Essair About Set To Start Service Here

ASSURANCE that Lubbock would have airline service "by early 1945, if not sooner," was given Lubbock Chamber of Commerce officials and members of the City Airport board Friday afternoon by H. N. Sweeney, traffic manager, and R. B. Claggett, personal representative of Major W. F. Long, president of Essair, Inc., with headquarters in Dallas.

Essair has a temporary certificate of operation from the Civil Aeronautics board, for an airline from Amarillo to Houston via Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo, and Austin, carrying passengers, air mail and express.

Ironing Out Details

Institution of the service depends upon ironing out of details and technicalities regarding operations, equipment, schedules, landing points, etc., with the Civil Aeronautics administration. All details are expected to be cleared for starting of service as soon as possible, maybe within 45 to 60 days.

Allocation of two planes for the route has been approved and the planes, Lockheed 10A's (Electras), and engineering work required for relicensing of the ships is proceeding satisfactorily, Sweeney told the Lubbock group. The planes will have a capacity of nine passengers and a crew of two. No stewardesses will be carried on the flights.

"We want to provide local air service to principal West Texas cities and for that reason our operations will be based on a purely short haul plan of feeder system," Sweeney said.

Two Flights Daily

Present plans of the company call for two flights daily, one originating at Amarillo at 8 a. m., with arrival scheduled in Lubbock an hour later and in Houston four hours from Lubbock. Return flight will leave Houston at 1:30 p. m. and arrival is scheduled in Lubbock at 5:30 p. m.

Application to land at South Plains Army Air field has been filed with the War department.

The Hilton hotel will be downtown ticket office headquarters for the airline, the officials announced last night.

Survey flights have already been made over the route and negotiations instituted at all points for use of landing fields. All negotiations necessary at this stage have been completed, Sweeney and Claggett said.

The company plans big inaugural flights when operations are begun with CAB officials and prominent citizens of various cities along the route as guest passengers.

Sweeney said his company plans to operate as efficiently as pos-

Baby's Death Is Held Accidental

A verdict of accidental death by "smothering or choking" was entered into inquest records after 5-months-old Barbara Ann Smith, daughter of Mrs. Oleda Smith of 1008 Ave. A, was discovered dead about 12:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The inquest was conducted by J. T. Inmon, justice of peace and coroner, at 3 o'clock. The coroner was assisted in his findings by Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer; J. A. Wright, deputy sheriff, and Syrian E. Marbut, county attorney.

Inmon was summoned by a Plains Funeral home ambulance driver, and conducted the inquest at the funeral home.

Found Dead In Bed

The baby was discovered dead in its bed, officials said.

The ambulance driver said he was informed that the infant's father recently was reported killed in action in a war theater.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Plains chapel, with Rev. Floyd Dawson, pastor of Foursquare church, officiating.

Survivors include the mother; a brother, A. Z., of Lubbock; the paternal grandparents, Mrs. Nellie Smith of Lubbock and B. F. Smith of Temple; the maternal grandparents, G. J. Johnston of Los Angeles and Mrs. Ida Morrison of Lubbock.

Two Brakemen Die In Train Collision

GALVESTON, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—Dewey Burney of Galveston and A. E. Schavrda of Sealy, brakemen on a Santa Fe freight train, were killed when the freight was derailed near Dorman, Wharton county, about 3 p. m. today.

Santa Fe officials here could not give cause of the accident.

Burney, 47, is survived by his widow and four daughters.

Veteran Head Of Former AP Berlin Bureau Airs Views On World's Scourge---

Will Hitler Flee Reich In Disguise?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Louis F. Lochner, chief of the Associated Press Berlin bureau from 1928 to 1941, saw at close hand Hitler's rise to power and march to war. A Pulitzer prize winner in 1939, he is widely regarded as one of the foremost authorities on Hitler and the Nazi regime. Lochner is now returning to Germany to report on the final stages of the war.)

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOW will Adolf Hitler end?

This question is as difficult to answer as is that other $64 question, When will the war end?

I do not claim to have the answer. If I presume to conjecture upon der Fuehrer's collapse, I can only do it on the basis of facts and observations now almost three years old. Many changes have taken place in Germany since I left there. My analysis may well be outmoded.

LOCHNER

Anyway, here goes:

Some day in, say, 1945, some alert American with many years' experience in Germany under Nazism, with a keen ear for dialects and pronunciations and with an eye for mannerisms, may find himself on the street of some middle-sized city of a now-neutral country in which there is a large German colony. He may overhear a medium-size German talking with some friend or acquaintance.

"Where have I heard this voice before?" the American will ask himself. Next the thought will flash, "Why that can only be Adolf Hitler!"

Startled, he will look again. No, it cannot be true. This man's hair is almost white. It is parted on the left side—Hitler used to dye his hair and part it on the right. His nose is delicate, well-shapen—Hitler had an ungainly, saddle-like protrusion in the center of his face. The man's skin seems taut and without wrinkles —and Hitler was rapidly acquiring deep bags under his eyes and wrinkles on his brow. And where is the famous moustache?

And yet— something in the German's gait, some mannerisms in his speech, something in his eyes keep reminding the American of Hitler. What is it?

First, there is that unusual walk. Nobody in Germany except der Fuhrer strode that way, throwing his leg forward, then giving an extra jerk to lengthen the distance.

Second, the speech. Not that his raucous voice had no imitators. Gauleiter Adolf Wagner of Munich could duplicate that voice so well that Hitler often let him read his proclamations. But neither Wagner nor anybody else knew just how to imitate Hitler's peculiar variation and mingling of Bavarian, Hanoverian and High German dialect. Only a person with a keen ear could discern the real voice from that of many imitators. This German spoke as Hitler did.

Third, the eyes. I have seen no one in whom the whites of the eyes had as deep a bluish tinge as they did in those of Adolf Hitler.

The alert American, putting two and two together, has solved one of the greatest mysteries of our time — the disappearance, as Germany collapsed, of the self-styled "greatest military leader of all times."

ADOLF HITLER has had his face lifted, his whiskers removed, his nose changed by facial surgery, his hair returned to its natural white for a man of his age, and parted the normal way on the left side. By U-boat or plane he has escaped from his fatherland, and has clandestinely been given refuge by friends under an assumed name and with a seemingly changed personality.

That is one way in which Adolf Hitler may end his career. Two points speak in his favor. He still believes he has a divine mission, which can be facilitated if he takes refuge in another country until he can stage a dramatic return to Germany. And some of his closest associates with whom I have talked regard him as too cowardly either to commit suicide or to face trial.

There is the possibility, nevertheless, of Hitler's taking his life in a fit of despondency. He has been known to become increasingly subject to these fits as his difficulties increased. If he retains his senses until the end of his regime, suicide is not likely to figure in his considerations.

The theory of escape to a neutral country — I am inclined to rule out Japan because Hitler does not trust the Japanese—rests on the assumption that de Fuehrer will have a say about his own disposition. It is a highly theoretical assumption.

Various other possibilities loom:

The United Nations may by good luck or by some carefully planned maneuver seize Hitler before he can make his getaway.

Again, a block buster may hit his armored train or blast his headquarters before he can take refuge.

Either of these eventualities is too good to prove likely.

A revolution of the masses in which an angry mob might (Turn to Page 9, Column 3, Please)

U. S. Opposes Argentina's 'Peace' Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—The United States has informed the Latin American republics that it is opposed to Argentina's request to hold a foreign ministers meeting to thrash out that nation's diplomatic isolation.

The American views were expressed, it was learned today, in a note circulated to all the embassies of western hemisphere nations in Washington, except Argentina.

The United States' document was in close agreement with a note distributed a few days ago by Mexico. The Mexican note recommended that the Argentine proposal to the Pan-American Union be turned down and that foreign ministries in the hemisphere spend more time deciding how to deal with the ticklish Argentine problem.

Early Meeting Unlikely

As a result, Latin diplomats here expressed the opinion that it would be impossible to hold a meeting of foreign ministers on the Argentine question this year, and extremely unlikely that any conference can be called until 1945.

The United States, paralleling the Mexican views, held that United Nations problems and the war are far more important and must be considered before Argentina's case. The way was left open for a foreign ministers meeting on world security plans and the American document indicated that the Argentine situation could be discussed incidentally to such a conference.

Not on Equal Status

However, it was made quite clear that this government does not believe that Argentina should be among those invited to participate on an equal status.

A third document, from Chile, has also been dispatched. The Chilean view tends to favor acceptance of the Argentine proposal but states that Chile would be ready to follow the decision of the rest of the American republics.

None of the other countries in the hemisphere have formally presented their opinions as yet.

Yanks Smash Nearer Saar

Six Armies Of 1,250,000, With Same Number In Reserve, Drive Eastward

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Paris, Nov. 17 — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's six attacking Allied armies, swelled to a fighting force of 1,250,000 men with a similar number in reserve, ground ahead today on scattered sectors of the 400-mile Western front in their vast winter push toward Berlin.

The U. S. Third Army, loosing its armored might across the Moselle north of embattled Metz for the first time, sent tanks charging five miles east to little more than two miles from the edge of the Saar basin—important source of Germany's war might—as infantry swung north to within a mile of the junction of the German, Luxembourg and French borders.

Screws Tighten On Metz

Third Army doughboys tightened the screws on Metz, pushing to within a mile of the fortress city at two places on the south and at another on the north, but prisoners said the garrison was preparing a stand to the death with Gestapo guns barring escape roads to the east.

The U. S. First Army's infantry and tanks to the north churned another two miles into Germany, capturing several towns and rolling up within six miles of bomb-blackened Duren—a point which a front dispatch placed only 28 miles short of the Rhine and 14 miles inside the Reich.

The U. S. Ninth Army, now disclosed to be part of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army group, in its drive synchronized with the First's, turned back a German counterattack northeast of Aachen, knocking out at least 11 of the 45 Tiger and Panther tanks used to lead it.

One thousand prisoners were taken in the first 24 hours of fighting but late reports said the Ninth was striking stiffer resistance, and enemy artillery fire was increasing.

The U. S. Seventh Army hammered out gains all along its front on the Third Army's southern flank from north of Loueville to south of Bruyeds, overrunning at least eight towns.

The French First Army, in rapid strides through cold, mountainous country at the southern end of the front, thrust three miles forward to within five miles of Belfort, gateway to the Rhine and Bavaria, and threatened to outflank the outpost town of Montebeliard on the north.

(Associated Press correspondent Robert Wilson said in a dispatch from the front that Montebeliard had been captured by French armor and infantry.)

The gains made by the forces of Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny substantially extended the liberater area and carried within five miles of Belfort at the town of Hericourt.

Also overrun were Byans, Bussurel, Veaujeancourt, Mandevre,

Belgium Facing Tense Situation

BRUSSELS, Nov. 17. (AP) — Premier Hubert Pierlot's internally-assailed government, setting a Saturday midnight deadline for 40,000 of the resistance "White Army" to surrender their arms, said today that if any major difficulty arose Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Allied supreme command would take over.

The situation was tense as marchers shouted "resign" in front of Pierlot's home. Deputy Premier Henri Fayat told newsmen that it was "not yet proved" it would be impossible to disarm resistance groups without calling in Allied aid.

Two Ministers Quit

Two Communist ministers, resigned yesterday over the government's announced intention of incorporating the resistance groups into the Army, either individually or collectively.

Aside from opposition to currency regulations initiated by Pierlot's government, the resistance groups contend that pro-Axis collaborators still have not been smashed, and object to what they term an attempt to break up their own organizations.

Fayat declared emphatically that the government "intends to make a thorough purg of collaborationists and has no intention of disbanding or separating patriots who fought bravely" but "the government, on the other hand, cannot permit unauthorized persons to bear arms." He explained that the government could not take the forces of the interior into the Belgian Army as a solid group "because then you would get a political army and a force for rebellion."

Planes Open Drive To Close Brenner Pass

MEDITERRANEAN ALLIED AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Rome, Nov. 17. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—Unemployment sank to 630,000 in October, 140,000 below the previous low point recorded last April, the census bureau estimated today.

Rainey Is Blamed For Homosexuals

AUSTIN, Nov. 17. (AP) — University of Texas regent Orville Bullington testified today that one of the reasons the board of regents discharged Dr. Homer P. Rainey as president was because he was not diligent in weeding out a "nest of homosexuals in the faculty."

Bullington, who was appearing before a Senate committee investigating the university's administrative row which climaxed Nov. 1 in firing of Dr. Rainey and resignation of three regents, said that since an investigation of homosexuality was begun 10 faculty members and 15 students have left the school.

State Police Aid Asked

Answering questions of committeemen, he credited Dr. Rainey with asking the state public safety department to make an investigation of homosexuality on the campus and added:

"My criticism is letting that kind of folks get on the faculty in the first place.

"Dr. Rainey discovered a nest of homosexuals in the faculty as early as September, 1943. He did not disclose it to any member of the board until eight months later, despite rules requiring immediate reporting of such conditions.

"In July of this year we were assured by Dr. Rainey that the situation had been cleaned up and most, if not all, of the persons involved had then gone.

Not Entirely Cleaned Up

"The safety department indicated, however, that it was not entirely cleaned up."

Bullington's testimony injected a new subject into the inquiry which heretofore had dealt with matters of academic freedom, teacher tenure and differences between the board and Rainey on university administration.

After he had explained the discovery of homosexuality and the efforts to stamp it out, Bullington was asked by Sen. Wardlow Lane of Center:

"You don't mean to say that Dr. Rainey condones these things?"

"No," said Bullington. "We felt that he was not handling it vigorously enough and decided to take it over ourselves. We began to make an investigation of a list of suspects (supplied by the public safety department) and 10 days later Dr. Rainey's attack was launched on us.

"It was a peculiar coincidence."

He was referring to a list of 16 alleged repressive and restrictive measures which Dr. Rainey said the regents imposed or attempted during his administration. The list was read before a general faculty meeting Oct. 12.

"Was Dr. Rainey derelict in this matter?" Lane asked.

"Well, if it had been my job I would not have done anything else. I would have stayed with it until it was cleaned up," Bullington replied.

Bullington said the safety department in making the investigation did much more than it was required to do and "I am much gratified at their cooperation."

Rainey Charges Denied

The committee heard Bullington's categorical answer to and denials of charges by Rainey that restrictive measures had been imposed.

With some additions it was the same statement Bullington made recently in behalf of himself and regents H. J. Lutcher Stark, D. F. Strickland and W. Scott Schreiner to be entered on the minutes of the board as reasons for Dr. Rainey's removal.

The statement declared that "re-

British Air Chief And Wife Missing

LONDON, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, the British tactician who provided the aerial umbrella for the Allied invasion of western Europe and who was to direct the air strategy in a new stepped-up offensive against Japan, has been lost enroute by plane to his new Southeast Asia command.

Missing with him is Lady Leigh-Mallory, who was traveling with her husband in a special plane.

The plane has not reached its destination, said an air ministry announcement tonight. It was disclosed that a widespread search has yielded no trace of it.

The craft had flown to the Mediterranean area and, after dismissing its escort, continued alone. It was flown by a veteran R.A.F. crew picked personally by the air marshal to accompany him to his new command and work with him there.

The flying knight was enroute to take up under Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme commander of the SEAC, a task which he had performed brilliantly under Gen. Dwight O. Eisenhower here. He was named Allied commander-in-chief in Southeast Asia on Oct. 1.

Stolberg Reported Cleared Of Nazis

Reds Take Key Rail Junction

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 18. (U.P.)—Russian troops captured the key Hungarian rail junction of Fuzesabony yesterday, advancing up to four miles on a 65-mile front and hurling the enemy back into the Matra and Bukk mountains northeast of besieged Budapest, a Moscow communique announced last night.

The fall of Fuzesabony, 60 miles northeast of the Hungarian capital, gave the Russians control of a 27-mile section of the Budapest-Miskolc trunk railway, which also has been cut 10 miles east of Hatvan, an important junction only 26 miles from the capital.

Other Towns Seized

Hatvan was reported under attack from three sides and Moscow announced the seizure of Czany, five miles southeast of Hatvan, and Szambok, nine miles southwest of the terminal of a line running over the mountains into central Slovakia, 38 miles beyond.

Strong Russian tank and infantry forces were fighting their way slowly along invasion paths to Austria and Czechoslovakia in a big flanking maneuver pivoting on Budapest's grimly-defended outskirts.

By seizing Huts, five miles southwest of Miskolc, these Alpine units struck to within two miles of the enemy garrison's westward escape route out of Miskolc, which also is being attacked by a Soviet group five miles south of the city.

Southeast of Miskolc other Red Army forces crossed the Tisza river at Tiszalus, capturing the rail station on the west bank within 12 miles of Miskolc.

The Red Army group which captured Fuzesabony after a two-day siege also rolled northward three miles through Maklar, only five miles south of the sizeable town of Eger. The latter lies in a valley between the Bukk and Matra mountains.

To the southwest the Russians fanned out swiftly from Vamosgyork, the point where they cut the Budapest-Miskolc railway anew on Thursday. Driving three miles north they captured Gyongyoshalasz, less than two miles south of the seven-way road town of Gyongyos.

Alarm Clock Sale Set At Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17. (U.P.)—The alarm was spread today by the Wayne jewelers of Louisville. Tomorrow it may be bedlam.

In a somewhat excited tone of voice Edward Wayne called the Louisville Times and said:

"I have the first lot of metal alarm clocks released for sale in the United States. I have about 100 of them."

They go on sale at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Senator Cotton Ed Smith Dies Friday

LYNCHBURG, S. C., Nov. 17 (AP) — Senator Ellison D. Smith (Cotton Ed), dean of the Senate and bitter critic of the New Deal, died suddenly today at his home in this tiny South Carolina town near which he was born 80 years ago.

Death was caused by coronary thrombosis. His son, Farley, said the senator had seemed in good health and had eaten breakfast about an hour before he died while alone in his room at 10:15 a. m. He had planned to return to Washington next week to resume his duties.

Smith established a record for length of Senate service when on Aug. 4 he passed the 35 years and five months mark held by the late Senator William B. Allison of Iowa. He tried for a seventh term but was defeated in the Democratic primary last summer by Governor Olin D. Johnston.

Norway-Bound Nazi Convoy Attacked

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—A Norway-bound German convoy was attacked by Allied planes tonight outside Swedish territorial waters north of the Goteborg archipelago, a dispatch to the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said.

Eyewitnesses said they saw a ship explode with a terrific crash and a great flare of flames, leading them to believe that the vessel was loaded with ammunition.

One plane dropped into the sea. There was intense anti-aircraft fire.

FOUR DIE IN WRECK

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 17. (Canadian Press)—An eastbound freight train struck a heavy rockslide near North Bend, east of here, last night, hurtling the locomotive and two cars down a 200-foot bank and killing four men.

Road Blocked, Jap Remnants Trapped

By ELMONT WAITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Saturday, Nov. 18.—Rain-drenched doughboys straddled Ormoc highway with a strong road block a mile south of Limon today, trapping remnants of a Japanese regiment, as elements of the U. S. 32nd division were thrown into the battle of Leyte for the first time.

A headquarters communique announced completion of a double envelopment movement by two units of the 24th division, cutting the highway below Limon, four miles from Pinamopoan at the northern end of Ormoc corridor.

Jap Columns Destroyed

Japanese supply columns attempting to break through to Limon were destroyed, the communique said. The inference was also that enemy forces caught in the gap were cut off from escape, except by small, scattered bands.

The 32nd division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William H. Gill of Denver, Colo., sent units into the battle line north of Limon. Already they have driven a deep wedge into isolated enemy strongpoints.

East of Ormoc road, action in mountain fighting around the Mt. Minoro-Badian area was limited to mopping up of enemy pockets by the dismounted First Cavalry and elements of the 24th division.

This action is swirling south of Limon, key village on the mountain pass road leading from Pinamopoan to the Ormoc corridor.

Suicide Charges Fail

Several suicide charges by enemy parties were wiped out, while American artillery continued to pound Japanese positions throughout the corridor.

The American 7th division repulsed an enemy attack at Tabgas, 11 miles south of Ormoc, the final goal of the current Yank squeeze. This is the third assault smashed by the 7th on the coastal road leading to Ormoc, including the repulsion of a landing attempt.

Leyte-based fighter planes attacked enemy small craft on the west coast and bombed shore installations south of Ormoc.

Approximately 30 Japanese planes attacked American ground installations in the Dulag area, near the island's east coast. They were intercepted by Yank patrols and 15 shot down in aerial combat, with three more falling to antiaircraft fire.

"Our losses were negligible," the communique said.

Apparently the Yanks had virtual control of Breakneck ridge, scene of bitter fighting for many days. Limon lies in a valley south of the ridge.

The Japanese position in Limon was further endangered by a

New High Seen For Bombers

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP) — More than 50,000 tons of explosives already have cascaded on the Reich this month from the bomb racks of 16,000 Fortresses, Liberators, Lancasters and Halifaxes which await only a break in the weather to pass the 100,000-ton mark.

Britain-based bombers and fighters were grounded today, but American planes from Italy swarmed over southern Germany in a follow-up punch to yesterday's 6,000-plane onslaught.

Bomb By Instrument

Seven hundred 15th Air heavy bombers raided oil and other targets in south Germany, Austria, Hungary Yugoslavia, doing most of bombing by instrument in weather. They were escorted 350 fighters. Flying Fortress attacked rail yards at Salzburg, former Austria, a junction lines between Munich, Vienna and Italy.

Liberators visually attacked the Maribor railyards in northern Yugoslavia on the Vienha-Modena sector, and railway targets were raided in Italy north of Placenza, west of Brescia and north and northwest of Bologna.

Breaks in the undercast over Duren, Eschweiler, Julich and Heinsberg enabled bombardiers to work visually, a great advantage because of the proximity of the targets to Allied ground troops.

State Guard Commander And Aides Visit Battalion Here

BRIG. GEN. Arthur B. Knickerbocker of Austin, state adjutant general and commanding officer of the Texas State guard, and two members of his staff visited with officers and noncommissioned officers of the South Plains 39th battalion of the guard Friday night at guard headquarters at the fairgrounds.

General Knickerbocker, Lt. Col. O. H. Bryant and Lt. Col. C. T. Edwards stopped here when en route to Shamrock, where the adjutant general and guard chief is to speak to a district American Legion convention.

Several members of the Allen Bros. post of the Legion were present at the officials' visit. They included Commander Chester Hubbard, A. C. Jackson, J. A. Raley, jr., J. C. Powell and Bill Deatherage.

General Knickerbocker, in a short talk, discussed the postwar universal military training plan sponsored by the state department of the Legion and the Texas state military affairs committee. The general, a member of the committee, will speak on the same subject at the Shamrock convention.

Guard representatives were present from Crosbyton, Floydada, Levelland and Lubbock. Other towns on the South Plains having guard units are Tahoka and Plainview.

Score On Philippine Battle Shows Topheavy U. S. Credit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (AP) — Auditing books on the battle of the Philippines, the Navy wrote down this credit balance today: Assured supply and reinforcement for General MacArthur; Fewer casualties for the future.

The recapitulation, in a communique of nearly 3,000 words, also gave the general strategic picture of how the Japanese were punched off balance by weeks of preliminary feints and strikes by task forces over thousands of miles of island-dotted ocean.

It gave the most detailed picture yet of the tactics with which Admiral William F. Halsey of the Third Fleet and Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid of the Seventh defeated three armadas, totaling more than 63 warships, which hit from three ways at once.

The confirmed count of Nipponese vessels sunk, probably sunk, or hit in damaging fashion was reported at 48 plus an "undetermined number" of destroyes. The tabulation did not take into account the victims of General MacArthur's land based bombers, which built the total up past 60.

The Navy identified six American ships lost in the series of furious engagements beginning October 23; The light carrier Princeton, named previously; two escort carriers — the Saint Lo and the Gambier Bay; two destroyers — the Johnston and Hoel; one destroyer escort — the Samuel B. Roberts. Other losses were reported as "a few lesser craft."

No mention was made of personnel losses in the sinkings, or in the damaging of various other ships. Losses on the Princeton

(Editor's Note: This column of news notes is prepared for you to send to someone in the armed services.)

Nov. 17, 1944

DEAR:—

A favorite topic of conversation locally is the weather. What started to be a light rainfall has turned into snow and as this is being written there are indications Lubbockites will awaken Saturday morning to see a blanket of snow on yards and fields again today.

Top ranking writers, columnists and news commentators from the Associated Press, United Press, Time, Life, Newsweek, various news syndicates and two major networks are expected to arrive here Sunday for a tour of Lubbock and the surrounding area.

The Civil Aeronautics board approved a route from El Paso to Tulsa via Oklahoma City for American Airlines but bypassed Lubbock. Chamber of Commerce officials who have worked so tirelessly on preparing a brief in applying for an airline through here were frankly disappointed. However, they were inclined to believe the CAB might take favorable action on Continental Airline's application to put a line through Lubbock. The proposed new leg would serve Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Wichita Falls, Lubbock, Hobbs and El Paso and a place on that line would give Lubbock access to transcontinental air service.

A former Tech beauty, Faith McNamara of San Antonio, was named winner of the "Miss Texas In The War" contest at Waco Monday in connection with the opening of the General Tire and Rubber company's factory there. A candidate for beauties this year, Miss Elizabeth (Umpy) Robinson, of the Spade community in Lamb county, was second.

Allen Bros. post is to sell Christmas trees again this year, although the allotment will be only 500, as compared to 2,000 in previous years, according to C. A. Hubbard, post commander. The trees are expected to arrive here about Dec. 10 and will go on sale at the Legion home. The Legion will not place trees on down town streets, as in former years.

A "satisfactory" report was given today on the condition of Dr. Fred W. Standefer, Lubbock physician-surgeon, who was stricken with a heart attack enroute to Meridan by airplane last Saturday to attend the funeral of a brother, Wade Standefer. He will be confined to Harris Memorial hospital in Ft. Worth for several weeks.

Capt. and Mrs. Robert T. Canon of Bethesda, Md., are visiting in Lubbock. Capt. Canon is on leave of absence from his naval duties. This is their first trip home since they left four years ago.

Burglars who removed a skylight and entered Busy Bee cafe, 1104 Main street, early Saturday knocked the knob of a safe and took an estimated $6,300 in money and $700 in checks, police were informed by Gust Kallas, proprietor. Officials quoted Kallas as saying only $1500 of the money was his. The remainder belonged to gamblers and to several employes of Kallas, investigators were told.

A wrist watch, three other watches and a .38 caliber automatic pistol also were taken.

Lt. and Mrs. Joe Pierce and small daughter have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pierce. Lt. Pierce, former sports writer for the Avalanche-Journal, will go from here to San Francisco for overseas assignment with the Naval Air corps.

Lt. James Qualia, who was critically injured in a plane crash at an Army air base in Italy July 30, has arrived in the United States for treatment. Although young Qualia was partially paralyzed in the crash, he has been assured that he will recover completely.

Foremost of the football agenda next Thursday will be the traditional Turkey day game between the Westerners and the Golden Sandies which will be played here.

Lubbock followers of Notre Dame's successes and losses have been more keenly interested since Ed McKeever became head coach. However on hearing of defeat of the Irish by Army last Saturday they could not help but thrill in reading of the plays by Max Minor, a West Pointer, who got his start in playing football in Tahoka from where he graduated from high school before going on to the University of Texas where he further distinguished himself.

That's all this week.

On Jan. 1, 1944, the average age of automobiles in the U. S. was seven years.

Steak Dinner, Social Given For Fellowship

A steak dinner Thursday night at the Chicken House was attended by First Methodist Young Adult Fellowship and the group later went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Byrd, 2421 Twenty-second, for a social.

Present were Misses Gladys Eads, Marie Sipple, Inez Hill, Myrtle Lois Pearson, Genell Wilhite, Lola Thompson, Maude Bledsoe, Beulah Faye and Eugenia McClure, Lois Alexander and Mary Elizabeth Morgan, Mesdames Shirley Jackson, Geraline Crump, Nadine Blassingame, Jayne Bazier, Helen Eagan, Messrs. and Mesdames Eulin Hastings, Charles Cultra, W. L. Jones, Ben Cole, Charles Cathey and Rev. and Mrs. Charles Luttrick.

Shower Compliments Mrs. Robert Hampton

Altrusa club members gave a party and shower complementing Mrs. Robert Hampton, who was Mrs. Agnes Chapman before her marriage last Saturday, Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Allie M. Dyer, 2020 Seventeenth. Miss Clara Pratt was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Lottie Hilton and Mrs. Grace Morris sang "I Love You Truly" before the presentation of gifts.

Guests were Mesdames Leo Baker, Elsie Bennett, Jessie Walker, Bernice Cranahan, Vera Chapman, Tom Holden, Faye Westmorelond, Dr. Pauline Miller, Misses Opal Wood, Kittie Ford and Ella May Butler.

VFW Auxiliary Gives Funds For Yule Cheer

VFW auxiliary members planned to bring Christmas cheer to orphans and to wounded veterans, when they met at First Presbyterian Fellowship hall Thursday night. A donation of $30 was made to the VFW-supported home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., and $25 was donated to a fund to buy gifts for veterans at McCloskey General hospital and at the naval base at San Diego. The latter fund was matched with $25 contributed by the VFW.

Mrs. Blanche Niehoff presided. Miss Thelma Metz was accepted as a member.

Officer Election Held By Merry Bidders Club

Merry Bidders club members elected officers Thursday afternoon when Mesdames J. M. Wills and J. C. Stansell were hostesses at Mrs. Tucker's tea room. They were: Mrs. F. M. Wells, president; Mrs. Stansell, vice president; Mrs. Lee Shropshire, secretary-treasurer.

The club's last meeting this year will be Dec. 15 at Mrs. Talley's tea room.

Temple Initiates Twelve Members

Pythian Sister Temple initiated twelve candidates Thursday night at the K-P hall. They were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Butler, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bashore, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Price, Lt. and Mrs. L. M. Sheppard, Mrs. Dane Wynn, Mrs. Jodie Patterson, Miss Dorothy Smith and E. R. Balch.

It was voted to have the traditional Christmas party for Knights, Sisters and their families Dec. 20.

Mesdames Lloyd Mobley, Ray Smith, J. C. Duff and Balch were hosts. Fifty-one persons attended.

Heavy Attacks Led By 'Master Bombers'

LONDON, Nov. 17. (AP)—Royal Air force bombers are being led on big attacks by "master bombers" whose job is to see that everything goes according to plan, it was disclosed today.

While not a new practice, the air ministry mentioned the master-bombers officially for the first time in describing yesterday's mass attack on German front line positions near Aachen.

They are manned by picked crews and their main responsibility is finding and marking the targets. They control the attack throughout. If the raiders get scattered and show signs of missing, teh master-bombers round them up and "parade" them over the target again in order.

Finally, they drop the last big bombs themselves, then nose down and photograph the results.

Japs Abandon POW, Save Own Nationals

LONDON, Nov. 17. (AP)—The Japanese saved their own nationals from a sinking transport off Singapore in September but left 1,300 British and Australian prisoners of war to die in the sea, War Secretary Sir James Grigg told the House of Commons today.

American submarine crews which torpedoed the transport risked their lives to save the prisoners, but a majority drowned, he said. One hundred and fifty survivors have arrived in England.

"Thanks to the Americans, nearly all the rescued men are recovering from their terrible experiences," said Sir James.

Price Support For Hogs Is Extended

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—The War Food administration, in a move designed to increase marketings of hogs and thus improve pork supplies, today extended its price support program to good and choice butcher hogs weighing between 240 and 270 pounds.

Under the revised program, the agency will assure producers $12.50 per 100 pounds for all hogs weighing between 200 and 270 pounds.

Since Oct. 1, WFA's program has covered only hogs in the 200-240 pound bracket. Before that time the price support program was pegged at $13.75 for hogs weighing between 200 and 270 pounds.

PROGRAM TO CONTINUE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17.—(U.P.) J. A. Krug, War Production board chairman, said today the present $5,700,000,000 monthly production program—highest since the war began—will "go on through the first of the year and it will go on until victory has been won in Germany."

Cigaret Firms Say Hoarders Foolish Despite Scarcity

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. (AP)—Cigarets are going to continue scarce for civilians but hoarders are "very foolish" in the opinion of three leading cigaret companies.

Declining "absolutely" to be named in connection with their comments, spokesmen for concerns making three major—and scarce—brands reiterated:

1. They're making all they can under the circumstances, more than ever before.

2. Shortages of manpower and raw materials prevent a further step-up in output.

3. Government orders for the armed forces are going to be filled first.

4. Civilians, through their retailers, are going to get as fair a division of available smokes as possible. One spokesman said shipments this month are 70 per cent of those of November, 1943. He asserted that since last year's sales were up, that means shipments are "more than 70 per cent" of those in peacetime.

"Cigarets are perishable, just like food," another said.

"Anybody who gets more cigarets than he needs, somehow and tries to store them isn't getting his money's worth. They just don't keep their flavor."

"What are future prospects?" the cigaret men were asked.

Answers:

No official comment from two who added: "No quotation, but it looks like cigarets are going to keep on being scarce."

A third "purely personal" opinion was that government orders, "primary cause of the civilian scarcity" would continue large.

Incidentally, the cigaret men don't like the idea of rationing any better than Chester Bowles, OPA administrator who announced earlier this week there wouldn't be any rationing.

Japs Told To Expect 'Great Turn' In War

(By The Associated Press)

Premier Kuniaki Koiso told a Japanese audience today, said the Tokyo radio, that the Axis could expect "a favorable development" and "a great turn" in the war, although at the same time admitting the war situation is "very serious."

The "favorable development" will result from the "brilliant victories" of Japanees forces and the "gallant fight" of the Germans, Koiso was quoted as saying in a Japanese Domei agency dispatch.

Government Girls Take To Pipes In Lieu Of Cigarets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Two government girls stuck pipes in their mouths today as a personal solution for the cigaret shortage.

Dorothy Thompson, formerly of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Mrs. Una Franklin, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., began the day's work at the Office of War Information with puffs on their pipes.

Mrs. Franklin, mother of two daughters, said she had smoked a pipe at home off and on for five years. Miss Thompson reported she was testing a corn cob as a cigaret substitute for the first time.

Compulsory Service Gets New FDR Plug

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he hopes legislation requiring a year's government service of the nation's youth will get through Congress this winter.

At a news conference, Mr. Roosevelt made no attempt to say whether such service should include girls as well as boys.

A questioner had asked about girls. In a general discussion previously, the President said the idea is for the nation's boys to give one year of service to their country.

TROOP ROTATION PLANNED

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(U.P.)—Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today approximately 6,000 fighting men would be brought home each month for visits of about four weeks. The plan does not include those on Europe's Western front. Churchill said that this campaign "has not reached a point where we can withdraw anyone from the front even for a short leave period."

NEW ENVOY NAMED

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(U.P.) The foreign office has announced the appointment of Narciso Bassols as Mexican ambassador to the Soviet Union. Bassols will succeed Luis Quintanilla, who has been recalled to Mexico and will be given another diplomatic post.

Citizens Said Held Without Recourse

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (AP)—Some 200 persons claiming United States citizenship are being held in a German camp without recourse to their right to the protective interest of the Swiss government.

The State department, disclosing this today, said an effort is being made to learn the names of the 200 and to arrange for their transfer to an internment camp where they would be accorded full rights under "existing international agreements and practices."

Yank Mental Agility Bests Jerries, Snyder Lieutenant Relates

A NINTH AIR FORCE COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, France, Nov. 17. (U.P.) — 2nd Lt. James C. Dunn of Snyder, Tex., has a pretty story to tell of how Yank mental agility got the best of German ponderousness.

While he was serving as liaison officer with an armored division near Aachen, Dunn saw the Yank artillery boys "fox" the Jerries properly.

During a battle, the Germans sent up rockets to mark their own front lines before setting into the Americans. But the Yanks "pulled a fast one" on them.

"Our guns shelled the enemy front lines and forced the Jerries to take cover," Dunn reported. "Then when their flares stopped, our artillery fired flares that burst serveral hundred yards behind the Jerry line, and the Germans shortened their artillery range and shelled their own troops."

News Briefs

The court of criminal appeals this week affirmed a Floyd county court conviction of 30 days in jail and a fine for Mack C. Williams, a negro, tried for theft. Records show he had obtained suspension of sentence after a district court burglary conviction, later was charged in county court with theft of approximately $25. Upon conviction of the county court charge, the district attorney, John Hamilton, sought to have suspension of the felony sentence set aside, but the negro appealed from the county court conviction and thus delayed Hamilton's procedure. Miss Georgia Clifton, newly-appointed court reporter for the 99th judicial district of Lubbock, reported the felony case for 110th district reporter, court officials said.

Black Hills Passion Play Gives First Performance Here Today

A fleet of trucks loaded with tons of equipment for staging of the famed Luenen Passion play of the Black Hills at the auditorium of Senior High school arrived Friday night and were met by numerous workmen who commenced preparations for this afternoon's 3 o'clock premiere.

The play will be presented in seven performances through Tuesday, and a possible record ticket sales for any Lubbock stage production may be established, it was indicated.

Story of Christ

The great drama, which depicts the story of Christ, has been breaking all-time attendance records in major cities this year.

Josef Meier is featured as the Christus in the lavish drama produced for years with little regard for expense. One of the most impressive features is the lighting effects. In scene after scene the special lighting shows the pale dawn blending into the brilliant light of day and then into the stillness of the night. There are 22 impressive scenes, commencing with the triumphant entry into Jerusalem and running smoothly through to one of the great highlights—the Crucifixion scene, followed by the Ascension, and they have given audiences a true and thrilling conception of this, the greatest story of all times.

Brilliant Settings

Meier, at 38, is hailed as the greatest living portrayer of the life of Christ. Regardless of religion, sect or creed, the story's dramatic appeal is as wide as human nature, critics say. There are more than 100 participants. The rich oriental costumes and settings rival the brilliance of the lighting effects. Scene blends into scene without pause. Beginning with the prologue, followed by the enunciation, the life and sufferings, death and resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth are reverently depicted.

The production is being given in English for the first time.

There will be performances each night, with a daily matinee for students. School students' special matinees for city, county and parochial schools will be each afternoon at 3 oclock. Reserve seat tickets for all night performances are available at 1115 Thirteenth.

German Recruiting System Is Revealed

FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Belgium, Nov. 17. (U.P) — A prisoner of the German SS elite guards told Americans today that when he was graduated from a Saxony High school, all the men in his class were locked in a room and given a chance to choose their careers.

Each man was handed two statements, with orders to sign one of them, he said.

The first said: "I hereby volunteer to join the Waffen SS."

The second said: "I refuse to join the Waffen SS because I'm a coward and a bastard."

War Reporter Tells His Experiences In Road Mine Explosion

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN
United Press War Writer

WITH BRITISH TROOPS CLOSING ON THE MEUSE, Nov. 17. (U.P)—Our heavy car did a kind of saint vitus dance and came down in the mud with a crash of wood, glass, and smashed steel.

I've been blown up by dynamite and hit by shell splinters but this was the first time I've ever been blown up by a mine. It's just like one of those quick flashes from the explosion of a powder magazine you've seen in the movies.

Terrific Upheaval

There is a terrific upheaval in the road, then everything falls around you—glass splinters, fragments of wood and steel. Then, dazed, you mechanically feel yourself to see if anything is broken or missing.

Our driver took the full blast which blew off the wheel under him, smashed the door of the driving seat, broke his leg and wounded him in the temple. He crawled moaning through the shattered door while the rest of us, British correspondent Donald Monson, Brazilian correspondent Murillo Marroquin, and myself, shaken up but not severely hurt, struggled to get free from the debris-filled interior.

Devilishly Cunning

We had encountered one of the Nazis' fancy new "Schutz" mines which are designed to hold their explosion until several vehicles have passed over them. They're devilishly cunning. Their purpose is not so much to blow up a truck or a jeep as to dig a big crater and force a diversion of traffic through roadside fields where more of them are planted, waiting to go off as soon as the first few vehicles have dug the diversion track.

We had found the crater in the road too deep to cross safely and took the track through a dank, marshy field made by vehicles that had detoured the crater safely. The distance we needed to cover to reach the road again was only 25 yards but it was enough to conceal a field of those delayed action "Schutz" mines.

British Dash to Rescue

The convoy behind us stopped and Tommies dashed through the mine field at the risk of their own lives to drag us to safety. Our driver, who is going to recover, was taken to a field hospital which was getting many men wounded by mines—"mostly legs and feet blown off," a doctor said.

We owe our lives to the fact that the British Army is countering Nazi mines by strengthening the chassis of its vehicles so they'll break the force of the explosion. British engineers study every new type of mine, knowing they will play an increasingly important part in the defense of Germany as we push through the frontiers.

Nazis Allegedly Blow Up Women, Children

HEUSDEN, The Netherlands, Nov. 17. (AP)—The burgomaster of this medieval town charged today that the Germans had deliberately blasted to death 135 women and children in the Heusden town hall. He called it the most fiendish atrocity committed in Holland. (A preliminary report of the deaths was issued last week by the official Netherlands News agency).

"It was terrible, terrible," he said. "The Germans pretended to be helping our people find shelter from British artillery shells and then they themselves set off dynamite which killed 135 of the 200 people in the basement of the town hall."

New Johnson Grass Use Is Suggested

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 17. (AP)—When Victor Schoffelmayer of the Dallas News told the farm industry conference at Texas A and M. college that Alabamans had quit fighting Johnson grass and were using its roots for chemurgic production of sugar, an unidentified Lamar county farmer came up with this idea:

"I suggest that instead of too much chemurgy being used on johnson grass that some of it be saved to make damn good drinking whiskey."

Judy Pays Dearly For Her Attempt To Rescue Mongrel

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17. (U.P)—The little white dog whimpered in the street as the speeding automobile roared nearer. . . .

Little seven-year-old Judith Ann Koch ran into the traffic lane, disregarding danger, to try to rescue the animal. . . .

The dog died. July, unconscious for 50 days, spent more than two months in Lakewood hospital, but she's home today—blind.

The Sept. 14 incident, it seems, shook up her little brain.

"Judy has returned nearly to normal,' a doctor said. "But she can't interpret images on her retina; that's what is causing her blindness."

And surgery, hospital attaches insisted, will not help—"we're just watching and waiting."

Brought home after her 63-day hospital internment yesterday, Judy was carried into the house—though before the accident she had known every inch of every room.

She said she isn't too sure now.

When she leaned back in a chair, Judy's Boston Bull Terrier, Susie, jumped on her lap and, barking happily, licked her face.

The child beamed: "That's my Susie."

Her mother, Mrs. Jane Koch, said it was the first sentence Judy had spoken since the mishap, for she talks only in fragments.

"She knows what she wants to say," Mrs. Koch said, "but her brain cannot control and coordinate her thoughts with her tongue."

Wheeler Takes Over Succeeding Stilwell

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 17 (AP)—Appointment of Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler to succeed Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell as deputy commander of the Allied Southeast Asia command was announced today, along with completion of a new set of British commanders from European theaters to direct the Allied land, sea and air efforts.

Gen. Wheeler was principal administrative officer under the theater commander, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, and will continue to serve in that capacity. He heads the American section of this headquarters and, as senior American officer here, handles lend-lease to all Allies in this theater.

The new command has been completed with arrival of Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese from the Eighth Army in Italy to succeed Sir George Giffard as commander-in-chief of the old Eleventh Army group, which he is reorganizing as the Allied land forces of Southeast Asia.

Romulo Broadcasts To Jap Army, Civilians

(By The Associated Press)

The Filipino people "will fight you to the death," Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine commonweath secretary of information, told the Japanese today in a broadcast over the Voice of Freedom.

Broadcasting from Leyte island, Romulo urged the Japanese army and civilians "to overthrow the militarists" who had led them on a "ruinous adventure."

"We have taught you, soldiers of Japan," said Romulo, "and we want to tell you, people of Japan who were left behind, that we will fight you to the death. We are defending something that is more precious than our lives. Some day, when you get back to Japan—if you ever do — you will remember my words."

Democrats Hold Big Plurality

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — A Democratic House plurality of 53 members over Republicans was shown today in a complete unofficial roster compiled from the November 7 election.

The lineup in the new House convening January 3 (barring the possibility that late soldier vote counts may switch some districts) will be:

Democrats, 243;
Republicans, 190;
Progressive, 1;
American Labor, 1.

Lineup Is 216 To 212 Now

This compares with the margin of two the Democrats held over Republicans when they went into the election. However, the Democrats elected three additional members to fill unexpired terms —until January 3—while one Democrat has resigned. The lineup now is 216 Democrats and 212 Republicans.

Provided soldier votes do not wipe out present leads in Missouri and Pennsylvania, the new Senate will line-up this way:

Democrats 57.
Republicans 38.
Progressive 1.

This would give the Republicans a net gain of one.

Of the 35 Senate seats contested for, the Democrats apparently won 21 and the Republicans 14.

President's Use Of Profanity Denied

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP) — Five election officials denied today that President Roosevelt used profanity when a voting machine jammed while he was casting his ballot here on election day.

A news magazine (Time), describing the President's visit to the polling place, said:

"From the green-curtained voting booth came a clank of gears as the main control lever jerked irritably back and forth. Then a voice, familiar to all of the U. S. and to most of the world, spoke distinctly from behind the curtains: 'The Goddamned thing won't work.'"

Thomas L. Leonard, Democratic inspector, said "I was the person nearest to the President because I was tending the machine. He did not use any profane language at any time.

"What he said was, 'Tom, what's the matter with this thing? It doesn't work. Oh, it's all right now'."

Mrs. George Upright, a Republican inspector, said "I never heard him say a word when the voting machine failed to work."

Mrs. Reta Lasher, Republican gatekeeper, said "all he said was that the machine did not work."

SALES SHOW RISE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (AP)—Department store sales last week were nine per cent above those of the corresponding week of 1943, the Federal Reserve board announced today.

Lubbock friends have been informed of the promotion of Ross Ayers, former physical education director of Lubbock Public schools, to major in the Army. He is serving in France. His wife resides in Corsicana with her parents. Maj. Ayers has been in service since 1940.

Bill Carter was named president of the Lubbock Senior High school sophomore class Friday to succeed Bill Petree who was ineligible for the office from a scholastic standpoint. Carter was vice-president of the class and Bobby Griffin was named to take his place. Carter defeated Jack Alderson for the presidency.

Seven Lubbock and South Plains students at Hardin-Simmons university, Abilene, will participate in a junior class production of a musical, "Kolored Kanteen," tonight at the university. Students from this section taking part are June Brunk of Plainview, Henry Gruben of Spur, Billie White, Iola and Iona Richards and Edith Esmond, all of Lamesa, Ernestine Gibson and Juanita Simpson, both of Lubbock.

Paintings and handicraft material from applied arts and handicraft departments at Texas Tech are featured in an art exhibit in the windows of Sansom Paint and Paper company, 1219 Ave. K. On display are paintings by Miss Martye Poindexter, head of the applied arts department, and Miss Elizabeth Hawley, professor in that department. Paintings include mountain scenes in water color, paintings and an arrangement of nature materials, creating interest in lines and textures.

Trinity President And Singer Here Sunday

Dr. Monroe G. Everett, president of Trinity university at San Antonio, is to deliver a sermon at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night, Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor, announced Friday.

Dr. Elwyn Carter, baritone, director of music at Trinity, will sing at the service. Dr. Carter has appeared in concerts throughout the U. S. the past four years. He will sing several numbers.

Limitation On Small Papers Said Assinine

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Rep. Brown (R-Ohio), describing WPB's limitation on newsprint use by small newspapers as "assinine," said today he will seek a House committee investigation unless changes are made.

The limitation, he told a reporter, means the difference between profit and loss on the year's business for many weeklies and small dailies.

Told of Brown's statement, a War Production board spokesman said its newsprint division is giving careful consideration to the over-all problem of smaller papers.

Saying the WPB order limits newsprint consumption in the last quarter of this year to the amount used in the last quarter of 1943 or to the average used in the first three quarters of 1944, Brown added:

"This means restricted use of newsprint in the last quarter when these small papers have their heavy fall and Christmas business.

Achievement Day At Tahoka Postponed

A county-wide 4-H club achievement day program and gilt show, which was scheduled to be held in Tahoka today, has been postponed until next Saturday, said R. L. Stone, Lynn county agricultural agent, Friday.

Awards, valued at more than $1,000, were to have been awarded at the show, Stone said. He added there would be no changes in the program with the exception that it has been put off until next Saturday, due to inclement weather.

Red Raiders Set For Grid Battle With New Mexico

Indications of a wet ground this afternoon at Tech Stadium has failed to put a damper on the interest being shown in the grid battle scheduled for 2:30 o'clock between the Texas Tech Red Raiders and New Mexico Lobos.

The Red Raiders tapered off yesterday afternoon, and announced they were ready for the

LOBOS HEAD FOR TEXAS

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 17 (AP) New Mexico's Lobos leave tonight for Lubbock, Tex., where they close out a lackluster season tomorrow against Texas Tech's Red Raiders, an old Border Conference rival.

With two key men on the injured list, Coach Willis Barnes said he would be compelled to send a patchwork lineup against the Texans, who are led by All-America candidate Walter Schlinkman.

battle this afternoon with the New Mexico Lobos, with hopes high that the team will make a clean sweep of the Border Conference foes on this year's grid schedule, having already won over West Texas State Teachers college in a game at Amarillo.

Coach Dell Morgan announced Thursday night that he planned to start the same lineup that started against Texas Christian last week, with the exception of Hardey. Just who will fill Hardey's place remained unknown Thursday night, with the assignment laying between T. M. Cox, letterman from Muleshoe, and Ernest Hawkins, freshman back from Lamesa.

Tech's Starting Eleven

This lineup would find Luke Thompson and Don Dudley at ends, Billy Snodgrass and Clyde Black at tackles, John Birdwell and Homer Lawson at guards, Otis Turner at center, Cox or Hawkins at quarter, Arthur Shahan and Cecil Norris at halves and Walter Schlinkman at fullback.

It will be the first home appearance of the Red Raiders since they blasted the Rice Owls two weeks ago, and since being held scoreless for the first time this season, last week by Texas Christian.

Cecil Norris, fast stepping halfback from Beaumont, was slowed down most of this week with an ankle injury, but will likely be able to start. If he doesn't start, Costin Bufkin from Hobbs, New Mexico, will get the nod at the halfback slot.

Lobo's Starting Club

A starting lineup from New Mexico was announced yesterday, and included J. Kelleher and J. Malone at ends, Naglich and Dassoff at tackles, Burns and Garcia at guards, Gillaspy at center, Rice at quarter, Emboden and Calland at halves and Hildebrandt at fullback.

Scout notes on the Lobos indicated that the southpaw passing of Rice and the swivel hipped running of Calland, a recent transfer from Washburn college, are the chief threats of the Lobos.

Neither team has an impressive won and lost record for the season, but both have faced a rough schedule, and have made some good showings against tough foes.

Schlinkman, Tech Pride

The hopes of the Red Raiders have been largely pinned on the hefty shoulders of Walter Schlinkman, a veteran fullback who has ripped opposing lines this season like a Sherman Tank, and being boomed in many sectors for All-American honors.

There are very few veterans in the Red Raider lineup, which has been mostly a freshman club all season, but in recent games Don Dudley, letterman end from Wichita Falls, has come into his own, and will be starting at the wing position today.

T. M. Cox, another letterman from last season, is favored for the quarterback slot, largely because of his experience advantage. The only other letterman on the squad is Bobby Hayes of Burkburnett, a guard. Hayes is not listed among the starters, but he will be sure to see plenty of action in the game.

Clyde Black, who rose to stardom in the Rice game, will be the only other seasoned performer in the lineup, being a squadman from last year. Don Grove, another of the New Mexico boys with the Red Raiders, is also a squadman at tackle, and sure to see action today.

This is the first of three home games for the Red Raiders, that will close out the rugged 11 game schedule on which Coach Morgan launched his eleven last September.

Homecoming Day at Texas Tech will be next week, with Southern Methodist university Mustangs as the guests, and the season will be closed December 2 with a cross town battle with South Plains Army Air Field.

Lockney Longhorns Nose Past Matador

MATADOR, Nov. 17 (Special)—The Lockney Longhorns broke into the win column in District 4-A here tonight, nosing out the Matador Bullfighters, 6-0, in a battle that was featured by the defensive play of both clubs.

The battle was to decide the cellar championship, neither team having won a conference game before tonight.

Plainview Romps Over Brownfield

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 17.—The pass minded Plainview Bulldogs used passes in reverse order here tonight, struck three times from afar, and defeated the battling Brownfield Cubs, 21-0, to stay in the battle for runnerup honors in the District 1-AA race.

Twice the Cubs turned on the power to start threatening drives into the Bulldog territory, but took to the air with grave results. Jack Weldon intercepted a Cub aerial on his own five and roared 95 yards for the first touchdown of the game.

A few minutes later, Horne plucked a Brownfield pass from the air and roamed 65 yards through an open field for the second tally. Russell kicked the extra point for a 13-0 lead at the half.

A sudden hole opened in front of Graham, Plainview back, in the second half and he flashed through it, into the clear, and romped 53 yards for the final touchdown.

Later in the game, the Plainview forward wall smashed through to back Quante's kick to add a safety to the total.

Levelland Rolls Over Andrews Club, 26-7

LEVELLAND, Nov. 17 (Special)—The Levelland Lobos started scoring the first time they got the ball, and rolled on to a 26-7 victory over Andrews High here this afternoon.

The Lobos took the kickoff and roared 65 yards to score, with Joe Garrison plunging over from the two yard line for the score. Robert Blount then kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later, the Lobos took two plays to cover better than half the distance of the field for another touchdown. Billy Pearcy threw a long pass to Bobby McCillan to reach the Andrews 30, and on the next play, McMillan completed the journey with a wide sweep around end. The try for point failed, and the quarter score ended 13-0.

The Lobos scored twice more in the second period. The first touchdown came on a 22 yard pass from Pearcy to Winfred, then Pearcy took a pass from Blount for the extra point. A few minutes later, Blount took a punt on his own 35, fell in behind a wall of blockers and roamed 65 yards down field to a touchdown.

A screen pass from Young to Rice gave Andrews its touchdown in the third quarter. The play netted 52 yards. Shahan kicked the extra point.

Stewart, Andrews back, stood out for the losers, and was outstanding on both offense and defense.

The battle had a "family feud" angle. Francis Tubbs, Andrews coach, is a brother of Gano Tubbs, Levelland mentor.

Levelland used every man on the 32 man squad during the game, and played much of the second half with reserves. Levelland will close the season next Friday, meeting Sudan for runnerup position in the District 5-A race.

Sundown Wins Over Whiteface, 32 To 8

SUNDOWN, Nov. 17 (Special) After a slow start, the Sundown six-man football eleven smashed over a 32 to 8 victory over Whiteface here this afternoon in the final conference game of the season.

The victory left the Sundown club to prepare for the bi-district clash with Union of Dawson county, a game scheduled for 8 o'clock next Friday night at Levelland.

After a scoreless first quarter, Sundown was battled on even terms until midway of the second period when Holder, Sundown star, intercepted a pass on his own 25 yard line. At his 35, Holder lateraled the ball off to James Matlock, who followed perfect blocking to go over for the touchdown.

A few minutes later, Bobby Swain smashed over for a touchdown from two yards out to give Sundown a 12-0 lead at the half.

Sundown scored three more times in the last half. Matlock passed to Nugent for a 15 yard touchdown gain for the first one, Eugene Huff ran through the middle for 40 yards and the second, and Holder scored the third. Clark caught two passes for extra points.

Whiteface scored late in the ball game, with Olin Lewis, fleet little substitute, taking a 30 yard pass and outrunning the Sundown defenders for another 25 yards to score. Harold Sides kicked the extra point.

Army-Navy Grid Tilt Moved To Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17 (AP) — For the second time in history, the Army and Navy will settle their annual gridiron feud in Baltimore, but it was just as much of a mystery as ever tonight what the public would pay to see the Cadets and Middies go after each other December 2.

The only thing clear was an official statement by the Navy Department in Washington, ending a week of speculation, that the season-end battle between the two great elevens would be played before an estimated 70,000 in Baltimore rather than in the semi-privacy of tiny Thompson stadium in Annapolis with its 18,756 seats.

Just 20 years ago, in 1924, Army licked the Navy 12 to 0 before 80,000 fans in Baltimore's Municipal stadium.

The present regular seating capacity is 60,000 but officials said the other day that "if there is time we can get in 71,000 seats easy." Since 1924 two sections of the stands which seat 9,000 have been torn away.

Immediately after the announcement that the game had been shifted, Walter N. Ruth, head of the Maryland War Finance committee, said that "the Army-Navy game definitely will be a war bond game. He had just talked with treasury officials in Washington.

Marshall Nears Grid Title In 11-AA Race

LONGVIEW, Nov. 17 — The speedy Marshall Mavricks knocked the Longview Lobos from the undefeated list in the torrid District 11-AA race here today, winning 14-0 to take undisputed leadership in the three-way scrap.

Marshall still has Tyler to play in the stampede toward the title, but expects little trouble with the Lions, a team beaten by Longview on Armistice day.

Wildcats Beat Tulia, 25 To 12

LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 17 (Special)—The Littlefield Wildcats, champions of District 5-A, struck hard here tonight to come from behind and defeat Tulia, 25 to 12, in a tuneup game for next week's bi-district battle with Denver City, at Denver City.

The game was played on a muddy field, and with only a small crowd on hand, and slowed down the attack for both sides. The wet, slippery ball was a special handicap to the Littlefield passing combination of Bill Lyman to Homer Peel, who have sparked the Littlefield attack this season.

Tulia Takes Lead

Tulia took the lead in the first quarter as Don Davis broke off tackle, and romped 45 yards to score.

The Wildcats began to hit their stride in the second period, and Lyman tied the ball game with a five yard smash through the line, then the Lyman to Peel combination clicked for a 25 yard touchdown pass just before the half to give the Wildcats a 12-6 lead at the halftime.

Sub Back Shines

Eugene Carter, fleet substitute halfback for Littlefield, turned in the thriller of the game in the third period, when he intercepted a Tulia pass and sloshed 80 yards for the touchdown.

Early in the fourth quarter, Littlefield turned on the power, marching 60 yards for a score with Lyman plunging over from one yard out. Buster Owens then kicked the lone extra point of the ball game.

Tulia came back with a show of power, marched 40 yards to pay mud, with Borchardt knifing through from one yard out for the score.

Jay Garrett at center and 250 pound tackle, "Fat" Simpson stood out in the line for Tulia, both playing great ball on the defense. The battling Wildcat line was led by Sidney Buell at center, Buster Owens at end, Dal Brandon at tackle and Kenneth Ware at guard.

Southwest Loop Has Crucial Tilts Today

HOUSTON, Nov. 17(AP) — Tomorrow will be the crucial Saturday in Southwest Conference football—maybe.

When the sweaty warriors of the gridiron take their helmets in hand and head for the showers around dusk tomorrow the circuit flag chase may be all over but the presentation ceremonies.

Championship predictions in wartime have proved, however, to be worth something like a couple of lead nickels. So, for our money, the Southwest Conference situation will still be about as clear as a Kiska fog next week.

But, anyway, four teams are still shooting for the title and, signicance or no, there'll be three good football games in the Southwest tomorrow:

They line up:

Texas versus Texas Christian at Fort Worth.

Texas Aggies versus Rice Institute at Houston.

Arkansas versus Southern Methodist at Dallas.

Here are their conference records—pick your own flag-winner:

Texas, winner of the title for the past two years, has defeated Arkansas and Southern Methodist, lost to Rice, for two wins and a loss, or .667 if you like it in percentage. Texas winds up the conference season in a Turkey Day game with A. and M.

Texas Christian's football Frogs are perched on the top rail with a victory over A. and M. and a tie with Arkansas for a percentage of .750. T. C. U. has yet to play Rice (next week) and Southern Methodist, after tomorrow's scrap with Texas.

Rice, whose Owls led the race until last week, has beaten Texas and Southern Methodist, lost to Arkansas, for .667, or a tie for second with Texas. The Owls play T. C. U. in a conference finale next week.

Arkansas' Razorback team could win the championship, according to their Ozark experts, by downing S. M. U. tomorrow — providing the rest of the conference gets further complicated by certain defeats and victories. Arkansas tied with T. C. U., beat A. and M. and Rice and lost to Texas. Arkansas cleans the 1944 conference schedule tomorrow.

West Texas Teachers Romp Over South Plains, 19-14

With the rain, sleet and wind in their hair, West Texas State Teachers College's Buffaloes handed South Plains Army Air Field's Commandos their seventh straight setback of the season at Tech Stadium last night, 19 to 14, before a crowd of 150 persons who braved near freezing temperature.

Playing in comparative privacy, the Buffs and Commandos reeled off one of the most evenly fought games of the year here and gave the few fans who did come out an aerial show which would have done credit to a sunny afternoon in September.

Campbell Shines Again

It was a duel between SPAAF's great ball player, Passin' Paul Campbell, and the Buff's hard-hitting Eddie Castleberry. The Canyon boys came out on the long end of the score but not before Campbell had tossed strikes all over the field and had threatend to win the game in the fading seconds with a desperate aerial barrage. Castleberry equalled Campbell's aerial antics collaborating with the Buff's Henry Bledsoe, quarterback, to complete seven of eight passes. Campbell tossed 17, completed 7.

In addition to passing—once he tossed the icy pigskin 50 yards in the air—Campbell turned in the lion's share of the ground work for the Commandos, aided by better than usual blocking.

Buffs Open Up In Second

After a see-saw first quarter which saw the Commandos surge down to the Buff 28 before being stopped, the Teachers came storming back to count on the fifth play of the second stanza, Curtis Kelley, WTSTC fullback, plunged two yards through the line to climax a 72 yard drive which got under way in the last few minutes of the first. Bledsoe kicked the extra point and the Buffs were never headed.

The visitors, capitalizing on Castleberry's brawn to blast big holes in the SPAAF line, and mixing in a sparkling 20-yard pass play from Castleberry to gluefingered Metz LaFollette, right end, the Buffs smashed 92 yards to count at the end of the first half after cutting short another SPAAF rally on their own eight. The Commandos had powered their way from their own 21 to the Buff 25, on running plays before having their first pass attempt intercepted by the Buffs almost on their own goal.

Campbell Takes Chance

Castleberry, Hedges and Bledsoe combined to star in the second touchdown drive for the Buffs, Bledsoe finally finding LaFollette completely in the clear for a six yard heave and the tally. The try for extra point was blocked, and the half ended with the kickoff.

With the beginning of the second half, the sleet and rain came down faster and so did the Commandos. With Campbell hitting right half Claude McClanahan, SPAAF right half, for nine yards, End Doug Wakeland for eight and End George Young for six and then picking up eight more on a running play, the Commandos drove to the Buff 22 early in the third period. But the drive bogged down. Then after holding the visitors on the Buff 23, the Commandos started back from their own 41. On a beautiful payoff play, Campbell passed to Young on the Buff 45, Young in turn lateralling to Joe Eager, SPAAF quarter, who raced down to the Buff 35. Campbell then added five on a running play, then cut off tackle to the Buff 10. The former Breckenridge flash then smashed the WTSTC line for five more and then stepped off the final fire yards for the Commandos' first tally. It was Campbell who stepped back and calmly kicked the extra point only a minute before the third period ended.

But the Buffs stormed right back, taking SPAAF's kickoff and driving 72 yards to paydirt early in the fourth, Castleberry adding the final two yards on a line plunge to make the count, 19 to 7. Bledsoe's attempted conversion from placement again was blocked.

The second SPAAF touchdown came on a break. The Buffs had been set back on their heels when Campbell's punt was killed on the WTSTC 14. A 15-yard holding penalty set the Buffs back on the one and when Castleberry attempted to kick out on the first play, Left Guard Pat Steele for SPAAF blocked the kick, Steele recovering for the six points. Again it was Campbell who split the uprights and the score stood 19 to 14 with about four minutes to play.

The Buffs bogged down on the return kickoff on their own 48, kicking to Campbell on the SPAAF 27. Immediately the Commandos opened up. Two minutes remained. One pass fell incomplete, the next, Campbell to McClanahan, was good for 15 on the SPAAF 42. Another incomplete pass just missed and then Right Half Willard Hedges gathered in Campbell's next heave on the Buff 43 to halt the threat. The game ended seconds later with the Buffs being set on their heels on the SPAAF 34.

Not once did the Buffs substitute.

Pampa Powers Over Borger

PAMPA, Nov. 17. (Special).—The Pampa Harvesters rolled over the Borger Bulldogs here tonight to win a 39-7 victory in a District 1-AA conference standing, to keep alive a hope of getting a share in the conference flag.

The scoring started early, with Pampa driving to a touchdown in the first few minutes, and Randall Clay rammed over from the 4 yard line for the touchdown. Clay also kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

The Bulldogs then threw a scare into the Pampa fans as Pirtle took the following kickoff after Clay's score, and roared 80 yards for a touchdown. Pirtle also ran the ball over to tie the score at 7-7.

Clay scored again in the second quarter, and after that it was all Pampa. Clay broke away for a 45 yard gallop to score, and McCracken kicked the extra point. Merle McCracken scored the next touchdown in the second period and again kicked extra point for a 21-7 lead at the half.

Kent Grantham and Johnny Campbell continued the parade in the last half, and just before the game ended, Eugene Turner, tackle moved into the backfield with a flood of reserves sent in by Coach Coffey, smashed over for the final score.

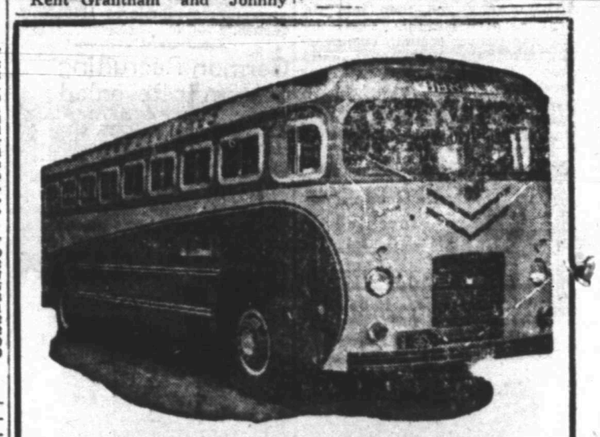

Sudan Hornets Sting Cowhands, Win 13-0

SUDAN, Nov. 17—The Sudan Hornets stung the Lubbock Cowhands Gold team twice in the second quarter and romped off with a 13 to 0 victory here this afternoon.

A 60 yard gallop through the middle and a 30 yard end run scored both touchdowns for the Hornets in the second period, and they ran the ball over after the second touchdown for the extra point.

The Cowhands never offered a serious threat during the game, and were never closer than the Sudan 30 yard line.

A New Field For Colleges

WHAT to do with our surplus warplanes in peacetime is a question that has been bothering a lot of people ever since our aircraft industry achieved its undreamed-of production heights. It has seemed that the mighty fleet of airplanes which has done so much to make victory certain might turn into a large herd of white elephants once that victory was won.

But Ernest R. Breech, president of the Bendix Aircraft corporation has come along with a plan that promises to achieve at least a partial solution of the problem and at the same time render this country a valuable service.

Mr. Breech suggests that the government, under the new Surplus law, sell or lease these craft to colleges and universities which now give aeronautical courses, or which plan to institute them after the war is won. His suggestion was preceded by a survey of schools, and the result assured him that there would be considerable academic interest in the used warplane market.

Only 455 out of 1200 colleges and universities polled answered the questionnaire. But 212 of these were found to be giving courses in aeronautics already, and 95 more include such courses in their postwar plans. What is more, 76 schools reported that they now have adequate facilities for a permanent program, and 160 others have some equipment.

Texas Tech is one American college which is very much alive to possibilities of aeronautical instruction of all kinds in the postwar era. Dr. W. M. Whyburn, president, tells us that the Division of Engineering has been charged with the responsibility of keeping abreast of all trends and possibilities and that Tech will offer its students everything it can in this line.

MR. BREECH'S plan apparently has the approval of the whole airplane industry, and its advantages are numerous. In the field of national defense, collegiate aviation instruction could be included in ROTC training, with requirements high enough to turn out pilots, navigators and mechanics of military standard.

Such instruction would also help to guarantee our continued leadership in world aviation. The victorious end of the war, which will find us the world's greatest air power, will also signal a great expansion of commercial aviation throughout the world, and of flying in general. If we wish to maintain our leadership, we must look for the new leaders in the shops and laboratories of our colleges and universities.

If the Breech plan will hasten a program for developing our future aircraft designers, engineers, and technicians, it deserves a try apart from its merits of usefully salvaging surplus planes.

OF course, the aviation industry's interest in this plan might be selfish, but it is selfishness which works for the common good. The industry, naturally, is interested in markets. Air-mindedness is a requisite of those markets, and there probably are few better ways of spreading air-mindedness than from our colleges.

But markets also mean jobs. Aviation is now in the awkward position of being one of our youngest as well as biggest industries. Obviously it cannot maintain anything like its present size in peace. But it should do everything possible to avoid a sudden collapse of activity.

If college aeronautical training con do anything toward easing the transition from full wartime to full peacetime production then Mr. Breech deserves three cheers and a tiger, on and off the campus.

"Too much rest will cause fatigue, as well as too much work," declares a physician. According to this theory, there are many persons who ought to work now and then in order to be rested up from being over-rested.

At times we wonder if it wouldn't be advisable to give up attempting to find out where the world's going and concentrate on trying to be content with merely hanging onto it for the ride.

"Natives of the Island of Yap use stones, up to 12 ft. in diameter, as money."—Press report. A lad rolling a grandstone downtown to buy an ice cream cone must be an absorbing sight.

Usually when you say of a person, "Anything one says to him goes in one ear and out the other," you are mistaken, as a vacuum will not conduct sound.

Paradox: The nearer you approach a great man, the smaller he seems.

The One Minute Sermon

When thus it shall be in the midst of the land among the people, there shall be as the shaking of an olive tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.

They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing for the majesty of the Lord, they shall cry aloud from the sea.

Wherefore glorify ye the Lord in the fires, even the name of the Lord God of Israel in the isles of the sea.—Isaiah 24:13-15.

THE STORY: Leo Kabateck, temporarily down at heel, gets a phone call from Virgil Boggia. Boggio wants to see him right away.

II

FIFTY-SEVEN West 72nd Street was the Shelton Arms, a prosperous-looking apartment house with a red and white striped awning and a colored doorman. I gave my name to the clerk at the desk, took the elevator to the third floor and then walked along a thick carpet which deadened your footsteps so efficiently that you sounded like a cat.

I had barely touched the buzzer of apartment 307 when Ginger opened the door. It looked as if they were impatiently waiting for me.

"Hel-lo, Leo!" exclaimed Ginger with that dazzling smile of hers. "Come right in." She took both my hands and shook them with all the effusiveness used for a sugar daddy bringing home the weekly check.

"You're looking more beautiful than ever, Ginger," I said, grinning back at her. I wasn't kidding. Her green eyes were bright and clear, her complexion was flawless, and she had a light coat of tan that suited her admirably. It was evident that the sea voyage had done her good and that whatever the extent of Virgil's worries, she wasn't going to share them.

Baggio, in a heavy silk robe, was stretched out on the divan. He waved a pudgy hand at me, motioning me to sit down, and then replaced the wet cloth he had removed from his forehead. I was frankly shocked by his appearance. His usually well-fed face seemed thin and drawn. There were dark circles under his eyes which he had closed, and he looked as if he hadn't slept for the past week.

"Virgil's not feeling so good," Ginger explained in a whisper. "I've given him a couple of aspirins. It's one of his migraines and he's feeling sick to his stomach. He doesn't travel well. I told him to take it easy this morning, but he was in a hurry to see you. Now he realizes that he'd better wait for awhile."

If I knew anything about Virgil it wasn't the journey that made him feel sick. It took something a little stronger to knock him off his feet.

"Make yourself comfortable," continued Ginger. "I'll get you a drink."

GINGER glided back and forth to the kitchen as if she were still on the stage, with me doing duty for baldheaded row. She had just deposited the ice bowl on a little table in front of my armchair, and bent over to fill two glasses when Boggio took an active part in the proceedings. He slowly hoisted himself to a sitting position and swung his body around so that his short legs dangled over the edge of the divan.

"Come on," he said. "Let's go into the other room.

I took up my drink and we went into the bedroom on the other side of the small hallway.

Boggio plunked himself into an armchair and I sat down across from him. It was funny how much taller he looked sitting down than standing up. The reason was his legs, which were completely out of proportion with the rest of his body. They were at least six inches too short and thus his height of five feet two should have been about five eight. I've often wondered if it wasn't this physical deformity which made Boggio what he is. After all, Napoleon's stature had something to do with the shaping of the world.

"Suppose a corporation had its back to the wall and was about to go into receivership?" he asked suddenly. "And suppose it couldn't save itself, would it mean a complete investigation of its activities? Would the bankruptcy court turn the whole thing over to the federal authorities if certain irregularities were discovered?"

"It might," I said. "Provided the corporation did go into receivership."

I was on the spot. Boggio had been out of circulation for the past six months and, before leaving, he hadn't even hinted that anything might be wrong. And now I was supposed to come across with all the answers. I was to be a Code Book, a Father Confessor, and a brain trust all rolled in one. That's what I'd been trained for and it looked as if I were finally going to function.

I SQUIRMED uneasily in my chair. "Now look here, Virgil," I continued. "I know your rules and I want to abide by them. But if you want me to help you this time you'll have to be more explicit."

He didn't say anything. He just sat there, thinking. I knew what was going on in his mind. Here he was, a man who'd built up something terrific by the simple method of divide and rule. He'd played a multitude of persons and corporations against each other, and he'd always come out on top. He was in a unique position, for while he knew all those working for and with him, very few of them knew each other. Each had a specific job to do and was supposed to get going when called upon. My job was to hand out legal advice of a certain nature.

I could actually see the struggle going on in Boggio's mind. A rule that had been sacred to him was hanging in the balance. He'd never told anyone more than was necessary to keep the organization functioning. Now he had to choose between total collapse and confiding in one person. And that person was me.

The suspense became unbearable. He sat there, and I sat across from him. I didn't add anything to what I'd already said. I didn't have to. He knew as well as I did that the time had come for a showdown if he wanted to continued functioning. I finished up my drink and put the glass on the floor.

"Okay," said Boggio after awhile. "I'll talk. But first I'll remind you that I still have a paper signed by you. And I don't have to tell you what'll happen if you double-cross me."

"Sure," I said. "I know." I settled back in my chair and lit a cigaret. "Go ahead."

(To Be Continued)

Monopoly On Cheaper Commodities Opposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The House small business committee complained today that wartime regulations give department stores and mail order houses a "virtual monopoly" on sales of cheap dresses and cotton piece goods.

Announcing that Chairman Patman (D-Tex) had protested to the War Production board and Office of Price administration, the committee called for a "real equitable distribution" of these commodities to small merchants.

It said a survey showed that small merchants who normally distribute 76 per cent of all dresses retailing from $1.49 to $1.69 have, under WPB and OPA orders, received only 4.8 per cent of this merchandise, while 95 per cent has gone to larger stores.

A similar situaton was declared to exist in regard to the distribution of men's shirts and shorts.

INGERSOLL TAKES OVER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—(U.P.)—Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, fourth ranking officer in the United States fleet, took over his new duties as commander of the Western Sea frontier today, relieving Admiral David W. Bagley who will go to Pearl Harbor to asume command of the Hawaiian Sea frontier.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

SINCE I have to write my column a few days ahead of publication this one is written before election, while you will read it when the shouting is all over.

I don't know as I write these lines whether, Roosevelt or Dewey will have been elected, but, in my humble opinion, it won't make much difference.

I don't know a thing about politics. I have never aspired to the political sagacity of a Pegler or Mallon or Pearson or Lippman or Sokolsky. I certainly don't know a particle of what Dorothy Thompson thinks she knows.

But I do know this: No matter who is going to be our next President, America will go on to be a great country and you and I have every reason in the world to get down on our bended knees every night and every morning and thank God that we are privileged to live in it.

I am just simple enough to believe in our American institutions.

I don't believe that there are any more crooks in one party than in another.

I think 130 million Americans are smart enough not to let any one man and his clique or his gang or whatever you may call it bamboozle them any more or any longer than they want to be bamboozled.

Oh sure, we would probably much prefer not to have Hagues and Kellys and Ickeses and Hopkinses and Flynns.

But we would also prefer not to have wasps and cockroaches and bedbugs and mice and weasels.

So we leave them alone until they start to bite us and overrun us and then we get the exterminator and chase them out.

Some of these pests, furthermore, are quite harmless as long as you don't come into too close contact with them.

I have always had a sort of sneaking fondness for skunks. I like the way they waddle and I like their funny faces and their cute grunts —and, as you know, they are quite affectionate and make good pets if you deodorize them.

BUT to come back to the election, I honestly believe, that no matter who is President, he'll try to do his best for his country.

I believe every cabinet member, every senator, every congressman wants to do what is right.

Take Madame Perkins, for instance You may not like her hats. But I am sure she thinks they are very becoming to her and that she doesn't buy them just to spite you or to put some milliner out of business by telling her friends where she bought them.

I believe that no matter who gets elected he is the people's choice: I'm just simple enough for that.

And if you do let someone pull the political wool over your ears, then it's your own fault.

If you aren't adult enough to vote sensibly or to vote at all then you deserve a political nursemaid.

And, as you know, nursemaids are often quite dictatorial.

At any rate, it's all over for another four years. Let's hope they will be happy ones.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER

FLIGHT of Nazi ringleaders to the Argentine after Germany's military defeat could cause an unprecedented crisis in Pan-American affairs, and especially in the relations between Washington and every Latin republic.

The dangers have frequently been canvassed by United States and British diplomats here. They sense that a possible showdown may be the first serious test of the Good Neighbor policy. Even more important, it may give the first inkling of postwar temper in a section of the American continent which has made great strides toward wealth, self-consciousness and assertiveness.

Buenos Aires appears a likely haven for the Hitler-Goering-Himmler trio because it is less accessible than such places as Sweden, Spain, Switzerland and Portugal. Unless the Farrell regime adheres to previous promises to shut the door in the faces of the Nazis, this vast, sprawling country would be safer for the persons and property of Berlin's gangsters than any other nation.

North American and friendly Argentinian sources have reported the recent arrival of numerous German army officers, munitions experts and engineers who were once close to Hitler. They entered under Argentinian passports, but fake names were on those documents.

PIRATES: In addition to this Argentine infiltration, our observers note a persistent flow of dollar securities and United States currency seized by the Nazis when they overran western Europe in 1940. Simultaneously, Axis industrialists show keen interest in investments to the south.

Another cause for concern is the sharp increase in the production of weapons in the Argentine. These include such possibly offensive arms as light tanks, training planes, gliders, pontoon bridges and small arms. Living in the outskirts of Buenos Aires at the moment is Fritz Mandl, Austrian munition promoter. He disavows Nazi connections, but he has been most cooperative in the expansion of armaments.

For the moment Anglo-American statesmen are merely keeping a watchful and worried eye on these underground movements. It may be that fugitives from Europe are only getting out while the getting is good. But even though they may not be pioneers of a plan to establish a counterpart of the Reich in the Western Hemisphere, their very presence holds immense possibilities for political and economic evil.

Washington definitely will not tolerate the introduction of hateful Hitler ideologies on this side of the Atlantic. Our government prefers to avoid a clash that might hurt the pride and rouse the anger of other friendly South American capitals. But should the Nazi gang westward-ho it, there is no law against taking pirates off a ship on the high seas!

STALIN: Although Russia constitutes the largest potential market for American exports after the war, private surveys of prospects for a balanced two-way trade have discouraged our exporters and industrialists. The difficulties are serious enough in normal times, but the war's dislocations aggrevate them a hundredfold.

Russo-American conferees estimate that Moscow can take a minimum of five billion dollars' worth of goods from us annually for at least three years after the armistice. Then this figure would probably settle down to a total of approximately two billon dollars a year.

The Soviet Union wants heavy goods—rails, locomotives and other rolling stock, machinery, hydroelectric equipment—to rebuild her shattered economy and to transform her great country into an industrial giant like the United States.

American businessmen report that their dealings with Stalin have been "eminently satisfactory." He has met all obligations punctually and without haggling. Individual companies here have already promised heavy credits on initial postwar orders, although they aim to replace these with government credits at lower interest rates.

EMPLOYMENT: The chief obstacle is that we buy so little from Russia. The prewar total never exceeded 30 million dollars a year, and it fell as low as 23 million in 1938. These amounts would not even service the credit charge that would have to be extended to cover several billion dollars' worth of exports.

The Kremlin produces plenty of new gold, but we do not want it. A larger supply would endanger our price structure. It is highly questionable whether raw materials—furs, timber, manganese, chromium—could be imported in sufficient volume to underwrite a vast expansion of business.

But high levels of employment here depend on the way the two nation's statesmen and business leaders settle this question. So far the principal efforts to promote this mutually beneficial exchange of commodities have come from "Uncle Joe." In the midst of war he is planning for peace.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

A DEMONSTRATION of free enterprise on a world scale is now in progress in Rye, New York, where 500 delegates from 50 nations are attending the International Business conference and discussing in the lobbies common postbellum economic problems.

A few government representatives are sitting on the side lines as sympathetic observers. But the meetings are conducted by private businessmen. An indication of the importance of the United States in global affairs is that, whereas in former international gatherings the French language was used, in this confab the visitors have chosen English as the medium of expression.

American members arrived imbued with optimism after reading the latest estimates of peace trade issued by the Foreign Economic administration which states: "United States exports must be raised from $2,800,000,000 to $14,300,000,000 merely to fill the gap left by lend-lease exports."

Our spokesmen predict that, if all goes well, foreign deals will give employment to five million workers and distribute abroad some $15,000,000,000 worth of United States goods and services.

TARIFF: European nations, even neutrals, are eager to buy our food and manufacture, but a cause for anxiety has been that we might bar commerce by high duties as we have in the past.

Some of the foremost American industrialists at the sessions dispelled this fear. The greats were told that our recent Reciprocal Trade Agreements program reverses previous policies of unilateral tariff-making and now seeks to eliminate squabbles by negotiation.

"American businessmen," says Robert Gaylord, "recognize today that if we are to export goods we must receive payment for them in raw materials and in the manufactured articles of other nations. To encourage the world's industrialization we must send abroad the means of production to the raw materials countries so they may fabricate goods for their own needs."

The significance of this declaration is that Gaylord is the president of the National Associated of Manufacturers, of whose members many were once the most vociferous advocates of prohibitive "protective tariffs."

Similar views on the removal of trade restrictions were expressed by Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. As the administration initiated the Hull treaties, it can be safely forecast that unimpeded exchange of products will be the postwar policy of Washington and private business.

"No amount of the tax liability of an individual who died during the taxable year is discharged."—From form 1040. For goodness sakes, Uncle Sam, don't tell us you have a graveyard shift of income tax collectors!

We don't know whether or not this portends anything politically, but last night we changed nightmares in the middle of a dream.

Side Glances --- By Galbraith

"Thank you for the compliment! I feel wonderful, too, since our car was junked and I've been taking that long walk to the beauty shop twice a week!"

The PLAINSMAN Says—

That Girl on Broadway says few people have been able to drive on to success without whipping up that well known team of perspiration and inspiration.

* * *

It's true that the Elector College has no football team, but it does have cheer leaders and, this year, a fair share of kickers!

CONSIDERABLE talk has been going around town in recent days and weeks about the changes which likely will come over Lubbock's retail and wholesale "face" as the result of sensational purchases of real estate and the post-war plans of many business houses to expand and remodel.

Most of the conversation has had to do with whether or not Broadway will continue westward and hold its grip on retail supremacy and, if not, what expansion may be expected on Avenues H, J and K, Texas Avenue, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. But in any discussion of Lubbock's future expansion it is not well to overlook those areas of Thirteenth street and Avenue Q in the vicinity of the Central Ward school grounds, or Nineteenth street in the vicinity of Avenue Q.

Lubbock Independent School district owns approximately four acres of land bounded on the north by Thirteenth street; lying westward from undeveloped Avenue P to a point on Thirteenth 150 feet or so east of Q; but also extending onto Q, between where Fourteenth street would join Q were it cut through from the east, and Fifteenth street.

That is a very valuable and highly desirable piece of property from a business standpoint, although its usefulness as school property has diminished to the point where it is neglibible.

Frankly and honestly, members of the Board of Trustees have been considering offering the Central Ward property for sale.

While the trustees yet have taken no formal action, nor have they gotten together on a price they'd be willing to take for the property, our guess is that $250,000 net to the school district would buy it tomorrow.

And don't think the property isn't worth $250,000 at present values. It is.

AS far as needing the Central Ward property for continued school use is concerned, the school system simply doesn't need it because there are no longer living adjacent to the school enough pupils to be served. Central Ward's youngsters largely are drawn from areas far removed from its grounds, because business property has so encroached upon it from the east, north and west that the area simply doesn't have enough population of school age to support it.

The school system needs more buildings than it has in other parts of Lubbock, and in areas adjacent to Lubbock, where residential sections have spread. But it doesn't need a school in Central Ward's location any more than the average Eskimo family needs a mechanical refrigerator.

The Central Ward property is highly versatile in its possibilities.

Should it pass from the school system to private hands, undoubtedly Fourteenth street would be opened from the east (where it comes to a dead end now at undeveloped Avenue P) into Avenue Q. Also, it is logical to suspect that Avenue P, development of which the school has halted, also would be opened up as a full street from Thirteenth to Fifteenth.

Either or both of these developments would be a boon to traffic and to life in general in the neighborhood affected. Either, or both, would improve property values, too.

Almost anything can be done, commercially speaking, with the Central Ward property. It would be fine for one of the big downtown churches, which could use a part of the ground and sell off the rest. It would lend itself nicely to an apartment hotel and an adjacent neighborhood shopping center. And don't overlook the fact that it would be perfect for that city auditorium, or convention hall, which has been Lubbock's No. 1 municipal need for a long time now.

THE brethren of the First Baptist church have been at least mildly interested in the Central Ward property for some time. Should they purchase it, they'd have a wonderful location for a church, an educational and recreational building, and a manse — then could sell off what was left with little or no trouble.

If the City of Lubbock would purchase the grounds for a convention hall and municipal auditorium, part of the remaining property could be used for parking space and the balance sold off to private individuals.

An apartment hotel located on one corner would leave a vast acreage — including the lots facing Avenue Q — for other commercial development and operators of the apartment hotel would have a location which always, as long as there is a Lubbock, would be advantageously located.

Verily, what is done with the Central Ward property when the school system sells it will be important to the future of the city.

As to the section centering around Nineteenth and Avenue Q, it is a "natural" to continue as the city's chief outlying business section for considerable time to come. It has the Avenue Y-College avenues area of Nineteenth bested because Tech and expensive residential property halt expansion to the west. Furthermore, as Avenue Q continues to develop toward Thirty-fourth street, that thoroughfare will be even more heavily traveled than it is now.

G. F. Wacker, who bought the Wheelock corner on which to locate a downtown store offering goods at from five cents to $5, plans a suburban store of the same kind in the Nineteenth and Q section and Joe Bryant expects to construct a moving picture show somewhere in that neighborhood, too.

Since various businesses now are operating in the vicinity of Nineteenth and Q, it is logical to expect there will be more and more as time marches on.

* * *

VERILY, the individual who left Lubbock around 1940 and who, for some reason or another, doesn't get back before five years after victory won't know the old town.

Especially if expansion of the oil business countinues in this area, our bustling little trading post is destined to burst, during the next decade, into full bloom as considerable of a city.

With growth and expansion will come municipal problems we've never known before, and all connected with them will not be beer and skittles.

But we'd just as well look the situation in the face and, as a populace, do whatever we can to promote orderly growth as we go along.

Affections are never stolen when kept where they belong.

That Man on Avenue Q says nothing ruins the truth like stretching it.

* * *

JUDGING from postwar promises of the manufacturers, many nuisances here-to-fore found only in the homes of the very rich soon will have to be put up with by us all!

39—Legal Notice

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATES OF LYNN OLIAN ARNOLD AND PEGGY SUE ARNOLD, MINORS, NO. 1822 IN THE COUNTY COURT, LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS.

To all persons interested in the estates of Lynn Olian Arnold and Peggy Sue Arnold:

You are notified that I did, on the 17th day of November, 1944, file with the County Clerk of Lubbock County, Texas, an application under oath for authority to make to R. R. Herrell, as Lessee, oil, gas and mineral leases on the undivided one-seventh interest each of said minors in and to the following described land:

A part of Section No. Sixteen (16), in Block D-2, in Lubbock county, Texas, beginning at the intersection of the center line of the North-South and East-West graded roadways, the Northwest corner of this Section and tract; Thence South 423 varas; Thence East 953.7 varas; Thence North 421.7 varas; Thence West 953.7 varas to the place of beginning.

That G. V. Pardue, Judge of the County Court of Lubbock county, Texas, on the 17th day of November, 1944, entered his order, designating the 27th day of November, at 10 o'clock a. m. in the county court room in the courthouse of Lubbock, at the time and place when and where such application will be heard.

WAYNE G. ARNOLD, Guardian.

Officers Named By Boys Club

Bad weather cut attendance at a fathers' night program held Friday night at Lubbock Boys club, with members as hosts, but 124 youngsters and 58 fathers and mothers were present.

Jimmy Clark, 16-year-old Senior High student, was elected president of the club at a business session following the program. Jack Chaney was elected vice president, Carroll Price secretary and Weldon Summers sergeant-at-arms.

Council Selected

Representatives of the three age groups participating in activities of the club were elected to serve as a council in assisting the officers in governing the club and planning programs. Wendell Conditt was named to represent the 15-16 group, Jack Atkins the 13-14 group and Gene Hamilton the 10 to 12 group.

The governing body will be supervised by adult club directors.

County Judge G. V. Pardue served as master of ceremonies. Welcome and introductions were made by J. Ray Dickey, president of the American Business club. Dr. O. C. Boone presented an act of magic and club tumblers and boxers put on an exhibition.

Building Inspection

Club members served as guides in an inspection of the building.

The ABC provided refreshments of punch and cookies, with members J. E. Mason and Grady Knight serving.

Mothers of boys whose fathers are in service, or otherwise not able to attend, were given special invitations to the affair.

Essair Service

sible under war-time conditions and said after the close of the war it was hoped that maximum efficiency of operation and service could be attained.

He said his company was instituting its service on the basis of frequency of schedules and declared that additional schedules would be added if traffic justifies and if equipment is available.

The company has already filed applications for extension of its feeder routes. These applications included a route from Lubbock to Midland to San Angelo and San Antonio; a direct route to Austin or Houston via Brownwood which would shorten flying time to either city by approximately 40 minutes; a route from Abilene to Fort Worth and Dallas; and a route from Midland to Tulsa, via Sweetwater, Abilene, Wichita Falls, Lawton, Okla., and Oklahoma City.

Veteran Of War I

President of Essair, Maj. Long is a World war I pilot, owner of the Dallas Aviation school and Air college. He conducted the mechanics school at Dallas for the Army, primary training at Hicks field, and primary and basic training at Curtis field, Brady.

The company name, Essair, was formed by the E standing for economy, first S for safety and second S for speed, combined with 'air.'

Besides Major Long, other officials of the company are L. H. Luckey, vice president and general manager; C. W. Murchison, vice president; and E. Y. Host, secretary-treasurer.

The visit of the two officials here Friday afternoon climaxed a full day of consideration of airline matters by chamber of commerce officials. C. of C. and Board of City Development officials Friday morning voted to support Braniff Airways in their application for airline service from Oklahoma City to Lubbock via Wichita Falls in a hearing to be held soon before the CAB in Washington.

A. B. Davis, manager, was instructed by motion of the directors to support the Braniff application with a brief as to the needs of airline service to Lubbock from Oklahoma City.

American Airlines was granted an Oklahoma City-El Paso nonstop route by CAB this week. Chamber of commerce officials are hopeful that Lubbock eventually will become a stop on the American route just approved.

Two Routes Approved

Davis, at the outset of the meeting, reviewed the history of airline applications through Lubbock and outlined briefly and status of the various applications. Two of the routes through Lubbock have been approved, one by Braniff from Dallas and Fort Worth via Lubbock to Amarillo and Denver, and another by Essair from Amarillo to Houston via Lubbock and intermediate points.

Service on the two routes has not been started due to certain operation technicalities which must be ironed out between the airlines and the Civil Aeronautics authority.

BCD directors this morning took the attitude that Lubbock should aid and support any airline application which would provide service for Lubbock but indicated a preference for those lines which would provide transcontinental service or connections with transcontinental lines.

The Braniff application from Oklahoma City is a proposed new application to be filed before the CAB and officials are hopeful that a hearing on the case will be conducted in Washington soon after the first of the year.

Three In Family Die In Car-Train Crash

VAN HORN, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—Frank Wilkenson, 55, his wife, Ona, 40, and 17-year-old son, Blems, were killed today when the car in which they were riding was in collision with a Texas and Pacific passenger train eight miles east of here.

The Wilkensons were returning from Van Horn to their home on the Brewer and Knox ranch. They had moved only last week from Rankin.

SOME FAVORITES ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) — Scattered stock favorites managed to keep in the plus column today while numerous market leaders stood still or slipped to slightly lower levels. Declines predominated at the close.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .1 of a point at 54.6 owing to timid last-minute comebacks in several rails. Of 850 issues appearing, 332 were down, 275 up and 243 unchanged.

At peaks for 1944 were Standard Gas $7 preferred, up 5½; Pittsburgh Coal preferred, up 4 points on meager sales, and Emerson Electric, up 1. Texas Pacific Land Trust added ⅞ to its stumble of yesterday. Down also were U. S. Steel, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, American Telephone, Standard Oil (N. J.), General Electric, American Smelting and Consolidated Edison.

Among strong spots in the curb were Illinois Power, up 1⅜ and Raytheon, up 3¼. Minor recessions were posted for Electric Bond and Share, Cities Service, Republic Aviation and American Cyanamid "B." Turnover here was 240,345 shares versus 218,440 the day before.

Will Hitler Flee?

lynch der Fuhrer and his principal collaborators, seems unlikely in view of the frightful hold which the fully armed Gestapo has upon the civilian population.

A revolution from the top has been effectively discouraged by the purges of generals, diplomats, labor leaders experienced administrators, and others following the attempt, real or staged, upon Hitler's life on July 20.

And yet the possibility of a violent death should not be ruled out.

Mussolini was disavowed by his own son-in-law and by such intimate disciples as Dino Grandi and Marshal Emilio de Bono. They did not have to kill their Duce—there was a higher authority, the old King, Victor Emmanuel.

In Germany, there is no higher authority. If Hitler's intimates should decide his elimination is desirable, and should tell him so, he would try to beat them to it by summoning the pretorian guards outside his study and commanding them to "kill the traitors."

Hence, for their own protection, they would have to eliminate him by assassination.

In a weird, unsavory, gangster regime, things may happen of a kind that ordinarily occur only in Hollywood detective thrillers.

Persons in Germany when I left in 1942 insisted even then that Hitler was dead. They were by no means wild-eyed individuals.

Shortly before leaving the country, however, I had an opportunity to hear der Fuehrer once more. I looked for those mannerisms which would escape even Wagner—such as the way he pronounced the "st" in "sturm".

I concluded that the voice I heard was still that of Hitler.

It is another question whether Hitler may recently have left Germany. His flight could be kept secret a long time.

Against such a possibility, however, I pit his fanaticism and his gambler's belief that luck is just around the corner. My guess—and it is purely a guess—is that Adolf Hitler will not try to get out from under until there is a complete rout of his forces.

Slayer Of Deerhunter Killed At His Cabin

GRASS VALLEY, Calif., Nov. 17. (UP)—William E. Ebaugh, bearded recluse sought for questioning in the killing last October 16 of a young deerhunter, was shot to death today at the door of a cabin he was occupying in mountain country 15 miles from here.

The sheriff's office reported that Irvin Davis, who lives near the cabin, recognized Ebaugh and challenged him to surrender. When the man turned to enter the cabin he was felled by a single shot in the stomach.

Ebaugh, about 40, was hunted specifically in connection with the killing of Henry Lewis, discharged veteran of the current war who was hunting near his parents' mountain home.

Telephone Workers Strike Spreading

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17 (AP)—A fast-spreading strike of operators crippled telephone communications in seven Ohio cities tonight.

City by city, operators left their boards in sympathy with Dayton operators who walked out this morning to climax a dispute with the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., over importation of out-of-town personnel.

Columbus and Toledo operators followed swiftly, then Xenia, Tiffin, Findlay and Wellsville. Strike votes were scheduled tonight in other cities where operators are affiliated with the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, an independent union.

Retired Capitalist Dies At Amarillo

DALLAS, Nov. 17. (UP)—Samuel L. Seay, capitalist and retired investment banker of Amarillo, died of a heart attack in the lobby of a hotel here this afternoon.

Seay was stricken when he started up the steps to the mezzanine to meet his wife, the former Mrs. I. D. Cole, former president of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. Seay had just addressed a meeting of the Second district of the federation.

In addition to his wife, Seay is survived by a son, Tom F. Seay. Funeral services will be in Amarillo.

Yanks Advance Near Saar Basin

Seloncourt and Herimoncourt.

The French also advanced in the Moselott bend.

The British Second Army in eastern Holland reached the Maas facing the German frontier—no more than five miles away at one point—and broke across the Zig canal, where the enemy had dug in for a stand north of the Maas stronghold of Roermond.

Hundreds of fighter bombers flashed across the sullen skies, bombing Duren and Julich, vital communication centers for the Germans fighting with their backs to the Roer river on the First and Ninth Army fronts. Pilots said both towns now resemble battered St. Lo in France.

Some of the fiercest fighting on the First Army front raged in Stolberg, five miles east of Aachen, and two-thirds of the town now was in American hands.

1,000 Guns Massed

It was disclosed that the First Army massed 1,000 big guns for yesterday's attack firing 20 tons a minute for a full hour.

A front dispatch said that Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tanks pierced to Remeling, two miles from the Saar frontier, the closest that his armor yet had come to the Reich.

Infantry, fanning out from the same bridgehead around Koenigsmacher struck north of the tank columns and were nearing two towns within a mile and a half south of the German border where it turns and runs east and west.

One force in a three-mile drive neared Manddren, a mile and a half from this section of the border.

Another force three miles to the west poked forward a mile to Rustroff, the same distance from the border at the point where it joins Luxembourg and France.

14 Miles Inside Reich

The U. S. First Army advanced to within six miles west of Duren, which would be approximately 14 miles inside the Reich east of Aachen.

(A Berlin radio commentator declared that the First on this second day of its attack had torn a breach in the German line in this area. Duren is 20 miles southwest of Cologne on the Rhine.)

Obeying orders to stand or die, the Germans fighting on the sodden Cologne plain at the gateway to the Ruhr valley threw Tiger tanks into the ranks of the charging U. S. Ninth Army a few miles to the north but were beaten back with bloody losses.

On the Third Army's southern flank, the U. S. Seventh Army was closing in around flaming St. Die, enemy supply center for the Vosges region. St. Die at the entrance of St. Marie pass, was set afire by the Germans. Thirty-five miles east of St. Die lie Bavaria, and the Rhine.

French First Army

The French First Army on the southern end of the front fought to a point eight miles south of Belfort, another gateway to Bavaria, stretching their gains in two days of attacks to more than seven miles along a 25-mile front.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army tanks and infantry, unstoppable even in the deep mire and some of the worst weather ever seen in the west, stormed and seized the village of Gressenich, eight miles east of Aachen, in two hours and a half.

Bodies of the defenders strewed the streets and the rubble, a front dispatch said, after the big barrage had hurled exploding steel into German positions at the rate of 20 tons a minute for a full hour, pouring in everything from three-inchers to 240 millimeters.

In Suburbs of Metz

The U. S. Third Army battled into the suburbs of Metz, where the Germans were throwing up street barricades, but it remained to be seen whether Patton would try to storm the barricade or encircle it and smash on east for the Saar.

The longest advance toward the city was scored on the north, where the doughboys of the 95th were less than a mile away after surrounding Fort Gambetta. They also took Lorry-Les-Metz, a mile northwest of the city.

The Fifth Infantry division, after advancing over 100 hard-won yards, was under a mile away on the south at an airfield and between Magny and Fort Queleu.

The Fifth also surrounded the Verdun fort group some three miles to the southwest, despite harrassing fire.

flanking move which placed American troops in their rear, two and a half miles south of Limon. This force had not been able to cut the highway, Hampson said, because of heavy enemy concentrations on a commanding hillside.

American heavy artillery kept the Ormoc road and corridor under fire and liberation forces to the east and south of Ormoc continued to tighten their envelopment of the enemy's escape port. Heavy tropical rains restricted operations.

Mapia Blow Gains

Occupation of the Mapia islands, off the coast of northwest New Guinea, proceeded satisfactorily. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that Pegun, the first of the island group to be invaded Wednesday, had been completely occupied. His forces then spilled over to adjoining Bras island, where enemy remnants were being eliminated.

Purpose of the Mapia invasion is to remove enemy observers who have kept a close watch on Allied aerial operations. The islands are unimportant except as observation outposts.

The U. S. Marine Corps band became known as the "President's Own" when President John Adams set a precedent and ordered its appearance at all official functions.

Founder Of Noted Private School Dies

GROTON, Mass., Nov. 17. (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody, 87, founder of exclusive Groton school and for more than half a century its headmaster, died today while out on his customary afternoon automobile ride.

Teacher of President Roosevelt and of the chief executive's sons, Dr. Peabody performed the ceremony when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were married.

The former Groton headmaster parked his car by the roadside during his customary afternoon drive today and apparently fell into a sleep from which he did not waken.

were reported as relatively light at the time she was named.

On the score of damage to American vessels, the Navy had this to say:

"The Japanese are still wondering what hit them. It is impossible, therefore, to identify the composition of our naval forces or to describe the damage — other than losses — suffered by us. . .

Some Back In Service

"All damage, however, was remediable and some of the United States ships hurt in the fight are already back on duty."

The list of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by naval forces agreed substantially with earlier accounts:

Sunk — two battleships, four carriers, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, an undertermined number of destroyers, total 14 plus the destroyers.

So damaged that they may have sunk—one battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, seven destroyers; total 13.

Damaged — six battleships, four heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, 10 destroyers; total 21.

Battle Against Long Odds

The communique indicated that the greater part of the damage to the American fleet came in a gallant battle against long odds when the middle prong of the Japanese force, badly battered but pushing determinedly on, came out through San Bernadino strait.

That force, of four battleships, seven cruisers and nine destroyers, pounced on an American force of escort carriers and destroyers protecting landings on Leyte.

Admiral Halsey's main force by that time was far north cleaning up the Japanese fleet that hit from that direction.

The American escort carriers, converted merchantmen, retired at their limited top speed.

"Japanese marksmanship was poor and American seamanship excellent," the communique said in reporting light early damage to the American ships.

And the light American force made the price high, with two heavy Japanese cruisers and one —perhaps two — destroyers sunk.

But the greater speed and firepower of the attacking Japanese began to tell their story. One of the American carriers was sunk. Two destroyers and a destroyer escort "courageously charged the Japanese battleships and went down under the enemy's heavy shells."

The American remnant had been maneuvered into position for the kill, with the enemy's heavy guns working from practical pointblank range only 12,000 yards away, when the Japanese admiral suddenly hauled away, threw a final harmless spread of torpedoes, and retired.

Jap Scene Reconstructed

Reconstructing the scene on the Japanese flagship, the Navy figured he must have learned of the destruction of the southern Japanese prong which tried Surigao strait, and the rout of the northern force.

By that time Admiral Halsey had detached heavies from the pursuit in the north and they were bearing down. There also was a battleship force, Kincaid's Seventh, in Leyte Gulf.

"He had to get back through San Bernadino strait or face annihilation," the Navy said of the Japanese commander.

He lost heavily anyway, the resume reported, with one destroyer caught by Halsey's relief fleet, and carrier planes probably sinking two cruisers in the Sibuyan Sea next morning.

Rainey Blamed By Bullington

cent developments have convinced the board that President Rainey tragically failed to exercise proper care" in recommending faculty members to the board in "investigating the character, scholarship, reputation and general fitness of persons who are to teach the youth of Texas, and mould and develop their qualities of mind and heart."

In support of this charge, Bullington's statement cited two instances.

Arthur Billings Case

The first was the case of Arthur Billings, former instructor of economics, who was recently given a two-year prison sentence in Kansas on a charge of refusing to submit for induction in the armed forces.

The second was the case of a university teacher whose name was not given, "who had been recommended to the board by President Rainey, and elected because the board relied on the recommendation" and who was "indicted by the grand jury of Travis county for alleged unspeakable and unmentionable social crime." Commenting on this case, Bullington interpolated:

"I am perfectly willing to give the whole story if the committee wants it. What we can't give, the department of public safety can because they have handled the investigation for the board of regents."

Rainey Recommendation

Commenting on the Billings case, Bullington told the committee:

"Rainey recommended Billings despite his knowledge that Billings was a conscientious objector. In this he violated the rules providing that he should keep us informed. He should have known that had we known Billings' attitude, the board would not have reemployed him."

He said the first knowledge the board had of the Billings case was when a former regent, W. H. Burges of El Paso, wrote board members about it.

This testimony was given on the second day of the inquiry before a crowd that included many students of the university. The hearing was moved into the Senate chamber from a committee room.

Earlier today, Dr. Rainey suggested to the committee that it investigate what he described as "interlocking interests" among boards of directors of various state colleges and the state board of education.

Restrictive Charges

He has charged the regents with 16 instances of what he described as "restrictive measures" attempted or imposed by the board, claiming the regents have blocked freedom of investigation, and stating that underlying the controversy were different conceptions of what constitutes a first-class university.

Bullington's statement went into each of the points mentioned by Dr. Rainey, countering that the board was conscientiously discharging its constitutional and statutory duties, acting in good faith, not restricting academic freedom or freedom of research and investigation, and citing what it described as his failure "in discharging this most important trust committed to him by the board" in the recommending of faculty members "unworthy of their high profession."

Interlocking Interests

Dr. Rainey's reference to "interlocking interests" among boards of directors prompted close questioning by committee members after he had testified:

"It is such an interlocking that that the whole thing frightens me."

He added there was a linking of interests, business and financial, that has been apparent since the summer of 1940 and it was his opinion it was the result of a studied effort.

Dr. Rainey, discharged as president by the board of regents on Nov. 1, completed his testimony detailing his differences with board members with a second proposal that there be a full study of the government of the university and that a joint committee of faculty and board restudy the matter of tenure and academic freedom, two points of differences between Dr. Raney and the board.

Over Half Of Jap Raiders Shot Down

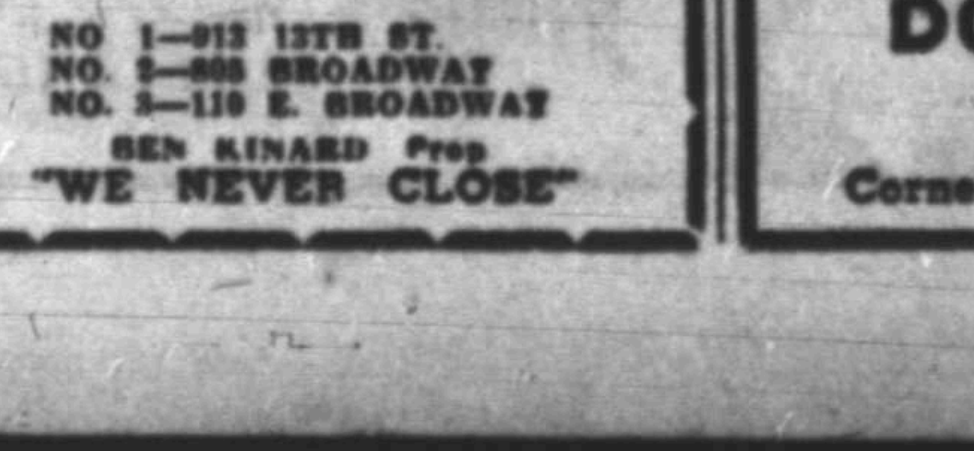

AT A LEYTE AIRBASE, Saturday, Nov. 18. (AP)—American fighter pilots today shot down 15 of 30 Japanese planes which roared over Leyte gulf to attack installations in the Dulag area, and anti-aircraft fire brought down three more.

That boosted the total of Japanese planes destroyed in the Philippines by Army and carrier-based fliers so far in November to 785—431 on the ground, 354 in the air. During the same period the Japanese have downed 38 American aircraft, communiques reported.

Funeral Set Sunday For Sudan Resident

SUDAN, Nov. 17. (Special.)—Funeral services for L. T. (Pop) Hunt, 53, resident of Sudan 18 years, who died Thursday night in the Amherst hospital, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Church of Christ here.

Hunt, who was associated with three different business enterprices here, died of a heart attack following a week's siege of pneumonia. He had been ill a week.

J. A. Bristow will be the officiating minister. Burial will be in Sudan cemetery under direction of Hammons & Smith Funeral home of Sudan, a firm for which Hunt served as undertaker.

Hunt's other business interests included management of a barber shop and partnership in an insurance firm.

Hunt was a 32nd degree Mason, a Shriner, and a member of the Sudan Church of Christ.

He was one of the South Plains' most enthusiastic sportsmen, engaging in hunting and fishing trips whenever his multitudinous interests permitted.

Hunt was born in Montgomery, Ala. He came to Sudan in 1926 from Hollis, Okla.

He is survived by his wife; four daughters, Mrs. E. L. Hamilton, Fort Worth, Mrs. S. H. Scott, 2223 Fourteenth street, Lubbock, Mrs. Bill Whitwell, 1517 Thirty-third street, Lubbock, Mrs. Roy Gentry, Sudan; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hunt, Rule, Texas; three brothers, Virgil and Earnest Hunt, both of Rule, Lester Hunt, Anadarko, Okla.; a sister, Mrs. Bill Yarborough, Rule and two grandsons.

Children's Charred Bodies Are Found

DALLAS, Nov. 17 (AP) — The badly burned bodies of a boy and girl, who were absent from school today, were removed from a pile of burning hay where they had been trapped when a hay shed owned by a Dallas candy company caught fire.

Lee Weeks, 13, brother of the girl, Billy Joan Weeks, 11, escaped the flaming shed and ran to a nearby watchman's house to report that his sister and school chum, Duane Lamar Clancey, 13, were trapped, Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Decker reported.

Cause of the fire, which broke out shortly before noon, was not known. Firemen, sheriff's deputies and a crew of workmen moved several tons of wet and burning hay to recover the children's bodies, Decker said.

The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Weeks, and the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Clancey.

Cold Rains Continue To Fall Over Area

Light rains were falling Friday night over the South Plains area, the Santa Fe raiway reported, after snow fell in Lubbock for the second consecutive day.

Such weather is to continue the weatherman forecast, with cloudy skies and low temperatures, accompanied by occasional light rain or drizzle. Cloudiness expected to decrease Sunday and higher temperatures [illegible].

Precipitation here [illegible] to over an inch for a [illegible]-day period.

Allied Drive At Aachen Indicates Cologne Is Immediate Objective

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Bitter-end German resistance and clogging mud limited initial gains of the American two-army break-through attempt in the Aachen sector in Germany, but Berlin admissions of line breaks encouraged hope that assigned objectives can be reached before the foe can bolster his sagging front.

SIMPSON

Just what those objectives are is not yet quite clear. Cologne, the German city straddling the Rhine less than 30 miles from American advance elements, seems the obvious focal point of the massive shoulder - to-shoulder forward lunge of the First and Ninth armies.

Front Appears Smaller

First impressions that the two armies had been deployed on a 40-mile front from southeast of Aachen to the vicinity of British-invested Roermond on the Meuse are not borne out by later advices. General Eisenhower appears to have concentrated his main attack on a sector barely 25 miles wide. As later indicated the American two-army front runs from the vicinity of Geilenkirchen, due north of Aachen, to a point south of Duren.

The implication to be drawn from the indicated narrow deployment of the two American armies and from British success in the Roermond sector to the north is that possession and use of the roads fanning out of Aachen to cross the Roer toward Cologne is of prime importance to the Allied battle plan. Even with Roer bridges destroyed their foundations would permit quick construction of emergency spans. On both sides of the little river conditions away from the hard-surfaced roads as described in field dispatches tends to restrict mechanized elements.

As this was written American approach to the west bank of the Roer along the whole front was indicated. In addition, should British forces to the north succeed in forcing the Meuse, the Roer would be outflanked to aid the American advance toward Cologne. On the right of the American First Army, advance elements appeared to have reached the narrow upper stretches of the Roer south of Duren. A crossing there would outflank the Roer from the south.

Farther south German retirement before the American Third Army into the Saar river defense system still is indicated but with a growing probability that the main Metz citadel forts will be held to the last by a suicide rearguard.

Resentment Grows In Naziland But Gestapo Supreme

By FRANK BRUTTO
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERN, Nov. 17. (U.P.)—Stories of resentment in Germany against Nazi rule reached Switzerland today, but they indicated the ruthless hand of the Gestapo was capable of snuffing out any efforts of popular movements.

Industry was at a standstill in some areas of the Reich, partly because of lack of coal and partly the Nazi authorities were no longer able to compel workers to remain at their jobs during air alarms, these reports said.

The Basler Arbeiter Zeitung said this was especially true in smashed Cologne, where ten people were publicly hanged on one day and eleven on another because they dared openly to question "why should millions of Germans die for Nazi leaders?"

Trouble is brewing elsewhere in the Reich, the paper reported. At Halle in Westphalia, the Nazi authorities have established barricades around the town and have isolated it from the rest of Germany.

The newspaper quoted travelers from Germany as reporting that Hitler had submitted to a throat operation during the last week of October and has been unable to speak. They said his condition was so serious that Heinrich Himmler read Hitler's proclamation Sunday possibly to prepare the German people for a graver announcement.

Zionism Warned To Kick Out Terrorism

LONDON, Nov. 17. (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill grimly warned the Jews of Palestine and the world today to purge terrorist gangs to protect the future of Zionism.

He denounced the assassination in Cairo of Lord Moyne, British minister resident in the Middle East, which has been attributed officially to members of the notorious Jewish stern gang.

"If our dreams for Zionism are to end in the smoke of the assassin's pistol," he told the House of Commons, "if our labors for the future are to produce a new set of gangsters worthy of Nazi Germany, then many like myself would have to reconsider the position we have maintained so consistently and so long.

"If there is to be any hope of a possible and successful future for Zionism, all these wicked activities must cease, and those responsible for them must be destroyed, root and branch."

Cigaret Shortage Is Laid To Low Wages

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. (AP) — Cigarets will stay in short supply unless tobacco workers' pay goes up, a union witness told wage-investigating senators today.

Elizabeth Sasuly, Washington representative of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of America, said 45 per cent of the workers in the food and tobacco industries earn less than 65 cents an hour.

The measure before the labor subcommittee on wartime health and education would declare straight-time pay under 65 cents to be substandard.

Give 'em a break during the holidays!

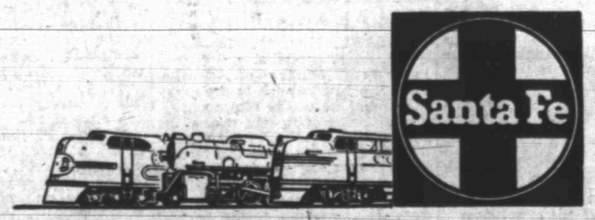

Thousands of men and women in service will take a furlough trip home for Thanksgiving.

For many of them it will be the last time they will be with their families for an indefinite period of time.

Of course, we want to provide them with space on our trains for comfortable trips to and from their homes.

To do this—with our limited passenger equipment and unprecedented volume of civilian travel—we must again ask your cooperation and friendly understanding.

As you can adjust your going and coming with more latitude than men and women in service—please—postpone your train trip until after the holiday period to enable us to provide accommodations for our soldiers, sailors and marines on furloughs.

HIS FIRST INVESTMENT

Many a youngster has built up a thrift account at this bank in order to get started in farming on his own. Mother and dad can be very helpful by encouraging son or daughter to acquire the healthy habit of thrift.

Does that suggest an idea to you? We welcome thrift accounts.
