U. S. Denounces Soviet Draft

Bomb Ban Plan Presented

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)-The Soviet Union presented the Geneva disarmament conference with a draft treaty today to ban neutron bombs.

The United States immediately denounced the draft as a "one-sided propoganda exercise" trying to divert attention from serious arms control efforts.

Introducing the draft, cosponsored by seven Communist allies, Soviet delegates Viktor I. Likhachev warned that development of the neutron bomb by the United States would deal a "great blow" to detente and would "unavoidably trigger retaliatory measures" by the Soviet Union.

"Those who advocate the production and deployment of the neutron weapon should clearly realize that if that weapon is adopted our country will be confronted with the need of answering the challenge in order to ensure its security and the security of its allies. Consequently the level of military confrontation will not decrease but will rise," he said.

In what amounted to one of the sharpest retorts in recent sessions of the 35-nation Geneva conference, U.S. chief delegate Adrian S. Fisher virtually accused the Soviet Union of hypocrisy.

"We have heard the Soviet representative and some other representatives speak of the inhumanity and barbarity in the Soviet arsenal, some of which are as much as 20,000 times - I repeat 20,000 times- more powerful."

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

Florida Drenched

By The Associated Press

Heavy rains drenched parts of Florida while snow, sleet and freezing rain persisted today in parts of the mid-Atlantic region and into the Ohio valley.

Central and northern California continued to be soaked by rain. More than 2 inches fell in San Francisco over a 24-hour period. Scattered showers reached into Nevada, Idaho and western Montana.

A low pressure system in the eastern Gulf of Mexico spawned violent thunderstorms, rain and high winds in parts of Florida. A tornado was sighted today in Wellington, west of Palm Beach. No damage was reported. Some parts of southern Florida recorded 1½ inches of rain in six hours.

Earlier, sections of the Panhandle recorded as much as 6 inches in five hours.

15 Cars Derail

JUSTIN (AP)-Fifteen cars of a 67-car Santa Fe freight train derailed early today, spilling a chemical irritant that caused the evacuation of several families and an elementary school near this North Central Texas town.

One farm-to-market road was closed as a precaution.

Emergency work crews dug ditches to catch the leakage so it would not run into a nearby stream.

None of the escaping fumes was poisonous, railroad officials said.

About 25 pupils from a Justin elementary school were moved to a high school about 10 miles away as a precautionary measure.

Retake Second Town

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)-Ethiopian forces, sweeping south through the Ogaden plateau, reported retaking their second town in four days in their counteroffensive to quell the Somali revolt in eastern Ethiopia.

The Ethiopian military command in a broadcast communique said its troops recaptured the town of Deghabur, 95 miles southeast of the key town of Jijiga, which the Ethiopians regained Sunday.

Vance, Guerrillas Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)-Two guerrilla leaders who have vowed to take over Rhodesia by force are meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance as part of an Anglo-American drive to bring all black elements into any settlement.

Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe of the Patriotic Front have dismissed the current plan for black rule in Rhodesia as "the biggest sellout in African history."

Brownwood missed out on a good basketball deal when it was unable to make its coliseum available tomorrow night for the WTC-Navarro playoff game.

Snyder could have had the same thing happen a couple of weeks ago when the Class AAA high school regional tournament was played if it had not been for the cooperation of the local Western Music Association. It had the coliseum here booked for the night of the regional finals, but readily moved its program to the high school auditorium so that the city could host the regional tournament.

Also, the necessity of moving the junior college playoff from Brownwood is going to cost WTC fans some extra miles of travel and mean that our people are going to drive around 50 miles farther to the game than the Navarro fans.

A quick look at our trusty roadmap provided by the State Department of Highways and Public transportation indicates that it is about 185 miles from Snyder to Stephenville, the site of the game. It is only around 125 from Corsicana to Stephenville. Brownwood would have been closer to equa-distant, perhaps with a slight edge for WTC fans.

There may be a shorter way in actual mileage from Snyder to Stephenville, but we figure the quickest way is to follow Interstate 20 to its intersection with Texas Highway 108 just east of Thurber (the big smokestack) and then south on 108 to Stephenville and Tarleton State U.

Back To Work Order Requested

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Carter administration asked a federal judge today to order striking coal miners back to work, saying the 94-day coal strike would "imperil the national health and safety" if it continues.

Justice Department lawyers, acting under the Taft-Hartley Act, asked the U.S. district court in Washington to order members of the striking United Mine Workers union back to the mines immediately.

The government also asked for a court order directing coal companies to reopen the mines, idle since the strike began on Dec. 6.

The request was assigned to Judge Aubrey Robinson, one of the 12 federal judges who preside in the district.

Firefighters Kept Busy By Four Calls

Four fires in two days have been extinguished by city firefighters.

Firefighters were first called to extinguish a house fire at 408 30th St.

The house is owned reports show, by Bill Fisher but was rented by Mary Webster. The fire erupted in a bedroom, gutting that room and causing extensive fire, water, and smoke damage to the rest of the home.

Fire officials speculated that the fire may have been caused by an electric blanket. The fire was reported at 5:13 p.m.

The same crew that was called on to extinguish the house fire was then dispatched to douse a shed fire behind the 305 23rd St. home of G.L. Snyder.

The fire was reported at 5:35 p.m. and destroyed the facility. Cause of that fire is still being probed.

Two grass fires were doused this morning.

The first occurred at 10:20 a.m. at 1616 26th St. The next one was reported only 10 minutes later about four blocks east of the G&G Grocery Store.

Snyderite Gets West Point Bid

Congressman Omar Burleson announced today that, based upon his nomination, Carl Clayton Peterson, 3104 42nd Street, Snyder, has received a conditional appointment to the U.S. Military Academy in West Point.

The appointment is contingent upon results of the medical examination.

As soon as all conditions of the medical examinations are satisfied Peterson will receive a full appointment, Congressman Burleson said.

Peterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie C. Peterson and is a senior at Snyder High School, where he has been active in athletics and other school events. He has participated in varsity football, basketball and track.

Bell Asks Hike In Telephone Rates

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. today asked the Texas Public Utilities Commission for authority to increase telephone rates by $214.3 million in the 488 cities and towns it serves, including those in the Snyder area.

Company officials said the request represents an increase of 11.4 per cent on intrastate revenues for the company.

According to company statistics, rates for a one-party telephone in Snyder and in Colorado City would increase from $5 per month to $5.80 per month, while the rate for a two-party line in Snyder and Colorado City would increase from $3.25 to $3.45 per month. Business phone rates would increase from $10.50 to $12.-20 per month in the two towns.

For Rotan and Roby, the one-party residential phone rate would increase from $4.74 to $5.50 per month, the two-party phone would increase from $3.15 to $3.30 per month, and the business phone rate would increase from $9.75 to $11.35 per month.

In addition, the telephone company is proposing to add the two per cent gross receipts tax to the bills of telephone users. Heretofore, the company has paid the gross receipts tax to the City of Snyder from its regular income. Addition of the gross receipts tax to the customer bill would amount to about 12 cents per month. It would be shown as a separate item on phone bills.

Also, the present and proposed rates do not include the federal excise tax.

Southwestern Bell is proposing at the same time to increase one-time charges for installation or rearrangement work done at the request of the customer. This charge is often referred to as a "service charge," a "move charge," or a "change charge."

As for the rate increase for service, only $37.7 million of the total increase would apply to basic residential tele-

Wholesale Food Prices Up 2.9%

WASHINGTON (AP) - The prices manufacturers receive for their products rose by the largest amount in three years last month as food prices showed unusually large gains, the Labor Department said today.

Consumer foods rose 2.9 percent in February, leading the increase of 1.1 percent for all finished goods.

These prices, charged at the last stage of production, usually show up at the consumer level within a few months.

Consumer prices have already begun to rise rapidly, going up 0.8 percent in January, about double the increases of last year.

The 1.1 percent increase in finished goods prices for January was the largest since a 1.9 percent increase in November 1974. It followed rises of 0.6 percent in November, 0.5 percent in December and 0.6 percent in January.

Unlike the January report, most of the increases were among foods, some of them in short supply because of the severe winter weather.

Wholesale prices turned up sharply for pork, eggs and dairy products in February after declining in the previous month. Beef and veal prices rose much more than in January. However, prices declined for roasted coffee. Prices rose less than in January for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables and processed poultry.

The 2.9 percent price increase for consumer foods followed rises of 1.1 percent in January and 0.5 percent in December.

If food is removed, wholesale prices were up 0.4 percent, about the same level as the last half of 1977.

Prices declined for jewelrey, gasoline and home heating oil...

Prices rose less in February than in January for automobiles, household furniture and mobile homes. However, prices rose more rapidly for beverages, soap and synthetic detergents, footwear and tobacco products.

The Labor Department's Finished Goods Price Index is intended to replace the Wholesale Price Index, to make the monthly report coincide more with consumer prices.

Stock Prices Mixed Today

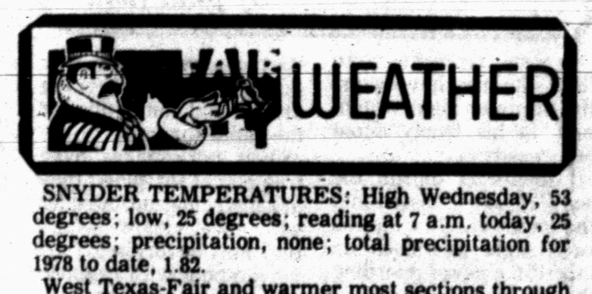

NEW YORK (AP)-Stock prices were mixed today in the face of some negative inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 8.15 points in the last two sessions, was off 1.13 at 749.74 at noontime today.

Gainers held a 3-2 edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues after leading by better than 2 to 1 earlier.

Analysts have attributed the market's recent strength to technical forces after the sharp decline of January and February, when the Dow fell 89 points.

"The market apparently found support at around the 740 level ofthe Dow," said Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co.

President Carter has unveiled his ideas for reforming the Civil Service. Unsatisfactory conditions in this part of the nation's business topped the list of things which make up what Candidat- Carter characterized as the "Washington mess" during the 1976 campaign.

He promised reform. We now have details of how he proposes to bring it about. In a televised meeting with news media people following reading of his formal message to Congress on the subject the following goals were mentioned:

—A government that can be trusted, not feared; efficient, not mired in its own red tape.

—Less job security for incompetents; job security, merit raises in pay and assured promotion for conscientious civil servants.

—Improved service to the public at reduced cost.

These are noble objectives. They are so inspiring and non-controversial the program has been endorsed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the public employees department in AFL-CIO. Organized business and organized labor seated side by side on the same band wagon is a spectacle so extraordinary an attempt to find the explanation is in order.

Ramifications of the President's ideas on the subject are too varied and much too complex for detailed consideration in the limited space allotted to this department. A close look at key provisions may be helpful in arriving at some tentative conclusions, even if firm ones may be out of order at this time.

As a beginner the President proposed to abolish the 95-year-old Civil Service Commission. Two new agencies and an old one, the Labor Relations Authority, will assume former CS responsibilities and deal with new procedures. The new agencies are an Office of Personnel Management and a Merit Promotion Board.

What the President didn't emphasize is the fact that firing some people and passing out promotions and pay increases to others call for decisions by some individual or group. A comment that farms and factories can't be operated as the nation's business has been conducted in the past borders on the absurd.

Public business isn't in the same category of human activity as a public service agency. Decisions affecting conditions of employment in a government bureaucracy must be made by bureaucrats.

These are some of the issues involved in the President Carter's plan to "reform" the Civil Service. Regardless of what one may think of it as an improvement over what we have it is safe to conclude that any time the nation's top ranking politician, business and labor tycoons agree ordinary folks would be well advised to read the fine print.

high cost of soup

Word comes from Singapore that the price of bird's nest soup, that ancient Chinese delicacy, is going out of sight. A small bowl now costs the equivalent of $4.35 in the restaurants that serve it - and you have to put your order in several days in advance.

For some reason, there is a shortage of suitable nests built by tropical swifts in Malaysia, Thailand and Indonesia. The saliva the birds use to hold their nests together is the key ingredient of the soup.

This is one piece of news about the rising cost of living that doesn't upset us one bit.

A New Orleans man thinks he may have found the ultimate night watchman in his trusty 6-foot boa constrictor.

It seems as though the scaly reptile is tossed into the man's gasoline station each night and does an incredible job of guarding the facility.

In the two years that the beast has been guarding the gas station, only one break-in occurred. Nothing was taken, however, in even that one burglary. The snake apparently struck fear into the intruder.

Of course, a boa constrictor can't do much else.

I recall reading a story several years ago about a man in Dallas who turned loose five rattlesnakes in his store each night. Since indulging in that practice he hadn't incurred a single break-in.

The man pointed out the obvious advantages in the practice. The snakes did not bark all the time, he said, and neither did they eat him out of house and home. In fact, they ate only once a month and were quite satisfied with devouring such morsels as rats.

If there is one animal that can strike more than fear into an intruder it is a rattlesnake. Since most burglaries take place under cover of darkness, the burglars and snakes are going to be slithering around and competing for the same space.

Since rattlesnakes have free run of the place they are guarding, an intruder will never know where they may be lurking. They move about with remarkable silence and the unwitting burglar is at an obvious disadvantage.

And, if one wishes to get his hands on a rattlesnake, he could go to Sweetwater this coming weekend.

It is the time of the annual madness when people actually try to outdo each other in catching and handling rattlesnakes.

Some cynics in years past have been in sympathy with the rattlesnakes. They point out that the snakes are abused and that the whole snake roundup appears to be staged.

That may well be true; but the snake can get his revenge if he tries. If it came down to official competition, a snake handler would probably be disqualified if bitten.

It is not the fear of disqualification that distresses me. I am motivated by the fear of dying.

I wonder what possesses a man to handle snakes, anyway? It is something I have never fully understood.

do-it-yourself pay raise

There is a do-it-yourself way you can increase your own pay--from 25 to perhaps 50 percent--without going on strike and without changing jobs.

Industry has found the most productive workers in areas heretofore oriented to agriculture.

Bring a man or woman in off the farm and he is accustomed to hard work.

Much of the industrial renaissance of the South over the past 30 years has been powered by this labor pool of human energy.

But give the most industrious worker two generations of guaranteed, standardized, same-for-everybody wages and his individual effort--unrewarded--diminishes.

Up to now Americans have been able to compete with cheap foreign labor by employing machines to expedite production.

But, for all their sophistication, our machines are now able to increase our per-manhour productivity only about two percent per year. That's not enough to keep up with Japan and Germany where workers are paid in proportion to what they produce.

Even Russia has now recognized that the Marxist dream of one-for-all and all-for-one doesn't work. Russia now has 60 percent of its workers working "one-for-one"--with extra incentive pay for increased output.

Incentive was abused in the American sweatshops of the 1920s, but now we have overreacted to everybody's detriment.

As each worker produces less, anything he produces costs more. Thus his dollars purchase less and less.

Until last year, his higher wages were swallowed up by higher prices and higher taxes.

Edward Luftig of New York University's graduate business school has been trying to resell the incentive philsophy for 20 years.

He believes he has now convinced most labor unions that it thus makes sense to knock some cents back into our dollar.

But Luftig says he is now encountering opposition from management. It doesn't make sense.

Productivity incentives invariably reduce unit costs.

Therefore, an energetic work force is repaid two ways--with increased income and decreased prices.

Yet fewer than 25 percent of American workers are presently paid on a "piecework" basis.

Mr. Luftig is convinced that American industry must get 75 percent of its workers under productivity incentives if we are to survive today's competition of foreign cars and foreign-made appliances, textiles and whatall.

American farmers are an excellent example of how much more we can produce when we are paid by the pound or by the bushel or by the bale.

And farmers are presently pinched by higher prices because most everything they buy was paid for "by the hour."

legislative mystery

NEW YORK (AP)-Three regulatory agencies will embark next week on an odd mission. Through public hearings they will attempt to determine what Congress meant when it passed a law for them to enforce.

Nobody knows, not even Congress, nor the regulators or the regulated. Maybe the public can tell us, government officials reasoned. And so they have scheduled public meetings in an effort to find out.

From Washington they will travel to Atlanta and then to Boston, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco. After a month they hope to know - what did Congress mean when it passed the Community Reinvestment Act.

The general goal is known - to encourage financial institutions to invest a substantial portion of their funds in communities from which they draw deposits. But Congress side-stepped the specifics.

Instead, it told the regulators - the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Home Loan Bank Board - to write rules implementing the act. The regulators were baffled.

What, for example, did the legislators mean by "community?" Where does the community begin and end? What are the "credit needs of the community?" We will ask the public to tell us, the regulators said. By this point the organizations that represent financial institutions, such as the American Bankers Association, were appalled. "It is certain that consumerists will show up in droves," the ABA said.

Indeed they will, for the invitation is an opportunity for pressure groups and interested parties of all sorts to attempt to write the law.

Lenders will be there too, and it isn't inconceivable that the regulators will wind up with an impasse only slightly different from the one that now exists. They might have more ideas, but no decision.

Says the ABA, "It would be impossible to satisfy the requirements of the Act with anything other than a regulation written in language which is just as broad and general as the law itself."

WASHINGTON--(NEA)--Few people outside Chicago's North Side have heard of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, but his turbulent relationship with President Carter provides a fascinating case study of the stresses and stains between the White House and Congress.

A burly, politically savvy veteran of 10 terms in the House, Rostenkowski is the product of the once-powerful Democratic organization built and maintained for two decades by Richard J. Daley, Chicago's late mayor.

During Daley's heyday, no Democratic politician - including those in the White House - dared to ignore his wishes. But Daley's influential political machine disintegrated rapidly after his death in December 1976.

Rostenkowski, long Daley's principal liaison man in Washington, made few requests of the new administration last year. He did, however, ask the White house to appoint Kenneth Sain to head the regional office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in Chicago.

Carter's politically insensitive staff bucked the request to newly appointed HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano, who vigorously resisted appointing Sain, a former deputy mayor of Chicago, and treated Rostenkowski with contempt.

The congressman's telephone calls to executive branch officials went unreturned and his letters were unanswered. After months of foot-dragging, Califano reluctantly succumbed to the political pressure and offered Sain the job last November but that late offer was rejected.

In the middle of that dispute, Chicago's Democratic organization held its annual spring dinner. Carter was invited to be the guest speaker, but he declined and sent Vice President Walter F. Mondale in his place.

"We might just as well have Jerry Ford in the White House," fumed the angry congressman. "I'm going to make sure they know they said 'no' to Dan Rostenkowski."

As chairman of the Health Subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, Rostenkowski last spring was one of the two principal co-sponsors of the Carter administration's Hospital Cost Containment Bill.

That measure, which must be approved by Rostenkowski's subcommittee, is one of Califano's high-priority projects and was described by Carter in his State of the Union message as "our principal weapon in the effort to decrease health care costs."

But early last month, Rostenkowski unexpectedly announced he was abandoning his support of the administration bill and proposing a substitute measure that would emphasize voluntary instead of manadatory hospital cost controls.

For the record, Rostenkowski says there is no connection between his irritation with the Carter administration and his new position on legislation the president describes as "one of my main legislative goals for the year."

But Carter is belatedly attempting to master Washington's strange folkways. Two weeks after Rostenkowski's surprise announcement, the president invited him to the White House for a private discussion of the issue.

Somewhat more subtle was Carter's declaration of support for special legislation to provide federal financial assistance to the widow of Private Eddie Slovik, the only American soldier shot for desertion during World War II.

That announcement came at a White House reception for Polish-Americans. In giving credit to those who had brought the matter to his attention, Carter cited Rostenkowski first even though another member of the House is sponsoring the legislation.

Rostenkowski is a bit friendlier toward the president these days, but he's still withholding his support of the administration bill and he notes that his subcommittee also has jurisdiction over the forthcoming Carter-Califano National Health Insurance legislation.

Meanwhile, the Georgians in the White House are learning the meaning of Washington's most honored political maxim: "Don't get mad; get even."

era time running out

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- In our release of Nov. 17, 1977, we said at the end of that release that there would be further comment on the Equal Rights Amendment, up for ratification in the various States.

As was pointed out, the amendment lacks three states of the required three-fourths for approval. The seven-year time limit expires March 22, 1979 when most State Legislatures will be in session. This, of course, is a crucial time and the outcome is in doubt.

Since the bill of rights was adopted in 1791, 26 other amendments to the Constitution have been passed. It took from 4 months to 3 years and 11½ months for the adoption of these various amendments, spanning the time from 1791 to 1971.

The Constitution sets no time limit but only provides for a "reasonable time" to be approved by three-fourths of the states to make it part of the Constitution. Seven years has been considered by both the Congress and the Supreme Court to be reasonable and time enough for approval or disapproval.

Since the addition of the first amendment, there have been introduced nearly 6,000 amendments in the U.S. Congress but only 22 of those proposed have been passed by two-thirds of both the Senate and the House of Representatives for submission to the States. Only 16 have been ratified. James Madison in his Federalist Papers explains that the ratification procedure decided upon for amending the Constitution, "guards equally against that extreme facility which might render the Constitution too easy to amend and the extreme difficulty which might perpetuate its discovered faults." In other words, the Founding Fathers made it possible for change but also made it difficult in order to guard against extremes or unnecessary amendments.

In the case of the ERA, since its approval by the states is in doubt, supporters now want the Congress to extend the time another seven years in the hope that pressure can be brought to bear on three more state legislatures to approve it. A resolution to that effect is now pending before the Judiciary Committee in the House of Representatives. It is backed by 21 Members of Congress and some hearings have been held but, at this time, it appears not to have great and enthusiastic support.

This effort is something like a football game between two arch rivals, the University of Mississippi and Louisiana State University. Two or three years ago in a game between the two universities, Louisiana State scored at the very end of the game. Mississippi fans charged that four seconds had been added to the game to enable Louisiana to win.

A few days after that ball game, a large sign was erected at a heavily travelled highway at the border of the two states. It said, "You are now entering the State of Louisiana. Turn your clock back four seconds."

During the last season, a similar situation occurred in a pro-ball game between the Washington Redskins and the Philadelphia Eagles. Washington was leading by one point until the last two seconds. Philadelphia got close enough for a field goal but Washington claims that the time expired before the kick could be made. The timekeepers said otherwise. Afterwards, the saying went around that the clocks ran two minutes slower in Philadelphia than in the Nation's Capital.

Proponents of the equal rights amendment figure they are losing the game and want to change the rules before March 22 of next year by extending the time another seven years. If the supporters of the ERA were successful, it would put opponents in a position where winning settled nothing, but lose once, and they have lost forever.

Door prizes went to Carolyn Fortune and Joe League.

As all hobos share, so did these hobos. All the food was placed on the table and served buffet style.

Several couples took part in learning some different types of dancing.

Fashion And Beauty Tips

Accessories don't necessarily have to match what you're wearing, but color tones should be similar or contrast nicely.

Limited budget? New job and you'd like a new wardrobe? Choose a basic color scheme and pick pieces — shirts, skirts, well-cut pants — that work with each other.

The best time for a massage is immediately after bathing when muscles are relaxed and skin pliable.

A bath soap is fine for the body, but be sure to use a mild complexion bar on your face, which requires special care.

A T-shirt certainly can be worn in an office, provided the neckline is high and it isn't too clingy.

To get a "glow" on your skin if it's oily and you're using a non-glowing water-based foundation, try adding a bit of translucent, loose powder after you've applied the foundation.

Supposedly, the expert analysis of charity game hands is directed to ordinary bridge players, but the young experts who do the analysis can't forget their own ideas. Thus, with today's hand they have South open one club, rebid two diamonds over North's one-heart response and eventually find their way to a nice comfortable notrump game where there are 11 easy tricks.

The simple standard American bidding is shown in the box. South opens two clubs, North responds two hearts because he does have an ace and thinks that his queen jack of clubs may well be worth their weight in gold.

South rebids three diamonds. North sees his way clear to try four clubs and unless South is a slamomaniac, he Blackwoods and settles for six when North can't show a king.

Six clubs is by no means a sure thing. The correct line of play is for South to win the diamond lead, lead a club to dummy, play a second diamond to his hand, ruff his deuce of diamonds, come back to his hand with the ace of spades, pull trumps and finally lose a spade trick.

Ask the Experts

An Illinois reader says that he has heard that the king of clubs is more likely to be a singleton than any other king and asks if there is any basis to this.

No, there isn't. There is nothing special to the king of clubs or to any other card except that the ace of spades is the best card in the pack.

DES PLAINES, Iowa (AP)-When choosing knives, remember three rivets in a knife handle is a sign of quality, advises the Society of the Plastics Industry, some of whose members produce cutlery components.

Carbon steel takes the best edge, but will rust if not dried thoroughly after each use, according to the society. Stainless is easy to clean and looks pretty. But, except for high-priced stainless, it does not keep a good edge.

Serrated knives are a boon for the beginning cook or the pro - they go through even frozen vegetable boxes without difficulty.

Camp Boothe Oaks Registration Begins

Linda Walker, camp director for West Texas Girl Scout Council, has announced the dates of the 1978 summer sessions at Camp Boothe Oaks - June 9 through July 23. Sessions are as follows: Brownie-Dad Special - June 9-10; one-week sessions - June 11-16, June 25-30, July 16-21; two-weeks - June 18-30 and July 2-14; Beginning Canoeing - June 18-30; Advanced Canoeing - July 15-23; and Senior Weekend - July 21-23.

Camp folders are being distributed to Girl Scout troops in the 16-counties of the W.T.G.S.C. to inform them of Camp Boothe Oaks and other opportunities to attend summer camp. Four councils in Texas and a New Mexico Council have joined the W.T. Council in offering an exchange camper program for girls fourth grade through twelfth grade.

Camp Boothe Oaks is an American Camping Association accredited camp which provides a varied program in sports, crafts, the arts, and nature awareness. Camp objectives include promotion of responsibility; resourcefulness; development of physical, mental and spiritual well being of girls; and a sense of inner worth and understanding of others and our environment.

The West Texas Girl Scout Council is currently accepting applications for camp counselors who can promote the above objectives. Salaries range from $245 to $525 for the seven weeks. Positions available are: kitchen assistants, assistant counselors, unit counselors, lifeguards, canoe instructor, waterfront director, and assistant camp director.

For further information contact Linda Walker or the Council office, Box 5586, Abilene, 79605.

Camp Boothe Oaks was bought with and is operated by the annual Girl Scout cookie sale. Outstanding cookie salesgirls receive camperships that entitle them to attend camp free or at a reduced fee.

The opening day of registration for registered Girl Scouts is March 15, 1978. Non-scouts may begin registering April 1.

The West Texas Girl Scout Council is a participating agency of the United Way.

Working Spouse Takes Adjusting To

COLLEGE STATION -- A wife's employment has little effect on the marriage relationship after spouses go through a short adjustment period, according to a study by Dr. Alan Booth of the University of Nebraska.

Booth's study was done following previous research that reported greater stress for husbands of employed women than for husbands whose spouses were housewives, Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

The previous research indicated that husbands of women who worked outside the home face more stress, were in poorer physical health, and were less satisfied with their marriage than husbands of housewives, Miss Johnson explains.

Prescription and non-prescription drugs can help during illness, but learn about the possible risks as well as the benefits of any drug taken, advises Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

SEN. JOHN TOWER

Tower Has No Regrets On Park 'Relationship'

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two Texas Democrats hoping to unseat Sen. John Tower called upon the Republican to explain his "relationship" with accused South Korean influence peddler Tongsun Park.

"I expected to have to put up with this," Tower said Wednesday when asked to respond to charges leveled by Rep. Bob Krueger and former state insurance board chairman Joe Christie. "It means the focus is on me even though there are an awful lot of people involved. No one promised me a rose garden when I got in this business."

"My own conscience on this is very clear indeed so I have no regrets about anything."

Krueger and Christie are entered in the May Democratic primary vying for the opportunity to challenge Tower in November.

During a Wednesday press conference held down the hall from the room where Park was testifying before a House committee investigating allegations of influence buying on Capitol Hill, Krueger said "Texas stands embarrassed, for Texans do not expect the person who holds the highest office within the power of the people of the state of Texas to give to be standing with Tongsun Park.

"Tongsun Park is a man with a reputation for wine, women and money," Krueger continued. "If there is a friendship between our state's senior senator and Mr. Park, the people of Texas are entitled to know what is the nature of that relationship."

Krueger also charged that Tower did not really remove himself from the Park investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee of which Tower is a member.

In Texas, Christie said: "why did he (Tower) wait until the eve of Park's testimony before the Senate Ethics Committee before disqualifying himself?

"If Tower indeed is on the 'master list' of a small number of senators being investigated, he owes it to Texans to explain why the Korean government thought he might be willing to accept a bribe in return for continuing aid to Korea."

On Feb. 21 Tower sent a letter to the committee's chairman, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., disqualifying himself from "participating in the intital review or investigation pending before the committee regarding contacts of members of the Senate with the Korean government or agents of that government."

"I now understand that Sen. Tower did not really remove himself from the investigation, rather under the rules of the Senate he would be 'ineligible' to participate in this investigation because he himself is under investigation," said Krueger.

"This is not an investigation," countered Tower. "This is an initial review. The records of a number of senators have been asked for. Letters went out to about 156 present and former senators. I have supplied certain records to the committee and will supply any they ask for."

Krueger charged that Tower "made a tactical error when he attempted to sell to the American people the concept that his disqualifying himself was a noble endeavor when he had no real choice in the matter. The people of Texas are fortunate that subsequent investigation by the media clearly shows that he would be in violation of committee rules had he remained."

Tower repeated Wednesday that he had disclosed his "social acquaintance" of Park in the summer of 1975. "I have not seen him Park for 4½ years," Tower said.

Citing confidentiality requirements, Tower refused to relate the nature of any documents he had turned over to the committee or to verify reports he will be called upon to testify before the committee.

Job Openings Up In January

WASHINGTON (AP)-If you're looking for work, the government reports that there are plenty of jobs available.

Job openings listed at employment offices increased 6 percent in January, the first jump since September. And January job bank openings were 57 percent higher than a year earlier.

A survey of 154 employment offices across the country showed more than a half-million openings for full-time permanent work in January, and only about half of these were filled by the end of the month.

The Labor Department's "Occupations in Demand" report was led by waiters and waitresses, with 14,526 openings across the country in January.

The second largest number of openings was for clerks and general office help with 12,424 jobs available during the month.

Positions with 10,000 or more jobs available nationwide included secretaries, 11,916; material handlers, 11,309 and clerk-typists, 10,480. There were also 9,596 openings for security guards and 9,103 jobs available for charworkers and porters.

Other jobs listed as widely in demand included automobile mechanics, carpenters, kitchen helpers, building maintenance and repair workers, nurses aides and orderlies and insurance salespersons.

Warning On Machines Too

More saccharin warnings - Should vending machines selling diet beverages have to have warning signs telling about the danger of saccharin?

The Food and Drug Administration already requires warnings on products containing the artificial sweetener and plans to require posters in stores which sell saccharin-containing items.

Saccharin has been associated with the development of cancer in laboratory animals, but an outright ban has been delayed for 18 months by congressional action.

Officials of the agency want the warnings on vending machines too, because they feel the consumer should know of the hazard before he purchases the diet beverage and sees its label.

Tire Probe

Tire Probe - The Transportation Department is investigating possible defects in Firestone 500 steel-belted radial tires.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said there have been more than 500 reports from consumers of blowouts, out-of-round tires and tread separations. It said these have been associated with 10 accidents and two injuries.

Persons who experience premature tire failure with these or other tires were asked to report the problem to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 400 Seventh St. SW, Washington, D.C., 20590.

Similar To Westerners, He Comments...

Richardson Characterizes Navarro

STEPHENVILLE-Westerner coach Nolan Richardson contends Navarro Junior College-WTC's 8 p.m. opponent here Friday-shoots like Frank Phillips and has the quickness of Odessa College.

"They've got a very, very quick team," he gushed. Later the coach also added they had some of the similarities of New Mexico Military Institute.

"I have tried to compare them to other teams in our conference and they shoot like Frank Phillips, which I think is a very good shooting team, and their physical quickness is like Odessa ...

The Bulldogs, Region 14 champions by virtue of an 89-88 victory over San Jacinto Monday, will start Friday's game with a pair of 6-6 players, a 6-5 man and two 6-3 guards.

Everelle Jefferson, a 6-6 product from East Chicago, Ind., is reportedly the top player on the squad. The sophomore has been touted as "a good strong guard who can harass our defense and scores well both inside and out." Another player to watch is 6-6 Willie Whittenberg listed as an "Adam Beadle" type shooter", though probably not quite as deadly.

"They've got a sound defense and they've got a level of maturity about like ours," noted Richardson. "The coaching is similar. There are a lot of similarities in our ball clubs which makes it hard to say exactly what they are going to do. They do whatever they have to do to win just like us."

If WTC has an advantage it may be in bench strength.

"I've heard they play a lot of people, but the night we were there (Monday) they only played seven. This was a big game for them and they only won by one point. It makes me wonder why. There's only one way to find out. We'll go out there and run like heck and see what they do to give some people some rest. If they can't rest anybody for very long, I think we can wear them down."

The Westerners suit 10 players that see action in almost everyball game, in all types of situations. Starters for Friday's contest will be Julio Gallardo, Reginald Reid, Robert Brown and Joe Mendoza, with the fifth man to come from a trio of Melvin Patridge, Doug Worthington or Jon Moorehead. Other top personnel are Adam Beadle, Wayne Jamison and Dwight Williams.

The coach is quick to point out however, that starting berths mean little to him.

"It's who's out there when it's over that counts," he said. "There's no question that Adam would be a starter, and Jon, too. It's a great feeling to know that when somebody out there needs the rest I can replace him with someone who won't let down."

And, as far as Richardson is concerned, Friday's game plan is simple.

"I say when the engine is running smooth, don't mess with it. We will try to run it right down the court at them. The way I feel now is, I'm going to stay with what we've been doing all year. Obviously it's the key to our success.

"If we go out there and play 40 minutes the best we can play as hard as we can play, I think we'll win it. I certainly feel that we have a great opportunity to go not only there but all the way."

Tickets for the first-round NJCAA Tournament game here may be purchased at the WTC business office in Snyder.

WTC

Probable Starting Lineup-Julio Gallardo, 6-9 soph; Robert Brown, 6-7 soph; Reginald Reid, 6-4 freshman; Joe Mendoza, 6-5 fresh; Melvin Patridge, 6-5 fresh.

Other WTC Members-Jon Moorehead, 6-8 soph; Dwight Williams, 5-10 fresh; Wayne Jamison, 6-1 soph; Adam Beadle, 6-6 soph; Michael Smith, 6-4 fresh; Lonnie Nichols, 6-6 soph; John Gifford, 6-7 fresh.

NJC

Probable Starting Lineup-David Burns, 6-2 fresh; Everette Jefferson, 6-6 soph; David Orr, 6-5 shop; Jeff Smallwood, 6-2 soph; Willie Whittenburg, 6-6 fresh.

Other NJC Members-Joseph Babineaux, 6-4 soph; Greg Bonner, 6-4 soph; William Fisher, 6-0 fresh; Dennis Gordon, 6-1 soph; Charles Hale, 6-6 fresh; Steve Jackson, 6-5 fresh; Greg Lowe, 6-0 fresh; David Tapley, 6-6 fresh; Michael Taylor, 6-7 fresh; Rudy Williams, 6-2 fresh.

Mendoza Paces WTC...At The Table

By BILL McCLELLAN

YOU KNOW, it's said an army moves on its stomach. Well, I'm here to tell you that basketball teams do to. At least the Westerners.

Mal Donelson, the car dealer and an ardent WTC backer, gave what I guess one could term an "appreciation dinner" for the Westerners and a few other folks last night (Thank you, Mal) and it was there that I discovered that the saying had a lot of truth to it.

MAL MADE the mistake of ordering up a batch of rib eyes in addition to handing out menus. I understand that early this morning he was out on the highway building a roadblock to funnel customers through his car lot. Gee, he's got to pay for the dinner somehow.

Joe Mendoza, a blue chipper when it comes to chow time, was the first to suggest that maybe a simple steak wouldn't fill him up. He called the waitress over for a quiet, closed meeting.

"Uh, could I also have uh some ...", we heard before his voice trailed off.

TWO SALADS, numberous glasses of tea and about a hundred crackers later -- all while watching the WTC-NMMI game film -- Mendoza's plates (that's PLATES) arrived.

Others of us at the table sat buggy-eyed. At least I did. Several of his teammates, Jon Moorehead and Wayne Jamison apparently sat stary-eyed. They ordered more, too.

Shuffling aside wisecracks like opponents on the court, Joe quietly dove into the rib-eye, salad on the side, french fries, lobster tails, and more salad on the side.

"Uh, could I have Coke", he ventured? Coming up.

APPARENTLY HE was stocking up for the journey back to the dorm. Seems Wayne had "short-cutted" the carload of guys -- including Joe -- down the Lamesa Highway. Not exactly the most direct route to Snyder Golf Course when you're leaving from the college. Joe just wanted to make sure he had enough food to make the return trip -- inside him.

A little later glutton-for-punishment Mal says "Make sure you've got enough now. Anybody want anything else just tell the waitress."

I swear it was like Moses leading the masses. Everything from shrimp to Mexican food was brought in ... and devoured.

Desert, two kinds of pie, went just as quickly. And I'll say this for some of the guys. They actually refused it. But not Joe.

This morning, Roy Meador came into the office and brought me my camera case, forgotten in the wake of last night's eat-all.

I DIDN'T really forget it Roy, I wanted to have an excuse to go back this morning and see if Joe was still there.

* * * * *

Say, speaking of the Westerners. Plans are being formulated out at the college to aid people wanting to go to Friday's game in Stephenville. If you are planning to go, and have room to add a passenger or two call 573-8511 and let them know. Don't worry, any rides will be expected to pay for their own meals.

Also, Mickey Baird says if you'll call the college early in the morning or not-too-late this evening she'll have some of her students make booster signs for your car window.

Navarro Junior College expects about 1,200 fans at Friday's game. According to reports from Monday's contest against San Jac, they'll do it, too. So why not head over to Stephenville for the 8 p.m. NJCAA Tournament first-round game and show them Snyder cares, too. For Joe's sake.

Thanks.

NIT Races Leave Little Room Between Teams

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

They've fired the first shots of the National Invitation Tournament and not much separated the best from the rest.

In two down-to-the-wire games Wednesday night, Georgetown defeated Virginia 70-68 in an overtime thriller and Nebraska edged Utah State 67-66 as the far-flung NIT started first-round play in regional outposts.

At Charlottesville, Va., Mike Riley and Craig Shelton hit two free throws each in the final 10 seconds of overtime to lead Georgetown over Virginia.

With 47 seconds left in overtime, the Cavaliers took the lead 67-66 on a 15-foot jumper by Tommy Hicks before Riley and Shelton pulled out the game for Georgetown from the foul line. The score was tied twice and the lead changed hands six times in the overtime period.

The Hoyas earned a spot in the quarter-finals against the winner of Friday night's Fair-field-Dayton game.

At Lincoln, Neb., Carl McPipe's free throw with 1:52 left put Nebraska in front and the Cornhuskers held on to beat Utah State by a whisker. Freshmen Andre Smith and Mike Naderer sparked Nebraska in the second half as the Huskers were helped by Utah State's foul trouble.

Naderer hit on six outside shots and played alert defense, and Smith, who alternated with McPipe at center, scored 18 points to lead the Huskers. Nebraska advanced to a quarter-final meeting against the winner of Friday night's Texas-Temple game.

The NIT continues tonight with Army playing at Rutgers and Virginia Commonwealth visiting Detroit. In Friday night's action, Temple will play at Texas, Fairfield at Dayton, Illinois State at Indiana State and South Carolina at North Carolina State.

The quarter-finals will continue at regional sites next week, with the semi-finals and finals to be held at Madison Square Garden in New York on March 19 and 21.

The NCAA playoffs begin Saturday, starting the long and winding road toward the national championship in St. Louis later this month. A 32-team field, including defending champion Marquette, will open first-round play at various regional sites.

Nicklaus Is Man To Beat

MIAMI (AP)-The kids are coming, observes veteran ChiChi Rodriguez, but Jack Nicklaus still ranks as "The Man."

"He is still the man to beat," said the 41-year-old Rodriguez, a great booster of some of younger players in the game. And, said ChiChi, Nicklaus may be tougher than usual the next couple of years.

"I think Jack is going to make an extra effort to win as much as he can in the next few years," Rodriguez said before today's first round in the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament. It was an obvious reference to Nicklaus' age, 38, and his announced trimmed-down schedule.

As the best of the younger players, Rodriguez nominates Tom Watson, Jerry Pate, Ben Crenshaw, Andy Bean and Bill Kratzert.

"They're the men who will be dominating the game in the future," Rodriguez said.

"Watson already has proved his greatness. Bean is the defending champion here. Pate has played well twice without winning this year.

Simpson On Fans

To The Daily News:

This is rather in the form of an open letter to the citizens and sports fans of Snyder. It is an effort to express my great appreciation of some aspects of their support and one grievance.

First I would like to say that I greatly appreciate the financial support Western Texas College has received during its seven year history. The willingness of Snyder and Scurry County Citizens to contribute financially to the support of our program is, in a large measure, responsible for the tremendous success we have had.

Indeed, no other Junior College in America can match the academic and athletic success of Western Texas College. In our brief, seven-year history we have never had a losing season in any sport. In basketball (men and women) we have never finished lower than third. In golf, we have a similiar record. We have won two golf championships, three womens basketball championships, four men's basketball championships, one national title and now stand on the threshold of another possible national title.

We are truly appreciative of the financial support that has made this possible.

Now for the grievance: My one disappointment has been lack of attendance. I can remember, shortly after accepting the position at WTC, being told by a 52-man delegation meeting at the Old Steak House, that if we produced a winner, we could expect around 2,000 spectators at every game and more for the "big" games.

Well, we have upheld our end of the bargain. Never in the history of Junior College Athletics has a school been so successful in such a tough league. My question is "Where are the spectators?" As we approach a critical playoff game with Navarro, (bear in mind that this is a first round game of the National Tournament) we face the near certainty of being greatly outnumbered in the stands by Corsicana supporters of Navarro.

I appeal to the citizens of Snyder and Scurry County. I have seen you put 2,000 people in the stands at Brownwood for a football playoff. Navarro is bringing at least 1,200 fans to Stephenville. Would you help us equal or outnumber them?

Come to Stephenville for the 8 p.m., Friday NJCAA playoff and let those East Texas folks know that Snyder supports its own.

All of us on the WTC athletic staff will be grateful. I have come to love the people of Snyder and Scurry County and tremendously enjoy living here. I will also have great pride in our community if you will rise to our support.

We have a great coach and a squad of fine young men who deserve your support.

Besides, I promise you an enjoyable experience. Load up your car with friends and neighbors and make the trip to Stephenville Friday. If you do, I think I can promise you a win.

Girls' State Battles Set

AUSTIN (AP)-Undefeated and untested Canyon led 20 teams - including eight newcomers - into the 28th annual girls' high school basketball tournament today.

Three defending champions - Canyon, high-scoring Dallas South Oak Cliff and Nazareth - won spots in the three-day tournament.

Semi-finals were scheduled for Thursday, and Friday, with the five state championship games set for Saturday.

Canyon, 36-0, has been to the tournament in 3A every year since 1969, which is a record. The Eagles won titles in 1969, 1972, 1974 and 1977 and were runners-up in 1970, 1971, 1973, 1975 and 1976.

Merry Johnson, a two-time all-state tournament player, leads Canyon in scoring with a 28-point average. The Eagles' closest game this year has been a 10-point victory over Slaton, a 2A semi-finalist.

Canyon also has defeated four other tournament teams - Nazareth, Lubbock Monterey, Vega and South Oak Cliff.

South Oak Cliff has scored more than 100 points in eight games. Two 1977 all-tournament players-Loretta Lister and 6-foot Anita Foster-have combined for 45 points a game. A third SOC all-tournament player, Pam Green, is a defensive specialist.

SOC's victories included a 143-30 triumph over Dallas Carter and 136-7 over North Dallas.

Pflugerville in 2A had the two most convincing triumphs, however, 157-10 and 146-2 over Elgin.

Russians Cop Skating Pairs

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA - Perennial champions Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitsev of the Soviet Union convincingly won the pairs competition night at the World Figure Skating Championships.

It was Rodnina's 10th straight world title, the last six coming with Zaitsev, her husband.

Second place went to the East German couple of Manuela Mager and Uwe Bwersdorff. Three-time American champions Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner slipped into third place to win the bronze medal for 5th second straight year.

Hagins Takes On Ballinger Post

Bernie Hagins, a former Snyder High School star, has been named athletic director and head football coach at Ballinger High School.

Hagins, who will be moving to Ballinger from Lockhart where he has been athletic director and head coach since 1974, will fill the Ballinger post vacated recently by Jim Bartlett, a former assistant coach on the Snyder staff. Bartlett, who had accepted the Ballinger post a few weeks ago, elected to return to Marfa where he had been coaching the past three years.

Hagins was the starting quarterback on a Snyder High football team regarded by many as the strongest ever fielded at SHS. That was the 1955 team which lost a close decision to Garland, the eventual state champion, in the playoffs. Following graduation from Stephen F. Austin State University, Hagins was on the coaching staff at Coahoma. He became head coach there in 1966, and subsequently was head coach at Pharr-San Juan-Alama and at Bishop before going to Lockhart. He is the brother of Robert Hagins of Snyder.

Oral Language Class Employs Various Techniques, Materials

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on Snyder Public Schools program, presented in connection with observance of Texas Public Schools Week.

Increasing oral language facility is the major concern of a new oral language first grade class at Northeast Elementary, where Mrs. Geraldine Parker is principal. In the 1977-78 school year the Administration of Snyder Public Schools authorized the establishment of such a class, employing Mrs. Gayle Wittie as teacher and Mrs. Faye Asberry as instructional aide.

Children often enter school with an underdeveloped language ability due to timidity, isolation, cultural deprivation, lack of experience with English language, or any number of other reasons. These children with delayed language development need a slower introduction to reading and an extended readiness program. The readiness program should emphasize oral language, listening training, visual and auditory discrimination, and a wide variety of first hand and vicarious experiences with the community.

A close relationship exists between oral language and reading. The ability to comprehend and express ideas through oral language contributes to meaningful reading. The child who truly reads depends upon a familiarity with the language patterns of the written language.

A variety of techniques and materials have been employed by Mrs. Wittie. Language stimulation and training have been accomplished through the use of experience charts and stories, pictures, story-telling, sharing times, games, and excursions. Also involved in the language and auditory training is Mrs. Barbara Bigham, speech therapist.

The language experience stories written by the children have formed a major part of the readiness and reading program. Additionally, charts covering a wide variety of concepts have been constructed. Later a basal reading series was added. Through the cooperation of the Region 14 Service Center, ALPHAPHONICS, a unique readiness program has been employed.

An integral part of Mrs. Wittie's classroom is that of helping children build a positive self-concept. A broad language base helps children communicate more effectively, enhancing their self-concept. With a positive self-concept, the child is in a much better position to be successful academically and socially.

The concepts embodied in this eclectic approach are not new to reading, but Mrs. Wittie has pulled from different theories and approaches those things that attempt to meet the needs of the individual. The philosophy of this class might be summed up best in the words of R. Van Allen:

"What I can think about, I can talk about.
What I can say, I can write.
What I can write I can read.
I can read what I write and what other people can write for me to read."

Corrective Reading Is Offered SHS Students

The Corrective Reading Program (CPR) at Snyder High School was developed by Science Research Associates (SRA). It is designed for a year-long school program with 155 lessons. The lessons are controlled in that the directions for each lesson are written out for both the teacher and the students. Each daily lesson is divided into three sections: word attack exercises, group story-reading and individual reading.

The word attack is oral instruction. Students respond in unison to the teacher's question and directions. The word attack reinforces learned skills. It introduces students to new words, new sounds, and new word endings. The daily word attack is repetitious in order to "drill" the students with the correct sounds of vowels, syllables, and words.

After students complete the exercise in unison, individual students are called on to perform orally.

After word attack is completed, the students begin group story reading. Students are called on at random to read three or four sentences from the story. When the group has finished reading the story, Individual story reading begins.

The student reads aloud to his partner. The partner then does likewise. Each student reads and listens to his partner read one hundred words from a new story, then a review story.

Selection of students to be tested is accomplished in various ways. Teacher referral is used. If a teacher observes a student having trouble reading, spelling, or writing that student will be tested. Achievement test scores are used. The reading teacher will go through the permanent records of all incoming freshman. If a student's score in one or more test areas is well below average, that student is tested.

The initial test given to a student is quite simple. It takes less than five minutes to test a student; yet, within this brief time student ability in all reading areas is tested except comprehension. Within the high school curriculum most students who are having reading problems have good comprehension abilities. This seems to be due to the fact that they over-compensate in this area to make up for poorer reading abilities. The CPR is a help, also, for dyslexic students; however, the high school program is voluntary.

The program has been beneficial. Several of the CPR students are enrolled in colleges and universities; many are in scholarship programs. Other students are in vocational training schools.

Wheat Farmers Join Program

WASHINGTON (AP)- Last week alone, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says, wheat farmers signed up 50 million bushels for the reserves program he is pushing as the way out of the current grain price slump.

That finding, the 100.3 million bushels of 1976-crop wheat already committed and figures drawn from a telephone survey Monday mean 183.9 million bushels in the farmer-owned stockpile, Bergland said Wednesday.

That amount is more than 55 percent toward his goal of 330 million bushels of wheat by the end of the sign-up period May 1, he said.

A week before, only 95.3 million bushels of 1976-crop wheat had been committed to the reserve.

His announcement did not mention corn and other feed-grains, only 2.1 million bushels of which from the 1976 crop had been registered by the end of business March 1 when 1977 surpluses could start coming in.

By then, 2.2 million bushels of other feedgrains also were in the reserves.

Theoretically, on March 1, another 589.7 million bushels of wheat, 942.9 million bushels of corn and 312.9 million bushels of feedgrains were eligible for the reserves.

Bergland seeks 670 million bushels of feedgrains for the reserves.

Those levels are needed to significantly boost prices this summer by taking excesses off the market for three years or until prices reach levels set by law, whichever comes sooner.

Under the program, USDA lends farmers $2.25 a bushel for wheat, for example, and pays 25 cents a year for them to store it until the market reaches $3.15.

Sutton Is Appointed To TAM Council

Sharon Sutton, Director of the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College, has been appointed to the Council of the Texas Association of Museums (TAM).

Miss Sutton will represent the Permian Basin Museums Institute as a non-voting member of the Council. She had previously been named vice president of the Permian Basin Institute's executive board.

The TAM Council is the governing body of the statewide organization. The Council presently consists of 12 elected members and eight appointed members. Only elected members are entitled to vote on actions of the Council, while appointed members represent areas or museums with which they are directly connected. Others currently serving as members by appointment include Cindy Sherrell, Director of Museum Services for the Texas Historical Commission in Austin, Jack Maguire, Director of the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, and Calvin Smith, Director of the Spindletop Museum in Beaumont.

Celebrities To Support Lapchick

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)-A committee of celebrities has been formed to support Dr. Richard Lapchick, who told police he was beaten and cut by opponents of his activity against South African apartheid.

Among those on the committee are former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, singer Harry Belafonte, feminist Gloria Steinem and novelist Kurt Vonnegut.

A medical examiner, Dr. Faruk Presswalla, said after examining Lapchick that he believed the wounds were self-inflicted.

One committee member, novelist-screenwriter Robert Lipsyte, said Wednesday that he is convinced Lapchick was attacked.

"I've seen the scars myself," Lipsyte said. "and I find it impossible to believe he could have done it to himself."

New Postal Regulations On Packages In Effect

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service, which has been criticized for designing machines that can mangle packages, is asking consumers to wrap their parcels better to reduce the chance of damage.

A Postal Service regulation taking effect today specifies how packages should be wrapped to enhance the chances they will be delivered intact.

Post office window clerks will be working with individual mailers to try to ensure that packages are well wrapped, said Francis Gardner, the official who wrote the regulations.

"We hope that window clerks will have some reinforced tape under the counter and will pull it out and show people how it should be used," Gardner said in an interview Wednesday. "We have between now and the next Christmas season when package handlers are the busiest to try to educate the public."

Much of the 10,000 word regulation consists merely of recommendations on how to wrap packages. Gardner said the points will be brought home with displays in post office lobbies and brochures available at post offices.

The regulation forbids using masking tape or cellophane to close packages. Twine and cord are not recommended but will be accepted. The preferred material is reinforced tape, the regulation said.

Postal clerks are instructed under the regulation not to accept packages sealed with masking tape or cellophane tape.

Gardner said Postal Service studies show almost two-thirds of the damage to poorly wrapped parcels results from the way they are closed.

The regulation also recommends that packages not be wrapped with paper, because it can become torn off in handling and the address lost. One recommendation suggests noting the return address inside the parcel.

A container with a marking "do not bend" is now required to have stiffeners protecting the contents.

The Postal Service has been criticized frequently for damaging packages since it opened a billion-dollar mechanized system in 1976 that mainly handles parcels.

House investigators charged that the network of 21 mail-handling facilities is full of unnecessary gadgets that severely damage parcels. "Examples of nonsense machinery are everywhere," the report alleged.

After the report was published, the Postal Service acknowledged having 3.7 million items at the Chicago post office that had been torn loose from their original wrappers.

At 1976 hearings held by a House Post Office subcommittee, postal officials said problems in the package-handling system were being corrected. Since then, the Postal Service has said the damage rate is being reduced through modifications in its machinery.

OBITUARIES

C. O. Bowlin

C.O. Bowlin, 58, who lived at 3709 Highland Drive, died early today in the Veterans Administration Hospital at San Antonio.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the Bell-Seale Chapel, with Sam Kitching of East Side Church of Christ officiating. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Fulton County, Arkansas, Mr. Bowlin had lived in Snyder since 1952. He was a veteran of World War II. He was married on July 23, 1945, in Liberal, Kan., to Ina May Huff. She survives.

Also surviving are two daughters, Joyce Pope of Abilene and Joan Foster of Fort Worth; two sons, Robert Bowlin and Gerald Bowlin, both of Snyder; four sisters, three brothers and six grandchildren.

Missing Five Is Mystery

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP)-An intensive hunt through rough, snowy wilderness focuses on five slightly retarded men who vanished without a trace more than a week ago. Officials are beginning to suspect foul play.

"We don't know what happened to them-we've a real mystery on our hands," declared Yuba County Under-sheriff Jack Beecham.

If the missing men, all members of a basketball team, became confused and wandered into the forest, little hope could be held for their survival, said Sheriff Jim Grant.

"It's very heavily forested country, rough and mountainous and rocky," said Beecham. "Some places you can only get in on horseback."

Beecham noted that a study of the personality profiles of the missing men shows their disappearance to be totally out of character. "In fact, as time goes on it looks more and more like foul play," Beecham said.

Guard Kills Hijacker

HONG KONG (AP)-A crewman waving an ax and a pair of scissors tried to hijack a Taiwanese airliner to mainland China today but a security guard aboard the plane shot and killed him, police said.

The pilot and co-pilot were injured by the crewman, identified as the flight engineer, before he was shot, police said.

SHS Grad Of '61 Finds Environment Good

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on graduates of Snyder High School who now are involved in the business and professional life of the community. The series is being presented this week in connection with observance of Texas Public School Week.

By JOHN LONG

Reared in the pharmacy business, Robert Patterson decided to adopt that profession as his own. He left Snyder in 1961, when he was graduated from high school, and returned in 1972.

He came back, he said, because he believed Snyder was a good town in which to raise children.

"I don't really know why I became a pharmacist, except that I did," he said. He joined his father in helping operate the family business, Snyder Drug.

Because operating a drugstore requires knowledge of pharmacy as well as marketing, Patterson went to the University of Texas and took degrees in both. He earned approximately 230 hours of college credit.

He was prepared for his college education by his Snyder schooling, he said.

"I think we had one of the better facilities here available to us, as well as highly qualified personnel," he noted.

One of the persons he best remembers from his high school days is Mrs. M.M. O'Rear, who taught English.

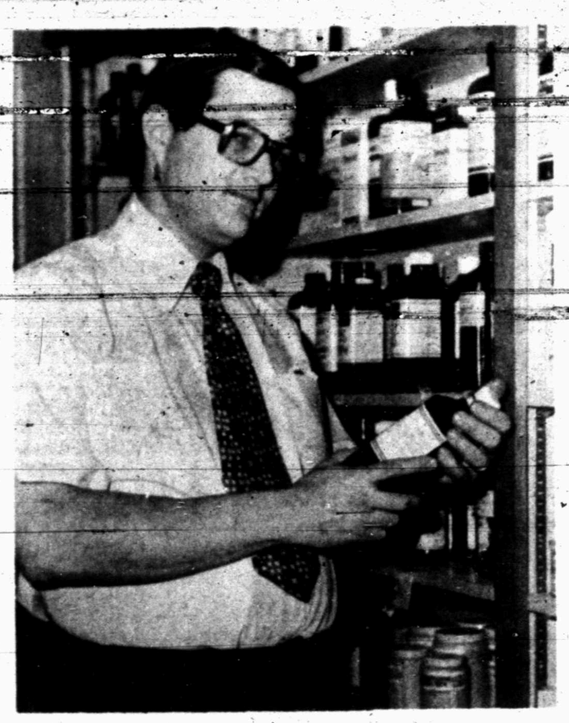

"She was hard," he said. "But when we finally got out of school, I was thankful. She was a great help."

Other teachers Patterson remembers are Roy and Rita Carter, high school band director Melvin Montgomery, and junior high school band director Tim Dennis.

One of the areas in which a high school education of the late 50s and early 60s differs from that of the late 70s, Patterson feels, is in academics.

"Less performance is demanded of students," he said, and teachers are becoming "more lenient."

The overall environment of Snyder, however, is good, said Patterson, the father of two children. Citing the "wholesome environment" of the community, Patterson said he returned to rear his children.

Proxy Material On Walls Sale Filed

Walls Industries, Inc., announced that it has filed preliminary proxy materials with the Securities and Exchange Commission concerning the proposed sale of its assets to Oppenheimer & Co., for cash.

The preliminary proxy materials, as filed, reflect a cash purchase price of $22,025,542 ($14 per share) which, together with a loan of $196,657 ($0.125 per share) made by the purchaser to Walls at the closing and repayable by Walls out of certain anticipated federal income tax benefits accruing to Walls, would equal a total cash price of $14.125 per outstanding share of Walls. This price reflects a $0.125 per share reduction from the $14.25 price announced by Walls on Jan. 16. Walls stated that the anticipated federal income tax benefits resulting from the proposed sale would be less than previously had been expected and, accordingly the parties had revised the agreement to reflect the reduced anticipated tax benefits, resulting in the $14.125 per share figure.

If the asset sale is consummated, Walls proposes to offer to purchase all of its outstanding shares for $14.125 cash per share shortly after the sale is closed. The agreement providing for the asset sale, the authorization for the Company to make the offer to purchase its shares and certain other related transactions will be submitted to Walls' shareholders for approval at their annual meeting presently scheduled for April 18.

On Feb. 28, Walls announced net sales and earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1977, of $40,401,014 and $3,093,768 ($1.97 per share) respectively compared to the net sales of $31,420,755 and net earnings of $2,461,310 ($1.56 per share) for the year ended Dec. 31, 1976. Walls, based in Cleburne, designs, manufactures and sells to retailers a variety of popularly priced work, sport and leisure and apparel for men, women and children. The company operates a sewing plant in Snyder.

Police Officer Is Hit By Prisoner

A handcuffed prisoner struck a policeman Wednesday night while being booked at the city jail, police reported. The booking was ended moments later with the prisoner being charged with aggravated assault as well as public intoxication.

The subject was one of three men arrested during an alleged fight in the 2000 block of Ave. N Wednesday about 7:45 p.m. The trio was taken to the police station and, while being booked, the 25-year-old man allegedly lashed out at the officer, striking the policeman above the right eye with the handcuffs.

The policeman was identified as Sgt. J.L. Cullar. The injury reportedly did not require hospital treatment.

Charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer, the suspect posted a $1,500 bond this morning and has been released. The other two men arrested with him were charged with public intoxication.

A routine arrest Tuesday night netted a 27-year-old suspect wanted on a fraud charge in Arizona.

The man was arrested on a misdemeanor possession of marijuana charge. Routine followup showed the man was wanted in Arizona. He is presently being held in the county jail.

Two traffic accidents were also investigated Wednesday by the police department.

The first mishap took place in the 1900 block of College Ave. at 1:35 p.m. Involved in the mishap were a 1976 Buick driven by Doris Spikes and a 1970 Buick driven by Kevin Morgan Hall. Only minor damages were reported to the two vehicles.

Minor damage was also reported to a 1970 Oldsmobile involved in a one car accident at the intersection of 27th St. and Ave. E. Reports show that the vehicle was driven by Ida Stuard Walker and was in collision with a utility pole yesterday at 3:30 p.m.

Felony DWI Charges Filed

Three men have been charged with felony offenses alleging driving while intoxicated.

Named in the complaints are Melvin Odell Greer, George Marvin Speed Sr., and Gregorio S. Gonzales.

Greer and Gonzales were arrested March 3 and March 2, respectively, by city police officers and Speed was arrested by highway patrolmen March 3.

phone rates, said Doyle E. Rogers, Southwestern Bell vice president for Texas.

Rogers said Southwestern Bell does not seek to increase rates for in-state long distance calls or WATS, or for coin telephones or directory assistance.

He said the separation of gross receipts tax from the phone bill was proposed to assure that customers outside city limits do not pay the taxes. At present, receipts from all sources are used to pay the gross receipts taxes.

The remainder of the rate request would be increases in miscellaneous rates and one-time service connection and rearrangement charges, plus restructuring of rates for certain business special services.

"We've delayed filing this rate request for months because of our appeal of the 1976 rate case," Rogers said. "We appealed because we consider the rates to be grossly insufficient. We also wanted to clarify certain legal questions, including how our rate base should be determined. "The Supreme Court has agreed to hear and answer those legal questions. However, we have not solved our pressing rate needs through the courts.

"Therefore, we feel we have no choice but to seek rate relief from the Public Utility Commission," the vice president said.

"Our $214 million request must be placed in the perspective of Southwestern Bell's operations in Texas," Rogers emphasized.

"We have an investment of more than $5 billion in the state. We have more than 44,000 employees. We serve 7.5 million telephones in Texas, and we add more than 400,000 phones every year.

"Simply put, large amounts of money are required to continue providing quality telephone service to Texas.

"Southwestern Bell's construction expenditures were $983 million in the state last year. We must spend approximately $1 billion in 1978.

"Our construction expenditures are far larger than those of any other utility in the state. For instance, our annual outlays are more than twice as large as those of the largest power company operating in Texas," he pointed out.

"Our pressing revenue need is demonstrated by the earnings facts we've filed with the Commission," the vice president said.

"Southwestern Bell's rate of return in Texas is only 7.74 per cent. That's far below the 9.50 per cent authorized by the Public Utility Commission in 1976, and even further below the return we feel is necessary.

"We've never earned at the 9.50 level, and we cannot earn at the level in the future with our present rate structure," he declared.

"We have increased productivity. We have held down expenses. But our efforts have been eroded by the continuing growth of our expanding state, and by inflation."

Rogers said no legal expenses for the Ashley-Gravitt lawsuits are part of the rate filing.

THE NEW USS TEXAS
...coming to Galveston March 16

Galveston Prepares To Welcome Cruiser Texas

GALVESTON--Plans between the City of Galveston and the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser USS Texas (CGN-39) have been finalized for a historic visit.

The Navy's newest addition to the fleet, and the fourth to be named for the Lone Star State, will enter the Port of Galveston on Thursday morning, March 16 according to Galveston Mayor John G. Unbehagen.

The public will be able to go aboard the cruiser for a closer look on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 17, 18 and 19 respectively.

Visiting hours on Friday will be from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; on Saturday from 9 a.m. and until 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. During public visiting parking will only be available at the Old Globe Store at 49th and Broadway as there is no dockside parking. The City of Galveston will provide free shuttle bus service from the parking lot to the ship and return.

People traveling to Galveston via I-45 should take the 49th Street exit.

Among the state officials to visit the ship will be Governor and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe. Mrs. Briscoe is the official sponsor for the USS Texas and officiated at the launching ceremonies in August 1975 and at the commissioning ceremony in September 1977.

Among the other official visitors will be artists from throughout Texas that donated paintings to be hung throughout the new cruiser.

They include Mrs. Waldene Rust and Mrs. Carol Gibson Sayles of Austin; Mrs. Barbara Jones of Alpine; Mr. Grant Macdonald of Kerrville, and Mr. Buck Schweitz of Cuero. Mr. Jack Morris of El Paso also provided a painting of the skyline of El Paso for the ship from an El Paso artist.

The USS Texas is 585 feet long, 65 feet wide and displaces 11,000 tons. The ship will accommodate 497 persons and can travel at a speed in excess of 30 knots. Because the ship is powered by two nuclear reactors it can operate at least ten years before refueling is required.

FDR Portrait Stolen From The White House

WASHINGTON (AP)-A sneak thief apparently has been at work in the White House. Gone without a trace is a 40-year-old autographed photo portrait of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This development, which has been reported to police, has cast a cloud of suspicion over all members of the White House press corps as well as executive branch employees who pass in and out of the West Wing press center.

FDR inscribed the photo to the press corps in the mid-1930s and signed himself, "Your ever-devoted victim." It had been hanging on White House walls ever since.

The first "break" in the case came this week when a reporter found the empty frame for Roosevelt's likeness hidden behind a leather-upholstered lounge chair. The protective backing had been cut away.

That FDR was the thief's target seems beyond question. Left untouched were autographed photos of former President Hoover and Truman and framed letters signed by Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard Nixon.

Young Carter Likes Snoopy Cap

President Carter's grandson and namesake, James Earl Carter IV, has become almost inseparable from a Snoopy baseball cap given to him at a belated White House birthday party last week.

The son of Chip and Caron Carter became 1 year old on Feb. 25, but the party was delayed because he was traveling with his parents at the time.

Amy Carter was a catalyst for the festivities. She personally decorated the third floor solarium with crepe paper and balloons for the occasion.

Young James Earl received mostly gifts of clothing from his assembled kin, but a baseball bat and ball were provided to go with the cap.

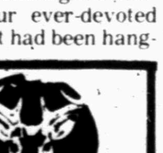

Boyer Had Trouble Gaining Entry

When Carter unveiled new education proposals last week, he said he thinks the government's education efforts should have greater visibility. Toward that end, he had Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and other key officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare join him on a press center platform for the announcement.

Straining to view the high-powered assemblage from a rear corner of the room was Ernest L. Boyer, the commissioner of education who oversees the distribution of $10 billion of federal education aid.

When a reporter asked why Boyer wasn't on the platform, he confessed to having trouble gaining entry to the White House because the uniformed police of the Secret Service had never heard about a commissioner of education.

So much for visibility.

Refund Plans Debated

State Treasuries Bulging

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

From Maine to California, state treasuries are bulging, in sharp contrast to the deficits of two years ago, and lawmakers are debating ways to give some of the money back to the taxpayers.

A spot check by The Associated Press and a survey by the Tax Foundation Inc. found that 31 states expected to have a surplus at the end of the current one- or two-year fiscal period.

The surpluses are not confined to any particular area of the country, making it hard to pinpoint the reason for financial health. They can be found in industrial states like New York and Illinois, as well as in more rural areas like Kansas and Wisconsin.

Proposals for refunding some of the money vary from state to state and, often, among officials within a state.

In Wisconsin, for example, there are three conflicting plans for election-year tax cuts to divvy up a $400 million to $425 million surplus. In Colorado there are no less than a dozen schemes.

The amount of the surpluses also vary widely.

California expects to have $3.21 billion left when the current fiscal year ends June 30; South Dakota officials expect a $4.9 million surplus July 1 and a $5.3 million surplus by July 1, 1979.

It is equally difficult to characterize states with deficits.

Among those in or near the red, for example, are Pennsylvania, with a $64 million deficit, and Hawaii, which the Tax Foundation says will go from a $35.2 million surplus in fiscal 1977 which ended last June 30 to a $3.5 million deficit in fiscal 1979.

Overall totals for surpluses are difficult to calculate because states use a variety of financial calendars and fiscal systems.

In a study released Wednesday, the Tax Foundation, a nonprofit research group, said state and local governments reported a $13.3 billion surplus on general accounts in calendar year 1977, up by nearly $10 billion from the previous year.

They said the surpluses "reflect strong growth in receipts coupled with apparent expenditure restraints. In both 1976 and 1977, receipts rose by 11 to 12 percent annually, while expenditure growth was in the 7 to 8 percent range."

The situation today contrasts with that a little over two years ago, when the nation was still suffering from recession and inflation. The Commerce Department said that at the end of the third quarter of 1975, state governments had deficits of $12 billion. On Jan. 15, 1976, the National Governors Conference said that a 37-state survey showed most states faced "an increasingly bleak fiscal future."

The same inflation which helped cause the squeeze also helped cure it, however. As earnings and prices rose, receipts from state income and sales levies also went up, sometimes faster than anticipated.

A growing number of states are setting ceilings on budget increases, linking boosts to growth in personal income.

In addition, many state constitutions forbid deficit spending, meaning the budget must be balanced or show a surplus.

Guardsmen Pot Charge Investigated

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)-Federal authorities are investigating the alleged use of Oklahoma Air National Guard planes to import marijuana from Mexico, according to a story in the Thursday editions of the Daily Oklahoman.

A Washington datelined story by Allan Cromley quotes an unnamed official as saying federal indictments are expected in the case within the week.

Cromley's story said 14 guardsmen, who are members of the 137th Tactical Airlift Wing based at Will Rogers World Aiprort, are reportedly involved in the case.

Brig. Gen. Stanley Newman, commander of the 137th, said Wednesday night he was "dumbfounded" by the report.

He said such activities don't seem possible since planes are monitored by radar during any training missions.

Brig. Gen. Newman also said he can't recall a training mission to Mexico in the past seven years.

But he pledged full cooperation with investigators, should they contact him, and said he was very interested in how the investigation turns out.

Disaster Areas Are Requested

AUSTIN (AP)-Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked Wednesday that Briscoe, Clay, Deaf Smith and Jack counties be declared disaster areas because of adverse weather conditions from Nov. 11, 1976, through Feb. 24, 1978.

The designation, if granted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, would let Texas farmers and ranchers get emergency loans to cover physical and production losses.

Old Swamper Has Reverence For Okefenokee

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP)-It is no secret in this part of south Georgia how one of its prominent citizens, Will Cox, feels about the Okefenokee swamp.

One day, poling a boatload of explorers through that dense and haunting wonderland, he noticed that one passenger flinched at every movement and sound in the brush, her eyes wide, darting.

"Are you a praying woman?" he asked. She nodded. "Do you believe in the hereafter?" She nodded.

"Well, lady," he said, "I don't know what you pray for because here you are right in the middle of God's own heaven and you're afraid of everything in it."

In all his 78 years, Will Cox's reverence for the Okefenokee has never paled. If anything, it has deepened, because he has seen a miracle wrought there. The miracle is that the swamp has survived.

"We did everything we could to destroy it," he said.

"We skinned alligators until we like to drove every last one off. We killed bears, otters, foxes and almost got rid of them. We went after the cypress and cut down 3,000 acres of trees. I was a part of all that. We didn't know any better.

"But the old swamp came back. The animals came back. The trees came back. You wouldn't know where the trees were cut."

Will Cox is the acknowledged patriarch of an all but vanished breed, the swamper. His father was a swamper, and so was his grandfather. Jim Cox, who was a swamper back when the soldiers ran the Seminoles out of the Okefenokee.

"Old man Jim Cox lived to be 102. He took a drink of whiskey every day of his life. When he died the church people said they knew all along whiskey would get him sooner or later."

Will Cox's father had a small farm on the edge of the swamp, a few hogs, a turpentine still, a garden, and sold skins and pelts on the side. If was the swamp that beguiled young Will, that 600-square-mile jungle so overpowering that men lost in it have literally gone mad.

From the time he could walk, Will poled homemade rafts along the Okefenokee's maze of water trails, hunting, fishing, living in the swamp for weeks at a time.

When the loggers came in, the 1920s, they built a school on an island in the swamp. Will Cox gave it a try. He remembers only that he did not like it, and that the schoolmarm chewed tobacco.

The swamp became his school.

As a boy of 11 he guided the lumber company's surveyors. When they left and the swamp became a federal preserve, he guided many scientists, who marveled at his knowledge of it.

Will Cox, sad to say, has been ailing lately, recuperating from surgery and unable to get around easily.

There is evidence, though, that his swamping days are not over. His voice is strong, his back straight, his eyes as wet and alive as two brown 'gator holes.

SCORPIO (Oct.24-Nov.22) A responsibility that you failed to attend to properly may rear its ugly head again today. Take measures to resolve it once and for all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) Normally you mix well, but today at a social gathering you could run into someone who exhausts even your tolerance.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan.19) For the sake of harmony at home today, keep buttinskis out of family matters. Enemies will be made if they take sides.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) A domineering, strong-willed associate may try to force his ideas on you today. He's looking for a hassle. Just ignore him.

Suffering from gout

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother, who is 87, is suffering terribly from gout, especially in her big toes. Could you please send me a proper diet for her? What kind of fruits can she have? What can she drink?

DEAR READER — Gout is caused from an overproduction of uric acid by a person's own cells. Uric acid crystals form in the joints causing the painful red, hot big toes that people associate with the gout. Uric acid salts also deposit in joint spaces and cause gouty arthritis. And the uric acid itself is relatively insoluble which may lead to uric acid kidney stones.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid to give you more information about the nature of this disease. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I did not include a special diet to prevent formation of uric acide in this issue because the diet is no longer so important as it was once thought to be.

Since uric acid comes from the nuclei of cells the old idea was to eliminate foods rich in cells that contained the uric acid. The catch is that you can be on a milk diet which contains no cells at all and hence no nuclei and still produce a lot of uric acid from your own cells.

The main idea of diets was to eliminate purines — a complex chemical in cell nuclei that is related to the formation of uric acid in people who have this disorder. This usually resulted in advising patients not to eat any organ meats, specifically kidneys, liver and sweetbreads. This was no great hardship for most people. Then the high purine foods had to be eliminated. These included anchovies, mature bean seeds, bouillon cubes, cauliflower, egg plant, gravies, lentils (the bean family again) mushrooms, oatmeal, sardines and spinach. And for good measure the foods rich in fat were forbidden.

As you can see such a list will not prevent your mother from eating what fruit she wants or drinking any fruit juice she wants either.

It is true that beer, ale or wine will sometimes precipitate an attack of gout but hard liquor does not. That is not a recommendation for hard liquor for your mother however.

Today most cases of high uric acid are controlled by medicines. There are new medicines that help to block the excess formation of uric acid at the cellular level. When a patient tolerates this medicine well it is one of the best choices. It stops the problem at its source. There are other medicines to increase the flushing out of uric acid through the urine and good old colchine for acute painful attacks such as the painful toe. Your mother may need this. She certainly needs to see a doctor and should be followed regularly by one who will treat her gout adequately to avoid acute gouty complications.

The diet today for gout is really directed toward avoiding obesity and heart and vascular disease complications. I would add one precaution, don't let her lose weight too rapidly or fast. Either one can mobilize uric acid from the break down of body cells and cause an acute attack of gout.

CloneBaby Alive, Healthy

NEW YORK (AP)-The boy created from a cell of an unmarried man is "alive, healthy and loved today," according to the author of a book about the purported first cloning of a human baby.

Science writer David M. Rorvik was quoted as affirming the alleged child's status in a statement issued Wednesday by his publisher, J.B. Lippincott Co. The publisher and Rorvik's agent declined to make the writer available for further questions.

Rorvik said in the statement that scientists refined a cell-fusion technique for the alleged cloning instead of using earlier microsurgical techniques in which cells were more easily damaged.

The book "In His Image," originally was scheduled for publication in June but the date was advanced to March 31.

It says that a boy, now 14 months old, was created from a cell of an unidentified, wealthy, unmarried man.

"I have seen the child since his birth," Rorvik asserted in the statement. The statement did not give the child's name or location.

Rorvik declared that the cloning was "a feat achieved by a team with millions of dollars at its disposal." He did not identify the team or say who provided the funding.

Cloning, the process of duplicating living things from an individual cell, has been used in creating plants and a frog, but has never before been attempted with humans. Scientists have expressed doubt that such an achievement as a human cloning would have gone unnoticed in the scientific world.

But a Vermont doctor said Wednesday that Rorvik approached him two years ago to aid an elderly, New Jersey multimillionaire who wanted to create an exact duplicate of himself through cloning.

Dr. Landrum Shettles, a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology who had 27 years of experience in embryology at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York City before he moved to Vermont in 1975, said in a copyrighted story by the Burlington Vermont Free Press that he had told Rorvik that he needed time to do research and find a laboratory. He said he heard no more of the request until the London Times recently asked him about Rorvik.

Shettles said he doesn't doubt Rorvick's story.

"Apparently, I'm about the only one," he said. "From what experience I've had with him, I feel it's an obligation to speak up and express my confidence."

Shettles co-authored a book called "Choosing Your Child's Sex" with Rorvik in 1970.

Edward L. Burlingame, senior vice president and editor-in-chief of Lippincott's adult trade division, said the publisher was not able to autheticate Rorvik's claims because of his pledge to conceal the identities of the participants in the purported cloning.

"The book he proposed to write would inevitably arouse much controversy, but would explore scientific, social, moral and religious issues of great import," Burlingame said. "We believed he would treat these issues in a revealing, responsible manner, and we decided to publish it."

Ambassador To Australia Happy With New Career

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)-U.S. Ambassador Philip H. Alston, pulled down his favorite photograph of Jimmy Carter from the bookshelf. It shows the president in the White House Oval Office with Alston and his wife, Elkin, just before they came to this Australian capital six months ago.

Under the photo the president had written in longhand, "Best wishes to my ambassador and her assistant."

"That really tickled Elkin," he said. "We're so new at this game that my wife tells everyone that I'm only the second ambassador she's ever met."

Alston obviously relishes the anecdote and it reveals a good deal about the 65-year-old Atlanta lawyer and his friendship with the president.

After 42 years practicing law in Atlanta, the graying confidant of Jimmy Carter has started a new career as ambassador here.

"I tell people that my only qualification for being an ambassador is that I'm a friend of the president," he said.

"I see my job in terms of translating the U.S., and the president, to every walk of life in Asutralia."

To that end, Alston, has seen more of Australia in six months than most Australians see in a lifetime.

A twin-engine airplane comes with the job, and the ambassador has so far logged about 25,000 miles touring the outback of Australia, from Darwin in the north, to Alice Springs in the center to Perth on the west coast and to the tropical northern state of Queensland.

Alston says he "didn't know the first thing" about Australia or Australians when he was told of his appointment to Canberra.

"My son was in Vietnam and met some of them and said: 'They're good people'" Alston said. "And Dean Rusk came over and said, 'You'll like everything about Australia, except they are becoming too Americanized.'"

Rusk, former secretary of state, also is a Georgian.

The Alstons say they would rather garden than go to cocktail parties and as a result are seldom seen on the diplomatic circuit in Canberra, which has 70 embassies.

The Alstons' absence from the cocktail circuit fits in well with the ambassador's private beliefs and his president's often expressed distaste for two-martini lunches and overindulgence at official banquets.

"The cocktail party is a dying tool; it can't be effective in 1978," Alston said. "It's an ineffective, wasteful way to do business, and its going to lose favor," he said.

The ambassador added that he prefers to do business with a small, select group.

The Alstons have only had one cocktail party since their arrival and that was on the 4th of July.

Alston, in contrast to some of his predecessors, and despite his wide travels, is hardly known to Australians.

"He doesn't go out and greet the tourist buses like some of the other American ambassadors," said one aide. "He is even a little shy."

The biggest news Alston has made was his decision to advertise the armor-plated embassy 1974 Cadillac for sale in the Canberra Times.

Aides said he considered it "too ostentatious" and preferred a smaller car.

Alston said he is prepared to talk at length about the president to any one who will listen. So far few people want to listen and this puzzles him.

"I'm not quizzed as much as I would have thought. People show very little interest in my assessment of the president. Maybe they know I'm a good friend of the president and that's my principal credential."

In an assessment of the president, Alston said: "He's very interesting, fairly complex and doesn't set about to amuse himself the way a lot of other people do.

"He and the first lady have never been impressed with social life.

"The most important quality is that he's tough - in the finest sense of the word. He can make the hard decision, his concern for people is the motivating force of his life.

"He's criticized often for not involving a lot of people in the decision-making process ... There may be an element of truth there, but he'll have done his homework more thoroughly than anyone. He's the hardest worker I have ever seen."

Alston said he loves his assignment, although he admits doing an on-the-job training course.

"And as for Elkin? As we say in Georgia: She's in hog heaven."

Where To Get Help In Family Planning

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Even though Planned Parenthood does an excellent job, you do your readers a disservice when you refer them only to Planned Parenthood.

There are only 190 Planned Parenthood affiliates in the United States with approximately 650 clinics, so obviously not all communities are served by Planned Parenthood offices.

You would be doing your readers a service to suggest that they check their yellow pages under "Birth Control Information Centers, Clinics and/or Clinics-Abortion."

There are numerous women's health-type centers throughout the country that provide complete gynecological services in many communities where there is no Planned Parenthood, or in some cases in addition to Planned Parenthood.

Such clinics provide reliable, quality health care to women, usually at a lower rate than private physicians, making these services available to women who would otherwise not be able to afford them.

Sign me . . .

HELPFUL IN ORLANDO, FLA.

DEAR HELPFUL: I appreciate the information. Planned Parenthood is not in competition with other reputable birth control centers. (It has even actively encouraged their establishment and funding.)

Planned Parenthood is listed in the telephone books of approximately 70 per cent of the U.S. population, so I suggest that the wise birth control shopper first check for Planned Parenthood in the white pages before scouring the yellow pages. Planned Parenthood has earned a national reputation for the highest medical standards.

DEAR ABBY: For the past few months we have been receiving magazines, books and record albums in the mail. We did not order any of this stuff and have no idea why they are sending it to us. (The bills are enclosed.)

Each time something shows up, I have to pack it up and mail it back to the sender because I don't believe in keeping things that don't belong to me. This is getting to be a real chore. I'm tired of making trips to the post office, but I don't know what else to do. Help!

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: When you receive a package you did not order, mark it "refused" and return it to the post office. (They will assume the responsibility of returning it.)

If you open it, technically you have "accepted" it, and you must then pack it up again if you want to return it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: "Teenagers, Go Home" was written by Doris Burville of Olympia, Wash. She wrote it for the Hibbing (Minn.) Daily Tribune in 1955. Within months, it began appearing in magazines and newspapers all over the United States—and even abroad!

The author's name was never mentioned until the Reader's Digest reprinted the piece and gave her credit plus a check for $80 which, by the way, was the only remuneration Doris has ever received for that fine piece.

Beer Kin To Risen Bread

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- "Beer is liquid bread," says Gustav W. Chyba, brewmaster of Anheuser-Busch's new 16-acre brewery in Fairfield, Calif., east of here.

Although nutritionists say that isn't literally true, records indicate that many cultures believed the relationship between beer and risen bread to be more than just nodding.

Anthropologists have interpreted inscriptions on clay tablets dating back to Babylonia in 6,000 B.C. as showing the preparation of a simple beer, a crude variation of the process of beer making today-alcoholic fermentation of a grain, plus favorings.

In Egypt of the Pharoahs, beer was considered important in daily diet. The daily food allotment of ordinary people of the time included four loaves of bread and two jugs of beer. Mothers delivered lunch - including beer - to their sons in school.

In China 2,300 years before Christ the peasants called their beer "kiu." The ancient Incas, long before the discovery of South America, even had light and heavy beers, which they called either "chicha" or "sora."

The classical Greeks kept careful records of their beer-making and described recipes that spread to Rome. Beer is believed to have been discovered independently in Northern Europe.

Columbus is said to have been given Indian beer on the Central American coast. Made of corn, it was considered a cousin of the beverage known to North American Indians for many years.

Reference works claim that the Pilgrims fleeing England in the Mayflower in 1620 suffered an emergency of the first order and chose Plymouth to start their New World.

A manuscript dated 1622 read "...for we could not now take time for further search or consideration, our victuals being much spent, especially our beer..."

The city of Fort Myers, Fla., is located on the banks of the Caloosahatchee River, 15 miles upstream from the Gulf of Mexico. The city takes its name from a fort which was built in 1839 and was named for Col. Abraham C. Myers, quartermaster for the military district of Florida.
