Ranch Rodeo is tonight...

White Buffalo Festival set Saturday

The annual White Buffalo Festival gets underway at 7 this evening with the first presentation of the Top Hand Ranch Rodeo.

Nightly events will be team mugging and team penning, plus team doctoring. Other events are wild cow milking and calf branding.

Two-man team mugging and team roping will be held Saturday morning at 10, plus another edition of the rodeo will be at 7 p.m.

The entire festival that takes place at Scurry County Coliseum, pays tribute to J. Wright Mooar and Scurry County's pioneer heritage.

Mooar is best known in western lore as the man who killed a rare white buffalo on Deep Creek northwest of Snyder on Oct. 7, 1876.

Mooar is also recognized as the first settler of the county and came to be fondly called, "Scurry County's No. 1 Citizen" in early newspaper stories.

Saturday's festivities will follow the theme of the Old West as the gates open at 9:15 a.m. with opening ceremonies set an hour later. Admission to the festival is $1 per person.

There will be activities for everyone, including rides in an authentic stagecoach, a Longhorn steer, and a chuck wagon cooking demonstration by Jerry Slaton of Afton.

Indian dancing teams will be at the coliseum on Saturday, as will gunfighters re-enacting fights from the old west. There will be activities for children throughout the day, and there will be vendors in the comfort of the coliseum.

There will be music in the tent on the coliseum grounds beginning at 10:30 as Buckshot featuring Duke Davis takes the stage, followed by Andy Hedges, Chuck Cusimano, Saddle Tramps and Dennis Flynn, and Texas Sand.

Saturday night Texas Sand and Buckshot will play for the street dance.

The local band Texas Sand is composed of Jackie Greene and Valerie Moss-Greene, plus Vince Moss and Wendell Sollis.

Texas Sand brings a long list of credentials to the festival including the Cowboy Poetry/Music Gathering in Elko, Nevada, Billy the Kid Days in Lincoln, N.M., and the Fourth on Broadway Celebration in Lubbock.

Other events on Saturday include bus tours of the S.D. and Judy Hays ranch at 10:30 in the morning, and 12:30 and 3:45 in the afternoon. Those on the tour can see the actual white buffalo hide on display at the Hays Ranch. Judy Hays is the granddaughter of Mooar and their ranch was once part of the Mooar Ranch.

The tour will also go to the White Buffalo Park on the ranch near the site where the rare buffalo was killed.

A photo exhibit of the Mooar family will be on display at the Dermott School on the grounds of the coliseum from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The annual event honors Mooar who left his native Vermont to seek his fortune and who was an experienced buffalo hunter when he reached Scurry County in 1876 at the age of 25. It is estimated that he killed as many as 22,000 buffalo during his hunting career. His ability to hit a buffalo at long distances won him the respect of Indians, including the great Comanche chief, Quanah Parker.

Mooar, and his brother, John W., were later partners in the hunting business in this area.

When their hunting career ended, the brothers became partners in ranching and a livery stable in Colorado City. Wright married Julia Swartz in Colorado City in 1897 and they built a two-story house in Scurry County where visitors could sit on the white buffalo hide as they were told tales of his early years in the county.

Charles Anderson, Snyder author and educator, wrote a book about Mooar's hunting career titled "In Search of the Buffalo."

Mooar died in 1940 at the age of 88. It was estimated that over 3,000 people from all over West Texas attended his funeral. He is buried in Snyder Cemetery.

THE SDN COLUMN
By Roy McQueen

The best way to get junior to do something – like take out the trash – is to suggest he's not old enough. Gals say the same is true for husbands, only suggest he's too old."

Bragging on Snyder schools....

Former residents Gary and Sue Luft sent an article concerning their son, Garrett Luft, who was named a National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist.

Garrett is a senior at Midland Lee.

In a separate note Mrs. Luft wrote, "I would really like for Garrett's former teachers to see it and know that their labor is bearing fruit. Garrett had some excellent teachers in Snyder, and we are very thankful for their influence on his life. Hope all's well in Tiger town!"

All three Scurry County grid teams are back in action at home tonight. The Hermleigh Cardinals have healed up sufficiently to host Sands.

The Snyder Tigers are in a district battle with state-ranked Frenship. Meanwhile, the Ira Bulldogs will take the field against Jayton. Borden County Coyotes travel to Whitharral.

On Saturday, the Lady Tigers volleyballers try to stay in the thick of the district chase by taking on Frenship at Wolfforth. The SHS tennis team is at Levelland tomorrow.

WTC's rodeo team made a good showing at the year's first rodeo. Chalking up first place finishes were Jamie Standifer, Cassie Mowrey, Harper Sharpe and Tyson Thompson. This weekend, Coach Greg Rhodes' cowpokes will compete in Vernon.

A couple of items of good news...

The Cogdell Hospital mammography unit is open and an open house is scheduled Wednesday in conjunction with a reception to welcome new Cogdell CEO George Parsley to Snyder.

And growth from within is always welcome news. Fran Farmer, owner of Farmer's Design Group, revealed her firm's plans to expand and add employees.

The company, which specializes in display cases for department stores, has been one of the best-kept secrets in Scurry County.

Thanks to a bunch of people – including Southern Electric staffers – who got our press back up and running after a breaker failure Thursday morning.

Thanks to our friends at the Lamesa Press-Reporter for printing the Thursday edition and special thanks to our customers for being patient concerning the delayed delivery.

And don't forget the White Buffalo Festival tomorrow at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Have a good weekend! Stay warm and think rain!

Citizens' group sets goals for community

Only a handful met Thursday night for the organizational meeting of a citizens' group with the betterment of Snyder in mind.

Meeting at the Texas Savings Bank, the group led by Helen Feinsod discussed a number of goals they would like to see implemented into the community.

These include promoting citizen awareness, encouraging citizen involvement in civic affairs, promotion of responsible voting through education, and formulating a positive vision for Snyder.

The group said it also would like to create interest in lost community activities, such as the Scurry County Fair.

The fledging group said it would also encourage communication between citizens and the public officials who represent them.

The group also expressed concern about residents shopping out of town.

Suzan Hughes said she would like for the group to provide positive ideas, and not project a negative image about Snyder and what is currently offered in the community.

Feinsod suggested as the group grows, three or four members could attend each public meeting and report back to the organization their findings.

Feinsod said she felt all citizens should attend meetings of taxing entities, especially during budget time.

"However," Feinsod said, "A lot of us went to the public hearing on the city's budget and expressed our displeasure with the proposed tax increase, but the council passed it anyway. I was shocked."

Columbus Day is holiday for some

The Columbus Day holiday on Monday prompts the closing of all local banks and some offices.

The county's public schools — including Snyder, Hermleigh and Ira — will also have the day off Monday.

Students in Snyder schools have a long weekend as they are out of school today for a staff development workday for staff and faculty.

On Monday, the Western Texas College campus will be open as usual. The Scurry County Museum and Texas Workforce Commission will also be open

County and city employees will have the day off Monday. An exception is the city landfill, which will be closed Saturday and open Monday.

In Port Arthur...

Students walk out of high school because of the heat

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Sweltering for the fourth straight day because the air conditioning was out, students at Thomas Jefferson High School were fed up.

So they walked out.

"The reason we did it is because we can't do any work from it being so hot," sophomore Billy Young said of Thursday's demonstration. "Our papers would stick to the desks because it is so hot. The teachers have tried to help us as much as they can."

Classes were canceled Thursday following the walkout and canceled again for Friday so maintenance workers can fix the air conditioning.

"We're pulling out all the stops to have it fixed by this weekend so that the kids can be back in school on Monday," Janet Cline, community relations director for Port Arthur Independent School District, told The Port Arthur News.

Police were summoned after several teen-agers gathered in front of the school for what they termed a peaceful protest to attract attention to the problem.

One youth was arrested on a misdemeanor charge for trying to set fire to a trash can, police spokesman Chad Hogan said.

Students said they did not want to be violent or disruptive but hoped to change an environment that hindered their learning.

"They always have problems with the air conditioning," Byron Posey, a junior, said. "It's always broke. Something is always broke. When it's cold, the heater broke. When it's hot, the AC broke. There's just something always missing."

School officials ordered three new air conditioning units to be shipped Monday. In the meantime, the school will get a temporary cooling unit or have its existing one repaired, Cline said.

She said the school nurse's office has been full this week with students complaining of heat-related problems. In addition, several cafeteria workers became ill and left, leaving the school too short staffed to prepare lunches.

"It was too hot to go to class. It was hot and humid and we couldn't do any work," Terence Gage, another junior, said. "Everybody was opening windows and standing outside. People were going to sleep."

Teachers said they tried to combat the heat by bringing fans.

Mascot kidnapped and forced to fight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Kidnapping another team's mascot is usually a harmless prank, but police say what happened to an English bulldog went too far.

The Centennial High School mascot was stolen from its owner's backyard Sept. 27, the night of Centennial's victory over a football rival. "Blu" was forced to fight another dog, then left chained to a stake on the 50-yard line of Centennial's field.

The next morning a school staffer found the mascot, bleeding and soaked by lawn sprinklers, with a Mojave High T-shirt tangled in its chain.

"It's horrid," said Sue Clark, whose 17-year-old daughter Tiffany, a senior at Centennial, owns 20-month-old Blu.

Five Mojave students were arrested late Thursday after they turned themselves in to police. The juveniles' names were not released, but police said some are football players.

The students face felony charges of cruelty to animals and theft, and misdemeanor counts of maiming an animal and conspiracy. More arrests are expected next week, an officer said.

Police believe 15 to 25 people may have watched the dogfight. The animal is recovering from its wounds.

Abdul becomes television producer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a Gene Kelly routine 55 years ago that got Paula Abdul's wheels turning.

The former Los Angeles Lakers cheerleader-turned-singer-turned-choreographer is now a TV producer. Her new Planet Paula Productions has a deal with Fox Kids Network to develop a new live-action/animated children's series.

The show will follow the adventures of a garage band climbing its way toward success and contain musical numbers choreographed by Abdul.

The genesis of the idea came from the video to her song "Opposites Attract," in which she starred opposite an animated, singing cat, Abdul said.

"I was inspired by my experience working on that video 10 years ago," she said in Wednesday's edition of Variety. "But I was also definitely inspired originally by Gene Kelly dancing with the mouse in 'Anchors Aweigh.'"

Abdul said she may provide a voice or even play a live-action part.

GameWorks plans to restrict access to some video games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — GameWorks, a high-tech arcade, bar and restaurant, will restrict access to its mature-rated games to people over 16.

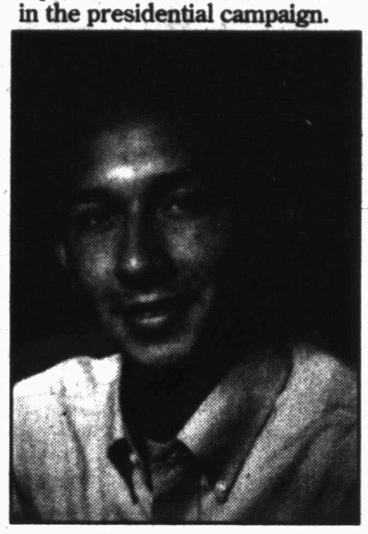

The company — a joint venture of Universal Studios, Sega Enterprises and DreamWorks SKG — already offers restricted access if requested by a parent. The policy change announced Friday would automatically restrict access to particularly violent games unless a special pass is bought by a parent or guardian.

The Glendale-based company introduced a limited-access "V-Card" in its 20 U.S.-owned locations about a year ago. Instead of using coins or tokens, patrons buy debit cards that can be used at games with mature content, which are flagged with a large red sticker.

GameWorks employees will now ask for identification before selling unlimited access cards to children, the company said, adding that fewer than 10 percent of the games in a typical location are considered to have mature content.

"It's the right thing to do," said Ron Bension, president and chief executive officer of GameWorks. "We're probably going to lose some business from this. But we think it's a good policy and an enforceable policy."

The new rules come at a time of increased scrutiny of films, music and video games. The Federal Trade Commission recently criticized entertainment companies for marketing violent content to children. Congress is holding hearings on the topic and the issue has surfaced in the presidential campaign.

Stephen King stories are all in his head

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Stephen King has to dig deep for his stories.

The author told ABC's "Good Morning America" this week that the ideas for his stories are in his head and the chore is retrieving them and getting them onto paper.

"My job is not to create, per se, but to unearth, to get these things out of the ground as fully complete as they can," King told interviewer Charles Gibson. "But to me, I never felt like I wrote a story. I felt like I found them all. I feel more like an archaeologist than a creator."

King, who was promoting his new book "On Writing," also tackled a number of other topics, including his recovery from a 1999 accident in which he was struck and seriously injured by a van driven by Bryan Smith.

Smith's body was found in the trailer he shared with his two dogs on Sept. 22, the day after King turned 53.

Good and lucky are unbeatable

By Phillip Alder

It is supposedly better to be lucky than good — especially at the bridge table. Yet if you can be lucky and good, that makes an unbeatable combination. The most successful team over the last 15 years or so is Nick Nickell-Dick Freeman, Jeff Meckstroth-Eric Rodwell, and Bob Hamman, partnered first by Bobby Wolff and now by Paul Soloway. They won the Orbis Bermuda Bowl in January, but only after surviving a quarterfinal scare against Italy.

In the other room, the Italian South made five spades exactly for plus 450.

Here, after Nickell (South) opened four spades, the Italian West overcalled four no-trump to show at least 5-5 in the minors, not an obvious choice with such a weak hand. East's five no-trump was an attempt to invite a grand slam in case his partner "had the tickets."

Nickell bid six spades as a two-way action. If East-West could make six diamonds, it would be a cheap sacrifice. Yet if North had the right hand (ace-doubleton of hearts and the spade ace, for example), six spades might even make.

Six spades looked destined to finish one down, yet Nickell's guardian angel was working overtime. Nickell ruffed the diamond lead, drew trumps, and played a heart to dummy's ace. East dropped the jack! And on the next heart, East contributed his queen! As Nickell claimed, East noticed that he didn't have two diamond sevens after all, that one was the heart seven. Plus 1210 gave Nickell's team 13 international match points, and they won by eight instead of perhaps losing by 16.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Happy couple with 10 kids found time for each other

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your answer to "Happily Married Husband," who revealed that five husbands in his circle of friends have gotten divorces because their wives spent too much time with their children and they felt displaced.

Like many other couples, my husband and I were busy, and we didn't have enough extra money to go out. So once a month, we enjoyed a candlelight supper at home. I wore something sexy and used our best china. We ate at a small table after the children were finished eating, and we danced to romantic music on the record player.

Abby, you were right that couples must find time for each other. We did, and we've been happily married for 45 wonderful years. — STILL ROMANTIC IN MANSFIELD, MASS.

P.S. We're the parents of 10 terrific children.

DEAR STILL ROMANTIC: I applaud your obviously successful (and fruitful!) union. Sometimes couples become so pressured they have trouble budgeting time to spend together. Being disciplined enough to do so can mean the difference between a marriage that succeeds and one that doesn't. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Many religions preach that man is head of the household and his wife and children must be obedient to him. This is one reason why abuse occurs. Unless spouses are equal and share responsibilities as mature adults, they will experience a serious imbalance in their relationship.

When children are the first concern of both parents, they will find joy in each other as well.

It's unfortunate when one of the parents dumps the total burden on the other. The immature spouse demands "Mommy's" (or "Daddy's") full attention and is the one who will most likely seek affection elsewhere. Irresponsible mates pursue self-pleasure. It's as simple as that. If families work together, they stay together. — BETTY NELSON, MILACA, MINN.

DEAR BETTY: We're now living in a time when many parents teach their children that marriage is a full partnership. It touches me to see young fathers out with their infants carried in slings next to their hearts, or pushing toddlers in racing prams while exercising. When both spouses participate in child rearing, it makes for healthier, closer families. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Happily Married Husband" was on target! As a husband in a marriage of 53 years and the father of three, I would like to add that the children are the husband's children, too. He should be grateful his wife gives time and love to his children. Women carry the children in their bodies. Giving birth is an awesome event in their lives. Nursing, nurturing and attending to children is absorbing. Why wouldn't their relationship with their children be intense?

Today's women often work full time outside the home and do most of the household chores. How much time and energy does a wife have left for a husband?

I suggest that instead of pursuing another woman, a husband be understanding of his wife; that he spend more time and love on his children; and that he make time to occasionally get away for brief dates with his wife. Chances are his wife loves him, too. If he sticks with her, he'll have a loving companion for life. Memories of family fun and laughs, hardships overcome together, best efforts made with child rearing, and pride in the marriage all make a husband's life fulfilling. Try it! — HAPPILY MARRIED FATHER IN KENOSHA, WIS.

Veep debate polite

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Joseph Lieberman and Dick Cheney disputed their differences and promoted their tickets in a mannerly vice presidential debate that left the tough tactics for next time, when Al Gore and George W. Bush meet again.

The Democratic and Republican vice presidential nominees argued, but politely, opening with promises to avoid personal attacks and keeping them. They parted Thursday night after a smiling, pat-on-the-back chat, joined by their wives, before rallying with their supporters.

Both welcomed the major world event of the day, the apparent crumbling of the regime of Slobodan Milosevic in Yugoslavia. But they differed on the credit for it.

"I think that Vice President Gore played a critical role, passionate role, in leading the administration, along with Republican supporters like Bob Dole and John McCain, to do the right thing in the Balkans, and hopefully tonight we're seeing the final results of that bold and brave action," Lieberman said.

Cheney called it a victory of the Serbian people. "I do think it's noteworthy that there appears to be an effort underway to get the Russians involved," he said. "... At the debate in Boston, Governor Bush suggested exactly that we ought to try to get the Russians involved to exercise some leverage over the Serbians, and Al Gore pooh-poohed it."

Gore said then that Russian mediation would not be a good idea because Moscow hadn't accepted the results of the election in which Vojislav Kostunica defeated Milosevic.

It was a vice presidential debate heavy on numbers, echoing those Gore and Bush used on tax cuts, Social Security, surpluses and assorted other policies when they debated.

After the debate, Lieberman was flying to Orlando, Fla., to campaign there with Gore on Friday. Cheney campaigns next in Shreveport, La.; Fort Smith, Ark., and Waterloo, Iowa.

The presidential nominees meet again next Wednesday in Winston-Salem, N.C., and in St. Louis a week later. Their opening debate Tuesday night was far sharper in tone than the vice presidential forum; Bush challenged Gore on questions of character and credibility.

Lieberman later said it was a sign of desperation that the Republican nominee was trying to make an issue of President Clinton, although Bush didn't use his name.

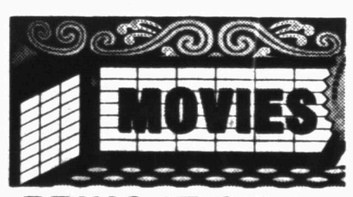

Cheney has charged that Gore "makes things up out of whole cloth" as he campaigns.

But there was none of that in the Danville.

"I'm not going to indulge in negative personal attacks," Lieberman said.

Cheney seconded that. "I want to avoid any personal attacks," he said. "I promise not to bring up your singing."

"I promise not to sing," said Lieberman, who had, warbling "My Way" on a late night TV.

Upset-minded Tigers set for Frenship test

By Eric Drennan
Sports Editor

"People who come to the game will get the chance to see a great athlete. Athletes like him don't come around in high school very often, and our kids are looking forward to the challenge."
—Snyder coach David Baugh on Frenship QB Kendal Briles

Frenship quarterback Kendal Briles is considered to be one of the top signal-callers in the state. His combination of speed and a strong arm make him a lethal weapon on the gridiron.

The Snyder Tigers (0-1, 2-2) get their shot at corralling the South Plains gun-slinger when they host sixth-ranked Frenship (1-0, 3-1) at 7:30 tonight at Tiger Stadium.

For Snyder, which has dropped four straight to Frenship, the plan to derail FHS is centered on ball control.

"Everyone's game plan against Frenship is to keep the ball out of Briles' hands with long drives that eat time off the clock," said Snyder coach David Baugh. "And that's what we're going to try to do."

When Frenship does have the ball, Snyder wants to play disciplined defense and limit the opponent's number of big plays.

"Our kids aren't intimidated by who they are going to be playing," said SHS defensive coordinator Joe Granato. "We understand that you can't completely shut down Briles. He's going to make some plays now and then. What we have to do is not get down on ourselves when it happens. He's made a lot of good players look foolish this year, but we have to keep battling for all four quarters."

Snyder hopes to limit Briles' passing by mixing up its coverage in the secondary, and will try to limit his effectiveness on the ground by making him run laterally.

"When he takes off to run, we have to have at least one guy in front of him to make him start dancing," Granato stated. "As long as he's trying to make his moves, he's not going full speed. And while he's doing that, all of our other guys have to be flying to the ball."

Despite the abilities of Briles, SHS can't focus its efforts strictly on him. Frenship has an arsenal of weapons the Tigers must defend.

"Briles isn't all they've got," Baugh remarked. "Their tailback (Jorge Rodriguez) is a good runner, and their receivers can make a lot of yards after the catch. We have to defend everybody well, not just Briles."

On the other side of the ball, Snyder hopes to take advantage of Frenship's struggling defense, which ranks last in the district.

"They have had some trouble on defense this year," said Baugh. "They have good athletes, but they've made some mistakes in some ballgames. We think can run our base offense to move the ball. And then we have to punch it in when we have the chances."

Granato echoed Baugh's sentiments, adding that Frenship's offense alone won't likely be enough to top the Tigers.

"They can't just show up on offense and expect to win the game," Granato said. "There are three phases to a football game, offense, defense and special teams. The team that wins the battle in at least two of those three phases will win the game. And I think we can do that."

An upset win tonight would erase Snyder's memories of last week's disappointing loss to Plainview, and would even the Tigers' district mark at 1-1.

"We've had a good week of practice," Baugh said. "Last week we didn't have great practices, and then we didn't play very well at all on Friday. But this week, the kids have worked hard and they're looking forward to the game."

WTC off to fast start in Vernon

VERNON — Unlike the weather, Western Texas' performance is heating up in the second rodeo of the season.

Western Texas grabbed the lead in three men's events, and sat a close second in two others, after the opening night of the Vernon Regional College collegiate rodeo.

The WTC men finished fifth in last week's competition at Alpine, but are on track to finish higher in the standings this time around.

Trevor LaValley, Joseph Gernantz and J.W. Todd lead their individual events for the Westerners.

LaValley registered a score of 74 to head the bareback riding, while Todd's 64 gave him saddle bronc lead. Gernantz tied down the night's fastest time in the calf roping with an 8.5.

Gernantz also teamed up with partner Cimmaron Boardman for a 9.8 in the team roping, putting the Westerner duo in second place.

In the steer wrestling, Stephen Turner was second after his run of 5.0.

The Western Texas women's squad is scheduled to ride in tonight's second performance, with the final round slated for Saturday.

Ladies golf tournament rescheduled

The Ladies Tournament of Champions, slated for Saturday and Sunday at Snyder Country Club, has been postponed due to inclement weather.

The Women's Golf Association, which hosts the event, has rescheduled the two-day tourney for Oct. 13-14. Tee times will be announced early next week.

SHS freshmen whip Frenship

Snyder's freshman football team faced a definite size disadvantage Thursday night. But the smaller Tigers had more than enough heart as it was Frenship that came out on the short end of the stick.

Snyder controlled the action from start to finish Thursday, rolling over a much larger Frenship squad, 28-8, at Tiger Stadium.

Snyder opened the scoring in the first quarter and never trailed in the contest.

After Bradley Price picked off a pass to halt Frenship's opening drive, SHS found the endzone five minutes later on a 7-yard aerial from Blake Grimmett to Brad English.

Isaac Ramon booted the first of his four extra points for a 7-0 Snyder lead.

The advantage grew to 14 points in the second period when Boicy Martinez hauled in a 36-yard strike from Marcus Villarreal.

Frenship threatened late in the first half, but was turned away by a Kendall Tidwell interception.

In the third quarter, Ramon stretched the lead once again with a 27-yard touchdown scamper and another PAT.

Frenship's only score of the night came early in the final period, but was quickly answered by SHS.

On Frenship's next possession, Chad Thompson picked off another errant pass and streaked 59 yards to paydirt for the 28-8 final tally.

Snyder will be in action again at 5:30 Thursday when it visits Andrews.

SJHS falls to Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — Snyder Gold saw its comeback bid fall short in Thursday night's eighth grade football action.

Snyder Gold suffered a 26-14 setback to Sweetwater, while Snyder Black fell to the Ponies, 40-0.

The Gold squad trailed by only six points in the final minute of the game, before Sweetwater picked off a fourth-down pass and returned it for a touchdown.

The Tigers grabbed the initial lead on a 60-yard scamper by D'Angelo Davis and a two-point conversion by Chad Brown.

Sweetwater jumped on top, 12-8, in the second period, before Snyder regained the advantage in the third quarter when Brown dashed in from 12 yards out for a 14-12 Tiger lead.

The Mustangs mustered two scores in the fourth quarter, the final one on the interception, to pull out the win.

Davis finished with 67 yards rushing, while Brown accounted for 61.

Alex Neal, Cody Smith and Manuel DePaz anchored the Tigers' defensive effort.

Snyder JV falls, 26-6

WOLFFORTH — Frenship took advantage of Snyder turnovers Thursday night to record a 26-6 victory in a junior varsity football tilt.

Snyder lost the ball twice inside its own 20-yard-line, leading to a pair of Frenship touchdowns. Frenship also returned a punt all the way to the SHS 2-yard-line to set up another score.

Snyder found the endzone in the second quarter when Logan Hill hooked up with Chance Greenwood on a 23-yard touchdown aerial that cut the deficit to 18-6.

Snyder will be in action again Thursday when it hosts Andrews at Tiger Stadium.

Cards return to gridiron

Tonight's local six-man football action will be highlight by the return of the Hermleigh Cardinals.

Hermleigh, which was forced to forfeit its last two games due to injuries, will be back on the gridiron at 7:30 tonight when it hosts Sands.

For the Cardinals, it will be their first home game, after opening the season with a pair of setbacks on the road.

The Ira Bulldogs will also be at home this evening when they host Jayton at 7:30 at Bulldog Stadium.

Ira hopes to maintain the momentum it gained from last week's win, when the Bulldogs scored in the final seconds to edge Blackwell.

In Whitharral, the Borden County Coyotes will be in search of their first victory when they take on the Panthers at 7:30.

Prince William arrives in Chile for expedition

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Five days after arriving in the wilds of Patagonia, Prince William appears to have already achieved one goal of his trip — being left alone by the media.

The British embassy on Thursday called on the Chilean press "to respect the privacy of Prince William," offering in exchange to arrange a photo session with him.

The son of Prince Charles and the late Princess Diana remains at a sprawling farm named El Verdin, about 1,000 miles south of Santiago. Security is tight and the prince has not been photographed or even seen.

He is participating in an international expedition working with other young volunteers on environmental and community projects. William is expected to help build a home for the elderly and a hall for the local volunteer fire department.

Patricia Pavez, a spokeswoman for the expedition, told The Associated Press that William is sleeping in a tent he pitched himself.

"He even has to cook for himself," she said.

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

Russia joins support for opposition leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exultant Secretary of State Madeleine Albright welcomed Russia's decision to back Yugoslav opposition leader Vojislav Kostunica after long years of support for ousted President Slobodan Milosevic.

"This is great news," Albright said Friday, giving a thumbs up, after receiving word of the Russian action as she carried out a series of morning television interviews.

Even though there has been no formal transfer of power in Yugoslavia, she referred to Kostunica as "President Kostunica." She said she had no information on Milosevic's whereabouts but another official said there was some evidence that he might be at a retreat near Yugoslavia's border with Romania.

"The Russian recognition of President Kostunica is very, very important because they have always had a very special relationship with the Serbian people," Albright told CNN.

"We are very glad that Russia has now joined the rest of Europe and us in congratulating the victory of President Kostunica."

She said sanctions will be lifted against Yugoslavia "as soon as it's clear that Kostunica is in and Milosevic is out."

She added that the United States and its European allies will give assistance to the new Yugoslavia "so that it can be reconstructed and they can have the normal life that the rest of ... the Balkans are beginning to have."

Earthquake strikes SW Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's strongest earthquake in five years struck a large region of the southwest on Friday, injuring at least 28 people and destroying buildings, homes and a Shinto shrine.

The 7.3-magnitude quake shook violently across six prefectures, or states. It knocked over people, shattering windows, collapsing shelves in stores and supermarkets, and cutting off electricity to thousands of houses and businesses.

National television showed live footage of workers at an NHK broadcasting newsroom in Matsue city clutching desks as notebooks fell to the floor. A hanging lamp swung wildly back and forth. In other buildings in the city, white foam from ceiling fire extinguishers set off by the quake rained down from balconies onto the streets.

The quake was centered six miles beneath western Tottori prefecture, 315 miles southwest of Tokyo, the Japan Meteorological Agency said. A 7.0-magnitude quake is capable of causing heavy, widespread damage.

In the hardest-hit prefecture, Tottori, 28 people suffered minor injuries, 200 houses were damaged and roads were blocked at 17 locations because of cracks and landslides, prefectural officials said. Several other people were injured in neighboring areas, but it was unclear how many.

Tsuyochi Iwashita, a spokesman for the National Police Agency, said a Shinto shrine fell apart.

The injured included three people who were buried in landslides and rescued by civilians and local officials. Two of the victims were trapped inside their car. The third man suddenly disappeared while working at a roadside construction site.
