Icy Blasts Lower Temperatures Leaving Hazardous Conditions

Winter isn't over yet in Mitchell County.

One of the more severe ice storms of the season rolled into the area Monday dropping the temperature into the 20s. The thermometer hovered around that mark through Monday night and as of Tuesday afternoon still showed no inclination to go any higher.

Motorists within the city limits of Colorado City didn't experience severe difficulties in moving around but several motorists passing through on Interstate 20 did have some difficulties.

The county gins, still going at full blast processing a record cotton crop, were slowed down as the cotton became laden with moisture.

The Mitchell County Sheriff's Department reported no accidents during the icy spell and the Colorado City Police Department reported only one minor accident with no injuries.

About 1 p.m. Tuesday, Jim Nelson Baker, Rt. 3, Colorado City, was eastbound on the Interstate 20 service road near Matlock Butane when his 1973 Plymouth Duster hit an icy spot, slid off the road into the mud and ended up on its side. Baker was not injured and the vehicle had only minor damage.

The most severe accidents, and there were three of them, were reported by the Texas Highway Patrol.

The first one occurred at 5:30 p.m. Monday 10 miles north of Colorado City on Texas 208.

Neva Turner of Snyder was northbound in a 1979 Datsun when she hit an icy spot, lost control and ended up with the vehicle upside down.

She wasn't injured but the Datsun was damaged extensively. The accident was handled by Texas Highway Patrolman James Burson and Tracy Tipton.

A little over an hour later, Burson and Tipton handled another one car accident which sent two Fort Worth women to Root Memorial Hospital.

This accident occurred about 17 miles west of Colorado City on I-20. Eropajita Gonzalez, Julia Flores and Larry Flores, all of Fort Worth, were eastbound in a 1978 Ford LTD when they also hit an icy place on an overpass.

Mrs. Gonzalez, the driver of the vehicle, lost control and it veered into the opposite lane and over the guardrail on the opposite side.

The Ford plunged to the access road about 15 feet below and ended up in a field 175 yards away.

The Ford was demolished. Larry Flores was unhurt but Mrs. Gonzalez and Mrs. Flores were taken to Root Memorial Hospital where Mrs. Gonzalez was still a patient as of Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Flores was released from the hospital Tuesday.

The highway patrol received assistance in handling the accident from the Mitchell County Sheriff's Department and the Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department.

The third accident occurred about 1 a.m. Tuesday and was handled by Patrolman Tom Johnson.

Ermalinda Reyes, 1416 Pine Street, Colorado City, was eastbound on I-20 traveling on the overpass over Texas 670 about eight miles west of Colorado City in a 1979 Ford pickup.

She hit an icy patch, lost control, and slammed into the guardrail on the opposite side, hooking the vehicle onto the guardrail and ending up crossways to the lane of traffic.

About 60 feet of the guardrail was torn up and it took a wrecker about two hours to free the vehicle which received damage to its front end.

The driver was not injured.

Except for these accidents, Mitchell County was apparently spared much damage and injury from the storm.

None of the local utilities, Lone Wolf Electric, Texas Electric, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company or Lone Star Gas, reported any serious problems.

The other really noticeable effect of the ice storm was the slowing down of the processing of the cotton harvest by the eight Mitchell County gins.

ASCS Director Don Stewart said that there was still a lot of cotton out in the fields in modules and ricks and that no doubt the moisture that would fall on it would lower the grade somewhat since not much of it was covered with any kind of tarp.

He added that the cotton that is being ginned has to be dried first and this slows down everything.

Stewart said that it's especially important to get the cotton processed and get it out and sold because although the price is holding up now, it could drop later on.

District Conservationist Van Mills said, concerning the land itself, that the ice storm hadn't had very much effect yet. There hadn't been enough moisture as yet to amount to anything.

He added that the ice hadn't affected the grassland and wouldn't unless it began to get so heavy that it caused the grass to lay down and deteriorate.

He further added that right now the ice was doing more harm to the quail and other game birds in the county than anything else, depriving them of nesting places.

The icy spell did cause the postponement and cancellation of a number of area basketball games scheduled for Monday and Tuesday nights.

The Colorado seventh and eighth grade girls' basketball teams were scheduled to go to Stanton Monday and the Colorado seventh and eighth grade boys' teams were scheduled to play Stanton here. All of these games were cancelled.

Fifth Candidate Tightens Ballot

Local political races have begun to tighten as the filing deadline of February 4 nears.

Five candidates have officially announced for the open slot of Precinct One Commissioner Marcus Vest, who has chosen not to run for re-election.

Hubert McKinney, Murrell Blassingame, Paul Logsdon, Stoney Stone and Jackie Joiner are seeking that place on the Democratic Ballot.

Precinct Three Commissioner incumbent Paul Hunter is being challenged for that position by Julian Mendoza.

Sheriff Bill McGuire, who is running for re-election, is being challenged by Jerry Cowin for that office.

Why would anyone wish to hold public office, in this instance County Commissioner or Sheriff?

Consider the duties and compensation of these offices.

Some of the commissioner's responsibilities according to Vernon's Civil Statutes are listed as follows:

Lay out and establish, change and discontinue public roads and highways, build bridges and keep them in repair.

Commissioners are to keep in repair courthouses, jails and necessary public buildings and provide for the protection, preservation and disposition of all lands granted to the county for educational schools.

Commissioners must provide for the support of paupers and idiots who cannot be committed to an asylum and provide for burial of paupers.

The county is only an extention of the state government and Commissioners function under those same state laws.

Commissioners indicated some of the duties performed and noted there is no way to set the number of hours a day, week or month each Commissioner dedicates to the office.

"It is a 24 hour a day, seven day a week job sometimes. I would simply have to say it is full time and takes what ever time it takes to accomplish the job," Commissioner Paul Hunter said.

Commissioners indicate some of the duties of the office include setting the tax rate and upkeep on county roads. Each of the four commissioners in Mitchell County have about the same number of miles of road to oversee (about 20 miles each). They currently have four full-time employees under their direction.

Supervision of these employees and locating the necessary material for use in repairing the roads is a time consuming part of the job, according to Hunter.

Once a month commissioners are required to meet. A special or emergency meeting may be held if a public notice is posted 72 hours prior to that meeting.

Commissioners must set and approve the county budget.

For these and other duties commissioners receive $14,568 a year plus $125 a month for travel expenses.

The office of Sheriff includes duties as the chief law enforcement agent in the county.

Duties include control of the courthouse, serving civil papers, transporting prisoners and mentally ill persons and maintaining records, McGuire said.

The Sheriff's Office is responsible for the maintenance and care of the jail and its prisoners.

For these and other duties the sheriff receives $1,214 a month

Cattle Producers Face Still Another Vote On Referendum

Cattlemen will once again have the opportunity to establish a beef research and information program to help promote the sale of beef.

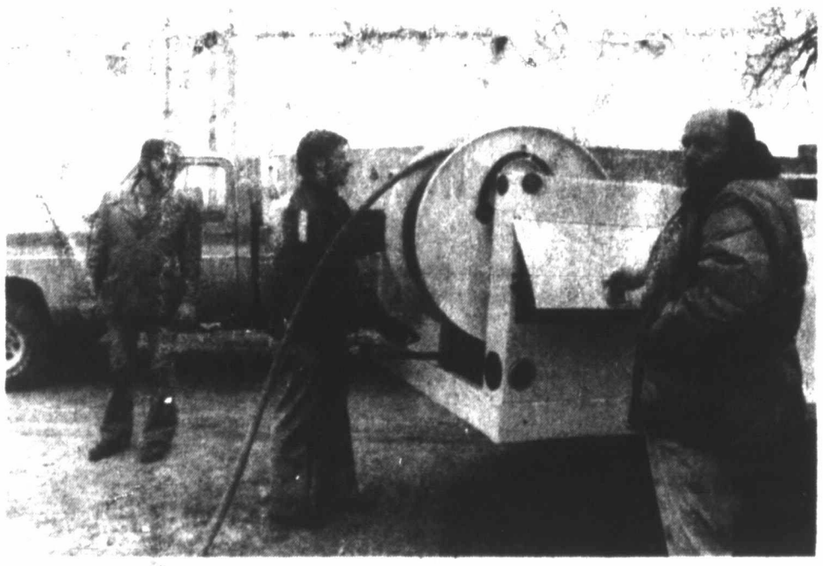

All cattle producers will be affected by the program which will be financed and operated solely by cattle producers and regulated under the auspices of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The 1976 Beef Research and Information Act, authorizing a national program under which cattle producers would be assessed to finance research and information activities designed to improve markets for cattle, beef and beef products, will be established unless producers vote to approve the order in the Feb. 19-22 election.

Eligibility to vote includes ownership of cattle during 1979 and registration at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office in the producer's headquarter county between Jan. 28 and Feb. 6.

The Beef Act was amended in 1978 to read,

COUNCILMEMBERS, bundled against Tuesday's freezing weather, gathered to watch a practical demonstration of a high pressure water machine being considered for purchase by the city. The machine will be used to clean sludge and sediment from sewage lines. After several attempts demonstrate the machine failed, due to frozen hoses, the portable machine was taken to the city barn where heat was applied to thaw hoses and the demonstration continued. Councilman Loyd Ledbetter (right) attended the demonstration which was supervised by Water Superintendent Buzz Rich (left) and given by salesman Wallace Coats. Also attending but not pictured are Councilmembers Elmer Martin, Ray Dillard and Mayor Marion Bassham.

Industrial Directors Are Named

Charles C. Thompson, president of the Colorado City Industrial Team, Inc., since it was founded in the late 1960's, Tuesday was elevated to the position of chairman of the board of the group.

Eddie Piland was named as president of the group with G.D. Foster as vice president; Mac McKinnon, secretary and J.C. Britton, treasurer.

The election of officers took place at an Industrial Team board meeting that followed the annual Industrial Team stockholders meeting Tuesday at the C.C. Thompson Room of the City National Bank annex.

During the stockholders meeting, four directors, G.D. Foster, Bob Reily, B.B. Hardee and Eddie Piland, were re-elected for three-year terms to the board. Brad Rose was named to fill the vacancy created when J.S. Craddock Jr., resigned from the board last year. Other members of the board are Willie Landau, Charles Root and J. Lee Jones Jr.

The Industrial Team works in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce in securing new industry and business for the area.

Female Officer Quits Position

Patrol Officer Peggy Smith, the first woman patrol officer on the Colorado City Police Force and the center of recent controversy, has resigned her position effective February 8.

"I was notified Monday by Patrol Officer Smith that she is resigning her position effective February 8," Police Chief Fred McWhorter announced.

"Officer Smith has been with the department since July 10, 1979. She has performed her duties as each and every other member of the department has done," McWhorter said.

"I consider Officer Smith a good police officer," McWhorter said.

McWhorter noted in an appearance before City Council members this past month, he and Officer Smith, as well as the entire department, had received a vote of complete confidence for their law enforcement efforts.

"It is to this point that I address my statement that Officer Smith is a good officer and has performed her duties in a manner befitting the force," he said.

"To the best of my knowledge Officer Smith resigned for personal reasons and certainly not at the request of this department," McWhorter stated.

Optimists Schedule "Summer Fun Show"

Summer will get off to an early start in Mitchell County with the second Annual Summer Fun Show to be presented March 8 and 9 at the Mitchell County Fair Grounds.

The Fun Show is sponsored by the Optimist Club and will include chills, thrills and entertainment for the entire family.

There will be a barn full of displays including recreational equipment and merchandise to be previewed, inspected and purchased.

Last year over $100,000 worth of recreational equipment was sold as a direct result of displaying merchandise, Optimist Rex Beights announced.

There will be recreational vehicles, motorboats, sailboats, motorcycles, hunting equipment, diving equipment, camping equipment, fishing gear, skiing equipment and sportswear displays.

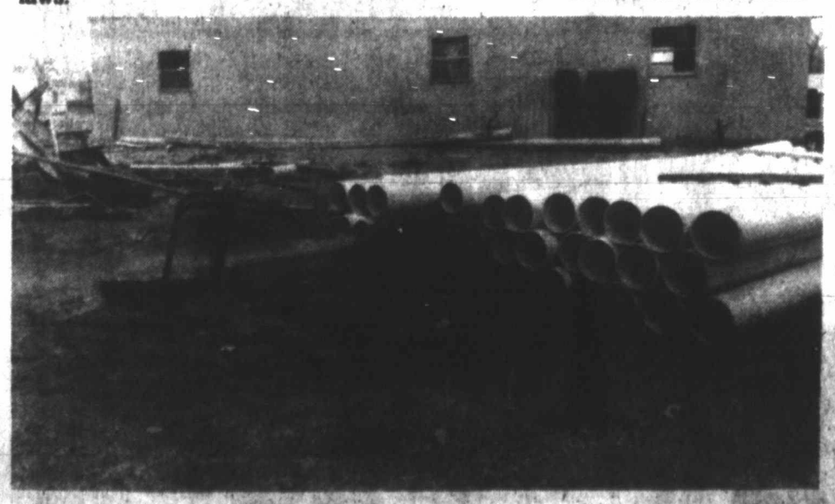

Admission will be 50 cents and for that sum spectators may see a motorcycle rodeo, a mini-fly-in, an archery contest, a black powder demonstration and an old time fiddlers' contest.

The Motorcycle rodeo will include six classes, four events and a special competition for three-wheeled cycles.

There will be 72 trophies awarded in the regular cycle rodeo and nine trophies awarded in the three-wheeled events.

These events will include barrel racing, ba-

COLORADO CITY COUNCIL members watched a demonstration of a high pressure water machine exerting 15,000 pounds per square inch of pressure clear compact mud from a six inch sewer line. The machine has 500 feet of hose which is forced through the line by water pressure against the flow of sewage. The force of the water clears sediment and sludge from the lines.

Joiner Asks For Place On Ballot

Jackie Joiner, 38, has entered the race for the office of Mitchell County Commissioner, Precinct One.

He was born in Big Spring but has been a resident of Mitchell County practically all of his life.

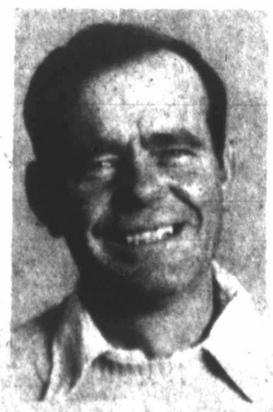

Joiner is a graduate of Colorado High School and is a self-employed independent oil operator.

Along with his work, he has taught courses in petroleum economics and petroleum mechanics at Western Texas College.

He and his wife, the former Karen Gail Marshall, live at 1453 Waco and have two daughters, Karla, 16 and Karen, 12.

They attend the 22nd Street Church of Christ.

Joiner noted that he was seeking the position of county commissioner because, "I've never had a job I couldn't handle." He also added, "If I am elected, I will vote for whatever is in the best interests of the citizens of Mitchell County."

"for the order to become effective, at least 50 percent of those registered must vote and a majority must vote in favor of the program."

Originally the Act required an approval vote of two-thirds of the registered voters. As a result, the order voted on in 1977 was defeated although 56.4 percent of those voting favored the program, ASCS Executive Director Don Stewart said.

A Beef Board will be established if the "Beef-erendum" is approved by voters.

This board will be composed of up to 68 producers appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture to administer the order, collect assessments and conduct beef research and information programs, Stewart noted.

Also on the board will be five non-voting consumer advisors appointed by the Secretary.

Each state will have representation on the board proportional to its share of the U.S. cattle inventory. Texas would have six members and alternates, three more than any other state will have.

"Board members and alternates will serve without compensation but would be reimbursed for necessary expenses. They would be appointed to 3-year terms from nominations submitted by certified producers," Stewart said.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service will monitor the program.

This review responsibility would include approval of the board's plans, projects and annual budgets.

It will be the responsibility of the board to develop, and submit to USDA for approval, programs of research, consumer and producer information, education, advertising and promotion for cattle, beef and beef products.

Financing of the program will be made through a deduction by the buyer each time cattle are sold. Slaughterers would collect and send assessments to the beef board at the time of slaughter. The final assessment would include the accumulated total of assessments paid by all owners of the cattle.

The rate of assessment would not be more than two-tenths of one percent (20 cents on $100) of the sale price of the cattle for the first two years of the program operation, according to Stewart.

"After that, the assessment rate could be changed by the board with USDA approval but could not exceed five-tenths of one percent. An estimated $40 million would be collected annually.

Stewart explained the program procedure, "A cow-calf producer who sells a calf to a stocker-grower for $400 would have 80 cents deducted from the check he receives. If the stocker-grower sold the animal to a cattle feeder for slaughter for $800, the slaughterer would deduct $1.60 and forward it to the beef board. Each owner would contribute an amount based on the value they added to the animal. In this case the cow-calf producer contributed 80 cents and the stocker-grower and cattle feeder each contributed 40 cents."

Special provisions are made for high-valued breeding or dairy animals. They would be exempt from assessment until slaughter.

Since these cattle reach their peak value prior to slaughter, rather than increasing in value until slaughter, they do not fit the value-added concept of assessment.

Beef producers not wishing to fund the program would have their assessments refunded upon request when accompanied by proof of payment.

U.S. Interior Unaware Of Findings

The darndest things get lost in the mail, but this one has a lot of people wondering.

U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus told incredulous participants at a predator control "summit meeting" in Austin Tuesday that he was unaware of research which debunked claims that predacide 1080 poses secondary poisoning hazards. The man responsible for that search is an Andrus employee, Dr. Guy Connolly.

The significance of Andrus' revelation is, first, that preliminary evidence from the Connolly study was announced as early as Sept. 29 of last year at a meeting of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Assn. Secondly, Andrus, with or without benefit of the Connolly findings, decreed in November that further 1080 research would be prohibited. Third, Andrus' repeated references at the Tuesday meeting to "secondary poisoning" from 1080 indicated that, at this late date, he was still unaware of his own agency's studies in that regard.

The secondary poisoning contention, though never documented, has been cited by environmentalists and government regulators alike as the final rational objection to the reintroduction of 1080 in predator control work. Andrus himself said at the meeting that his ban on further research was based on this objection and the emotional public controversy surrounding it. He chose to terminate 1080 research, he explained, because public acceptance appeared impossible and the funds and manpower could be better used to develop a new, less hazardous toxicant.

This was taken by some industry observers as an indication that Andrus was either unaware of the Connolly work or chose to ignore it in his decision. Had Connolly's address been delivered prior to Andrus' departure, the question might have been cleared up.

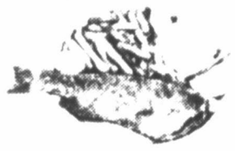

There was, in fact, some indication that Andrus had been advised of the findings that very morning. During his explanation of his new policy, the Secretary mentioned learning "at breakfast" about some previously unannounced research. He declined to elaborate about the nature of the "new" information, but it should be noted that his references to 1080's claimed secondary poisoning hazards continued after breakfast.

Meeting participants included representatives of the livestock industry, the environmentalist camp and government regulators charged with striking a balance between the two. The apparent but unspoken question permeating all three factions was what, if any, effect the Connolly findings will have on Andrus' decision to halt 1080 research.

From the livestock industry's viewpoint, there could be some cause for an optimistic outlook. Connolly's work would appear to fade what even Andrus admitted was the only realistic black mark remaining against 1080; reason would demand that research be continued at least long enough to either conform or disprove the findings. Cynics maintain, however, that reason has nothing to do with decisions about 1080. Some have contended ever since the research ban was announced that its primary purpose was to prevent any further debunking of the secondary poisoning claims.

Terrific Tidbits

"Terrific tidbits" for "terrible budgets" are one answer to the economy "crunch."

If spots and stains have "retired" some of your clothing, try these salvage steps:

Remove ballpoint ink by applying a generous amount of hair spray, then rub gently with a clean, dry cloth.

Remove grease on double knits by applying club soda to the spot.

Parables Of Jesus Studied By Group

The Women's Group of the First United Methodist Church of Loraine met Jan. 23 in the home of Mrs. Frank Crownover.

Mrs. Alva Bennett, study leader, began the study on "Parables of Jesus and Glimpses of the New Age," by Neal F. Fisher.

In the study, she used quotes and scriptures from the Bible about Jesus teaching in parables. He moved 41 times in travels and teaching. Some quotes were, "let the dead bury the dead," in Daniel 7:13 and "Behold there came a son of man," from the book of Isaiah.

She stated that Jesus was God's agent of the new age, His coming meant the ending of mourning, humility, hunger and thirst. The new age is described as walking on a desert road and seeing a new light.

The studies of parables will be taken from Mark, Luke and John. Mrs. Percy Bond will bring the study on "Jesus and parables and importance of parables" at the next meeting.

Present were Mmes. Harold Martin, Wiley Walker, Alva Bennett, Roy Wells, Raymond Wheeler, J.M. Templeton, Bond, Claud Neely, Mable Givens and Bennett Blair.

SEWERAGE LINE work may soon be made easier and more efficient by the purchase of a water pressure machine. Superintendent Buzz Rich (left) assists Art Pidina in the hole with this sewer tap.

Applicants Seeked By Noon Lions

The Colorado City Noon Lions Club is accepting applications for the Texas Lions Club for crippled children in Kerrville.

Four different two-week sessions will be held through the summer, beginning June 15.

Eligible campers include children who are blind or visually impaired, deaf or hearing impaired, or physical handicaps affecting one or more limbs. There are 180 campers assigned to each session.

A child's IQ must be 70 or above. Normal bowel and kidney control and some degree of self-help skills in eating and dressing are assignment guidelines to qualify.

There will also be two two-week sessions for diabetic boys and girls, ages 6 through 16 and the first session will begin June 2.

Campers are well-supervised by college age counselors. Swimming, crafts, nature study and modified athletics are some of the activities planned for the camp.

No charge is made to parents because Lions believe in giving service to others equally and transportation to and from camp can be arranged through the Lions Club.

Texas Lions Club has a history of 27 successful summers with over 19,000 handicapped children present.

Public Asked For View On Conservation

Monday was the start of a 60-day public review period during which time interested people are being asked to comment on the direction they think future U.S. Department of Agriculture conservation programs should take.

Four draft documents describing the Nation's nonfederal soil and water resources, their condition, projected demands, and seven proposed alternative strategies can be reviewed at the local Soil Conservation Service office in the G-Kell Building just north of the Interstate on highway 208.

Van Mills, district conservationist with the SCS, said the proposals for a national soil and water conservation program were developed by a coordinating committee made up of members from nine U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies plus the Office of Management and Budget and the Council in Environmental Quality.

The Act directs the USDA to appraise the condition of the Nation's renewable natural resources and to propose alternative programs to guide the Nation's conservation activities. The appraisal revealed that one-third of the Nation's cropland–136 million acres–is eroding at an excessive rate.

During the public review period, three public meetings will be held in Texas to discuss content of the documents and provide an opportunity for comments. The meetings will be held in Arlington on Feb. 26, Lubbock on March 4 and San Antonio on March 6.

Interested citizens are invited to send written comments about the documents or suggestions about future conservation programs to RCA Response Analysis Center, P.O. Box 888, Athens, Georgia, 30603.

Entries in the contest are due by Feb. 27, and may be mailed or delivered to Mrs. Roy Burk at 2302 40th Street in Snyder or to Dr. Edward Barkowsky at WTC. A $1 entry fee must accompany each entry, and a writer may submit only one entry in each category, fiction and non-fiction. Entries must be no longer than 3,500 words and must be typewritten.

A first prize of $15 will be awarded in each category. Entries will be judged by Etta Lynch of Lubbock, writer, editor and lecturer. She will also conduct the workshop.

Purpose Of UMW Discussed

Mrs. Tom Coker presided over the meeting of the United Methodist Women of First United Methodist Church on Jan. 27. She was assisted by Mrs. Lane Beaty, chairman of the Rose Circle and Mrs. Arnel Smith, chairman of the Agape Circle.

Nelda Garrett, conference treasurer, mentioned several district meetings to be held in the near future at Big Spring, Plainview and Snyder.

FAS Awareness Helps Alert Parents

FAS Awareness Week is an intense campaign to alert individuals to the possibility of birth defects in children caused during pregnancy by our most popular legal drug, alcohol.

The program will stress good prenatal care with special emphasis on the fact that alcohol is so taken for granted in today's society, it is not thought of as a drug, and is consumed freely during pregnancy.

In the last several years, reseachers have conducted a number of studies on infants born to women who drink. A significant number of the infants studied were born with a definite pattern of physical, mental and behavorial abnormalities which researchers named the "fetal alcohol syndrome."

The babies with this syndrome were shorter and lighter in weight than normal and didn't "catch up" even after special postnatal care was provided. They also had abnormally small heads, several facial irregularities, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects and poor coordination.

Also, most were mentally retarded and showed a number of behavioral problems, including hyperactivity, extreme nervousness, and poor attention spans. Some of the infants were born with all the characteristics described above, while others showed only some features of the syndrome.

FAS Awareness Week Activities began January 16 with a press conference with Mrs. Clements.

If you wish more information concerning FAS or would like to conduct a campaign in your community during the year, contact Sue Johnson, Public Information Officer (WCTCOG) or your local Council on Alcoholism.

Mrs. William P. Clements will serve as chairperson for the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week in Texas, now through Sunday.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--The Committee on Higher Education Financing in Texas is conducting one of the most important studies of the interim at this time.

The Committee was formed by Sentate Concurrent Resolution 101 of the 66th Legislature and is composed of three appointees of the Lieutenant Governor, and three appointees of the Speaker of the House with the Lieutenant Governor serving as chairman and the Speaker as vice-chairman.

The Committee is charged with the responsibility of investigating all aspects of funding the State's colleges and universities, specifically facility financing, tuition and fees, state funding, formulas and other related matters.

The Committee has obtained a large quantity of date dealing with enrollment projections, tuition policies, revenue needs, space utilization and other trends. Decisions as to what is realistically needed for the future well-being of higher education must be made.

With limited revenue projections, the State must look at means of promoting the efficient operation of its colleges and universities. Cost controls must be emphasized, and a determination of how much construction is actually needed must be made.

It is my belief that a proper method of insuring adequate space and academic excellence is achieving without creating a burden on the taxpayers. With a redirection of funds and emphasis on efficiency, higher education should improve and serve the needs of the State for years to come.

Register For Beef Referendum Vote

The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas is urging all cattlemen to register to vote in the upcoming Beeferendum.

Cattlemen planning to vote must register first at the local county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office from Jan. 28 to Feb. 6. The rules provide for one vote for each separate cattle business entity, be it an individual, family business, partnership or corporation. Absentee registration and voting will be permitted.

Voting dates for the referendum, which could provide a check-off of 20 cents per $100 sales of your livestock for promotion of beef if it passes, are Feb. 19-22. For the referendum to be valid, 50 percent or more of those who register must vote. And for it to pass, a simple majority of those voting must favor the program.

After a thorough investigation of the pros and cons of the Beeferendum, the members of ICA at the 5th annual convention this past summer voted overwhelmingly to oppose the Beeferendum.

Roy Wheeler, ICA president, said that cattle producers who vote in favor of the Beeferendum are inviting the government into their private business.

An administrator with the USDA admitted at a hearing Oct. 16, 1979, before the subcommittee on Dairy and Poultry of the Committee on Agriculture in Washington, that producers who enter a promotion program of their products, enter into a partnership with the government.

Ms. Schlei: "While industries would like to have the greatest possible alternatives available to them, they have a recognition that when they enter into a program such as this, in partnership with the Government, that that in turn does bring with it certain restrictions."

Bureau Offers Speakers

Approximately 225 topics and 40 speakers are available to area clubs and organizations through the recently expanded Speaker's Bureau at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

UTPB President V.R. Cardozier said the Speaker's Bureau has doubled in size since it began last summer. This list is available at the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce office.

"We started with about 100 topics and two dozen professors in the bureau, but the response has been so favorable, both on campus and in the community, that more professors and more topics have been added to the original listing. Right now we are averaging about one speaker per week in area clubs and organizations.

"Many of our faculty have conducted extensive research into little-known aspects of interesting subjects," Cardozier said. "These faculty have expertise in many areas, and have been speaking before students and other groups for an average of more than 20 years each," he said.

Topics listed in the Speaker's Bureau range from "The Joy of Disability" to "Solar Houses to Cut Energy Cost." Subject areas include Business and Industry, Education, Current Events, Literature and Writing, Psychology and Sociology and Parenting, as well as several miscellaneous topics.

Also included are several "how to" programs such as writing, painting, conservation of energy or reloading shotgun shells.

"Since one of our functions as a university is to foster education, we want to share knowledge with the entire community and not just in a classroom atmosphere," Cardozier said, pointing out the speaker service is free of charge.

Persons interested in using speakers listed in the Speaker's Bureau should contact the UTPB Office of News and Information on campus at 367-2336 in Odessa or 563-2400, extension 2336 in Midland. A list of subjects is available from that office.

Crime Prevention At Local Law Enforcement Agencies

A lot has beeq written about crime prevention and a great number of people have gained valuable information and security from reading about what they should do in order to improve home security and personal safety. However, a direct face to face contact with a qualified security advisor is even more rewarding.

All across the country law enforcement agencies have developed highly skilled officers who, as an individual duty, are willing to come to the meeting of your club, organization, or church and give you firsthand information about ways in which you can reasonably protect your home and family.

There are several distinct advantages to having an officer meet with your gathering. One is, who knows more about the local crime problem than he does? And who is better able to direct you to methods of crime prevention which are both reasonable and workable?

The officer will be able to describe to you what the average local thief or burglar is like; his age, his background, his modus operandi (the way he operates), how he most often will enter a home, how he selects his targets, and what he does with the contraband, etc. Once you understand who it is you are trying to protect yourself against, you will be better able to establish reasonable security at your home.

Another advantage of having the officer speak to your group is that it gives you an opportunity to meet the officer in your community. It also affords the officer the chance to meet you and hear firsthand about your interest, your fears, and your needs. Another advantage of having an officer address your club is, he has no axe to grind and nothing to sell but common sense.

Call your local law enforcement agency and set a date for an officer to speak to your club. You have nothing to lose but crime.

MITCHELL COUNTY YOUTH, adult volleyball group and senior citizens donated $2,821.60 for renovation projects at the Wallace Center to the Colorado City ISD. Some of the fund raising events of these groups included a Christmas bazaar, rodeo parade float, disco dance, volleyball tournament and City league play and personal donations. Pictured (left to right) are Ricky Ornelas, president of student council, Robert Henderson, adult volleyball representative, Charlie Uselton, CISD Superintendent and Willie Brooks, senior citizen president.

THE COLORADO CITY GARDEN CLUB donated a pecan tree to the Wallace Center in remembrance of Texas Arbor Day. The tree was given to the club by Zelma Owen, club member. Texas Arbor Day, Jan. 18 is a day set aside for planting trees. This is the prime time for planting trees because this is the best time for roots to become established before top growth occurs. Pictured (left to right) are Olmon Sweatt, Bernice Hilliard, Francis Myers, Emma Taylor and Alice Coles, chairman of Arbor Day activities.

PREVENT HOME FALLS

Falls in and around the home rank high as a cause of accidental death and disability. Here are some ways to help you stay on your feet. Choose proper footwear. Remove snow and ice from walks and steps or spread de-icers or sand. Use handrails when going up and down steps. Have adequate lighting in dark halls and stairways. Avoid tripping hazards by putting things away when you are through with them. Clean up spills immediately. Slow down, watch your step.

The Mitchell County Division of the American Heart Association met Jan. 24 in the Sweetwater Savings Building with Janet Odum, Regional Director, presiding in the absence of President Monte Jones.

Carolyn Smith reported that of the $886 collected from various sources, $500 of this amount was from the Turkey Walk held on Nov. 10 in which Monte Jones won first prize, a ten-speed bicycle, for bringing in the most pledges. Memorials brought in a total of $306 and $80 was from special gift donations.

Tentative plans were made for a jump rope-athon and a Spring walk-jog-athon.

The public is reminded that memorials to the Heart Association can be made locally by contacting the City National Bank. Memorial gifts to the American Heart Association serve the living while paying a thoughtful tribute to the memory of a loved one.

Insulation May Be Hazardous

Danger, your insulation may pose a health hazard-if it's urea formaldehyde insulation, and if it's not installed properly, warns a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Though urea formaldehyde is an excellent insulative material, improper installation of it may cause the release of formaldehyde gas into living areas which, in turn, can cause adverse health effects, Sue Young, specialist, explains.

Mrs. Young is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Such symptoms may develop anywhere from a few days to more than six months after the gas is released.

Make sure you get conscientious workmanship, use of appropriate chemicals and the use of machinery in good repair.

Failure to install insulation properly may mean the difference between a product that is both safe and effective and one that is not, Mrs. Young cautions.

Texas Oil & Gas...

Industry's Operations Essential to Economy

By Edwin L. Cox, President
Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association

There are people in this country making careers out of criticizing America's petroleum industry. The large, integrated companies have been the principal targets of their criticism.

Recently, a coalition of labor unions and consumer groups staged demonstrations in various cities throughout the country to protest high energy prices and the "big oil companies." This so-called "Big Oil Day" was a big flop.

Most Americans saw through the proposals for industry nationalization and distortions of fact. Most Americans are aware of what the U.S. petroleum industry — operating within our free enterprise system — has meant to this nation. Those of us living in Texas know of the contributions the industry has made to this state's economy and general welfare.

Several of this nation's largest oil companies had their origins in Texas and have been operating here since the turn of the century. So, the oil and gas industry long has been a prime contributor to Texas' social and economic well-being.

These companies and others provide many jobs, support education, and underwrite many community services in our state. They also pay a significant portion of the industry's billion-dollar annual state tax bill.

All employees of these companies — from the newest employee to top management — work for the stockholders of these publicly held companies. More than 14-million persons, for example, own the nation's six largest oil companies.

This ownership is either through personal stock purchases, through participation in retirement and pension plans, or through mutual fund participation. Many of these stockholders use these investments in order to make their retirements more comfortable and secure.

A recent study of oil industry ownership of companies such as these six showed the following:

- The average age of employed persons who owned stock was more than 52 years. Their average household income was less than $20,000 per year.
- Indirect owners numbered almost 12-million persons. More than seven-million of these were participants or annuitants in various pension and retirement plans.
- Direct owners numbered 2.3-million persons. Of these, nearly half (46-percent) were retired.
- The average age of these persons was more than 70 years. And, they had owned this stock for an average of 33 years.

These findings and figures illustrate the scope and diversification of the ownership of the nation's six largest oil companies. Who owns America's big oil companies?

To that question, there is a simple answer. Millions of Americans.

It takes fuel to make electricity.

A lot of people don't understand that, but it's true.

Most of the power plants in this country require steam to generate electricity. To make steam you must boil water, and that requires a lot of heat.

That's why we have to buy and burn large amounts of fuel, such as lignite coal and natural gas, every month. The steam we make with it turns the generators that make your electricity, which we distribute to you right when you need it.

The fuel we use costs money. And the cost of the fuel to produce your electricity is shown separately on your bill. At Texas Electric, we want you to know what you're paying for. And to remember: it takes fuel to make electricity.

Bobcat Tag Deadline Set

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reminds hunters and trappers that Feb. 15 is the final day for obtaining bobcat pelt tags and tagging pelts.

Every bobcat pelt taken in the state during the current tagging period (Nov. 15, 1979 through Feb. 15, 1980) must be tagged prior to purchase or sale. However, pelts tagged during the legal tagging period may be purchased or sold at any time of the year, the department said.

Pelts from any bobcats taken prior to or after these dates will not be eligible for tagging under the Texas Bobcat Pelt Tagging Program. Untagged pelts cannot be sold.

The bobcat pelt tagging is part of a program by the federal Endangered Species Scientific Authority to monitor nationwide bobcat harvest rates. Tagged Texas pelts are eligible for export, except for those tagged in a 28-county area of the High Plains. These pelts may be sold only in the domestic market.

Sheep, Goatmen Oppose Controls

Many hisses and boos could be heard aimed in the direction of the guest speaker, Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus, during a recent meeting of Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association in Austin.

Andrus presented a proposed program for future selective, non lethal control of predatory animals (coyotes), doing away with the current preventive control program.

The future program restricts killing the female coyote and her pups in the den by government trappers. It disallows winter aerial hunting and discontinues research on Compound 1080 (a poison which has been restricted from use for several years).

The future program restricts using traps with bait sets.

New methods of control, including fencing, shedding, herders and guard dogs, are proposed to be taught to ranchers in the future program.

Executive Secretary Bill Simms of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association in San Angelo noted there would be few changes made in the program currently used in this district.

Sims indicated any rancher who wishes to hunt the coyotes on their own land is free to do so. The rancher may even kill coyotes and pups in the den if he so desires. The proposed new restrictions apply to government trappers. This includes the county trappers.

Sims said he had been assured by Andrus that aerial hunting would not be restricted in this district but only where trappers were taking pelts in the Northwestern states for commercial sale.

"The terrain here prohibits the use of helicopters during any but the winter months in post areas due to the extensive foliage," Andrus said.

Simms stated he had been assured by Andrus that the future program would not be instituted in this district until it had been tried and proven effective. He indicated the existing regulations would remain unchanged for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Local rancher Joe Maddox, who raises a large number of sheep, said "the new ruling would hurt the sheep industry terribly."

He indicated he raises about 4,000 ewes and averages one lamb from one ewe each season.

Two years ago he lost over 450 animals to the coyotes and two years prior to that he lost more than 650 animals to coyotes.

"Not being able to set traps with bait will really hurt. You just can't get a coyote to nose around a trap without bait to attract him," Maddox commented.

"I think people who belong to these environmental control groups live in town and have certainly never been on a ranch and seen a sheep or lamb murdered by a coyote," Maddox said.

"Most of us know how to build fences and don't need the government teaching us how. As for shedding 4,000 lambs and 4,000 sheep every night to protect them in this part of the state, it is not only ridiculous but an absolute impossibility," he stated.

"At the price of labor today, it would be totally impractical to hire enough men to cover the amount of range I use to watch the sheep night and day," Maddox said.

"These laws might work in the mountain areas but they are just impractical for us.

"Last year a sheep in good condition about 2 to 3 years old sold for $75 to $80.

"The land I lease to run them on would average out about $200 a head and the cost of labor runs between $120 to $150 a day. This doesn't include the cost of fuel or wear and tear on a vehicle. There is also the cost of sheering, dipping and feeding the sheep," Maddox said.

Weston A. Pettey, O.D.

EXAMINATION BY AGE THREE

Dear Dr. Pettey: Do most optometrists recommend vision and eye examinations for all children by the time they are three years old? If they do, why do they?

Most optometrists do recommend vision and eye examinations by the age of three, and for good reasons. Let us look at some of them.

All lower animals must very quickly after birth develop in mobility, in the ability to find food and drink, to keep clean, and with fang, claw, horn, growl, roar or hiss, cling to survival. But the human babe is totally dependent on others for all those things dependent, that is, for a period of time in which he learns, experiences, develops and matures his skills to the point of some self-care.

An infant's eye and visual functions also need time to grow and develop. Focusing, placement of each eye on the same object, movement of the two eyes together from one object to another, from near to far, far to near, right, left, up and down must all be learned, used, and made skillful before a child is vision-ready for the world around him.

By age three, we can determine the stage of this development and maturity in most visual skills, and whether there is a tendency to go into any of the many visual problems to which we are subject: crossed eyes, amblyopia, nearsightedness, farsightedness, or astigmatism. By age three, then, we can practice preventive care and, in one way or several, begin to guide the child's further vision development into exacting and fine-point uses. That development must occur because we no more expect full function from vision in one so young than we would expect him to handle deftly a screwdriver or a pair of pliers.

If early vision examination is not made, potential or already existing vision problems can prevent normal development in learning. Many children considered dull likely were victims of neglect in not receiving early professional vision care.

Readers with other questions about eye care may address Dr. Pettey in care of this paper or the Texas Optometric Association, P.O. Box 2242, Austin, Texas 78768.

Fur Market Downslides

Wholesale fur buyers have told the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department they have been paying less for prime hides in recent weeks because the market is glutted with too many hides.

That factor, combined with strikes of tanners in New York and Canada, is causing prices to drop about 33 percent, and in some areas, as much as 50 percent. In Texas a raccoon hide which formerly brought $35 will not sell at a top price of only $20.

Joe T. Stevens, the department's furbearer program leader, said he contacted major fur industry publication executives who said a declining demand for furs in the European market and overloaded U.S. inventory combined to cause falling fur prices.

"Although the fur market was excellent in the 1970s for a much longer period than usual, historically it is not uncommon to see drastic fluctuations in prices," Stevens said.

Caught in the middle of the squeeze are many Texas trappers who are angry over the U.S. market situation. According to Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens, many have simply stopped trapping in protest.

Still others are stockpiling their pelts until the close of the season in hopes that prices will increase. Trappers are prohibited from selling pelts after Feb. 5, and licensed retail fur dealers have only until Feb. 15. The only exception is muskrat pelts, which may be sold by trappers until March 20 and by licensed retail fur dealers until March 30.

The price of furs could increase overnight, but the prospects of that happening are not good. More than likely, it will take anywhere from one to three years to absorb the extra pelts and stabilize prices, said a wholesale fur buyer.

Europe is one of the best markets for United States furs, according to P&WD officials. Countries such as England, France, Italy, West Germany, Japan and Switzerland are major buyers.

Kincaid Shows Waterpaintings

Dr. Clarence E. Kincaid, Professor of Art at Texas Tech University, will be showing watercolor paintings in the Fine Arts Gallery at Western Texas College in Snyder during February.

The show will open Feb. 4 and may be seen each weekday without admission. The gallery is in the Fine Arts Building.

The majority of Kincaid's paintings depict southwestern landscape forms, although at times he turns his attention to still-life and portraiture. His paintings are in several museums and numerous private collections, and he has received many commissions from the Ford Motor Company to provide watercolors for the magazine "Ford Times."

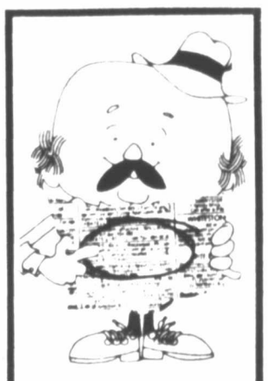

At Tech, Kincaid also serves as the graduate coordinator for the Ph.D in Fine Arts and Master of Art Education degree programs.

Wesley Church Is Now A Museum

A fascinating little church at Wesley in Washington County stands as a museum to the first Czech-Moravian congregation in Texas. When the Rev. B.E. Lacjac began serving the Wesley Brethren fellowship in 1888, he painted the ceiling and walls of the one-room log structure in a provincial attempt at decorating. He used colors and lines to achieve a three-dimensional, cathedral effect. He painted grey bricks, outlined in black, on the inside walls as high as the top of the windows, apparently representing the strength of the wall of Jerusalem. He added white pillars and their shadows at intervals which seem to represent the pillars of Solomon's Temple. There is a star of David above each pillar. Geometrical designs adorn the center of the ceiling with a continuous chain design around the edge, reminiscent of the unbroken chain of brotherhood. Rev. Lacjac died in a hunting accident in 1891 and his exact intent for the designs is not known, yet the total effect is inspiring.

The history of the congregation is also inspiring. The Czech fugitives from religious persecution began arriving in Texas in large numbers in the 1850s. Most were Roman Catholic, however, there were ten to fifteen percent of the Protestant faith known as United Brethren, most of whom settled in Veseli, later anglicized to Wesley. The congregation organized in 1864 and met in homes until they hauled hand-hewn logs in ox-carts from Galveston in 1866 and built their meetinghouse. Native rock and oak logs support the foundation. Communicants came from as far away as twenty miles and the church building had to be enlarged by one-third and a tower and bell added in 1883. The church served as a community school with the pastor acting as teacher until a public school began in 1900.

Today the fellowship meets in a sanctuary built in 1963. It is located next to the original structure which serves as a museum. The Texas Historical Commission has awarded an Official Texas Historical Marker at the site on FM 332, ten miles southwest of Brenham.
