MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

Buford O. Brown, editor of the Vernon Record, has a viewpoint. Speaking of the world's largest Sunday School," the current number of Editor Brown's newspaper prints the following: "Fort Worth boasts the largest Sunday school in the world. The first Sunday in September 5,263 men, women and children were present at Sunday school in the First Baptist Church of that city. Twelve years ago the average attendance was fewer than 300. The Rev. Frank Norris is pastor. All quarterlies, leaflets, or Bible helps put out by the publishing houses have been put aside; and each Sunday morning every class in every department studies the same chapter of the Bible. You will see men in their work clothes and women in calico at Mr. Norris' church, a recent visitor says. 'And they feel at home.' This same visitor says that the pastor is strangely old-fashioned, highly doctrinal—but, withal, he stays close to the Bible. No higher tribute to the Bible and Christianity can be paid than that is being paid daily by the women and men who are faithful attendants on the First Baptist Church in Fort Worth." H. N. F. is ready to go on record to say that J. Frank Norris is one of the most remarkable men under southwestern skies. His followers say that he is a wonder as a preacher and as an interpreter of the Bible. His enemies say that he is a fighter and never knows when he is whipped. His friends say that he is one of the most masterful men that the state has ever known. H. N. F. says that as a church builder, Frank Norris walks at the head of the procession; as a financier or church fund raiser he may have peers but no superiors. His road in Fort Worth hasn't been a road strewn with roses. For years he walked on jagged rocks. He had powerful enemies and he had loyal friends. He whipped his enemies to a frazzle and now he is eating out of his hand. He is a man of peace now and through his efforts alone Fort Worth boasts of a downtown church auditorium that has a seating capacity of more than 5,000 and a church organ that would do credit to a city of half a million souls. Speaking of church property the First Baptist Congregation has valuable holdings on the fringe of the downtown church auditorium. J. Frank Norris raised the money to buy the land, to rear the buildings, to buy the organ and his program isn't half through. Conventions are held in this church auditorium, musical events are staged there, concerts are given and the doors are never closed on Gentile or Jew or Protestant or Catholic or men of the world without religious affiliations. J. Frank Norris is an unique character. He never fails to "put it over." He is an unbossed preacher. If he has a message he delivers the message and he doesn't care who likes or dislikes it. He isn't virtrolic, as in the old days; he doesn't harpoon his opponents as he did in the old days; neither does he turn the other cheek. If a fellow throws a brick bat at Norris, he can count on getting two brick bats in return. Norris is a militant churchman. He knows all the politicians, all the policemen, all the preachers, all the priests, all the rabbis, all the bankers, all the sinners, and most of the saints. Fort Worth was without a downtown auditorium until he built one. His pulpit is in that auditorium—it is his church and his home most of the time although he has a snug place and a fine little farm near Hanley where Jerseys and White Leghorns grow. A year ago he visited Europe, personally interviewed Lloyd George of England, Tiger Clemeneau of France, had an audience with the Pope, motored over to Palistine and on his way home stopped off in the city of Cleveland, Ohio, and sermonized for the benefit of the rich parishioners of the Baptist Church in that city built by the money of John D. Rockefeller and wherein John D. worships when he visits his Cleveland home. This summer J. Frank motored to Los Angeles, having been called by one of the powerful congregations of that city to tell them just how it happened that a Texas preacher found it easy to organize "the largest Sunday school in the world," flay sinners until they became saints, create a church auditorium of the finest and then have the spare time to rake over the coals brother preachers unsound or unholy in their interpretations of of the Bible and its messages to mankind. Fort Worth newspaper men call him "Sky Pilot" Norris and he calls every mother's son of them by their front name. As an evangelist he is known far and wide. He grew up in Texas, he has had many offers in recent years to go elsewhere but he sticks to Fort Worth where his early crusading was done and where he subdued his ancient enemies and so thoroughly tamed them that they eat out of his hand. They may not have any greater love for him than in days of yore but having won he marches straight ahead doing the best he can. Richelieu, the great Cardinal of France, had a motto, "Conciliate if you can; crush if you must." J. Frank Norris in his youth must have read of the career of the great Cardinal of France.

LOVE FOR MOTHER IS GIRL'S PLEA AT TRIAL FOR KILLING STEPFATHER

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—The trial of Marion MaArdle, charged with the first degree murder of Daniel Kaber, her stepfather, was set for today. She is the third to be tried, Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, her mother, and Salvatore Cala serving life sentences for the crime.

Marian McArdle.

Marian McArdle is facing trial in the same courtroom where her mother, Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber was given a life sentence two months ago for the murder of her husband, Dan Kaber, to stand trial herself for her life.

The girl, whose career has been varied and spectacular, is charged with complicity in the murder of Kaber, her step-father. She is but one of four women implicated in the crime. In addition to her mother there are two other women, Mrs. Mary Brickel, Marian's maternal grandmother, the third generation to be involved, and Emma Colavito, through whom Mrs. Kaber procured Salvatore Cala and Vitorio Pisselli to stab her husband to death. Cala has been sentenced to life imprisonment; Pisselli is still at large, and Mrs. Brickel and the Colavito woman are yet to be tried.

Was Loyalty Misdirected?

More interest is manifested in the trial of Marian than was shown even in the trial of Mrs. Kaber, her mother, chronicled as the country's archmurderess. This interest is due to the girl's youth—she is twenty-one—and public doubt as to whether she erred in standing by her mother, knowing that mother had the blood of her step-father on her hands.

That Marian knew of the plot to kill her step-father, but that she did not participate in any way in the carrying out of the plans, is the attitude of the defense.

They contend that her crime was that of maintaining silence to protect the woman who brought her into the world.

History of the Case

Briefly, the story of the Kaber murder follows:

Dan Kaber, Lakewood publisher, was found by his male nurse in his room the night of July 18, 1919, with twenty-four dagger wounds in his abdomen. Before dying Kaber moaned that two men stabbed him and that the crime was ordered done by his wife, Mrs. Kaber, absent from the city the night of the murder, returned the following day. She denied all knowledge of the crime. Later she moved to New York, and there, through the tireless efforts of Moses Kaber, aged father of the murder victim, she was brought to bay and forced to confess after her mother, Mrs. Brickel, had told the story back of the slaying.

Mrs. Brickel, forced into a confession through fear that her son Charles Brickel, would be charged with the crime, said that her daughter, Mrs. Kaber, ordered it done. She involved Marian, Mrs. Colavito and even herself. Cala and Pisselli were revealed as the actual slayers, having been promised $5,000 for doing the deed. The various confessions revealed that at least a score of persons knew of the plot, directly or indirectly. Mrs. Kaber even had promised one certain foreigner that she would marry him if he would run over her husband with an automobile and kill him. They also revealed that Mrs. Kaber, through Mrs. Colavito, fed her invalid husband arsenic and once tried to burn him to death in bed. In another plot she sought to have him waylaid and beaten to death in the street. She sent him out for ice cream on the night of a raid, so that the attack might be made. The plot failed when Kaber took a course different to that Mrs. Kaber had believed he would take.

And it is because Marian McArdle had knowledge of all this plotting that she will go on trial for her life. There is no likelihood, however, that she will be called upon to pay the extreme penalty, or even a penalty as severe as that imposed upon her mother.

Only one thing stands out as indicating Marian to be cold-blooded and calculating. That is the fact that on the night her step-father was attacked she entertained a girl friend in an adjoining room, even going so far as to laugh and sing to drown the cries of agony that emanated from the death room.

A strange girl is Marian and her version of the crime that aroused the entire country will be listened to with intense interest.

JUDGE TELLS OF GETTING MAIL THREATS

Receives Anonymous Letters, Travis County District Judge Tells Grand Jurors.

Charge Deals Mainly with Ku Klux Klan, and Letters Received by Prominent Austin Men Read.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—In charging the grand jury of Travis county today Judge James R. Hamilton, of the criminal district court of Williamson and Travis counties, said that threats have been made upon his life by anonymous persons.

"This court has received threats of violence through anonymous letters," Judge Hamilton said, "but if I had been killed as many times as I have been threatened there would not be enough vacant lots in Austin to bury me."

Judge Hamilton said however, that the threats of violence were not from the Ku Klux Klan.

"Nothing but a mob of masked physical cowards by death can place a padlock upon my lips or stop the pulsations of my heart," Judge Hamilton said prefacing his charge.

His charge was principally in regard to the Ku Klux Klan. He instructed the grand jury to investigate thoroughly the activities and operations of the Ku Klux Klan or any secret clan-destine organization, purposed to enforce the law by punishing persons secretly.

Before reading charge he asked the jurors "if there is any member of this grand jury panel who is a member of a secret, clad-destine organization formed for the purpose of taking the law into its own hands." Receiving no reply, the judge read two letters received by Austin citizens ostensibly from Capitol City Klan Number 81, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan" as the letters were written on stationery of that heading. They were not signed.

AUSTIN POLICE CHIEF TO GIVE PROTECTION

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 3.—Chief of Police Sam D. Griffith told a newspaper reporter today that if anticipated victims of Capitol City Klan No. 81 of Austin sought police protection from possible attacks, he would furnish it to the best of his ability.

Griffith's assertion followed a charge to Travis county grand jurors today by Judge James R. Hamilton to investigate activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Austin.

There are five men in Austin who have been warned by official Klan letters to cease various activities.

The father of one, a lawyer, stated last Saturday "they could do as they damn please, they (the Klan) could go to hell for all he cared."

It became known tonight that a number of subpoenas were placed in the sheriff's hands immediately after the Ku Klux Klan charge was delivered to the grand jury by Judge Hamilton, those believed to be for witnesses from whom Klan information may be obtained.

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE KU KLUX KLAN

By Associated Press.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 3.—Declaring that he knew of no Ku Klux Klan for this Texas, Judge E. A. McDowell today announced that he might call before the special grand jury investigating activities of the Klan in Jefferson county. Judge McDowell's statement was made during his charge to the grand jury, in which he said that members of the Ku Klux Klan could be indicted.

He roundly denounced the klan, displaying a copy of the klan's red button, which he said they wore, offered to give the Klan grip to any member of the Ku Klux present and also said that he had other evidence. The judge is furnishing the grand jury with a list of names which are required to represent members of the klan.

EIGHTH SAND ESTABLISHED IN ELECTRA POOL

The eighth producing sand for the South Electra district was established on Monday, when the Bridwell test on the W. T. Waggoner developed sufficient oil in the first few hours of bailing to assure good production. With 1200 feet of water and mud still in the hole, the oil was rising so rapidly that it was impossible to bail the hole clean, neither could the oil be lowered, according to reports from the field late Monday.

The production may vary from one hundred to two or three hundred barrels, according to the present showing. The well is due to be rigged up to swab this morning, and with the hole cleaned out will probably start flowing.

There is no production at this depth south of Electra, the old part of the field north of the town being the closest production at such a depth.

There is no production in this sand closer than the old part of the field, north of the town of Electra, and there is a vast amount of territory opened up, which is practically untested to any depth below 1400 feet. The west Fowlkes district, several miles to the east, and the Collett lease of the Gulf, to the south, have the only deep production, and this territory, too, is virtually untested. The Gulf has started an offset to its 1900-foot well on the Collett, and the Gladiolus is preparing to offset the Gulf deep well on the south end of its Burnett lease.

The opening up of this new sand, coupled with the recent discovery made by the Planet Petroleum company in the 1600-foot sand similar to that sand in the old Electra field, increases the value of the South Electra field very materially, a field which was already one of the richest in the county, because of its multiplicity of sands, and the good flush production, as well as steady pumping qualities.

The latest well in the 1600-foot sand, brought in last week, had an initial production of 500 barrels. The other wells in this 1600-foot sand, and also in the other shallower sands, have also had a high average production for the several depths.

WILL FORCE SHOWDOWN ON OIL RULES

Chief Supervisor Oil and Gas Division Will Make Test Out of Alleged Violation in Archer.

Penalties Accumulate to Million Dollars for Continued Defiance to Rules, Hassell Says.

Determination to force a real showdown for once and for all was expressed by Judge Jeff W. Hassell, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division, Texas railroad commission, on his arrival in Wichita Falls Monday night after a 100 mile trip through the Graham and Archer county districts and on into Wichita Falls.

Judge Hassell's statement came as a result of defiance of railroad commission rules and regulations by the drillers of a wildcat test near Dundee in Archer county, who were reported as definitely refusing to clean out their hole and properly plug the same before abandonment.

So many of the rules of the commission have been violated by these operators, declared Judge Hassell, and the violations had gone over such a long time, that the operators were technically liable for penalties which will total up to a million dollars.

"And I'm going to have suit instituted against them for the full amount," the judge declared.

In the meantime rig, tools and other supplies are being held as security for what penalties are finally assessed.

Casing was pulled in this test before notice was given, according to Judge Hassell, constituting with failure to log one of roughly a half dozen regulations which were violated on this lease, each of which carries a maximum penalty of $5,000, with each day of every violation constituting a separate offense.

The equipment has been held on the lease for some time, pending the compliance of the operators with instructions to go back in, clean out the hole and properly plug. This, according to the chief supervisor, they have consistently refused to do. Yesterday an attempt was made to move stuff from the lease according to reports made to the chief supervisor, who was still at Graham.

He reached Dundee in time to give the railroad agent at that place instructions to move none of the stuff. The rules and regulations of the commission were made for the protection of operators and the conservation of oil and gas resources, Judge Hassell says, and unless they can be forced there is no reason for the existence of the commission.

Judge Hassell was accompanied from Graham by M. S. McNamara, deputy supervisor in the Young county oil fields, and was met at Dundee by W. F. Arnold, deputy supervisor of the Electra district. He expects to be here for two or three days.

While there is a considerable development at Mexia, there is no scramble which would necessitate giving him such attention, Judge Hassell declared, but there are some special rules which the commission has been compelled to make before operations are begun.

Requirements for rig time and actual drilling before the casing of fresh water strata is allowed, as well as for the setting of rotary tools will be one of these, he indicated.

Reports of one test being drilled 1350 odd feet through oil sand and into salt water have been received from railroad commission representatives at Mexia, Judge Hassell said.

SOUTHARD CASE FEATURES FLY EXTERMINATOR

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 3.—Fly exterminator supplied the theme about which was woven the stories of the first two witnesses of the state to testify in the case of Lydia Meyer Southard, charged with murder of Edward F. Meyer, a former husband.

The opening statement by Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephen, delivered immediately following the obtaining of a jury to try the case, did not go outside the case of the death of Meyer although Stephen has stated that he is prepared to submit evidence showing her to be responsible for the death of three other husbands and a brother of one of them, the alleged crime in each instance being committed by means of poison derived from the exterminator.

Few spectators were present when the first witness for the state, Mrs. Carrie Howe of Mucatine, Iowa, boarding housekeeper at the Blue Lakes ranch at the time of the death of Meyer, told of the defendant bringing the exterminator to the ranch and setting it about the boarding house in saucers of water. She described in detail the illness of Meyer and the events leading up to his death. Mrs. Howe also advised the court that she had seen Mrs. Southard put arsenic in a saucer of water. She also testified that she did not love her husband as a wife should, was testified by Mrs. Howe, who added that Mrs. Meyer to treat him [illegible] while the witness testified. Mrs. Howe will be extended to Cross examination in order to shake her testimony.

DISMISSAL OF PICKFORD CASE DECISION ASKED

By Associated Press.

CARSON, Nev., Oct. 3.—P. A. McCarran, counsel for Mary Pickford Fairbanks, motion picture actress, in her divorce proceedings against Owen Moore, motion picture actor, moved in the state supreme court today for dismissal of an appeal from a judgment upholding the divorce.

The appeal was filed by State Attorney General Leonard Fowler.

McCarran argued that the appeal was not submitted to the court within the statutory time limit and that the judgment is not subject to appeal. Deputy Attorney General Richards asked the court to examine the record in order that it might see for itself that the appeal was regular in every way. He admitted, however, that a clerical error might have made it appear that the appeal was not made within the statutory time limit.

WOUNDED OF KLAN BATTLE HOLDING OWN

So Far No Fatalities Reported Result Fight Between Sheriff's Posse and Lorena Ku Klux.

No Action Taken Toward Setting Day When Grand Jury Will Look Into the Causes of Bloody Riot.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 3.—Physicians have placed a formidable cardon around Sheriff Buchanan, Louis Crow and Ed Howard, who were seriously injured in the clash and neither has made any statement regarding the affair. The only announcement the attending physicians will make is that their "condition is critical" and that they will not permit anyone to talk to them.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 3.—With three men still in a critical condition tonight as result of knife or pistol wounds received Saturday night during a clash at Lorena, near here, when Sheriff Bob Buchanan attempted to halt a parade of Ku Klux Klansmen, interest centered about what steps officials would take to place responsibility for the injuries inflicted.

In best informed quarters this evening it was stated that District Judge R. L. Monroe and F. B. Terry, county attorney, were considering calling the grand jury but they probably would await the outcome of the victims injuries before acting.

So far only comment offered by state officials came from Governor Pat M. Neff, who in a statement to be published tomorrow morning in the Waco News Tribune expressed "great regret that such a thing should occur, anywhere in this state," and announced that he had offered officials of McLennan county any assistance they might need in throwing light upon the affair.

Waco is the home town of Governor Neff.

Of ten men injuried during the fight, eight are still in hospitals. Sheriff Buchanan, Ed Howard, a local policeman, and Louis Crow, a laundry proprietor, are those regarded as the most seriously hurt. Sheriff Buchanan has bullet wounds in the right lung and left leg. Howard and Crow who were spectators at the parade were stabbed.

Crow, it was reported, has made a statement to relatives, saying he had recognized his assailant.

It had hitherto been reported that Crow had not recognized the man and that eye witnesses to the fight had been unable to distinguish those wielding weapons in the melee.

The conditions of crow, Sheriff Bob Buchanan of McLennan county, who was shot through the right lung and right leg, and Ed Howard, local policeman, who was stabbed while viewing the encounter in an unofficial capacity, were reported tonight as unchanged. All are said to be in a critical condition.

The remaining seven men, five of whom are still confined to local sanitariums, were reported in various stages of recovery.

"Did Not Fire"

"I did not fire a shot until I heard Bob say 'I'm shot,'" said Deputy Sheriff M. Burton, who with Deputy

DOCK WORKERS REMAIN OUT ON STRIKE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A decision to deal only with recognized local unions and officials of the international longshoremen's association with reference to wages and working conditions was reported today at a meeting of employing stevedores and shipping agents.

The meeting, which was attended by T. V. O'Connor, commissioner of the United States shipping board, followed receipt of appeals of the longshoremen's association and of the shipping board to persuade the men who struck Saturday to return to work. In a strike, members of nine local unions, which declined to testify the recent wage agreement, refused.

Strike leaders claimed they were gaining recruits at all of the New York and New Jersey piers. This claim was denied by the shipowners. Anthony J. Chapman has succeeded Mr. O'Connor as president of the longshoremen's association when the latter was appointed a member of the shipping board to meet with strike leaders tomorrow.

TEXAS COTTON CROP LOWEST IN HISTORY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Further decline in the condition of cotton during September resulted in a reduction of 500,000 bales in the forecast of production issued today by the department of agriculture which places the total crop at 6,537,000 equivalent 500 pound bales. The department of agriculture based its estimate on the condition of the crop September 25, which was 42.2 per cent of normal, indicating a yield of 118.0 pounds per acre.

The growing season this year has been the most disastrous on record, the crop showing a loss of 1,666,000 bales in prospective production during the months of August and September. The end of August found the crop in the worst condition ever recorded while today's report showed a continuation of unfavorable crop conditions. Today's condition report showed the crop to be 12.2 points below the worst previous record.

"Over most of the belt there will be but little middle crop and practically no top crop," a statement is sued by the department said.

"The swarming plague of boll weevils has advanced almost to the limits of the belt, being through the lower third of North Carolina into eleven counties of Tennessee and over most of Arkansas, Oklahoma and

ONE INJURED IN OIL TANK FIRE AT BURK

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 3.—Fire starting from an explosion of undetermined origin at 9:30 tonight at the loading rack of the Charles F. Noble Gasoline plant, just outside Burkburnett, set fire to a 55,000 barrel storage tank, and seven or eight tank cars of oil, and one man was severely burned. The first was still in progress around midnight and the damage had not been estimated, though it was believed that the conflagration, that appeared at one time to threaten the entire plant, was confined to the tank and cars.

The young man, whose name was said to be Murphy, first name not learned, was removed to the hospital, where his injuries were pronounced serious.

LITTLE PROGRESS MADE MONDAY ON TAX REVISION BILL

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Comparatively little progress on the tax revision bill was made today by the senate. The most important committee amendments reached, those proposing a tax of fifteen per cent on corporations and increasing exemptions to heads of families having net incomes of less than $5,000 and on account of dependents, were passed over a second time.

Committee amendments agreed to include those requiring individuals having a gross income of $5,000 a year to make a return regardless of the amount of the net income and permitting the tax payer to make a reduction for debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within a taxable year.

AGREEMENTS ON SHIPPING TO BE EXPLAINED TODAY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Operating agreements between the International Mercantile Marine company an American corporation, and the British government, as affecting the company's American flagships and the foreign commerce of the United States, will be explained to the United States shipping board at a special public hearing here tomorrow. The inquiry will concern an agreement made in 1903 and a supplementary agreement filed September 9, last.

The original agreement, the shipping board declared in a report, made to the senate last March, was inimicable to the foreign commerce of the United States in that it was alleged to bind the steamship company "to pursue no policy injurious to the interests of the British merchant marine or of British trade."

PROPOSE ROAD LOAN FUND AS FUTURE RELIEF

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Advisability of a federal bond issue to create a fund for making loans to aid municipal public works in years of depression when jobs are scarce was under consideration today by sub-committees of the national conference on unemployment.

Such a proposal has been suggested to the conference as part of a plan for permanent safeguards against bad years for the nation's workers. No estimate of how many millions of dollars would be required has been made.

Steps have been taken by city officials of Boston and Cleveland and some other cities to put into effect the emergency relief program adopted last week by the conference. Secretary Hoover announced today.

PRICES BLAMED ON BUSINESS MEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Charging that retailers and manufacturers in every state had illegally combined to maintain high prices, Senator King, democrat, Utah, during consideration of the tax bill today declared the attorney general should "send to the penitentiary thousands of conspirators responsible for paralysis of trade."

Until the government takes action, he added, there will be no marked decline in prices or in the beginning of prosperity.

REPORT CAUSES WIDE RANGE IN COTTON PRICES

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—One of the most rapid and exciting movements of the spectacular sessions of the cotton exchange came today in connection with the publication of the government's crop reports. After an early rise of unusual proportions, prices broke violently until within ten minutes of reaction of 125 to 195 points had been recorded.

Before publication of the report, there was a good deal of buying in the unexpectation that the figures would show a condition of 40 or under. When the actual figures of 42.2 were flashed on the brokers wires and new tickers, the market was overwhelmed with selling orders. December contracts, which rose approximately $6.50 to 21.95 cent, a new high record for the season on the sharp early upturn, slumped to 20.00 and active months generally were marked down for net losses of 30 to 65 points.

Almost as quickly as it came, the rush of liquidation subsided and the marke became steadier on trade buying, with recoveries in the later trading. In brokerage houses of traders were lined up in front of the cotton boards. The government pointing to a crop of 6,537,000 bales was only slightly above the average of the private reports recently issued and the selling which followed publication of the figures was attributed chiefly to liquidation of speculative accounts.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 3.—The bureau reports today brought violent and wide fluctuations to the cotton market. The ginning report caused a rise of 126 to 169 points, while immediately following the condition report there was a break of 200 points on January and nothing but the rule limiting fluctuations prevented a still wider decline. Other months fell 155 to 195 points at this level, the market was 29 to 48 points under the close of last week. In the later trading the tone was steadier and the market came back to moderate net gains, the trading months on the close being 23 to 48 points up, compared with last week's close, January standing at 20.28.

The second ginnig figures of the season came from the census bureau at 9 o'clock and the local ginned to September 25 of 2,907,950 bales was smaller than expected. This, combined with better cables than due, caused general buying and put the market to its highest of the day, prices being at the height of the rise at 10 o'clock when the condition figures came in. The advance carried January up to 27.50 cents a pound.

The condition report of 42.2 per cent of normal, indicating a crop of 6,537,000 bales, was higher than expected and the market cracked wide open under the terrific burst of selling that immediately ensued. The first five minutes following the condition report were the wildest ever witnessed on the cotton exchange and for a while the exchange reporters were unable to keep up with the vast volume of business being done. For a while the records indicated that December had fallen two hundred points but later on the books of brokers showed that January had fallen two hundred points, while December tumbled 19.50.

For a while the market was very soft but new buying of consequence came in at the decline and it was pointed out that while the condition figures and the inflicted crop were higher than expected, the condition report was the lowest ever issued on cotton by the government and that the indicated crop was the smallest in 37 years. Prospects of colder weather in the belt and of frost in portions of Oklahoma and Arkansas helped to steady the market and the late marketing was done at net advances.

New York Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Extremely rapid and excited price movements accompanied the publication of the government's crop report in the cotton market here today. The ginning figures which were published at the opening were very heavy as compared with ideas of the total yield, but there was heavy general buying which sent the price of December contracts up to 21.95 before the crop indication was issued. This carried the near months into new high ground for the season but the crop report being slightly above expectations was followed by a rush of selling orders which temporarily overwhelmed the market. Inside of ten minutes Demeber had sold off to 20.00 or 195 points from the top and 60 points below Saturday's closing quotations. The selling pressure then subsided and there were sharp recoveries later in the day with December closing at 20.90 and with the general market closing very steady at a net advance of 29 to 50 points.

The relatively heavy ginning of 2,907,606 last year was generally considered in connection with reports that packing was unusually near completion, and an opening advance of 29 to 52 points was promoted by higher Liverpool cables and reports of unfavorable weather in the south. There was very active general buying during the first hour, part of which at least, was probably based on expectations that the official condition would be below 40 and before the crop figures were published, active months sold 127 to 158 points above last night's closing figures.

The change to extreme weakness came almost instantaneously when the condition was 42.2 was announced and before the break was checked, active months sold 120 to 195 points net lower, October declining from 21.08 to 20.60 and January from 21.60 to 19.70. The bulk of the selling on this break was attributed to the liquidation of speculative longs, however, while local brokers said there was active trade buying on the decline and there were rallies of 50 to 90 points from the lowest in the late trading with nervousness over the question of grades and staples increased by the southern rain news and predictions for frost in North Oklahoma. Exports today were 54,348 making 941,163 so far this season. Port receipts 61,193. United States port stocks 1,420,213.

practically everywhere in such numbers and doing such damage as has been experienced since the period of initial invasion.

"The army and other worms have been present in damaging numbers in most of the territory from the Mississippi westward, stripping the leaves from the plants over large areas.

"Comment is general that the crop may be picked out by early November in much of the central and eastern territory if favorable picking weather continues. The fair and dry September has permitted uninterrupted picking and with labor plentiful and relatively cheap a larger proportion of the crop has probably been picked out than ever before. In Texas the flood and weevils have been more or less of an offset to the beneficial rains in the northwestern part of that state.

"In some sections picking is completed and in much of the east gulf territory the present picking will get most or all of it. Farmers plan to clear off the crop and plow early to diminish weevil damage next year."

HARDING ASKS TO AID FIGHT ON IDLENESS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Governors and mayors throughout the country were asked by President Harding in a public statement today to organize in each community machinery for the correction of economic conditions along lines worked out by the unemployment conference here.

The conference, the president declared, had demonstrated that conditions could not be met properly without such local co-operation. He announced that a central agency would be maintained here under auspices of the conference to give national co-ordination to the rehabilitation efforts.

The president's statement follows:

"The conference which I recently summoned to Washington to advise as to the unemployment situation has demonstrated that an unusual volume of unemployment exists and that pending the recuperation of trade the situation cannot be met, in due regard to our obligations and necessities, without a much more than usual organization throughout those states and municipalities where unemployment has reached considerable proportions.

"The conference has recommended the support of commercial, manufacturing, professional, and labor representatives of the country. It is highly necessary that more accurate knowledge should be had ,through such organization of the volume and necessities of the unemployed.

It is essential that the co-operation of all sections of each community shuld be brought into action behind such organization to provide assistance that we may pass through the coming winter without great suffering and distress.

It is of national importance that every community should at once undertake such organization in order that the nation may be protected as a whole. Moreover the thorough commitment to such a task is sure to start a thousand activities which will add to our common welfare.

"I therefore appeal to the governors and mayors of the nation that they should take the steps recommended by the conference.

"In order that there may be unity of action by all the forces which may be brought to bear, whether governmental or private, the unemployment conference is establishing an agency in Washington through which reports on all progress and suggestion may be supported in this endeavor."

Final plans for the central employment agency are practically completed, conference officials said, and Secretary Hoover is to make an announcement tomorrow outlining the character of the organization. Colonel Arthur Woods, former police commissioner of New York, is understood to be under consideration for appointment as head of the agency.

point of the major who is some boomer himself: "From Hon. J. T. Robinson's address while in the Park committee reception we learned that Texas has 270,000 square miles of territory, or about 170 million acres of land, has 400 miles of tide line and 2800 miles of river front, has more lumber than any other state and produces more beef cattle and markets, fore fish than any other, also has some of the highest mountains and deepest gorges. Gosh but ain't she a whopper? Just by way of a little more 'ography or 'ology you will be reminded that Brewster county is the biggest county in this great big state and that Alpine is the biggest town in this biggest county. Some whopper ourselves and out of that vast amount of beef cattle he mentioned the "Big Bend" country, according to all market reports, furnishes the biggest and best of them all—ranks second only to the whole state of California in the production of quicksilver—has many of those highest mountains and gorges up to 2000 feet deep, as well as the longest mountains river front in the state. Truly a county and town of the big kind with the biggest fpture of any in all Texas, inhabited by a big class of people (not merely in size) who are getting ready for the biggest growth and development, in many ways, and will welcome all good citizens. If you contemplate changing your permanent address you will be creating the rest of the family wrong if you don't investigate this country before you locate elsewhere.

Sheriff I. M. Wood, led by Sheriff Bob Buchanan, attempted to halt a parade of Ku Klux Klansmen at Lorena Saturday night, as the result of which ten men were wounded.

"I have authorized no previous statement," Deputy Barton continued, "and my attorneys have advised me not to discuss the matter, but the report that I shot Bob Buchanan is a lie."

"After we, Bob and I, had talked with the leaders of the klan at their assembling place, just before the parade in an effort to keep them from starting the march until they had let us know who some of them were, I came back with Bob to a place near the business district of the town and was by his side when he grabbed the leader of the parade and unmasked him.

"I saw the man's face clearly, but don't believe I could recognize him again, and just as he stepped back and tried to adjust the mask over his face again, I was seized by several people in the crowd which lined the street. I had a gun in my hand when they grabbed me," Burton said, "and I was trying to get away from them when I heard Bob cry that he had been shot. I drew my other gun, but was not able to get away from those who held me until I threatened to kill one of them whom I recognized."

"I then began shooting and that is all that I care to say now."

Burton, following the melee, went to the drug store where first aid was being administered Sheriff Buchanan, and said that at that time he noticed the sheriff's holster was empty.

"They took his gun away from him during the fight," Burton volunteered.

According to available information, the gun had not been found at a late hour tonight.

"Of course, it was all 'framed' to get me," Burton said, "and they had men placed in the crowd for that purpose."

One of the men he recognized, however, and whom he threatened to shoot, is a personal friend of his, he declared.

He reiterated that he had not shot until he heard two shots fired, followed closely by Buchanan's cry that he was wounded.

Asked where Deputy Wood was durin gthe fight, Burton said that he did not see him after a half hour before the clash took place, until he found him guarding the door of the drug store to keep the curious crowd back from Buchanan, whose wounds were being dressed. He evidently had been in another portion of the crowd when the fight began, Burton said.

Participants in the parade have not been identified, and as yet, no statement or comment has been forthcoming from the local chapter of the klan.

NEFF EXPRESSES REGRET OVER TRAGIC FIGHT

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 3.—The first official statement by Governor Pat M. Neff regarding the encounter Saturday night at Lorena between parading Ku Klux Klansmen and a sheriff's posse in which ten men received bullet and knife wounds, expressing "great regret that such a thing should occur anywhere in the state," will be published in the News Tribune here tomorrow morning.

The statement, which was issued at the Governor's office today follows:

"Governor Neff, when asked about the Lorena Ku Klux Klan parade in which the sheriff and several citizens of McLennan county were wounded, expressed great regret that such a thing should occur anywhere in the state and further stated that soon after he heard of the occurence yesterday, he tendered his official services and the aid of the state to the county officials of McLennan county to help them in every way possible in searching out the truth and in upholding the law in everyway."

The governor's offer yesterday of state aid in the investigation of the incident as carried in Associated Press dispatches last night was declined with thanks by the County Attorney F. B. Firey, who stated that local authorities could handle the situation.

Further developments in the affair now await action of the fifty-fourth district grand jury, which Mr. Firey and District Judge R. I. Munroe, of the fifty-fourth district court, re-iterated today, would be called at the earliest possible date in inquire into the case.

As both officials were engaged in the trial of a criminal case today, their expected announcement of the date when the grand jury will be called, was not made. Both, however, continue in the view that the investigation should be delayed pending the outcome of the injuries received by those more seriously injured in the fight.

A verbal statement today by Louis Crow, proprietor of a local laundry, who while witnessing the clash between the county officers and white robed klansmen received dangerous knife wounds, that he knew his assailant, has caused a stir of interest among local authorities. His assertion was made to relatives at his bed at a hospital here.

START TRACK LAYING FOR SHORT LINE

Laying of track for the Ninth street short line to the business section, under construction by the Traction company, will be started this morning, according to L. L. Allbritton, general manager of the company.

More than a block of the pavement has been cut and the track men will follow these workmen as closely as possible—to be followed in turn by the repaving gang as soon as a sufficient start has been obtained.

All materials, including rails with steel ties, welding materials are on the ground, obviating any possibility of work being delayed from this source. The trolley wires for the new line were practically completed some time ago. Three or four weeks is expected to see the finish of the construction.

DAMAGE SUIT REOPENED BY OIL WORKER

For the second time within a year and a half the trial of the $50,000 damage suit of W. M. Ellis against the Illinois Torpedo company opened Monday afternoon with jury before Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th District court. The case was tried several months ago, resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff. This was later reversed by the Civil Court of Appeals and remanded for another trial.

The plaintiff who was an oil well shooter, alleges that he was injured in the Burkburnett oil fields in 1919 when a shot of nitro-glycerine exploded prematurely due to defective tools owned by the defendant company by whom he was employed.

WOMAN SAYS IT WOULD BE WRONG TO KEEP SILENT

"No one knows how glad I was, after using Tanlac a few days, to find I was getting better and I have been getting better ever since," said Mrs. Myrtle Boatman, 540 W. Sixteenth St., Houston Heights, Texas.

"For two years I was all run down and in dreadful health. I never felt like eating anything, lost weight and was tired and worn out all the time. I suffered from headache, my nerves were upset and I could hardly ever get a good night's rest. To add to my troubles, I took inflammatory rheumatism and in my right arm the pain was almost unbearable.

"Tanlac suited my case exactly and I feel stronger and better than I have since my troubles began. The rheumatism is entirely gone, my appetite is good and my digestion is just perfect. I have tried lots of different kinds of medicines, but Tanlac is the only one that did me any real good and I feel it would be a positive wrong for me not to tell others of my experience."

Tanlac is sold in Wichita Falls by Miller Drug Store; in Electra by Tarlton Drug Store; in Burkburnett by West End Drug Co., and by all leading druggists.—adv.

In addition to this the board borrowed $ 8,000. The fifty cent tax has not been sufficient to meet the necessary expenditures, leaving an deficit of $8,000. It was proposed to raise this by popular subscription. M. K. Graham headed the list with $4,000; Mrs. A. N. Graham; E. S. Graham; Street & Co.; John M. Farris was the husband of Mrs. Rebecca Farris who was killed by the Katy passenger train. Brown made no resistance and admitted to Sheriff Jones that he had killed Farris, who was his stepfather. Ill treatment of his mother was given by Brown as the cause of the quarrel. "Clay county has feed enough, says most farmers, to last two years and those who we are looking for hard times before cotton began to grow up should take courage. Much of the distrass of past years has been almost solely because there was a shortage of feed for stock and every dollar that could be secured went for feed and it made times hard. Now the opposite is true. There is feed a-plenty and to sell."

Feared Loss Of Children; Broke Jail

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 5.—After having escaped from prison and made his way to San Antonio, driven by fear that his four children had perished in the recent flood here, J. B. Payne was held by local officers today awaiting the arrival of deputy wardens from the Lansing, Kan., prison.

Payne, who is forty-six years old and foremrly was a farmer, told officers that both he and his wife were convicted on a charge of assault two years ago and sentenced to five years in prison. Their four children ranging from five to fourteen years of age, were placed in an orphanage in San Antonio. Reading exaggerated account of the flood of September 10, he tried to learn of the fate of his children, but was unsuccessful. He had enough money to make the trip to San Antonio and decided to come here and find his children if they were living. He said he was a trusty and escape was easy.

Payne pleaded with officers to let him return without guards. "I was preparing to go back of my own free will so that I would not lose what I have gained by good behavior," he said. Officers wired to prison authorities, who directed that Payne be held in custody.

ASKS DAMAGE FOR ARREST LAST YEAR

The trial of the suit of John E. Healey of this city against the M. K. & T. railroad for $17,000 damages opened Monday afternoon with jury in the 78th District court. After the jury had been selected the trial of the case was adjourned until this morning.

The damages are asked from the railroad because of an alleged false arrest last year. According to the plaintiff's petition he was arrested by special agents of the defendant company who entered his house in search of stolen property in the theft of which he was supposed to have been implicated. According to the plaintiff the charges were dismissed against him for lack of proof. In the petition $2,000 alleged actual damages are asked with the remainder as exemplary damages.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Oct. 2—The crisis in the cattle industry in West Texas has passed, thinks W. H. Portwood, stockman-banker of this city. He feels certain of a shortage of range cattle in the Southwest and with average or fair range in most sections reaction is at hand and restocking on a large scale will effect very materially the stock market. In the past few months he has visited a large part of the stock producing sections of the southwest and is basing his opinions from the general conditions as he found them. He thinks a large majority of fat stuff has been marketed and the strength of the market has been remarkable when the amount of shipments for the past twelve months are considered.

Mr. Portwood is very optimistic over the outlook for this section and thinks the federal cattle loan project will bring relief to the stockman and benefit the stock industry. It is being supervised by a practical cattleman, Marion Samson of Ft. Worth, who knows the needs and has the confidence of the cattle interests of Texas.

COUNTY AIDS FREIGHT RATE INVESTIGATION

The county commissioners' court Monday voted to aid the state highway department in the investigation of freight rates in the state.

The court voted to send T. H. Webb the sum of $10 as the county's share of the expense incidental to the investigation.

The court is primarily interested in freight rates due to the large expenditures made monthly for freight in connection with the construction of the county roads.

OTHERS FALL IN LINE ON CRUDE BOOST

Local offices of the Texas Pipeline Co., and the Magnolia today announced a 25-cent advance in the price of North Texas crude to meet the advances of the Prairie, Sinclair and Gulf companies on Saturday. The Texas company boost included Oklahoma oils, an increase of 25 cents for these oils, and a boost of 50 cents for the Texas company price in this field.

Local filling stations Monday generally fell in line with the Magnolia and other stations raising gasoline to 20 cents, with the exception of some of the large company stations owned by companies which have not yet acted.

DALLAS, Oct. 3—The Magnolia Petroleum Company announced that effective today the price of crude oils had been increased to $1.50 per barrel at the wells with following pools: Electra-Burkburnett, Henrietta, Moran, Ranger and Stephens county districts, Strawn and Thrall.

SIXTEEN ARE TAXED UNDER TRAFFIC LAW

Failure to comply with the new head light, tail light and dimmer ordnance put into effect Saturday cost sixteen auto owners of this city fines of $5.00 each at the police court Monday morning. Few cases were dismissed and a number were set for further dates.

Four cases affrey arrested at a local hotel Sunday evening drew fines of $25.00 each. One man charged with vagrancy was fined $15.00 and another given a $5.00 fine.

About twenty-five cases of violation of the dimmer and tail light ordnance were found on the docket Monday morning.

With few exceptions those charged with violating the new ordinance plead guilty, and offered as excuses for failure to comply with the law—inability to purchase a tail light in the city, ignorance of the law, etc.

It is reported that more tail lights have been sold in the last three weeks than ever before in the history of the city in so short a period of time.

Circus Brings Great Day for School Kiddies

It was a great day Monday for the school students.

They all wanted to see the parade and the circus and eat peanuts and feed the elephant, but the school board had ruled that school must keep despite the advent of the circus and consequently Monday morning saw a slight decrease in the attendance in the various schools. Also teachers report that not a single mind seemed interested in school books.

Superintendent Clark and several of the school board reported that their telephones rang regularly during the first hour for regular school schedule, because of parents wishing to have their children excused to see the entertainment.

Consequently soon after the first bell had been sounded a conference was held by school board members and Superintendent Clark with the result that a holiday was declared in time for every student to see the parade and either performance he desired.

With the announcement of a holiday, teachers report that bedlam broke loose as soon as the students were out of the building and free to give expression to their feelings.

SCHOOL BONDS BOUGHT WITH SPECHT FUND

The county commissioner's court Monday found good use for the H. Specht fund for the endowment of the Clara school. The fund of $1,000 bequeathed to the Clara school by Mr. Specht at his death in Germany three years ago as a permanent endowment, will make it possible for another rural school in the county to have a new school building.

The court authorized Tom McHam, county treasurer, to purchase $1,000 worth of the Allendale school bonds, which were approved last week by the attorney general's department. The issue was for $2,000 and the court at the same time authorized the purchase of the remainder of the bonds from the special bridge fund of the county.

The late H. Specht was the promoter of the Colony lands bearing his name and located north of Iowa Park. At that time he furnished a site for the Clara school. Later he returned to Germany but at his death remembered the school with the fund the interest from which is turned over to the trustees.

AMERICA SAVED THEIR BACON.

London says the allied debts will not be considered by the Disarmament Conference, but an "attempt will be made to create a sympathetic atmosphere in this country." Some months ago John Bull said he was willing to cancel European obligations to his government if Brother Jonathan would cancel the British debt to the United States.

Brother Jonathan had been carrying the bag for a long time. He turned a deaf ear to the proposition.

Business is business. The people of the United States loaned billions to the European allies to save them from becoming conquered provinces of the Central Empires.

Now why shouldn't the borrowers pay? Why should the people of America make a present of eleven billion dollars to business rivals and trade competitors?

America saved their bacon.

America fed them; financed them; sent them munitions of war and then America sent two million men overseas to smash the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs.

These former allies of ours continue to build mighty navies, to support imperial armies, to create air fleets, to make every preparation for another war. There is only one way to preserve the peace of the world: General disarmament.

AWAITING THE RETURNS.

Executives of four big railroad unions are in session in the city of Chicago to determine whether the men of their organization have voted to strike or to accept the 12 per cent wage reduction ordered by the railroad labor board. It is stated that unofficial survey of the ballot has determined that the men have voted to walk out. This is all guess work. There is said to be four million unemployed men and women in the United States. "Big Five" packers and their unorganized employes are drawing their battle lines tight in anticipation of the outcome of the strike vote to be taken by the men next Saturday on the open shop decree of the packers. There are a million railway employes in America; there are 200,000 packing house employes. Reason should rule.

MEXICO AND ITS RECOGNITION.

Congressman Claude M. Hudspeth of Texas has been told that Under Secretary of State Fletcher speaking of the recognition of Mexico by the United States made this declaration: "President Obregon and his government must put down in black and white that all titles held by Americans shall be fully recognized and this must extend to states that have confiscated the land of Americans for which they have issued state bonds that are not worth the paper they are written upon." But the under secretary of state never said a word about forcing the collection of $11,000,000,000 loaned to nations of Europe by the people of the United States. Swat the little fellow. This is a practice handed down from the earliest ages by the Big Man with the Big Club. Of course it is all right. America needs the oil and it is going on the free list although the protective tariff was one of the issues in 1920 and the protectionist won by a popular majority of seven millions. It must be a mistake to say that the people know what they want.

KINGCRAFT AND THE SWORD OF MIGHT.

Frank H. Simmons says the European nations are "growing cold" toward President Harding's general disarmament conference. There are six million men under arms in Europe and Asia and Japan. There are militarists in power everywhere in Europe. They believe in standing armies and mighty navies and in addition to this they believe that the strong should prey upon the weak. Sir Phillip Gibbs was right when he said that the curse of Europe was its elderly statesman who believe in kingcraft and the sword of might.

FORT WORTH'S NEW DAILY.

Fort Worth has a new afternoon newspaper, The Forth Worth Press. The initial edition was offered for sale on the streets of that city Monday afternoon. The Press is one of the Scripps-McRae Syndicate which publishes the Dallas Dispatch and the Houston Press and forty-eight other successful daily newspapers in the leading cities of the country and scattered from coast to coast. As a matter of fact the Scripps-McRae Syndicate is a fifty million dollar concern. Lon N. Siler is the editor of the Press and William McIntosh its business manager. The Press will be served by the United Press wire service and the Newspaper Enterprise Feature Association Service. It will be circulated week days only and will be sold for three cents a copy. Its managers expect to make the Press as successful as the Dallas Dispatch, which has long been recognized as a power in Dallas journalism. Fort Worth, they say, offers a promising field for an independent newspaper not dominated by certain influences and they promise to make their newspapr a daily spokesman of the people of Fort Worth.

WHAT SINCLAIR SAID.

"H. F. Sinclair, in his recent report at the meeting of the Sinclair board of directors, said his company made $11,417,367.20 for the fiscal year just ended, with crude selling low. And he added that oil has passed the corner in its travel along the upgrade, and is once more the king of industries," says the Texas Oil Ledger.

"According to the best thought in petroleum circles today, oil, Mid-Continent crude that is now selling for $1.25 will go to $2.10 before another twelve months. According to this same school of thinkers, it will go little higher. If it remains at that level, everybody in the world ought to be satisfied. It will mean that there will be no more boom conditions generally speaking. There will be local boom conditions, regardless of the posted price. But the general tone of the business will be steady and strong. The oil operator can produce, and the refiner can handle his production at a profit to both. And at the same time they can give to the public gasoline and lubricants and fuels at reasonable figures, and the world can rock happily along."

TOLL OF DEATH IN THE MINES

Reports received by the United states bureau of mines from the various state mine inspectors show that 141 men were killed in and about the coal mines of the country in the month of August as compared with 203 killed in the corresponding month in 1920.

The figures indicate a decrease of approximately 31 per cent from the fatality record of August of last year.

Based upon an estimated output of 42,191,000 short tons in August, 1921, the fatality rate for August is 3.34 per million tons produced. The corresponding rate last year was 3.57 and the production of coal was 56,935,000 tons. The production of coal during August, 1921, represents a decrease of 26 per cent.

The average number of lives lost during August of each year from 1913 to 1920 has been 219. The production of coal averaged 52,209,000 tons, showing a fatality rate of 4.19 per million tons as representative of the month of August for the past eight years.

During the first eight months of the present year 1290 men have been killed by accidents at coal mines, against 1489 killed during the corresponding months of 1920, a decrease of 199 fatalities, or 13 per cent. The output of coal for the same months was 322,060,000 short tons in 1921 and 412,109,000 tons in 1920, a decrease during the present year of 90,049,000 tons, or 21.9 per cent. These figures represent a fatality rate of 4.01 per million tons mined in 1921 and 3.61 per million tons mined in 1920.

Rippling Rhymes
By WALT MASON

TOMORROW.

Today has little sorrow, it is a good safe bet; but we believe tomorrow will show up better yet. And all through life we're groping, with slow and hevy tread, still hoping, always hoping, for better things ahead. And so our loads we're bearing with patience, day by day; few pilgrims are despairing, though weary be the way; for in us is implanted the faith in joy to come, in Eden lands enchanted, where birds are singing some. Without this faith we'd falter, and quit our useful chores, and you would need a halter to drag us from our doors. Ah, then no fine incentive this state life would accord, no spur to minds inventive, for progress no reward; then all our pep would vanish, and we would sink in sloth, and, growing also-rannish, we'd end up in the broth. But all well balanced mortals have faith in bliss ahead, and so they greet with chortles the bogies dire and dread. What if today is tougher than punk days gone before? We haven't long to suffer—tomorrow's at the door. What if we're overloaded, and galled and chafed and vexed? We shall not long be goaded—tomorrow's turn is next. And so we erring critters toil onward day by day, and bravely take our bitters—the nectar's on the way.

Who's Who

Lord Pirrie, who is now in the United States, has rightly been described as the master ship-builder of the British emptre. Now, in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Pirrie has been a power in the shipping world for more than a generation. Throughout the last two decades he has taken a leading part in the organization of most of the huge British, American and foreign shipping combines. Indeed, it has been estimated that he is today in control of at least 300 ocean going vessels.

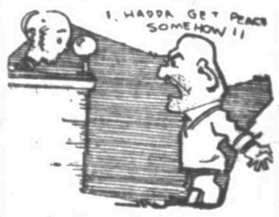

LORD PIRRIE

During the great war Lord Pirrie was the government comptroller general of all merchant shipping, and the principal commercial adviser to the secretary of state for war, in the matter of the acquisition of war supplies. His services to the empire in these capacities were of inestimable value.

Lord Pirrie, who was raised to the peerage seventeen years ago, is the king's lieutenant for Belfast. He is a members of the privy council of Ireland as well as that of Great Britain, is a knight of the Order of St. Patrick, is married to a daughter of the late John Carlisle of Belfast, but has no children or heir to his honors.

Breakfast Stories

"I was only acting he part of peacemaker," explained the prisoner.

"But you knocked the man senseless," the magistrate pointed out.

"I did,' was the answer. "There was no other way to get peace."

"I thought I old you not to eat any porterhouse steak without my permission."

"So you did, Doc, so you did."

"Then why are you disobeying my order?"

"This won't delay the paying of your bill, Doc, this steak is being aid for by my friend here."

They met at a dinner for the first time since their meeting in Paris the previous week.

"And did you have a pleasant crossing?" asked the hostess.

"We did—very," was the answer.

"You were not till, I hope?" asked the hostess, turning to the wife.

"No-o," said the young wife, "I was not. Bu I couldn't have yawned often."

It was a sleep village and its fire brigade was anything but up-to-date. One night a fire was announced by the violent ringing of the alarm bell, and the sleepy brigade arrived at he scene of action to find the burning building a mass of smoke. No flames were visible from the outside.

The captain made a careful survey. Then he lit his pipe and started to smoke.

"We'd beter leave it alone an' let it burn up a bit," he said. "Then we'll be able to see what we are doing."

TIMELY VIEWS NOT IN THE NEWS

Famine Relief to Starving Russians Is Cruel Kindness to Enslaved People, Says Paris Paper.

In the most outspoken article which has yet appeared in the French press on the subject, the Paris Temps recently declared editorially that whoever feeds the starving people of Russia is helping to maintain soviet rule. This point of view has been repeatedly indicated, but the Temps leader marks the beginning of a more aggressive policy in France. Here is what the Temps says:

"What must be remembered is that the Bolshevist dictators are endeavoring simply to exploit for political ends the immense misery of the people whom the oppress. When the march on Moscow of the starving hordes began they felt that they were menaced, and sought to save themselves by making appeals to the solidarity of all Russians and the charity of the civilized world. At that moment an appeal was made for the collobration of all parties to present a catastrophe and a Pan-Russian committee was formed of which the members today are prisoners and condemned to death.

"But as soon as the hungry mobs were turned away from the capital, as soon as they were certain that no revolt was to be feared in Moscow because they are still able to feed their mercenary guards, the Communist dictators changed their attitude and returned to their original methods of oppression and persecution. Now the soviet government is deliberately sacrificing millions of men, women and children to its revolutionary passion.

'Everything that these apostles of the dictatorship of the preletariat do is perfidiously and cynically calculated. Having failed to get their government recognized in regular fashion, they seek to get it recognized through the exploitation of the universal pity for those whom they have reduced to famine. And when they find that the world wishes to take guarantees against their repeated treason they throw off the mask and show themselves once more as they are.

"Even the western governments who are most disposed to extend them confidence are confessing today that they have been deceived. England sought to conclude with Moscow a commercial convention by which she could obtain guarantees against Bolshevist propaganda in Persia, India and Asia Minor. But in a recent note Lord Curzon has admitted that the Soviets are continuing revolutionary propaganda more actively than ever. In that there is no surprise except for those who believed in the good faith of the directors of Bolshevism, which in essence is a permanent conspiracy against civilization, incapable of good faith toward a civilized state or people."

CONGREGATION ENDS WORSHIP IN BATTLE

BATTLE STARTED WHEN PRIEST ANNOUNCED CLOSING OF CHURCH.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Services in the Greek Orthodox Church at 155 Cedar street this noon were broken up by a free-for-all fight among the congregation which resulted in the death of Nicholas Varzakakos, 40 a Greek fig merchant and a trustee of the organization.

George Varzakakos, the dead man's 18-year-old son, told the police that the sexton of the church held his father's hands while the priest Rev. Kerrido Vafradakis, hit him over the head with a candlestick. Dr. Benjamin E. Vance, assistant medical examiner, however, expressed the belief that he may have died from a heart attack. An autopsy will be performed tomorrow.

After being questioned by the police, the Priest and sexton were served with summons to appear at the district attorney's office tomorrow morning for further interrogation.

Members of the congregation told the police that the priest, who has been at odds with some of the trustees of the church, including Varzakakos, was making the usual Sunday announcement when the trouble occurred. The priest declared that the church would be closed tomorrow owing to debt, when Varzakakos started up the aisle toward the altar shouting.

The congregation, numbering about 250, immediately divided into two factions and bibles, hymn books and candlesticks were sent flying across the seats. Police reserves quelled the disturbance.

CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS NAVAL RESERVE FORCES.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Secretary Denby issued a call for volunteers today in the naval reserve forces—reduced from 200,000 to larely 5,000 by his recent order disenrolling all members of four reserve classes not on active duty.

Mr. Denby in a letter sent to each reservist explained that the department's action was made necessary, on account of a lack of appropriation and pointed out the opportunity when joining the sixth class—the volunteer reserve—which serves without pay in peace time.

AUSTRIA NOW HAS 200,000 UNDER ARMS.

By Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—An official Austrian military report just made public here declared that Hungary had 200,000 men under arms, 40,000 of whom are in the vicinity of the Austrian frontier. The entire force, says the report, is completely equipped for the field from steel helmets to hand grenades and also possesses four heavy siege guns of the Howitzer type.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

WHERE ARE THE OLD SONGS?

What has become of "that barber shop chord" which used to ring so merrily over the pair of swinging doors, with the gent in white apron behind the mahogany singing tenor?

"How can I bear to leave thee?
How doth the parting grieve me—
I go where duty calls me,
No matter what befalls me—

And the other classic which did winderful duty for several centuries:

"Sw-e-e-e-et Adoline,
For you I pine.
Will y—o—u be mine.
Swe-e-e-e-e-t Adoline."

And, in the old days, did anybody ever pass along Main street in the small hours without hearing:

"For it's alwa-a-a-a-y-s
Fair weather,
When g-o-o-o-o-d fellows get together,
With a stein on the ta-a-a-a-ble,
And a go-o-o-o-o-o-d song ringing clear."

For generations this old classic held the boards and any man who could not sing at midnight was a piker, whether he had a voice or not. Where are the songs of yesterday? Something has happened to them. Are they gone—and forgotten

Let us hope so.

MARCELETTE

Faust has devoted his whole life to working anad making money. He is a respected and successful citizen. One night Mephistopheles comes to him and suggests that he live. Getting into one of his motor cars he goes to a roof garden and meets Margaret. They understand each other—that is, she gets him. The love story turns quickly into tragedy. Margaret's mother advises her daughter not to be foolish and her brother seeks out Faust and tries to blackmail him. Margaret's mind does not wander through love and suffering, but a lawyer is consulted. In fact, her mind becomes remarkably clear.

In the finale we find Margaret in possession of a goodly sum of gold and Faust returns to his work with some of his reputation gone. Mephistopheles looks around for another victim.

MILLINERY MODES THAT REFLECT SPIRIT OF FALL SEASON

Feathers in many different forms and styles are featured by some of the most exclusive millinery designers this season and here are three very stunning hats which show this tendency to use feathers as wall as the variety of ways in which they may be used. At the left is a fuschia silk velvet hat which turns up abruptly from the face with a very high brim. A shower of silvered glycerine ostrich is the only trimming.

In the center is a smart black plush hat with an upturned brim and a huge paradise ornament forming graceful wings and lending breadth to the hat.

Still another kind of feather trims the hat at the right. Black Lyons velvet with an envelop brim effect is finished off with bronzed coque feathers.

Movieland

Juanita Thomas

If you were just sixteen, pretty to the point of winning a state-wide beauty contest, hailed from a small town, were on your first visit to New York, met one of its most popular movie stars, had your features "tested" to see if you'd screen well, had these features O. K'd and thus gained a place in the next picture of the star you've always worshipped, how would you feel?

Juanita Thomas, petite blue-eyed blonde from Jesup, Iowa, seen in her mother-chaperone's apartment at the Embassy Hotel, New Yorok, tabloided the answer into just one expressive word, "Dizzy!"

Miss Thomas is the winner of the Des Moines Capital's contest launched to discover the Hawkeye State's prettiest girl with screen ambitions. To Juanita, out of a multitude of contestants, fell the prize which included among other things the opportunity to gain a place in the company of a leading screen star, provided the fair contender passed the necessary screen test and satisfied the casting director as to ability and suitability over and above her recognized facial pulchritude.

We fear that Fannie Ward has decided never to rejoin the ranks of American film stars because she has ordered for sale the various art objects, curios and souvenirs left by her in her former Los Angeles residence. She has an independent fortune and is now in Italy with her husband.

BUT HE'S GAINING.

Bill Hart now announces that he is not going to retire. Sarah Bernhardt still leads him by about 672 announcements.

STAR LOSES MOTHER.

Work on a forthcoming Wanda Hawley picture was delayed recently when the Realart star was summoned to the bedside of her mother in Bremerton, Wash. After a stroke of paralysis her death followed within twenty-four hours. She was fifty-one years old.

CLOSE-UPS.

A complete fairy story will be embodied in "Enchantment," the next film in which pretty Marion Davies will star. This interlude is from the famous tale of the Sleeping Beauty. A scene from Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" will also be included in the photoplay.

A new stage at the Realart studio was the occasion of a big "film party" partly attended by Bebe Daniels, Constance Binney, May McAvoy and many others.

Work on a forthcoming Wanda Hawley picture was delayed recently when the star was summoned to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Marilla S. Hittack, in Bremerton, Wash. Mrs. Hittack suffered a stroke of paralysis and died within twenty-four hours.

The vogue of South Seas stories has lately struck Mary Miles Minter. The petite blonde star announces she will next appear in a story of a romantic South Sea island.

TENNIS "WHIZ" IS CHAMPION WEARER OF PARIS STYLES

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen in one of her Paris creations.

For weeks Mlle. Lenglen has posed for the camera in tennis togs or in action. Her cyclonic actions were featured in these pictures, but they failed to show glowing colors of even her sweater. Here, however, is a new photo of the Gallic athlete taken at the South Orange County Club, proving that sartorially speaking she is a champion dresser. She will probably wear her fashionable clothes from now on, for her physicians have forbidden her to play tennis.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

JANE STARTS FOR CHICAGO.

The next day Cherry, as per promise, broached the subject of Jane's visit to her people to Mrs. Randall. That lady sniffed the idea down hard at first, until Cherry finally pointed out to her, in strict confidence, that it would be the very thing to do if Mr. Sills was to be gotten rid of. Then she changed her mind and consented. Besides, if Jane went within a day or so, Sed would be there to meet her train and introduce her to Cherry's family.

Great was the excitement when this step was decided upon. Jane wept for joy, and hugged her sister-in-law over and over again in gratitude as she sat crying to pack her trunk and rejoice over the prospects of her complete freedom.

Together the two girls packed and talked over the visit. Every smallest detail was arranged by Cherry and Jane was like a person reborn for the rest of her time at home. She went about the house singing like a lark, and Aunt Phoebe confided to Cherry that "she jes' didn't know Miss Janey no mo'."

A telegram was dispatched to Ned and everything settled before the train bearing the happiest girl in all Wellsburg finally pulled out of the station two days later.

The family saw her off, plus some half a hundred of her best friends. Jane laughingly declared that she had never dreamed she was so popular until she decided to leave town.

Billy Sills brought her a huge box of candy and a bunch of autumn flowers as a parting tribute to her charms. Smiling joyfully over these tokens of his burning love for her, the happy girl was whisked away to the world she had dreamed of for so long.

The very next afternoon Mr. Sills left own. He explained that his office had called him back to Chicago when he came to say farewell to Mrs. Randall. He tried hard not to look self-conscious or guilty when he talked of Jane.

Of course that young lady's mother was promptly thrown into a state of nerves, which threatened to drive the rest of the family into hysterics. She mourned over and over again that her daughter would now run away with a low-down, ordinary "shark of a man," and was ready to telegraph the absent Jane to come back home.

It was Cherry who finally talked her back to a sensible frame of mind, pointing out to her that Jane was in perfectly safe hands and without doubt would have very little time to see Mr. Sills alone any more as she would be surrounded by her sisters and swamped with invitations. Mrs. Randall took hope at her words and even cheered up enough to drink a cup of tea and tell Cherry that "she was a smart girl at times."

Thus was a family catastrophe averted. There was nothing to do now but finish the old-rose dress against Ned's home coming. And Cherry's needle flew half the day over her hats, the other half over her pretty wardrobe.

ABOUT BUTTER

The making of butter has been going on from earliest historical times. This is probably because milk undergoes so rapid a change that it was necessary for man to preserve what part of it he could in butter or cheese.

Butter is a valuable food and is our most easily digested fat. Recently experiments prove that it is strong in the valuable vitamines. Creameries are gradually taking over the making of butter and yet it is surprising how much butter is made in the farm homes. That which is well made is a most delicious product but a great quantity of it is poorly made and soon turns sour. Such butter, bought by the town merchant, is sold to factories at a very low figure. Here it is melted and washed and churned over and made into rather poor grade butter which should be, according to law, plainly marked "Renovated." It is sometimes called "process butter." It does not keep well and the cook will find it cheaper to use other fat, such as cottonseed oil.

Cream is composed of tiny fat globules, each enclosed in an albumen wrapper. Churning breaks the albumen wrapper and the fat then gathers in lumps of butter. The buttermilk is then washed out and salt added, and this helps to keep the butter sweet.

If the milk has not been thoroughly washed out the butter soon turns sour or rancid. Such butter may be sweetened by soaking and working over in water to which baking soda has been added. Wash it then with sweet milk and it will be almost as good as new. Keep it wrapped in a salted cloth.

If it is too poor to be made over for table use, it can be sweetened for cooking by melting it and putting into it a piece of fresh toast. The toast will absorb the odors and flavors.

Butter is very absorptive. It should never be kept with strong smelling foods. It should have a compartment with the milk in the ice-box and not be kept with other foods.

Butter will keep better if covered with a cloth wrung out of cold water. Charcoal in the butter crock or a little chunk in the cloth wrapped about the butter will help it to keep sweet.

Those who prefer the flavor of country butter or who wish to make country butter go further can serve this double purpose by warming it enough to soften it that it may be worked, and then working into it a cup of sweet milk and more salt.

Beware of buying over salted butter. This is a devise to cover up undesirable flavors in poor butter. It is not economy to buy poor butter.

In cold weather butter keeps well if well covered and in a clean place. Many people have a jar of butter packed for them at some cleanly farmhouse in October, the season when butter is at its best and pasturage is plentiful. This may be kept until May if cold weather continues.

With the Women of Today

Caroline Hewins.

It is not so very many years ago that children were a taboo in public libraries. It was in 1876 that a woman who was doing library work for the sheer love of it (there were no training schools for librarians), Mrs. Minerva Saunders of Pawtucket, R. I., noticed that very often children peered timidly but longingly into the reading rooms, with much the same expression that is seen on their faces as they watch Christmas displays in shop windows.

This bothered Mrs. Saunders a good deal and finally she beckoned a few small people in one day. Right into the sacred precincts. She scrubbed their faces and hands, let them look at several books, and the next day having, with her own hands, sawed off table and chair legs, set half a dozen tots at the former, cautioning them not to make any noise which would disturb their elders.

And this was the beginning of children's quarters in jublic libraries. Very soon after this the American Library Association was formed, training schools were established and there was a sudden appreciation of the fact that an increasing knowledge of books among the people tended toward good citizenship.

Among those librarians who recognized the importance of specialized attention to the reading appetite of growing boys and grils stands Miss Caroline Hewins of Hartford. It was she who compiled a bibliography for children before others had seen the necessity for such a guide. She has been a librarian of the Hartford library for many years, and is a specialist on reading for the young.

Miss Hewins was born in Roxbury in 1846. She attended the high schools of Boston and suburbs and upon her graduation was asked by the principal of her school to do some research work for a volume he was writing.

This took her often to the Boston Athenaeum. She found the whole atmosphere of that place so entirely to her liking that she asked for work there. As soon as a vacancy occurred, she was sent for and had a year's training under the celebrated Dr. Poole.

She grew up in a home where books were loved and discussed, was always an omnivorous reader, and with her taining at the Athenaeum, special courses at the Boston University, and several years of teaching, she was well equipped to take charge of the Young Men's Institute of Hartford when she was called to that position in 1875.

This was for many years a subscription library, but became free in 1892, since which time Miss Hewins has been its librarian.

She gave her special attention to work with children and soon developed among them a circulation of 50,000 volumes.

In 1898, as a sort of consolation for such children as could not leave the city on vacations, she started a series of talks for them, with a tableful of books before her.

The books and talks held endless variety—one day she dwelt upon animals, another day it would be about travel, Indians, pictures or music. So eager were her listeners that these talks have geen kept up ever since.

"Atomized" coal—different from merely "powdered" coal because very minutely divided—is a new product that is finding important uses. It is used for making a high grade paint and also as a substitute for lampblack in the manufacture of ink. Another valuable employment for it is in "facing" foundry molds, to give the surfaces a smooth finish in preparation for castings.

No soldier in Great Britain will be eligible for married quarters unless his is twenty-six years of age.

DRESSMAKER MADE WELL

Followed a Neighbor's Advice and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vernon, Tex.—"For three years I suffered untold agony each month with pains in my sides. I found only temporary relief in doctor's medicine or anything else I took until my husband saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I mentioned it to a neighbor and she told me she had taken it with good results and advised me to try it. I was then in bed part of the time and my doctor said I would have to be operated on, but we decided to try the Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a dressmaker and am now able to go about my work and do my housework besides. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial as I am always glad to speak a word for your medicine."—Mrs. W. NEW YORK BASEBALL MAD AS BUGS LINE UP FOR FAVORITES IN YANK-GIANT FRACAS OF COMING WEEK

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—New York plunged into a sea of baseball argument today and at the same time divided itself for a rooters war when the Yankees and Giants meet in the world's series combat the polo grounds Wednesday afternoon.

On the subways, the elevated, the buses and in surface cars and hotel lobbies—everywhere—baseball fans were debating the respective merits of the various players. Whether the speed and the resourcefulness of the Giants can overcome the punching power of the Yankees is one of the big points at issue. Yankee rooters expect big things of "Babe" Ruth, home run king, who is undoubtedly the greatest figure in the series.

Meanwhile the officers of the opposing clubs were making final preparations for the post-season classic. At the Giants' headquarters all the tickets had been reserved, it was announced, and there talk centered about McGraw's pitching selection for the opening game.

"Toney is his best bet," declared an old time player. "Fred will make Ruth and Meusel and the rest of that Yankee slugging crowd pop 'em up to the infield. McGraw wants to take the first game and Toney's the boy to do it."

Other Giant followers though McGraw might start Art Nehf, the young left-hander, and still others favored Phil Douglas. McGraw said nothing. Neither did Hughey Jennings, nor Cozey Dolan, the two coaches.

Yankee headquarters was filled with baseball players and last minute ticket seekers. Miller Huggins, manager, went into seclusion, leaving word that he wanted to give his nerves a rest and do some figuring on the dope. It is generally agreed that Huggins will start Carl Mays, the submarine hurler, but Bob Shawkey has been going so good in the last few games he has pitched that Huggins may spring him as a surprise.

Fans from all parts of the country are pouring into the city and hotel managers are counting on filling their accommodations. The seating capacity of the Polo Grounds is given as 38,000 but ambitious ushers always have been able to find seats in the aisles and on the rails for at least 3,000 more and there is standing room for many more.

The record attendance at a series, 236,000 undoubtedly will be broken if the series goes to six games or more.

THE ELIGIBLE LIST

THE YANKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Business Manager Edward Barrlow of the New York American League club today announced the following list of players as eligible for the world series:

Catchers: Walter H. Schang, Fred Hoffman, Alfred Devormer.

Infielders: Walter Pipp, Aaron Ward, Roger Peckinpaugh, Mike J. McNally, J. Franklin Baker, John Mitchell.

Manager Miller Huggins.

THE GIANTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Twenty-three players, two coaches and Manager McGraw were announced at National League headquarters today as eligible for the world's series. The list follows:

Pitchers: Arthur Nehf, Fred Toney, Phil Douglas, Jess Barnes, Pat Shea, Harry Sallee, Bill Ryan and Cecil Causey.

Catchers: Frank Snyder, Earl Smith, Alex Gaston and Mike Gonzales.

Outfielders: Ross Young, George Burns, Emil Meusel, Bill Cunningham, Eddie Brown and Casey Stengel.

Coaches and managers: Cozy Dolan, Hughey Jennings and John McGraw.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

It seems we had the right dope, after all, when we picked the Yankees to beat the Giants for world honors. Jim Corbett, we now understand, is betting his roll on McGraw's clan:

"Just give the Giants fair pitching," Corbett is quoted as saying, "and they'll walk away with the honors. They're the greatest team that ever scampered across a ball lawn."

THAT makes it a dead certainty the Yankees will win!

Did you ever see McIntyre and Heath in their vaudeville skit, "The Ham Tree?" There is an act that has been a drawing card on the Big Time for thirty years—but it has hurt the boxing game cruelly. Every time a matchmaker or promoter thinks of McIntyre and Heath and their success with the theatrical public, he gets the idea in his head that the boxing public also will stand for constant repetition—and so he proceeds to stage the following bouts: Willie Jackson vs. Johnny Dundee, Benny Leonard vs. Johnny Dundee, Charlie White vs. Johnny Dundee, Willie Jackson vs. Charlie White, Charlie White vs. Benny Leonard, etc., etc.

But the boxing public is beginning to tire of the same old acts, as was shown recently in Philadelphia [illegible] the gate receipts were not sufficient to pay off Jackson and Dundee. The public is getting educated to the point where fights in the ring are wanted, not fights in the newspapers.

In the closing games Sunday of the 1921 season teams in both major leagues tried out many of their rookie bench warmers. The Giants and Yankees, with their pennants safely tucked away, gave every player a chance who "wanted in." The Yanks used sixteen men against Boston, while McGraw gave 20 Giants opportunity to display their wares against their Brooklyn neighbors.

But the rookies will have to do better than did Clarke, a southaw twirler from the Blue Ridge league, who hurled the second game of a double-header for Cincinnati against Chicago. Although the game went only five innings, Chicago scored 7 runs and made 7 hits, including a triple and a double, off the Red rookie.

Who won the pennant in the Texas-Oklahoma league? Paris? No, Ardmore? No. There wa'n't none! Paris won the first half of the split season, Ardmore the second half. In the play-off for the pennant, each team won four games and then roared, kicked, howled and cussed regarding the location of the battleground for the deciding tussle. Finally they left it to the league officials—and by gum! the league officials up and declared the race should stand a tie!

Frank Haley, third baseman of the Panthers, was operated on for appendicitis just in time. Fort Worth surgeons found the appendix gangrenous and in a mighty bum shape. (Pardon our technical medical terms, won't you?) Wonder to me is how that darn fool could put up the game he did at the hot corner for the Cats with his insides on the blink that-a-way.

When America's women golfers opened battle yesterday with one another for the national championship over the links of the Hollywood club at Deal, N. J., they stepped out on one of the most difficult courses in the United States. Ted Ray, Jim Barnes, Jerome Travers, Tom Kerrigan and many other stars of the game will testify to that. Many of the holes at Hollywood are unique, freakish, radical, yet sound in principle and commended by golf architects and professionals. Time was when such a course would frighten the feminine golfer out of her wits—but American women golfers have perfected their play today to the point where they really enjoy the beauties of a course whereon the good spot is rewarded and the dub shot brings swift punishment.

SELECT UMPIRES FOR SERIES GAMES

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—President Johnson of the American league today appointed Gregor Moriarty and Ollie Chill, as the American league umpires for the world's series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—President John A. Heydler of the National league today announced the appointment of Ernest C. Quigley and Charles Rigler as the National league umpires for the world's series.

DEVOL EASILY DEFEATS FREDERICK 50 TO 13

DEVOL, Oct. 3.—Devol High defeated Frederick High here Saturday to the tune of 50 to 13. Frederick made their touchdown in the first quarter by line smashes and forward passes, but Devol soon had these under control.

Frederick was unable to hold Crane, Devol's hard hitting quarterback, who went through their line at will. Bill Huff made a sensational catch and raced 60 yards for a touchdown. Russell, Frederick's quarter and captain was their individual star, making most of their gains.

Devol plays Waurika at Devol Friday, October 7.

BABE RUTH WILL TRY FOR 60 AGAIN NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Babe Ruth, home run king and star batsman of the 1921 American league champions, today announced his 1922 batting campaign plans. Ruth, whose fifty-ninth home run yesterday was one short of the season mark he had set for himself, said he would make another effort to reach the three score total next year.

Ruth's 1921 record is five better than his 1920 performance.

DEMPSEY SUED FOR ALLEGED BREACH CONTRACT

BATAVIA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight boxer, appeared in supreme court today as defendant in a law-suit resulting from an alleged breach of contract for the production of motion pictures. Frank P. Spellman of Batavia, the plaintiff, demands $100,000 as his share of the profits of the enterprise. Dempsey's lawyers deny any obligation on the part of the champion, legal or otherwise.

WHO WILL BE 1921 SERIES STAR, BABE RUTH OR AN UNSUNG HERO?

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The well known F. Ickle Fate is going to shut his eyes, count eeny, meeny, miny, mo within the next few days and draw from the roster of the New York Giants or New York Yankees another hero for the hall of baseball fame.

Every world's series produces at least one such hero. And that favored one doesn't always come from the list of recognized stars in the two line-ups.

No one, compiling a list of possible heroes in the 1914 series beforehand, would have named Hank Gowdy to outshine all the others. Gowdy was a steady, conscientious player, and a good batter—and a nice chap. But no one suspected that he would play the main part in slugging the Braves to victory in four straight games against the famous Athletic aggregation with its great squad of hurlers.

And here are some of the other birds that climbed onto pedestals in world's series of other years.

Christy Mathewson in the 1905 series with his wonderful shutout hurling.

The unknown George Rohe in the 1906 series for the White Sox. (And the next year they sent him to the minors.)

Harry Steinfeld was the batting and fielding star in 1907.

Frank Chance shone in the 1908 series for the Cubs.

Babe Adams beat the Tigers three times the next fall.

Jack Coombs was the big star of the 1910 classic.

Frank Baker pulled the Babe Ruth stunt in 1911.

Buck Herzog in 1912, Eddie Collins in 1913, Duffy Lewis in 1915, Harry Hooper in 1916 joined the list.

Then in 1917 Urban Faber thrilled the White Sox fans and baseball generally by facing the Giant maulers and Jawn McGraw's brains in the three games and turning the entire New York outfit back each time. Faber's hurling ranked among the masterful bits of pitching in history. The fact that many accuse the Giants of playing dumb-bell baseball in that series ought not detract from Faber's glory.

It was the snappy batting of Whiteman, unassuming Red Sox gent, that helped humble the Cubs in 1918.

We skip rapidly over the awful farce of the fall of 1919, but if any man deserved credit for his showing in that series it is Dutch Reuther, who hurled great ball in the opening game for the Reds.

Last year Stanley Coveleskie won the series almost single-handed for the Indians with three victories.

We'll let the aforementioned F. Ickle Fate write the last paragraph to this recital.

CONCRETE ROAD CONSTRUCTION BEGINS AT ONCE

Preparatory to starting actual construction on the concrete road between this city and Red river bridge the county commissioner's court Monday authorized Potts and Prentice, contractors to complete the construction of all bridges on the road at once.

Work will start within the next week according to the contractors. Several culverts will be constructed in addition to the bridges.

In further preparation for the paving of the road the court awarded a contract to R. B. Stroup for the grading of the new part of the road as designated by state and federal engineers two weeks ago.

County Engineer Isbell appeared before the court with the final road plans as outlined by the state and federal engineers and which shortens the distance to the Red river bridge approximately two and half miles and they were finally approved by the court.

Most of the grading on the road was completed over a year ago. That for which the contract was let Monday is on the new route from the Daniels farm house to the Burkburnett cemetery.

The court accepted the proposition of Dr. L. C. Tyson to furnish gravel for the Charlie road, six and half miles of which is to be improved starting from this city.

Dr. Tyson has a gravel pit on his farm along the road and the gravel will be obtained from it. Commissioner J. P. Jackson, who will have charge of the work stated that work on the road would be under way within the ten days.

The court allowed the request of the county chapter of the Red Cross that they be premitted to use the rooms in the basement of the courthouse formerly occupied by Dr. A. W. West, former head of the county health work.

During the civil war a federal tax on incomes was one of the methods resorted to for the raising of war money. All incomes of more than $800 was taxed 3 per cent.

LIQUOR SALES CHARGES ARE FIGHT RESULT

As a sequel to an alleged fight that occurred in a room in the Hearn hotel Sunday night in which two men were severely beaten, three charges were filed in justice court Monday. Sheriff Smith filed the complaints in all cases.

Sewell Fields, who was fined $25 in police court Monday morning on an affray charge for his connection with the fight, is charged with selling liquor with a second charge filed against him in which it is alleged that he assaulted a person with a prohibited weapon.

A charge of keeping a building for the sale of liquor was filed against D. P. Taylor, proprietor of the hotel. He waived a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn and was released on $750 bond.

ON GOLDEN WEDDING DAY WOMAN SAYS MEN SHOULD BOSS

PINE CLIFF, Colo., Oct. 3.—The feminist movement and "equal rights" doctrine of the suffragists have no appeal for Mrs. J. H. Pickett, of this mountain village, who decla that if married people want to live happily they should "let the husband be boss." Mr. and Mrs. Pickett have just celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Pickett is seventy-four and his wife seventy-one.

The couple occupy a picturesque log cabin, 8,400 feet above sea level, and have lived under typically frontier conditions for many years.

On the occasion of their golden anniversary Mrs. Pickett uttered some sound advice to those entertaining matrimonial ambitions.

"The reason so many present-day marriages fail is that women try to usurp the position of man," Mrs. Pickett said. "The man should be the head of the household, as the Scripture points out. The husband should be the boss; if he is intelligent enough to make a living he is intelligent enough to direct the home. Not that I mean he should be tyrannical or overbearing or brutal—no woman should tolerate that."

The Picketts were both born in Indiana and started West in a prairie schooner, making the first leg of the journey in 1871, shortly after their marriage in Monmouth, Ill. They lived in Iowa for several years, and in 1880 they bundled their four children into a covered wagon, drawn by oxen, and started for Nebraska.

"On the way through Kansas we met scores of refugees fleeing from Indian massacres," Mrs. Pickett declared. "They told us tales of slaughter and advised us to turn back. They said we would be welcome to their abandoned farms, but we moved on to a homestead in Western Nebraska, near Kearney."

For a score of years the Picketts aided in converting the untamed Nebraska prairies into the fertile fields that now span that state, when they "hit the trail" again westward. They spent five years in Denver and took possession of their mountain ranch ten years ago, where both carry on outdoor activities commenced on their parents' farms in Indiana more than half a century ago.

The Japanese and the Dutch have one peculiar custom in common—that of marriage by proxy.

POLICE CHIEF IS ALSO POLICE PROSECUTOR

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—Edward G. Krauss of East Cleveland, suburb, occupies perhaps an unusual position. He holds the dual roles of Chief of Police and Police Prosecutor.

Krauss has been Chief of Police of the city for six years. A few months ago he was appointed Police Prosecutor.

"It works fine," he said today. "The two jobs go hand in hand. My men go out and bring in the prisoners, and I see that the prisoners get what is coming to them—if they're guilty."

Krauss was graduated from law school and was admitted to the bar while working as Chief of Police. Shortly afterward he was appointed Police Prosecutor by the City Manager.

The squad, numbering twenty players, will leave October 11 and arrive at Dallas, October 14. The team will stop over in St. Louis one day for practice.

HARVARD AND HOOSIERS WILL PLAY SATURDAY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The first inter-sectional football game of importance in the East this season will be played at Cambridge, Mass., next Saturday when Harvard meets the Indiana University eleven, making its Eastern debut. The success of the inter-sectional struggle between Harvard and Centre College (Ky.) last season prompted the Crimson committee to place Indiana on its 1921 schedule. Harvard will meet the University of Georgia team Saturday, October 15 and two weeks later will be pitted against Centre.

Spurred by the realization that the Hoosier team has its first chance to break into the limelight of Eastern football, Coach Ewald Stiehm is bending to the task of whipping his gridmen into shape. And so out at Bloomington, Indiana, the home of the Indiana eleven, he is daily sending his charges through the hardest sort of a training program.

Stiehm has been handicapped by the Western Conference rule prohibiting a coach from taking charge of his team until September 15, and has not been able to give his men the sort of work needed to perfect a machine to give Harvard an even battle. He hopes to overcome this handicap, however, and his men are giving him the best of cooperation, according to reports from Bloomington. The Indiana coach has nearly all of last year's varsity players and the work of the new men has been good.

The Hoosier eleven threw away its chances of a tie for the Western Conference leadership last season, by losing its first game of the season to Iowa, 14 to 7, fumbling at a critical moment. After that disaster, the Hoosiers took three Big Ten elevens into camp and held Notre Dame to a 13-10 score.

Indiana's greatest triumph against Eastern football methods came two years ago when they defeated the strong Syracuse university eleven at Bloomington, 12 to 6.

Harvard is training as usual and awaits the coming of the Hoosiers with confidence. Enthusiasm in the student body has reached a pitch somewhat akin to that which preceded the Harvard-Centre game last year.

EXHUME BODY OF WEALTHY RECLUSE FOR INVESTIGATION

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 3.—The body of Edward F. Searles, recluse millionaire of Meutheun, was ordered exhumed for the purpose of holding an autopsy today. District Attorney S. Howard Donnell in making this announcement which followed anonymous reports to him that Searles was poisoned, said he had no evidence at present to warrant a belief that death was due to poison or violence.

The body of Searles is interred in a tomb on his walled estate at Meuthen. His estate is now occupied by Mrs. Mary Allen Rowland and her two sons, relatives of the recluse, to whom he bequeathed it on condition that they change their name to Searles. The principal beneficiary of his millions was Arthur T. Walker of New York, who assisted him in legal matters. The estate has been variously estimated to be worth from $14,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The Searles fortune was largely that of Mark Hopkins, California railroad magnate, whose widow Searles married, as he testified in a court proceeding, "partly out of affection and partly for her money."

Muggsy McGraw and His National League Pennant Winners

KELLY

GEORGE KELLY, Giant first baseman, ended his minor league career in 1919 by setting a world's hitting record. He made four homers and a double in a game at Reading while with the Rochester International league team. He was with Rochester in 1917 as an outfielder. Enlisted in aviation service in 1917. After the war, rejoined Giants, to be sent to Rochester in deal whereby Giants got Catcher Earl Smith. Giants later bought him.

FRISCH

FRANK FRISCH'S fame as a ball player wih Fordham University won him a trial with the Giants in the spring of 1919. Played twenty games at third and twenty-nine at second that year and proved star. Hit poorly because he batted cross-handed. McGraw soon remedied this. In spring of 1920 was set to fill Heinie Zimmerman's place at third when attack of appendicitis prevented his playing for month, but played in 110 games, fielding well and batting .280.

THE GIANTS' LEADER

JOHN McGRAW has piloted the Giants since 1902. Born in Truxton, N. Y., in 1873. Broke into game with Olean club of New York State league in 1890. Played with Cedar Rapids team the following season until grabbed by famous Baltimore Orioles. Soon became star of that great outfit. When team broke up in 1890 McGraw was transferred to St. Louis Cardinals. Kicked on the transfer and returned to Baltimore to manage American league team there. In 1901 McGraw announced his retirement—only to be hired to manage the Giants. Won league pennants in 1904-05-11-12-13-17. He finished second eight times. He has won only one world's series—that of 1905.

DOUGLAS

"SHUFFLIN" PHIL DOUGLASS was born in Rome, Ga., June 17, 1890 and still has a tendency to "rome." Has been suspended numerous times for brief periods of French leave. First pro experience with Rome in Southeastern league in 1910. With Macon following year and twenty-eight victories and only eleven defeats caused Chicago Cubs to draft him. Farmed to Des Moines, then sent to San Francisco. Released by Seals to Spokane. Joined Cinci Reds 1914. Following year was sold twice—June 13 to Brooklyn and September 8 to Cubs. Hurled brilliantly at times for Cubs until traded to Giants July 24, 1919, for Davey Robertson.

BANCROFT

"BEAUTY" BANCROFT, they call him in New York. He seems to have a faculty for being the main cog in winning machines. Born in Chicago, September 8, 1892. Drew attention of scouts around Chicago when only fifteen. Signed by Madison in W-I league when seventeen. Sold to Portland, Pacifice Coast league, in 1911. After playing with Duluth and Superior. Sent under optional agreement to Portland in Northwestern in 1913 and recalled. Helped win pennant for Portland in 1914. Sent to Phillies following season under club agreement. Became one of most brilliant shortstops in game's history. Helped Phils cop flag in 1915. Traded to New York last year for Shortstop Art Fletcher and Hubbell.

NEHF

ART NEHF, Giant southpaw, has been in big leagues since August 5, 1915, when Terre Haute sold him to Braves for $3,000. Said howdy to world July 31, 1892, in Terre Haute. Said howdy to baseball with Negawnee in Copper league in 1912. Signed by Kansas City in 1913, and farmed to Sioux City in Western league. Recalled and transferred to Terre Haute July 15, 1914. Won thirty and lost seventeen games for Terre Haute in the next two years. Had one good year with Braves, in 1917. Sold to Giants August 11, 1919, for reported price of $55,000.

SALLEE

"SLIM" SALLEE gave Higginsport, Ohio, its claim to fame. Was born there February 3, 1885. Broke into game in 1905 with Birmingham, Southern league. Went to Yankees in 1906 but they couldn't see him. With Williamsport in 1907 until drafted by Cardinals. With St. Louis until purchased by Giants in 1916. Defeated twice by White Sox in 1917 world's series after winning eighteen and losing seven games in regular season. Won eight and lost eight in 1918 and retired. Signed by Reds for 1919 and won twenty-one games in Reds' pennant drive. Let out by Reds after 1920 season.

STENGEL

"CASEY" STENGEL, christened Charles D., was born in Kansas City, Mo., thirty years ago. Has always been an outfielder. Jumped into baseball in 1910 with Kansas City A. A. team, but was farmed to Kankakee in Northwestern Association in 1911. That league exploded and Casey landed with Maysville in the Blue Grass league. Kansas City recalled him that same year and farmed him to Aurora. Brooklyn drafted him in 1912 only to send him to Montgomery. Recalled him in August that year. Starred in the outfield until traded to Pirates January 9, 1918, with Cutshaw for Ward and Pitchers Grimes and Mamaux. Traded to Phils for Whitted August 8, 1919. Purchased by the Giants this year.

TONEY

FREDERICK TONEY has had a tumultuous career. Was born at Atlanta, Ga., December 11, 1889. Winchester in the Blue Grass league gave him his diamond start in 1908. Drafted by Nashville—then returned. In 1911 the Cubs signed him. He failed to shine in two years' time and was farmed to Louisville May 31, 1912. Was recalled and then returned to Louisville by July 31, 1914. Drafted by Brooklyn in 1915 and released to Cinci Reds by waiver route same year. Played important part in Reds' pennant drive in 1917, winning twenty-four games. Sold to Giants July 25, 1918.

BURNS

GEORGE BURNS, "old reliable," was born in Utica, N. Y., in 1890. Won attention as amateur player with St. Johnsville, N. Y., 1905-07, as third baseman and catcher. Broke into program with Utica of New York State league as catcher in 1908. Converted to outfielder. Joined Giants in 1912 and started to star immediately. Ranks as one of great outfielders of National league.

PRE-DETERMINATION OF SEX SOLUTION SOUGHT

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Predetermination of sex, goal of many scientific experiments with birds and fowls, is being attempted with mammals for the first time at the Carnegie Institution station on Long Island.

A carefully chosen family of mice has been segregated for the experiment.

Biologically, mice are more similar to man than are specimens previously used in seeking pre-determination of sex, according to those making the experiments. If successful with mice, they plan to apply the results to humans.

GREATEST PENNANT RACE IN HISTORY OF BASEBALL WAS FINISH OF 1908 SEASON

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The greatest pennant race in the history of organized baseball was made in the National league in the season of 1908, when in the closing week of the campaign Chicago, New York and Pittsburgh all were in an ace of taking the honor. New York and Chicago finished the season in a tie and in the play-off the Cubs won.

On October 3, 1908, after Pittsburgh had assumed first position, New York played Philadelphia. It was Mathewson against Coveleski and the latter won, 3 to 2. Pittsburgh and the Cubs won their games that day and the Giants dropped to third.

Chicago and Pittsburgh then met in what was for them the last game of the season. One was bound to lose and if the game were played to a tie, there was a chance that New York would slip past both and win the championship. Pittsburgh erred at critical moments during tie game and lost 5 to 2 and was eliminated in the championship race, having played their full quota of games. Chicago held first place, Pittsburgh second and the Giants third. The Giants, however, had three games to play with Boston, and by winning all of them could tie Chicago. They won them.

Now turning back the history pages a few days, to September 23, there occurred a play which set the baseball world by its ears. In the last inning of the game between the Cubs and Giants, with McCormick on third and Merkle on first and two out, Bridwell, the New York shortstop, batted a clean hit over second base. McCormick scored and Bridwell touched first base. Evers, the Cub second-sacker, remained at his post calling for the ball to be thrown to him. Chance, the Cub leader, asserted that it was thrown, demanded that Umpire O'Day declare Merkle out on the ground that he had not touched second base and therefore had been forced out. O'Day left the field, announcing that the play was suspended. After the crowd had left he stated that the run which supposedly was made by McCormick and which would have won the game for New York had not scored and that the contest, therefore, was a tie, 1 to 1. In other words, he had declared Merkle out at second.

The National league president, Pulliam, sustained O'Day in his report and both teams protested. Chicago claimed it should have been awarded the game under the rule referring to the number of games which shall be played during the season and that New York should have played off the tie on September 24. The Giants protested against the umpire's decision, claiming it was not in accordance with the facts.

Pulliam called a meeting of directors. They upheld the decision of the umpire and the calling of the game a tie, refused to grant the Cub claim on the ground that they had tied the hands of the league president by the filing of their protest and that the game therefore could not be played the following day. They then ordered the game to be played off at the Polo Grounds on October 8.

So, with the season ending in a tie between the teams they met on October 8 in a memorable contest.

So great was the crowd that those left outside battered down the fences and tore away parts of the stands in their frenzy.

The Cubs won. Mathewson hurled for the Giants and he was batted in but one inning, but enough runs came in then to give Chicago the game. Chance made a bad blunder to start the contest by starting Pfiester in the box. The Giants threw away their chances to win the game in the first inning by poor base running. Brown was sent in to relieve Pfiester and he thereafter held the Giants safe.

The pennant races in both leagues were close in 1916. In the National, Brooklyn won, Philadelphia was second, Boston third and the Giants fourth. Philadelphia was beaten by 15 points in the percentage and New York, though in fourth place, was seven games behind the leaders. Boston was nine percentage points behind Philadelphia. Boston won the American League flag with only 13 percentage points advantage over the White Sox, while Detroit was a close third.

In 1918, the American League race was close, Boston, Cleveland and Washington finishing close together. Last year's American race was decided in the last days with Cleveland, Chicago and New York bunched.

The following figures show the result of the campaigns in both leagues for the last 10 years:

SLEEP POTION PROVES FATAL TO MRS. ZUHLKE

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 3.—Dying from an overdose of a sleeping powder and with both wrists slashed, Mrs. Paul Zuhlke, wife of a wealthy New York importer, who had been missing since Thursday, was found Saturday night in a barn on the Zuhlke estate near Madison, it became known today. Mrs. Zuhlke died a few minutes after being found.

When found by her husband and a party of searchers, Mrs. Zuhlke had already become unconscious. A private physician was called and later the Madison authorities announced today, the coroner declared it to be a case of suicide.

Six months ago her only son, Paul, committed suicide in the chemical laboratory of a Morristown public school by inhaling deadly fumes. Mrs. Zuhlke is said to have brooded since.

ENGLISH AND YANK WOMEN GOLFERS TIE

By Associated Press.

DEAL, N. J., Oct. 3.—Miss Glenna Collett, 18 year old Providence star, and Mrs. Latham Hall, of Mid-Surrey, England, were tied for the qualifying medal at the opening of the annual tournament for the woman's golf championship of the United States here today. They played the 18 holes in 85 each. Next in the standing was Miss Cecile Leitch, British, French and Canadian champion, with 87. Miss Alexa Stirling, deefnding United States champion, had an 89.

Five of the eight foreign entrants failed to qualify. They are Miss Doris Chambers of England, who withdrew after playing around approximately 106 and all the Canadian entrants, Misses Sybil and Hazel Kennedy, Montreal, sisters, had 100 and 101, respectively; Miss Will Gage, of Toronto, had 110; Miss Kate Robertson, of Montreal did not appear in the tournament.

Of a total of 183 entrants, 164 started in the qualifying round, which beginning with intermittent light showers in the morning, was played in a heavy rain in the afternoon. Miss Cecile Leitch, who had been expected to win the qualifying round, had the advantage of moderately dry turf except for the last few holes. Her drives were unsurpassed by any competitor, but in steadiness and approaching there were many better. She had calculated 84 should be the woman's par for the difficult course.

Mrs. Latham Hall in tying for the qualifying medal played the steadiest golf of any one, having only one bad hole, a seven.

The greatest applause for a shot came when 14 year old Maureen Orcutt, who plays from the White Beeches golf and country club of Haworth, N. J., made a 210 yard drive from the first tee.

NEW YORK SUGAR.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—There was no change in the local raw sugar market today but there was a little more activity noted with sales reported by the committee of 80,000 bags of Cuba's in port to local and out-port refiners at 2 5-8 cost and freight, equal to 4.23 for centrifugal. There were also sales of 2,500 bags of Sando Mingoes in port a 2.30 cif, equal to 4.30 for centrifugal, while Porto Rico's and Philippine Islands were held at 4.13.

Trading in raw sugar futures was very light and prices were irregular, closing one point higher to three points net lower. December closed at 2.42; March 2.32; May 2.40 and July 2.52.

The market for refined was unchanged at 5.50 for fine granulated with a fair inquiry reported. There were no transactions in refined futures and closing prices were unchanged to five points net higher. December closed at 5.30 and later positions at 5.25.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The stock market was hesitant today, favorites moving within a restricted area, while specialties continued to denote the increasingly doubtful prospects indicated in the less essential lines of industry.

Foreign and domestic oils were strong and especially the cheaper or low grade shares, these deriving their better tone from the higher prices quoted for crude products. Coppers moderately enhanced last week's gain under what seemed like poll operations.

Rails, excepting coalers, were unusually sluggish and many of the motor, chemical and food issues showed progressive weakness incitentally establishing lower quotations for a year or much longer period.

Conspicuous features of the latter class embraced American Sugar, common and preferred, Cuban Cane preferred, Cuban American preferred and Pierce Arrow preferred, at extreme recissions of about five points. Sales amounted to 535,000 shares.

Advices over the week-end were mostly encouraging. Railroad tonnage moved more rapidly to market and western and southwestern financial centers reported gradual growth of confidence in the business outlook and expansion of investment demand.

A firmer tone was evinced by the local money market, call loans opening at 5 1-2 per cent, presumably in consequence of last week's deficit in clearing house reserves. On the very limited inquiry, however, the rate fell to 5 per cent at noon.

London furnished a higher level of exchange rates to this market, although Italian and Belgian bills reacted here, marks also falling to within a point of their low record. Exchange on Greece weakened in connection with the more adverse economic conditions in that country.

Heaviness of French and Belgian war issues, also Mexicans and Cuba Cane 7's, detracted from the strength of the bond market. Liberty 3 1-2's which lagged in the recent rise of the group, were active and strong. Total sales, par value, 17,375,000.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Bullish views regarding the domestic visible supply figures and about the amount of wheat on ocean passage led to a sudden upturn today in the price of wheat. The market closed nervous 1-2 to 1 cent net higher, with December 1.18 1-4@1.18 1-2 and May 1.23 1-4 to 1.23 1-2. Corn gained 3-8 to 3-4@7-8 and oats 1-4 to 3-8 cents. In provisions the outcome was unchanged to 12 cents higher.

In the beginning the wheat market showed considerable depression, with bears putting stress on the apparent absence of any new export business and on predictions of a liberal enlargement of the United States visible supply. Later, however, the market developed notable strength largely as a result of current anticipations that the increase expected in the visible supply woud be much smaller than was the case a week ago. A decided curtailment of the stock of wheat afloat on the ocean counted also as a stimulous to the buying side. On the otherhand, profit taking sales in the last half hour wiped out a good part of the day's advance.

Surprise over a chrinkage in the visible supply of corn helped to rally the corn market. Earlier though, December corn had hold at the lowest price this season. Oats merely reflected the changes in wheat and corn.

Provisions averaged higher with hogs and as a result of some decrease in the stock of lard here.

NEW YORK COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—After opening at a decline of 8 to 14 points under scattering liquidation promoted by lower milreis quotations from Rio, the market for coffee futures turned steadier on scattered covering and trade buying. There was no special change in the news, but the early decline to 7.64 for December made a reaction of 36 points from the high price of last week which seemed to bring in some renewed support from cotton or Wall street houses and there was some further covering against spot business. December rallied to 7.77 and closed at 7.75 with the general market closing at a net loss of only two to five points. October 7.60; December 7.75; January 7.77; March 7.81; May 7.86; July 7.92; September 7.92.

KERNEL COOTIE—OLD HONEST KERNEL

AMENDMENT TO COVENANT MADE EASIER

By Associated Press.
GENEVA, Oct. 3.—The assembly of the League of Nations made amendment of the covenant easier by adopting today under the old unanimity rule a change in article 26, requiring unanimity for adoption and began immediate consideration of the proposed alterations in the covenant under the new rule. Article 26 now reads:

"Amendments to the present covenant, the text of which shall have been voted by the assembly on a three-fourths majority in which there shall be included the votes of all the members of the council represented at the meeting, will take effect when ratified by the members of the league whose representatives composed the council when the votes are taken and by a majority of those whose representatives formed the assembly."

The first amendment debated under the new rule was modification of article 16 proposed by the Greek delegation, providing that no state shall proceed to blockade a country breaking the covenant before the date fixed by the council. The small states, including Holland and Poland, however, opposed any action in fixing the blockade regulations. They pointed out that countries moved either by interest or animosity might anticipate the action of the council and blockade on their own account before the question had been sufficiently studied.

KIWANIANS TOLD ABOUT BONE HEADS

A depiction of the Dallas Bone Head Club, declared to have been until recently the only such club in existence, by Vernon Hall of Dallas, furnished the chief attraction for the Monday luncheon of the Kiwanis Club.

In the absence of Judge John C. Kaye, in whose place Mr. Hall appeared, several short talks were made by Kiwanians, among whom were Bobby Burns, Al Booth and Ben Neal. Walter S. Curlee made a short talk advocating a public auditorium. The auto tire donated by Gene Stegall as an attendance prize was won by Harry Baum and the silent boosts were cigars, furnished by Dr. Ralph Peterson.

G. W. Cooper acted as chairman of the day.

MANY OUT OF TOWN PEOPLE VISIT CIRCUS

Nearly 17,000 people from Wichita Falls and surrounding territory witnessed the two performances of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus here Monday, according to information obtained Monday night. The crowds in evidence all during the day gave during performance hours, continued a liberal sprinkling of people from nearby places.

Despite the unusually large number of people on the downtown streets, little or no disorder was in evidence and the special police had a comparatively quiet time of it.

From Wichita Falls the show jumps to Stamford, where it plays Tuesday night, working its way back toward Waco, where they are billed a week from today.

SPANISH FAIL IN EFFORT TO HELP OUTPOST

By Associated Press.
MELILLA, Morocco, Sept. 29.—Efforts by the Spanish troops to reach and relieve the Spanish outpost at Tiza proved successful today, a convoy penetrating to Tiza and supplying it with munitions and provisions after fierce fighting at closed quarters with the Moors, lasting several hours. Four columns of Spaniards totaling 14,000 men, were engaged against the Moroccans. The Spanish were supported by sixteen batteries of artillery and several heavy guns afloat.

According to natives, the Moors had intended to attack Tiza, the Spanish, however, compelled them to retreat.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Western woman who recently named Golf as a co-respondent may find a kindred soul in Mrs. Max E. Kloorfain of Brooklyn, who has brought suit for separation, naming the family motor car. According to his wife, Kloorfain spent so much time tinkering with the machine that he might as well have been married to it. The supreme court today granted Mrs. Kloorfain $15 a week allmony pending trial.

COMMISSION MEMBER CHARGED WITH LIBEL

By Associated Press.
BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 3.—Huey H. Long, member of the public service commission from North Louisiana, was arrested in Shreveport today on a warrant issued by the District court of East Baton Rouge charging him with criminally libeling Governor John M. Parker.

The warrants were based on two affidavits filed by the governor and constituted the executive's reply to Long's alleged public assertion that Governor Parker's administration had been dominated and controlled by the Standard Oil company.

CHIEF JUSTICE OFFICE OATH GIVEN TAFT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Administration of the judicial oath to William Howard Taft, the new chief justice of the United States, marked the reconvening today of the supreme court of the regular fall term.

The oath was administered to Mr. Taft, who thereby became the first chief justice to have previously occupied the highest executive office in the nation, by the senior associate justice, Joseph McKenna. The oath taken today by Mr. Taft supplemented the constitutional oath administered July 11 soon after the appointment of the former president by President Harding.

The president received the justices in the residential section of the White House, and after the reception, which was brief, the justices went to their homes.

Selection of William S. Stansbury of Washington as clerk of the court was decided on today and will be announced tomorrow. Mr. Stansbury has been acting clerk since the death last August of James D. Maher.

Arguments on unargued cases pending before the court will be started tomorrow with two important cases listed. The first on the docket is an appeal taken by R. D. Langan to prevent the annexation of his property by the city of Louisville, Kentucky, which has been urging that the case be expedited because actual annexation of adjacent territory can be accomplished only after further legislation which cannot be enacted while litigation is pending.

The second case is the appeal of the Associated Billposters and Distributors of the United States and Canada, which has been before the court for a number of years. It, however, will be passed for argument later.

One of the most important labor cases now before the court will be the second to be urged under the present program. It is an appeal brought by the American Steel Foundries involving the right of organized labor to engage in picketing to promote a strike at the company's plant at Granite City, Illinois.

Eastlake, naval petty officer, and Miss Sarah K. Knox, a Baltimore nurse, announced today the finding of the front door key of the Eastlake home. The key was found at the fence over which Miss Knox said she climbed in pursuing the men she claimed committed the murder. Police said they have established that only one person went over the fence. All of the doors of the Eastlake home were found locked except the front door when the body of Mrs. Eastlake was discovered.

MINERS SCORE ACTIVITIES OF LEGIONNAIRES

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 3.—Although refusing to condemn the American Legion because of alleged strike breaking activities of some of its members, the convention of the United Mine Workers of America today adopted a resolution committee report calling on Legion officials "to put their house in order."

The action came after several delegates had appealed vehemently for the convention to go on record in unqualified condemnation of the Legion. The committee report was among those made on more than 100 resolutions sent to the convention for consideration by the local unions throughout the country and which had been before the committee for consideration since the opening of the convention. Most of the resolutions went into the discard, and debate was permitted on only a few, with most of the comment being exacted by the legion resolution.

Aside from the work on resolutions, the committee voted overwhelmingly not to change the union's present system of appointing organizers.

Supporters of an election plan complained that the appointive system permitted officers to build up a political machine, but no evidence to support this charge was found by a committee appointed at the 1919 convention, which held election of organizers was impracticable.

Among the resolutions adopted were those favoring immediate nationalization of coal mines and railroads, the repeal of the espionage laws and amnesty for all "political prisoners," and a self-determination for Ireland.

The convention sidestepped taking a stand on prohibition when the issue was brought up by resolutions favoring light wines and beer. No action was taken on these resolutions, the committee advising such a course with a statement that the prohibition question "is purely a social question," upon which each citizen has his own views.

Reject Radicalism.

Resolutions regarded by delegates as manifesting radical tendencies, were rejected outright. The idea of "one big union" of workers, the affiliation of the mine workers with the international council of trade and industrial unions, to develop working class solidarity, and the calling of a convention by American trades unions to form one organization having as its object the abolition of capital and the establishment of a workers' industrial republic in the United States were lost overwhelmingly without discussion.

John Wilkinson, of Muskogee, Oklahoma, president of the miners' union in that district, in urging favorable action on the American Legion report, declared that the miners could not put the Legion "out of business" by condemning it, and he added:

"If you want to see them put their house in order, get in there and help them put it right." His statement came after some delegates, who said they were ex-service men, had declared they would not join the Legion because they knew of its members acting against strikers.

CULBERSON TO OPEN OFFICE HERE TODAY

Major W. A. Culberson, army officer detailed as inspector and instructor for the national guard units in the 142nd Infantry district, arrived in Wichita Falls Monday night to establish headquarters for the district at this place.

Offices will be established in the Morgan building as soon as possible. Major Culberson will have Sergeant Major Kale, veteran non-commissioned officer of more than a score years of service, with him in the office, and will have sergeant-instructors in a number of places along the Fort Worth and Denver.

Visits of inspection to units in this part of the state which have been accorded federal recognition, and inspections preparatory to federal recognition will be the first work of Major Culberson here.

Major Culberson is well known here and throughout this section of the state, having the big part of his war service in a Texas division, the 36th. Previous to this he had spent many years in national guard work in Texas, and had over two years of border service, beginning in 1916.

During the formation of the 36th division Major Culberson was for a while stationed in Wichita Falls as a battalion commander of the 142nd infantry, which had headquarters here, and was organized in this state. While serving with the division he made such a mark that he was given an important assignment on the division staff, from which he was later called for assignment to the general staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, a rare distinction for an officer from civil life.

Following the demobilization of the war time army, he was given a permanent rank of major, and has since served with the 2nd division at San Antonio.

One of his most recent assignments was in command of the troops in San Antonio engaged in relief work during and after the flood. He and Mrs. Culberson are temporarily at the Kemp hotel.

RED RIVER HEARING TO START TODAY

Hearings of testimony connected with the Red River oil land litigation, such as have been held in border county seats on both sides for the past two months, were scheduled to start in Wichita Falls this morning, according to advices received here late in last week. The hearings to be held here were the ones originally scheduled to have been held at Henrietta, according to advices at that time.

Judge Frederick S. Tyler, special commissioner, had not arrived in Wichita Falls late last night, and it could not definitely be determined whether any change of plan had been made, or not.

DIRECTORS TO PLAN COMING YEAR'S WORK

Work for the coming year will be largely laid out by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting this morning at 10:00 o'clock, according to Hubert Harrison, general manager of the organization. The meeting will be held in the chamber of commerce rooms.

The three day trade trip to Northwest Texas and Oklahoma points, aid for the drilling of a wild cat test near Call Field, matters in connection with the office organization, and a number of routine matters are also scheduled to come before the body, according to Mr. Harrison.

JEWELS LOST ARE FOUND IN MISSOURI

By Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFFS, Mo., Oct. 3.—Jewels valued at $40,000 and reported lost by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Gros of Paris, France, while enroute from Dallas, Texas, to Philadelphia, were found near DeSoto, Missouri, late Saturday afternoon by Perry Anderson, aged 55, a pool and billiard hall owner of that place, according to information here tonight. The disposition of the jewels has not been disclosed. Mr. and Mrs. Gros are now reported to be visiting J. H. Patton in Philadelphia.

BOY HURT IN MOTOR CAR CRASH

George Biddy, aged 17, messenger boy for the Tipton Drug Store, sustained a sprained knee, and slight body bruises Monday night when he fell from his bicycle under an automobile, at the corner of Tenth and Van Buren.

The car, driven by Dr. A. D. Patillo, was going west on Tenth street, and the boy riding east, turned across the street to the Ellis Drug store, just when he was about abrest of the automobile, according to Dr. Patillo and other eye witnesses. He was knocked from the wheel under the front of the car, as the brakes were thrown on.

He was taken immediately to his home, 205 Lamar, by Dr. Patillo and attention given his injuries, which were negligible, as stated above.

U. S. FUNERAL SHIP MAKES LAST TRIP

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The army transport Wheaton, which arrived today from Antwerp with 2624 bodies of American soldiers, is the last regular funeral ship, it was announced by Captain Eugene McCarthy, her commander.

Less than 3,000 bodies are yet to be transported home in accordance with wishes of relatives, he added. They will be carried a few hundred at a time on returning army ships. The number originally designated for transportation to this country has been greatly decreased because relatives changed their minds and decided not to bring the bodies home.

LIONS TO EQUIP NEW PLAYGROUND

Responding to the suggestion of Mayor Walter D. Cline, whose advice they had asked for doing something helpful to the city, the Lyons club Monday named a committee to pick a school whose playgrounds were shy on equipment and efficiency.

To confer with the school board in selecting the school to be favored, the following committee was appointed: L. R. Buchanan, Joe B. Hatchitt and Dr. L. D. Parnell.

F. B. Massey invited the committee to visit the Travis school entertainment next Friday night.
