual program which dates back to 1942. The two top winners, a boy and girl, tied for top honors and received identical $12,000 scholarships.

First place winners were botanist John Michael Andersland, 17, of East Lansing, Mich., and mathematician Lisa Joy Fandall, 17, of New York City.

This year nearly 1,000 high school seniors submitted original research projects in the competition whose former winners have been awarded three Nobel Prizes since 1972. Sponsored by Westinghouse, the competition is conducted by Science Service of Washington, D.C.

The 40 national winners shared a total of $91,500 in scholarships and awards, with the major scholarship winners identified recently, at a banquet for more than 500 guests.

The third-place scholarship of $10,000 was awarded to Michael Vincent Finn of Annandale, Va., whose project related to a mathematical system he developed which he calls "groshing."

Fourth, fifth and sixth-place scholarships of $7,500 each were awarded to Craig Richard Bina of Arlington Heights, Ill., Melissa Willene Hull of New York City, and Bryan Edward Penprase of San Marinoi, Calif., all 17 years old.

Craig Richard Bina, of Wheeling High School developed a computer-assisted instructional management system now in use at six of his district's eight high schools.

The project submitted by fifth-place winner Melissa Hull, a student at New York's Hunter College High School, related to the genetics of yeast.

Bryan Edward Penprase of California, sixth-place winner, studied the biochemical effects of two sulfhydryl reagents, one which inhibits nerve functioning and the other which reverses the inhibition, on nerve junctions.

Four scholarships of $5,000 each were awarded to Naomi Taylor, Bayside, N.Y.; Paul Neil Feldman, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Pamela Lynne Epstein, Merritt Island, Fla.; and David Chiang, New York City, all 17 years old.

Naomi Taylor, a student at Benjamin N. Cardozo High School, studied the red blood cells of leeches in an effort to learn if there are any ways the life span of red blood cells for human beings can be extended.

A study in number theory in advanced mathematics was entered by eighth-place scholarship winner Paul Neil Feldman of Stuyvesant High School.

Picabias at MOMA

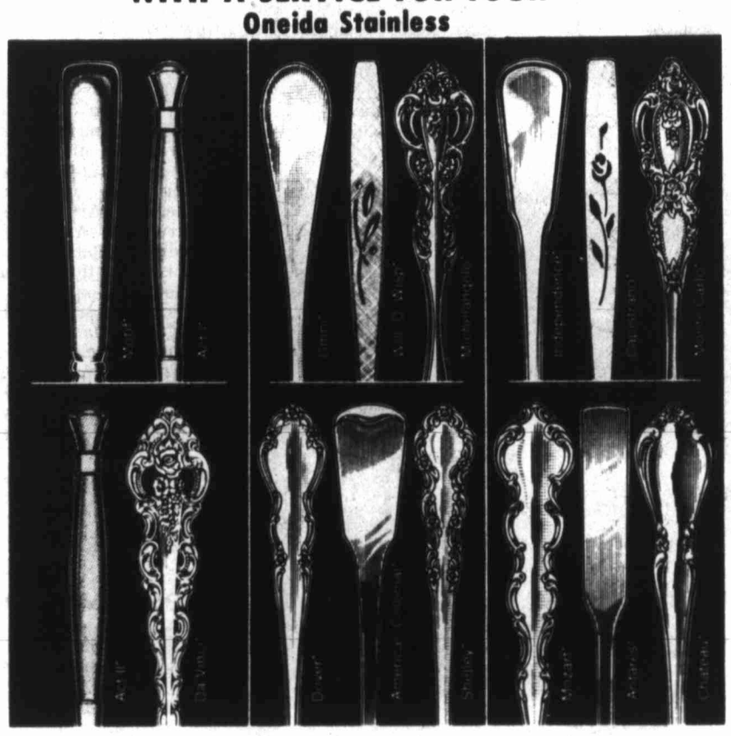

NEW YORK (AP) Four recently rediscovered major paintings by Francis Picabia are on display at the Museum of Modern Art through March 4.

The Picabia paintings have not been exhibited in more than 60 years. They were thought to have been lost or destroyed during World War I before they were rediscovered in 1974 in the basement of the former home of Eugene and Agnes Meyer, owners of the Washington Post.

On view with the Picabias at the MOMA exhibition are works by Matta, Klutsis, Arp, Tack, Balthus and Georgia O'Keefe, among others.

Only one way to change age

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and my boyfriend is 22. He was recently divorced from his second wife and he wants to marry me. I love him very much and want to marry him but I know that I am too young.

He said that all I have to do is to legally change my age to 18 and that everything will be all right. Can you tell me how I can do this? — Susan, El Centro, Calif.

Susan: I thought I had heard them all, but this is a new one. There is only one way for you to legally change your age to 18 and that is to wait three years.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 13-year-old boy who needs your advice. I recently went to a boy-girl party and we wound up playing spin the bottle.

I was perfectly honest and told my parents about it.

Last night three girls called me and invited me to a party and my parents surprised me by saying that I couldn't go. I tell the truth and I get dinged. It just doesn't seem fair. — Craig, Columbus, Ohio

Craig: Nobody said it was going to be easy when one tells the truth. Life just isn't that way. But believe me, honesty is one of the greatest virtues a person can possess. Be proud thatyou have it.

Getting back to the parties, you must be a very popular boy. Give your parents a little time and they will "un-ding" you.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and going with a guy 18 and we love each other very much even though my mother thinks that I'm too young to know what love is.

My parents are divorced, so when my mom went out of town with her boyfriend, I had my boyfriend spend the night with me. We went "all the way," but I told my mom because I had a guilty conscience.

She started yelling at me so I told her to shut up or that I would live with my dad in San Francisco.

My question is this. Should I quit school next year and marry this guy or should I dump him (my mother wants me to) and enjoy my life while I'm young? — T.C., Elizabethtown, Ky.

T.C.: Regardless of whether you keep this boy as a "boyfriend" or not, I would advise you to finish high school. My next piece of advice would be to curb your sexual activity or at best, use a birth control method. Finally, I would advise you to speak to your mother with a little more respect.
