WTC trustees approve bid, 1 resignation

Western Texas College board of trustees on Monday approved a resignation, a bid for janitorial supplies, and heard a request to extend merit pay to classified-clerical personnel.

The board also discussed a reduction in state appropriations, heard pre-bid information, an enrollment report and approved financial information, minutes, a board policy revision and the small class report.

No action was taken following an executive session to discuss personnel.

Trustees accepted the resignation of Deidra Graves, college relations employee, and accepted a bid of $11,015.35 from Snyder Janitorial for janitorial supplies.

Caprice Bedell, president of the WTC classified-clerical staff, made a plea to the board, requesting that classified and clerical staff be included in merit raises this year. The board had previously approved a 1 percent raise for all employees, but extended merit raises to faculty and administrators only.

Bedell noted that merit raises are given for outstanding performance and said, "I feel justified in saying that each and every person in classified-clerical is a vital part of the campus and is as deserving of receiving their merits as faculty or administrators are in receiving theirs."

Board president Carl Williams said that the board's original intent in approving merit raises was to make adjustments because the incentive pay for faculty members teaching courses at state prison units was cut from $500 to $250 per class. That meant a pay cut for some instructors of up to $1,250.

"In the end, we included more people (in the merit raises) than some of us originally intended," said Williams.

He stressed that the board's action "wasn't meant as a slight, or that we didn't think you were doing a good job."

There are 52 classified/clerical employees; 34 are seeking merit bonuses of $400 to $500. Total cost of the bonuses would be $114,600.

The request was not on the agenda as an action item, and Williams was the only board member who responded to the request.

Van explosion kills five

ESSEX, Md. (AP) — A thunderous explosion shredded a minivan in a shopping mall parking lot, killing five people, shaking nearby homes and raining debris and body parts for blocks.

As authorities investigated Monday's blast, they seemed sure only that explosives and the victims were on board the vehicle.

How and why the van exploded were a mystery. A murder-suicide or a domestic dispute were among the theories.

"We have many scenarios," said police spokesman Brian Uppercue. "We've gotten some information from people that has taken us in a couple of directions, but we don't know."

After the blast, bomb-sniffing dogs were sent to a nearby apartment complex to check a car for explosives, but none were found, The Baltimore Sun reported today. How investigators were led to the complex was not explained.

Police cadets were searching the scene today for more clues.

The 6 p.m. explosion outside the Middlesex Shopping Center in this suburb seven miles east of Baltimore, scattered debris and body parts for three football fields in every direction and knocked out power nearby. The van's glove compartment was found half a mile away.

Trade deficit worst in history

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit shot up to $43.62 billion in the April-June quarter, the worst performance in history, as the dollar's weakness in the spring drove up the cost of imported goods.

The Commerce Department reported today that the deficit in the nation's current account climbed 11.8 percent from a first quarter deficit of $39.03 billion. It was the worst showing on record, topping the old mark of $43.28 billion set in the final three months of last year.

The current account is the broadest measure of America's trading performance, measuring trade in merchandise, services, investment flows and a category that includes America's foreign aid payments.

The deterioration reflected weakness in all of the major categories with the deficit in merchandise hitting a record $49.04 billion. While exports grew during this period, this strength was swamped by a big rise in imports, reflecting in part higher prices caused by the decline in the dollar, analysts said. A weaker dollar makes imports cost more.

They also noted with concern that the deficit in investment income rose to $2.87 billion, meaning that foreigners earned more on their investments in this country than Americans did overseas.

"We've become such a large net debtor to the rest of the world that foreigners are now earning more on the assets they hold in the United States than we earn abroad. This deficit is feeding on itself," said Eugene Sherman, at M.A. Schapiro & Co. in New York.

The Labor Department said today that wholesale prices declined by 0.1 percent in August as the third straight drop in energy prices continued to hold inflation in check.

Wholesale prices also fell 0.1 percent in June and were unchanged in July.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Character is what a person is by himself, in the dark."

While driving during the recent Labor Day weekend, we observed numerous DPS officers who had motorists pulled to the side of the road.

While no one ever likes a speeding ticket, we don't want their job or the task of having to approach a car — especially late at night.

While few motorists express appreciation for a ticket, one DPS officer told us that a woman said to him about her husband: "I'm glad you got him. I've been trying to get him to slow down."

Here are some reponses that you don't want to use when stopped — unless you really want to see the judge.

--This is a silly law.

--No one ever crosses this intersection at this hour.

--Please don't. If I get one more, I'll lose my license.

--You only stopped me because I'm driving a sports car.

--Why aren't you out there catching criminals?

--You can't write me a ticket, I know the judge.

--I wasn't paying attention.

--I was hurrying to get to the bathroom.

--I was speeding because I'm late for court. I have to pay a speeding ticket.

--I know your boss, and you're not going to get away with this.

--If I were George Bush, would you write me a ticket?

--Why didn't you stop all those people who passed me?

--I wasn't going 70, I had my cruise set at 65.

--My speedometer isn't working right.

--You $cx&!%"*#!

--You'll be hearing from my lawyer.

--I just got a ticket a few miles back, you can't give me another one.

--You're not interested in safety, just revenue.

Decker new manager at country club

Big Spring native Tim Decker has been named the new general manager at the Snyder Country Club.

He began his duties last Thursday following a move from East Texas.

Decker has been managing a restaurant in Longview after serving as the food and beverage director and the dining room supervisor at Odessa Country Club.

Decker had been with the Odessa club for five years.

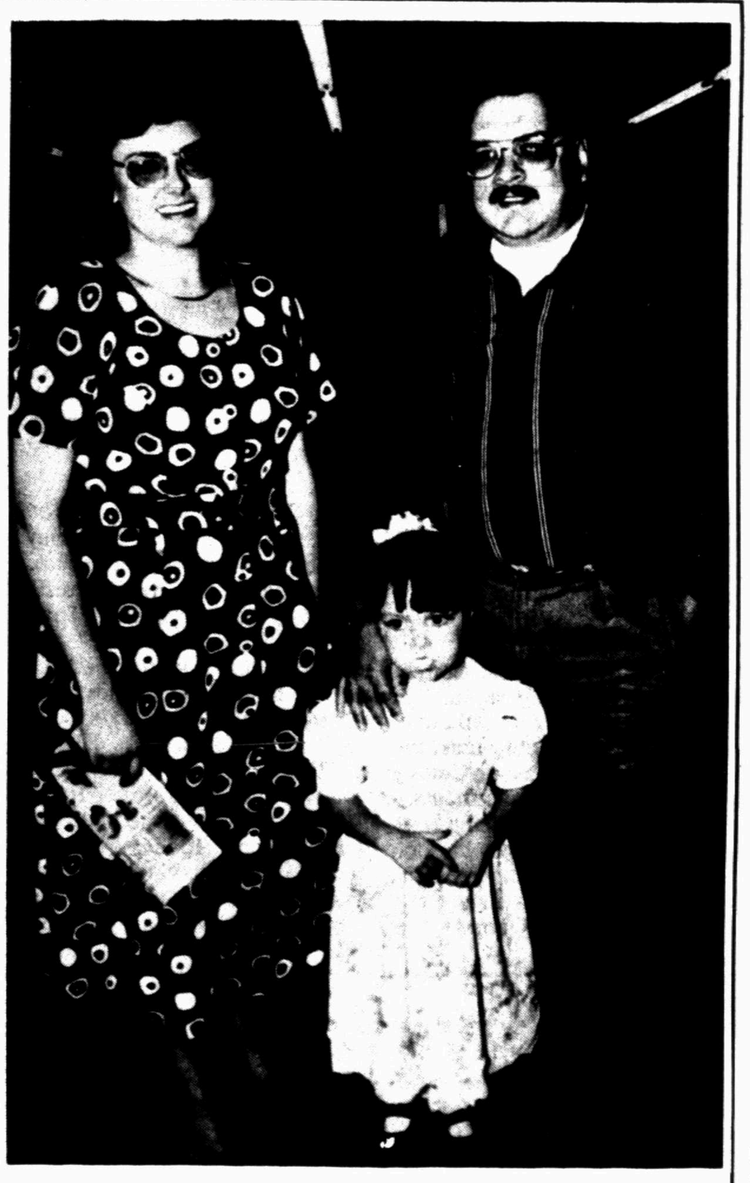

A 1980 graduate of Forsan High School, Decker spent three years in the Navy and five years working at the Big Spring State Hospital before entering the restaurant business.

His previous experience also includes stints with Red Lobster in Midland and the Bobby Cox chain of Dairy Queens in Odessa.

Decker said while some changes at the club might come more slowly than others, he expected a smooth transition period.

He also said that some of his immediate goals included increasing the membership and upgrading the quality of the food at the club.

DCOS board meets today

Development Corporation of Snyder board members will meet this afternoon to consider strategies for funding improvements to the 313-acre industrial park.

The only other item in open session, set for a 4 o'clock start, is consideration of procurement of specialized legal counsel.

The board is also scheduled to adjourn to executive session, to discuss real estate.

DCOS board members recently approved $1.5 million in infrastructure improvements to the industrial park, Sn-Tx Park I. While the board has set up a plan to fund the $1.5 million through a 20-year loan, it will be considering various methods, including grants, to reduce costs.

McCormick wins first SDN contest

Matt McCormick of 3201 Houston won the inaugural SDN football contest and $50 by missing only two games. Also missing two games was Raymond Holdridge of 3000 38th, but McCormick won on the tie-breaker by picking Snyder over Andrews. Holdridge wins the weekly second prize of $25.

Third place, good for $15, was also decided by the tie-breaker with Jimmie Cornett of 2406 40th the winner. Cornett predicted the fewest number, 24 points, in the Snyder-Andrews game.

Sheep dogs enter tough competition

MEEKER, Colo. (AP) — Nobody checks for pedigree, a shiny coat or the color of eyes at the Super Bowl of sheep dog trials.

It isn't beauty, but brains and brawn that count at the Meeker Sheep Dog Classic, where the sheep are mean, the course is tough and one panting participant even dropped dead from exhaustion.

"This is more like combat than traditional trials," said the trials' judge, James Smith, of South Ayrshire, Scotland, who is a director of the International Sheepdog Society.

Five-thousand or so people watched the ninth annual event as border collies averaging 40 pounds attempted roundups of 150-pound Rambouillet ewes just down from hills, where they contended with coyotes, bears and cougars.

"They've just been pulled in off pasture and they don't like what's happening," said Gus Halandras, a sheep rancher and one of the event's organizers.

No biting, or gripping as it is called, is allowed. There's no barking, either. It doesn't help. The dogs just have to stare the sheep down to get them to run through gates and into a pen.

Sheep resistance ranged from waving a hoof defiantly at the dogs to just refusing to move. It was especially brutal with the sun blazing down on dogs not used to the 6,240-foot altitude.

A small pen labeled "Dog Oasis," was set up just outside the judging area. A big bucket of water sat inside — not for drinking, but for dunking. Dogs jumped in to cool off.

This year's winner, Molly, owned by Bruce Fogt, editor of Working Border Collie magazine, is a living example of just how tough the event can be. She was knocked out of last year's trials when a sheep ran over her and dislocated her shoulder.

For the record, it was a dog-only event: No pigs allowed. Not even a movie star like Babe, who learns the secret sheep password for dog trials in a movie that had surprising success this summer.

The four-day event drew almost 100 dogs from all over the world. On the final day, Sunday, 10 dogs and handlers remained in the running. Only three were able to finish all the assigned tasks within the allotted 30 minutes.

First the dogs had to run out 500 yards and bring in 10 sheep, and guide them through "fetch" gates. Then the handlers whistled or shouted "Look back!" and the dog went back to bring in another 10 sheep.

Powell reveals positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — As he considers entering the 1996 presidential race, retired Gen. Colin Powell is disclosing views that are bound to cost him some conservative support: He backs abortion rights and he sees a benefit in affirmative action programs, but rules out quotas.

Powell, in an ABC interview with Barbara Walters, also said he favors the death penalty and does not object to some gun controls or to a moment of silent prayer in schools — as long as it is not mandatory.

Because there is so much voter interest in him and his presidential prospects, Powell said, "the country may well be ready for a black man — or a black person."

The former Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman presented his views as part of his stated effort to reveal more of himself during his upcoming book tour, to get reaction and help judge whether he should try for the White House.

While enjoying soaring public approval ratings, Powell has been unforthcoming about his political views and even whether he would run as a Republican, Democrat or independent.

Divulging his views on controversial issues like abortion is sure to cut into some of the support he enjoys. His comments, broadcast in part on ABC News on Monday, drew fire from abortion foes.

Ralph Reed, head of the Christian Coalition, said Powell's stand on abortion and opposition to organized school prayer would "disappoint a large number of people, who then would be quite unlikely in spite of his heroism to be willing to support him for the presidency."

"The pro-life, pro-family voter is interested in public officials who share their views," said Mark Maddox, senior policy director for the Colorado Springs, Colo.-based Focus on the Family.

"There's a large constituency who identifies with a variety of issues, none more closely than defending the unborn. It sounds like General Powell does not intend to defend the unborn."

But Judie Brown, president of the American Life League, said that although Powell's stand was disappointing it was unlikely to diminish him politically in the long term because the country is so divided on the abortion issue.

William Kristol, publisher of the new conservative magazine The Standard, wrote this week that if Powell ran as a Republican, he could win over the moderates, and appeal to conservatives on the basis of his role as national security adviser to President Reagan.

Alter habits for restful sleep

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a problem falling asleep at night. My doctor gave me Halcion, but it hurts my head and causes a ringing in my ears.

DEAR READER: These would be unusual symptoms from using Halcion, which is generally a safe sleeping pill.

To treat your insomnia, your family doctor should first identify the cause. Are you worried, in pain, under stress? Do you over-use alcohol or consume caffeine-containing beverages in the evening? Has this been a life-long pattern? Do you become "wired" at night by watching TV? Is your bedroom quiet, comfortable and dark? This and other questions need to be answered.

Perhaps you could fall asleep by modifying your personal habits, by drinking a glass of warm milk at bedtime or by using over-the-counter sleep-aids, such as Sominex. Your doctor can advise you.

In any case, gradually discontinue the Halcion, under his supervision, because the medicine seems to be making matters worse.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How is fluid on the knee treated? I've fallen several times and have the condition.

DEAR READER: When a joint is injured, the joint covering (bursa) produces excess fluid in an attempt to protect the joint from further damage. A joint effusion ("water on the knee") is harmless and common — in fact, it has been termed "housemaid's knee."

With time (in the absence of continuing injury, such as kneeling), the fluid will disappear, although the process may take weeks.

Removing the fluid may give temporary relief from the discomfort and tightness, but the fluid usually re-accumulates, so — in my opinion — the procedure is not particularly useful.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can I do to raise my energy level? I'm only 18 and sleep constantly, and remain very sluggish. I've had testing done for anemia and diabetes, but the reports came back negative.

DEAR READER: Sluggishness can be caused by depression. If you are a healthy adolescent and have had a recent normal examination and blood tests (especially for an underactive thyroid), you may have to consider that your fatigue may have an emotional component.

Ask your doctor about this. Perhaps a trial of counseling, with or without an anti-depressant, such as Prozac, might help you. Your doctor can advise you.

Teen-age suspect held at juvenile facility

LEITCHFIELD, Ky. (AP) — A teen-age runaway charged in the slayings of his parents faced his first court appearance Monday, and the judge sent him back in handcuffs to a juvenile facility.

Derek McStoots, 16, will remain at the Daviess County Juvenile Detention Facility in Owensboro in a solitary cell under suicide watch, probably until the next grand jury in Grayson County meets to consider indictments.

McStoots is charged in the Sept. 3 deaths of his parents in their Leitchfield home. Authorities said his father was shot as he slept, and his mother was bludgeoned with McStoot's hunting rifle.

Only hours before, they had returned from Florida to retrieve McStoots, who had run away from home. McStoots was arrested Sept. 5 in Sulphur Springs, Texas, driving his mother's car.

About a dozen family members, mostly aunts and uncles, were allowed inside Monday's detention hearing, which was closed to the public.

Commonwealth's Attorney Kenton Smith urged District Judge Tom Lively to keep McStoots in custody, citing his past attempts to run from home.

A detention hearing in a juvenile case is similar to an evidentiary hearing for an adult charged with a felony, in which prosecutors loosely lay out the evidence against the accused.

McStoots' court-appointed attorney is Kent Mitchner of Brandenburg, in neighboring Meade County.

Smith said he will request that McStoots be tried as an adult in the case, but said it was the judge's decision whether to make that ruling before the grand jury meets.

The grand jury next meets Oct. 5, the first Thursday of the month.

Smith said he was hopeful that the judge makes a ruling on the juvenile issue before then. But he also cited a new Kentucky statute that treats juveniles who allegedly commit crimes with a gun as adults.

McStoots was returned late Sunday from Texas by Kentucky State Police Sgt. David Lee. Lee said that he did not attempt to question the teen during the long drive back from Texas, and McStoots volunteered no statement.

Whitestone's life changes

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Heather Whitestone just isn't the same Miss America she used to be — and she admits it.

"I was a very quiet girl. I only had three or four friends. I would stay at home weekends, doing homework, spending time with God," Whitestone says, describing her life before being crowned last year.

The near-constant touring and speaking engagements ever since have changed her, she says.

Now, Whitestone says, "I'm more outgoing. I communicate better. And I know what the real world is like ... It's helped me to find what God really wants me to do for the rest of my life," she said Sunday.

A new Miss America will be selected Saturday.

The theme is different

By Phillip Alder

One fascination of bridge is that similar-looking deals can produce markedly different play themes. If you are feeling a sense of deja vu after looking at today's hand diagram, don't be alarmed. This deal does bear a similarity to yesterday's. While writing that column, I had the idea for this one.

North, with all his points in his short suits, decided not to use Stayman. Here, it was a wise decision, because with this layout four hearts should fail. As long as West doesn't lead a diamond and the defense does get its club ruff, South has four losers: one heart, one diamond, one club and the club ruff.

Against three no-trump, West naturally led fourth-highest from his longest and strongest: the diamond seven.

After winning with dummy's nine, declarer called for a low heart, winning with the king when East played low. Now South switched to clubs, driving out East's ace. Back came a diamond, but declarer claimed nine tricks: three spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs.

East had been quietly dozing. He should have seen the necessity for speed in establishing his partner's suit. If he had won the second trick with the heart ace and returned a diamond, the contract would have failed. Declarer may cash some winners, but as soon as he broaches clubs, East wins immediately with the ace and plays his last diamond to West's three winners in that suit. The defense gets five tricks before the declarer can rake in nine.

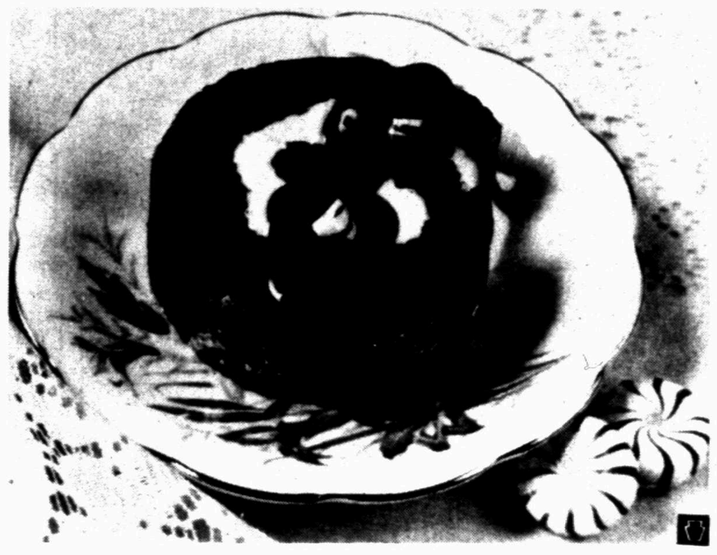

No-trump contracts often develop into this kind of race. Bear in mind the timing of the play.

Quick desserts made easy when microwave baked

Be prepared is a familiar motto and especially wise counsel to the busy [illegible] it comes to the need for quick family desserts or healthy snacks.

Chocolate Peppermint Ice Cream Cake Rolls are quick because they are microwave-baked in advance and stored in the freezer until needed. In addition, this is a healthy recipe, calling for a light cake mix, lowfat ice cream and a fat-free topping.

It is recommended that you bake, fill and freeze the cake rolls until firm, then slice and individually wrap serving-size portions to keep in the freezer. This makes them accessible to even young family members searching for a tasty snack.

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT ICE CREAM CAKE ROLLS

(3 cake rolls, about 5 servings each)

Confectioners sugar
1 package (1 lb. 2.25 oz.) light devil's food cake mix
1⅓ cups water
3 eggs
½ gallon lowfat vanilla ice cream, softened
⅓ cup crushed peppermint candy
Light (fat-free) hot fudge topping

1. Spray 11x7x1½-inch glass baking dish with non-stick cooking spray. Line bottom with waxed paper and spray again. Generously sprinkle three kitchen towels with confectioners sugar. Set aside.

2. Prepare cake mix batter according to package directions using the water and eggs.

3. Spread ⅓ of the batter (1¾ cups) in praepared dish. Microwave at MEDIUM (50%) for 9 minutes, rotating dish a half turn after 4 minutes. Microwave at HIGH (100%) for 1½ minutes.

4. Let stand 5 minutes. Loosen edges and invert onto towel. Carefully remove waxed paper. Generously sprinkle cake with confectioners sugar. Starting with shorter end of cake, roll up in towel. Cool completely.

5. Prepare baking dish again and repeat steps 3 and 4 twice with remaining batter.

6. For each cake roll, carefully unroll cooled cake but do not lay flat. Spread with ⅓ of the ice cream. Sprinkle with ⅓ of the crushed candy. Roll up and wrap securely in foil. Freeze until firm. To serve, slice and top with hot fudge sauce.

NOTE: Sofening ice cream — to quickly soften ice cream, microwave ½ gallon hard-frozen ice cream in container at LOW (20%) for 1½ to 2 minutes to soften enough to scoop or stir in additional ingredients.

Adult students seem to try harder

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — If you're an adult going back to college and nervous about how you'll do, relax. Your life experience and maturity already have given you a head start.

"Adult learners really do better than traditional students," says Bette Anne Winston, a continuing education advisor at Rochester Institute of Technology. "They're more self-directed and more focused."

Adults are returning to the classrooms in record numbers, she says, and many of them suffer from re-entry shock. "You may be the manager of a department and doing just fine, but you get behind that classroom desk and all you can remember is your last negative classroom experience." It may be necessary to forget those experiences before you can begin to learn again, she adds.

— When your instructor is younger than you, give him or her a chance. Conversely, don't feel threatened by this authority figure.

— Don't show off your expertise if you know more about a particular subject than your instructor. Participate in class, but don't monopolize the discussion.

— If you're going back to school mainly because of economic and employment changes, don't let resentment get in the way of your learning. It's OK to feel that way, Winston says.

— Don't assume that if you had trouble with a certain subject earlier in life that you can't learn it now.

— If you feel rusty, brush up with refresher courses at your local board of cooperative educational services or high school.

— Don't forget what you found out the first time at school — that cramming doesn't really work, especially now that you may have more responsibility and less stamina. Winston recommends periodic 20-minute reviews to reinforce learning and improve concentration.

— Don't start off with your weakest subject. Get a good start with courses you know you'll enjoy and succeed in.

— This time, you'll probably need a computer. But don't invest in an expensive system until you've sampled a course.

— Build a support network of family, friends, study groups and college advisors.

— Study with your children. In a role reversal, they may be able to help you this time.

— And don't be in a rush to finish. Take college at a slower pace, so you won't burn out.

Trouble in Osborne's camp

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips, kicked off the team within two hours of his arrest for allegedly assaulting his ex-girlfriend, could still return for the No. 2 Cornhuskers.

"There's a possibility he might still play some this season," coach Tom Osborne said Monday. "He'd have to get certain things done. It certainly wouldn't be any time soon. He may not play at all."

Backup tailback Damon Benning, however, will play this week despite being arrested on suspicion of misdemeanor assault Saturday after allegedly grabbing and pushing a woman at his Lincoln apartment. Osborne said he believes Benning is innocent and was defending himself.

Osborne spent hours Monday discussing the arrests of his top two running backs. Off-field problems have become a familiar subject for Osborne, who is preparing for the home opener Saturday against Arizona State (1-1).

Two other Cornhuskers also face criminal charges: Tyrone Williams, charged with felony weapons violations, and Riley Washington, awaiting trial on a charge of attempted second-degree murder. Williams continues to play for Nebraska, and Washington has been allowed to practice.

The weekend arrests stunned fans of the defending national champions. Home games have been sold out at Memorial Stadium since 1962 for an NCAA-record 201 consecutive games.

Hours before the alleged assault, Phillips rushed for 206 yards and four touchdowns against Michigan State. Tabbed an early Heisman Trophy contender, he was the nation's third-leading rusher last year with 1,722 yards.

Osborne said he dismissed Phillips after determining the player was involved in an assault.

"Lawrence and I have agreed on what happened and there's no question — I wouldn't call it a beating — but he certainly did inflict some damage to the young lady," Osborne said. "She was dragged down some stairs and there were some injuries."

Phillips, 20, is scheduled to be arraigned on charges of misdemeanor assault and trespassing later today. He turned himself into police Sunday after the early-morning incident at the apartment of Husker quarterback Scott Frost.

Police say Phillips climbed into the third-floor apartment, assaulted the 20-year-old University of Nebraska-Lincoln student and dragged her to the building's foyer. Residents pulled him away.

Police reports identify the woman as Katherine McEwen, a sophomore on the women's basketball team. Police said she has left Nebraska for her own protection.

Earlier this year, Phillips pleaded innocent to misdemeanor assault, disturbing the peace and vandalism after a fight with another student. He entered a pretrial diversion program and paid the student $400. In July he pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and was fined $50.

Benning, who missed the Michigan State game with a pulled hamstring, was arrested at his Lincoln apartment early Saturday after allegedly grabbing a 19-year-old woman and pushing her.

Benning said his ex-girlfriend came to his apartment and threatened to damage his car. He said she pushed him in the door, threw rocks at him and ripped his shirt.

"If I had any physical contact with her at this point, it was only to hold her off of me," he said in a statement.

Osborne said he believes Benning, whose court appearance is scheduled for Sept. 27.

"We're sorry about it, but if it's like he says ... certainly we're not going to fault him for what he did," Osborne said.

Benning and Phillips were released after posting bond. Benning attended practice Monday, but didn't speak to the media. The team voted to decline media interviews this week.

Phillips was recently cleared to play following an NCAA investigation into his relationship with a sports agent. However, the NCAA is still investigating whether Phillips received any improper favors, including a 1995 Mustang convertible.

Stephenville drops in 4A poll

DALLAS (AP) — Imagine this: Just one week into the high school football season and two teams expected to lead Class 4A already are headed in opposite directions.

La Marque, which struggled in two preseason scrimmages, looked great in its 34-0 season-opening victory over tough 5A rival Galveston Ball.

Stephenville, the supposedly big, bad two-time defending state champions and winners of their previous 32 games, were upset 17-10 by Saginaw Boswell, a 4-6 team last year.

The Stephenville shocker made it easy for voters in The Associated Press high school football poll to break on Monday the tie atop 4A between the two teams who have played for the past two 4A titles.

"I wish we'd break that tie at the end of the season," Cougars coach Alan Weddell said. "It's an honor to be No. 1, but (an upset) could easily happen to us if we don't watch it."

He means his team better not make the mistake Stephenville made. Weddell promises to use the Yellow Jackets' loss as an example of what can happen to a team if it overlooks an opponent.

"What happened to Stephenville will definitely be mentioned in the La Marque dressing room this week," Weddell said. "As coaches, we're always trying to find an edge. This way we can show them what happens when they're overconfident."

Stephenville coach Art Briles spent Monday trying to live down the bad start to his title defense.

"We're probably more embarrassed than anything else," Briles said. "Of course, there's a natural feeling that we let down previous players and the community. Now we've got to take this devastating loss and make it positive."

Devastating. Embarrassed. Let down. Those aren't familiar words from Briles or about Stephenville.

But as Weddell will soon preach to his players, consolation speeches like that often follow when teams play with the attitude that they can't be beaten.

"We were guilty of that," Briles said. "We never doubted that we were going to win until the game was over."

Now, the secret is out. And no matter who Stephenville plays from now on, that team will know the Yellow Jackets can be beaten.

Then again, the loss also was a reality check for Briles. He learned not to always expect that his team will find a way to win.

At least they can take comfort in knowing they weren't the only staff of a ranked team that had to face its team this weekend and explain how they're going to bounce back next week.

Half the ranked teams in 3A lost, as did three more in 1A. That's a lot for an opening weekend, when teams often schedule opponents who will provide them little more than a scrimmage that counts.

The other interesting note from this week's poll was the stranglehold Thorndale had on the top spot in 1A. The defending champs were the unanimous No. 1 pick of all 27 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in the statewide poll.

The closest anyone else came to that sort of dominance was defending 3A champ Sealy with 21 first-place votes. Defending 5A Division II winner Tyler John Tyler led its class with 20 top votes.

DALLAS (AP) — The Associated Press high school football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses. Total points are based on 10 points for a first-place vote through one point for a 10th-place vote, and previous week's ranking. Voting is by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Packers escape with win

CHICAGO (AP) — The Green Bay Packers sensed another runaway victory over the Chicago Bears. Everything was working. Brett Favre was hitting his receivers, and the Packers converted their first nine third downs.

Ahead 24-7 after a first half that included a 99-yard touchdown pass from Favre to Robert Brooks, the Packers suddenly began to unravel.

They had one punt of 11 yards, Favre threw his first interception to set up a Bears TD, and a blocked punt put Chicago on the 2-yard line with a chance to go ahead.

"It was an real intense moment. We didn't let them move the ball," said Packers defensive end Reggie White, whose team held on for a 27-24 victory Monday night. "We knew they would give the ball to Rashaan Salaam, and we made the plays to stop them. That was the key to the win."

The Packers, leading 27-21 at the time, stuffed Salaam twice on the 2, watched as Erik Kramer flipped a pass out of bounds to Jeff Graham and then forced the Bears into a 20-yard field goal by Kevin Butler with nine minutes left.

"We had just scored on the series before. They stopped us a couple of times. We tried the same play twice and they stopped it and on the next play I didn't keep the ball in bounds," Kramer said.

"That was a bad series all the way around."

Green Bay then began moving the ball again on its next possession, all the way to the Chicago 12 behind two completions and a 21-yard run by Dorsey Levens.

The Packers (1-1) were ready to put the victory away, but this time they fumbled the snap on a field-goal attempt.

"I have never seen so many bad things happen in such a short time," Packers coach Mike Holmgren said.

Chicago had one last chance, and this time White sacked Kramer, forcing him to fumble. Packers linebacker Wayne Simmons recovered at the Bears 22 with two minutes left.

"Mr Reggie White. Every time we need him, he's there making a big play for us," Simmons said.

Slow-release fluoride builds bones without side effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new slow-release fluoride pill builds bone and reduces fractures among women who suffer from severe osteoporosis, a disorder that leaves thousands with brittle bones and some crippled with deformed spines.

Dr. Charles Y.C. Pak of the University of Texas, Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, said the new fluoride formula caused an increase in spinal bone density of more than 4 percent annually among older women who already had severe osteoporosis, making their bone tougher and more resistant to injury. It also reduced spinal fractures by about two-thirds.

Pak was reporting on the study today at a meeting of the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research in Baltimore. The study also is being published in two peer-reviewed journals.

Dr. Robert Lindsay, president of the National Osteoporosis Foundation and a professor at the Columbia University medical college in New York, said Pak's study is "very important" because its proves that a proper dose of fluoride and calcium, sustained over time, can reduce fracturing.

"The key is the delivery system," said Lindsay. "It appears to give sodium fluoride in a more sustained fashion."

Earlier studies found that sodium fluoride in combination with calcium citrate will build bone in women with osteoporosis.

But the studies also showed that doses of fluoride strong enough to strengthen bones also caused toxic side effects in the stomach. When high doses of fluoride mix with normal hydrochloride acid in the stomach, hydrofluoric acid, a corrosive chemical, is formed.

"That's what they use to etch glass," said Lindsay. "It caused a lot of gastric bleeding."

Pak said the new form of fluoride avoids this problem by packaging the drug in a gelatin capsule that does not dissolve until it is passed out of the stomach, avoiding most of the hydrochloric acid effect. Instead, the pill is slowly absorbed in the intestine.

In a four-year study, Pak used 110 women who had all suffered severe bone loss, including spontaneous vertebrae fractures. The women were all past childbearing age, the time in life when osteoporosis most commonly strikes. On average, the women had lost 30 percent of the density in their backbones, Pak said.

Half of the women were put on a program of taking the sodium fluoride pill along with calcium citrate. The other half were given calcium citrate and a placebo that resembled the fluoride pill.

Neiman Marcus taking bids for name for Boeing plane

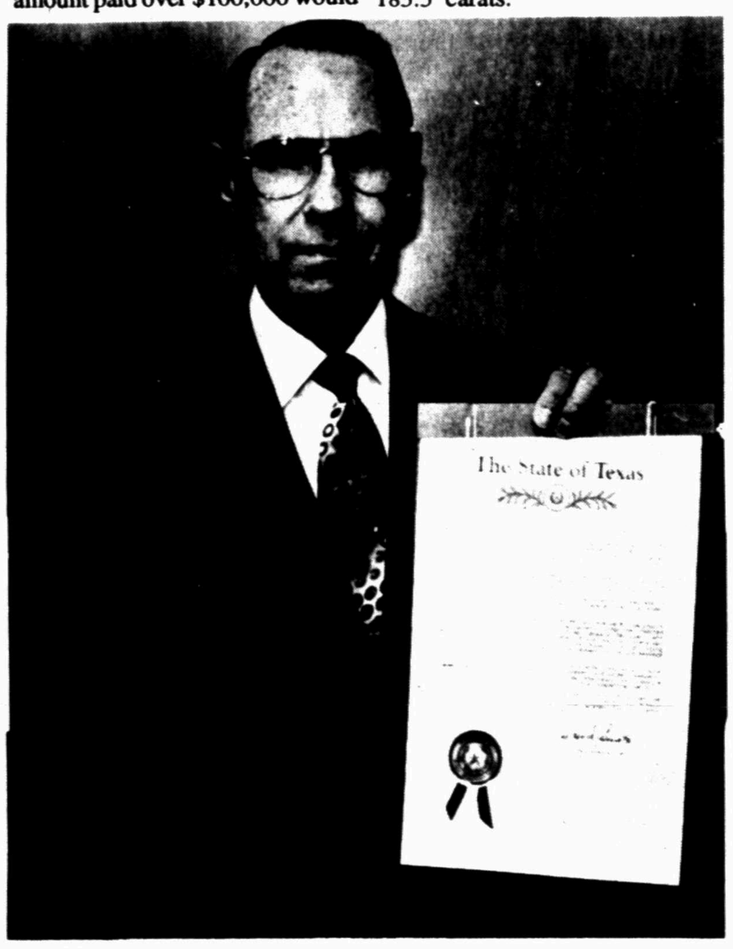

DALLAS (AP) — It's not a stocking stuffer and it doesn't come wrapped, but one Christmas gift this year is sure to send its recipients soaring.

The Neiman Marcus department store chain is taking bids starting at $100,000 to paint a couple's name in foot-high letters on the nose of a new United Airlines Boeing 777.

The names would stay on the plane for a year and the couple would also get a year's worth of unlimited first-class travel. Any amount paid over $100,000 would be donated to the AmeriCares disaster relief organization and is tax-deductible.

About 300 champagne-sipping guests applauded Monday when the Dallas-based retailer announced its his-and-hers gift — a tradition since 1960 — at its annual Christmas Book party at Dallas Love Field Airport.

The most expensive gift in the catalog hung heavy around the neck of a model in a full-length velvet evening gown: a $900,000 yellow diamond necklace with 185.5 carats.

College Grad Earns Dunce Cap for Bad Table Manners

DEAR ABBY: In referring to the young boob who did not remove his baseball cap when he was a dinner guest, you said if he has graduated from college, it is safe to assume he has plenty besides hair under that baseball cap.

Not necessarily so! I have carried a thought I read years ago in The Denver Post: "Education doesn't guarantee wisdom."

This man is inconsiderate and cares for no one but himself. He may have been "educated," but he lacks wisdom.

EDWARD J. WOJTAS,
SUN CITY CENTER, FLA.

DEAR MR. WOJTAS: Lest you think you are alone in your opinion, read on:

DEAR ABBY: You blew it. Just because a person has graduated from college does not ensure that he has more than hair under his cap.

Another gripe of mine is "cowboy" singers who keep their hats on when they are guests on a TV show.

A gentleman always removes his hat when entering a home, an office, a church, a public meeting, or an elevator with ladies present.

A FLORIDA DAD

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with most of your answers, but you blew it big time in your answer to "An Ohio Mom" (her daughter's boyfriend came to the dinner table wearing his baseball cap). You told "Mom" to say nothing to the young man. Say what? Abby, I see you have mellowed in your somewhat older years.

The young man was in her house, sitting at her dinner table. She had every right to politely tell him that in her house, caps are not worn at the table or inside the house ... and he should please remove his. If he didn't want to comply, she should have shown him the front door — or the back porch, and told him to eat his dinner there!

Abby, a lot of young people read your column. Your advice is like a bible to them. Wearing a baseball cap in the house may be no big deal, but it's the principle of the thing.

BEEN THERE, DONE THAT IN SALUDA, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your reply to "An Ohio Mom," who was disturbed because her daughter's college-graduate boyfriend wore his cap in the house. A clod with a college degree is still a clod.

I'm a native Texan, and we Texans wear hats a lot of the time, but when folks enter my house, I invite them to "take off your hat and stay a while." Removing one's hat indoors is plain old-fashioned courtesy. Abby, no one sits at my table with a hat on!

"Ohio Mom" has every right to tell him to remove his cap in the house, and she shouldn't expect her daughter to inform him of the rules — it's "Mom's" house, and she should do it.

GROVER E. SMITH, DALLAS

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to the mother in Ohio who thinks her daughter's boyfriend should not wear a baseball cap at the dinner table. I realize it's her house and she should be able to make the rules, but I wonder if she ever considered why he was wearing one in the first place.

We have all heard the term "bad hair day." Guys are allowed to have them too. I have a younger brother who struggles with his hair on a daily basis. To rid himself of the agony, he wears a baseball cap frequently. Not only would it make the young man feel uncomfortable to be asked to remove his hat by his girlfriend's mother, he would have to put up with the embarrassment of "hat hair."

To the mother in Ohio, leave well enough alone and bite your tongue. Be happy that your daughter has found a nice guy, and be thankful he's wearing a hat and not carrying a loaded weapon.

CRP signup period 13 now underway

CRP sign-up period 13 to accept bids for the new 10 to 15 year CRP contracts began Monday and will continue through Sept 22. This sign-up will be limited to approximately 651,000 acres, nationwide, to replace acreage that was released early. The goal of this sign-up is to accept acreage that will meet higher environmental and conservation criteria thus providing significant soil erosion, water quality, tree planting, or wildlife benefits. Only the most environmentally beneficial acres per dollar of expense will be selected.

This sign-up will allow applicants access to information used to rank bids and establish bid caps. County office calculation of bid caps are unique to each parcel of land. Applicants may choose to bid less than the cap, which may increase the likelihood of bid acceptance through the bid ranking process. Factors such as required maintenance cost will be considered when computing the bid cap.

Soil rental rates for Scurry County range from $14 to $31 depending on the soil type. Eligible land for enrollment in the CRP includes cropland that has been planted or considered planted to an agricultural commodity in any two of the five crop years 1986 through 1990 that is physically and legally capable of being cropped at the time of enrollment.

There are two types of bids for this sign-up: Environmental Priority (EP) and Standard. EP bids are offers submitted on environmentally critical acreage that will receive high priority for enrollment. EP bids will be accepted on acreage devoted to field windbreaks, grass waterways, shallow water areas for wildlife, filter strips and shelterbelts.

The standard bid type will include all other acreage to be offered for CRP. All bids will be selected on the basis of their environmental benefits ranking. Eligible EP bids will receive the highest ranking and shall compete with standard bids relative to cost, provided the offer was less than or equal to the bid cap.

To be eligible for bid, the cropland must have an erodibility index (EI) equal to or greater than 0, as calculated the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) using the weighted average of the EIs of soil map units within a field. Other erosion or environmental factors may be considered if the land's EI is less than 0.

To be an eligible participant, landowners must have continually owned the farm or operators must have continually leased the farm for three consecutive years before the close of the current sign-up period.

As with previous CRP Contracts, in addition to the rental payment, CCC will pay up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing a permanent cover.

For more information or for an appointment to sign-up, contact the county office, at (915) 573-0171.

Satellite shuts off after more problems

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A dish-shaped research satellite flying free from space shuttle Endeavour shut itself off today when uneven heat conditions caused it to fly at the wrong angle.

The $25 million Wake Shield Facility, which has had intermittent communications problems since its release from the shuttle on Monday, switched itself in a "safe mode," shutting off most functions to prevent it from tumbling out of control.

The satellite's orientation mechanism is programmed to go into the safe mode whenever the craft tilts more than 20 degrees out of its proper plane. At one point, the contraption was 33 degrees out of kilter.

Ground controllers suspected the problem was caused by heat buildup related to either the satellite's electronics experiments or heating from the sun. After a cool-down period, the satellite, flying some 40 miles behind Endeavour, was expected to steady its own flight path.

"The Wake Shield is not in any danger at this point," said NASA spokesman Rob Knaves.

The 12-foot dish satellite, operated through remote commands from the ground, is using the vacuum of space to make super-thin semiconductor films. Because of the expected pristine conditions in its wake, the semiconductor material should be purer than any produced on Earth. Such film could eventually lead to speedier computers.

Astronauts overcame shaky data communications between the Wake Shield and ground controllers on Monday to set the satellite free from Endeavour. They stood by today in case communications broke up again and ground controllers need the astronauts to send commands.

The astronauts are schedule to pick the craft back up Wednesday.

Physicists are attempting to grow seven wafers of semiconductor film on the back side of the satellite. Each wafer, grown atom-by-atom over up to eight hours, should be about 3 inches wide and one-thaw the thickness of a human hair.

When the Wake Shield shut itself off, it had just finished producing a third semiconductor film and was about to start on a fourth.

Because the satellite release came nearly two hours late Monday, the baking time for the first wafer was reduced, leaving it thinner than planned.

Senate GOP wants welfare recipients to work for benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are pushing legislation to require many single parents to work for their welfare benefits, despite assertions from Democrats that children will be left home alone because of inadequate day care.

Democrats had sought to rewrite the GOP's welfare bill Monday to pour billions of additional dollars into child-care programs, but the Senate rejected their plan by a vote of 50-48.

Afterward, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Republicans had "voted to leave children home alone."

Two Republicans, Sens. Ben Nighthorse Campbell of Colorado and Jim Jeffords of Vermont, voted with Kennedy and other Democrats to spend $11 billion on child care over the next five years, $6 billion more than under current law.

Two other Republicans, Alan Simpson of Wyoming and Phil Gramm of Texas, did not vote.

The decision came as the Senate took up the first of more than 200 proposed changes to the GOP plan to dismantle the federal welfare system, turn responsibility for supporting poor families over to the states, and require as many as 1 million recipients to go to work.

This morning, the Senate rejected, 59-40, an amendment by Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., which would have redistributed money to California from a special fund of nearly $1 billion set up to benefit states with low benefits and high growth.

Still ahead as the Senate wrestles for a second week with the GOP's marquee social legislation are fights over unmarried teen-age mothers, welfare families who have additional children, and the amount of their own money that states should be required to spend on welfare programs.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., wants the Senate to pass the bill by Thursday. If it does not make progress by midweek, he could pull the bill from the floor and fold the legislation into a huge budget reconciliation bill.

Dole's welfare plan would roll $1 billion in annual federal child care spending for welfare families into a larger, $16.8 billion lump sum payment to the states to cover not only day care but support payments to the poor and work programs for them.

Motion to delay trial is denied

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A judge today refused to delay the trial of the woman accused of killing singer Selena, rejecting the defense argument that it should be put off because the defendant may face an embezzlement indictment as well.

Doug Tinker, attorney for Yolanda Saldivar, had asked state District Judge Mike Westergren to either delay grand jury action on an embezzlement case or postpone the murder trial.

Westergren denied the motion and said the trial would begin as scheduled Oct. 9.

Tinker contended that publicity about a second indictment shortly before the murder trial began would hamper his client's right to a fair trial. He said prosecutors are seeking the second indictment only to try to bolster what he described as a weak murder case.

percent reduction in state appropriations for community colleges. The reduction means a loss in funds of $32,862 for WTC. The monies will be taken from contingency funds.

Trustees also heard pre-bid information on computers, printers and software; building and vehicle insurance; and a one-ton truck for use on the college farm. The board will consider approval of the purchases once bids are returned. All of the items are included in the 1995-96 budget, the board was told.

Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services, presented an enrollment report Monday. He noted that while the enrollment of 1,051 students is down 161 compared to last year, there have been some positive signs. There are 213 spaces occupied in the college dorm, compared to 189 last fall, he said. He also noted that enrollment is up by 40 full-time students, from 539 last year to 579 currently. The dropoff in enrollment is in part-time students.

Hood reported that 49 students from the 1994-95 Snyder High School graduating class of 190 are attending WTC.

Western Texas College also served 2,454 students from March of 1994 through 2,454 through its continuing education division, reported Mike Thornton, dean of continuing ed. That number does not include the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, he noted. He said 321 people have pre-registered for non-credit courses currently.

The board also set a planning session for Saturday, Oct. 21, at noon.

Present were board members Williams, Carolyn Barbee, Lee Presswood, R.C. Patton, Jay Kidd and Eddie Peterson. Bill Wilson Jr. was absent. Representing classified/clerical staff were Bedell, Terry Busby, Donna Robinson, Denise Squires and Gail Snider.

Government will bulldoze shantytowns in Maarten

(AP) — Elia Montero lost her house — and probably her job — to Hurricane Luis. Now the Dominican housekeeper fears she and thousands of other immigrant workers will be deported as well.

"I don't know what I'll do," Montero said, sitting at the edge of St. Peter, her darkened shantytown, and watching cars drive by Monday night. "I want to go home, but I don't want to go without a penny in my hand."

Officials sent bulldozers Monday to start leveling the remains of iron and plywood shantytowns like Montero's. But the government denied rumors it planned to use the hurricane as a excuse to expel unwelcome foreigners — mainly Haitians and Dominicans — who were tolerated because they provided cheap labor for the tourist industry. They were paid as little as $1.20 an hour and could be hired and fired easily.

"All buildings or structures in these areas will be leveled to the ground," Lt. Gov. Dennis Richardson said in a radio broadcast. It wasn't known when the demolition was to start.

The government estimates there were as many as 7,000 illegal aliens in the shantytowns, said Eddie Williams, coordinator of the St. Maarten emergency broadcast service. The Dutch Red Cross put their number at 15,000 to 20,000.

Twelve people were killed in the eastern Caribbean by the hurricane last week. In St. Maarten, the most heavily damaged island, military divers searched for possible victims amid 200 sunken boats.

Richardson reported five deaths on the Dutch side of the island, while the French side, St. Martin, reported one death. The U.S. State Department confirmed Monday that an American was among those killed on the Dutch side, but no identification was released.

Other Caribbean islands reported six deaths — two each in Antigua and Puerto Rico and one each in Dominica and Guadeloupe.

Richardson said illegal aliens who want to go home will receive free air passage. Those who stay will be housed in a tent camp separate from homeless nationals, he said.

Islanders complain that illegal aliens have looted stores, while residents of the French side fear the foreigners will move to their side of the island.

Montero, however, said Dominican community leaders had been told by the government that immigrants without a job or working papers would be deported.

She said the hurricane had destroyed her employers' home as well as her own and that her working papers had expired. Before the storm, she said, she earned $350 a month, $200 of which she sent to provide for her three children in Santo Domingo.

She'd be lucky to make $80 a month if she went home, she said.

Montero quoted Dominican community leaders as saying that "the government doesn't want violence."

Guzman's condition reported serious now

The condition of Porfirio Guzman, 71, of Hermleigh has been changed from critical to serious, according to Methodist Hospital officials.

Guzman was injured in a two-vehicle accident shortly after noon Friday at Highway 84 and Country Road 466. The accident took the life of 62-year-old Louis M. Sanchez of Hermleigh.
