13 COUNTIES REPRESENTED IN THE AREA

Thirty-Six Men Here
For Luncheon and Discussions

Likelihood of a direct appeal to Washington for relief of abnormal needs of 13 counties of the drought stricken area of West Texas, was expressed by county judges, commissioners, mayors and chambers of commerce officials, 36 strong, who met at Midland for a luncheon and business session today.

Counties affected are Midland, Andrews, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Crane, Winkler, Ward, Upton and Reagan.

WASHINGTON, March 2. (U.P.)—The administration's new relief program will go into effect in several rural states Monday, Administrator Hopkins of the federal relief and civil works commissions said today.

States in which the CWA will be supplemented by the new relief plan had not been named.

Several of the counties had no one here, but sent word of their recognition of relief needs and pledges of cooperation.

Relief will be asked through channels of continued CWA work or other drought relief legislation.

County Judge Elliott H. Barron of Midland county was named chairman of the gathering. C. T. Watson, Big Spring chamber of commerce secretary, presided.

The noon program, held at a luncheon served by the Home Demonstration council under direction of Miss Myrtle Miller and the assistance of Miss Florine Jones of Stanton, began with a brief speech by Judge Phillip Yonge of Lamesa, who outlined objects of the meeting.

Watson explained results of his recent relief visit in Washington. City Manager Spence of Big Spring spoke on drought relief and its necessity. Taylor Black of Barstow explained the drought conditions of his area.

Representative Frank Stubbeman of Midland pointed out the legislative angles of relief.

The meeting was opened by Judge Barron, who presided at the luncheon. M. C. Ulmer, acting mayor, made an address of welcome, which was responded to by Judge Mayburn Harris of Rankin. Paul T. Vickers offered an invocation.

Prior to the luncheon, a resolutions committee, composed of Watson, Judge Yonge, Judge J. S. Lamar of Stanton, Judge Harris and Vickers, went over matters to be presented.

The afternoon session was expected to be concluded about 3 o'clock.

The registration list included the following: City Manager E. V. Spence, C. E. Taylor, C. T. Watson and George G. White, Big Spring; O. H. Hearne, B. U. Hoin, A. L. Curtis, C. M. Armstrong, W. L. 96 Papers to Carry Men's Class Story

Pictures and a 1,200-word article on the Men's class of Hotel Scharbauer will appear in the magazine section of 96 newspapers in April. A request was received this week from a syndicate writer, who said an excellent feature story could be handled.

The pictures will be of the class of Clarence Scharbauer, a pioneer member; J. V. Whitmore as a member with the best attendance record; W. N. Connell, the oldest member, and Bethel Lynn Eiland, the youngest member. Connell is 79 and Bethel is 2, having started at the age of 1 year with his father, Troy.

This illustrated article will give Midland publicity throughout Texas, Oklahoma and eastern New Mexico.

SCATTERED RAINS REPORTED TODAY AS FARM, RANCH AREAS BENEFITTED

DALLAS, Mar. 2. (U.P.)—Beneficial rains which helped agricultural and drought stricken West Texas ranch areas ended today. Only showers in widely scattered sections were reported.

The heaviest precipitation was 4.48 inches at Port Arthur. Temperatures were rising. The Trinity river at Dallas was expected to reach flood stage at midnight.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Misty skies drenched most of Texas oil fields to the southwest. Unsettled weather was in sight.

From the Panhandle plains to the Gulf coast and from the East Texas oil fields to the southwest range lands came reports of rains, some of them unusually heavy.

At Beaumont a violent downpour, amounting to four inches in three hours, flooded streets Thursday night. The deluge was general, extending well into East Texas and flooding streets at Lake Charles, La., 65 miles east of Beaumont, and also at Port Arthur.

Agriculturists expected the heavy rain to delay crop planting but to benefit ranches.

Galveston had 2.01 inches of rain in a 24-hour period. The low temperature there was 56 degrees, the high 65.

March came to San Antonio with a surge of rain and a violent electrical storm. The precipitation there amounted to 1.52 inches, causing a rise of more than three feet in the San Antonio river and flooding some streets.

Heavy in Oil Fields
The East Texas oil field area around Gladewater was soaked with the heaviest rain in six months. Streets in the southern part of Gladewater were flooded and a few store buildings had their floors soaked.

Brownfield reported three quarters of an inch. Rainfall was general over that area Wednesday night. It was the first downpour of any consequence since October 15.

Wichita Falls had 1.79 inches of rain, which broke a two-month drought. Skies were cloudy and it was misting Thursday night. Farmers welcomed the rain, as it filled storage tanks and provided moisture for spring plowing and growing grain.

Light rain fell all Thursday in the Dallas area, precipitation totaling more than 1.34 inches.

Most of the Panhandle-Plains country south of the Canadian river received rain Wednesday night. Rains varying from three-quarters of an inch to more than one inch fell along the Santa Fe railroad from Canyon to Sweetwater and along the Denver railroad from Clarendon to Fort Worth.

Lubbock had a rainfall of 1.13 inches, the first since late last year. Rain varying from a quarter inch to more than an inch soaked the south plains of West Texas. There were occasional snow flurries and the minimum temperature reached down to 33 degrees. The Midland area reported mist and light showers of approximately a fourth to a third of an inch.

ACCUSED TEACHER HELD AT B'SPRING

BIG SPRING.—Noel E. Boatler, principal of the Fairview school in Mitchell county, was held in the Howard county jail Thursday pending arraignment Monday at Colorado on an indictment charging a cruel attack on 13-year-old farm boy who was a pupil in his school.

Boatler was placed under arrest at a Midland tourist camp Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at request of Colorado officers. Police Chief Lee Haynes of Midland who made the arrest, has informed authorities that the girl was with Boatler at the time.

Offense on which the grand jury indictment is based is alleged to have been committed February 23. Five years in prison is the minimum penalty provided under the statutes.

The accused man Saturday afternoon was transferred from the Midland jail to the Howard county jail where he has since been held.

The accusing witness, Lois Saunders, is a daughter of Percy Saunders, tenant farmer on the W. C. Berry place near Fairview. Testimony in hands of the district attorney avers she will be 14 years of age on March 8.

PARIS SWINGS TOWARD DICTATORSHIP AND ANY FACTION MIGHT MAKE BID

By MORRIS GILBERT
PARIS.—The Constitution of the Third Republic, framed in 1875, provides a method of appealing to the people of France over the head of Parliament. The method is for the President with the express approval of the Senate to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies and call for a new general election.

It has only been employed once, and then improperly. That was when MacMahon as president in 1877 after fighting with the ministry of the day forced its resignation, appointed another ministry of his own, and then dissolved the Chamber.

The people of France immediately came back by electing just the same kind of a Chamber. Otherwise it is believed there would have been a coup d'etat—which MacMahon by no means would have disapproved.

The result of this imbroglio in 1877 has been to make practically useless the procedure of dissolution. No other president ever has tried it during all the years of the Third Republic.

So students of the machinery of government of the French republic assert that in practice if not in law the Chamber is elected for a full four years, and the electorate has no means of meddling.

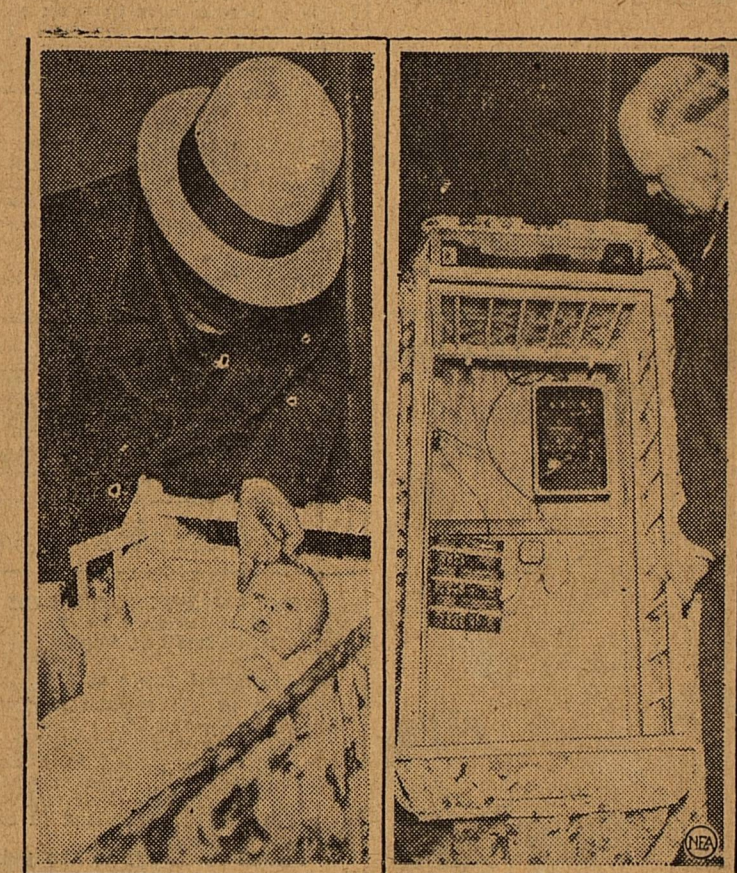

But under the buffering of the Stavisky scandal and the demonstrations of the politically unimportant royalist group, demand for revision of basic law and practice has become insistent. Except for extremist groups—the extreme right or Action Francaise crowd, and the Communists at the extreme left—the demand has not been to cast out the regime, but to reform it.

If the French regime were not a republicanism, what could it be, people ask. A monarchy? The thought is fantastic. A communist state? Not so long as the greatest power in France—the peasantry—has anything to say.

Hence, if there is to be some efficient way of cauterizing the wound inflicted by Stavisky on the French state, it is likely to be found in reform within the state as now instituted.

The French government has seldom been nearer chaos than today. The Stavisky case has raised (See PARIS MOOB, page 4)

Crib Guards Baby From Kidnaping

LOW MORTALITY MARKS BUSINESS

DALLAS, March 2. (U.P.)—A gain of 32 per cent in department store sales during January in principal cities over January, 1933, and a low business mortality, are noted in the Monthly Business Review of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas, released today. Department store sales, however, evidenced a seasonal recession of 53 per cent from the large December volume. The Review adds that the January sales recorded the largest increase for a current month over the corresponding month a year earlier reported since the recovery set in last spring.

A low business mortality rate and a broadening activity in distributive channels were constructive features of the business and industrial situation during the past month, the Review states. The number of commercial failures in January were smaller than in December and both the number of insolvencies and the indebtedness involved were lower than in any corresponding month in 14 years.

Continuing, the Review says that wholesale distribution reflected a large gain as compared with both the previous month and the same month last year. While retailers are holding commitments mostly to nearby needs, there is a disposition to stock a larger assortment of merchandise in order to meet the broadening consumer demand.

The position of the agricultural and livestock industries in the eastern half of the district has been greatly improved by the heavy general rains during the past six weeks. On the other hand, the western half of the district continued to reflect the effects of sub-normal rainfall. The condition of small grain ranges is poor to only fair. Heavy general rains in the immediate future are needed to stimulate the growth of small grains, to start grass growing on the range and to provide moisture for the completion of land preparation and the planting of spring crops. Livestock prices, which followed a downward trend in 1933, have shown some recovery since the first of the year and trading on the ranges is more active.

The reserve deposits of member banks reflected a large expansion between January 15 and February 15. The total on the latter date amounted to $110,622,000, which is $16,179,000 greater than a month earlier and $59,805,000 larger than a year ago. The daily average of combined net demand and time deposits of member banks rose to $693,123,000 in January, reflecting a gain of $17,260,000 over the previous month and $97,061,000 over a year ago.

3 DEALERS OF PERMIAN FINED

The tentacles of the newly enacted automobile code reached out to enmesh three dealers of the Permian basin Thursday night, when a hearing was conducted at Odessa. Dealers charged were fined less than the maximum penalty allowed under the code, the alleged offense having been their first. The specific charge was of infraction of code rules governing sales prices.

Under the code, the government sets down maximum prices, which may be paid by dealers on used cars traded on new car buys. A dealer is not allowed to exceed this in order to attract buyers. Neither is he allowed to pay the government's standard maximum, then compete with other dealers by putting accessories on new cars, nor to use any other subterfuge contributing to unfair competition.

The complaining witnesses usually another dealer, conducts his own case against the defendant, and a jury made up of unaffected dealers of the association sits on the case. The judge is A. H. Dennison, president of the group. The jury deliberates without retiring, parties to the action being the ones who clear the room.

Joe Scruggs, Midland dealer who sat on the jury at Odessa Thursday, said the automobile code has even more salubrious advantage to the buying public than to the dealer. It is a code rule that speedometers of cars must be connected from the time of a machine's assembling, so that the public may know exactly how many miles the car has been driven; and the provisions which set up standardization of prices which allow one to get uniform trade-in credit.

Pratt already has assumed his new duties at San Angelo. He formerly was in the banking business at Stamford, coming to Fort Worth in October, 1933, to be secretary-treasurer of the Fort Worth corporation.

CONGRESS SPEECH TODAY MAY LEAD TO LONG DEBATE

Move Is Preliminary
To Expansion of Foreign Trade

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2. (U.P.)—President Roosevelt, in a special message to congress today, asked for broad powers to adjust tariffs. The move was a preliminary to a new effort to expand American foreign trade through reciprocal commercial agreements.

The president asked for specific authority to enter into executive commercial agreements with foreign nations "within carefully guarded limits to modify existing duties and import restrictions such as will benefit American agriculture and industry."

The tariff issue likely will lead to long debate. The president pointed out that world trade had declined with steady rapidity and the "drop of foreign trade in the United States was even sharper." He blamed this for unemployment and low prices and said the "drop in exports made indefinitely more difficult the planning for economic readjustment in which the government now is engaged."

Rep. Stubbeman Is
Speaker Pro Tem of
The House Tuesday

To Rep. Frank Stubbeman, who with Mrs. Stubbeman returned Thursday afternoon from the second called session of the 43rd legislative body, the speaker of the house for a 30-minute period Tuesday afternoon.

It was the last afternoon of the session and debate on holding forth on the moratorium bill. Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction had his hands full of many extra duties attaching to early adjournment, so he asked authority to the Midland lawyer.

Oddly enough, no horseplay of the solons met with the speaker pro tem's assumption of power, so he asked authority to the Midland lawyer.

It is a difficult task to keep the house in order when members have time to direct a conference of questions and points of order at the temporary speaker.

Coke Stevenson is one of the finest speakers in the history of the house, especially when it comes to keeping order. Rep. Stubbeman said. His dry wit frequently withers the would-be wisecracker on the floor. His method of obtaining order usually reflects itself in a man-to-man statement like "Time is limited, fellows, let's get together and avoid confusion." Occasionally, however, his words are tipped with vitriol, and few representatives intentionally court his displeasure.

California Company To Drill Peccs Well

The California company has made the location for No. 14 M. A. Smith, in section 35, block 14, C. C. & S. F. railway survey, Peccos county. The test is to be drilled to 1,450 feet, and work is to begin this week.

KEEPING CONGRESS CLEAN

Senator Borah is renewing the efforts which he has been making for the last eleven years to get through Congress a law which would prohibit any member of Congress from accepting employment as an attorney for anyone engaged either in litigation against the government or in interstate commerce to which the regulative powers of Congress might extend.

About the only thing that is surprising about this bill is the fact that it wasn't passed long ago. The man in the street will find it pretty hard to think of any respectable arguments against it.

Many members of Congress remain active in law firms which draw rich fees and retainers from large corporations. Now, while a congressman's salary of $8,500 a year is not a princely sum, it is at least enough to provide a very comfortable living, and a man who wants to be a congressman ought to be prepared to make it do.

There may not, in many cases, be anything wrong with a lawyer-congressman taking fees from outside interests; but it's a good thing for a public servant to avoid even the appearance of evil.

Cowboys were worried this morning for fear all of the cattle would have had colds from wet feet. Wet feet are not so bad if you are accustomed to them.

A specialist advises that you will sleep well if you get a snack out of the refrigerator before retiring. I tried that with limburger and it didn't work.

Down here at The Reporter-Telegram we refer to the mechanical department as the "back end" and to the news and business offices as the "front end." One of our staff members got a bill this morning as follows: "For checking front end for rattles, for tightening all over, $3.00."

Mrs. Woody Elkin Given Surprise Birthday Party

Mrs. Woody Elkin was honored with a birthday party Tuesday afternoon when her daughters, Mmes. Glenn Brunson and Lewis Cooper, entertained at the Brunson home. Unique and clever invitations had been sent to guests earlier in the week and the affair was a surprise to the honoree.

During the 2-1-2 hours of entertainment, informality prevailed in the games played and contests staged. Prizes in the contests went to Mmes. L. A. Denton, George Ratliff, Ben Whitefield and E. B. Chancellor. A feature of the afternoon's entertainment was the writing of birthday wishes in verse for the honoree.

After gifts received by the honoree were opened, the three-layers birthday cake was cut and served with a refreshment course to Mmes. Chancellor, Ragdale, Erickson, George Wolcott, Driver, Houston, Stokes, Frank Elkin, Terry Elkin, Dublin, Cordill Jones, Denton, Howard, Ratliff, McCall and Whitefield. Miss Kate Sinclair and the honoree.

50 YEARS A MARTYR TO CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

Read this splendid letter from Mrs. Haynes:

"For 50 years I have been a martyr to constipation. Have tried every remedy under the sun.

"One day I read an account of some one who had been relieved by ALL-BRAN, but I thought 'What was the use of me trying anything more when all else had failed?'

"A while after, I read it again. That time I thought I would try it, it would do no harm anyway.

"I began with a small dish of your ALL-BRAN for breakfast, and wonderful to say, I never need to take any physic at all now. How I wish other poor sufferers from constipation could be persuaded to try it."—Mrs. Sarah Haynes, 138 Cedarwood Terrace, Rochester, N. Y.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. Also iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. It's so much safer than taking patent medicines! Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ONLY THE CENTER LEAVES FOR Luckies

1 Luckies do not use the top leaves... because top leaves are under-developed... they are not ripe... They would give a harsh smoke.

2 Luckies use only the center leaves of the finest tobacco plants... because the center leaves are the mildest, tenderest, smoothest.

3 Luckies do not use the bottom leaves, because bottom leaves are inferior in quality. They grow close to the ground, and are tough, coarse and always sandy.

The Cream of the Crop
"The mildest, smoothest tobacco"

NOT the top leaves—they're under-developed—they are harsh!
NOT the bottom leaves—they're inferior in quality—coarse and always sandy!

This picture tells better than words the merit of your Lucky Strike. Luckies use only the center leaves. Not the top leaves, because those are under-developed—not ripe. Not the bottom leaves, because those are inferior in quality—they grow close to the ground and are tough, coarse and always sandy. The center leaves are the mildest leaves, the finest in quality. These center leaves are cut into long, even strands and are fully packed into each and every Lucky—giving you a cigarette that is always round, firm, completely filled—no loose ends. Is it any wonder that Luckies are so truly mild and smooth? And in addition, you know, "It's toasted"—for throat protection, for finer taste.

SHOCKED BY WORKERS
 SALEM, Ore. (AP)—Highway workers laboring along roads with bodies bare from the waist up shocked Melitabile Van Duhn, of Roseburg, so she protested to the state highway commission, demanding that they be made to wear shirts. Highway commissioners decided that it was healthful for the men to go without shirts, and that, besides, many of the men couldn't afford shirts. Miss Van Duhn also said in her letter that the workers looked like hairy apes.

CHAPTER I
It was no use. No one could keep Ellie Andrews prisoner—and like it. In fact, no one could keep Ellie Andrews prisoner. Not even her father, the great finance tycoon, Alexander Andrews. He tried, but when a girl like Ellie Andrews makes up her mind—well—just get out of the way!

Ellie wanted to stay married to King Westley and her father did not want Ellie to stay married. Alexander implied that King Westley was merely looking for a lot of money to "pitch to." Ellie thought not—that it was a great love match. It must have been a match—it certainly started a blaze!

Alexander took Ellie to his yacht right off Miami—virtually kidnapped her. But Ellie wouldn't stay kidnapped. She jumped overboard and swam for shore—no money, and just a lot of wet clothes and a wristwatch between her and a hard world. But she was back on her way back to a husband in New York whom she hadn't had a chance to live with as yet!

Ellie screwed up her beautiful face and stuck her tongue out in the general direction of her father's yacht, then hiked it to the nearest railroad station. But old Alexander was resourceful—else how could he have made so many millions?—and he had a bus ticket for her, and in less time than you can say—well—"It Happened One Night"—she was firmly ensconced in a bus seat as snug as a bug in an armchair.

Nearby, a good-looking young man argued loudly and vociferously with the bus driver. But he argued with a smile—which was too much for the driver. Peter Warne turned to sit in the seat for which he had been arguing. He lost his smile, for the cause of the debate was being occupied by Ellie.

"Excuse me, lady," said Peter, "but that upon which you sit is mine." Ellie looked at him, then down at her slender young body. Her eyes flashed.

"I beg your pardon!" "Now, listen," said Peter. "I'm in a very ugly mood. I put up a stiff battle for that seat. So it's just the same to you—scram!" "Driver!" called Ellie.

The driver walked up the aisle. "Are these seats reserved?" "Not" barked the driver, looking at Peter. "First come, first served!" He strode away.

Ellie dismissed the whole thing with a "Thank you." "Driver!" called Peter. "Once again the driver returned. 'Yeah!'"

"These seats accommodate two passengers, don't they?" The driver was reluctant. "Maybe they do—and maybe they don't."

Ellie glared at him. Peter stood up. "You may not know it, but I did my best for you. I told them—I said, 'See here, you can't go off and leave that girl. She's accustomed to having her own way. If you cross her she'll rave and rant and tear her hair!'"

Ellie's eyes snapped. "Is that supposed to be funny?" "Say, how old are you, anyway? Don't you know that these buses work on schedule? You need a guardian."

"What are you excited about? You missed the bus, too." "Yeah, I missed it, too." Ellie stared at him. "Don't tell me you did it on my account. I—I hope you're not getting any idea that what happened last night is—You needn't concern yourself about me, young man. I can take care of myself."

"You're doing a pretty sloppy job of it," he reached into his pocket. "Here's your ticket." "My ticket?" "I found it on the seat."

"Oh, thank you. Must have fallen out of my pocket." "You know," said Peter, "you're just the type." Ellie looked up quizzically.

"I've always been curious about the kind of a girl that would marry King Westley. You're perfect." Ellie gasped. "What?" she asked weakly. "Are you talking about?" Peter continued. "Just a spoiled brat of a rich man, you and Westley'll make an ideal team."

"Will you please tell me what you're raving about?" "You'll never get away with it, Miss Andrews. Your father'll stop you before you get halfway to New York."

"You must have me confused with—"

Peter bent over quickly and lifted Ellie's recently acquired overnight bag, which reposed on the other seat. He dropped it to the floor, then sat in the empty seat. Ellie glared at him, picked up the bag, stood up and attempted to place it in the rack overhead. Just then the bus started with a lurch. Ellie was deposited with dispatch in Peter's lap. She glared at him hostilely, then quickly scrambled to her own seat.

Peter smiled. "Drop it on me again, sometime." The bus roared over the high-ways; neither Peter nor Ellie said a word. Twilight faded into night; night faded into dawn, then dawn sideslipped for a determined sun. Ellie awoke with a start. She looked about dazedly, then sat erect with a jerk—for her head was resting comfortably on Peter Warne's shoulder. His coat was tucked neatly about her. She smiled feebly.

"Oh, I'm sorry—silly, isn't it?" Her eyes widened—for the bus was empty but for herself and Peter. She handed Peter the coat. "Thank you. We're in Jacksonville, aren't we?"

"Yes." Ellie spoke nervously. "That was foolish of me. Why didn't you shove me away?" "You looked beautiful—asleep. I hated to wake you." He sat up straight. "How about some breakfast?"

"Thank you so much." She rose. She walked away down the bus aisle, down the three steps and out into the open. The driver stood by the motor.

"How much time have I?" asked Ellie. "About a half hour." "I'm going over to the Windsor Hotel."

"The Windsor! You'll never make it in time!" "You'll have to wait for me." The driver was aghast. "Wait for you?"

Some forty-five minutes later, Ellie returned to the depot. No bus in sight. She looked about her helplessly, then walked to the guard. "There's the bus to New York?" "Left twenty minutes ago," answered the guard.

"Why, that's ridiculous! I was on that bus—I told them to wait!" "Sorry, Miss. It's gone." The guard started away.

"What time is the next bus to New York?" Ellie called after him. "Eight o'clock tonight!" came the answer.

"Eight o'clock! Why, that's twelve hours!" "Sorry, Miss." Ellie turned away dejectedly. Her eyes widened—directly in front of her sat Peter Warne and smiling broadly.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Wouldn't the old meanies wait for you?" Ellie glared at him.

Peter stood up. "You may not know it, but I did my best for you. I told them—I said, 'See here, you can't go off and leave that girl. She's accustomed to having her own way. If you cross her she'll rave and rant and tear her hair!'"

Ellie's eyes snapped. "Is that supposed to be funny?" "Say, how old are you, anyway? Don't you know that these buses work on schedule? You need a guardian."

"What are you excited about? You missed the bus, too." "Yeah, I missed it, too." Ellie stared at him. "Don't tell me you did it on my account. I—I hope you're not getting any idea that what happened last night is—You needn't concern yourself about me, young man. I can take care of myself."

Bank Holiday Was Clapped on Just A Year Ago Today

DALLAS, March 2. (P).—One year ago today an hysteria-provoked banking crisis in the north and east washed over Texas.

"Flash: Austin—Governor declares banking moratorium for Texas for five days."

These cryptic words sped out over Associated Press wires shortly after 4 o'clock. Then came one brief paragraph.

"Austin, March 2. (P).—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today issued a proclamation proclaiming a financial moratorium in Texas for five days, ordering all banks to remain closed until and including March 7."

There were hundreds of words more but they were beside the point.

The storm arrived while banks were closed in observance of Texas Independence day and Texans suddenly went deeply into their pockets and counted small change; they began figuring how long their cash on hand would last.

But, instead of a five-day banking holiday, the closing was extended while Franklin D. Roosevelt, just inaugurated president, proclaimed a national banking holiday several days later.

For ten days, the only money circulating was that which had not been put away in bank vaults at the close of business March 1. Scrip was issued in scattered cities and towns. Stores cooperated by expanding credit. Thousands of checks were cashed. Cash registers and vaults were filled with them. At some theatres, an I.O.U. was good for a ticket.

Currency was guarded with extra precautions. One large firm managed to obtain about $5,000 for a payroll and had officers guard its vaults.

The inconvenience elicited complaints but the governor had acted as a means of preventing any disturbing situation resulting from financial difficulties experienced by banks in other states recently, and her action was designed to prevent a collapse of the banking structure in Texas.

Bankers discounted the motive which inspired the action but complied.

"What," thought the man in the street, "will come of this?"

Charles Farrell Is New Type Character In "Big Shakedown"

A departure from his former screen parts is seen in the new type of role escaped by Charles Farrell in "The Big Shakedown," the first National picture showing at the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday.

Having found screen fame in wistful, romantic roles such as that of Chico in "Seventh Heaven," and others in which he was teamed romantically with Janet Gaynor or Marian Nixon, Farrell in "The Big Shakedown" becomes a business-like young chemist who falls in with racketeers.

His struggle to remain honest despite the attempts of the gangster to keep him from deserting the gang forms the plot of a thrilling adventure drama, and incidentally gives Farrell a chance for one of the most virile and realistic characterizations of his career.

Personally, Farrell welcomed the part with open arms, believing that it will give him not only an entirely new fan following but a chance to branch out into wider fields of dramatic art.

With Miss Davis and Charles Farrell in "The Big Shakedown" are such notable players as Ricardo Cortez, Glenda Farrell, Allen Jenkins, Phillip Faversham, Henry O'Neill and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

John Francis Dillon directed the picture from the screen play by Niven Busch and Rian James, based on "Cut Rate," a story by Busch and S. Engels.

Disappointed—but Smiles at Her Loss

Smiling through evident disappointment, Mrs. W. H. Frantom told a reporter Thursday how a newly married couple feels after "losing" $70.

Mrs. Frantom's name was called at the Bank night program of the Yucca theatre Wednesday, but the time limit of two minutes found her absent, and she could not be awarded the bank account. The fund thus increases to $105 for next Wednesday.

"My husband and I kidded about what we would do with the money," Mrs. Frantom said, "but I said I never won anything in my life—and I decided at the last minute not to go. When they told me my name was read—you can imagine how I felt. The money would have come in handy to a couple just starting out housekeeping."

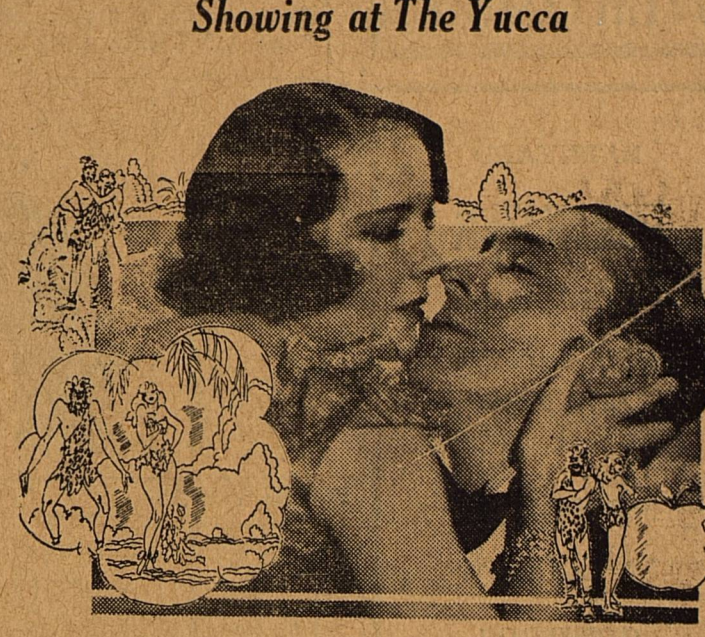

The couple was married at Marshall three months ago and moved to Midland Feb. 12. Frantom is apprentice foreman of a section gang on the T. & P. He has been here for about four years, railroad men at the depot said, leaving for a short time to be married. The couple lives at the Home hotel, on East Texas avenue.

Defeating the Rice Owls, 40-36, in College Station Wednesday night, the A. & M. Aggies made sure of at least a tie for second place in the Southwest conference cage rankings. The Arkansas Razorbacks have an outside chance at a second-place deadlock but that chance is slim.

Four more games will be played in the circuit, Friday and Saturday nights. S. M. U. meets Arkansas in Fayetteville. Saturday night Baylor meets Rice in Houston and the Aggies entertain the Texas Longhorns in College Station. For Arkansas to get a tie the Aggies would have to lose to Texas and the Razorbacks would have to sweep the S. M. U. series.

The Aggie victory over the Owls showed Jimmy Kitts' team below the 500 mark. It was Rice's third straight defeat in five nights. The Aggies jumped into the lead early in the game and at the half led 24-15.

The Italian river, now the Fiumicino, is known to be the Rubicon, ancient boundary between Gaul and the Roman Empire. Julius Caesar, by crossing it in 49 B. C. declared civil war.

George O'Brien and Mary Brian give a graphic portrayal of what has been happening "Ever Since Eve," in the Fox production of that title, featuring the two players.

Dance Revue Held At Yucca Tonight

In the polychrome lights thrown on the stage tonight by the Yucca's color wheel, Bob Cooper, well known stage and night club entertainer, and Miss Alma Lee Hankins will dance what probably is the most languorous routine ever evolved for the stage—the Argentine tango.

The stage program, which is presented through the direction of Cooper, is in addition to the screen program offered at the big playhouse.

Other features of the special program offer Mrs. Don Quarles, lyric soprano, in a popular song; Miss Nell Hornsby in a rhythmic dance; Cooper in a fast buck dance, and Miss Jamie McMullan in an acrobatic dance number.

Oil Is Rising in Ector Outpost

Two thousand feet of oil rose in Continental Oil company No. 1 Holt Northern Ector county test, after operators encountered two streaks of pay in the zone section from 4,263 to 4,271 and from 4,273 to 4,283 feet.

Operators drilled to 4,290 feet and will place the well on swab test for a few days before deciding whether to shoot or treat with acid.

Continental No. 1 Holt is in section 20, block A, public school land, and an offset to a producer drilled by Landreth Production company.

Stanolind Oil and Gas company No. 4 J. M. Cowden estate, in section 27, block 43, township 1 north, T. & P. Railway survey, is still delayed at 4,045 feet where tools were lost. 5,057,320 Bbls. Yates Potential

The new proration schedule on the Yates pool, Pecos county, was issued and made effective at 7 a. m. March 1. The schedule allows a total of 436 wells, with a 12-hour potential production of 2,528,660 barrels. This figure has been increased from 2,419,355 barrels, as shown on the February schedule. The allowable for the pool remains at 41,500 barrels per day, but a new schedule was necessitated because of new wells. Proration in the Yates pool is based on 12-hour figures because of the lack of storage room in the field for 24-hour tests. The 24-hour potential, based on the 12-hour gauge, would be 5,057,320 barrels daily.

Chickens—Turkeys

Don't wait and have diseased fowls from worms—and losses from blood-sucking lice, mites, fleas and blue bugs this spring. Begin NOW to give STAR PARASITIC REMOVER in their drinking water for both fowls and baby chicks. It will keep them free of these destructive parasites, their system toned up, their health and egg production good at a very small cost—or money refunded. City Drug Store. (Adv.)

Sought Divorce but She Found Romance

Another true story, crammed with human interest and centered around a young love which narrowly missed the divorce courts, provides the theme for the March 7 radio program sponsored by Continental Oil company over 27 N.B.C. stations.

But the name of the young woman who submitted this narrative to Conoco will remain a secret, for her sudden motor trip from Kansas City to Hot Springs, Ark. which is to be dramatized, is filled with intimate facts and might easily have resulted in matrimonial tragedy.

Funny situations, beautiful scenic descriptions, a gypsy Bluebeard and a treacherous lawyer also have a part in this cross section of real life. Irving Talbot's 20-piece orchestra and sideliights by the "Old Traveler" add further variety.

Radio fans who wish to listen in on this Conoco program, Wednesday night, may dial the closest N.B.C. station being used at 8:30 to 9 Mountain time, 9:30 to 10 Central time, or 10:30 to 11 Eastern time.

AGGIES TIE FOR SECOND PLACE

Team	W	L	Pct.
T. C. U.	10	2	.833
A. & M.	7	4	.636
Arkansas	5	5	.500
Rice	5	6	.455
Texas	4	6	.400
S. M. U.	4	4	.500
Baylor	2	9	.182

Defeating the Rice Owls, 40-36, in College Station Wednesday night, the A. & M. Aggies made sure of at least a tie for second place in the Southwest conference cage rankings. The Arkansas Razorbacks have an outside chance at a second-place deadlock but that chance is slim.

Four more games will be played in the circuit, Friday and Saturday nights. S. M. U. meets Arkansas in Fayetteville. Saturday night Baylor meets Rice in Houston and the Aggies entertain the Texas Longhorns in College Station. For Arkansas to get a tie the Aggies would have to lose to Texas and the Razorbacks would have to sweep the S. M. U. series.

The Aggie victory over the Owls showed Jimmy Kitts' team below the 500 mark. It was Rice's third straight defeat in five nights. The Aggies jumped into the lead early in the game and at the half led 24-15.
