Dawson Co. Bond Quota Raised

Men 38-45 Face Possible Draft Again On May 1

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Major General Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, announced tonight that beginning May 1 men in the 38-45 year old group must leave the list of "non-deferable" occupations or face the possibility of induction.

Since April 1 the same rule has been applied to younger men of draft age who were advised that if they had such "non-deferable jobs" as waiters, bootblacks, elevator operators and messengers, they could not be deferred regardless of family or other dependency status.

Limit Now Is 38

At present men over 38 are not being drafted regardless of reasons for deferment.

Hershey announced the new policy in a letter to local selective service boards in which he said "because of a rapid depletion of available manpower the national interest at this time demands that men within the ages liable for military service 18-45 who have qualifications that are not now being used in furtherance of the war effort and who at the same time are not acceptable for service in the armed forces simply by reason of age or physical disability, be required to employ their efforts in those essential activities in which shortages of necessary manpower threaten the successful prosecution of the war effort."

The new rule on non-deferable occupations was listed as one of these steps. Others included:

An order that 4-F men (classified physically unfit) between 18 and 45 who have had dairy farm experience return to such work, or possibly be inducted for limited military service despite physical disabilities.

Seek Older Men For Jobs

A request that draft boards and county agricultural war boards circularize men between 45 and 64 who have had dairy or general farming experience to return to such work.

The new plan announced by President Roosevelt that men over 38 already in the Army will be asked to get into agriculture or other essential activities before being released from the Army because of age.

Hershey told draft boards that "the letters (letters to men with farm experience, to be written by draft boards) to registrants in class 4-F and those between the ages of 38 and 45 will inform them that if they do not contact the county war board within the time prescribed that fact will be brought to the attention of their local selective service board so that consideration may be given to requesting waivers of physical disabilities and age or both, which would permit their induction into the armed forces."

ALL TYPES OF FENCING REMOVED FROM RATION

Behind By-lines; War Reporter Tells Of Woes

By JOSEPH MORTON
AP Features

SOMEWHERE IN WEST AFRICA — This business of being a war correspondent is often misunderstood. I have it on reliable authority that my friends here consider me a somewhat odd individual who spends nine-tenths of his time looking for a ride someplace else, who always is in a jam with one colonel or another, who knows nothing of military etiquette and diplomacy, and who spends a goodly portion of his time resting up from the ardors of getting material for stories he hasn't yet written.

Well, I have been guilty of hooking rides, crossed the Atlantic on an American troopship, recrossed it on a French battleship, and came back in a U. S. Army plane — all free of charge. But on each occasion my mission was a serious one and I worked at least 50 per cent of the time. Moreover my travels are never a de luxe tour.

For a calm stomach I would much prefer a Staten Island ferry to the British destroyer that carried me up the West African coast last September. Even the rowboats at Central Park are superior to the dugout canoes used to cross the rivers of Liberia. As for the U. S. Army's jeep — it is a wiry little machine built for service, not comfort. My back still aches from a 200-mile journey between Bathurst and Dakar in one last December.

Hiking up the Cavally River in Liberia — the time I walked from 7 a. m. until 2 p. m. — I was going strong until some natives appeared carrying a freshly-killed python. Then my legs gave out unexpectedly, and I decided, in the interests of true reporting, to find just how it feels to be carried in a hammock by eight bearers. It feels wonderful.

They tell me I blundered by calling on President Edwin Barclay of Liberia soaking wet and in my shirtsleeves. My answer is that I didn't know it could rain so hard and that I had no coat. Besides, the president chuckled and even apologized for his country's unpleasant weather.

Other of my friends insist that my interest in learning to fly an airplane is "deadly," but I hold no malice against the pilot who let me take the stick for awhile, then suddenly grabbed it away and frightened me to death by screaming:

"What are you trying to do—crash?"

I told him I had my eye squarely on the horizon indicator and that we were sailing along at a perfectly even keel. I certainly had no way of knowing that the darn thing didn't work, and that we had lost 300 feet in a few seconds.

I really do not mind if my West African friends smile and call me "Jumping Joe" because, if worst comes to worst, I still will have James on my side. He is my Gold Coast house boy who, when my choice room in the barracks was re-assigned to a major, locked the door and kept him out until I returned. Some day soon I am going to give James a raise. He is getting three shillings a week now, the same as the other house boys, but I am going to hike it up to a dollar.

Patents Mass For War's End

By FRANK CAREY
AP Features

WASHINGTON — Could you use a pocket ashtray, an illuminating door lock, or a fan attachment for your sewing machine to keep friend wife cool as she works?

Patents for such developments have just been granted by the U. S. Patent office but, in these days of priorities, you'll have to guess when they will be available. Applications for most of them were entered prior to Pearl Harbor.

That pocket ash tray might be the answer to a bridge party hostess's prayer. If you couldn't find a regular ash tray, there would be no need of flicking your cigaret on the sly behind the radiator. All you'd have to do would be to take your own tray out of your pocket. It's a cup-shaped gadget with several trough-like little arms which can be slid from the main receptacle and projected outwardly for holding your cigaret.

Lock For Night Owls

The illuminating door lock is designed primarily for vehicles, but, presumably, it might also be applied to your house door as a handy means of finding the keyhole on nights after you've been down to Joe's place playing seven-card stud.

It consists of a push-button arrangement to turn on a tiny light close to the keyhole. You're entirely on your own so far as finding the push-button is concerned.

The sewing machine gadget is simple a fan motivated by the fly wheel.

Nursery Bottle Guard

Other new patents cover: A guard for a nursing bottle with an attached chain which holds a nipple-cover and a spare safety pin.

An illuminating razor handle—and a combination shaving mug and razor hone.

A helicopter propeller — and a

"bowleggedness - concealing hose-supporter."

No candidates for the better mouse-trap premium are among the inventors, but one chap got a patent for an electrically charged vermin trap.

About 75 per cent of the lawn mower industry has been converted to war production.

The Wombat is an Australian rodentlike animal all of whose teeth are of continuous growth.

The "juvenile" age limit for offenders varies among states from the age of 16 to 21.

Fighting Men In Flying Fishbowls

By GLADWIN HILL
AP Features

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND — This is a piece about ball-turret gunners — those bland midgets who whirl around in a three-foot fishbowl under the belly of a Flying Fortress, banging away at the enemy with a gun in each hand. It is written by request — a kind of indirect tribute from the Fortress men who are not ball-turret gunners.

We were sitting around the officers' club stove — a co-pilot, a couple of navigators and some ground-officers — talking about flying the Fortresses, and finally they said almost in unison, "You ought to write a story about ball-turret gunners."

"It's the toughest job on the ship, in some ways. The ball-turret gunner doesn't get much credit. He's a lonely son of a gun."

Job Has Unique Lore

In the Fortresses' relatively short history of American operation in the European theater, the ball-turret job already has begun to acquire its own unique character and lore.

It is not notably more dangerous than the four other principal gun jobs — the two waist-gunners, the top-turret man, and the tail gunner. There is not an exceptionally high casualty rate among ball-turret gunners. But the job has many unique features. Its particular hazards are mainly mental.

Being held under a plane only by a blob of transparent plastic is not exactly reassuring in itself.

"I remember when I was doing ball-turret training back home," one of the navigators said. "I was scared stiff of falling, right there on the field — three feet above the ground."

The ball turret is no spot for a largish guy with any tendencies toward claustrophobia, because the gunner has to work for hours in a space too small for him even to sit up properly. If they made the turret any bigger, it would offer too much wind resistance. He has to hunch, half-sitting, half-lying, on the end of his spine, in a position that has been most aptly compared to that of an embryo in a womb. Oddly enough, ball-turret gunners seldom get cramps or totter out of their posts at the end of a flight like kinked-up rumble-seat victims.

No Room To Roam

It's infeasible for the ball-turret man to climb up inside the plane and circulate around as do other members of the crew; once he gets in there, he usually stays.

What room he doesn't occupy himself is taken up by breeches of his two guns, to which are attached the control of the power mechanism by which he whirls the turret around. He hasn't even room in the globe for his parachute. He has to leave that up inside the Fortress, in the optimistic hope that if the plane start falling, he'll have a chance to climb up and get it.

Where the other gunners are protected by armor plate on several sides, the ball-turret man has it in only one place above him, where there is not much danger anyway. Otherwise he is right out in the open, protected only by a thin layer of transparent plastic, which is supposedly shatter-proof, but no protection if a big enough bullet comes his way. Actually he is fairly well protected from enemy shooting by the area of fire of the

Men To Join Seabees Wanted

Every Navy recruiting station in the Dallas district today is preparing to handle a land-office business in the enlistment of Seabees, following the announcement that for the first time since last December, men between the ages of 18 and 38, as well as the 17-year-old and the men between 39 and 50, can volunteer their services for the Navy's construction battalions.

Under the new plan for voluntary induction, eligibles between 18 and 38 now can use their trade to fight with the Navy Seabees. This new setup will allow the applicant first to visit his nearest Navy recruiting station, where a preliminary physical examination will be given, and a check made of his skilled trade qualifications to determine if he is in the profession needed.

Upon approval, the applicant then will be sent to the main recruiting station in Dallas, transportation furnished, where he will undergo a complete physical exam, and be granted an interview by a construction officer. If found qualified, he will be advised concerning ratings, and then given a letter directed to his local draft board, with instructions to be inducted on the next induction date, or no longer than 30 days from that date.

Heretofore, only boys 17 and men over 38 could volunteer for the Seabees with assurance that they would get this branch of the service. A similar plan is employed by the army.

Within the next several days, hundreds of skilled workers who previously had given up hope of getting into the service of their choice are expected to flock to the main recruiting station in Dallas as well as to the 12 substations in this district.

Lieut.-Comdr. L. H. Ridout, Jr., officer in charge of the Dallas district, predicted a record number of enlistments within a few days after word of the new plan is passed around.

Recruiting substations are located in Amarillo, Big Spring, Abilene, Fort Worth, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Lubbock, Sherman, Paris, Tyler, Waco and Longview. Included in the list of skilled workers needed in the Seabees are electricians, carpenters, pipefitters, sheet metal workers, riggers and many others.

Early railway track weighed 50 pounds per yard; today most lines use 130-pound rails.

Fortresses' other guns, except when it noses up, exposing its belly. Then he is an excellent target, and has to shoot or be shot.

The turret is located right under some of the hydraulic mechanism, and there are inevitable oil leaks down into the turret. Sometimes ball-turret men have landed to find their jackets frozen stiff in places from chilled oil.

Then there's the door. Besides the aperture into the cabin of the plane, the ball-turret has a panel about 18 inches across, offering theoretical egress into the wide open air.

On a raid a few days ago a ball-turret man felt his back getting very cold. He felt around to discover that the door had fallen off and he had been leaning back against empty space, only his bulk holding him in.

"You can bet he held onto those control handles plenty hard for the rest of the trip," somebody remarked.

Big Gun-Girls Of Circus Replace Brother 'Bullets'

AP Features

TAMPA, Fla. — Everywhere now women are stepping into the jobs of men, so the Zucchini girls — Duina and Egle — have become the human bullets for the Zucchini Cannon Act.

They are the daughter of Edmondo, eldest of the seven Zucchini cannon brothers. All the other brothers, including Emanuel, Mario and Vittorio, who used to be the human bullets for the act, have gone into war work so the 49-year-old Edmondo and his family are carrying on.

Only Egle left with her father at the start of their tour recently, Duina remaining to finish her term at Plant high school before joining the family at Chicago. Edmondo's son, Egizo, 19, went along as a spare "Bullet" in case Egle gets hurt but he won't be able to stay long for he has an early date with the Army.

Duina was a trapeze performer with Egizio before their catcher was called into the Army. Egle, too, has passed her apprenticeship and recently returned from a tour as a high wire artist.

The big cannon was rebuilt inside so the girls would fit snugly into the barrel, with no room to spare for swaying. Otherwise the shock of expulsion, which throws them high into the air and into a net nearly 200 feet away, would tear them apart.

The girls practiced here for weeks in preparation for their debut as human bullets and Duina made more than 200 jumps before the act left. Edmondo, who served with the Italian army in the first World

SOLDIER PAYS DEBT FROM NORTH AFRICA

CODY, Wyo. (AP) — Two years ago a Cody youth joined the Army and left without paying an $8 debt to Mildred Parr, the operator of a motor court.

Recently she received a new $10 bill from North Africa and a letter from the soldier.

He explained the $10 was part of the first pay he had received in Africa; that it was to pay the debt and the extra $2 "should take care of the interest."

Wisconsin is known as the "Badger State" because its early settlers were miners who burrowed into the ground.

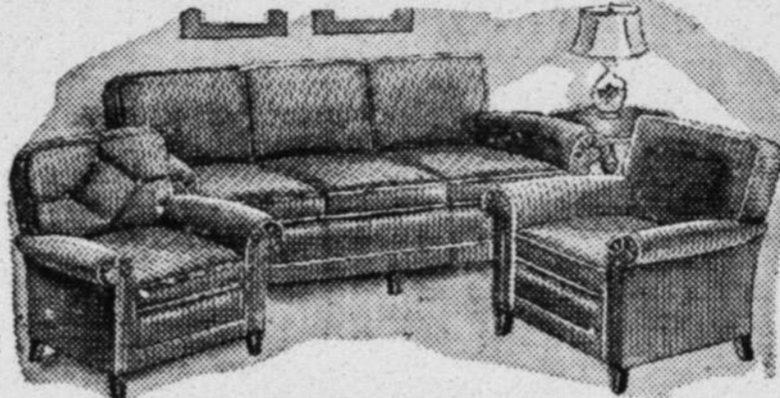

War when Italy was on the Allied side, was crippled by the cannon and is unable to do war work, but still is able to act as "trigger man."

INDOORS, TRAINING CAMP IS LIKE FLORIDA BUT THAT'S WHERE RESEMBLANCE ENDS

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Features Sports Editor
CAIRO, Ill. — Well, another spring has arrived and here we are looking 'em over at the training camp of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, away down South in Illinois.

This is just as far south as you can get, in Illinois, and as far south as you can go without stepping over the Eastman-Landis line. That is the boundary strip that the transportation chief and the baseball commissioner established as the southernmost spot on which training camps could be pitched.

Indoors, the situation is just like that in Florida. The hotel has been taken over by a young army of lobby-sitter. There are the squirmers, the loungers and the leg-swingers. The squirmers are continually itching around in their chairs as if they had ants in their pants.

From the dining room operators you hear the same remarks passed in Florida: "My, my, these boys certainly can stow it away." It is certain that no one ever made any money feeding a ball club. These athletes are two-fisted eaters anytime and when the club is picking up the check they're real trenchmen.

Outdoors, it's a far cry from Florida. You just don't often wander down the main drag wearing slacks and sports shirts and smile at the pretty girls in their bright, summery frocks. You're in the long underwear and overcoat league up here. Some days it is pleasant, like a chilly spring day at St. Petersburg. The colder climate has improved the satorial effect of some of the players. Strictly in an effort to keep themselves warm around the neck, they are wearing ties. You hardly recognize them without their open collar shirts.

The practice field, soggy from a winter of snow and rain, is a sharp contrast with the hard, orange-colored clay field of Waterfront Park in St. Pete.

You miss the sound of motorboats that came from the bay adjoining the St. Pete park. And of the airplanes that took off from a nearby field and zoomed over the diamond. And the gnarled old horse-shoe pitchers and the screeches of lady shuffle-board players in the amusement park across from the Waterfront Park.

The players miss their occasional afternoons of fishing in the bay and gulf and their infrequent rounds of golf. And at night it's more comfortable to stick around the lobby than to stroll down the streets. Cairo is a nice little town, the people are friendly and cooperative, and—like the other camps up north—is all right as an ersatz training base. But, come peacetime, the boys will be clamoring for Florida again.

Army's Girl Chaser; Sgt. Bish

AP Features
KEARNS FIELD, Utah — This is the Army — with variations, and Tech Sergt. Elbert Bish loves it.

Sergeant Bish's sole duty is to meet girls. He makes the rounds of soda fountains, movie lobbies and other public places in Salt Lake City just to meet girls. His approach sounds like the old covey: He offers them a good job.

But Bish is no wolf. He's honestly looking for girls to fill scores of positions open at the basic training center of the Army Air Forces technical training command here.

The idea of tagging girls in public places came to Bish after girls stayed away in droves from the employment offices. His superior officers gave in after remembering he is a married man and a father.

So far civil service has employed more than 100 stenographers and clerks to whom the sergeant spun his line. Bish estimates he has approached more than 300 and only one took him to be a "fresh guy." He dissolved her suspicions so quickly that she was one of the first to take a job at Kearns under the Bish go-out-and-get'em plan.

Positions for girls at the field pay from $1,260 to $2,600 per year for a 40-hour week. And there's always the free soft drink Sergeant Bish is glad to buy for his prospects.

TAYLORS SEW UP ARMY CAMP

CAMP PICKETT, Va. (AP)—The William Taylors are well represented at Camp Pickett — so well represented that the camp orderlies are a little daffy.

There's William H. Taylor, of Devalls Bluff, Ark., who tips the scales at 323 pounds. Next comes William N. Taylor, of Chicago, Ill., whose weight is 245 pounds. The third is William R. Taylor, of Hopewell, Va., who weighs 237 pounds. They never heard of each other until they arrived at this army camp.

Farm Leaders Get Non-Highway Gas Applications

Uninterrupted farm production during 1943 keynotes the move which transfers non-highway gasoline applications from county war price and ration boards to county farm transportation committees.

Under the new order which became effective March 1, all applications, whether on a new or renewal basis, will be referred to Texas' 254 county farm transportation committees for analysis and recommendation.

Later, applications for tractor fuel oils in these cases where the ration board feels adjustment is required also will be referred to farm transportation committees for recommendation.

Objective of the Office of Price Administration move is to insure farmers receiving sufficient supplies of gasoline and other tractor and engine fuels for 1943 production, B.

F. Vance, chairman, Texas USDA War Board, said in making the announcement.

In making recommendations to the county ration boards on the amounts of gasoline and fuel needed, county farm transportation committees are being asked to examine the 1943 farm plan sheets of the producer, and recommend the probable amount of gasoline required to meet the needs of the farm operator for the six months' period of the ration.

Excessive as well as inadequate rations are equally undesirable and county transportation committees should not hesitate to ask the community transportation leader or the community AAA committeeman to check for them the equipment and needs of the applicant, Vance said.

FARM COMMANDO TRACTOR SCHOOL

All Allis-Chalmers tractor owners and operators are invited to attend a "school" which will be held at our place of business—

IN LAMESA NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT
APRIL 7TH 8:00 P. M.

Service engineers from the factory will be in charge and will give detailed instruction in the operation, adjustment and proper care of A-C tractors and implements.

All A-C owners and operators are urged to attend. Very few new tractors are available to replace old equipment. We must learn how to get the most service out of our old machines—to keep them running in top form—to make them last. You'll save time and money by learning how to avoid minor troubles, shut-downs, trips to town, mechanic's charges.

Keep your tractor "ready to roll." It's a patriotic duty. Food is a vital weapon. Attend this two-hour school. Bring your neighbor. Bring your operator. Everyone concerned is welcome.

Remember the date and hour — WEDNESDAY NIGHT, APRIL 7th, 8:00 O'CLOCK SHARP.

NATIVE MEBANE COTTON

I am placing again this year a limited amount of my State Registered Native Mebane Cottonseed on sale at Snell & Jacobs gin at Lamesa, both fuzzy and delinted. I am doubling my acreage this year in registered cotton and hope another year to supply the Lamesa trade with all the seed you want. If you keep your seed pure at the gin you need not buy new seed each year as the outstanding qualities of early maturity, high lint turnout and drought resistance, with large easily picked bolls and storm proof. The staple is strong, fifteen-sixteenths to an inch that meets all government requirements. These qualities were all developed right here at Knott in Howard County over a period of twenty years by my method of cotton breeding, and as its name implies, it is a native of this climate and does not quickly run out. Last year was a very dry year in Howard County and yet I made a 517 pound bale for every acre of my allotment, planted in May and all ginned by October 30th, some two weeks or more before frost, and my seed tested 97 per cent germination. Get a start this year and save your own seed next fall.

WAVE Recruiter To Be In Lamesa Tuesday, April 6

Lamesa will become the focal point in this area for the procurement of women to serve in the WAVES, SPARS, or Marine Corps Women's Reserve, when Ensign Betty Mackemer of the WAVES visits here next Tuesday. She will make her headquarters in the Post Office building here during the morning and early afternoon.

An extensive campaign is being conducted at the present time by the offices of Naval and Marine corps officer procurement to enlist thousands of women, so that men urgently needed on the fighting front can be released from their office job.

All women between the ages of 20 and 49, inclusive, who are interested in serving their country as a member of one of these reserve groups are urged to meet Ensign Mackemer personally during her visit here.

Preliminary papers only will be processed here. If approved, the applicant will be called to the office of Naval officer procurement, Dallas, where enlistment will be completed.

"If you wish to enlist in any one of these three interesting branches of the service, or if you are merely seeking information, I will be glad to talk to you," was Ensign Mackemer's message to the women of Lamesa.

Mrs. A. G. Barnard Receives Praise For Recruiting

Mrs. A. G. Barnard, County Chairman for WAAC Recruiting, and the Dawson County Courier were praised today by Lieut. Col. Marvin B. Durette, commanding officer of the West Texas Recruiting and Induction District, for work done during the past three months in recruiting for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

"Without the splendid help of our County Chairmen, Newspapers, and other civilian workers, the WAAC Recruiting Drive for the quarter just concluded, would have been a dismal failure," Col. Durette stated.

New quotas are soon to be announced for the months of April, May, and June, Col. Durette said, and it has already been indicated that hundreds more capable women are needed from this district for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. Women interested in joining the WAAC were asked to contact either their County Chairmen, nearest U. S. Army Sub-Station, or visit the Headquarters Office of the West Texas Recruiting and Induction District in Lubbock.

Col. Durette reminded West Texans that the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps is open to all women between the ages of twenty-one and forty-four, inclusive, who are citizens of the United States by birth or naturalization, and have no dependents or children under 14 years of age.

Cpl. Kermit Jordan of Camp Young, California, is visiting here this week with his wife, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jordan.

Chickens In The Church New Kind Of War Garden

AP Features

ST. LOUIS. — Some persons go for Victory gardens, but the Rev. George T. Andrews, pastor of St. Elizabeth's Catholic church, raises chickens in the church basement for distribution to the parish poor.

Right now the basement is a gastronomic Utopia with 4,700 chickens on the hoof — and more in prospect.

Father Andrews figuratively jumped from the fire into the frying pan in mid-January, after serving as a director of the Consumers' Coal Co-operative, which sprang up as a source of cheap fuel for the needy.

Cheap Meat

Aided by an experienced parishoner, the pastor bought 400 chicks, raised them to maturity and sold them to the needy at 20 cents a pound when the market price was 50 cents. Then he sold 200 shares of stock in the chicken co-operative to his parish, reserved some for his church's charitable institutions, and used the money to outfit his basement business.

One-day-old chickens — of pedigreed, blood-tested stock — are placed in brooders arranged in tiers. The tiers have a 2,000-chick capacity and 1,400 fluffy fowl live there now. They are shifted to peat moss pens with wire bases for sanitary purposes as they grow larger, and about 1,700 are in this type enclosure. Still bigger pens care for the older chickens in what formerly was an auditorium and gymnasium.

Big Business

The co-operative's 100 members recently voted to increase capitalization from $5 to $10 a share. The additional money is being used to construct large cages in a garage behind a nearby convent to house grown chickens pending their final distribution.

Once the system is completed, it'll be just eight weeks from shell to skillet.
