Screening at DFW airport to expand
DALLAS (AP) — A national program that tracks foreign visitors is being expanded to include visitors from the United Kingdom, Japan and 25 other previously exempt nations.

The screening, which using fingerprints and photographs, begins Thursday and will apply to about 33,000 additional people entering and leaving the United States daily. About 600 of them will enter and leave the country from the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

The additional screenings are the first of several efforts to meet a 9-11 commission recommendation to extend the use of biometrics, such as fingerprints, to monitor foreigners entering and leaving the country.

"It's one of the first programs that really seriously said we're going to use biometrics," said Shonnie Lyon, director of implementation management for the program, known as US-VISIT, or U.S. Visitor and Immigrant Status Indicator Technology.

Texas A&M University sells buses on eBay
HOUSTON (AP) — Add Texas A&M to the growing list of colleges and universities selling surplus equipment on online auction giant eBay.

Texas A&M sold three buses in a weeklong auction for $5,900, and now wants to sell 22 more.

"It's cool. It far exceeded our posted expectations," said Paul Barzak, assistant director of the university's Department of Purchasing Services, in Monday's editions of the Houston Chronicle. Bids started at $500 each.

Universities are turning to eBay to sell surplus items, some of which might be junked otherwise.

No turn signal tips DPS to pot bust

If two Arizona men planned to meet someone in St. Louis, they're probably going to be late.

Marcus A. Lee, 24, Scottsdale, Ariz., and

Richard McCuin, 27, Chandler, Ariz., were east-bound on Interstate 40 in Gray County Sunday when Texas Department of Public Safety troopers stopped them at 2:57 p.m. at Mile Marker 134 for alleged failure to signal a lane change, according to a DPS spokesperson.

They said they were on their way to St. Louis, Mo., the spokesperson said.

Troopers received verbal permission to search the men's 2001 Chevrolet sport utility vehicle, and discovered seven "large" bundles of marijuana in the back seat and the cargo area of the vehicle, the spokesperson said.

Both men were booked into Gray County Jail, and each was charged with possession of over 50 pounds of marijuana, according to jail records.

Lee and McCuin remained in jail as of press time today in lieu of bond, said a jail spokesperson.

Lee's bond was set at $10,000, and McCuin's at $15,000, the jail spokesperson said.

Guthrie's letter to baby goes on display

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

When Thelma Bray, the founder of Pampa's Tribute to Woody Guthrie, wrote her book on the legendary folk singer in 2001, she included a never-before-published letter from Guthrie to his new niece, Mary Ann Guthrie, greeting her, as he put it, into this new world.

The following spring, Bray received a letter from Lee Ward of Tulsa, explaining that he had bought her book at a Woody Guthrie exhibit in Oklahoma City. In the book, "Reflections: The Life and Times of Woody Guthrie," he had read Guthrie's letter to his niece.

"My grandfather was a friend of Woody's from Okemah, Okla.," Ward said in his missive to Bray. "Woody wrote my mother a similar letter when she was born."

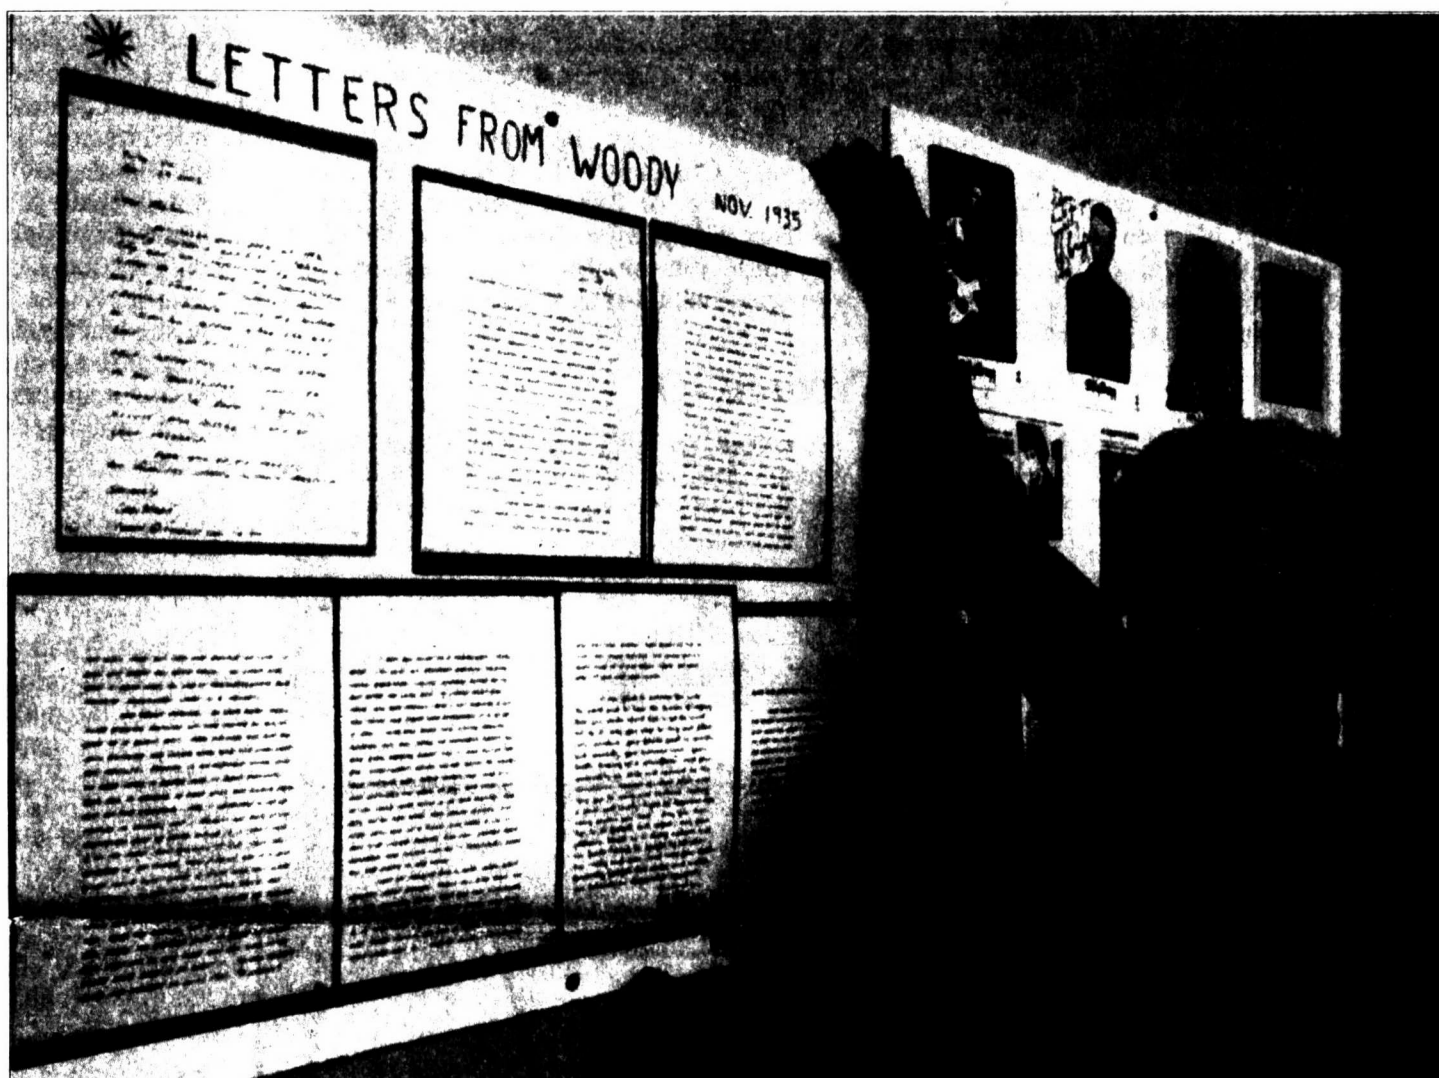

Ward enclosed a copy of the letter that Guthrie has written to his mother when she was an infant.

"I received it in the year 2002, and it's been in a notebook at my house," Bray said. "I decided it needed to be on public display. That way people can see it."

She's mounted the letter and placed it on display at the Woody Guthrie Folk Music Center, 320 S. Cuyler, in time for the 2004 Tribute to Woody Guthrie.

Held annually on the anniversary of Guthrie's death in 1967, this year's celebration includes Anna Canoni, Woody Guthrie's granddaughter, and The Vanaver Caravan, a troupe of musicians, singers and dancers who perform to Guthrie's music.

Guthrie was 17 when he arrived in Pampa in 1929. It was while working at Shorty Harris' drug store that Guthrie found and repaired a broken guitar. His Uncle Jeff Guthrie, who lived in Pampa, taught him to play.

Thelma Bray, founder of Pampa's Tribute to Woody Guthrie, displays a copy of a letter from the folk singer, written in Pampa in 1935 and sent to a friend in Oklahoma.

Woodrow Wilson Guthrie went on to reach international fame as a folk singer, poet and composer after getting his start in Pampa.

Ward was invited to this week's tribute to Woody Guthrie in Pampa, but apparently won't be here for the celebration. The invitation to him was returned with no forwarding address.

"I'm concerned since it was returned," Bray said.

She said the original letter, while already prized by Ward's family, is a rare document.

The five-page letter, dated Nov. 22, 1935, is similar in many respects to the 10-page letter Guthrie wrote to his niece on Feb. 2, 1935.

A separate page is addressed to Ward's grandfather, Max Dossey, his wife and their new baby, Ward's mother. In the family letter, Guthrie talks about his first child, Gwendolyn Gale, born Oct. 5, 1935.

"We are delighted," Guthrie said in the letter. "It is life's climax. I know it is the high tide of content to see the little misses thrive. Our is a bit over six weeks old, 23 inches long and she weighs now 11 pounds."

"That was their first baby," Bray said.

2004-2005 budget approval on city's agenda for Tuesday

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

Pampa City Commission is expected to approved their budget Tuesday for the 2004-2005 fiscal year.

The commission is scheduled to consider on second and final reading the ordinances that would set the budget and set the tax rate for the new fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

The tax rate for the new fiscal year will remain the same as this past year.

It is $0.695 per $100 valuation.

The commission will also consider on second and final reading rates for solid waste disposal, monthly sewer rates and disposal of tires.

The new monthly rate for residential trash pickup within the city limits is $13.90.

The city is proposing to increase the monthly sewer rate by $1.15, bringing the base rate for 2,000 gallons to $10.22.

The ordinance dealing with tires essentially refines the city's definition of used and scrap tires.

The commission will hear the first reading of an ordinance dealing with the operation, use and fees for M.K. Brown Auditorium.

They will also hear an update on roof repairs for the auditorium along with reports on budget comparisons and water sales to Lubbock.

The commission will also review the city's August payment of bills totaling $1,714,628.85.

The city's checkbook balance after the bills were paid as of the end of August was $739,630.99.

Church donation benefits OEM

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Trinity Fellowship Church of Pampa has donated $5,000 to Pampa's Office of Emergency Management which will be used to buy cameras and construct transponders, according to Ken Hall, Pampa/Gray County Emergency Management coordinator.

"They just wanted to make a donation to the emergency management office for whatever project we wanted to work on. We started looking at things we'd like to do, and came up with this," Hall said.

Three cameras are planned for use in Pampa, and an additional camera will be placed in each of the cities of McLean and Lefors, Hall said.

One camera is currently mounted on the roof of Pampa City Hall and is used to monitor the approach of severe weather.

"It was decided that having more strategically located cameras would allow Pampa's Emergency Operations Center staff to monitor transportation and other industrial incidents. It will also allow us to view any wildfires that may occur in the area around Pampa," Hall said.

The new cameras will be similar to ones currently in use in the Borger area. A group of employees from Pampa Fire Department and Pampa Police Department recently traveled to Borger to view a camera that is currently being used in Borger's emergency operations center, Hall said.

"This camera is capable of being panned out into the county to view not only severe weather, but also any other types of man-made or natural disaster occurring in the vicinity around their community," Hall said.

After consulting with officials from the cities of McLean and Lefors, "it was decided that strategically locating cameras in each city would enhance the preparedness and warning capability for each community," he said.

"More than likely, I'm going to allow the National Weather Service in Amarillo to have access to one of these cameras," Hall said.

The transponders are also items currently in use in Borger, Hall said. The transponders are not available ready-built; they must be put together from components.

The Pampa/Gray County Office of Emergency Management and the Gray County Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC) plan to place transponders in storm spotter and other emergency response vehicles.

The transponders will allow Emergency Operations Center staff and local incident commanders in Pampa to see the location of each vehicle on a computer-generated map displayed on a computer monitor. Accuracy of the mapped locations is within 10 feet of the vehicle's actual position, Hall said.

"By being able to do this, emergency responders will be able to be moved or reassigned when they are in harm's way from severe weather or other hazardous incidents," he said.

Cost of the new cameras is $2,300 each, Hall said. He did not have exact figures for the cost of each transponder.

"Until I build one, I won't know exactly how much it costs per transponder," he said.

The transponders also require the proper software to be of use, he said.

In addition to the $5,000 donation from Trinity Fellowship Church, the LEPC has a certificate of deposit valued at approximately $25,000, which will also be applied toward the two-phase project, Hall said.

The cameras will be bought first, and with the balance left from the $30,000, Hall estimates that 24 transponders can be built.

"For everyone in the county, we'll need 60 units," he said. "We'd love to be able to equip every emergency response unit in the county."

Total cost of the cameras and transponders is projected to be $45,000, Hall said.

Don't use God's name for political purposes

What idiot came up with this one?

The U.S. House of Representatives, never a group known for their smarts, has outdone itself.

The House voted last week to prevent federal courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court, from hearing cases challenging the words "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Now how long do you think it will take some federal judge to rule that's unconstitutional?

There's the small problem with the bill. It's called the separation of powers. But then I question whether many of our esteemed lawmakers have read that document. There are times that I question whether they can read.

According to the Associated Press, the legislation was introduced by GOP conservatives in an effort to embarrass those godless Democrats in an election year.

Apparently, our elected representatives would rather play political games with God than face some of the more pressing problems they seemingly refuse to deal with.

Personally, I find it offensive that two-bit politicians would stoop to using God's name for an election ploy. As far as I am concerned, that is taking God's name in vain.

Of course, the words "under God" were a political maneuver when they were added to the pledge of allegiance.

I'm old enough to remember when "under God" wasn't part of the pledge.

I was in grade school when Congress decided in the 1950s to add the words so it would distinguish us from the godless commies. It was at the height of the Cold War and McCarthyism. Sen. Joe McCarthy, R-Wisconsin, now there was a true American hero for you!

Long ago, I came to the conclusion that God made man, but man made religion. What I feel should pull mankind together is used by politicians around the world to drive us a part. I suspect it has little to do with God.

I have been to Israel and Ireland. I have seen first hand what religion can do to neighbors. After walking the streets of Jerusalem and Belfast, I thanked God that I live in the United States where I have the freedom to worship as I please.

I have a deep and abiding faith in God. We've been through a lot together, and I wouldn't have made it without Him, but my relation with God is not the business of the United States Congress.

In the end, this exercise of the absurd on the part of the House of Representatives, one of many, will have two results.

It won't go anywhere, even to the Supreme Court, because the U.S. Senate, those other people on Capitol Hill who each thinks he or she ought to be President, has indicated they won't consider it this year, and, truly, the Pharisees who pray on the street corners and on the floor of Congress have gained their reward.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Sept. 27, the 271st day of 2004. There are 95 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Forty years ago, on Sept. 27, 1964, the Warren Commission issued a report concluding that Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone in assassinating President Kennedy.

On this date:

In 1779, John Adams was named to negotiate the Revolutionary War's peace terms with Britain.

In 1854, the first great disaster involving an Atlantic Ocean liner occurred when the steamship "Arctic" sank with 300 people aboard.

In 1928, the United States said it was recognizing the Nationalist Chinese government.

In 1939, Warsaw, Poland, surrendered after weeks of resistance to invading forces from Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union during World War II.

In 1942, Glenn Miller and his Orchestra performed together for the last time, at the Central Theater in Passaic, N.J., prior to Miller's entry into the Army.

In 1954, "Tonight!" hosted by Steve Allen, made its debut on NBC.

In 1959, a typhoon battered the main Japanese island of Honshu, killing nearly 5,000 people.

In 1979, Congress gave final approval to forming the Department of Education, the 13th Cabinet agency in U.S. history.

In 1989, Columbia Pictures Entertainment Inc. agreed to a $3.4 billion cash buyout by Sony Corp.

In 1995, the government unveiled its redesigned $100 bill, featuring a larger, off-center portrait of Benjamin Franklin.

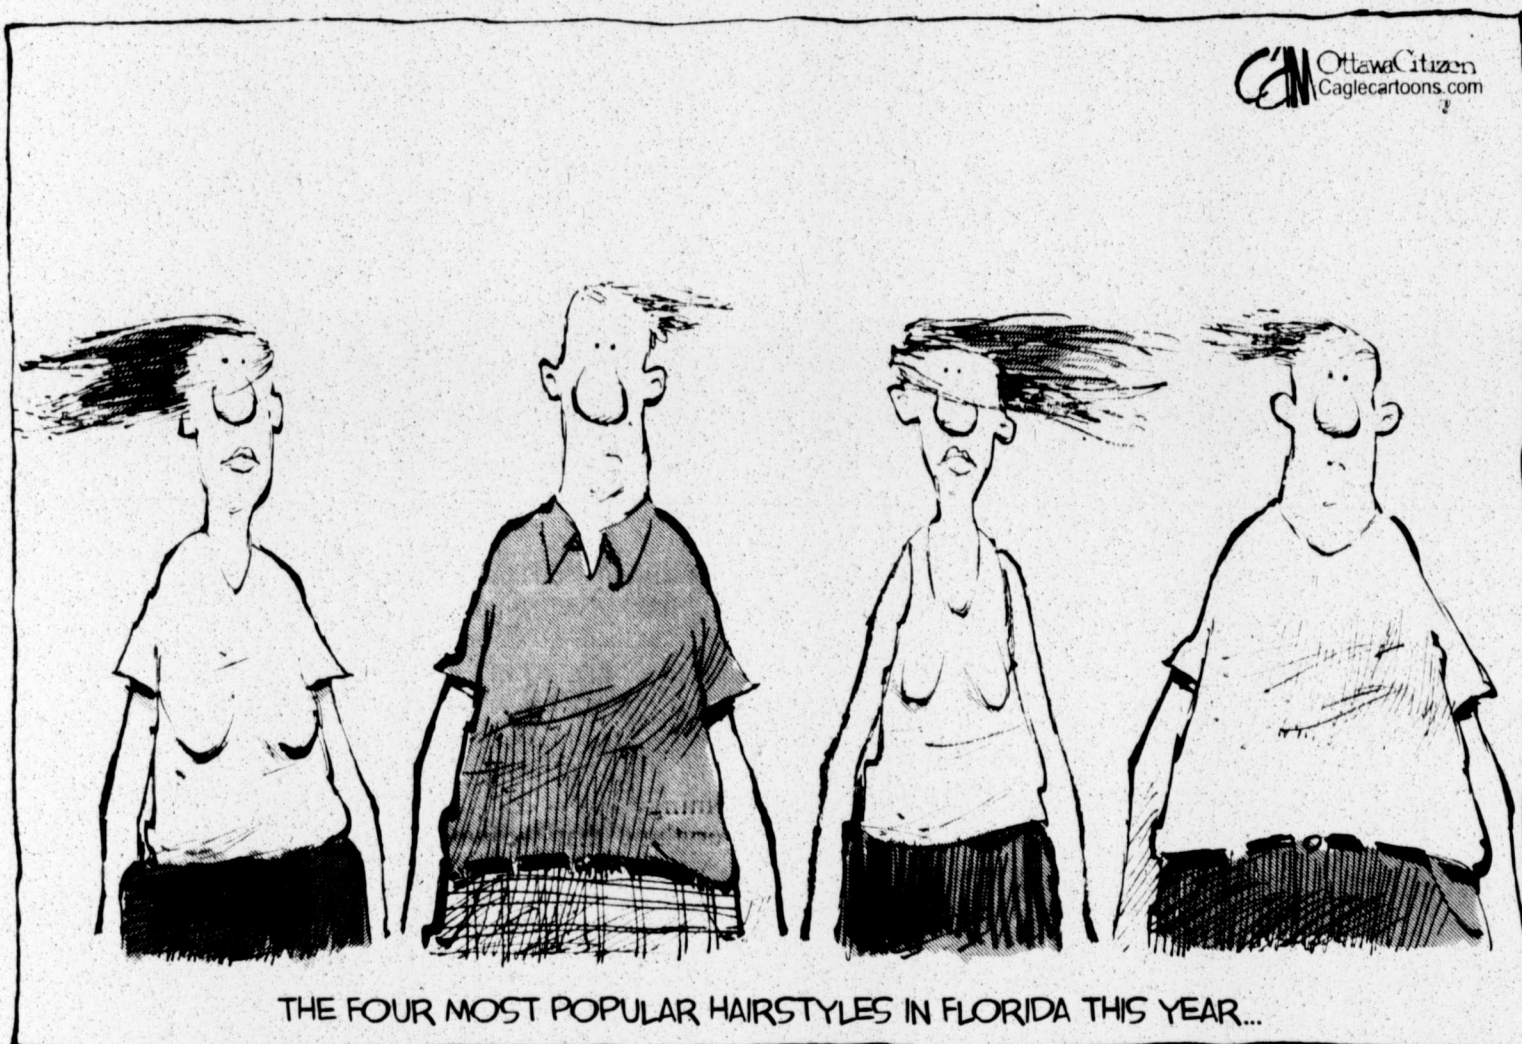

Ten years ago: More than 350 Republican congressional candidates gathered on the steps of the U.S. Capitol to sign the "Contract with America," a 10-point platform they pledged to enact if voters sent a GOP majority to the House.

Five years ago: Arizona Sen. John McCain officially opened his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, the same day former Vice President Dan Quayle dropped his White House bid. Tiger Stadium closed in grand fashion after 87 years as the Tigers beat the Kansas City Royals, 8-2.

One year ago: President Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin urged Iran and North Korea to abandon suspected nuclear-weapons programs, but disagreed over how to deal with both countries; Putin also declined at the end of a two-day summit at Camp David to pledge any postwar help for Iraq.

Writing from the hurricane zone

If I put datelines on the column, this one would be "In Between Hurricanes." As I write this, Florida has been socked by three hurricanes in five weeks, and the last one, Ivan, was one nasty storm. Fortunately I missed that one, though I rode out the other two.

The Pensacola area, which got the worst of Ivan, looks like a war zone. Big chunks of a concrete Interstate 10 bridge were knocked out, and train tracks on the shoreline twisted like wet noodles. And all that was in the Escambia Bay, several miles from the Gulf of Mexico. I spent many years living around that bay, and it's hard to visualize waves large enough to do the damage that was done.

Those lucky enough not to be where hurricanes are have to rely on the media to get an idea of what they do. If you would like to see the power of a hurricane, go to www.gulfcoastgateway.com. This is the Web site of the Pensacola News Journal, my old alma mater. The newspaper has used its Web site better than anyone I've ever seen, and it has gallery after gallery of pictures showing the damage. The staff members did a fine job and performed a great service to their readers, even though some of the staff lost their homes during the storm, and the newspaper itself was damaged.

It's ironic that television, a visual medium, does such a poor job that you have to rely on the print media to get a good view of a storm's damage. Television has misled itself with its star system. It seems important to TV networks to show people "live" standing in the rain and yapping. After the storm passes, you get to see the same people "live" standing in one spot talking about damage they never get around to showing you. Television has become just another form of talk radio, which is perhaps why so many of its "stars" are graduates of that field.

The other problem television has is the fidgets. It jumps from one topic to

Other issues take back seat to Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and Democrat John Kerry are concentrating on Iraq and relegating other international issues to the sidelines. Their preoccupation is not lost on other world leaders.

Iran is busy enriching uranium. North Korea has put off six-nation nuclear talks and may be planning missile tests. Russian President Vladimir Putin is cracking down on dissenting voices. Chinese President Hu Jintao is consolidating power. The Middle East "road map" peace process begun by Bush in 2003 seems moribund.

Some of these topics may come up on Thursday in the first presidential debate, which is to focus on foreign policy and national security. But Iraq and the broader fight against terrorism still will be the main events.

Other issues, including domestic ones championed by Democrats, have ducked for cover in a crossfire of harsh and increasingly personal attacks between the two candidates over Iraq and anti-terrorism policy.

Washington

Tom Raum

Kerry does charge that Bush's Iraq policies "took our attention and our resources away" from dealing with North Korea, Iran and Afghanistan. Bush does cite upcoming elections in Afghanistan and his hopes for a more democratic Middle East.

But for the most part, both the president and the Massachusetts senator dwell on Iraq and the battle against terrorism as they campaign.

As Bush and Kerry sparred over Iraq:

— North Korea put off a planned September resumption of six-nation talks on its nuclear program. The communist nation reportedly told China it wants to see who wins the U.S. election. North Korea also alarmed other countries by making possible preparations for ballistic missile tests.

— Iran defied rules set by 35 nations and announced it has started converting raw uranium into the gas needed for enrichment, a process that can be used to make another like a grasshopper on hot pavement. While the cleanup from the storm is just beginning, television this past week was all in a lather about Dan Rather and his Texas National Guard story.

At any rate, the only way to get a good idea of a storm's devastation is with aerial views, and the Pensacola newspaper supplies plenty of them on its Web site. Hurricanes are like enormous tornadoes. Ivan's hurricane-force winds extended 100 miles from the eye, creating a 200-mile-wide swath of damage. And, of course, it caused more misery inland with flooding rains.

It will be tempting for some to blame this year's tropical-storm traffic on global warming, but respected climatologists say it isn't so. Hurricanes seem to run in cycles, and it just seems to be Florida's turn in the cycle.

Going back 100 years, the Carolinas have been hit by far more hurricanes than Florida has.

The idea of wild storms caused by sudden climate change makes for a good movie, but the facts don't bear it out — so far. Floridians have just run out of their long stretch of good luck in regard to tropical storms.

Storms, like everything else, create their own clichés. "We will rebuild" is one of them. Like a lot of clichés, it's true. People will rebuild, as people have been doing throughout mankind's history. Whether it be fire, plague, storm or volcanic eruption, people always recover and rebuild. Human beings are a resilient species.

It's useful for us all to remember that. We have short, mostly insignificant roles in the long play of human history. Only fanatics believe the fate of mankind rests on their shoulders, and they are all crazy. As Ernest Hemingway once put it, everything that we have to endure, others have endured before us.

Endure and persevere is what every generation of human beings has done and will continue to do. It's true that there's nothing we can do to stop a mighty force of nature like a hurricane, but it's also true that there is nothing a hurricane can do to prevent people from rebuilding everything that was destroyed.

And, needless to say, as I write this I am "live" in my office.

nuclear weapons. While insisting its intentions are peaceful, Iran pledged to proceed even if it means a rupture with U.N. monitors and an end to inspections of its nuclear facilities.

Putin took steps to enhance his own powers and roll back some democratic reforms, citing the need to improve security after hundreds of people died in a school seized by terrorists. The Russian leader continues to link his government's battles with rebels in Chechnya with the broader fight against terrorism.

China's Jiang Zemin gave up his post as military chief to Hu, enabling Hu to consolidate power. China continued to maintain a hard line on democracy movements in Hong Kong and Taiwan as it struggled to keep its economy from overheating.

Pakistan's president, Pervez Musharraf, an important ally in the terrorism fight, indicated he might not relinquish his army uniform. The general who seized power in a 1999 coup had pledged to relinquish his separate role as army chief by year's end.

Many of these developments have so far flown under the radar of U.S. presidential politics.

As to Russia, Bush did voice concerns about the undermining of democracy there. Neither candidate, however, is talking about worries over Russian democracy on the campaign trail.

"If I were advising John Kerry, I would take the Putin issue and ram it home," said Ivo Daalder, a foreign policy scholar at the Brookings Institution who has advised Democratic candidates in the past. "Putin has allowed creeping authoritarianism to take place."

North Korea and Iran appear to be thumbing their noses at the United States.

"North Korea is finding reasons to delay getting on with the next round of talks," Secretary of State Colin Powell said. "You can speculate as well as I can the causes of that delay. Maybe they're waiting for the United States election to be over."

Daryl Kimball, executive director of the U.S. Arms Control Association, said the campaign has drawn the administration's attention away from North Korea, Iran and other potential hot spots.

Also missing from the race is "how the two candidates would deal with the broader threat of weapons of mass destruction," Kimball said.

The head of the U.N. atomic watchdog agency said last week that more than 40 countries now have the know-how to produce nuclear weapons.

If Bush and Kerry are not paying much attention to international issues beyond Iraq, the reverse cannot be claimed. Leaders around the world are closely following the U.S. election.

"I think the world watches America," Bush said this week.

Tom Raum has covered Washington for The Associated Press since 1973, including five presidencies.

THE PAMPA NEWS COMICS

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Ned," and I have been having the same argument for years. I care for our kids and handle all the housework. The only chore I refuse to do is mow the lawn.

Every spring, I buy flowers, plants, trees and herbs to plant around our large yard. I plant them, mark where they are, do the watering and weeding, and show Ned where I've planted them. Without fail, in the middle of summer when my plants are flourishing, my husband will mow them over.

The first few times it happened, he said, "Oops! I didn't see them." Later, he admitted he didn't feel he should have to bother remembering where I planted and go around them. I think he acts this way because he wants me to take over the mowing.

It hurts me that Ned would deliberately destroy something I care about. I feel like he's trying to destroy part of my personality, and it makes me really depressed.

If you're wondering why I refuse to mow, it's because I do EVERYTHING else. My list of chores is already endless. I also think it's particularly mean of Ned to wait until my plants are established and growing beautifully before he mows them. What do you think?

READY TO TRANS-PLANT, ST. JOSEPH, MO.

DEAR READY: It appears you are married to a horticultural grim reaper. Since you have enough to do without adding mowing to your list of chores, a practical alternative might be to hire a neighborhood teenager to do the mowing next summer. If that's not feasible, consider placing a decorative medium-sized rock border around your planted areas so your husband can't mow them down. (Hoe-hoe-hoe!)

DEAR ABBY: I am a receptionist in a law firm. There are times when I am very busy, but there are long stretches when there is nothing to do.

Is it proper for me to read during the downtime? I feel awkward when my boss sees me reading.

— BORED ON THE JOB

DEAR BORED: Ask your boss if there are other tasks he or she would like you to do at your desk during the slow periods, or if there is any objection to your reading. If there is no objection, sign up for night classes and use the downtime to study. In no time at all, you could upgrade your skills and possibly your salary.

DEAR ABBY: Is it just me, or has the world gone "tip crazy"? I find tip baskets on the counter at the local coffee house, the yogurt shop, the juice shop -- even near the cash register in the cafeteria in my office building.

It seems that even though these people are paid to perform these particular services, they think they should be tipped on top of it. Where will it end? Should I expect tip canisters at the doctor's office, my car mechanic's or the post office? I can't afford to tip everyone I come in contact with. What is proper tip protocol now?

— ALL TIPPED OUT

DEAR ALL TIPPED OUT: Tipping is discretionary; it is not required. Employees doing counter work are paid minimum wage and need the money. If the service is cheerful, prompt and efficient, put some change in the tip jar. If you can't afford to tip and doing so would cause you hardship, don't do it.

GORDON SWAN SONG

Robby Gordon on way out

September 27, 2004. Mark this date on your calendar as the day you read about the predicted demise of a stock car sport star (term used loosely).

NASCAR Nextel Cup driver Robby Gordon, driver of the Richard Childress Racing #31 car, will be given his walking papers at the end of the season. Provided he lasts that long.

Gordon, whose team is sponsored by Cingular Wireless, has never flourished in this form of racing. He has had success in Sports Car, Indy Car and Off-Road races. Any hint of success in NASCAR Winston/Nextel Cup has been limited to road courses for the most part. However, he carries the ego and attitude of a driver who has been around this sport for many years. Drivers like Rusty Wallace, Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough and Dale Earnhardt. The most glaring difference between Gordon and the others is, they earned both their reputations, as well as the respect they received from their fellow drivers. Gordon has not. Never will.

Gordon has been nothing but a mediocre driver in this division. Too often he has tried to mask his shortcomings with a "Bad Boy" persona. It has never worked. And it appears lately, he has finally come to realize he may not be as talented as he once thought. This in turn has triggered some sort of self-destruct mechanism that has caused him to do some absolutely foolish things in the past couple weeks.

In New Hampshire a couple weeks ago, Gordon made a move on Greg Biffle in retaliation for an earlier incident. Problem is, he took out two contenders for the NASCAR Nextel Cup Championship. To make things worse, he keyed his two-way radio and vowed, "I'll get him back." Gordon has a history of this kind of on-track behavior. He was put on probation a few days later by team owner, Richard Childress. That probation is to last the rest of the season. Effectively, eight more weeks. He had some woes in Dover yesterday as well.

Michael J. Stevens
Sports Editor

Gordon is part of an odd breed. He believes his talent is far more than it really is and simply will not accept it is anything less. He is quicker with an excuse or blame than he is with an apology. The only time he apologizes for his lack of skill or on-track stupidity, is when he is being punished by either NASCAR, RCR or both.

He has cried wolf too many times. I believe Childress placed Gordon on probation for the rest of the season so that he can salvage his team's Cingular sponsorship and weather the Robby Gordon storm one last time. One of the first moves he will make at the end of the season will be to release Gordon, if not sooner. Possible replacements? Dave Blaney has great skill in the cockpit. He has proven this with teams that had far less than Gordon to work with. It might also be fun to see what Jimmie Spencer could do with a well financed team such as RCR. And there are plenty of 'young guns' in the Busch and Craftsman Truck series from which to choose as well.

As for Gordon? He has cooties so far as NASCAR is concerned. Only a team desperate for any kind of experience would accept him and his baggage.

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS

The Pampa 7th and 8th grade football teams take to the field tomorrow against Dumas.

The 7th grade team will host Dumas with the B-team to kick things off at 5 p.m. The A-team will follow at 7 p.m. Both teams are coming off tough losses last week at the hands of Canyon. The A-team enters tomorrow with a 1-1 record while the B-team is looking for its first win of the season.

The 8th grade team travels to Dumas tomorrow. The B-team kicks off at 5 p.m. with the A-team to follow at 7 p.m.

The A-team is coming off an impressive performance, shutting out Canyon last week, 28-0. Madison Wilson and Sergio Salazar had touchdown runs of 30 and 25 yards respectively. The A-team is undefeated so far this season.

The B-team lost to Canyon 14-0, but showed strength on defense and hopes to even its mark to 2-2 following tomorrow's game.

The Pampa High School 9th grade teams hosts Palo Duro at 5 p.m. this Thursday. The JV team will travel to Plainview that afternoon. The Varsity team will host Plainview Friday night.

Lady Harvester volleyball team looks to bounce back against Palo Duro

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

The Pampa volleyball team went looking to its second district win in less than a week in Hereford this past Saturday. Unfortunately, the effort fell short of the goal.

Hereford managed to stop Pampa with a 25-7, 25-19, 25-19 District 3-4A win to improve its record to 18-14, 2-0.

Pampa falls to 7-17, 1-1.

The Lady Harvesters next face Palo Duro at home tomorrow night. Game time is 6 p.m. A win against the Lady Dons would be a district and emotional boost as Coach Shannon Stroud and her team prepare to travel to Dumas on Saturday.

Singh surpasses Woods again

FARMINGTON, Pa. (AP) — When Vijay Singh started out as a pro golfer more than 20 years ago, $10 million seemed an unreachable goal.

For his career.

One more victory — and, the way he's playing, that could be only one more tournament away — and Singh will become the first to win $10 million in one year, a figure even Tiger Woods hasn't reached.

Singh held off Stewart Cink's fast finish to win the 84 Lumber Classic by one shot Sunday and break Woods' one-year PGA Tour money record with his fifth victory in six tournaments. Even by the remarkable standards Woods set in 2000, it's been quite a year for the man who only recently ended Woods' five years-plus run as the world's No. 1.

"He's going nuts," John Daly said.

Singh's eighth championship in 26 events this year pushed his earnings to $9,455,566, surpassing the $9,188,321 Woods made while winning nine times — including three of the four majors — in 20 events in 2000.

It's a record Singh never expected to set, possibly because the money became secondary years ago to a golfer who has won 45 tournaments world wide.

"Starting off my career, it was definitely the money that I was concerned about," said Singh, who joined Cink as the only other player this year to lead a tournament from the first round through the last. "But, right now, I'm more into playing well and winning tournaments."

Right now, that's almost every week.

Singh has won three times this month, also taking the Deutsche Bank Championship and the Canadian Open, and his five wins in six tournaments is the PGA's best stretch since Woods won six in a row to end 1999 and start 2000.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Sept. 28, 2004:

You will waiver a lot when deciding whether to do what you want to do or what you think you should do. Follow your impulses this year, because you will be very lucky. Also, if you follow your intellectual thinking and it backfires, you will be very unhappy with yourself. You will make a lot of money, but also spend a lot. You will need to set boundaries for yourself and for others. You will have a tendency to go to extremes in nearly all realms of your life, especially in the next few months. If you are single, you will have a slew of admirers. You are likely to meet someone who could be very important to your life. If you are attached, do not dominate your partner. Remember, it is a 50-50 partnership. ARIES can trigger you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You greet the Harvest Full Moon with a smile, though hopefully you haven't tossed and turned too much in your sleep. You will need your energy, as you are a pivotal factor in the day of others. Listen to another's words, but know that feelings run even deeper. Tonight: Could be dreamy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ You might have had your fill of others' demands, but be prepared. Today's Full Moon might have you hiding away, or at least closing your door. The good news is that your excellent work will be noticed. Tonight: Yawn -- get some sleep.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Where your friends are is where you want to be. Avoid being the office chatterbox; instead, handle calls and schedule a meeting today. You are a sure-bet winner. Please note someone's crush on you. Tonight: Relish every waking hour with those you care about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ A boss or someone you have to answer to could be a tough cookie. Do your best and understand that stress will happen, especially as you feel like a stretched rubber band. You get more support from a roommate or dear friend than you had anticipated. Tonight: Scurry home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You will be encouraged to figure out what others see as a stop sign. After asking some questions, you will be able to come up with a solution easily. Someone close lets you know how he or she feels. Tonight: Let your mind wander.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Know when to clear out of a losing proposition. You might not see all the problems around a financial venture or risk. Minimize risking to what you can afford to lose. Write agreements today. Don't go for verbal. Tonight: Buy flowers. Make someone's day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You can be clear, direct and affectionate, but others seem out of control, as if they aren't listening. Touch base with all the "others" in your life. Perhaps go out at lunchtime and buy a slew of cards. Tonight: Mail the cards before you go off and join a fun loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ You might want to toss your hands in the air, as so much is going around you. Unfortunately, with the Full Moon, you have very little control.

Listen to your inner voice, and give others the benefit of the doubt. Tonight: Choose a stress-buster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You see events and discussions as challenging at worst or somewhat humorous at best. Don't share your light perspective, but help others lighten up. Your strength remains throughout meetings, groups and letting your creativity flourish. Tonight: Ever so flirtatious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ Everyone and everything appears to be in a whirlwind. Be smart and pull yourself out before you get caught up in the many pressures and demands. You will be a lot better off. Emphasize image and work. Tonight: Stay chilled out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You delight many with your wit and your fun ideas. You are like a breath of fresh air for many. Listen and think through a problem that might involve a loved one at a distance. Make a call to explore your options. Tonight: As always, be spontaneous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Be extremely careful handling your funds, even though someone might be far more generous than you realize. Think carefully about your long-term desires with a partner. Don't worry about him or her so much. Tonight: Make sure money doesn't slip through your fingers.

Security alert, more arrests after al-Qaida suspect killed

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Police stepped up patrols around foreign consulates and government offices in this volatile city Monday, fearing a backlash after Pakistani forces killed a suspected top al-Qaida operative wanted for his alleged role in the 2002 kidnapping and beheading of Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl.

Amjad Hussain Farooqi, also accused in two attempts on the life of President Gen. Pervez Musharraf in December 2003, died in a four-hour shootout Sunday at a house in the southern town of Nawabshah. Two or three other men were arrested. Like Farooqi, they are all Pakistanis.

"We eliminated one of the very major sources of terrorist attacks. He was not only involved on attacks on me but also on attacks elsewhere in the country. So a very big terrorist has been eliminated," Musharraf told reporters in the Netherlands while en route home from addressing the United Nations General Assembly.

"Together with him, there have been some other arrests and we will get a lot of useful information leading to further arrests and eliminations. I am very sure," he said.

On Monday, the investigation expanded to include the arrest of three other suspected Islamic militants in Sukkur, a town not far from Nawabshah. One was identified as Khalid Ansari, alleged to have ties to the Sunni Muslim group Jaish-e-Mohammed.

Police said the men were blindfolded and led away by intelligence officials as security forces using loudspeakers warned residents to stay indoors.

A fourth man was arrested in Mirpurkhas, another town in the region, said Syed Kamal Shah, the provincial police chief. He said the man is Pakistani and authorities believe him to be important.

Fayyaz Leghari, deputy chief of police in Karachi, a hotbed for Islamic militants, said the city was on "red alert." As well as stepping up patrols around foreign consulates and key government offices, police posted more plainclothes officers at sensitive locations.

"We have alerted police throughout the province" to be on heightened readiness, said Rauf Siddiqi, the top security official in Sindh province, where the operation was launched.

The U.S. Embassy in Islamabad issued a renewed travel warning, urging U.S. citizens in Pakistan not to venture out of major urban centers, saying embassy staff may not be able to help those that do.

In Washington, a U.S. official who described Farooqi as a key al-Qaida figure said the government could not yet confirm he had been killed, but that it appeared to be the case. Pakistani officials said they were awaiting the results of DNA tests but had little doubt the body was that of Farooqi.

Farooqi was believed to have been an associate of Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, the reputed al-Qaida No. 3 captured in Pakistan last year.

World leaders highlight reform need at opening of U.N. General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — One after another, world leaders and ministers called for expanding the powerful 15-nation Security Council, saying the modern world shouldn't be dominated by a few wealthy countries chosen in the aftermath of World War II.

Mexican Foreign Secretary Luis Ernesto Derbez said the founders of the United Nations in 1945 could not have envisioned the terrorist attacks and other problems facing the international community.

"Today we face events of such magnitude and complexity," he said Friday. "Diplomats of this generation now have the obligation to envision a second phase, a new chapter on collective action so as to eradicate these modern threats."

Efforts to reform the United Nations and its main body have been under way for years and the debate isn't likely to end soon because of national rivalries and differences over key details, including veto power.

But the issue came to the forefront of the 59th annual General Assembly session last week when Brazil, Germany, India and Japan joined forces to press for permanent seats and said Africa should get one as well.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ahmed Aboul Gheit said Muslims and Arabs have the right "to be represented in the Council on an equal basis with the representatives of other cultures and civilizations."

Only the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China currently have permanent Security Council seats and wield veto power, giving them effective say over the body's agenda.

The 10 other council members are chosen for two-year terms by regional groups.

The General Assembly, which is composed of representatives of the 191 member states, would have to decide whether to expand the Security Council.

Britain agreed Thursday the Security Council should be nearly doubled in size to 24 nations as its challenges have evolved to facing "terrorist organizations, failed states and from man-made shocks to our environment like climate change."

The Bush administration also has supported Security Council expansion.

The debate came as the more than 120 world leaders and ministers sought to keep their focus on poverty and humanitarian crises in Sudan and elsewhere.

'Today we face events of such magnitude and complexity.'

Friday, Oct. 1 3:00 - 5:00 p.m.
WOODY GUTHRIE FOLK MUSIC CENTER of PAMPA TEXAS

Informal OPEN HOUSE at the Center, where Woody Guthrie began his musical journey. View posters, newspaper articles and photos which tell of his life and influence. First chance to select a souvenir T-shirt or other gifts.

ADMISSION: FREE

Woody Guthrie arrived in Pampa as a 17-year old from his home town of Okemah, Oklahoma to live with his father, Charley Guthrie, and work at the "cot house" — a sort of "time share" of bedspace for oil field workers— which his father managed. His mother, Nora, was already in a mental institution with what later was diagnosed as Huntington Disease, where she soon died. When Woody last saw his mother, she did not know who he was.

Woodrow Wilson Guthrie attended Pampa High School for the 1929-1930 year, and then dropped out, as did many young men during the Depression. He worked at the Harris Drug Store at 320 South Cuyler, and it was here he found an old guitar and began playing it between customers. Woody also spent much time at the public library, reading subjects most people wouldn't even think of: philosophy, theology, history, comparative religions...and discussing them with his best friend, Matt Jennings, who wasn't all that much interested.

By the time Woody left Pampa for California eight years later, he was married to Mary Jennings, Matt's sister, and they already had two of their three children (all deceased). He had arrived in Pampa as a street-wise kid of 17; he left as a young husband with wanderlust in his feet and curiosity in his mind, not yet knowing where he was headed.

He went on to write over 1000 songs, including the ubiquitous "This Land Is Your Land." But Woody's musical journey began here in Pampa.

PAMPA'S TRIBUTE TO WOODY GUTHRIE, a non-profit 501.c.3 organization, has a vision for The Woody Guthrie Folk Music Center of Pampa Texas (formerly the Harris Drug Store.) This is to tell the story of South Cuyler Street during the 1930's as well as the story of Woody Guthrie. It is also to make the Center a place of music and other performing arts...a place where jam sessions are spontaneous, where children can learn to play harmonica, where visiting musicians can pick away in the very place where Woody played, and where audiences can enjoy a variety of music from blues to bluegrass, from jazz to classical.

It's a big dream. And it's easy to lose sight of it, with such practical concerns as leaky roofs, crumbling walls, inadequate restrooms, and no real heating and cooling. But the dream cannot be forgotten, for—as Woody would say—"Take it easy, but take it."
