Reese, ATC respond to Desert Shield

In response to events in the Middle East, Air Training Command and Reese have shifted into high gear preparing the command for taskings in support of Operation Desert Shield.

As of Aug. 31, the command had been tasked for about 400 people. So far, ATC has sent 148 people to the area, of which eight have come from Reese. Another 208 are awaiting final orders to go, according to Col. Hans Asmus, director of readiness at ATC headquarters.

ATC has about 7,000 people on mobility status who could be sent at a moment's notice, he said. However, it's possible ATC's share of Desert Shield support may include some who aren't currently on mobility status.

Such was the case for 14 information management people who carried the postal Air Force specialty code from a previous assignment. "We provided the 14 with mobility training and disaster preparedness training over the weekend," the colonel said. "This is a real world situation and we need to be flexible."

Lt. Gen. Joe Ashy, ATC commander, first convened the ATC battle staff Aug. 10 to support Desert Shield. It has since been meeting on a regular basis. Colonel Asmus said the ATC taskings come from U.S. Central Command and "can change very quickly. Our requirements are dictated by the situation, which could and does change at a moment's notice.

The command's battle staff, headed by Maj. Gen. Sam Westbrook, deputy of chief for operations and readiness, is working around the clock to ensure ATC's response is immediate if that's what the taskings call for, the colonel said.

ATC's battle staff includes experts in war planning, readiness, intelligence, communications, logistics, personnel, security police and medicine.

"The commander and senior ATC staff are intricately involved in all taskings," Colonel Asmus explained.

The command's ability to quickly support Desert Shield taskings is a credit to the way all ATC units exercise their mobility taskings, said June Spencer, a planner in ATC's war plans division.

"We've been planning, training and exercising for this type of contingency for many years. We're ready," she said. "The realistic training has paid off."

The realistic threat of chemical weapons use in the Desert Shield operations area gives disaster preparedness training added

IP's quick action recovers aircraft

by Sgt. Greg Spraggins
64th FTW Public Affairs Division

The quick thinking of a Reese instructor pilot enabled him to save a million-dollar aircraft and earned him the 64th Flying Training Wing Quarterly Individual Flying Safety Award.

First Lt. Steve Collins, 52nd Flying Training Squadron, received the award during the monthly wing awards ceremony Aug. 31. (See "Reese Achievers," page 7, for information on other award winners).

Lieutenant Collins was instructing a T-38 no-flap, touch-and-go landing June 20 when the right engine compressor stalled. Lieutenant Collins decided to continue the takeoff. After climbing safely away from the ground he pulled the right throttle to idle until the engine recovered.

Lieutenant Collins flew a "flawless" single-engine full stop, according to Capt. Tim Phillips,

Commissary launching improvement initiatives

Supported by a team of consumer marketing experts from Air Force Commissary Service, the Reese Commissary is working to improve customer service by increasing product availability and visibilty.

Lila Andermatt, commissary officer, said Reese officials asked AFCOMS Central Region for a staff assistance visit to help upgrade the store's overall operation.

"We recognized that just saving people an average of 25 percent over retail stores isn't enough," said Mrs. Andermatt. "We have to provide service across the board that is equal to that of the top retail stores."

Frank Wasinger, AFCOMS management specialist, said that the staff assistance team's efforts concentrated on improving product availability and visibility.

To improve product availability, the commissary management has been working with various vendors to ensure products remain in stock.

"We have already had face-to-face sessions with several suppliers," said 1st Lt William McNeill, store manager, "We are working out reordering and delivery procedures that should be more responsive to our needs."

Product visibility is being enhanced through a variety of procedures.

"One of the first things we did was to replace about 200 lights," said Ms. Andermatt. "The whole store looks brighter and it's much easier to see products—especially those on lower shelves."

Another change is in the way certain products are displayed.

Mr. Wasinger said customers should see the most dramatic difference in canned goods. "We are reorganizing the shelves so that customer-preferred products have higher visibility," he said. "We are also putting like products together."

As an example, Mr. Wasinger pointed out that the canned pasta section has been expanded to showcase the items customers want. Across the aisle, the canned meat section has been revamped to put specific types of meat, such as canned chicken, in one location.

Although the reorganization process has only been underway for

From my perspective

by Col. John Block
64th FTW deputy commander for Operations

We are winding up another fiscal year of flying activities, and once again Reese instructors and student pilots have maintained their superb safety record—in the air and on the ground. The latest statistics show Reese was the third busiest "airport" in the Air Force—the ninth busiest in the United States. Again this year, we logged over 550,000 accident-free takeoffs and landings.

This was no small accomplishments, and it didn't happen because we were just "lucky." It was the result of direct attention to detail, awareness of rules and regulations, and the inherent discipline to follow those rules and regulations.

Several years ago, Air Training Command experienced a rough period of flying mishaps. The safety investigations revealed some of the mishaps could have been attributable to an erosion of flying discipline and just plain lack of common sense. Gen. Thomas Ryan, then ATC commander laid out some no-nonsense truths about the flying training business that are easy to understand and essential to live by.

❑ The first truth about flying training is that we have a large number of rules, regulations, directives and procedures that govern our flying operations. These rules and regulations are the foundation for how flying operations must be conducted.

One only has to look at an instructor pilot's desk or a student's locker to see the immense volume of directives which make up this foundation. It is pure common sense that rules and regulations exist and are necessary for safe flying operations.

❑ The second truth addresses responsibility. Simply put, it is the responsibility of instructor pilots to teach the rules and regulations to their students. It is the responsibility of the students to learn the rules and regulations from their instructors.

It is the responsibility of every pilot to properly and prudently apply the rules and regulations.

❑ The third truth kicks in whenever there is a disregard for the second truth—pilots who cannot apply the rules and regulations, or even more serious, pilots who will not apply the rules and regulations, will not fly our aircraft. Pilots—any members of the Air Force team—who do not act responsibly will be held accountable for their performance.

Common sense, responsibility and accountability are the hallmarks of safe flying operations here at Reese and across the Air Force. No matter if it's in the air or on the ground, on duty or off duty, at work or at leisure, it is always your job to apply common sense, act responsibly, or be held accountable for your actions.

At Reese, we all share a sense of pride in our flying training operations and in our pilot product. We have set high standards for conduct, and we have led the way in establishing an excellent image. I ask for your continued day-to-day effort to keep that image high!

COMSEC

You never know who may be listening

by Tyree Marshall Jr.
1958th COMM

DO NOT DISCUSS CLASSIFIED INFORMATION
THIS TELEPHONE IS SUBJECT TO
MONITORING AT ALL TIMES. USE OF THIS TELEPHONE CONSTITUTES CONSENT TO MONITORING

The information above is printed on the red label attached to the front of every official Department of Defense telephone. DD Form 2056, "Telephone Monitoring Notification Decal," warns people that their telephone is subject to communications security telephone monitoring and recording.

COMSEC telephone monitoring is conducted on official telephone systems to determine the amount of classified information and information of intelligence value being revealed over unprotected telephone systems.

DOD-owned or leased telephones and telephone systems are subject to COMSEC telephone monitoring, per DOD Directive 4640.6 and Air Force Regulation 56-8. Use of official DOD telephones and telephone systems constitutes consent by the user to COMSEC telephone monitoring.

The Electronics Security Command is the only Air Force organization authorized to perform communications security monitoring of telephone systems used by the Air Force.

Personal privacy information inadvertently obtained while monitoring official telecommunications will not be recorded, reported or filed. This information will be promptly destroyed. PPI is any item, collection or grouping of information about an individual's private or personal affairs which is not job related.

The following are examples of unclassified intelligence disclosures obtained primarily over unsecure telephone lines:

❑ Scenarios and after-action report inputs for individual units participating in a major exercise. This includes mission effectiveness.

❑ Airdrops and unit deployments, drop zone locations, time over targets, and specific cargo.

❑ Call signs.

❑ Detailed B-1/B-52 operations.

❑ E-3 air defense communications requirements and problem areas.

❑ Refueling operations for fighters and bombers.

These are just a few of the disclosures picked up and recorded by ESC telephone monitoring teams. Do some of them look familiar to you? Are unfriendly ears listening in on your unsecure telephone conversations? You bet they are!

Think about it. Do you remember that last exercise when you just didn't have time to go to a secure telephone? The boss wanted the information now. You knew it was sensitive, but it really wasn't classified unless associated with the "code word."

Maybe you attempted to disguise the information, thinking no one will ever figure it out. Wrong.

Their linguists know American culture better than many of us do. Trying to disguise or talk around sensitive or classified information will not fool these experts.

Despite all the COMSEC educational products produced during recent years, people still ignore the fact that the common administrative telephone is our weakest security link. Americans like to talk. We like to brag about our jobs. We try to impress people with what we know. The telephone is there, it's fast, and it's more personal than sending a message.

Just remember, if you like to talk, especially about official information, chances are there will be a "third person" listening in on your conversation.

If you must discuss sensitive or classified information, use a secure telephone unit.

Living wills

Planning ahead can help you avoid displeasing fate

by Maj. Richard Willis
64th Flying Training Wing Hospital administrator

Recently there's been a great deal of interest shown by many people in living wills.

This interest is undoubtedly prompted by several recent television programs and by last month's Cruzan vs. the Director of the Missouri Department of Health Supreme Court ruling.

The Supreme Court held that a verbal statement made by the patient, Nancy Cruzan, to a friend prior to lapsing into a coma was insufficient to meet the state's standard requiring "clear and convincing evidence" of a patient's wishes.

As a result, Nancy Cruzan, who doctors say may live in a vegetative state for 30 more years, will continue to receive nutrition and hydration through feeding tubes at a nursing home in Missouri.

If the thought of such an existence is displeasing to you, there is something you can do to avoid it. You can execute a living will.

In Texas, clear and convincing evidence of your desire to terminate life-sustaining procedures if you are in a terminal condition, should be documented. This can be done by signing a Directive to Physicians—better known as a living will.

The Reese Legal Office has made executing such a will very easy through a pre-printed form, which a person merely dates and signs in front of two non-related witnesses. Members will want to complete at least two of these forms—one to be placed in their medical records at the base hospital, and another to be kept in a safe place and/or with a close relative. It's as easy as that.

The living will forms are available at the legal office, 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital Patient Administration Office and in the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Retiree Affairs Office.

Try to prevent them from happening
EMERGENCY!
Know how to react if they do happen

by MSgt. Roy Napper
Reese Fire Department

Tragedies don't always have to occur, but they sometimes do.

During June, a house fire at another base claimed the life of an airman. A motorist passing by the airman's home noticed a lot of smoke coming from the house, with visible flames coming out of a window. Shortly afterwards, the local fire department was notified and arrived on the scene at 10:35 p.m.

Upon entering the house, the firefighters discovered that the fire was concentrated in the kitchen area and that smoke was building up throughout the house. The firefighters then conducted a search of the house and found the airman lying on the living room floor.

The airman was removed from the house, but the firefighters' attempts to revive him were unsuccessful.

Following further investigation, it was revealed that the airman had been visited by a friend earlier that evening, and an undetermined amount of beer was consumed by both individuals.

After the friend left, the airman decided to cook something to eat. Then he apparently went to the living room to watch television and fell asleep as the food continued to cook.

A combination of unattended cooking, alcohol and the lack of smoke detectors were the primary causes of this mishap.

This can happen to anyone who does not use the fire prevention practices we all are taught.

Each home in Reese Village has smoke detectors installed in them.

Members need to remember to test them monthly and immediately report any defects. Members living off base should ensure that their houses have smoke detectors and should also check them on a regular basis.

As indicated from past articles, unattended cooking is one of the leading causes of home fires in the Air Force. If we all work together, we can avoid becoming a statistic also. For more information, call 3686.

Don't panic!

When a fire or emergency occurs it is very difficult to keep from getting excited. But, if you remain calm, it will be easier to think clearly.

Make sure you have a sticker on each telephone, listing the emergency numbers for fire, security police, and the hospital —911.

The building or quarters address should also be added to the telephone sticker. If you do not have proper stickers, the Reese Fire Department has some available.

Report all fires or emergencies immediately. If the fire is small, report it first, then try to extinguish it. If the fire is large, get everyone moving out of the building and then report it.

Provide correct information

The following information is necessary when reporting an emergency:

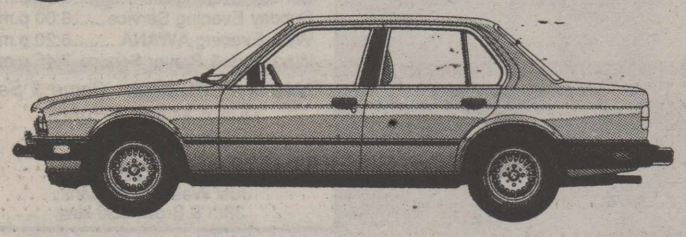

- ❑ Tell the dispatcher the type of emergency assistance required, such as fire, medical aid or police assistance.
- ❑ Give building number, address or a prominent landmark.
- ❑ Give your name.
- ❑ Give the phone number you are calling from.
- ❑ Stay on the line to answer any questions. Do not hang up until told to do so.
- ❑ Speak slowly and clearly—hurrying causes mistakes and misunderstandings.
- ❑ Have a person at the street to guide the fire department to the scene when they arrive.

Before sounding a fire alarm when in a base installation, call the fire department by dialing 911. This rings at the command post and they will connect the line to the fire department.

After calling 9-1-1, activate the building alarm. The RED pull boxes are for this purpose only. Do not use them to hang items or cover them up in any way.

Members need to remember that it is essential to notify the fire department immediately. A delay in calling the fire department at another base, recently caused serious damage and destruction of two family housing units.

Car fatalities decreasing nationwide

Seatbelts, fewer drunk drivers play key roles

During last year, the United States' record-low traffic death rate, spurred by more safety belt use and a decline in alcohol-related deaths, closed out the most significant decade in the history of U.S. efforts to reduce crash casualties, said Jerry Curry of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"The 1989 fatality rate dipped to 2.2 deaths per 100 million miles of travel," Mr. Curry said. "That's a remarkable improvement from the 3.3 figure that was registered 10 years earlier.

Reese experienced one fatality in fiscal 1989 and none so far in fiscal 1990, according to the Reese Safety Division. Failure to use seatbelts and fatigue were the main contributors in the 1989 fatality.

"Particularly encouraging of these low rates was the declining trend in alcohol-related deaths following the anti-drunk driving emphasis that typified the decade," said SSgt. Anthony Stone of safety.

The NHTSA and Reese safety officials cited the public's growing acceptance of safety belt use as an important trend in the 1980s.

Only 11 percent of Americans used safety belts in 1982. In seven years, the rate increased to 47 percent nationwide, due in part to the increasing number of states with seatbelt laws, according to Jon Hataway of Reese safety.

Describing the 1980s as the decade when America began to take the traffic crash problem seriously, Mr. Curry said those years should be remembered for:

- ❑ The lives saved by a declining death rate.
- ❑ Reinforcement of the long-term drop in traffic deaths.
- ❑ Safety belt and child safety seat use, credited with saving more than 21,000 lives between 1983 and 1989.
- ❑ The effect of anti-drunk driving programs on young people.

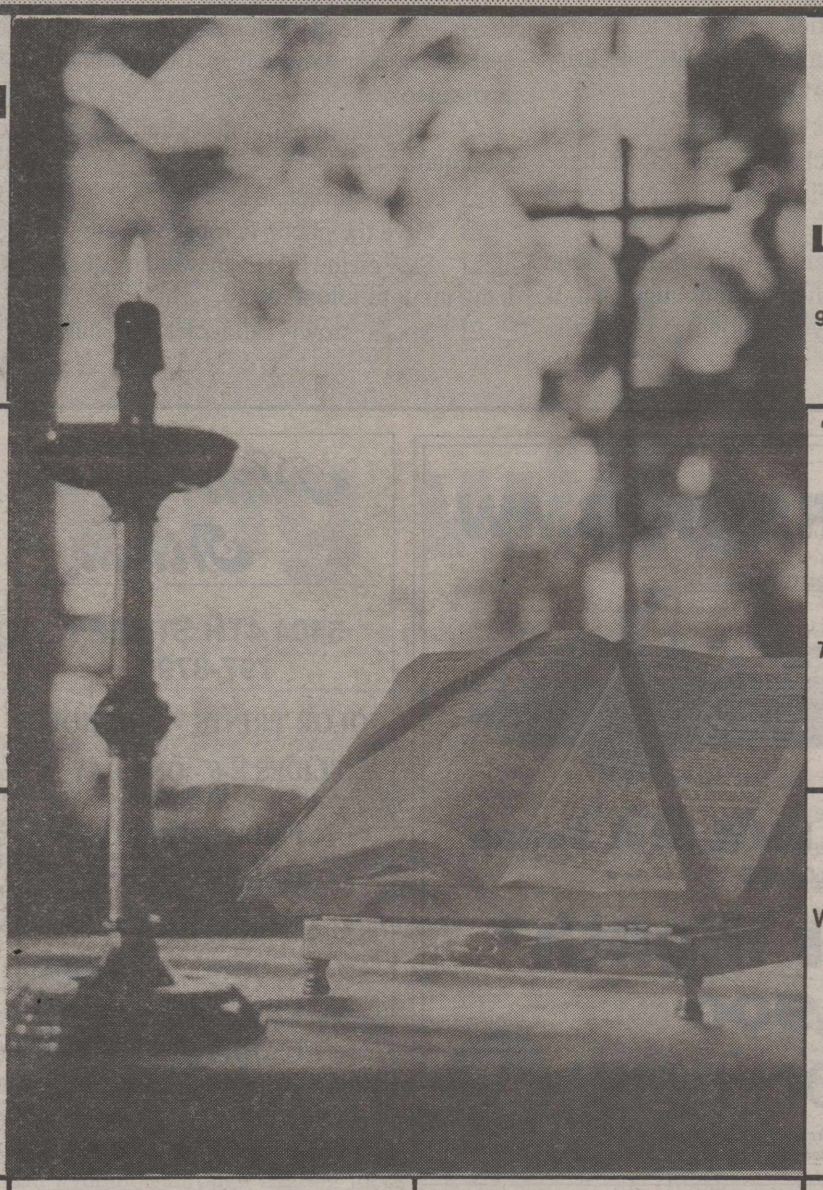

Those years are also remembered for opening the door to greater achievements in the 1990s, such as:

- ❑ Every new passenger car now sold in America must be equipped with an approved crash protection system (operating belts or air bags).
- ❑ Anti-drunk and drugged driving efforts will emphasize relatively new strategies that should reduce alcohol-related accidents still more. Among these are "on-the-spot" administrative license revocation for drunk drivers, lower blood alcohol limits, more severe sanctions for drunk driving convictions, expanded use of sobriety checkpoints and testing drivers for the presence of drugs as well as alcohol. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Airmen now eligible to apply for housing

Local policy put into effect Aug. 28

Airmen in grades E-1 through E-3 now have the opportunity to apply for housing in Reese Village.

The change is the result of a decision at Air Staff to give local commanders the authority to open housing to airmen at their discretion.

Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, approved a local policy Aug. 28 allowing previously ineligible Reese members to apply for housing.

Once they apply, members will be placed on their respective waiting list. The move is another quality-of-life improvement that Reese airmen can take advantageof, according to officials in the Reese Housing Office.

All airmen who are affected by the change and want to apply for a unit should stop by the housing office and fill out an application. For more information, call the housing office at 3912.

Happy Birthday!

Celebration set for service's 43rd

Reese will observe the Air Force's 43rd birthday on Sept. 22 with a celebration in the Officers' Open Mess.

The event, which is open to all military and family members as well as civilians on base, will get underway with a social hour at 6 p.m. Dinner will follow at 7 p.m., and consist of ribeye steak, baked potato, green beans and salad.

Top officials from the base and local communities will be on hand for the event. Scheduled speakers for the celebration are Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, and Lubbock Mayor B.C. "Peck" McMinn.

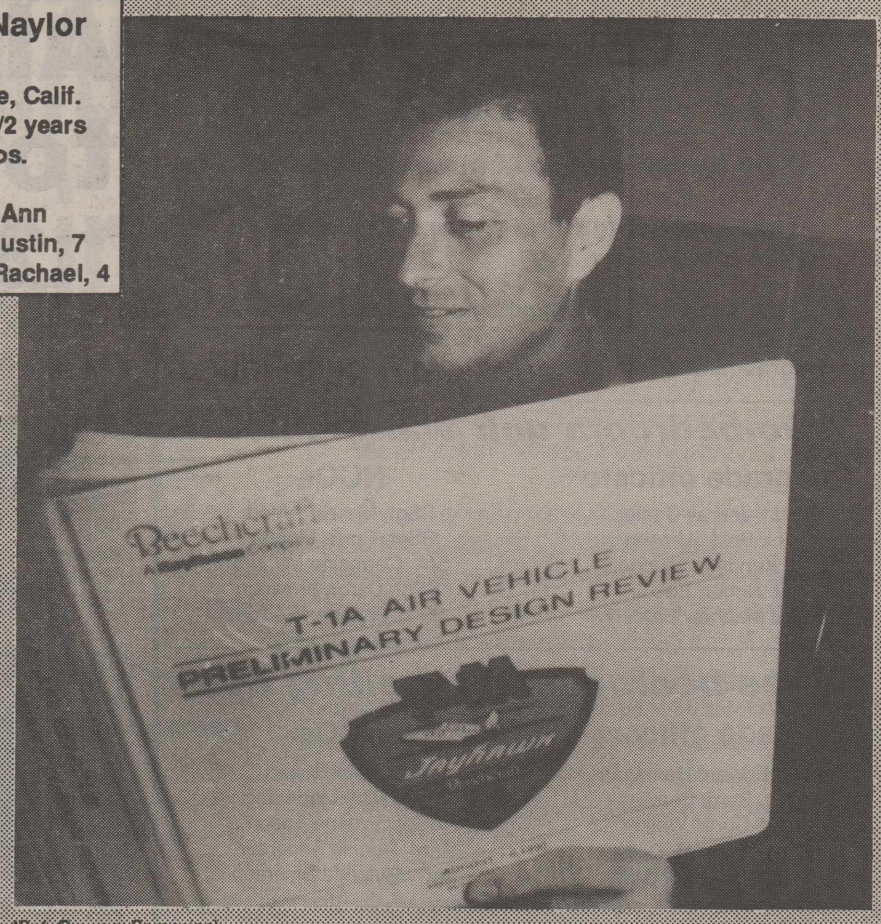

Dress for the evening will be mess dress for military members, and coat and tie for civilians. Cost for the event is $11; R.S.V.P.s are due by Wednesday to 2nd Lt. Curt Locke, 3520, or SSgt. Aliane Glenn, 3640.

For family members who want to attend, the Reese Child Development Center will be open from 6 p.m. to midnight that evening. Reservations for the night should be made with the center by Sept. 17. People using their club cards will receive a discount for child care.

Reese achievers

(Editor's note: "Reese Achievers," published the first Friday of each month, is based on inputs from units and individuals on Reese. Any unit or individual who has received an award or commendation should contact the Roundup at "64th FTW/PA, stop 9." Deadline for each month's column is noon the Tuesday before publication)

Accounting NCO 'aces' CDCs

A member of the Reese Accounting and Finance Office got a 100 on his Career Development Course examination.

SSgt. Edwin Forrest is the first person to accomplish this feat in more than three years at Reese, according to the Reese Consolidated Training Office. Assigned to the AFO Paying and Collecting Section, Sergeant Forrest had to study five volumes of material to prepare for the examination.

The sergeant has been in accounting for five-and-one-half years, and he's been at Reese for five years.

Honor Guard member cited

A1C Philip Maas, 64th Supply Squadron, earned honors as the best member of the Reese Honor Guard for July.

Airman Maas performed nine details during the month — during his nine-month tenure in the honor guard, he's been part of 41 details. Honor guard officials credited him with being "the general flag bearer for the 64th Flying Training Wing change of command ceremony."

33rd FTS member named DG

Capt. Mark Schnoes, 33rd Flying Training Squadron, was selected as a distinguished graduate from Squadron Officer School Class 90-E. The captain ranked in the top 6 percent of the class based on his evaluation in the four phases of training: academics, writing, speaking and leadership.

Civilians reach milestones

Four wing members recently passed their 10-year mark of working in the civil service. They are:

❑ The 64th Air Base Group's Pauline Reed arrived at Reese in March 1981. She currently works as the Officers' Open Mess manager.

❑ Noma Riley, 64th Supply Squadron, has been here since May 1984. She currently works as a supply clerk.

❑ The 64th Services Squadron's Howard Teaff arrived at Reese in June 1984, and now works as a billeting clerk. Mr. Teaff previously served in the Navy.

❑ Linda Vest, a systems analyst for SUPS, has been at Reese since September 1980.

NCO earns safety award

A member of the 64th Mission Support Squadron has captured the Ground Safety Award for the past quarter.

SSgt. Karen Montague, Reese Professional Military Education Center instructor, was cited by the Reese Safety Division for several initiatives during the quarter.

"While the PME center was undergoing renovation, Sergeant Montague developed a special training program for all the students," said Jon Hataway of safety. "She ensured that the students were familiar with all the hazards associated with the renovation."

In addition, the sergeant did a display during Mission Enhancement Week that highlighted common safety hazards. The display was posted at the main gate.

Safety officials also noted that the PME center has been accident free for the past three quarters.

Degree earned by Bootstrap

Sgt. Shiek Saheb, formerly a member of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron, recently received his bachelor of science degree in management through Park College.

Sergeant Saheb was granted a permissive temporary-duty assignment for Bootstrap, which enabled him to attend school full time and finish his degree.

Local news

Voucher box established

A 24-hour drop box for accounting vouchers has been placed at the rear entrance of Bldg. 800. The box has been placed there by Reese Accounting and Finance Office especially for people who are here frequently on temporary-duty assignments.

Instructions are located on the side of the box. In addition, a box is also located in the AFO Military Pay/Travel Customer Service Section inside Bldg. 800. For details, call 6323.

Heir force

A 64th Mission Support Squadron family has a new member. Kady Lynn Copeland, daughter of Sgt. Scottie and Jessica Copeland, was born Aug. 21 in University Medical Center in Lubbock. She weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces.

Vehicle problems

Anyone with any questions or concerns about support from the vehicle operations contractor on base can fill out an Air Force Form 714 and send it to the Reese Transportation division at "LGT, stop 22;" or they can call 3357/3358.

Correction

In the Aug. 31 Roundup, a photo accompanying the article on the Reese Spouse Employment Program incorrectly identified Carrie Berry as Beth Moltzar.

The Roundup apologizes for the error.

Command news

Coffeemakers recalled

Several types of discontinued coffeemakers are being voluntarily recalled by Proctor-Silex because of a potential fire hazard.

The affected models include:

❑ Proctor-Silex with model numbers that begin with A4 or A5, and series numbers that end with 58 or 68.

❑ Sears Counter Craft/Kenmore models 360.480293 and 360.480272 (list digit may vary).

❑ J.C. Penny models 784-2178H (or G) and a "C" number ending in 58 or 68.

Coffeemakers made after 1985 (these have model numbers ending A6) are not being recalled. The only affected model which was carried by the Army-Air Force Exchange Service has long been discontinued.

People with affected coffeemakers should stop using them immediately; they are not repairable. For details on return them and get reimbursement, call 1-800-341-3333.

Desert Shield inquiries

Air Force members responding to inquiries of any kind about Operation Desert Shield should be especially conscious of security and policy issues, cautioned Reese and Air Force Military Personnel Center officials.

These general guidelines should be observed:

❑ Wing members should refer calls from news media representatives and the public requesting general information about Desert Shield, or offering support or assistance of any kind, to the Reese Public Affairs Division at 3410.

❑ Refer calls from individuals stating they are family members of individuals who may be deployed in support of Desert Shield to the individual's unit orderly room. If the callers require further assistance, orderly room personnel should refer them to the appropriate base agency.

❑ Family members of individuals deployed in support of Desert Shield may be contacted directly by members of the news media. They may talk directly to the media, but should be cautious about providing information about deployed individuals or units. For advice, assistance or guidance, they should call the Reese Public Affairs Division at 3410. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Positions open at Laughlin

Applications for the following positions at Laughlin AFB, Texas, are now being accepted: aircraft attendant (WG-7), aircraft engine repairer (WG-8), aircraft ordnance systems repairer (egress) (WG-8/10), electronic measurement equipment mechanic (WG-10/11), fabric worker (WG-7/8), machinist (WG-8/10) and nondestructive tester (WG-6/9).

Applications are being taken from potentially qualified persons with federal employment status. Non-status applicants will be considered for the aircraft maintenance vacancies. For details, call the Reese Civilian Personnel Office at 3801.

Customs affect shipments

People shipping alcohol overseas as household goods or unaccompanied baggage could have problems bringing them back, according to the Reese Traffic Management Office.

According to TMO, there have been instances where members have shipped alcohol overseas (such as a wine collection), fully intending to bring the items back with them. Custom regulations can cause inconvenience as well as financial loss to the member in such cases.

For details on how to handle such shipments, call TMO at 3836/3944.

That Abdominal Pain
Or Bulge Under The Skin
Could Be A Hernia!

A Hernia can be a serious – even life – threatening problem.

If you have abdominal pain with activity, notice a bulge under the skin or hurt when you try to lift something – you may have a Hernia. Don't postpone finding out!

The Southwest Center for Hernia Repair features the Shouldice – type Hernia Repair method. This allows for an affordable procedure, with a shorter hospital stay, quicker recovery and even less chance of recurrence.

It all means less time away from work. Patients usually return to work within one week and within 4 weeks where heavy lifting is required.

Call today for more information about the Shouldice – type Hernia Repair method at the Southwest Center for Hernia Repair.

Annual photography contest set for Oct. 2

The Reese Arts and Crafts Center is sponsoring its 1990 Reese photography contest Oct. 2.

Contest entries can be turned in to the center, Bldg. 340, Sept. 26-30. Entries will be accepted beforehand from members who will be on leave, changing station or on a temporary-duty assignment during the submission time.

The contest is open to all wing members and their families. However, only active-duty members' entries will be forwarded for Air Training Command competition Nov. 2 at Columbus AFB, Miss.

The competition will feature three categories: monochrome (black and white) prints; color prints; and color transparencies or slides.

"Contestants may submit a maximum of three entries in each category, and once entries are submitted, they cannot be withdrawn until officially released from the competition," said Terry Bozman, center director.

The judging will be based on the following guidelines:

- ❑ First reaction or emotion.
- ❑ Creativity of approach.
- ❑ Story-telling abilities.
- ❑ The technical skill or quality of print and presentation.
- ❑ Overall sharpness.
- ❑ Graininess of print.
- ❑ Overall contrast.

"Photos unsuitable for public display will be withdrawn, as will any photos with incomplete entry forms," said Mr. Bozman. Model release forms must also be signed by identifiable individuals who appear in any photos that were not taken in a public area.

Plaques will be presented for first- through third-place winners in each category and for best of show.

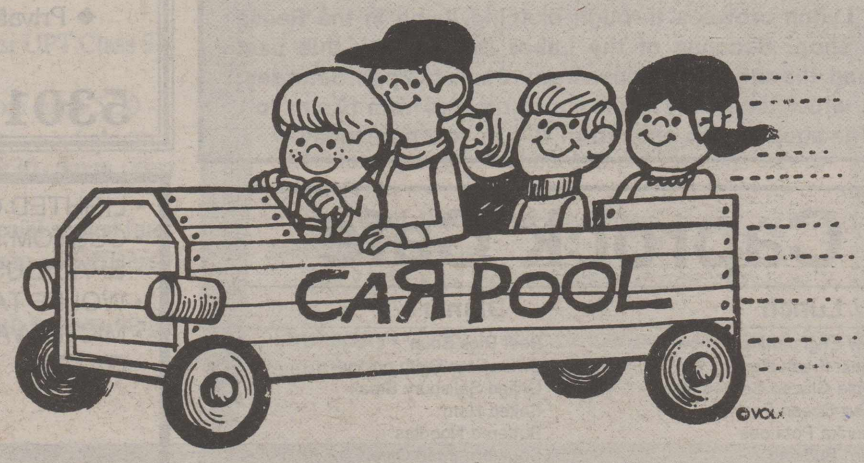

Entry forms and information packets are available at the center 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday; and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. For information, call Mr. Bozman at 3141.

BACK TO BASICS

Getting to know your back

Your back is the main supporting structure of your entire body. Along with your muscles and joints, it allows you to move (sit, stand, bend, etc.) and to bear weight. But the back is also a delicate, finely balanced structure that can be easily injured if we don't care for it properly. Knowing the basics of back care can make the difference between a healthy back and an aching one!

A Healthy Back

The back (or spinal column) is composed of twenty-four moveable bones called vertebrae. Between each vertebra is a cushion-like pad called a disc which absorbs shock. These vertebrae and discs are supported by ligaments and muscles which keep the back properly aligned in three balanced curves. When any of these various parts becomes diseased, injured, or deconditioned, back problems and pain are almost certain to follow.

A Balanced Back

A healthy back is a balanced back—your cervical (neck), thoracic (chest), and lumbar (lower back) curves are all properly aligned. (You know your back is aligned properly when your ears, shoulders, and hips are "stacked" in a straight line.) A healthy back is also protected and supported by flexible "elastic" discs and well-conditioned muscles.

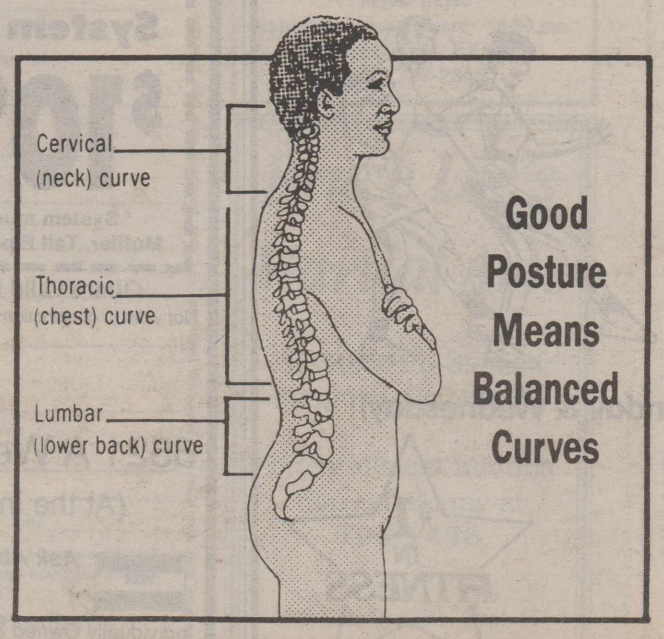

An Aching Back

A number of physical conditions, such as curvature of the spine (scoliosis), arthritis, and herniated (ruptured) discs, can cause back pain, but the majority of backaches are due to poor posture and weak supporting muscles. Improper posture places excess stress on the spinal column. Over time, poor posture can lead to sudden or recurrent back pain. Weak muscles contribute to, and are often responsible for, poor posture since they cannot adequately support the spinal column.

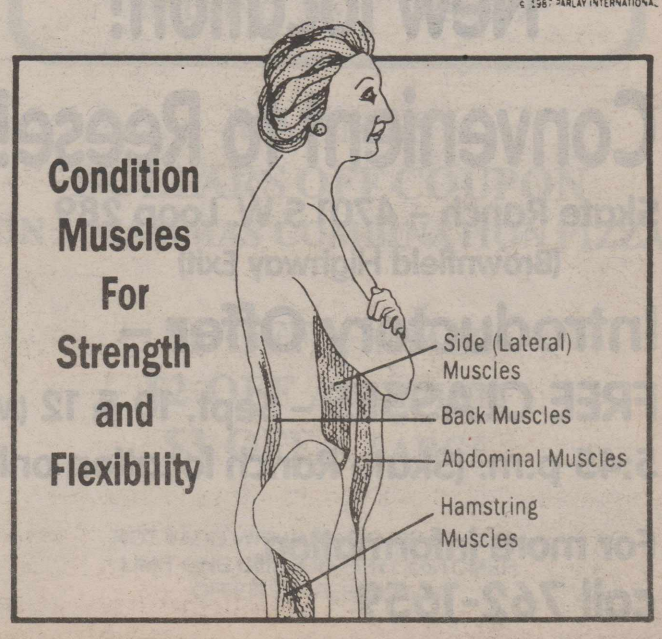

Preventive Back Care

Once you understand how your back works, and what can go wrong, you're ready to start taking care of your back—for the health of it. By using proper posture (when you sit, stand, lift, recline, and move) and by exercising the muscles that support your back, you can prevent the most common causes of back aches. The result is freedom from back pain, and a stronger, healthier back.

'Thrill' Gill leads Tech

Texas Tech quarterback Jamie "Thrill" Gill drops back to pass against the Texas Longhorns. Tech's come from behind upset of Texas in Austin helped Gill earn his nickname and paced Tech to one of its best seasons (9-3) ever. Tech plays its first home game Thursday night. Discount tickets for the game are available at the Mathis Recreation Center.

ITT has discount tickets for Tech vs. Houston

By MSgt. Ralph Monson
managing editor

Texas Tech hosts the Houston Cougars Thursday in a matchup of Southwest Conference powers.

Discount tickets ($13 each) for the game are available at the Mathis Recreation Center's Information, Ticket and Tour office.

Tickets for the 7 p.m. Houston game will be available at the ITT office until noon Wednesday. After that, tickets may be purchased at the regular game price ($15) at the Tech ticket office at the north end of Jones Stadium.

Both teams open season play this weekend. Tech travels to Ohio State to take on the nationally ranked Buckeyes. That game will be aired on local television at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. It is the first time a Tech team has played a squad from the Big 10.

The Cougars are expected to have a much easier time against the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

Raider head coach Spike Dykes says the Houston game should be one of the most exciting matchups of the season.

Both teams sport outstanding quarterbacks. Jamie "Thrill" Gill is the top rated returning starter in the SWC and Houston's David Klinger earned an even higher rating as a reserve behind Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware. Last year Klinger threw more touchdowns mopping up for Ware than five SWC starters.

The Red Raiders have lots of talent in the backfield with Anthony Lynn and Louis Sheffield. Don't be suprized if true freshman Donald Marshall also gets the call. At reciever, Tech features speedsters Anthony Manyweather, Rodney Blackshear and JUCO transfer Anthony Stinnett.

Houston counters with the nation's best pass/run combination -- Emanuel Hazard and Chuck Weatherspoon. Hazard led the nation in receiveing last year and Weatherspoon was third best nationally in total offense combining 1,146 yards rushing with 735 yards receiving. Both are legitimate Heisman candidates.

Defensively, the Red Raiders could be dominating. The linbacking and secondary may be the best back seven in the conference with cornerback Sammy Walker and linebacker Charles Rowe expected to contend for the Jim Thorpe and Butkus Awards respectively.

The defensive line, bolstered by JUCO transfer Fred Petty, looks much better than expected.

Reggie Burnette leads the Cougar defense at linebacker. The Cougars ranked in the top 25 defensively last year and are suspect only in the secondary, where three starters are gone.

For more information about all Tech home game tickets call the ITT office at 3787.

a few days, customers are already noticing the changes. During an informal poll of shoppers Wednesday, 80 percent said they noticed improvements in stocking and store appearance.

"The store is much brighter and I was able to find more of the items I have coupons for," said Sheila Long. "The canned vegetable section looks fuller."

Henry Kee, an Army retiree, said he saw a major improvement in the availability of canned items.

While pleased with the progress to date, Lieutenant McNeill noted that there is still a lot of work to be done. "It will take 30 to 45 days for us to get all of the vendors on track and be really confident that we won't be running out of items."

"We also have several projects that will require some renovation," he said, "such as adding a packaged fresh fish section."

Ms. Andermatt concluded that customer feedback remains the best way for the commissary staff to determine what their customers want. She encouraged commissary patrons to stop by her office and share any ideas on how to improve service.

52nd FTS B-Flight safety officer.

"Lieutenant Collins' exceptional flying ability and safety consciousness meshed beautifully to recover both the aircraft and the crew in a safe and timely manner," said Captain Phillips.

"I did what any other instructor pilot here would have done," said Lieutenant Collins. "It's part of being an instructor. We practice emergency procedures daily," he said, "and we know what to do."

importance and emphasis, Ms. Spencer said. "Using chemical gear is continually trained, practiced and evaluated."

The majority of people in mobility status are from fields like preparedness, medical, security police, services, transportation and civil engineering.

Also participating are two teams of survival instructors from 3636th Combat Crew Training Wing from the Air Force Survival School at Fairchild AFB, Wash.

The teams were dispatched to conduct refresher training in desert and water survival for Air Force and Army units in Oregon, Texas and Georgia. (Adapted from ATC News Service)
