

Pakistanis protest Bhutto execution

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Rioting and demonstrations erupted here and in the neighboring Indian state of Kashmir Wednesday protesting the hanging of former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. World leaders, who had tried to save him from the gallows, expressed regret and anger at the execution.

Three persons were reported killed in the Kashmir riots. Most of Pakistan was calm, but some observers said violence could come later.

In Washington, the State Department expressed regret over the execution. Spokesman Hodding Carter noted that President Carter had asked for mercy for Bhutto on humanitarian grounds.

The white-shrouded body of the 51-year-old Bhutto, who led Pakistan from 1971 until he was ousted in 1977 by the man who refused to commute his sentence, was flown by military helicopter to his birthplace.

It was buried in the family graveyard eight hours after the hanging. Bhutto's first wife, two uncles and a throng of villagers, estimated by a witness to number 1,500, watched the burial.

Bhutto, convicted of ordering the murder of a political opponent, was taken from his tiny death-row cell and hanged at 2 a.m. President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, who installed a strict Moslem penal code when he toppled Bhutto, refused a flood of pleas to commute Bhutto's sentence.

Bhutto refused to ask for mercy, saying to do so would be an admission of guilt.

In addition to the fatalities, seven persons were injured in the Kashmir demonstrations, police said. Kashmir borders Pakistan and has a heavy pro-Pakistan Moslem majority. Many Kashmiris identify more with Pakistan than with India.

Grand jury indicts Kirk for aggravated perjury

By JIM WEBRE
Staff Writer

Former state District Judge Stanley Kirk was indicted Wednesday by a Wichita County grand jury on charges he made false statements to Texas' State Judicial Qualifications Commission.

The indictment for aggravated perjury alleges that on or about Dec. 6, 1978, Kirk "with intent to deceive and with knowledge of the statements' meaning, (made) a false material statement under oath."

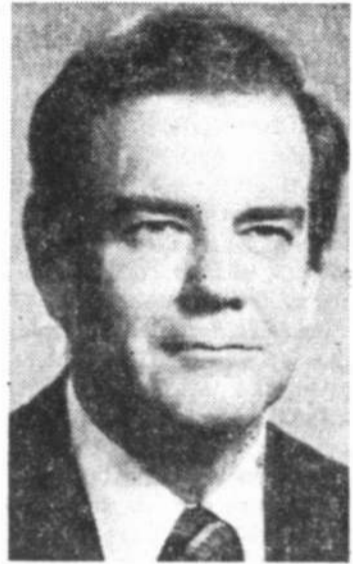

According to the indictment, the alleged false statement was made in a false transcript of comments by Kirk to the jury during a trial in his court.

The indictment alleges that the false transcript was prepared by Kirk and certified to at his instruction by Holly Hanks, his court reporter.

The false transcript then was given to the State Judicial Qualifications Commission during the commission's investigation of alleged misconduct by Kirk, according to the indictment.

Kirk, who has remained silent throughout the developments except to release a written statement announcing his resignation Feb. 6, 1979, was contacted in Houston Wednesday. He said he and his attorneys, Pizitolo, Hinton and Sussman law firm of Houston, were not given a chance to appear before the grand jury as they had requested.

"I am disappointed that the grand jury and Mr. (District Attorney Tim) Eysen didn't give me or any of my counsel the opportunity to appear before them and give them the full facts," Kirk said.

STANLEY KIRK

"We are going to be ready for trial when they are ready. If they want to try it Monday and can have a jury, we'll be there."

Kirk now works as special counsel for the Houston law firm.

'Cutoff' angers trade bill foes

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents of a business-supported bill revising the state consumer protection law claim they were unfairly squelched when fellow senators cut off their 15-hour filibuster early Wednesday.

"If this Senate can listen to every football player and every country singer that comes along, there's nothing wrong with discussing a bill as important as this for 12 or 14 hours," said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

The "personal privilege" speeches by Doggett and three others occupied most of the Senate session following the marathon talk session staged by seven senators from noon Tuesday until 3 a.m. Wednesday. Two other senators complained Wednesday they never got a chance to talk.

The bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, was given preliminary approval 18-7 and will be up for final approval, he said, "at the earliest opportunity — Thursday or early next week."

Meier's bill would amend the 1973 Deceptive Trade Practices Act to require consumers to prove they were intentionally misled or defrauded in order to collect triple damages.

The early morning vote came after Meier made a motion to end the lengthy debate so a vote could be taken on the bill. Five other senators joined him in making the motion, which carried 15-10. A number of senators, including some would-be filibusterers, were out of the chamber when the vote was taken.

"The purpose of a filibuster is to expose the views of those who are opposed to a bill," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston. "Any bill that is worthy of passing should be able to stand the heat of a filibuster and the amendments presented. ... The way to destroy the power of the Senate is to terminate debate and let it be known the Senate is not willing to let the light shine on bad bills."

Attorneys Mike Hinton and Bob Sussman said the former Wichita County district attorney and district judge plans to ask for a speedy trial.

"I think the good judge will be vindicated beyond any doubt. We want to dispose of the matter quickly and clear the judge's name," Sussman said.

Hinton said he probably would be Kirk's principal counsel in the case that is assigned to Judge Temple Driver's 89th District Court. Driver said late Wednesday that Judge Charles Murray, presiding justice of the Eighth Administrative Judicial District in Texas, had granted his request to have another judge preside over Kirk's trial.

Murray, Driver said, indicated he would appoint a visiting judge from outside Wichita Falls before any hearings or other action is taken in the case. "He (Kirk) asked for an appearance before the grand jury," Murray said.

Hired Hand Flying memories

Meier, who set a 43-hour filibuster record in 1977, replied that "what we had last night was not a filibuster. It was a chubbing of bills by a series of amendments. A filibuster is done by one person on one subject. ... There was no effort to stop them last night until they started trying to break the quorum (and stop debate on the bill). ... It was a group against a group, not a proper procedure in this Senate."

By GLENN SHELTON

It was 41 years ago this coming Monday that I clambered into the cockpit of PT-17 trainer, adjusted my goggles, opened the throttle and flew a brief rectangular pattern around a small landing area a few miles from Randolph Field for my first solo airplane flight.

It doesn't seem possible now, but then, in 1938, merely three years before we were plunged into World War II, we were the only pilots Uncle Sam was training for the U.S. Army Air Corps.

A smaller contingent was in training for the Navy at Pensacola, Fla.

We were, obviously, stupidly unprepared for the big war to come, for it was such a short time after Billy Mitchell and our military planners could not visualize the role that aircraft was to play in the conflict with Nazi Germany and imperial Japan.

I wonder if we aren't similarly unprepared right now for a major war if it were to come. I was an apprehensive young towhead that day when I made my first solo at Randolph Field, and I was to have many more apprehensive experiences as a flight instructor and then as a glider pilot in the ETO. But among my more apprehensive moments came right here at Shepard Field.

We flew night flights from a runway at Shepard to a small unlit (except by smudge pots) landing strip near Petrolia.

My landings there were uneventful, if nerve wracking, but four men in the class following mine were killed making those landings. We heard about it at Lubbock where we were in training with CG-4 gliders.

Police opened fire on demonstrators who stoned the U.N. Observer post in the Kashmiri city of Srinagar. Bhutto and most Kashmiris favored self-determination for Kashmir, a province claimed by both India and Pakistan.

There is resentment in Kashmir because the United Nations did not stage a plebiscite, which Pakistan likely would have won.

Effigies of Zia were burned in many parts of Kashmir Wednesday night.

In Rawalpindi, police with bamboo clubs moved into chanting groups of Bhutto supporters after a prayer meeting for Bhutto turned into an anti-Zia demonstration. Witnesses said the crowd shouted "Shame, shame, Zia the dog" and "Death to Zia." No injuries were reported.

Smaller demonstrations were reported elsewhere.

Despite the scattered disturbances, the prevailing reaction to Bhutto's execution was sadness, resignation that his death was inevitable and sullen calm.

Diplomats and impartial Pakistanis said any upheaval on a national scale would not come immediately, but after relaxation of martial law that has been in force since Zia took power.

"The people are not going to bare their backs to the lash that this government is applying indiscriminately," said a college professor who was referring to the floggings inaugurated under Zia's program of Islamic justice.

Southwest Ballet Festival opens today

By MARTHA STEIMEL
Arts Editor

More than a year of planning, more than three months of increasingly hectic preparations will begin to pay off for Wichita Falls Ballet Theater Thursday as the Southwest Regional Ballet Festival opens officially at 9:30 a.m. at Trade Winds Motor Hotel.

This is the day for the arrival of the 275 dancers, 104 directors and other ballet company members from cities in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

This is the day, too, when 45 observers from other parts of the United States will arrive to see what's going on in dance in this part of the country. This is the day when 25 distinguished faculty members and honored guests will come to Wichita Falls for meetings and classes in ballet, contemporary and character dance.

It is an intensive program, crammed into two days, Friday and Saturday, and scattered all over the city. Classes will be in Fellowship Hall at First United Methodist Church; Sacred Heart Catholic Church Parish Hall; Clark Center Ballroom and the Fine Arts Center main stage at Midwestern State University; and the Pal Studio, home base for Wichita Falls Ballet Theater, whose members are hosts for the third time for this regional festival.

The theme, "A Time To Dance," is reflected in the two evenings of performances. "A Time To Dance, Friday" and "A Time To Dance, Saturday" both will take place at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium. These performances will feature original dance by 14 companies participating in the festival, dance that was chosen earlier this year by James Clouser of Houston, festival adjudicator.

It won't all be hard work. The opening banquet at 7 p.m. Thursday at Wichita Falls Country Club will give the people here for the festival a chance to renew friendships and make new contacts. Allan Longacre, executive director of the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities, will be keynote speaker.

This is an appropriate touch since the festival is made possible with the support of the TCAH, the National Endowment for the Arts plus the Wichita Falls Arts Commission and City of Wichita Falls. Nearly 500 persons are expected for the banquet.

A post-performance disco party for dancers will be in Clark Student Center Ballroom following the Friday performance, while directors will be entertained elsewhere. A gala breakfast, again at Wichita Falls Country Club, will follow the Saturday performance.

There will be formal meetings, too, of the regional board. These will be in the Trade Winds and the Holiday Inn Downtown, the two hotels where the visitors will be staying.

Besides the dance classes, there will be sessions on choreography, auditions for dance and choreography scholarships, screenings of significant dance films and even a couple of discussions on practical medicine for dancers by Dr. John C. Buckley of Austin. He is an orthopedic specialist and is married to Suzanne Shelton, a dance writer who grew up in Wichita Falls.

The final event of the festival will be at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Holiday Inn when the Southwest Regional Ballet Association will conduct an open meeting.

Chinese claim oil discovery

HOUSTON (AP) — A Chinese geologist has placed the Gudao field near the mouth of the Yellow River among the world's largest oil fields.

Wang Ping, a senior geologist for the China National Oil and Gas and Exploration and Development Co., said Gudao reserves approximate 700 million barrels.

Wang made the disclosure while participating in a symposium on new giant oilfields during the 64th meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. The three-day meeting ended Wednesday.

Frost warnings worry area fruit growers

By RECORD NEWS STAFF

Frost warnings Wednesday night had Wichita Falls area fruit growers keeping a close eye on the weather, but it appeared by early Thursday that temperatures would not drop low enough to do any harm.

"It's a very critical time," Mrs. E.D. Chitwood said of the peach crop at Chitwood Orchards in Charlie.

"But we just don't think it will get cold enough to hurt them."

"We're depending on the weather service to keep us informed," she added.

While it appeared the peach crops in the Charlie, Thornberry and Montague, Texas, areas were not in any danger, weather service officials said more delicate plants closer to the ground might have some difficulty with the expected mid-30s temperatures. Tomato plants, for instance, are more vulnerable to frost because the fruit is closer to the ground than peaches.

Fruit and plant growers should rest a bit easier Thursday, when warmer temperatures are expected. The high temperature Thursday is expected to reach near 70, while the low Thursday night is expected to drop to the mid-40s.

The warming trend will continue Friday with the high temperature near 80, the weather service said.

Glen Rose plant concrete 'untested'

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Some concrete used to build the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant in North Central Texas was not properly tested, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Wednesday.

For at least three years, concrete inspectors at the plant periodically failed to properly perform certain quality control tests related to the composition of concrete, its condition when being used and its strengths after it was already in place, the newspaper said.

The Star-Telegram reported its findings on the plant under construction southwest of Fort Worth in a copyright story by Michael Millenson, who spent four months investigating it.

Gov. Bill Clements issued a statement Wednesday afternoon saying the way to determine whether concrete already in place met requirements was core testing.

"I have personal knowledge of this methodology. If irregularities do in fact exist, I would strongly suggest that the concrete in question be cored and treated for hardness and quality, and if it doesn't measure up and meet the requirements, it should be replaced," Clements said.

jury," Sussman said, "but apparently was denied one."

"I feel that if we had had an opportunity to appear this wouldn't have happened," Hinton added.

Kirk's legal representatives said they and Kirk would be in Wichita Falls next week to appear before the court to seek a personal recognition bond and answer the charge.

"It is my understanding that the (warrant for Kirk's arrest) is to be withheld from execution and a personal recognition bond will be agreed upon," Hinton said.

The attorney said Kirk "resigned against the wishes and advice of his friends and myself solely to save any embarrassment to the judiciary."

"Now that this has happened, all I can say is the man has had enough and it is time to stand and fight and this I assure you we will do," Hinton said.

Eyssen, whose office has conducted an investigation into the charges, declined comment on the indictment Wednesday evening, saying only that the case would be placed on the usual court docket and would receive no special preference.

Kirk resigned from office after the State Commission on Judicial Conduct asked the Texas Supreme Court to suspend the judge for alleged misconduct in office. The commission's complaint arose from a letter by a member of the jury that acquitted a man June 6, 1978, on charges of indecency with a child.

In a letter to the commission, Mrs. Margarette O. Archer of Iowa Park said when Kirk heard the jury's not guilty verdict, he "threw the papers in the air, opened up with a tongue-lashing on the 12 jurors, stating the number of times the defendant had been tried for a similar crime and released."

James R. Jard, the commission's legal counsel, conducted an investigation that resulted in allegations that Kirk presented false documents and caused his court reporter to falsely swear and alter tape recordings and the record of the court proceedings.

"The altered tape recording and altered record of the proceeding were presented to Mr. Jard... as true and accurate when in fact they were not," the complaint alleged.

If convicted of the aggravated perjury charge, a third degree felony, Kirk could be sentenced to from two to 10 years in prison and fined up to $5,000.

According to the Texas Penal Code, aggravated perjury is committed if a person willfully and knowingly makes false statements as part of or concerning an official proceeding and if the statements are material to the case.

Choosing dance faculty important

By MARTHA STEIMEL
Arts Editor

One of the heaviest responsibilities in planning a regional ballet festival is choosing the faculty, the dancers who will conduct the classes for the young participants.

Most of the dancers in the companies who will be in Wichita Falls are young, many still in high school. For them, the inspiration and challenge provided by outstanding teachers is extremely important in their dance development.

The faculty for the Southwest Regional Ballet Festival includes Robert Jeffrey, artistic director of the Jeffrey Ballet in New York; Norbert Vesak, director of ballet and resident choreographer of the Metropolitan Opera in New York; Martha Mahr, co-director of the Miami Ballet Company, Miami, Fla.; and Patrick Crommett, director of the Dance Foundation of Kansas in Wichita, Kan., and the Dance Theater of Kansas. Crommett is a native of Wichita Falls and received his first dance training at Wichita Falls Ballet Theater.

Frank Pal, artistic director of WFBT, will be teaching character dance at this festival.

Doris Hering, executive director of the National Association for Regional Ballet, is one of the distinguished guests who will be in Wichita Falls for this festival. Evelyn Kreasor, president elect of the Mid-States Regional Ballet Association; Sally Brayley Bliss, Jerry Bywaters Cochran, Maria Grandy, Natalie Skelton and Ben Sommers, all NARB officials; Mary Bywaters, Jane A. Combs and Jane Leithead, SWRBA members, also are expected.

Ms. Garcia was appointed by President Carter, who also sent a birthday card for her father. Garcia has lived in Wichita Falls for 58 years. He and his wife, Rosalia, will celebrate their 58th wedding anniversary April 30.

Deputies probing Lawton burglary

LAWTON, Okla. — Comanche County sheriff's deputies Wednesday were investigating the burglary and vandalism of a rural home west of here.

Deputies said someone broke into Gail Frickie's home, located about four miles west of Lawton, sometime Wednesday afternoon after prying open a window.

Once inside, the burglars took a shotgun and a rifle. Deputies said the burglars shot a hole in the ceiling, shot a wall clock and then shot a stereo set before leaving.

No damage estimate was available.

Final appeal set in Evans case

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — An emergency appeal aimed at delaying the execution of John Louis Evans III was prepared for the U.S. Supreme Court late Wednesday as the condemned man's mother made an unexpected visit to her son.

One of Evans' closest friends, the Rev. Kevin Duignan, said Betty Evans spoke with her son at Holman Prison for about an hour. Evans, who has rejected efforts to spare his life, is scheduled to die at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Duignan, a Roman Catholic priest, said Mrs. Evans urged her son to ask Gov. Fob James for a clemency hearing. He said Evans told his mother he would consider it.

Earlier Wednesday, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans rejected by a 2-1 vote Mrs. Evans' petition seeking a stay of execution.

John Carroll, a Southern Poverty Law Center attorney for Mrs. Evans, then said he would file an emergency appeal to the nation's highest court. He said the appeal would be filed early Thursday.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Evans met briefly with the governor to ask for his intervention. Morris Dees, director of the Southern Poverty Law Center, presented her case to the governor for about 45 minutes.

Dees said the governor indicated he would not act until he saw what the courts would do.

Duignan said earlier that Evans would change his mind and "fight for his life" if his execution were postponed.

In dissent, Judge James Hill of Atlanta said he "would grant the stay in order to ascertain whether or not a mental deficiency short of incompetency would authorize proceeding by a next friend."

Duignan said Evans now feels a delay would be "a message from God," adding Evans appeared in recent days to be "a very confused individual."

U.S. regulations 'restrict industry'

By PAT ZAJAC
Staff Writer

T. BOONE PICKENS JR.

The United States should begin gas rationing now, free domestic energy producers from governmental restrictions and begin obtaining its foreign oil from Mexico and Canada instead of politically volatile Saudi Arabia, T. Boone Pickens Jr., president of Mesa Petroleum Co., said Wednesday at Midwestern State University.

Pickens spoke to an audience of about 250 faculty, students and community members at the first Streich Lecture Series on Free Enterprise. The lecture series is being funded through a grant to the School of Business Administration and Economics from the Streich family, a Wichita Falls family active in business and civic affairs.

Pickens founded Mesa Petroleum Co., with headquarters in Amarillo, in 1964. Net income that year was $435,000 on revenues of $1.5 million. Net income in 1977 was $41.3 million on revenues of $140.1 million.

"It's inconceivable to me that a power like the United States would continue to be so reliant on foreign imports," he said.

Half of the oil the United States uses comes from foreign sources, he said. Some of the sources, such as Saudi Arabia, are politically unreliable.

Instead of fostering a climate that encourages free enterprise, the U.S. government stifles it with regulations, Pickens said.

"Government regulations are vastly more encumbering than they were 15 years ago. I sympathize with those who are 15 years behind me and just starting out," he said.

"In the last 15 years, I can't recall one thing the government has done to help our industry," he said.

The government should work with the oil industry, he said, because 90 percent of the world's oil and gas was found by U.S. technicians.

Except for citizens in the OPEC nations, Americans are buying gasoline at bargain prices. Gasoline in Israel costs $2.50 a gallon; in Australia, $1.27 a gallon; and in Portugal, $2.62, he said.

The "supposedly consumer-oriented" governmental agencies are becoming increasingly expensive to taxpayers, he said.

"I am confident that the American people are becoming informed of the cost of government and will make the necessary changes," he said.

NATO survives 30 years of crises

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was born on April 4, 1949, Central Europe seemed on the brink of another war, less than four years after the war that brought 20th Century cruelty to its peak.

Since then, despite periodic crises and deep ideological divisions, Central Europe — historically the most battle-scarred region on Earth — has lived at peace.

Wednesday night, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown celebrated NATO's contributions to peace by playing host to a State Department reception in honor of the alliance's 30th birthday.

NATO grew out of two events in 1948 that shook the West: a Soviet blockade of West Berlin and a pro-Soviet communist coup in Czechoslovakia before scheduled national elections.

Within five months after NATO was founded, the Soviets ended the Berlin blockade. In addition, no European country has come under communist rule since NATO was formed.

As security alliances go, NATO is an oldtimer. Two other products of the cold war, the Central Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, expired while still in their 20s.

But NATO, far from following in CENTO's and SEATO's footsteps, is embarking on a long-term military expansion program.

The peace which has prevailed in Central Europe has been an expensive one, both for NATO and for the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces. No other area holds as great a concentration of conventional military power as has been assembled in that part of the world.

At the time of its founding, NATO had but 12 divisions of ill-trained, ill-equipped, ill-coordinated forces scattered around Western Europe. By contrast, the Soviet Union had 27 divisions deployed in East Germany alone.

Today, though its forces have grown enormously over the years, NATO is still playing catchup in most areas.

Speaking privately, Western military officials say the Warsaw Pact countries have 580,000 combat-ready troops compared with fewer than 300,000 for NATO.

The Warsaw Pact also reportedly holds the upper hand in numbers of tanks (57,820 to 13,700), in artillery and rocket launchers (42,300 to 14,414), in nuclear submarines (164 to 91) and in most other categories.

NATO is said to have a 2 to 1 advantage in tactical nuclear weapons, but U.S. intelligence reports indicate the Soviets are attempting to narrow NATO's advantage in this area.

U.S. officials maintain the two sides are at "parity or essential equivalence," but a February report by a House Armed Services subcommittee says NATO's ability to fight a protracted war is "almost non-existent."

In wartime, the study says, NATO equipment and ammunition would run out "in a matter of days rather than weeks or months."

A sense of shared democratic values and suspicions about Soviet intentions have enabled the 15-member alliance to survive numerous internal economic, political and military crises all these years.

There were times when NATO's European members chafed under what they perceived as American domination. France, for example, pulled out of NATO's integrated military command in 1966.

At other times, such as the Vietnam war period, the Europeans complained of American neglect.

NATO's problems nowadays are of a different nature. Two members on NATO's southeast flank, Greece and Turkey, seem more afraid of each other than they do of the Soviet Union.

According to Gen. Alexander Haig, the retiring allied commander in Europe, Turkey's economic crisis — which has threatened the political stability of the country — eclipses all other problems facing NATO.

Mock disaster

A mock disaster victim receives aid from an emergency rescue worker during a simulated tornado Wednesday morning. About 800 persons, including 75 mock victims participated in the drill at Martin Plaza. The mock disaster, organized by city Risk Management Director Mark Wilson, called for a simulated tornado watch to be issued at 8 a.m. and a simulated tornado to touch down in Martin Plaza at 8:40 a.m. (Photo by Becky Chaney)

Legal briefs dispute role of Miss Marvin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lawyers in the Lee Marvin property rights trial filed 91 pages of legal briefs Wednesday, with the actor's lawyer calling Michelle Triola Marvin a liar and her lawyer depicting her as a loving helpmate.

Miss Marvin contended that without her support, Marvin

Bill would bar 'Marvin suits'

AUSTIN (AP) — Actor Lee Marvin might have avoided a court battle with the woman he courted with the woman he courted with if unmarried couples were restricted in the types of property disputes they could take to court, a House committee was told Wednesday.

"The Marvin case could conceivably, and will, open up a can of worms," Berlanga said. "What I'm saying is that I don't want to see the docket cluttered with a lot of frivolous cases."

The bill was sent to a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee for further study.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said his bill would allow only unmarried couples with written agreements about property to settle their claims in state court.

Michelle Triola Marvin is suing the actor for a large share of his property in a well-publicized California trial.

Couples who had acknowledged a common-law marriage would be exempt from the provisions of Berlanga's bill.

never would have been as successful as he was in movies.

But Marvin's lawyers said he reached stardom long before he met Miss Marvin and claim she had no effect on his career.

Miss Marvin has asked for an award of lifetime support from the actor and $1.8 million, her estimate of half of his assets during the six years they lived together. She claims she and Marvin had both an oral contract and an implied contract based on their relationship, which she compared to that of a husband and wife.

Lawyers for the actor claimed in their 50-page brief that the main issue in the landmark trial was the credibility of Miss Marvin, the former singer and showgirl who changed her last name to match the actor's at the end of their six-year love affair.

Major health menace

Destruction of wildlife habitat is being blamed by Texas Department of Health for increasing the dangers of rabies in the state.

Statewide, 172 cases of rabies were reported in the previous three months, compared to about 100 during the comparable period last year, said Alice Williams, zoonosis technician with the agency.

A friendly skunk may be cute, but it may be as deadly. And a dog or cat that has been infected by the skunk can be as deadly.

side, the problem of rabies transmission will continue to be acute.

An active education program aimed at promoting annual vaccination of pets is the most effective approach to countering the potential spread of rabies.

No part of Wichita Falls is immune to invasion by skunks seeking garbage as food. The animals have overcome their natural objections to coexisting with man, and if we force the cities into their habitat, they'll come into contact with household pets and small children.

The result, rabies, an always-fatal disease, is too horrible to think about. But that's even more reason why its spread should be guarded against.

'Roloff bills' opposed

Evangelist Lester Roloff has enlisted the aid of Gov. Clements in his effort to get church-affiliated child care institutions exempted from licensing by the state.

The bills should be defeated. A basic duty of any government, including state government, is to see to the health, safety and welfare of the citizenry.

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld a ruling by Texas' high court that Roloff must get a license. Still, Roloff appears to be operating his homes in violation of a court order.

man Resources attorney Fred Biel has said Roloff's operation is illegal.

White should enforce the law. But that won't do much good if the legislature changes the law. Lawmakers should not let themselves be led to believe that the issue has anything to do with separation of church and state.

Health and safety standards have nothing to do with freedom of expression or religion. They have to do with health and safety of citizens.

H-bombs in back yard?

By GARRY WILLS

At the end of World War II, the United States was sitting on top of the world, and we thought we could stay there.

And Russia? It was still a partially industrialized country, badly damaged by war. True, it had grabbed new territory in Europe, mainly because of our total war and unconditional surrender policies.

But Russia was not a direct threat to us or our areas of European occupation. Among other things, we had The Bomb, and we meant to keep it to ourselves.

It didn't work; knowledge is not a property that can be locked up like bars of gold.

the ills of McCarthyism.

An exaggerated fear of Russia came from our ideological surrender. We were afraid of Marxist ideas, at work in the crumbling colonial empires.

As I say, it didn't keep the bomb from the Russians, nor did they need the Rosenbergs to get it.

It did one other thing. It helped increase the mutual suspicion that makes joint arms control such an ineffectual charade to this day.

All this is background to the Progressive magazine article suppressed by a Wisconsin judge.

Drummond Israel support big thing

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is making a mistake trying to pass off its military commitment to Israel as if it were a little thing hardly worth mentioning.

It is not a little thing. It is assurance by the president as commander-in-chief of the armed forces that the United States will come to the aid of Israel if there are violations of the peace treaty.

This is a wise and significant military commitment and should be presented to Congress and the country as such, not expounded as a postscript to the negotiations.

Undoubtedly it was this assurance that persuaded Prime Minister Menachem Begin to feel he could safely accept the treaty.

It is that significant. However, there are conditions in the commitment and its implementation that depend on the U.S. in the event of treaty violations the assurances are that:

— The U.S. "will consider formally and urgently increasing its (military) presence in the area."

— We "will provide emergency supplies to Israel."

— The U.S. will take "appropriate actions if there is a blockade of Israel's use of international waterways."

It is evident in the text that the president is not committing the United States to anything it cannot, refuse to do. But this "Memorandum of Agreement" is something the president is offering with seriousness and intent to fulfill.

The U.S. has never made such a commitment to Israel before. It is more wide ranging than any previous assurance. It relates not merely to possible Egyptian treaty violations (which American officials do not expect); it goes further. A State Department spokesman stated that a naval blockade, which the U.S. could be called upon to break, "could relate to situations involving parties other than Egypt and Israel."

Senate majority and minority leaders, Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., are distressed that President Carter failed to inform Congress that such an agreement was in the making in advance of his directing Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to sign it.

But Baker made it clear that in his opinion no major objections will be raised in Congress.

But pro-forma congressional acquiescence is not good enough. The commitment should be studied and debated as though it were an executive agreement.

A major debate would be the best way to make sure every congressman knows what he's approving. And formal congressional approval is the best way to insure that the president could readily carry out the terms of the agreement if the need arises.

By No Means Neutral Baker & passing parade

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — John Connally took off running flat-out, and by hitting the issues which over the head he is raising impressive campaign money and hoisting himself in the Republican public opinion polls.

Philip Crane is working hard on the rightmost side of the street.

Ronald Reagan's newsletter and radio show allow him to run without running until he is ready to make it official.

The parade, in short, is forming up and moving out, and Howard Baker, so far, is on the curb watching it pass.

There is no doubt that Baker himself is going to fall in before the parade is over. He already has his senatorial colleague Richard Lugar as campaign chairman, and his other key assignments are decided.

But more than any Republican seriously seeking Jimmy Carter's job, Baker will concentrate his campaign in Washington, in the Senate. Partly, that is because he remains minority leader, the job his father-in-law Everett Dirksen had before him.

The other reason is that he is immersed in the strategic arms question. The SALT treaty and its timing will make the 1980 nomination process the most important foreign policy debate the Republicans have had among themselves since the Eisenhower-Taft contest of 1952.

Even if a treaty should be approved by the foreign ministers, the slow grinding of senatorial machinery will postpone the final decision on it until the presidential campaign has moved to the front of every senator's mind.

Baker could be the key to those deliberations. It is not wholly clear whether it just happened that way because he is the Republican leader and the SALT role was thrust on him, or he reached out for it because he sees it as an ideal way to demonstrate that he is presidential material.

Right now he opposes it. He finds it lacking in three important ways. He may urge the seldom-used option of returning it to the president for revisions before a final vote is taken.

That creates his campaign image: tough-minded but reasonable, patriotic but pragmatic, soft-spoken but well informed, influential among his peers, skeptical toward the Russians but willing to do business on favorable terms, altogether the opposite of his more bombastic, obstructionist rivals for the nomination.

In seeking the GOP nomination, a politician does not traditionally win by courting the moderate middle of American public opinion, but the activist hard core of the minority that registers as Republican.

Baker is gambling that by next winter the novelty value of those hard shell conservatives will have started wearing thin, and thinking Republicans will recognize the need for a sane, persuasive alternative, i.e., him.

Comment IRS tries harder

By DON GRAFF Running into problems with your tax return?

Internal Revenue Service has a suggestion as to where to look for help: the IRS.

The tax people say they are extending themselves this year to assist taxpayers who have lost their way in the forest of forms and regulations. Employees charged with fielding queries from the public have been trained in the more complex tax provisions.

Theoretically, anyone calling IRS with a tough question will get an answer from the tax experts' expert.

The not-so-good news is that the effort is badly needed. In the past, IRS has not been all that accurate in advising the public.

IRS should find encouragement in at least one aspect of its public-assistance effort, however; it has nowhere to go but up.

American wage earners don't keep their heads above the economic waters by salary alone.

Supplementary compensation such as health and life insurance, pension plans and the like have become major and still-growing contributors to total employee income.

According to a survey of Chamber of Commerce of the United States, such fringe benefits have been increasing at almost twice the rate of wages.

The packages tend to be better in larger firms than smaller. Among industries, the best is petroleum, with an average of $6,481 in benefits.

Overall, the benefits share of employee income has increased from about a quarter of wages in 1967 to more than a third now.

What About Warranty? — For U.S. firms anxious to keep a step ahead in the race to do business with China, a New York importer has come up with the perfect new item of office equipment.

It is a Chinese typewriter, the real thing from Shanghai and equipped with 2,500 characters, presumably sufficient to record all the steel mills, hotels, soft drinks and other western wonders mainlanders are so eager to buy.

Jail problem aptly described

Editor:

I would like to compliment you on publishing Garry Wills' editorial column, "Our own hells explored" in the March 27 Record News. It was well written and informative.

At present I am incarcerated in the Texas Department of Corrections and have been since 1976. It is difficult for the people of the "outside" world to comprehend just exactly what it is like here.

I am from the Wichita Falls area. I was convicted of a non-violent crime in your city. I hope to return to my home in the near future. If and when I do return, please try to understand where I've been and accept my shortcomings.

Name withheld Huntsville, Texas

We have plentiful supplies of coal and enormous grain production. We should begin a crash program at once, no matter the cost, to research conversion of coal and grain into gasoline, methane gas and fuel oil.

Our entire lifestyle and our present civilization is dependent upon it. George Corse Graham, Texas

Inmate complaint

Editor:

It seems about once a week that some jail inmate complains about being deprived of his rights and privileges.

Do these persons realize what it costs the citizens of this country to house, feed and clothe them? Does anyone in jail care or think about why he is in jail and deprived of his freedom?

To pamper criminals is one of the most expensive idiocies practiced in this country in the name of rights and humane-ness. Providing the necessities is mandatory, but when they demand luxuries, that is going too far.

Punishment by incarceration and loss of privileges should be expected by those who so flagrantly disobey the law. Peggy Bond Wichita Falls

Nuke problems

Editor:

Troubles with nuclear power plants point up the fact that we Americans, both as a government and as a people, are not facing our energy problems squarely, even after years of ever growing consumption and dependency on foreign sources.

Above all else, our number one priority should be to strive for safe energy self-sufficiency.

ERA suffers setback in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Equal Rights Amendment suffered a setback in the Florida Legislature on Wednesday when the Senate Rules Committee refused to send the measure to the floor. But its sponsor, Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, pulled a parliamentary maneuver that kept the controversial measure alive until the committee meets again Thursday. Gordon conceded, however, that the outlook is bleak in Florida for the proposal to ban discrimination based on sex. Thirty-five states already have passed the ERA, but approval by 38 states is needed by June 1982. ERA supporters have called Florida a key state in their campaign to gain ratification.

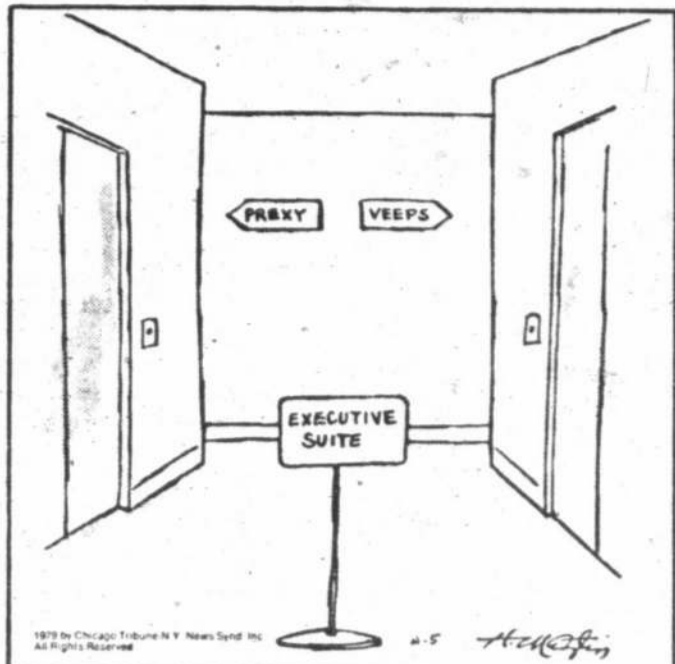

On Wednesday, the ERA failed on a 124 vote in the committee with Gordon himself voting against it to keep the measure alive until the committee's next meeting. Parliamentary rules say a legislator on the winning side in a committee vote may move later to have the committee reconsider the vote. Gordon originally thought the meeting would be next Wednesday. But, before the final vote, a brief meeting was called for Thursday.

Gordon noted that the House, where ERA supporters are in the majority, is holding out another ratification measure which could be called up later if enough votes change in the Senate. Gordon said he would try to engineer a tradeoff on the ERA before the Legislature adjourns in June. The lopsided defeat that everyone had expected followed an unexpected test vote which the ratification forces lost late Tuesday at the end of the Legislature's opening-day festivities. Gordon failed, 22-18, to bring the ERA straight to the Senate floor, which has been the ERA's historic stumbling-block in Florida.

Elsewhere, proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment have scored a major victory in New Hampshire as the state's House stopped a move to rescind the state's 1972 approval of ERA. The House voted 245-101 Tuesday against a resolution to repeal the amendment, rejecting arguments that ERA and the feminist movement have contributed to the downfall of American society. Five of the 35 states that have approved the ERA have since rescinded approval. The validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. The states that have rescinded approval are South Dakota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska.

In his personal references, Paley lingers affectionately on his long and happy marriage to Barbara Cushing, who died last year. His sense of public responsibility is reflected in his service to art museums (his private collection of French Post-Impressionists is one of the finest in the world), and in the small but beautiful Paley Park he built in New York in memory of his father. This is unquestionably among the most important books on the development of American broadcasting yet published. It makes illuminating reading coming from the architect of a communications empire that ranks with the giants of American industry. Paley's presence has always stood him in good stead. I hope he's right when he concludes that the time has come for a "new major change in TV programming." It's long overdue.

Good news, bad news

New anti-smoking measure proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — "No smoking" signs might be a more frequent sight if a bill sponsored by Rep. Lance Lalor becomes law. "We've come to hear a great deal more about the health hazards of non-smokers who are exposed to second-hand smoke," Lalor, D-Houston, told the House Committee on Health Services Wednesday. Lalor said smoking also poses an economic cost in fire losses, damaged retail goods, cleaning and maintenance. "It costs six to 10 times as much to ventilate a building in which smoking is permitted," he said.

His bill, sent to subcommittee for more study, would ban smoking in public places except in designated smoking areas. Groceries, retail stores and restaurants would be among the locations covered by the bill. Lalor said the measure was designed to encourage smokers' voluntary compliance and close loopholes in the no-smoking law the Legislature passed four years ago. "It fairly balances the rights of everybody concerned," he said.

Dr. Carmalt Jackson Jr., of the University of Texas Health Center at Houston, said "second-hand smoke" already inhaled actually poses little problem since most of the carcinogens stay in smokers' lungs. "Sidestream smoke" not inhaled by the smokers presents a health hazard to non-smokers, he said. Jackson said a recent study in a train's commuter bar car found a non-smoker had inhaled as many carcinogens in an hour as there were in 17 to 35 cigarettes. Joe Ratcliff of the Texas Association of Tobacco and Candy Distributors said the bill would extend the "police arm" of the state. Ratcliff said scientific studies have not proven conclusively that sidestream smoke endangers non-smokers.

Hormone treatment urged for male sex offenders

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Maine legislators learned Wednesday of a method to treat male sex offenders with weekly hormone injections which reportedly reduce their sex drive. Dr. John Money of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, a medical psychologist and the author of a book on sexual deviancy, said the hormone injections are "like a vacation from the sex drive." The "vacation" lasts as long as the weekly injections continue, and the treatment has no dangerous side effects, said Money. The injections of progesterone-based "Depo-Provera" diminish the male sex drive to a state of pre-puberty. Money said he has successfully treated about 50 sex offenders with a combination of the hormone and psychotherapy. After hearing testimony from Money, who flew to Augusta at his own expense to testify about the treatment, the Judiciary Committee voted to ask the full legislature to study the hormone treatment. Money's host in Augusta was Rep. Joyce Lewis, who has sponsored a so-called castration bill.

Mrs. Lewis, a Republican, wanted her bill to apply to persons twice convicted of molesting children under age 14. Under her proposal, male sex offenders would be castrated, and female sex offenders would have their Fallopian tubes surgically severed.

Broadcasting giant shares his memories

AS IT HAPPENED, by William S. Paley. Doubleday, $14.95.

By JOHN BARKHAM
Barkham Reviews

With surprisingly little pre-publication fanfare, this memoir by one of broadcasting's two founding fathers (the other: the late David Sarnoff) places on record the role CBS played in transforming mass communications in America and the role William S. Paley played in transforming CBS. Paley, in his 79th year, has guided the destinies of his network for nigh on half a century and is still the gray eminence keeping a watchful eye on it from his eyrie in "Black Rock," the CBS headquarters in New York.

His career has already passed into the mythology of broadcasting, but like most myths, some of it is fancy rather than fact. It is true, he tells us, that his father was a Jewish immigrant cigar-maker in Chicago and Philadelphia, but he was a millionaire cigar-maker.

It is also true, adds Paley, that he himself picked up the failing United Independent Broadcasters for a song, but that "song" was a million dollars which Paley Jr. had accumulated. He was 26 when he bought the patchwork UIB but he sensed its potential and broadcasting intrigued him. It still does.

The rest is history, but history known only in its broad outlines: how UIB became CBS, how CBS overtook NBC under Sarnoff, how the two giants battled it out in radio and TV, how CBS won over the long-play record, how CBS lost out to NBC over color television. (Only later did ABC become an equal and formidable competitor.) What Paley does is to fill in the details, mostly on the business side, but a good deal on the personal side as well.

Together these elements make the book fascinating reading, for television has become for all of us a daily fact of life. Paley begins at the beginning with his patient creation of a radio network, recalls his coups in weaning away from NBC such stars as Jack Benny, Red Skelton and Bing Crosby, and how he developed the legendary news team headed by Edward R. Murrow and now by Walter Cronkite. Paley has always been reticent about his own activities as top man in his network, but from time to time news would filter out of "Black Rock" of differences in the highest echelons of CBS corporate power. In these pages he speaks frankly of the reasons why executives like James T. Aubrey and others whose heads have rolled failed in one way or another to measure up to his standards. This last is important, for under Paley CBS consistently set television's highest standards, relative though these were. In recent seasons, those standards have been further lowered, but CBS still retains its public image as the "Tiffany of Television."

In his personal references, Paley lingers affectionately on his long and happy marriage to Barbara Cushing, who died last year. His sense of public responsibility is reflected in his service to art museums (his private collection of French Post-Impressionists is one of the finest in the world), and in the small but beautiful Paley Park he built in New York in memory of his father. This is unquestionably among the most important books on the development of American broadcasting yet published. It makes illuminating reading coming from the architect of a communications empire that ranks with the giants of American industry. Paley's presence has always stood him in good stead. I hope he's right when he concludes that the time has come for a "new major change in TV programming." It's long overdue.

Sara Jane Moore escape trial begins

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A court-appointed attorney for Sara Jane Moore, who tried to kill President Ford, told jurors Wednesday people may be found innocent of escape from prison if they were forced out for reasons of "duress" or "perversion."

Ms. Moore is on trial in U.S. District Court on charges of escape from a federal prison. She is serving a life sentence on a conviction of attempting to kill Ford in San Francisco in 1975.

Defense attorney Hazel Straub told the jury of seven women and five men that "not every time there is an unauthorized leaving" from a prison "is a person guilty of escape."

Ms. Straub said the defendant "found herself in a very difficult situation" at the institution.

Assistant U.S. Attorney E. Leslie Hoffman said the prosecution would prove that Ms. Moore willfully left the prison.

Trial is scheduled to resume Thursday morning.

Ms. Moore's jury was seated just before another jury began deliberating the case of an inmate accused of escaping with Ms. Moore.

Marlene Martino and Ms.

Moore are accused of climbing a 12-foot fence and fleeing from the Federal Correctional Institution at Alderson, W. Va. on Feb. 5. They were caught a few hours later about 30 miles away in White Sulphur Springs.

About two-thirds of the 70 prospective jurors in Ms. Moore's case were excused because they had seen news accounts of the alleged escape.

Mrs. Martino is serving a life sentence for conspiracy in connection with the contract slaying of a soldier at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Ms. Moore is serving a life sentence, for attempting to assassinate then-President Gerald Ford in San Francisco in 1975.

Mrs. Martino maintains she was forced into the escape by Ms. Moore, and on the closing day of testimony Tuesday she said Ms. Moore threatened to cut her throat if she didn't cooperate.

Mrs. Martino said she intended only to go to the prison chapel the night of the attempt. To explain why she was wearing long underwear, two pairs of slacks, two blouses, a heavy sweater, a coat, boots and gloves, she said she was particularly sensitive to cold weather.

"I was dealing with a mad woman. She was so excited, so forceful. I felt completely helpless," Mrs. Martino said.

Mrs. Martino testified that as she and Ms. Moore climbed the fence surrounding the prison, she became stuck and Ms. Moore pushed her over, causing her to rip her finger on the barbed wire. She said Ms. Moore hit and kicked her when she fell during the escape.

Mrs. Martino said at one point Ms. Moore "started laughing real crazy. She said she was going to Arlington and then to Washington."

Senate panel leaves Carter defense request 99% intact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Budget Committee voted Wednesday to give President Carter 99.44 percent of the military funds he requested for fiscal 1980.

After a lengthy debate over the Soviet threat and Europe's contributions to its own defense, the panel voted 9-6 to leave room in the new budget for $125.3 billion in defense funds — only $700 million below Carter's request.

The House Budget Committee voted Tuesday for a $123.9 billion ceiling on defense spending.

The Senate version would allow Carter to keep his commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to increase this nation's contribution to NATO defenses "in the region of 3 percent" a year, excluding adjustments for inflation.

The $125.3 billion budget would hold pay raises for Defense Department employees to 5.5 percent in the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

The Senate committee, lopped nearly 10 percent off Carter's budget for foreign aid and other international affairs. But with a surprise assist from conservative Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., a majority of the panel was able to stave off a much larger reduction.

Armstrong's vote resulted in a 9-8 margin by which a compromise figure for U.S. contributions to international development programs was approved in preference to the steeper cut. The end result was a total recommended outlay for international programs of $8.8 billion, or $700 million below the president's request.

By lopsided votes, the committee rejected efforts by conservatives to sharply raise defense spending above Carter's proposals, and by liberals who wanted deeper cuts.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said it makes no sense to cut U.S. defense spending just because some European nations are giving less than they should to the common defense. He said such an approach "treats world defense like the Community Chest — everybody giving a fair share."

"We've had a run-down defense budget for several years ... (in comparison with) social needs," Hollings added.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., replied, "We could spend all the money in the federal treasury and still be weaker than we are today ... We are not going to balance the budget if we cave in on this issue."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said any effort to balance the budget by cutting back on defense would be foolish. Hatch tried to add, about 5 percent to Carter's budget for strategic warfare forces and was beaten 13-3.

Hart lost 13-4 on his amendment to delete $800 million from the president's proposal for tactical forces, including elimination of money for the A-10 and F-18 planes, the Airborne Warning and Command System for NATO and an infantry fighting vehicle.

Under new legislation aimed at balancing the federal budget in 1981 or 1982, the Budget Committee is suggesting proposed spending levels for those years in addition to 1980. Extending next year's $125.3-billion defense budget would envision spending about $136 billion in 1981 and $147 billion in 1982.

The $125.3-billion figure for 1980 is the total outlays — checks the government would expect to write next year for defense purposes.

Many budget specialists say the better estimate of actual spending is "budget authority." That term covers all the checks written for defense purposes in 1980 plus obligations incurred next year but which will not be paid until future years. For example, the Pentagon might order 1,000 new tanks next year but would not have to pay for them until delivered in later years.

By that measure, defense spending in 1980 would be $138.3 billion under the Senate panel's action — precisely what Carter proposed.

Meanwhile, the House Budget Committee voted 13-11 to restore $300 million that the panel's liberal-dominated Democratic caucus had deleted from the president's request for $7.5 billion in highway construction.

Funds were also added for education for the handicapped, the Head Start school program, vocational training and senior center activities.

Residents of Devol like 'one big, happy family'

By DOROTHY CROWDER
Burk Burnett Bureau

DEVOL, Okla. — Most of the 200 persons who live in Devol are retired men and women who once farmed the surrounding countryside in the Big Pasture.

Many of the elderly remain in the Cotton County town nine miles north of the Red River. The young go elsewhere to make a living, leaving the town with few children to liven up the scenery.

But Devol is still a pleasant community and, according to the chairman of the town board, Carl Foster, the town "is like one big, happy family."

"Most anyone will help if you're in need," he said. "When someone goes to Burk Burnett to shop, they gather and several women go together. It's inconvenient at times (not having a place to shop), but living here has its good points, too," Foster added.

Devol's last business, a combination grocery-service station, closed its doors early this year. Now the only place to gather is the tiny post office that has had the same postmistress, Mrs. Beatrice McClendon, for 20 years.

From the first through the 10th of each month, Ethel McCasland opens the community center where she collects water and electricity bills. Mrs. McCasland has served Devol as town clerk since April 1961. The community center is used for bridal and baby showers and for community dinners.

Still thriving just outside Devol is a fertilizer plant managed by Charlie McCullough, and Bunge Elevators still operates a gin at Devol.

According to Foster, Devol is blessed with an abundant water supply which meets all the state's standards. But Foster worries about the time rapidly approaching when all water-lines will have to be replaced.

The city obtains its water from springs on Red River just across the county line in Tillman County. The severe winter caused some disruptions in service and workers had to wait for the thaw before locating the cause of the trouble.

The town was named for Frank Devol, who established the first post office in 1908. When the Wichita Falls and Northwestern Railroad was built to the southwest corner of the townsite, it became a big asset to the farming industry.

The oil boom at Burk Burnett caused Devol to reap the overflow, and the city prospered for several years. Numerous businesses and services thrived and the town built four churches. One church, First Baptist, remains.

The demise of Devol began with the end of the Burk Burnett boom. The town's bank failed in 1927 and hard times for Devol became permanent.

According to Mrs. McCasland, the final blow came on August 30, 1959, when a tornado demolished what was left of the business area. The twister leveled the railroad depot, Masonic Hall, service station, post office and two homes.

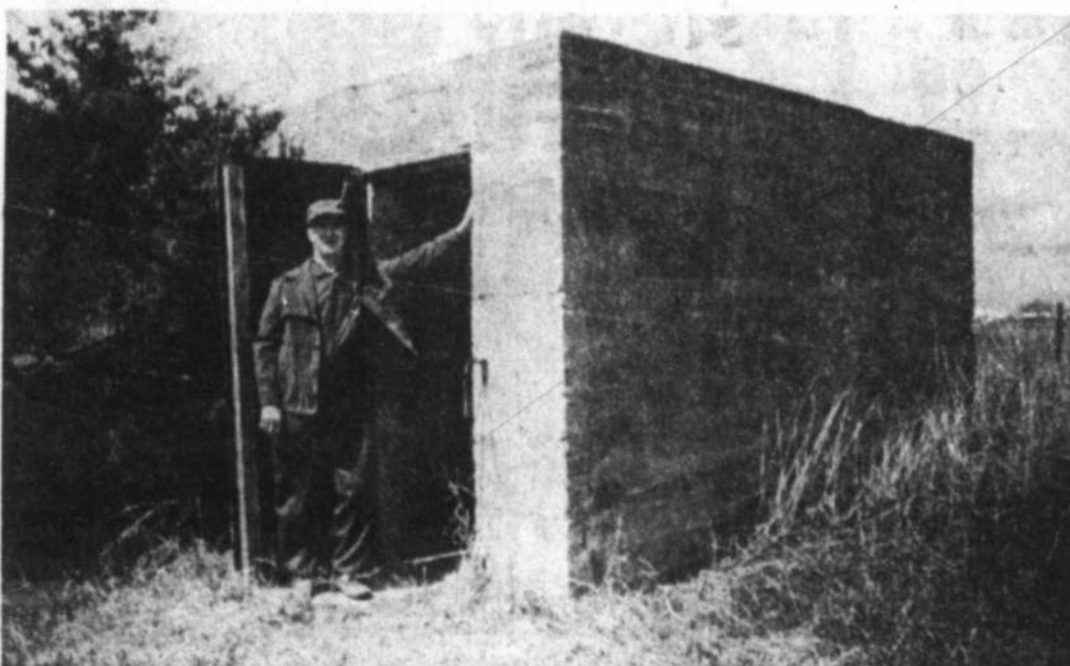

Loyal to their hometown, the residents of Devol refused to allow the government to close the post office following the twister. Under the leadership of Aubrey Mays Jr., the town obtained and remodeled the former Oklahoma State Bank building, and with the help of the regional office in Dallas, Devol met the requirements to keep the post office open.

Today the town is served by Foster, chairman, and Mrs. McCasland, town clerk. Members of the town board are Robert Boston and Darrell Adams. A.J. Adams is water superintendent, and J.P. Eley is treasurer.

Farmers to get special payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who participated in the 1978 corn and sorghum acreage set-aside programs soon will be getting federal subsidies totaling $285 million as "deficiency" payments.

The payments will be made by county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service "in early April," said Ray Fitzgerald, head of the agency.

The payments make up the difference between the national average market price for the first five months of the marketing year that began last Oct. 1 and the "target" prices specified in the program.

Japanese official plans talks in Washington

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda left for Washington Thursday for a week of talks with U.S. officials on trade and other mutual issues.

Sonoda will meet Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Vice President Walter Mondale.

Sonoda is the first Cabinet minister to visit the United States since the administration of Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira took over in December.

The biggest assignment for Sonoda will be seek solutions to deadlocked negotiations on a strongly pressed U.S. demand that foreign firms be given greater freedom in procurement bids for the Japanese government and three public enterprises.

Nobuhiko Ushiba, chief government trade negotiator in the Tokyo-round multilateral trade negotiations, and U.S. trade negotiator Robert Strauss failed to reach a compromise on the question in their talks in Washington last week.

Other major subjects for the Washington talks will include the latest political developments in Asia after the China-Vietnam border conflict.

The Japanese foreign minister also will discuss with Schlesinger a planned joint research and development program for alternative energy sources.

Chinese arrest 7 rights activists

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese police arrested seven human rights activists for violating a March 29 order banning wall posters critical of the Communist Party leadership, Japan's Kyodo news service reported Thursday.

The Kyodo dispatch identified one of those arrested as Ren Wanding (Jen Wan-ting), a leader of the Chinese Human Rights League. The report said Ren was putting up a poster at "The Democracy Wall" on Peking's Chang An Street when he was taken into custody.

It said Ren and the six others were arrested Tuesday and police ordered foreign reporters who witnessed Ren's arrest not to take pictures.

The ban also affects magazines, photographs and books critical of the party leadership. It was imposed after the government had granted broader freedom of expression in recent months. The Peking order did not mention other Chinese cities, including Shanghai, where vigorous poster campaigns were reported in recent weeks.

No sign of spring

It's spring by the calendar, but there is no sign of new life in this scene southeast of Burkburnett. An abandoned garage is all that remains of what once might have been a flourishing farm. Even the trees and weeds seem to have given up hope for rebirth this spring. (Photo by Lee Anderson)

Some commuters encounter bandits, revolutions, bombings

By ROCKY SCOTT
Staff Writer

If you don't mind a bandit or two, an occasional revolution and a 14,000-mile commutation, then "working foreign" could be for you.

Despite a 1976 tax law that takes a bigger bite out of dollars earned overseas, many Wichitans feel oil field work in a foreign country is still a good way to make money — not to mention six months' vacation each year.

Because they are away from home a great deal, the three men interviewed for this story ask that their real names not be used. All three are veterans of the "oil patch," and all three feel working overseas is the best way to make the most money in the shortest time.

"Jim" is currently in Colombia. "Joe" was awaiting another overseas assignment, having just finished an 18-month stint off the island of Mykonos, Greece, and "John" is waiting to go back to Australia's western coast.

All three men work in a supervisory capacity and, because they have worked with native crews, all three speak a smattering of a couple of languages.

"In the middle east, language wasn't too much of a problem," says Jim. "But in Colombia, if you don't speak Spanish, you've got a problem."

Jim says his South American workers generally "make better hands" than their North American counterparts because their wages — from $12 to $15 a day — are high for that area.

"In Colombia," he says, "there are only two kinds of people — rich and poor."

Joe, who has worked in several Mideast countries — including Iran — does not like what's happened in that part of the world in the past few years. "Used to be we were appreciated over there," he says, "but now it can be dangerous. I'm not talking just about Iran. There are a lot of other countries that don't like Americans, either."

John is by far the most content of the three. "I'm thinking about becoming an Australian citizen," the once-divorced tool pusher says. "I like the country, I like the people. I don't have much family here, so I wouldn't be leaving anything."

Jim agrees, but says he will wait before he leaves the United States. "I just can't make any money working stateside," he says, "so when the kids get out of school,

All three men said they just "didn't have time" to worry about a country's political situation. "I can't keep up with politics" in the United States, says Jim, who works away from home every other month. "Trying to do it in a foreign country is impossible."

The recent overthrow of the Shah of Iran was "just one of those things," according to John, who worked there eight years ago. "The only time you start to worry is when you find yourself in the middle of a mob. They're liable to do anything, and that's when being a foreigner can be dangerous."

But the work at the well site cuts heavily into any spare time the men might have. "What you're doing is busting your ... seven days a week, 12 hours a day for 28 days," says Joe. "You just don't have time to get into trouble."

All three men express anger at the way Americans were often treated overseas, but they all said part of the hostility comes from the "ugly American" syndrome.

"Let's face it," John says. "We come into a country with our big salaries and fancy equipment and the local people resent it a little bit. If somebody is rude or bad-mannered, that just makes it worse."

And, although oil companies often spend a great deal of money to make their crews comfortable, "there are some guys who get into trouble," according to Jim.

"Usually, our embassy tries to help us out, but sometimes they can't do a whole lot," he says. "That's when they can lock you up and forget about you and nobody can do anything."

Despite the dangers involved and the time away from their families, all three men plan to keep "working foreign."

"I worry about my family while I'm away," says Jim, "but you just can't make any money here (in the United States)."

"You can make a living, but that's about all."

'Used to be we were appreciated over there. But now it can be dangerous. I'm not talking just about Iran. There are a lot of other countries that don't like Americans, either.'

we're going to move to Ecuador. I've worked there before, and you can really save some money."

The fact that his family stood in the front yard and watched the government palace being burned during a revolution several years ago doesn't bother him. "In Colombia now, we're told not to carry guns, to let the bandits have anything they want. They usually don't bother us, it's the soldiers they are after. The only time we have any trouble is when the army comes out to 'guard' us. Then the bandits show up for sure."

Robber doesn't get quite the response he expected

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A man described as in his early 20s entered a Grand Rapids grocery, keeping his right hand in his pocket as if holding a gun. "This is a holdup," he announced to a clerk, according to the police. "Open the cash register."

The 52-year-old clerk studied the man and shook his head. "No way am I going to open it up," he said.

"Do you want to die?" the man asked.

The clerk thought about it briefly and shrugged. "We all got to die some time," he said.

The man stared back at the clerk in disbelief, then grabbed a bag of potato chips, slapped a quarter on the counter and left, police said.

Trucking shutdown may extend into next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's most extensive trucking shutdown, already hurting the auto industry, is likely to stretch at least into next week and raise the prospect of widespread economic disruptions, government officials said Wednesday.

In the third full day of a lockout of striking Teamsters by major trucking firms, administration officials said the impact was limited mostly to the auto industry. The government had no immediate plans to seek a court-ordered end to the contract dispute. "The government still doesn't see that the situation merits any action," said one Labor Department official.

Negotiators for the Teamsters and a group representing 500 of the largest trucking firms planned to resume talks with federal mediators Thursday for the first time since negotiations broke off last weekend. Sources close to the talks who asked not to be identified saw no likelihood of swift progress.

The two sides were close to an agreement before the talks broke down Saturday over industry fears that union wage demands could not be met without exceeding President Carter's 7 percent anti-inflation guideline for wage increases.

Because there has never been a prolonged nationwide trucking shutdown, government and industry officials say they cannot predict how severely the economy would be hurt. The consensus, though, is that worker layoffs and interruptions of commerce eventually would mount sharply.

The Labor Department estimated the lockout of 235,000 Teamsters would not create serious shortages of food and other critical consumer goods for seven to 10 days. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said he hoped the two sides would settle soon and avert a crisis.

But an administration official close to the situation, who requested anonymity, said Wednesday, "I think I would expect it to run at least into next week."

The official said the union and industry "are testing each other on this strike-lockout question" to see which side might break first.

"The auto industry is hurting and will get worse," said the official, who predicted that other major manufacturers will begin to feel disruptions within days.

In Detroit, auto industry officials said 123,000 workers — more than one-sixth of their U.S. hourly workforce — were either laid off or placed on short shifts because the trucking shutdown cut off delivery of parts needed for assembly of cars.

More than 30 auto plants across the country were affected as of Wednesday and more cutbacks were imminent, auto executives said.

Chrysler Corp., the nation's No. 3 automaker, said it would halt "virtually all" of its U.S. manufacturing operations on Monday if the shutdown continues. That would mean the shutdown of 41 plants in six states and the indefinite layoff of 85,000 hourly workers.

Meanwhile in Chicago, Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons announced that 600 union officials had given "unanimous support" to union bargainers.

Asked how long the current walkout might last, the 70-year-old union leader said, "If I knew that, I'd be one of the Wise Men from the East."

Besides the auto industry, other layoffs were reported by Whirlpool Co., which said it was furloughing 4,600 workers at appliance plants in Ohio and Michigan because of parts shortages.

The administration has said it likely would seek an 80-day back-to-work court injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act if the shutdown threatens the nation's welfare.

While the dispute generally has been peaceful, Ohio authorities reported a handful of violent confrontations and arrests involving strikers and non-strikers. In Maryland, state police said eight striking truckers were arrested at one terminal for allegedly laying nail-studded boards across the road.

Involved in the labor dispute are trucking firms that haul a major share of the nation's general freight, ranging from shoes to pianos. Shipment of most fresh foods, gasoline, coal, medical supplies, mail, and construction materials are handled either by Teamsters covered by separate contracts or by non-union independent firms.

Trucking Management Inc., bargaining arm for the 500 companies, ordered the lockout Sunday after the union called a selective strike against 73 major firms. A lockout, a tactic employers use in labor disputes, means employees are barred from working and receive no pay.

Sources close to the negotiations said the two sides had agreed before the talks broke off Saturday to a $1.50-an-hour increase in general wages over three years and a $30-a-week increase per worker in employer contributions to pension and health and welfare funds.

Texas lawmaker urges regulations for lay midwives

AUSTIN (AP) — Lay midwives, who deliver as many as 9,000 Texas babies a year, need regulation but should not be driven underground, a House committee heard Wednesday.

"There are no regulations whatsoever which govern the practice of lay midwifery," Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, told the House Committee on Health Services.

Lay midwives, unlike certified nurse midwives, may not have any medical training other than knowledge passed down from mother to daughter.

The bill, sent to subcommittee for more study, also would require lay midwives to inform their customers of the extent of their training.

Witnesses testified that patients choose to go to lay midwives for financial, cultural and personal reasons.

"The lay midwife is a trusted provider of care," said Lois Del Castillo, nursing director at a Brownsville hospital.

Dr. Ed Gibbs, an obstetrician at the University of Texas Health Services Center at San Antonio, said he thought lay midwifery was an "inferior method of human birth."

'Self-insurer' bill derailed in House

AUSTIN (AP) — The House dealt a possibly fatal blow Wednesday to a bill allowing large businesses to pay for their employees' on-the-job injuries instead of buying workers compensation insurance.

A 76-59 vote postponed floor action on the bill (HB438) until May 4 against the wishes of the sponsor, Rep. Don Henderson, R-Houston.

The postponement means the bill would have only about three weeks to complete its trip through the legislative process before the lawmaking session ends May 28.

Henderson's bill, a major legislative goal of the Texas Association of Business, would enable firms with a $4 million annual payroll to drop their workers compensation coverage and become "self-insurers."

The TAB repeatedly goes before the State Insurance Board in opposition to rising workers comp premiums, which now total about $1 billion a year in Texas.

Henderson sought a one-week delay in the bill because, he said, "we are trying to come to an agreement among the parties interested in this legislation." He said it was intertwined with another bill that would attempt to deal with the product liability "crisis" by making it harder for injured consumers to win suits against manufacturers.

Trial lawyers are against both bills.

But Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, a lawyer, moved for the delay to May 4, saying, "if they are trying to reach a compromise, a week is not enough time. This is a major piece of legislation that will affect millions of workers in the state of Texas."

Trial lawyers, who handle contested workers compensation cases for a fee of one-fourth the benefits, strongly oppose the bill. Opponents maintain an injured worker would be reluctant to sue his or her employer for adequate compensation for an injury.

Bush said the bill would "set up a dual system of workers compensation, one for giant corporations and the other for small businesses."

He said the bill was in trouble in the Senate and asserted the House should not "unnecessarily bruise your knuckles over here" in a fight over the measure.

Man charged with robbery

A 21-year-old Wichitan was charged with robbery Wednesday after police earlier found him hiding in a field following a convenience store holdup shortly after midnight Wednesday.

Mark Steven Klar, 4039 Burk Burnett Road, was arraigned on the charge before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart. Klar remained in Wichita County jail Wednesday evening in lieu of $7,500 bond.

Police said the robbery occurred at the Jiffy Food Store, 3707 Sheppard Access Road, shortly after midnight Wednesday when a man walked in, pulled a knife and demanded money.

Officers spotted the suspect a short time later in the 3400 block of Sheppard Access Road and followed him into a field, where they found him hiding.

Walters school remodeling OK'd

WALTERS, Okla. (Special) — Walters Board of Education Tuesday night agreed to have the east portion of the elementary school remodeled from a physical education facility to a music room.

The old music wing will be used for other subjects.

Ronald Gordon, grade school principal, presented a remodeling proposal which would alleviate overcrowded conditions.

2-month-old girl hurt in quarrel

Police Wednesday were investigating the apparent injury of a 2-month-old girl during a quarrel between her parents Tuesday night.

Authorities said the infant was brought to the Wichita General Hospital emergency room about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday by her parents. The child had been struck in the head, according to officials.

Police say the girl's parents told them they had been quarreling and the child apparently was hit during the quarrel. No charges have been filed.

Four hijackers eligible for parole

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ruled that four Croatian nationalists sentenced to life in prison will be eligible for parole at the end of the year. He did not give any reason for his decision. The four defendants were sentenced for the 1976 hijacking of a jetliner and for the bomb death of a New York City police officer.

Socialists gain in Spanish election

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Spain's first free municipal elections in 48 years installed a Marxist in the Madrid mayor's office and put Socialists in control of city halls in half the country's 52 provincial capitals. Suarez called a late-night Cabinet meeting Wednesday to consider the election results. Madrid's new mayor, Marxist political science professor Enrique Tierno Galvan, said one of the city council's first tasks would be to "democratize city hall." The city government had been a haven for rightist supporters of the late Gen. Francisco Franco's dictatorship. Franco, who died Nov. 20, 1975, had appointed all city councils and mayors after his victory in the Spanish civil war in 1939. Less than one percent of the candidates in Tuesday's elections for new government in Spain's 8,000 municipalities were considered loyal to the former Franco regime. The 60-year-old Tierno defeated appointed former Mayor Jose Luis Alvarez, a centrist who resigned two weeks ago seeking election to the office. Communists and Suarez candidates won an equal number of council seats, but a prior agreement merging Communist and Socialist seats into one block gave Tierno the victory. Under the new Spanish constitution, the mayor is elected by the city council. Socialists took eight big cities, including Barcelona and Valencia, outright while Suarez centrists dominated in the less populous areas.

Basque nationalists and separatists captured the three biggest cities — Bilbao, San Sebastian and Vitoria — in the troubled northern region and won in dozens of smaller towns. More than 20 persons have died in terrorist activity in the region, where there is a strong move for autonomy from Madrid. Rodolfo Martin Villa, Suarez' Interior Minister, said the centrists won 30,000 council seats nationwide, the Socialists captured 14,000, independent parties including the Basques 14,000, and all others 4,000. Spain's last free elections were in 1931 when Socialists swept to power, forcing Alfonso XIII, the present King Juan Carlos' grandfather, to abdicate. WANT quick result? Dietrich reveals feelings about actors, postwar U.S.

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Marlene Dietrich says most American actors she starred with were "not richly blessed" with brains, and that she became disillusioned with a self-satisfied America after returning from war-ravaged Europe.

MARLENE DIETRICH

In her memoirs, serialized in the West German magazine Stern, the 74-year-old actress also says she fell in love with Ernest Hemingway at first sight but never had a true romance with the Nobel prize winning author.

According to Miss Dietrich, her love for Hemingway began on a ship sailing from Europe to the United States after the Spanish Civil War. But Miss Dietrich says their love never developed because "we were simply never long enough together. . . . She wrote: "He was my rock of Gibraltar. The years without him have vanished like smoke and each year is more painful than the past."

Commenting about actors she worked with, she said: "The American partners in my Hollywood films were not richly blessed by Mother Nature with brain cells."

Her remarks were contained in the Berlin-born actress' book, "Marlene Dietrich, My Life," published in German by C. Bertelsmann of Munich.

"I will not say that there were no intelligent actors in Hollywood. But the really great actors were regrettably never my partners."

Miss Dietrich's leading men included Jimmy Stewart, who she said played love scenes "as if he had put on only one shoe and couldn't find the other," and the late Gary Cooper, star of her first U.S. film, "Morocco."

"The only truly great American actor with whom I worked was Spencer Tracy," she writes. "It was in the film 'Judgment at Nuremberg.' Sadly, my role was only small. But working with this partner was for me a great experience."

But most of her recollections of Hollywood's great names were not so flattering.

Among them was John Wayne, whom she met in the days when the future star was supporting a wife and two sons on a meager salary — "when he worked."

She said Wayne "could barely say his lines. I helped him as much as I could. He told me that he never read books. Today John Wayne is one of the most important personalities in America and rich as Croesus. He doesn't need my good wishes any more. He has made it — without reading books. But one

Isabel Peron undergoes surgery for appendicitis

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Deposed former President Isabel Peron underwent surgery Wednesday for acute appendicitis and is in satisfactory condition, according to the military government holding her under house arrest.

Mrs. Peron, 48, suffered an attack during the night, was visited by her personal physician and then driven 18 miles to a military hospital in Buenos Aires for the surgery, the government announcement said.

The military is holding Mrs. Peron at her weekend retreat on charges she diverted state funds for her personal use while in office.

Mrs. Peron became president in July 1974 upon the death of her husband Juan Peron, Argentina's principal political figure of the century. He was deposed in 1955 after nine years in power, but returned to the presidency briefly in October 1973 until his death July 1, 1974.

Mrs. Peron had been elected as her husband's vice president. Her 21 months in office, marked by economic chaos and guerrilla violence, ended in a military revolt on March 24, 1976, when she was placed under arrest.

She was held at a government-owned retreat in the Andes mountains for seven months, transferred to a navy base bungalow where she stayed for 23 months and finally taken to the family retreat last Aug. 26.

should not take that as an example."

She said the Hollywood institution of the Academy Award — Oscar — was designed to promote the products of the major studios, not to recognize talent.

On the eve of World War II, Miss Dietrich took U.S. citizenship and after America's entry in the conflict, she joined other film stars in volunteering for performances overseas.

"I felt myself responsible for the war which Hitler had caused. I wanted to help bring this war to an end as soon as possible. America had taken me up when Hitler's Germany had given me up. One cannot only take, one must also give."

However, when she returned to the United States after her war service she was embittered by Americans "sitting comfortably at home. . . . who seemed unaware of the sacrifices of their soldiers."

"We returned home when everything was over — and we were greeted with nothing but dumb stares," she said. "The men were not allowed to enter restaurants without ties, regardless of the medals on their paratroop uniforms." Others returned from years of war to find that promises of housing and jobs "were lies, all lies," she said.

"I used to think that everyone knew what bombs, destruction and death meant," she said. "The well-fed citizens of the United States knew nothing. They wanted to know nothing."

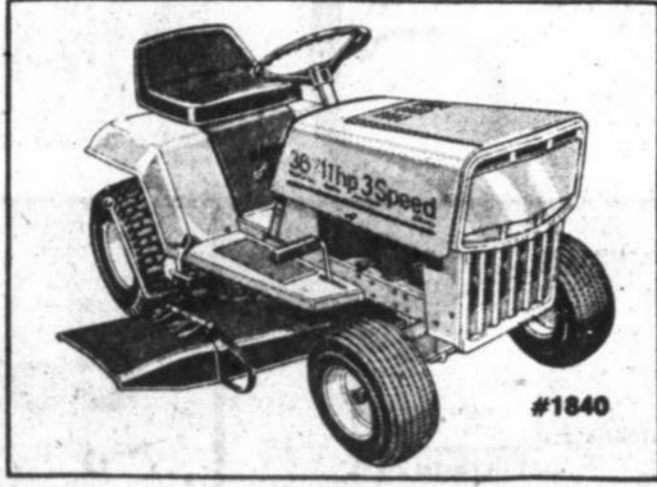

Her war service resulted in her being considered a traitor in Germany even years after the conflict had ended.

In 1960, when she returned to West Germany for a series of performances, Miss Dietrich was greeted with bomb threats and pickets carrying signs telling her to go home. She continued her tour, however, despite suffering a broken shoulder during a fall onstage in Wiesbaden.

"There were newspapers which called me a traitor," she said. "I never again went back to Germany. I had had enough of being spit at, had enough of demonstrations, had enough of love-hate."

Miss Dietrich, whose career ended in 1975 when she broke her leg in Sydney, Australia, lives in Paris, which she describes as "my beloved city." She said, "One can live peacefully in this land of beauty until the angels fetch us."

Roberts defends women's policies

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Evangelist Oral Roberts defended his university's policies of weight control and curfew for women Wednesday on a nationally televised program.

Roberts, who has been hospitalized this week for minor surgery, tape recorded the program for the Phil Donahue Show earlier in Houston.

The weight control issue is part of the Oral Roberts University physical fitness program, but Roberts denied that obesity can cause a student to be dismissed from school. "If you enroll at ORU at 17 and are 50 pounds overweight, our doctor says what your weight should be," he said. "Hopefully, you will get it where it should be" by graduation four years later.

"At the end of the semester we say, as we do to any student who has broken a rule, 'You can come back one semester from now if you make progress with your weight control.'" About 20 out of 4,000 students are affected, he said. Curfew is separate for men and women student at the school.

There are no curfew hours for men while women must be in by 11 p.m. on weekdays and 12:30 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, also giving their destination and where they can be reached if they leave the campus for the weekend.

"We pay more attention to women," Roberts said. "If you destroy women and motherhood, you haven't got anything left. . . I don't know that we have worked out a system fair to everybody."

New mayor vows to end speed trap

RAMONA, Okla. (AP) — The newly elected mayor said today a speed trap that brought statewide attention and a grand jury investigation to this north-eastern Oklahoma community will be eliminated.

With the town police department a major issue, a majority of Ramona's Board of Trustees — including the mayor — was defeated in Tuesday's election.

The three-man police department, which weathered the grand jury investigation and brutality probes, is expected to resign within a week.

All three commissioners who had supported Police Chief Gary Brown were defeated while the two members who opposed him were returned to office. Mayor Harold D. Lane, a staunch backer of Brown, was beaten by William E. Fugate.

Orval Henderson was beaten by Ross C. Hand and William R. Roselius was defeated in a four-way race by David A. Scott.

City Clerk Betty V. Nichols was defeated by Stella B. Foster.

Re-elected were trustees Bill Eden and Don Raley.

For more than a year the police department has been the center of criticism here. Complaints of beatings, speed traps and false arrests got statewide publicity. None of the allegations was proven.

Particularly criticized was the sudden increase in the number of arrests for speeding on U.S. 75, a main road between Bartlesville and Tulsa.

About 60 percent of the town's registered voters turned out Tuesday and seven Washington County deputies stood guard at the polling place.

Brown said he and his two young police officers will resign within a week.

Hart returns to state prison

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Gene Leroy Hart, acquitted last week in the 1977 slayings of three Girl Scouts, became "one more convict" Wednesday, officials at the state prison here said.

Hart, 35, was assigned to a one-man cell in the west cellhouse at the prison after he appeared before a prison classification committee Wednesday afternoon, said Bill Arrends, deputy warden.

The Locust Grove native had been housed on Death Row at the state maximum security prison since his April 6, 1978 capture. Prison officials placed him in the high security block to protect him from other inmates.

Hart had been charged in the June 13, 1977 sex slayings of three Girl Scouts at Camp Scott near Locust Grove. The bodies of the victims, aged 8, 9 and 10, were found 100 yards from their bloody platform tent.

After a month-long trial which ended Friday, a Mayes County District Court jury in Pryor found Hart innocent of the three first degree murder charges.

He was immediately returned to the state prison to begin serving sentences for kidnapping, rape and burglary.

Hart still faces some 10 counts stemming from a pair of 1973 escapes from the Mayes County jail.

"Now that the trial is over and he has been acquitted, we don't feel like his safety is in jeopardy at this point," Arrends said.

He said Hart was "anxious to get back into the routine of prison life."

That will eventually include a job within the prison, but Arrends said Hart has not yet been assigned a duty.

Radiation discussed in Silkwood trial

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A thorium mantle from a natural gas yard light was used Wednesday to demonstrate to jurors in the Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination trial that there are common sources of radiation.

While demonstrating an alpha radiation counter used at the Kerr-McGee Corp. nuclear fuel plant where Miss Silkwood was a lab technician, Wayne Norwood, 51, of Oklahoma City passed the counter over the gas light wick and got readings of 30,000 alpha particles per minute. The counter is the same as those provided for employee self-monitoring at the Kerr-McGee plant. Plutonium and thorium are among a number of elements that emit alpha radiation.

Norwood, who is now the closed plant's standby manager, was the first defense witness called by Kerr-McGee.

Oklahoma

The Silkwood estate is suing Kerr-McGee for $11.5 million, alleging negligence in connection with Miss Silkwood's plutonium contamination. Kerr-McGee contends she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine samples to dramatize claims about working conditions at its nuclear fuel plant. She died in a Nov. 13, 1974, auto crash.

Norwood was hired by Kerr-McGee as health physics supervisor for the plant in 1969. Wednesday morning he also demonstrated the protective coveralls, shoe covers, surgeon's caps and safety glasses worn by plant workers.

The Oklahoma State University poultry husbandry graduate also confirmed earlier testimony that production workers were transferred into the health physics department to work as plant health technicians.

"It was very difficult to get people with experience," he said. "So what we would do is when we'd find someone on the floor with the right attitude, we would transfer them."

The inexperienced technicians were paired with college-trained technicians and senior health physicists for training, he said.

Norwood said he first worked with plutonium at the Hanford Nuclear Complex near Richland, Wash., in 1954.

Two exhibits that will stay at Wichita Falls Museum and Art Center for some time and one that will remain until the end of this month were on view officially Wednesday night.

The two longtime exhibits are in Perkins-Prothro History Hall and in Frank Wood Science Hall. "Boom!" is the history show, one that concentrates on the oil boom times of a young Wichita Falls, a city that is captured in photographs and in displays that focus on some of the equipment that was commonplace in the early days of oil field activity.

Man charged with assault

LAWTON, Okla. — Bond was set at $1,000 Wednesday in district court for a man charged with assault with a deadly weapon after he allegedly accosted a convenience store clerk early Wednesday morning.

Bobby Chittit, 19, 5817 NW Cherry, was arrested by police shortly after midnight Wednesday at the 7-11 Food Store, 27th and Gore.

Patrol Officer Wayne Shepler said the store clerk told him Chittit came into the store about 12:20 a.m. Wednesday and asked for help in buying a beer.

She said the man left after paying for the beer, then came back to the store a few minutes later while she was stocking shelves. She said the suspect put a chain around her neck and said "I want a woman."

The woman said she managed to calm the suspect down and a customer called police.

Chittit remained in Comanche County jail Wednesday evening in lieu of bond.

Jury seated in Boone trial

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — A jury of six women and six men was seated Wednesday to hear evidence in the first-degree murder trial of Derryl Dean Boone.

Boone, 20, is charged in the December 1976 shooting death of Dewey service station operator Edward L. Newman.

Newman was shot to death outside his south Bartlesville home.

Boone's trial on the murder charge was delayed while he was being tried for the armed robbery of a Bartlesville fast food store.

Boone also escaped briefly from the Washington County jail in 1978.

The state exercised six of its nine challenges and the defense used eight challenges before the jury was seated Wednesday afternoon. Two alternates were also selected.

"Energy Today — Energy Tomorrow?" is the theme of the science exhibit. It ranges from wind and solar power to a model of a nuclear power plant. The logos, designed by Mike Roberts, curator of science, pinpoint the various parts of the exhibit.

The petroleum section is most interesting, with its intricate scale models of equipment plus a wide range of samples of various grades of crude oil. It is certainly of more than casual interest to visitors after they see the mastpole rig and the huge photographs of boomtown days that are in the history hall.

Slide shows are an integral part of both these exhibits. The black and white ones that are shown continuously in "Boom!" will be of particular interest to anyone who is conscious of the city's heritage, and they will certainly make that heritage live for those who are unfamiliar with it.

Man charged in shooting

Bond was set at $3,500 Tuesday for a man charged with aggravated assault in connection with the shooting Monday of his son-in-law.

J.T. Brackett, 52, 701 North Brook, was released from Wichita County jail Wednesday morning on $3,500 bond. He was arraigned Tuesday before Justice of the Peace R.L. Stewart.

Charles Correll, 18, was in satisfactory condition Wednesday in Wichita General hospital after being shot in the stomach Monday evening at Brackett's home.

The public school art show in the Art Gallery, this year offering the work of secondary school students, has a representative cross-section of the work being done by students in the city. Area shooter is champion

Michael Theimer of Iowa Park, an internationally-ranked shooter in running target competition, won the Inter-Service Championship over the weekend at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Theimer, a captain in the Army Reserve, scored a 570-571-571 in the three days of competition to regain the title he held while on active duty with the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Ft. Benning a few years ago.

Possible score on the course he fires is 600 points. Runner-up to Theimer was another Army shooter, Sgt. Martin Edmondson, of the marksmanship training unit. The Iowa Park shooter won the gold medal in the Olympic course (aggregate) over the weekend, and took the silver in mixed run competition, tied with a U.S. Marine Corps shooter.

Theimer, who get little live firing practice, since there is no running target range in this area, said he remains a contender in the intense competition by keeping in mental condition. He does only dry-firing exercises and rifle exercises to keep his physical condition at peak level for the competition.

He was a member of the U.S. running target team that won the silver medal at the International Shooting Union championships in Seoul, Korea recently. In addition, Theimer placed fifth in individual competition, three points away from bronze honors.

He is son of Dr. Louis M. Theimer of Wichita Falls.

Is a stunner a firearm or is it in the same class as an electrical livestock prod? Obviously it's not a firearm, but its effect on the recipient of a pointed Taser, a futuristic "weapon," could be the same.

The hand-held weapon shoots two hooked prongs, each attached to a 15-foot wire, into a person's clothing, then delivers a 50,000-volt charge.

It's enough to scare a would-be burglar out of his wits, and in the hands of a burglar to scare a householder. It's also safe to life, since the electrical charge is non-lethal. But if its stuns its target, does that fact make it a more awful weapon than the firearm it's designed to replace?

Answers to these questions hold the key to the future of the device. The problem apparently revolves around potential criminal use. Since it isn't lethal, criminals presumably would not hesitate to use it during commission of a crime.

I'd rather be stunned by a Taser than wounded by a handgun, but I'd rather skip either experience, thank you. And if an assailant had his choice, it's easy to understand why he'd rather use a Taser than a handgun, since it renders the victim unable to resist but its use doesn't carry with it the potential of a murder or attempted murder rap.

Taser Systems Inc., of City of Industry, Calif., is seeking new financial backing in order to stay in business since status of the weapon has been up in the air. The fact that some 20 crimes already have been committed by the $200 device and police are sharply divided on its applicability to their use seems to hold little promise for the future of the Taser.

Although the voltage carried by the Taser sounds scary, wattage and amperage of the jolt pose no danger. The Taser is powered by small dry cell batteries. Resembling a flashlight, the Taser is about twice as large as a handgun.

In April 1976 the Taser was placed in the same classification as fully automatic firearms, bombs, silencers and sawed-off shotguns. In 1977 it was moved into the same classification as ordinary firearms, meaning anyone who is 21 and not a convicted felon or mentally defective can purchase the Taser, from a licensed gun dealer.

Tasers must carry serial numbers and sales must be recorded as firearms.

I've looked into the barrel of a deer rifle and found it a distinctly unsettling experience. I was afraid to move until I was sure the hunter pointing it knew I wasn't a deer.

Looking into the business end of a Taser, even though fully aware of its nature, would seem to be just as unsettling.

The fate of the Taser must be decided by someone with more wisdom than I. But I want no part of it. I'll stick to my trusty handgun for household protection.

Big inning for Giants

Giants' hitters enjoy opener

CINCINNATI (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, paced by Terry Whitfield's four hits, roughed up Tom Seaver for eight runs in the second inning and went on to beat the Cincinnati Reds 11-5 in the major league baseball season opener Wednesday.

Vida Blue scattered nine hits and got the victory in the opener, which was officiated by amateur umpires and major league arbiter Paul Pryor, the only veteran ump not on strike. The left-handed pitcher struck out two and walked four.

Other umpires picketed outside Riverfront Stadium before the game, protesting salary and working conditions.

Mike Ivie, who won the starting first base job this spring from veteran Willie McCovey, capped an eight-run second inning with a solo home run.

Seaver gave up four earned runs and the Giants added three unearned runs and Ivie's homer off reliever Paul Moskau in the second.

The Giants sent 11 batters to the plate in the eight-run second inning. Ivie began the uprising with a single, moved up on an infield single by Marc Hill and scored when Seaver threw past third base on Roger Metzger's sacrifice.

Bill North's run-producing ground ball and RBI singles by Whitfield and Bill Madlock made it 4-0. Errors by third baseman Rick Auerbach and catcher Johnny Bench helped build the lead to 7-0 as Seaver was lifted.

four-game winning streak for the former Cy Young Award winner. It was the third National League pitching duel between Blue and Seaver and marked the second victory for the Giants' left-hander.

Umps picketing

CINCINNATI (AP) — Twenty-five uniformed major league umpires were joined by some union tradesmen in informational picketing outside Riverfront Stadium Wednesday prior to the opening of the National League baseball season.

The umpires were protesting what they said were unfair working conditions in contracts offered by the two baseball leagues.

Paul Pryor was the only veteran major league umpire expected to be in the officiating crew in the opener between the Cincinnati Reds and the San Francisco Giants. The rest of the crew would be composed of local umpires, a Reds official said.

More openers on tap today, but not for Texas

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Five more games, three in the American League and two in the National, dot the major league schedule Thursday as the 1979 season picks up momentum.

However, the Texas Rangers scheduled opener against the Detroit Tigers Thursday afternoon in Detroit has been moved to Friday afternoon because of bad weather. It was snowing in Detroit Wednesday and the National Weather Service had posted travelers advisory for Michigan. About two inches of snow covered Tiger Stadium in late afternoon and more snow was expected Wednesday night.

The traditional openers in Cincinnati and Seattle were played Wednesday with San Francisco helping the Reds get the National League season started and California playing the Mariners in the AL opener.

Thursday's NL schedule has two day games with the New York Mets playing the Cubs at Chicago and San Diego visiting the Dodgers in Los Angeles. In the American League, Toronto plays at Kansas City in a night game while Milwaukee is at New York and Cleveland at Boston in day games.

The Cubs will send Rick Reuschel to the mound against the Mets' Craig Swan, who led the NL in earned run average last season. The first ball will be thrown out by ex-Cub star Stan Hack.

In Los Angeles, the Dodgers will raise a second straight National League championship flag and then begin pursuit of No. 3 with Burt Hooton or Don Sutton pitching against San Diego's Cy Young Award winner, Garry Perry. First ball honors will be handled by actor Cary Grant with The Captain and Tenille doing the National Anthem.

The Dodgers also are claiming a record of sorts by having the same infield — first baseman Steve Garvey, second baseman Davey Lopes, shortstop Bill Russell and third baseman Ron Cey — playing together as a unit for the seventh straight opening day. No other infield, as far as the Dodgers can determine, has played together for that many consecutive season starting games.

In New York, the Yankees will raise a second straight world championship pennant and then send Cy Young Award winner Ron Guidry out to face Milwaukee's Mike Caldwell.

Sluggo Reggie Jackson, who was hospitalized at the end of spring training because of a stomach disorder, will miss the Yankees' opener. Jackson would not discuss his problem, saying only, "They (the club) haven't told you, so I'm not. But the first time I took a test, it scared them and it scared me."

Later, Yankee President Al Rosen cleared up the mystery, saying that initial examinations hinted of the possibility of hepatitis but that subsequent tests were negative.

Kansas City, shooting for a fourth straight AL West crown, will send Dennis Leonard out to face Toronto's Jim Clancy in the opener. Local junior middleweight boxer Tony Chiaverini throws out the first ball.

Rick Wise of Cleveland goes against Boston's Dennis Eckersley, who signed a $2.5 million, five-year contract extension Wednesday.

The rest of the season's openers are scheduled for Friday with the most intriguing promotion set for Baltimore where Manager Earl Weaver's Orioles host the Chicago White Sox, with Don Kessinger making his managerial debut.

The game is being call 1,000-1 Day, with Weaver aiming for his 1,000th career victory and Kessinger shooting for his No. 1. If the Orioles win, 1,000 helium-filled balloons will be released from behind the center field fence. If the White Sox win, one balloon goes up.

Bufs' new coach has work ahead

DENVER (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks, acknowledging he has "an awful lot of work to do," promised Wednesday to bring championship football to the University of Colorado.

"You can mark this down — we will win," said Fairbanks. "I don't know how long it will take, but we'll get it done."

Fairbanks spoke at a press conference held some 3½ months later than originally planned because of protracted legal difficulties surrounding his decision to break his contract with the New England Patriots and become CU's new head football coach.

Resolving the legal obstacles cost the Flatirons Club, a booster organization, $200,000 in cash, and also cost Fairbanks $105,000 in deferred compensation owned him by the Patriots. Fairbanks agreed to waive claims to that amount.

In return for the $200,000 payment and waiver of compensation, the Patriots have dropped their lawsuit against Fairbanks and CU and have consented to the dissolution of an injunction barring the school from hiring Fairbanks.

That settlement was reached Monday. Fairbanks, 45, told reporters Wednesday that "I don't think any of you can know how really pleased I am to be here." He admitted having some doubts about ultimately becoming CU's coach, but said he "always felt the problems were not that complex that they couldn't be solved."

Crowder said he was confident "all along that it would work out," and said "only the future will tell if (the legal fight) was worth it."

Fairbanks gets down to work this week in preparation for the opening of spring practice on Saturday.

Fairbanks, who had a highly successful career at Oklahoma before moving to the National Football League Patriots six years ago, said one of his first objectives at Colorado is to talk with the players.

"They have been great through a period of uncertainty," he said. "I want to relay some confidence to them that we'll do what needs to be done so they can be as good as they're capable of being — and have fun doing it."

"Next, I need to get our staff together and get us organized. "During spring practice, my primary concern will be to find out what our players can do, to assess our strengths and weaknesses. I don't know what type of team we'll be, but I do know it will be easier for me to adjust to the abilities of the players. I can't say now if we'll be a wishbone team or not; that will depend on the players."

Play begins May 19

Roughnecks help form new league in soccer match

The Wichita Falls Roughnecks have banded together with four other football teams to form the National Football Association, according to Phil Harlow, newly elected league president.

The league was officially born Saturday and Wichita Falls is serving as headquarters for the semi-pro football league, which will begin exhibition play May 19.

Other teams in the league include two other former American Football Association teams, Oklahoma City and Austin plus the St. Louis Metro-Stars and a team from Woodward, Okla.

Exhibition season begins in Wichita Falls on May 19 as the Roughnecks host St. Louis at Memorial Stadium. Regular season play begins on June 2 as the Roughnecks host Austin.

James Reed, president of the Rough-

Roughneck Schedule

Schedule table listing exhibition and regular season games for the Roughnecks.

necks, is serving as secretary-treasurer for the league, which will have its offices in the Featherston Building at 711 Travis, Suite 126.

According to Harlow, the NFA has adopted NCAA football rules, with the exception of encroachment and fumble recoveries. NFL rules regarding blocking in a five-yard zone on either side of the line of scrimmage and regarding advancing recovered fumbles will be observed.

Harlow also said that all field goals will be worth only three points this year, as opposed to the old AFA rule of awarding three, four, or five points according to the length of the field goal.

The league will use the NCAA Division I-AA tie-breaker rules.

According to Harlow, the Roughnecks, Oklahoma City and Austin pulled out of the AFA due to the league's expensive operation which he said could lead to the same kind of failure as that of the old World Football League.

The NFA playoffs will be held either August 11 or August 17 when the top two teams battle for the league title. An All-Star game will be held two weeks later in the city which drew the largest crowds during the season.

MSU wins 2-0

Midwestern wins 2-0 in soccer match

NORMAN, Okla. — The Midwestern State University soccer team took a 2-0 victory over Emporia State (Kan.) University in the first round of action at the United States Soccer Cup Final Competition here Wednesday afternoon.

Randy Waldrum, MSU's third all-time leading scorer, tallied both goals in the first half. The first one came at the 27-minute mark with an assist from Roger Hamilton and the second tally came at 33-minute mark with Tony Peszneker assisting.

Mike Howell recorded the shutout in goal.

Midwestern outshot the Hornets 18-10 and "dominated the action," according to MSU soccer coach Howard Patterson.

Other first round winners included Southwestern Missouri State 3-1 over a favored University of District of Columbia, Oklahoma 6-1 over Oklahoma Baptist and Colorado by forfeit over Hardin-Simmons.

Midwestern will face Southwestern Missouri at 9:30 a.m. in the Thursday morning in the double-elimination tourney. Should they win they will not see action again until 10 a.m. Friday. If they lose, they will play again at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

The event is sponsored by the North American Soccer Federation.

Eckersley awarded large salary boost

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox righthander Dennis Eckersley agreed to a contract extension Wednesday, making the 20-game winner and opening day pitcher one of the top paid players in baseball with an annual salary estimated at between $500,000 and $600,000.

The 24-year-old Eckersley accepted a five-year extension, through 1984, with an estimated value of at least $2.5 million.

He had threatened to become a free agent unless the Red Sox came up with a new pact by opening day. Eckersley will play this season for his old salary, estimated at $175,000.

He was bound to the club through 1980, his option year, but the new contract will take effect next season.

"If you make the right moves it could be lifetime security," said Eckersley, 20-8 last year and designated the starter in Thursday's opener against the Cleveland Indians at Fenway Park.

Eckersley parlayed a 60-40 lifetime record, with his first three seasons in Cleveland, into a salary that puts him in the top 10 or 12 in the major leagues.

The deal was negotiated by Eckersley's agent, Ed Keating, who had been in Boston since Monday and expressed satisfaction with the 20-page document. Negotiations with the Red Sox had broken down last winter as Boston General Manager Haywood Sullivan concentrated on signing slugger Jim Rice to a $5 million, seven-year pact. In spring training, meanwhile, the team met demands by veteran star Carl Yastrzemski and extended his contract for two years with a substantial pay raise.

RIGHT SIZE, RIGHT ROOM, RIGHT PRICE FANTASTIC SELECTION

If you're thinking of buying a compact car, think first about our mid-size Chevy Malibu. It has what some compact cars don't have, a shorter turning diameter and shorter overall length, more passenger and trunk room than any compact model, standard features many compact don't produce. And a price that's surprisingly low.

Stallin' Around Junior rodeo starts tonight

By G'ANNA SMITH & VERNON SMITH

The Wichita County Mounted Patrol is sponsoring Junior Rodeo opens Thursday at its arena on FM 369.

Continuing through Saturday, the events begin at 7:30 p.m. each night for three age divisions in boys' and girls' events.

The location of the North Texas Trail Riders Association Clinic Competitive Trail Ride has been changed to the "Dude" Smith Ranch on the Red River about 4 1/2 miles west of Burkburnett, just off Texas 240.

Judges are Dr. Leonard Smith of Hendricks, Okla., and Marjorie Lay of Chastain, Okla.

Thoroughbred racing fans will flock to the Arkansas Derby Saturday. As the last race of the Arkansas Oaklawn Park's season, this year's purse carries $125,000 in added money.

Attendance should be good. At last year's derby, the crowd was larger by 6,000 persons than the crowd which turned out for that year's record-breaking University of Arkansas-Oklahoma State University football game.

Running Quarter Horse fans will want to catch the action at Rimrock Downs Sunday in Umbarger, nine miles west of Canyon on Texas 60.

We are looking forward to the Maskat Shrine Quarter Horse Show April 14 at the WCMP arena. Other Quarter Horse shows will be Saturday in Caldwell and Sunday in Rockdale.

A Wagon Train Trail Ride is planned for April 13-21 between Sulphur and Norman, Okla. More information may be obtained from Cecil Barnard, Box 47, Shawnee, Okla.

For Arabian horse lovers, the Southwest Arabian Ride will take place April 28 at Fort Sill Military Reservation for Class B open and novice classes. Ride secretary is Barbara Bowden, 1823 Village Drive, Duncan, Okla. 73533.

Looking ahead: An open 4-H Horse Show will be April 28 at the Wichita County Mounted Patrol Arena. April 28-29 is the date set for the Grand National Horse Association Spring Round-Up in Mangum, Okla. The MSU Rodeo comes up April 20-21 at the WCMP arena and area playdays come up April 22 and April 28 in Burkburnett.

House votes to close loophole

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members voted Wednesday to close a loophole, exposed by the Laredo Times, that could enable persons to obtain false birth certificates by using the names of young people who had died.

The bill advanced on voice vote and was expected to win final passage Thursday, which would send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

After receiving a death certificate of a person under age 18, the state registrar of vital statistics would have to make a "conspicuous notation" on the person's birth certificate that he or she is dead.

Copies of the death certificate would be furnished to county and city clerks where the person was born.

A witness for the bill (SB63) in the House Health Services Committee was Susie Windisch, a reporter for the Laredo Times.

Ms. Windisch said she obtained the name of a dead girl from the obituaries.

Using the girl's name and information from the obituary, she concocted a story about losing her birth certificate and obtained one from the Laredo city secretary's office in the girl's name.

Edward L. Richards of the Texas Department of Human Resources said most of the false identifications used to obtain welfare benefits fraudulently were based on false birth records.

Wichita Falls and Holiday.

A tip for shaping your western hat: One of the horse journal readers suggests heating hats in a microwave oven for a full minute on high power, then shaping it. Saves steam, I guess.

We received a lengthy article on the new computer at the American Quarter Horse Association headquarters in Amarillo which we may use sometime, but we thought it might be of interest to you that they now have 1,400,000 registered Quarter Horses plus sires, dams, owners and breeders programmed on the computer.

Since the AQHA now has almost 100,000 members and registered some 119,000 last year, it has been able to delete 8 1/2 million index cards via the computer.

Odessa man drowns in trench

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A 19-year-old Odessa man working 30 feet below the surface on a city water project was drowned Wednesday when a backhoe truck hit a water line, flooding with water the trench he was in.

The victim, Reynaldo Mileg, was sealing a pipe when the freak accident occurred about 3:45 p.m. It was almost four hours before rescue workers, including SCU-BA divers, pulled Mileg's body from the trench.

Houston officers convicted on two lesser charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Houston policeman was acquitted Wednesday of charges he violated the civil rights of a slain Louisiana teenager, but a federal jury convicted him and another officer on two lesser charges.

Danny Mays, 29, could have received life in prison if convicted on the civil rights charge.

After almost 36 hours of deliberation, the jury came in about 5:30 p.m. with guilty verdicts against Mays and Norval Wayne Holloway, 32, on charges they lied to a grand jury investigating the incident and conspired to cover up the shooting of Randall Webster, 17, of Shreveport, La.

A third officer, Paul Dillon, 38, was acquitted of all three counts against him, including the perjury and obstruction of justice charges.

Webster was shot to death on Feb. 8, 1977, after a chase in southwest Houston. Houston police claimed Mays shot Webster in self-defense, but a .22-caliber gun found on Webster was later learned to have been planted by officers.

Webster was accused of having stolen the van he was driving the night he was killed.

All three officers were fired after word of the "throwdown gun" became public. The gun was found to have come from the police property room, where records indicated it had been destroyed.

U.S. District Judge Finis E. Cowan set sentencing of Mays and Holloway for May 11. They could be fined $10,000 and be sentenced to five years in prison on each count.

"I think they just got tired of being in there and they compromised," a disappointed Mays said after the verdict, which came eight days after the jury got the case.

"I haven't done anything to deserve the verdict."

U.S. Attorney Tony Canales applauded the verdict.

"The case was a coverup, and that is what the verdict said. We are not disappointed. Justice was done," Canales said.

"We wanted to get a conviction on all three counts, but we accept the verdict of the jury, and perhaps this will never happen again."

Ray Bass, Mays' defense attorney, was in the process of pressing Cowan for a mistrial when the jury reported it had a verdict.

"I don't believe it would be wise to declare a mistrial when the jury hasn't even sent us a message or said that it's deadlocked," Cowan told him.

At that point, a U.S. marshal walked through the door and said the jury had agreed. Cowan looked at Bass, raised his eyebrows and shrugged his shoulders.

Bass said after the verdict that Mays was "very, very disappointed, and he is hurt."

He said Mays was "relieved that he was not convicted on the civil rights violation charge. That is, as relieved as a person can be when he has been convicted."

Holloway and Dillon were charged with accessory after the fact to the civil rights charge filed against Mays. If convicted, they could have been sentenced to half as much as assessed Mays, had he also been convicted.

Corn meal breads equal delicious eating

The aroma of fresh-baked bread is one of the delights of creative cooking. It seems that more and more women (and men, too) are going back to the old-fashioned method of baking their own bread. There's nothing like the homemade breads—from muffins to loaves. Today, corn meal is enriched for the nutrition-conscious consumer but the full-bodied, rich-textured field-ripened grain flavor has remained since Colonial days.

You can taste the difference corn meal makes in breads as it interplays with a variety of flavors like honey, molasses, coffee, dried apricots and almonds. When you're in a hurry, turn out quick breads for all occasions. Mixing and fixing time is minimal for Apricot Yogurt Twin Loaves. Corn meal in Country Quick Peanut Butter Loaf and Molasses Corn Muffins. When you have time on your hands, bake bountiful yeast breads. Corn Meal Batter Bread and Honey-of-a-Bread.

Home baked bread also is a great way for welcoming a new neighbor, for having on hand when company drops in for coffee or for taking to a spring bazaar.

MOLASSES CORN MUFFINS

| 1/4 teaspoon soda | 1/4 cup molasses |
| 1 egg, beaten | |

Combine corn meal, flour, baking powder, salt and soda; add combined remaining ingredients, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill 12 greased or paper-lined muffin cups 3/4 full. Bake in preheated hot oven (425°F.) about 15 minutes. Serve warm with butter or margarine, as desired. Makes 1 dozen muffins.

|---|---|

Grease bottom and sides of two 1-lb. coffee cans; coat evenly with about 1 tablespoon corn meal each. Combine remaining flour, corn meal, baking powder, salt and soda; stir in nuts and apricots. Add combined yogurt, eggs, sugar and oil to corn meal mixture, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Spoon batter into prepared cans. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) about 45 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 15 minutes; remove from pans. Cool completely on wire rack. Makes 2 loaves.

COUNTRY QUICK PEANUT BUTTER LOAF

|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 2 cups all-purpose flour | 1-1/2 cups milk |
| 1 cup enriched corn meal | 2 eggs, beaten |
| 4 teaspoons baking powder | 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar |
| 1 teaspoon salt | 1/4 cup vegetable oil |
| 2/3 cup chunk style peanut butter | |

Combine flour, corn meal, baking powder and salt in large mixing bowl. Add peanut butter; beat at low speed on electric mixer until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add combined remaining ingredients, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Spoon batter into greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 1 hour and 10 to 15 minutes. Cool 15 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf.

Glowing yeast breads — Corn Meal Batter Bread and Honey-of-a-Bread — capture the golden essence of fall.

HONEY-OF-A-BREAD

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1-1/3 cups milk | 1 tablespoon salt |
| 1 cup water | 5-1/2 to 6 cups all-purpose flour |
| 1/3 cup honey | 2 pkg. active dry yeast |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine | 1-1/2 cups enriched corn meal |

Heat combined milk, water, honey, butter and salt in 1-qt. saucepan over medium heat just until warm (about 120°F.), stirring occasionally. Add milk mixture to combined 2 cups flour and yeast in large mixing bowl; beat at medium speed on electric mixer about 2 minutes or until smooth. Add corn meal; continue beating about 1 minute. Stir in enough remaining flour to make a stiff dough. Knead on lightly floured surface 8 to 10 minutes or until smooth and elastic. Shape to form ball. Place in greased large bowl, turning once to coat surface of dough. Cover; let rise in warm place about 1-1/2 hours or until double in size. Punch dough down. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Place in 2 greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pans; brush with vegetable oil. Let rise in warm place about 1 hour or until nearly double in size. Bake in preheated hot oven (400°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pans; brush with oil. Cool completely on wire rack. Makes 2 loaves.

VARIATION: Combine 2/3 cup raisins, 1/4 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon; sprinkle over both 15 x 9-inch rectangles of dough.

Celebrate Passover

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Many young women will prepare their first Passover Seder this year. On the evening of April 11, those of the Jewish faith the world over will sit down to the first Seder, the meal marking the beginning of the eight-day Passover holiday.

Passover celebrates the exodus of the Jews from Egypt more than 5,000 years ago. Through the generations, traditional foods have been associated with the holiday.

MATZO BALLS

4 eggs
½ cup matzo meal
½ cup ground almonds
4 mushrooms, finely minced
½-¾ teaspoon salt

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, beat eggs until light and fluffy. Gently fold in matzo meal, almonds, mushrooms and salt. Cover. Chill 1 hour.

Roll mixture into small balls between palms of hands. Drop 1 at a time into boiling salted water. Cover. Simmer 20 minutes. Remove with slotted spoon. Drop into hot chicken broth. Makes 16 to 18 matzo balls.

ORANGE-GLAZED PASSOVER CAPON

4 cups matzo farfel
1 cup orange juice
¼ cup parve margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped apples
1 egg, lightly beaten
½ cup raisins
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
1 capon, about 8 pounds
Salt
Pepper
Garlic powder
Orange-Apricot Glaze

In a large bowl, soak farfel in orange juice.

Melt margarine in a skillet. Sauté onions, celery and apples until soft. Add to farfel.

Stir in egg, raisins, salt and orange rind. Mix well.

Wash capon inside and out. Pat dry. Sprinkle neck and body cavity with salt and pepper.

Spoon stuffing loosely into cavities.

Place capon on a rack in a shallow roasting pan, breast side up. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and garlic powder. Roast in a 350-degree oven for about 2 hours, basting occasionally with pan drippings. (Allow 15 to 20 minutes per pound.)

About 30 minutes before roast is done, brush generously with Orange Glaze. Repeat several times. Serve remaining glaze with capon. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Orange Glaze

¾ cup apple jelly (or other fruit jelly)
6 tablespoons orange juice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

In a saucepan, melt jelly over low heat. Stir in orange juice and cinnamon. Keep warm.

EGG-STUFFED FRESH TOMATOES

½ cup diced fresh celery

3 tablespoons chopped fresh green pepper

¼ teaspoon pepper
Chopped fresh parsley
Lettuce

Wash tomatoes. Cut off slice at stem end of each and scoop out centers. (Reserve slices to mix with eggs.) Drain tomato cups. Chill.

Chop tomato centers coarsely. Drain and mix with eggs, celery, green pepper, mayonnaise, onion, salt and pepper.

Spoon mixture into drained tomato cups. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve on lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

POTATOES IDA

3 pounds Idaho potatoes, peeled, sliced ¼-inch thick
1 cup thinly sliced onion

Layer 3 or 4 onion slices among the potatoes. Season with salt and pepper. Dot with 2 tablespoons parve margarine. Repeat procedure, making 3 more layers.

Cover skillet. Bake in a 425-degree oven for 50 minutes. Uncover. Bake 10 minutes longer.

To serve, loosen potatoes around edges and bottom with spatula. Invert skillet onto heated serving platter. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

4 parsnips, pared and thinly sliced
½ pound mushrooms, thinly sliced

2 yellow onions, peeled and sliced
2 medium zucchini, unpared and sliced
½ head cabbage, cored and shredded

1 large potato, peeled and thinly sliced
1 can (13½ ounces) chicken broth

2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon dried leaf thyme

Vegetables may be sliced with a sharp knife or cut with the slicing disk of a food processor.

Combine vegetables and remaining ingredients in a buttered 4-quart casserole. Cover. Bake in a 375-degree oven for 40 minutes, until vegetables are tender. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

¼ cup parve margarine
2 cups thinly sliced carrots
2 cups julienne strips of pared sweet potato

2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ cup broken walnuts

3 bananas, sliced ½-inch thick
Melt margarine in a large skillet. Stir-fry carrots for 5 minutes. Add sweet-potato strips, stirring until vegetables are tender.

Stir in lemon juice, honey, nutmeg, walnuts and bananas. Cook just until sugar dissolves and mixture is heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

NUT KUCHEN

½ cup whole natural almonds
6 eggs, separated
6 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons potato flour or matzo cake flour

1 tablespoon rum or lemon juice
1 teaspoon finely grated lemon

rind
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ teaspoon salt
Vanilla-flavored frosting
Canned apricots, drained

Finely chop ¼ cup almonds. Cream egg yolks with sugar until lemon colored. Gradually beat in flour. Mix in rum or lemon juice, lemon rind and almond extract.

Fold in chopped almonds. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold into egg-yolk mixture.

Turn into a well-greased 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 300-degrees for 45 minutes. Then increase heat to 325-degrees and bake 20 minutes longer, or until cake is set and lightly browned. Cool on a wire rack for 10 minutes. Then invert from pan and finish cooling.

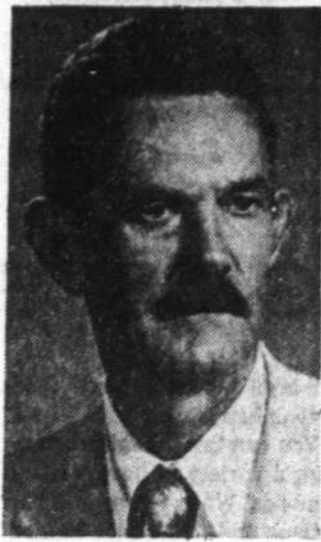

Spread frosting over cake. Garnish attractively with apricots and some whole almonds on top. If you wish, cover sides of cake with coarsely chopped almonds. Makes about 8 servings.

Combine matzo meal, sugar, cinnamon and salt in a bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or fork. Sprinkle with water, tossing to form dough.

Pat evenly into bottom and up sides of 8 3½-inch tart pans. Prick air holes with a fork. Place on cookie sheet. Bake at 375-degrees about 20 minutes, until shells are lightly browned. Cool on a rack. Then carefully remove shells from pans.

Reserve about 20 almonds for garnish. Coarsely chop remainder. Fold chopped almonds and almond extract into cherry pie filling. Spoon into baked shells.

Warm reserved almonds a few minutes in the oven for easier handling. Then split lengthwise with a sharp knife. Arrange on tarts like petals of a flower. Makes 8 tarts.

Serve Easter ham with blossom garnish

Easter, coming in the middle of nature's beautiful bouquet, emphasizes the newness and freshness of the season. To capture spring's appeal at the dinner table, serve the Easter ham with a blossom garnish.

The bright, cheery flowers are easily designed atop the ham by using mandarin orange segments for petals, maraschino cherries for centers and green pepper strips for stems. The flowers are secured and ham glistened with a cherry-almond glaze, conveniently made with jelly.

The possible choices for the Easter ham are many and you will find specials for the holiday. If you prefer a boneless ham for its carving ease and minimum waste, you can select from one of the many sizes and brands of canned hams or from one of the boneless varieties available at the meat counter. There are many types of bone-in hams, too, such as shank and rump halves and portions.

Most of the hams at the market are "fully-cooked" and need only be heated to an internal temperature of 140 degrees F. If you select a "cook-before-eating" ham it should be cooked to 160 degrees F.

For an interesting and distinctive flavor, serve Tart 'n' Tangy Lime Mold. It can be shaped like an Easter egg if you have an oval mold. Lime gelatin is used for the base of this delicacy that's nippy with horseradish and silky with sour cream.

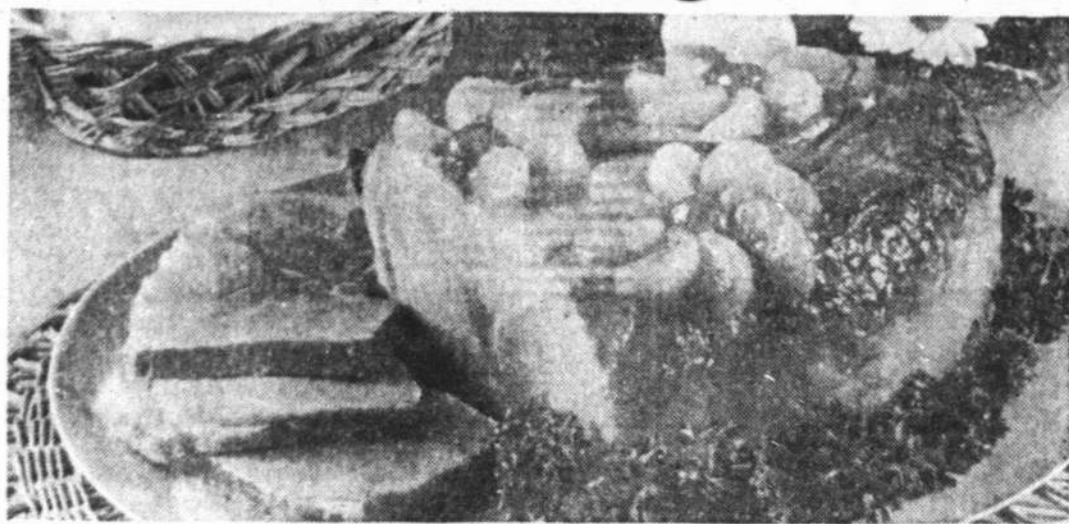

BLOSSOM BOUQUET BAKED HAM
7 to 10-pound canned ham
1/2 cup cherry jelly
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 can (11 ounces) mandarin orange segments, drained
2 maraschino cherries, halved
Green pepper strips

Place ham on rack in an open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until meat thermometer registers almost 140 degrees F. Combine cherry jelly and lemon juice in small saucepan; cook slowly, stirring until smooth. Stir in almond extract. Brush warm glaze over top and sides of ham, reserving small amount. Place mandarin orange segments and maraschino cherry halves on top of ham to form flowers and green pepper strips for stems. Brush fruit and pepper strips with remaining glaze. Return to oven bake 10 to 15 minutes.

Note: Allow 2 to 2 1/2 hours for total cooking time for 7 to 10-pound canned ham.

TART 'N' TANGY LIME MOLD
1 package (3 ounces) lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup cream-style prepared horseradish
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup dairy sour cream
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; stir in horseradish and salt. Chill until partially congealed. Beat sour cream into gelatin mixture and pour into lightly oiled 2 1/2-cup mold. Chill until firm. Serve as accompaniment to baked ham.

You'll want Easter dinner to be special from first course to last so start with your favorite juice appetizer. Scalloped potatoes can bake in the oven along with the ham. Round out the menu with minted carrots and/or fresh asparagus, a simple salad of mixed greens topped with green goddess dressing and crescent rolls. End on a fun holiday note with a yellow cake baked in a lamb mold and decorated with a butter cream frosting and a generous coating of coconut.

Ham leads Easter parade

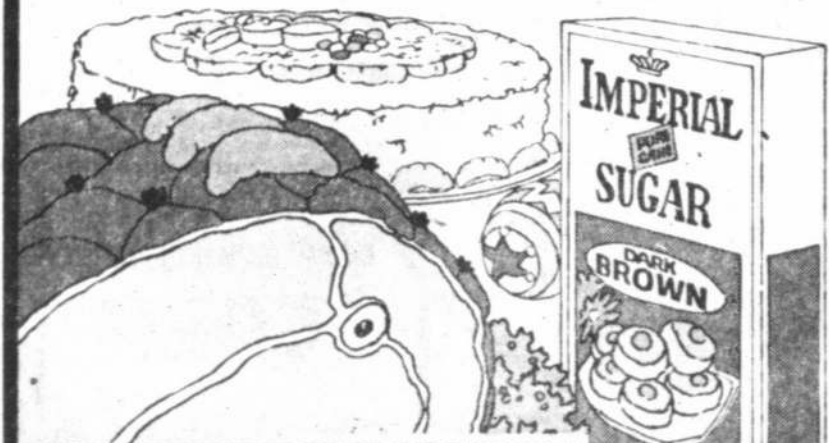

Convenient-to-carve canned ham is decked out in Easter finery with a spring flower motif and cherry almond glaze. A lime horseradish mold serves as a tangy accompaniment.

HAM GLAZE CLIP AND SAVE EASTER HAM GLAZE

1 cup Imperial Brown Sugar 1/4-cup orange or pineapple juice
1 tsp. dry mustard

Mix Imperial Brown Sugar and dry mustard together with orange juice or pineapple juice. Brush glaze over ham frequently during last 30 minutes of baking. Makes 3/4-cup, enough to glaze a medium-sized ham.

Plan ahead and save

Saving money at the supermarket begins at home. Plan meals before you shop, using the weekly food ads as a guide, suggests the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

By planning menus around meats featured on special, you'll be getting the most for your food dollar for that particular week. Make a list of all the foods you'll need for the planned meals, then shop from that list. When you arrive at the store, be alert for unadvertized specials and adjust your list accordingly. Other economy shopping tips: shop alone and never when hungry.

By OSWALD JACOBY ALAN SONTAG

Most textbooks advise when holding 4-4-4-1 distribution to open the suit beneath the singleton. This makes it more convenient to show the three suits in an economical bidding way. South had a strong seven-card suit and he simply bid game on his second turn. The opening lead of the spade eight was ducked to East's queen. It was obvious to declarer that the king of spades was behind the ace. He also had a sure diamond loser, and unless the queen of hearts fell singleton or doubleton, that would be the setting trick. East returned a trump at trick two to dummy's singleton ace. Declarer then embarked on a line of play which effectively switched his losers: He intended to lose a club trick, but no diamond tricks and only one spade trick. Declarer played a club to his ace at trick three, cashed the king of hearts to leave the queen outstanding, and played a diamond to the ace in dummy. He next led the queen of clubs from dummy and when East played low pitched his diamond loser. West won this trick with the club king. West returned the spade deuce. Declarer was not tempted to finesse. He took the ace of spades and cashed the jack of clubs, discarding his spade loser. Declarer lost one spade, one club and one heart. By losing his losers in the right places, he had limited them. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Ann Landers Says Iowan must have lived in Texas

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Are you trying to ruin this country or what? In a recent column you said people shouldn't greet another with "How are you?" unless they are prepared to get a complete rundown on the acquaintance's physical condition. You seem to think an awful lot of people are more than glad to discuss an ingrown toenail, a touch of gout or the misery of fallen arches.

According to Ann Landers, "don't ask 'How are you?' — unless you really want an organ recital." You suggested instead, "Hello," or, "It's good to see you again."

Actually, the ideal greeting is one I grew up with. It's "Howdy!" This warm word says just about everything. I hope you will encourage more "Howdy-ing." It has the ring of friendship and good cheer — and the world can use more of both. — I'm From Davenport, Iowa

Dear Friend: Davenport?? When did you move from Texas? The mere sound of "Howdy" suggests a bowlegged cowboy.

Sorry, I can't promise to promote your crusade because "Howdy" is actually an abbreviation of "How do you do?" — which could raise another problem. The person might ask, "How do I do WHAT?" You are then no better off than if you had asked, "How are you?" But thanks for writing, Pardner. Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a dis-junction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Shop wisely for home remodeling contractor

By JEFFREY MILLS
AP Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Better Business Bureaus say they are getting an increasing number of calls and letters about home remodelers, builders and maintenance firms.

The national BBB council said Monday the three types of firms, all of which do work on homes, accounted for three out of every ten inquiries directed at member bureaus last year.

"Matters related directly to the home received the greatest scrutiny by consumers," said the annual summary of BBB activities.

Home remodeling contractors accounted for more than 7 percent of the 8 million requests for information in 1978, more than any other type of business, the organization said.

In other fields related to the home, roofing contractors, heating and central air conditioning companies and home builders ranked sixth, seventh and eighth on the list.

Local Better Business Bureaus handle complaints and answer inquiries about individual firms, often telling consumers the reputation of individual firms. The national council issues the annual statistics on questions asked the 143 local bureaus.

"Caution is clearly warranted for consumers considering home repairs and improvements as well as new home purchases," the national council said. "Complaints about home-related businesses have increased sharply over the last two years in particular."

Complaints dealing with home services moderated somewhat during the last half of 1978 but still were about 30 percent higher than two years ago, the organization said.

The report speculated that part of the increase in home-related complaints and inquiries "may have been a result of an extremely active housing market, as well as the heightened need for repairs and insulation brought on by the prevalence of severe weather in most parts of the country."

Consumers also demonstrated increased interest in matters unrelated to the home, the report said. Inquiries about insurance companies ranked No. 2, mail order companies were third, franchised automobile dealers fourth and trade or vocational schools fifth.

The BBB said nearly two-thirds of its requests for information were inquiries about the reliability of specific companies and organizations. Another 25 percent sought advice on how to shop wisely and 11 percent complained about firms, it said.

Investigate sources when shopping for 'money'

When shopping for mortgage money, investigate all sources since terms can differ widely. You may be able to get a better deal from one source than another. Sources of mortgage credit include savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks, commercial banks, life insurance companies, federally sponsored credit agencies, finance and mortgage companies and real estate investment trusts. Savings and loan associations are the largest source of conventional mortgage funds, says Pat Zipper, Extension housing and interior design specialist at Oklahoma State University. The second major source of mortgage funds is the mutual savings bank. Commercial banks also have increased their activity in recent years.

Supplies low, not short

While beef supplies are now lower than they have been in recent years, there is no danger of a beef shortage, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. There will be good supplies of all beef cuts in the meat case all year long. Per capita supplies of beef for 1979 are anticipated at 113 pounds (carcass weight basis). This is the same amount available in 1971 and only four pounds lower than 1974 supplies. This hardly represents a shortage.
