'Big 3' Ministers' Meet Asked

Cotton Imports To Be Limited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today made public a 19-nation pact that the White House said would permit the U.S. cotton textile industry to meet the threat of foreign imports.

The proposed five-year agreement will go into effect Oct. 1 for the countries that ratify it. It is designed to limit cotton textile shipments to this country at about current levels.

Favorable reaction of congressmen from textile-manufacturing states indicated that the arrangement would help win support for the administration's request for unprecedented tariff-cutting powers.

These legislators, particularly southerners, have turned in recent years away from their historical support of liberal trade policies because of the growing competition from foreign textile imports.

Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., leader of the powerful textile bloc in the House, lauded Kennedy in a letter for "the noteworthy stand which you have taken" in negotiations at Geneva which preceded the agreement.

Administration officials assured senators and congressmen at secret briefings Thursday that the textile imports could be held to less than the all-time high of six per cent of domestic consumption reached in 1960. The 1961 level dropped to 5.2 per cent.

The proposed pact provides that the United States — or any other importing nation — can freeze the level of imports for two years and then keep them from jumping more than five per cent annually if the shipments threaten or disrupt the domestic market.

Under provisions of the agreement, the United States could act unilaterally to impose the restrictions in any of 64 cotton textile categories.

The total shipments would be frozen at a level computed by taking the average figure for a full year, beginning 15 months before the government decided there was disruption of the domestic market.

Congressmen were assured that there would be no increase in cotton textile imports during the first 12 months of the agreement.

Science Fair Is Underway In Girls' Gymnasium

The fourth annual City - Wide Science fair opened at 12 noon today and will continue until 9 o'clock tonight and from 4 p.m. until 9 p.m. tomorrow in the Pampa High School Girls' Gymnasium.

Students from first grade through senior high are exhibiting 428 experiments in physical, biological and earth divisions.

When the public entered the Girls' Gym at noon today, the judging had already been accomplished. Blue, red and white ribbons designating first, second and third prizes were placed on the exhibits.

The science fair is sponsored to encourage young people to consider scientific careers, according to Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, science instructor at Pampa High School and general chairman of the event.

The individual first, second and third place winners in the local fair are eligible to compete in the Panhandle Science Fair to be held in Amarillo March 29 through April 1.

Mrs. Ledbetter said today each student who entered an exhibit in the fair will receive a certificate of participation.

Projects on the heart and appendix, rockets, flying saucers, weather and soil are on display.

Water Office Plans Move To New Quarters

The job of moving the city water department office from the first floor to the basement of City Hall is expected to get under way over the weekend.

City Manager John Koontz said it had been hoped the transfer could be made this weekend, but workmen still were finishing up in the new location and it would probably be near mid-week before the move can be completed.

The water office is being moved into quarters formerly occupied by the American Red Cross which now is located across the hall on the same floor.

When the water department move is completed, water bills may be paid at the new drive-in window which has been installed in the basement window just west of the south entrance to City Hall.

Man Sentenced In Treason Case

KARLSRUHE, Germany (UPI) — West Germany today sentenced photographer Heinz Cassel to two years imprisonment for treasonable relations with the Soviet Union.

Cassel, 37, who once attended a special school for Nazi elite youth was found guilty by the federal criminal court of trying to peddle to Soviet intelligence aerial photographs of the British Army of the Rhine headquarters, missile sites and the West German atomic pile.

He was arrested by Western security agents March 23, 1961. The pictures, made from film shots from a small private plane, were found on his person, the indictment said.

Coordinated Action Sought

Projects Talked At City, CoC Joint Conference

At a joint meeting of the Pampa City Commission and the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development in the Coronado Inn last night, city officials outlined capital improvement projects it thought worthy of Chamber-BCD consideration in the near future.

Wayland Merriman, civil engineer working under contract with the city, explained a comprehensive storm sewer drainage program for the entire city of Pampa south of the Santa Fe tracks. Much of the storm sewer plan, Merriman explained, was an integral part of the proposed improvements on South Cuyler Street and Highway 60. Merriman also explained drainage and right-of-way problems attending the improvement and widening of Alcock Street west to Price Road. Though the speaker gave some rough cost figures on these projects, he said that he wouldn't have reasonably accurate estimates until late in March, at which time he thought his work would be completed enough that construction and right-of-way acquisition cost could be arrived at. The concensus of the group was that the Cuyler, Highway 60 and Alcock projects were definitely needed.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell, who presided jointly at the meeting with Gordon Lyons, Chamber - BCD president, reviewed the need to be thinking about the cost of a filration plant to process water from the Canadian River project some time in the next several

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hundreds of college students arrived here today in an attempt to convince administration officials and congressmen that it is time to "turn toward peace" by ending the arms race.

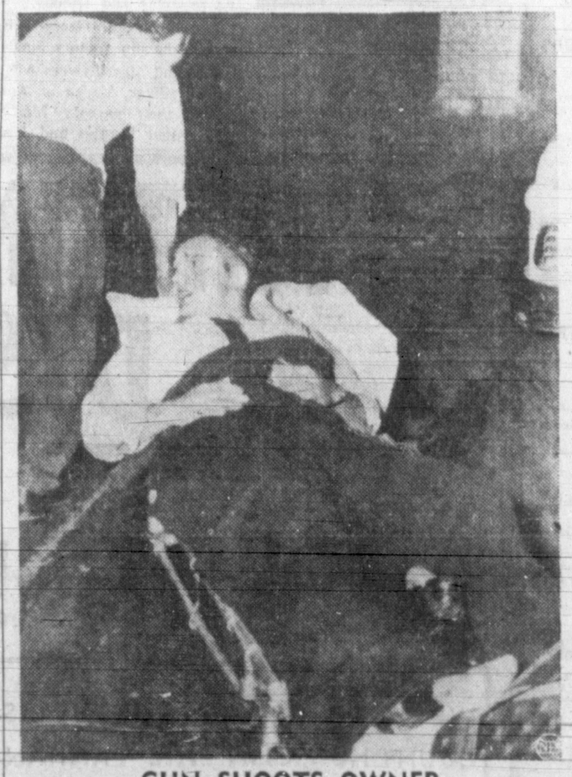

Leaders of the "Turn Toward Peace" movement estimated that 2,500 students would take part in the two days of meetings and picketing of the White House and Soviet Embassy.

A policy statement by the group spoke out against U.S. resumption of nuclear testing in the atmosphere. It also opposed the launching of an extensive civil defense program without weighing "the inroads it might make in the structure of a democratic society."

Todd Gitlin, an organizer of the student peace lobby, said the group "hoped to strengthen the hand of officials who were more reasonably inclined" in their views of the cold war.

He said that by Thursday, members of the "Turn Toward Peace" student council had appointments with more than 200 congressmen or their assistants

GUN SHOOTS OWNER

"My gun just followed me off the bus and shot me," city bus driver Bruce Friendberg of Houston said. The gun was in a satchel on the floor and he kicked the satchel as he stepped off the bus. The gun fired as the satchel fell down the steps, hitting him in the right ankle. Police said the gun had a faulty safety catch. (NEA Telephoto)

Two Congolese Being Questioned In Slaying

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Police brought in two Congolese for questioning today in the slaying of Lt. Col. Hulen Dorris Stogner, the assistant U. S. military attache here.

One of the men being questioned by top local and United Nations police officials is the chauffeur of Col. Ben Matlick, the U.S. air attache.

The chauffeur was brought to police headquarters from the local U. N. headquarters, where he had been undergoing questioning since Thursday.

The second Congolese was brought to police headquarters from his home by three detectives. He was reported being questioned about his movements Wednesday night.

Stogner was fatally shot in bed at his home late that night while his secretary sat nearby, and died in a U. N. hospital about an hour later.

The expected break in the case that had mystified police followed an all-night patrol of the capital by Congolese soldiers and police. Everyone found in the streets after dark was ordered to produce identity papers and give a reason for being out at night.

Stogner, whose wife and six children live in El Paso, Tex., was lying on a bed in his home when the fatal shot was fired through the window.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires G. MacMurtrie Godley said Stogner's secretary, Elizabeth Thring, 22, of Arlington, Va., was sitting in a chair in the bedroom when the officer was fatally wounded.

Miss Thring was questioned informally Thursday night by Congolese Surete Chief Victor Nendaka. She spent the night at the home of U.S. Embassy air attache Col. and Mrs. Ben Matlick after collapsing during questioning earlier.

A single bullet went through Stogner's neck. Miss Thring immediately called the embassy, which notified Godley. An ambulance was dispatched to pick up the wounded officer who was bleeding heavily. He was rushed to a United Nations' hospital

U.S., Britain Want To Ease Berlin Problems

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — The United States and Britain have suggested to Russia that Big Three foreign ministers try to take some of the snarls out of the Berlin problem in Geneva next month, diplomatic sources said today.

If Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev agrees to drop his summit demand and go along with the Western suggestion the three power meeting would be held before the 18-nation disarmament conference.

The Allies have been probing the Russians on Berlin since Jan. 2. U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson has been conducting the probe in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and relaying the results to the French, British and West German ambassadors.

Four meetings have been held but so far as can be determined they have come to naught.

The Russians have stood firm on their demand that West Berlin be made a "free city," abrogating Western rights there.

In addition, the Soviets obviously have been trying to aggravate the situation in recent days by challenging Allied rights in the air corridors linking West Berlin and West Germany over 110 miles of East German territory.

The Allies have rejected the Soviet attempts and Thursday delivered a note in Moscow warning the Soviet Union was running the "gravest risks" with such tactics.

Russian jet fighters flew within 20 feet of an American transport plane and shadowed others in the corridors Thursday.

The Allies are committed to fight, if necessary, to preserve the rights of access they won from World War II.

In view of this, and the lack of progress in Moscow, Britain and the United States were said to feel some fresh move must be made.

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan proposed to the Kremlin last week that the three foreign ministers should meet in Geneva by March 12 to try to smooth the way for the subsequent 18-nation conference on disarmament.

It would be at this meeting that the Berlin problem could be raised, diplomats said.

The meeting would be somewhat delicate because France has resisted any formal negotiations on Berlin in the absence of some Soviet show of good faith and West Germany will not be at the Geneva conference.

So far, Khrushchev has not accepted to the suggestion for the foreign ministers' Conference and thus there is no assurance it will come off.

Khrushchev May Be 'Pushing' JFK To The Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American officials said today Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be trying to stampede President Kennedy into a summit conference by increasing tension over Berlin.

That could be one explanation, they said, for Soviet harassment of Allied air traffic to the city at the very time Khrushchev is plugging for a top-level meeting to establish better relations.

The United States, Britain and France warned Russia Thursday they would take "necessary action" to insure the safety of their planes unless Soviet fighters stop "aggressive and dangerous" passes in the three air corridors from West Germany to Red-encircled West Berlin.

In identical notes, the three Allies said Russia was running the "gravest of risks" by trying to exclude Allied traffic from the corridors during specific periods.

Kennedy said Wednesday he would think a summit conference worthwhile only if it promised real progress on critical issues or "if there was a major crisis which threatened to involve us all in a war."

Youth Admits Setting Chicago School Blaze

CHICAGO (UPI)—A 13-year-old boy admitted setting a school fire which killed 95 persons when told there were "92 children, and three nuns sitting in heaven watching you," a private lie detector expert testified Thursday.

John E. Reid, head of John E. Reid & Associates, appeared as a witness at a delinquency hearing before Family Court Judge Alfred J. Cilella.

Reid said the Cicero, Ill., youth gave him an eight-page statement admitting he set the Dec. 1, 1958, Our lady of the Angels School fire following a lie detector examination Jan. 12.

After giving the statement, Reid said, the boy "was remorseful."

The boy, a former student at Our Lady of the Angels, whose name has been withheld, sat in the court room while Reid testified. The boy showed no emotion but nervously scratched his knee and shoulder and shuffled his feet during Reid's appearance.

Reid said the boy admitted in the statement that he threw three matches into a basement trash barrel near a stairwell at the school. He said he saw flames leap from the barrel before he ran back to his second floor classroom.

The lie detector expert said the boy told him his teacher tossed him into a fire net and then leaped from a window to safety. The boy's former teacher, Miss Pearl Tristano, denied the boy's account. She said she led her class down the stairs to safety.

Battalion chief James Kehoe, of the fire department investigation unit, said he believed the fire started at the base of the basement stair, where a charred cardboard barrel was found.

Judge Cilella continued the hearing until Feb. 23, when the boy was expected to testify.

UN Rejects Cuban Resolution

Soviet Setback Seen In Aggression Charges

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —Diplomats today regarded the rejection of Cuba's Communist-backed "aggression" charges against the United States as a major U.N. setback for Soviet prestige.

Only Cuba and the 10-nation Soviet bloc voted for the measure when the General Assembly's Main Political Committee rejected by a 50-11 vote with 36 abstentions a Communist resolution calling on the United States to end its "interference" with Fidel Castro's regime.

Since the start of debate on the charges 10 days ago, and before that, Cuba and the Soviet bloc powers lobbied the largely neutralist Afro-Asian group intensively, seeking sponsorship even for a mild resolution that would give some credence to the Castro charges.

When the vote came, most of the powerful, 51-nation Afro-Asian group registered hands-off what the Latin Americans insisted was a hemispheric dispute and abstained. Eight members of the group—Cyprus, Malaya, Iran, Japan, Madagascar, Pakistan, Thiland and Turkey—voted against the resolution.

The debate, centered as much on the action of the Organization of American States in expelling Castro's Cuba as on Havana's complaint against the United States.

Although several Afro-Asian powers raised doubts about the legality of the OAS action in relation to the jurisdiction of the United Nations, none was willing to accede to the Cuban-Communist pressure to sponsor a resolution.

It Happened Again Today To John Glenn! Weather Conditions Force 10th Postponement Of Orbit Try

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—It happened again to John Glenn today. Because of bad landing-area weather, his effort to orbit the globe was postponed for the 10th time and rescheduled for next Tuesday.

For the third day in a row, the 40-year-old astronaut and all his equipment were ready. But the wind-tossed Atlantic Ocean was not. Shortly after 1 a.m., EST, project Director Walter Williams said through a spokesman: "Weather conditions preclude a launching attempt."

Glenn was reported taking the delays in stride — although they date back to early December.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said that during his new waiting period, the astronaut will remain in the cape area and continue "dry-run" checkouts in his Friendship-7 spacecraft.

Fuel will be drained from his Atlas rocket, to be replaced after the preliminary countdown resumes on Monday.

Lt. Col. John A. Powers, chief spokesman for Project Mercury, said weather experts were "more optimistic" about the outlook for landing conditions Tuesday. And he noted that the delay would give project personnel a break from their strenuous duties.

Space agency spokesmen had indicated before the "scrub" announcement that hopes were not too high for a launching today. This was borne out by Glenn's statement after he was awakened and told the news: "I guess it was to be expected. We all knew the weather was marginal."

Earlier, newsmen asked how Glenn was taking all this. They quoted him as saying:

"This mission has been in preparation for a long time. I can't get particularly shook up about a couple of days delay. As a matter of fact, I'm so happy to have been chosen to be the pilot for this mission that I'm not about to get panicky over these delays.

"I learned very early in the flight test business that you have to control your emotions. You don't let these kinds of things throw you or affect your ability to perform a mission."

Glenn has maintained a fine physical edge for the trip throughout his long wait.

Weather has figured in the repeated delays, but so has mechanical difficulty. Both the launch vehicle and the space capsule gave trouble earlier.

A big disappointment came on Jan. 27 when clouds scudded over this spaceport and blocked the shot with only 18 minutes to go in the countdown.

The launch was rescheduled for Feb. 1, but a fuel leak in the rocket caused still another delay.

So, the hope is now that between 7:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. EST on Tuesday, Glenn finally can blast off on a trip that will take him one to three times

CoC's 'Community Analysis' Shows Pampa Is An Ideal Location For Industry

Salient points that make Pampa the ideal place for locating industry and business are set forth in the new 40-page "Community Analysis of Pampa," just published by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

It is the chamber's latest factual brochure, filled with the Pampa story from the turn of the century down to the present.

It deals with the fantastic growth of Pampa following discovery of oil in 1926 when the city's population was less than 1,000. Four years later it had grown to more than 10,000.

The brochure goes back even farther — to the founding days in 1902 when only 205 persons lived here.

Mainly, the brochure has been drawn up for potential industries hunting for an advantageous place to locate.

In an introductory letter to the community analysis, E. O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, says:

"This report is presented to you in order that you may have complete information on our c and the Top O' Texas area.

"Pampa is proud of its industries and the many fine business and professional people who help make Pampa the fine city it is today.

"We extend to you a cordial invitation to consider Pampa in your plans for a new plant or business."

The brochure, an attractive 8½ by 11 book, with a two-color cover design depicting a scene on Pampa's City Hall-Courthouse - Junior High School mall, is being sent to industrial and business firms throughout the United States.

Among the various topics set forth with required statistical data about Pampa are these:

Location, character of surrounding territory, population figures, brief historical background, city and county government operation, banking and financial services, climate, educational facilities.

Existing industry, labor conditions, tax valuations and rates, transportation, utility rates, markets, agriculture, resources and raw materials, industrial sites, and civic, cultural and recreational facilities.

The brochure also tells the story of new manufacturing plants that have come to Pampa within the past decade with their subsequent praise of the area's plentiful supply of cooperative labor and the acceptance of newcomers into the city's social, civic and religious life.

In addition to the large brochure, the Chamber of Commerce also has published a new road-map size pocket folder in two colors. This all-purpose brochure deals with Pampa in brief and is illustrated with some two dozen pictures of Pampa's outstanding buildings and places of interest.

Briefly, it cites the many advantages to be had by those who make Pampa their home.

The two new brochures are the product of several months work on the part of members of the Publicity and Advertising Committee of the chamber of commerce. This industrial team compiled the information under the leadership of Floyd Watson.

Chamber Manager Wedgeworth said the 1962 Industrial Committee, under the leadership of Johnny Watson, will use the two pieces of literature in selling Pampa to new industrial prospects.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Over the last 17 years it is doubtful that even the governments involved have kept accurate track of the millions of words and documents written and filed away in the dead-end search for world disarmament.

In those years, the United States possessed and lost a monopoly of atomic weapons.

The Soviet Union first achieved the ability to hurl an inter-continental missile to any part of the globe, and quickly lost that monopoly.

Former President Eisenhower proposed the "open skies" plan which would have opened all nations to free aerial inspection.

Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki proposed an atom - free zone for Central Europe embracing Czechoslovakia, Poland and East and West Germany.

Throughout the years of proposals, counter-proposals and deadlock has run a single consistent thread.

That has been Soviet refusal to accept an effective system of inspection and control as a first step toward disarmament, whether applied to nuclear or conventional weapons.

Soviet objectives, meanwhile, have remained consistent.

These have included removal of U. S. forces from the continent of Europe, the permanent division of Germany, and opposition to rearmament of West Germany.

Within recent days, the Communist party newspaper Pravda said the Soviet Union never would alter its stand on the question of inspection and controls.

Nor has there been any indication that Soviet objectives have changed.

What then did Premier Khrushchev hope to achieve with his proposal that next month's 18-nation disarmament conference begin with a summit meeting of the 18 heads of government?

Obviously, the time - consuming oratory in such an unwieldy session could contribute little toward hard decisions which must be reached by the big powers.

The Communist central committee meets in Moscow just a week before the scheduled opening of the Geneva conference. A Khrushchev able to report a summit meeting in the offing might be in a better position than a Khrushchev able only to discuss the Soviet Union's agricultural ills and its quarrel with Red China.

Tax Offices May Be Combined

PERRYTON (Spl) — At the regular meeting of the Perryton School District Board of Directors recently, several citizens were present to hear the Board's views on the proposed combining of the school and city tax offices.

The proposition to combine the two offices was presented to the city council last week by members of the school board. Some of the reasons given in favor of combining the offices included: clearing up discrepancies in assessments; eliminating duplication in work; simplifying the job of assessment and collecting; convenience to the public, and a savings of tax dollars.

Some objections to combining these offices have been raised by citizens and property owners in the school district.

No action has been taken on the proposal and the school board will continue to investigate the matter, according to Dr. Roy Sanford, president.

Report On Algerian Negotiations Is Due

PARIS (UPI) — Algerian Affairs Minister Louis Joxe is expected to report to President Charles de Gaulle today or Saturday on the progress of his secret negotiations for an Algerian cease-fire, according to informed sources.

Joxe has been conferring with Algerian rebel leaders in a hideout believed somewhere near the Franco-Swiss border.

Despite an official news blackout, it was predicted that a final, public meeting between both sides would be arranged in a week or 10 days to wrap up loose ends and sign a cease-fire agreement.

But the anti-De Gaulle Secret Army Organization (OAS) appeared as determined as ever to prevent any accord on Algerian independence.

Ten plastic bombs—virtually the signature of the underground OAS—exploded in different sections of Paris within three hours Thursday. They rocked the homes of several anti-OAS journalists and caused some damage, but police said no one was injured.

Authorities prepared a legal counter-offensive. They planned to put on trial seven persons arrested during a crackdown on the OAS and charged with crimes against the state.

Police said all were arrested within metropolitan France and that they found plans to assassinate high public officials and take over the government.

Violence continued to rip the cities of Algeria itself.

Terrorist attacks by both sides killed 21 persons and wounded 34 more Thursday, bringing to 849 dead and 1,517 injured the number of casualties in the country since the first of the year.

around the globe. He will follow a space trail already blazed by Soviet cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov.

Thursday, the astronaut kept his capabilities honed with two hours of practice in his Mercury trainer. He went through simulated launch operations, retrorocket firing exercises and emergency procedures, then reviewed flight plans and technical information.

The postponement until Tuesday was not entirely unexpected. Project weather-watchers had said the cape itself can expect bad weather Saturday — although they did not at that time rule out a Sunday launch.

NASA weatherman Ernest Amman also said that February is the "rock bottom" month with regard to weather in the western Atlantic. Required spacecraft landing conditions prevail there only about one day out of three, he said.

Weather in the cape area was beautiful Thursday. And missile officials decorated the blue sky at midmorning with the vapor trail of a Minuteman missile, which sped more than 3,900 miles to a simulated military target in the Atlantic.

Principal Killed Before His Class

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)— A terrorist searched a school at the village of Fernandville, near Oran, today for the school principal, then shot him dead in front of his frightened class.

The terrorist fled.

The death of William Hassan, a European, and three woundings in Oran, pushed the 1962 terrorist casualty toll to 850 dead and 1,520 injured.

Police speculated the killing of the teacher was in revenge for the European murder of an Algiers Arab teacher last month. The Secret Army Organization, the European group fighting for French Algeria, was blamed for the Moslem teacher's death.

Four OAS plastic bombs burst in Bone today but police reported no injuries.

Good Givers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Church of the Nazarene reports record contributions of $144 per member in 1961.

The increase was nearly $2 per capita over 1960, when the Nazarene's ranked first in the nation in individual giving among Protestant Churches with 100,000 or more members. The total for 1961 was $47,122,000, by 382,000 members.

For Lease: One Coat Of Paint!

Financial Review
By JESSE BOGNE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once it is sprayed onto a wall, a coat of paint doesn't offer much as a recoverable substance.

But you can lease a coat of paint. You can lease a hole in the ground; or pavement for a parking lot. It has been done, by a general leasing organization which goes on the basis that any business which wants to keep its credit rating is not going to welsh on a payment just because it has leased something that the owner can't recover.

Founded in 1953, the American Industrial Leasing Co., has written over 7,000 leases, more than $90 million worth. It estimates that last year alone its leases were valued at $25 million.

Daniel Cavanagh, 47, president of the company, admitted that his group has broken what seemed to be a lot of hard-and-fast rules for the conduct of a leasing operation.

One of those was that items leased out must have a recoverable value.

"A lot of credit men shudder when they see a list of the equipment we have out on lease," said Cavanagh. "We've shattered all the rules. But we've learned a business that pays bills promptly is not going to begin defaulting just because the thing leased cannot be repossessed."

The level of defaulting accounts, he said, is below .5 per cent, because the company has a system of thoroughly checking credit ratings before signing contracts.

The coat of paint wasn't as unusual a lease item as might first appear. It was specified as part of a package for a large department store which also leased display counters, air conditioning units and other materials.

years. The mayor, along with City Manager John Koontz, also approached the need of expanding the capacity of the city's sewage disposal plant east of town. Work on this project should be started soon, according to Koontz, because the plant's capacity is presently strained.

Sidwell, in a discussion of annexation problems, explained that there are around 350 water users outside the city limit who for all intents and purposes enjoy the services of the city but do not share in the tax responsibility. In spite of the fact that they pay one and a half times the in-city water rate, the mayor said, they are not carrying their share of the load, suggesting that it might be wise to amend the city charter to allow the city to annex those areas where city services are sold.

This proposition evoked a spirited discussion of pros and cons among those present.

The meeting closed with Gordon Lyons telling the commission that the Chamber-BCD group would be happy to consider any specific proposals with the idea of supporting those the board thought would be for the betterment of Pampa. Sidwell said that in several weeks, the commission will submit specific projects for Chamber-BCD examination and that he was pleased with the spirit of cooperation shown at the meeting in approaching the city's problems.

Miss Thring told police she picked up Stogner's revolver after the shooting and notified the embassy. She said she saw a man who looked like Col. Matlick's chauffeur near the house. The man ran away, Miss Thring said, when he saw the revolver in her hand.

Police arrested the chauffeur, but Nigerian Police Superintendent R. J. Carter, who is directing the investigation, said "we do not believe he has anything to do with the murder."

There's A New Way Of Life Amidst Bombings For French, Algerians

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the small restaurants ngar the Paris opera, diners scarcely pause at the sound of a plastic bomb exploding in the heart of the city.

In Algiers, scarcely a pistol shot from the gleaming government buildings atop a terraced slope leading up from the Mediterranean, Arab shopkeepers stack their long loaves of bread and hang their meats in the open air.

For just as London, Berlin and other European cities found a way of life under the rain of World War II bombs, so in France and Algeria there is a way of life amid the terror of plastic bombs and the tommyguns of self-appointed Arab and European executioners.

There is no time to mourn the dead of yesterday, for more will be dead today and still more tomorrow.

This is the agony through which France and Algeria are passing and which can have but one conclusion no matter what events may intervene.

In a world of cold wars, of leaders who vie for space in the public prints and of great decisions, it is possible to lose sight of the real story which is the people.

In Algeria, nearly 800 persons are dead and more than 1,000 have been injured in bloody anarchy sweeping Algiers, Bone and Oran.

In Paris, Communist - trained street fighters stir up an orgy of violence and eight persons died in a head-thumping collision with riot police.

In Elysee Palace, President Charles de Gaulle, standing increasingly alone between the extremes of right and left, pursues inexorably the course which he believes leads to his own and France's destiny.

On the Franco-Swiss border, Algerian and French negotiators seek a cease-fire before the next and final explosion expected to be the supreme challenge to De Gaulle by the secret OAS led by Gen. Raoul Salan.

It is a part of the sadness of these days that the disruptive forces tearing at France do not represent the majority. The majority seeks only an end to the seven-year Algerian conflict.

In the minorities who oppose De Gaulle there is an illustration of how that conflict has changed.

On the one hand, to the far right, is the dissident Salan who believes he fights not only for a French Algeria but also against communism in Africa.

On the other, to the far left, are the Communists who would welcome civil war as their own path to power.

Cooperation Of Religious Groups Ambition Of 'Brotherhood Week'

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

America's Protestants, Catholics and Jews have learned to live together with a minimum of religious bigotry. They now have an opportunity to "move beyond tolerance to understanding."

So says a leading Protestant theologian, Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan of Yale Divinity School.

Dr. Pelikan scouts the new frontier in interfaith relationships in a brief but provocative little pamphlet entitled "Platform of Good Will."

It is being distributed by the National Conference of Christians and Jews for use in connection with "Brotherhood Week" observances which will be held next week in thousands of American communities.

The problem of maintaining harmony among different religious groups exists in many countries. But it is of special concern to Americans. This is the only nation in the world where large numbers of Protestants, Catholics and Jews live side by side under a government that shows no official preference among them.

Mr. Pelikan notes that it has taken Americans a long time to achieve a reasonable degree of "order in the house." At one time or another in the nation's history, members of every religious group have been subjected to discrimination or persecution. And even today, there are occasional outbursts of mutual intolerance.

But "notable achievements" have been made, particularly during the present century, in building up a national tradition which condemns bigotry whenever it crops up.

Today, Dr. Pelikan believes, Americans are in a position for the first time "to think about going beyond mere tolerance to genuine understanding."

"Tolerance," he explains, "is at best a negative virtue." It may mean only that you don't have very strong convictions on a particular subject, and are therefore indifferent to what the other fellow believes or says.

Understanding, however, involves a positive respect for another person's views on a matter about which you do care deeply.

How can Protestants, Catholics and Jews move beyond tolerance toward understanding?

"The first step," says the Yale theologian, "is to acquire information about one another that is historically accurate and religiously sound."

"Much of what we 'know' about other traditions than our own simply is not so, or represents only a part of the whole."

Another necessary ingredient is "plain good will."

"The commandment, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor's is in all our Bibles," says Dr. Pelikan. "Yet do we not find ourselves unconsciously comparing the best in our tradition with the worst in another?

"We suspect that behind the smile of a Roman Catholic stands the Grand Inquisitor, or that the cordiality of a Jew merely veils the hard heart of a Pharisee, or that the 'tolerant' modern Protestant would persecute Papists if he ever had the opportunity. And we do this despite our knowledge that these historical stereotypes are all caricatures."

A third hallmark of genuine understanding, is "the practice of candid criticism."

Today, says Dr. Pelikan, "we are afraid that criticism may seem 'intolerant' and somehow un-American." But "one difference between tolerance and understanding is that we become less touchy and more tough in our contacts, developing the freedom and security with one another that enable us all to speak fraternally and frankly."

"This is not a matter of 'shake hands and come out fighting'," he concludes, "but of facing each other critically just because we are brethren."

WOMEN In The CHURCH

By MARY FOWLER

Dr. Willa B. Player, president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N.C., is the new president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church. She is the first woman president of the sixty - year - old association.

Dr. Law Sone president of Texas Wesleyan College, Fort Worth Texas, vice-president, and the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Decker, Nashville, Tenn. director of the department of educational institutions of the Methodist Board of Education secretary - treasurer. There are 135 colleges, universities, theological seminaries, and other schools in the United States, all related to the Methodist Church, in the Association.

"A Stitch in Time" is the name of a new service program announced by Church World Service, arm of the National Council of Churches in its aid of needy peoples, especially refugees, overseas. The project permits groups or individuals to order cut garments which in turn are sewed and returned to CWS for use by the needy in a number of lands. The garments, which are purchased cut for $2.50 per set, are made from first class material, and styled by persons who know the needs of the various nationalities. Instructions for sewing are provided with each set. Many groups of church women have undertaken to work on this project, especially on garments for men and children. Report is that there is more used clothing available to be sent to women (discarded by American housewives) than for men or children: hence this particular project.

Miss Clare Randall, of Atlanta, Georgia, has been appointed director of Christian World Missions, department of United Church Women of the National Council of Churches. Miss Randall succeeds Mrs. Emory Ross who came out of retirement last May to direct the program temporarily as acting executive. For the past four years, Miss Randall has been director of arts of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., with headquarters in Atlanta. In her new post, Miss Randall will coordinate the home missions and world missions efforts of 12,000,000 Protestant and Orthodox church women through 2,300 state and local councils in every state of the union.

'If The World Should End' Is Sermon Subject

"If The World Should End Tomorrow" will be the Sunday morning sermon, subject of the Rev. Russell G. West Sr. at the Church of the Brethren.

This sermon grows out of a felt need for a constructive, Christ-centered message on this subject, especially for children and teenage young people, Rev. West said, "In Pampa and in many other places over America some of our younger people were greatly upset and disturbed by the recent prediction that the world was coming to an end. This message will be based upon the teachings of the New Testament which come to a climax in the story of the resurrection of Christ and the full assurance of immortality through Him."

"Building Monuments and Memorials" will be the sermon subject of Pastor West at seven o'clock on Sunday evening. In this service the pastor will use a number of Kodachrome Slides to illustrate his message.

Farmers Increase Aid To Indigent Persons Overseas

ATLANTIC CITY — America's farms and rural commities increased their commodity gifts to the destitute overseas by 15 per cent in 1961, it was announced today at the annual meeting of Church World Service, relief and rehabilitation agency, of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches in the United States.

These contributions of CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program), the community food appeal of Church World Service, reached a 10-year high of nearly five million pounds valued at $1,210,000, the Rev. Albert W. Farmer, CROP director, reported.

Cited for significant increases in contributions to the program were Kansas, Illinois, and Indiana.

Included in 1961 CROP shipments were 1,800,000 pounds of wheat; 1,100,000 pounds of beans; 670,000 pounds of rice; 420,000 pounds of corn oil; 20,000 pounds of corn syrup; 140,000 pounds of wheat flour and 115,000 pounds of chopped beef.

Corn meal, vegetable oil, sugar, dehydrated potatoes and soy protein accounted for an additional 115,000 pounds.

These foods helped meet disaster and continuing aid appeals in 28 countries, alleviated dietary deficiencies, and were also distributed as token wages to refugees and the destitute working on community self-help projects.

Shortage

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — A bumper crop of 800 theological students are attending Finland's Lutheran theological schools, but many of them will not enter the parish ministry.

A shortage of Lutheran pastors in churches in Finland persists because of low salaries in some areas and a lack of attractive opportunities in others, a study of the Church of Finland has shown.

The Spirit Of Enterprise

Last October, one of our sharp- ed friends drew our attention an item appearing in the Sat- day Evening Post. It was en- led, "Oregon Dilemma," and rgely concerned itself with dis- ssing the merits and demerits the enormous forest tracts in at far western state.

Should Orgeon denude itself of forests and make a mint of oney? Or should the forests be tained, keeping the economy at less vigorous level, but pre- rving the native attractions? could both be done within mits?

The article itself was worth ading. But our friend was at- acted by a small comment near e conclusion of the article hich said:

"For nearly twenty years there d been talk in nearby Ontario d Vale about getting the state federal government to put in good road to the lake and de- elop tourist facilities. Finally, at civic meeting in 1957 Lloyd ussell, a vigorous Ontario busi- essman, said he thought it was ime the citizens quit waiting for e government to do the job.

"With $11,000 collected from ounty residents and donations of ynamite and building materials, ocal merchants and workers arved six miles of new road out f mountainside."

So we wrote a letter to Lloyd Russell to check up on this state- ment. It is always of primary in- erest to us when we find private persons outside of government un- dertaking to do a job usually be- lieved possible only by govern- ment. We wanted to make cer- ain of the facts.

Now we have a letter from Lloyd Russell and we include it here:

"Please pardon the delay in an- swering your letter. . .

"To start at the beginning, Lake Owyhee was created in 1932 by building a dam which at that time was the highest in the world, 417 feet. This dam created a lake 53 miles long with 310 miles of shore line. It is not only Oregon's largest lake but we think it is the most beautiful in the West, a com- bination of the coloring of Bryce's Canyon plus the grandeur of your Grand Canyon. At the time this dam was built no provision was made for access to the lake and only a few hardy pioneers had ex- plored it. Government and state engineers told us that it would cost at least $100,000 to build a goat trail along the cliffs. (Fools rush in where angels fear to tread.) We built the road, as Mr. Cahn told you in his article, for $11,000 and had some money left over. Last year the state spent $74,000 on improvements on this road which we now think is a boulevard.

"Getting back to the mechanics which was used in raising this money, we combined the efforts of the chamber of commerce and service clubs of our three small towns, Ontario, Nyssa and Vale, and made a DRIVE for the mon- ey. Contributions ranged from $1.00 to $100. As a result of our experience, my suggestion to any- one in raising money for a like project is first to be sure there is a need and that your community will benefit, then paint a pretty picture and strike while the iron is hot. A delay will defeat your purpose.

"I hope these remarks will give you an idea that might be of help to you in a like project.

"P.S. As a result of this road, 15 people pooled their money in a corporation that has built a $250,000 resort. Stop by and see us some time and we will roll out the 'red carpet.' Last year we had 43,000 visitors."

We can only say, hurrah for Lloyd Russell and the independent people of the three small towns who got together to put in the road. And Mr. Russell's letter contains some mighty fine ad- vice.

First and foremost, his observa- tion, "first be sure there is a need and that your community will benefit. . ." is absolutely sound. So many people confuse their own vaulting ambition with "commu- nity need," They are not the same thing.

Secondly, he suggests a DRIVE, or, in other words, that you go out and WORK to raise the mon- ey. And that you do it NOW. This is the spirit that built this nation and we are pleased as can be to see that this same spirit is alive in Oregon despite government urgings toward dependicitis.

We would like to see this spirit reborn in this country. We would like to see it generally adopted. It is the true American spirit of enterprise.

The Authoritarian

Some people get mighty fright- ened when the authority of gov- ernment is challenged. Altho they may bridle themselves when this same authority taxes them, regu- lates them or otherwise contra- venes their decisions, they still believe the authority should be present to compel OTHERS to conform.

We still hear it said by some who fail totally to grasp princi- ples and to apply them, that our opposition to authoritarian govern- ment is secretly communistic in character. Yet even fractional comprehension of the issues which exist today should convince any- one of intelligence that our edi- torial policy is totally anti - com- munistic. Let's check that out to be sure we are right.

What is communism?

It is an economic system in which production will be for use rather than profit, and in which all means of production and dis- tribution will be owned or con- trolled by the state.

Communism, in practice, be- comes a political system of state control.

This is total authoritarianism. The state owns, the state controls, the state hires, the state fires, the state distributes, the state IS the sole authority over everyone in a total sense.

Communism, considered as an economic system outside of gov- ernment, is a joke. Government is the single necessity of any doc- trinaire communist. He MUST have the government in his cor- ner in order to exercise total au- thority over everyone. How else can he enforce his planned econ- omy?

Voluntary communism has fre- quently been attempted. In Amer- ica alone there have been no less than a hundred various communes which have been started since 1607. Without exception they all came to grief or, prior to their collapse, they changed their methods of operation to something less than communistic.

The same repetitious history is available everywhere in the world.

The voluntary commune does not survive for long. It either stops being a commune or it stops being voluntary.

If the government is to serve as the ultimate authority over men's lives, then communism is not only possible but inevitable. Authoritarianism and Communism go together. But if men are to be free and are to live in a volun- tary type of society, then author- itarianism and communism be- come alike impossible.

Most authoritarians in our so- ciety never quite grasp this cen- tral point. They want a voluntary society for themselves with au- thorities on hand to smack down everyone else. Communism offers them a logical extension of their theories to an inescapable conclu- sion. Under communism, if the system is to succeed at all, vol- untary actions must be forbidden.

The Doctor Says:

COMMON SENSE DICTATES MODERATION IN THIS CASE

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Q — I notice that you unequiv- ocally and flatly, with no ifs or buts, reply that it is not harmful to an unborn child for the mother to drink beer. Do you really mean that no matter how much alcohol a woman drinks it will not harm her unborn child? It seems you must mean that.

We have seen a party of people completely "potted" on beer. And the most loathesome of the party was a woman, presumably the mother.

Now do you mean to say that if this mother did this every day of her nine-months' pregnancy that she would do no harm to her unborn child? I defer to your scientific knowledge but just plain common sense tells us that this mother is doing something ter- rible—Mrs. A.

A—Dear Mrs. A: How about using your "plain common sense" to distinguish between the uses and abuses of alcoholic beverages and 'especially' beer?

I did not think that any reason- able reader would interpret my answer as a statement of ap- proval for a mother or anyone else getting what you call "pot- eed" on beer or on any other alcoholic beverage.

Certainly a "potted" person is a loathesome sight, whether it's man or woman. And certainly a "potted" expectant mother should be an object of disapproval and disdain.

But the abuses of which the "potted" are so obviously guilty need not prevent an expectant mother from having a glass or two of beer with her husband at her own table or outside at a so- cial gathering.

Q—Can you tell me something about a suction apparatus that's used to deliver babies?

A—I imagine you are referring to the Malmstrom vacuum extrac- tor that is widely used in Euro- pean clinics to replace forceps deliveries. It is presently on trial both in America and Canada and preliminiary experiences have thus far been satisfactory. Can- adian physicians find the extrac- tor safe for mother and child and prefer it to forceps deliveries in most instances. Also they observ- ed a reduction in the rate of de- liveries by Caesarean sections.

It was their tentative conclu- sion that the extractor should be a "standard part of the operating equipment in all delivery rooms." American experiences have thus far been quite similar.

There has been little, if any, injury to mothers and none of the babies has "manifested any im- mediate or significant untoward results.

This is what they want for others. They end by accepting it for themselves as well.

What happens is that they con- fuse authoritarianism with law and order. They imagine that for people to behave in a moral and orderly fashion they must be FORCED.

For example, they will tell you that if people weren't FORCED to drive on the right side of the road, there would be a great catastrophe because everyone would quite logically now drive on the left side.

Of course, if EVERYONE drove on the left side, there would be no catastrophe at all.

But with melancholy failure to understand the human being, they conclude that the population would be about divided; half would drive on the right side, half on the left, and we would have collisions everywhere. Ergo, the necessity for FORCING people to all drive on the right side of the road.

History teaches us that men were riding (horses) and driving (carts and wagons) on the right side of the road before anyone thought to force anyone.

It so happens that human be- ings do NOT want to have collis- ions. Do YOU want a collision? Do you think that others feel dif- ferently than you do?

Do you want US to run your life for you? Then why do you think that YOU ought to be in a position to run OUR life for us?

The authoritarian in our midst is working eagerly for the day of a total takeover by political agen- cies. He is, probably unknowing- ly, working hand and glove with the Kremlin, whose single stock in trade is the concept of total rule.

If someone bosses everyone, things will be better, won't they?

We don't think so.

Senators Probing Legal Implications Of U.S. Action on Powers Downing

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Senators pro- bing the muzzling of military of- ficers are switching their hear- ing spotlight this week to the big story of the day — the return of U - 2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

They plan to highlight the Navy's censorship of an entire article on the ill - fated U - 2 reconnaissance flight over Russia and the legal implications raised by the failure of the U.S. to pro- test the action Soviet authorities took against Powers.

Rear Admiral William C. Mott, the Navy's Judge Advocate Gen- eral, is being called for question- ing on Wednesday on why the Navy refused to clear for publica- tion the thought - provoking ar- ticle written by Dr. Oliver J. Lis- sitzyn, an associate professor of Public Law at Columbia Univer- sity and a leading expert on In- ternational Law.

Entitled "Some Legal Implica- tions of the U - 2 and RB - 47 In- cidents," the article was to have appeared last spring in the JAG Journal, the official legal publica- tion the Navy edits for the De- fense Department.

In analyzing the U - 2 plane in- cident, Dr. Lissitzyn warned that the failure of the U.S. to protest the downing of Powers suggests U.S. recognition that Soviet sov- ereignty extends to at least 68,- 000 feet — or the altitude of the U - 2 flights.

Also, that the lack of protest may have hurt Powers' chance of defending himself in his Soviet espionage trial. Dr. Lissitzyn wrote:

"Powers as an individual on trial before a Soviet court might well have pleaded ignorance of the upward extent of Russian sov- ereignty in extenuation of his guilt; but the failure of the U.S. to rely on altitude in justification of the flight and to protest against the Soviet action in the U - 2 in- cident suggests recognition that Soviet sovereignty extends up- ward to at least the altitude of the U-2 flights (68,000 feet).

"Such recognition is implicit in President Kennedy's language in announcing his order against the resumption of U - 2 flights: 'Flights of American aircraft penetrating the air space of the Soviet Union have been suspend- ed since May 1960. I have order- ed that they not be resumed.' "

Other highlights in the unpub- lished article are as follows:

"The U-2 incident — and par- ticularly the absence of a U.S. protest against the shooting down of the plane — further suggests that in some circumstances no previous warning or order to land is required by international law before an intruding foreign air- craft is shot down, even if the in- truder does not itself attack or is likely to attack.

"The U.S. refrained from claim- ing a legal right to overfly the Soviet Union for reconnaissance purposes. . .

"The failure of the U.S. to pro- test against the action of the Sov- iet authorities toward Powers and the plane he was flying provides additional evidence that national sovereignty in air space is a rule of customary international law and that it applies to the Soviet Union."

U-2 Pilot Powers was captured near Sverdlovsk on May 1, 1960, after he parachuted from his re- connaissance plane. He was sub- sequently convicted of espionage by the military division of the Supreme Court of the Soviet Union and sentenced to 10 years' confinement. He was returned to the U.S. over the weekend in ex- change for a Soviet spy.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

At the close of World War II, when the West had overwhelming military power, and could have crushed communism had it chosen to do so, it chose rather to trust the Communist governments and be exceedingly generous with them. The West demobilized its armies, destroyed its munitions, withdrew from Europe and want- ed and planned for nothing but peace. Such disturbance as has taken place in the world since that time is due solely to Communist aggression, to the wiping out of the freedom of one country after another, to steady expansion.

The West finally realizing that this juggernaut would roll on to the extinction of all freedom ev- erywhere in the world, in despera- tion began to rearm and to estab- lish bases. Such action is defi- nitely not aggression. It is de- fense in the face of persistent ag- gression.

Whosoever says that there is no distinction to be made between the armed aggression of the Com- munist powers and the armed de- fensive responses of the West is either wickedly misrepresenting the case or hopelessly naive. Is the thug who breaks into a man's house and seizes his wife on the same basis as the outraged hus- band who arms himself and has- tens to the rescue? Those who maintain that the world is in grave danger because of an arms race carried on by equally guilty and equally aggressive parties are the blind leaders of the blind and the main reason that nothing can be done to win the cold war, ov- erthrow the evil of communism, and restore tranquility, to the world.

If the soft-headed pacifists and appeasers would cease their ef- forts to hamstring intelligent and upright men who realize that the evil of communism must be de- stroyed if our free Christian civ- ilization is to continue to exist, it would not be long until the right would triumph. By picturing brave patriots, who are endeavor- ing to defend all that is worth- while in the world, as aggressors equally guilty with the commu- nists who plot the destruction of freedom, self-government and Christianity, these misguided peo- ple are unwittingly or otherwise casting their influence on the side of Communist aggression and gravely increasing the possibility that all the values in which they claim to believe will be destroyed.

Someone has well said that the urgent need for foreign and do- mestic aid is to underdeveloped minds.

Bid For A Smile

The man at the bar finished his third glass of beer, walked up to the manager standing at the end of the bar, and inquired,

Man — How many kegs of beer do you sell here a week?

Manager — About forty.

Man — Well, I can tell you how to sell eighty a week.

Manager (eagerly) — How?

Man — It's easy. Just fill the glasses.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Seattle is a city I love for its beauty, its scenic magic and its clear, clean air. And now Seattle is going to have a fair, a world's fair. Legal- ly, having applied to the Paris center, where such things are ap- proved or disapproved, it is the only city in the world that can call its fair a World's Fair in the 1960's. I don't know, or greatly care, what this is going to do to New York and its world's fair, a few years hence. My concern is Seattle, at the moment.

A gentleman who covers the waterfront called me on the tele- phone the other day and said that if I hurried over to Port Newark in New Jersey I could see the four gleaming sections that will be- come Seattle's monorail train be- tween downtown and the fair grounds. They were arriving on the freighter, Afroundia, having been picked up in Bremen, Germany for shipment to New York and thence would go by flat- car and rail to Seattle on the West Coast. This was the first train. A second one is due from Bremen about a month hence.

I watched the sections being taken from the freighter for trans- fer by tender to Hoboken, where they were to be put aboard the flatcars. They were gleaming in the sun and looked both beautiful and extremely futuristic. They are powered by eight electric motors of 100 horsepower each, can reach a top speed of 70 miles an hour and have, I hope, excellent brakes, because they will travel on a single rail only 1.2 miles be- tween downtown Seattle and the fair grounds. That gives enough space for acceleration but not much for deceleration and brak- ing. I doubt they will be used at top speed. The train can seat 124 persons in each car and there can be a total of 326 standees.

A corporation in West Germany called Wegematic has the pat- ent rights to these monorail cars. The patent comes from the Alweg system, developed in Europe and in use therein several places where not expensive, very fast transportation has become a com- monplace. Some modifications of the European cars have been made to meet American — or State of Washington — standards and the two trains complete, with shipping costs, have a price tag of $4,500,000 on them.

I didn't see any City of New York transportation experts at the pier, nor did I see any suburban officials concerned with the de- caying of the several commuter railroads that serve New York. It seems to me it might have been a good place for them to be. Here were fast, clean, safe and easily maintained cars that just might be the answer to a lot of transport problems in the New York complex. If a train costing $2,225,000 can carry 450 persons, seated and standing, at 70 miles an hour without dislocat- ing present road steads, it seems to me that commuter and trans- port officials might have journey- ed over to Port Newark to look at it.

Of course, there is always the chance that they have been real cozy and have figured that seeing four cars on a freighter is one thing, but to see them in daily op- eration in Seattle is another and more desirable thing. They might be waiting until April, when the fair opens out there, to get them- selves a free trip to the fair on the pretext of studying the Ger- man train.

In any case, having seen the cars and having seen painted fore- casts of how they are to be used, they seem to me the obvious an- swer. They travel above the ground on a single rail, which they grip on each side. This rail is held by simple, metal supports set on a single column. In short, surface traffic is not hampered by the support structue, as the old EL structures hampered New York traffic. Indeed, the Long Island Railroad could install the sup- ports on present rights of way, as could the troubled New Haven, and sling these trains in and out of New York at speeds that would make commuting a pleasure in- stead of a harassment.

Will all of the gentlemen in- volved in these problems please go to Seattle and look things over?

It's 'Hands off' For Castro On Our Guantanamo Base

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Kick- ing Communist Cuba out of the Inter-American Defense Board which handles Western Hemis- phere security will pose no new threat to the United States Na- val Base at Guantanamo, in the opinion of military observers here.

U.S. officials took a calculated risk on this point in pushing their policies to ostracize the Castro government from the Organiza- tiin of American States at the Punta Del Este, Uruguay, confer- ence of foreign ministers. Presi- dent Kennedy's action in slapping an embargo on U.S. trade with Cuba was a natural follow-up to this decision.

It is considered noteworthy that in all the resulting rantings of Premier Fidel Castro in Havana, of President Osvaldo Dorticos and Foreign Minister Raul Roa at Punta Del Este and of Ambas- sador Marcio Garcia at the Unit- ed Nations General Assembly in New York, there have been no new threats against Guantanamo.

The reason given for this is that if Castro makes an open at- tack against Guantanamo, it will provide the United States with justification for going into Cuba and cleaning the place up. Castro knows this and won't run the risk of starting a war.

It is conceded that the present Cuban government can make continued U.S. occupation of Gu- antanamo uncomfortable. Fresh water supplies could be cut off. American dependents might have to be evacuated. Cuban laborers could be prevented from report- ing for work inside the base. But the earnings of these workers pro- vide almost the only source of U.S. dollar earnings which Cuba has left. They are not expected to be disturbed.

Any idea that Soviet Russia would come to Castro's aid in an open attack on Guantanamo is dis- counted. In fact, the principal Russian role in any Guantanamo action is expected to be the exer- cise of restraint on Castro from starting any such foolhardy ad- venture.

Communist bloc countries put 25 to 30 ships a month into Cuban ports last year. They have deliv- ered army weapons, from small arms to heavy artillery and tanks, jet fighters, some big bombers, radar and transport equipment. Most of these munitions have come from Czechoslovakia. Some patrol craft and submarine chas- ers have also been towed into Cuban ports from Communist country shipyards.

In equipping the Cuban militia with small arms of Communist manufacture, Castro has used the weapons formerly carried by his army to supply Communist gueril- la forces in Latin America. Halt- ing this arms traffic is now one of the principal objectives of the Inter-American Defense Board.

But as one source sums it up, in spite of all the arms which the Communist countries have furnished Castro — perhaps $100 million worth for which the Cas- tro government has had to pay through the nose — the entire Cu- ban navy and air force could be wiped out by one United States carrier task force. And the U.S. Navy currently has three carriers in Caribbean waters.

Castro's armed militia has been greatly expanded to maintain po- lice state controls over the Cuban people. It might cause more dif- ficulty, particularly if driven into the hills. There might be heavy casualties in operations to mop it up.

But U.S. Army and Marine ground forces could be airlifted into Cuba from southeastern U.S. bases in short order.

The eventual outcome would not be in doubt, for the U.S. is de- termined not to let Guantanamo go while its treaty rights re- main in force.

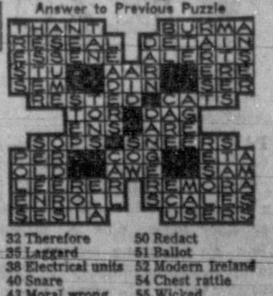

Castro is expected to continue his propaganda attacks against the United States. One of the standard themes in this attack, still being repeated in the U.N., is that the U.S. is planning a new invasion of Cuba. But assurances are being given that there will be no such invasion unless Castro starts it by an attack on Guan- tanamo.

The Major Coat Silhouettes Of This Spring

By GAILE DUGAS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — The coat fashions of spring fall easily into three categories: the princess or the equally fitted redingote, the loose coat and the coat with fitted front and loose back.

There are variations, of these themes but generally, as you shop, you'll find that the coats you look at conform to these silhouettes. You'll find more set-in sleeves his spring, a touch of tailoring in a season when clothes are particularly soft and feminine.

This spring is producing a good many collarless necklines. But if this neckline is not for you, don't worry. There are lots of neat, precise little collars and revers. And they are every bit as 1962 as the collarless neckline.

Deft seaming is used to give the princess coat its perfect fit or to achieve the high yoke look in a loose coat either front or back.

White, black and white, vibrant navy, gray, beige and black are all high fashion coat colors this spring. Beyond these basics, there are some beautiful blues, yellow-greens, browns (not usually seen in spring) and reds. Apricot has replaced that pink shade everyone loved so much just a short year ago.

Fabrics are textured for the most part, with lots of surface interest. But there are smooth silk and worsted blends in dressy coats, from which one may choose.

A clear idea of major coat silhouettes for spring may be had from a study of these designs. The princess (left) represents the fitted coat with normal waistline. The fit is achieved with careful seaming; fabric is mohair wool hopsack. Coat in French tweed (center) has deep yoked back and dropped shoulder line. Coat with cardigan look (right) has seamed yoke and moderate fullness. This is done in mohair wool hopsack. These are Brittany designs.

We Need To Learn Healing Balm Of Tears

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When a persistent insomnia began to threaten her work's efficiency, a young woman placed herself under psychoanalytic treatment. During one of her early sessions with her doctor she found herself recalling a childhood episode. A playmate had given a Halloween party to which she had not been invited.

"When I heard the other kids taking about the costumes they were going to wear, it never dawned on me that I wasn't going to be invited," she said. "So I went right ahead, bought crepe paper, made myself a witch's costume — the hat, the old broom, everything. Then the afternoon of the party another girl told me that Betty's mother wouldn't let her ask me. I never knew why. My father gave me a quarter for not crying. . ."

"How lonely and hurt you must have felt," her doctor said.

Shocked, his patient stared at him. Then, as his quiet insistence on the unremembered pain touched it, she flung her hands over her face — and burst into the tears that should have been encouraged 15 years before.

The comforting of children, contrary to general belief, is not "There, there, little girl, don't cry."

The child guidance books are always very eager for us to permit children to feel their resentments at us, carefully explaining that the "repression" of anger boomerangs back upon them in the form of self - accusation. But for some reason they are less insistent on the danger of denying them their hurts.

They do not explain that forbidding a child his tears either by impatience, ridicule, or anxious hovering makes it impossible for him to discover that he has survived the hurt.

They do not tell us children who are not allowed to discover that they can live past it develop shyness — fear of more hurt.

So true comfort is not, "There, there, little child, don't cry." In adolescence we pay for the impatience, ridicule or anxious hovering that has made tears and hurt shameful things. The Johnny who was deprived of his right to crumble into tears at a playmate's slight becomes the irritable teen - ager who hides his hurts from us.

He becomes the irritable child who says:

'I'm all right, I tell you. Just go away and leave me alone. Can't you leave me alone for a minute?"

If we have not been bullied out of feeling our own hurts through to their end, we are not afraid to encourage tears. We know that they are as good to shed when we are sad as laughter is good to shout when we are happy.

Things Teenagers Should Know: Use Light Hand In Making-Up

ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The first thing that any teenager should know when she first starts using make-up is tha what counts is a light, deft hand.

Make-up which is heavy or obvious defeats its own purpose and turns even the prettiest girl into a clown.

If your brows and lashes are light and pale, you need a little eye make-up. Make it look as natural as possible. Use a medium brown mascara on the lashes and a brown pencil on the brows. Go lightly with both.

In penciling in brows, follow the bone structure to find your natural brow line. Girls who get a weird effect in applying brows with a pencil do so because they by-pass the natural bone structure.

Pass up very pale or very dark shades of lipstick; they look outlandish. Choose a clear, soft blue-red, pinkred or clear, true red. Use just a speck of dry rouge high on the cheek bones and buff it with a wadded cleansing tissue. Dust powder on with a puff; never rub it in.

Finding your own type isn't easy. For some women, it takes many years. But there are guides to help you along.

If you are inclined to like an outdoor life and to be active, stay away from ruffles and frills. (You probably won't like them anyway but surprisingly, this isn't always true.)

If you are the petite, fragile, Dresden-doll type, the pastel colors, ruffles and delicate fabrics rightfully belong to you.

Your hair style should be indicated by your general type, as well as by your hair coloring and features. The girl with pixie features, for instance, should pass up the bouffant hairdo, in favor of one that is sleek, shining and cut to make the most of those features.

To find yourself, you must experiment. You must spend some money and a fair amount of time. But the result is worth the effort.

Even in winter, your bedroom should be well ventilated at night if you are to rest well and, subsequently, look well and refreshed the next morning. Cold air won't hurt you if you are warmly and adequately covered; in fact, it's absolutely essential.

Be sure the windows are open before you retire. Bang them shut in the morning, if you like. Generally, a house or apartment where temperatures are kept on the cool side even in winter is best for you.

Dear Abby....

Lovely Tradition Ruined By Tears

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to the lovely tradition of sending Christmas cards with cheery greetings? Last Christmas we got several "newsletters" from friends with pages of information about their doings of the past year. One was the pay-off. It was a 12 - page mimeographed sob story beginning with how they had a flood in their basement. Then their dog was hit by a car. All their children were down with the mumps at once. "Grandpa Drexel" had his teeth extracted and "Cousin Hazel," who had been a widow for 12 years, was "still lonesome." We didn't even know these people. My husband had been in the service with this man years ago. We received another one. It was all about a kidney operation. I ask you! Is this your idea of a Christmas greeting?

BUCKET OF TEARS

DEAR BUCKET: Indeed not. It's only an excuse for not having written for a year and a device to keep in touch. Good intentions, but usually boring.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having a heated argument about the length of skirts. I am 55, am 5 ft. 6 inches tall, and I contend that woman of my age and height should not wear her skirts so her knees show, and he thinks I should. I think that skirts about 2 inces below the knee look better on me. What is your opinion on this?

MRS. X.

DEAR MRS. X.: Wear your skirts at whatever length you think they look best on you! I think your husband is pulling your leg — right up to the knee!

DEAR ABBY: I have a very perplexing problem to which I must have the answer immediately. My fiance and I are about to be married and we were di sing furniture. He says he w twin beds so he can sleep a He says he has never slept anyone and, if he tried, he p ably wouldn't be able to ge sleep. I feel pretty bad about because that is not the way I agined it would be. Should I him an argument?

BED TROU

DEAR TROUBLE: Tell hi surrender. If he hasn't tried he shouldn't knock it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BYR Her face may be her for but she won't draw any int unless she can produce a de figure.

Old Barn May Hold Treasure

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Treasure greets antique car collectors who take the trouble to look twice at any tumble - down garages they drive past every day, according to Pete Brosseau.

He does upholstery work for restorers of old automobiles and has heard many tales of abandoned cars that turned out to be collectors' items.

Brosseau said a member of the Alamo City Horseless Carriage Club drove several hundred miles to get a 1925 model Chevrolet. When the man got back to San Antonio, he noticed for the first time the garage across the street which had a 1915 model Dodge sitting in it.

Another collector obtaned a farmer's permission to look at an old car in his barn. He found a dozen Moon automobiles which the farmer's father had been unble to sell while a dealer years ago.

Brosseau thinks an old barn is the best treasure chest for old cars. Many farmers, he said, have left cars in such places as "junk" they can't get rid of.

The result of the search and restoration work is familiar to all lovers of antique cars— a shiny '23 Ford or an '07 Flanders or '28 Victory Six, running smoothly along San Antonio streets.

'The Twist' Is Not New Among Women Shoppers

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration is not the type of agency you would ordinarily contact for information on the origin of the twist.

It is true that the FDA protects us from impurities, but its concern generally is limited to things intended for internal consumption.

Nothing in the Pure Food and Drug Act can be construed as extending its jurisdiction to contaminated choreography.

I was a mite startled, therefore, to hear a witness from the FDA inject a reference to the twist into testimony presented Wednesday to a Senate antitrust subcommittee.

The subject was introduced by Mrs. Carla Williams, director of FDA consumer programming, who appeared at a hearing on deceptive packaging and labeling practices in the food industry.

"You may all still believe that the twist was invented in that now famous Peppermint Lounge in New York," she told the subcommittee.

"But let me tell you," she added, "that shoppers have been doing the twist for the last five or ten years."

Mrs. Williams said that housewives must waste a lot of time twisting packages on supermarket shelves in an effort to determine whether a "king size" box is as big as the "giant size."

Warming up to her subject, she asserted that "the battle of boxes, brands and baloney" has turned the supermarkets into "a jungle of gelatin, jingles and jumbo quarts."

As you can see, Mrs. Williams goes in heavily for alliteration.

It os happens that I have been foraging in the gelatin jungle quite a bit recently, owing to the fact that the regular shopper in my household has been preoccupied wih an influenza epidemic.

The experience prompts me to believe that Mrs. Williams may have correctly pinpointed the birthplace of the twist, but misjudged the manner in which it originated.

I find that the twisting I do in stems not so much from comparing box sizes as from trying to avoid being run down by push carts.

But regardless of how the twist got started, I give Mrs. Williams credit for an important discovery. She was the first to establish an evolutionary link between supermarkets and night clubs.

Zone Change Is Asked In Perryton

PERRYTON (Spl) — The zoning commission met recently and requests were presented asking for several changes in the designated boundries as shown in the original proposed zoning ordinance.

La Rue Norris and Judge Max Boyer had asked that property which they own in the west side of town be changed from "A" (residential) district to a commercial district. Several property owners in that area sent a letter requesting that the change not be made.

Judge Boyer was present at the meeting to present his and Mr. Norris' reasons for seeking the change.

According to Boyer, they believe this property should be classed as commercial property since it is across the street from the Highway Department barn and also across the street from the school bus barns and shops.

The commission will discuss this request further and will decide at a later meeting what action to take in the matter.

Next item of business was a letter from six residents asking that a small block in the south part of town on Baylor Street be changed to a higher classification. This matter was also tabled far further discussion at a later meeting.

The commission discussed what requirements should be included in the proposed ordinance concerning shopping centers. A committee was appointed to investigate and advise on this question.

Members of the commission present were Chairman A. P. Spicer, Wesley Spencer, V. R. Coon, Joe Ogden, Alton Garner and Mrs. Wesley Bryan.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Technically, this is seen to be a big market and one capable of getting still bigger, according to Joseph E. Granville.

The E. F. Huton Co. analyst says nothing climactic has taken place on the upside and it might be many months before anything resembling an important top is seen. There are too many groups and individual stocks in bullish technical patterns to suggest anything more than brief phases of unimportant weakness separating "the great expected rallies ahead," he says.

James F. Hughes of Auchincloss, Parker and Redpath notes that the federal reserve member banks report for January 31 showed a new high in the investment account. On the basis of the unanimous past performance record showing that high points in that account have always preceded major tops in the industrial average, there is justification for expecting the average to exceed its Dec. 13 record closing high, Hughes says.

Bache & Co. says in view of the imposing band of overhead resistance that lies above the 720 line of the industrial average, it appears likely that this index will continue its generally sidewise movement during the next few days. It adds that there will probably be individual issues which will continue to receive buying support even with this type of market atmosphere.

The Dow Theory Trader says a few more days of backing and filling here would be healthy for the market, and this should be followed by a resumption of the rise which may well nudge into new high territory by late this month or early next.

McGill Moves To Ninth Highest

United Press International

Billy (The Hill) McGill is reaching for the sky.

The 6-9 Utah beanpole, the nation's leading marksman, moved into ninth place among the all-time list of major college scorers by tallying 45 points Thursday night as the Redskins trampled New Mexico, 90-65.

McGill now has a career total of 2,095 points and with five games remaining can possibly climb as high as fourth place among college basketball's scoring "immortals."

Shooting exceptionally well from the pivot, McGill tallied 13 straight Utah points early in the first half to give his team a lead it never relinquished. McGill, who entered the contest with a 36.9 average, dumped in 25 points in the first half and added another 20 in the final period to keep Utah safely ahead.

The victory was the eighth in nine Skyline Conference games for the Redskins and moved them into a first place tie with Colorado State U.

Wake Forest squeezed past Duke into the top spot in the Atlantic Coast Conference by whacking the Blue Devils, 97-79, Thursday night. Len Chappell, averaging better than 30 points this season, led the smooth Deacon attack with 37 points.

The Deacons now are 9-2 in the strong AC, but are closely followed by Duke (9-3) and North Carolina State (8-3).

In another crucial game played Thursday, New York University practically assured itself of a tournament bid by defeating West Virginia, 85-75.

Tom Boose did a great defensive job for the Violets, holding West Virginia's high-scoring Rod Thorn to a single field goal in the first 16 minutes of play. Thorn finished the night with 18 points before fouling out, well below his 24-point average.

Sophomore star Barry Kramer led the NYU scorers with 29 points.

Elsewhere, Holy Cross beat St. Francis of Brooklyn, 84-51, Manhattan topped St. Peter's, 73-65, The Citadel edged Richmond, 58-57, Florida State stopped Georgia, 71-62, Dayton defeated Portland, 50-47, St. Louis romped over North Texas St., 86-85, and Oklahoma City upended Loyola of New Orleans, 88-82.

Lynch's Pinch-Hits Rake In Long Green

United Press International

General manager Bill DeWitt of the Cincinnati Reds agrees today with National League pitchers who've said right along that pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch is a mighty tough hombre when the cash is on the line.

Lynch batted a cool .404 as a pinch hitter last season and announced he wanted plenty of cold cash in return. To prove it, he rejected DeWitt's first two salary offers and then went to Cincinnati Thursday to confront the boss in person.

N. L. pitchers predicted the result unanimously: Husky Jerry hit a fast ball right back into DeWitt'a teeth.

Then DeWitt relented, husky Jerry smiled and said he'd even brush up a bit on his fielding and the two agreed to a salary estimated at $23,500.

"It's time pinch hitters received the same recognition accorded top relief pitchers," said Lynch, who numbered five home runs among his 1961 pinch hits. "And I figure it's time I set a salary precedent."

Lynch, who is viewed primarily as a pinch-hitter although he did bat .315 in 96 games for the season, is pulling down one of the highest salaries in history for his specialty. Johnny Mize probably earned $25,000 to $27,000 as a pinch-hitting specialist for the Yankees and Dusty Rhodes may have been paid $20,000 by the Giants after his fabulous pinch-hitting exploits of 1954.

Pitcher Ralph Terry (16-3) and utility man Hector Lopez (.222) signed with the world champion Yankees—each for about $24,000. Roger Maris, Elston Howard, Cletis Boyer and Bobby Richardson are the unsigned Yankees of whom general manager Roy Hamey remarks: "I expect no trouble at all from Howard, Boyer or Richardson."

Maris, whose 61 homers last season made him baseball's new all-time home run king, is believed to be demanding $75,000 compared to an offer of $60,600 by the club.

The Los Angeles Dodgers revealed the signing of fleet outfielder Willie Davis, who had a .254 average in 128 games last season. The 21-year-old outfielder said he is looking forward to playing in the Dodgers' new Chavez Ravine home rather than going through another year in the tricky Coliseum where he hit only .203 in 1961.

Pitchers Gary Bell and Bob Allen of the Cleveland Indians returned signed contracts, reducing the number of Tribesmen unsigned to four.

Bell had a record of 12-16 last season, while Allen had a 3-2 mark.

Pitcher Bob Gibson, outfielder Don Landrum and first baseman Joff Long signed with the St. Louis Cardinals, leaving 11 unsigned players on the club's 40-man roster. Gibson had a 13-12 record and 3.24 earned run average with the Redbirds last season. Landrum and Long played in the minors.

Infielder Jerry Adair and $45,000 bonus pitcher Howie Stethers agreed to terms with the Baltimore Orioles. They have 32 of their 39 players under contract. The San Francisco Giants added pitcher Juan Marichal (13-10) to their satisfied list at what was reported as a "slight raise."

Young Ones Try For Lead

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UPI) — The "youngsters" resumed play today in the $25,000 PGA Seniors golf championship determined to accomplish what they failed to do Wednesday — take the lead from their elders.

Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and John Barnum of Belmont, Mich., appeared the most likely choices to zoom into the lead on the basis of their 67 scores in the first round.

After today's round, both divisions will have completed 36 holes and the field of nearly 400 golfers will be cut to the low 125 and ties.

When the older field — 55 and up — finished the second round Thursday, Harold Sanderson, Summit, N.J., and Charlie Sheppard, Pittsfield, Mass., were tied for the lead at 137.

But Sanderson won the Bourne Trophy, awarded to the leader of the older bracket after 36 holes, on a sudden death playoff on the second hole.

After the field is cut today, both age groups will merge for the third round Saturday and the final round Sunday.

Miler Beatty In Quest Of Record

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Beatty, fully aware that he can't work any track magic without the necessary "rabbits," warned everyone not to expect another four-minute mile in the New York A.C. meet tonight although he'll do his best to "hurry things up."

But track fans are hard to convince, so a lot of them at Madison Square Garden possibly will still be looking for the 27-year-old Los Angeles Track Club ace to duplicate or at least approach the world indoor record of 3:58.9 he set last Saturday.

And those who take Beatty at his word, may turn their attention toward shot putter Gary Gubner in the hope of seeing him break the world indoor record of 63 feet, 10¼ inches he established two weeks ago.

"When you talk about another four-minute mile, you need somebody in the race to push you," said Beatty. "I want to give the fans a good race, but it's not up to me alone."

Beatty means there is no indication that any of his competitors in the Baxter Mile will set a pace for him as two of his teammates, Laszlo Tabori and Jim Grelle, did in Los Angeles last week. His three Baxter rivals will be two Marines, Pete Close and Cary Weisiger, John Reilly of Georgetown and Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago, each of whom is interested in winning the race himself.

Beatty indicates it would take ideal conditions for another four-minute mile and he makes it plain he doesn't expect to get them from Close, Weisiger, Reilly or O'Hara.

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A $2,500 bowling competition for major league baseball players, managers, coaches, officials and the press will be held at East Gate Lanes here on March 21.

Sullivan Leading Tucson Open Tournament With 61

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — It's a wood, a wedge—and a puttin' prayer in the Tucson Open golf tournament.

The $20,000 event wheeled into the second round today with also-ran Buddy Sullivan of Yuba City, Calif., who seldom finishes in the money, leading the race with a tidy little 61 to his credit—nine strokes under par.

On most courses, that would be a record. Here it ties the mark held by Don January, Phil Rodgers and Frank Stranahan. It was good for a two stroke lead over veteran Tucson amateur Dr. Ed Updegraff, and unknown pro Bob Stone from Junction City, Kan., who never in his life has won a nickel in a PGA tournament.

That's a nondescript group in the lead. But it happens to be in front of such men as PGA champion Jerry Barber (66), and National Open champion Gene Littler (67), among others in the crack field.

Sullivan, never a winner, came close on this same 6,464-yard El Rio course last year. He tied for the title with Davey Hill and Tommy Bolt. But Hill won a sudden-death play-off on the third hole.

Sullivan had nine birdies, no bogies. His longest birdie putt was from 15 feet. He had one from 10. And all the rest were from seven feet or less. Unlike most of the pros, he used a seven-iron twice on approaches.

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

Amarillo In Lead; Ward Bout Saturday

Amarillo's Regional champion boxers paraded into the Will Rogers Coliseum Thursday night like they owned it and walked off with six bouts out of six attempts for a .1000 punching average and the lead in the first round of the annual tourney.

Houston, which was the pre-tourney favorite could only manage two victories

Carding victories for the local team were Eddie Gonzales, flyweight; Leandro Martinez, bantamweight; Jimmy Tijerina, featherweight; Ronnie Morgan, lightweight; Carson Watt, middleweight; and Gary Welsh, heavyweight.

Watt is the lone Amarillo boxer slated for Friday night action, facing Bill Shugart of Sherman.

Glen Ward of Pampa and Manny Perez, ABC, drew first round byes and will see action Saturday night.

In Thursday night's action, Welsh carded a TKO over Joseph Mancheux of Beaumont in 1:50 of the second round; Gonzales won on a knockout over Ronnie Baxter of Fort Worth in 1:55 of the first round; Tijerina decisioned Albert Padilla, San Antonio; Morgan won on a unanimous decision over Candy Martinez of Brownsville; Watt decisioned Walter Manning of Houston and Martinez won on a TKO over Johnny Houser, Sherman.

The bouts will continue tonight, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday nights.

Bucks Warming Up For Bi-District

White Deer's Bucks, District 1-A basketball champion, warms up for their bi-district action when they travel to Perryton tonight to meet the powerful Rangers.

The Bucks, who finished the regular season with a 10-0 record will meet McLean at 7:30 p.m. Monday in a bi-district contest at the Harvester fieldhouse.

McLean is District 2-A champion.

Briscoe, Hedley In Bi-District

Briscoe, who nailed down the District 13-B cage title with a narrow 51-50 victory over Miami will battle Hedley Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Harvester fieldhouse in a bi-district contest.

Briscoe finished up regular season play with a 10-1 mark. Hedley is District 14-B champ.

Ballplayers In Golf Tourney

MIAMI (UPI) — Despite firecrackers and Yogi Berra's clowning, there were at least two major leaguers seriously intent today on winning the National Baseball Players Golf Tournament.

They were Alvin Dark, San Francisco manager, and his old-time golf rival, Jim Hearn, former Phillies pitcher. Dark, a three-time winner, beat Hearn for the title in 1955 then lost to the big hurler in 1960.

Dark missed several short putts Thursday, but still managed to lead the first round with a 74. Hearn came right behind him with a 75 and Virgil Trucks, Pittsburgh coach and another perennial contender, was third with a 76.

Roy Cullenbine, former Detroit outfielder was well on his way to capturing his third title in a row in the inactive major leaguers division. He shot the day's best round, a one-under-par 69 over the Palm-lined Miami Springs course.

Most of a gallery of 3,000 was following Mickey Mantle and to their delight Cincinnati infielder Gene Freese planted a bunch of exploding firecrackers just as Mantle teed off on the first hole. The Yankee slugger, however, managed to come in with a creditable 79.

Defending champion Peanuts Lowrey took four out-of-bounds penalty strokes on the back nine to finish with a 79.

Shockers Drop Season Ending Cage Tilt, 61-53

By DICK RABE
Daily News Sports Editor

PLAINVIEW — Don Ford and Joe Childers lowered the boom in the second half Thursday night to lead the Plainview Bulldogs to a 63-55 victory over the Pampa Harvesters in the final game for both teams in 3-AAAA action.

The Harvesters, who led at the half, had second halfitis once again and for the second time this year fell before the boys from Plainview. The first time the two teams met, the Harvesters lost, 50-49.

The loss left the Harvesters with a final 4-10 mark in district and a last-place tie with Amarillo. Pampa was 16-13 for the season. The Bulldogs finished with a 7-7 mark.

Pampa, seeming bent on continuing where they left off in their last game against the Sandies, took an early first quarter lead but had to settle for a 10-10 draw at the quarter.

In the second quarter, the Harvesters got hot again and closed out the half with a 26-20 lead.

Pampa continued to play king of the mountain until 3:30 remained on the clock in the third period when the Dogs took the lead for the first time, 35-33. From that point on to the end of he quarter, the home team bombarded the basket with 12 points to take a 47-41 lead.

The Harvesters took up the slack in the fourth quarter when they tied it up at 53-53 but couldn't forge ahead again.

Randy Matson, a sure-fire all-district nominee led the locals from the floor with 15 points while Bob Neslage had 14 and Wayne Kreis 13 points to also hit in the double figures for the local crew.

Kries hit five out of six from the line and Neslage batted .500 with two for four from the charity mark while pouring in six field goals.

Matson went into the game battling the number one scorer in the district in Jackie Swanner. The rugged junior post man trailed the Plainview ace by 30 points, but could only chop off two as he found the range with 15 while Swanner was hitting for 13.

The Harvesters could only hit 13 out of 23 from the line for a little better than a .500 clip for the evening.

It was the final game for Neslage and Lloyd Balch, both graduating seniors. Jim Storey, Harold Burgess and Mike Stewart, all reserves who failed to see action, are graduating seniors, also.

The Shockers also had their second half troubles, dropping a 61-53 decision to the Plainview B team.

The loss ended the season for the Shockers with a 8-6 record in district and 19-7 overall.

Donnie Ayres and Larry Clifton each had 14 points to share scoring honors for the losers while Kenny Hebert chipped in with 10 more.

Other results Thursday night found Monterey winning over Lubbock, 53-48; Borger smashing Palo Duro, 70-50 and Amarillo belting Tascosa, 41-36. Monterey thus sewed up the 3-AAAA cage title.

Brown Prepping For Title Bout

Brown sparred with welterweights Deanie Crisp of Las Vegas and Manuel Gonzales of Odessa, Tex. The emphasis was on sharpening Brown's hooks and counters.

Lee Ninth Wins District Title; Eighth Grade Garners Loop Tie

Lee ninth won their district championship while Lee eighth garnered a tie for the title in Thursday afternoon cage action.

The ninth grade team won over Austin of Borger, 43-39 to wind up the season with a 10-2 record in district and a 12-4 mark overall.

Leading the way for the winners was David McDaniel with 17 and Robert Howard with 13 points.

The score at the half was 25-20, Lee.

Lee eighth tied for the title although they dropped a 49-43 decision to Austin.

The record gave the eighth grade team a 13-2 record overall.

Teddy Bird led the losers with 13 points while Gary Crossland had 12 and Kenneth McWilliams had 10 to share scoring laurels.

Boyer Leads Cage Stars From Line

CHICAGO (UPI)— Southwest Conference basketball teams may not rate high in the national polls, but a dead-eye player from the Ozarks is threatening to walk off with one national honor.

He is Tommy Boyer, a one-eyed guard for the University of Arkansas.

Boyer has hit 86 of 90 free throw attempts—a phenomenal .956 percentage.

That's the best mark in the nation, nearly six percentage points better than second-place Jerry Carlton—a Razorback teammate. Carlton has hit 97 of 108 for a .898 mark.

The Razorbacks—no better than fourth in the SWC with a 5-4 conference mark—are the only area team listed among the leaders in major college statistics.

The Hogs are second in team free-throw shooting with .7865.

COLTS ARRIVE

APACHE JUNCTION — Ariz. (UPI)—Nineteen pitchers and six catchers were expected to report to field manager Harry Craft for spring training today and bring the Houston Colt 45s into being as the South's first major league baseball team.

The Colts open their National League season in Houston on April 10, against the Chicago Cubs.

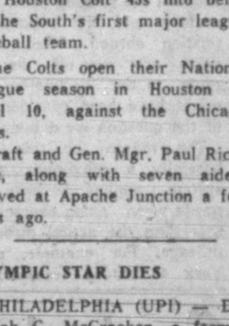

Craft and Gen. Mgr. Paul Richards, along with seven aides, arrived at Apache Junction a few days ago.

Airline Ticket Sure Can Be S-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d For Long Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — With reservation time at hand for this summer's foreign trip, now is the time to plan on getting a longer ride out of each dollar spent on an airline ticket.

Little still is known among the general traveling public about the mileage and routing provisions which govern tickets issued by members of the International Air Transport Association (IATA), which includes practically every major airline in the world.

It all adds up to a chance to visit several extra cities without increasing the cost of the ticket between the starting point in this country and the ultimate destination abroad. Often these cities are way off the direct route to the destination, and might have been considered out of the question for a budget trip.

The reason for this is that basically a maximum mileage system applies between two points when going overseas, rather than the actual direct-flight mileage. For example, a New York to London traveler is allowed up to 3,976 miles on his ticket, yet the direct airline mileage is closer to 3,455.

The mileage cannot be taken at random, but must follow various route options offered under IATA regulations.

It's no trouble to hop a jet non - stop New York-London. But the traveler with the inclination and the time can — without paying any more than the direct fare — stop at any or all of these cities enroute to London: Shannon and Dublin, Ireland, Glasgow, Scotland; Belfast, Northern Ireland, and Liverpool, Manchester and Birmingham, England.

The longer the distance to your ultmate destination, the better the routing options offered.

Normally, someone planning a trip to Tel Aviv wouldn't think of going via Scandinavia, but it can be done at the same ticket cost as going direct.

Here is a typical option available to a New York-Tel Aviv traveler: Glasgow, Scotland; Bergen and Stavanger, Norway; Aalborg and Copenhagen, Denmark; London; Amsterdam; Brussels; Paris; Basle, Zurich and Geneva, Switzerland; Nice, France; Rome; Athens, Greece; Nicosia, Cyprus, and Tel Aviv.

Naturally, you'd have to change airlines along the way, and probably no one would want to visit every city on one trip, but it can be done, given enough time.

Heading south, the same idea applies. Bogota, Columbia, is less than five hours by non - stop jet. But the tourist with a yen to see a few extra places can, on a flight from New York, visit Washington; Miami; Montego Bay and Kingston, Jamaica, and Barranquilla, Colombia before going on to Bogota.

Here is what might be called the big payoff. Rio de Janeiro is just over nine jet hours from New York. By utilizing different airlines and connecting services, the same money can give you all, if you want, or a combination of these cities:

Mexico City; Guatemala City; San Salvador, Salvador; Tegucigalpa, Honduras; Managua, Nicaragua; San Jose, Costa Rica; Panama City; Medellin, Bogota and Cali, Colombia; Quito and Guayaquil, Ecuador; Lima, Peru; and Sao Paulo as well as Rio.

All the cited routes are extreme examples to show what really can be done with plenty of time, and no aversion about changing from one airline to another. However, many airlines emphasize extra cities along their routes, and there is no need to change from one carrier to another. After enjoying the extra cities at no extra fare, the traveler can return home by the most direct route if he prefers.

The best thing to do is to sit down with the airline you are using or your travel agent and let him put his imagination to work with a stack of schedules and the Air Passenger Tariff book which maps out all of the allowable routes.

You might wind up seeing a lot more than you bargained for, and at a bargain.

Contest Reveals Lots Of Stumped Students

NEW YORK (UPI) — Is essay writing becoming a lost art in the United States?

The ABC Radio Network is pondering that question as a result of its current annual essay competition among undergraduate students in the nation's universities and colleges.

The network mailed a letter to about 10,000 educators asking their cooperation in encouraging students to enter the Edward P. Morgan Essay Contest, named for the ABC news commentator who originated it. Information was sent to all college newspapers so they could publish the contest rules.

But, according to ABC, one thing was overlooked. Nobody thought of telling the students how to write an essay.

Soon Morgan's Washington office was swamped with mail from students asking for guidance. When students in Washington's universities started phoning Morgan's home, he called New York headquarters for help.

The problem was submitted to a Columbia University professor, who came up with a mimeographed card citing six rules for writing a good essay. The card was sent to all the inquiring students.

"Since then," Morgan said, "I've received about 30 letters complaining that the instructions are no help at all. I have replied to all these with a letter quoting Charles Townsend Copeland's definition of a typical essayist: 'a tattler, a spectator, a rambler and a lounger. . .'

"That won't teach them how to write essays, but it may dull the pain of not being able to."

The subject of this year's contest is "Youth's Role in U.S. Foreign Policy." The two top winners will be awarded a $1,400 scholarship each for graduate study and flown to New York and Washington for meetings with government leaders. Then semi - finalists will receive 24-volume sets of the 1962 Encyclopedia Britannica.

Judges in the contest include Chester Bowles, Special U.S. Ambassado to Asia, Africa and Latin America; Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D - Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., Senate Minority Leader, R. Sargent Shriver, Director of the Peace Corps, and Morgan.

Does He Talk Back?

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Five year-old Bobby Schapp hears the "whistle" from both his parents.

Bobby's mother and father, Bob Schapp Sr., and Mrs. Jacqueline Schapp are official referees. Schapp has been a game official for 25 years. His wife, a former Washington University athlete here, is a national referee in basketball, field hockey, volleyball and softball.

Sugar Trust Has Throttle Hold On Nation's Supply

Signs are appearing daily indicating that the sugar trust has not been asleep. It was thwarted three years in a row in its attempt to gain a long-term extension of the Sugar Act. It was forced on each of these occasions to resort to scare tactics and "emergency" talk and unfair procedural tactics in order to obtain short-term extensions to further hide the complete truth from the American people. They do want the Sugar Act or the sugar problem debated openly on the Floor of Congress. They know that the American people and the American farmer have been hoodwinked and that if all the facts are made available and are understood by the people of this country, their heyday is at an end.

They are a powerful group, with control of several hundreds of millions of dollars annually, out of which they reap huge profits. By virtue of the power associated with these tremendous sums, they have been able to retain a law that requires the importation from foreign sources of approximately 45 per cent of the sugar demand in this country. This means that approximately 5,000,000 tons of sugar are imported into this country each year. At a value of five cents a pound, this would mean an overall transaction of approximately $500-million. This half-billion dollar business is handled through approximately 12 refineries and it is generally assumed that the ownership of these refineries is by a lesser number than 12. This will give you some idea of the small, compact group that has a throttle-hold on the sugar needs of this country. All of the sugar, with a very minute exception, must be channelled through these refineries because it is raw sugar and could not be imported into this country if it had already been refined. Hence, these refineries are guaranteed a refining process business of half a billion dollars worth of sugar each year. The next question is, where does the sugar come from? Not from American farmers, either in the continental United States or any of our possessions or other States. It comes from foreign countries under the provisions of the law. It is this law that the sugar trust does not want amended.

Up until about two years ago, Cuba furnished this country three million tons of sugar of a value of approximately $300 million. When Cuba went Communist, we stopped purchasing sugar from Cuba, or thought we did. At that time it was the hope of the American farmer, who had long clamored for the right to grow more sugar beets, that he would be allowed to produce some of this sugar allotment that we had taken away from the Communist country. However, he failed to reckon with the half-billion dollar sugar trust. These fellows had not been asleep. They immediately went to work and procured the extension of the Sugar Act through the Congress without debate in the House of Representatives, and without hearings before Committees, as is the proper procedure. This extension included a term which denied to the American farmer the right to produce as much as one pound of the sugar that had formerly been purchased from Cuba. It did not even give the President of the United States the right to authorize the American farmer to produce any of that sugar, because in each instance where this sugar was referred to in the Act, the authorization to purchase contained the term "from other foreign countries" or "from any foreign county." The use of the word "foreign" successfully blocked the American farmer from participating in the market of the American consumer to any further extent than he had participated prior to the discontinuance of purchases from Cuba.

A small but vigorous minority group of Congressmen who know and understand this situation have fought bitterly to obtain fair treatment for the American farmer and for the American consumer. If the American farmer were allowed to produce in this country one-third of the amount of sugar formerly purchased from Cuba, it would enable 400,000 acres of land now being used for growing surplus crops to be used for growing sugar beets; it would help to stop the outflow of American dollars; it would invigorate the agricultural communities in a number of areas throughout the United States; it would make it possible to build at least end additional sugar processing plants in this country at a cost of around $12- to $18-million each. This latter would help measurably in solving the unemployment problem not only in the factory areas but in the rural areas where these plants would be located.

It must also be remembered that this would all be possible, yet we would still be able to import 35 per cent of our sugar needs from these other countries; countries which heretofore have furnished us less than 15 per cent of our sugar needs.

The big question in the minds of those who have studied this matter is why the sugar trust is so determined to deny the American farmer the right to grow sugar that is sold on the American market, even in a limited amount; yet they are willing that the sugar allotment formerly held by Cuba can be handed over to countries like Mexico and Brazil, who vigorously fought the United States in the move to oust Castro from the Organization of American States, and to such countries as British Guiana, headed by one Cheddi Jagan. It will be remembered that this Cheddi Jagan and his wife have been linked on numerous occasions in the press with Communism, both in this hemisphere and elsewhere. A large part of this could be transshipped Cuban sugar. The whole matter appears to me to be a case of material greed that could do as much damage to this country as any other one factor.

I can assure you that the small band which has fought so long and so hard is not going to give up, and that the battle will continue without cessation.

'Summit Fever' Runs High In Washington

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some veteran American diplomats fear that "summit fever" is beginning to run too high and could lead to eventual disillusionment and dismay.

They feel that too much public attention is being paid to Kennedy's expressed willingness to meet Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev after some progress on cold war issues and not enough emphasis is being given to the specific conditions the Chief Executive laid down.

The President, himself, they acknowledge, contributed to this atmosphere by his natural desire to avoid rocking the diplomatic boat at a time when Khrushchev is showing somewhat greater cordiality.

Kennedy worded his rejection of the Soviet proposal for a March 14 disarmament summit in gentle terms and spoke almost enthusiastically of the possibility of a later meeting if the Geneva talks made some progress.

This studied effort to appear most reasonable tended to obscure the hard-core conflicts on disarmament and other subjects and the vast gulf separating Moscow and Washington on critical cold war issues.

Kennedy mentioned, but did not stress, some of these hitherto insoluble differences:

—Pre-summit disarmament progress must include some advance toward an inspection and control system, which the Russians have stated flatly they will never accept.

—The Berlin situation is still a "crisis" and there will be no letdown in American military preparations unless Russia withdraws her pressure.

—The Laos cease-fire is dangerously "frayed" and resumption of the civil war between pro-Western and Communist forces would force him to "a most serious decision."

Veteran diplomats recognize that in a world beset by frustration and fear, the psychology of a summit meeting tends to catch on even when there is little practical basis. This generates allied and neutral, as well as some American, pressures upon the President to attend in hope of making progress instead of waiting until after such progress has been made."

Memorial Talking Edition Of Bible Ready To Release

NEW YORK — A talking book edition of the New English Bible — New Testament, is soon to be released to blind readers by the John Milton Society, Protestant agency for world-wide service to blind people.

Recorded by Dr. Robert J. McCracken, Minister of The Riverside Church in New York City, it will be produced under copyright permission from Cambridge University Press and Oxford University Press which jointly published the printed edition of this new version of the Scriptures.

The edition will be known as The Memorial Talking Book Edition, and dedicated to the memory of the late Frank Battles (1856-1932), first president of the John Milton Society. Battles was also founder of the Philadelphia investment banking firm of Battles & Company, former principal of Overbrook School for the Blind in Philadelphia, and president of the Society for Providing Evangelical Religious Literature for the Blind (founded 1874) which merged with the John Milton Society in 1960. The entire New Testament in this Memorial Talking Book Edition will be contained on a set of 15 to 18 slow-playing records to be played at 16 2-3 r.p.m.

Dr. Dwight C. Smith, General Secretary of the John Milton Society said, in announcing the memorial, "This remarkable addition to the Society's services to blind readers throughout the world is made possible through gifts from the Battles family and friends. Winthrop H. Battles., a son of Frank Battles, has been president of the Society since 1960, succeeding Miss Helen Keller, who at that time became Honorary President."

Dr. Smith, mentioned that among those who will value the edition and keep it as a "permanent resource for inspiration, spiritual growth and understanding" will be many blind ministers included among the thousands of readers of the John Milton Society's braille and talking book publications; the one thousand or more blind men and women teaching Sunday School classes of sighted persons; and numerous churches wishing sets to use in ministering to blind parishioners, or to present to libraries of homes for the aged.

Pope Finds An Ideal Place For Rest, Study In Tower

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—A forgotten and half - demolished tower built 11 centuries ago will become Pope John's favorite place of rest and study.

The tower, known as St. John's Tower, was built under the pontificate of Leo IV together with 24 other towers scattered on the wall surrounding the vatican. The impressive defensive system was officially inaugurated in 857.

On June 27 of that year, the Pope and his retinue, barefoot, and with dust spread on their robes to remind them of men's short lives, left the Vatican Palace to make a tour of the wall.

Centuries passed and wall and towers lost their initial purpose. The wall was demolished in several places to allow other construction.

St. John's Tower was still used during this century when Vatican astronomers discovered it was a good observation post. But after several years they moved to Castelgandolfo and the tower was no longer used.

One day in the spring of 1960 Pope John XXIII "discovered" the tower. He had just finished a visit to the Grotto of the Virgin of Lourdes and was taking a walk in the Vatican gardens when he saw it.

He insisted on going up to take a look. He fell in love with the tower at first sight.

From its top, Pope John could get a splendid view of the Vatican. Besides, it was quiet. The Pontiff thought it would be an ideal place for rest and study. Immediately, he told his secretary of his wish to have the tower re-built.

Workmen began to give the structure its previous splendor. Modern materials were used to reinforce the old foundations.

The tower's interior, began to take a new shape.

On the ground floor there is a circular hall about 50 feet in diameter. The first floor has another hall of similar dimensions which may be used for some occasional audience. The second floor is reserved to the nuns who serve the Pope.

The third has been dedicated to the Pontiff. The apartment has a small entrance hall, a dining room, a bedroom and a library. An elevator will be installed in the tower for the Pope's use.

The fourth floor is for the Pontiff's secretary. The tower is topped by a covered terrace.
