Marathon men say they'll compromise

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators who led a marathon filibuster which helped tie up Senate action on natural gas pricing for two weeks said today they would reluctantly vote for a compromise offered by Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

Democratic Sens. James Abourezk of South Dakota and Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio said they would support a plan which keeps federal controls on gas, but would allow more of the fuel to be sold at higher price levels.

But Abourezk and Metzenbaum said they would vote for the compromise only if it remains unamended by senators sympathetic to the natural gas producers.

Both said they would support the new proposal worked up by both Byrd and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., with hopes that a House-Senate conference committee would cut down a $2.03 price ceiling on each thousand cubic feet of gas.

"I don't approve of it," Metzenbaum said. "But it's better than total deregulation."

Byrd said he was not sure the Senate would be able to vote today on the compromise, which shows promise of breaking an impasse which has tied up the Senate for nine days on the same issue.

Before voting on the plan, the Senate went to work on a complicated parlimentary maneuver designed by Byrd to brush aside some 400 proposed amendments to the bill.

Jackson's move was an attempt to break the filibuster that has kept the Senate from choosing between President Carter's proposal to retain price controls on natural gas and an industry-backed plan to lift them.

But the compromise engineered by Jackson and Byrd was fragile. While Senate leaders were optimistic, there was no guarantee the impasse could be broken.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, unveiled the plan Wednesday night shortly before the Senate recessed after meeting nonstop for more than 37 hours.

The recess came as two senators opposed to any relaxation of federal price controls suspended their filibuster to give the Senate a chance to study the Jackson proposal.

But Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said he and Sen. Howard H. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, were ready to resume their filibuster if necessary.

Essentially, Jackson wants to raise the wholesale prices of some interstate gas from the present $1.46 maximum to $2.03 for each thousand cubic feet.

To build industry support, Jackson proposed that gas eligible for this higher price could come from both new wells and some older ones.

Carter's plan would raise the ceiling to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet but limit the higher price to gas from new wells.

Both the Carter and Jackson plans would extend price controls to the now-unregulated markets within gas-producing states.

The success of Jackson's proposal hinges on building a coalition of Carter administration allies and enough defectors from the ranks of past deregulation supporters to win.

"We picked up some votes," Jackson said. "We made some headway." But he said the outcome was still too close to call.

Deregulation leaders said they planned to oppose the move.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Jackson's proposal was too great a concession.

But senators, weary after their around-the-clock session, agreed unanimously to sleep on the matter and resume work today.

Byrd, calling the proposal a "workable compromise," told the Senate it was time to break the deadlock.

"We have now debated this bill for nine days," Byrd said. "I have heard the world was created in seven."

Jackson said the White House is not opposed to his move.

An administration official who watched Wednesday night's session said the White House is hopeful a House-Senate conference committee will revive the original Carter plan.

Concorde claims court victory

NEW YORK (AP) — The Concorde SST won another round today in the long court battle aimed at granting landing rights for the faster than sound plane at Kennedy Airport, but the ruling does not open the way to imminent landings by the aircraft.

The federal Court of Appeals lifted a ban on the plane at the airport. But the ruling is sure to be appealed within the 21-day period specified in the decision, thus delaying any landings.

Backers of the Anglo-French aircraft and the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates Kennedy, have vowed to appeal any adverse rulings right up to the Supreme Court.

The appeals court ruled that the Concorde would have to conform to federal noise standards, but it also said the Port Authority could adopt new standards for the plane.

Today's action, part of the 18-month-long legal conflict, upholds the finding six weeks ago of Judge Milton Pollack, who ruled that the Port Authority had dragged its feet unreasonably on setting standards for the plane.

The appeals court, in an earlier decision, had urged the Port Authority to hasten its decision on whether the Concorde would meet its noise standards.

Japan wants ransom extension

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The Japanese government agreed today to hand over $6 million and nine prisoners to ransom 146 persons held hostage by terrorists aboard a hijacked Japanese airliner at Dacca airport. But the government asked for an extension of the deadline, and one of the prisoners reportedly refused the offer of freedom.

The terrorists, who have threatened to kill their hostages one by one if their demands are not met, are from the ultraleftist Japanese Red Army. They have released five hostages, among them onetime actress Carole Wells Karabian, pregnant wife of former California Assemblyman Walter Karabian, who stayed aboard the plane.

Mrs. Karabian, 35, said that as the five hijackers commandeered the plane Wednesday one of them armed with a gun and grenade ran up the aisle yelling, "Don't move. Everybody keep your hands up. Don't look at my face."

She said the hijackers were "terribly rough" at the beginning and that during the next 24 hours did not allow the hostages to move, even to go to the toilet, and refused offers of food from Bangladesh authorities.

An airline spokesman said today that after a full day without provisions the hijackers asked that food and toilet tissue be sent to the plane.

The other freed hostages were identified by the airline as American K. Krueger, 31, who was taken ill, and a family with Indian passports — G. Verghese, 35, his wife and their one-year-old son.

The Los Angeles Times identified Krueger as Kurt Krueger of Granada Hills, Calif., and the George Vergheses as residents of Glendora, Calif.

The other Americans still aboard the plane were Karabian, banker John Gabriel of Montebello, Calif., and Gabriel's wife.

The five gunmen had given the Tokyo government until midnight tonight 7 p.m. CST to deliver the ransom money and nine "comrades" held in Japanese jails.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda announced that the money would be paid and the prisoners sent to join the hijackers.

Heat continues assault

While air conditioners keep running and winter clothes remain in storage, the heat wave in Midland continues with a possibility of another record-breaking high temperature Friday, the weatherman said.

Wednesday's high temperature of 100 degrees set two records. The previous record high was 97 degrees set in 1953. Also, it has never been this hot so late in the year before.

So far the city has had record high temperatures seven out of the last eight days. The weatherman said he doubted very much whether so many records have been broken like this before.

Skies should be fair tonight and Friday with hot afternoons. The high temperature Friday is expected to be near 100 degrees with the low tonight near 70 degrees. Winds are predicted to be south, southwesterly tonight, blowing at 5 to 10 mph.

The overnight low temperature was 69 degrees, the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

All area towns reported clear skies and somewhat cooler temperatures this morning. The towns seem to be having cooler nights, but days remain hot.

Famous-named treasurer dies

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jesse James, the cocky old man with a train robber's name who had served as state treasurer since 1941, died in a local hospital early today following a heart attack.

James would have been 73 on Oct. 10.

A hospital spokesman said death came at about 12:15 a.m.

"He was taken to the hospital last night after a fresh heart attack. He had a long history of coronary heart disease. He died of the heart attack early this morning," said his physician, Dr. Robert Anderson.

Morris Stevens, the treasury's chief clerk and James's right-hand man since 1946, said James's death came unexpectedly, despite more than a year of poor health.

"He was at the banking board yesterday afternoon, in good spirits and hale and hearty," Stevens said.

The treasurer's death gives Gov. Dolph Briscoe another top elective position to fill by appointment, pending the outcome of next year's elections. His appointee would have an incumbent's built-in advantage in a race for treasurer next year.

James himself first came to office by gubernatorial appointment when Gov. Coke Stevenson named him to replace Charles Lockhart, who resigned as treasurer in 1941. James had been Lockhart's top assistant.

Doctors amputated most of James' left leg in January because of a blocked artery, and he suffered from diabetes. After the operation, he came to the office infrequently and moved about in a wheelchair, yet he told anybody who would listen that he was running for re-election.

"I'm better than I ever have been. My guns are cocked," he said in an interview last month.

Pleased to meet you, Mr. Ah-h-h

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Mayor John Unbehagen visited with Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe and provided a courtesy car during their visit here last week.

Unbehagen received a letter Tuesday from Mrs. Briscoe, thanking the mayor for his courtesies.

The letter was addressed to Hon. R. A. Apffel, the mayor Unbehagen replaced May 12.

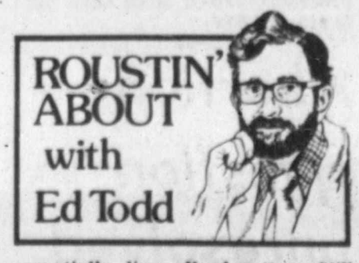
Brown touts agriculture's role



STANTON — Reagan V. Brown, Texas' agricultural commissioner, came to this sold-on-cotton town to assure the folks that he, of all people, rates agriculture next to God, country and family.

He prays for the day when farming and ranching are tops . . . among all things commercial, that is.

Fact is, at an Agriculture Appreciation Day luncheon here Wednesday, the 56-year-old commissioner likened his zeal for all things agricultural in Texas to Winston Churchill's description of the Nazi-struck British at the height of World War II.

"The will of the English people is absolute and resolute," Brown quoted the late prime minister.

So is Brown. His cause is for crops, cattle and the such. He's "roaring for agriculture." That's what he said.

Brown was speaking to a group of folks, about 200, who have been roaring in their own way for sometime now. Some were Martin County 4-Hers, and Stanton and Grady members of the Future Farmers (and homemakers) of America. Others were active farmers and ranchers and their spouses, and businessmen and merchants who essentially live off of cotton. Still others were retired, perhaps from working the land.

Brown's theme seemed to be "motivation." Motivation for a worthwhile, productive, thrilling life. A life full of the same type of zeal Brown has for agriculture. It's his "bread and butter."

But to be motivated, one needs a goal or two. And Brown began to sound like a pathfinder in search of goals for others.

"What is the most important thing in the world to you today?" he asked of the audience.

True to form, he answered his own question by quoting a soldier returning home from the Vietnam War:

"The most important thing in the world is tomorrow."

Before he got too philosophical, Brown talked about money matters, about the state's low unemployment rate, about Texas ranking No. 3 in the nation in agricultural cash receipts. "We're solvent; we're paying our bills in Texas."

But the farmers and ranchers are not justly rewarded for their vital role in providing the nation and much of the world with food and fiber, Brown said. They're "not making adequate profits."

That could disrupt their outputs. And declining agricultural production certainly would put the country on an economic slide.

"So goes agriculture goes the nation," Brown said.

Suddenly, Brown got back on his philosophical track. He'd roar for agriculture later on.

He borrowed American clergyman-essayist Henry Van Dyke's formula on "how to cope with life":

— Think clearly and without confusion.

— Love your fellow men.

— Act holy and purely.

— And trust in God.

Pretty soon, Brown returned to the concrete: boosting cotton sales.

City in 'boom condition,' Chamber president says

"Midland is in a boom condition," Midland Chamber of Commerce President Harrell Feldt said at the conclusion of a chamber board of directors luncheon Tuesday.

And during that luncheon members heard committee reports that told of Midland's rapid growth in population, construction, business enterprise and a serious labor shortage.

As a step toward ending the labor shortage, it was announced that a Jobs Fair will be held between Midland and Odessa sometime in late January.

Joe Kloesel said that the first Jobs Fair held last March was such a

Craddick warns oil industry of slumber

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

"Those of us in the oil and gas industry better wake up and participate in politics because the people in Austin can hurt us as bad or worse than those in Washington," said State Rep. Tom Craddick Wednesday.

Craddick, speaking before the Downtown Lions Club, said the House would have passed a bill regulating intrastate natural gas prices this session if the bill had gotten out of his committee.

"Everyone has got their own problems, but we have got to put them (the problems) together," Craddick said.

During his speech, Craddick also lashed out at the press on the oil and gas deregulation issue.

"I don't think the press has dealt as fairly with the oil and gas industry as they could have," Craddick said.

On the past legislative session, Craddick said the $2 billion state surplus was spent by mid-February mostly by the passage of the state highway bill.

"The state's roads and highways have gone to pot. The tax couldn't keep up with inflation," he said.

Craddick said the total budget, by the end of the regular session, totaled $15.5 billion and $1 billion more was appropriated during the special session on school finance.

"This spending has got to stop," Craddick said.

In the area of crime legislation, Craddick said some major steps were taken by allowing oral confessions to be used in court and by not allowing probation for crimes committed with a gun.

Craddick said the legislature also set up an adult probation program and created 48 new district courts.

"Midland got a court and a half with the establishment of a new district court and the changing of the family relations court to a district court," Craddick said.

He said the legislature also combined three water agencies into one agency, thereby saving $4.5 million in the first appropriation. "After the water agency staff is cut back, we will save a total of $7 million," he said.

"Someone asked me how we could combine the agencies because of the prima donnas in them," he said. "It was easy. We got rid of all the prima donnas."

Craddick said he also introduced a "natural resources compact" bill that would allow Texas and the four surrounding states to share needed resources.

According to Craddick, if the compact is approved by all the states, it would allow Texas to trade its natural gas for other states' water.

Craddick said the coal slurry pipeline was passed because it was decided railroads could not transport the amount of coal needed to supply the state's energy needs.

"It would take 100 railroad cars a day to supply the energy needs of San Antonio," he said. The pipeline bill was passed even though it called for the right of eminent domain, he added.

Area educators to hear about student program

Charles Caruson, director of the Twin City Institute for Talented Youth in Minneapolis-St. Paul, is in Midland today to consult with area educators and parents on the feasibility of creating a program for talented students in the Permian Basin.

Caruson said the summer program would be a supplement to, rather than a substitute for, a student's September to May classroom work.

The Twin City program is designed for junior high and high school students, Caruson said, with each one who is accepted taking one course during the six and a half to seven week session. The courses cover all disciplines with individual classes ranging in size from 15 to 200 students.

Caruson said that often-misleading test scores are avoided as a criterion for eligibility. Students who wish to participate must have their parents' permission and be recommended by a school counselor or teacher.

Applications are reviewed by the Institute's Board on the basis of maintaining an equitable division by city and sex and on past attendance at the Institute and motivation. Approximately 1,000 are chosen to participate.

In recent years, the Institute has experimented with admitting approximately 10 per cent who have exhibited less than outstanding performance or motivation in their schoolwork, and some encouraging results have been seen, Caruson said.

Caruson's schedule today includes a 9 a.m. meeting with area educators, a noon news conference in the Midland school district Administration Building Board Room, a 2 p.m. open house for interested citizens in the Faculty Dining room at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and a 7 p.m. reception.

Friday Caruson will meet at 10 a.m. with Midland women's groups.

Midlanders serving on the steering committee to establish a program for talented youth include Mr. and Mrs. Pat Baskin, Mrs. Jim Conine, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cowan, Mrs. James Fitz-Gerald III, J. M. Fullinwider, Mrs. Redfern Glenn, David Grimes, The Rev. William K. Hedrick, Mrs. Sanford Hodge, Dr. Al Langford, Mrs. Richard Lamphere, Dr. James Mailey, Donald O'Shaughnessy, The Rev. P. D. City in 'boom condition,' Chamber president says success that a second one had been planned for some time. The only question was when to have it.

Chamber member Cliff Hogue told board members that Midland has gained 2,000 persons since the start of the year. Eighty-nine families have moved into Midland this month alone, Hogue said.

As people have come into the area, new residences have gone up to accommodate them.

Hogue said 451 permits have been issued for residences since the start of the year and that their value exceeds $20 million.

The average value of the new dwellings is $45,000, but Hogue said that this figure does not include property costs, which when added, brings the average cost per new home in Midland to between $55,000 and $60,000.

Chamber President Feldt stressed the importance of providing housing in Midland in the $20,000 to $30,000 range if the city is to attract the skilled labor it needs.

Kloesel said that to help develop and train the labor in the Midland area, the chamber was preparing to determine just what skills were needed in the area. This survey could be used by the Midland Independent School District to plan courses for these jobs, he added.

Durward Wright told chamber members that growth in Midland was not confined to the city limits. Population figures for the county have jumped considerably, Wright said, adding that in 1970 there were between 4,000 and 5,000 county residents and now there are between 10,000 and 15,000.

John Ingram of the chamber transportation committee said that an agreement was in the negotiation stages between the committee and General Motors to do a survey of Midland's transportation needs.

Compressor Systems Inc. of Midland was awarded a Governor's Industrial Expansion Citation for 1976.

W. H. "Bill" Collyns, past president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, made the presentation to company president Johnny Warren.

The company increased its employment from 75 persons in 1975 to 130 in 1976, increased its payroll from $937,867 to $1,541,757, increased investment in new plant facilities and equipment from $109,400 to $570,000 and expanded the plant from 21,000 square feet to 45,000 square feet.

The award was made by Gov. Dolph Briscoe "in recognition of a significant contribution to the economy of the State of Texas through industrial expansion for the year 1976."

Brown touts agriculture

That's Martin County's main interest in agriculture.

"We've got to tell about cotton and how great it is," said Brown, who grew up on a farm in East Texas.

He mentioned the need for a "long-range agricultural program" that doesn't change "every time the President changes." Too, he said, the nation needs to set a "high priority for agriculture."

"You," he told the agriculturists, "are the hope of America today." The country's economic climate could be enhanced by the increased export of agricultural products.

And right here in Stanton, the economy could be put into "high cotton" if more and more people would buy cotton products.

But that takes a good selling job, and "We haven't learned to sell," Brown said. That was about as close as Brown came in admonishing the farmers for not "pushing" their product in the marketplaces.

Cotton producers seem to think that their responsibility ends at the gin. It shouldn't.

"When that lady reaches for that dress (at the clothiers), that's the most important part of agriculture . . . selling, marketing," Brown said.

Earlier in his speech, after he had loosened up the audience with a series of jokes and anecdotes, Brown commented on the style show that came between the barbecue luncheon and his talk.

The show, narrated by Marsha Todd, featured approximately 40 youngsters and teenagers modeling outfits made of 100 per cent cotton and some blends.

"That's the name of the game — selling cotton," Brown said.

His talk was the closing feature of the day, which started off with a three-bus tour of three farms south of Stanton.

Close to a 100 folks made the tour, sponsored by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce and conducted by Alvin Riddle, the conservationist for the Mustang Soil and Water Conservation District.

The tour took in a "stump picker" (land clearing) demonstration on the Rufus Tom farm; a rock-picking demonstration on the Juil Reid cotton farm, and a cotton-variety demonstration on the Lee Graves cotton farm.

This year, Martin County has about 330,000 acres in cultivation, Riddle noted. It's mostly cotton. "If we've got 10,000 acres of milo, we'll be lucky," he said midway in the morning tour.

"We've had good crops for the last seven, eight years," Riddle said. "Really have."

That should please Brown, who missed out on the farm tour.

Of course, after the planting, picking and baling comes the marketing — the selling. And like the commissioner said, "That's the name of the game."

Mennonite situation considered

WASHINGTON — The situation of several hundred Mennonites living near Seminole in West Texas is being investigated by the White House and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

U.S. Rep. George Mahon has been working on finding a way for the group to stay, also.

The Mennonites have until Saturday to leave the country or face deportation hearings, but the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has said it probably will grant extensions while the group seeks work permits that would allow members to stay in this country.

See story page 12D

The members of the religious sect came to the U.S. on temporary visas, many of which have expired. They are claiming that leaving now would cause extreme hardship because of money invested in land and equipment and crops which are close to maturity.

President Jimmy Carter has designated an aide to investigate the situation and report back to him. An aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen was in Seminole Wednesday and today to check into the situation.

Bentsen said he will introduce a special bill in Congress to let the Mennonites stay if administrative procedures which would allow them to are not found.

Abortion question unresolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the government's largest agencies could run out of money this weekend unless the House and Senate resolve their differences over paying for abortions with federal funds.

A conference committee set a meeting today after postponing Wednesday's session when a House Appropriations Committee meeting tied up some members.

Unless a compromise is approved by both houses, the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare would run out of money at midnight Friday, the last day of the fiscal year.

A congressional resolution would then be needed for payrolls to be met.

Fire damages bales of cotton

LAMESA—A rapidly spreading fire caused an estimated $50,000 damage to approximately 280 bales of cotton at the Lamesa compress Tuesday afternoon.

The blaze, which erupted on the compress grounds, spread at an "unbelievable rate" through several rows of recently sampled bales, said firemen at the scene.

Fire Marshal Lee Thompson estimated between 125,000 and 150,000 gallons of water were used to extinguish the fire.

Murder, missing gems leave district cold

NEW YORK (AP) — Murder and the disappearance of up to $1 million in gems has left Manhattan's bustling diamond district uneasy as police seek the killer of a 25-year-old gem broker.

Detectives sifted evidence taken from the tiny office of diamond cutter Shlomo Tal, 31, who led police to Pinchos Jaroslawicz' body on Wednesday. Tal recounted a bizarre tale of robbery, kidnap and murder by two shadowy male intruders.

Tal, who has not been charged, was being held as a material witness in the case, and was set to appear today at a hearing in state Supreme Court, New York's trial court.

The material witness status enabled authorities to keep the solidly-built, shaggy-haired Tal available for further questioning without charging him with any part in the crime.

Steven Hyman, one of Tal's two attorneys, said his client was cooperating with police, but was not happy that Tal was being held as a material witness.

Tal, described as a high-living business acquaintance of the slain man, had been missing for three days. He told police that two men entered his office Sept. 20 and beat Jaroslawicz, 25, to death.

He said he continued doing business for five days while Jaroslawicz' body lay stuffed in plastic bags in the office. Tal said he was afraid "for his life and the safety of his wife and children."

Tal said he later was abducted by the same men, who forced him to drive them around for three days. He said he was drugged by the men and left in his car, where he was found Wednesday with about $30,000 in jewels under the car's front seat.

Authorities said Jaroslawicz had been beaten and suffocated.

Jaroslawicz' slaying came as a shock to the tight little world of diamond dealing.

An estimated 80 per cent of the U.S. diamond trade takes place on one block of West 47th Street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues. One source said the sale in gems may go as high as $400 million a day.

Egypt's Sadat badmouths Soviets

The Los Angeles Times

CAIRO — President Anwar Sadat blamed the Soviet Union Wednesday for most of Egypt's recent problems, including Christian-Moslem religious strife. He also declared a 10-year "grace" period on further payments of more than $4 billion in military debt owed to Moscow.

Sadat added that since the Soviet government has refused to respond to Egyptian requests for a rescheduling of an estimated additional $2 billion in nonmilitary debt, Egypt plans unilaterally to stretch further payments according to its own schedule.

During a rambling two-hour speech marking the seventh anniversary of the death of his predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, Sadat touched on many of Egypt's staggering economic, social, political and religious problems and laid most of them to "a plot inspired from abroad." He left no doubt that he meant Moscow.

"They planned explosions in mosques and churches to cause a rift in the country," he said, asserting that the government had documents to prove it. For the first time, he publicly acknowledged that there have been incidents of religious violence during the past month in the areas of Fayoum and Assiut, south of Cairo.

Reports from the two areas of the burning by Moslems of three Coptic Christian churches and a Protestant church previously had gone unmentioned by the Egyptian media.

The president blamed "a foreign capital of atheist principles," which, in a later reference, he identified as Moscow.

"They are using religion to justify assassination and terrorism," he said, in an apparent reference to the kidnaping-murder of a former government religious affairs minister in July by a fanatic Moslem terrorist group.

Previously, the Sadat government had suggested that Libya rather than Moscow was behind the religious terrorists.

Sadat's nationally televised speech was delivered in an almost avuncular tone to government and political leaders in Cairo. It also linked the food riots of last January, criticism of Egypt's previously lagging open door policy to Western investment, and domestic political critics of Egypt's democratic experiment to what he painted as a Soviet grand design to divide the nation.

Ridiculing criticism of Egyptian democracy by the official Soviet press agency Tass, he said, "what kind of democracy are they speaking of? The dictatorship of one party." Heatedly citing reports of arbitrary arrests in the Soviet Union, Siberian concentration camps and rigid travel restrictions on Soviet citizens, he asked, "is this the kind of democracy they want us to have?"

Smith reversal on plan raises eyebrows

The Washington Post

LUSAKA, Zambia — In a dramatic reversal of attitude, Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith Wednesday announced that he was inviting Britain and the United Nations to send representatives to Salisbury for further talks on the British-American plan for a settlement of the 12-year-old Rhodesian dispute.

The statement apparently was timed to coincide with a meeting of the Security Council in New York at which the British and U.S. governments formally requested the appointment of a special U.N. representative to deal with the thorny problem of transferring power from the 270,000 whites to the more than 6 million blacks.

The British already have named Field Marhsal Lord Carver as resident commissioner designate in charge of running a transitional administration prior to the establishment of black majority rule in Rhodesia.

The immediate reaction here to Smith's unexpected invitation for Lord Carver and a special U.N. representative to come visit Rhodesia was that he was slowly bowing to mounting South African and international pressure for the beseiged white minority government to yield to the British-American plan.

However, observers here also felt that Smith also was playing for time, as he so often has in the past, in the hope that some new development will spare his government from being forced to hand over.

In addition, he appears to be anxious to avoid being blamed for the failure of the plan and calculating that the African nationalists will refuse it anyway.

A Rhodesian government spokesman indicated Wednesday that the main interest of the Rhodesians in further talks at this stage was to secure a cease fire in the guerrilla war.

The naming of a special U.N. representative would represent the first step in the involvement of the world body in backing the British-run transition administration that is supposed to arrange for the election of a black majority government.

Israelis suggest America wants peace plan blurred

The Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM — Israeli officials hinted Wednesday that the United States took issue with Israel's approval of a purported American plan for Geneva peace talks because Israel made public the details of the plan.

"The Americans preferred to have the plan blurred, so as to make it more acceptable to the Arabs," a well-placed Israeli journalist said.

Privately, government officials agreed with him.

Meanwhile, there was some question about what the proposal contained in the first place.

The Israeli cabinet had announced Sunday that it had approved an American compromise proposal. The announcement said the plan calls for a single pan-Arab delegation at the opening of a peace conference, followed by talks between Israel and the individual Arab countries, and the inclusion of Palestinians — but not known members of the Palestine Liberation Organization — in Jordan's delegation.

On Monday Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said that the Israeli description of the U.S. proposal was not altogether accurate.

"Some of those conditions do not accurately reflect our position," Vance told a news conference.

A statement issued Monday by the State Department in Washington expressed satisfaction that Israel "had accepted the unified Arab delegation idea," but added that there had been no agreement between the parties on the conditions described in press reports."

In Jerusalem, an Israeli official said Wednesday, "Our cabinet felt it was approving the American plan for a Geneva conference."

In the version of the plan made public by Israel following cabinet approval of the plan Sunday, the provision against PLO attendance was in the body of the plan, not tacked on to it as a condition.

This prompted the obvious question: Had Israel changed the wording of the plan proposed by the United States, inserting the PLO phrase on its own?

Ethiopian claim false

JIJIGA, Ethiopia (AP) — Foreign correspondents who visited this strategic town in the Ogaden region found Somalia-backed rebels in firm control of it despite the Ethiopian military junta's claim that it was still held by the government.

The Western Somali Liberation Front (WSLF) captured Jijiga, on the northern side of the Ogaden desert, on Aug. 27 after a two-week battle in which they claimed 12,000 Ethiopian soldiers were killed, captured or wounded.

The rebels reported that in the month since they captured Jijiga, their forces have advanced 22 miles to the west and are now 23 miles from the walled city of Harar, the capital of Harar province and their next major target. They said when they capture Harar, Diredawa and Awash, all in the northern Ogaden, they will complete their conquest of the territory in eastern Ethiopia which Somalia claims as part of Greater Somalia.

Jijiga, at the gateway to the Ethiopian central highlands, is 250 miles from Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital.

During their 24-hour stay, the six correspondents and two television crews saw destroyed Ethiopian army forts, millions of dollars worth of abandoned military equipment and the decomposing bodies of nine Ethiopian soldiers.

At an army camp on the outskirts, the ground was littered with mortar casings, barracks were riddled with bullet holes and five American-made M41 tanks had been left behind.

Hillside ammunition dumps of the 3rd Ethiopian Tank Battalion were stacked chest-high with ammunition.

Family Fair time

There's something spectacular in the field of entertainment going on in the Tall City of Midland most of the time, particularly on weekends.

And the upcoming weekend most certainly is no exception.

Yes sir, the 29th annual St. Ann's Family Fair is scheduled Saturday on the grounds of St. Ann's School, with the big attraction's traditional carnival occupying a vacant area immediately west of the school grounds.

St. Ann's Family Fair, with its county fair and carnival atmosphere, has come to be recognized as one of the really outstanding entertainment events of the season here. It attracts thousands of persons from Midland and vicinity and all of them always appear to have a great and fun-filled time. In fact, it is amazing how many men, women and children always attend the function, rain or shine, cold or hot. They are there regardless.

The big event actually is a community-wide entertainment, the nearest thing we have to an old-fashion county fair. Everybody participates and everyone has a good time.

The Fair is the major fund-raising project of the year in St. Ann's Catholic parish. It involves virtually all members of the parish, many of whom have been working feverishly (100-degree weather) the last week in getting the grounds in top shape, erecting booths and display facilities, installing lights and attending to scores of other chores.

Proceeds from the fair go to fund various programs and projects of the parish, including St. Ann's School.

The fair this year will feature an expanded display of arts and crafts. The food booths, it is said, will be stocked with delicious foods of all kinds, including candy, cookies, cakes, pies and bread.

The thrilling carnival rides, of course, will get their share of the attention.

St. Ann's Family Fair will operate from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday at St. Ann's School. There is no admission charge and everyone is invited.

If you're looking for fun Saturday — just head west on Texas or Illinois streets from downtown. You can't miss it. See you there!

Knock! Knock!

Greg Schneiders, White House projects director, is pushing the idea of having volunteer youth going around like meter readers, inspecting American homes for their energy efficiency. It would be called the President's Youth Energy Program, and apparently Mr. Schneiders expects the criticism that the program smacks of something a certain German fuhrer would have done. Actually Mr. Schneiders expects too much, for with a little more publicity America will ache with laughter over the unrealism of the whole idea.

Can you imagine such a program, whereby young folks start outside a house, notebook in hand, checking off what's energy-right or wrong with the premises, and then knock on the door to advise the occupant of his "energy" score? And then "offer" to go through the house to check off what's right-wrong on the inside?

Average Americans, who know human nature much better than the Carter White House apparently does, will smile at the difficulties the program would run into. Many residents, whose doors too often have been visited by fly-by-night salesmen, would be suspicious of the explanation that "I'm really a member of the President's Youth Energy Program."

Not to dampen Mr. Schneiders' inventiveness, understand. Young people often need something to do, and the need to conserve energy is palpable. But wed together the two ideas do little more than to provoke a good roar of laughter.

GHASTLY BLUNDER:

Soviets are backing a loser in Africa

By GWYNNE DYER
Copley News Service

The Russians have made a ghastly blunder in the Horn of Africa, and it is now too late to retrieve the situation. The war between Ethiopia and Somalia has begun and the Soviet Union is firmly committed to the side that will lose.

Only six months ago Moscow was ally and exclusive arms supplier to Marxist Somalia, which it had helped to build black Africa's best-equipped armed forces over the last decade. It had excellent naval and air facilities in Somalia astride the world's main oil route.

The Soviet Union has thrown all that away at the very last moment, in order to tie itself to the incompetent, bloodstained "Marxist" soldiers ruling collapsing Ethiopia. The ramshackle Ethiopian empire, with every one of its minority populations in open revolt, is not likely to last out the year. When the dust clears the Soviet position in the Horn of Africa will probably lie buried beneath the debris.

Ninety per cent of Eritrea, the only coastal province of Ethiopia, is now in the hands of Arab-backed rebels. Since the middle of June guerrillas of the Western-Somali Liberation Front, backed by "volunteers" from the Somali army, have poured into the eastern region of Ogaden, which makes up fully a third of Ethiopia.

Whatever possessed the Russians to switch sides?

The answer is simple greed and ignorance. Following the latest factional massacre within the Ethiopian military regime in February, a group of confused Marxist soldiers came to power. They threw out Ethiopia's long-standing American ally, and asked the Socialist camp for military aid instead.

Moscow could not resist the temptation. It started sending Ethiopia arms, and floated the idea of a Marxist federation of all the countries of the Horn to reconcile Somalia to this military aid to its enemy.

You might as well try to federate North and South Korea. The Somalis turned to the conservative Arab countries for help (Saudi Arabia was already offering Somalia $400 million late last year if it would throw the Russians out), and then to China and the West.

In June, Somalia's President Siad Barre visited Saudi Arabia, while his vice president went to Peking to take up a Chinese offer of spare parts for Mogadishu's Russian-built weapons. Recently, the United States and Britain also made an offer of arms to Somalia, which was instantly accepted.

Thus assured of a supply of arms and aid, Somalia moved into the Ogaden.

The only remaining Soviet option is to put in large numbers of Cuban combat troops (if Castro will agree, which he may not, having 15,000 tied down in the continuing Angolan war already) or even Warsaw Pact troops. If they should do that, warned Barre, the war in the Horn would be to the Russians "what Vietnam was to the Americans."

There is, of course, a deliberate American-Arab strategy to maneuver the Russians out of the Horn of Africa — as witness, for example, the recent promise of U.S. arms aid to Sudan, Ethiopia's hostile Arab neighbor to the west. (Ironically, because of the Arab involvement against Ethiopia, Israeli advisers are working alongside Cubans and Russians to train the Ethiopian army.)

The Arab-American strategy is very likely to work. The Russians may well end up losing their Somali bases without gaining anything else in return.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

More on Nicaragua's dictator

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Of all the dictators Uncle Sam has embraced, he has hugged no one more tightly to his bosom than Nicaragua's Anastasio Somoma. The United States has showered blessings upon him to ensure, presumably, that Nicaragua's military might will remain safely on the U.S. side.

Somoza has one of the world's most decorated chests, adorned with medals he and his family have bestowed upon him. We are now presenting him with a new award to add to his collection.

We have decided after a five-month investigation of his qualifications to give Somoza our Idi Amin award. For Somoza, like the madcap Ugandan strongman, is a gluttonous caricature of a dictator.

Somoza has stuffed his bank accounts with money and his belly with food and booze. Much of the money has come, at least indirectly, from the U.S. taxpayers. The dictator has developed dozens of ways to divert economic aid, intended for his impoverished people, into his own pockets.

The Pentagon heavily subsidizes his small military force. And the Central Intelligence Agency left behind in Nicaragua about $1 million worth of arms from the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion, which had been launched against Cuba from Somoza's shores.

The dictator uses his national guard, which he maintains largely at U.S. expense, to protect himself and to control his people. He is obsessed with the fear that he, like his dictator father, will be bumped off.

His urban ranch, El Retiro, is barricaded and patrolled by guards. Several tanks stand by to repel any invading force. When he goes out for dinner, his own mess steward prepares his food beforehand and totes it along in insulated containers.

Somoza also employs a decoy, as beer-bellied as himself, to lead astray any assassins who might be laying for him. A few minutes before Somoza departs, the decoy climbs into an armored limousine just like the dictator's and takes off in the wrong direction.

Any area Somoza visits is literally placed under military siege several hours before his arrival. Two or three acres may be cleared of traffic to make room for the potentate and all entrances or exits are manned by guards.

Then Big Daddy's caravan arrives. He is accompanied by 30 or 40 aides, including the general in charge of national security and several fierce colonels. One of them, Col. Victorino Lara, always armed with a .44-calibre pistol and a ferocious frown, is the epitome of a dictator's lackey.

Arrayed around the presidential party in concentric circles are some 200 bodyguards, armed with Belgian automatics. An outer ring is under military command. The second ring, carrying knives in addition to guns, is under the command of the intelligence service.

An inner ring of five or six handpicked goons, many of whom were hardened criminals, completely surround and shield Somoza. When he moves, they all move en masse. Watching them shuffle along, said one witness, "is a ludicrous sight."

Somoza's personal goons accompany him wherever he goes. At fancy functions, they try to remain inconspicuous and pass themselves off as guests. But they are so unkempt and so patently predictable that they are rarely successful.

At one party hosted by the U.S. ambassador, the wife of a diplomat strolled to a window and leaned against a drapery. She detected a human form behind it and pulled the drapery aside to expose a sheepishly smiling Somoza goon.

Somoza's speeches to his countrymen are delivered from the safety of an enormous protective contraption known by them as "the banera," the bathtub, or "la pecera," the fishtank.

It is a three-sided structure constructed of steel plates covered with plywood. It is so massive that it takes three Mercedes Benz trucks to haul it around and a crew of 20 to erect it for each occasion.

Inside the shed, a steel-plated podium is mounted. This is protected, in turn, by a booth, which is erected around the podium. The booth — known derisively as the "tachia," or ticketbooth — is also steel-plated up to the chest level. Above the steel is bulletproof glass so thick it distorts Somoza's features.

A typical public appearance goes like this: Hours before the great man arrives, the protective shed and bulletproof booth are erected. Then an additional fence is thrown up around the entire structure.

Paid cheerleaders are trucked in to shout huzzas in case the regular audience is unresponsive. Then the presidential caravan roars up. Somoza ducks out of his armoured car, dashes through the fence into the steel shed and settles into the bulletproof booth. Then he dryly reads his prepared speech into a microphone. At appropriate intervals, the paid cheerleaders jump up and yell: "Viva Somoza! Viva Somoza!"

He pauses benevolently while his subjects hail him. Then he begins to read again. He apparently is unaware that most of his listeners are snickering at his distorted image — the fragmented fat face and bulging eyeballs that peer at them through the thick bulletproof glass.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Carter's Panama treaty trouble revealed

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Word is quietly being dropped in the Senate cloakroom with grim implications for President Carter: the strong prospect of no action until after the 1978 election on the treaties turning the Panama Canal over to the Republic of Panama.

The possibility of so deadly a delay signals a faltering of the White House "full-court press" to sell the treaty to a stubborn Senate and country. Intense Republican opposition is rubbing off on the two most prestigious Republican endorsers of the treaties — Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger. Former President Ford has decided he will not testify for the treaty.

In the Senate's own subtle way, the word is spreading that the treaties are more vulnerable today than on Sept. 7 when they were signed at the Pan-American Union Building. That theatrical signing ceremony apparently failed in its purpose: to galvanize national attention and reverse the anti-treaty tide helped along by well-organized conservative forces.

Putting off a Senate vote would please most Senators, particularly those up for reelection next year and most especially Senate minority leader Howard Baker. While Baker is suspected of inclining toward approval, that would not help his 1978 campaign for reelection in Tennessee, nor his probable 1980 campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Evans Novak

Indeed, if Senate action on the treaties does not come before the 1978 election, the matter could very likely be shelved until after the 1980 presidential election. That would raise serious questions in Panama and Latin America about U.S. intentions, besides undermining Jimmy Carter's authority throughout the world.

Senate majority leader Byrd, who is scrupulously keeping his own counsel, says nothing out loud to dash President Carter's hopes for Senate approval early next year. Actually Byrd could well end up supporting the treaties. But he is largely responsible for the deepening perception in the Senate cloakrooms of a long, long wait.

Meanwhile, Republican sentiment building against the treaties has begun to engulf Ford, whose widely-advertised presence as Mr. Carter's houseguest for the signing ceremonies angered some party colleagues. Partly as a result of that anger, the former President has confidentially informed Sen. John Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that he will mot be able to testify in favor of the treaties.

Ford's regrets constituted one setback to the administration. Another is looming in the person of Dr. Kissinger. Senators have learned that Kissinger is troubled about the treaties and wants a change spelling out U.S. rights to intervene militarily if the canal's neutrality is threatened. Neither Kissinger nor Ford, moreover, is happy that the U.S. signed away rights to build a future sea-level canal unless Panama itself approves.

Underlying these adversities is the Senate's guileful ways in using the calendar to duck difficult political issues. Sparkman has scheduled a maximum three weeks of hearings, ending Oct. 14 shortly before Congress quits for the year. There will be no hearings during the recess.

Given the emotional politics surrounding the canal issue, hearings are certain to be resumed next year. But Congress now plans an unusually late return on Jan. 17, and almost all of February is given over to election-year campaigning.

Intimates of the starkly realistic Byrd say he doubts whether the treaties can even get to the floor before late March or early April at best. That could well delay a vote until summer, on the eve of the congressional election campaign. Assuming no sudden national swing behind the treaties, Byrd by then will be under heavy pressure not to bring the treaties up at all.

At that point, unless the majority leader is certain of the required two-thirds vote, he would be in position to set the treaties aside — claiming more important work requires the Senate's attention.

This prospect signifies that Mr. Carter has failed to seize the initiative on the treaties. Furthermore, the closer the issue moves to next year's election, the harder it will be for Senators to run against the anti-treaty tide. The newly troubled President must now confront the possible death of the treaties through inaction, with all that implies for the presidential leadership of Jimmy Carter.

Delay of arraignment granted

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Stuntman Evel Knievel, charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the baseball bat attack on a television executive, Wednesday won a two-weeks' delay of his arraignment in municipal court.

Judge Frances Rothschild granted a motion for a delay asked by Knievel's new attorney Paul Caruso of Beverly Hills, who said he had not had time to study the complaint.

Judge Rothschild reset Knievel's arraignment for Oct. 12.

Knievel was accompanied to court by his wife, Linda, dressed entirely in black. Knievel, in contrast wore a solid white travel suit with bald eagles embroidered on the back of the jacket and on the front of each pant leg at shin level.

He was charged a week ago with slugging Sheldon Saltman, 46, with a baseball bat near the commissary at 20th Century Fox Studios. He said later he was angered by a recently published book which Saltman wrote about him.

Still later, through his agent, Knievel said he stood behind what he did "and that's the way it is."

Saltman, who suffered a broken arm and wrist, is still hospitalized.

Knievel declined to make a statement to reporters following the brief court proceeding Wednesday.

President signing farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is signing an $11-billion farm bill that boosts grain farmers' incomes, revamps the federal food stamp program and expands agricultural research.

While the bill's food stamp and price support sections will be costly to the taxpayers, experts say the measure's immediate effect on prices at the supermarket will be minimal.

The President planned to sign the bill today. It will renew and revise nearly every statute governing Agriculture Department programs.

Carter's signature marks the end of almost three years' work by Congress and two administrations to prepare the bill, which will be in effect for the next four years.

The bill tightens eligibility requirements for families with incomes above the official poverty level, while increasing aid to families with incomes under the poverty level.

The $11 billion estimated annual price tag on the bill is about $2 billion more than Carter said he wanted to spend, but he said the bill will lead toward stability for the farm economy and farm programs.

Price support sections of the bill, in which the government guarantees minimum prices farmers can get for their crops, will cost up to $4.4 billion a year and the food stamp program will cost $5.6 billion annually, the administration says.

The House completed congressional action on the compromise version of the bill Sept. 16. The Senate approved it Sept. 9.

Actual spending on crop-related programs depends primarily on the weather in this country and in other major crop-exporting nations.

Favorable growing weather, bumper harvests and slow foreign demand for U.S. grains would keep prices low, prompting higher government payments to help farm income keep pace with production costs.

The farm bill will provide a record $1.2 billion in such payments for wheat farmers, who have harvested a surplus so far this year of 1.1 billion bushels.

Under the bill, average food stamp benefits are not expected to be changed substantially. Presently, recipients receive on the average 81 cents per day in additional food buying power.

But about 340,000 of the roughly 5.1 million families now receiving food stamps each month are expected to be cut from the rolls. New rules requiring unemployed recipients to seek jobs have been added.

The bill authorizes at least $1.27 billion in new and expanded research programs, with the emphasis on solar energy and nutrition.

The Food for Peace foreign-aid program is extended for the four year period at roughly the same spending level of about $2 billion a year.

Vote on neutron bomb postponed

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — After an often emotional debate, the House Wednesday night adjourned without taking a vote on an amendment that would delete funds for all neutron weapons.

Offered by Rep. Ted Weiss (D-N.Y.), it would deny such funds for the fiscal 1978 Energy Research and Development Administration authorization bill. Shortly after debate began, one speaker after another attacked the idea of the neutron weapon and nuclear war. But proponents of the neutron program remained silent, confident they had the votes to defeat the Weiss amendment.

The most heated exchanges featured liberal Democrats against liberal Democrats.

Rep. Bob Carr (D-Mich.) who frequently opposes Pentagon programs this time the neutron weapons proposal. At one point he was being questioned by three Democratic colleagues at once.

"I haven't had so many liberal friends talking to me in a long time," Carr said.

"I hope you cherish it," Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman (D-N.Y.) shot back, "because it might not be repeated for a long time."

Carr at one point told his colleagues, "You're misinformed (about neutron weapons) because a lot of information was available to you only through newspapers ...and those accounts have been inaccurate." Carr declared the proposed weapons would replace other tactical nuclear weapons that he said were more destructive.

Rep. Ronald Dellums (D-Calif.) made the most emotional plea that saying loudly "Nuclear war is unthinkable." He said that the decision to go on with Neutron weapons was inevitable and that "in defeat (of the amendment) we are running headlong to meet our destiny to destroy ourselves."

Neutron weapons, Dellums said, make nuclear war "thinkable, acceptable, possible and," with his voice rising, "ultimately inevitable. Thinking like that goes into the building of this insane weapon."

Rep. Patricia Schroeder (D-Colo.) said that the neutron weapons "have a great potential in blurring the bright light between nuclear and conventional weapons." She added that those who term it a "clean weapon worry me a lot. Cleaner compared to what?" she asked. "Compared to conventional weapons it's not clean at all."

The main defense for the weapon came from Rep. William L. Dickinson (R-Ala.), a ranking GOP member of the House Armed Services Committee. Dickinson declared the neutron weapons are "something that will inhibit the Russians ...they would permit nuclear coverage of 60 per cent more area (in Europe) than can be used by the regular Lance nuclear warhead which has a larger kill area of blast heat and fire." At one point Dickinson said the neutron weapons were needed because the U.S. has no capability to counter Russian and Warsaw Pact gas warfare capabilities.

Park accused of gaining control of bank illegally

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The U.S. government charged Wednesday that Korean businessman Tongsun Park and a top lieutenant to controversial Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon had illegally gained secret control of a national bank here two years ago.

In a civil complaint filed in federal court, the Securities and Exchange Commission said Park and Pak Bo Hi, Moon's chief aide, had violated anti-fraud provisions of U.S. securities laws. Park, Pak and their associates concealed the fact that they owned most of the stock in Diplomat National Bank, the SEC said.

The SEC action climaxed one of three inquiries into the bank's operations. The Federal Reserve Board and a House International Relations subcommittee headed by Rep. Donald M. Fraser (D-Minn.) still are investigating the institution, which once was dominated by Korean money.

Fraser's subcommittee, which also is investigating Moon's affairs, is seeking to determine if the bank's organizers were acting on instructions of the South Korean government.

Meanwhile, in a related development, a Republican member of the House Ethics Committee charged that his panel's inquiry into the Korean influence-buying case was too slow-moving and "unduly narrow."

The committee member, New York Rep. Bruce F. Caputo, said special counsel Leon Jaworski was partly to blame because he was "not spending much time in Washington and not managing the investigation on a day-to-day basis."

Caputo said Jaworski, who regularly visits the capital but lives in Houston, was "lending his reputation but not his time, his energy and his experience."

Caputo told reporters in his office that the committee staff, with Jaworski's approval, had denied him access to certain investigative material, including files obtained from the Central Intelligence Agency.

He said the staff had cited a committee rule saying a member had to demonstrate a "need to know."

"I need to know that this is a full and fair investigation," Caputo said, adding that the panel seemed to be investigating former members of Congress rather than incumbent congressmen.

Caputa said probing present congressmen was "an embarrassing and difficult task that committee members understandably tend to shirk from."

Jaworski, a former Watergate special prosecutor, said Caputo's remarks were untrue but declined to make a point-by-point rebuttal.

"I regret that Mr. Caputo, whether due to ignorance of the facts or to seeking self-serving publicity, has made statements that are totally without foundation," Jaworski said.

"In our work, which is proceeding objectively and is time consuming, we will not be diverted by idle discourse with Mr. Caputo."

The SEC's action against Park was taken a month after a federal grand jury charged that he had given illegal campaign contributions or other gifts to at least 24 present and former members of Congress.

Park, now living in Seoul, has refused to return to the United States.

The SEC's complaint also was directed against Charles C. Kim, one of the bank's organizers and its chairman until last April, and Spencer E. Robbins, chief officer of Park's Washington-based Pacific Development, Inc.

Kim and the bank consented to an order before U.S. Dist. Court Judge John H. Pratt that barred them from further violating the law but did not require them to admit guilt.

It was understood that Park, Pak and Robbins would agree to a similar "consent decree" Thursday.

Woman to be tried in Texas

LOS ANGELES (AP) —A 44-year-old Van Nuys woman accused of unlawfully imprisoning 12 mentally deficient Californians in Texas has waived extradition and is to go to that state for trial.

Attorneys for Lillian Gobert say she has decided not to contest her transport to Texas on 12 counts of false imprisonment, it was reported Thursday.

Tom Laughlin, creator and star of the "Billy Jack" movies, pauses to sign autographs for young fans outside a theater where his latest film is playing.

Laughlin fiercely independent

By BILL HAGEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The introduction was something of a surprise, perhaps even a let down.

Tom Laughlin had answered the knock on the door of his hotel in mundane fashion. No grunts of a karate expert in action. No bare foot splintering the door. No withering glare. Just a smile, a hello and a handshake, firm but hardly bone-crushing.

This the volatile Laughlin, creator and star of "Billy Jack" movies? The moviemaker to whom violence is as natural as a left hook?

The man who at various times, or even simultaneously, has been referred to as a satyr and a transvestite?

"In all the things that have been written about me," he said, "nothing has ever made me sound human."

It was a statement, not a complaint. Laughlin, like the character he created, is fiercely independent. He took on the Hollywood establishment, the major studios. Like Rocky, he may not win but it's a safe bet he will go the distance. He has lost a few rounds, but he is still ahead on points.

There is no aspect of movie work in which Laughlin is not involved, from writing to distribution, marketing research to promotion.

"Born Losers" was Laughlin's debut as writer, director, star.

It was precursor of Billy Jack, but it was not the real thing. It was made for a studio that linked it to Laughlin's Indian hero in rereleasing it. It was his last effort for a studio.

It is Laughlin's lot that he is never out from under. Anything that has to do with his work is eventually brought to his attention. The pressure is relentless, as are the demands on his time.

Laughlin has taken his hero from a rebel who thought violence could solve any problem to a concerned citizen who is willing to fight injustice within the guidelines of "the establishment". In "Billy Jack Goes to Washington," the arena is the U.S. Senate, where the violence is not physical, but more vicious. He is proud of the emotional growth of Billy Jack.

"Yes, the 'Billy Jacks' are message films," he said. "Message films. They're the one kind of film that's never been tolerated. If you want to deliver a message, use Western Union, right? You can use children to make a hard-core porno film, and that's tolerated. But a message film? Never.

"Well, what we want to show — and what we have shown — is that a message film can be entertaining. And profitable. The bottom line is that we're profitable. We're good and efficient at what we do. I hope that's not taken out of context to make me sound like pompous ass."

He has a reputation for filing lawsuits, he said.

"But the truth is I've only sued three times. I won two, and the third's in court. But I've been sued a lot."

His suits were against two studios.

He is somewhat anathema to studios because he has overstepped the bounds of an independent producer. The bounds have never been defined. They are just there.

He has had peace overtures from major studios, he said, offers to stop fighting them and join them.

Jazz leader, teacher finally hits prime time

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jazz history teacher at Cal State University in nearby Northridge has some mighty impressive degrees — from the bands of Jimmie Lunceford, Count Basie, Duke Ellington and Dizzy Gillespie.

But now, Gerald Wilson, teacher, trumpeter, composer and arranger, has a new job. He heads the big band on ABC's "Redd Foxx" comedy variety series, which began this month.

Coincidentally, it was in this month 38 years ago his big-time career began with Lunceford's band, a black outfit whose light, loping swing style was copied by better-known white bands of the swing era.

(Another coincidence: Snookie Young, who worked with Wilson in the Lunceford trumpet section, now helps lead the brass charge of Wilson's band on the Foxx show.)

While Wilson, 59, is well-regarded in jazz circles, has cut 18 albums and arranged music for such diverse folks as Ray Charles and violinist Jean-Luc Ponty, he isn't exactly a well known TV name.

In fact, the Foxx show is his first weekly network gig. Before it, he concentrated on teaching, running his own big band, composing and toiling in the well-paid obscurity of recording studios here.

Wilson, born in Shelby, Miss., and raised in Memphis, Tenn., and Detroit, says the ABC job came about when Foxx asked him to write the theme for a potential series, "Big George Diamond."

"He told me then he'd like to give me a shot working for him on his television show," he said. "Of course, he knew my work before. And I've been knowing Redd for many, many years."

Wilson, still a high school kid in Detroit when he met Foxx, said while his band mainly has been seen backing up singers of the star's show, there's a good chance it vay be featured on the show soon.

He agreed that while jazz doesn't get much network time for various reasons, it is rising in popularity among young listeners, thanks to hits by such as jazzmen as George Benson and Maynard Ferguson.

Ferguson recently remarked in an interview that this popularity may be because many jazzmen, veterans of big bands, now are teaching music in high schools and colleges across the nation.

Wilson goes along with his fellow trumpeter's theory.

The distinctive Western sculptures of Bob Hunnicutt of Channing will be on temporary exhibition in Midland this weekend.

The display will be in the W. B. Franklin Art Gallery, 1015-C N. Midkiff Drive. The show will open Saturday and continue Sunday and Monday.

Hunnicutt has been sculpting for the last five years, first as a hobby and now as a fulltime Qrofession: He maintains a studio near the Canadian River in the Texas Panhandle where he researches and produces his original works. The sculptures are cast at Hunnicutt's foundry in Channing.

Hunnicutt's firsthand knowledge of ranching and cowboy life make his work highly authentic in detail. His representations of Weatern life of earlier days have been widely praised. Recently he began a series of sculptures based on another theme with which he is familiar, children (he is the father of five).

The public is invited to view Hunnicutt's work during the upcoming exhibition.

UTPB art chairman's work in New York show

ODESSA — Welded aluminum sculptures by Dr. Stanley Marcus, chairman of the art department of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, will be exhibited at Lincoln Center in New York City during the next several months.

The display in Robert Moses Plaza of Fordham University at Lincoln Center will open Saturday, continuing through next Feb. 28.

Among Dr. Marcus' works to be shown are those titled "Rhythms," "Double Space Frame," "Portrait of Rebecca," "Dyna-Form I" and "Pussycat Serenade."

A West Texas newcomer, Dr. Marcus has received numerous awards for his sculpture in art exhibitions and juried shows on the East Coast. Before moving to Odessa, Marcus was coordinator of sculpture and assistant professor of art at New York University in New York City, and before that was chairman and associate professor in the art department of Nathaniel Hawthorne College in New Hampshire. He holds a bachelor's degree from NYU and M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from Teachers College of Columbia University.

Indian artwork featured

SNYDER — Paintings by four prominent Indian artists from Oklahoma and bronze sculptures by two Texans will be featured during October at the Scurry County Museum here.

The Oklahoma painters are Hollis Asenap, Archie Blackowl, George Geionety and Virginia Stroud. Ranging in age from 26 to 66, their works represent a diversity of styles.

Bronzes by Dubb Tubb of Snyder and Dr. Robert Taylor of Stephenville will share honors with the paintings.

The show will open Sunday, preceded by a preview and reception honoring the artists on Saturday evening, to which the public is invited.

The display will be on view between 8:30 a.m. and noon, and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday each week.

'Swan Lake' to open Houston ballet season

HOUSTON — A new, full-length production of a famous classic, "Swan Lake," will open the 10th performing season of the Houston Ballet.

The production has its first performance at 8 p.m. today in Jones Hall for the Performing Arts in downtown Houston. Additional presentations are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

This new version of Tchaikovsky's immortal "Swan Lake" has been created expressly for the dancers of the Houston Ballet by the company's artistic director, Ben Stevenson, using choreography and staging from the traditional Petipa-Ivanov version, blended with his own personal concepts of this classic work.

Stevenson's choreography—his first of this ballet—represents only the second full-length staging of "Swan Lake" by an American ballet organization in more than a decade, and Stevenson expressed pleasure that Houston Ballet is now in a position to make this significant contribution to the national repertoire of the great classical ballets. Houston's production will be toured to other cities later this season.

Lavish sets and costumes for the Houston production have been designed by William Pitkin, currently resident designer for the American Ballet Theatre.

The Houston Ballet version will give particular emphasis to two Houston dancers: Houston-born Andrea Vodehnal will dance the role of Odette, the Swan Queen, and Whit Haworth, also a native Houstonian, will be in the role of Prince Siegfried. An alternate cast will feature Suzanne Longley and Dorio Perez in the roles.

Houston's production of "Swan Lake" not only launches the company's 10th anniversary season, but also marks the centennial of the ballet itself, which premirered in 1977.

Seats for performances of "Swan Lake" this weekend may be reserved by contacting the Houston Ballet office in Jones Hall, 713-225-0275.

'Oktoberfest' to again benefit Fort Worth symphony programs

FORT WORTH — "Oktoberfest," the family fun festival sponsored by the Symphony League of Fort Worth, comes up this weekend.

The eighth annual Oktoberfest, complete with music, games, and a variety of food and drink, promises something for everyone.

This year's festival in the Tarrant County Convention Center in downtown Fort Worth is divided into several segments — The Polka Palace, the Market Platz, the Biergarten, the Musik Haus, the Kinder Platz, the Restaurant and Das Machen.

The Polka Palace speaks for itself — continuous music provided by many different bands and musical groups.

The Market Platz offers booths filled with games, exhibits, food and drink stalls.

The Biergarten offers visitors a place for leisurely refreshment, while the Musik Haus will present entertainment for the serious listener. The Oktoberfest restaurant will feature German-style cooking, in addition to American foods.

The Kinder Platz is, of course, planned for youngsters.

Das Machen, instituted at the 1976 Oktoberfest, is where artists and craftspeople will be working.

Proceeds from Oktoberfest go to finance the Symphony League's student concert series, an annual project which brings symphonic music to school children of Fort Worth and Tarrant County.

Movie takes 'what if' view

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What might have happened had Lee Harvey Oswald not been shot dead by night club owner Jack Ruby, if he'd actually gone on trial for the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy?

ABC poses the question Friday and Sunday nights in a $2.5 million movie representing a new form of documentary drama, the "what if" docu-drama. It's "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald."

(In a macabre promotional caper, ABC says it's putting a questionnaire in the Oct. 1 "TV Guide" that asks viewers how they'd vote were they on the Oswald jury. Results of this thumbs-up, thumbs-down poll will be announced Oct. 14 on "Good Morning, America," ABC says.)

Friday's show recreates Kennedy's slaying and Oswald's capture in Dallas, Tex. Sunday's show stages what the trial producer Richard Freed thinks Oswald might have had, had not Ruby killed the ex-Marine.

For Freed, the two programs conclude a project he says he began in 1965, two years before a short-lived Broadway play, also called "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," hit the boards.

He said he bought that play by Avram Ducovny and Leon Friedman mainly for rights to its title, but that none of his movie, written by Robert E. Thompson, draws from the stage version.

While preparing his mock "trial" of Oswald, he said, he consulted heavily with top prosecutors and criminal lawyers on how they would have handled the trial, had it ever occurred.

The idea of the movie, he added, is to show evidence in Kennedy's slaying "in a courtroom context."

Pianist to play at school

ODESSA — Jeffrey Swann, acclaimed young American pianist, will play a recital in Odessa's Bonham Junior High School auditorium at 8 p.m. today.

Swann, winner of several prestigious keyboard competitions in the U. S. and abroad, performs here under auspices of Odessa Civic Concert Association. Members of Midland Community Concerts Association may attend the recital at no charge under a reciprocal attendance agreement between the two concert organizations.

Study bares waste in outdated military manpower policies

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The military services waste between $5 billion and $10 billion annually by clinging to draft-era personnel policies that were outmoded by the shift to an all-volunteer force, a Rand Corp. report said this week.

The report, submitted to the Pentagon, said the nation can maintain an adequate defense without the draft if it makes better use of experienced personnel, women and individuals who do not quite meet present physical requirements.

Without changing some time-worn military traditions, the services will face a shortage of qualified volunteers by the mid-1980s, the report said. But it said the shortages can be overcome without either conscription or large across-the-board increases in military pay.

"The basic structure of the system governing the management and utilization of military personnel continues largely unchanged from that which characterized the draft era," the report said. "The all volunteer force is thus paying the price for some of the inefficiencies that became institutionalized during the draft."

Prepared by Rand senior analyst Richard V. L. Cooper, the report said military service, once a poorly paid profession, now ranks as one of the nation's most lucrative occupations.

When generous military pensions and other fringe benefits are taken into account, the report said, the average officer who serves 20 years earns between 30 and 40 per cent more over the course of his college graduates.

"Career military officers are in the upper 10 per cent of all comparably aged and educated civilian workers with respect to total compensation" the report said.

The situation is not as pronounced for enlisted men, the report added. But it said that, counting pensions and fringe benefits, 20-year enlisted men fall in the upper 25 per cent income level among all high school graduates of similar age.

But Cooper said the government receives comparatively little recruiting influence from the amount it spends for military compensation. This is because the pay and benefit package is so complex that few personnel realize just how much they are receiving and because the salaries do not differentiate sufficiently between occupational specialities, he explained.

The report was issued as a special government commission was gearing up for a thorough study of the entire military pay and benefit structure. The commission is scheduled to send its report to Defense Secretary Harold Brown next March.

Military pay was raised substantially in anticipation of the end of the draft. But the Rand report said much of that increase probably would have occurred even if the draft had been maintained. Besides, the report said, it is unlikely that a return to the draft would be accompanied by a military pay cut.

Defense manpower costs have increased from about $25 billion in 1964 to more than $60 billion in the fiscal year that starts Saturday.

But Cooper said the government can save substantial sums by adopting management reforms made possible by the elimination of conscripts. He estimated that if fully adopted, his proposals could save between $5 billion and $10 billion a year.

Taken together, the Rand proposals would shatter one of the pentagon's favorite myths — that virtually all military personnel are trained and ready for combat. Cooper said it makes little sense to place such strong emphasis on combat when only one military person in 10 ever sees hostile action.

At present, about 60 per cent of the nation's enlisted personnel have served for less than four years, while only 40 per cent have more than four years of service.

By reducing the percentage of personnel in their first enlistment to 50 per cent, the study said, the pentagon could cut training costs, increase overall efficiency and reduce the number of new recruits needed to maintain an adequate force level.

Although more experienced personnel are paid more than first-termers, the study said, they also are more productive. The report estimated that 100 experienced individuals could be expected to do the work of 180 first-termers.

The shift to more experienced personnel would incresomewhat the average age of the force. The report said a modest increase in age would be acceptable, but it cautioned that there might be problems in trying to expand the number of personnel with more than four years of service much beyond 50 per cent.

Under present regulations, both officers and enlisted personnel must obtain regular promotions or leave the service. The objective of the up-or-out rule is to eliminate individuals who are unfit for higher levels of command and to make room for new recruits.

The Rand study said continued enforcement of present rules would defeat its suggestion to increase the percentage of experienced personnel. The report urged the military to modify its promotion policies in order to permit qualified individuals to remain in technical jobs even if they are unfit or uninterested in command. Such personnel should be eligible for job-related promotions not tied to their suitability for command, the study said.

The report urged the services to recruit more women and to change physical standards to permit individuals who might not have the stamina for combat to enlist for non-combat specialities.

Marine jet crash kills boys

TOKYO (AP) — Two little Japanese boys died Wednesday of burns received when a U.S. Marine Phantom jet crashed into their home in a residential area outside Yokohama Tuesday.

The boys' mother and an aunt were among seven other Japanese injured in the crash, which destroyed two houses.

The plane's two crewmen, Capt. J.E. Miller of Mendota, Ill., and Lt. D. L. Durbin of Natchitoches, La., parachuted before the crash and were not hurt, a military spokesman reported.

Pidgeon flies coup, goes home

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Walter Pidgeon has returned home to recuperate from a blood clot on his lung.

Pidgeon, who celebrated his 79th birthday this weekend, left St. John's Hospital on Monday. He had been hospitalized since Aug. 4, when he entered St. John's for brain surgery and was forced to stay when a clot developed on one of his lungs.

"He's in very satisfactory condition, and he'll be going home to recuperate," said spokeswoman Peggy Frank.

66 full auto service is still available

A lot of people can change the oil, put in new spark plugs, replace faulty hoses, drain radiators, put in anti-freeze, and do a multitude of other things for their car...and a lot of others can't. The "can'ts" depend on people like Bob Smith at Town and Country 66, 1119 Andrews Highway; and Floyd Williams at Midland Drive 66, Midland Drive and Illinois St.

Here the people who are not mechanically-minded find refuge in the services performed by these "full service" stations and here they can find a full line of 66 products, too. These stations are locally owned and your patronage is appreciated which is reflected by superior wash jobs, lucrications and other small services performed by these experienced men.

With many service stations changing to "self service" these are two of the few left that perform services on which some people (specially the elderly) have come to depend. Of course you pay a bit more for gasoline, but to many it's worth it for someone experienced to look under the hood, do what they do, and tell them that everything looks good.!

Floyd Williams has been at Midland Drive 66 Station for 6 years and Bob Smith has been at Town & Country 66 for 17 years. Each of these stations are supplied by Midland 66 Oil Co., distributor of Phillips 66 Products in Midland.

Dayan seeks statement's denial

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said today the United States has given Israel its word that the Palestinians at Middle East peace talks would not be represented by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

For that reason, he said, "we would have expected a denial" of a Syrian statement that President Carter has agreed on the possibility of forming a unified Arab delegation including the PLO.

Dayan said he will ask Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, with whom he meets on Friday, to explain the absence of a denial by U.S. officials following Wednesday's statement by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam after a meeting with Carter.

Dayan, in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" program, said Israel would like to see Palestinians who are not PLO members in the Jordanian delegation. But giving the PLO "an equal footing" as proposed by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy "is absolutely unacceptable to us."

The U.S. search for a formula for a peace conference continues today with talks between Fahmy and Vance at the United Nations.

At the White House, spokesman Jerrold Schecter said the composition of delegations at the Middle East talks "hasn't been resolved yet." He and other U.S. officials flatly refused to rule out an eventual place in the Arab delegation for the PLO.

Significantly, the administration thereby stopped short of supporting Israel, which has barred a negotiating role for the PLO, which is committed in its charter to dismantling of the Jewish state.

"Because of the absolute importance of negotiating on a high level of trust and good faith, we have been and will continue to be very careful not to discuss the details of the talks with the various parties," Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said.

Meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Fahmy called for PLO participation "on the same level" with Israel and the Arab states.

Speaking to the U.N. General Assembly on Wednesday, Fahmy said, "We disapprove of any formula that would lead to anything contrary to this."

In another development, Sens. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y. and Clifford Case, R-N.J., told the Senate of reports that the Carter administration had made overtures to Iran to cut off oil supplies to Israel if Tel Aviv resists U.S. negotiating tactics.

Moynihan said such a move "would be dishonorable" and Case said it would be "outrageous."

John H. Trattner, a State Department spokesman, said the reports were untrue.

Upturn in economic index seen as industry spends on factories

By MICHAEL DOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index of future economic trends showed a sharp upturn in August as industries decided to spend more money on their factories, the Commerce Department said today.

The index of leading indicators rose eight-tenths of a per cent after a two-tenths of a per cent increase in July and declines of two-tenths of a per cent in both June and May.

Most encouraging to economists was a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in contracts and orders for plants and equipment. That means industries are building more factories and will be able to turn out more products, possibly leading to more jobs.

However, the index did not indicate an improved job outlook because the layoff rate was unchanged in August and the average work week declined.

The Commerce Department had reported last month that the index had dropped three months in a row, but it subsequently changed its July figure from a drop of two-tenths of a per cent to an increase of two-tenths. The main reason was improvement in net business formation, another sign of business confidence.

Economists have figured that any improvement in the economy will have to come from spending by businesses on new equipment and capital because consumer spending may have reached its peak.

Also contributing to the increase this month was a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in building permits and boosts in the money supply, prices of raw materials and liquid assets. Among figures declining were vendor performance and stock lrices.

The August increase was the largest since an increase of 1.9 per cent in March. In the past five years, the biggest rise was a 3.1 per cent jump in June 1975.

The index now stands at 131.3, which means business activity is 31.3 per cent stronger than it was in the 1967 base period.

Administration resists dual treaty vote push

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is resisting efforts to require both houses of Congress to vote approval before the Panamanian government can be given control of the Canal Zone.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell was called before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today to present the Justice Department's official legal opinion that only the Senate needs to approve the Panama Canal treaty.

The treaty calls for relinquishment of the U.S. Canal Zone to the Republic of Panama and for operational control of the canal itself to be handed to the Panamanians in the year 2000.

Treaty opponents are contending that both houses of Congress must approve the transfer of any property owned by the United States. That would mean that if the United States actually owns the Canal Zone the House of Representatives as well as the Senate would have to approve the portion of the treaty that transfers the zone to Panama.

The administration contends that the 1903 treaty with Panama established the Canal Zone as a 10-mile wide U.S.-controlled territory, but did not give the United States sovereignty, and that under the Constitution, the treaty must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

The administration's plans do call for some House votes on separate legislation to implement certain sections of the treaty.

Meanwhile, critics of the pending treaty are pressing their campaign to have the Senate reject the pact.

Retired Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, a former chairman of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a House committee Wednesday that ratification of the treaty would lead to indirect Soviet control of canal operations.

Moorer said Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian chief of state, heads a "leftist" government with close ties to the communist regime of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

He said there is a "Torrijos Castro-Moscow Axis" that could result in a Cuban or Soviet presence in Panama after the treaty is ratified.

Committee votes to keep funds for B-1s in budget

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee voted Wednesday to keep money in the federal budget for two more B-1 bombers.

A coalition of Democrats and Republicans joined in a 34-21 vote, rejecting President Carter's proposal to eliminate the B-1 funds from the current budget.

The committee action may save as many as 5,000 jobs at Rockwell International facilities in Southern California.

Rep. Robert K. Pornan (R-Calif.), in whose district most of the affected employes live, said Rockwell will keep its current B-1 work force of 6,500 people and add another 1,000 to the payroll.

The company was preparing to lay off 5,000 of the 6,500 workers as the B-1 program began shutting down, Dornan said.

"It's an aerospace holiday in my district," said Dornan, who is not a member of the appropriations committee, but who lobbied vigorously, conferring with committee members on the House floor, "in the hallways, even in the latrines."

The committee action leaves $463 million in the budget, money that Carter said he did not want for the curtailed program. The Administration decided on a research program involving four aircraft.

"Obviously, we are very pleased with the outcome of the vote," a Rockwell spokesman in Los Angeles said Wednesday. "But we don't have the specific details yet."

The spokesman confirmed that Dornan's estimates of personnel were correct. As Rockwell completed work on the fourth B-1, it would have gradually dismissed between 4,000 and 5,000 of the employes in the Los Angeles Division, formerly called the B-1 division.

None of the projections of additional workers will be certain until the Pentagon formally notifies Rockwell to proceed with construction of the two additional aircraft.

Wednesday's committee action will enable Rockwell to build the fifth and sixth bombers in combat-ready versions, Dornan said.

The B-1 production lines will remain open. "The President can tell the Soviets that Congress has given him an option he didn't want but can still use," said Dornan.

"It's a great decision for the entire country and for Strategic Air Command pilots, who know we will not leave them in three-decade-old, decrepit aircraft," he said. The B-1 was promoted as a replacement for the aging fleet of B-52 bombers.

Although Carter stopped the B-1 program, Congress had approved money in last year's budget for the additional aircraft.

The money was available for spending until the President asked that the funds be rescinded.

Plumber's condition 'guarded'

ODESSA — A 60-year-old Odessa plumber was in guarded condition this morning in Medical Center Hospital after suffering head injuries in a car-train collision.

Ray Claude Wood of Odessa was driving a van across the South Hancock Street train crossing, near East 1st Street, when he and a Missouri-Pacific freight train collided, Odessa police said.

Witnesses told police the train signals were working and the train's horn was sounding.

The van was "spun around and knocked off the track" about 50 feet, police said.

Operator of the train was Nawlin Teel of Big Spring.

Few simple steps help in mastering rise of the spectacular souffle

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

There's an age-old rule that guests wait for the souffle; the souffle doesn't wait for the guests.

It's a blend of practicality and showmanship. There's nothing more spectacular than a high-rise souffle, brown and fragrant, brought in hot from the oven.

Wait just a few ninutes and you have a deflated, disappointing mess.

So if souffle's on the menu, get the guests to the table, forks in hand, and bring on the show.

The dish should have straight sides and be the right size for the recipe.

Too small and you'll have spillover. Too large and the souffle won't rise to spectacular heights.

If the recipe calls for a collar to lift the souffle above the rim of the baking dish, use either foil or baking parchment. Make a four-inch-wide band of triple thickness.

Lightly butter one side of the band and dust with sugar (for a dessert souffle), flour or Parmesan cheese. Wrap the band around the dish, overlapping the edges by two inches.

Buttered side should face in, and the collar should extend two inches above the rim of the dish. You can staple the collar edges, then tie it with string. Make sure it's snug enough to keep the souffle from running down the dish.

Egg whites are the leavening agent for souffles, giving them their height, and properly beaten egg whites are the secret to success.

Chefs such as James Beard and Jacques Pepin always use a copper bowl and a wire whisk to beat egg whites. Rinse the bowl with vinegar, then water, to be sure there's no speck of oil. Grease or oil will keep the whites from getting sufficient volume.

If the whites are at room temperature, they'll have more volume. Then it's a matter of elbow grease as you beat the whites to stiff (but never dry) peaks. One source says to beat the whites just until they won't slide when you tip the bowl.

Folding takes some practice, too.

You want to blend the whites with the egg yolk mixture, but at the same time keep the air in the egg whites. Beard folds with his hand. You can try that, or use a spatula, gently cutting down through the mixture, bringing the spatula across the bottom of the bowl, then up and over the mixture.

Come up through the center of the mixture every few strokes, while rotating the bowl frequently. Fold only until no streaks remain.

The yolks must be beaten to the point that they form a ribbon. Spoon out a little of the yolk mixture and pour it from the spoon back into the bowl. You'll know if they're at the right stage, because they'll run back in a thick, lemon-colored ribbon.

Warming the beaten yolks with a little of the hot sauce before completely combining the mixtures will prevent the yolks from coagulating too rapidly and creating lumps.

Some cooks lighten the yolk mixture by stirring in a spoonful to the beaten whites before folding. Beard adds a healthy dollop of whites, easily one-fourth cup, to the yolks before folding.

Make a top hat by holding a spoon upright and circling the mixture to make a ring about one inch from the side of the dish, and about one inch deep. The center of the souffle will rise an inch or so above the rest.

Cooking time is generally a matter of personal preference. The French like a souffle that's still a bit runny in the middle. Other cooks like them more well-done. Your oven may vary a bit, so experiment.

SOUFFLE AU CITRON'
(Hot Lemon Souffle)

Butter, sugar
One-third cup sugar
One and one-half tsps. grated lemon peel
3 tbsps. lemon juice
One-fourth tsp. salt
One-third cup butter
4 eggs, separated
One-fourth tsp. cream of tartar

Butter bottom and sides of a one-and-one-half-quart souffle dish. Sprinkle sugar over buttered surfaces. Make a collar, buttering and sprinkling the inside of the band with sugar.

In a medium saucepan, beat together the one-third cup sugar, lemon peel, lemon juice and salt until well blended. Add butter.

Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir one minute. Remove from heat.

In a small mixing bowl, beat yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored, about five minutes. Into yolks blend a little of the hot mixture; return yolk mixture to saucepan and blend.

Beat whites and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold yolk mixture into whites. Carefully pour into prepared dish; bake at 350 degrees, 25 or 30 minutes, until puffy.

To test this, or any souffle for doneness, make sure it's delicately browned and puffy, and that it shakes very slightly when oven rack is gently moved back and forth. Carefully remove foil band. Makes four servings. Serve immediately.

CLASSIC CHEESE SOUFFLE

Butter, grated Parmesan cheese
One-third cup butter
One-third cup flour
1 tbsp. instant minced onion
One-half tsp. dry mustard
One and one-half cups milk
1 cup (4 ozs.) shredded Cheddar cheese
6 eggs, separated
One-fourth tsp. cream of tartar

Butter bottom and sides of a two-and-one-half-quart souffle dish. Dust with Parmesan. In medium saucepan melt the one-third cup butter. Blend in flour, onion and mustard. Cook and stir over medium-high heat until mixture is smooth and bubbly.

Stir in milk all at once. Cook and stir until mixture boils and is smooth and thickened. Remove from heat; stir in Cheddar until melted.

In small mixing bowl, beat yolks until thick, about five minutes. Into yolks, blend a little of the hot mixture. Return yolk mixture to saucepan and blend.

Beat whites and cream of tartar until stiff. Fold yolk mixture into whites. Pour into prepared dish. Cut a circle into the top to form a top hat. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes, until puffy and delicately browned. Serves six.

Don't panic when the kids yell, "Hey Mom, may I invite a couple of friends to stay for supper?"

With the aid of a few basics from the cupboard and your refrigerator shelf, you can please the whole gang and satisfy their ravenous appetites, too.

Here's pizza with a new touch—Tasty Tuna Pizza. With biscuit mix, canned tuna, mayonnaise cheese, and eggs on hand, you're all set to create this nutritional meal in minutes for lunch or supper. Extra zest to accent the tuna is provided by prepared yellow mustard.

To keep the children occupied while the pizza bakes, entertain them with a tray of whimsical vegetables characters. What a great time they'll have dismantling the vegetables and dipping them into the enticing Dandy Dip of cream cheese flavored with seasoning mix for Sloppy Joes. Vegetables were never so much fun!

For maximum nutritional value and taste appeal, add fruit juice or milk, plus oatmeal cookies with raisins.

2 cups grated American cheese

Chopped tomatoes, green pepper, and olives, if desired

Mix together biscuit mix and water until dough holds together; knead dough 10 times. Divide dough in half and roll out two circles or pat to fit two medium-size pizza pans. Combine tuna, onion, mustard and mayonnaise; spread over pizza dough. Arrange egg slices and cheese on pizzas and sprinkle with chopped tomatoes, green pepper and/or olives, if desired. Bake in 425 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 2 medium-size pizzas.

DANDY DIP FOR VEGETABLES

Combine cream cheese, contents of seasoning mix envelope, and milk; blend well and chill. Serve with cut up raw vegetables or create whimsical characters from vegetable pieces held together with food picks. Makes about 1½ cups dip.

Cooking for large family?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I have a large family and often have to double recipes to have enough to go around. I realize that most families are smaller and need the usual recipes serving four to six. Is there any reliable cookbook for a mother like me? — WISTFUL.

DEAR WISTFUL: "Farm Journal's Best-Ever Recipes" (Doubleday), published in 1977, should help you because the recipes yield more servings than the usual small-family ones. In preparing the book Elise Manning, Farm Journal's energetic Food Editor, wrote to 250,000 of their cookbook users, asking them to specify their favorite recipes from 20 previous Farm Journal cookbooks and also asking why they gave these recipes top rating. Elise says, "The response was enthusiastic and ranged the entire menu — from main dishes to desserts. What surprised us was the interesting assortment of pickle and vegetable recipes because these seldom seem to be regarded as home cooks' specialties." Elise and her staff counted the votes and the most popular dishes were included in "Best-Ever Recipes." One of them:

PEANUT BUTTER CRESCENTS

½ cup milk
½ cup butter or margarine
one-third cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
½ cup warm (110 to 115 degrees) water
1 egg, beaten
4 cups sifted flour
Peanut Butter Filling, see below

Scald milk and pour over butter, sugar and salt in bowl; cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast on warm water and stir to dissolve. Add egg, yeast and 2 cups flour to milk mixture; beat with electric mixer at low speed until smooth, about 1 minute; beat at medium speed until thick, about 2 minutes. Add remaining flour to make a dough that leaves the sides of bowl. Turn onto a lightly floured surface and knead gently. Put into a greased bowl; invert to grease top of dough. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface. Divide in half; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Roll each half to 12-inch circle; spread with the Peanut Butter Filling; cut each circle into 12 wedges. Roll up each wedge from wide end and place pointed end down, on greased baking sheets. Curve ends slightly to make crescents. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake in 400-degree oven 15 minutes, changing position of baking sheets in oven when half baked. Remove from baking sheets and cool on racks. Makes 24 crescents.

Peanut Butter Filling: Combine 1/3 cup peanut butter, 1/3 cup honey, ⅛ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Ex-policeman again testifies in own trial

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Defense attorneys planned to put former Houston police officer Terry Denson back on the stand in his murder trial today in an attempt to prove self-defense in the drowning death of a Mexican-American prisoner.

Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, also a former Houston policeman, are charged with murder in the death last May of laborer Joe Campos Torres.

Attorneys for Denson and Orlando sought testimony Wednesday from at least eight persons about the prior conduct of Torres.

"This testimony would be very crucial to our case," said Mike Ramsey, attorney for Orlando.

However, State District Judge James Warren ruled that the jury would not be allowed to hear about Torres' past unless "self defense" can be shown to be an issue in the case.

Denson testified earlier he thought Torres was reaching for him, that he (Denson) stepped back and that Torres jumped from a 16-foot wall into the bayou.

During nearly three hours of questioning Wednesday from Assistant District Attorney Ted Poe, Orlando said he lied when first questioned about Torres' death.

The questioning involved a written statement to police where Orlando said Denson "pushed" Torres into the water.

"But today you say you weren't looking," Poe repeated after forcing Orlando to read portions of the statement. "You lied?"

"I guess I did," Orlando replied. "I really didn't see him push him. Let me explain."

He got a chance to explain in an answer to questions from defense attorney Bob Bennett.

Orlando said that detectives taking his statement told him other officers said Denson pushed Torres. He said they didn't tell him that Denson and his partner, Joseph Janish, told them Torres had jumped.

He also denied testimony from other witnesses who said he beat Torres' shins with a flashlight after saying, "It's brand new and I want to try it out."

He also denied that he said after the alleged beating, that "I've got this Mexican's blood on my hands."

He also said he never ordered his partner, Carless Elliott, to destroy Torres' medical identification after the prisoner vanished in the bayou.

Denson, Orlando and Janish are three of five officers fired after Torres body was recovered from the bayou three days after he had been arrested in a bar disturbance. Janish is awaiting trial on a misdemeanor assault charge.

Teen 'can't forgive' grandfather

HOUSTON (AP) — The teenage son of a slain plastic surgeon has testified he believes his father's 1972 shooting death was masterminded by oil millionaire Ash Robinson — the grandfather to whom he hasn't spoken in five years.

Robert Hill, 17, told a civil court jury Wednesday that he could accept a verdict clearing his grandfather, but said he could never forgive Robinson for his "persecution" of Dr. John Hill before the shooting.

The youth testified in a $7.6 million wrongful death damage suit in which Dr. Hill's family alleged Robinson arranged the slaying to avenge the death of Robinson's daughter.

Hill, who was awaiting trial on charges of killing his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, in 1969 through medical neglect, was shot to death at his fashionable River Oaks home by a masked gunman. She was Robinson's only daughter and Robert's mother.

Robinson has denied the allegations by Robert, Connie Hill, 37, and Myra Hill, 75, the son, widow and mother of the slain doctor. Robinson has said he wanted Hill be be tried, and if found guilty, to be punished.

"I could forgive my grandfather if it was proven he did not kill my father," young Hill testified, "but I cannot forgive him for the persecution of my father before his death.

"From the evidence that has been brought forth in this trial that he was accusing my father of being a homosexual and a dope addict—that's one thing I just cannot forgive him for."

When asked if he thought his father was either characterization, the boy shrugged and answered, "No, sir."

Robinson, 79, and his wife, Rhea, sat 15 feet away from their tall, blond-haired grandson as he testified. They remained unmoved, their faces seldom changing expressions as he testified he had not spoken to either of them since his father's death, Sept. 24, 1972.

The boy recalled the three-year period between the death of his mother and that of his father. He said Robinson would drive the block surrounding his home as Robert played outside.

The civil trial began nearly six weeks ago.

Davis prosecution 'interested' in Gavrel drug allegations

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys say the man who claims he found marijuana in the clothing of gunshot victim Gus Gavrel Jr. will be called to testify in the Cullen Davis capital murder trial.

"It will be interesting to hear what he has to say," a defense lawyer told newsmen Wednesday.

Prosecutors identified the man as David Howard and said he contends he removed two bags of marijuana from Gavrel's shorts while he was being undressed for emergency room treatment last year.

Howard told investigators in Fort Worth he was employed at the time at the hospital where the gravely wounded Gavrel underwent major surgery.

Gavrel, 22, was one of two survivors of the midnight shooting spree at Davis' showplace $6 million mansion. Two died in the gunfire.

The partially paralyzed Gavrel, who named Davis as his assailant, testified here he did not have drugs in his possession the night he was shot.

Prosecutors, abiding by the Code of Criminal Procedure, interrupted testimony Wednesday to advise Davis' attorneys of the unusual marijuana drug development.

The so-called "Brady rule" compels the state to provide the defense any evidence in its possession that tends to reflect on the innocence of the defendant.

Davis, 44, is on trial for his life in the gunshot slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Jet-set blonde Priscilla Davis, 36, the defendant's estranged wife, was wounded in the shootings and her lover, Stan Farr, 30, was killed.

State attorneys downplayed Wednesday's revelation, saying they do not know what happened to the substance if it did indeed exist.

"For all I know, it was lettuce leaves," quipped prosecutor Joe Shannon.

Defense lawyers contended the state provided only skimpy details of the disclosure and asked trial Judge George Dowlen to order prosecutors to furnish a fuller report.

Dowlen asked for all the information on the incident and said he would determine what, if anything, had been withheld.

Otherwise, Wednesday's session was mostly uneventful as a Fort Worth police detective underwent a third day of cross-examination by the defense and was told to return today.

The officer was being questioned about the physical evidence recovered from the mansion and the procedures used in finding, photographing and removing the wide assortment of items.

Former marshal repeats testimony

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Former Castroville town marshal Frank Hayes has repeated his testimony that he never intended to kill a Mexican-American prisoner. Only the jurors and the locale were different this time.

Hayes, testifying in his own defense at his federal civil rights trial, said Wednesday that the Sept. 14, 1975, shotgun slaying of Richard Morales was an accident.

Hayes was convicted of aggravated assault by a state district jury in San Angelo and sentenced to 2-to-10 years in prison for Morales' death. Jurors later said they signed the wrong papers and meant to convict Hayes of a more serious offense.

His testimony Wednesday was substantially the same as that given to the state jury in the summer of 1976.

Alice Baldwin, Hayes' sisterin-law who faces federal civil rights charges along with Hayes and his wife, was due to take the stand today as defense attorneys concluded their case.

The prosecution contends Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Hayes took Morales body to the Hayes family farm in East Texas, where it was unearthed from a shallow grave two days after the shooting.

Morales, a robbery suspect, was gunned down on a lonely road while in Hayes' custody.

Mrs. Hayes testified Wednesday that she and Mrs. Baldwin took the body to East Texas, but added that she intended to leave it there temporarily, covered in plastic, until she could collect her thoughts, find out what happened and report it to authorities.

"I think I was in a daze or a shock," she testified. "It is something I can't explain."

Mrs. Hayes, who said her husband told her after the Sunday night shooting, "It was an accident, but nobody will believe me," testified that she alone buried the body. She later pointed out the grave to law enforcement officers.

"No, I never intended to kill him," Hayes said in response to a defense attorney's question during his testimony.

Asked if he intended to violate Morales' civil rights, Hayes answered, "With God my witness, I never did."

Hayes testified that his shotgun accidentally went off while Morales was struggling for it. He said he intended to release Morales and was taking him to a highway via a short cut when the struggle ensued.

Test shows gas, crude

The Superior Oil Co. No. 1-PP University Unit, scheduled 18,000-foot project 10 miles northwest of Pyote in Ward County, flowed gas and recovered oil on a drillstem test of the Cherry Canyon.

The one-hour and five-minute test was over the section from 6,050 to 6,214 feet. Gas surfaced in 20 minutes and flowed at the rate of 28,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery was 188 feet of oil and 3,312 feet of oil and gas-cut salt water.

Flowing pressure was from 950 to 1,777 pounds, and initial one-hour shut-in pressure was 2,820 pounds. Final shut-in pressure was 2,776 pounds.

The project is one mile north of the Quito (Fusselman) field and 660 feet from south and 2,050 feet from west lines of section 28, block 18, University Lands survey.

Eddy strike potentials

Eddy County, N.M., gained an oil discovery and a scheduled wildcat was completed in an oil field.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Inc., Artesie, No. 2 Travis Deep Unit was completed as a Cisco strike for 433 barrels of oil per day, with gas-oil ratio of 1,456-1, through an 18-64-inch choke and perforations at 9,824-9,903 feet.

Drilled to 11,270 feet, it is plugged back to 10,597 feet, and 5½-inch casing is set at 11,270 feet.

It is 1,980 feet from north and 1,780 feet from east lines of section 13-18s-28e, 18 miles southeast of Artesia.

Gene A. Snow, Lovington, finaled No. 1 Read & Stevens-State, scheduled wildcat, as an extension on the south side of the Turkey Track (San Andres) oil field, to pump 20 barrels of 35-gravity oil and five barrels of water in 24 hours.

Completion was through perforations at 2,633-2,635 feet, which had been fractured with 30,000 gallons and 35,000 pounds.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 10-19s-29e, 20 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Train route planned

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — City officials of this Denver suburb say they will seek $30 million to $45 million in government and private funds to build a mile-long subway for coal trains.

A report to the Littleton City Council on Tuesday said 20 coal trains rumble through the city now on their way from Wyoming coal fields to Texas, and rail traffic is expected to double by 1980 as Western energy development increases.

Officials say the money might come from federal energy and transportation agencies, the Regional Transportation District and the railroads, which officials said can make money by developing the covered areas of their rights-of-way.

The trains mostly belong to Rio Grande Railroad and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad.

The trains now cause traffic delays of up to 90 minutes a day at rail crossings, the report said, besides shaking the ground and increasing noise and dirt.

To get the trains out of sight, the report proposes lowering the track for about 1½ miles, one mile of which would be covered with 10 feet of earth. Housing and businesses could be built above the tracks.

"It will be so quiet people can live above the trains," said Assistant City Manager Al Salazar.

Judge decides Transco can't help gas shortage

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administrative law judge decided it wasn't done deliberately; Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line and its suppliers just couldn't produce all the natural gas their customers needed — but the State of North Carolina isn't satisfied.

On Sept. 16, the state, entirely dependent on Transco for its natural gas, asked the Federal Power Commission to listen to its objections to the judge's decision and to take action to improve Transco's troubled gas supply.

The commission, with one holdover member, two new ones, two vacancies and facing reorganization the first of the month, has not yet responded.

Its decision could eventually close the two-year-old Transco case or revive it and plunge the "Federal Energy Regulatory Commission," the reorganized agency that takes over Saturday, into a sticky debate about the legal responsibilities of natural gas producers and pipelines.

Its gas supplies curtailed heavily by Transco in recent winters, and with no immediate relief in sight, North Carolina thinks the commission should order the pipeline to deliver its contracted amounts of gas or pay the extra cost of emergency gas purchases.

North Carolina also wants the commission to place legal obligations on producers to develop gas supplies and to allocate new gas sales to the highest-priority customers.

The FPC's staff, dissatisfied with the decision of Administrative Law Judge Curtis L. Wagner, wants the commission to spell out standards by which natural gas producers should decide where, when and how to spend their money on gas development and production.

Almost lost among these demands is the specific problems that touched off the Transco case late in 1974.

In September of that year Transco — a major pipeline serving Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia — had predicted a gas shortage of about 20 per cent for the 1974-1975 winter.

Then, only two weeks later, Transco suddenly reduced its gas supply expectations by about 9 billion cubic feet. By the end of December, Transco's shortage predictions had grown another 24 billion cubic feet and its deliveries were quickly curtailed to avoid worse cutbacks later.

Within days, on Jan. 8, 1975, the five-member FPC ordered an investigation of "the circumstances for the increased curtailment" and the following July 1 it broadened its investigation, asking whether Transco really had to curtail service so much, and why, and what it was doing to improve the gas supply.

After 11 months of investigation, an

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

FPC technical team reported there was no evidence that natural gas supplies were deliberately held back from Transco by producers and that further investigation of production activities in the field were not likely to turn up "any effort or conspiracy ... to withhold or conceal" available gas supplies.

The case went on another 18 months, accumulating 4,015 pages of testimony and 112 exhibits in 32 days of public hearings.

Finally, last June 21, Judge Wagner issued his "initial decision," subject to commission review.

The investigation had delved not only into Transco's efforts to contract for new gas supplies, but also into the actual operation of gas wells by Transco' suppliers, including Cities Service Oil Co., Mitchell Energy and Development Co., Atlantic Richfield, Kerr-McGee, Mobil, Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co., Shell Oil and Union Oil Co. of California.

"There is a complete void of any evidence in this record indicating any willful withholding of natural gas by the various producers from the interstate market whatsoever," Wagner concluded.

"Each producer involved in this hearing satisfactorily accounted for its failure to meet or satisfy its contract requirements."

As for Transco, Wagner said, "There is no evidence in this case of any attempt to manipulate or distort the need for curtailment in any manner whatsoever."

Wagner proposed an order to end the investigation.

But the commission's staff and North Carolina disputed Wagner's findings.

Wagner's decision, while it found no "wrongdoing," did suggest that "it may be true that Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. may not have been as diligent as it should have been in its efforts to improve its gas supply in past years." The judge said Transco was reversing that trend under new management.

And Wagner cited "some bad management decisions on the timing of offshore repairs" by gas producers. He particularly noted "the inopportune timing of Cities Service Oil Co.'s reworking of its Brazos Block gas well during the height of the winter season."

But Wagner admitted that no findings could be made "with regard to the propriety" of Cities Service's gas-well workovers because he had been ordered in mid-1975 to stop investigating Cities Service to avoid conflict with a Justice Department investigation.

And the FPC technical staff report of December 1975, which found no evidence of a gas-withholding conspiracy in the gas-field records, noted that if there were a conspiracy, "the evidence of this would lie solely within the domain of the upper echelons of corporate management ... "

Wagner's decision left lingering doubts in the minds of the lawyers representing North Carolina and the FPC staff.

Because of this, the state of North Carolina and its Public Utilities Commission urged FPC members to listen to oral arguments on the case "at as early a date as the commission's schedule permits."

Sterling, Reeves, Andrews gain wildcat test; confirmer finals

Exploration has been slated for Sterling, Reeves and Andrews sectors, and a confirmation well has been completed in Ward County.

HNG Oil Co. No. 1-170 McDonald has been scheduled in Sterling as a 9,500-foot wildcat, and attempt to reopen the Konohassett (Fusselman) oil pool and to extend upper Cisco gas production in the Credo, East field ½ mile southwest.

It is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 170, block 29, W&NW survey, 1½ mile southwest of the depleted Konohassett field, which was opened in 1962.

REEVES SEARCHER

Fred M. Newman, Inc., Midland, filed application for permit to reenter and plug back to wildcat depth of 6,000 feet at No. 1 J. M. Rape Estate, former reopener of the Cable (Wolfcamp) field of Reeves.

Originally drilled by Texaco Inc., it was completed from the Wolfcamp in March 1970 to pump 44 barrels of 42.5-gravity oil and 200 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 10,752-11,004 feet. Drilled as an Ellenburger wildcat to 21,150 feet, it was plugged back to 11,500 feet at that time.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 24, block C-1, PSL survey, 15 miles southeast of Pecos.

It became depleted and was plugged and abandoned in September 1971.

ANDREWS REENTRY

Tipperary Oil & Gas Corp. has refiled reentry application for No. 1-B University, Andrews wildcat reentry operation, 19 miles southwest of Andrews townsite.

It spots 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 5, block 11, ULS, and is slated to plug back to wildcat depth of 3,200 feet. It is ½ mile north of the most southerly Yates gas well in the Three Bar field.

Originally drilled by Stanolind as No. 1 University, it was plugged and abandined in August 1946 at 8,480 feet.

Earlier, Tipperary had filed application to reenter at a site 1,650 feet from south and west lines of the section, and to clean out to 4,100 feet.

WARD EXTENDER

The Caprito (middle Delaware) oil pool of Ward County gained its second well and a 1⅞-mile southeast extension with completion of Gulf Oil Corp. No. 2-OA State, four miles northwest of Pyote.

It finaled for a daily pumping potential of 32 barrels of 39.1-gravity oil and 57 barrels of water, through perforations at 5,998-6,324 feet. The pay section had been fractured with 27,000 gallons, plus an unreported amount of sand.

Drilled to 6,560 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set one foot off bottom, and is plugged back to 6,540 feet. Application to drill originally was in the Block 17, Southeast (Delaware) field.

It is 1,980 feet fron north and east lines of section 23, block 17, ULS.

The discovery, Union Texas Petroleum Corp. No. 2-J West Caprito Unit-Graham Farms, finaled in Febrary 1975 to pump 71 barrels of 39.4-gravity oil and 89 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 6,004-6,164 feet.

Explorers scheduled

Wildcats have been planned for Nolan and Schleicher counties, while a stepout site has been staked in a Crosby field.

Tejas Production Co., Houston, will drill No. 1 Nita Mae Brooks, a 7,500-foot prospector in Nolan, 12 miles southeast of Sweetwater.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 53, block X, T&P survey.

SCHLEICHER PROBE

The Schleicher County test was staked by Claud B. Hamill of Houston. It is No. 1-A M. L. Mertz.

Location for the 6,600-foot project is 2,353 feet from north and 2,138 feet from east lines of section 7, block A, HE&WT survey, seven miles southeast of Eldorado.

CROSBY STEPOUT

United Co., operating from Lubbock, accounted for a ¾-mile northeast stepout to the Ha-Ra (Clear Fork) field of Crosby, 10 miles south of Lorenzo. It is No. 1 Ruthe Wheeler.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 1054, block 1, H&OB survey. It is slated for a bottom depth of 4,550 feet.

FISHER TEST

Jordan Engineering, Inc., Abilene, has refiled application to drill No. 1 L. L. Stuart, Fisher County scheduled 6,200-foot wildcat, eight miles southwest of Roby.

Permit, originally filed Sept. 10, 1976, has expired for the project which spots on the south edge of the Claytonville (multipay Canyon) field.

It is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 201, block 3, H&TC survey.

Two probe sites set

Gaines and Terry counties drew sites for prospectors.

Petro-Lewis Corp., Levelland, filed application for No. 1 Bookout, an 11,500-foot wildcat in Gaines, 10 miles northwest of Seminole.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 301, block G, CCSD&RGNG survey, ½ mile southwest of a 5,950-foot failure and one mile southeast of the Seminole, Northwest (Devonian) oil field.

J. C. Williamson and R. E. Williamson, Midland, will drill a 13,000-foot venture in Terry, four miles southwest of Wellman as No. 1 Coline.

Location is 1,800 feet from south and 800 feet from west lines of section 47, block DD, John H. Gibson survey, in the Wellman, West (San Andres oil and Yates gas) area.

Oil, Gas Story group names Straughan head

The American Oil and Gas Story Committee has announced the election of officers for the non-profit corporation which is developing a national network television mini-series on the story of the independent oil industry.

The organization elected Clark Straughan of Midland president. He is with Compton Corp., a Texas crude oil purchasing and trucking firm and has been active with the AOGS committee since its beginning last year.

J. C. Barnes Jr. of Midland was selected executive vice president, with Jim Cahill, Sonora; Bill Hall, Odessa; A. W. Dillard and Ed Thompson, both of Midland, serving as vice presidents.

Mrs. Ernest Angelo of Midland was elected treasurer, and Mrs. Tom Craddick of Midland was elected secretary.

The AOGS committee originated in Midland, but now includes members from other cities and states. The committee also is developing a national advisory board made up of energy experts from across the U.S. to assist in the film project.

Straughan said "the primary goal of AOGS is to better inform the public of all aspects of the oil and gas story, past, present and future, especially in those areas relating to the independent operators and their impact on the consumer, the overall economy, and the future of America. We believe that 8 to 12 hours of national prime time television is one of the best ways to do it."

The series is being developed as a mini-series similar to "Roots" and "Washington: Behind Closed Doors." Producers for the film are Bob Guenette, Paul Asselin and Pearce Beneke. Guenette and Asseline were in charge of such productions as "Victory at Entebee," "Roots (PartII)," "Monsters, Mysteries or Myths" and "The Making of Star Wars" which was aired on ABC in mid-September.

Guenette, Asselin and Benek will be in Midland Thursday and Friday for meetings with various segments of the oil industry.

Thursday morning they will see the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame and meet with Homer Fort, executive secretary of the museum.

Also on Friday, sessions are scheduled with a group of geologists, a group of landmen and a trip to OIME west of Midland to witness rig construction

They will attend a contributors party Thursday night.

Friday, the producers will meet with a group of independent oil and gas operations, and at 2 p. m. Friday a news conference will be held in the Arbor Room of the Midland Hilton. Following that, the three men will meet with the AOGS committee.

Mesa finals long setpout

Mesa Petroleum Co., Midland, has announced completion of its No. 1-J Strong-Federal Communitized, a ⅝-mile west and ¾-mile northeast extension to the White City (Morrow) field of Eddy County, N.M.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 4.894 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 10,858-11,164 feet.

Location is 1,650 feet from south and east lines of section 34-24s-26e, seven miles east of White City.

Windsor Dome has reserves of oil, gas

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — If the British royal family ever falls on hard times, maybe it can just drill an oil well in the back yard.

A geological consultant said Monday that Windsor Castle, historical summer home of English royalty, may be sitting on oil and gas reserves.

Allen P. Bennison visited the area recently and studied at the British Geological Museum. He based his assessment on surface geological studies.

But the 59-year-old scientist acknowledges that one just doesn't go around poking holes in the royal turf.

Mennonites may have been misled on citizenship

By BILL CURRY
The Washington Post

SEMINOLE, Tex. — To the hot, dry land of West Texas came the 100 German-speaking Mennonite families, pilgrims from Mexico and Canada who spent $2.6 million for 6,400 acres here, seeking a place for their own church, for their own school and most important, for their own close community.

"I don't know how to explain it," says Frank Wiebe, 25, Mexican-born and currently a Canadian citizen farming cotton fields here. "We are religious people, and we try to stick together, always in a group. We want to stay and work here and be happy and do our best. I don't know what we would do if we had to leave."

But he has been ordered by the U.S. government to do just that. Wiebe and the 525 other Mennonites here have been ruled illegal aliens, and many of them are recipients of cold form letters saying they must leave voluntarily or face forcible deportation.

"We don't have anything against them. It's the law of the land," said William J. Chambers, district director in Dallas for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which last week temporarily halted any further action while the group harvests its crops and presents its case. "Under the law, we have to move them out."

That confusion centers on a dispute over what the families were told about citizenship before they sold all theirs split many church members from their leader, Bishop Henry Reimer.

"Everything they have been told has proved to be wrong," says Seminole Mayor Bob Clark.

"We were told to just buy some land and be a Mennonite and be a farmer" and citizenship would follow, said Isaak B. Wall, who conducts the German-language school of the Old Colony Mennonite Church. "I was told that by Bishop Henry Reimer. I trusted his words. I would like to know whether U.S. people lied to him."

"I told them it would take 'some amount of time' to become citizens," says Reimer, who also said he never told the group that buying land was the only condition for citizenship.

He denies, too, some members' claim that they did not know that 60 per cent of their 6,400 acres lacks water for irrigation.

Bishop Reimer, whose English is hampered by a heavy German accent, disputed assertions by former followers Wall and Wiebe that Reimer has been deposed from the church's leadership. Reimer does acknowledge, however, that he has missed some Sunday services because of "illness."

Wall and Weibe claim that Reimer, despite strict Mennonite prescriptions against Alcohol, has a drinking problem. Reimer denies it.

Meanwhile, Seth Woltz, the real estate broker who handled the sale, says, "Immigration is just a word to me. I'm at a loss to know how people like that can end up in this situation."

Woltz, who says he split a $60,000 commission with two other agents, denied having misled the group's leaders, including Reimer, on immigration requirements. "I just knew nothing about what they had to do. We did take them to the library to give them a copy of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Chambers, of the Immigration Service, cites "This possibility that they were led astray" as one of the reasons for the temporary suspension of deportation procedures.

"Somewhere along the line, we didn't get the picture quite clear," said Wiebe. "We were told if we bought land we could get our green cards" — the ones that entitle immigrants to work in the United States.

The crushing news that they are here illegally deeply affected many members of the Old Colony Church.

Mennonites have a reputation for honesty, hard work and paying their debts. And now "They're feeling bad about it," Wiebe said. "Not just for themselves but because we are going against the rules and regulations."

These are not the first Mennonites to know hostility and adversity. Since the sect was founded in Switzerland in 1525, groups first wandered Europe and finally Russia in a succession of religious persecutions. In 1874 they arrived in Canada Nebraska and Kansas from Russia and northern Germany. It is said they brought with them the seeds for hard red winter wheat, now America's most widely grown wheat.

A large Mennonite settlement was also formed in Mexico. Religious hostility and eventually land expropriations sent many of them to Canada, particularly Ontario. Wiebe moved to Ontario 7 years ago, Wall 12 years ago.

But in Canada land was so expensive that many of the farm-oriented Mennonites had to get jobs; worse, they were scattered apart, some living 80 miles or so from fellow church members.

So there arose the notion of finding enough farm land that an entire community could grow with the crops. (Wiebe says there are perhaps another 2,500 Mennonites who would settle here, with thousands more willing to move to other areas in the United States.)

Last year a delegation headed by Bishop Reimer visited the United States to see land in Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri and agreed to buy the land here.

The church made a down payment of about $250,000, with the rest to be paid over 10 years, according to lawyer John L. Shepherd, who is now assisting the Mennonites.

Virtually all of the 100 families then sold everything, obtained 60-day, non-immigrant visitor visas and began arriving here. They bought land from the church and rented some; they bought modest homes or mobile homes. Their life savings were used as down payments for purchases that put them in debt for land and farm equipment.

Wiebe says he is $27,000 in debt just on his land. He sits in the linoleum-floored living room of his sparse frame house. Outside on low green plants the readying cotton has spilled its bolls. With harvest two weeks off, Wiebe had feared being deported before he could bring in his cotton and pay his debts.

In the pale-blue one-room schoolhouse, where the boys sit on one side and the girls on the other, teacher Isaak Wall — who came here with $7,500 — says he is now $7,000 in debt. Wall is paid by the church according to members' earnings, to teach the 49 children aged 5 to 13.

The hand-made desks hold individual writing slates and thick handsome copies of "Die Bibel" (The Bible), the basic reading text. The same desks also hold Hang Ten theme books and at least one copy of Truckin' magazine.

"The biggest reason we are here — this is big, open land where we could settle down and have our own church, our own school and make a decent living," Wall who was an auto mechanic in Ontario, tells a visitor.

For now the congregation of Old Colony has two goals — to be able to stay, and to return their church to harmony. Toward staying, they now pin their hopes on the complicated process by which they can be given jobs if American workers are not available.

Such jobs have materialized in the community, some 100 of them in a factory organized by real estate man Woltz and 14 other investors who put up $10,000 each toward a plant for making windmills that generate electricity.

The venture was set up specifically to aid the Mennonites, without whom there would probably be no work force. Unemployment here is 2.3 per cent.

But even if the U.S. Labor Department approves the hiring, the Mennonites still must win immigrant visas. Some 20,000 visas are available each year to migrants form Mexico, and the visas are allotted by place of birth.

So even though many of the Mexican-born Mennonites are Canadian citizens, now, they still must compete with the crush of applicants from Mexico. The annual allotment for Mexico was used up by June, while Canadian allotments go begging.

The new allotment year starts Oct. 1.

Chambers says the availability of visas is determined by the State Department, and there is no way of knowing whether the group will be among the lucky ones. There are other priorities, other applicants.

In a county (Gaines) that recently pumped its billionth barrel of oil and harvests 200,000 bales of cotton a year, the prospect of hard-working, self-supporting people being deported is a supreme puzzle.

The day before Wiebe and the others were to have left the country the morning paper carried front-page pictures of a new group of Vietnamese refugees arriving, to be assisted by the government.

House bill aims at Ronald Reagan

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A House wag from California has introduced a bill to create "Reagan's Rough Riders," an expeditionary force of volunteers to keep the Panama Canal open in the event new treaties are not ratified and hostilities break out.

The bil, sponsored by Democratic Rep. John L. Burton (D-Calif.), calls for commissioning former California Gov. Ronald Reagan as a colonel in the Army and giving him a white horse on which to lead his "Rough Riders" into combat.

However, if Reagan preferred to remain at headquarters in the rear of the action, he would have to supply his own white horse, according to the legislation.

Burton, a San Franciscan given to flights of whimsy, supports Senate ratification of new treaties to replace the Panama Canal treaty of 1903. The 1903 treaty was signed by President Theodore Roosevelt, who led the famed charge by volunteer "Rough Riders" up San Juan Hill, Cuba, in the Spanish-American War.

Polygamist leader, three others sought

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The leader of a polygamist sect, two of his sons, one of his wives and two other men were being sought for the killing of a rival polygamist Patriarch.

Federal arrest warrants were issued Tuesday for Ervil LeBaron, 50, and five of his followers in the death of rival leader Rulon Allred, shot by two unidentified women last May.

Mexican authorities have been asked to cooperate in the search for LeBaron, who recently was seen in Mexico City, authorities said.

The warrants bring to 11 the number of persons charged with murder, conspiracy or both in the case.

Allred, a Salt Lake City naturopath, had at least six wives and 40 children, police said.

Others being sought are Arturo Morel LeBaron, 27, and Edward Marston, 22, both of them sons of the fugitive cult leader; Rena Lei Chynoweth, 19, one of his wives, and Donald Eugene Sullivan, 26, and John Sullivan, 22, police said.

Federal fugitive warrants also have been issued for the six persons, police said.

The 11 suspects have been identified as members of the Church of the Lamb of God, which police said has hundreds of members mostly in the Southwest and Mexico.

David E. Yocom, of the Salt Lake County attorney's office, said, "LeBaron and his followers usually are armed with handguns, rifles, shotguns and automatic rifles and should be considered armed and dangerous."

Four members of the sect were arrested last week in Denver and Dallas remained in jail without bond on murder and conspiracy charges. Another woman, charged with conspiracy, has agreed to surrender to authorities, according to her lawyer.

Midmonth announcement of acreage limits likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final decision by the Carter administration on whether to cut back on corn and other livestock feed acreage next year will be delayed at least another two weeks.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said in an interview Wednesday that an acreage setaside announcement on 1978 corn and other feed probably will be made soon after the Agriculture Department issues its next 1977 crop production estimates on Oct. 12. Two weeks ago Bergland said that the feed grains acreage decision would be announced by Oct. 1, which is Saturday. But he now says that more time is needed.

"I think we have to wait," Bergland said. "We want to take a good hard look at the situation before making an announcement."

Bergland said that while the 1977 corn crop still appears to be huge, there are at least two factors which are prompting a delay in deciding on 1978 feed grains.

First, he said, is an apparent spread in aflatoxin contamination in this year's corn crop. Aflatoxin is known to be a potent cause of cancer in some species of animals and is viewed as a potential health hazard to humans. It can occur naturally when a certain kind of mold develops in corn and some other seed crops.

Aflatoxin has been found in heavy concentrations in corn grown in the Southeast. It also has been detected to lesser extents in many northern areas, including Iowa and some other important producing regions.

Bergland said that reports of aflatoxin so far in the heart of the Corn Belt are not great cause for alarm. But he said more information is needed before making a final acreage decision on the 1978 crop.

For example, if aflatoxin results in large amounts of corn being condemned, USDA will have to think about altering its tentative plans for requiring farmers to idle some of their feed grain acreage next year to help reduce rising surpluses.

The department already has announced that wheat farmers will have to reduce plantings 20 per cent for the 1978 harvest in order to qualify for full government price support benefits.

Puppetry course slated at Midland College

Puppets are coming to Midland College, where students will have the opportunity to learn how to operate them.

The start of a new evening short course, titled "Rod Puppetry," has been announced by James Bramlett, director of the college's department of Community Services.

"This should be a fascinating class for anyone who is interested in the mechanics and special techniques of puppetry," Bramlett said.

A rod puppet essentially is a hand puppet with a movable mouth which is operated by the puppeteer's hand inside the body. A rod or wire, attached to one or both of the puppet's hands, is operated from below stage by the puppeteer.

Allan Collins, safety supervisor for Delta Drilling Co., uses a stage and about 30 puppets to demonstrate and explain the art of puppetry. Collins, who instructed in this field for two years at Abilene Christian University, is enthusiastic about the teaching value of puppets.

"While they are not a special curriculum in themselves, they are a valuable teaching aid. Churches and educational institutions all over the world are using them as such," Collins said.

"If students want to get deeply involved, such as writing scripts and performing, we'll surely help them," Collins added.

While at ACU, Collins had students from Canada, India, Australia, South Africa, as well as the United States. "I had 500 my first year," Collins said, "and more than that the next year."

As a rule, a puppeteer has a message he wants to convey. Collins will show the right way to do this, and things that should be avoided. In addition, he will discuss the fine points of handling a puppet to achieve realism and life-like qualities.

"The entire message can be destroyed by the wrong tilt of the puppet's head, or the wrong exit from stage," Collins explained. "I plan to demonstrate this so that the students will know what constitutes a good show.

"While all students may not sign up for the class with the intention of becoming puppeteers, they will leave the class with a working knowledge and appreciation of what makes puppets work.

"Hopefully, they will develop an enthusiasm for the medium that will lead them to explore the possibilities for using uppets as a means of communication in their churches and schools."

Those interested in taking the four week course, which is limited to 20 students, should preregister by going to room 140 of the Occupational-Technical Building at Midland College between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. The office will remain open during the lunch hour. Classes will begin Oct. 3, and are scheduled to meet on Mondays, 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 100 of the Occupational-Technical Building. The fee is $8.

Former football player to seek Poage position

MARLIN, Tex. (AP) — Marvin Leath, a former high school football coach who went into banking, announced today as a candidate for the congressional seat being vacated by Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage.

Leath, 46, said he thought voters wanted a "man of mature judgment."

His announcement was repeated at news conferences in Waco, Temple, Killeen, Brownwood, Belton and Taylor.

Leath was a defensive guard on the Texas Longhorn team that beat Tennessee in the 1953 Cotton Bowl. He coached at Henderson High School in 195657 and began investing in banks in 1962.

He has served as an officer and director of banks in Marlin, Bremond, Chilton and Kosse.

He was Poage's special assistant in 1972-73.

Leath founded the Central National Bank in Waco in 1975 and is also vice president and director of Wilson Building Materials Co., Inc.

His financial statement shows a gross income last year of $60,746 with a net worth of $514,900.

Carter defends Mondale

By JACK NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Carter, in an extraordinary response to rising questions here about Vice President Mondale's power in his Administration, said Wednesday that Mondale had played crucial roles in domestic and foreign affairs, including the Bakke civil rights case and the strategic arms talks.

In addition, he said, Mondale was among those advising him on how to deal with the controversy over the financial affairs of former Budget Director Bert Lance.

The President telephoned the Los Angeles Times' Washington Bureau and said he "couldn't believe it" when Press Secretary Jody Powell told him a Times reporter had raised questions about whether Mondale had been asserting himself and exerting influence in his dealings with the President.

"Let me give you a few examples that might refute that," said Carter, who proceeded in a 30-minute interview to cite several examples and give details of his relationship with Mondale.

Carter said Mondale had been largely responsible for persuading the Justice Department to clarify the Administration's committment to affirmative action in the brief it filed with the Supreme Court in the Bakke case.

He said Mondale felt the brief as originally written by the Justice Department had defects "and in as forceful way as possible induced me to take another look at it ....."

At his suggestion, Carter said, Mondale met with Aty. Gen. Griffin Bell and several White House officials in the vice president's office and worked out changes in the brief.

The President said he had been inclined originally to let the Justice Department handle the case without the intervention of the White House, "but Fritz was persistent in saying this would be interpreted accurately as the philosophy and expression of purpose of the Administration. I had not seen the significance of it."

On SALT proposals, Carter said, "before going into a negotition with the National Security Council to evolve our nation's politics, I always very carefully check with Fritz. He knows the details of past negotiations as well or better than I do. He has full participation."

"On the Mideast question," he said, "he's been even more active. He has a very good relationship with senators who have been particularly involved in the Middle East for a number of years and have credentials within the Jewish community that I have never had."

Carter said Mondale also had helped him solve a serious problem in getting the public to understand his efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East. He said Mondale would tell him, "I think we have a problem here, why don't you let me handle it?"

A speech spelling out the Administration's Mideast policy and delivered by Mondale in San Francisco on June 17 was written by the vice president himself, Carter said.

"When Fritz brought me the draft of the speech, I never changed a word of it," Carter said. "The point that ought to be made is not that Fritz goes off in isolation and drafts a speech. Fritz and I discuss these matters.

"My time is extremely valuable and I don't waste time. I do meticulous work, but that's not wasted time. Fritz and I listen to the same presentations and we form our ideas together."

Carter said he spends more time with Mondale than with all members of the White House staff combined.

Tass tells of launch

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government launched a new space station, Salyut 6, today, Tass announced.

Salut 6 apparently was sent up unmanned but in preparation for a new series of manned space flights. There was speculation that a crew would be rocketed to it by Oct. 4, the 20th anniversary of the launching of the first artificial space satellite by the Soviet Union.

Tass described Salyut 6 as an "orbital scientific station."

Another major Soviet anniversary is coming up, the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution on Nov. 7. However, two days ago in Prague three Soviet cosmonauts denied a space spectacular was being prepared for that celebration.

N.Y. money problems may soon 'reappear'

By ROBERT RENO
Newsday

NEW YORK — The pipeline of special federal cash which has kept New York City alive since December, 1975, is scheduled to run dry in nine months.

And despite the large progress made towards setting the city's financial house in order N.Y. will be unable to pay its workers next July unless a substitute is found for the present credit arrangement it enjoys with the U.S. Treasury.

The problem will waiting for the mayor when he moves into Gracie Mansion Jan. 1.

Most city officials, publicly and privately, are saying that the solution lies in an extension of the Federal Seasonal Financing Act for the City of New York. This was the much-debated federal rescue of New York which President Ford adamantly opposed, then grudgingly accepted and which Congress finally passed after great difficulty in 1975.

City officials are confidently predicting that both Congress and the President will be more receptive this time. But they may be doing so at the city's peril. Both Sens. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Edward Brooke (R-Mass.), ranking members of the Senate Banking Committee, are saying they strongly oppose any extension of the act which allows the city to draw up to $2.3 billion in so called "seasonal" from the Treasury. Seasonal loans are used to make up periodic cash shortages and are fully paid up by the end of each fiscal year.

Without at least a limited extension, however, city officials concede that New York could by next summer be doing a repeat of the cliff-hanging days of 1975 when on certain occasions it was barely able to meet its payrolls.

A spokesman for the banking committee which handles such legislation said this week that "the committee has been fairly unanimous in opposition" to extension of the act.

Proxmire and Brooke wrote to Gov. Hugh Carey last week urging him to reconvene the state Legislature in order to pass legislation which would allow the city to re-enter the private credit market and end its dependence on federal loans.

Essentially the city is face with a selling job. It must convince the investing community that its notes are sound. And it must convince Congress that it has made the sacrifices and accomplished the fiscal reforms to warrant an extension of the loan agreement.

Without the federal loan agreement as a supplement and backup to borrowing in the public markets the city faces the constant danger that it may not be able to market all the notes it needs to meet its seasonal cash demands.

The current thinking is that the public markets will not for some time be ready to supply all the $2 billion which the city needs annually. At best the city will have to pay extraordinarily high interest rates for the notes it does sell.

Despite wariness on the part of both Congress and the investing public, the city seems as of now to have a good case for the argument that its notes are a good buy and that the federal credit agreement should be extended.

To begin with, the $2 billion which the city needs does not represent a budget deficit. The city needs this money because its revenues — taxes, normal federal aid, state payments — come in at irregular periods during the year. City expenses, on the other hand, come due with regularity every day of the year.

The $2 billion in federal loans which the city is scheduled to receive this year are all due to be repaid by the end of its fiscal year, June 30. They represent no real risk on the part of the federal government.

Some time this winter the city is planning a tentative re-entry into the private credit market which has been closed to it since the spring of 1975. But, before it does, the Legislature will be asked to place added guarantees in the city's new notes. This is expected to include provision for a trust fund with an outside trustee to guarantee repayment.

The new city notes, when they are offered, are likely to be better secured financially and legally than any other municipal notes in the country.

With all this going for it why then does the market still remain so skittish about New York securities and why is Congress still reluctant to extend the loan agreement?

In the case of Congress, opposition ranges from traditional hostility to New York to a genuine fear that any extension would be added encouragement to other municipalities to throw themselves on the mercy of the Treasury.

In the case of the banks and the investing public New York is learning that a stain on the city's credit is very difficult to remove. In the fiscal year 1974 the city was able to sell $8 billion in short-term notes with relative ease. After what has happened since, it is unlikely that the city can sell a quarter of that figure next year.

MARC announces new program

A new training program designed to certify persons as sitter-companions to care for the developmentally disabled has been announced by the Midland Association for retarded Citizens (MARC).

The program will train persons 18 and older to go into the home of developmentally disabled persons and give them complete care, according to Mrs. N.R. Rousselot, MARC president.

MARC will sponsor 10 weeks of training as soon as interviews are completed and trainees are chosen.

The sessions will be held at the Opportunity Center, 2701 N. A St. from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Thursday.

Following the training, MARC will set up a central placement office for the sitter-companions and those needing the service.

The training sessions will cover such topics as who are the developmentally disabled, helping the handicapped with physical problems, parent problems, experience with the handicapped, working with elderly developmentally disabled, visits to the public school special education classes, and a visit to one of the nearby state facilities.

MARC will use teachers of the handicapped, parents, an occupational therapist, nurses and Family Services of Midland, Inc. as instructors.

The sitter-companions will provide short-term temporary respite care in times of family crisis or need for the mentally and-or physically handicapped child or adult who is developmentally disabled. The sitter-companions will earn minimum wage. Payment for the use of the service will be decided on a sliding scale.

The developmentally disabled are those persons, including the mentally retarded, epileptic, autistic and cerebral palsied, whose disablility originated before the person was 18, has continued, or can be expected to continue indefinitely, or constitutes a substantial handicap. About 6 per cent of Midland's population is developmentally disabled.

Persons interested in applying for the training must be at least 18 and in good health. There is no education requirement.

For further information, or to set up an interview appointment, persons may call MARC at 682-9771.

Travelers still see fighting

By DAVID DAVIES
Agence France-Presse

HONG KONG — Fighting is still going on between Vietnam and Cambodia, according to travelers who recently visited Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon).

The travelers said Vietnamese officials told them that the Cambodians moved across the frontier soon after the fall of Saigon, when the North Vietnamese had not yet established their control over the Mekong River Delta.

At one time the Cambodians had penetrated as far as 60 miles inside Vietnamese territory and remained there a long time, according to the reports.

Fighting is said to have been fierce, with the Vietnamese using tanks to push back the Cambodians.

Vietnamese officials said that two to three Cambodian divisions had been wiped out but were vague about when the battles occurred.

Vietnamese sources claimed that the Cambodians by now had been pushed out of Vietnamese territory.

Troops taking part in the frontier battles were said to be new recruits who had not fought in the Vietnam War.

Many veterans of that war occupy key posts in the civil administration. The travelers said the Hanoi government is relying heavily on ex-soldiers to run the country because of their discipline and efficiency.

The travelers said that all key posts in governmental departments and in the economic sector in the south are held by northerners, most of whom lack the necessary experience. As a result the economy is said to be running down gradually and exports to be declining.

Businessmen who have had dealings with the Vietnamese complain that the quality of Vietnamese products has declined. The Communists reportedly refuse to employ any one who was active under the former Saigon regime. This has resulted in mass unemployment of former government officials, servicemen and professional people such as doctors, lawyers and technicians, the travelers said.

In any case, they continued, wages are so low that many people are not interested in working and prefer to live on their savings, or by selling such luxury items as cameras and hi-fi sets, for which the Russians and Vietnamese from the north are eager customers.

The travelers said that many unemployed people in Ho Chi Minh City seemed to be near starvation. There were reportedly many robberies as well as begging and prostitution.

Most shops in the city center are closed, and all signs in English or French have been replaced by Vietnamese signs or simply pained out, according to travelers.

Cholon, Saigon's Chinatown, was just the same as before "liberation," the travelers said. Shops and restaurants there are as busy as ever, and black-market articles like American cigarettes find a ready market despite high prices.

The travelers said the military was not visible in Saigon, and that security was left to police composed of a mixture of northerners and southerners.

Groppi leaving his church

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James E. Groppi, a former Roman Catholic priest who gained national attention in the 1960s as a leader of civil rights demonstrations, now is trying to become an Episcopal priest.

Groppi said he and his wife, Margaret, have been attending St. Andrew's Episcopal Church for a year. He goes before a church commission Oct. 4 for interviews that could lead to his being accepted as a priest.

He said he doesn't feel he is leaving the Catholic church because "the essential teachings are the same."

Groppi was excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church several years ago when he married, despite warnings from superiors that priests were not permitted to do so.

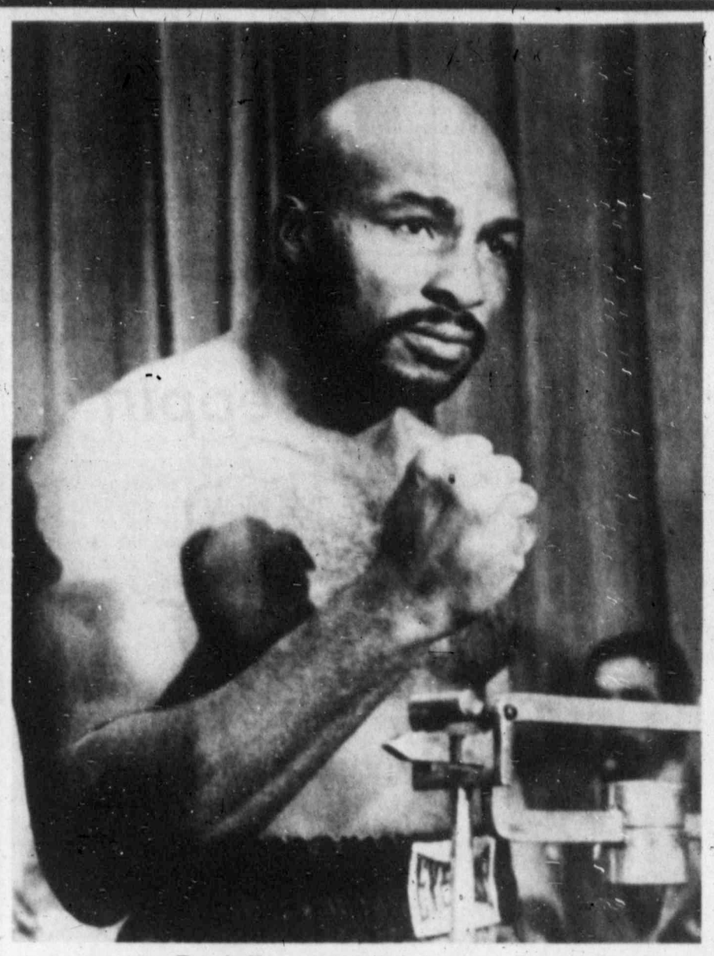
Muhammad Ali...risks title



Earnie Shavers,..big knockout punch.

Quick ending seen as Ali, Shavers tee up

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight it's Earnie Shavers' turn to take a crack at Muhammad Ali, who calls the power-punching challenger Earnie Shaffers or the Acorn.

It's for the world heavyweight championship over 15 rounds or less in Madison Square Garden in what will be the 35-year-old Ali's 22nd title fight.

It also will be Ali's 19th title defense in his two terms as champion and it comes one year and one day after Ali's unanimous 15-round decision over Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium.

Hardly anyone expects this fight to go 15 rounds and hardly anyone expects a victory by the 33-year-old Shavers, of Warren, Ohio, whose shaven head caused Ali to tab him the Acorn.

SHAVERS, whose chin and stamina are questionable, feels he can go 15 rounds, but acknowledges it would be extremely difficult for him to win a decision. His best chance lies in his strength vs. strength battle against the 35-year-old champion—Shavers' devastating punch against Ali's great ability to take a punch.

"He can't hit harder than Sonny Liston, or Joe Frazier or George Forman," said Ali.

"I'll put a lot of pressure on him and if I hit him on the chin he'll go," said Shavers. "He has a lot more wars, tough fights. They start taking a toll on you."

Ali, who officially weighed 225 to 211¼ for Shavers Wednesday, preferred to talk about experience and the ability to handle the pressure of heavyeight title fights.

"I'll tell you about this sport," said Ali. "It's like a horse race, like a stock auto race. It's the brains that win, not the physical ability."

THEN THE champion jumped on the fact that, except for a brief confrontation at a midtown news conference Monday, the Shavers camp has kept its fighter away from a face-to-face meeting with Ali.

"He's scared," said Ali of the 33-year-old challenger, who weighed in and left before the champion appeared.

"He seriously doesn't want to see me here. But he'll have to face me in the ring. Then when he hears the national anthem"—Ali then hummed a few bars—"and when he hears the crowd start shouting, 'Ali, Ali, Ali,' he's gonna say to himself, 'I must be crazy. What did I get into?' Then while the referee is giving instructions, I'm gonna reach over and shine his head."

The chants of "Ali, Ali, Ali" should start around 9 p.m. CDT. The fight is scheduled to start about 10 minutes later. It will be televised live by NBC, with no blackout of the New York metropolitan area. Garden officials are hoping for a crowd of at least 15,000. Ticket prices were scaled from $100 down to $20.

The entire television show is set for 8 p.m.-10 p.m., with two other fights scheduled to be shown live. They are scheduled 10-rounders between heavyweights Alfredo Evangelista of Spain, who was outpointed by Ali in a dull title fight last May 16, and Iedro Soto of New York, and light heavyweights Mike Rossman of Turnersville, N.J. and Gary Summerhayes of Canada.

ALI IS getting $3 million, boosting his total purse money to more than $45 million. Shavers is getting $300,000.

Tom Landry cloaks optimism in caution

By BOB DILLON

Coach Tom Landry likes the way his Dallas Cowboys have been playing in two NFL games, but is also very cautious about the future, mainly due to a young defensive unit.

Landry, the quiet, analytical boss of the Cowboys who is the only head coach the club has had, probably is best described as the coach who created defenses to overcome offenses, then created offense to overcome those defenses.

The former All-SWC fullback at the University of Texas and All-Pro cornerback with the New York Giants had, heading into last season, guided Dallas to 11 consecutive winning seasons and into the league playoffs in 10 of those 11 years.

Tom is No. 6 on the list of all-time winningest NFL coaches.

HIS CLUB is off to a fast start — just like last year after beating Minnesota and New York, but Landry fears a big letdown this Sunday when the Cowboys take on Tampa Bay winless in two NFL starts.

"The defense is young and is able to cover up a lot of its mistakes with hustle and I hope that we hustle enough this week instead of turning our attention to the St. Louis Cardinals who we play after the Bucs."

Tampa Bay has yet to score a touchdown in its first two games, losing to Philadelphia, 13-3 and to the Vikings, 9-3, last Saturday. Landry knows that Coach John McKay's Bucs have some talented athletes. "They (Tampa Bay) have two former USC greats who played under McKay in college is Anthony Davis and Ricky Bell. So, they can bust loose anytime now," said Landry.

A lot of Cowboy fans have been happy with both the Washington Redskins and Cardinals losing openers two weeks ago, but Landry is far from relaxed over the one-game lead his team has over those two rivals.

"BOTH WILL be tough and contenders down the line and always play well against us whether it be on the road or in Texas Stadium."

At 53, Landry has grown with the Cowboys — and prospered. Last year's 11-3 mark upped his all-time record to 112-40-2 since 1966, a better record than any team in professional football during this time span.

Thus far, the Cowboys' past records are somewhat like cold potatoes to Landry. "I don't look at past records, because they mean nothing."

There was plenty of motivation for the 1977 season, since a blazing 9-1 start last year dropped off to a 2-2 finish and a first-game playoff loss to the Los Angeles Rams on the home carpet in Irving.

"It was an unusual year," says Landry of 1976.

"Our major goal last year was to win the Eastern Division (which they did). We felt if we won the East we would have a good enough team to go back to the Super Bowl (for the fourth time). It didn't work out that way, however."

LANDRY FEELS that the first seven games last year were probably the best Dallas has had as a team, but the Cowboys lost their momentum and never were able to regain it.

Anyway, the Cowboys are off and running with some high expectations for this year. When All-Pro tackle Rayfield Wright returns and if Tony Dorsett continues to improve, the Cowboy offense may really get rolling.

COWBOY NOTES: Looking back on last week's game with the Giants, the sports scribes were hot, the cheerleaders were miserable, despite the skimpy outfits and everybody in general suffered... Beasley Reece, former Cowboy and cornerback was fired up for the Cowboys. "It was a funny feeling. It's the kind of game I found easy to get up for. I talked to some of them (Cowboys) on the telephone and told them what I was going to do to them, and they told me what they were going to do to me. Because of this, the Cowboys will always be a good game for me. It's simple, you know the guys, you know you're going up against a good team, and you just go out there and play hard and agressive against them, so you have something to laugh about later."...Gordon Gravelle, Giant offensive tackle, felt that the 56-degree temperatures in New York the week before the Dallas game really hurt his team. On the words that he had with Cowboy and Harvey Martin: "We had a little discussion. He asked me about my wife and I asked him about his. "Gravelle feels there is no comparison between Dallas and Washington. "The Cowboys still have one of the best defenses in the league."

Brown's coach is still fuming

By JOHN SHURR

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Coach Bob Griffin of Rhode Island has apologized to the Brown football team for his actions after last Saturday's game. But his Ivy League counterpart, John Anderson, is still fuming.

Griffin said Wednesday he was sorry he hadn't let his team cross the field to congratulate the Brown players on their 28-10 victory. However, the Ram coach offered no concessions.

THE TWO coaches exchanged heated words at midfield after Griffin accused Anderson of being responsible for spying on Rhode Island's practice session three days earlier.

"We did have a situation develop last Thursday that was strange and almost staggered the imagination," Griffin said. "But we felt there was enough to it to bring it to their attention at Brown."

Griffin reported that there had been a truck parked near the Ram practice field that sped away when several Rhode Island assistant coaches went to find out why it was there.

"A very, very similar truck was observed up here (at Brown)," he added. "Three digits of the license plate did correspond. The markings did correspond.

"BUT I understand Brown says the truck was accounted for and if it was accounted for, then obviously there has been some grievous mistake. I apologize for anything we may have done to precipitate this thing."

Griffin apologized during a press luncheon at Brown and even offered to take a lie-detestor test. But the two coaches sat at opposite sides of the room and made no effort to speak to each other.

Apparently Anderson was expecting the apology to go farther.

Anderson said he had planned to fight the accusations but added: "Now, in view of this statement,' I think the issue should be dropped."

Sooners' victory keeps the door open

When Uwe Van Schamann kicked a field goal with three seconds left to lift Oklahoma past Ohio State, 29-28, last Saturday, it may not have determined the national championship, but it kept the door open.

An Ohio State victory would have slammed the door shut on the outlanders and made it a private Big 10 party to be settled when the Buckeyes met Michigan in their annual conference title game.

The Buckeyes have clear sailing from now until Michigan with only USC in the Rose Bowl as a final obstacle.

Michigan still has Texas A&M to hurdle this week, a barrier the Wolverines should be favored to clear with fullback George Woodard on the Aggies' ailing list.

JUST AS an Ohio State win over Oklahoma would have shutout the rest of the nation, an Aggie upset of Michigan would snuff out the Big 10's last hope for a national title That is, unless this happens to be one of those years in which no one comes through with a clean slate. And the way things have started out, that's not beyond the realm of possibilities. Ohio State, Alabama, Maryland, Houston, Pittsburgh, Texas Tech, Notre Dame and Nebraska are already early-season casualties.

National championship considerations aside, the Sooners and Buckeyes both came out of Saturday's conflict with honor, sulking Woody Hayes notwithstanding.

One of the raps against Ohio State has been that it breezed through a series of preconference setups and then disappeared into the safety of the Big 10 where a No. 1 ranking usually boiled down to the Michigan game.

TED BATTLES

BATTLE SCENE

SATURDAY, THE Buckeyes risked their reputation against a team that has won two of the last three national titles and even in defeat earned the respect of even the most violent anti-Woody fans by the way they battled back after a disasterous start that had the game bordering on the verge of a complete rout.

Oklahoma, of course, invaded hostile Ohio Stadium, survived the loss of its bellwether quarterback Thomas Lott and won on late-game daring that is becoming a characteristic of Barry Switzer teams. And what's more, they did it with a freshman quarterback at the helm much of the way.

WHILE ON the subject of national championships, it may boil down to a question of which team has the most durable quarterback or the most quality depth at the position. Then again, maybe it will take a team that doesn't have a quarterback-oriented defense to pull it off.

The sick bay list thus far has been staggering and has wrecked the carefully mapped route of more than one aspiring contender.

The list isn't complete, but quarterbacks who have gone down with injury include Texas Tech's Rodney Allison, Lott, Ohio State'a Rod Gerald, Alabama's Jeff Rutledge, Houston's Danny Davis, Pittsburgh's

Ags' Grulich gets SWC honors

By The Associated Press

It was a safety blitz in September that probably will help write the final chapter in December on the Southwest Conference football championship.

Junior Carl Grulich blazed into the Texas Tech backfield from his position as Texas A&M's free safety to nail quarterback Rodney Allison last Saturday. They both went down in a tangle and Allison suffered a broken bone in his left leg.

"I just contained him, wrapped him around the waist while he was twisting," said Grulich. "The weight of my body landed on his foot at an angle...it was a freak thing."

Grulich added, "I'm sorry it happened but it wasn't even a hard tackle."

The 6-foot-1, 200-pounder from Richardson Pearce made 13 solo tackles, seven assists, tipped three passes and sacked the quarterback two times for minus 37 yards in A&M's 33-17 victory.

For Grulich, it earned him The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award.

Grulich is a converted quarterback and lasted six weeks at that position as a freshman at A&M. "I'm really happy back there now even though I'm probably the slowest guy in our defensive backfield," said Grulich, who runs a consistent 4.6 in the 40. "I love playing for Coach (Melvin) Robertson. He seems to have a knack for putting people in the right place."

Grulich is the second leading tackler on the Aggie team although he occasionally uses technique that makes Robertson cringe.

"I've always tackled with my head down and the coaches have tried to get me to change," said Grulich. "They're afraid I will get hurt.

"It's just sort of a habit I got into. I'm not missing a lot of tackles. I've tried to tackle with my head up but it just doesn't work."

"I'm really looking forward to Saturday," said Grulich as the fifth-ranked Aggies tackle the third-ranked Michigan Wolverines.

"I like the idea of playing in front of 104,000 people ...that should really turn our defense on," he added.

Player dies after practice

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A 16-year-old football player died Thursday less than 24 hours after collapsing during a practice session at Whitesburg High School.

Principal Jack Burkich said Robert Collins was discussing a play with his teammates when he "suddenly complained of feeling dizzy and slumped over.

"Several of the boys caught Robert and helped him to the ground," said Burkich.

Fun, games are over, it's time to play for keeps

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The fun and games are over for three of the six area football districts since loop action begins Friday night on three fronts.

Districts 3-AAA, 6-A and 9-A begin loop warfare and a new perspective dominates the air. All teams begin anew, and past records, if not completely forgotten, can at least be put aside. It's a new ball game and this is where the playoff teams have to perform.

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes of 3-AAA are a good example. The Tors lost three of four games in the non-conference action, but their first victory came last week against Hobbs, and the Tors have new life heading into district. The Tors travel to Sweetwater, who won three non-conference games including an upset over Graham last week. This one counts.

OTHER 3-AAA battles will include Brownfield at Lake View and Lubbock Estacado at Lubbock Dunbar. Lake View, the defending champions, still look the strongest since it is the only team that has escaped without a loss to this date.

None of the District 6-A teams escaped non-conference play without losing at least one game. District favorite Marfa, however, defeated two AA schools and look the strongest. Marfa belted Crane, 35-20, last week and will host Clint to kick off the loop action.

The McCamey Badgers, owners of an upset over powerful Stanton, jump into league action against Van Horn after losing to AA Ozona last week. Wink, fresh off an upset over Jal, N. M., will travel to Iraan, who lost their first game last week to Wall.

THE RANKIN Red Devils travel to Jim Ned in a non-conference battle. Rankin was idle last week and will jump into 6-A action next week against McCamey at home.

District 9-A starts without favorite Wall on the schedule. Wall, fresh off that 20-0 blanking of high scoring Iraan, draws the open date. But undefeated Menard hosts all-beaten Mason while Robert Lee entertains Junction.

The Reagan County Owls, who tied ninth ranked AA Sonora last week, hosts winless Eldorado in the other 9-A contest. The Owls lost their first three outings of the season, but seem to be coming along fast after the 14-14 tie with Sonora.

The rest of the slate is of the non-district variety. Undefeated, but once tied, Andrews travels to Levelland in an effort to keep up with hot 2-AAA teams. Fort Stockton, Pecos and Monahans are all undefeated and untied in that loop. Andrews is the preseason choice to win 2-AAA, but it looks tougher all the time.

THE STANTON Buffaloes host New Home in an attractive offering Friday. The Buffs have been nursing injuries, and are trying to survive until they can get the squad healthy again. New Home tied Plains, a 5-A opponent of Stanton, last week, so Buff fans will want to compare the home team against the Leopards.

Crane, still suffering from that 35-20 loss to Marfa last week, travels to Fabens in a rebound effort. The Cranes have won only one game this year, but the schedule has been tough.

One of the most attractive offerings will come in Seagraves where the No. 1 ranked Class A Eagles will take on AA Ozona in what could be one of the best games of the year.

Friday's Schedule

District 2-AAA: Andrews at Levelland, Fort Stockton open, Kermit at Monahans, Odessa Ector at Lubbock High (Saturday), Artesia, N. M., at Pecos, Seminole open.

District 3-AAA: Lamesa at Sweetwater, Brownfield at Lake View, Lubbock Estacado at Lubbock Dunbar, Snyder open.

District 7-AA: Crane at Fabens, Kermit at Monahans, Ozona at Seagraves, Sonora at Brady.

District 5-A: O'Donnell at Sands, New Home at Stanton, Shallowater at Farwell, Ozona at Seagraves, Plains at Springlake-Earth.

District 6-A: Clint at Marfa, Wink at Iraan, Van Horn at McCamey, Rankin at Jim Ned.

District 9-A: Eldorado at Reagan County, Mason at Menard, Junction at Robert Lee, Wall open.

. . .Now about those forecasts

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Sports writers spend a lot of time before the football season starts trying to tell the public who is going to be the big winners when the season is over, and more times than not, they end up wrong.

I've spent a lot of time trying to tell people that those games are silly games. It has to be proven on the field, not behind a typewriter. The typewriter creates dreams, but football teams create wins and losses.

As a yearly habit this time of year, some of my preconceived ideas about the football season has changed. It's really nothing new.

For instance, I now feel that District 3-AAA is somewhat weaker overall than I thought before the season started, and District 2-AAA is stronger. District 6-A is living up to predictions, but that is the switch from seasons past.

BEFORE THE season ever put a foot on the playing field, writers were saying that four or five teams would be in the running for the 3-AAA crown. After four games, it looks to me like defending champion Lake View will not even meet a hurdle along the way. That might change as early as next week, and that's the beauty of football.

Andrews' Mustangs drew the favorites' role in 2-AAA before the season started. Not many people are changing their minds at this point in time, but there are not too many breathers week in and week out for the Mustangs. This loop could again be decided on the last weekend just like last year when Andrews lost the title to Monahans after winning their first nine games. Fort Stockton, Pecos, Monahans and Andrews have not lost a game this year while Odessa Ector and Seminole both have two wins. This race could produce the best fireworks of the year.

DISTRICT 6-A listed Marfa and Iraan as the teams to beat in the preseason. Marfa looks like the main threat after four games by winning two over AA schools. The difference this year is that Marfa has been picked to win so many times before without coming close to the crown. Finally the Shorthorns look almost unbeatable.

The only drawback is that Rankin and McCamey have proven ability to beat the big names. McCamey defeated Stanton this year, and Rankin has done it so many times in the past that they are used to challenges.

District 2-AAA doesn't start loop play until next week, but District 9-A will join 3-AAA and 6-A this week with the opening gun.

Wall appears to be headed for the 9-A championship without a fight. Menard is a legitimate threat, but the Hawks appear to be the real power.

NOW AFTER warning you about tacky games, let's play the picking game. I hit 21 of 29 games last week for a season mark of 98-40, but I promise the following list has nothing to do with winning or losing. The teams do that.

ANDREWS 34, LEVELLAND 18— The final tuneup for the Mustangs will be a successful one.

SWEETWATER 21, LAMESA 14— This is a herd of Mustangs that has been making a lot of big noises lately.

CRANE 24, FABENS 14— The Golden Birds need to get on the victory wagon.

STANTON 21, NEW HOME 20— Expect a close one.

McCAMEY 14, VAN HORN 13— A mild upset as the Badgers get ready for Rankin.

JIM NED 20, RANKIN 14 — The Red Devils suffer the open week blues.

REAGAN COUNTY 25, ELDORADO 7 — The Owls winless streak comes to an end, or it's going to be a long season.

MORE WILDNESS: Odessa Permian 34, Midland High 14; Odessa High 14, Midland Lee 8; San Angelo 14, Abilene Cooper 7; Abilene High 28, Big Spring 7; Monahans 21, Kermit 12; Lubbock High 14, Odessa Ector 13; Pecos 21, Artesia 6. Lake View 29, Brownfield 0; Lubbock Dunbar 15, Lubbock Estacado 14; Seagraves 25, Ozona 23; Sonora 29, Brady 6; O'Donnell 22, Sands 15; Farwell 20, Shallowater 13; Plains 34, Springlake-Earth 14; Marfa 30, Clint 12; Iraan 31, Wink 20; Menard 18, Mason 0; Robert Lee 12, Junction 10.

Stars in Fort Davis, Texas, remain bright

FORT DAVIS, Tex. (AP) — The stars at night are big and bright in West Texas. But nowhere are they bigger and brighter than over tiny Fort Davis — where they even outshine the Friday night frenzy of high school football.

Fort Davis is nestled against Mt. Locke, a part of the Davis Mountain range whose most notable protrusion is the University of Texas' world-renowned McDonald Observatory.

Scientists the world over like to stargaze at the observatory, and a lighted football field would wreak reflective havoc with the sensitive optical equipment used by the learned lookers.

It's not only the Class B football team that pays the price.

Lee, MHS JVs to face Odessa foes tonight

Coach Stan Moore's undefeated Midland Bullpup junior varsity takes on the unbeaten Odessa Permian JV at 7 p.m. today at the Permian High Field in a big game for both teams.

Midland Lee's Stonewall Brigade, meanwhile, will be seeking its first win of the year at 7 p.m. against the Odessa High JV in Memorial Stadium.

The Bullpups will have their work cut out since Permian, also 3-0, has not been scored upon yet. Midland has beaten Lee twice, 20-15 and 22-21 and holds a 42-8 win over Monahans while Permian has blanked Ector, 40-0; Pecos, 35-0 and Monahans, 34-0.

Abilene Cooper also has a strong JV this year and has a 3-0 mark after whipping San Angelo's JV, 37-22, last weekend.

The Cougar JV plays Sweetwater in Abilene Saturday in its next outing.

Abilene High's JV sports a 1-1 record after having a scheduled game with Big Spring called off two weeks ago. The Eaglets have beaten Brownwood while losing to San Angelo and were open last week. They play at Big Spring Saturday.

OHS brings a 2-1 record into its game with Lee with victories over Ector and Hobbs, N.M. The lone loss was to Monahans, 7-0.

Lee has lost to Midland twice and to Pecos by a 32-15 count, but has improved vastly in the past two weeks. Its 22-21 loss to Midland was a real close contest throughout last week.

Permian has plenty of size and quickness in its backfield, led by quarterback Kelly Howard along with running backs Ricky Reynolds and John Hallmark.

Quarterback Tommy Sommers guides the Bullpup offense and he has a pair of fine running backs in Jeff Robnett and Billy Applin.

Dayan seeks statement's denial

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said today the United States has given Israel its word that the Palestinians at Middle East peace talks would not be represented by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

For that reason, he said, "we would have expected a denial" of a Syrian statement that President Carter has agreed on the possibility of forming a unified Arab delegation including the PLO.

Dayan said he will ask Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, with whom he meets on Friday, to explain the absence of a denial by U.S. officials following Wednesday's statement by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam after a meeting with Carter.

Dayan, in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" program, said Israel would like to see Palestinians who are not PLO members in the Jordanian delegation. But giving the PLO "an equal footing" as proposed by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy "is absolutely unacceptable to us."

The U.S. search for a formula for a peace conference continues today with talks between Fahmy and Vance at the United Nations.

At the White House, spokesman Jerrold Schecter said the composition of delegations at the Middle East talks "hasn't been resolved yet." He and other U.S. officials flatly refused to rule out an eventual place in the Arab delegation for the PLO.

Significantly, the administration thereby stopped short of supporting Israel, which has barred a negotiating role for the PLO, which is committed in its charter to dismantling of the Jewish state.

"Because of the absolute importance of negotiating on a high level of trust and good faith, we have been and will continue to be very careful not to discuss the details of the talks with the various parties," Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said.

Meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Fahmy called for PLO participation "on the same level" with Israel and the Arab states.

Speaking to the U.N. General Assembly on Wednesday, Fahmy said, "We disapprove of any formula that would lead to anything contrary to this."

In another development, Sens. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Clifford Case, R-N.J., told the Senate of reports that the Carter administration had made overtures to Iran to cut off oil supplies to Israel if Tel Aviv resists U.S. negotiating tactics.

Moynihan said such a move "would be dishonorable" and Case said it would be "outrageous."

John H. Trattner, a State Department spokesman, said the reports were untrue.

Jail fire headlines spur action

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of the Commission on Jail Standards doesn't want Texas jails making headlines. Recent headlines in other states have told of fire deaths.

Chairman James Greenwood III of Houston recommended Wednesday that more attention, including fire drills, should be given to making jails safe from fire "to avert the tragedies we have read about in other states."

As a preface to the commission meeting, executive director Guy Van Cleave had noted: "Recent tragedies in incarceration facilities in Tennessee, Connecticut, Florida, and Indiana have emphasized the vulnerability of these institutions to fire with its subsequent smoke and fumes."

The commission discussed the padding in cells for "violent" prisoners as a possible fire hazard.

Van Cleve said he was paying $850 to test a new material that "won't support combustion," but he added that he had rejected another material after finding out it would burn.

"We don't have to test it," he said. "I set it afire in my office and it burned very well."

Greenwood stated that more than 70 per cent of Texas' county jails do not have adequate firefighting equipment and more than 80 per cent do not have proper equipment for removing smoke and fumes.

Van Cleave said, "There is nothing quite like a jail. It is so confining that a little smoke goes a long way."

"Maybe the bottom line," Greenwood said, "is to take the padding out of the padded cells."

Wayne Smith of the state fire marshal's office said the National Fire Protection Association had concentrated on prison safety and would not address fire safety standards for jails until 1979 — "only about 50 years too late."

Greenwood said the commission would send letters to Texas jail officials of the critical importance of fire safety, including "rehearsals with guards and prisoners."

"We want to be sure," he said, "that Texas is not the next state to have jail headlines."

He appointed a subcommittee of Robert Uhr of New Braunfels, chairman, and Stephen Suttle of Abilene and Dr. Hanes Brindley of Temple to consider revising fire safety rules for county jails.

Greenwood was re-elected commission chairman even though his term expired Jan. 31, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe has not notified him whether he will be reappointed.

Administration resists dual treaty vote push

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is resisting efforts to require both houses of Congress to vote approval before the Panamanian government can be given control of the Canal Zone.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell was called before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today to present the Justice Department's official legal opinion that only the Senate needs to approve the Panama Canal treaty.

The treaty calls for relinquishment of the U.S. Canal Zone to the Republic of Panama and for operational control of the canal itself to be handed to the Panamanians in the year 2000.

Treaty opponents are contending that both houses of Congress must approve the transfer of any property owned by the United States. That would mean that if the United States actually owns the Canal Zone the House of Representatives as well as the Senate would have to approve the portion of the treaty that transfers the zone to Panama.

The administration contends that the 1903 treaty with Panama established the Canal Zone as a 10-mile wide U.S.-controlled territory, but did not give the United States sovereignty, and that under the Constitution, the treaty must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

The administration's plans do call for some House votes on separate legislation to implement certain sections of the treaty.

Meanwhile, critics of the pending treaty are pressing their campaign to have the Senate reject the pact.

Retired Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, a former chairman of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a House committee Wednesday that ratification of the treaty would lead to indirect Soviet control of canal operations.

Moorer said Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian chief of state, heads a "leftist" government with close ties to the communist regime of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

He said there is a "Torrijos Castro-Moscow Axis" that could result in a Cuban or Soviet presence in Panama after the treaty is ratified.

Committee votes to keep funds for B-1s in budget

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee voted Wednesday to keep money in the federal budget for two more B-1 bombers.

A coalition of Democrats and Republicans joined in a 34-21 vote, rejecting President Carter's proposal to eliminate the B-1 funds from the current budget.

The committee action may save as many as 5,000 jobs at Rockwell International facilities in Southern California.

Rep. Robert K. Pornan (R-Calif.), in whose district most of the affected employes live, said Rockwell will keep its current B-1 work force of 6,500 people and add another 1,000 to the payroll.

The company was preparing to lay off 5,000 of the 6,500 workers as the B-1 program began shutting down, Dornan said.

"It's an aerospace holiday in my district," said Dornan, who is not a member of the appropriations committee, but who lobbied vigorously, conferring with committee members on the House floor, "in the hallways, even in the latrines."

The committee action leaves $463 million in the budget, money that Carter said he did not want for the curtailed program. The Administration decided on a research program involving four aircraft.

"Obviously, we are very pleased with the outcome of the vote," a Rockwell spokesman in Los Angeles said Wednesday. "But we don't have the specific details yet."

The spokesman confirmed that Dornan's estimates of personnel were correct. As Rockwell completed work on the fourth B-1, it would have gradually dismissed between 4,000 and 5,000 of the employes in the Los Angeles Division, formerly called the B-1 division.

None of the projections of additional workers will be certain until the Pentagon formally notifies Rockwell to proceed with construction of the two additional aircraft.

Wednesday's committee action will enable Rockwell to build the fifth and sixth bombers in combat-ready versions, Dornan said.

The B-1 production lines will remain open. "The President can tell the Soviets that Congress has given him an option he didn't want but can still use," said Dornan.

"It's a great decision for the entire country and for Strategic Air Command pilots, who know we will not leave them in three-decade-old, decrepit aircraft," he said. The B-1 was promoted as a replacement for the aging fleet of B-52 bombers.

Although Carter stopped the B-1 program, Congress had approved money in last year's budget for the additional aircraft.

The money was available for spending until the President asked that the funds be rescinded.

The van was "spun around and knocked off the track" about 50 feet, police said.

Operator of the train was Nawlin Teel of Big Spring.

Few simple steps help in mastering rise of the spectacular souffle

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

There's an age-old rule that guests wait for the souffle; the souffle doesn't wait for the guests.

It's a blend of practicality and showmanship. There's nothing more spectacular than a high-rise souffle, brown and fragrant, brought in hot from the oven.

Wait just a few minutes and you have a deflated, disappointing mess.

So if souffle's on the menu, get the guests to the table, forks in hand, and bring on the show.

The dish should have straight sides and be the right size for the recipe.

Too small and you'll have spillover. Too large and the souffle won't rise to spectacular heights.

If the recipe calls for a collar to lift the souffle above the rim of the baking dish, use either foil or baking parchment. Make a four-inch-wide band of triple thickness.

Lightly butter one side of the band and dust with sugar (for a dessert souffle), flour or Parmesan cheese. Wrap the band around the dish, overlapping the edges by two inches.

Buttered side should face in, and the collar should extend two inches above the rim of the dish. You can staple the collar edges, then tie it with string. Make sure it's snug enough to keep the souffle from running down the dish.

Egg whites are the leavening agent for souffles, giving them their height, and properly beaten egg whites are the secret to success.

Chefs such as James Beard and Jacques Pepin always use a copper bowl and a wire whisk to beat egg whites. Rinse the bowl with vinegar, then water, to be sure there's no speck of oil. Grease or oil will keep the whites from getting sufficient volume.

If the whites are at room temperature, they'll have more volume. Then it's a matter of elbow grease as you beat the whites to stiff (but never dry) peaks. One source says to beat the whites just until they won't slide when you tip the bowl.

Folding takes some practice, too.

You want to blend the whites with the egg yolk mixture, but at the same time keep the air in the egg whites. Beard folds with his hand. You can try that, or use a spatula, gently cutting down through the mixture, bringing the spatula across the bottom of the bowl, then up and over the mixture.

Come up through the center of the mixture every few strokes, while rotating the bowl frequently. Fold only until no streaks remain.

The yolks must be beaten to the point that they form a ribbon. Spoon out a little of the yolk mixture and pour it from the spoon back into the bowl. You'll know if they're at the right stage, because they'll run back in a thick, lemon-colored ribbon.

Warming the beaten yolks with a little of the hot sauce before completely combining the mixtures will prevent the yolks from coagulating too rapidly and creating lumps.

Some cooks lighten the yolk mixture by stirring in a spoonful to the beaten whites before folding. Beard adds a healthy dollop of whites, easily one-fourth cup, to the yolks before folding.

Make a top hat by holding a spoon upright and circling the mixture to make a ring about one inch from the side of the dish, and about one inch deep. The center of the souffle will rise an inch or so above the rest.

Cooking time is generally a matter of personal preference. The French like a souffle that's still a bit runny in the middle. Other cooks like them more well-done. Your oven may vary a bit, so experiment.

SOUFFLE AU CITRON
(Hot Lemon Souffle)

Butter, sugar
One-third cup sugar
One and one-half tsps. grated lemon peel
3 tbsps. lemon juice
One-fourth tsp. salt
One-third cup butter
4 eggs, separated
One-fourth tsp. cream of tartar

Butter bottom and sides of a one-and-one-half-quart souffle dish. Sprinkle sugar over buttered surfaces. Make a collar, buttering and sprinkling the inside of the band with sugar.

In a medium saucepan, beat together the one-third cup sugar, lemon peel, lemon juice and salt until well blended. Add butter.

Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir one minute. Remove from heat.

In a small mixing bowl, beat yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored, about five minutes. Into yolks blend a little of the hot mixture; return yolk mixture to saucepan and blend.

Beat whites and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold yolk mixture into whites. Carefully pour into prepared dish; bake at 350 degrees, 25 or 30 minutes, until puffy.

To test this, or any souffle for doneness, make sure it's delicately browned and puffy, and that it shakes very slightly when oven rack is gently moved back and forth. Carefully remove foil band. Makes four servings. Serve immediately.

CLASSIC CHEESE SOUFFLE

Butter, grated Parmesan cheese
One-third cup butter
One-third cup flour
1 tbsp. instant minced onion
One-half tsp. dry mustard
One and one-half cups milk
1 cup (4 ozs.) shredded Cheddar cheese
6 eggs, separated
One-fourth tsp. cream of tartar

Butter bottom and sides of a two-and-one-half-quart souffle dish. Dust with Parmesan. In medium saucepan melt the one-third cup butter. Blend in flour, onion and mustard. Cook and stir over medium-high heat until mixture is smooth and bubbly.

Stir in milk all at once. Cook and stir until mixture boils, and is smooth and thickened. Remove from heat; stir in Cheddar until melted.

In small mixing bowl, beat yolks until thick, about five minutes. Into yolks, blend a little of the hot mixture. Return yolk mixture to saucepan and blend.

Beat whites and cream of tartar until stiff. Fold yolk mixture into whites. Pour into prepared dish. Cut a circle into the top to form a top hat. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes, until puffy and delicately browned. Serves six.

Senate may strike compromise on gas

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is heading toward a possible breakthrough on a natural gas pricing controversy that has tied up Senate action for nearly two weeks.

Senators faced a decision today on a new compromise effort by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to allow natural gas prices to rise substantially while still under federal controls.

Before voting on the plan, however, the Senate had to deal with a complicated parlimentary maneuver designed by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd to brush aside some 400 proposed amendments to the bill.

Jackson's move was an attempt to break the filibuster that has kept the Senate from choosing between President Carter's proposal to retain price controls on natural gas and an industry-backed plan to lift them.

But the compromise engineered by Jackson and Byrd was fragile. While Senate leaders were optimistic, there was no guarantee the impasse could be broken.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, unveiled the plan Wednesday night shortly before the Senate recessed after meeting nonstop for more than 37 hours.

The recess came as two senators opposed to any relaxation of federal price controls suspended their filibuster to give the Senate a chance to study the Jackson proposal.

But Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said he and Sen. Howard H. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, were ready to resume their filibuster if necessary.

Essentially, Jackson wants to raise the wholesale prices of some interstate gas from the present $1.46 maximum to $2.03 for each thousand cubic feet.

To build industry support, Jackson proposed that gas eligible for this higher price could come from both new wells and some older ones.

Carter's plan would raise the ceiling to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet but limit the higher price to gas from new wells.

Both the Carter and Jackson plans would extend price controls to the now-unregulated markets within gas-producing states.

The success of Jackson's proposal hinges on building a coalition of Carter administration allies and enough defectors from the ranks of past deregulation supporters to win.

"We picked up some votes," Jackson said. "We made some headway." But he said the outcome was still too close to call.

Deregulation leaders said they planned to oppose the move.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Jackson's proposal was too great a concession.

But senators, weary after their around-the-clock session, agreed unanimously to sleep on the matter and resume work today.

Byrd, calling the proposal a "workable compromise," told the Senate it was time to break the deadlock.

"We have now debated this bill for nine days," Byrd said. "I have heard the world was created in seven."

Jackson said the White House is not opposed to his move.

An administration official who watched Wednesday night's session said the White House is hopeful a House-Senate conference committee will revive the original Carter plan.

Famous-named treasurer dies

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jesse James, the cocky old man with a train robber's name who had served as state treasurer since 1941, died in a local hospital early today following a heart attack.

James would have been 73 on Oct. 10.

A hospital spokesman said death came at about 12:15 a.m.

"He was taken to the hospital last night after a fresh heart attack. He had a long history of coronary heart disease. He died of the heart attack early this morning," said his physician, Dr. Robert Anderson.

Morris Stevens, the treasury's chief clerk and James's right-hand man since 1946, said James's death came unexpectedly, despite more than a year of poor health.

"He was at the banking board yesterday afternoon, in good spirits and hale and hearty," Stevens said.

The treasurer's death gives Gov. Dolph Briscoe another top elective position to fill by appointment, pending the outcome of next year's elections. His appointee would have an incumbent's built-in advantage in a race for treasurer next year.

James himself first came to office by gubernatorial appointment when Gov. Coke Stevenson named him to replace Charles Lockhart, who resigned as treasurer in 1941. James had been Lockhart's top assistant.

Doctors amputated most of James' left leg in January because of a blocked artery, and he suffered from diabetes. After the operation, he came to the office infrequently and moved about in a wheelchair, yet he told anybody who would listen that he was running for re-election.

"I'm better than I ever have been. My guns are cocked," he said in an interview last month.

Some potential candidates, in fact, were afraid to run against James, despite his advanced age and poor health, because of his strong name identification and his proven ability to finance a campaign.

But candidates were lining up, nevertheless, starting with Harry Ledbetter, a former Texas A&M football player who had been one of Comptroller Bob Bullock's top assistants.

James is survived by his widow, Zana; a daughter, Doris Jenswald; two grandchildren; and seven brothers and sisters.

Before joining Lockhart's staff, James served in the Texas House from 1933 to 1937, representing a district centered on his native Milam County.

While few Texans had much idea what the treasurer's duties were, James's performance came under increasing criticism in his later years. He had both Democratic and Republican opponents in the 1974 election.

His Democratic opponent, who cut James's normally huge majority to 54 per cent, was Don Yarbrough, the same Don Yarbrough who was elected to the Texas Supreme Court in 1976 but resigned under fire this summer.

Japan to fork over $6 million

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The Japanese government agreed today to hand over $6 million and nine prisoners to ransom 146 persons held hostage by terrorists aboard a hijacked Japanese airliner at Dacca airport. But the government asked for an extension of the hijackers' deadline for the delivery.

The terrorists from the ultraleftist Japanese Red Army released five hostages, including two of the five Americans known to be aboard the plane, an Indian couple and their infant son. Japan Air Lines said the Americans freed were the pregnant wife of former California Assemblyman Walter Karabian and a man named Krueger who was ill.

The other Americans still aboard the plane were Karabian, banker John Gabriel of Montebello, Calif., and Gabriel's wife.

The five hijackers had given the Tokyo government until midnight tonight (1 p.m. CST) to deliver the ransom money and nine "comrades" held in Japanese jails.

If their demands were not met, the terrorists said, they would kill the hostages one by one, starting with Gabriel.

Local officials indicated the hijackers chose Gabriel because they thought he was Jewish. But Rep. George E. Danielson, a California Democrat who is a personal friend of the 60-year-old banker, said in Washington he is of Armenian-Christian descent and had been in Soviet Armenia visiting relatives.

Another report said the hijackers thought Gabriel was an intimate friend of President Carter. Danielson said he did not believe this was true, but the White House declined to comment.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda announced that the money would be paid and the prisoners sent to join the hijackers. But he said it was impossible to get them to Dacca in the 18 hours then remaining until the deadline.

As officials of the Bangladesh government and the Japanese embassy negotiated at the airport with the hijackers, the Japanese government was contacting the nine prisoners to ask whether they wanted to be sent to Bangladesh. They were in jails in Tokyo, Kyoto and Okinawa.

Heat continues assault

While air conditioners keep running and winter clothes remain in storage, the heat wave in Midland continues with a possibility of another record-breaking high temperature Friday, the weatherman said.

Wednesday's high temperature of 100 degrees set two records. The previous record high was 97 degrees set in 1953. Also, it has never been this hot so late in the year before.

So far the city has had record high temperatures seven out of the last eight days. The weatherman said he doubted very much whether so many records have been broken like this before.

Skies should be fair tonight and Friday with hot afternoons. The high temperature Friday is expected to be near 100 degrees with the low tonight near 70 degrees. Winds are predicted to be south, southwesterly tonight, blowing at 5 to 10 mph.

The overnight low temperature was 69 degrees, the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

All area towns reported clear skies and somewhat cooler temperatures this morning. The towns seem to be having cooler nights, but days remain hot.

Reagan touts agriculture's role

STANTON — Reagan V. Brown, Texas' agricultural commissioner, came to this sold-on-cotton town to assure the folks that he, of all people, rates agriculture next to God, country and family.

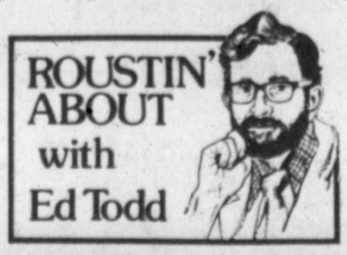
He prays for the day when farming and ranching are tops . . . among all things commercial, that is.

Fact is, at an Agriculture Appreciation Day luncheon here Wednesday, the 56-year-old commissioner likened his seal for all things agricultural in Texas to Winston Churchill's description of the Nazi-struck British at the height of World War II.

"The will of the English people is absolute and resolute," Brown quoted the late prime minister.

So is Brown. His cause is for crops, cattle and the such. He's "roaring for agriculture." That's what he said.

Brown was speaking to a group of folks, about 200, who have been roaring in their own way for sometime now. Some were Martin County 4-Hers, and Stanton and Grady members of the Future Farmers (and homemakers) of America. Others were active farmers and ranchers and their spouses, and businessmen and merchants who essentially live off of cotton. Still others were retired, perhaps from working the land.



Brown's theme seemed to be "motivation." Motivation for a worthwhile, productive, thrilling life. A life full of the same type of zeal Brown has for agriculture. It's his "bread and butter."

But to be motivated, one needs a goal or two. And Brown began to sound like a pathfinder in search of goals for others.

"What is the most important thing in the world to you today?" he asked of the audience.

True to form, he answered his own question by quoting a soldier returning home from the Vietnam War:

"The most important thing in the world is tomorrow."

Before he got too philosophical, Brown talked about money matters, about the state's low unemployment rate, about Texas ranking No. 3 in the nation in agricultural cash receipts. "We're solvent; we're paying our bills in Texas."

But the farmers and ranchers are not justly rewarded for their vital role in providing the nation and much of the world with food and fiber, Brown said. They're "not making adequate profits."

That could disrupt their outputs. And declining agricultural production certainly would put the country on an economic slide.

"So goes agriculture goes the nation," Brown said.

Suddenly, Brown got back on his philosophical track. He'd roar for agriculture later on.

He borrowed American clergyman-essayist Henry Van Dyke's formula on "how to cope with life":

— Think clearly and without confusion.
— Love your fellow men.
— Act holy and purely.
— And trust in God.

Pretty soon, Brown returned to the concrete: boosting cotton sales.

Blossoming love bursts in breakout

The Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — A love affair that blossomed in a federal penal facility here between a female guard and a male prisoner was all but on the rocks this week.

The prisoner was gone, an escapee, and the guard "heartbroken" and a prisoner herself, apparently jilted and left to face charges of helping him to escape.

An FBI agent filled in the background of the uncommon romantic pairing of the guard, Norma Jean Spearman, 30, and the prisoner, Roy Madison Snipes, 40, reputed to be a lady's man and con man extraordinary.

The agent supplied details to reporters at the federal courthouse shortly after the guard had been arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Edward Infante on charges of conspiracy and aiding and abetting Snipes' escape from the Metropolitan Correctional Center in downtown San Diego last Saturday.

FBI agent Danny Stovall said that Spearman told him following her arrest that Snipes failed to call her at her San Deigo home Saturday night as he had promised.

The plan, Stovall said she told him, was that Snipes would pick her up, they would drive to Mexico and then fly to Southern France to begin a new life together.

"She is heartbroken," Stovall said. "He never called after getting out."

Stovall said the pair apparently met last May when Snipes was brought to the center following his arrest by the FBI in St. Louis, Mo.

In the ensuing months, Stovall said, the guard told him she had fallen in love with Snipes and they had exchanged a number of love letters.

"Some of these," Stovall said, "were found in Snipes' effects he left behind at the center."

Snipes was arrested in St. Louis under a federal grand jury indictment issued in San Diego in 1971, charging him with the theft of $6,000 in travelers checks from a San Deigo travel agency that employed him.

Snipes roamed the United States and Canada for the next few years, finding work at travel agencies and then looting them of travelers checks and airline tickets, according to Stovall.

Snipes moved quickly, although he once paused long enough to purchase a home in Fresno, Calif., used at least 40 aliases and sometimes posed as a woman in managing to keep "one step ahead of us," Stovall said.

Snipes pleaded guilty to the San Diego charges and was sentenced in August to 10 years in prison. He was awaiting transfer from the center to a federal prison at the time of his escape.

A recently released inmate of the center — Vaughn Morinville, 32, a convicted counterfeiter — allegedly was involved with Spearkan in the scheme that resulted in Snipes' escape.

Craddick warns oil industry of slumber

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

"Those of us in the oil and gas industry better wake up and participate in politics because the people in Austin can hurt us as bad or worse than those in Washington," said State Rep. Tom Craddick Wednesday.

Craddick, speaking before the Downtown Lions Club, said the House would have passed a bill regulating intrastate natural gas prices this session if the bill had gotten out of his committee.

"Everyone has got their own problems, but we have got to put them (the problems) together," Craddick said.

During his speech, Craddick also lashed out at the press on the oil and gas deregulation issue.

"I don't think the press has dealt as fairly with the oil and gas industry as they could have," Craddick said.

On the past legislative session, Craddick said the $2 billion state surplus was spent by mid-February mostly by the passage of the state highway bill.

"The state's roads and highways have gone to pot. The tax couldn't keep up with inflation," he said.

Craddick said the total budget, by the end of the regular session, totaled $15.5 billion and $1 billion more was appropriated during the special session on school finance.

"This spending has got to stop," Craddick said.

In the area of crime legislation, Craddick said some major steps were taken by allowing oral confessions to be used in court and by not allowing probation for crimes committed with a gun.

Craddick said the legislature also set up an adult probation program and created 48 new district courts.

"Midland got a court and a half with the establishment of a new district court and the changing of the family relations court to a district court," Craddick said.

He said the legislature also combined three water agencies into one agency, thereby saving $4.5 million in the first appropriation. "After the water agency staff is cut back, we will save a total of $7 million," he said.

"Someone asked me how we could combine the agencies because of the prima donnas in them," he said. "It was easy. We got rid of all the prima donnas."

Craddick said he also introduced a "natural resources compact" bill that would allow Texas and the four surrounding states to share needed resources.

According to Craddick, if the compact is approved by all the states, it would allow Texas to trade its natural gas for other states' water.

Craddick said the coal slurry pipeline was passed because it was decided railroads could not transport the amount of coal needed to supply the state's energy needs.

"It would take 100 railroad cars a day to supply the energy needs of San Antonio," he said. The pipeline bill was passed even though it called for the right of eminent domain, he added.

Area educators to hear about student program

Charles Caruson, director of the Twin City Institute for Talented Youth in Minneapolis-St. Paul, will be in Midland today to consult with area educators and parents on the feasibility of creating a program for talented students in the Permian Basin.

Caruson said the summer program would be a supplement to, rather than a substitute for, a student's September to May classroom work.

The Twin City program is designed for junior high and high school students, Caruson said, with each one who is accepted taking one course during the six and a half to seven week session. The courses cover all disciplines with individual classes ranging in size from 15 to 200 students.

Caruson said that often-misleading test scores are avoided as a criterion for eligibility. Students who wish to participate must have their parents' permission and be recommended by a school counselor or teacher.

Applications are reviewed by the Institute's Board on the basis of maintaining an equitable division by city and sex and on past attendance at the Institute and motivation. Approximately 1,000 are chosen to participate.

In recent years, the Institute has experimented with admitting approximately 10 per cent who have exhibited less than outstanding performance or motivation in their schoolwork, and some encouraging results have been seen, Caruson said.

Caruson's schedule today includes a 9 a.m. meeting with area educators, a noon news conference in the Midland school district Administration Building Board Room, a 2 p.m. open house for interested citizens in the Faculty Dining room at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and a 7 p.m. reception.

Friday Caruson will meet at 10 a.m. with Midland women's groups.

Midlanders serving on the steering committee to establish a program for talented youth include Mr. and Mrs. Pat Baskin, Mrs. Jim Conine, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cowan, Mrs. James Fitz-Gerald III, J. M. Fullinwider, Mrs. Redfern Glenn, David Grimes, The Rev. William K. Hedrick, Mrs. Sanford Hodge, Dr. Al Langford, Mrs. Richard Lamphere, Dr. James Mailey, Donald O'Shaughnessy, The Rev. P. D. Peterson, Smith Ray, Ed Runyan, Tom Rutland and Mrs. William U. Sumner.

Mennonite situation considered

WASHINGTON — The situation of several hundred Mennonites living near Seminole in West Texas is being investigated by the White House and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

U.S. Rep. George Mahon has been working on finding a way for the group to stay, also.

The Mennonites have until Saturday to leave the country or face deportation hearings, but the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has said it probably will grant extensions while the group seeks work permits that would allow them to stay in this country.

The members of the religious sect came to the U.S. on temporary visas, many of which have expired. They are claiming that leaving now would cause extreme hardship because of money invested in land and equipment and crops which are close to maturity.

President Jimmy Carter has designated an aide to investigate the situation and report back to him. An aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen was in Seminole Wednesday and today to check into the situation.

Bentsen said he will introduce a special bill in Congress to let the Mennonites stay if administrative procedures which would allow them to are not found.

Abortion question unresolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the government's largest agencies could run out of money this weekend unless the House and Senate resolve their differences over paying for abortions with federal funds.

A conference committee set a meeting today after postponing Wednesday's session when a House Appropriations Committee meeting tied up some members.

Unless a compromise is approved by both houses, the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare would run out of money at midnight Friday, the last day of the fiscal year.

A congressional resolution would then be needed for payrolls to be met. But congressional leaders oppose such a resolution because members could stall even that by attaching an abortion-related amendment.

City in 'boom condition,' Chamber president says

"Midland is in a boom condition," Midland Chamber of Commerce President Harrell Feldt said at the conclusion of a chamber board of directors luncheon Tuesday.

And during that luncheon members heard committee reports that told of Midland's rapid growth in population, construction, business enterprise and a serious labor shortage.

As a step toward ending the labor shortage, it was announced that a Jobs Fair will be held between Midland and Odessa sometime in late January.

Joe Kloesel said that the first Jobs Fair held last March was such a success that a second one had been planned for some time. The only question was when to have it.

Chamber member Cliff Hogue told board members that Midland has gained 2,000 persons since the start of the year. Eighty-nine families have moved into Midland this month alone, Hogue said.

As people have come into the area, new residences have gone up to accommodate them.

Hogue said 451 permits have been issued for residences since the start of the year and that their value exceeds $20 million.

The average value of the new dwellings is $45,000, but Hogue said that this figure does not include property costs, which when added, brings the average cost per new home in Midland to between $55,000 and $60,000.

Chamber President Feldt stressed the importance of providing housing in Midland in the $20,000 to $30,000 range if the city is to attract the skilled labor it needs.

Kloesel said that to help develop and train the labor in the Midland area, the chamber was preparing to determine just what skills were needed in the area. This survey could be used by the Midland Independent School District to plan courses for these jobs, he added.

Durward Wright told chamber members that growth in Midland was not confined to the city limits. Population figures for the county have jumped considerably, Wright said, adding that in 1970 there were between 4,000 and 5,000 county residents and now there are between 10,000 and 15,000.

John Ingram of the chamber transportation committee said that an agreement was in the negotiation stages between the committee and General Motors to do a survey of Midland's transportation needs.

Compressor Systems Inc. of Midland was awarded a Governor's Industrial Expansion Citation for 1976.

W. H. "Bill" Collyns made the presentation to company president Johnny Warren.

The company increased its employment from 75 persons in 1975 to 130 in 1976.

Reagan touts agriculture

That's Martin County's main interest in agriculture.

"We've got to tell about cotton and how great it is," said Brown, who grew up on a farm in East Texas.

He mentioned the need for a "long-range agricultural program" that doesn't change "every time the President changes." Too, he said, the nation needs to set a "high priority for agriculture."

"You," he told the agriculturists, "are the hope of America today." The country's economic climate could be enhanced by the increased export of agricultural products.

And right here in Stanton, the economy could be put into "high cotton" if more and more people would buy cotton products.

But that takes a good selling job, and "We haven't learned to sell," Brown said. That was about as close as Brown came in admonishing the farmers for not "pushing" their product in the marketplaces.

Cotton producers seem to think that their responsibility ends at the gin. It shouldn't.

"When that lady reaches for that dress (at the clothiers), that's the most important part of agriculture . . . selling, marketing," Brown said.

Earlier in his speech, after he had loosened up the audience with a series of jokes and anecdotes, Brown commented on the style show that came between the barbecue luncheon and his talk.

The show, narrated by Marsha Todd, featured approximately 40 youngsters and teenagers modeling outfits made of 100 per cent cotton and some blends.

"That's the name of the game — selling cotton," Brown said.

His talk was the closing feature of the day, which started off with a three-bus tour of three farms south of Stanton.

Close to a 100 folks made the tour, sponsored by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce and conducted by Alvin Riddle, the conservationist for the Mustang Soil and Water Conservation District.

The tour took in a "stump picker" (land clearing) demonstration on the Rufus Tom farm; a rock-picking demonstration on the Juil Reid cotton farm, and a cotton-variety demonstration on the Lee Graves cotton farm.

This year, Martin County has about 330,000 acres in cultivation, Riddle noted. It's mostly cotton. "If we've got 10,000 acres of milo, we'll be lucky," he said midway in the morning tour.

"We've had good crops for the last seven, eight years," Riddle said. "Really have."

That should please Brown, who missed out on the farm tour.

Of course, after the planting, picking and baling comes the marketing — the selling. And like the commissioner said, "That's the name of the game."

Fire damages bales of cotton

LAMESA—A rapidly spreading fire caused an estimated $50,000 damage to approximately 280 bales of cotton at the Lamesa compress Tuesday afternoon.

The blaze, which erupted on the compress grounds, spread at an "unbelievable rate" through several rows of recently sampled bales, said firemen at the scene.

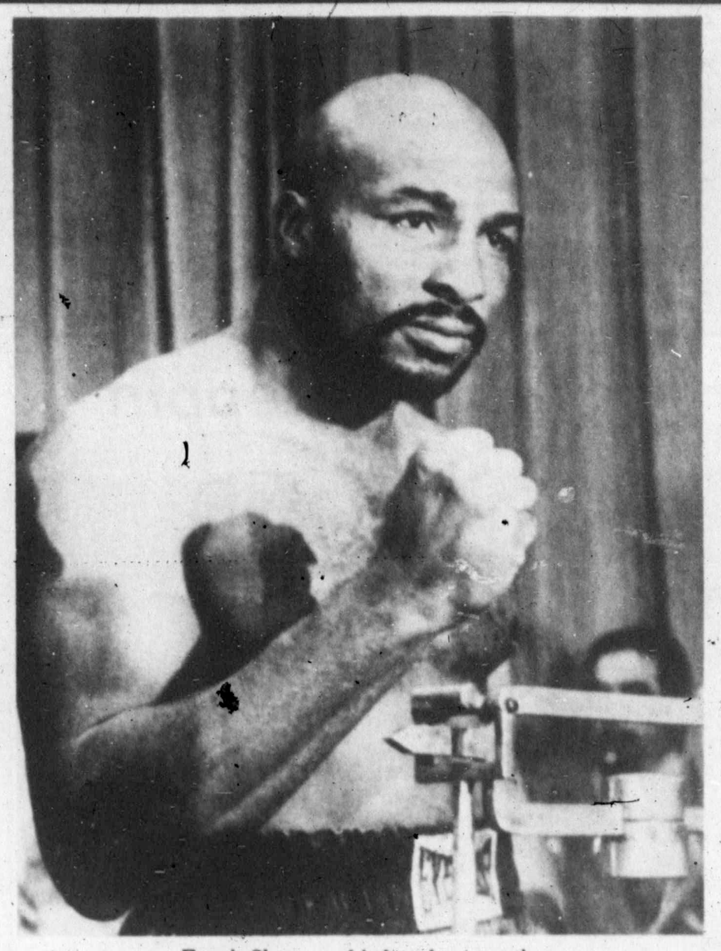
Muhammad Ali...risks title



Earnie Shavers,..big knockout punch.

Quick ending seen as Ali, Shavers tee up

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight it's Earnie Shavers' turn to take a crack at Muhammad Ali, who calls the power-punching challenger Earnie Shaffers or the Acorn.

It's for the world heavyweight championship over 15 rounds or less in Madison Square Garden in what will be the 35-year-old Ali's 22nd title fight.

It also will be Ali's 19th title defense in his two terms as champion and it comes one year and one day after Ali's unanimous 15-round decision over Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium.

Hardly anyone expects this fight to go 15 rounds and hardly anyone expects a victory by the 33-year-old Shavers, of Warren, Ohio, whose shaven head caused Ali to tab him the Acorn.

SHAVERS, whose chin and stamina are questionable, feels he can go 15 rounds, but acknowledges it would be extremely difficult for him to win a decision. His best chance lies in his strength vs. strength battle against the 35-year-old champion—Shavers' devastating punch against Ali's great ability to take a punch.

"He can't hit harder than Sonny Liston, or Joe Frazier or George Forman," said Ali.

"I'll put a lot of pressure on him and if I hit him on the chin he'll go," said Shavers. "He has a lot more wars, tough fights. They start taking a toll on you."

Ali, who officially weighed 225 to 211¼ for Shavers Wednesday, preferred to talk about experience and the ability to handle the pressure of heavyeight title fights.

"I'll tell you about this sport," said Ali. "It's like a horse race, like a stock auto race. It's the brains that win, not the physical ability."

THEN THE champion jumped on the fact that, except for a brief confrontation at a midtown news conference Monday, the Shavers camp has kept its fighter away from a face-to-face meeting with Ali.

"He's scared," said Ali of the 33-year-old challenger, who weighed in and left before the champion appeared.

"He seriously doesn't want to see me here. But he'll have to face me in the ring. Then when he hears the national anthem"—Ali then hummed a few bars—"and when he hears the crowd start shouting, 'Ali, Ali, Ali,' he's gonna say to himself, 'I must be crazy. What did I get into?' Then while the referee is giving instructions, I'm gonna reach over and shine his head."

The chants of "Ali, Ali, Ali" should start around 9 p.m. CDT. The fight is scheduled to start about 10 minutes later. It will be televised live by NBC, with no blackout of the New York metropolitan area. Garden officials are hoping for a crowd of at least 15,000. Ticket prices were scaled from $100 down to $20.

The entire television show is set for 8 p.m.-10 p.m., with two other fights scheduled to be shown live. They are scheduled 10-rounders between heavyweights Alfredo Evangelista of Spain, who was outpointed by Ali in a dull title fight last May 16, and Iedro Soto of New York, and light heavyweights Mike Rossman of Turnersville, N.J. and Gary Summerhayes of Canada.

ALI IS getting $3 million, boosting his total purse money to more than $45 million. Shavers is getting $300,000.

Tom Landry cloaks optimism in caution

By BOB DILLON

Coach Tom Landry likes the way his Dallas Cowboys have been playing in two NFL games, but is also very cautious about the future, mainly due to a young defensive unit.

Landry, the quiet, analytical boss of the Cowboys who is the only head coach the club has had, probably is best described as the coach who created defenses to overcome offenses, then created offense to overcome those defenses.

The former All-SWC fullback at the University of Texas and All-Pro cornerback with the New York Giants had, heading into last season, guided Dallas to 11 consecutive winning seasons and into the league playoffs in 10 of those 11 years.

Tom is No. 6 on the list of all-time winningest NFL coaches.

HIS CLUB is off to a fast start — just like last year after beating Minnesota and New York, but Landry fears a big letdown this Sunday when the Cowboys take on Tampa Bay winless in two NFL starts.

"The defense is young and is able to cover up a lot of its mistakes with hustle and I hope that we hustle enough this week instead of turning our attention to the St. Louis Cardinals who we play after the Bucs."

Tampa Bay has yet to score a touchdown in its first two games, losing to Philadelphia, 13-3 and to the Vikings, 9-3, last Saturday. Landry knows that Coach John McKay's Bucs have some talented athletes. "They (Tampa Bay) have two former USC greats who played under McKay in college is Anthony Davis and Ricky Bell. So, they can bust loose anytime now," said Landry.

A lot of Cowboy fans have been happy with both the Washington Redskins and Cardinals losing openers two weeks ago, but Landry is far from relaxed over the one-game lead his team has over those two rivals.

"BOTH WILL be tough and contenders down the line and always play well against us whether it be on the road or in Texas Stadium."

dallas cowboys

At 53, Landry has grown with the Cowboys — and prospered. Last year's 11-3 mark upped his all-time record to 112-40-2 since 1966, a better record than any team in professional football during this time span.

Thus far, the Cowboys' past records are somewhat like cold potatoes to Landry. "I don't look at past records, because they mean nothing."

There was plenty of motivation for the 1977 season, since a blazing 9-1 start last year dropped off to a 2-2 finish and a first-game playoff loss to the Los Angeles Rams on the home carpet in Irving.

"It was an unusual year," says Landry of 1976.

"Our major goal last year was to win the Eastern Division (which they did). We felt if we won the East we would have a good enough team to go back to the Super Bowl (for the fourth time). It didn't work out that way, however."

LANDRY FEELS that the first seven games last year were probably the best Dallas has had as a team, but the Cowboys lost their momentum and never were able to regain it.

Anyway, the Cowboys are off and running with some high expectations for this year. When All-Pro tackle Rayfield Wright returns and if Tony Dorsett continues to improve, the Cowboy offense may really get rolling.

COWBOY NOTES: Looking back on last week's game with the Giants, the sports scribes were hot, the cheerleaders were miserable, despite the skimpy outfits and everybody in general suffered... Beasley Reece, former Cowboy and cornerback was fired up for the Cowboys. "It was a funny feeling. It's the kind of game I found easy to get up for. I talked to some of them (Cowboys) on the telephone and told them what I was going to do to them, and they told me what they were going to do to me. Because of this, the Cowboys will always be a good game for me. It's simple, you know the guys, you know you're going up against a good team, and you just go out there and play hard and agressive against them, so you have something to laugh about later."...Gordon Gravelle, Giant offensive tackle, felt that the 56-degree temperatures in New York the week before the Dallas game really hurt his team. On the words that he had with Cowboy and Harvey Martin: "We had a little discussion. He asked me about my wife and I asked him about his. "Gravelle feels there is no comparison between Dallas and Washington. "The Cowboys still have one of the best defenses in the league."

Sooners' victory keeps the door open

When Uwe Van Schamann kicked a field goal with three seconds left to lift Oklahoma past Ohio State, 29-28, last Saturday, it may not have determined the national championship, but it kept the door open.

An Ohio State victory would have slammed the door shut on the outlanders and made it a private Big 10 party to be settled when the Buckeyes met Michigan in their annual conference title game.

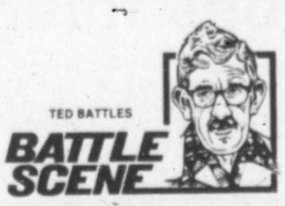
The Buckeyes have clear sailing from now until Michigan with only USC in the Rose Bowl as a final obstacle.

Michigan still has Texas A&M to hurdle this week, a barrier the Wolverines should be favored to clear with fullback George Woodard on the Aggies' ailing list.

JUST AS an Ohio State win over Oklahoma would have shutout the rest of the nation, an Aggie upset of Michigan would snuff out the Big 10's last hope for a national title That is, unless this happens to be one of those years in which no one comes through with a clean slate. And the way things have started out, that's not beyond the realm of possibilities. Ohio State, Alabama, Maryland, Houston, Pittsburgh, Texas Tech, Notre Dame and Nebraska are already early-season casualties.

National championship considerations aside, the Sooners and Buckeyes both came out of Saturday's conflict with honor, sulking Woody Hayes notwithstanding.

One of the raps against Ohio State has been that it breezed through a series of preconference setups and then disappeared into the safety of the Big 10 where a No. 1 ranking usually boiled down to the Michigan game.



SATURDAY, THE Buckeyes risked their reputation against a team that has won two of the last three national titles and even in defeat earned the respect of even the most violent anti-Woody fans by the way they battled back after a disasterous start that had the game bordering on the verge of a complete rout.

Oklahoma, of course, invaded hostile Ohio Stadium, survived the loss of its bellwether quarterback Thomas Lott and won on late-game daring that is becoming a characteristic of Barry Switzer teams. And what's more, they did it with a freshman quarterback at the helm much of the way.

WHILE ON the subject of national championships, it may boil down to a question of which team has the most durable quarterback or the most quality depth at the position. Then again, maybe it will take a team that doesn't have a quarterback-oriented defense to pull it off.

The sick bay list thus far has been staggering and has wrecked the carefully mapped route of more than one aspiring contender.

The list isn't complete, but quarterbacks who have gone down with injury include Texas Tech's Rodney Allison, Lott, Ohio State's Rod Gerald, Alabama's Jeff Rutledge, Houston's Danny Davis, Pittsburgh's

Trojans expect thriller Friday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "This will be one of the most exciting games in the country," Southern California Coach John Robinson predicts. "USC even looks good in their uniforms running out on the field," Washington State Coach Warren Powers says.

The opposing coaches are, to put it mildly, fired up for Friday night's Pacific-8 clash between Southern Cal and Washington State.

"THE COUGARS are a good team both offensively and defensively, and you know they have a great passing attack," said Robinson, whose second-dranked Trojans bring a 3-0 record and a 14-game victory streak — longest in the nation — into the game.

"The Trojans play good or great," observed Powers, "but they seldom play a bad football game."

Powers' Cougars, upset winners over Nebraska and Michigan State, are 2-1 in 1977 after losing 14-12 to Kansas last Saturday.

Robinson has said that his Trojans haven't faced a real test this season, and the Jack Thompson-led Cougars should provide just that for USC.

THOMPSON, the accurate throwing Washington State quarterback, connected on 26 of 50 passes for 340 yards in the Cougars' 24-13 loss to the Trojans last fall, and has piled up some impressive passing statistics this year.

A 6-foot-3 junior from American Samoa, Thompson ranks fourth in passing this season with 63 completions in 107 attempts for 831 yards and four touchdowns.

Flanker Brian Kelly, with 19 catches this year, and split end Mike Levenseller, with 17 catches, are Thompson's favorite targets.

"Whatever Thompson throws, you can also figure Kelly and Levenseller are a good bet to catch," said Robinson. "They're open all the time and they have great hands."

Roberts dies from gun shot

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Clifford Roberts, cofounder of the Masters Golf Tournament, was found dead today at the Augusta National Golf Club, the victim of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, club officials said.

"It is with regret that the Augusta National Golf Club announces that its chairman, Clifford Roberts, died during the night," a statement from the club said.

"Death was caused by a selfinflicted wound," the statement continued. "Mr. Roberts had been in ill health for several months."

Roberts is survived by his widow, Mrs. Betty Roberts of Los Angeles, where the couple lived.

Ags' Grulich gets SWC honors

By The Associated Press

It was a safety blitz in September that probably will help write the final chapter in December on the Southwest Conference football championship.

Junior Carl Grulich blazed into the Texas Tech backfield from his position as Texas A&M's free safety to nail quarterback Rodney Allison last Saturday. They both went down in a tangle and Allison suffered a broken bone in his left leg.

"I just contained him, wrapped him around the waist while he was twisting," said Grulich. "The weight of my body landed on his foot at an angle...it was a freak thing."

Grulich added, "I'm sorry it happened but it wasn't even a hard tackle."

The 6-foot-1, 200-pounder from Richardson Pearce made 13 solo tackles, seven assists, tipped three passes and sacked the quarterback two times for minus 37 yards in A&M's 33-17 victory.

For Grulich, it earned him The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award.

Grulich is a converted quarterback and lasted six weeks at that position as a freshman at A&M. "I'm really happy back there now even though I'm probably the slowest guy in our defensive backfield," said Grulich, who runs a consistent 4.6 in the 40. "I love playing for Coach (Melvin) Robertson. He seems to have a knack for putting people in the right place."

Grulich is the second leading tackler on the Aggie team although he occasionally uses technique that makes Robertson cringe.

"I've always tackled with my head down and the coaches have tried to get me to change," said Grulich. "They're afraid I will get hurt.

"It's just sort of a habit I got into. I'm not missing a lot of tackles. I've tried to tackle with my head up but it just doesn't work."

"I'm really looking forward to Saturday," said Grulich as the fifth-ranked Aggies tackle the third-ranked Michigan Wolverines.

"I like the idea of playing in front of 104,000 people ...that should really turn our defense on," he added.

Fun, games are over, it's time to play for keeps

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The fun and games are over for three of the six area football districts since loop action begins Friday night on three fronts.

Districts 3-AAA, 6-A and 9-A begin loop warfare and a new perspective dominates the air. All teams begin anew, and past records, if not completely forgotten, can at least be put aside. It's a new ball game and this is where the playoff teams have to perform.

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes of 3-AAA are a good example. The Tors lost three of four games in the non-conference action, but their first victory came last week against Hobbs, and the Tors have new life heading into district. The Tors travel to Sweetwater, who won three non-conference games including an upset over Graham last week. This one counts.

OTHER 3-AAA battles will include Brownfield at Lake View and Lubbock Estacado at Lubbock Dunbar. Lake View, the defending champions, still look the strongest since it is the only team that has escaped without a loss to this date.

None of the District 6-A teams escaped non-conference play without losing at least one game. District favorite Marfa, however, defeated two AA schools and look the strongest. Marfa belted Crane, 35-20, last week and will host Clint to kick off the loop action.

The McCamey Badgers, owners of an upset over powerful Stanton, jump into league action against Van Horn after losing to AA Ozona last week. Wink, fresh off an upset over Jal, N. M., will travel to Iraan, who lost their first game last week to Wall.

THE RANKIN Red Devils travel to Jim Ned in a non-conference battle. Rankin was idle last week and will jump into 6-A action next week against McCamey at home.

District 9-A starts without favorite Wall on the schedule. Wall, fresh off that 20-0 blanking of high scoring Iraan, draws the open date. But undefeated Menard hosts all-beaten Mason while Robert Lee entertains Junction.

The Reagan County Owls, who tied ninth ranked AA Sonora last week, hosts winless Eldorado in the other 9-A contest. The Owls lost their first three outings of the season, but seem to be coming along fast after the 14-14 tie with Sonora.

The rest of the slate is of the non-district variety. Undefeated, but once tied, Andrews travels to Levelland in an effort to keep up with hot 2-AAA teams. Fort Stockton, Pecos and Monahans are all undefeated and untied in that loop. Andrews is the preseason choice to win 2-AAA, but it looks tougher all the time.

THE STANTON Buffaloes host New Home in an attractive offering Friday. The Buffs have been nursing injuries, and are trying to survive until they can get the squad healthy again. New Home tied Plains, a 5-A opponent of Stanton, last week, so Buff fans will want to compare the home team against the Leopards.

Crane, still suffering from that 35-20 loss to Marfa last week, travels to Fabens in a rebound effort. The Cranes have won only one game this year, but the schedule has been tough.

One of the most attractive offerings will come in Seagraves where the No. 1 ranked Class A Eagles will take on AA Ozona in what could be one of the best games of the year.

Friday's Schedule

District 2-AAA: Andrews at Levelland, Fort Stockton open, Kermit at Monahans, Odessa Ector at Lubbock High (Saturday), Artesia, N. M., at Pecos, Seminole open.

District 3-AAA: Lamesa at Sweetwater, Brownfield at Lake View, Lubbock Estacado at Lubbock Dunbar, Snyder open.

District 7-AA: Crane at Fabens, Kermit at Monahans, Ozona at Seagraves, Sonora at Brady.

District 5-A: O'Donnell at Sands, New Home at Stanton, Shallowater at Farwell, Ozona at Seagraves, Plains at Springlake-Earth.

District 6-A: Clint at Marfa, Wink at Iraan, Van Horn at McCamey, Rankin at Jim Ned.

District 9-A: Eldorado at Reagan County, Mason at Menard, Junction at Robert Lee, Wall open.

Area grid powers ready to go steppin'

...Now about those forecasts

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Sports writers spend a lot of time before the football season starts trying to tell the public who is going to be the big winners when the season is over, and more times than not, they end up wrong.

I've spent a lot of time trying to tell people that those games are silly games. It has to be proven on the field, not behind a typewriter. The typewriter creates dreams, but football teams create wins and losses.

As a yearly habit this time of year, some of my preconceived ideas about the football season has changed. It's really nothing new.

For instance, I now feel that District 3-AAA is somewhat weaker overall than I thought before the season started, and District 2-AAA is stronger. District 6-A is living up to predictions, but that is the switch from seasons past.

BEFORE THE season ever put a foot on the playing field, writers were saying that four or five teams would be in the running for the 3-AAA crown. After four games, it looks to me like defending champion Lake View will not even meet a hurdle along the way. That might change as early as next week, and that's the beauty of football.

Andrews' Mustangs drew the favorites' role in 2-AAA before the season started. Not many people are changing their minds at this point in time, but there are not too many breathers week in and week out for the Mustangs. This loop could again be decided on the last weekend just like last year when Andrews lost the title to Monahans after winning their first nine games. Fort Stockton, Pecos, Monahans and Andrews have not lost a game this year while Odessa Ector and Seminole both have two wins. This race could produce the best fireworks of the year.

DISTRICT 6-A listed Marfa and Iraan as the teams to beat in the preseason. Marfa looks like the main threat after four games by winning two over AA schools. The difference this year is that Marfa has been picked to win so many times before without coming close to the crown. Finally the Shorthorns look almost unbeatable.

The only drawback is that Rankin and McCamey have proven ability to beat the big names. McCamey defeated Stanton this year, and Rankin has done it so many times in the past that they are used to challenges.

District 2-AAA doesn't start loop play until next week, but District 9-A will join 3-AAA and 6-A this week with the opening gun.

Wall appears to be headed for the 9-A championship without a fight. Menard is a legitimate threat, but the Hawks appear to be the real power.

NOW AFTER warning you about tacky games, let's play the picking game. I hit 21 of 29 games last week for a season mark of 98-40, but I promise the following list has nothing to do with winning or losing. The teams do that.

ANDREWS 34, LEVELLAND 18— The final tuneup for the Mustangs will be a successful one.

SWEETWATER 21, LAMESA 14— This is a herd of Mustangs that has been making a lot of big noises lately.

CRANE 24, FABENS 14— The Golden Birds need to get on the victory wagon.

STANTON 21, NEW HOME 20— Expect a close one.

McCAMEY 14, VAN HORN 13— A mild upset as the Badgers get ready for Rankin.

JIM NED 20, RANKIN 14 — The Red Devils suffer the open week blues.

REAGAN COUNTY 25, ELDORAGO 7 — The Owls winless streak comes to an end, or it's going to be a long season.

MORE WILDNESS: Odessa Permian 34, Midland High 14; Odessa High 14, Midland Lee 8; San Angelo 14, Abilene Cooper 7; Abilene High 28, Big Spring 7; Monahans 21, Kermit 12; Lubbock High 14, Odessa Ector 13; Pecos 21, Artesia 6. Lake View 29, Brownfield 0; Lubbock Dunbar 15, Lubbock Estacado 14; Seagraves 25, Ozona 23; Sonora 29, Brady 6; O'Donnell 22, Sands 15; Farwell 20, Shallowater 13; Plains 34, Springlake-Earth 14; Marfa 30, Clint 12; Iraan 31, Wink 20; Menard 18, Mason 0; Robert Lee 12, Junction 10.

Lee, MHS JVs to face Odessa foes tonight

Coach Stan Moore's undefeated Midland Bullpup junior varsity takes on the unbeaten Odessa Permian JV at 7 p.m. today at the Permian High Field in a big game for both teams.

Midland Lee's Stonewall Brigade, meanwhile, will be seeking its first win of the year at 7 p.m. against the Odessa High JV in Memorial Stadium.

The Bullpups will have their work cut out since Permian, also 3-0, has not been scored upon yet. Midland has beaten Lee twice, 20-15 and 22-21 and holds a 42-8 win over Monahans while Permian has blanked Ector, 40-0; Pecos, 35-0 and Monahans, 34-0.

Abilene Cooper also has a strong JV this year and has a 3-0 mark after whipping San Angelo's JV, 37-22, last weekend.

The Cougar JV plays Sweetwater in Abilene Saturday in its next outing.

Abilene High's JV sports a 1-1 record after having a scheduled game with Big Spring called off two weeks ago. The Eaglets have beaten Brownwood while losing to San Angelo and were open last week. They play at Big Spring Saturday.

OHS brings a 2-1 record into its game with Lee with victories over Ector and Hobbs, N.M. The lone loss was to Monahans, 7-0.

Lee has lost to Midland twice and to Pecos by a 32-15 count, but has improved vastly in the past two weeks. Its 22-21 loss to Midland was a real close contest throughout last week.

Permian has plenty of size and quickness in its backfield, led by quarterback Kelly Howard along with running backs Ricky Reynolds and John Hallmark.

Quarterback Tommy Sommers guides the Bullpup offense and he has a pair of fine running backs in Jeff Robnett and Billy Applin.

Stars in Fort Davis, Texas, remain bright

FORT DAVIS, Tex. (AP) — The stars at night are big and bright in West Texas. But nowhere are they bigger and brighter than over tiny Fort Davis — where they even outshine the Friday night frenzy of high school football.

Fort Davis is nestled against Mt. Locke, a part of the Davis Mountain range whose most notable protrusion is the University of Texas' world-renowned McDonald Observatory.

Scientists the world over like to stargaze at the observatory, and a lighted football field would wreak reflective havoc with the sensitive optical equipment used by the learned lookers.

It's not only the Class B football team that pays the price.

Schembechler labels A&M's Franklin the greatest

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — What the Detroit Lions — or any other National Football League team, for that matter — wouldn't give to get Tony Franklin.

But alas, the Texas A&M barefoot kicker is only a junior.

Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan probably wishes Franklin was a senior — last year. Then he wouldn't have to worry about him Saturday when the third-ranked Wolverines play at home against the No. 5 Aggies.

Schembechler calls Franklin "the greatest kicker in football. You don't get returns, and you don't get field position."

Michigan has prided itself on its defense during Schembechler's nine-year tenure, but this season's Wolverines have had much more trouble holding opponents' offenses so far. If they can't keep Coach Emory Bellard's Aggies in their own territory, they'll have to worry about Franklin.

"He can kick a field goal any time from midfield," Schembechler said.

Last week A&M, ranked sixth, met seventh-ranked Texas Tech and won 33-17 on the strength of Franklin field goals of 48, 25, 51 and 39 yards.

Last year as a sophomore, Franklin twice in one game set the National Collegiate Athletic Association field goal record. His first one was a 64-yarder and he bettered that with a 65-yard kick.

This season he has made all 10 of his touchdown conversion kicks and has hit on six of 10 field goal tries. His misses came from 51, 54, 59 and 65 yards out.

Spec Gammon, A&M's sports information director, said Franklin kicked a practice field goal 75 yards.

Franklin is a 5-foot-9, 170-pounder from Fort Worth, Texas. This is his third season as the Aggies' placekicker. Last year he was on the All Southwest Conference team.

Michigan's kickers are Nick Labun and Gregg Willner. Labun handles kickoffs and Willner the point-after tries and field goal attempts. He missed a 29-yard field goal try in the Wolverines' 14-7 triumph last Saturday over Navy.

Texas A&M's punter is David Appleby. He averaged 45 yards in five punts against Tech, including booming kicks of 63 and 59 yards.

His counterpart for the Wolverines is John Anderson. He is having a banner year as a linebacker, but his punting hasn't been very good. Although he's been kicking long, he's been booting line drives. Punters are often measured by "hang time," that is, how long their punt hang up in the air to allow defenders to rush down the field.

"I'm just not getting enough height on them," Anderson said. "I guess I'm in a slump as far as kicking, but I'm working on it."

Anderson is averaging 42.4 yards. Only one Michigan punter has ever surpassed that distance average for a season.

Midlander contributes $10,000 to North Texas sports complex

DENTON — A challenge fund at North Texas State University for the second phase of an athletic complex has received its largest individual contribution of $10,000.

Veda Wells (Mrs. J. Howard) Hodge of Midland presented her grant to the University this week.

A campaign is being conducted to raise $150,000 from private sources.

The second wing of the athletic complex will contain facilities for both men and women. They include meeting rooms, an exercise center, physical therapy center and recreation lounge. The building will also contain separate locker and equipment areas for men and women.

The Moody Foundation of Corpus Christi made an initial grant of $250,000, contingent upon the additional $150,000 being raised from other private sources.

Hayden Fry, director of athletics, said the target for start of construction would be immediately following the Homecoming Day football game Nov. 5.

"We are grateful for the gift, of course," said Fry. "But we are also honored that such a widely-known person in education shows interest in our men's and women's athletic program at North Texas."

Mrs. Hodge, a former high school teacher, is the first vice-president on the board of trustees of Howard Payne University and is president of the Midland College Foundation Board.

She has served on state and national committees involved with the arts, consumer relations, juvenile crime and traffic safety.

Mrs. Hodge and her late husband were partners in theatre, oil and cable television interests.

Freshmen, sophomores top conference's aerial statistics

DALLAS—Don't feel inadequate if you can't quite place the leading passers in the Southeast Conference—most of them are so young, their coaches are just getting to know them.

By the time Saturday's results were in, the quarterbacks who had seen most of the action included a freshman and four sophomores, only three juniors and one senior.

Consequently, the passers are paced by SMU freshamn Mike Ford with TCU sophomore Don Harris the runner-un. The top nine passers included two freshman and five sophomores with only the outstanding seniors, A&M's David Walker and Texas Tech's Rodney Allison, breaking into the rankings.

FORD leads SWC passers with 12.3 completions and 161.3 yards per game with Harris a distant second at 7.0 completions and 97.3 yards.

The individual statistics are comparatively low for the same reason so many freshmen and sophomores are directing offenses—the uncommon number of injuries that have hit SWC quarterbacks in the first three weeks of the season.

Rose equals Cobb's 200-hit mark

By The Associated Press

It's been a tough year for Ty Cobb.

First, the Hall of Famer lost his career stolen base record to St. Louis Cardinal speedster Lou Brock. Now, Cincinnati's Pete Rose has tied the former Detroit Tiger and Philadelphia Athletics outfielder's record of nine seasons with 200 or more hits.

"I really don't compare myself to him," Rose said of Cobb. "He's the all-time great. The things we have in common are our 200-hit years and we both really like to play the game."

Rose singled in the first inning of the Reds' 8-0 victory over the San Diego Padres for his 199th hit of the season. Then, in the seventh, he beat out an infield chopper.

"It's a personal satisfaction to get 200 because I set my goals in the spring and that was one," Rose said. "It's a pleasure to fulfill a desire.

"I needed 41 hits with 30 games to go and my swing from the left-hand side of the plate wasn't good. When I got that straightened out, I started to grind 'em out."

"The thing that makes me most proud with the 200-hit seasons is that it proves consistency," Rose said.

While Rose was reaching his milestone, Johnny Bench and George Foster were providing the punch to power Cincinnati to an 8-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Bench slammed a basesloaded homer in the first inning and Foster slugged his 52nd home run of the season to back Paul Moskau's four-hitter.

Dodgers 2, Giants 1

Veteran reliever Charlie Hough, making his first major league start, hurled two-hit baseball for five innings as Los Angeles edged San Francisco. The Giants' run was a homer by Willie McCovey, his 28th, off reliever Dennis Lewallyn.

Phillies 5, Cubs 2

Jerry Martin, Jay Johnstone, Barry Foote, Fred Andrews and Tim McCarver each singled home a run as Philadelphia defeated Chicago. Reliever Randy Lerch, 10-6, was credited with the victory while Mike Krukow, 8-14, took the loss.

Expos 4, Cardinals 2

A two-run double by Chris Speier sparked Montreal's three-run rally in the eighth inning as the Expos defeated St. Louis. Montreal right-hander Steve Rogers, 17-15, went the distance on a seven-hitter.

Astros 2, Braves 1

Mark Lemongello backed his own six-hitter by driving in the winning run to pace Houston past Atlanta. The Braves' lone run came on Pat Rockett's homer to lead off the sixth.

Pirates 3, Mets 2

Rookie Ken Macha's runscoring sixth-inning single boosted Pittsburgh over New York as Jim Rooker, 14-9, got tte victory with relief help from Rich Gossage.

Yankees' magic number now one

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees are closing the door in the American League East race and have the opportunity to lock it tonight for good.

"It feels lovely," said New York Manager Billy Martin, whose Yankees can do no worse than tie for their second straight East pennant.

The Yankees' enviable position is a result of their 10-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, combined with Boston's 3-2 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays.

That left the Yankees' "magic number" at one for clinching the division title. That can be accomplished with a victory over Cleveland tonight, or a loss by both Boston and Baltimore. The Red Sox host the Blue Jays again and the Orioles play at home to the Detroit Tigers, a team they beat 3-2 in 11 innings Wednesday night.

"NO ONE lost this race—New York just went out and won it," said Boston slugger Carl Yastrzemski, all but conceding the division title to the Yankees, who are playing their most consistent baseball of the season.

Of course the championship does not officially belong to the Yankees yet. Some of the people in the Boston camp are quick to point that out, even in jest.

"New York can lose four in a row, can't they?" noted catcher Carlton Fisk.

That's exactly what will have to happen, along with Boston winning four straight, for the teams to finish in a tie for first. Baltimore has a similar opportunity to pull off the minor baseball miracle.

THE LATEST Yankee victory was accomplished with a shower of home runs, including Reggie Jackson's first-inning grand slam. Graig Nettles, Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson also homered for the Yankees to help Don Gullett coast to his 14th victory in 18 decisions. The left-hander allowed five hits over seven innings before Ken Clay finished.

Martin has won divisional titles with two other American League teams, but this would be the first time that he has won two in the same city.

And it might be his sweetest of all. The beleaguered manager was close to losing his job earlier this season when the Yankees were beset by internal problems.

"I don't think I'm a great manager," said Martin, when asked if the Yankee success could be traced to his guile, "but I will tell you right now that I am a happy one."

Blue Jays 3, Red Sox 2

Light-hitting Tim Nordbrook got a gift triple and scored the tie-breaking run on Bob Bailor's infield hit in the seventh inning as Toronto edged Boston.

Nordbrook, who entered the game with a .181 average, hit a 300-foot pop fly which landed down the right-field line, just beyond Jim Rice's reach. Gary Woods grounded out, but Bailor got a scratch hit against the drawn-in infield, scoring Nordbrook.

Orioles 3, Tigers 2

Rick Dempsey's 11th-inning, run-scoring single gave Baltimore its victory over Detroit and enabled Jim Palmer to reach the 20-victory mark for the seventh time in eight seasons.

The winning run was unearned, as it followed an error by shortstop Chuck Scrivener. Kiko Garcia hit into a force play for the second out, but stole second and scored on Dempsey's two-out single, the only hit off Steve Foucault, 7-6, in five innings of relief. Palmer, a three-time Cy Young Award winner, has compiled a 13-3 record since July 1, and now is 20-11.

A's 6, Royals 5

Marty Perez singled to score pinch-runner Larry Murray with two out in the 10th inning and lead Oakland over Kansas City. Mike Jorgensen led off the 10th with a single. Murray ran for Jorgensen, took second on a sacrifice by Jim Tyrone and third on an infield out before scoring the winning run.

The winner was Bob Lacey, 6-8, and the loser Gary Lance, who was making his major league debut in relief for the Royals.

Rangers 3, Mariners 1

Gaylord Perry stopped Seattle with an eight-hit, 13-strikeout performance and Claudell Washington slugged a home run, pacing Texas past the Mariners.

Angels 4, Brewers 2

Ike Hampton drove in two runs with a homer and a double, leading California over Milwaukee. Hampton hit his second homer of the year with none on in the fifth off loser Jerry Augustine, 12-18, giving the Angels a 2-1 lead.

Hampton later doubled home Ron Jackson in the seventh, giving the Angels a 3-1 advantage. Gil Flores followed with a single, scoring Hampton with the Angels' final run.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

Richie Zisk drove in two runs with a double and his 30th homer to power Chicago over Minnesota. Steve Renko, acquired from the Chicago Cubs Aug. 18, won his fifth game without a loss in the American League and foiled the Twins'. Dave Goltz, 19-11, in his attempt to become the league's first 20-game winner.

Cease-fire settles nothing in rebuilding Lebanon

The Washington Post

BEIRUT — Ten months after a final ceasefire formally ended the long Lebanese civil war, nothing has been settled. Echoes of the fighting in southern Lebanon have paralyzed efforts toward normalization.

Posters throughout Beirut advertise the movie "The Enforcer," an appropriate title for a country that owes its surface calm to the presence of some 30,000 occupation troops, mainly from Syria.

"Take them away and the fighting will start in 15 minutes," is about the only thing that Palestinians and Lebanese-Christian and Moslem, rightists and leftists — agree on.

With a political settlement of the war postponed by the running southern Lebanese fighting, many Lebanese who returned after the shooting are leaving again.

The hundreds lining up for American, French and Saudi Arabian visas testify to the vote of no confidence in a society that seems to have mislaid the magic formula that allowed miraculous growth in the 1950s and 1960s.

Plans for rebuilding the devasted business center of the capital have been approved for months. Yet, despite as much as $1 billion in excess liquidity in banks here, no one is willing to invest.

According to one pessimistic report, it will take Beirut $12 billion and 12 years to get back to its pre-war level of prosperity.

The oil-rich Arabs who contributed heavily both to pre-war investments and to the wartime pay of militiamen, insist that the Lebanese put up their own money.

The trouble is that the movers and shakers, the perhaps 10,000 men who made pre-war Beirut the service capital of the Middle East, have learned how to make money with their oil-state clients working from their London and Paris offices.

Still, the American embassy only this week authorized its diplomats to have their families live in Beirut for the first time in nearly two years.

Even so, long after the November 1976 cease-fire, Beirut remains two cities, and — given the small dimensions of Lebanon — there is a temptation to say that Lebanon remains two countries.

Asrafiyeh, the Christian heartland during the war but previously a mostly working- and middle-class residential neighborhood, suddenly has sprouted airline offices, travel agencies and bank branches.

The traditional business center lies in ruins and many Christians simply no longer want to live or take their trade to Moslem-dominated West Beirut, especially Hamra, the once fashionable shopping district.

Asrafiyeh rents have skyrocketed because the neighborhood simply did not have enough free space to meet the demands. Curiously, even Hamra prices have followed suit because of the yet unchallenged pre-war tradition that made it the most expensive real estate in the capital.

Yet, throughout the city many apartments are empty or occupied by squatters driven out of their homes during the civil war or more recently by artillery barrages in the south.

The Christians feel they won the war. The Phalange, the largest Christian organization, has been recycling as many as 1,000 men every two weeks through five military training camps in the mountains.

In part, it is a tactical decision to try to keep the Christians keyed up to the wartime pitch and signs of Christian militancy abound.

Fewer Syrian occupation troops are stationed in their territory than in the rest of the country, especially Moslem West Beirut.

The Phalange runs its own post office system — a hangover from the war. It also maintains its illegal radio station long after the other wartime militias abandoned theirs in favor of the state monopoly. And the Phalangists have recently completed an airport capable of handling Boeing 727s along one of the rare flat expanses of their craggy mountain heartland.

Taken almost for granted if Lebanon is ever allowed to sort itself out is Christian domination of the central government to a degree unrivalled since the country became independent of France in 1943.

Why nobody got to Calcutta

As Israel continued to clamp a news blackout on the Dayan trip, rumors prevalent here (Jerusalem) ranged from the facetious— that Dayan had to return because he left behind Israel's peace proposal—to the ominous—that Begin had suddenly become critically ill.

—The Los Angeles Times

The Big Four summit conference turned out to be an empty table when, incredibly, halfway there all four leaders ordered their pilots to turn around and fly home. We take you first to the White House.

"Mr. President, the nation is wild with speculation, and I don't mind telling you not all of it would be suitable for the family hour. Can you tell us now why you suddenly turned around and came home?"

"I'd be happy to," the president said, smiling. "You see, halfway to the conference I discovered I had left my sack lunch behind. I still might not have come back, except that it was peanut butter sandwiches with grape jelly."

"You don't mean you came back for a peanut butter sandwich?"

"Two peanut butter sandwiches. Rosalynn always makes me two. One just doesn't do the job, know what I mean?"

"You came back for two peanut butter sandwiches?"

"With grape jelly," said the president.

"Couldn't you have gotten some in Calcutta?"

"Well, I'm not so sure. Peanut butter is a religious thing there, isn't it? Like cows?"

"I have no idea."

"Anyway, it wouldn't have been as good as Carter peanut butter."

"What makes Carter peanut butter so special?"

"The butter," said the president of the United States. "We use the very best butter."

AT THE ELYSEE PALACE in Paris, the president of France was no where to be seen. An aide was available for comment.

"Where is President Giscard d' Estaing?"

"That I do not kpow, sir. Somewhere in the palace, but where I cannot say."

"He isn't hiding, is he?"

"On the contrary, he seeks something which is hidden."

"What would that be?"

"His savoir-faire. It is the reason he had to come back halfway to the summit meeting; suddenly he realized he had left it behind. The President of France never leaves the palace without his savoir-faire."

"I don't think-he had it with him at the Kuala Lumpur conference."

"That's a nasty rumor without foundation. I know he had it with him, because I was with him when he found it."

"Where was it that time?"

"In the dirty linen hamper. Beneath a smelly sock, in truth."

"It must have been disgusting."

"A little, yes. One of the maids put it there. She's with Mitterand, now."

"Does Giscard misplace his savoir-faire often?"

"All the time, and in this big palace, it is the very devil to find."

At just this moment we caught a glimpse of a man on all fours darting frantically among the sofas and chairs at the far end of the room. He appeared to be in search of something.

"Who's that?"

"Please," said the French president's aide, "don't ask."

"MR. CALLAGHAN, everyone in England, though probably not everyone in Scotland, and probably hardly anyone in Wales, is curious to know why you abruptly came home halfway to the summit conference at Calcutta?"

"Elementary," said the Prime Minister, reclining comfortably in his chair at 10 Downing St. "I left my five-pound note behind." The P.M. reached into his pocket, withdrew his billfold and produced the note. "See, here it is," he said proudly.

"Where did you get five pounds?"

"Me mum gave it to me."

"You may be the wealthiest man in England."

"Well, I am the P.M."

"You really shouldn't flash that around, you know." The Prime Minister was sort of playing with the money, waving it in the air.

"Why not? It's what I was going to Calcutta for."

"To flash five pounds?"

"Precisely. To prove to everybody the English are not broke. Especially, to Mr. Carter. Do you know I have it on the best authority that that soybean farmer bet the average street beggar in Calcutta has more money than an Englishman? Well, this here five quid says that's not so." The Prime Minister was flourishing the money again, and his face was turning red. He was pretty worked up about the whole thing.

"Mr. Callaghan, just how much is five pounds, in American currency?"

"Approximately 22 cents, according to the latest figures."

"What's the point in 22 cents?"

"Blimey, it'll still get you a cup of tea," said the Prime Minister. "Probably a crumpet, too, except in the very best shops."

SEATED BEFORE a mirror in his bedroom in the Kremlin, the Soviet leader didn't look himself, somehow, though just what was wrong wasn't immediately obvious.

"Mr. Brezhnev, everybody from Alinsky to Zhavnistok, which is a whole alphabet, wants to know why you returned to Moscow halfway to the summit meeting?"

"How did you get in?" said the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, parliamentarian, head chef and top banana of all the Russias.

"The Kremlin or your bedroom?"

"The Kremlin."

"With the spare key you keep hidden behind the loose brick at the Gorky gate."

"I'll have to find a new hiding place," said Brezhnev.

"You still haven't told why you came back to Moscow."

"Forgot my false eyebrows," Brezhnev said sheepishly. He opened a drawer in the bureau and took out a pair of bushy, false eyebrows. Instantly it was apparent what had seemed strange about his appearance; his natural eyebrows are pencil streaks. "I was just going to put these on when you barged in," he said.

"Sorry to have interrupted. But really, now, can false eyebrows have been worth the trip back?"

"Do not make jokes, comrade," Brezhnev said sternly. "With my false eyebrows, I am the Big Bad Russian Bear. Everybody, even Gromyko, says so. Without them, I am baboushka tednikov."

"Baboushka tednikov?"

"Teddy bear," said the Russian Bear. "Cuddly teddy bear."

New book provides men with tips on good grooming

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Men have become more fashion-conscious in recent years by indulging their vanities in highpriced hairstyles, wigs, facial treatments and health clubs, and other things to achieve an attractive appearance.

And now a book, "Looking Good," puts it all together for the average man as well as for those with bigger objectives. The author, Charles Hix, points out that he doesn't really like the word "grooming," with its horsey implications, but he hasn't found a better word to describe man's interest in his appearance. In his opinion, "a well-groomed fellow looks good in jeans or tuxedo. An unkempt guy looks good in neither."

The average man may not be interested in the hair spray, cosmetic surgery, permanent waves, hair straightening and hair dyeing, that are discussed in detail in the book. But hair and skin interest rugged men as well as men who may pamper themselves, and those subjects are done especially well in the book.

For example, even washing the face can be a challenge. Hix points out that many men cleanse their faces, but barely rinse, leaving residual soap "or facial debris" that helps clog pores.

"The most important task of a cleanser is to remove as much dirt and oil from the skin as possible without irritating it. It also should be completely removable.

"In most instances, old-fashioned soap and water meet these requirements best," he points out, but some soaps may be bad for the face. Detergent "soapless" soaps contain chemicals rather than natural ingredients — such as sodium salts, water, fatty acids and some oil — that are found in real soap. The real thing leaves a bathtub ring, he observes, whereas detergent soaps will not. Deodorant soaps with their antibacterial additives which may be good for the body are not necessarily good for the face.

In fact, there are many kinds of soaps. Castile soap is made with olive oil instead of fat. There are clear soaps which contain glycerine, alcohol and sugar, and superfatted soaps with additional fat and oil which lessens their effectiveness, in his opinion, as they leave a residue. True soaps are unperfumed and uncolored. To use soap properly, one should apply water to the face, lathering the hands, applying soapy lather to the wet skin, Hix points out.

The pH factor in soaps is a tipoff as to whether soap is neutral, acidic or alkaline. Studies indicate that normal, healthy skin is slightly acidic and wears an acid mantle, but acidic cleansers aren't necessarily superior, he advises.

Hix describes the thinning of skin with abrasives such as sponges or by shaving action, and abrasive cleaners — soaps with hard particles milled into them as beads or grains dispersed in liquid, lotion or gel — scrubs that should not be used each day and which should be chosen with caution. They should not be used about the eyes.

What about an astringent used to reduce oil in the skin? Some skin specialists believe astringent should be used only by men with oily skin, whereas other experts believe astringent can be used often unless the skin is very, very dry, and that it should be applied at bedtime after using primary cleanser. A homemade astringent can be made by diluting rubbing alcohol with water.

There is much more about skin, blemished complexions, acne, eczema and psoriasis, and there is a fine chapter on shaving. There are also excellent chapters on hair and scalp care dealing with the structure of the hair, grooming aids and hair problems. There is advice about hairstyling which hinges, the author says, "on one's lifestyle, age, personality and career." Proper styling is suggested for special problems — high or low foreheads, long nose, receding hair. Hair weaving and hair transplants are discussed and there is a good chapter on growing beards and moustaches.

DEAR ABBY

Grandparents' bond with children remains

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I married Ted. His wife (Maxine) died and left him with two children, ages 6 and 8. This is my first marriage.

I say that after Maxine died, Ted is no longer related to Maxine's relatives. Ted says Maxine's parents will always be his in-laws.

Well, I have parents, too, so where does that leave them? A person can only have one set of in-laws at a time, and MY parents should be regarded as grandparents, too, and they aren't. The titles of "Grandma and Grandpa" go to Maxine's parents. My parents are called "Papa Pete and Mama Mary." Do you think this is fair? And what can I do about it?—IN-LAW TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Even though technically Ted is no longer the son-in-law of Maxine's parents, I advise you not to be so technical.

There is a strong bond between Ted's former in-laws and their grandchildren, so if you're wise, you won't tamper with those bonds because they were established before you came into the picture. Grandparents are grandparents forever.

DEAR ABBY: I admire parents who take an interest in their children's school work, but we have a situation in our school that I think needs looking into.

There is a family whose parents are well-educated and very smart, if one of their children has to write a theme or give a speech, his parents "help" him with it to the extent of doing the whole thing.

I happen to know this is so because my son pals with their son, who won a speech contest by giving an "original" speech, which his father wrote for him. I think this is unfair to the other children who go by the rules.

I wish you would mention this in your column. Maybe the guilty parents will see it and take the hint.—FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: Not only is it unfair to the other children, it is unfair to their own child. The real "prize" is in the learning—not in the winning.

DEAR ABBY: Charlie and I have been married for 32 years. We love to dance and go dancing every chance we get. (We've invested a lot in dancing lessons too.)

For some reason, there seem to be fewer good dancers among men than women, which is my problem.

Whenever Charlie and I go dancing, one gutsy lady after another approaches Charlie and says, "Gee, you're a terrific dancer—how about a dance?"

Not wanting to embarrass the lady, and maybe feeling flattered to have been noticed, my Charlie dances off with her while I'm left sitting on the sidelines. This has happened more times than I can count, and I'm tired of it.

Abby, will you please tell all those gutsy ladies out there that it's rude and unladylike to ask a man to dance?—CHARLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your problem is not gutsy ladies—it's Charlie. He should diplomatically let the gutsy ladies know that he brought his wife along because THEY enjoy dancing together.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hot whirling tubs filling up backyards

By S. J. DIAMOND
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — "After a couple of hours in our new Jacuzzi," says the wife of a Los Angeles filmmaker, "I said to my husband, 'Are we dead? We must be, because this has to be heaven!'"

They are hardly alone in the ether. For resorts, backyards and bathrooms across the country are filling with spas and hot tubs, all with aerated bubbles for "tingle" and hydrojets for "massage."

In the view of fiberglass spa manufacturer Len Gordon, president of Riviera Industries, whirlpools appeal to consumers with no less than "health, sex, status and glamor."

Sex sells best, of course. "Have a hot time in an Anthony Spa," suggests one advertisement. Others call them "Tubs for Two" and "Luv Tubs." Small wonder the uninitiated ask, "Say, what do you people do in your Jacuzzis?"

> "I have one in my home—a Riviera, of course—and would you believe my wife calls it a Jacuzzi? It just saves explaining."
>
> Len Gordon
> Jacuzzi competitor

Like waterbeds, which started as therapy for bedridden patients, whirlpools began as a health item, soothing the aching limbs of athletes, hospital patients and visitors to health clubs and ski resorts. The first consumer retail product was also a health device — a portable hydrojet bathtub unit developed in the 1940s by Jacuzzi, a water pump company. It was for one of the Jacuzzi children, who had arthritis and had to be taken regularly to a hospital for whirlpool therapy.

In 1954, Jacuzzi began marketing the units and, though Jacuzzi's hydrotherapy components and tubs now have a lot of competition, the name is treated as if it were generic. Even Riviera's Len Gordon, a competitor, admits. "I have one in my home — a Riviera, of course — and would you believe my wife calls it a Jacuzzi? It just saves explaining."

Home whirlpools have existed for some time as optional attachments to swimming pools. Anthony Industries has been offering attached spas for 10 years, and when they began promoting the option half a dozen years ago, had less than 10 per cent acceptance.

Now a good one-third of their pools nationwide and two-thirds of those in Los Angeles are being ordered with spas, at $900-$1,200 above the cost of the pool. Anthony builds separate spas as well, at a cost of about $4,500 apiece.

The option served to prove what pool makers had long suspected: A lot of people don't swim in their pools, they just dunk, and all the more so if offered a dunk with a difference.

The attraction is particularly obvious in communal spas. Most of the time, according to orchestra leader Manny Glass, who lives in a nearby Culver City apartment complex, "you'll see two people in our swimming pool doing their muscles number, and at least a dozen in or around the Jacuzzi, drinking beer till early morning. It's become a social center."

Given the speed and flexibility of plastics manufacture, the market soon belonged to the makers of fiberglass and acrylic spas, who churned out an array of rectangles, circles, ovals, kidneys and teardrops in which as many as a dozen very good friends could be buffeted and boiled together by waters up to 106 degrees.

These range from $2,000 to $5,500 installed and fully equipped with heater, filter, pump and usually several hydrojets. Thousands more can be spent on tiling, decking and landscaping. On the other hand, at least a third of spa buyers are do-it-yourselfers.

Barely out of its infancy and very competitive, the spa business has no hard figures tallied to document its success. Overall, perhaps 6,000 spas were sold "in the whole history of independent spa before 1974," guesses Bernie Burba, vice president of Baja Industries in tucson, Ariz., and the industry's unofficial statistician for several years. Another 6,000 a year were sold in both 1974 and 1975, with a recession on. By 1976, there was advertising, dealerships and increasing demand. Dave Kaiser, managing editor of Swimming Pool Weekly, now estimates sales hit 29,000 last year with 1977 growth predicted at 50 per cent.

The so-called "California hot tub phenomenon" began in the 1950s in an artists' community in the Santa Barbara hills about 100 miles north of here. Then, as occasionally now, the hot tubs were simply converted wine vats and old water tanks; today's Jacuzzi action is a modernization, crossed over from spas.

One of the first indications of the growing hot tub enthusiasm came from professional coopers like A. Bellagio Wood Tank Co. in Sonoma County north of San Francisco. Both Al Bellagio and his partner followed their fathers into the cooperage trade. Last year their orders for redwood tanks for hot-tubbing exceeded orders from the wine industry they primarily served.

Company enters housing field after two disastrous ventures

By JAMES J. MITCHELL
Copley News Service

After two disastrous ventures in the manufactured housing business in the last eight years, Wickes Corp. is reentering the field, but more cautiously than before.

The company is manufacturing and selling housing kits — packages of materials that can be assembled into homes by contractors or even by novice builders, Wickes says.

In either case, the costs are substantially lower than conventional housing, says the firm. That is why Wickes callse its product "affordable homes."

The homes, which are not expected to be available until at least a year from now, come in 17 different models. They range in size from a two-bedroom, one-bath unit with 720 square feet to a three-bedroom, one-and-a-half bath with 1,800 square feet plus a garage.

Prices of the Wickes packages vary between $10,440 and $18,840 and average about $13 a square foot.

Wickes provides a detailed set architectural blueprints and easy-to-understand guide to help customers through every step of the construction process. The company claims that even novice builders can erect a Wickes home with very little professional help.

But if a person is unwilling to invest the "sweat equity" necessary to build the home by himself, he can hire a contractor and still save money on the total cost of a house, Wickes says.

The average cost of erecting a Wickes home using a contractor is between $20 and $23 a square foot, the company estimates. That figure includes the cost of a foundation, transporting the Wickes materials to the site, the contractor, labor and utility hookups.

Insurance companies say construction costs of single-family homes built on an individual basis, that is, not in tracts, today range from $24 to $30 a square foot.

In the current fiscal year, Wickes expects to sell 1,500 homes, about 75 per cent more than last year.

Women face same sex problems

By BARRY SHLACHTER

TOKYO (AP) — Problems Japanese women face in sexual relations are basically the same as those confronting American women, says Shere Hite, who visited Japan recently to promote sales of her book on female sexuality.

Despite mutual misconceptions, both Japan and the United States view sexual gratification as more important for men than women, the author of "The Hite Report" said in an interview.

"There is a stereotype in Japan that American women are much more assertive and freer (than Japanese women). And there are co-existing stereotypes in the United States about Japanese women," said the historian-turned-sex researcher.

"One, that they are submissive. And two, that Japanese society is more erotic than American society — because we've all seen those (Ukioe) prints."

However, after meeting with Japanese women here and in Kyoto, south of Tokyo, Ms. Hite, 34, said she found these views to be unfounded.

"I think the style is different in how American women express their feelings about what goes on in sex," she said. "But I've been hearing the same things here — 'I'm glad I'm not the only one' or 'I'm not different' — something like that."

Numerous articles have appeared in leading Japanese newspapers and magazines.

Buying home appealing to more working women

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Some career women are paying large rents when they might well be building equity in their own homes. It's worth consideration.

For example, one group of four women pays $900 a month for an apartment. If one owned it and rented to the others, at least one of their number would be paying off a mortgage. As one points out though, "incomes for women are so high now they just accept the high cost of living."

Banks are cooperating with young people seeking mortgages, but often there aren't enough reminders that they are entitled to borrow for such investments. And some think it is more complicated than it is.

Yet "many women are realizing they are entitled to credit and they are coming into banks for it," says Raymond E. Cummings, president of the eightbranch Burritt Mutual Savings Bank of New Britain, Conn.

In particular, he says, more single women are taking advantage of mortgages that are available to them. And about 50 per cent of those mortgages are written for the under-40 group. Some years ago his bank encouraged such investments by introducing Ms and Bachelor Pad mortgages. Actually these were labels designed to attract young people to investigate mortgage possibilities which they might ignore. The idea has been extremely successful and they are writing 150-plus Ms mortgages every year.

"Condominiums, especially the attached two-and four-unit buildings, are popular with young people. They can find condominiums in the $30,000 to $40,000 bracket, although at that price it usually is a modest home. It all depends where you want to buy," Cummings says.

But it is a starter home and the equity in it can give young people a lot of assurance when they want to settle down.

Older persons still want a piece of land and a feeling that the home and land "is all my own." Young people embrace the freedom of condominium life with its built-in security, swimming pools, tennis, and the maintenance-free advantages that do not restrict their activities.

Some young people want a feeling of more permanence and a new kind of condominium has become popular with them, Cummings says. It is a rowhouse type of modern building that entitles one to her own plot of land and her own entrance. It is the usual fee simple title — the most complete ownership in real estate, "with a hunk of land that satisfies the human need," Cummings explains.

Young people usually gravitate to the "adults only" condominium communities and when they marry and start a family, they move out. "If they don't, their neighbors soon get the message across to them," Cummings observed.

Even the future income to look pretty secure before they part with those dollars.

"The average woman applying for a mortgage needs to have reasonable earnings in order to acquire a mortgage. But each case must be considered on an individual basis. You can't really pinpoint the earnings that might be required in any particular case," explained Cummings.

Somalia-Ethiopia tightrope trips up Soviet Union

The Washington Post

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — The Soviet Union is walking a very tight rope between old and new allies in the Horn of Africa as both Somalia and Ethiopia press it with ever more vehemence to stop supplying arms to the other.

While Moscow appears determined to straddle the conflict in a bold bid to emerge as the dominant foreign power in both countries, this policy is becoming increasingly untenable as the war between the two neighboring nations — the worst ever between two black African countries — continues to grow.

Ethiopia now, like Somalia earlier, is resentful and suspicious of the Soviet policy of providing military assistance to its main enemy. This suspicion partly explains the sudden Ethiopian interest in restoring normal relations with the United States, the country that until last April was the main arms supplier of the Ethiopian armed forces.

The Ethiopian military government now blames the Soviet Union for the loss in late July of Gode, a small but strategic town with the only good airport in the disputed Ogaden region. Ethiopians say they removed artillery and an armored battalion from there in April to fight rightist elements in northwestern Ethiopia on the advice of the Soviets, who reportedly assured Ethiopia that they would prevent the Somalis from attacking in force.

The Ethiopians had counted on the Soviet Union to prevent the kind of full-scale onslaught by Somali regular forces that has occurred in the Ogaden. Somalia apparently defied Soviet pressure and went ahead on July 23 with its long-planned strategy of conquering the region.

The growing Ethiopian irritation with Moscow was clearly visible a week ago at a press conference when Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, the ruling Military Council's chairman accused the Soviet Union, for the first time, of "complicity" with the Somali "war of aggression" against Ethiopia.

According to the official transcript of the press conference, published last week, Mengistu's reply to a question about Ethiopia's reaction to the Soviet policy of supplying arms and 1,500 military advisers to the Somali army was far stronger than the translation of his remarks during the press conference.

Media criticism defended

By RONALD L. SOBLE
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — New Yorker magazine was entirely within character when it sharply criticized New York City's two mass circulation dailies, the Daily News and the New York Post, for what it described as irresponsible reporting in the Son of Sam slayings, says George J. Green, the magazine's president.

"You couldn't live in New York during this whole Son of Sam episode without just being disgusted by the headlines and the provocative stories that were written," says Green. "Is it the place of the press to report the news or make the news? And essentially what we were saying was that the newspapers were making the news."

Green was responding during an interview here to a question whether the New Yorker's recent press criticism signaled a shift in editorial policy toward increased coverage and analysis of current events.

Not really, says the 39-year-old Yale University graduate who has been the publication's president for two years.

Recalling that the New Yorker's opening section of commentary, called The Talk of the Town, has taken tough positions on the Vietnam war and the Watergate crisis, he said the column "is going to speak up whenever it feels it has to."

In two Talk of the Town pieces, Aug. 15 and Sept. 5, the magazine castigated the New York news media, particularly the Daily News and the Post, for sensational reporting in the Son of Sam case.

"By transforming a killer into a celebrity, the press has not merely encouraged but perhaps driven him to strike again — and may have stirred others brooding madly over their grievances to act," said New Yorker writer Richard Harris in the customarily unsigned pieces.

Some of the magazine's criticism targeted Daily News columnist Jimmy Breslin, declaring a portion of Breslin's writing about the Son of Sam case could be used by journalism schools "as example of journalistic irresponsibility."

Breslin, in a four-column Aug. 11 counterattack on the New Yorker, accused the magazine of being "removed from the grime of everyday life...in the world of the New Yorker writer, one sits in the Algonquin (Hotel) lobby and sips daiquiries while discussing subjects such as the Herb Society of America and the Third Annual Great Connecticut River Raft Race."

Green suggests that such sour grapes might be attributed to the fact that there has not been sharp press criticism in the media since the late A. J. Liebling wrote The Wayward Press columns for the magazine. (Liebling died in 1963).

"The unwritten rule," Green said, "is not to criticize your media associates. It's like doctors about other doctors and lawyers.

"But I think if you have a responsible press, you have a requirement — an obligation — to speak up if you think there is something awry. And I think that is exactly what we have done."

Care essential in using wrench

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Years ago, there was comedy routine in which, during an argument, one of the men would lightly touch the other on the arm, at which point the second man would scream, "Don't touch!"

If you keep a mental picture of that scene in mind, you are unlikely to make the most common mistake of the do-it-yourselfer in using a wrench. It's a tool that should not be pushed. If it is pushed while tightening or loosening a nut or bolt, there is a good chance that the wrench will slip and the user's hand will go crashing into some immovable object. Broken fingers or, at least, skinned knuckles, are the result.

Properly used, a wrench should be pulled, not pushed. Once in 20 or 30 times a situation will arise, usually in close quarters, where the only way the wrench can be moved is to push it. In that case, hold one hand open and push with the base of the palm against the wrench handle. Should the wrench slip, the handle rather than your hand will slam into the pipe or beam or whatever else is there.

Your home workshop can be equipped with all the power tools on the market, but it won't help any if a wrench is needed. There are literally hundreds of different kinds on the market, but you need be concerned with only a few unless you do specialty work of some kind.

The most common type of wrench is the adjustable, the jaws of which are smooth so that they can be used on nuts and bolts of different sizes. Within this category, there are many varieties of wrenches, some of which have jaws at both ends, but any wrench which has smooth jaws that can be moved by a special adjustment in the handle can be called an adjustable wrench.

When the jaws of a wrench can be opened and closed to the desired size, but the jaws have toothed rather than smooth edges, the wrench is called a Stillson. This is primarily a wrench for use on pipes and round objects. When misused on nuts and bolts, it will chew them up.

What is called a monkey wrench is a cross between a Stillson and an adjustable. It resembles the pipe wrench somewhat, but it has flat jaws like the adjustable and is generally used for heavy-duty jobs.

Open-end wrenches have fixed openings, sometimes on one end, sometimes on both ends. Since these wrenches are not adjustable, a different size is required for each specific job. They can be purchased individually or in sets. An openend wrench will often fit in cramped quarters where other wrenches might not.

An open-end wrench which has a circular opening on one end and a regular opening on the other is called a combination. There are notches within the circular openings to provide an especially firm grip.

Bakke case could bring another landmark decision

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court never whispers, but most often the only listeners are lawyers and the individuals immediately affected by a legal controversy's resolution.

While the weight of legal precedence — a roadmap for future generations of law — is carried in each Supreme Court decision, relatively few of the high court's edicts earn the adjectives "historic" and "landmark."

They are the decisions that transcend arcane legal questions to influence the nation's history, reshape its institutions or change some aspect of the American lifestyle.

Could President Harry Truman seize control of a strikebound steel industry to help a war effort? Could President Richard Nixon refuse to hand over his White House tapes to a federal criminal trial? Could the Constitution permit racial segregation, prayer in public schools or abortion?

In the Supreme Court term that begins next week, one case clearly stands out from the rest because of its potential to do just that.

What the nine justices decide in Regents of University of California versus Allan Paul Bakke could dictate what role minority races will play in American society and may affect millions of dollars worth of programs in government, education and private industry.

"The Bakke case, as it has come to be known, essentially asks whether government may take a person's race into account when its goal is to help traditionally disadvantaged races.

Those who say yes, most notably the Carter administration and the minority civil rights movement, call such consideration "affirmative action." Those who say no, like Bakke, call it "reverse discrimination."

Bakke, a white 37-year-old California resident, was twice turned down for admission to a University of California medical school. He claims he would have been admitted if the school had not maintained a special admissions program, which reserved 16 of the 100 spots in each entering class for "disadvantaged" applicants.

A white man was never admitted under the special program.

Bakke successfully argued before the California Supreme Court that he had been victimized by a racial quota, which set for each entering medical school class an inflexible number of minority members it had to contain, even if it harmed better academically qualified whites or led to unqualified minority students entering ahead of them.

The California court said such a program violates the Constitution's 14th Amendment, which orders that all persons be treated equally.

The Supreme Court faces two crucial issues: can race ever be considered and if so, are "benign quotas" acceptable.

Civil rights leaders say student enrollments at professional schools will be virtually all white if the court strikes down the use of racial considerations, robbing blacks and other minority members of the chance for membership in the professions.

But such a ruling could extend beyond education to other government and private affirmative action programs, begun in the 1960s to help bring minorities and women into the American mainstream. How will white citizens who may have lost out on an educational or job opportunity because of such programs react to a court decision upholding them?

In a string of cases, the court already has upheld the use of racial considerations by government so it is unlikely it would now use the 14th Amendment to strike down all affirmative action. But a narrow or restrictive opinion could jeopardize many existing programs.

The court could delay, as it did three years ago in the case of a white man denied admission to the University of Washington Law School, addressing the hard issues by finding that the facts of the Bakke case are not suitable.

Washington people: ex-Marine puts CIA under cover

By RUDY MAXA
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new book due out this month will heat up the national debate on the proper role of America's spy establishment. It claims, among other things, that:

—The CIA covered up the murder of a U.S. citizen on its payroll who was involved in international narcotics traffic.

—Richard Nixon knew long before the Huston Plan was devised that the government engaged in mail intercepts, break-ins, illegal surveillance; he was briefed on those and other dirty tricks in the Fifties when Eisenhower had heart problems and Nixon acted as President.

—Assets of the Northwest Federal Credit Union, which serves CIA employes, have increased sharply (from $40 million to $100 million) since the agency has come under scrutiny in the last several years. Not only is the credit union's interest rate for savings accounts higher than comparable institutions (7 per cent versus 6 and a quarter elsewhere), but its rate of delinquent loans is twice the national average. This might indicate the "laundering" of agency funds.

These assertions are made by intelligence specialist William Corson, who drew from thousands of pages of documents he requested under the Freedom of Information Act to write his profile of the American intelligence community called "The Armies of Ignorance" (Dial Press).

Corson, 52, is a retired Marine Corps officer with experience serving on numerous Cold War intelligence boards, primarily concerned with Asia.

He is currently Penthouse magazine's national affairs editor in Washington, and he informally assisted Sen. Frank Church's intelligence committee.

"One of my cliche questions is 'Name a spy.' Somebody says 'Nathan Hale' and I say 'Name me a second spy' and they can't," Corson says. "They are obscure people in history, and I wanted to write about the personalities of the players as well as about the institutional evolution of American intelligence."

Corson's "armies of ignorance" are the various intelligence agencies that he maintains have been operating too long without clear directions from the White House or a precise statute from Congress, a situation he thinks leads to blunders. He is squarely in the camp of those who advocate a centralized intelligence operation.

"The Church committee didn't finish the job," he says, "and the coming year may be the last chance to rationally achieve a structural reform of the intelligence community."

Footnote: Corson pinpoints the White House and Capitol Hill as the two most vulnerable spots for infiltration by foreign agents, and he offers the Korean lobbying effort on Capitol Hill as proof: "We trained them," Corson says, "and they used the tactics against us."

Out of the ashes of Tongsun Park's hurried departure from Washington, the phoenix of the Washington bar business is rising. He is Peter Malatsta, who says he was forced from the management of the private Georgetown club called Pisces last summer.

He's back with a one-two punch: a swank $500,000 restaurant in Alexandria, Va., (Peter's) and an in-town private nightspot (P.M.'s) that will offer members swimming and health-club privileges.

Putting his name on the marquee is Malatesta's way of letting people know he's the boss. Though Pisces was known as Malatesta's club, Tongsun Park was the major backer. When Park left Washington, the other principal partner of hte 3040 M Street Management Co., local wheeler-dealer Wyatt Dickerson, provided new capital. But Dickerson and Malatesta were quarreling, so Malatesta decided to strike out on his own.

Now, says Malatesta, "it's the bank and me."

Warner Records thinks so, and Monday the Washington group that broadened the meaning of bad taste flies to Miami to cut a record.

Panama bird sanctuary, wildlife preserve stir new treaty fight

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — It turns out that the Panama Canal is not just a shortcut for ships. It's also a bird sanctuary and wildlife preserve.

So while President Carter tries to fend off conservative critics of the canal treaty on one hand, the administration may have trouble with conservationists on another.

That's all Carter and his lobbyists need. They've got enough problems with the Conservative Caucus without taking on the Audubon Society.

Under American sovereignty, wide areas of tropical forest in the Panama Canal Zone have been preserved, providing a haven for birds and animals which in some cases are near extinction. The State Department describes the area as an island of forest in the middle of a generally cleared countryside.

But that probably won't be the case once Panama takes control of the zone, the 10-milewide strip around the Canal. Panamanians don't tend to worry that much about matters ecological, having more pressing problems. Even their forest parklands are sometimes taken over by impoverished squatters looking for a place to live and plant crops.

The State Department has dutifully issued an environmental impact statement on the Panama Canal treaty, but the environmentalists say it doesn't answer their questions.

"It is little more than an after-the-fact attempt on the part of the Department of State to rationalize its negotiation of the proposed treaty," said Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif.

Leggett said the Senate shouldn't approve the treaty until the administration has answered "disturbing questions about the impact" it will have on the Isthmus of Panama.

There is an article in the treaty committing the United States and Panama to protect the environment. There is to be a joint U.S.-Panamanian commission to follow up on that commitment.

It isn't clear what the commissioners are supposed to do if Panamanian squatters cut down the trees.

Leggett says the Canal Zone is "one of the world's great nature study spots," noting that the Panama Audubon Society set a world record last Christmastime by observing 333 species of birds in a single day.

By act of Congress, there's an island wildlife preserve in Gatun Lake. That also is the site of the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute, and there is to be a separate agreement with Panama to maintain it as an international center for tropical studies.

That, and other forest and wildlife reserves in the Canal Zone are prized by conservationists.

The State Department acknowledges that the best way to preserve the environment of the Canal Zone would be to keep it under U.S. control — if that would preserve things as they stand.

But the department's environmental statement warns that rejection of the treaty could lead to rioting and sabotage.

And that would be even worse for the environment. "The enforcement of forest and wildlife conservation could be seriously affected," the State Department says.

Another environmental concern grows out of the treaty provision for consideration of a future sea level canal. Scientists have warned that the consequences of a direct link between the two oceans cannot be foreseen, and the State Department said there would have to be extensive environmental studies if the United States sought to build a new canal.

Under the treaty, about 60 per cent of the Canal Zone would be placed under Panamanian control at the outset, with the rest of the area remaining in U.S. jurisdiction for operation of the canal until the year 2000, when it, too, would go to Panama.

Unlucky expert makes key play

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Peter Weichsel, New York expert, was unlucky enough to come down with appendicitis during the recent North American Torunament in Chicago. Earlier in the tournament he had won the Life Master Pair Championship, from which today's hand is taken.

East overtook the jack with the queen of daimonds to return his singleton club. West took the ace and gave East a club ruff. East then returned the ten of hearts.

Weichsel stepped up with the ace of hearts since West was marked with both missing kings for his opening bid. Then Weichsel made the key play. See if you can find it before you read on.

LEADS RIGHT TRUMP

To begin the trumps, Weichsel led the queen of spades!

West naturally played low, and the queen held. Weichsel then led a trump to the ace.

He could now afford to lead the queen of hearts to force out the king. West returned a club to dummy, but declarer cashed the jack of hearts and discarded his last club on dummy's last heart.

If Weichsel had led a normal trump to the ace and a trump back to drive out the king, West would have returned a club. This would enable him to cash the setting trick with a club when he got his king of hearts.

Perhaps the unlucky expert was West: he had to play this hand against Weichse.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, bids one heart, your partner doubles and the next player bids two hearts. You hold: S-Q9642; H-A86; D-5; C-9762. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. Partner promises the value of an opening bid with support for the unbid suits. You have good length in spades and should be able to develop a crossruff since you are short in daimonds and partner is short in hearts. game is entirely possible if partner has substantial extra strength.

Oldest campus bought

TEHUACANA, Tex. (AP) — John Jenkins, a 36-year-old writer who recently purchased the oldest university campus in Texas, says he plans to restore and re-open it as a small college or conference center.

Jenkins, who bought the 108-year-old Westminster University on a 17-acre plot, says he wants to preserve the scenic campus, located on what is said to be some of the highest ground between Fort Worth and the Gulf of Mexico.

He said the campus has great historical value, as it is reputed to have been the site of the first indoor basketball game in Texas, and was recently designated a national landmark.

Originally established in 1852 as Tehuacana University, the school became Trinity University in 1869, the first Presbyterian university in the Southwest.

Former postmaster pleads guilty to robbery charge

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Suspended Atlantic City Postmaster Gordon F. Lawson has pleaded guilty in federal court to playing a part in a robbery of more than $1 million in mail, money and property from the post office he once headed, the U.S. attorney here announced.

Lawson, 37, of Ocean City and Wyndmoor, Pa., was charged with masterminding a plot involving four other persons to rob the valuables from the post office Feb. 27. He was arrested by FBI agents and postal inspectors at his post office on May 31.

The 20-year veteran of the postal service entered the guilty plea Tuesday before U.S. District Court Judge John F. Gerry in Camden. He faces a sentence of up to 30 years in prison and a $10,000 fine at his Oct. 28 sentencing.

Lawson, charged with robbery and conspiracy, was accused of supplying coconspirators with information of the contents of post office vaults, providing floor plans and employes' work schedules and delivering a master key from which duplicates were made.

Three men carrying automatic pistols went into the post office on Feb. 27, handcuffed a guard and cleaned out vaults while a fourth man stood guard, authorities said.

Lawson was not in the post office during the robbery, U.S. Attorney Jonathan L. Goldstein said.

Most of the $1,052,956.81 loot in cash, money orders, travelers checks and stamps was recovered.

Briscoe names district judge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has appointed Lynn Coker of Conroe as judge of the 9th Judicial District, which comprises Polk, San Jacinto, Montgomery and Waller Counties.

He succeeds his father, Judge Ernest A. Coker Sr., who resigned.

Sanderson announces for office

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Charles Sanderson, a certified public accountant and former Bexar County auditor, announced Wednesday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as state treasurer.

Sanderson, 45, a native of San Antonio, told a news conference here he has filed for the post in Austin.

He said his goal as state treasurer would be "the institution of a modern and efficient cash management system."

Sanderson said such a system "would result ultimately in millions of dollars in savings to our taxpayers."

The incumbent state treasurer, Jesse James, a Democrat, has held the odfice for years, but has not yet announced whether he will seek re-election to another term.

Sanderson planned to make his announcement at news conferences in Austin, Dallas and Houston before the day was over.

Greek-Albanian relations improve

By MARY ANNE WEAVER
Special to The Washington Post

ATHENS — They seem a strange coupling, Albania and Greece.

One is a member of NATO and a consumer society where the counterculture thrives. The other, isolated and xenophobic, for 16 years counted only China as a friend and ally.

Yet, much to the astonishment of Western officials, Albania, the tiny odd-man-out in Europe, has recently made a number of overtures to Greece.

Within the past two months, the two countries have signed an agreement for a direct air link between their capitals, popular Greek singer Marinella has completed a whirlwind Albanian tour, and Albanian Ambassador Lik Seite and his seven-man staff have elevated Athens to one of three capitals from which Albanian officials have attacked the Peking government.

"It's obviously clear now that Albania's relations with China have deteriorated," one Eastern European diplomat said. "And this has influenced both internal and external developments, including a definite improvement in Albania's relations with Yugoslavia and Greece. Perhaps we can anticipate further openings to Italy and France ... These things are designed to lead to something, but, with the Albanians, you never know where."

Greek Foreign Officials are moving cautiously in their dealings with Tirana, "walking on eggshells," according to one account.

"After a period of such incredible isolation, no one expects Albania to now open her doors. Thus, even a window is significant," one Western official said. "But you've got to be acutely aware of their sensitivity and xenophobia, be overly cautious not to offend. Otherwise, they'll pull closed the shutters.

The problem with Greece is particularly sensitive, as it was only in 1971, when diplomatic relations were established that the two countries buried their differences and, in effect, ended their 1914 Balkan war.

The sharing of common borders, the commercial items Albania sorely needs, and the fact that Greece belongs to none of the political alignments at which Albania has hurled revolutionary abuse were all factors, according to diplomatic officials, in Albania's taking the initiative with Greece.

"Ironically," said one Eastern European official, "it was initially at China's behest." The Chinese, he explained, encouraged Tirana to strengthen relations to provide Peking with a Balkan listening post in Greece. Conversely, the Greek response had the blessings of NATO and the United States. Greece opened the door to Albania for Western nations, and Albania opened Athens for the Chinese.

Despite tentative steps in the early 1970's relations between Greece and Albania began to flower only this year.

Within the next few weeks, direct flights will be inaugurated between Tirana and Athens, Albania's first air link with the West. In October, Albania, will send its 18-man State Song-and-Dance Ensemble to give 12 performances in Greece.

Discussions on exchange visits of ministers of foreign affairs have been suspended until after Greece's November elections, but negotiations continue on reopening the mountainous frontier dividing the countries, which has been sealed for 30 years.

"Economically, both countries can benefit," one Balkan diplomat said. "And future emphasis will be on the trade sector — not on investment or tourism, but on the exchange of goods. There will also be openings in sports and culture, more exchanges of artistic groups.

"What is important politically, however," he continued, "is that there are no terribly serious problems separating the two countries today. The Greek minority in southern Albania is of concern to Athens. The Albanians are worried about American and NATO bases on their southern frontier. Both governments are acting with a great deal of sobriety, and neither of these questions is going to be raised."

For diplomatic officials, the most significant development in Marinella's tour was that she was permitted to sing in southern Albanian cities before members of the country Greek minority — 250,000 to 300,000 Greeks who found themselves within Albanian borders when new lines were drawn following World War II.

It was also the first time that a Western ensemble had toured the xenophobic Communist state.

"We were wined, dined, swept off our feet," said Marinella, 29. "Members of the audience included ministers and mayors. The six performances were packed."

There was only one flap during the eight-day visit.

The agreement was that Marinella would sing only Greek songs.

When she broke into American rock music at one performance, she was politely rebuked by the sponsoring organization — the Albanian Committee for Cultural and Friendly relations with the Outside World.

What's good for GM still good for nation

By ROBERT SOBEL
Newsday

"I always thought that what was good for General Motors was good for the United States, and vice versa."

Carles Wilson uttered those immmortal words almost a quarter of century ago. He was Dwight Eisenhower's defense secretary at the time, but before going to Washington Wilson had served as GM's president. The statement created a sensation, especially as many newspapers omitted the last three words. Several commentators suggested that Wilson had gone so far as to place Gneeral Motors' interests ahead of those of the nation.

Few thought to ask whether the thought made sense. Almost anyone on Wall Street would have replied that Wilson was absolutely correct. It was true then. So it is today.

The economy's health depends upon many factors. Interest rates and money supply make their contributions, as does the level of taxation and military spending. The number of housing starts is a key statistic, and so are department store sales. But automobile sales are one of the best indicators of where the economy is heading.

Wall Street looks to Washington for signs of what the government will do to stimulate or retard the economy, but the financial district also is attuned to developments in Detroit's factories and executive suites. If Jimmy Carter controls one economic lever, the auto executives have a grip on the other.

This will be an excellent year for the auto industry. Sales should cross the 11.1 million mark before New Year's Day. Right now dealers are introducing the 1978 models untroubled by the kind of excess inventory problem that existed in 1976. Despite price increases showroom traffic is heavy, and all the major companies have issued optimistic forecasts. GM predicts industry sales will top 11.7 million, while Ford anticipates the figure will be closer to 11.1 million. Chrysler's projections fall almost exactly between those of the industry leaders.

All three companies have devised strategies that will cut sales of foreign models produced by European and Japanese competitors. Barring a Mideast war there will be no gasoline shortage in the foreseeable future. This should favor Detroit's midsized cars, for which profit margins are higher than they are for the mini-models. Furthermore, the major firms have added new imports and domestically produced compacts of their own. Ford will have the Fiesta, a sort of Volkswagen Rabbit; GM is offering a four-door version of the Chevette and in addition has lowered its price; Chrysler's new Celeste and Lancer could prove alluring for purchasers in the market for Datsuns and Toyotas.

One must be wary regarding earnings forecasts for the big three auto companies. Projections can be thrown off by a variety of factors — shifts in public tastes, rumors that one or another car is a lemon, a sudden change in the gasoline supply situation, or new legislation out of Washington. All who have experienced the gas shortage need not be reminded how quickly sentiment toward cars can change.

Still, one must make assumptions when investment decisions are involved. If sales are around 11.4 million, and the market shares for the individual companies do not change drastically, and foreign sales experience a slight dip, it would appear that earnings will be very good this year, and better still in 1978.

It appears that Chrysler will earn close to $5.25 per share this year, down slightly from the 1976 figure. The 1978 earnings could be as high as $6 a share. Currently the stock sells for around 16, or three times earnings, and carries a $1 dividend. At this level there is practically no downslide risk for Chrysler.

General Motors' 1977 earnings will be a record $11.50 to $12 per share, and another dollar and a half could be added in 1978.

Most House Texans vote to draw more money for office expenses

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 15-21.

HOUSE

DISTRICT OFFICES. Adopted, 215 for and 193 against, a resolution (H Res 687) entitling each House member to an additional 1,000 square feet in office space back home. As a result of this vote, members are allowed 2,500 square feet spread among three or fewer district offices. The previous maximum was 1,500 square feet.

Sponsors said the resolution would cost about $2 million annually for the entire House. The cost per member varies from district to district, depending on prevailing rental rates. One estimate is that it would range from $4,000 per member per year to $13,600.

House rules permit office-rental allowances not spent on rent to be transferred to any other of the "official business" office accounts. These accounts cover such expenses as long-distance telephone calls, equipment leasing and purchasing, stationery purchases, travel to and from the district and computerized mailing services. Thus, for some members H Res 687 will provide a general increase in expense allowances rather than just an office-rental increment.

Members voting "yea" favored larger home-district offices.

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), Ray Roberts (D-4), Jim Mattox (D-5), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jake Pickle (D-10), James Wright (D-12), Jack Hightower (D-13), John Young (D-14), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Barbara Jordan (D-18), George Mahon (D-19), Henry Gonzalez (D-20), Robert Krueger (D-21), Bob Gammage (D-22), Abraham Kazen (D-23) and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "yea."

Rep. Jack Brooks (D-9) did not vote.

FAST-BREEDER. Rejected, 162 for and 246 against, an amendment to implement President Carter's planned phase-out of the Clinch River fast-breeder nuclear reactor project. The vote was a victory for proponents of the project and a defeat for the President.

The amendment was proposed to HR 6796, an Energy Research and Development authorization bill, later passed and sent to the Senate. Its defeat left intact $150 million for continuing to build the Clinch River plant.

At issue is whether the U.S. government should commit itself to the development of the fast-breeder nuclear technology for generating electricity—a process that produces more plutonium than it consumes. Despite its value as an energy source, Carter has called for a moratorium, largely on grounds that the technology encourages the spread of plutonium and building of nuclear weapons around the world.

Members voting "yea" favored the fast-breeder phase-out.

Mattox, Eckhardt and Jordan voted "yea."

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Teague, Archer, Pickle, Poague, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "nay."

Brooks did not vote.

MINIMUM WAGE. Adopted, 223 for and 193 against, an amendment establishing a three-step increase in the minimum wage in place of the "indexed" increases favored by organized labor. The overall bill (HR 3744) was later passed and sent to the Senate.

ROLL CALL REPORT

This vote was a defeat for labor, which had advocated a new system whereby the minimum wage would rise automatically in proportion to increases in manufacturing wages. This amendment, instead, retained the present system of Congress periodically deciding on increments. It would raise the present $2.30 hourly level to $2.65 in 1978, $2.85 in 1979 and $3.05 in 1980.

Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., the sponsor, said that to enact indexing rather than his amendment "is to abandon the fight against inflation" and submit to "a mindless, thoughtless rule."

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., an opponent, said the indexing proposal would "protect those at the very bottom of the economic ladder against the periodic escalations of prices...in a much more systematic, scientific and effective way than we have been able to do with our catch-ups from time to time."

Members voting "yea" were opposed to "indexing" of the minimum wage.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Brooks, Poage, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Krueger, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Wright, Jordan, Gonzalez and Gammage voted "nay."

Teague and Pickle did not vote.

SENATE

SACCHARIN BAN. Passed, 87 for and seven against, a bill (S 1750) delaying for 18 months any government ban on the artificial sweetener saccharin. During that period further government studies would be conducted into the link between saccharin usage and cancer in laboratory animals. The bill also requires saccharin products to contain label warnings of the cancer risk. It was sent to the House.

Senators voting "yea" favored passage of the bill.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen (D) and John Tower (R) voted "yea."

SACCHARIN BAN. Tabled, 52 for and 42 against, a requirement that during the 18-month period (see vote above) electronic media advertising of saccharin must contain a warning that the additive may cause cancer. A similar requirement for print media advertising also was stricken from the bill (S 1750).

Senators voting "nay" favored the mention of the cancer risk in electronic media advertising.

Tower voted "yea" and Bentsen voted "nay."

ABORTIONS. Tabled, 44 for and 41 against, an anti-abortion amendment proposed to a pending civil rights bill. The bill (S 995), later passed and sent to the House, stipulates that under the 1964 Civil Rights Act sex discrimination based on pregnancy is illegal. More specifically, S 995 would require employers to include pregnancy in their workers' disability plans.

The amendment tabled by this vote sought to exclude abortions as a pregnancy-related medical expense that would be covered under a disability plan.

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., a supporter of S 995 "is to prevent the tragedy of needless and unwanted abortions forced upon a woman because she cannot afford to leave her job without pay to carry out the full term of her pregnancy."

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., an opponent of tabling, said that "employers who are opposed to abortion should not be forced to...violate their personal moral conscience by financing payments of an abortion (through a disability plan)."

Senators voting "nay" favored the anti-abortion language.

Bentsen voted "yea" and Tower voted "nay."

HARTFORD (AP) — If you're a jogging buff or about to become one, here's a tip from one of your kind — run in a remote, secluded area instead of traffic-snarled, polluted, urban America.

"Life is too short to spend your recreation swallowing other people's smoke," says Dr. Edward P. Flanagan, a onetime Boston Marathon runner and dispenser of the advice on choosing your site.

"If a guy's going to jog and the only place is in the city, it's better that he jog than not," said Flanagan, a jogger for 10 years who now jogs an average of three times weekly. But if there's a choice, he added, it should be a more aesthetic setting, such as a park or reservoir area.

More advice offered by the 42-year-old anesthesiologist, who admittedly takes a conservative approach to jogging and other exercise, includes starting gradually and not becoming a fanatic.

"One of the things that has happened is some people in the jogging fraternity have gone a little overboard," he said, and cautioned that jogging won't solve all your health problems.

It is hoped that fanatics of the jogging world will be "identified as the new fascists that they are and the honest, moderate participants can proceed without extremism or guilt," Flanagan writes in a recent issue of Good Health, a monthly publication on medical topics for consumers.

American plans to play in world Othello tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans of the board game Othello have something new to flip over. Othello — like chess, backgammon and even Monopoly before it — has developed an international tournament.

Champions from around the world will compete in Tokyo on Oct. 29 for the title, said a spokesman for Gabriel Industries Inc., the American distributor of the game.

The game is played by two people who alternate putting disks — white on one side, black on the other — on the 64 squares of a green playing field. The object is to outflank an opponent's disks, flip them and end up with the majority of either black or white disks showing on the board.

Some 25 million Japanese play, according to the Gabriel spokesman. U.S. sales hit 500,000 last year and are expected to top one million in 1977, thanks in part to heavy television advertising.

Among Othello fans are old chess hands and college students at Caltech and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where computers have been programed for competition.

One contender for the U.S. championship, Mark Weinberg, 30, of Washington, says he plays Othello with his 3½-year-old daughter.

Weinberg says he is looking forward to national and international competition because local opponents have been hard to find.

"Some of my chess and backgammon friends play, and so does my wife, Joanne," he said. "But there just aren't many players here of my strength. I win about 20 of 21 games, and people don't like to play against that."

So how is he preparing for the international meet?

He's competing via mail with one of the world's best players — Fumio Fujita, Japan's national champion in 1976. The two met last year when Fujita toured the United States. Weinberg was one of few American players able to defeat the Japanese expert.

"He (Fujita) devised a score sheet, which he mails to me with a move marked in," Weinberg explained.

Siamese sisters parted

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — A team of 20 doctors worked for five hours to separate tiny Siamese twin girls in a delicate operation, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

Officials at North Shore University Hospital declined comment saying an announcement would be made later. However, sources said the five-hour operation was performed Tuesday and was successful.

It was learned that the 5½- month-old girls, the daughters of a Nassau County couple, were in satisfactory condition as a result of the operation.

A hospital source said the girls were joined at the chest and the upper abdominal region.

As soon as the girls were separated, the doctors split into teams of 10 each. One of the girls was born without a liver, sources said.

A source at the hospital said the girls were born 5½ months ago at a nearby Long Island hospital and were transferred to North Shore where they could be cared for in the hospital's high risk unit.

The combined weight of the premature girls when they were brought to the hospital reportedly totaled only three pounds.

Prior to the operation, a carefully monitored program at the hospital raised the combined weight of the girls to about 10 pounds, The AP learned.

Even the fact that the Siamese twins were at the hospital was a carefully guarded secret. It was learned that the hospital had not planned to announce the operation until later this week.

The identity of the parents could not be learned immediately.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Safety caps worthwhile

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm not very good at anything that is mechanical, and I have such a hard time getting the safety cap off the new pill bottles. Even the aspirin comes with one! Do they really do any good? It just seems like one more nuisance gadget.—Leonore L.

Dear Leonore: Those caps are worth the effort. Already, they have helped considerably in cutting down on cases of child poisoning. Just take aspirin, for example: according to the latest figures from the Consumer Product Safety Commission, children's deaths due to aspirin poisoning fell from 46 in 1972 to 17 in 1975. This is mainly the result of the new safety caps. The drop in deaths came after the federal law went into effect in 1973. Since then, the total number of poisoning cases have been cut by about half.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard several times about children getting lead poisoning from all this peasant pottery that is around. Is there any way of knowing if some kinds are safe? We have brought back a lot of it from trips we have been on—our kitchen shelves are just full of plates and bowls and cups that are hand-made and hand-painted. I would love to go on using it, but as we have three children, I hesitate to do so until I know it is safe.—Peggy T.

Dear Peggy: According to the American Association of Pediatrics, the only really safe rule is to use hand-painted pottery simply for decoration—not for eating or drinking. Lead poisoning can cause permanent brain damage, so it is better to be overly careful than not careful enough.

In theory, a distinction can be made between stoneware and earthenware. Stoneware glazes usually contain little or no lead before they are fired. And if firing is done at a very high temperature—2,200 to 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit, as is customary with stoneware—then whatever lead is in the pottery will be volatilized.

The glazing materials used for earthenware, on the other hand, contain more lead and are fired at lower temperatures. Unless this is done under the most carefully controlled conditions, the result is not safe. Acid drinks and foods will leach the lead out of the glazes.

The problem is that only a very learned ceramicist can tell the difference between stoneware and earthenware, and there are no obligatory procedures for testing and certifying pottery, either domestic or imported.

The Food and Drug Administration recently cautioned against storing food in pottery containers. They also pointed out that even people who are well-informed can make this error—for example, a doctor's child developed lead poisoning from fruit juice stored in a ceramic pitcher.

Hiroshima bombing dropped from show

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Citing the "best interests of the United States and the Confederate Air Force," CAF officials announced Wednesday that the reinactment of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima will not be part of this year's air show.

Last month the CAF said it would stage another reinactment at its Oct. 6-9 show similiar to the one which enraged the Japanese.

The CAF Said it reached the decision Wednesday morning following last month's visit to Washington where CAF officials met with state and defense department officials and congressional leaders.

The CAF, which restores World War II aircraft, employs the old warplanes in its air shows, reinacting key WWII air battles beginning with the Pearl Harbor attack and concluding, until this year, with the A-bomb reinactment.

Eddy tester rates flow

R. C. Bennett and J. C. Ryan of Midland, has reported four-point gaules at their No. 1 Lone Tree, project one mile northeast of their No. 1 Penasco, a shut-in wildcat.

The No. 1 Lone Tree, seven miles southwest of Dayton in Eddy County, New Mexico, flowed 617,000 cubic feet per day through a ⅛-choke; 1,222,000 through a 3/16; 1,366,000 through a 13/64-inch, and 1,872,000 through a ¼-inch choke.

Potential is being calculated.

The zone being tested is behind casing perforations from 8,541 to 8,720 feet in the Morrow.

Hole is bottomed at 8,915 feet where 4½-inch casing is cemented.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 32-18s-25e.

No. 1 Penasco is shutin. Shows of oil and gas, along with water, were reported on tests through perforations from 6,569 to 6,578 feet and from 6,596 to 6,597 feet.

The No. 1 Lone Tree was acidized with 6,000 gallons and fractured with 20,000 gallons.

Eddy strike potentials

Eddy County, N.M., gained an oil discovery and a scheduled wildcat was completed in an oil field.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Inc., Artesie, No. 2 Travis Deep Unit was completed as a Cisco strike for 433 barrels of oil per day, with gas-oil ratio of 1,456-1, through an 18-64-inch choke and perforations at 9,824-9,903 feet.

Drilled to 11,270 feet, it is plugged back to 10,597 feet, and 5½-inch casing is set at 11,270 feet.

It is 1,980 feet from north and 1,780 feet from east lines of section 13-18s-28e, 18 miles southeast of Artesia.

Gene A. Snow, Lovington, finaled No. 1 Read & Stevens-State, scheduled wildcat, as an extension on the south side of the Turkey Track (San Andres) oil field, to pump 20 barrels of 35-gravity oil and five barrels of water in 24 hours.

Completion was through perforations at 2,633-2,635 feet, which had been fractured with 30,000 gallons and 35,000 pounds.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 10-19s-29e, 20 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Train route planned

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — City officials of this Denver suburb say they will seek $30 million to $45 million in government and private funds to build a mile-long subway for coal trains.

A report to the Littleton City Council on Tuesday said 20 coal trains rumble through the city now on their way from Wyoming coal fields to Texas, and rail traffic is expected to double by 1980 as Western energy development increases.

Officials say the money might come from federal energy and transportation agencies, the Regional Transportation District and the railroads, which officials said can make money by developing the covered areas of their rights-of-way.

The trains mostly belong to Rio Grande Railroad and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad.

The trains now cause traffic delays of up to 90 minutes a day at rail crossings, the report said, besides shaking the ground and increasing noise and dirt.

To get the trains out of sight, the report proposes lowering the track for about 1½ miles, one mile of which would be covered with 10 feet of earth. Housing and businesses could be built above the tracks.

"It will be so quiet people can live above the trains," said Assistant City Manager Al Salazar.

Judge decides Transco can't help gas shortage

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administrative law judge decided it wasn't done deliberately; Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line and its suppliers just couldn't produce all the natural gas their customers needed — but the State of North Carolina isn't satisfied.

On Sept. 16, the state, entirely dependent on Transco for its natural gas, asked the Federal Power Commission to listen to its objections to the judge's decision and to take action to improve Transco's troubled gas supply.

The commission, with one holdover member, two new ones, two vacancies and facing reorganization the first of the month, has not yet responded.

Its decision could eventually close the two-year-old Transco case or revive it and plunge the "Federal Energy Regulatory Commission," the reorganized agency that takes over Saturday, into a sticky debate about the legal responsibilities of natural gas producers and pipelines.

Its gas supplies curtailed heavily by Transco in recent winters, and with no immediate relief in sight, North Carolina thinks the commission should order the pipeline to deliver its contracted amounts of gas or pay the extra cost of emergency gas purchases.

North Carolina also wants the commission to place legal obligations on producers to develop gas supplies and to allocate new gas sales to the highest-priority customers.

The FPC's staff, dissatisfied with the decision of Administrative Law Judge Curtis L. Wagner, wants the commission to spell out standards by which natural gas producers should decide where, when and how to spend their money on gas development and production.

Almost lost among these demands is the specific problems that touched off the Transco case late in 1974.

In September of that year Transco — a major pipeline serving Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia — had predicted a gas shortage of about 20 per cent for the 1974-1975 winter.

Then, only two weeks later, Transco suddenly reduced its gas supply expectations by about 9 billion cubic feet. By the end of December, Transco's shortage predictions had grown another 24 billion cubic feet and its deliveries were quickly curtailed to avoid worse cutbacks later.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

Within days, on Jan. 8, 1975, the five-member FPC ordered an investigation of "the circumstances for the increased curtailment" and the following July 1 it broadened its investigation, asking whether Transco really had to curtail service so much, and why, and what it was doing to improve the gas supply.

After 11 months of investigation, an FPC technical team reported there was no evidence that natural gas supplies were deliberately held back from Transco by producers and that further investigation of production activities in the field were not likely to turn up "any effort or conspiracy ... to withhold or conceal" available gas supplies.

The case went on another 18 months, accumulating 4,015 pages of testimony and 112 exhibits in 32 days of public hearings.

Finally, last June 21, Judge Wagner issued his "initial decision," subject to commission review.

The investigation had delved not only into Transco's efforts to contract for new gas supplies, but also into the actual operation of gas wells by Transco suppliers, including Cities Service Oil Co., Mitchell Energy and Development Co., Atlantic Richfield, Kerr-McGee, Mobil, Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co., Shell Oil and Union Oil Co. of California.

"There is a complete void of any evidence in this record indicating any willful withholding of natural gas by the various producers from the interstate market whatsoever," Wagner concluded.

"Each producer involved in this hearing satisfactorily accounted for its failure to meet or satisfy its contract requirements."

As for Transco, Wagner said, "There is no evidence in this case of any attempt to manipulate or distort the need for curtailment in any manner whatsoever."

Wagner proposed an order to end the investigation.

But the commission's staff and North Carolina disputed Wagner's findings.

Wagner's decision, while it found no "wrongdoing," did suggest that "it may be true that Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. may not have been as diligent as it should have been in its efforts to improve its gas supply in past years." The judge said Transco was reversing that trend under new management.

And Wagner cited "some bad management decisions on the timing of offshore repairs" by gas producers. He particularly noted "the inopportune timing of Cities Service Oil Co.'s reworking of its Brazos Block gas well during the height of the winter season."

But Wagner admitted that no findings could be made "with regard to the propriety" of Cities Service's gas-well workovers because he had been ordered in mid-1975 to stop investigating Cities Service to avoid conflict with a Justice Department investigation.

Windsor Dome has reserves of oil, gas

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — If the British royal family ever falls on hard times, maybe it can just drill an oil well in the back yard.

A geological consultant said Monday that Windsor Castle, historical summer home of English royalty, may be sitting on oil and gas reserves.

Allen P. Bennison visited the area recently and studied at the British Geological Museum. He based his assessment on surface geological studies.

But the 59-year-old scientist acknowledges that one just doesn't go around poking holes in the royal turf.

Mennonites may have been misled on citizenship

By BILL CURRY
The Washington Post

SEMINOLE, Tex. — To the hot, dry land of West Texas came the 100 German-speaking Mennonite families, pilgrims from Mexico and Canada who spent $2.6 million for 6,400 acres here, seeking a place for their own church, for their own school and most important, for their own close community.

"I don't know how to explain it," says Frank Wiebe, 25, Mexican-born and currently a Canadian citizen farming cotton fields here. "We are religious people, and we try to stick together, always in a group. We want to stay and work here and be happy and do our best. I don't know what we would do if we had to leave."

But he has been ordered by the U.S. government to do just that. Wiebe and the 525 other Mennonites here have been ruled illegal aliens, and many of them are recipients of cold form letters saying they must leave voluntarily or face forcible deportation.

"We don't have anything against them. It's the law of the land," said William J. Chambers, district director in Dallas for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which last week temporarily halted any further action while the group harvests its crops and presents its case. "Under the law, we have to move them out."

That confusion centers on a dispute over what the families were told about citizenship before they sold all theirs split many church members from their leader, Bishop Henry Reimer.

"Everything they have been told has proved to be wrong," says Seminole Mayor Bob Clark.

"We were told to just buy some land and be a Mennonite and be a farmer" and citizenship would follow, said Isaak B. Wall, who conducts the German-language school of the Old Colony Mennonite Church. "I was told that by Bishop Henry Reimer. I trusted his words. I would like to know whether U.S. people lied to him."

"I told them it would take 'some amount of time' to become citizens," says Reimer, who also said he never told the group that buying land was the only condition for citizenship.

He denies, too, some members' claim that they did not know that 60 per cent of their 6,400 acres lacks water for irrigation.

Bishop Reimer, whose English is hampered by a heavy German accent, disputed assertions by former followers Wall and Wiebe that Reimer has been deposed from the church's leadership. Reimer does acknowledge, however, that he has missed some Sunday services because of "illness."

Wall and Weibe claim that Reimer, despite strict Mennonite prescriptions against Alcohol, has a drinking problem. Reimer denies it.

Meanwhile, Seth Woltz, the real estate broker who handled the sale, says, "Immigration is just a word to me. I'm at a loss to know how people like that can end up in this situation."

Woltz, who says he split a $60,000 commission with two other agents, denied having misled the group's leaders, including Reimer, on immigration requirements. "I just knew nothing about what they had to do. We did take them to the library to give them a copy of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Chambers, of the Immigration Service, cites "This possibility that they were led astray" as one of the reasons for the temporary suspension of deportation procedures.

"Somewhere along the line, we didn't get the picture quite clear," said Wiebe. "We were told if we bought land we could get our green cards" — the ones that entitle immigrants to work in the United States.

The crushing news that they are here illegally deeply affected many members of the Old Colony Church.

Mennonites have a reputation for honesty, hard work and paying their debts. And now "They're feeling bad about it," Wiebe said. "Not just for themselves but because we are going against the rules and regulations."

These are not the first Mennonites to know hostility and adversity. Since the sect was founded in Switzerland in 1525, groups first wandered Europe and finally Russia in a succession of religious persecutions. In 1874 they arrived in Canada, Nebraska and Kansas from Russia and northern Germany. It is said they brought with them the seeds for hard red winter wheat, now America's most widely grown wheat.

A large Mennonite settlement was also formed in Mexico. Religious hostility and eventually land expropriations sent many of them to Canada, particularly Ontario. Wiebe moved to Ontario 7 years ago, Wall 12 years ago.

But in Canada land was so expensive that many of the farm-oriented Mennonites had to get jobs; worse, they were scattered apart, some living 80 miles or so from fellow church members.

So there arose the notion of finding enough farm land that an entire community could grow with the crops. (Wiebe says there are perhaps another 2,500 Mennonites who would settle here, with thousands more willing to move to other areas in the United States.)

Last year a delegation headed by Bishop Reimer visited the United States to see land in Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri and agreed to buy the land here.

The church made a down payment of about $250,000, with the rest to be paid over 10 years, according to lawyer John L. Shepherd, who is now assisting the Mennonites.

Virtually all of the 100 families then sold everything, obtained 60-day, non-immigrant visitor visas and began arriving here. They bought land from the church and rented some; they bought modest homes or mobile homes. Their life savings were used as down payments for purchases that put them in debt for land and farm equipment.

Wiebe says he is $27,000 in debt just on his land. He sits in the linoleum-floored living room of his sparse frame house. Outside on low green plants the readying cotton has spilled its bolls. With harvest two weeks off, Wiebe had feared being deported before he could bring in his cotton and pay his debts.

In the pale-blue one-room schoolhouse, where the boys sit on one side and the girls on the other, teacher Isaak Wall — who came here with $7,500 — says he is now $7,000 in debt. Wall is paid by the church according to members' earnings, to teach the 49 children aged 5 to 13.

The hand-made desks hold individual writing slates and thick handsome copies of "Die Bibel" (The Bible), the basic reading text. The same desks also hold Hang Ten theme books and at least one copy of Truckin' magazine.

"The biggest reason we are here — this is big, open land where we could settle down and have our own church, our own school and make a decent living," Wall who was an auto mechanic in Ontario, tells a visitor.

For now the congregation of Old Colony has two goals — to be able to stay, and to return their church to harmony. Toward staying, they now pin their hopes on the complicated process by which they can be given jobs if American workers are not available.

Such jobs have materialized in the community, some 100 of them in a factory organized by real estate man Woltz and 14 other investors who put up $10,000 each toward a plant for making windmills that generate electricity.

The venture was set up specifically to aid the Mennonites, without whom there would probably be no work force. Unemployment here is 2.3 per cent.

But even if the U.S. Labor Department approves the hiring, the Mennonites still must win immigrant visas. Some 20,000 visas are available each year to migrants form Mexico, and the visas are allotted by place of birth.

So even though many of the Mexican-born Mennonites are Canadian citizens, now, they still must compete with the crush of applicants from Mexico. The annual allotment for Mexico was used up by June, while Canadian allotments go begging.

The new allotment year starts Oct. 1.

Chambers says the availability of visas is determined by the State Department, and there is no way of knowing whether the group will be among the lucky ones. There are other priorities, other applicants.

In a county (Gaines) that recently pumped its billionth barrel of oil and harvests 200,000 bales of cotton a year, the prospect of hard-working, self-supporting people being deported is a supreme puzzle.

The day before Wiebe and the others were to have left the country the morning paper carried front-page pictures of a new group of Vietnamese refugees arriving, to be assisted by the government.

House bill aims at Ronald Reagan

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A House wag from California has introduced a bill to create "Reagan's Rough Riders," an expeditionary force of volunteers to keep the Panama Canal open in the event new treaties are not ratified and hostilities break out.

The bil, sponsored by Democratic Rep. John L. Burton (D-Calif.), calls for commissioning former California Gov. Ronald Reagan as a colonel in the Army and giving him a white horse on which to lead his "Rough Riders" into combat.

However, if Reagan preferred to remain at headquarters in the rear of the action, he would have to supply his own white horse, according to the legislation.

Burton, a San Franciscan given to flights of whimsy, supports Senate ratification of new treaties to replace the Panama Canal treaty of 1903. The 1903 treaty was signed by President Theodore Roosevelt, who led the famed charge by vofunteer "Rough Riders" up San Juan Hill, Cuba, in the Spanish-American War.

Polygamist leader, three others sought

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The leader of a polygamist sect, two of his sons, one of his wives and two other men were being sought for the killing of a rival polygamist Patriarch.

Federal arrest warrants were issued Tuesday for Ervil LeBaron, 50, and five of his followers in the death of rival leader Rulon Allred, shot by two unidentified women last May.

Mexican authorities have been asked to cooperate in the search for LeBaron, who recently was seen in Mexico City, authorities said.

The warrants bring to 11 the number of persons charged with murder, conspiracy or both in the case.

Allred, a Salt Lake City naturopath, had at least six wives and 40 children, police said.

Others being sought are Arturo Morel LeBaron, 27, and Edward Marston, 22, both of them sons of the fugitive cult leader; Rena Lei Chynoweth, 19, one of his wives, and Donald Eugene Sullivan, 26, and John Sullivan, 22, police said.

Federal fugitive warrants also have been issued for the six persons, police said.

The 11 suspects have been identified as members of the Church of the Lamb of God, which police said has hundreds of members mostly in the Southwest and Mexico.

David E. Yocom, of the Salt Lake County attorney's office, said, "LeBaron and his followers usually are armed with handguns, rifles, shotguns and automatic rifles and should be considered armed and dangerous."

Four members of the sect were arrested last week in Denver and Dallas remained in jail without bond on murder and conspiracy charges. Another woman, charged with conspiracy, has agreed to surrender to authorities, according to her lawyer.

Midmonth announcement of acreage limits likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final decision by the Carter administration on whether to cut back on corn and other livestock feed acreage next year will be delayed at least another two weeks.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said in an interview Wednesday that an acreage setaside announcement on 1978 corn and other feed probably will be made soon after the Agriculture Department issues its next 1977 crop production estimates on Oct. 12. Two weeks ago Bergland said that the feed grains acreage decision would be announced by Oct. 1, which is Saturday. But he now says that more time is needed.

"I think we have to wait," Bergland said. "We want to take a good hard look at the situation before making an announcement."

Bergland said that while the 1977 corn crop still appears to be huge, there are at least two factors which are prompting a delay in deciding on 1978 feed grains.

First, he said, is an apparent spread in aflatoxin contamination in this year's corn crop. Aflatoxin is known to be a potent cause of cancer in some species of animals and is viewed as a potential health hazard to humans. It can occur naturally when a certain kind of mold develops in corn and some other seed crops.

Aflatoxin has been found in heavy concentrations in corn grown in the Southeast. It also has been detected to lesser extents in many northern areas, including Iowa and some other important producing regions.

Bergland said that reports of aflatoxin so far in the heart of the Corn Belt are not great cause for alarm. But he said more information is needed before making a final acreage decision on the 1978 crop.

For example, if aflatoxin results in large amounts of corn being condemned, USDA will have to think about altering its tentative plans for requiring farmers to idle some of their feed grain acreage next year to help reduce rising surpluses.

The department already has announced that wheat farmers will have to reduce plantings 20 per cent for the 1978 harvest in order to qualify for full government price support benefits.

N.Y. money problems may soon 'reappear'

By ROBERT RENO
Newsday

NEW YORK — The pipeline of special federal cash which has kept New York City alive since December, 1975, is scheduled to run dry in nine months.

And despite the large progress made towards setting the city's financial house in order N.Y. will be unable to pay its workers next July unless a substitute is found for the present credit arrangement it enjoys with the U.S. Treasury.

The problem will waiting for the mayor when he moves into Gracie Mansion Jan. 1.

Most city officials, publicly and privately, are saying that the solution lies in an extension of the Federal Seasonal Financing Act for the City of New York. This was the much-debated federal rescue of New York which President Ford adamantly opposed, then grudgingly accepted and which Congress finally passed after great difficulty in 1975.

City officials are confidently predicting that both Congress and the President will be more receptive this time. But they may be doing so at the city's peril. Both Sens. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Edward Brooke (R-Mass.), ranking members of the Senate Banking Committee, are saying they strongly oppose any extension of the act which allows the city to draw up to $2.3 billion in so called "seasonal" from the Treasury. Seasonal loans are used to make up periodic cash shortages and are fully paid up by the end of each fiscal year.

Without at least a limited extension, however, city officials concede that New York could by next summer be doing a repeat of the cliff-hanging days of 1975 when on certain occasions it was barely able to meet its payrolls.

A spokesman for the banking committee which handles such legislation said this week that "the committee has been fairly unanimous in opposition" to extension of the act.

Proxmire and Brooke wrote to Gov. Hugh Carey last week urging him to reconvene the state Legislature in order to pass legislation which would allow the city to re-enter the private credit market and end its dependence on federal loans.

Essentially the city is face with a selling job. It must convince the investing community that its notes are sound. And it must convince Congress that it has made the sacrifices and accomplished the fiscal reforms to warrant an extension of the loan agreement.

Without the federal loan agreement as a supplement and backup to borrowing in the public markets the city faces the constant danger that it may not be able to market all the notes it needs to meet its seasonal cash demands.

The current thinking is that the public markets will not for some time be ready to supply all the $2 billion which the city needs annually. At best the city will have to pay extraordinarily high interest rates for the notes it does sell.

Despite wariness on the part of both Congress and the investing public, the city seems as of now to have a good case for the argument that its notes are a good buy and that the federal credit agreement should be extended.

To begin with, the $2 billion which the city needs does not represent a budget deficit. The city needs this money because its revenues — taxes, normal federal aid, state payments — come in at irregular periods during the year. City expenses, on the other hand, come due with regularity every day of the year.

The $2 billion in federal loans which the city is scheduled to receive this year are all due to be repaid by the end of its fiscal year, June 30. They represent no real risk on the part of the federal government.

Some time this winter the city is planning a tentative re-entry into the private credit market which has been closed to it since the spring of 1975. But, before it does, the Legislature will be asked to place added guarantees in the city's new notes. This is expected to include provision for a trust fund with an outside trustee to guarantee repayment.

The new city notes, when they are offered, are likely to be better secured financially and legally than any other municipal notes in the country.

With all this going for it why then does the market still remain so skittish about New York securities and why is Congress still reluctant to extend the loan agreement?

In the case of Congress, opposition ranges from traditional hostility to New York to a genuine fear that any extension would be added encouragement to other municipalities to throw themselves on the mercy of the Treasury.

In the case of the banks and the investing public New York is learning that a stain on the city's credit is very difficult to remove. In the fiscal year 1974 the city was able to sell $8 billion in short-term notes with relative ease. After what has happened since, it is unlikely that the city can sell a quarter of that figure next year.

MARC announces new program

A new training program designed to certify persons as sitter-companions to care for the developmentally disabled has been announced by the Midland Association for retarded Citizens (MARC).

The program will train persons 18 and older to go into the home of developmentally disabled persons and give them complete care, according to Mrs. N.R. Rousselot, MARC president.

MARC will sponsor 10 weeks of training as soon as interviews are completed and trainees are chosen.

The sessions will be held at the Opportunity Center, 2701 N. A St. from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Thursday.

Following the training, MARC will set up a central placement office for the sitter-companions and those needing the service.

The training sessions will cover such topics as who are the developmentally disabled, helping the handicapped with physical problems, parent problems, experience with the handicapped, working with elderly developmentally disabled, visits to the public school special education classes, and a visit to one of the nearby state facilities.

MARC will use teachers of the handicapped, parents, an occupational therapist, nurses and Family Services of Midland, Inc. as instructors.

The sitter-companions will provide short-term temporary respite care in times of family crisis or need for the mentally and-or physically handicapped child or adult who is developmentally disabled. The sitter-companions will earn minimum wage. Payment for the use of the service will be decided on a sliding scale.

The developmentally disabled are those persons, including the mentally retarded, epileptic, autistic and cerebral palsied, whose disablility originated before the person was 18, has continued, or can be expected to continue indefinitely, or constitutes a substantial handicap. About 6 per cent of Midland's population is developmentally disabled.

Persons interested in applying for the training must be at least 18 and in good health. There is no education requirement.

For further information, or to set up an interview appointment, persons may call MARC at 682-9771.

Travelers still see fighting

By DAVID DAVIES
Agence France-Presse

HONG KONG — Fighting is still going on between Vietnam and Cambodia, according to travelers who recently visited Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon).

The travelers said Vietnamese officials told them that the Cambodians moved across the frontier soon after the fall of Saigon, when the North Vietnamese had not yet established their control over the Mekong River Delta.

At one time the Cambodians had penetrated as far as 60 miles inside Vietnamese territory and remained there a long time, according to the reports.

Fighting is said to have been fierce, with the Vietnamese using tanks to push back the Cambodians.

Vietnamese officials said that two to three Cambodian divisions had been wiped out but were vague about when the battles occurred.

Vietnamese sources claimed that the Cambodians by now had been pushed out of Vietnamese territory.

Troops taking part in the frontier battles were said to be new recruits who had not fought in the Vietnam War.

Many veterans of that war occupy key posts in the civil administration. The travelers said the Hanoi government is relying heavily on ex-soldiers to run the country because of their discipline and efficiency.

The travelers said that all key posts in governmental departments and in the economic sector in the south are held by northerners, most of whom lack the necessary experience. As a result the economy is said to be running down gradually and exports to be declining.

Businessmen who have had dealings with the Vietnamese complain that the quality of Vietnamese products has declined. The Communists reportedly refuse to employ any one who was active under the former Saigon regime. This has resulted in mass unemployment of former government officials, servicemen and professional people such as doctors, lawyers and technicians, the travelers said.

In any case, they continued, wages are so low that many people are not interested in working and prefer to live on their savings, or by selling such luxury items as cameras and hi-fi sets, for which the Russians and Vietnamese from the north are eager customers.

The travelers said that many unemployed people in Ho Chi Minh City seemed to be near starvation. There were reportedly many robberies as well as begging and prostitution.

Most shops in the city center are closed, and all signs in English or French have been replaced by Vietnamese signs or simply pained out, according to travelers.

Cholon, Saigon's Chinatown, was just the same as before "liberation," the travelers said. Shops and restaurants there are as busy as ever, and black-market articles like American cigarettes find a ready market despite high prices.

The travelers said the military was not visible in Saigon, and that security was left to police composed of a mixture of northerners and southerners.

Groppi leaving his church

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James E. Groppi, a former Roman Catholic priest who gained national attention in the 1960s as a leader of civil rights demonstrations, now is trying to become an Episcopal priest.

Groppi said he and his wife, Margaret, have been attending St. Andrew's Episcopal Church for a year. He goes before a church commission Oct. 4 for interviews that could lead to his being accepted as a priest.

He said he doesn't feel he is leaving the Catholic church because "the essential teachings are the same."

Groppi was excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church several years ago when he married, despite warnings from superiors that priests were not permitted to do so.

Carter defends Mondale

By JACK NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Carter, in an extraordinary response to rising questions here about Vice President Mondale's power in his Administration, said Wednesday that Mondale had played crucial roles in domestic and foreign affairs, including the Bakke civil rights case and the strategic arms talks.

In addition, he said, Mondale was among those advising him on how to deal with the controversy over the financial affairs of former Budget Director Bert Lance.

The President telephoned the Los Angeles Times' Washington Bureau and said he "couldn't believe it" when Press Secretary Jody Powell told him a Times reporter had raised questions about whether Mondale had been asserting himself and exerting influence in his dealings with the President.

"Let me give you a few examples that might refute that," said Carter, who proceeded in a 30-minute interview to cite several examples and give details of his relationship with Mondale.

Carter said Mondale had been largely responsible for persuading the Justice Department to clarify the Administration's committment to affirmative action in the brief it filed with the Supreme Court in the Bakke case.

Puppetry course slated at Midland College

Puppets are coming to Midland College, where students will have the opportunity to learn how to operate them.

The start of a new evening short course, titled "Rod Puppetry," has been announced by James Bramlett, director of the college's department of Community Services.

"This should be a fascinating class for anyone who is interested in the mechanics and special techniques of puppetry," Bramlett said.

A rod puppet essentially is a hand puppet with a movable mouth which is operated by the puppeteer's hand inside the body. A rod or wire, attached to one or both of the puppet's hands, is operated from below stage by the puppeteer.

Allan Collins, safety supervisor for Delta Drilling Co., uses a stage and about 30 puppets to demonstrate and explain the art of puppetry. Collins, who instructed in this field for two years at Abilene Christian University, is enthusiastic about the teaching value of puppets.

"While they are not a special curriculum in themselves, they are a valuable teaching aid. Churches and educational institutions all over the world are using them as such," Collins said.

"If students want to get deeply involved, such as writing scripts and performing, we'll surely help them," Collins added.

While at ACU, Collins had students from Canada, India, Australia, South Africa, as well as the United States. "I had 500 my first year," Collins said, "and more than that the next year."

As a rule, a puppeteer has a message he wants to convey. Collins will show the right way to do this, and things that should be avoided. In addition, he will discuss the fine points of handling a puppet to achieve realism and life-like qualities.

"The entire message can be destroyed by the wrong tilt of the puppet's head, or the wrong exit from stage," Collins explained. "I plan to demonstrate this so that the students will know what constitutes a good show.

"While all students may not sign up for the class with the intention of becoming puppeteers, they will leave the class with a working knowledge and appreciation of what makes puppets work.

"Hopefully, they will develop an enthusiasm for the medium that will lead them to explore the possibilities for using uppets as a means of communication in their churches and schools."

Those interested in taking the four week course, which is limited to 20 students, should preregister by going to room 140 of the Occupational-Technical Building at Midland College between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. The office will remain open during the lunch hour. Classes will begin Oct. 3, and are scheduled to meet on Mondays, 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 100 of the Occupational-Technical Building. The fee is $8.

Former football player to seek Poage position

MARLIN, Tex. (AP) — Marvin Leath, a former high school football coach who went into banking, announced today as a candidate for the congressional seat being vacated by Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage.

Leath, 46, said he thought voters wanted a "man of mature judgment."

His announcement was repeated at news conferences in Waco, Temple, Killeen, Brownwood, Belton and Taylor.

Leath was a defensive guard on the Texas Longhorn team that beat Tennessee in the 1953 Cotton Bowl. He coached at Henderson High School in 195657 and began investing in banks in 1962.

He has served as an officer and director of banks in Marlin, Bremond, Chilton and Kosse.

He was Poage's special assistant in 1972-73.

Leath founded the Central National Bank in Waco in 1975 and is also vice president and director of Wilson Building Materials Co., Inc.

His financial statement shows a gross income last year of $60,746 with a net worth of $514,900.

Tass tells of launch

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government launched a new space station, Salyut 6, today, Tass announced.

Salut 6 apparently was sent up unmanned but in preparation for a new series of manned space flights. There was speculation that a crew would be rocketed to it by Oct. 4, the 20th anniversary of the launching of the first artificial space satellite by the Soviet Union.

Tass described Salyut 6 as an "orbital scientific station."

Another major Soviet anniversary is coming up, the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution on Nov. 7. However, two days ago in Prague three Soviet cosmonauts denied a space spectacular was being prepared for that celebration.

DeMolay chapter gathers

The Midland Chapter Order of DeMolay held a public ceremony for families and friends at the Masonic Temple Wednesday night.

Eric Fryar, junior master counselor, presented the Ceremony of Light, which symbolizes the seven cardinal virtues of DeMolay.

Bill Moler, one of the DeMolay advisors, expressed appreciation from the Midland Shrine Club for the assistance given by the Midland DeMolays during the Shrine circus Saturday and Sunday.

DeMolays worked concessions during all performances and provided clean-up crews for the stadium and grounds after both night performances.

A reception was held following the ceremony by Fryar and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fryar. Mrs. George Robertson assisted.

Concert kicks off sales

"Pops on the Plaza," the annual kick-off for season ticket sales for the Midland-Odessa Symphony concert season, took place Wednesday in The First National Bank plaza.

Tickets for the concert season will be available through Oct. 12 at Texas Electric Service Co. Tickets are $25 for reserved, $20 for general and $6 for students for a series of six concerts.

The opening concert is scheduled Oct. 17 in Odessa and Oct. 18 in Midland with Roger Williams as guest artist.

L. E. Sawyer was chosen best speaker and table topic winner at a meeting of the Tall Town Toastmasters today. Frank Lasater was the most improved speaker and Don Eckerty was the best evaluator.

GARAGE SALE

Patio Sale, Yard Sale whatever term you use it's an enjoyable and profitable experience. It's your opportunity to "clean up while you "clean out". You'll become re-acquainted with your neighbors and meet new friends, and the fresh air is good for your health.

Check your attic, basement, garage and closets for good, but no-longer-used items — furniture, tools, the list goes on and on. Every item should be priced, of course. You may want to combine your sale with a friend or neighbor. Choose your days, get your signs ready and place your ad in the Classified section. Your ad should list a few key items, give the date, time, and good directions.

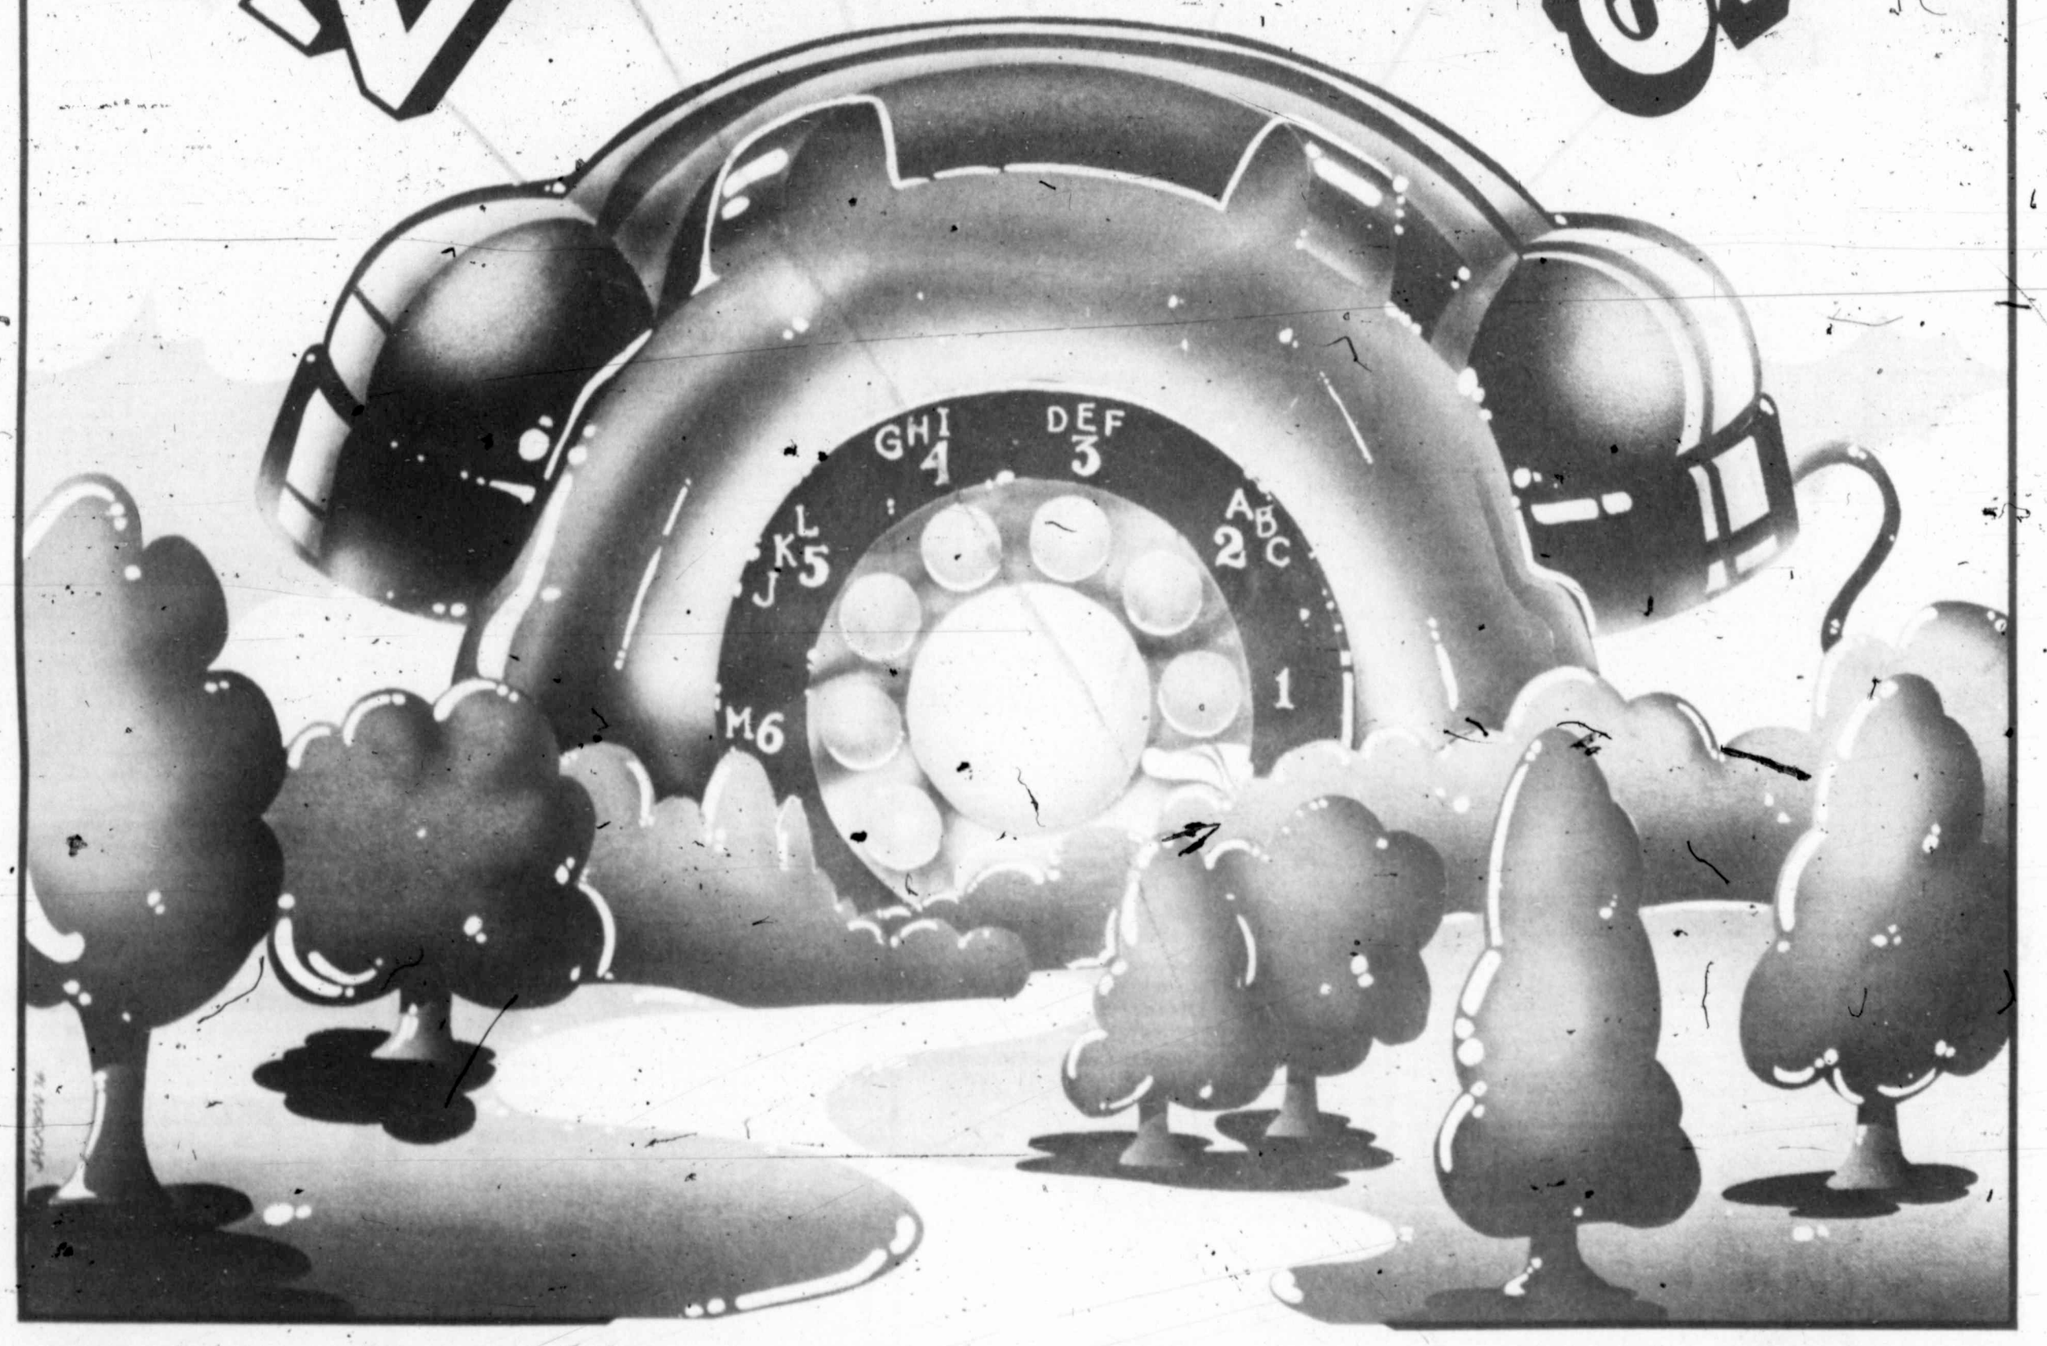
Introducing another plus from us

ZERO-PLUS



A new service that allows you to dial all Long Distance calls yourself.

Beginning September 26, if you're a customer whose telephone number is in the Midland 69X exchange, you will be able to dial all Long Distance calls yourself. Of course, you're accustomed to dialing your own station-to station calls the fast and convenient One-Plus way. But, beginning September 26, you also will be able to dial your own collect, person-to-person, credit card and bill-to-third-number Long Distance calls with Zero-Plus dialing. Zero-Plus can be used at home or office or from coin telephones. Zero-Plus is fast, easy and convenient.

Zero-Plus Dialing . . . How it works:

Just dial "0" (zero), plus the Area Code if it's different from 915, plus the distant number.
For example, suppose you want to call person-to-person to 621-8997 in St. Louis. You will find St. Louis in the Call Guide section of your directory with Area Code 314.
So when you hear the dial tone, dial:
"0" (zero) + 314 + 621-8997

When the operator asks, "How may I help you?", explain the type call you've dialed and give the necessary information. (Regular operator-handled rates will apply for all Zero-Plus calls.)
To make a call within the 915 area, just dial "0" (zero) plus the distant number.
You don't need to dial the Area Code.
