Bomb explodes in store's garage

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — A car bomb exploded in a department store parking garage Friday, killing 15 people and injuring 39, the Barcelona civil governor's office said.

A telephone caller said the Basque separatist organization ETA was responsible, the Spanish news agency EFE reported.

If true, the bombing would be the deadliest by ETA since it launched its violent campaign for independence in 1968.

The explosion caused a ceiling to collapse in a shopping area of the Hipercor department store in central Barcelona and started a fire that filled several levels of the parking garage with a huge cloud of smoke, police said.

The civil governor's office said seven men, five women and three children were killed.

Before Friday, ETA, which means Homeland and Liberty in Basque, had claimed responsibility for killing nearly 600 people, mainly police, Civil Guard and military officers.

The office said the bomb-laden car, a Ford Escort, was parked on the first level of the department store's underground parking area.

The bodies of 12 victims were found in the parking area, police said. Three others died in hospitals, the civil governor's office said.

An official who spoke on condition of anonymity said one of the victims was a woman several months pregnant.

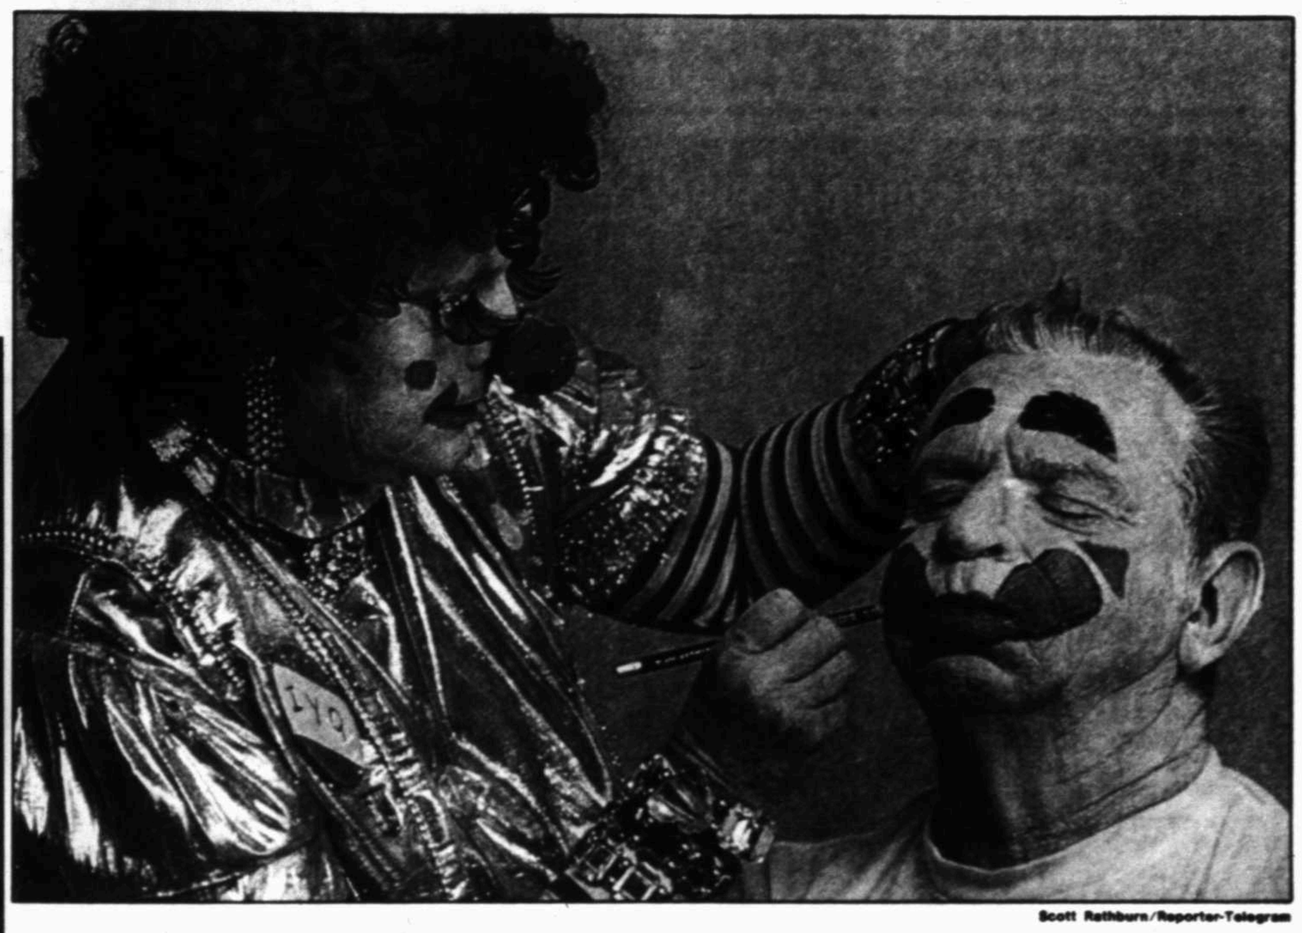

Most of the victims apparently died of asphyxiation from thick clouds of smoke, firemen said. The civil governor's office said several victims were burned beyond recognition.

The injured were taken to hospitals to be treated for burns and smoke inhalation, hospital officials said.

Opal Matlin, right, puts the finishing sparkles on husband Harry's clown make-up.

'Sparkles and Toes' clown around

By JAMILAH OWENS
Staff Writer

Their living room is filled with large clowns, small clowns, blue clowns, multi-colored clowns, blinking clowns, musical clowns, happy clowns, sad clowns, new clowns, old clowns, American clowns and foreign clowns — and they're clowns themselves, literally.

"Sparkles and Toes," who moved to Midland in February, are a husband and wife clown team from Lovington and Hobbs, N.M. The two have been performing for seven years.

A portion of the duo's opening song goes:"Smiles are smiles and laughs are laughs everywhere we go, we like to hear a 'he-he-he' and a 'haw-haw-haw' and a 'ho-ho-ho' because we're those clowns called 'Sparkles and Toes'...we're here to entertain you...we love people everywhere and Jesus loves you to..."

Opel "Sparkles" Matlin, a retired kindergarten teacher, said her beginnings as a clown came because "I loved puppets and used to make them and put on shows as a puppeteer with my two younger daughters, Carol and Laurie."

At the request of their daughter, Pam, Harry "Toes" Matlin — who acts as master of ceremonies for Sparkles' puppet shows — decided to dress up as a clown and perform for the children, she said. Her husband thought it would be fun, she recalled, and since the performance went over well, he decided to continue clowning.

"To make the act an interesting twosome, my husband asked me to dress up as a clown and perform with him...but I was a little hestiant at first," said Mrs. Matlin.

But after doing extensive research on clowning, Mrs. Matlin changed her mind and realized that clowning was an art and a profession that required an enormous amount of training and dedication. "Not everyone who says they're a clown is," she said.

Therefore, Opel and Harry Matlin decided that formal training in "clownology" was essential. Clownology entails proper make-up use, learning magic and other tricks like stilt-walking, juggling and acrobatics and "balloonology."

Compliance with seat belt law 'high'

By JAMILAH OWENS
Staff Writer

Since its enactment in December 1985, Texas' mandatory seat belt law has meant buckle-up — or else get a $25 to $50 citation within city limits or up to $200 on the highways.

In accessing the measure's impact since that time, Cpl. Jim White, Midland's police department public information officer, said that many city residents have followed voluntary compliance with the law, which included provisions making mandatory usage of child restraint seats for small children.

Similarly, Maj. Dudley Thomas, local director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, attributed an 8 percent statewide decrease in fatal accidents this year as compared to last year to the law.

Although 248 citations (84 drivers, 26 passengers and 138 child restraint) have been issued between January 1, 1987 and May 31, 1987, White maintained that the compliance rate is relatively high. According to a informal state-wide survey, the seat belt compliance rate is up within the 50 to 75 percent range, said Thomas.

According to Lt. Charlie Bolinger, DPS lieutenant in charge of licenses, 3,568 persons incurred fatalities state-wide during 1986. Of these persons killed, 1,787 or 75.3 percent died while not wearing seat belts in passenger cars, buses and trucks. However, 586 or 24.7 percent died while wearing seat belts in passenger cars, buses and trucks.

White, along with other city and state officials, agree that the chance of being fatally injuries are much greater when not wearing seat belts.

While the lawmen said they will ticket people who don't follow the law, they acknowledged that a seat belt violation is usually not the sole reason for pulling a car over.

Child restraint laws, however, are actively enforced, they said.

Insurance rates have been impacted slightly since the enactment of the new laws. During a 1986 Texas State Board of Insurance meeting, chairman Lindy Olson noted a 13.6 percent increase in injury premiums. But that figure would have been 33.4 percent but had it not been for the seat belt law, Olson said.

Odessa to 'cease efforts' to get SSC

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Seven members representing the city on the Garden City SSC committee announced Friday Odessa would "cease further efforts in behalf of the Garden City SSC site."

A statement released by Greater Odessa Chamber of Commerce President Bill Griffin late Friday morning took exception to arguments that a vote of the group's board of directors in San Angelo June 8 did not conform to the by-laws.

The disputed illegal vote has prompted some committee members to call for another meeting June 24 which would see as many as 70 members of the organization cast ballots.

"After review," the Odessa group's statement said, "it was obvious the meeting and voting in San Angelo on June 8, 1987, was in accordance with the by-laws of the organization."

Ralph McLaughlin, a Big Spring businessman who headed up the initial West Texas Chamber of Commerce effort to have the Garden City area selected as the SSC site, said late Friday he continues to believe the June 8 vote was illegal and will press for another vote June 24.

McLaughlin said attorneys he has conferred with tell him it is illegal under state law for the directors of a corporation to vote by proxy and therefore the vote is invalid.

"We took a vote and it was fair and square and I lost," said Odessa Mayor Don Carter Friday afternoon. "I'm very much against the effort to get it in there one way or another."

Carter went on to say, "I stood up and was counted as being for the motion and for going on. It was defeated and we walked away with the thing laid to rest," stated the Odessa mayor. "But some people just can't be content with that sort of thing."

Iranians vow to carry out suicide attacks on U.S. ships

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Fifty battalions of Iranian zealots known as the "Defenders of the Persian Gulf" paraded through Tehran Friday vowing to carry out suicide attacks against U.S. ships in the gulf, Tehran radio reported.

The state radio, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Revolutionary Guards spokesman Ali Reza Afshar as saying his forces have turned Iranian islands in the gulf into "huge battleships that can easily hunt all of the enemy's ships and naval apparatus."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, also monitored in Nicosia, reported that the Supreme Defense Council met in Tehran Thursday night to discuss "the defensive plan for naval forces and the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps in the Persian Gulf" following superpower intervention to protect Kuwaiti ships.

The council, which maps Iran's strategy in the 6½-year-old war with Iraq, made some decisions, IRNA reported, but it did not elaborate.

IRNA, however, quoted Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's representative on the council, as saying: "We must be ready.

"The people, the armed forces and the government must all be prepared, although the possibility (of a confrontation with the United States) is small."

Tehran Radio quoted Afshar as saying in a prayer sermon at Tehran University that the 400-man battalions of "martyrdom-seekers" will be deployed June 28 "to defend the Persian Gulf and repulse the aggression of world arrogance," Iranian parlance for the United States.

He did not say how these forces, the "defenders of the Persian Gulf," would fight the Americans and where they would be deployed.

U.S. defense officials are concerned that Iran's deployment of Chinese-made Silkworm anti-ship missiles in the Strait of Hormuz, gateway to the gulf, might threaten shipping and freedom of navigation in the waterway.

Gulf shipping officials also have reported that Revolutionary Guards naval units have been mining the approaches to Kuwait's al-Ahmadi oil terminal.

Officials discuss balancing budget with lottery

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State government leaders Friday discussed a new proposal to balance the state budget by diverting billions of dollars from the highway department and replacing the money through bonds backed by a lottery.

The plan, however, discards the state's pay-as-you-go spending philosophy written in the Constitution, and might only serve as a temporary solution to the state's mounting fiscal problems, legislative officials said.

But supporters of the plan, which all told could generate about $3.1 billion for the state's general revenue fund, say it will bring in enough money to write a balanced 1988-89 state budget without a major tax increase.

Gov. Bill Clements, who says the state does not need more taxes although it must reconcile billions of dollars in revenue shortfalls, met with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and several lawmakers to discuss the plan.

"It does to a degree violate the pay-as-you-go (provision), but I think the critics would have to decide do they want to raise $6 billion in taxes or do they want to pay for highway construction not in cash but use bond proceeds to do it," said Rep. Mike Toomey of Houston, a top Republican budget expert who attended the meeting.

The plan, however, contains several variables. Lawmakers must approve a state lottery, which would also require eventual voter approval, during the special legislative session that begins Monday. A lottery proposal was soundly defeated during the regular session.

Voters would have to approve the transfer of dedicated funds and federal reimbursements from the highway department to the general revenue fund. The state would issue bonds to pay for road construction, and money generated by the lottery would go toward retiring those bonds.

CLOWNS

The couple then enrolled in a clownology course at Hobbs Junior College and graduated from the course as "Sparkles and Toes" in 1980.

"So we have been really clowning and having a good time since," Sparkles said, dressed up in a glittery silver dress complemented by sequined-covered, blue tennis shoes and matching hair.

One year after the funny pair graduated, they were asked back by the junior college to teach two courses in clownology.

Even though their two high school-aged daughters participated with them in earlier activities, they did not approve of the clowning at first. But ironically, as time progressed, the daughters joined their parents in studying and performing clownology.

"Now, my four daughters, two sons-in-law, and several grandchildren perform as clowns in their leisure time and professionally," said Sparkles.

When asked about the meaning of his name, Toes, whose shoes resemble over-sized bare feet, carefully explained: "T is for trust, O is for our, E is for eternal, and S is for savior."

Sparkles and Toes, who design their own make-up, theme, costumes and routines, have performed at an assortment of events and activities like birthday parties for young and old alike, sorority parties, Boy and Girl Scout troop functions, a Hobbs police banquet, Lions and Kiwanis club functions, and a Good Samaritan function. Although they perform at various functions for charity, they do perform for profit.

The white-faced clowns, who have been married for 35 years, said they clown because they truly enjoy making people laugh, dressing up and playing different roles.

For the Matlins, clowning can be really great when "you put a little 'Sparkle' in your fellow man's heart while making their 'Toes' a little lighter from care", according to their daughter, Pam.

Woman gets light sentence for drug conviction

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The 33-year-old Odessa woman pleaded and wept for mercy, which a Midland federal judge granted in sentencing her Friday on a cocaine-related conviction.

But U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton admonished the woman, Misty Dennard, to lead a law-abiding life and to forgo the use and abuse of drugs.

"I won't give you a second chance," the judge told her after he had sentenced her to six months in a jail-like facility and then to five years' probation. "This is your chance," he said of the relatively light sentence.

Should she violate probation, the judge said he would send her to prison.

He could have sentenced Ms. Dennard, who had pleaded guilty to a cocaine-related offense, to four years in prison.

But in a plea-bargaining agreement between her attorney and the federal prosecutor, Ms. Dennard had agreed to testify against her co-defendant, Cal "Butch" Wright, in exchange for the dismissal of two indictment counts, which could have netted her an additional 31-year sentence and $1.25 million in fines had she been convicted.

Her co-defendant and former boy friend, Wright, 50, was convicted by a jury on June 11 of conspiracy to possess cocaine and three counts of unwittingly selling the illegal drug to undercover narcotics agents. The judge could sentence Wright up to 75 years in prison and fine him $1.75 million when he sentences Wright at noon on July 7.

Ms. Dennard, a former bartender and night-club manager, had testified that she in 1986 had sold cocaine for Wright and had smoked marijuana since she was 16. "I know that was wrong," she said Friday just before Bunton sentenced her. "I know that I can stay off of marijuana. I've already proved that to myself.

"I know I can stay straight and build my life right."

Ms. Dennard said she had "always worked and taken care" of herself. But after she got on the "outs" with her parents last year, she became involved with Wright, whom she said she had viewed as a substitute family, "and got hooked on cocaine."

"I've been threatened by Mr. Wright," Ms. Dennard said. "And he did some bad things to me." In Wright's trial, she had testified that she had an abortion in 1986 and that Wright had suggested that she sell cocaine to raise money to pay for the operation.

Her attorney, Edward Garza, noted that Ms. Dennard had been threatened mentally, physically and in other ways by Wright and that "this lady...has not been involved" in using drugs since her and Wright's arrest in mid-April following the grand jury's indictment. Wright, a Midland oil-pipe dealer, has been held in jail since then.

"She's willing to work, judge," Garza said. "She's willing to do what you tell her to do. Judge, this lady is begging for your mercy. I certainly believe in her."

And Bunton did show mercy in sentencing Ms. Dennard to six months in Alternative House II in Odessa, instead of four years in prison. Bunton said her attorney did a "good job" in getting dismissed two of three counts in the indictment.

And the judge told the tearful-eyed Ms. Dennard that just about "everything bad" had happened to her. Bunton mentioned the abortion, divorces, and her use of marijuana and cocaine."

"You've fallen on evil times for a long time, Ms. Dennard," the judge told her sternly. "You certainly have not been much of a mother figure for your 14-year-old boy. You've been a willing smoker of a substance (marijuana) that's against our laws. This last year, you got addicted to cocaine."

The use of cocaine will "destroy you and the people around you," Bunton said.

"Cocaine is a horrible thing," he said. "It should be controlled."

SSC

The Odessa group statement said, "It is our intent to honor the commitment the Garden City Committee signed with the state commission (Texas National Research Laboratory Commission) to support the state's selection. Therefore, we are placing all of our efforts into supporting the official Texas sites to the Department of Energy and are asking our state legislators and congressional representatives to concentrate their efforts in behalf of the Texas sites."

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas said he seconded the motion favoring the independent bid at the June 8 San Angelo meeting. The motion proposed the group go ahead and spend the money already committed to the effort "to polish up the report as best we can and go ahead and submit it to the Department of Energy," Thomas stated Friday evening. "I think all along we've known it was a real long shot and I think all along we've felt like we wanted to go ahead and submit it regardless of what happened after we'd done all this work," he said.

The Midland mayor said he assumed the June 24 meeting will still be held and another vote taken. As to what the outcome might be, he said, "We'll just have to wait and see."

Continuation of an independent effort would result in the loss "of the good relations we've built up. We need to get on to bigger and better things," Carter said.

Explaining the reason for the policy statement issued Friday, Griffin said, "There's quite a bit of concern in question as to the need of this meeting to be held June 24. Our thought had been," he said, "that if it's going to continue on we need to at least establish in the public's mind what our position would be on it."

The Odessa members of the Garden City SSC committee did not close the door completely on support of a West Texas SSC site, however.

"In the event the situation changes so the Garden City or any other West Texas site becomes a candidate," the Odessa group said, "we would certainly again support a particular site. We still believe that West Texas offers advantages in terms of cost and geology that can't be matched by any state and may become a factor in the final location of the project."

The Odessa group concluded its policy statement with the observation that "it is our opinion that any effort as an independent site would have a negative impact on the State of Texas and the image of West Texas."

Notice of the Odessa group's decision has been sent to the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission and key people in the state and Congress.

Faulty gas blamed on some Midlanders' engine troubles

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

An adverse reaction to routine ethyanol and gasoline mixing is to blame for engine troubles Midlanders filling up at three local Stop-N-Go stores may have experienced in the past three days, an official said late Friday afternoon.

The faulty gas — bought from Tropicana, an independent Dallas distributor — was shipped to three Stop-N-Go stores Wednesday, said Stop-N-Go District Manager Kevin Miller.

"It has been flushed from the tanks and purged from the lines, Miller said.

Six Stop-N-Go stores sell Chevron gasoline and three stores sell gasoline from Tropicana, an independent Dallas vendor, said a manager at the Stop-N-Go at 4203 N. Midland Drive.

The three Stop-N-Go stores which buy from the Dallas distributor are located on Wadley Avenue and Big Spring Street; Illinois Avenue at Midkiff Road and A Street and Scharbauer Drive, the manager said.

"It's particularly affecting late-model fuel-injected cars. The fuel injector is the part of the engine that boosts the engine into another gear," Miller said.

The average repair bill for cars affected by the ethanol is between $200 and $500, he said.

The use of alcohol-based compounds — methynol or ethynol — into gasoline came during the energy crunch of the early 70s, State Rep. Jim Horn, R-Denton.

"They came up with this concept that we can generate grain alcohol (gasahol) and it will save the world," Horn explained.

Although gasahol is far more expensive to produce — about $1.60 a gallon — manufactuers got incentives in the form of state and federal tax credits to do so, the representative explained.

While gasahol — gasoline mixed with the alcohol compound — does result in increased performance and cleaner burning in some case, too much of it hurts the car's engine, Horn explained.

By law, a gasoline should not contain more than 10 percent solution of an alcohol, Horn said.

Predominantly, a consumer finds alcohol solutions in gasoline claiming to be super-unleaded, Horn added.

BELT

"The seat belt law states that drivers and front-seat passengers in vechicles up to ¾-ton trucks are required to wear seat belts," said Thomas. "We ticket both drivers and passengers...passengers 15 and up are ticketed for not obeying the law as well as drivers whose passengers are between 4 and 14," he said.

Persons whose passengers are under 4 years old and not riding in a child-restraint seat also can be ticketed for not seeing that their passengers are belted-in, he said.

The Texas seat belt law was adopted in September 1985 to offset pressure by the federal Department of Transportation on the Legislature that jeopardized the state's allotment of federal highway funds.

The state granted a three-month grace period that allowed drivers to become accustomed to wearing the belt. However, during that time, law officer issued verbal warnings, DPS Sgt. Andy Eubanks has said.

According to Lt. K.D. Woolsey, DPS highway patrolman, "The purpose of the seat belt law is to save lives, period."

Thomas said that accidents generally occur within the first and last three minutes of a trip, whether that trip be to the supermarket or to a neighboring city.

White added that it is the driver's responsibility to ensure that the passengers are seat belted.

After a year of the mandatory seat belt law, most Midland residents contacted Thursday strongly believe in "belting" themselves and their passengers.

In the minority, however, was 12-year Midland resident Carson McCullough, who believed that the law is "a farce because they said the insurance rates would decrease but in actuality my rates have remained the same, if not increased slightly... and no, I don't wear (them)."

Said Minnie Edwards, a housewife, "I think it is a good law because it shows that the government really cares...and yes, I do wear my seat belt."

Contributed Dalvin Benn, a laborer, "It's a good law and people should voluntarily abide by it because it saves lives. To not belt-up every time you get into a car is to sign your own death certificate if you are in a major accident...Of course, I belt-up."

Receptionist Enca Henlay said that "The government is always trying to impose all of these I'm-the-parent-you're-the-child laws. If I want to wear my seat belt, I wear it. If not, I don't. Why should I be forced?...I wear my belt sometimes."

Clements vetoes bill favoring American-made goods

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements slapped a veto Friday on the "Buy American" bill that would have given preference in state contracts to products made in North America.

Citing burdensome administrative problems and increased costs of projects, Clements vetoed the organized labor-backed measure. The original bill gave preference only to American-made products, but a Senate amendment exempted Mexico and Canada. Another Senate amendment gave minority-owned businesses a slight advantage.

Rep. Ron Lewis, D-Mauriceville and House sponsor of the Buy American bill, said the governor will have to explain his decision to unemployed Texans.

"He spent all week signing economic development bills but decided to veto this," Lewis said. "That bill will do as much as any of those other economic development bills as far as putting people back to work. If we create one more job, then I say it's worth it."

The governor probably would have signed the bill if the amendments were left off, Lewis said.

"The governor is going to have to explain to the 800,000 unemployed Texans why he vetoed a bill that could have put them to work," Lewis said.

Under the bill, an American-made product could be up to 10-percent more expensive than a foreign-made product and still receive the state contract.

Sheriff's department probing livestock theft

From Staff Reports

Midland Sheriff's Department deputies are investigating the Friday theft of $950 worth of livestock.

According to sheriff's reports, Joe Powell, Route 3, Box 503AA, had one 500-pound black angus heifer and one 900-pound brown cow stolen from his pasture, located south of County Road 140.

Midland Police are looking into a theft from the Exxon Service Station located at 710 W. Scharbauer Drive.

Shortly after noon Friday, Craig Lakey, a service station clerk, reported the theft of $250 from the location.

Under the latest proposal, the only taxes that would be needed would be the continuation of the temporary sales and gasoline taxes approved last summer and scheduled to expire in September.

But the plan, if approved, also faces possible court action. Bob Lanier, a member of the State Highway Commission, is threatening a lawsuit over the issue. Lanier and commission Chairman Robert Dedman will learn more details of the proposal over the weekend.

Lewis said the plan has some weaknesses, but "at the same time it might be something we have to consider at this point."

BOMB

Hospital officials told Spanish national radio at least five of the injured were in critical condition.

The national news agency EFE reported that a man claiming to speak for ETA told the Barcelona newspaper Avui 30 minutes before the 4:15 p.m. blast that a bomb would go off in the store.

Store director Robert Vidal told the agency that the store received no warning call. But he said policemen and private security guards who knew about the warning to the newspaper began searching the store minutes before the blast.

Vidal said the store, which is owned by the giant Spanish department store chain El Corte Ingles, had 7,000 square feet of space in its parking garage. The garage has three floors, each one capable of housing 300 cars, he said.

The U.S. Naval Hydrographic office issued a special warning to American mariners on June 15 "to exercise extreme caution" in the al-Ahmadi region "due to the possible presence of mines."

Underwater explosions caused by mines have been reported by vessels transiting this area on May 17 and 27 and June 9, the warning added.

The Hydrographic office's warning was repeated by the London-based Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit on Friday.

Afshar's warning was the latest in a daily series of threats made by Iranian leaders following U.S. and Soviet moves to help Kuwait protect its shipping from Iranian attack. Tehran charges Kuwait aids Iraq.

The United States is registering 11 of Kuwait's 21 tankers under the American flag.

Rains says justices may have violated state law

AUSTIN (AP) — A detailed opinion by the Texas secretary of state says Supreme Court Justice C.L. Ray may have violated state law if the allegations and findings of a judicial conduct panel are true, it was reported Friday.

The opinion by Secretary of State Jack Rains also found that Ray and Justice William Kilgarlin may have violated state civil statutes if they used campaign funds to finance a lawsuit against a legislative committee investigating alleged misconduct.

The opinion was sought by the Houston Post and the San Antonio Express-News.

Ray received a public reprimand last week from the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. Kilgarlin was given a less-severe public admonishment.

Austin lawyer Randall "Buck" Wood, who represents both justices, dismissed Rains' opinion as a "partisan effort to stir the pot."

Rains is a Republican, appointed by Gov. Bill Clements who has called for the justices' resignations. Both justices are Democrats. Rains' opinion was based on the judicial commission's report and not on an independent investigation.

It centered on Ray's failure to report in personal or campaign financial statements airplane trips provided the judge and his family by lawyers who practice before the Supreme Court.

While the state can seek only civil penalties against the judges for allegedly illegal campaign expenditures, failure to report the airplane flights could be a misdemeanor criminal offense, the Post reported.

The secretary of state, charged with interpreting and administering election laws, has no authority to prosecute such violations. But Rains' opinion raised the possibility of new criminal and civil actions against the two judges.

Under state law, Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle would have criminal jurisdiction in the matter. Earle was on vacation and not immediately available to comment, his office said.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, who could seek civil penalties against the judges, said Rains' opinion was "the first thing I've heard about this." Mattox said he wouldn't look into the matter until Rains forwarded a formal complaint to his office.

Scientists find several baby dinosaur skeletons

DALLAS (AP) — Scientists believe they may have found the rare nests of dinosaurs at a site near Lake Proctor in Central Texas.

The find contains several baby dinosaur skeletons in a small nestlike cluster, and more research will tell if the find is one of the earliest examples of the nesting habits of dinosaurs, said paleontologist Dale A. Winkler of Southern Methodist University.

"We're not saying for sure that these are nests, but the evidence against other explanations is pretty good," said Winkler. "We're hoping our future work will prove or disprove our speculation."

Winkler said the bones of the young dinosaurs, along with the range of skeletons of more mature dinosaurs discovered nearby, will give researchers an unusual chance to study the growth and development of primitive reptiles.

Dinosaur nests have been found previously in Mongolia's Gobi Desert and in an area of western Montana, but Winkler believes the skeletons found in Texas are about 40 million years older.

Scientists and students who are studying the Comanche County find have examined only two of the 17 chunks of sediment, which are sealed in plaster and called "biscuits."

The Texas researchers, however, haven't been able to find eggshells, which have accompanied nest finds in other places, and that's why they're not positive they've found dinosaur nests.

"If it is the nest, there should be eggshells," said Winkler.

However, other explanations for the dense cluster of small dinosaur bones, such as being piled there by a predator or swept there by a flood, aren't as plausible as the nest theory.

There are no teeth marks, broken bones, or signs of flooding to back those theories, Winkler said.

The bones have been identified as those of a "hypsilophodont," a two-legged vegetarian dinosaur that lived 115 million years ago. An adult hypsilophodont could grow to a length of 12 feet and a height of 4 feet.

NLRB holds hearings in Lubbock

LUBBOCK (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board held a closed hearing on Friday in connection with a union's attempt to represent workers at a meat packing plant.

A union spokesman said the hearing at the Lubbock County Courthouse was to set guidelines for a union representation vote at the Excel Beef Packing Plant in Plainview. The meeting was closed to reporters.

The representation vote would be held 21 days after the hearing, said Peter Kennedy of the Dallas-based North American Meat Packers Union.

Officials of NAMPU, a meat packer's group composed of former strikers at the Hormel Plant in Austin, Minn., collected enough signatures to force the election, Kennedy said.

He said the Minnesota-based union wants to represent 1,000 employees at the Excel Plant in Plainview.

Kennedy said his group collected 700 signatures from the Excel work force, more than the 30 percent required to force a vote on who will represent the workers.

Heart transplant patient meets widow of man who donated heart

HOUSTON (AP) — A transplant patient whose new heart came from a man slain after stopping to help two stranded motorists met with the donor's widow for the first time to express his thanks.

"Your husband's gone and his heart is beating inside me and I'm feeling fine," Robert Taylor, 38, told Wendy Willingham. "I feel like the luckiest man in the world."

Mrs. Willingham's husband, James, was shot to death May 17 when the couple stopped to assist two women whose car was stranded on a Houston freeway.

"I wish I had more to give," she said Monday during her first meeting with Taylor.

Taylor, a deputy sheriff, is one of five people who received organs from Willingham's body shortly after he died. He had moved to Houston in October to await a replacement for his heart, which was failing after being weakened by viral pneumonia during his childhood.

Vicki Nickell-Lane, a transplant patient who received Willingham's lungs, died Sunday, but the other three patients still are alive.

"I thought life was over," Taylor told Mrs. Willingham. "Every time I heard a siren, I'd think maybe that was the unfortunate person who's going to have to die in order for me to live.

"I had called my mother in Arkansas and said if I didn't get a heart that weekend I was saying 'to hell with it' and coming home to live out my life the best I could. And then you had your tragedy," Taylor said. "I can go on living now. You made this possible."

Mrs. Willingham, 22, said her decision was made after doctors told her there was nothing they could do to save her husband.

"It would have been a waste. If one couldn't make it, maybe another could," she said.

Since then, Mrs. Willingham has indicated on her driver's license that her own organs be donated in the event of her death.

After the couple stopped to help the women, two other men approached on foot, asked to help and shot Willingham as he sat behind the wheel of the disabled car, police said. The two men stole Willingham's wallet and the women's purses and then fled in the victim's truck.

Two men were arrested and charged in the shooting, police said.

Wendy Willingham and Robert Taylor met recently to discuss the heart transplant operation he has in May. Mrs. Willingham donated to heart of her husband James, who was killed when the couple stopped to aid a motorist and he was robbed and killed.

Jury doesn't return indictments in bus-truck collision

BEAUMONT (AP) — A grand jury investigating a collision between a Trailways bus and a moving van decided not to indict anyone in the crash that killed six people and injured 19 others.

Jefferson County prosecutors spent the past month reviewing a police report on the May 4 wreck on Interstate 10 in Beaumont before presenting it to the grand jury.

The grand jury decided Thursday not to issue any indictments in the case. District Attorney Tom Maness said the results of the review concurred with the grand jury's decision.

"At this time, any litigation growing out of this would be in the civil courts," Maness said.

Five civil lawsuits are pending in Beaumont courts in connection with the wreck.

Twenty-seven passengers were aboard the bus when the moving van, owned by Graebel Movers International Inc., crossed the median on the rain-slick highway and struck the bus head-on, officials said.

The bus, traveling from New Orleans, had just picked up passengers in Beaumont and was en route to Houston, El Paso and Los Angeles.

Asteroids could be beneficial, scientist says

By LORI QUALLS
Hearst News Service

Asteroids are capable of gouging the earth, incinerating forests and killing people and animals. But one day they may be beneficial to humans, according to Dr. Eleanor Helin, a planetary scientist and astronomer.

Helin, who is credited with discovering more near-Earth asteroids than any other scientist, works nightly at an observatory in Pasadena, Calif., as part of the Palomar Planet-Crossing Asteroid Search. The sky is observed and photographed through giant telescopes, and astronomers keep track of the 90 identified near-Earth asteroids in the solar system and watch for new discoveries. Worldwide, scientists discover about two to three asteroids a year, Helin said, most of which are orbiting the sun in a circular belt between Mars and Jupiter.

An asteroid is believed to be either the dead core of a comet or a fragment that never developed into a planet, Helin said.

"We really haven't seen a nearby-Earth asteroid up close so we have to make a guess what they look like," she said.

What scientists have seen, however, is the destruction that asteroids can cause. Slides used by Helin in her lectures include one of a Mars' moon. Its surface was hit by a "small" body, Helin said, that left a crater estimated to be 17 miles wide by 13 miles deep.

Another slide shows a much-pitted Mercury, which constantly is peppered by asteroids due to its proximity to the sun. Closer to home, the moon's craggy surface also is a good example of what asteroids can do, Helin said.

"Asteroids and comets continue to change the surface of our planetary bodies, whether they be major planets or satellites of those major bodies," Helin said. "The Earth is not immune to large catastrophic impacts.

Evidence, she said, is North Meteor Crater in northern Nevada. The surface was hit 25,000 years ago by an object estimated to be about 150 feet in diameter.

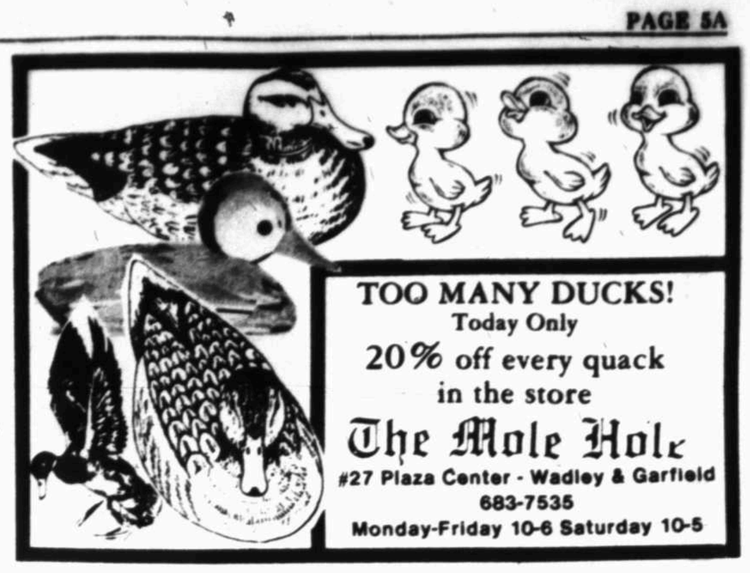

Another Earth-hit was in Siberia, within the last 100 years, Helin said. An object exploded about 5 miles above the ground and created "great havoc" below, she said. "It devastated forests, incinerated them and killed herds of reindeer."

"When we look more carefully, we see more and more impact structures on our Earth," Helin said. "We do know we will continue to be struck by objects in various sizes within time."

The results of some Earth-hits aren't so obvious because the planet's atmosphere and erosion process tend to erase the evidence, Helin said. She noted that 100 impact sites have been confirmed beneath the earth's bodies of water.

Because asteroids are believed to contain precious and rare materials, scientists are making plans for further exploration. Helin talked about several possible missions. One, a $500 million mission that would send an unmanned spacecraft to probe asteroids, could be launched as early as 1993.

Other possibilities include "asteroid mining," in which surface samples are extracted by astronauts, or "western roundups," in which asteroids are secured and brought into the earth's atmosphere. Most of these missions, Helin said, will take place in the 21st century.

Man claiming to be LBJ's son sues to get 'legal birthrights'

DALLAS (AP) — A man who claims to be the illegitimate son of former President Lyndon B. Johnson is seeking $10.5 million from Lady Bird Johnson, contending she conspired to deny him his inheritance.

Steven Mark Brown, 36, of Dallas, included in his suit an affidavit from his mother in which she claimed to have had an affair with Johnson that lasted from 1948 to 1969.

"My legal birthrights have been violated and a conspiracy was formed to deprive me of my legal heirship," Brown said in the suit, which was filed Thursday.

Mrs. Johnson did not return phone messages left with her spokeswoman Friday by The Associated Press.

Brown also accused two of Lyndon Johnson's friends, Jess C. Kellam of Austin and Jerome T. Ragsdale of Dallas, of participating in a conspiracy.

Madeline Brown said in her affidavit that Ragsdale, a Dallas attorney who died in 1978, was assigned to handle the legal problems involved with her pregnancy.

Ragsdale later claimed to have fathered the child himself, Mrs. Brown said.

"This was to shield Lyndon Baines Johnson from any adverse publicity," she said.

Ragsdale kept records of Brown's birth in a safe-deposit box at the Mercantile Bank, according to the suit. After Ragsdale's death, officials discovered the box had been drilled open and contents removed, the suit said.

Mrs. Brown claimed she met Johnson in 1948 at a Dallas hotel at a social function, where he invited her to his television station at the Driskill Hotel in Austin.

"He had an apartment in the Driskill and we routinely started having an affair," she said.

Mrs. Brown said she moved to Dallas in 1948 after leaving her husband, James Glynn Brown. The couple divorced in 1955.

Johnson, president from 1963 to 1969, died in 1973.

Grand jury doesn't indict maid caring for siblings who drowned

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury investigating the drownings of a brother and sister has declined to indict the 19-year-old Salvadoran maid who was taking care of the two children.

No indictments were issued Thursday against Francisca Rodriguez Ramos, who was arrested and charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Joshua Craig Roberts, 2, and his 1-year-old sister, Brei Ashley Roberts, who drowned in their backyard swimming pool May 20.

Prosecutor Sid Crowley said he recommended Ms. Ramos not be indicted because the case would have been difficult to prosecute under Texas law.

The law says a parent may be held criminally liable for failing to take necessary action to protect his or her child, but that other people — such as a paid caretaker — are not under any such criminal liability, Crowley said. They may be liable to civil lawsuits, he said.

Crowley said he read to the grand jury Ms. Ramos' statement to police in which she acknowledged opening the pool gate and leaving it open after returning to her duties in the house.

In the statement, she said she left the children unattended for about 35 minutes while she cleaned an upstairs bathroom. When she came down, the children were lying face down in the pool, she said.

The children's parents, chiropractors Craig S. Roberts and Rhonda Roberts DeLoache, were among the witnesses who testified before the grand jury, but Ms. Ramos did not testify.

Craig Roberts said he was disappointed with the grand jury's decision, and hoped the woman would be deported.

"I don't know why we even went today," he said referring to his testimony.

Ms. Ramos, who had been released on $4,000 bond, said she was relieved.

"But I'm very sorry for the children and their family," she said in Spanish. "I tried my best. It was an accident, and I wish it had never happened."

Ms. Ramos' attorney, Elihu Dodier, said she had been in this country illegally about eight months.

At the time of the children's deaths, she had lived for two weeks in the Roberts home in Jersey Village, a Houston suburb. Her duties included cleaning and looking after the children, at a salary of $125 a week.

President of teachers' union says state's future depends on schools

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The leader of a national teachers' union told educators that state officials should invest in schools to assure Texas' future health.

"The state must recognize that the future health of the state depends on what legislators put into education," Albert Shanker, American Federation of Teachers president, told the union's state convention on Thursday.

Texas' current funding problems were a key theme at the opening session of the 13th annual Texas Federation of Teachers convention, which continues through today in Corpus Christi.

"If you've invested in educational talent, one business can shut down, but those people can be re-educated very easily," Shanker said. "That's a lesson that needs to be picked up here by your legislators and by your governor."

Shanker said if legislators cut public education funds, the state's economic development will suffer. If the state depends on local funds, he said, students in richer districts will receive a good education and those in poorer districts will not.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who spoke briefly at the convention, underscored Shanker's concerns with numbers.

"The bill to extend the 5¼-cent sales tax did not pass...Gov. (Bill) Clements vetoed the bill making the 15 cent gasoline tax permanent," he said.

Town increases reward hoping to catch robber

RIVER OAKS (AP) — This town has gotten so tired of a man who has robbed a savings and loan branch office five times in the past year that it is offering more reward money for his capture.

The Tarrant County town posted a $5,000 reward last week for information leading to the man's arrest and indictment. An additional $1,000 reward is being offered by Crime Stoppers.

"We're tired of it," Police Sgt. Dan Chisholm said. "But it's just one of those things where the guy is just in and out so quickly."

Tellers at the River Oaks branch of First Texas Savings Association say they are also tired of the robberies. They can immediately recognize the man and sound a holdup alarm as soon as he walks through the door.

Although River Oaks police are able to quickly respond to the holdup alarms, the man has been able to escape without a trace.

The only clue left behind is a profile photo taken by a security camera. It shows a man wearing jeans, a print shirt and a dark cap. He is armed with a pistol, has collar-length hair and sometimes has several days' growth of beard.

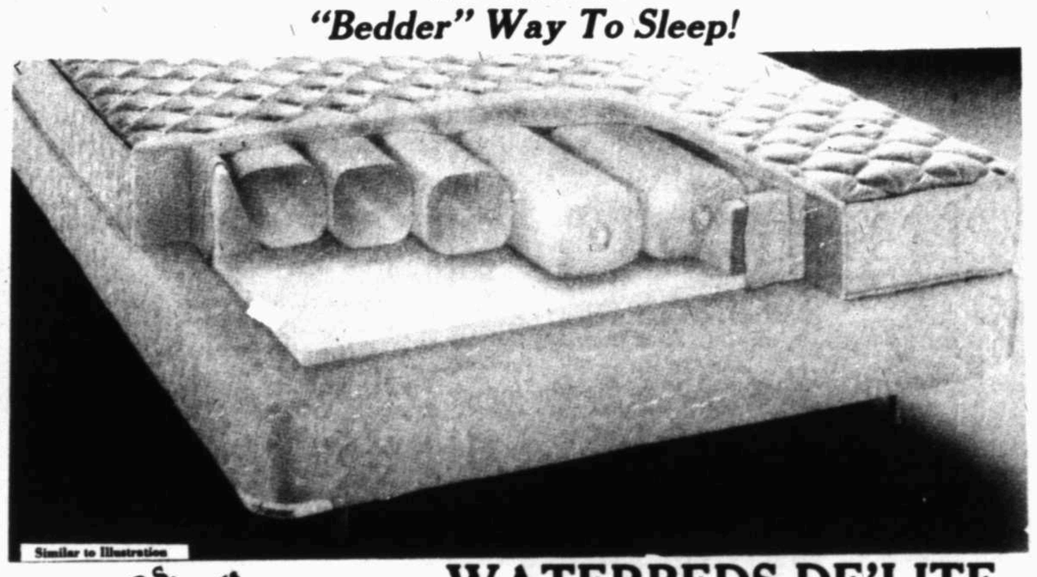

The man is in his late 20s or early 30s, is between 5-foot-6 and 5-10 and weighs 140 to 160 pounds, witnesses say.

Ads designed to get people to ask for AIDS information

By JERRY ESTILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Aren't we over-reacting on AIDS?" the nation's top health official asks in a new radio spot. "Isn't it more 'hype' than health threat?"

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen goes on: "The truth is AIDS is the most serious health threat facing our nation."

In another of the 11 advertisements being distributed to 11,000 radio stations, Bowen says "you can't get AIDS from a sneeze or an insect bite or from a toilet seat."

The program announced Friday by Bowen also includes two 30-second television spots being distributed by the National Association of Broadcasters to its 900 member stations.

The radio ads — in 30- and 60-second formats — are being mailed to 11,000 radio stations, including 600 Spanish speaking stations.

All of the spots are designed to get people to seek more information on AIDS and urge those interested to call the toll-free AIDS hotline at 1-800-342-AIDS. One of the longer ones suggests that listeners ask for a copy of the surgeon general's 36-page report on AIDS when they call.

"These radio and television announcements are one more element in our effort to reach the American people with the knowledge they need concerning AIDS," Bowen said in a statement.

"They contain the basic facts and they tell how to get more detailed written information and how to have specific questions answered through our AIDS Hot Line."

Some of the messages are intended specifically for black and Hispanic listeners. One says "three out of four heterosexual men and women with AIDS are black or Hispanic."

"The announcements aimed at minority populations are especially important because black and Hispanic Americans are carrying a disproportionate share of the burden of AIDS," Bowen said.

About 25 percent of people with AIDS are black, although blacks make up only 12 percent of the U.S. population. About 14 percent of the people with AIDS are Hispanic, although Hispanics make up only 7 percent of the population.

The AIDS hot line has been in operation since 1983 and has received more than a million calls. The hot line is answered initially with a recording that gives basic facts on AIDS. Callers are then given another number to call if they want to talk to an operator trained to answer specific questions.

Bowen said more than a million copies of Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's report on AIDS have been distributed since it was issued last November. He said another printing of several million additional copies should be completed next month.

The radio spots include: Seriousness of the Disease; Contagiousness of the Disease; How is AIDS Spread?; Symptoms of AIDS; AIDS and Minorities; Should We Quarantine AIDS Patients?; and Progress Against the Disease.

The radio ads also refer listeners to the hot line for more information.

In the quarantine spot, Bowen says: "Some people say that we should quarantine AIDS patients. That step is unnecessary and brutal."

He goes on to say AIDS is not spread by casual contact and that quarantine "would be a brutal retaliation against those who need medical help and compassion. It would also drive AIDS victims underground, creating further risks for everyone. We need to heed the facts, not give in to hysteria."

Priest cleared of lying to help von Bulow

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Charges were dropped Friday against a Roman Catholic priest accused of lying to help Claus von Bulow escape attempted murder charges.

The Rev. Philip A. Magaldi had been accused of perjury and obstruction of justice for allegedly submitting a false affidavit on behalf of the Danish socialite, who was acquitted in 1985 of charges he tried to murder his wife with an insulin injection.

"Key evidence in this case is faulty," Attorney General James E. O'Neil said in a statement. "It should not be prosecuted. It probably should not have been the subject of an indictment."

Magaldi's indictment was sought by O'Neil's predecessor, Arlene Violet, based in part on a tape recording made by a man who said he delivered drugs to the Newport mansion where von Bulow and his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, lived.

Defense attorneys contended that Mrs. von Bulow brought on two comas by abusing alcohol and drugs. Doctors have said the second coma, which Mrs. von Bulow entered in December 1980, is irreversible.

David Marriott later recanted his sworn statement, but Magaldi, who filed an affidavit corroborating parts of Marriott's account, did not withdraw his.

O'Neil said Friday that a laboratory analysis of the tape made before the indictment showed that the tape had been altered and the voice could not be positively identified as Magaldi's.

Lawyers involved with the Magaldi and von Bulow cases harshly criticized Violet for proceeding with the indictment despite knowledge that the tape was faulty.

William A. Dimitri Jr., Magaldi's lawyer, said he may refer Violet to the disciplinary council of the Rhode Island Supreme Court for sanctions.

"I'm very disturbed she withheld exculpatory evidence and indicted Father Magaldi knowing the tape had been altered," Dimitri said. "I think it's unconscionable."

"If she presented a case to the grand jury without telling the grand jury that these tapes were altered, she has to be disbarred," said Alan Dershowitz, an attorney for von Bulow who won a retrial after being initially convicted of attempted murder in 1982.

Violet, a former nun, lost the 1986 election to O'Neil amid allegations of misconduct on the part of her prosecutors.

She said Friday she had never been told that the tape had been tampered with.

"My recollection was that a voice print was taken of Father Magaldi (and compared with) the tape that purported to be from David Marriott," Violet said. "It was the same voice. There was no information communicated to me about any alteration."

Magaldi, the pastor of St. Anthony's Church in North Providence for 21 years, did not return telephone calls Friday.

Weekend to be mostly sunny

From Staff and Wire Reports

The weekend should be mostly sunny save for a slight chance of thunderstorms today and Sunday, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Today's weather should be hot and sunny with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The high should be in the mid 90s and winds should be from the southeast 10-20 mph.

Tonight should be partly cloudy with less than a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low should be in the upper 60s.

Sunday should be sunny with isolated thunderstorms. The high should be in the upper 90s.

The record high set for Friday was a scorching 107 and was set in 1951. The record low for today was 52 and set in 1973.

NATION

Thunderstorms doused the eastern two-thirds of the nation Friday, with heavy rain stretching from the Mississippi Valley to the southern Atlantic seaboard.

Tornado watches were posted through the evening for most of western Texas as a band of strong thunderstorms formed from southeast Kansas across central Oklahoma and into the Lone Star State.

The storm system spawned wind gusts up to 60 mph at Sand Springs, Okla., and marble-sized hail in Stratford, Texas. Gage and Enid, Okla., got more than 1.4 inches of rain in a six-hour period.

Thunderstorms also soaked central and southeast Montana and northeast Wyoming. Judith Cap, Mont., and the Big Horn region of Wyoming were peppered with hail.

More hot, dry weather could spark new outbreaks, said Scott Heather, assistant regional forest manager for the Department of Natural Resources. The area has had about 4 inches of rain less than normal for this time of year, he said.

Springfield, Mo., got 1.4 inches of rain in an hour and southwest Virginia got nearly 1.5 inches in two hours. Pittsfield, Wis., was hit with marble-sized hail and several lightning strikes.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms for much of the nation east of the Rockies, extending from the central Gulf Coast region and northern Florida into the Ohio Valley, and across eastern Montana, Iowa and northern Illinois, with a few showers dotting the Pacific Coast. Sunshine was forecast for eastern North Dakota into upper Michigan and from upstate New York into New England.

In North Texas, partly cloudy through Sunday with scattered thunderstorms. Highs in the low to mid 90s. Lows in the upper 60s to lower 70s.

In West Texas, partly cloudy with isolated to scattered afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms through Sunday night, becoming mostly sunny with isolated afternoon thunderstorms Sunday. Mostly fair far west. Lows tonight mid 50s mountains to lower to mid 60s north to lower 70s Big Bend. Highs today and Sunday near 90 Panhandle and mountains to near 110 along the river in the Big Bend.

In South Texas, cloudy to partly cloudy north, fair south through Sunday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms north and east through Sunday. Lows near 70 Hill Country to near 80 along the coast. Highs in the 90s except upper 80s immediate coast and near 100 southwest.

'A Comedy of Errors' costs Angels

From Staff Reports

EL PASO — The Midland Angel defense disappeared in the bottom of the sixth inning Friday night as the El Paso Diablos turned three mistakes into a game-winning run here at Dudley Dome.

Ernie Riles opened the inning when he reached on Joe Redfield's fielding error at third and went to second with a stolen base and to third when catcher Edwin Marquez threw the ball into the outfield.

One out later, Rob DeWolf hit a come-backer to pitcher Marty Reed, who fielded the ball and threw to Marquez in time to make the play. However, Marquez couldn't hang onto to the throw and, on the error, the run scored giving the Diablos a 4-3 Texas League victory.

The Angels owned the early lead when Doug Jennings connected for his 18th home run of the year off Dave Clay.

After taking a 2-1 lead, the Angels let it slip from their grasp in the fourth when Mike Gobbo hits his fifth round-tripper, a two-run shot for a 3-2 El Paso advantage.

Midland tied the game in the fifth when Mark Brouhard was hit by a pitch and rounded the bases on singles by Stan Holmes and Brian Brady.

Holstead gains tie with Moore

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

First round leader Todd Moore managed to hang on to a share of the lead in the Men's West Texas Amateur Friday. How he did it is a story in itself.

Sharing first place with the University of Texas golfer from Abilene is old pro, er, ah, reliable Bill Holstead, Wichita Falls, who carded his second straight 69 for a two-day total 138.

But, both better beware of Lee Roy Pearson, who came from out of nowhere to challenge for first place by shooting the day's low round, with a 66—139, recovering nicely from an opening round 73.

After Friday's round the Championship Flight field was trimmed to 19, with 149 moving into a President's Flight. The championship round will begin teeing off today at 10:48 with the final group going off at 11:36 a.m.

The 72-hole championship flight competition continues today and concludes Sunday.

COMPARED TO Thursday's windy conditions, Friday was an ideal day, little wind and a hot sun. The only thing that spoiled it was the fast greens, which gave the golfers almost as much trouble as the wind the day before.

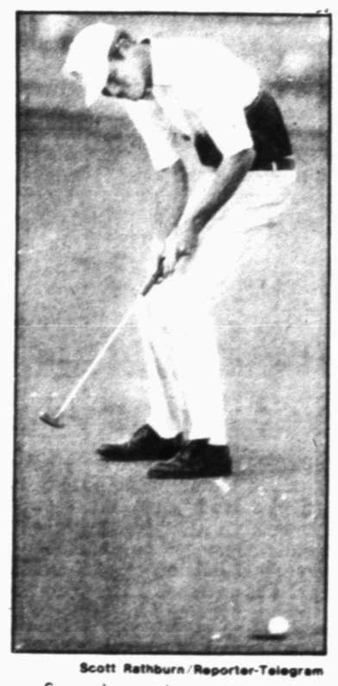

Moore "ballooned" to a 70. "I had four three-putt holes. Thursday I missed two greens. Today I missed three.

"Those 15-foot putts were the tough ones because I thought I could make them...and didn't."

Going into the final four holes, Moore was three over and his lead looked like a lost cause. Then came four saving birdies on the final four holes.

Holstead won this tournament in 1978 and 1979 and looks like he's got the itch again with two fine rounds.

ASKED WHAT he did in Eastland, Pearson said, "I got a pulling unit, which means I'm not doing much right now."

Scott Rathburn/Reporter-Telegram

So close but...Lee Roy Pearson's putt stops just short of the hole during Men's West Texas play.

From his 66, it looks like he's working overtime on his golf game.

Five under going into 17, Pearson bogeyed and then got it back on 18.

The key hole on the round was 14, "where I birdied a cinch bogey. I snapped my drive, hit a flyer with a six that hit in front of the hole and left a long, tough downhill putt. I wanted to baby it to within two or three feet of the cup. Instead, it went in." He still sounded surprised as he described it at the end of his round.

Pearson has played in this tournament 15 times with a second place finish, his best, at Amarillo four years ago. This time he'd liked to make it all the way.

Watson scorches Olympic Club, uses 65 to tie Wiebe

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Tom Watson, it was a trip down memory lane.

Watson, mired in a three-year victory drought, rekindled memories of the days when he was golf's finest player Friday with a 5-under-par 65 that gave him a share of the lead at the halfway point of the 87th U.S. Open golf championship.

Watson, winner of five British Open championships and the dominant player in the game during the early 80s, said he could not remember the last time he'd had a score as low as 65.

"It must have been a long time," he said.

Watson topped off his round with a short birdie putt on the 18th hole that gave him the best round of the tournament. He finished two trips around the rain-slickened slopes of the Olympic Club's Lake course in 137, 3 under par.

"I haven't felt like that on a golf course in a long time," Watson said. "I get excited about the U.S. Open, and about U.S. Open courses.The juices get to flowing. I felt like I knew what I was doing today."

A victory would mean a lot to Watson, a non-winner since the 1984 Western Open.

"It would mean I'm back," he said.

Unheralded Mark Wiebe pulled into a tie with Watson with a 3-under-par 67 that included a string of three consecutive bogeys and a 114-yard wedge shot that found the cup for an eagle-2.

U.S. Open

"I'm pretty proud of the way I'm thinking, concentrating on one shot at a time. I didn't even know what I was shooting today until I added up my card," said Wiebe, 29, winner of two titles in his four-year PGA Tour career.

Jack Nicklaus had a chance to earn a share of the lead, but his putt on the 18th hole would not fall, leaving him at 68 for the day and 138 for the tournament.

"The Open always motivates me; any major championship motives me," said Nicklaus, who owns an unmatched collection of 18 major professional titles and now, at 47, finds himself in pursuit of a record fifth Open championship.

"I wouldn't be here if I didn't think I could win," he added.

Nicklaus was tied at 138 with Tommy Nakajima, Bernhard Langer, John Cook and veteran Jim Thorpe.

Nakajima, Japan's leading performer and Watson's playing partner on a dreary, drizzly day, matched par-70 while Thorpe, who has a habit of playing his best in the Open, had a 68.

Langer, the 1985 Masters champion from West Germany, had his second straight 69 and Cook shot a 68.

Masters champion Larry Mize, Ben Crenshaw, Scott Simpson and Bob Eastwood were next at 139, one under par.

Crenshaw, the first-round leader, slipped to a 72, while Mize had a 68, Eastwood a 66 and Simpson a 68.

Craig Stadler and Mac O'Grady were part of the group at even-par 140.

Defending U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd, who had an opening-round 68, slipped to a 73. He was in a group at 141 that also included Australian Greg Norman, the reigning British Open champion and a central figure in the last five major championships, who had a 69, and PGA champion Bob Tway, who had a 71 despite a double-bogey 7 on the 16th.

Spain's Severiano Ballesteros, a two-time Masters and British Open Champion, ballooned to a 75 after his opening-round 68 and was at 143, six shots behind the leaders.

Watson, a puzzled, frustrated non-winner for so long, played this round like the Watson of old — the five-time British Open champion and six-time Player of the Year.

It started with a "little adjustment to my swing on the practice tee. I shortened it, tightened it up. It seemed to work," he said.

But the key to his effort, he said, was a trio "of really good, long putts.

Astros' Bass spoils Hershiser's 14K outing

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Kevin Bass' 11th-inning sacrifice fly gave the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers on Friday night although losing pitcher Orel Hershiser tied the National League high for the season with a career-best 14 strikeouts.

Bill Doran, who tied the score 2-2 with an inside-the-park homer in the sixth inning, opened the 11th with a single, his third hit of the game, and went to third on a single by Craig Reynolds, the seventh hit off Hershiser, 7-7. Ken Howell relieved and struck out Glenn Davis but Bass hit a lazy fly ball to right off Matt Young and Doran bowled over catcher Mike Scioscia as he scored.

Dave Meads, 5-1, the third Houston pitcher, was the winner with one inning of scoreless relief.

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Jose Cruz hit his sixth home run of the season. The Dodgers tied the score against Danny Darwin in the fifth after Dave Anderson walked with two out. Anderson stole second, continued to third on catcher Ronn Reynolds' throwing error and scored when first baseman Davis mishandled Steve Sax's grounder for Houston's third error.

Los Angeles went ahead 2-1 in the sixth. Pedro Guerrero led off with a single and was forced by Mike Marshall, who scored when Franklin Stubbs singled off the left-field wall.

With two out in the bottom of the sixth, Doran hit his eighth home run of the season and his second inside-the-park homer. Left fielder Guerrero charged Doran's shallow fly ball near the foul line but the ball got past him and rolled to the wall.

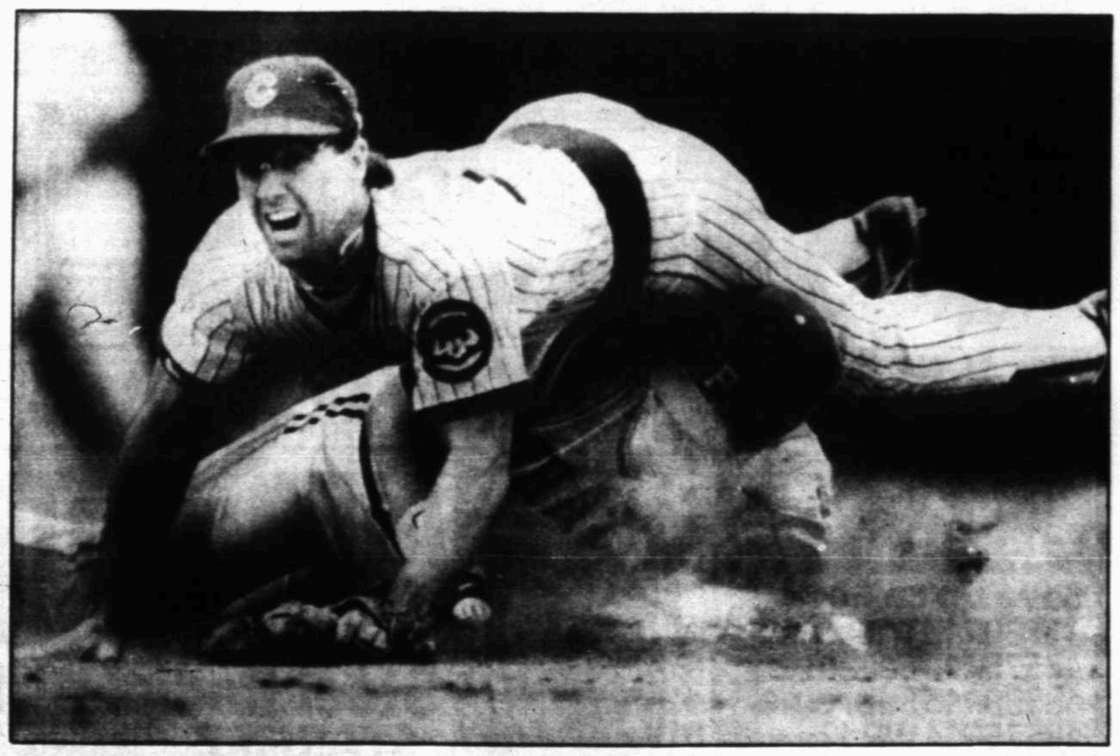

The victory enabled Houston to climb within 1½ games of first-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

CHICAGO — Brian Fisher pitched a six-hitter for his first major-league shutout and Sid Bream hit a two-run homer to help Pittsburgh defeat Chicago.

Fisher, 3-4, walked two and struck out six as he snapped a personal three-game losing streak. In his five previous appearances, Fisher was 1-3 with a 7.33 earned run average. Fisher started the season in the bullpen and made 10 relief appearances before joining the starting rotation on May 9.

The loss snapped Chicago's three-game winning streak.

Mets 8, Phillies 1

NEW YORK — John Mitchell pitched a five-hitter for his first major-league victory and Howard Johnson started the scoring with the first of a record-tying four New York home runs as the Mets beat Philadelphia.

Mitchell, 1-1, struck out three and walked three in his eighth major-league start and blanked the Phillies until Glenn Wilson's RBI single in the ninth. The 21-year-old right-hander also doubled in the seventh for his first major-league hit.

Kevin McReynolds, Mookie Wilson and Rafael Santana hit solo home runs as the Mets sent Philadelphia to its fourth straight loss and the second in a row under Manager Lee Elia, who replaced the fired John Felske on Thursday.

All four homers came in the first four innings against Don Carman, 4-6, as the Mets tied a team record with nine home runs in two consecutive games. They hit five against Montreal on Thursday night.

Braves 16, Reds 5

ATLANTA — Ozzie Virgil drove in four runs and Gerald Perry, Ken Oberkfell and Andres Thomas each had three RBIs as Atlanta beat Cincinnati.

Perry had a run-scoring triple to ignite a four-run first inning, an RBI single in the fourth and a run-scoring double in the sixth when the Braves sent 11 batters to the plate and scored six times to turn a 7-5 game into a rout.

Oberkfell doubled a run across in the fourth inning and a two-run triple in the sixth. Thomas had three singles, driving in one run in the first inning and two in the sixth. Glenn Hubbard also contributed an RBI single to the big sixth inning in which the Braves had four hits and four walks.

Ken Griffey hit a solo homer for Atlanta in the third inning, his ninth of the season.

The victory went to Zane Smith, 7-4, who gave up five runs and nine hits in 5⅓ innings, including three home runs, two by Nick Esasky. Jeff Dedmon pitched the final 3⅔ innings for his fourth save.

Expos 8, Cardinals 7

ST. LOUIS — Casey Candaele and Tim Raines hit RBI singles with two out in the 11th inning, giving the Montreal Expos a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Andres Galarraga started the inning with the game's only extra-base hit, an opposite-field double off Bill Dawley, 4-5, that hit the right-field foul line. Dawley struck out Herm Winningham and Mike Fitzgerald but walked pinch hitter Vance Law.

Committee says SMU football 'embarassing, offensive'

Clements, Shields among those who knew of player payments

DALLAS (AP) — Six top Southern Methodist University officials, including Gov. Bill Clements, knew of illicit payments to football players before the school was put on probation in 1985 and must have known the payments continued, a committee investigating the scandal said Friday.

In its 48-page report, the United Methodist Church bishops committee drew a meticulous picture of SMU's football program, describing its findings as "embarrassing and offensive in many instances."

The SMU Board of Governors was content to "win football games, trust the leadership and look the other way," the bishops' report said. The board of governors, which was abolished in March, previously served as an executive committee to the larger SMU Board of Trustees.

The pay-for-players scandal prompted the NCAA in February to suspend SMU's 1987 football season with the so-called "death penalty" in the harshest collegiate football penalty ever.

Named as knowing of payments before August 1985 were Clements, Dallas banker Robert H. Stewart III, Dallas businessman Edwin L. Cox and former Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom, all former members of the board of governors; former SMU President L. Donald Shields, who resigned last November, and board of trustees member O. Paul Corley.

"Clements maintains that every member who knew of the payments prior to August 1985 must have known of the payments after," said Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt. "That is his conclusion, and that is our conclusion."

The governor declined comment Friday on the bishops' report, Clements press secretary Reggie Bashur said.

The report also revealed for the first time how much SMU paid to its top three athletic department officials who resigned.

"The termination agreements obligated SMU to pay a total of $863,013 to the three employees," the report said. Former Coach Bobby Collins received $556,272, former Athletic Director Bob Hitch got $246,442, and former Hitch assistant Henry Lee Parker received $60,299, the report said.

"Hitch was willing to go to the NCAA and confess to the payment program — but only if SMU agreed to pay out all three contracts," the bishops said.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association put SMU on probation in 1985 for recruiting violations, and a former player revealed last fall that he continued to receive payments even after the probation.

After the school's 1987 football program was suspended, Clements revealed in March that the payments were continued.

"Had the payments stopped, SMU would have experienced the same type of public disclosures that occurred with Texas Christian in 1985 and that are taking place at SMU in 1987," the report found. The NCAA put TCU on probation in 1985, also because of recruiting violations.

The committee also charged that Clements, Cox, Corley and former board of governors chairman William Hutchison tried to contain the NCAA investigation and protect Clements. Clements resigned as board chairman in January before he was inaugurated as Texas governor.

Clements repeatedly refused to name the other board members who knew of the payments, although Stewart acknowledged he had agreed to the plan.

In November 1986, Cox, Corley and Hutchison were told that Clements knew of the continuing payments, the report said.

"There is no question that Cox, Corley and Hutchison were informed and well-informed regarding Clements' role," the report said, adding that Stewart and Cox knew of payments to football players as early as 1981.

Clements, Cox and Shields were told of payments to players in 1983, it said. That payment scheme, alleged by the NCAA in its 1983 investigation, was the same one that continued until December 1986, the bishops found.

The report said former board member Folsom had been asked to contribute to the improper payment program, but noted that he denies knowing about the payments.

The report recommended that SMU officials investigate all athletic programs, specifically basketball, track and tennis. It also recommended that new SMU President A. Kenneth Pye "maintain constant vigilance over the athletic department."

The committee said the athletic department should monitor ownership of automobile and occupancy of off-campus housing by student athletes.

The four-member panel met 14 times in the past three months, said the Rev. Spurgeon Dunnam.

Player owns one-shot edge over Moody

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Player shot a 2-under par-70 Friday to retain the lead after the second round of the $300,000 Northville Invitational seniors golf tournament.

Player's 36-hole score of 7-under-par 137 was one shot better than Orville Moody, who had the best round of the day, a 66.

Roberto DeVicenzo of Spain had a 69 and was third at 139, while Billy Carper, Gay Brewer, Charlie Owens and former NFL quarterback John Brodie were next at 140. Casper had a 72, while Brewer shot a 67, Owens had a 72 and Brodie posted a 68.

Player said his round could have been better.

"The greens were very bumpy," said the 51-year-old Player, referring to the 6,475-year Meadow Brook Club course, "and I missed a lot of sure putts."

"On the first and sixth holes, I missed from two and one-half feet, and on the 12th I blew a seven-footer and on the 14th a six-footer"

But Player wouldn't say that he would have matched Moody if the greens had been smoother.

"It would be unfair to say that," answered Player, who won his first PGA Senior Tour title in last week's Mazda Senior Tournament Players Championship at Ponte Vedra, Fla.

"I probably would be happy I made two of those four putts, but I have to say I played far better today than yesterday. I'm happy with my game. Yesterday I had the early morning tee-off, so everything evens out."

Player, who called Meadow Brook one of the best courses on the Senior Tour, had three birdies and one bogey.

"I'm swinging the club with better balance than I did as a young man," said Player, who was accompanied by his son, Wayne, also a pro player.

"I can still putt as well as I did as a young man and I almost have as much strength. That's because I work out in the gymansium. Nobody is old at 50 if they look after their body.

"The only difference I find is in my eyes. I have to use contact lenses, and sometimes they can cause problems, especially following the flight of the ball."

First-prize in the 72-hole tournament, which is not sanctioned by the PGA, is worth $100,000.

Non-winner owns early Keystone lead

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Ok-Hee Ku of South Korea, a non-winner in her two seasons on the LPGA Tour, shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take the first-round lead at the $300,000 Lady Keystone Open.

Ku had six birdies and one bogey on the 6,438-yard West Course of the Hershey Country Club and held a one-stroke lead over Sally Little, who birdied three of the final four holes on her way to a 68.

Muffin Spencer-Devlin, Cathy Gerring, Lenore Muraoka, Judy Sams and Marta Figueras Dotti were tied for third at 69.

Japan's Ayako Okamoto, third on the LPGA money list, was at 70 along with Cathy Morse, Beth Solomon, Missie McGeorge and Kris Monaghan.

Betsy King, the leading money-winner on the tour with $302,806, withdrew from the tournament Friday morning after a brief appearance on the practice tee.

King tested the left ankle she sprained earlier in the week and decided she could not make a full turn without pain.

Two-time defending champion Juli Inkster ended the first round well back in the pack with a 75. Veteran Hollis Stacy was 4-under-par after nine holes, finished with a 7-over 79.

In all, 21 of the top 25 money winners are entered in the race for the $45,000 first prize in the 54-hole tournament.

Ku, who speaks no English, said through an interpreter that Friday's performance was her best round in this country.

Ku started on the back nine and had three straight birdies at 15-16-17, before taking a bogey on the 401-yard 18th when she missed the green with her second shot.

On the front side, Ku rolled in birdie putts of three and six feet on the fourth and fifth holes. She added another six-foot birdie putt at seven and had to scramble for a par on the final hole.

MEN'S WT

"The course was not that hard, at least it's not when you're hitting that good," said Pearson. "When you are putting from 15 feet, you are bound to make some."

Later when someone asked what kind of round he had, Pearson allowed, "I think I made the cut."

BOB ESTES, Abilene, who reached the finals two years ago, shot his second 71 for a 142 to tie with Doug Hopton-Jones. And Steve Whiteside, who faced Estes in that final at RHCC, shot a 69 and is another stroke back. That's about where they were after two rounds two years ago.

"I birdied two, bogeyed five and then birdied 16 and 18," said Whiteside. "It seemed like I two-putted everything today. I was so close on 16, it was practically a tap-in."

On the shape of the course, Whiteside said, "It's tough. You've got to drive everything in the fairway."

Bunched with Whiteside at 143 were Jeff Cranford, Odessa, after a 71, and Mickey Scott, San Angelo, who carded a 70.

THE DAY'S second low round was turned in by James Bischof, Amarillo, who made the turn at one over and then three-putted 10 before reeling off five birdies.

"The course played a lot better today than Thursday. How it played is hard to say when you hit everything right at the pin."

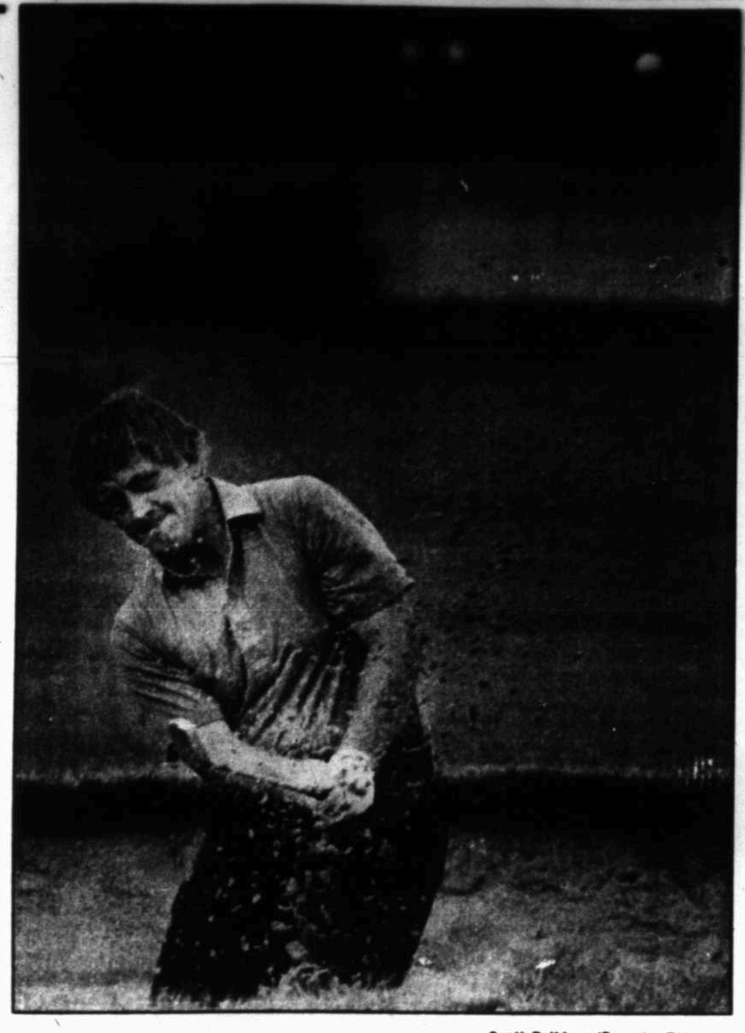

Bischof shot a 77 the first day and is alone at 145.

For Hopton-Jones, the 18th hole made his day, an eagle on the par five for a 69—142 to tie with Estes.

IN OTHER flight action, John Brinker, Odessa, leads the first with a net 66 while Kirby Elenburg, Jacksboro, and Brinker are the gross leaders with 73.

In the Junior-Senior flight, Tom Morris, Abilene, led by two over Fred Lawson, MCC, with a 67 while the gross leaders were Tommy Wilson, Lubbock; Al Boudreaux, and Lazar Kirven, Mission, all at 76.

Bus Hubbard, MCC, is the net leader in the Senior division with a 64, one better than Ralph Green, Green Tree. Hubbard also posted the low gross score, 72, for a stroke edge over Norman Ingebrigtsen, Fort Worth.

Brouhard, late of the Japanese League Yakult Swallows, has played his final game with the Angels. The former Milwaukee Brewer has been promoted to the Pacific Coast League and will join the Edmonton Trappers today in Albuquerque.

Tonight, the Angels will throw left-hander Mike Romanovsky, 5-5, while El Paso counters with righty Jim Hunter, 0-1.

Gladiators edge Commandos, 48-46

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Hohansee tossed three touchdowns and passed for 364 yards Friday night as the Pittsburgh Gladiators defeated the Washington Commandos 48-46 in the world debut of "arena football," a miniaturized, indoor version of football.

The game attracted 12,117 fans to Pittsburgh's Civic Arena, which has a capacity for 15,052. Officials said nearly 10,000 tickets were sold in advance.

Hohansee, 26, formerly of the University of Minnesota, completed 25 of 39 passes, including 28-yard, 36-yard and 42-yard touchdown passes to Russell Hairston, 23, a wide receiver from the University of Kentucky.

The new game met with general approval from the Pittsburgh crowd, which cheered the Gladiators and booed their Washington opposition with the passion that accompanies a Pittsburgh Steelers game in the National Football League.

James F. Foster, president of the new Arena Football League, said he was pleased with the turnout at the game, the first regular contest of the fledgling league.

"The fans are really into this game," Foster said. "It just doesn't let up. I'm a little amazed myself."

There was almost continuous passing and little running in the game, which was completed in two hours and 45 minutes, slightly shorter than an NFL game.

The second game of the new four-team Arena Football League is scheduled for Saturday night between the Denver Dynamite and the Chicago Bruisers at the Rosemont Horizon in Rosemont, Ill.

Astros send Garner to L.A.

Houston fills opening with Lopes

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros traded third baseman Phil Garner to the Los Angeles Dodgers on Friday for a player to be named later, making room on the roster for utility man Davey Lopes.

It was a short trip for Garner to join his new club. He walked from the Astros locker room to the visitor's locker room at the Astrodome where he was greeted by his new teammates.

"Phil Garner's prayers have been answered," Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda shouted as Garner fielded a telephone call. "All former Dodger haters become Dodger lovers after they get here."

Garner, who had anticipated being traded this season, said the move would be tougher on his family.

"The ball player will make the move but it's tough on my family," Garner said. "My only regret in leaving is that we didn't go all the way last year. We were so close."

Lasorda welcomed a player of Garner's experience.

"We've got a lot of young guys on this club and they watch guys like that," Lasorda said. "He'll be a big help."

Garner, 38, who came to Houston from Pittsburgh in August 1981, hit .223 in 43 games for the Astros this season with three home runs and 15 RBI.

"We want to thank Phil for a job well done for the Astros," said Dick Wagner, Astros president and general manager. "He has had a number of fine years with the club and has played a part in the success of the club."

A plan to fill the opening on the Astros roster is for the club to activate Lopes, Astros spokesman Chuck Pool said.

Lopes has missed all but two of the club's 65 games with a strained right elbow.

He hit .643, going 9-for-14, from June 9-12 on a rehabiliation assignment with the Astros' minor league team in Tucson, Ariz.

His only appearances with the Astros in 1987 were as a pinch hitter against the Dodgers on April 8, and as a pinch runner against the Expos on April 10, Pool said.

To make room for Garner on their roster, the Dodgers placed shortstop Mariano Duncan on the 15-day supplemental disabled list.

Duncan suffered a knee laceration that required three stitches in Thursday night's 6-4, 11-inning Los Angeles victory over Houston.

Jackson pitches Royals to 2-0 victory over Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Danny Jackson pitched four-hitter and Danny Tartabull and Frank White hit run-scoring singles, leading the Kansas City Royals to their third straight victory, 2-0 over the California Angels.

Jackson, 3-9, snapped a personal three-game losing streak, walking four and striking out three for his third complete game.

Jackson, who last week changed his uniform number and locker in hopes of changing his luck, won his first game since May 26 at Chicago. Brian Downing drew three of the four walks off Jackson.

The Royals took a 1-0 lead in the first. Kevin Seitzer singled with one out and took second on a wild pitch by Don Sutton, 3-8. Tartabull followed with a single to left.

George Brett doubled with one out in the third, moved to third on the second of Tartabull's three singles and scored on White's hit.

Jackson worked out a jam in the sixth when Downing and Dick Schofield led off with consecutive singles. Doug DeCinces and George Hendrick struck out and Downing was thrown out at third trying to steal as Hendrick struck out.

Sutton allowed nine hits and struck out a season-high seven batters in six innings. Gary Lucas pitched the final three innings.

Blue Jays 15, Brewers 6

TORONTO — Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run triple and Tony Fernandez hit a two-run single to highlight a nine-run seventh inning to lift Toronto to a come-from-behind victory over Milwaukee.

Toronto broke a 6-6 tie in the seventh off reliever Mark Clear, who started the inning. Fernandez and Moseby walked to lead off and two outs later, Clear walked Cecil Fielder and Kelly Gruber to make it 7-6.

Tigers 5, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Alan Trammell, who earlier had one of three Detroit homers, hit a run-scoring grounder in the eighth inning to lift the Tigers to a victory over Baltimore the Orioles' fifth consecutive defeat.

It was the Tigers' sixth victory in their last seven games and the Orioles' 19th loss in their last 21.

Jack Morris, 10-2, won his ninth straight and joined Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen as the only 10-game winners in the major leagues. Saberhagen is 12-1. Morris allowed six hits, including a solo homer by Fred Lynn, and struck out six — all in the first four innings. Willie Hernandez pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Mariners 7, Indians 4

CLEVELAND — Rey Quinones drove in three runs with a homer and a bases-loaded single and Mark Langston pitched a seven-hitter to pace Seattle past Cleveland.

The victory extended the Mariners' winning streak to a season-high five games. Seattle had lost five straight in Cleveland Stadium.

Langston, 8-6, struck out seven and walked two for his seventh complete game. The seven strikeouts increased Langston's major league leading total to 123.

Cleveland starter Phil Niekro, 5-6, who had won his previous three decisions, lasted just four innings, allowing five runs, six hits and five walks.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 5

BOSTON — Mike Pagliarulo's lead off home run sparked a five-run 13th inning, pacing New York to a 10-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox and extending the Yankees' winning streak to five games.

Pagliarulo's ninth homer came off Joe Sambito, 1-2, who entered in the 10th inning.

After Pagliarulo's homer, Sambito got Mark Salas to fly out but Bobby Meacham singled and Wayne Tolleson walked. Wes Gardner relieved Sambito and walked Willie Randolph to load the bases before Tom Bolton gave up a two-run double to Dan Pasqua and a two-run single to Gary Ward.

The Yankees got a season-high 19 hits off five Boston pitchers.

Charles Hudson, 7-2, who was scheduled to start Sunday's game against Boston, pitched the final three innings for his first victory since May 15. He was the sixth Yankees pitcher.

Boston took a 5-3 lead with two outs in the eighth inning on Ed Romero's two-run pinch single. Romero's bases-loaded single off Dave Righetti capped a three-run eighth inning that also featured an RBI single by Dwight Evans.

New York tied the game in the ninth on Pasqua's one-out, pinch two-run homer, his eighth, after Randolph had doubled.

Ward led off the eighth inning with his ninth homer to center field, giving the Yankees a 3-2 lead.

Twins 7, White Sox 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Tim Laudner hit a home run on the first pitch in the ninth inning to give Minnesota a victory over Chicago for the White Sox' fifth straight loss.

It was Chicago's 16th loss in its last 19 games.

Laudner's homer, his seventh of the year, came off Chicago reliever Jim Winn, 2-3. Jeff Reardon, 4-4, earned the victory after entering with one out in the eighth.

Chicago tied the score 6-6 with an unearned run in the eighth. Keith Atherton walked Gary Redus, who stole second. Redus went to third when no one covered second base as catcher Laudner's throw went into center field. Ozzie Guillen followed with a sacrifice fly off Reardon.

Minnesota had taken a 6-5 lead in the sixth inning when Randy Bush drove in two runs with a pinch single.

NL

After Candaele singled up the middle to break a 6-6 tie, Mitch Webster walked to load the bases and Law scored on Raines' single over the third-base bag.

It was Montreal's third victory in as many games aginst St. Louis this year. Winning pitcher Bob McClure, 4-1, worked two scorfeless innings and Lary Sorensen pitched the bottom of the 11th for his first save. St. Louis got an unearned run in the 11th on a double error by shortstop Hubie Brooks and left fielder Raines.

Trailing 6-1, the Cardinals scored five times in the bottom of the eighth on three hits, three walks and an error. Jose Oquendo and Vince Coleman walked against Montreal reliever Andy McGaffigan and Ozzie Smith's RBI single brought on Tim Burke.

Tommy Herr's single made it 6-3 and, after Jack Clark struck out, Montreal shortstop Hubie Brooks kept the rally alive when he dropped a throw from second baseman Candaele on an attempted forceout, allowing Smith to score. Terry Pendleton walked to load the bases and pinch hitter's Rod Booker's two-run single tied the score.

Montreal scored twice with the aid of an error in the first inning. Candaele singled and went to third on Webster's single. When third baseman Pendleton took the throw from the outfield and threw high to second trying to get Webster, Candaele scored.

Webster eventually scored on Tim Wallach's infield hit off Danny Cox and Brooks singled a run home in the sixth after Raines singled and stole second.

St. Louis scored off Jeff Fischer, a 23-year-old right-hander making his major-league debut, in the second on a walk to Clark, singles by Willie McGee and Pendleton and Curt Ford's sacrifice fly before Tony Pena grounded into an inning-ending double play.

Pendleton lined into a double play with runners at first and third in the fourth inning and Jeff Parrett bailed Fischer out of a two-on, one-out jam in the sixth.

The Expos scored twice in the seventh on singles by Galarraga and Jeff Reed, pinch hitter's Wallace Johnson's foul sacrifice fly and an RBI single by Candaele. They made it 6-1 in the top of the eighth when Raines singled, again stole second and scored on Brooks' second RBI single.

Giants 7, Padres 6

SAN DIEGO — Will Clark, who struck out in his three previous atbats, doubled home two runs to cap a four-run eighth inning as the San Francisco Giants rallied from a five-run deficit and defeated the San Diego Padres.

Two streaks came to an end — the Padres had won six in a row and the Giants had dropped six straight.

The Giants entered the eighth trailing 5-3 but Jeffrey Leonard hit a one-out single off reliever Lance McCullers, 3-4, and scored on Candy Maldonado's double. Chili Davis doubled to tie the game 5-5 and, after Bob Brenly, Craig Leffert relieved McCullers.

Clark doubled to the center-field wall, making a winner of San Francisco reliever Jeff Robinson, 4-5. Scott Garrelts worked the final two innings for his eighth save. He allowed a run in the ninth on Tony Gwynn's triple and a grounder by Carmelo Martinez.

San Diego starter Dave ravecky had a three-hit shutout through six innings.

Lanier upset by Astros' lack of decent bullpen

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros Manager Hal Lanier, stung by a 6-4 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers, says something has to be done about his team's bullpen.

"I don't know how long people (in the front office) expect us to go down here without making a move," Lanier said after Astros Ron Mathis gave up the winning runs in the 11th inning Thursday night in the Astrodome.

"I mean making a move in the bullpen," Lanier told the Houston Chronicle. "I see teams below us in the standings with better bullpens than we have. I'm not going to sit here night after night without saying something."

Lanier, who believes he has only two relievers he can rely on in Dave Smith and Larry Andersen, said, "I'm not trying to knock our players, but that's the way it is."

"Like I keep saying, we have to do something either inside the organization or outside it by way of a trade," he said.

The Astros led 3-0 Thursday after three innings on a wild pitch by Dodgers starter Bob Welch in the first inning and a two-run homer by Glenn Davis in the third.

Los Angeles got solo home runs from John Shelby and Mike Marshall off starter Bob Knepper in the fourth and tied it at 3-3 in the sixth on Shelby's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers' Steve Sax got four hits, including the game-winning two-run single in the 11th inning. His 10th-inning double scored Dave Anderson, ending Astros relief pitcher Dave Smith's string of 27 2-3 innings without yielding an earned run.

Sukova eliminates Evert in three tough sets

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia rallied from 2-5 in the final set and upset American Chris Evert 4-6, 6-4, 8-6 today, reaching the final of the $200,000r Pilkington Glass women's grass court tennis championships for the third consecutive year.

Sukova, seeded third, will meet the winner of the other semifinal between defending champion Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver. Their match was suspended because of bad lighting and rain, with Navratilova leading 4-3 in the first set.

It will be resumed Saturday when organizers also hope to stage the final.

Sukova, who beat Evert in their last meeting in 1986 U.S. Open, won in 2 hours 25 minutes.

The erratic Czechoslovak combined some wild serving — 16 doublefaults — with stunningly effective volleying in ousting the No. 2 seed. Evert lost three consecutive games from 5-2 in the final set.

After Sukova's triumph, Shriver was hoping for another upset, against the world's No. 1 player, who also is her doubles partner.

Shriver, now 25, reached the final of the U.S. Open in 1978 at 16. Despite several semifinal appearances at Grand Slam events, she has failed since even to match that.

"If I finish my career and I haven't won a Grand Slam tournament, I am not going to look back with remorse and think 'Why didn't it happen to me?'

"It's not that I haven't tried," Shriver said. "I need or a break or two and I will win a big tournament.

"When you're on the borderline you just need a little bit of help," she said.

Entering today's match, Shriver pointed out she had won nine matches in as many days, all on grass. Last Sunday, she won the Edgbaston Cup at Birmingham, an event not contested by anyone else in the world's top ten.

Shriver acknowledged that Navratilova, with whom she has won 16 Grand Slam doubles titles, was the world's most difficult opponent on grass.

Navratilova has won 68 matches in a row on English grass and was gunning for her sixth consecutive titles at both Eastbourne and Wimbledon.

Thursday's play saw the leading players in action twice as organizers staged the third round and quarterfinals to catch up on a day lost to rain.

Shriver beat Australian No. 14 seed Elizabeth Smylie 6-4, 6-1, then No. 5 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina 6-3, 6-3.

Navratilova beat No. 12 seed Robin White of the U.S. 6-4, 6-3, then ousted unseeded French player Isabelle Demongeot 7-5, 6-3 on an outside court.

Navratilova found herself playing in front of some 200 spectators, mostly standing, because organizers had to constantly switch matches to complete the two rounds.

LSU hires Henry

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Pat Henry, who coached Blinn College of Texas to the national junior college indoor and outdoor championships last season, was introduced Friday as the new head track and field coach at Louisiana State.

Bosox put Buckner on 15-day DL

BOSTON (AP) — First baseman Bill Buckner, bothered by a hip injury, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Friday by the Boston Red Sox.

To replace Buckner, the Red Sox promoted outfielder-first baseman Todd Benzinger from Pawtucket of the International League.

Buckner's move is retroactive to June 10, meaning he will be eligible to be reactivated next Thursday.

On June 8, Buckner suffered a bruised right hip when he fielded a grounder by Baltimore's Jim Dwyer and Dwyer collided with him along the first-base line. Buckner later felt pain in the hip bone area, which he said affected him more than the bruise.

Buckner missed eight games before being put on the disabled list. He is batting .255 but was hitting .324 in the nine games before being hurt.

Buckner hasn't been on a disabled list since July 1978, when he was with the Chicago Cubs.

Benzinger was hitting .320 with 13 home runs and 49 runs batted in.

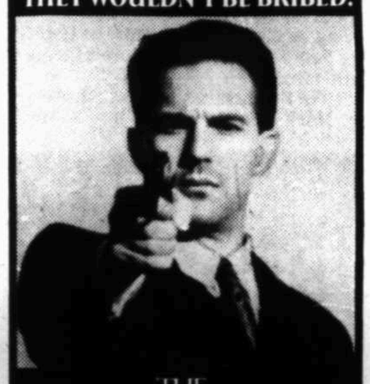

Longshot pays 50-1 at Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. - Dance Hall Maskeo, a 50-1 longshot ridden by Jimmie Hunt, surprised a crowd of 2,600 fans on Friday at Ruidoso Downs when the gelding turned in the fastest clocking in eliminations for the $700,000 Rainbow Futurity.

The $11,000 Master Sails Handicap tops Saturday's action at the mountain course as 1985 Riley Allison Futurity winner Senator Billy B. totes high weight against Dash Te, the horse who recently captured the Fine Loom Handicap. The first field breaks from the gates at 1 p.m.

Trainer Johnie Goodman saddled Dance Hall Maskeo to a whisker win in Friday's fifth race - the 29th division of the Rainbow Futurity elimination trials.

Reds moving Parker to first base

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Cincinnati Reds plan to soon shift Dave Parker to first base, possibly as quickly as this weekend. The idea is to make room for both Kal Daniels and Tracy Jones in the outfield. The two have been platooning in left field so far, and have combined for 22 home runs. Manager Pete Rose would like to have the bats of Parker, Daniels, Jones and center fielder Eric Davis in the same lineup.

Dwight Gooden, who seems to get as much enjoyment out of batting as pitching, will start working out as a left-handed batter. Gooden swung from the left side during his high school days, but the New York Mets made him switch to the right side in order to protect his right arm from being hit by a pitch. The Mets recently gave Gooden permission to start batting left-handed. ... Jose Guzman became the seventh pitcher in Texas history to take a no-hitter into the eighth inning. He did it this week in Anaheim, where four Rangers pitchers have gone that far. Only two Texas pitchers have finished their no-hitters, Jim Bibby in 1973 at Oakland and Bert Blyleven in 1977 at Anaheim.

Danny Jackson has changed his number in hopes of changing his numbers. Jackson began the season 2-9 for the Kansas City Royals, and gave up 15 earned runs in his last 15 2-3 innings. Jackson has switched his jersey from No. 25 to No. 15. ... Homer-prone Ken Dixon is allowing one home run per every 4.35 hits he yields. The Baltimore right-hander, who was yanked from the Orioles rotation, is giving up an average of nearly 11 hits and 2½ homers per nine innings.

Elsewhere: Ken Griffey Jr., the No. 1 pick in the amateur draft this month and the son of the Atlanta Braves outfielder, got his first professional hit this week. The 17-year-old, who made the jump from high school to Class A Bellingham (Wash.), made his first hit a three-run homer. ... Jim Traber, who provided home-run power as a replacement for injured Eddie Murray last summer, is batting .243 with seven homers and 32 RBI for Baltimore's Class AAA Rochester affiliate in the International League ... Bob Tewksbury might be earning himself another shot at the New York Yankees' rotation. He is 6-1 with a 2.53 ERA at Triple-A Columbus. Tewksbury could replace Charles Hudson, who got off to a 6-0 start but has pitched poorly since then. ... The Milwaukee Brewers, who seem to have a talent for developing first baseman-designated hitters, could have another one in Joey Meyer. The 25-year-old slugger is leading the Class AAA American Association with 24 homers and 75 RBI in 230 at-bats for Denver. He is also batting .309. Meyer has averaged 30 home runs and 108 RBI in his first three pro seasons.

Ron Karkovice won the starting job as the Chicago White Sox catcher with his defense, not his offense. He began the season going 5-for-75. Among the National League pitchers swinging better bats are: Bob Forsch (12-for-27), Orel Hershiser (10-for-40), Shane Rawley (9-for-35), Bob Kipper (7-for-20), Bill Gullickson (7-for-31) and Fernando Valenzuela (7-for-38). ... All 15 of Kal Daniels' home runs this season have been solo homers.

A change in songs seems to have the Yankees playing a different tune at home lately. The Yankees started off the season 10-0 at home, and then split their next 16 games at Yankee Stadium. In the last week, the team has been playing "America, The Beautiful" instead of the Star-Spangled Banner before the game and Liza Minnell's version of "New York, New York" rather than Frank Sinatra's after the game.

Baseball Notes

Alford confident he'll quite doubters in NBA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Steve Alford is confident he'll surprise skeptics when he plays in the NBA.

"I've always been deceptive in everything," Alford said Friday at a news conference where it was announced he has signed a 3-year contract to represent Converse basketball shoes. "I'm a little quicker than what everybody says I am, and I'm a little stronger than everybody thinks I am."

Alford, a two-time All-America guard who led Indiana University to the NCAA basketball championship in March, said he isn't worried about who will select him in Monday's NBA draft.

"I don't have any control over it. There's no reason to worry about it. I've spent so much time worrying about and trying to see where I would go and get headaches over it," he said. "I'd like to stay close to home, but if that doesn't work out I'll be happy whereever I go."

The Indiana Pacers have the 11th pick Monday, but club officials have indicated they'll likely take someone other that Alford — although public sentiment favors selecting the former Indiana star.

"I'm just going to work my tail off and do what I've always done in the past, and that is give 100 percent of everything I've got and see where that takes me," he said.

He said comments by those who think he's too slow, can't jump or can't contribute to an NBA club don't bother him.

Rangers send Meridith to Tigers

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers assigned relief pitcher Ron Meridith's contract to the Detroit Tigers after he refused to report to the Rangers' minor-league affiliate in Oklahoma City, team officials said.

"Ron felt that a move to another organization would be in his best interest," Rangers vice president and general manager Tom Grieve said.

The Rangers also said Friday they have signed two of their picks from the June amateur free-agent draft.

Agreeing to terms were the team's second-round pick, pitcher Barry Manuel of Louisiana State, and third-round pick Scott Coolbaugh, a third baseman from the University of Texas.

Manuel has been assigned to the Port Charlotte, Fla., rookie team of the Gulf Coast Leage. Coolbaugh will play for the Rangers' Port Charlotte team in the Class A Florida State League, the club said.

Meridith, a 30-year-old left-hander who started the season in Oklahoma City, was assigned to the Tigers' International League affiliate at Toledo, Ohio. With a 5-2 record in his major league career, he was assigned outright to the Tigers with no compensation, Grieve said.

Texas also has acquired catcher Kurt Beamesderfer from the Baltimore Orioles.

UT reprimands Dabbs

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas assistant athletic director Ken Dabbs will be given a letter of reprimand by the school, says university President William Cunningham.

Cunningham said the reprimand is being issued even though the NCAA and UT dropped a charge of ethical misconduct against Dabbs.

Cunningham also said "there will not be" any further punitive action.

Greyhound agrees to buy Trailways

Fred Currey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. announced agreement Friday to buy Trailways Corp. for $80 million in a deal that, if approved by the government, would make it the country's only national intercity bus company.

Greyhound Chairman Fred Currey said his company would continue to serve the cities and towns now served exclusively by Trailways, its much smaller competitor, and in some cases increase the frequency of service.

"Without intervention, the collapse of Trailways is imminent," Currey told a news conference. He predicted quick approval of the deal by the Interstate Commerce Commission despite possible concerns about the merger's effect on competition.

Currey rejected as "nonsense" suggestions that the deal might spell the end to competition in the bus industry. He argued that the industry's chief competitors remain the private automobile as well as Amtrak and airlines offering discounted tickets.

"The Greyhound acquisition of Trailways will guarantee continuance of bus service to the cities and towns served by Trailways. It will save jobs and it will improve bus service," said Currey, who headed Trailways Corp. from 1975-79.

The agreement to buy Trailways came three months after a Dallas investment group headed by Currey purchased Greyhound Lines Inc., from its Phoenix-based parent, Greyhound Corp., for $350 million. Since then, the new management team has cut fares and sought to expand service.

GREYHOUND, THE country's largest bus company, operates in the 48 contiguous states. Trailways serves 38 states, with its greatest concentration across the South. In 17 states Trailways provides the only bus service to some communities.

Under the agreement, Greyhound will pay $80 million to buy 450 of Trailways' 1,200 buses, some of its terminals and garages and undisclosed other assets, according to Currey. Some of the remaining Trailways buses will be operated under leasing agreements.

The deal also includes purchase of three Trailways subsidiaries: Eagle International Inc., a bus manufacturing company in Brownsville, Texas; Trailways Food Service Inc., which operates restaurants in its terminals; and Trailways Commuter Transit Inc., which operates more than 300 commuter and transit buses in Texas.

The purchase involves only Trailways Corp., and does not affect dozens of local or regional bus companies that have used the Trailways name but are not part of the Dallas-based corporation.

Currey did not rule out the possibility of some work force reductions as a result of the merger, but he said the cutbacks are not expected to include drivers, middle managers or supervisors, all of whom will be in demand. Greyhound has about 8,500 employees and Trailways 4,000.

Greyhound after the merger plans to continue to operate Trailways buses under the Trailways name because of its widespread recognition especially across much of the South, Currey said. "You would see a terminal that would be both a Trailways and a Greyhound terminal," he said.

SINCE BUYING Greyhound in March, Currey has pledged himself to improving and expanding bus service. Bus ridership has declined by 48 percent since 1980 and in recent years Greyhound has abandoned about 2,000 communities.

Currey said Greyhound plans to withdraw all pending applications for abandonment of service on file by Trailways and plans to begin van service to many small communities that have lost bus service.

In recent years, Greyhound has cut the number of communities it served from 14,000 to 12,000 and Trailways has abandoned all service in seven states and much of its service in three other states.

According to Greyhound, Trailways lost nearly $23 million during the last two years. Currey said that Greyhound currently is making a profit.

Currey, urging quick action by the Interstate Commerce Commission, said that without intervention Trailways is expected to be forced out of business after the summer's peak travel season.

"If that happens, public transportation will be disrupted in parts of 17 states where Trailways has the only bus service to some communities and several thousand people will be out of work," he said.

"We had two choices. To sit back and wait for Trailways to go bankrupt or to step in and save as many jobs and as much service as possible."

TRAILWAYS IN recent years has struggled to keep operating. Four years ago the privately held company sought to sell stock to the public, but was unable to attract investors, it also failed to attract union support for a employee stock ownership plan to attract a buyer last year.

Both Greyhound and Trailways have been hurt by the decline in bus passengers.

The percentage of intercity travelers going by bus has been declining for more than 30 years, and amounted to only 1.3 percent of such travel in 1986, according to figures provided by Greyhound. Most of that is by the two companies, although there are several large regional carriers and scores of independent lines that serve as feeders from rural communities.

New technologies make telescopic 'eyes' shine

By KEAY DAVIDSON
Hearst News Service

Humanity's new "eyes" on the sky are becoming realities after years of dreaming and planning: telescopes that change their shape, that roll on wheels and train tracks, that use gigantic mirrors or numerous mirrors rather than one.

The 700-ton dome of the world's biggest telescope is expected to be erected by year's end atop 14,000-foot Mauna Kea, the extinct volcano on the island of Hawaii. The 33 foot wide Keck Telescope should open by the early 1990s and enjoy a front-row view of the cosmos, undimmed by smog and city lights.

Meanwhile, engineers have begun assembling the delicate devices that will allow the Keck Telescope's 36 computer-controlled mirrors to "march" together like one huge mirror — a mirror that can detect light that left distant stars 10 billion years ago.

Around the world, a whole new generation of telescopes is taking shape. Astronomers in California, Texas, Pennsylvania, France, Japan and elsewhere are designing telescopes that make the 200-inch Palomar Observatory in California's San Diego County look as unimaginative as opera glasses.

The Keck Telescope is one of the most glamorous; its 36 mirrors will be as powerful as a single mirror almost twice as wide as Palomar. It's a joint project of the University of California and the California Institute of Technology, largely funded ($70 million for construction alone) by the W.M. Keck Foundation.

But the Keck Telescope's heyday as the world's biggest telescope might be short-lived. The National Science Foundation is planning to build another astronomical titan atop Mauna Kea in the 1990s — the National New Technology Telescope. Plans call for the NNTT to have four separate giant mirrors that will combine their light-gathering capacity and, hence, be as powerful as a single 600-inch mirror.

The first batch of precision supports to hold together the 36 mirror segments of the Keck astronomical mirror are being built at the University of California's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

The support system consists of devices called whiffletrees and radial support posts, and "connects the mirror segments to the telescope structure. It has the dual task of tightly maintaining the 18-ton mirror array as the telescope moves and gently cradling the mirror segments so they feel no distorting forces, which would ruin their images," Keck Telescope project spokesperson John R. Gustafson said.

The mirror segments will be "aligned to an accuracy of one millionth of an inch" and must correct for changes induced by temperature shifts and wind pressure, among other factors, Gustafson said.

"The mirror segments are so thin, relative to their size (3 inches thick, 6 feet wide) and their surfaces so precise that even pressure from a finger could create enough distortion to affect an astronomical image," he said.

A total of 108 whiffletrees are needed. LBL engineers began mass-producing them recently. When completed, the devices are shipped to Itek Optical Systems in Massachusetts, where they are attached to the backs of the hexagonal mirrors.

The Keck Telescope is a highly sophisticated descendant of the world's first successful multiple-mirror telescope, built in 1979 in Amado, Ariz. The MMT's mirrors have light-gathering capacity equivalent to a single 176-inch mirror, but aren't computer-controlled as the Keck mirrors will be.

The world's biggest existing telescope mirror — a 236-incher in the Soviet Union — is considered to be a bit of a dud, at least by Western astronomers. It's so big that gravity distorts the mirror, thereby warping astronomical images, they say.

But giant mirrors still exert a powerful allure. Roger Angel of the University of Arizona has found a way to manufacture cheap, non-distorting mirrors hundreds of inches wide. His technique will be used to build the gigantic mirrors for the $125-plus million NNTT.

Meanwhile, the old MMT may be upgraded. Its four mirrors could be replaced with a single, 260-inch Angel mirror at a cost of $10 million.

Some other recent developments in the Brave New World of telescopes include:

— A "portable telescope" with wheels, which sees infrared light, was finished last month by Nobel Prize-winning physicist Charles Townes, best known for his laser research.

Chicago law ends reign of Checker Marathon

CHICAGO (AP) — A city law is forcing the end of a familiar silhouette from the streets of Chicago: the boxy, round-fendered Checker Marathon taxicab with the high roof, folding jump seats and lots of room.

There was a time, not too long ago, when nearly every taxi in the city was a Checker, but the last of the Checkers will be retired by the end of the year.

City law says no cabs more than 5 years old can be used for public transport, and the Checker Motors Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., built its last taxi in 1982.

"You can say that the dinosaur is finally growing extinct," Jeffrey Feldman, president of the Yellow Cab Co., said earlier this week. "Before 1982 we had a fleet of 2,166 cabs, the largest in the nation, and they all were Checkers, but we had to start phasing them out when they stopped building them."

Today, Yellow and the affiliated Checker Taxi Co. have fewer than 50 Checker Marathons in service. Their fleets consist mainly of Chevrolets. A number of smaller cab companies on the South Side still rely heavily on blue-painted Checkers, but they, too, must be retired before 1988.

The advantage of the Marathon, which was designed to be used as a taxicab, was roominess.

HIS DAY

Come Sunday, the world will pay homage to a very special fellow. He is the husband—the father—the breadwinner and the sturdy foundation of our community. We pause to do him honor. He may be gruff, and stern, and tanned of face, but he is Dad. Just get an x-ray of his heart if you really want to see something rare.

What strange, but wonderful people these fathers are. They are the world's easiest victims of love's attack. Just pour on a little attention, seasoned with about two parts of tenderness and give in very small doses . . . since he could never stand a big dose. Then just sit back and watch his big heart warm up. It will respond in true father fashion.

This Father's Day, won't you take him to God's House for an hour of worship?

LIFESCOPE

Having Financial Difficulties? Your Lifescope Speaks Prosperity!

It shall come to pass, if you diligently obey the voice of the Lord your God, to observe carefully all His commandments, that these blessings shall come upon you and overtake you. Blessed shall you be in the city, and blessed shall you be in the country. Blessed shall be the fruit of your body, the produce of your ground and the increase of your herds, the increase of your cattle and the offspring of your flocks. The Lord will command the blessing on you in your storehouses and in all to which you set your hand . . . The Lord will open to you His good treasure, the heavens to give the rain to your land in its season, and to bless all the work of your hand. You shall lend and not borrow.

Give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, will be poured into your lap. Whatever measure you use to give - large or small - will be used to measure what is given back to you.

The "Book" shall not depart from your mouth, but you shall meditate in it day and night, that you may observe to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then you will have good success.

Jesus said, "Therefore do not worry, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?' But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you."

My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus!

Taken from Deut. 28, Luke 6, Josh. 1, Matt. 6, Phil. 4.

RELIGION

By PAUL SHINOFF
Hearst News Service

JERUSALEM — On an exterior tier of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the old city rests a large wooden ladder, said to have been left inadvertently by workmen decades ago.

The church, on the spot where Jesus was believed to have been buried and resurrected, is shared by six Christian communities in a city annexed by Jewish Israel, but still claimed by Moslem Jordan. Some people would like to remove the forgotten tool, but in a city that is even more delicately balanced than the ladder, a step as simple as that could cause strife.

The now-stalled efforts to organize an international Middle East peace conference can be understood in the context of that worn ladder. The proposed United Nations-sponsored negotiations are stalemated by conflicting interests — within Israel, between the Arab states, and including the superpowers. There are a range of solutions and, for each party, advantages and risks.

The impasse coincides with the 20th anniversary of the 1967 Six-Day War, in which Israel overwhelmed its Arab neighbors and extended its control over Jerusalem, the West Bank, the Gaza Strip, the Sinai Peninsula and the Golan Heights. The war propelled Israel from a vulnerable David into the role of a regional Goliath, ending Arab plans to militarily destroy the Jewish state.

The proposed peace talks would formally ratify the undeclared peace between Israel and Jordan and address Palestinian claims of sovereignty in the West Bank, an issue on which Israel is split. The talks also would force the parties to address the realigned political realities of the Middle East. That would bring the Soviet Union into the talks, which raises problems for the United States.

Timing of the peace initiative was described as propitious by conference advocates. Parties were to meet before the United States entered its presidential election season, before any conclusion of the Iran-Iraq war, which keeps both those hardline states engaged and out of the way, while the Palestine Liberation Organization remained politically isolated and while moderates in both Israel and many Arab states held influence.

"There are too many players and too many differing interests," said Shai Feldman, one of Israel's senior military strategists. "But it is important for Israel to acknowledge it is ready to discuss territorial issues."

Israel is divided between those who view conflicts with the Arabs as a geographical accident and thus resolvable, and those who see the struggle as historical and nearly insoluble. What Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres of the left-leaning Labor Party calls an opportunity to resolve decades-old conflicts is said by Prime Minister Yitzak Shamir of the nationalist Likud Party to be a "monstrous" idea that would sacrifice the nation's security.

Peres argues that Israel would come to the proposed peace parley on excellent footing, with the big powers stepping aside to allow direct talks between the Jewish state and a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation. The Palestine Liberation Organization was barred unless it accepted United Nations' resolutions recognizing Israel and denouncing terrorism. Soviet and Chinese participation were to have been linked to the establishment of diplomatic relations and increased emigration of Russian Jews.

The Likud argues that the forum would not lead to a simple peace with Jordan, but would be a trap by which hostile nations would impose their will. Shamir contends that only direct negotiations with Jordan are acceptable to him. It appears, however, that the prime minister is unwilling to trade peace for territory in any forum.

A recent newspaper poll showed that 52 percent of Israelis were ready to give up some occupied territories, while 46 percent were unwilling to make any concessions. The sharp division of opinion underscores the difficulty of reaching the consensus necessary to decide such basic issues in Israel.

Peres' advisers believe he sabotaged his own effort. Official U.S. policy calls for the return of all lands seized during the 1967 war. But, Feldman said, "Peres misjudged U.S. support. He did not understand they would maintain neutrality in our domestic affairs."

While Israel remains locked in its internal political stalemate, the Arab world is in the midst of furious regional realignment. Relatively moderate Arab states have emerged, led by the pragmatic, Western-oriented regimes of Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Morocco and Kuwait, which accept Israel's presence. These moderates are more fearful of the Moslem fundamentalism of Iran, Syria and Libya than of the modern Jewish state.

The moderates are led by King Hussein of Jordan, the longest living monarch in the Middle East, who now wants peace to consolidate his position and guarantee his throne for future generations. The Hashemites, Hussein's family, are from Saudi Arabia, while the majority of his citizens are Palestinians. Hussein is worried that the West Bank Palestinians being forced into Jordan by Israeli pressure constitute a potential internal threat to his throne. He is seen as anxious to cut deals now.

Hussein has maintained a state of peace with Israel for some time, and the two states have developed a working community of interests. The king and the highest-ranking Israeli leaders have been meeting face to face. Hussein is also said to meet regularly with moderate West Bank Palestinians who can drive to the Jordanian capital of Amman in less than an hour.

While the Arab states are moving crablike toward the peace process, there is no indication whether moderate West Bank Palestinian leaders would join in talks without at least a nod to the PLO. Unlike Jordan, the PLO continues to reject the existence of the Jewish state.

Jews called to protest Waldheim

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — A Jewish fraternal group at its annual convention called on all Jews to refrain from visiting Austria and to boycott all products made there in protest of the presidency of Kurt Waldheim.

"By electing Waldheim, Austria has shown its identification with all that is beastly, all that is horrible in the world's history," said Ernest Zelig, president of Bnai Zion, based in New York City.

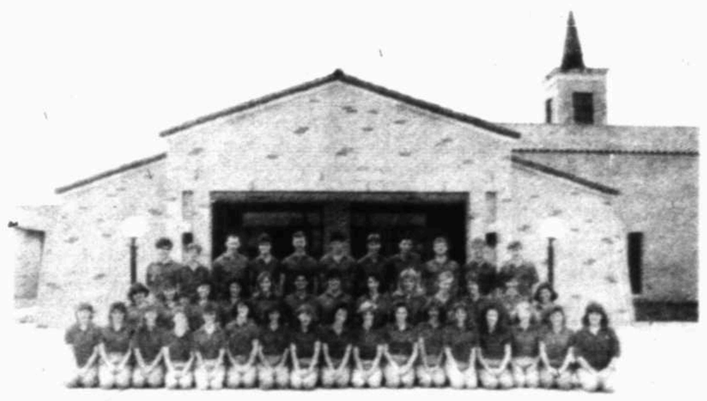

Waldheim, former secretary-general of the United Nations, was elected president of Austria last year in a campaign marked by allegations he aided in the persecution of Jews and partisans while serving as an officer in the German army in the Balkans in World War II.

PTL scandal should teach lesson

By JOE MURRAY

The mission that Mother Teresa is opening in Dallas won't have carpet or air conditioning. She urges that the staff of nuns have a more simple lifestyle to identify with the poor people whom they serve.

Tammy Faye and Jim Bakker no doubt would disagree, having spent some $4,000 of PTL funds for an air-conditioned doghouse. (You may or may not find fault with that kind of extravagance, but the dog evidently did. The Bakkers were of the opinion that he refused to sleep there because the hum of the air-conditioners kept him awake. More likely, it was his conscience, something that probably wouldn't have occurred to them.)

But I don't suppose it's reasonable to suggest, or hope, that Mother Teresa's example of practicing what you preach should become the standard of conduct for our various clergy — those who not only do good but do well.

Perhaps it's not such a problem in the small, community churches. But money is a temptation. A big bunch of money is a big bunch of temptation.

Moreover, those good Christians who give their money with the intention of helping the needy aren't always getting their money's worth.

I recently received a letter from a professor in a theological seminary who provided an insight into how funds are used in some of the large religious organizations. I'll not mention his name or the seminary. But I was most impressed by his objectivity, in that he was evaluating his own particular denomination.

To keep it in round figures, let's say the church has budgeted $100,000 under the heading of good works — missions, ministries and benevolence of all kinds, including housing for the elderly.

How much of that amount would you expect to go to administrative costs? I don't mean salaries and benefits for local staff, but those in the hierarchy? Maybe 50 percent doesn't surprise you, but it did me. Included are pensions, supplementary salary, insurance and hospitalization, $30,000, and other general administration funds, $20,000.

Further, when you add up all other mandated commitments, the total grows to $87,000, most all of which is going somewhere else other than where you live. (It was noted in the theologian's letter that payment or non-payment to these funds is often viewed as a reflection on the pastor by his peers and his highers-up.)

Let me stress that many of those commitments are obviously worthwhile projects — housing for the elderly, for instance. But of the $100,000, that worthwhile project would receive less than $800.

As for local and other charities, about one-eighth of the original budget, $13,000, is left over for good works at home.

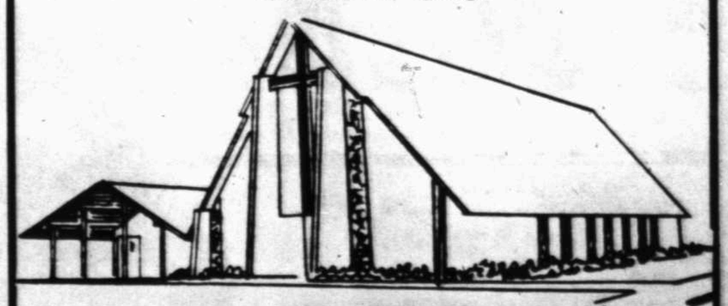

I won't say there's anything particularly wrong with splitting up the money that way. It all depends on where you want to place the emphasis.

Optimist International taking female members

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Optimist International announced Friday that the service organization has begun accepting women as members for the first time since it was founded in 1919.

A spokesman for the 160,000-member organization said the group's board approved the move a week ago, but held off the announcement to permit time to inform the presidents of the nearly 4,000 Optimist Clubs in the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

"Our legal counsel has advised us that the provision of our organization's constitution restricting membership to men no longer is enforceable, in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's May 4 ruling involving Rotary International," said Optimist International President Lester R. Craft, of Lake Waccamaw, N.C.

The organization, which has its international headquarters in St. Louis, celebrated its 68th anniversary Friday.

Teens' photos changed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A yearbook shapshot of two spiky-haired teen-agers has been covered with a photo deemed more appropriate by the principal.

"I see it as using judgment, not censorship," said Hamilton Junior High School Principal Dean Eslinger.

But Mark Hicks, 15, and Jason Curodeau, 14, said they're angry that a photo of students eating lunch was pasted over a candid shot of their mowhawk-adorned faces in 500 copies of the yearbook.

"I've had my hair like this since eighth grade, and no one at school ever hassled me about it or told me I couldn't wear it this way," Hicks said. "We do it because we like punk and death-rock music," he said.

Assistant Superintendent Ed Eveland agreed. "There's no way you can justify it. It was not the best judgment in the world. I'm obviously not too happy about it."

Eslinger said school officials have been worried that some students flash gang signs in pictures, and he's concerned about the school's image.

Street signs being stolen

ARITON, Ala. (AP) — Ariton worked 82 years to get street signs, and now someone is stealing them.

Officials are very upset, Mayor Jimmy Danner said Thursday.

Fifty or so signs had been in place since February, and three weeks ago they began disappearing. Ten are gone, "post and all," Danner said.

The city is offering a $50 reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction in the case.

The has only one police officer "and everybody knows where he is," and he discounted speculation that juveniles took the signs because they're 7 feet tall.

The 82-year-old city, population 863, never had been able to afford street signs until men's groups from several churches earlier this year held barbecues and other events to raised the $1,200 needed.

Gunman wounds four

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Gunshots wounded four people, including an 11-year-old boy, who were in a crowd gathered to discuss alternatives to gang violence, police said Friday.

The victims, all of whom were shot in the back, were watching a movie put on by Pomona Victory Outreach in Harrison Park when the assailant approached Thursday night and began firing without warning, police said, refusing to eleborate.

The most severely injured was Charles Wagner, 37, who underwent surgery and was in serious condition at Queen of the Valley Hospital on Friday, said hospital spokeswoman Sophia Lima.

Two other people were hospitalized; one was treated and released, police said.

FDA recalls condoms from three companies because product leaked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three American condom manufacturers have issued recalls of several lots of their contraceptive, anti-disease rubber products because they failed leak tests, the Food and Drug Administration announced Friday.

FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young said the recalls are a result of increased inspection and testing of condoms since the agency urged manufacturers to beef up quality control on April 7.

Because of increased testing, Young said, most of the suspected lots were intercepted before they reached the market.

At that time, the FDA asked condom producers to inform consumers that the rubber devices offer protection against sexually transmitted diseases, including acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Bill Grigg, an FDA spokesman, said about 100,000 condoms are involved in the domestic recall and that most of them have been recovered in transit or at distributors before they reached the public.

The affected lots failed industry standards which involve spot-testing of condoms. The FDA checks condoms by putting 10 ounces of water into samples and checking for leaks. The standard says no more than four out of 1,000 in a lot can leak to pass inspection, Grigg said.

On June 8, the FDA informed Schmid Laboratories of Little Falls, N.J., that a lot of its Sheik Fetherlite lubricated condoms with reservoir tips had to be recalled.

The company said this lot, No. 040687, was shipped to 22 accounts around the country, but that almost all of the condoms have been caught in transit or at wholesalers, according to the FDA.

The Circle Rubber Corp., of Newark, N.J., was informed by the FDA on June 11 that a lot of its condoms distributed under two labels also had to be recalled.

These condoms still are under recall and it is unknown if any have reached the public, Grigg said. The devices were sent to North Carolina to Adam & Eve Distributors and the Johnston County Health Department. Some also went to L'Appel Inc., of Northbrook, Ill., a vending machine operator.

The Circle products are Saxon brand lubricated ultrathin condoms and the L'Appel brand, a private label with instructions in English and Spanish. Condoms from this lot bear the code No. 7485 on the outer package and No. 487 on cellophane envelopes inside containing individual samples.

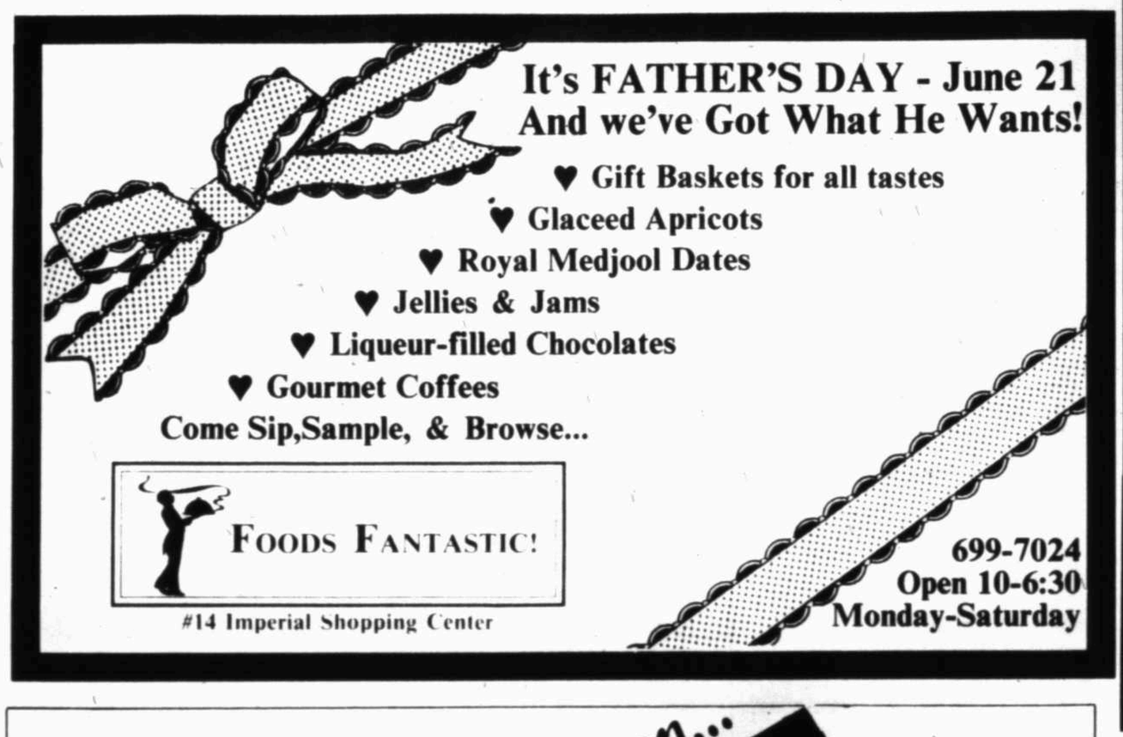

National Sanitary Labs., of Lincolnwood, Ill., also recalled several shipments following FDA notifications on May 8 and June 11. Most of these condoms, which the company estimated did not reach the market, went to a wholesaler in California, but some reached distributors in Indiana and Michigan.

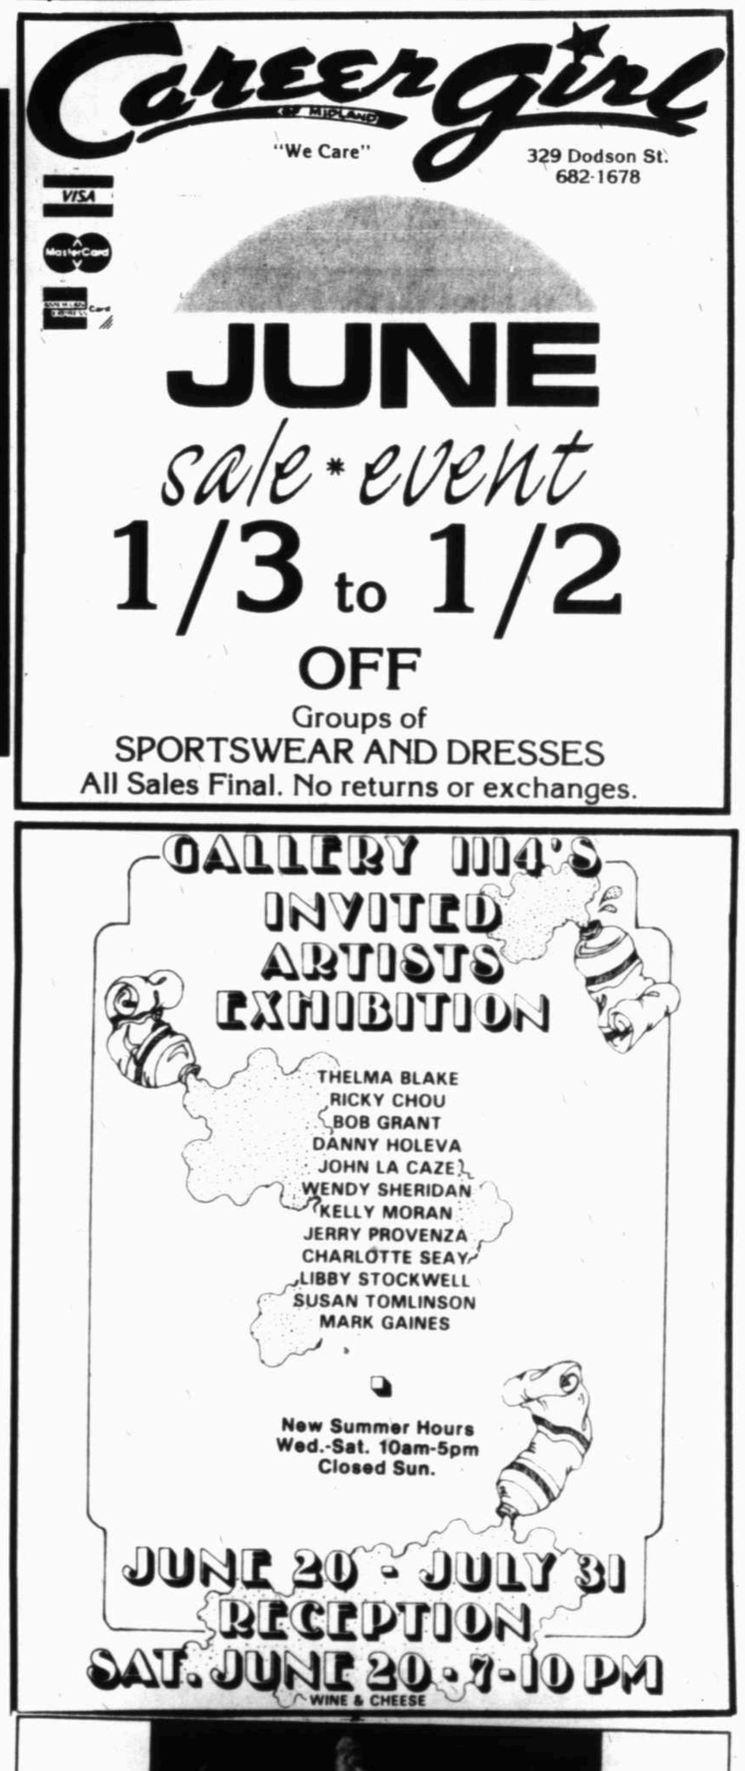

The recalled lots from National Sanitary included the Protex Contracept Plus brand, lot No. 1661966-S with expiration date 4-14-92 on the package. Also recalled were Protex Arouse brand Coral Tint ribbed and lubricated condoms, in boxes of 12, bearing the code MFG 4-28-87.

In addition, the company withdrew Protex Sunrise condoms labeled Blue Erotic, Emerald Haze and Golden Touch in boxes of 3 coded MFG 4-28-87, and boxes of 12 coded MFG 5-9-87.

The FDA also said that since April, it had detained 19 shipments of foreign-made condoms at the border because they failed inspections. Fifteen of these shipments came from Korea and four from Malaysia.

Limited amnesty to mark Russian Revolution anniversary

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union decreed Friday a limited prison amnesty to mark the 70th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, but it did not say how many people were involved or whether political prisoners were included.

The government decree, published in the government's daily Izvestia newspaper, appeared to cover more prisoners than previous releases.

But dissidents and a government spokesman said they didn't know how many people would benefit and were not yet certain to whom it applied.

The complex decree was issued by the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament. It occupied a quarter-page in Izvestia and was signed by Soviet President Andrei A. Gromyko.

Like other amnesties proclaimed for state holidays over the years, the latest order listed numerous exceptions, such as prisoners convicted of "especially dangerous crimes against the state."

That exception includes the "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" law under which many dissidents and human rights activists have been sentenced to prison and labor camp.

But the decree did not specifically exclude people convicted of anti-Soviet slander, a legal charge that has also been used against dissidents, and people convicted of violating laws regulating the practice of religion.

It is not known how many people were freed under previous Soviet amnesties, the most recent of which was decreed April 28, 1985.

The latest decree was issued in connection with the Nov. 7 observance of the revolution that brought the Communists to power in 1917.

The amnesty applies to war veterans, recipients of Soviet medals and orders, men over 60 years old, women older than 55 and invalids.

Also included are pregnant women and women with young children. The decree calls for the dismissal of any cases pending against those people.

Among those not eligible for the amnesty are people convicted of violent crimes, large-scale bribery and corruption.

The official Tass news agency said that for the first time, the amnesty provides for reducing the terms of prisoners in labor camps, but the order did not make clear which prisoners would qualify.

The decree says the amnesty takes effect immediately and will extend over the next six months.

Gennady I. Gerasimov, the Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman, said in a telephone interview he was not certain who was covered by the amnesty.

Asked whether political prisoners were excluded, he responded: "I think that's not exactly correct. It depends on whether it was a very dangerous crime."

Sergei Grigoryants, a former political prisoner, said he was also confused by the decree but thought it would apply to some political prisoners.

Estimates of the number of political prisoners vary widely. Grigoryants put the number at 1,000.

Grigoryants, a literary expert who wrote for an underground bulletin, was freed in February after Soviet officials announced a pardon of 140 political prisoners.

At the time, Gerasimov said another 140 individual cases were under review and that a "softening" of the criminal code was being considered.

A Supreme Court official, Yevgeny Smolentsev, said the amnesty would not cover three former officials of the Chernobyl nuclear plant who will go on trial July 5 on criminal negligence charges stemming from the April 1986 disaster that killed 31 Soviet citizens and spread radioactivity around the world.

Reagan concerned by South Korea violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he is concerned about the violence in South Korea but declined to say what steps the administration has taken to urge moderation by the Seoul government.

Neither Reagan nor his chief spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, would confirm a published report that the president had written South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan, urging him not to over-react to street demonstrations there.

During an Oval Office picture-taking session with visiting President Hissene Habre of Chad, Reagan said that "obviously, we're very concerned" about the situation in South Korea.

But he said, "I'm not going into any details on what we might have done and or not done."

Fitzwater was asked whether the political situation in South Korea could be compared with that which existed in the Philippines in early 1986, just before a hotly contested election in which Corazon Aquino, widow of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino, defeated longtime President Ferdinand Marcos.

"We don't see them as similar," he replied.

The New York Times, quoting an unnamed senior administration official, reported in Friday's editions that Reagan sent a letter to Chun through diplomatic channels, asking the South Korean leader to move toward establishing full democracy in his country.

This official described the effort as "quiet diplomacy."

A senior U.S. official traveling with Secretary of State George P. Shultz in Singapore, said earlier this week that "we are trying to lean on everyone" in South Korea to bring about peaceful change.

In Seoul on Friday, Prime Minister Lee Han-key said 10 days of street violence threatened to plunge the nation into a major crisis and that the government was prepared to take "extraordinary" measures to stop the protests.

Thousands of students hurling firebombs and rocks again battled police in the streets of Seoul and several provincial cities.

Lee's warning was the first major government statement on the anti-government violence that began June 10. Korean newspapers have speculated that Chun is considering ruling by emergency decree or martial law to curtail the protests.

Fitzwater, at his daily news briefing, told reporters that "through a variety of channels" the United States has told South Korean leaders "we believe they should continue a dialogue with the opposition on constitutional reform and that they should work to end the strife there as soon as possible by peaceful means."

" ...We hope they will use caution and restraint in dealing with the violent protests that are going on there," the spokesman said.

Asked why he would not confirm whether Reagan had sent Chun a letter spelling out U.S. concerns, Fitzwater replied: "Well, I don't know. It just seemsto be one of those things we never do."

SUNDAY, JUNE 21, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Make long-distance phone calls really count in the year ahead. Forging alliances with people at a distance could boost profits. A love relationship continues hot and heavy. A change of environment is a real pick-me-up for you and your family. You may feel like competing with your partner. Better get your work relationships under control first! Someone's comments spur you on to greater accomplishments. Do not measure success by appearances.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: "Family Ties" stars Meredith Baxter-Birney and Michael Goss, Chicago Cubs ace pitcher Rick Sutcliffe, French philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre, America's first First Lady Martha Washington, actresses Maureen Stapleton, Jane Russell and Judy Holliday, artist Rockwell Kent, author Mary McCarthy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Group activities capture your attention today. Splurging on entertainment could put you in a tight spot financially. Be practical. Dark moods will soon be dispelled. Make the first move to mend a quarrel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Say exactly what you mean. Beating around the bush will accomplish nothing. Family members show increased cost consciousness. Applaud any efforts to reduce daily spending. Group endeavors enjoy highly favorable influences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make the most of your opportunities this weekend. Others may not be in a receptive mood. Avoid pushing your ideas too hard. Reading a book is a good alternative to arguing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your partner is more important to you than you realized. Do things you can enjoy together. Avoid judging parents; you do not have all the facts! Look for creative outlets for nervous energy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lovers are more reticent now. Powerful friends will be there when you need them. You may have to choose between two relationships. Your reluctance is not fooling anyone. Make a clear choice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get to the heart of a relationship problem; do not beat around the bush. Avoid giving your hand away where a money matter is concerned. Travel for fun. Remain neutral in a community struggle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not feel embarrassed if your finances will not allow you to participate in costly social affairs. A loved one helps you reach a tough decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A romantic conquest will not be as satisfying as you imagined. Deal promptly with a family financial problem. A relationship with a young child needs careful nurturing. Take nothing for granted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may need a gentle nudge from a loved one to solve a problem. Do not resent a genuine offer of help. Catch up on your personal correspondence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Strong-willed people seem to pop up everywhere you go today. Keep your thoughts to yourself and you will avoid unpleasant confrontations. A novel scheme is worth investigating. Consult a marketing expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fears prove easier to handle when brought out into the open. New lines of communication open up. A one-to-one relationship blossoms, much to your delight. Do nothing to rock the boat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel for pleasure now. A friend opens new doors for you in the areas of romance and finance. Be discreet when talking about your family with friends or strangers.

Convention agrees to national government

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

The day's Pennsylvania Packet advertised:

"Strayed from the stable-yard of the subscriber, in Fourth Street between Walnut and Spruce Streets, on Wednesday evening, the 30th of May, a red COW, supposed to be about 9 years of age with a white udder and wide horns — Also, a dark brown COW, almost black, about 5 years old, with white udder, the horns short...FOUR DOLLARS Reward, paid by Samuel Powel."

CONFEDERATION TODAY

New York and Virginia were represented in Congress, along with Mr. Dane (Mass.), Mr. Clarke (N.J.), Mr. Armstrong (Pa.), and Mr. Kean (S.C.). Lacking a quorum, the members dispersed.

Virginia's William Grayson wrote Pennsylvania's William Irvine, whom he had known since Gen. Charles Lee's court-martial, to urge his return. "Last night Doctor Holten arrived from Massachusetts and there are now present delegations (two or more members) from New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Virga. and So. Carolina. I have this moment wrote to Blount and Hawkins (N.C.) to return according to promise."

Suddenly, a congressional quorum seemed near.

CONVENTION TODAY

William Blount (N.C.) appeared and took his seat.

The Convention took up a resolution "that a National Government ought to be established, consisting of a supreme Legislative, Executive and Judiciary."

Oliver Ellsworth (Conn.) and Nathaniel Gorham (Mass.) moved to change "National Government" to "Government of the United States."

1787 Constitution Daybook

Ellsworth didn't want to abrogate the Confederation, and he wanted the new plan to be ratified under it. This passed without controversy.

A second resolution, that the legislature of the United States have two branches, was taken up. John Lansing (N.Y.) moved instead that "the powers of Legislation be vested in the United States in Congress."

He contended that neither the powers given the Convention nor public opinion supported abandoning the Confederation. George Mason (Va.) ridiculed Lansing's motion; Luther Martin (Md.) and Roger Sherman (Conn.) supported it, and it lost, six state opposed, four small states for, and Maryland divided.

The Articles of Confederation would not be parched and retained.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington dined next door at Samuel Meredith's and drank tea there.

Robert Morris wrote from Philadelphia to New York merchant and financier Nicholas Low at the request of James Bruce Nickolls, to vouch for Nickolls' credit. (Within a week, Morris's own credit would be shaken when 50,000 pounds worth of his bills of exchange would be returned unpaid.)

LOOKING BACK

William Richardson Davie

William Richardson Davie observed his 31st birthday.

Born in Egremont, Cumberland, England, Davie had been brought to the Waxhaw area of North Carolina-South Carolina by his father at the age of 7. He was then adopted by his uncle, William Richardson, a Presbyterian clergyman. In 1776, Davie graduated from Princeton.

On returning to North Carolina, Davie studied law, interrupted by three months of military service until April 1779. On April 5, he was commissioned a lieutenant in a troop of cavalry. Soon promoted to captain, then major, Davie served with distinction in the bitter partisan warfare of 1779-80, being wounded in action at the Battle of Stono. With the arrival of Gen. Greene, who knew both the importance and the difficulty of supplying an army from personal experience, Davie was appointed commissary general, a post in which he served throughout the remainder of the Revolution.

Davie had been admitted to the bar while recovering from his wounds. With the peace, he settled in Halifax, married Sarah Jones, whose uncle Willie was one of the state's political leaders, and managed his plantation while practicing law. In 1786 he was chosen to the state legislature, and in 1787, to attend the Federal Convention.

Leaving his wife and the one or two of their six children who would have been born by then, Davie left in time to arrive in Philadelphia on May 22 and be present for the opening session.

Thereafter, he seconded the motion to subject the executive to impeachment, served on the committee which proposed the Connecticut Compromise, and argued strongly for representation of at least three-fifths of the South's slaves. Satisfied with the new government as it took shape, and with the views of his fellow North Carolina delegates, Davie left Philadelphia on Aug. 13 to be home for the opening of the fall term of courts.

Gleason released from hospital

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Gleason has been released after nearly a month in a hospital, but those close to "The Great One" continue to be closed-mouthed about his ailment.

The 71-year-old actor and comedian was released Thursday night from Imperial Point Medical Center, where he was taken May 22 after suffering complications from drugs he takes for diabetes.

"Due to the family's wishes that is all we can disclose," said Debra Rand, spokeswoman for the hospital.

She refused to comment on Gleason's condition.

Earlier this month, the New York Post quoted anonymous hospital officials as saying Gleason had cancer, but that was denied by his personal spokeswoman, Sydell Spear.

Gleason, of nearby Lauderhill, starred as bus driver Ralph Kramden in the television's "The Honeymooners."

BEAN BLOSSOM, Ind. (AP) — Bluegrass star Bill Monroe spends about half his time on the road, but his annual trip to the Bean Blossom Bluegrass Festival is special.

"Yes sir," said the 75-year-old Monroe, surveying a wooded park in the hills north of Bloomington. "It's kind of like coming back home for me; I've owned this place since 1953."

Thousands of fans and amateur bluegrass musicians converge here each year for the 10-day event, which ends Sunday with a gospel music show by their host, the mandolin player whose Blue Grass Boys band first produced and gave name to the driving music nearly 50 years ago.

"I wanted a new music of my own," he said. "And I had a lot of different ideas that I put in it: The old Scotch bagpipe style of music, and Irish and Southern blues are in it, and the Methodist, Baptist old-time way of singing is in it.

"And it's a high-pitched music because I sung tenor most of my life; and I put the drive in it with my mandolin so it would speed it up from what it used to be years and years ago. Old time country music was awful slow."

When not on the road, Monroe can usually be found making audiences tap their toes at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fred MacMurray, star of the long-running "My Three Sons" television series, has been inducted into the Wisconsin Performing Artists Hall of Fame.

MacMurray, 78, was honored Thursday night at a banquet in Milwaukee's Performing Arts Center. The hall of fame was established in 1983 by the center and the Milwaukee Sentinel to honor performing artists with close ties to Wisconsin.

Although he was born in Kankakee, Ill., MacMurray grew up in Beaver Dam and in Waukesha.

Israeli agents capture gang suspected of West Bank attacks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Security agents captured a gang of Syrian-backed Palestinians suspected of six attacks in the occupied West Bank, including the 1986 assassination of an Israeli-appointed Arab mayor, the army said Friday.

Brig. Gen. Amram Mitzna, the commander of the West Bank, gave rare public credit to Israel's Shin Bet security service for arresting the ring after a year-long manhunt.

The suspects acted in the service of the Syrian-based Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, Mitzna said at a news conference at army headquarters in Jerusalem.

"It was a dangerous and murderous gang," said Mitzna, who described the ring as "very professional, acting with maximum skill...courageous, ideologically motivated, and an extremely committed group."

Mitzna did not say when the gang was captured and declined to say how many members were arrested, indicating the army believed other ring members may still be at large.

He said the gang was suspected in six attacks but mentioned only three slayings — two Israelis and Nablus Mayor Zafer al-Masri.

Al-Masri, 44, was gunned down outside his office in the West Bank city in March 1986, four months after Israel put him in office.

The assassination temporarily derailed Israel's announced plans to grant greater self-rule to 1.4 million Palestinians in the occupied territories. Three other Arabs promptly withdrew as candidates for other mayoral posts.

One of the Israelis the gang allegedly killed was a Druse border policeman shot in Nablus in January 1986. Five Palestinians and a second Israeli policeman were wounded in the attack.

The ring's second alleged Israeli victim was 32-year-old Albert Bukhris, who was gunned down in the outdoor Nablus marketplace in July 1985, Mitzna said.

The gang also is suspected of attempting to assassinate the Palestinian mayor of the West Bank city of Jenin last year.

Mitzna said the ring members were all West Bank residents who had been trained and received precise orders from abroad and used weapons smuggled from outside Israeli-held territories.

He declined to be more specific except to say that one ring member was trained near Damascus, Syria, and another had served three years in an Israeli prison for a separate attack.

Unlike many guerrilla rings caught earlier, this gang carried out extensive reconnaissance missions and "made a professional getaway from the site of the attacks," Mitzna said.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, headed by George Habash, had claimed responsibility for al-Masri's assassination. The Popular Front is a faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization, but Habash had distanced himself from PLO chairman Yasser Arafat.

Al-Masri had been appointed mayor to replace an Israeli army officer who ran the Palestinian city after Israel fired the elected mayor, Bassam Shakaa, in 1982 for his anti-Israeli views.

Al-Masri's assassination came a month after Jordan, which had agreed to the Israeli appointment, broke a year-long alliance with the Palestine Liberation Organization. Arafat's PLO also had given tacit approval to the appointment.

Syria had strongly criticized Jordan's tacit cooperation with Israel in the West Bank.

"Mr. al-Masri was courageous in serving his city and his people. His assassination was an act of cowardice," said Hanna Siniora, editor of the pro-Arafat Al-Fajr daily published in east Jerusalem.

Siniora said the assassins "deserve the full measure of the law."

Mitzna credited Shin Bet, Israel's equivalent of the FBI, with cracking the case. Shin Bet's role in such investigations is rarely mentioned, and the unusual disclosure seemed intended to bolster its public image following two recent scandals that have prompted harsh criticism of the agency.

The government appointed a team this month to look into alleged Shin Bet excesses in interrogating suspects. In the most recent case, a court found that Shin Bet agents had framed a Moslem army officer who spent seven years in jail before his conviction was overturned last month.

Mitzna said the latest arrests proved that despite the scrutiny of the agency, Shin Bet "has suffered no harm to the dedication and thoroughness of field work."

WORLD in brief

Rebels from Mozambique attack Zimbabwe village

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — About 100 rebels fighting Mozambique's Marxist government attacked a village in Zimbabwe in their first confirmed major foray against Zimbabwe, Western diplomats said Friday.

The rebels from the Mozambique National Resistance Movement retreated to Mozambique after clashing with Zimbabwean troops near the village earlier this week, said the diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The diplomats had no estimate of casualties from the fighting, which they said began after the rebels entered Zimbabwe on Sunday near the northeastern village of Mukosa, 5 miles from the border.

The rebels "did not penetrate far into Zimbabwe, but it seems they remained in the area until Tuesday," said one diplomat.

The Mozambican rebel group, known as Renamo, on June 2 announced the start of an offensive against Zimbabwe because of it supports the Mozambique government. Renamo has said its forces attacked five army bases in northern Zimbabwe.

Plane identified wrong

LONDON (AP) — When West German teen-ager Mathia Rust penetrated Soviet airspace in a small plane and headed for Moscow, a Soviet pilot sent to intercept him identified the aircraft as Finnish, Jane's Defense Weekly says.

In its June 20 issue, Jane's said a second Soviet fighter apparently scrambled at the same time, but it failed to make contact and Rust flew on to land in Red Square.

"The reports of the Soviet fighter pilots to their controller were monitored by Western intelligence-gathering sources and the wrong identification of Rust's aircraft evidently caused confusion and hesitation among Soviet regional air defense authorities," the authoritative defense weekly said.

West Germany's red-black-and-yellow flag was painted on Rust's single-engine Cessna. The Finnish flag is white with a blue cross.

Finland and the Soviet Union have close relations, and the Soviets might have been reluctant to shoot down a Finnish plane.

Rust has been in Soviet custody since shortly after his May 28 flight in the single-engine Cessna. Soviet officials have indicated he will be brought to trial for violating their country's airspace, but so far no formal charges have been filed against him.

Group says hostage dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnappers who seized Elie Srour, head of Lebanon's small Jewish community, more than two years ago said Friday they had killed him in retaliation for Israeli raids on Shiite Moslem villages in south Lebanon.

The declaration came in a statement, delivered to the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar, that was handwritten in Arabic and signed by a group calling itself the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth.

It was accompanied by a photograph of Srour, 70, an electrical engineer kidnapped March 28, 1985, in Moslem west Beirut.

Soviet general praises NATO

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Soviet general praised NATO on Friday for its willingness to scrap nuclear missiles but said the Western alliance was vague about negotiations on conventional military forces.

Maj. Gen. Viktor Tatarnikov told the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe that he saw "some encouraging signals from the West" in the June 12 statement issued by NATO foreign ministers meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland.

He said NATO accepted "Soviet proposals for the elimination in Europe of a whole class of medium-range nuclear missiles and operational-tactical missiles of the United States and the Soviet Union."

Tatarnikov appeared to reject Western plans to omit U.S. nuclear warheads for short-range West German Pershing-1A missiles from a treaty.

West Germany controls the short-range Pershing missiles but the United States controls their nuclear warheads.

In his remarks to the Vienna conference, Tatarnikov said NATO was ambiguous about talks on reducing conventional forces in Europe.
