Catoe stays on as city manager

Outpour of support changes his mind; no action on city attorney's contract

City Manager Paul Catoe rescinded his letter of resignation at a highly charged Colorado City Council meeting Monday night.

The majority of the crowd that packed the Civic Center burst into applause when Catoe announced he was staying as city manager.

Catoe's announcement was preceded by an hour of drama in which three council members questioned him on various issues.

Council member Georgiana Porter, who requested a meeting two weeks ago to question Catoe about his job performance, asked Catoe why he had resigned April 28.

"I felt like my integrity was being questioned, and this was the straw that broke the camel's back," he responded.

Catoe's cell-phone bill and the purchase of two city pumps were brought into question by Porter, council members Sammy Contreras and Jason Castillo, and City Attorney Jeannie Fuller.

Catoe acknowledged that the city was paying the cell-phone base rate for his phone as well as his wife's cell phone.

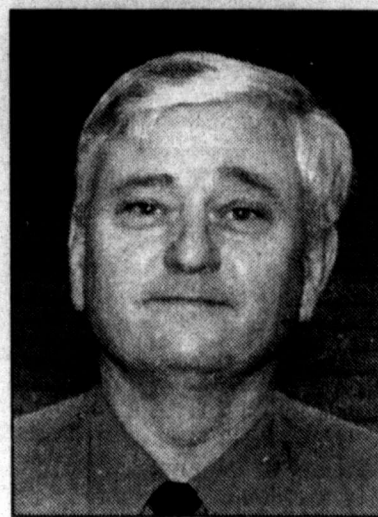

Castillo asked, "Do you believe that (the city) paying for your wife's cell-phone bill is right?"

Catoe responded that he did because he was in full compliance with his employment contract, which does not specify that he is limited to one phone.

He also noted that one council member's wife has called his wife's cell phone numerous times in order to discuss city business.

Catoe added that although he drives two vehicles, he receives a car allowance for just one.

He said the base rate under

his cell-phone plan is $104 per month, and that he pays for anything above the rate.

On the city pumps, Catoe acknowledged that he authorized the purchase of the water pumps, which totaled more than $9,000.

The city's charter requires that any purchase over $500 must come to the council for approval.

He described the city's 1948 charter as "outdated" and suggested that it needed revision.

Moreover, Catoe said he made the purchase for the safety and health of the public. If the old pumps had gone out, as they might have, it would have caused a massive sewage back-up in parts of the city.

"When the safety and health of the citizens are in jeopardy, I will do what I need to do," he said.

Fuller argued that unless it was an extreme emergency, the city charter should have been followed.

Catoe responded that he knew of one antiquated city charter which specifies that the city manager make an annual salary of $6,500.

"Obviously, that part of the charter is not followed," he said.

Catoe was also questioned by Porter about his residency status. Catoe's contract requires him to be a city resident.

He said he has rental property in the city and considers himself a resident like any other renter would.

Catoe acknowledged that he still owns his house in the Abilene area and has wavered on buying property here.

"With some of the incidents over the past 10 months, I didn't think it would be prudent for me to buy a house here," he said. "I did not feel secure with my job or with the council."

Catoe said his insecurity was caused in part by the behavior of some at City Hall who disagree with his management style and take their grievances straight to council members.

Council member Bob McNeal said he was not part of the group that requested the meeting on Catoe.

He also criticized other council members for undermining Catoe's authority during the budget process.

"If we didn't like some things in the budget, we should have sent him back to redo the

Barber advocates native plants

By Henry Martinez

For Austin Barber, it's all about being native.

He's referring to the native plants that form the backbone of his new business, Greenman Nursery.

The nursery, located on Interstate 20 near the Sports Complex, specializes in native and adaptive plants for this area.

Barber, a 1993 graduate of Colorado High School, is a proponent of xeriscaping, a form of landscaping which emphasizes plants that require little or no water for growth.

"Many people have a misconception about native plants," Barber explained. "They think of a cactus, but there's a lot more to native and adaptive plants."

He points to the autumn sage that he planted near the law office of his father, Pat Barber, in

TPW officials discuss local algae problem

The threat of golden algae to the state's lakes, including Colorado City's, was discussed last Wednesday by Texas Parks & Wildlife officials.

The officials were on hand for a meeting at the Colorado City Civic Center.

It was one in a series of TP&W meetings in areas hit hardest by the algae. About 20 people attended the meeting.

Unfortunately, there remains a level of mystery about golden algae, which is responsible for fish kills in more than a dozen water bodies in north-central Texas during the past six months.

"Just as we're starting to learn something about (golden algae), it will throw us a new curve," said David Sager, who handles Aquatic Conservation Issues for TP&W in Austin.

He was one of several TP&W officials at the meeting to discuss the issue.

When asked what the state was doing pro-actively to combat the threat, Sager said TP&W has a task force to exclusively work on the issue. Texas A&M, Baylor and the University of Texas also have similar task forces.

Golden algae, first discovered in Texas in 1985, release a toxin that kills gill-breathing organisms such as fish and clams. Most of the fish affected are either forage or rough fish species.

There is no known evidence of human health risks.

Because of increased focus on the issue, TP&W officials have dismissed past assumptions about the algae and developed new theories on the subject.

The latest finding is that the algae cell counts and toxicity levels don't necessarily correlate with each other.

For example, although high cell counts have been found in East Texas lakes, there is no evidence of toxicity.

Officials now theorize that the algae's toxicity may be triggered by something in the lake, possibly minerals in the soil.

They noted that the soil in East Texas is different from that in West and Central Texas, which may be why there is no toxicity in East Texas.

If this is the case, then officials will work toward finding a way to neutralize whatever is triggering the toxicity.

"If we can take away the toxicity, then it won't matter if we have the algae in the lake," said Tracy Ferguson, superintendent of Lake Colorado City State Park.

In recent years, golden algae blooms have had a detrimental effect on Lake Colorado City, affecting the number of fishers who come to the lake.

Ferguson said the lake will be restocked this summer if the toxicity is not too high.

"When we last tested the levels in April, the cell counts were low but the toxicity was high," he noted.

The fish activity at the lake appears to be low, although some fishers have reported finding fish in the Morgan Creek area.

Ferguson said he hoped the toxicity level would decrease so the lake could be restocked this summer.

Editor's Note...

Random Thoughts

By Henry Martinez

This past weekend may have been the busiest in quite a few years for Mitchell County.

It started with the Jay Boy Adams concert at CHS on Thursday (great show). Then, local Colorado City athletes were spotlighted at the UIL track meet Friday and Saturday in Austin (great performances by all of them).

The Menudo Cook-off featured a parade Thursday, followed by two days of great food and fantastic music at Ruddick Park (hats off to headliners Gary Hobbs and Michael Salgado for great shows).

Downtown was buzzing with the Car Show and Cruise Saturday. The C-City volunteer firefighters held another successful Burn-Out event on Saturday afternoon.

The weekend wrapped up with lots of folks braving cool and wet weather at the 4-H Mud Bog on Sunday.

Although an exhausting weekend, it looked like everyone had a good time. I know I did.

Beginning this Friday, the county's graduating seniors will get their diplomas and begin the next phase of their lives.

I heard some good advice once for graduating seniors that I'll pass along now. In school, students had to master the three R's -- reading, (w)riting and (a)rithmetic.

When you graduate, there are three new R's you have to master -- responsibility, respect and resiliency.

Responsible adults are the ones who come out ahead in life. Those respectful of others are usually afforded the same respect. And those who are resilient in the face of adversity can survive the rough patches in life that all of us experience.

Whether you're off to college or have other plans, best of luck to all graduating seniors of Mitchell County.

Summer camp available

The Noon Lions Club of Colorado City would like to remind the public of a summer camp in Texas for children with physical disabilities or diabetes.

For more than 50 years, the Texas Lions Camp in Kerrville, Texas has provided more than 50,000 children opportunities for recreational and learning experiences.

This summer, Texas children with physical disabilities between the ages of 7 and 16 will be able to choose from six one-week sessions of camp or a three-day "Day Camp."

Interested children should have some self-help skills in the areas of dressing, eating, toileting and bathing.

Daily camp activities include swimming, canoeing, arts and crafts, field sports, fishing and camping under the stars.

The week's activities conclude with a special awards ceremony where everybody's a winner.

The Texas Lions Club also provides two one-week summer sessions specifically designed for children with Type 1 diabetes (ages 8-15).

In addition to exciting and challenging recreational activities, a medical team joins the camp to teach campers about controlling and living with diabetes.

The camp has special meaning for local Lions Club officer Mike Nichols and his wife Donna, who have two children who participated in the camp. He was visibly emotional in a recent Lions meeting when thanking the club for putting them through camp.

Parents should be aware that children attending the camp do so at no cost to themselves or their families. The camp is paid through Lions Club dues and other fund-raisers.

If you have a child who may be eligible to attend, you can obtain an application from a Lions Club officer or from Gene Parsons at 325-235-5661.

The application must be signed by a parent, a Lions Club member and a physician.

The completed application will be examined by a review committee. The Lion sponsor and the parent will be notified as soon as possible.

The first week-long camp session begins June 5 and the final week-long session begins July 10. The three-day "Day Camp" begins July 20. The sessions for diabetic children are the weeks of July 24 and July 31.

Here we bee -- again!!

By John R. Senter
Mitchell CEA-Ag

It happens every year -- sooner or later, swarms of bees show up and when they do, it automatically makes people think of Africanized "Killer" Bees. Saying "bee" to some is like saying "snake" to me -- no matter what kind it is -- it's a rattlesnake.

For the record, there has never been a confirmed Africanized Bee in Mitchell County. You may recall a problem we had a few years ago when some horses and one of our neighbors were stung numerous times. Everybody in town was positive that those were "Killer" Bees. The only thing that was not positive were the samples that Dr. Vardeman collected and our office sent to the Texas A & M Bee lab. All of the bees sampled tested negative for the Africanized gene.

Now, this is not to say that we will never have these bees in Mitchell County. When these bees were first confirmed in Texas, it was along the Gulf Coast. Since then, the bees have moved slowly north and west and have been confirmed to our south and southeast -- not here, not yet.

This brings us to the number of calls we have received about swarming bees. Bees swarm when they are trying to locate a suitable hive. Most of the time when we see bee swarms and they choose to rest in a nearby tree, on the side of your house, under your porch and other unhandy places, they mean no harm. Bees are the least dangerous and aggressive when they are swarming and/or foraging for food because they have no hive to protect.

In the summer of 2004, I had such a swarm visit my house late one evening and stop in a small tree. Being in the process of mowing my yard, I decided unless the swarm came over to help me push the mower, I'd wait and see what happened. The next morning, the bees were gone. This will most often be the case when a swarm of bees visits -- they are most likely looking for a resting place and should move on within 24 hours. The next question then becomes -- what if they don't leave? This is especially a problem if bees begin to make a hive in garage, attic, wall of your house or other unsuitable location. When bees get a hive constructed and begin forming honey and little bees, then they can be very aggressive and control is the better option.

There are several choice and all have varying degrees of effectiveness. As with the case of most unwanted pests, a commercial exterminator is always an option. We are fortunate to have a very good one in Colorado City. Another option for folks who would rather not utilize insecticides and chemicals is a home-made concoction and is simply a mixture of one gallon of water and one cup of liquid soap. Notice the water comes before the soap -- getting this recipe backwards will create more soap suds than bees! In order for this remedy to work, the bees must be thoroughly coated and more than one application is probably needed. It is important to note that when using this approach, only try to spray the bees early morning or very late afternoon when they are not active.

A third option is do-it-yourself chemical applications. There are a number of products available and this is only a few of the choices. Products containing Carbaryl as the active ingredient are the kiss of death to bees. This product is better known as Sevin and comes either liquid or dust and has been used in home gardens and landscapes for years. Carbaryl products are some of the longest residual insecticides around and are a good choice for bees.

Products containing Permethrin are another choice and most commercial fly sprays contain this product. It is safer to the environment but has only moderate residual activity. Still, a third choice would be products containing Pyrethrins. These products offer another safe alternative but have very little residual life.

With any of these choices, it is absolutely important that you do not treat unless it is early morning or late afternoon when bees are less active. As with any type of chemical application, make sure the product label fits your situation and follow the label correctly.

There are those who will tell you that any aggressive bee is an Africanized Bee. If there is anyone who can tell the difference just by looking -- they will probably sell you some top soil from Afghanistan, too! Ain't possible. The only way to determine the genetic makeup of a bee is send at least 50 bees to the A&M bee lab where they are incinerated, dried and DNA analysis run to confirm the presence of the Africanized gene. For the most part, bees are just trying to get along, make baby bees and honey and get through the summer. I'd venture to bet that most of us would miss good old honey on a hot, buttery biscuit or peanut butter sandwich -- I would. Use common sense around bees because we have more than they do. Be on the lookout and take action as you deem necessary and by all means, beef free to call our office with concerns.

Lake races this coming Saturday

Lake Colorado City State Park is sponsoring its first-ever Hydrobike and Kayak Relays this Saturday at 1 p.m.

Four-member teams will compete for bragging rights in the county, with winners determined by the fastest times.

Park Superintendent Tracy Ferguson said the event will be a great way to inaugurate what is expected to be a busy summer season at the lake.

It's also a great way to celebrate the end of the school year, with classes ending by May 20 for most area students.

For more information about the event, call the park at 728-3931 or e-mail lcsp@wtxs.net.

LETTER to the EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Hello, I am writing because of a law that I didn't know we have. It's that the roadway to the right of the highway is a prohibited zone. I thought that when a car stops to turn left, you could go around it to the right. But that is wrong.

The shoulder lane, as it is called by C-City Police, is a forbidden zone and the only way to be on it is for breakdowns, flat tires or to stop and help someone -- no driving at all in it.

But there are no signs to warn the people that they can't drive right of the main lane of the street. Anytime there is a line, white or yellow, it is forbidden to drive in the lane or pass a car.

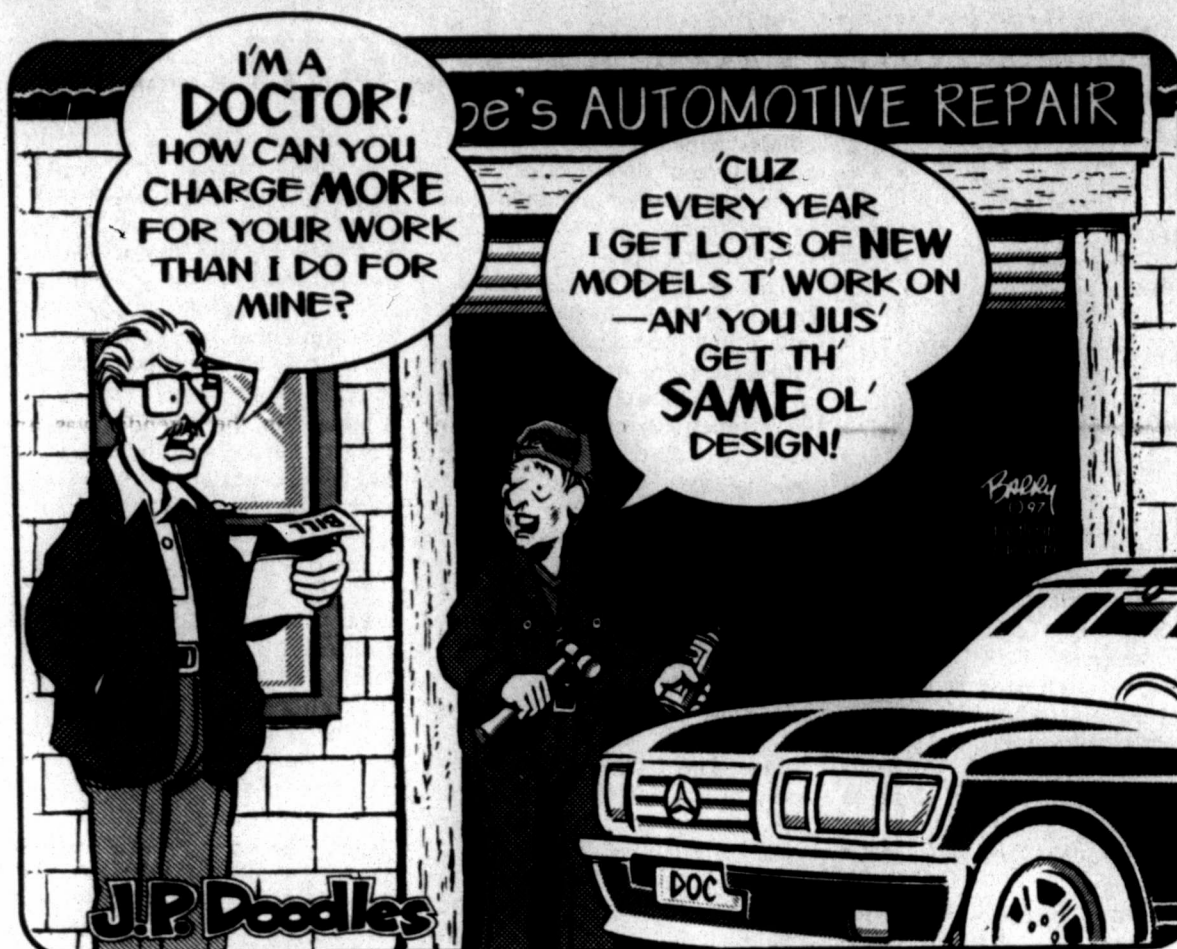

Now that the new police chief and new police officers are going to start enforcing the law -- but still no sign of warning. I know because I got a ticket.

The policeman said he stopped me for passing a car illegally but put on the ticket, "Driving on shoulder where it is prohibited." Not passing cars.

I talked to the Chief of Police and he said no one can do that -- no passing on the right. "Maybe one car, maybe!"

But that's up to the police officer. Why have a four lane road going through town if you can only drive or pass on two lanes?

Thank you,
Rev. Jimmy Huff

The Glory Days of the Shamrock

By Tumbleweed Smith

My parents had a grocery store in Fort Worth. My father was active in the Texas Retail Grocers Association and served as its president one year. He attended Grocery Conventions all over the U.S. One year the National Association of Retail Grocers had its annual meeting at the Shamrock Hotel in Houston. I remember my mom and dad relaxing in their luxurious room at the Shamrock when my father reached over, hugged my mother and said to her, "This is a long way from the cotton patch, isn't it." She said, "O, my, yes."

When you stayed at the Shamrock in the 1950's, it made you feel like you had arrived at some elite status in life.

When the hotel opened in 1949, owner Glenn McCarthy threw a million dollar party, the likes of which Texas had never seen before. On hand were one hundred movie stars. Three-thousand would-be gatecrashers couldn't even get to the lobby. All over Houston that night, drivers of cars honked their horns to mark that event.

In 1949, few buildings and fewer homes were air-conditioned. But all 778 rooms in the Shamrock were air-conditioned. Even the garage room was air conditioned to control odors. Robert Cason of Corsicana was at the Shamrock for the opening on St. Patrick's Day, 1949.

"They didn't have a single thing to serve breakfast with the next morning. All the silverware was gone for souvenirs. And all the flowers in the lobby were taken out that night. It was literally stripped."

The Shamrock Hotel was a monument to the Texas spirit, embracing entrepreneurship, risk, adventure and dreams of fame and fortune.

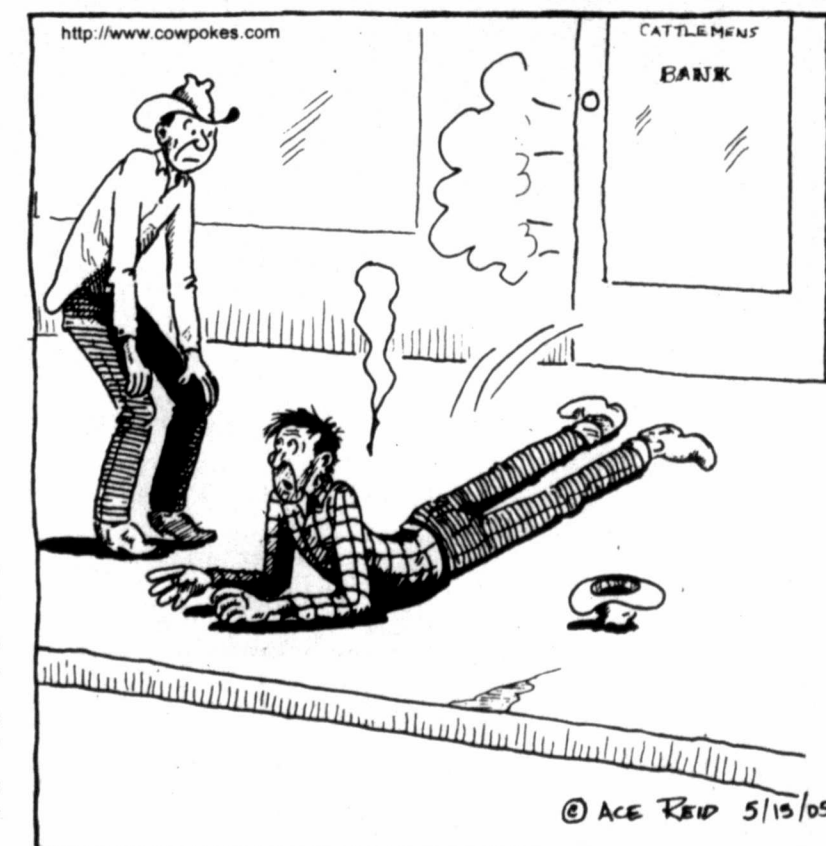

Oilman Glenn McCarthy built it and lost it while he was building and losing several fortunes during his lifetime. But the day the Shamrock opened, Houston stopped being a country town and started becoming a metropolitan city.

The Shamrock was torn down in 1987 to make way for a parking lot. Robert Cason was a prominent Texas florist at the time and recalls opening night at the Shamrock.

"I was one of about 40 florists they selected to go down for the opening. We worked down there three days before the hotel opened. They had champagne all over that big lobby. Andy Devine was there and he was so much fun. About midnight he said 'let's go swimming.' It was cold, you know, in April, and I came home with pneumonia. It was years before I told anybody how I caught it. But it was such an opening. The prominent people all over the U.S. had to be seen there. You never saw so much jewelry and finery and fun in your life."

On St. Patrick's Day of 1986 Glenn McCarthy joined 3,000 people who were protesting the demolition of the Shamrock.

GOOD FOOD WAS SERVED by the ladies of St. Ann's Catholic Church during the Christmas in Action lunch April 30 at the Civic Center. Volunteers were treated to enchiladas, rice and beans. Rex Thackerson, left, takes a plate served by Mary Molina, right, as Gloria Lujan looks on.

THESE VOLUNTEERS fix a house at 221 E. 6th Street during April 30's Christmas in Action event. Volunteers fixed houses for low-income and elderly residents in Colorado City, Loraine and Westbrook.

A GOOD DESSERT could not be resisted by Ronnie Arispe, a volunteer who participated in the Christmas in Action home repair day on April 30.

Main Street letters still sought

This is a reminder that letters of support for Colorado City's Main Street program application are being accepted now.

The letters will be included as part of the overall application, which is due by July 29, to show community support for Main Street.

If you are a service organization, the letter should be written and signed by the president or another officer of the organization.

Letters of support from governmental entities, both inside and outside of Mitchell County, also are welcomed.

Business owners are encouraged to write letters to express the anticipated benefits of the program.

Letters may be addressed either to the City of Colorado City or the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce.

They can be dropped off at the Chamber office or mailed to: P.O. Box 242, Colorado City, TX 79512.

To help with the application process, please submit your letters of support by May 31 or earlier.

budget, not form a budget committee," McNeal said.

Catoe said he was told by the state attorney general's office that it was "ill-advised" for three members of the council to meet behind closed doors under the guise of a budget committee.

Jay McCollum, who spoke as a concerned citizen, told the council that it would be easier to replace them than it would be to replace Catoe.

A visibly angry Castillo responded, "I feel like you're threatening the council."

Castillo added that if people were concerned enough about the city's business, they ought to run for a council seat.

New council member Justin Harris responded, "Some of us were (concerned enough)." The comment drew applause from the crowd.

Another concerned citizen, Bobbie Banks, said it spoke volumes that Catoe requested to have his personnel matters discussed in open session.

One citizen who spoke in support of the council was Stephanie Mask, who said the council members were given a measure of authority by the voters.

Although Porter denied that she sought Catoe's resignation, Mayor Jim Baum said, "I think there has been some head-hunting going on."

When the agenda item came up to accept Catoe's resignation, no one on the council made a motion.

After Catoe announced he was staying, Baum said, "I want to say how very much I appreciate his decision. It's only fair that some questions be asked by council members, but we will have a fair council."

Several citizens left the meeting unhappy because the resignations of Porter and Contreras were not called for.

According to sources, Contreras and Porter were responsible for the controversial agenda item about Catoe that led to his initial resignation.

After the meeting, Porter said she was satisfied with Catoe's decision to stay.

"I never asked him to resign," she said. "I work for the citizens and I simply wanted some of my questions answered."

Porter made a verbal request for the original meeting to City Finance Officer Connie Ponko.

Ponko, who did not participate in the debate, left the meeting following Catoe's announcement. She normally stays for the entire council meeting.

Also on the agenda was an item to terminate the city's contract with the Rees & Rees law firm.

BARBER

downtown Colorado City.

"They have a nice color of purple, and I don't even have to water them," Barber noted.

One of his main goals is to offer a large variety of trees, shrubs, grasses and perennial flowering plants to choose from. To achieve that, Barber seeks out native plants in the wild.

"I started working toward this nursery about four years ago, and it's taken that long because I do a lot of my own propagation," he said.

For example, there are species of Texas red oak that can be found in other parts of the state. However, Barber uses a variation found in Nolan County because of its adaptability to this area.

He also imports plants that should do well in the area based on the conditions in which they thrive.

"I look for plants that can take 20 inches of rain a year and also live between zero and 100 degrees," Barber said.

"You can find those kinds of plants in Paraguay, North Africa and China, and you'll find that they'll do just as well in West Texas."

Barber said he doesn't have anything against annuals and other plants that aren't native or adaptive to the area.

"The annuals are pretty to look at, but they're gone quickly," he said. "With these long-lived perennials, they establish roots so that you have something that becomes a permanent fixture of the landscape."

Barber also said that native and adaptive plants would fit

If approved, the item would sever ties with Fuller, who is the senior partner at the law firm.

The council took no action when Baum asked for a motion on the item. It died for lack of a motion.

Fuller said she had no idea why the item was on the agenda.

However, sources indicate there is friction between the city attorney and some city officials.

well with the city's ongoing beautification efforts as well as with a potential Main Street Program.

He pushes native and adaptive plants because they require little or no water. In this part of the state, water conservation is a big issue.

"People may be surprised to learn that 75 percent of the water used by the end of the summer is poured straight into the ground," he said. "They talk about running out of water in Midland in 10 years. None of us want to face that issue in the future."

Barber's goal is to become a wholesale supplier for other nurseries, although he plans to keep a retail operation going in Colorado City.

He runs the business with his wife, Jolene, and they live on a ranch located off the Colorado River.

Not surprisingly, he collects plant species there.

Newby wins gold at state... 1600 meter team places third

Colorado sophomore Paige Newby had one thing on her mind when she made a repeat trip to Austin for the state track meet held there last Friday and Saturday.

Her goal was to do better than her 128'10" throw in the discus that won her the bronze medal at last year's state track meet.

Her goal was accomplished! Paige threw the discus

142'3", a toss that won her the gold medal this year.

Newby has a personal best this season of 151 feet that she threw at the Cotton Patch Relays, setting a new record there.

The 1600-meter relay placed third in a very strong field with a time of 3:21.97. The team is comprised of Frankie Arguijo, Cody Avalos, Otis Johnson, and Hann Ollison. Johnson and Olison will graduate this month.

Alternates were Isaac Franco and Tony Salazar.

Ollison placed fourth in the 200-meter dash in a time of 21.92, also a very fast field.

The first place win for Newby gave the Lady Wolves 10 points while the boys team garnered 14 points from the 1600-meter relay and the 200-meter dash.

Speaking of sports....

By Carl Graham

Congratulations to the members of the 2005 Wolves track team. Paige Newby placed first in the discus to return with a gold medal while Hann Ollison placed fifth in the 200-meter dash. The 1600-meter relay team of Frankie Arguijo, Cody Avalos, Otis Johnson, and Ollison placed third in a time of 3:21.97.

The Wolves track team will be losing seniors Hann Ollison and Otis Johnson, but several underclassmen are expected to step up to help mold another good team for 2006.

It's hard to believe that this is the last week of school. This is a time of the year that most kids look forward to, a vacation from school.

I have mixed feelings of course. Though it gives me a break, I miss all the activities that go on while school is in session. I eagerly look forward to the 2005 football season. This could be the year the Wolves go a long way in the playoffs if everything falls into place.

That's about it for now. Have a great break from school this summer, but keep safety foremost in everything you do.

Anderson runs in marathon

Kendra Anderson, daughter of Woody and Susan Anderson of Colorado City, recently competed in the Salt Lake City Marathon.

The camp will be held at the "Pit" with the 6th and 7th graders attending from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m. Monday through

Epperson steps down as Lady Wolves softball coach

Veteran Colorado High School coach Jerold Epperson has asked to step down as the Lady Wolves softball coach according to head football coach and athletic director Frank Johnson.

He will continue to teach and coach the 7th and 8th grade football team, however.

Coach Epperson said the reason for stepping down was to lighten his coaching load.

Coach Krissy Morris has been offered the job as the head Lady Wolves coach. She was an assistant under coach Epperson for several years prior to this season.

Epperson ended the 2005 softball season with 99 wins to his credit.

loraine news

By Bessie Ann Vaughn

City secretary Connie Harshaw is attending a school at this time in Austin. She will return Thursday. Betty Chandler is working Connie's job while she is away.

Evelyn White's daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Jim Tribble, visited with her over the weekend. While here they had a nice meal at school which was a fundraising event. They also visited a daughter and grandchildren.

Visiting Christene Britton over the weekend to help celebrate her birthday were Mike and Rachel Britton from Allen and Carla and Dwight Aston from Abilene. She had lots of telephone greetings from family and friends. It was a wonderful time spent with family.

Joan Long, executive director of Loraine Housing Authority, went to a meeting in Tahoka with HUD officials in Ft. Worth last week.

The L.I.F.E. Organization would like to thank all those who helped clean at the cemetery Saturday morning. A nice amount of people showed up for work.

First Baptist Church of Loraine is holding a revival starting last Sunday morning and will continue through Wednesday, May 18.

Gerrie and Dub Woodell attended a Hubbard family reunion Friday with a cookout at the Loraine City Park and a softball game. Sixty-seven people attended. The same relatives plus three more congregated at Colorado City State Park's Recreational Area on Saturday. Then on Sunday the Woodell's had several people in their home visiting and eating good food. They had lots of fun.

Shots Treadwell and Charlene Walker joined a tour group that went to Branson, MO last week. They left on Monday and returned Saturday. Charlene reports they had a great time and enjoyed all the shows.

At Loraine United Methodist Church Sunday special music was provided by Debbie Mitchell. She sang and accompanied herself on piano.

Quinton, Ryan and Payton Merket went by and picked up Joan (Merket) Long and Kassie Merket and went to Lake Brownwood. They had a lot of fun and enjoyed each other's company while fishing and taking some R and R time. While at the lake they visited with Royce and Neysa Beights who live there. Joan reported that the Beights' were well and both looked good.

Kassie Merket is spending the summer with her grandmother, Joan. Sunday they attended church, first day of a revival and plan to attend all week.

Brad, Pennie and Morgan Henderson spent Mother's Day in Loraine with Doris and Jay Henderson. Jay and Brad cooked hamburgers for Doris and Pennie.

A mini school class reunion was enjoyed by six friends who graduated from high school in Loraine a few years ago. The ladies joined one another in Sweetwater where they had lunch, had fun, and went shopping. Attending were Bonnie Duke, Rotan, Vida Mae McDaniel, Louella Crockett, Marie Hare, Doris Henderson, Fay Hamilton of Abilene and one guest, Fay's sister, Mary Lightfoot from Midland.

Nell Doyle reports that in Loraine proper we received an inch and one tenth of rain as of Monday morning nearby areas received more and some less.

Yvonne Sadler reported that on Wednesday, Mary McMullin presented the last series in a master memory series program. It was exercise for body and mind. All the programs presented were very good and enlightening and the attendance was very good.

Tommy Wright volunteered his time and talent to present seniors at the center with his music and vocals.

I was asked to mention that Faith Outreach Ministry is located in our community at the former Johnson Hospital. This program is offered to all citizens not just for low incomes. Articles have been donated for others use such as clothing, houseware items, books, some furniture, dishes, medical supplies and food stuff. Things are frequently added. Stop by and see what is offered. This is a blessing for the community.

The Roadrunner Saga goes on... since Billie reported that Chastity Powell and her husband were parents of four baby roadrunners, three more eggs have hatched. Wow! Seven mouths to feed several times a day. In a facecious moment I was thinking about names for the first four babies. Eenie, Meeny, Miny and Moe. Now it's Ennie, Meeny, Miney and Moe, Dancer, Prancer and Cotton-Eyed Joe.

Perhaps not. Sorry, Billie.

For Mother's Day, Pam and Danny went to the New Mexico ranch of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marian Hughes.

Pam's brother, A.J. Hughes from Ohio joined them there. They reported having a great time.

Pam Butler's cousin, Emory and wife Bonnie Hughes along with her aunt Charlsie Hughes, all from the El Paso area, stopped to visit last week.

The Baptist and Methodist churches hosted a celebration dinner for this year's graduating seniors. The year they met at the Methodist Church.

The seniors were served a nice meal and presented with Bibles with their names engraved.

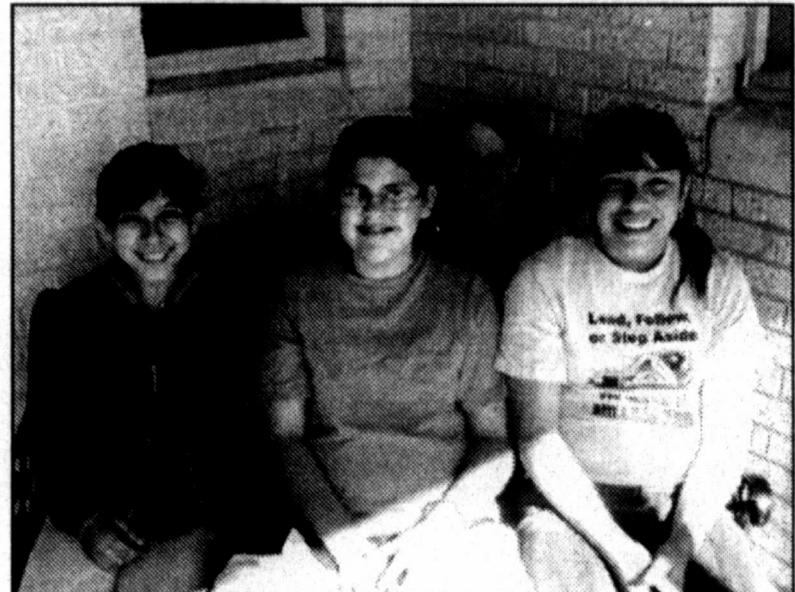

Durwood and Ina Vay McAdams enjoyed a visit this weekend from their daughter, Jalane Pointer and granddaughters, Macie and Hulton. They live in Paris, Tx.

On Sunday, Hutton celebrated her 2nd birthday. She was born on her great-grandmother McAdam's birthday, May 15.

Visiting with us at the center last week was Gaston and Jean Tarbet of Roscoe, Debbie Young, Tommy and Anne Palmer of Houston and Colorado City.

Last Monday we honored the Loraine school seniors. There were 10 present and four sponsors.
