VOTERS PASS ON CREATION WATER DIST.

Election Saturday To Confirm Action Of State Board

BUY WATER PLANT

Water and Sewer Bond Issues To Be Proposed Later

Qualified electors who have rendered property, personal or real for taxation in this county, and who reside in the district will be eligible to vote next Saturday in an election to be held in the courthouse here to decide on the question of creation of what is to be known as Crockett County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1.

The State Board of Water Engineers at Austin has approved creation of the proposed district and final organization is subject to approval of the voters in Saturday's election.

Organization of the district is proposed for the purpose of giving the qualified electors of the area embraced in the district the opportunity to purchase and extend the present water system, and under the terms of the original proposal, if they so elect, to purchase also from Crockett County the local sewer system.

Under the law governing creation of the district, no indebtedness of any nature can ever be created against the district without an election, such indebtedness to be approved by a majority voting at such election. Elections for issuance of bonds to carry out the purpose of the creation of the district, that of purchase and improvement of the water system, and purchase of the sewer system, will be called at a later date if the voters approve the district creation.

If the district is confirmed by the voters, the board of directors of the district plan to call an election on the two propositions separately, one to issue bonds to purchase and improve the water system and one for purchase of the

Ozonan Suffers Serious Illness After Accident

Brain Concussion From Fall Causes A. E. Deland's Attack

A. E. Deland, who has been in a critical condition for several days after becoming ill suddenly last Wednesday night, was reported yesterday to be somewhat improved but still in a serious condition.

The sudden attack, which at first mystified members of the family and physicians as well, has been traced to a brain concussion which Mr. Deland suffered the afternoon before while at work at his machine shop here. He slipped on a piece of loose pipe in the shop and fell, his head striking the wall.

Facts of the accident were not known by members of the family until Sunday when Mr. Deland regained consciousness and related the incident. The fall made him sick momentarily, he said, but the effect apparently wore off after a few minutes and he continued his work, but went home early because he did not feel just right, he said. In the night he was seized with violent nausea and a severe headache and later lapsed into unconsciousness.

Complicating developments included a slight heart attack and high blood pressure, coupled early this week with development of an attack of bronchitis. His condition was believed clearing yesterday, however, and the attending physician expressed confidence in his recovery.

Ozona WTU Office Makes Record In Merchandise Sales

T. E. Kuykendall, head of the merchandise department of the West Texas Utilities Co., visited the local office of the company Monday to extend personal congratulations to members of the sale force here on the outstanding record they made last year.

Boyd Lovelace, local salesman for the company, attended the annual meeting of the merchandise department in Abilene last Saturday where he received an award for the best record of any salesman in the company's system. The district which embraces Ozona took top honors in merchandise sales for the year, and Ozona's record was the best of any town its size served by the company.

Joe Patrick is among this week's victims of the flu.

WHO MAY VOTE In Saturday's Election

Only duly qualified electors who own taxable property in the district and who have duly rendered the same for taxation shall be qualified to vote in next Saturday's election on the question of confirmation of the Water Control and Improvement District.

This means that any person who is qualified by age, length of residence and has paid a poll tax, and who owns any taxable property, real or personal, that has been rendered for taxation, is qualified to vote, provided the voter lives in the area outlined by the district boundaries, the town of Ozona. It is not necessary to own real estate, any property rendered for taxation makes an otherwise qualified elector eligible.

Five Volunteers To Fill January Draft Call Here

Group To Leave Wednesday To Report At Ft. Bliss

Crockett county's second contribution to Uncle Sam's draft army, this time a quota of five men, will be off for the training camp Wednesday of next week.

This county's quota of five men, called for the January draft, will be required to report at Fort Bliss January 16 for a year's training.

Twelve volunteers are still on the waiting list of this county's local draft board seeking an opportunity to get into the training army for a year. The January contingent will be picked from this group.

Among the group of volunteers is this county's order No. 1 draftee, Tomas Hernandez, who will likely be among the five to be sent this month. Seven other young Mexicans, from 18 to 21 years of age, have also filed applications for voluntary service. They include Joe Hernandez, Jesus Aguirre, Felipe Flores, Albert Tijerina, Hector Vargas, Esmael Najara and Alfred Tijerina.

Besides this group of Mexican youths, others who have asked to be included are Gordon Rendall, Leo Phillips, H. L. Manley and Tom Adams.

200 Petitioners Ask That County Keep Sewer Plant

Document Go Before Commissioners At Meet Monday

Approximately 200 names of citizens and taxpayers of Crockett County have been signed to a petition which will be presented to the Commissioners Court of this county when it meets next Monday morning asking that body to rescind its action offering the county-owned sewer system for sale and to continue to operate the sewer system as it now does.

The petition has been in circulation here since shortly after Christmas and yesterday the count of names stood at a little over the 200 mark, all heads of families and including most of the largest taxpayers in the county.

The petition grew out of the announcement of the proposed creation of a water control district embracing the town of Ozona with its announced purpose the purchase of the privately owned water works system for $50,000, expenditure of an additional $25,000 to improve and extend the system, and purchase of the county-owned sewer system for $10,000. The $10,000 price for the sewer system was placed by the Commissioners Court in granting an option to the bond firm of McRoberts-Thomasma Co. of San Antonio conditioned on their turning the option over to the water control district.

Petitioners maintain that the "sewer system should be kept by the taxpayers of Crockett County and should be maintained as other public property and should not be sold, and certainly should not be sacrificed," and they ask the court to "oppose the sale of such sewer system and to refrain from taking any steps toward the disposition of the same and to urge you to keep and maintain this public utility for the benefit of all the people of Crockett county, and to urge that you carefully consider and weigh any proposal to deprive the county of this valuable system to the end that it will not be sacrificed to the detriment of our citizenship."

Judge Charles E. Davidson here yesterday declared that the petition would be received by the Commissioners Court and that the court would be willing to take any action which would express the will of the people and that if the people want the county to retain and operate the sewer system that the court would rescind its action proffering the system for sale.

APPROVE ROAD BOND REISSUE FOR STATE AID

Way Cleared For Paving South Road To Val Verde

BEGIN WORK SOON

Highway Dept. Promises Paving Order In Short Time

With the exception of the actual final order of the highway department for the start of work, the last obstacle in the way of paving of state highway 163 south of Ozona, the Juno route, was cleared when members of the Crockett County Commissioners Court met with the Board of County and District Road Bond Indebtedness and the Highway Commission in Austin the first of the week.

The trip of the Commissioners, county judge and county clerk followed approval by the attorney general's department of the re-issue of $104,000 in unused road bonds from the Crockett county $375,000 issue of 1930. The re-issue being conditioned upon granting of 100 per cent state aid by the bond indebtedness board and construction of the state highway, the court went in a body to confer with state officials in Austin and to complete the transaction.

Assurance from Chairman Hight of the County and District Road Bond Indebtedness Board that the board would pay off principal and interest 100 per cent of the contemplated bond was given the Crockett county delegation.

The chief engineer of the Highway department was absent and Assistant Engineer Hoffman presided. The department assured the local delegation that as soon as the chief engineer returns, an order would be passed covering the project and a copy mailed to the clerk here. It was understood that the department contemplates starting construction of the Juno road within the next few weeks, or as soon as possible after all details of the plan are worked out.

The local Commissioners Court had ordered re-issuance of the $104,000 in unused bonds conditioned on acceptance by the state indebtedness board for 100 per cent aid and construction of the road by the highway department. The highway is to be routed along the present or Juno route, rather than the divide route suggested several years ago when the road was under discussion for possible paving.

Making the trip to Austin Monday afternoon and returning Tuesday afternoon were County Judge Charles E. Davidson, County Clerk George Russell and Commissioners J. W. Owens, E. R. Kinser, Charles Black and Rob Miller.

County Historical Society Will Meet Here Monday Night

The Crockett County Historical Society will meet at the High School building Monday night of next week for its first quarterly meeting of the new year. An interesting program and business meeting is in prospect and members of the society and others interested are cordially invited to attend.

Among matters to come before the meeting will be a report of a committee named to investigate the possibilities of placing a bronze marker on the historic oak tree which stands at the northeast corner of the town square, the tree under which the first Commissioners Court of this county held its first meeting. The committee, headed by C. S. Denham, has secured data on the project and will have its recommendations ready at the Monday night meeting.

Mrs. Mary Flowers is ill this week, a victim of the current flu outbreak.

THE FACTS . . .

No one in the United States, not even a Nazi agent, dares to say that we shall have to fight if England wins the war. No one in the United States, not even the strongest isolationist, dares to deny that we shall be under the continuous burden of having to safeguard ourselves through a great defense program if England loses the war. Therefore, England's success means the difference to the United States between a securely peaceful future and an uncertain future in which we shall be caught between the lower mill stone of continuous defense expenditure and the upper mill stone of the danger of war with Germany. Therefore the United States can question the fact that enough American planes and shipping, supplied to England in time, can turn the tide. Therefore, we have in our own hands the means of shaping our future, of which England's future is one of the foundation stones. To learn these propositions well is the only way to equip ourselves for making a sound contribution to the coming great debate on the matter of aid "to England."—New York Post.

PHONY HEROES . . .

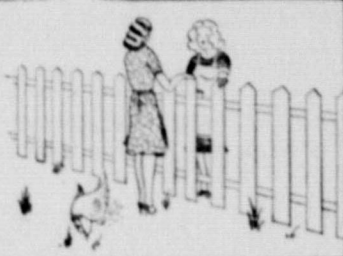

Of all those who feel they are heroes, but really are pests, the worst is the person who gets into an elevator crowded with other-wise healthy fellow-workers and announces between sniffs that he has an awful cold and really should have stayed home. Our impulse on such occasion—and one which we fear we shall carry out some day—is to whip out a flit gun filled with some strong-smelling germicide and squirt it at the bragging flu-spreader. Or perhaps a more orderly procedure would be to have the man arrested on a charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons. It is a charge which any qualified physician would be able to support. It is bad enough that such people are potential suicides—a fact testified to by the United States Public Health Service, which asserts that people who try to "stick out" colds are those who contribute most generously to the Nation's death rolls. But their most serious crime is against the rest of the community.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE COUNTRY OF ROMANCE

There is something about this country of romance that stirs the imagination. In its history is the stuff of dreams. Its future is still beyond imagining. Nothing like it has ever happened in the world before. Nothing like it will ever happen again.

It's rich—this country of romance, and powerful. But these are not the things that make it irresistible to the people of other less romantic lands. It's something in its spirit . . . in its dreams . . . in the freedoms it takes for granted, in a world where freedom of any kind has become something very rare.

Little people — farmers shoe-makers, soldiers half a world away are thrilled with stories of this fabulous land. Their eyes brighten when they talk of it. The great men of this land are "giants in the earth." It's a land where great ideals have been realized and where humble people have found a chance to do the things they dream of only in other countries; where a great system of industry produces comforts for even the humblest. The great documents of this land are not tiresome legal papers. They are great epic poems. They glow with promise. They speak of man's rights. They even mention the pursuit of happiness. The pursuit of happiness in a document of state! It is incredible to those who haven't grown up taking it for granted.

It's easy to believe in this romantic land . . . in its ideals . . . its institutions . . . its way of carrying on the every-day affairs of life.

A little talk—a little explanation and men and women know that this is where the promise lies; that this country, with its brief romantic history and its inexhaustible riches, is the hope of the world.

But it must be talked about. It must be explained, not only to the millions of foreign born people within its borders but to millions of others who were born here. The barrage of criticism and actual untruth from overseas is having an effect. It must be counteracted by people who believe in the American way — for America is the country of romance.

The finest article in the world must be advertised. And even a country that believes so fundamentally in every individual's pursuit of happiness that it's written in its first great state paper, must tell its story to the people of the world!

Stilwell's Dream . . .

Building of the last link in the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad, to connect the interior of Mexico with the port of Topolobampo, on the Gulf of California, will mark the completion of a dream which was dreamed more than thirty-five years ago by the late Arthur E. Stilwell. It was Stilwell's plan to link Kansas City with the Mexican Pacific coast by a line running diagonally across Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Chihuahua and Sinaloa. When the Mexican government finishes the short stretch across a mountainous area in Sinaloa which has just been authorized, the physical rail connection will be complete. Of course there have been changes in ownership. In 1926 the Santa Fe purchased the Orient holdings in the United States, and last spring the Mexican government took over the Mexican holdings. But the fact remains that the steel soon will run unbrokenly from Kansas City to Topolobampo, one of the finest natural harbors on the western coast of the North American continent.—Kansas City Times.

Chapter From Early Life Of Late Jim Baker Told By Boyhood Acquaintance

Editor's Note — The following was written by A. L. Oden, Sr., a native of Alabama who is now making his home in Ozona. Mr. Oden came here with his son, A. L. Oden, Jr., linotype operator for the Stockman.

By A. L. Oden, Sr.

I read in the last issue of the Stockman where Jim Baker, a cowboy of the early days, died in Ozona on last Christmas morn. The article stated that the only surviving relative known to local officials is a niece now living in Decatur, Ala. I am wondering if this Jim Baker is the one I knew back in Alabama when I was a boy. If so, the story that follows will do his memory no harm.

In 1882 my father was engaged in the mercantile business at Hartselle, Ala. and also operated a mill and gin. In the summer of the year just mentioned he employed a young man by the name of James Baker to haul wood to the mill. Baker's folks at that time lived at a small station between Hartselle and Decatur.

We used oxen to haul the wood, and an old negro we called "Uncle Mose" fed the stock and hitched up the teams for the drivers. The first morning that young Baker showed up at the mill for work he found two teams hitched up ready to go, but no one around. Baker waited a few minutes then saddled a pony that was in the stable and headed for the woods with two teams. Baker said that driving one team was work, but driving two teams was fun. The wood choppers helped to load the wagons and Uncle Mose helped to unload them, so Baker continued to handle the two teams.

During the second week that Baker was with us, he said to my father: "Captain I am making a study of handling stock and if it can be arranged I would like to try out handling a third team. If I take them out you may rest assured that I shall know the stock and be able to handle them properly."

My father admired young Baker, and wished to encourage him. He said: "Squire Simpson has a good heavy yoke of oxen. They are young and if they have not been worked regularly they will prove hard to handle. Uncle Mose should know more about them than I, but don't take them out unless you are sure you can work them without damage to the oxen or wagon."

When young Baker spoke to Uncle Mose about it, the old negro almost exploded. "Why man doant you eber mention dem Squire Simpson steers in my pressunts. Dey is not only mean but is as wild as bumble-bees and twice as hard to catch. De Squire feeds his steers cawn and dey isnt been worked for tree weeks, I wouldnt get in the same lot with dem for six bits. Why man dey only said good-by to their bullsh features a year or so back and what can you spect of dem now. The steers you has is plenty mean. When Bill and Joe gets wahmed up good in the mawns dey run for ever shade and water hole on de road. And Buck and Alex, the old team does some running theirselves in the aftahnoon. Man let dem Squire Simpson animules alone."

Saturday afternoon the hands struck off as usual. James went over to Squire Simpson to look at the steers. He found them wild all right and hard to catch. With the assistance of most of the Simpson family they finally managed to yoke them and hitch up to the wagon. James drove them around most of the afternoon, then turned them into the stable.

The next morning was Sunday. James hitched them up again and gave them more exercise. In the afternoon he saddled his pony and tried handling the steers from his horse.

Monday morning he put Buck and Alex, the old team in the lead, Bill and Joe next, followed by the Simpson steers. He mounted his pony and hollered to Uncle Mose to be ready to help him unload on his return. Uncle Mose replied "Ef you mean by ratur, when you is getting back, dat isnt gwine happen. De onliest way you eber get back is fur some one to tote you."

James Baker, even as a boy, knew his cows as well as horses. The successful manner in which he handled two or more teams from his horse was new in our locality and created quite a lot of comment. James boarded with us while working at the mill, and was a quite young man well liked by all of us. I remember that he told me that he was 20 years of age and that he planned to go to Texas when he became 21. I never saw him again, but a few years later heard that he was riding the range in the cow country of the West.

VOTERS PASS--

sewer system. A petition is to be presented to the Commissioners Court at its meeting Monday, however, asking that body to withdraw its offer to sell the sewer system and to keep and maintain it as any other public property. The future action of the board of the water district, then, will be governed by what action the Commissioners Court takes in response to this petition.

The water district will have an option to purchase the water system for $50,000, and the sewer system for $10,000. An additional $25,000 is to be added to the proposed bond issue for the water system, this additional sum to be expended in improving and extending the water service, making an issue of $75,000 to be presented to the voters for their approval. In the event the sewer system is to be included, a separate election on an issue of $10,000 will be called for that purpose.

Bonds are to be issued only on one basis, and that is that they shall be paid solely from the net revenues of the system to which they relate, and the payment thereof shall never be from any other source than the net revenues of such system. The notice of election on the issue will contain a provision to this effect. According to specimen revenue bonds on display here, bonds of this type provide that the holder shall never have the right to demand payment of the obligation out of any funds raised or to be raised by taxation.

If the voters in Saturday's election confirm the creation of the district, and name a board of directors, the board will hold a meeting the following Monday for the purpose of definitely establishing the boundaries of the district, this to be known as an exclusion hearing. It is estimated that another month will be required before the first bond election can be held.

The ballot to be presented the voters Saturday will contain the wording "For Confirmation of District" and "Against District." It will also contain the names of the five men nominated as members of the board by the Board of Water Engineers. These nominees are J. W. North, J. D. Kirby, P. L. Childress, Jr., Boyd Clayton and H. M. Phillips. Five blank lines are also provided on which voters may write in the names of other candidates should they choose to do so.

New Discoveries Of Geologists In 1940 Important Advances

AUSTIN, Jan. 8.—Geologists of the United States — and their "first cousins," the mineralogists and paleontologists — chalked up a successful year in 1940 in their contributions to science, a review of some 135 reports to the Geological Society of America and affiliate bodies indicates.

The Society, with its mineralogical and paleontological branches met in three-day annual conference on the University of Texas campus recently.

Discoveries reported included: First discovery ever announced of fossilized grasses—estimated to be thirty million years old, and evidently "ancestors" of present-day prairie grasses.

Nephrite in California — first authentic jade to be found within the United States.

A new sub-genus of clam in Iran (Persia) which promises help geologists distinguish between the Tertiary and Cretaceous formations.

Fresh water fossilized microscopic plants and animals in Montana, Wyoming and Idaho which indicates these "dry" states were once large fresh water lakes.

A new genus of Archimedes—small amphibian corkscrew-like organism—in West Texas' Hueco Mountains.

Other scientists announced: That the earth can be "weighed" by magnetic measurements — and the findings combined with oil well data to build a foundation of information for the oil industry.

That earthquakes can be measured almost directly at the point of underground slippage, by means of new equipment being used on a large scale for the first time this year.

That complicated laboratory equipment has been devised to artificially change the substance of rocks, obtaining the same results which occur in nature—as in mountains, for example.

That helium can be used to "clock" the age of the Earth, by measuring the amount of this gas in a given formation.

That rocks can be "finger-printed" by means of a newly-designed spectrograph which records all mineralogical elements present and in what quantity.

Slight Decline In Texas Livestock Shipments In 1940

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 8.—Shipments of live stock from Texas ranches during November totaled 7,948 cars, only 2.8 per cent below November, 1939, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has announced.

For the first eleven months of 1940, however, shipments have dropped 9.7 per cent below the like period of last year, to total 76,127 cars.

Movement of cattle and calves during November—5,464 and 1,403 cars, respectively — showed declines, while hog and sheep shipments gained.

"Tin Pan Alley" Coming Soon

Highlight of this month's entertainment program at the Ozona Theatre is "Tin Pan Alley," starring Alice Faye, Jack Oakie and Betty Grable. The picture is scheduled for Thursday and Friday of next week.

The picture showing today and Friday is "Texas Rangers Ride Again," and for Saturday a double feature, Lupe Velez in "Mexican Spitfire Out West," and Gene Autry in "Carolina Moon." "Dr. Kildare's Crisis" and "Blondie Plays Cupid" are scheduled next week.

Editor's Musings

By ADELE KEETON

"Writers are like guns. Nothing happens unless they are loaded." As I entered the English Room one day last week, I noticed this slogan on the front board. After thinking about it for sometime, I realized the truth in the statement. From experience, most of us know what happens when we sit down to write these musings. I find that unless I have something definite in my mind when I start writing, I have an article that isn't worth reading. I also find that it doesn't pay to stop trying the first time I fail.

When you shoot a gun, you expect something to happen. If nothing happens, you are very much disappointed. Likewise, you expect people to read and enjoy articles after you write them. If no one reads them, you are disappointed again. To avoid this disappointment, remember that unless you have something to write about, you had just as well be shooting a gun that isn't loaded.

THE Prowler

By Gem Ella Dudley

Why were you on foot, Saturday night, Boachie? Was your car stolen or just borrowed? Shorty, Virginia and you wouldn't know anything about this, would you?

Judith, keep up the good work of the "La Conga" and maybe the "Fish" will learn it, yet.

Dorothy, don't tell me a little bowling made you so sore that you couldn't be touched without screaming, Monday. That's rather hard on the nerves, isn't it.

By the way Stanley, did you have trouble New Year's Eve? Jean and you took the long route to Sonora, didn't you? Sug, did Shorty and you mind?

Why all of the hard scribbling during Roosevelt's speech, Sophs? Some "Big, Bad" teacher didn't make you take notes, did he?

Herdon, is "Flossie's" big sis beating everyone's time? She seemed very eager to take you home Monday at noon.

Poor Norma! It seems that she will never get a letter, or is it her time to write? Don't take it so hard, Norma.

At the show someone's girl was with someone else. Bill, were you the lucky guy? Mary, speak for yourself, who's girl are you anyway?

Harold, congratulations on the swell four 100's you make. (Fountain drinks, of course.)

Roy, were you about to bite Juanita's hair to keep her from shaking her head in Chapel, Monday, or did you have other ideas?

Twenty-feet is quite a lot, Pee Wee, but if it can always keep "people" from being late, it might be raised five feet.

Request: Rozelle complains that "The Senses" exaggerate her love affairs. Shame on you, girls.

Correction: Handsome Dick Henderson complained Monday that "Cuz" Roy was the member of the family who didn't get his deer his year. Dick shot two bucks in that many days. Apologies, Dick the staff really wondered about the truth of that article when we printed it.

Shorty and Boachie had a very good time in San Angelo Saturday night. The waitresses do help to carry on a good time, don't they boys!

Good lemon drops in the last study hall. For information ask Pee Wee.

MARY LOUISE HARVICK

Mary Louise Harvick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Harvick, and an ex-student of the Ozona High School, is attending Stephen's College at Columbia, Missouri.

Mary is taking subjects preparatory to entering the University of Texas next year. Her subjects are English, Literature, Spanish Literature, biology, math, American government, music, and physical education.

This quarter in physical education the group Mary is in is studying the Quadrille and the Waltz. Just before Xmas Mary was one of the few selected to dance these at an open house.

In this school all classes have less than thirty in them, although the school has an enrollment of one thousand and twenty girls. Included in this enrollment are twenty eight girls from foreign countries. Texas has the second largest enrollment.

The school prides itself on its libraries, having some ten or twelve, each covering a different field. The largest is the general library, which has the fiction and general reference materials. The others are of special materials such as Art, Spanish, German, etc.

Mary enjoys the outstanding sport of the college, which is horseback riding. She says the only thing about it that is not what she is used to is the fact that only English or Eastern saddles and habits are in vogue. Mary also plays golf and goes boating.

The only initiation that they receive is that they must wear green hair ribbons for two weeks. At the end of the two weeks they are given a barbecue and are allowed to take off their green ribbons and throw them into the fire.

The real initiation comes when a sorority is joined; the pledge must

Students Hear Radio Speech Of Roosevelt

"Aid to England" Discussed; Questionnaire Follows

On Monday, January 6, the students of Ozona High School and members of the 7th grade class assembled in the auditorium at one o'clock where they listened to President Roosevelt speak on the National Defense Program. The chief thought the students derived from Mr. Roosevelt's talk was: "We will give England every aid that we can, short of manpower."

At the close of the radio address Mr. Denham discussed the important historical trends of the day and led a round table questionnaire on the President's speech.

Class periods for the afternoon were shortened to provide time for the radio program.

Plans have been made to allow the student body to hear this spring all of the major addresses regarding the world situation. It is hoped that in this way we can keep well informed on the progress of the present World War.

Disappointed. The algebra class thought they saw a snake crawling up the board, but after looking again realized it was only Roy trying to make a 3.

A farmer received word from a neighbor coming from the village that the postmaster wanted him to call for a parcel post package.

Echoes From The Library

by Florence Luther

For fiction on the United States history and on the French and Indian War, read "Northwest Passage."

"Northwest Passage" is a book of fiction covering the years from 1755 to 1763, written by Lewis Kenneth Roberts.

The central figure of this historical novel is Major Robert Rogers, American ranger commander, who led the expedition against the Indian town of St. Francis in 1759, and whose dream was to find an overland passage to the Pacific. The narrator is one London Towne from Ketteny, Maine whose two ambitions were to paint the Indians as they really looked and to follow Rogers.

For an interesting story of a French governor read "All This, and Heaven Too."

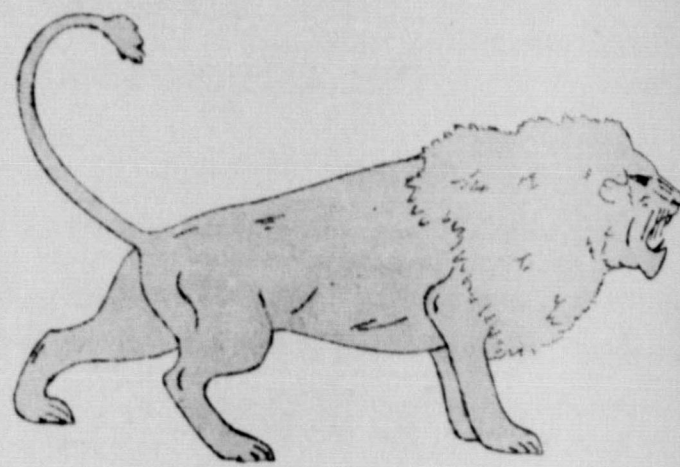

"All This, and Heaven Too" was written by Lyman Rachel Field.

In fiction form the author tells the life story of her great aunt by marriage, the French governor who, in 1847, became involved in a famous trial, in which she was

The importance of the Church is taught us in the Scripture that "Christ also loves the church, and gave himself for it." He died to establish it; to give it's message to the world. Since it was worth so much in His sight then surely we should place the highest value on it and its ministry. To neglect it is tragic when we consider the price that was paid for it's establishment and the price that many have paid to continue it's message. When so much of the world is deprived of the privilege of Christian worship let us resolve that we will pledge ourselves anew to the Christian church and it's ministry. Let us make 1941 the greatest year of our Christian life and service. You will always find a warm welcome in all the services of this church.

Despite widespread illness in the community our services last Sunday were well attended. Our hearts go out in love and sympathy to all of the sick folks in the community. This Church and its corps of workers stands ready to help in every possible way, and we hope that all of our people will soon know the blessing of health.

Of first importance in our plans is our Revival Meeting. The date, January 19-29, has been set. The Rev. John Donaho of the Oak Lawn Methodist Church in Dallas, and the Rev. Milton Bohmfolk of the Methodist Church in Merton are to be our leaders in this meeting. You and your friends are earnestly invited to attend the services each morning at 10 o'clock and each evening at 7:30 o'clock. Let us make this meeting a high water mark in the life of our Church—a time for new decisions, for the strengthening of our faith, for declaring once more our love for Christ and our loyalty to the Church. Please keep the date, January 19-29, open for the meeting, and plan to attend every one of the services.

Geologists Find 5 Texas Prehistoric Animals Grew Big

Austin, Texas, Jan. 1.—Animals grew big in prehistoric Texas and University of Texas geologists have had to open an extra-large workshop to clean and assemble some of the giant fossilized bones.

"If the bones are too big to take through the door, we can now drive the truck which brings them from the field right into the laboratory," Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the statewide University WPA paleontological project, said today.

The new fossil laboratory—second opened within six months—equipped to clean and assemble heavier fossils which cannot be handled by the first processing plant opened last June, he explained.

The laboratory's 30 workers are now in the process of assembling a seven-foot 50,000-year-old armor-plated glyptodon and a giant 4 by 5 1/2 foot turtle, both found by University-WPA geological field crews in a sand pit in San Patricio County. Both are intended for display in the Texas Memorial Museum on the University campus. Geologists of the United States will hold their annual meeting in Austin, December 26-28.

Poor Diplomat

The teacher had asked the class to name all the states. One small urchin responded so quickly and accurately that she commended him for it.

"You did very well," she said, "much better than I could have done at your age."

"Yeah, and there wuz only 13 states then, too!"

Health Topic At Society Meeting

"Sharing Means to Health" was the topic for discussion at the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service, with Mrs. W. R. Baggett as leader.

Mrs. Evert White discussed the national effort of the United States in the prevention and cure of disease, and Mrs. Carl Colwick told of the health service being performed by Women of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Jess Sweeten became a member of the society. Members present were Mrs. W. R. Baggett, Mrs. Eugene Slater, Mrs. W. E. Smith, Mrs. Carl Colwick, Mrs. Jess Sweeten, Mrs. Tom Harris, Mrs. Evert White, Mrs. J. R. Bailey, Mrs. W. R. Cahaness, Mrs. N. W. Graham, Mrs. Mary Perner and Miss Mary Riddle.
