Leftist Party Headquarters Is Seized

British Soldiers Taking Control In Center Of Athens

(By The Associated Press)

ATHENS, Dec. 6 — A British Sherman tank and a platoon on British soldiers seized headquarters of the left-wing EAM party by storm today as fighting spread through wide areas of Athens.

The Communist party building on Constitution square also was taken. Parachute troopers forced the main entrance with grenades, and seized 18 armed Communists there.

Fighting with tanks and machineguns broke out after snipers of the ELAS—the militia of the EAM National Liberation Front—fired on a truckload of British troops before dawn, killing one and wounding another.

EAM Defenders Scattered

A Sherman tank was sent to batter in the door of EAM headquarters, and British troops charged the stairs, scattered EAM defenders with half a dozen bursts of fire, and cleaning up floor by floor.

One British soldier was killed by a bullet through the head while searching the building. A dying ELAS soldier lay on the roof.

British troops are establishing control over the center of Athens by degrees, working out in concentric rings. Sniping continued incessantly throughout the city.

Sherman tanks were rushed into action. They attacked machinegun nests of the national liberation front forces located in housetops and other commanding positions. Fighting flared around the Temple of Zeus, Hadrian's gate and along a wide path from Averoff stadium to the Acropolis.

ELAS Troops Advancing

A British communique issued this morning said:

"In defiance of all orders both from the Greek government and Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, ELAS troops continued to advance toward the center of Athens, overwhelming police posts and even firing on British troops on guard duty.

"British and Greek regular forces have now gone into action in support of the civil power."

One British officer was killed and an enlisted man was wounded as snipers in the Plakka district opened fire before dawn on the truckload of troops passing along

Aerial Council Being Formed

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP) — The world air conference today elected the United States, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Brazil, France, Mexico and Belgium to the council which will serve as the executive body of the interim organization to supervise international air transport pending ratification of a permanent treaty.

The seven countries were the first of 21 to be named to the council and were chosen in the category of nations of "chief importance" to air transport. It is understood that a seat is being held open for Russian in that group, so that if the Soviet decides to sign the pact it will have a ready-made place on the council.

Two other groups are to be elected, five from nations contributing largely to the ground services of aviation and eight from countries so distributed that all of the world's major geographical area will be represented.

Conference Work Approved

Approval of the conference's work came at last night's session.

The conference has been called into session tomorrow for the last time.

Canada has been chosen as the seat of the interim or provisional body which will function pending ratification of the formal treaty which establishes a similar organization on a permanent basis. In brief outline, the conference of-

FIGHTING AT THE RHINE RIVER—In what is believed one of the first pictures of Allied action at the Rhine river, soldiers of the French First army fire on enemy positions on the French side of the river as Germans frantically try to flee Allied Alsatian trap and cross into Germany. Planes And PT Boats Sink 8 Jap Vessels

(By The Associated Press)

In bitter engagements reported today from either end of the storm-swept Philippines battlefront, 1,000 Japanese were killed in a five-day see-saw battle for "Shoestring ridge" and American bazookas broke up a tanked attack by trapped Japanese trying to break through a roadblock in the Ormoc corridor.

Simultaneously Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced warplanes and PT boats searching Philippine waters from Manila to the southern islands sank eight more enemy ships including a destroyer, a tanker and six small freighters.

Front-line dispatches from Leyte island said Nipponese attacks from strong positions were steadily increasing in vigor in every sector. Clearing weather was expected to bring the heaviest fighting of the Philippines campaign.

Casualty Ratio 60-1

Fiercest fighting was on "Shoestring ridge," 15 miles south of Ormoc, where 60 Japanese were killed for every American. For five nights the Japanese 26th division, seasoned Manchurian troops, attacked the U. S. Seventh division, veterans of Attu and Kwajelein. Once the Yanks were pushed off the ridge.

Troops were seldom more than 75 yards apart and often engaged in hand to hand or bayonet fighting. Supplies were so scarce that when the battle ended many Americans were borrowing rifles and ammunition from the dead and wounded.

Tokyo broadcasts claimed that Japanese bombers were pressing a two-day air attack on an Allied convoy of 70 transports east of the southern Philippines. They asserted two transports were sunk the first day. The broadcasts were unconfirmed, but if true would mean powerful American reinforcements were being brought in for forthcoming Philippines engagements.

Cheaper Ford After War Is Announced

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Henry Ford II, executive vice-president of the Ford Motor Co., confirmed reports today that his company will build a new model automobile after the war to be priced 15 to 20 per cent below the cost of the regular Ford.

"The kind of a car we have in mind would be a full-sized automobile with all of the built-in conveniences one gets in the regular models," he said in a statement issued at a press conference.

"There would be a certain conservation of weight and space made possible through more careful engineering and design."

"After V-E day we hope to get the first models in production within three or four months after the War Production board green light, full production within six months and the new model car within from one year to 18 months," he added.

90th Infantry Fighting At Siegfried Line's Edge

Siege Is Opened For Saarbrucken; City Being Shelled

BY JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Led by Texans of the 90th infantry division, Americans of the Third army forced the Saar river at six places and entered the French border town of Sarreguemines today. Artillery was turned on the Germans withdrawing northward into the Saarland.

Other assault teams beat down the last six miles toward burning Saarbrucken, little Pittsburgh of the rich coal and iron basin and the key to German defenses.

Maj. Gen. Paul W. Baade's 35th infantry division overran the major part of Sarreguemines (pop: 14,000) against light resistance. The largest French town on the river, it was entered this morning.

The Germans blew up all five bridges across the Saar in withdrawing into the third of the town they still held.

Patrols crossed the river at a seventh place, at Merzig 16 miles northwest of invested Saarlautern, where Germans still held out in strong knots around concrete advance posts of the Siegfried line.

Fight Into Line

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's assault troops fought into the Siegfried line itself at two places beyond the river in the Saarlautern area.

Texans of the 90th infantry crossed the Saar early today in assault boats at four new places in a two and a half mile stretch between Merzig and Saarlautern. They fought in the frowning hills on the east bank of the river at the edge of the Siegfried line in a rain of rifle and machinegun fire.

Within Sight Of City

Saarbrucken, capital of the 726 square miles of the Saarland, was in great and increasing peril as shells landed among its thickets of factory chimneys, smoking as they turned out war material for Hitler. The Americans were within sight of the city.

Patton's right and the flanking U. S. Seventh army squeezed down the German hold on northern Lorraine—the Karlsruhe corner—to a strip no more than 50 miles long and only five to 20 miles deep. His troops still poured through the original Saar bridge-

Dorsey Et Al To Be Freed

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6 (U.P.) — District Attorney Fred N. Howser instructed his trial deputy today not to oppose a defense motion for a directed verdict of not guilty or dismissal of assault charges against Trombonist Tommy Dorsey, his wife, Pat Dane, and Gambler Allen Smiley, winding up the trial except for the formality of Superior Judge Arthur Crum's granting of the motion.

Actor Jon Hall, who allegedly was assaulted at a party in Dorsey's apartment, was not in court.

Court Decision Cited

Howser cited a supreme court decision that the district attorney is bound to protect defendants as well as to prosecute.

"I feel," he said, "that the Dorsey case falls squarely within the circumstances outlined in this supreme court decision."

While Miss Dane bunched her luxurious Russian lynx coat around her shoulders and toyed with her three-strand pearl necklace, Howser added:

"A public prosecutor represents all the people, of whom every per-

Reds Smash Within 38 Miles Of Austria

Soviets 'Violently Intensify' Offensive On 200-Mile Front, Race Across Hungary

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Berlin admitted today that the Red Army, in a violently intensified offensive on a 200-mile front across Hungary, had raced around Lake Balaton to the area of Keszthely, 38 miles from the Austrian frontier.

Ernst von Hammer, Nazi radio commentator, said a Soviet general offensive reached the "highest pitch" from the Drava river at Hungary's southwest border to the area of Miskolc in the northwestern part of the country.

Soviet troops who reached the area of Keszthely, on the northwest tip of Lake Balaton, were destroyed, the Nazis said. The Russians appeared to have swung around the tip of the lake after breaking through the gap between the lake and Nazykanizsa.

The German fighting line northwest of Dunafoeldvar, 43 miles south of Budapest, "was withdrawn," Berlin reported, in the face of the general offensive in which the Soviet command sent "masses of their forces into the assault on every wide front."

In a great surge of power that drove tens of thousands of German and Hungarian troops reeling back in panicky retreat, Soviet tanks and mechanized infantry fanned out along the eastern shore of the lake on a front of more than 20 miles and hooked around the opposite corners of the 48-mile water barrier.

Reds Closing On Budapest

The German Transocean news agency said a massive Russian enveloping attack on Budapest from the west, south and east was in progress, and asserted that "German counter measures are in progress."

There was no confirmation of the enemy report, which said the assault opened yesterday morning in the Hatvan area east of the Hungarian capital and on Csepel island directly to the south. Soviet formations crossed the arm of the Danube from Csepel to the river's west bank, Transocean seaid.

Vanguards of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army stormed through more than 120 Hungarian towns yesterday in advances of eight to 18 miles, killing more than 2,000 Axis rear guards and capturing another 750.

Nazi Defenses Breaking

The Nazi defenses were breaking wide open under the furious Russian assault and Moscow indicated that the enemy had abandoned his announced plan to wage an all-out battle along the marshy lake shores.

Soviet dispatches and roundabout Berlin reports, however, indicated the Germans were bracing

Mystery Veils Prison Mutiny

Convicts Rebel At Mixing With Nazis

(By The United Press)

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 6.—Mystery piled on mystery today behind the gray walls of Atlanta federal penitentiary when troops, reportedly called to reinforce sentries guarding 25 desperate felons barricaded inside a prison building, departed shortly after they arrived.

The only official statement came from federal Prison Director J. V. Bennett who declared regular contact with the mutineers was being maintained and that four guards held as hostages, in a revolt which flared yesterday against confining Nazi saboteurs with other convicts, "so far are unharmed."

Earlier, Bennett denied reports that the defiant prisoners, armed with knives and razors, had threatened to "behead" their captives if officials attempted to storm their prison within a prison.

Not To See Press

Warden Joseph W. Sanford sent word out that he would not see the press today "or until this things is cleared up."

The helmeted, armed soldiers arrived at 8 a. m. when questioned, an officer in charge laughed and said they were at the prison for "routine target practice."

An enlisted man said he understood they were there "in connection with this trouble," but lapsed into silence when he learned he was addressing a newsman.

It was reported without confirmation that the felons had barricaded the doors of the building with heavy machinery. Reporters could learn of on manner in which the prisoners were receiving food, if any.

Imprisoned Guards Seen

Sanford and Bennett last night reported that the imprisoned guards, Reno H. Townsend, Orlin Harper, John W. Bacon and Henry B. Pittlekow, all of Atlanta, were "seen through the windows of the segregation building."

The men, armed with knives and razors which they pilfered from the prison barber shop, were reported to have threatened the lives of their hostages if officials attempted to storm their prison within a prison, but Bennett was well as other officials emphatically denied this morning that this was the case.

Nevertheless, the authorities

U. S. Building Plane Larger Than B-29

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—The United States is developing a gargantuan long-range bomber even bigger than the giant B-29 Superfortresses which have enabled American airmen to drop heavy bomb loads on Tokyo, testimony before a congressional committee revealed today.

The new colossus, referred to as the B-36, was reported by Dr. George W. Lewis, director of aeronautical research for the national advisory committee for aeronautics, during recent hearings before a House appropriations subcommittee on supplemental appropriations.

In addition to the B-36, Lewis mentioned a B-35 and a B-42—all long range bombers—but commented that the B-36 is "the largest airplane that has been attempted in this country."

Lewis also revealed that the Army and Navy were investigating the possibilities of planes and "guided missiles"—which are described as "non-man-carrying missiles"—powered by jet propulsion units including rocket propulsion.

The reference to guided missiles apparently alluded to weapons such as the Nazis' V-1 and V-2 rocket bombs. Lewis reported work on both jet propulsion and power units for guided missiles, which might mean both rocket types and pilotless planes operating with engines and possibly controlled by radio.

"War Heroes" Rally Is Planned Friday

Lubbock county's war finance committee was completing final arrangements today for the "War Heroes rally" here Friday when 20 combat heroes come to Lubbock Army air field in a special flight of "aerial battlewagons." The veterans will be flying in three fighter planes, a P-38 Lightning, P-47 Thunderbolt, P-51 Mustang and a Flying Fortress, Liberator and C-47 hospital service transport.

The day's program will start off with an open house at LAAF from 1 until 4 p. m. at which the public is invited to attend and inspect the various combat planes and will be climaxed by a rally at Senior High school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Friday night in which the heroes will speak. LAAF's military band will also play.

Durwood H. Bradley, chairman of the speaker's bureau, will be master of ceremonies at the high school program.

HOUSTON, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—After being closed for the past year, enlistments in the United States Navy Seabees have been reopened, with ratings for qualified craftsmen, Lieut. Cmdr. Britain, U.S. Split On Policy Toward Liberated Countries

BY JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 6 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden asserted flatly today that Britain was within her rights in trying to shape the governments of liberated countries, and thereby split completely with the American declaration of a "hands-off" policy in Italy.

Eden stood by the British government's veto of the proposed appointment of Carlo Sforza as Italian foreign minister. Secretary of State Stettinius had announced yesterday the United States did not oppose Sforza and felt the Italians should be allowed to form their own government without outside interference.

Eden's stand — clearly of significance in the reshaping of a post-war Europe — brought divided sentiment in the House.

Withdrawal Suggested

Cries of "no" met a suggestion by Ivor Thomas, laborite, that Britain "withdraw gracefully" and admit that "a blunder has been made."

Just as Stettinius implied that his "no-interference" statement was a far broader declaration than the immediate issue of Count Sforza, so Eden apparently applied his words to the future of all liberated Europe.

"I must repeat to the House that I maintain the British government has a perfect right to express an opinion to another government about a minister under conditions such as these," Eden said.

Debate Set Friday

Eden announced a full-dress debate for Friday on the crisis in Greece, where Britain is using her armed forces, in line with a Churchill declaration, against leftwing elements.

When laborite member Ivor Thomas asked whether the British government's views were being modified in the light of the American statement in favor of a

"Upsurge Of Production" For Jap War Asked By Somervell

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Conquest of the Japanese will cost us $71,000,000,000 a year "after Germany is defeated," Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell predicted today.

"The war against the Jap alone will be the biggest war this country or this world ever fought before the present war," asserted the commanding general of the Army service forces.

Somervell declared 300,000 more war workers are needed at once on critical programs as he appealed for an "upsurge of production" in a speech prepared for delivery before the National Association of Manufacturers.

Secret weapons are being produced that "must be ready in large quantities for the Pacific pushes," the speaker declared. The devices are "not yet in use in Europe."

For the first time munitions are being used up faster than they are being produced, said Somervell, warning that the full fury of the war in Europe may not even have been reached and "we are certainly not yet full out against Japan."

Somervell acknowledged heavy cost in ammunition and equipment, while reminding that "this nation has committed its troops to fighting the war in one specific fashion—with an overwhelming superiority of materiel . . . We would rather fire a ton of munitions than lose a single American soldier.

"Since Oct. 20, General Eisenhower has asked us for two-fifths of all our present mortar shell output. Yet General MacArthur . . . has used more mortar shell on Leyte than in all his previous actions combined."

German Rail, Oil Targets Bombed

LONDON, Dec. 6 (U.P.) — About 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators accompanied by a like number of fighters attacked the Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, rail yards at Bielfeld and other targets in Germany today.

Weather conditions over Germany were bad, and impeded the bombing, the results of which generally were not observed.

The daylight attack followed a night raid by British heavy bombers on the Soest rail yards in the Ruhr valley.

Wave upon wave of the black-winged British Halifaxes and Lancasters slammed across the flak-studded Ruhr after nightfall to rip and burn the Soest yards, 15 miles southeast of the Hamm freight yard that was pounded by RAF heavies by daylight yesterday.

Upwards of 55 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators and more than 800 long range fighters hit Berlin yesterday in the Eighth Air force's 11th major blow of the war at the Nazi capital and its first in two months.

With almost $1,000 yet to go to reach the needed $1,500 goal, the Goodfellows—Tenth Annual Christmas cheer drive loped along at a satisfactory rate today with $543 in contributions "in the sock."

Chief Goodfellow, the anonymous head of the campaign, issued the latest financial report at noon, which reads:

Previously reported	$377.00

Carpenters' Local No. 1884	15.00

"There are literally hundreds of potential Goodfellows in Lubbock," the drive's chieftain observed, "and I hope they'll send in their contributions in double-quick time. Every contributor to the fund automactically becomes a Goodfellow and we're glad to have donations from 25 cents on up. Every donation will be reported in The Avalanche-Journal."

Contributions should be brought or mailed to Avalanche-Journal offices, 1211-13 Texas avenue.

Meanwhile, Goodfellows engaged in the Christmas effort at tasks other than that of financing were busy. Some sort candy, fruit, nuts and toys; others wrap and sack them; still others are organizing the delivery of the packages, traditionally done on Christmas morning. But the "pressure is still on," said Chief Goodfellow, "to make sure that no underprivileged child will be overlooked on December 25."

Tax Increase Plan Proposed By Harris

HOUSTON, Dec. 6 (U.P.) — The Harris county school board will sponsor a request to the state legislature that counties in large population brackets be allowed to submit a tax increase proposal to voters for the purpose of raising teachers' salaries, officials said today.

Decision to sponsor the bill came in response to a request from Dallas county that a 10 cents per $100 valuation equalization tax for the raise by sought by larger counties of the state. Presently, Harris county has a one-cent tax, and Dallas county a five-cent tax for schools.

Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., To Succeed Gen. Clark As Commander Of U. S. Fifth Army

ROME, Dec. 6 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, jr., 49, who commanded Allied forces on the Anzio beachhead and later led assault troops in the invasion of southern France, was appointed commander of the U. S. Fifth army today.

Truscott succeeds Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, recently named commander of the 15th army group. Clark, as commander of all Allied ground forces in Italy, succeeds Field Marshal Sir Archibald Alexander, who was appointed Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean.

Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commanding general of American forces in the Mediterranean, announced the appointment of Truscott and said the effective date of the changes would be made public later.

Has Left Sixth Corps

Truscott already has left the Sixth corps in the Belfort area of France to return to Italy, the announcement stated.

The new army commander was one of the first American generals to take an active role in the execution of the war in Europe. In Britain he was attached to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's staff and helped plan and execute the Dieppe raid. He had a major role in the formation and training of American ranger battalions.

Subsequently Truscott was commander of American forces attacking Port Lyautey in the invasion of French Morocco on Nov. 8, 1942 and received the Distinguished Service Medal for outstanding planning and leadership.

Commanded Third Infantry

Early in the Tunisian campaign Truscott was Gen. Eisenhower's personal representative in the field. He later took command of the Third infantry—"the rock of the Marne" division.

He led the division in the successful assault upon strongly held beaches in southern Sicily, then into Italy and finally to the Anzio beachhead in January, 1944. Then he was made commander of the Sixth army corps, controlling all beachhead troops.

Truscott was commissioned a reserve lieutenant in 1917 after he had enlisted in the Army. He remained in the United States in the last war, but he made the Army his career and was a lieutenant colonel at the time of Pearl Har-

War Has Slowed Development Of Astronomy; New Discoveries Are Expected After War

By WALTER S. ADAMS
Director, Mount Wilson Observatory
(Written For The Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 6. — The direct effects of the war upon the progress of astronomy can be listed without difficulty. Among them are the damaging and, in a few cases such as Pulkowa in Russia, the complete destruction of observatories and their equipment; the removal from their positions, and often the persecution of astronomers in occupied Europe; the cessation of most of the international cooperative investigations which have accomplished so much in the field of astronomy, and of course the diversion of great numbers of scientists from their normal pursuits to intensive work upon technical war problems.

Walter S. Adams

Several Projects Postponed

To these may be added the necessary postponement until after the war of the completion of several great astronomical projects such as the Radcliffe Observatory in South Africa and the 200-inch telescope and accessories in Southern California.

None of these war effects is necessarily serious upon the future of astronomy. Observatories can be replaced, great telescopes completed, and scientists can return to their former fields of activity. The International - Astronomical Union with its membership of 40 nations will doubtless survive the war.

For those entering astronomical research, however, the opportunities for adding to our knowledge of the physical world were never so great. Intensive research for war has brought within a very few years discoveries which when applied to astronomy will result in far better observational equipment than we have had before.

New kinds of glass, advances in optical design, and new alloys will provide greatly improved lenses and much more efficient optical instruments, while developments in electronics and improvements in mechanical devices, precision methods of measurement, and photographic plates will extend our ability to detect and interpret the records brought to us by the telescopes of the present and future.

It is recognition of these developments that several nations, more especially Russia and Turkey are making extensive plans for the construction of large observatories after the war.

We have a wealth of knowledge of stars in their present state and with the aid of known physical laws of atomic processes we seek to learn the order of stellar development, how the stars maintain their light, heat, age and their life-expectancy.

In major investigations of this sort the mathematician and physicist are needed equally with the observational astronomer, and the progress of astronomy in the post-war years will depend quite as much upon the analytical mind of the scientist as upon the great telescope which brings him material gathered from the depths of space.

STAR GAZERS—Research for war has brought many new technological advances to astronomy but scientists fear brilliant students, now in uniform, may never resume their educations.

Lubbock Navy Flier Member Of Famed "Fighting Eight"

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6—After helping to pave the way for the October landings in the Philippines, Navy Fighting Squadron Eight, of which Lt. (jg) Thomas I. Brown, USNR, of 1630 Nineteenth, Lubbock, Texas, is a member, is now back in the United States on leave.

In action since March, from Palau to the Philippines, "Fighting Eight" shot down a total of 153 planes in aerial combat, destroyed 90 more on the ground, sank 42,000 tons of Japanese shipping and probably sank about 30,000 tons more. The prime example of "Fighting Eight" efficiency came when the outfit sank four Jap submarines with only four bombs.

In recalling this feat, Cmdr. William H. Collins, USN, the Squadron's commander, said, "We were making a fighter sweep at Okinawa in the Nanei Islands when we discovered the subs anchored in a sheltered cove. Ensign Raymond Baldwin, USNR, of Devon, Conn., dropped a bomb between the coning towers of two of the underseas craft, which had been lashed together. He sank both of them with the single bomb, while three bombs from other planes accounted for the other two."

Cmdr. Collins also told of the time 14 Helcats of "Fighting Eight" ran into 50 or 60 Japanese fighter planes while raiding Formosa. The American pilots knocked 32 of them down within 10 minutes, without any loss of their group.

After a period of rest in this country, members of "Fighting Eight" will enter training for another tour of duty.

Ruling On Oil Work Overtime Reversed

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6 (AP)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today reversed Judge Peirson M. Hall of Los Angeles, and held that under the fair labor standards act, employes of oil drillers, if worked overtime, must be paid overtime wages, regardless of whether the well is "dry" or a producer.

Judge Hall had ruled that the act did not apply in the case of a dry well, because interstate commerce was not involved, inasmuch as no oil was produced.

The circuit court took a broader view, holding that drilling is a part of production, and there was no way of knowing whether the well would or would not be a producer.

From 1929 through 1935, the American consumer public normally borrowed more than eight per cent of the annual national income.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — Corporations went over the top in the sixth war loan today, earlier than in any previous drive, but individual bond buyers were still in the trenches.

Today individual sales reached $2,430,000,000. The full quota is $5,000,000,000.

The population of Switzerland is about 4,260,000.

Heavy Ammunition Still Being Rationed

BY WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE U. S. NINTH ARMY In Germany, Dec. 6 — Despite a considerable improvement in Army supplies, which has allowed full scale operations, artillery ammunition still is being rationed on the western front.

During quiet periods artillery commanders are instructed to conserve supplies for future operations. Some local operations do not get full support during these lulls because of the ammunition shortage. Batteries are put on definite quotas, which are lifted only when the high command strikes with a full scale effort.

A great deal has been said concerning the reasons for the shortage. At first it was ports and transportation, which the Army's rapid advance outstripped, but now port and rail facilities are such that every army on the western front can be supplied for an indefinite period for a full scale offensive if the goods are available in Britain and America.

Production Lagging

Here are the facts concerning the ammunition shortage as they are known here:

The production of ammunition for guns of larger caliber than 105 millimeter has not gone steadily upward since the start of the war, as would seem logical when America put more guns and men into her armies abroad.

The chart of large caliber ammunition production over the past three years hits a peak and then dives steeply down. This apparently was because military and civilian production chiefs, trying to keep a close check on the trends of warfare and to avoid large surpluses, reacted too quickly to temporary situations on the fighting fronts.

In other words, when expenditures of ammunition momentarily were less than expected, cuts in future estimated production apparently were ordered.

Use Big Guns More

During the campaign in North Africa, big guns such as the 155-millimeter Long Toms and the 240 howitzer seldom if ever were used. With heavy stress being laid on mobility, the experts presumably theorized that warfare had changed, that it was all speed and that the big slow-moving siege guns never would catch up with the fast-moving armies.

Even in the early days of the fighting in France the largest ammunition required was of 105-millimeter caliber. This held good until the Allies hit the Siegfried line and came to a sudden halt.

It was discovered then that lighter caliber guns were no good against heavy fixed offenses and the 240-millimeter howitzers were rushed to the front. It was learned further that these fixed defenses were stronger than anything encountered in the last war, and it took greater barrages to break them down than original estimates provided for.

Pacific War Causes Drain

Furthermore the Pacific war spurted ahead at about the same time and placed a great drain on ammunition of all types. Operations on Leyte began to require more ammunition of larger caliber.

The war in Europe also is lasting longer and becoming more costly than perhaps the topflight planners thought.

Thus overnight a critical ammunition shortage developed in a country used to having a surplus of everything. Factories which had been ordered to divert production to other materials had to be put back on ammunition.

The crisis is now past, but there is still not enough ammunition and the lack of it probably will prolong the war.

Amarillo Printers Are Back At Work

AMARILLO, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—Amarillo printers were back at work today after a union-management settlement last night ended a 29-hour strike that had left three daily papers and a weekly without composing room workers.

Tex Smith, president of International Typographical Union, local 525, (AFL), announced that the printers had agreed upon 37½ hours a week with a 10 per cent raise over the present base pay, subject to War Labor board approval.

When the "meeting" strike started Monday afternoon, it was reported that the union asked for hours to be reduced from 40 to 35 weekly with base pay remaining the same, but that the publishers countered with the offer that was accepted last night.

The morning News missed its two Tuesday editions, and the Globe and Times, afternoon papers, published makeshift typewritten engraved editions yesterday, as did the News this morning.

The agreement was reached too late last night to get out a regular morning edition of the News.

"HELLCAT's the Name for It!"

Maybe you've seen some of those GI's with Tank Destroyer emblems on their shoulders. They're a great bunch of guys—proud of their service—and for months they've been itching for the day when the hush-hush lid would be lifted so they could tell the world what it's all about.

We know how they've felt—for they've been training with Buick's baby—the M-18 Hellcat—dreamed up, developed and brought to production by Buick men, with the enthusiastic aid of Ordnance experts.

Then came the big day. The Hellcat went into action, with its 55-mile top speed and its heavy-slugging 76-mm. cannon.

Fresh from the fighting front, an official Army observer called it "the hottest thing in armored warfare," which was grand news to our ears.

But what really warmed our hearts was the flood of letters—thousands of them—which poured in from the men who've worked and trained and lived with this destroyer, once they learned that Buick builds the Hellcat.

Buick powers the Liberator too. And our mail has been heavy with letters from flyers, telling us how much faith they've come to feel in those great-powered, Buick-built, valve-in-head aircraft engines.

So pardon us, please, if we feel a bit proud about the way these boys write us. Such cheers as theirs are the finest reward anyone could ask or hope for.

Legion Auxiliary's Gift Drive Success

Response to an appeal by the American Legion and Auxiliary for "Christmas gifts for Yanks who gave" has been more than satisfactory, Mrs. Riley Duff, president of the auxiliary, said this morning.

Lubbock's part in the Christmas gifts for veterans was part of a national gift campaign. The gifts will be distributed where needed in the nation's veterans hospitals. The Legion will be notified in the next few days where Lubbock's contributions will be sent.

The Lubbock auxiliary is now collecting contributions for gift shops which will be set up at veterans hospitals in Amarillo and Legion. Purpose of the gift shops is to give patients an opportunity to select gifts, which will be free to the veterans, for their families.

Gifts or contributions, Mrs. Duff said, may be taken to the Legion hall at 910 Texas. Although gifts will be acceptable any time in the next few months, it is especially important that a large package be sent to the hospitals in the next few days so veterans may do their Christmas shopping.

hands-off policy in Italy, Eden replied.

"I can assure you that my answers are revised up to the very last minite."

The House laughed.

"I explained the attitude of the British government in my statement of Dec. 1," said Eden. "The statement subsequently issued by Signor Bonomi in no way modifies the views of his majesty's government."

Opposed To Sforza

Eden said on Dec. 1 that the British "did not feel Count Sforza would be a particularly happy choice as foreign minister and accused Sforza of working against the Italian government of Prime Minister Ivanoe Bonomi, who was cooperating with Britain.

Bonomi later denied that Sforza had worked against him and said he felt Eden meant the Badoglio government instead.

"Do you seriously mean to maintain the attitude that Count Sforza has worked against Signor Bonomi when Signor Bonomi says that that is not so?" asked Sir Richard Acland leader of the left-wing Commonwealth party.

"I have said what our position is," replied Eden. "I have nothing to add."

Discussion Broadened

The discussion was broadened to include Britain's policy in other liberated countries when Eden was asked whether Britain's maintenance of the present Belgian government in office was "dictated solely by military considerations."

Eden said that any action taken by Allied troops in Belgium was carried out under instructions of Gen. Eisenhower and that while Belgium remained a zone of military operations the supreme commander must be free to take whatever action he though necessary to keep order.

Asked if the Americans were in agreement, Eden replied "yes, so far as I am aware."

Police today were investigating a complaint that jewelry had been taken from the 2806 Twenty-first residence of Dr. W. W. Yokum, professor of plant industry at Texas Tech. The theft or burglary—it had not been determined which—presumably happened in September. A watch, brooches, rings and an award fashioned from a $5 gold coin minted in 1873 and engraved with the name of Bertie Stringer were included in the loot, police were told.

Judge J. E. Vickers of 99th district court this morning entered an order summoning three grand jury commissioners to meet with him at 10 o'clock Monday morning for purpose of selecting a grand jury panel of 16 Lubbock county men. The grand jury would serve the court in the January term. Named were J. H. Brewer of Slaton, J. M. Marks of Idalou and R. C. Hankins of Lubbock.

So few, in fact, he timed out this morning—after he had gathered 160 bales and estimated his crop in the field at 60 more—to mail to Lynn county an abstract describing a new farm he had bought there. His 220 bales were produced from 300 acres in Lubbock county. "Lots of land in the south part of this county is doing better than mine," he said. "It will produce a bale to the acre." Smith is a brother of Truett Smith, Tahoka lawyer who formerly was 106th district attorney.

Control Plans Are Defended

DALLAS, Dec. 6 (AP)—America's economic structure is in as much danger of upheaval after the war as that of bomb-shattered nations unless governmental control succeeds, Cmdr. Alfred Stanford, national information head of Office of Price administration, said here today.

Commander Stanford, newly appointed information specialist, conferred with OPA divisional heads in Dallas with James G. Rogers, jr., deputy to Office of Price Administrator Chester Bowles.

Because the nation is at its peak of a temporary war production program which has abnormally boosted the nation's income, it is almost impossible to realize the strains which the national economy is suffering, he said.

Must Continue OPA

The OPA program, designed to keep the cost of living down, must continue until the danger has been averted by a balancing of supply with demand, Rogers declared. But it is expected that some orders will go into effect to lift ceilings at the end of the Japanese war.

The assistant to Bowles reported that cost of living is up 26.5 per cent since the days before the war, but that rise since the administration of the OPA control program has been a fraction of that amount.

Texas Cities Seek Share In Vehicle Registration Fees

HOUSTON, Dec. 6. (AP) — The League of Texas Municipalities yesterday named Mayor J. A. Sadler of Colorado City as president and adopted a number of resolutions advocating revenue raising legislation.

Proposed legislation that would amend the present state motor vehicle registration law would allow cities to receive 40 per cent of the first $50,000 and 20 per cent of the next $75,000 which now goes to the counties, the new league head explained.

Another resolution calls for the enactment of a measure allowing cities to retain the four cent gasoline tax now refunded to plane owners and operators.

A third resolution would make certain the rights of cities to sell real estate for delinquent taxes and a fourth would require motor vehicle owners to pay their ad valorem taxes before a state license could be received.

Favor Retirement Plan

The league through the adoption of other resolutions also went on record favoring legislation setting up a statewide retirement system for city employes; approved proposed legislation to extend city planning and zoning jurisdiction of cities to include suburban areas and reaffirmed its opposition to federal taxation of the income of municipal governments.

L. C. Elliott, regional manager of the CAA, in a paper read before the convention, voiced opposition to the establishment of airports in the heart of cities.

Other officers of the league elected were: City Manager Lee H. Powell, Sherman; Mayor Joe A. Jenkins, Amarillo; Mayor C. P. Dodson, Decatur; Miss Agnes Sabegiel, city attorney, Fredericksburg; W. R. Smitham, city manager, Dallas and Mayor E. E. Doughtie, Bay City vice presidents. E. E. McAdams of Austin was reelected as executive director.

Attempt To Form World Labor Setup Looms As Leaders Plan Conference In London Feb. 6

BY LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Two of the four great organizations of American labor will participate in the International Trades Union world conference scheduled to begin in London on Feb. 6 and two will boycott the meeting, final returns on invitations showed today.

Chairman Sidney Hillman of the Congress of Industrial organizations' Political Action committee already has arrived in London to attend a preparatory conference. The transportation orders of the railway Brotherhoods will be represented at the London conference by President Harry Fraser of the conductors.

AFL, UMW Reject Bids

The American federation of labor and the United Mine Workers of America have rejected invitations to attend. The AFL did not conceal its unwillingness to sit in such a conference with delegates from Soviet Russian trades unions, which the AFL says are not trade unions at all because they are not free but actually are Communist-created and Communist-controlled.

John L. Lewis' miners did not announce their reasons for rejecting the invitation, but it is understood that Communist representation was also the determining factor with the UMW.

Hillman in London and Vasili Kuznetzov in Moscow have been talking about London conference objectives. Their general aims are almost identical. Speaking at a London press conference yesterday, Hillman said he believed the "world looks forward to the united forces of labor fighting for proper international relations." To that end he proposed the establishment—presumably by the London conference—of a world wide trade organization.

Democratic Base Urged

Kuznetzov, head of the Soviet trade unions, discussed London conference objectives in Moscow last Sunday, according to a daily worker dispatch. He also proposed a new world labor organization. Kuznetzov outlined the scope of what he had in mind.

1. It should have a broad, Democratic base.

2. It must be "militant" and capable of fighting Fascism and those who preach Fascism.

3. It must "consolidate the ranks of the working classes of all Democratic countries for the solution of present and postwar problems."

A Moscow dispatch dated Dec. 4 speculated on the possibility that the AFL rank and file soon or late would compel its leaders to reverse themselves on the question of participating in conferences with representatives of the Soviet Union. Hillman also evidently has that in mind. He told press conference questioners in London yesterday that it was not known whether the AFL would be represented there next month.

Hillman added that "no labor leader can speak for the membership on international cooperation." In response to inquiries, the office of AFL President William Green said emphatically that the AFL convention's decision to stay away from the London conference was definite and final.

War Department To Deduct CIO Dues

HOUSTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — The War department will start this month deducting from pay checks union dues of CIO members working for the Hughes Tool company main and aircraft strut plants, the operation of which was taken over by the War department on Sept. 6, 1944.

Deduction of the dues was provided in an order issued today by the National War Labor board in Washington, Col. Frank W. Cawthon, War department representative in charge of the plants, said.

Grandma Switches Millions of Mothers To Her Mutton Suet Idea For Chest Colds

Pioneer grandma liked to "rub colds" with a "home rub" containing mutton suet. Such a rub was her "old reliable" for relieving chest muscle tightness, soothing bronchial irritation, loosening phlegm, checking coughing, easing sting of chapped lips and nostrils. Today science has modernized this principle with Penetro, the salve with a base containing this same old fashioned mutton suet, plus 5 active ingredients—so now Grandma's old idea is switching millions to this newer relief that is being hailed all over America.

You'll like Penetro the first time you feel it spread smoothly on chest, throat, back—its mutton suet makes it melt instantly, vanish quickly. It gets to work 3 ways at once to make you and your children more comfortable—(1) Penetro relieves colds' pain as its mutton suet helps carry medication to nerve ends in the skin. (2) Relieves muscular tightness and congestion through counter-irritation (increased blood flow). (3) Loosens phlegm, eases coughing through pleasant inhalation of instantly released vapors.

You'll feel relief so quickly—as painful misery eases, coughing is lessened, phlegm loosened, chest rawness soothed. You'll rest more comfortably, give nature a chance to restore vitality through sound sleep. That's why so many mothers thank Grandma for her idea—praise science for perfecting it—and buy Penetro at druggists everywhere. Relieve your chest cold miseries as millions are doing—today get your jar of white, easy-to-use Penetro.

Cotton Export Program Hit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — Administration officials declared today that continuance of the new cotton export program authorized by Congress might precipitate broad scale economic warfare between Allied nations.

Testifying before a special House agriculture postwar planning committee, Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared objections already have arisen from friendly foreign cotton-producing countries to the world sale of the American staple on a subsidized basis. The committee is headed by Rep. Pace (D-Ga).

Similar criticism was voiced by L. A. Wheeler, foreign relations director for the Agriculture department. He declared that the only practicable solution to this country's cotton export problem lay in the working out of international trade agreements.

Situation Termed Serious

Referring to provisions of the recently-passed surplus properties disposal act which authorizes the Commodity Credit corporation to sell at a loss in the export trade American cotton it has acquired as security on loans, Acheson said:

"This situation is serious in itself, because it is a source of irritation in our relations with other friendly countries.

"It is even more serious, however, because it is likely to affect the confidence of other countries in our sincerity of purpose and in our general program of seeking, in collaboration with other nations, a general reduction of trade barriers and the elimination of discriminations and other unfair methods of trade."

Domestic Plan Not Questioned

Explaining that he was not questioning the wisdom of the domestic program of aiding cotton producers, Acheson said some plan must be worked out to meet the "immediate grievance" of these competitive countries.

Improved staple quality, lower production costs and redoubled sales efforts both at home and abroad had been held out as the sole hope of the cotton industry as a congressional committee continued its study of the cotton problem.

Oscar Johnston, president of the National Cotton council, told the committee that the industry must accomplish those things if it is to survive.

Johnston mentioned rayon in discussing competition which confronts cotton growers and manufacturers, pointing out that rayon is delivered to textile mills now at 25 cents a pound, while the parity price of middling 15-16th inch cotton is approximately 24 cents delivered.

Diversion Plan Suggested

The committee also heard Agriculture Secretary Wickard suggest a vast crop diversion program to curb cotton production, and War Food Administrator Marvin Jones asserted the success of any program depends first upon full industrial employment and next upon negotiation of world trade agreements.

A crop diversification system, Wickard said, would have to be supplemented by a credit plan enabling farmers to buy machinery and livestock, and while he conceded it would cost the government substantially in the beginning he contended it offers the best means of averting eventual payment of large subsidies.

The meeting, which is expected to last a week, was called by Rep. Pace (D-Ga) because of concern over prospects of a 12,000,000-bale cotton surplus at the close of the war and prospects of expanding low-cost foreign staple.

EAST MEETS WEST—AND LIKES IT—The friendly relations Yank fighters quickly establish with people whose lands are strange to them is symbolized in this photo of Sgt. Robert L. Jobs Problems Seen For Air Service Vets

DALLAS, Dec. 6 (AP)—Not more than an estimated 10 per cent of the men who received specialized training in the air services will be able to get jobs in the aviation industry, the Dallas personnel association was told today.

Luther E. Woodward, field consultant for the rehabilitation division of the national committee for mental hygiene, New York, told the group:

"Many men who formerly worked at small jobs have risen pretty high in military ranks and have become accustomed to carrying heavy responsibilities. They have been getting pay far beyond their former civilian salaries."

Employers will have jobs for some of the group who have acquired higher status, Woodward said, "but other men will face the necessity of accepting work and pay at lower levels, at least for awhile."

Jan. 15 Deadline On Soil Building Work

Walter Y. Wells, secretary of the Lubbock County Agricultural Conservation association, said all soil-building practices under the Agricultural Adjustment administration program in 1944 must be reported to the county office by Jan. 15, 1945. The Washington office will commence payments Jan. 16.

This means, Wells said, that all practices such as contour farming and contour listing, building terraces or building tanks for the storage of livestock water, harvesting sudan grass or alfalfa for seed, leaving stubble on the land as a protection against wind erosion or any other soil building practice carried out must be reported to the county office by Jan. 15, 1945. The practice must be completed on the farm by Dec. 31, 1945.

"We hope every operator will report all the practices he has carried out before this closing date in order that he may receive full payment," Wells added.

Widow Of Texas War Of 1836 Vet Dies

AUSTIN, Dec. 6 (U.P.) — Only two widows of veterans who fought in the Texas war of independence in 1836 remained on quarterly pensions from the state today, following the death at Giddings yesterday of Mrs. Julia Kersting Redfield.

They are Mrs. Susan R. Freeman of Elkhart and Mrs. Mary Longley of Abilene.

Born on Nov. 8, 1855, in Washington county, Tex., Mrs. Redfield was married to Henry P. Redfield in Bastrop county in 1872.

Coming to Texas in 1830, as an Indian fighter, Redfield participated in the battle at Gonzales in 1835, and served with Col. Edward Burleson's company under Gen. Sam Houston at the battle of San Jacinto. Redfield was one of Santa Ana's guards after the Mexican general's capture at the battle which freed the young republic from Mexican control.

Later, he served under Gen. Zachery Taylor in the U. S. war with Mexico, and then in the Confederate army. He was born in New Hampshire in 1819, and died in Texas in 1900.

Flames Nearly Out; Fliers Renew Them

U. S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE HQ., England, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—A flight of Mustangs led by Capt. Gerald Montgomery of Fort Worth, Tex., saw a fire crew trying to put out a blaze on the roof of a German factory during the raid on the Reich yesterday.

"We circled and watched the firemen put out the fire," Montgomery said. "Then we went down and started it again with incendiary bullets.

"When a fire truck began fighting the blaze again, we shot up the truck, and it burned up, too."

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

Getting value out of the food you eat is your No. 1 health problem whether you eat 500 or 2,000 pounds yearly.

To do this, scientists say, you must have an adequate supply of natural stomach digestive juices and rich, red-blood must be present.

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

Undigested food sours, causes gas . . . bloating . . . fails to supply the necessary body energy . . . tissue repair . . . often resulting in nervousness and loss of energy.

So with ample stomach digestive juices PLUS RICH, RED-BLOOD you should enjoy that sense of well-being which denotes physical fitness . . . mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed (1) to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and (2) to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient.

These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Legionnaire Urges Military Training

In support of the Legion's post-war universal military training proposal, Bertram E. Giesecke, Austin architect and Legionnaire, said Tuesday night the best way to keep Americans out of global fights is to teach them how to fight.

Giesecke said that the United States perhaps other countries of the world — might not have become involved in the present struggle had this nation boasted a formidable army and navy.

Giesecke's remarks were heard by a small audience at the home of Allen Bros. post, sponsor of his appearance here. In the audience were Legionnaires from Lubbock and other South Plains towns, negroes from Lubbock's Booker T. Washington post, representatives of Texas Technological college and local civic organizations and a scattering of servicemen.

"We may not have time to prepare for the next war," the speaker declared. "Developments in science, discoveries in the field of radio and electronics — designing of powerful, long-range planes— could result in the United States being attacked from both oceans, suddenly and without warning."

Giesecke asserted that the drafting of young men — "anywhere between the ages of 18 and 21— and placing them in army and naval reserves upon completion of their training would preclude the necessity of maintaining a huge standing army. However, he stressed that the Legion's plans includes one for "a strong standing army" as the nucleus for the whole training program.

Giesecke admitted that the biggest problem facing the Legion program is to arrange it where youngsters' education would be interrupted as little as possible.

In this connection, he cited figures which purportedly show that 88 per cent of American boys and girls do not advance in educational training above the senior class in high school. The educational problem would not be so pressing in processing this group, he said.

Youths without plans for college study would be drafted at 18 for 12 months of uninterrupted military or naval training, Giesecke said. High school graduates who intend to go to college would be given three months of "basic training" and "deferred" to four years of college study. In colleges where ROTC training is offered, the student would be credited for whatever extent of this type of training that he received. The youth in the non-military college would be drafted upon his graduation.

Divided Training Period

All, sooner or later, would be required to receive the equivalent of 12 months of training under the plan, Giesecke asserted.

The training period would be divided into three months of basic, six months of specialization and three months of maneuvers, the Legiannaire said.

At the end of his year of training, the youth would be placed in active reserve for a period of five years, subject to periodic "refresher courses." After this period the trainee, Giesecke said, would be put on the inactive list and at the age of 27 be released from further training.

Advantages Cited

Giesecke said the program, which has yet to reach the legislative stage, would give the United States the "lowest-cost insurance," amplify duties of citizenship, reduce juvenile delinquency, improve public education and health and would result in "a stronger, more intelligent young citizenship."

"There would be no conscientous objectors under the Legion's proposal," he declared. Every youth excepting those with severe physical handicaps would be taught to do a useful job for his nation, Giesecke stated.

Budapest built the world's first subway — a group of tiny white cars, each provided with cushions which traveled along the two and a quarter mile route from the city center to the city park.

Safety Specialist To Speak Here Today

Public safety will be discussed by H. R. Danford of New York, director of the education division of the National Conservation bureau, who will speak in the interests of a movement to promote safety education in public schools, at a general faculty meeting at 4 p. m. today in the Lubbock High school auditorium.

The talk is to be one of a series now being presented in Texas under sponsorship of the state department of public education and th. Texas Safety Association.

Members of the faculty of any South Plains schools are invited to hear the talk, school officials said.

Representing the education department will be either State Superintendent L. A. Woods or T. M. Trimble, first assistant superintendent, and C. L. Yarbrough, director of safety education. Also to be presented are R. O. Smith, manager of the Texas Safety association, and Capt. J. O. Musick, of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Japs Utter Veiled Threat On POW

(By The United Press)

Japan, smarting under the impact of mounting Superfortress raids on Tokyo, uttered a veiled new threat today against the lives of captured American airmen.

Radio Tokyo said Japan, in formal replies to American and British inquiries about the treatment of Allied air prisoners, had made it clear that she would hold responsible "under international law those enemy airmen who are clearly found to have deliberately breached established practices of warfare."

Reply Delayed 3 Months

It was on the self same ground of "breaches of established practies of warfare" that Japan tried and executed several of the fliers who praticipated in the raid led by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle on Tokyo April 18, 1942.

A Tokyo broadcast by the official Japanese Domei agency said Japan had replied officially last Friday through the Swiss legation to inquiries received from the United States government Sept. 26 and Britain Sept. 6. No reason was given for the delay of nearly three months in answering the inquiries.

Details Are Disclosed

Details of the reply were said to have been disclosed today by Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the board of information, at a press confrence in Tokyo.

"He said the Japanese government in its reply reiterated that its basic policy in dealing with various affairs arising in the course of the war is, as you know, to observe with sincerity and consistency the international rules and regulations governing methods of warfare.

"He pointed out that, while thus adhering to the international rules and regulations, the Japanese government naturally expects both the United States and Britain likewise to observe them.

Rules Said Violated

"The spokesman stressed that the Japanese government made it clear that it would hold responsible under the stipulations of international law those enemy aviators who are clearly found to have deliberately breached the established tactics of warfare, just as combatant categories other than aviators who have committed such criminal acts.

"At the same time, the spokesman pointed out that the Japanese government called the serious attention of the United States and Britain to the fact that members of United States and British airplane crews have, in their attacks on Japanese forces, frequently violated the clearly established rules and regulations concerning methods of warfare, and demanded that the United States and Britain issue instructions with a view to preventing a repetition of such violations."

The Domei broadcast was recorded by the United Press in New York.

It was recalled that Japan accused the executed Doolittle airmen of bombing and machine gunning civilians during the carrier-borne raid on Tokyo. Significantly Japanese propaganda broadcasts have claimed that bombs dropped by American Superfortresses in the past fortnight fell principally on schools or homes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — The 3,733 ton naval ammunition ship Mount Hood was lost when it accidentally blew up at an advanced base in the central Pacific, the Navy reported today.

A communique also disclosed the sinking of three small naval vessels and a motor torpedo boat as a result of enemy action in the Pacific.

Commander Harold Agnew Turner, 56, of Palm City, Calif., commanding officer of the Mount Hood, was reported missing. No other details of loss of life on the Mount Hood were given.

The vessels lost to enemy action were the motor mine sweepers YMS 19 and YMS 385, with a normal complement of about 20 men each, the landing craft infantry (gunboat) 459, with a normal complement of about 30, and the motor torpedo boat PT 363, with a normal complement of about 12. There was no loss of life on the LIC 459, the Navy said.

Commanding officers of all the vessels except the Mount Hood survived.

American-Style Democracy In Action

Scout Troop Formed, Kids Sing 'Shoo Shoo Baby' In Palaus

BY SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press War Writer

ANGAUR, Palau Islands, Nov. 22 (Delayed)—A file of sturdy legged, kinky-haired native kids, led by a bespectacled GI, trudged down the coral road singing "Shoo Shoo Baby."

It was Boy Scout troop No. 1 of Angaur, composed of sons of natives of these western Caroline islands.

This was my introduction to democracy in action, American style, on this island which was once a part of the Japanese empire.

Boy Scout troop No. 1 has no charter from the Boy Scouts of America. But its aims and ideals are no different from those of the B. S. A. Bear patrol in Oshkosh or the Wolf cub pack in Millville. Its organization is just one of the numerous undertakings by the Navy's Civil Affairs administrator on this island designed to inculcate the natives with a true sense of freedom.

Not Simple Task

And this is not a simple task, for it must be remembered that the natives of Palau had been under the domination of three different masters — the Spanish, the Germans and the Japanese—before our troops fought their way ashore.

The Civil Affairs officer, a former Wisconsin university anthropologist, established them in a tent villager for their homes had been destroyed in the fighting.

The job was not an easy one. There were many different tribes, different peoples — Yaps, Woleis, Chamorros, Sensorals and Angarese. But through the application of democratic principles, the officer succeeded in welding these groups into a happy community.

Presides Over Council

Once a week he presides over a council of the tribal chiefs, discussing matters of administration with them and taking up their suggestions and complaints.

Cooking is done in a community kitchen. Most of the food comes from the Army stores but the natives are beginning to supply fresh fish and vegetables.

The biggest tent in the community is the school. There English is being taught to young and old — ironically enough by using Japanese for purposes of translation.

I watched one of the classes in session. A young naval officer is the schoolmaster, assisted by a native girl educated by the Japanese.

Everyone sat on the board floor, crosslegged, reciting sentences written on a blackboard and singing native songs. Each night after the evening meal there is native dancing. Many of the girls also perform American dance steps they have learned from watching movies.

One of the soldiers, a former Pittsburgh settlement worker, organized the Boy Scout troop. It was he who taught the youngsters to sing "Shoo Shoo Baby" and to give it that final American touch, the rallying call of the Angurese scouts is:

"Hi de ho!"

Bond Buyers To Get Free Theater Tickets

Bond booth sales so far have not been up to those purchased in other war loan drives, theater officials said today. They expressed a hope that buying would be increased in the next few days and that Lubbock's fine record would not be broken.

Navy Gets Big Share Of Fund

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (U.P.) — The House appropriations committee trimming administration estimates by 28 per cent, today recommended supplemental appropriations totaling $415,324,712 for government expenditures during the current fiscal year.

A major proportion of the total was earmarked for the Navy, which would receive new appropriations of $339,126,563 in addition to contract authorizations of $10,000,000 for its rocket production program and a reappropriation of $52,500,000 from surplus funds previously appropriated.

Budget bureau estimates had called for $576,349,607 in new appropriations. The committee said approximately one third of its proposed reduction resulted from diversions from expected surpluses in previous appropriations and the balance from reductions in or elimination of proposed items.

Budget Estimate Cut

Cutting a budget bureau estimate by 15 per cent, the committee recommended an appropriation of $19,918,495 for government agencies to pay the cost of their own mail under a law passed last June 28.

It approved in full a request to spend $17,559,000 in collecting statistics needed in connection with reconversion problems. It also recommended the appropriation of $10,571,000 sought by the Veterans' administration for the establishment of regional offices and other facilities.

Another request approved in full called for $10,297,102 for the War department with most of the sum going for two river projects. One project would provide for the expenditure of $7,230,000 (part of an authorized total of $22,337,000) to raise the levee heights on both banks of the Mississippi river between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, Mo. The second appropriation would provide $2,780,000 for reconstruction and extension of piers at the Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., lock project.

Frown On Works Projects

The committee recommended by refusal of a request for $75,000,000 to be used by the federal security agency for loans to states and municipalities planning postwar public works projects. Although such loans were authorized in the reconversion law enacted last summer, the committee said the budget request could await consideration next year.

It also denied, "at this time," a request for $30,000 to provide for United States participation in the United Nations war crimes investigating commission.

The committee rejected interior department requests for $3,860,000 to prepare a plan for the development of Alaska and for $1,075,000 to investigate Alaskan petroleum resources.

San Salvador Hit By Reign Of Terror

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6 (AP) — Newspapers just received from San Salvador report that a reign of terror ensued there between midnight Thursday and 1 a. m. Friday.

Violent outbursts Thursday night marked continued resistance to the regime of General Osmin Aguirre Salinas, who ousted former president Ignacio Mendendez October 21. A general strike goes on, supported by partisans of Dr. Tomas Miguel Molina, president of the El Salvador supreme court, the constitutional successor to Menendez. Molina now heads a government-in-exile in Guatemala.

The newspapers said electric lights all over the city went out at midnight and immediately firing of pistols followed by machineguns was heard throughout the darkened streets. From time to time heavy explosions of bombs shook the city.

The police found the body of a man who had been electrocuted cutting power lines.

The machinegun firing turned out to have been done by the police to intimidate those who were firing pistols.

There were no casualties other than the man electrocuted, but a car of the U. S. embassy, unoccupied, had a bullet hole in the windshield.

Abilene Woman, 119, To Be Buried Today

ABILENE, Dec. 6 (AP) — Funeral services were planned here today for Mrs. Crescencia Moralez, who had said she was 119 years old. She died in Abilene Monday.

When, in 1943, she applied for a food ration card, Mrs. Moralez gave her birth date as October 3, 1825. She was subsequently interviewed by John R. Hutton, principal of an Abilene public school, who reported that she had a good recollection of events that occurred during the early history of Texas.

Continued fair weather was forecast for this afternoon but the weather man said temperatures would fall to the 22-26 level tonight. Warmer weather was forecast Thursday.

WEST TEXAS, NEW MEXICO SKIES ARE CLEARING

(By The United Press)

Clearing skies over West Texas and New Mexico brought relief today from several days of snow, sleet and rain, while East Texas still was covered with a cloud blanket that dripped moisture in scattered areas.

Temperatures in Texas this morning ranged from a low of 20 degrees at Amarillo to a high of 49 at Brownsville, while in New Mexico a new season low of one degree below zero was recorded at Otto, where 10 inches of snow covered the ground.

Fair weather prevailed over the Panhandle and South Plains areas of West Texas and was moving over the remainder of that section at mid-morning, while all points in New Mexico reported clear skies.

East Texas Gets Rain

Precipitation in Texas during the 24 hours ending at 8:30 a. m. today appeared heaviest in East Texas, where Lufkin reported 2.66 inches, and along the upper coast where Port Arthur had 1.93 inches and Houston 1.75 inches.

Other Texas minimum temperatures today included 21 at Pampa, 3 at Dalhart, 24 at Marfa, 28 at Clarendon and El Paso, 29 at Lubbock and 30 at Big Spring.

El Moro gained the runnerup spot among New Mexico's coldest points with seven degrees. Elsewhere, the mercury hit 16 at Santa Fe, 18 at Raton, Anton Chico and Las Vegas, 19 at Clayton, 20 at Acomita, 20 at Alamogordo, 23 at Rodeo and Albuquerque, 25 at Columbus, 26 at Soccoro and 27 at Carlsbad and Engle.

BE SURE OF THE STORE BEHIND THE DIAMOND

CAN YOU

The puzzles above are both workable. The puzzle at the left is a simple one, easily worked, one most of us remember from our childhood, but the puzzle at the right is for specialists only. Few of us . . . unless we're gemmologist . . . can tell the difference between two diamonds even after the most thorough examination. Two diamonds of the same size that appear exactly the same to the layman may in fact be hundreds of dollars apart in value. Frequently, a large diamond that appears perfect is actually worth much less than a smaller stone that is flawless in color, cut and clarity. Carat weight alone does not determine the value of a Diamond. Color, cut and the degree of perfection all influence the value greatly. This is why it is important TO BE SURE OF THE STORE BEHIND THE DIAMOND YOU BUY . . . YOU CAN BE SURE AT ANDERSON BROS., LUBBOCK'S OLDEST AND FINEST JEWELERS, who continue to offer the highest in quality, the best in value and the most courteous in friendly service. Individual Freedom To Choose Post-War Jobs May Hit Snag

BY JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — When millions of people change jobs at war's end an individual's freedom to choose his own occupation may run head-on into public policy.

The government's announced hope for after the war is this: Quick reconversion to peace, unemployment kept to a minimum, wages kept high.

But many individuals, thrown out of highpaying war jobs, will want to shop around for a peacetime job paying them what they're getting now. And while they shop they will want to draw state unemployment compensation.

Can Prolong Unemployment

That kind of procedure can prolong unemployment. Yet each individual has to think of himself and his future.

So unemployment compensation commissioners in the various states will have to decide problems like how:

To be fair to the individual and respect his right to seek suitable work — work he himself considers suitable — and yet prevent abuses of the unemployment pay system when there is national need to boost employment fast.

Not Intended As Dole

Unemployment pay was not intended as a dole. It was meant to tide a worker over that unemployed period between losing one job and finding another. Yet there will be some who will try to chisel and cheat.

Milton O. Loysen, executive director of New York's division of placement and unemployment insurance, cites this case:

Two Indiana war plants, because of cutbacks, released several thousand employes, mostly women. They sought unemployment pay but refused lower paying jobs than they had in the war plants. On investigation it was found many of them did not intend to work any more.

'Just Say I Fell In Bathtub,' Says Actress

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Joan Rydell, 27, actress-model found unconscious Monday in a water-filled bathtub in her apartment, was quoted by hospital attaches today as saying: "Just say I fell in the bathtub and let it go at that."

Meanwhile, police were set to question Miss Rydell who was reported in good condition at Knickerbocker hospital.

The attractive blonde was clad only in a negligee when found. Police said the apartment showed signs of disorder.

"It looks like there were a terrific struggle," Detective Joseph Straining said last night. "We don't know what happened yet."

ALAMO BOWL POSTPONED

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 6 (AP) — Inauguration of the Alamo Bowl, tentatively set for Jan. 1, 1945, has been postponed until New Year's day 1946, Carl C. Krueger of the San Antonio chamber of Commerce, announced here today. Inability to arrange a "first class" post-season game was given as the cause.

The United States possesses about 413 million acres of crop land and about 379 million acres of pasture and range land.

Field Telephones Reminiscent Of Party Line Talk

BY KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 29 (Delayed) — The folks back home who used to listen to the gossip on country party lines should listen to combat line chatter over the Army's field telephone system.

Sometimes it's a little hard to know exactly when to swear, when to laugh and when to heave a sigh of relief.

There was the day when the Third battalion of the 137th infantry took the town of Bistroff in Lorraine. They needed big gun support and the 219th field artillery supplied it. Out in front, calling signals for the artillery, was a lone forward observer, Lt. Robert T. McCaffrey of Lincoln, N. H. He saw German troops spearheaded by two tanks approaching a two-story house at the edge of the town.

The first tank hit a mine. McCaffrey called back and got the big guns shooting about 50 yards from the house. The second tank was abandoned quickly by its crew. Machineguns and rifles of the nearby doughboys cut them down.

But the German infantry kept coming and McCaffrey called for more artillery. When the Germans had surrounded the house, he ordered the artillerymen to blast the entire area, including the building. They did, blowing the roof off the house and pocking the sector all around it and driving the enemy infantry back.

—but you wouldn't have known from listening in that Lieutenant McCaffrey, who escaped unscatched, was calling the shots from within that building itself —and from a second-story window, too.

WILLKIE WILL FILED

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie, attorney and Republican presidential nominee in 1940, left his estate, formally valued at more than $20,000, in trust for his wife, Mrs. Edith Wilk Willkie, his will filed for probate in surrogates court revealed today.

Norman Naval And Randolph May Clash In Houston Bowl

Tilt May Top Bowl Contests

Acceptance By Norman Uncertain

HOUSTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — The Oil Bowl, which waited until all returns were supposed to be in then stepped out and signed one of the nation's greatest teams—Randolph field's mighty Ramblers—may have the only post-season gridiron classic on Jan. 1 match unbeaten, untied elevens.

Chairman Holly Brock today looked to a $100,000 gate for the battle that will match Randolph field with the Norman, Okla., Norman Zoomers if the bowl officials get their wish.

They are seeking the Zoomers, who also cut quite a swath in southwestern football to finish undefeated and untied. Among the Zoomer victims was Second Air force which will play in El Paso's Sun Bowl Jan. 1.

Norman Commander Silent

There was no comment from Capt. W. N. Undegraff, commanding officer of the Norman naval base, and Oil Bowl officials said if the Navy did not grant the Zoomers permission to play here they would seek another Air Forces team.

The Oil Bowl will be staging its second grid show. Last New Year's day it had Southwestern Louisiana Institute playing Arkansas A. and M.

As Randolph field departed today of Los Angeles to meet March field, Col. Walter C. White, commanding officer, said at San Antonio that "I am happy our New Year's day game will be played in Texas. It will give sports fans who have followed the Ramblers throughout the season opportunity to see them play this big game."

OWLS DOWN FLIERS

HOUSTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — The Rice Owls opened their 1944-45 basketball campaign by defeating the Ellington field Fliers, 48 to 37, last night at the Ellington field gym. Despite their defeat the Fliers presented the high scorer of the evening in Tony Braginetz, one-time St. Francis star from Brooklyn. He scored 20 points. Bill Henry, Rice's all-American center, paced the winners with 16 points.

Buckeye Ace Gets Mixed Up On Wedding

Les Horvath Awarded Heisman Trophy As Top Gridder Of '44

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Quarterback Les Horvath of Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 football player, is the last guy in the world one would expect to call signals wrong on his own marriage; but he did. Which indicates that affairs of the heart can be more flustering than formations of the "T".

This error of errors was chalked against loping Les last night just after he had been presented with the Heisman memorial trophy as the outstanding college player in the United States for 1944. Horvath's ears were still ringing from tributes shovelled manfully by a flock of speakers at the downtown athletic club dinner.

To Be Married In "December"

Cornered in his room by reporters, the ashing dental student finally disclosed that he was engaged to June Weinhardt, his home town sweetheart in Parma, O.,—a suburb of Cleveland—and that they would be married in "December."

The reporters, having collected this connubial treasure, scurried out to telephones. A few moments later they scurried back again—wanting to know "which December" Horvath meant — the current month, or that of 1945? In their absence, unfortunately, the mainspring of the unblemished Buckeye grid machine had sprung himself loose—to an undesignated coffee and cruller salon.

He Meant June

When finally located, the handsome, brown-haired lad in the tan tweed suit ejaculated: "Habba! Habb! Did I say December? Gosh—it's not December; it's June. I got excited—"

A newspaper man interrupted, "We know it's June you're marrying — June Weinhardt; but when? Let's get this straight."

"I'm marrying June in June—"

"Oh—okay!"

Meanwhile, Miss Weinhardt—an attractive brunette defense worker—had recovered the fumble at Parma and taken the offensive by announcing that the wedding was set for June, probably right after Horvath is graduated—and not December. She explained that she had met the Buckeye blitz in Parma High school — ninth grade — "but we didn't begin dating until the 10th grade—"

May Turn Pro

Will Horvath turn professional after graduating? Maybe no; maybe yes. He would prefer to plunge immediately into the pleasantries of dentistry. However, he admitted, he could be "tempted" by a large enough offer. He remarked significantly, "I figure it will cost about $5,000 to set up my office." He would prefer to play with the Cleveland Rams, who incidentally drafted him back in 1942.

Speakers at last night's dinner included Coach Carroll Widdoes of Ohio State; Wilfred Wottrich, president of the downtown athletic club; Sportscasters Bill Slater and Ted Husing; Eddie Dooley, former Dartmouth star and president of the New York touchdown club; and representatives of Ohio State and its New York alumni organization.

Attendance Jumps In Southwest Loop

DALLAS, Dec. 6 (AP)—Southwest conference football may have been down in quality but it was up in interest during the season just closed, attendance figures from the six member schools showed today.

The gain was 41 per cent as 96,655 more than in 1943 paid their way into the stadiums to see one of the closest gridiron races in history.

In 31 home games this year the conference members drew 332,514. Last season in 29 home games the total was 235,859.

The upward trend was accomplished this season despite bad weather that crippled attendance at the major game of the year for Texas Christian's championship Horned Frogs—that with Texas—and the Southern Methodist-Arkansas contest at Dallas.

Threatening weather that finally broke into rain also held down attendance at Houston for the TCU--Rice game that decided the conference championship.

The biggest gain was shown by Rice with 131,000 in nine games compared to 57,600 last year in six. The average this yeas was larger than last and Rice would have shown a gain had it played no more home games than in 1943.

Texas was up almost 40,000 for the same number of games each year and Southern Methodist showed a gain of almost 8,000. Arkansas, Texas A. and M. and Texas Christian were down.

Texas A. and M.'s decrease, however, was attributable to the fact that the Aggies played their annual game with bitter rival Texas away from home.

Tennessee May Play Without End Coach

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6 (AP)—Tennessee's Rose Bowl-bound Volunteers may go to the West coast without their end coach—for Johnny Mauer and his 13-man basketball squad have a Christmas day date in Madison Square Garden with New York university.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Mauer said. "This situation used to come up every now and then, but in those days there were always plenty of coaches here, and the football team didn't need me. But this year I've been working with the ends all season."

Morgan Talks At Denver City

Banquet Honors 6-A Champions

DENVER CITY, Dec. 6—The Denver City Mustangs, grid champions of district 6-A, were honored last night at a banquet in the high school gymnasium as the grand finale to the greatest football season in the history of the school.

Coach Dell Morgan, of Texas Tech's Red Raiders, delivered the principal address, discussing compulsory military training in the schools of the nation following the war.

Following his address, Morgan showed pictures of the Texas Tech - Texas Christian football game, played at Fort Worth.

Served By Home Ec Class

The dinner was prepared and served by members of the Denver City High school home economics class. The invocation was given by P. E. Davis. The Denver City girls glee club presented two vocal selections while the "Musical Four Horsemen" made up of Jimmy Groom, Don Pevehouse, Jimmy Terrell and Grayson Tate, presented martial airs on their horns.

Bob Miller gave a toast to the senior lettermen, and Don Nugent gave the response.

W. T. Dabbs offered congratulations to Coach Wilson Head, and the members of the team, who brought the first district title to the school. Mack Turner, sports editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, spoke briefly.

Lettermen Announced

Coach Wilson Head announced the names of 14 lettermen, awarded this season on the basis of having played in 16 quarters of football during the past season.

Five lettermen also drew special praise for their work this year, for which they were named in the All-District 6-A football team, and were Jimmy Terrell, quarterback; Don Nugent, center; Jim Groom, end; Bobby Hornsburger, tackle, and Gene Streety, guard. These boys were on the first team.

Named on the second team were Grayson Tate and W. C. Harrison, both backs. Other lettermen were Bob Miller, halfback; Bob Edwards, guard; Calvin Trice, tackle; Kenneth Piland, end; Billy Ward, halfback; Tommy Kirkland, tackle, and Jackie Moore, end.

Terrell and Nugent, co-captains, were four and three year lettermen, respectively. Two year lettermen were Groom, Hornsburger, Streety, Tate, Harrison and Miller. All others were lettering for the first time.

Minors Plan Moves To Block Expansion Of Major Leagues To Include Pacific Coast

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 6 (U.P.)—Baseball's postwar problems came out in the open today with indications that the three double "A" leagues will join in a concerted effort to prevent the majors from expanding their operations to include the Pacific coast.

Both the International league and the American Association appeared to be backing the Pacific coast league in its battle against possible postwar expansion of the majors.

Although neither Frank J. Shaughnessy of the International nor George Trautman of the Association would reveal their circuit's stand, Clarence (Pants) Rowland, head of the Pacific coast league, claimed that his organization's battle to boost the cost of any major league drive to expand present territory was gaining momentum.

Two Controversial Moves

The Pacific coast circuit, through Rowland, has been leading the drive to the only two controversial amendments on the docket for the 3rd annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Basketball leagues opening here today.

The first has to do with a rule change which would make the cost of the majors to extend the operations of one of its now-profitable clubs to a territory now within the radius of the drawing area of a minor league team prohibitive. There seemed to be little opposition to this proposed change in the baseball rules.

The International and American Association circuits hinted that they may go along with Rowland in his fight to double the draft price of double "A" players to the majors from $7,500 to $15,000.

Seek Voice On Commission

There was even a third point on which the Pacific coast league appeared to be gaining support and that was Rowland's stand that the minor leagues have a voice in the selection of a successor to the late Kensaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball. However, that subject was not ticketed for definite consideration in the formal sessions of the minors.

As usual, there were various reports of deals but all the minor league teams seemed to be in the same category — all were looking for player strength. They were hopeful that with the easing draft regulations their player personnel would increase before the 1945 season opens. But even with that prospect, there appeared little hope that there would be enough bonafide minor league talent to go around in order to permit the reopening of any of the leagues which were forced to suspend after Pearl Harbor.

LAAF, Buff Cagers Open Here Tonight

West Texas State Teachers college Buffs and the Lubbock Army Air field Fliers open the basketball season tonight at the LAAF gym.

The Fliers opened the year's play last week with 50-33 win over a hand picked team of Aviation Cadets at the local field, while the Buffs, one time "tallest team on Earth," opened the season Monday night at Abilene with a victory over Hardin-Simmons Cowboys, traditional Border conference foe.

The scheduled opener with Dalhart Army Air field, scheduled for the post gym last night, was postponed because of inclement weather which grounded the "top o' Texas" cagers.

The public will be admitted to the game free of charge, LAAF officials said.

O'Donnell Quints Win Pair From Tahoka

TAHOKA, Dec. 6 (Special) — O'Donnell cagers won two of the three basketball games played at Tahoka Tuesday night, in a series featured by high scoring.

The first game, between the two B squads, was won by O'Donnell by a 31-17 margin. Caphey of O'Donnell was high point man with 18, while Hanes of Tahoka scored 7.

The Tahoka girls turned in the single victory by romping over the O'Donnell team 30-10.

In the featured game of the night, the O'Donnell A squad outscored the Tahoka quintet 41-31. Brownlow of O'Donnell was high man, having tallied 24 points. High Tahoka player was Noel Jones with 13.

Red Raiders Down Elliott's Elks, 8-6

The Pedro Red Raiders edged out the Elliott's Elks 8-6 in a smaller boys league basketball game Tuesday night at Lubbock Boys' club. Carl Roberts was high scorer for the Raiders with 5 points, while Tommy Elliott of the Elks tallied four.

Tonight the Warren Wildcats tangle with the Alley Rats in another game of the smaller boys' league.

A farmer friend of ours is intrigued over Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion that Germany be made into purely an agricultural nation after her final defeat.

He says that will be perfect punishment, providing all our government farm agency people are sent over to harass the krauts!

JACK M. RANDAL, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, says he will bring to the attention of that organization's directorate at its next meeting the suggestion made here other day that a "Made In Lubbock" show be staged sometime this winter.

Mr. Randal called to say he thought the suggestion a good one, and to express agreement that it is high time Lubbock people learn more than they know about the number and variety of products turned out right here.

He says he doesn't know what the directors will think about the idea, but, at any rate, he'll give 'em a chance to say.

Mr. Randal went a little further with the idea than The Plainsman did.

He suggests that, when victory permits resumption of the annual Panhandle-South Plains fair here each fall, a "Made In Lubbock" display be made a permanent part of the exposition.

We think that's a fine idea and would like to see it carried out.

Meantime, though, we believe an exhibit of Lubbock-made products, with an accompanying program, perhaps, should be set up in the Tech or Senior High school gym for the education of the public in general.

JINGLE BELLS! Jingle bells! Christmas greetings are beginning to arrive in people's mail these days and are coming from far and wide.

First two greetings cards The Plainsman received were from opposite sides of the world. One was from Lt. Bennie McWilliams, former star Tech tackle now in the Navy; the other was from Capt. J. (for Jasper) Wayne Henly, Avalanche-Journal advertising manager on leave, until victory, with the U. S. Army Air Forces.

Both cards were of "GI" origin," by which we mean they were not "boughten" ones, but the products of the services.

Captain Henly's card came from Somewhere in France; Lieutenant McWilliams' from the Admiralty Islands in the Pacific.

That Man on Avenue Q says there's a limit to almost everything except the number of palpably untrue things the average person will believe.

Our women seem to be conditioning themselves for a bankrupt world.

They're running around with no stockings, shoes full of holes and their heads tied up in rags!

JOB was thinking of mankind in general when, in the fourteenth chapter of his book, he noted:

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble."

But had Job been thinking only of the national hair shirt, the Hon. Harold Ickes, he would have made the last of the line read "extra full of trouble." For Mr. Ickes, who characterizes himself as an "old curmudgeon," attracts trouble like molasses attracts flies.

From out of the fastness of Alaska comes word that "Honest Harold" has the people up there literally biting themselves on the backs of their necks. Bro. Ickes, to turn to the vernacular, "has 'em over a barrel," and are they wild?

They want some help from their friends and relatives in the states who do have a voice in Washington, as Alaskans do not.

They want something done about Mr. Ickes' latest hobby and they swear that unless something is done, every last one of southeast Alaska's settlers will have to turn over their belongings to the Indians.

AS part of what is an Alaska-wide protest against Mr. Ickes, who is among other things the Secretary of the Interior, The Plainsman has a letter from Fred Bryant, principal of the school at Craig, Alaska, who graduated from Tech in 1939, taught in Bailey and Lynn counties, and was a resident of the Plains for 14 years. We do not know Mr. Bryant, personally, but his letter and a copy of the Ketchikan Chronicle set out that if Mr. Ickes has his way, 80 per cent of Southeast Alaska will be turned back to the Indians—lock, stock and barrel.

If that happens, claim Mr. Bryant in his letter and thousands of other Alaskans through the 40-page, Alaska-wide edition of the Ketchikan Chronicle, poineers will lose their homes, farms, traplines, mining claims, etc., and the towns will wither away to become a total economic loss.

As we get the story from the Bryant letter and the Alaska paper, Mr. Ickes wants to take 80 per cent of Southeast Alaska and make an Indian reservation out of it.

Since we're a long way from Alaska, we can't say for sure that the situation is as bad as Mr. Bryant and the other Alaskans claim it is. But knowing Mr. Ickes' long affinity for Indians and his surprising lack of practicability in other matters, we wouldn't be suprised if it is.

It is interesting to note from the Ketchikan Chronicle that all hands in such places as Ketchikan, Juneau, Sitka and Petersburg—from the preachers to the bartenders—are screaming to high heaven against the Ickes idea.

So there must be something wrong, somewhere.

IT is well known that senators and representatives don't like to give much time or thought to problems outside their own bailiwicks. But the Alaskans believe if Americans who do have representation in Congress demand of their senators and representatives an investigation into the Ickes plan, good, old American justice will slap the "old curmudgeon" down.

Certainly anything as drastic as the Alaskans claim the Ickes idea is should be investigated by the Congress.

No one man, certainly not the rash Mr. Ickes, should be permitted to exercise that much authority without official supervision and approval.

The Alaskans who pioneered the territory have the biggest personal stake involved, of course. But the rest of the nation, which has been told by the President and everyone else of the value of Alaska to our people, has a stake, too. If a great part of that territory is allowed to deteriorate, the whole country loses.

Every congressman and senator should make it his business to see that the interests of Alaska pioneers, and all other Americans, are protected. If the Alaskans are overly wrought up, and "Honest Harold" isn't off on another of his uplifhting tangents, all well and good.

But if Alaskans and Americans as a whole seek to lose as the result of Mr. Ickes' extreme generosity with other people's possessions, then "Honest Harold" should be effectively hobbled.

MAYBE it won't be as difficult for the returning service man to fit into civilian life as many people think.

It is being assumed that because he finds it difficult to make his own decisions (having obeyed orders for so long), finding it easier to say "yes" than to take a negative point of view, the returning service man will find the going tough in civilian life.

MILLETT

Well, not unless civilian life changes in a hurry.

The civilian doesn't make as many of his own decisions as he used to. He is told what he can buy and what he can't. He is told just how far he can drive his car. He is told just how much he can eat of certain foods, etc., etc.

SAME OLD STORY

AND the ex-service man will certainly find plenty of lines to stand in—while he waits to get into a movie, while he waits for cigarettes, while he waits for a train reservation, while he waits to check in or out of a hotel, while he waits for a table in a restaurant, while he waits to be handed a form to fill out for the ration board, and then while he waits to find out if filling it out did any good.

And as for saying "yes," that's what most of us are doing these days. We aren't arguing. We let ourselves be pushed around by anybody whose job it is to serve us and who feels in a mood for pushing.

It looks as though the returned serviceman won't be too out of place in civilian life—for civilian life has been changing, too.

Today's Journal Editorial

JUST WHO IS "THE COMMUNITY?"

The Journal is in receipt of some publicity material from the Washington headquarters of the Congress of Industrial Organizations which is interesting and informative. On the whole, it is logical, too.

Headed "Economic Outlook," this publicity material tells, by word and drawing, its story of the CIO in a mythical community. It shows members of CIO unions supporting the war effort with their sons and their dollars; shows CIO members doing volunteer work on ration boards; shows them as taxpayers, blood donors, church-goers. In short, it depicts CIO members as active, contributing members of the community in which they live.

As we said in the beginning, this publicity brochure is, on the whole, logical.

But right in the middle of the front page it commits the error which organized labor in general, and the CIO in particular, commit—either innocently or purposely—in many or all of their activities. The brochure contends:

"We Are The Community."

Of course, the CIO is not "the community" anywhere, unless there happens to be a community, of which we have no knowledge, which has within its confines only CIO members.

In some places, CIO members may possibly be in the majority, therefore represent the majority of the community. But in other places, where the CIO has no representation at all, its members are not even a community minority.

Too many of the leaders of organized labor take the false position that they are representing all the masses of the people. That they take this position is readily understood. It makes them appear, on the surface, as the spokesmen of many more Americans than they really can speak for. As a matter of fact, some labor leaders, CIO and AFL, do not even speak for a majority of their own memberships, as members of unions know better than anyone else.

The man who wrote the CIO's "Economic Outlook" brochure probably didn't realize it, but he sounded the credo of his organization when he wrote, without foundation, "We Are The Community."

That is the philosophy mirrored by the strikes in war plants; by the struggle to break the anti-inflation dike at the expense of the majority of the people of the nation; by all the innumerable selfish designs which would give the wearer of a union button rights and privileges denied to the majority.

"We Are The Community," too, reflects the reason for the mounting opposition to organized selfishness on the part of the rank and file of American citizens, those at the fighting fronts as well as here at home.

Many Problems Beset U. S. Raids On Tokyo

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. — The plan of continuously bombing Japan from Saipan promises to be one of the most important strategies of the war. But like all difficult innovations, it already has evolved some serious kinks which must be ironed out.

They include: crew fatigue, maintenance problems, weather conditions and home-front production of planes to replace those lost in action. Upon these factors depend the frequency with which we can keep up the rain of bombs on Japan.

The bombing of Japan from Saipan represents a gruelling experience for the crews involved, and allowances must be made to provide necessary rest periods. If any of the crews participating in the Thanksgiving Day raid tried it again three days later, it would be only natural to expect that their operational ability would be proved reduced because of the wearing effect of the earlier 3,000-mile flight.

PEARSON

It has also been found that information on weather over Japan is still not entirely accurate. Between the time when a flight is started and the time the planes arrive over Tokyo, the weather can change considerably. Result on recent raids was that bomb sights had to be used, with questionable effect.

But reconnaissance photos taken after raids did show severe damage to a major aircraft plant outside of Tokyo, also effective shattering of several waterfront areas which are jampacked with Tokyo traffic.

OTHER OBSTACLES

OFFICIALS have also learned that the B-29 still has certain defects which may require modification in future production. These primarily concern the safety of air crews and should be remedied before bombing of Japan can be carried out on a day-to-day basis.

Air Corps officials still reiterate that several more months will pass before the air drive can be really stepped up to its peak.

One major hope is that General MacArthur's forces will be able to secure several bases in the Philippines so that the B-29s can operate from there, thus smashing at the south of Japan almost at will. Because of the B-29s' vast size, it is almost impossible to conceal them under camouflage, with the result that Japanese planes still operating from scores of fields in the Philippines could bomb B-29s at will if they were based on Leyte now.

SFORZA AND BRITISH

THERE is a significant background story behind the banning of Count Carlo Sforza from the Italian cabinet by the British. It goes back to private conversations the Italian Republican leader had in Washington with British Ambassador Lord Halifax and Secretary Hull, at which time he expressed himself as vigorously opposed to the Italian royal family. That is the real reason he has now been banned.

The issue boils down to whether the Allies are going to champion kings or republics in Europe under the Atlantic Charter. Here is the inside story of Count Sforza's talks in the U. S. A.

When he first arrived in Washington, an exile from Mussolini's Italy, Sforza made friends with several members of the U. S. cabinet, and talked with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. A former Foreign Minister in pre-Fascist Italy, he had no money except what little he could make giving lectures and teaching in American universities. His property in Italy had been seized after he fled.

Finally, when Mussolini was overthrown, Count Sforza asked Secretary Hull for permission to return to Italy. Hull had no objection but suggested that Sforza have a talk first with the British ambassador. This was done.

HALIFAX TALK

LORD HALIFAX was most cordial but was concerned over the fact that Count Sforza believed in an Italian republic. He urged that the Italian people continue to pay allegiance to the king.

Sforza said he had no objection to the House of Savoy if the Italian people wanted it on the throne, but contended that there should be a plebiscite to ascertain whether they really wanted a king.

When he later reported the conversation to his friends in the Roosevelt cabinet, one remark by Halifax which especially impressed them was:

"The British people have enjoyed a very happy relationship with the House of Windsor. Why can't the Italian people enjoy the same kind of relationship with the House of Savoy?"

To this Sforza replied: "But you chopped off the head of one of your kings before you came to enjoy that happy relationship."

Sforza also pointed out that the Italian royal family was degenerate and not respected, that King Victor Emmanuel had bowed supinely before Mussolini and that Crown Prince Humbert was a weakling.

To this the British ambassador countered with the suggestion that the Austrian branch of the House of Savoy assume the throne.

"They are even less respected," Sforza replied.

Halifax made it quite clear that the British government wanted to uphold the prestige of all monarchies in order to strengthen the monarchy in England. But Sforza argued that the Italian monarchy was decrepit and, if it was thrust down the throats of a rebellious people, this would hurt the prestige of all monarchies, including the British throne.

PASSPORT WAIT

THIS seemed to impress Halifax, who said he would telephone Churchill that night. Sforza, however, never heard the result of the phone call. All he knew was that he was kept waiting by the State department for a passport. He suspected State department-British cooperation, since there has been a strong clique among U. S. career diplomats who bow before Italian royalty.

Secretary Hull, however, had a high opinion of Sforza, and finally the count got his passport.

In Italy he was a minister in the Bonomi cabinet until it fell last week. Still strong for a republic, Sforza was then asked to serve as Premier or Foreign Minister, whereupon British Ambassador Sir Noel Charles stepped in and turned thumbs down.

Reaction in Washington was not good. Even Lord Halifax seemed unhappy.

But most vigorous reaction of all was that of Italo-American leaders. They were boiling mad at Britain's insistence on the Italian monarchy. Some Italo-American labor leaders even whispered about a sit-down strike against Churchill on his next visit to the U. S. A.

NOTE—When Churchill visited Rome last summer, he called first of all, not on Premier Bonomi, but on reactionary Marshal Badoglio, close friend of the king and the chief champion of the monarchy. This gave rise to rumors that Churchill wanted Badoglio to replace Bonomi as Premier.

Today's Thought

When ye have transgressed the covenant of the Lord your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.—Joshua 23:16.

SUFFERERS from the cigarette shortage would like to know just why it is that night clubs are enjoying nearly all the ciggie biz. This is how come . . . The night clubs are in this enviable position because they've always charged a dime to 15 cents over the retail shop prices, and, of course, they still are permitted (by the OPA) to charge the same tariff as before the "ceilings" went into effect . . . Then besides getting 10c and 15c more per pack, the cigarette gals are invariably tipped an average of 25 cents for each pack. This, too, goes to the concessionaire . . . As a result, getting 50c per pack for cigarettes (for which retail stores charge 17c) the concessionaires are able to pay a good deal more for cigs than the retailers. That explains why all the night spots are doing a terrific ciggie biz.

Another "sleeper" is that a great many businesses are combing the smaller burgs for fine perfumes, brandies and other French products which are so scarce and which have been completely exhausted in the big cities . . . The Germans' newest secret weapon is an old one. It is not the V-1 or V-2 or the Robombs at all . . . It is the "V-D." Since October (when our armies lined up opposite the German border) the Nazis have been forcing and driving venereal-diseased women (by the hundreds) to the U. S. lines. They have even shot at them to make them hurry . . . They included Nazi professionals (from the Rhineland cities and beyond), plus hundreds of Belgians, Poles, French and young Russian women who had been forced into "entertainment" for German troops. It is a regular round-up, and the Yanks and British have erected stockades with barb-wire to contain them . . . That explains Gen. Eisenhower's order of "non-fraternization." It wasn't to keep Nazi gals from "winning over" our men for a soft truce. Troops caught disobeying Eisenhower's order are fined.

The Trials Of Motherhood

Texan Can Force, Perhaps Block, Investigation Of Corcoran

Speaker Rayburn Is In Probe's Key Position

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn is in a crucial and responsible position in the matter of the proposed investigation into Attorney General Biddle's administration of the Justice department, now a public necessity because of the charges of Norman Littell, deposed assistant Attorney General.

The Speaker might be able to squelch the investigation which would be delegated to the House Judiciary committee under a resolution introduced by a Democrat, Rep. Voorhis (Calif.). Mr. Rayburn's inclinations seem to be that way.

STOKES

Aside from his obligations to the administration, Representative Rayburn has numerous obligations—some of a political nature—to Thomas G. Corcoran, lawyer-lobbyist once so prominent and powerful a figure in the New Deal, who would become a leading character in the inquiry because of his close friendship and influence with the Attorney General.

Sam's "Beholden," Too

Tommy Corcoran was very active, along with his one-time partner, Ben Cohen, in helping Mr. Rayburn put through the House a brilliant series of early New Deal reforms — the Truth-In-Securities act, the Stock Exchange Regulation act, and the Public Utility Holding Company act.

This legislative achievement added greatly to Sam Rayburn's reputation. Later, Tommy helped as a behind-the-scenes negotiator in the campaign which led to the elevation of Sam Rayburn to the speakership. Only this year, Tommy, always a political manipulator, interested himself in Sam Rayburn's ambition to be the vice presidential candidate with President Roosevelt.

THE Speaker was only one of the numerous figures Tommy had in his vice presidential stable. By the time the chips were down at the Chicago convention, Tommy had dropped Mr. Rayburn and the rest of his second string and connived to put over Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme court.

This was one of those devious and intricate political plots characteristic of Mr. Corcoran — a shade too devious and intricate. It depended upon messing things up generally at Chicago, forcing a deadlock between Vice President Wallace and Senator Truman, and coming up with Justice Douglas.

But Mr. Douglas never came up. He is still esconced on the highest court in the robe he wears somewhat restlessly, like a hair shirt, being still a young man, full of vigor and ambition.

And Mr. Rayburn dropped clean out of sight at Chicago.

Here's The Question

The question around Washington now is: will Sam Rayburn be guided by his political obligations to the administration and Tommy Corcoran, or will he step out boldly, as Speaker of the House — once termed the second most powerful post in our government — and consent to an investigation of an administrative situation that deserves air and light?

CIRCUMSTANCES may, of course, take the matter out of the Speaker's hands. One is the public interest now aroused in the Biddle-Littell controversy, particularly the Tommy Corcoran angle. This is due in some degree to a general feeling that after his election to a Fourth Term, President Roosevelt would do some housecleaning and put a stop to such operations as those of Tommy Corcoran. That's the way, at least, that many people interpreted the election.

Another circumstance having considerable weight is the caliber of the man who proposed the investigation. Jerry Voorhis is the finest type of public official, active in many progressive movements, a close student of public affairs, who considers very carefully before he acts. He enjoys the confidence of his colleagues in the House.

Voorhis Has Support

In this move for an investigation he has the backing of many hard-working and conscientious officials in the administration, sincere and earnest, who resent very much the cloud thrown over the New Deal in general by the machinations of Tommy Corcoran and the subservience to him of some persons he helped to place in the government.

The strategy of foes of the investigation is delay. They are throwing up the excuse that the inquiry should not be started in this Congress, but should await the next. There is no reason why it can't be authorized now, for it is to be done by a regular standing committee which continues on from Congress to Congress.

British, Poles Smash Across Italian River

ROME, Dec. 6 (AP)—British and Polish troops have smashed across the Lamone river southwest of Faenza and established a bridgehead while other Eighth army units are cleaning out isolated enemy groups in captured Ravenna with the aid of Italian patriots, Allied headquarters announced today.

Headquarters said the crossing of the Lamone was made in strength and that the bridgehead was firmly against strong Nazi opposition.

The crossing was made upstream from the village of Quartolo, four miles southwest of Faenza, German strongpoint on the Rimini-Bologna highway.

The capture Monday of Ravenna, important communications center, was followed by a marked Eighth army advance westward which was driving disorganized German elements back behind the lower Lamone river. The entire Ravenna-Godo road was cleared, and the towns of San Michele, four miles west of Reenna, and Piangipane, five miles west, were taken.

were proceeding wth extreme caution, to dislodge the group which took over the building after a revolt that flared Monday afternoon against their confinement with Nazi saboteurs.

No One Injured

"As far as we know," Bennett said, "no one has been injured so far. The men, however, are still in control of the building, and efforts are continuing to negotiate with them."

Although two truckloads of helmeted and armed soldiers rolled into the prison yards at 8 a. m., Bennett denied that they had come to bolster prison guards and stated emphatically that he had not called on the military for help.

After remaining in front of the main prison building for about thirty minutes, the Army trucks moved on out of sight behind the grim concrete prison walls. In about 45 minutes they reappeared, still loaded, and left.

U. S. Soldier Arrested In Briton's Death

HONINGHAM, England, Dec. 6 (AP)—Detective Inspector Garner announced today the arrest of a U. S. soldier in the gunshot death of Sir Eric Teichman, 60, former British embassy counsellor at Chungking.

The soldier's name was not disclosed.

Garner said the charge was "of a serious nature," but did not define it. He said the soldier was arrested at a U. S. camp, and remains in American custody, to appear before an American court.

Sir Eric was found dead on the grounds of Honingham hall Sunday night after he had gone out in search of a poacher.

Need For British-U. S. Understanding Cited

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—The earl of Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said today "there is no single thing more important for the world's future than Anglo-American understanding."

He declared in an address for delivery at a luncheon of the radio executive club of New York in honor of the British broadcasting corporation's 25th birthday that the most elaborate plans to disarm aggressor nations or prevent war would fail without the power of an informed public opinion behind them.

Harvard Professor To Talk At Tech

Dr. Kirk Byran, professor of physiography at Harvard university, will lecture on "Geological Antiquity of Man in America," at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the Texas Tech engineering auditorium, Dr. L. T. Patton, head of the geology department, announced.

Dr. Bryan comes to Tech as a lecturer for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in its service of distinguished lectures. Admission to the lecture is free and the public is invited, Dr. Patton said.

The lecture is sponsored jointly by the departments of geology and petroleum engineering at Tech.

Saarbrucken Is Being Shelled

head inside Saarlautern and through the second gap thrown in the Saar defenses south of that city last night. The exact locations of the assaults upon the Siegfried line itself were not specified.

Flood Slows Roer Action

Supreme headquarters regarded the four new Saar crossings as a single bridgehead, the third forged this week. All along the 50-mile front from Merzig to Sarre Union, natural defenses of the Germans were being negotiated and the enemy was being forced into the refuge of the stout and thick Siegfried line.

Flood conditions along the rain-choked Roer river shielding Cologne were so bad that the U. S. Ninth army, along the stream, failed in its first attempts to get patrols to the other side. Nearest troops in that area were 22 miles from Cologne.

Third Pushes Forward

The First army gained a hit below captured Bergstein at the edge of the Hurtgen forest within pistol shot of the Roer.

Gaining along its whole front, the Third army pushed forward from two to seven miles against the staggered Germans who were unable to maintain an unbroken front southwest of Saarlautern, whose 32,000 make it the second city of the Saarland. The Germans fell back steadily before hard blows of tanks and infantry and artillery.

The Karlsbrunn forest on the west side of the Saar virtually was cleared in a hard fight in which the 35th infantry and sixth armored divisions drove almost unchecked into the outskirts of Saareguemines. The force of this advance bulged deeply into German lines along a ten-mile front east of that French frontier coal town and pressed up to within six miles of the frontier.

Saarbrucken Battered

The peril to Saarbrucken, capital of the Saar and a city of 135,000 centering 70 square miles of coal fields, increased by the hour. Troops within sight of the city from heights six miles away set parts of it aflame with constant and increasing barrages. Sarreguemines, a French border town of 14,000, lies eight miles southeast of the capital on the Saar.

Troops closed on the town from two sides. Off to the right of Patton's 40-mile-front solidly inside Germany, the fourth armored and 26th infantry divisions rolled up to three miles northward through Lorraine toward the German Siegfried line.

Roer Front Fairly Quiet

Comparative quiet prevailed again on the Roer river front within 22 miles of Cologne. The U. S. First army completed the capture of Bergstein, at the edge of the dank Hurtgen forest. Bergstein lies half a mile from the Roer and six southwest of the river citadel of Duren.

The U. S. Ninth to the north reported only patrol and artillery action in the area between Julich and Linnich, the outskirts of both having been reached. Both sides had taken frightful casualties along the Roer. The two American armies appeared to be refitting, regrouping, and resting for the next plunge deeper into the vitals of the Reich. German casualties, excluding the lightly wounded, were estimated officially at 9,000 a day on the whole western front.

Germans Open Dikes

The British Second army stood firm along the Maas river in Holland; Canadians in the Arnhem-Nijmegen area were plagued with flood waters from the Rhine, loosed by German breaches in the dikes.

The U. S. Seventh and the French First armies continued their methodical eliminations of the last German holds in Lorraine and Alsace.

Just six months ago today, Gen. Eisenhower invaded France. In that time he has freed all the republic except 2,000 square miles or less. All Belgium is liberated. A fifth of Holland is behind Allied lines. The extreme advance from Brest to Sarreguemines was 430 airline miles. By official French estimate the Germans had suffered 1,150,000 casualties in the Western invasion, seemingly a conservative figure in view of 749,294 captives officially announced by the eight Allied armies.

Heavy Industry Threatened

The German Ruhr, Rhineland and Saar which circle the vast preponderance of the enemy's heavy industry all were imminently threatened. The Saar was invaded and more than 150 square miles of Germany was behind Patton's lines alone. How critical the Saar is to German economy is shown by the peacetime production annually of 13,300,000 tons of coal, 2,000,000 tons of steel and 2,000,000 tons of the pig iron.

The exact location of the new Saar river bridgehead was not specified. A battlefront dispatch said that patrols of the tenth armored division had crossed the river near Merzig, a Siegfried line strongpoint 16 miles down the river from Saarlautern.

Patton Marches On

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said Patton had captured Ruhrling and Woustwiller; reached Hundling; and were advancing near Oermingen and Dehlingem. All are in the Saarbrucken-Sarreguemines sector. Eight miles northwest of the outflanked French rail and supply center of Haugenau, troops entered Mertzwiller. Gains of "several miles were made" in the high and snowy Vosges mountains between Strasbourg and the area below Colmar.

Dispatches from the 21st army group headquarters in Holland said floods had covered 30 square miles between the Waal and Neder Rhine, but that the rivers were now dropping.

Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's big guns shelled the Dutch fortress town of Venlo. Planes yesterday destroyed or disabled 39 locomotives, 128 rail cars and 68 motor transports. A spokesman said the Germans were having great difficulties getting supplies to that front.

The Third army's 35th division moved into the edge of Sarreguemines and the sattelite town of Sarreinsming, a mile southeast, against only moderate opposition from small arms and light artillery.

Another column advanced three miles and entered Neufrance, two miles south of Sarreguemines. The 320th regiment of the 35th speared out seven miles to Siltzheim, three miles southeast of the border city.

The main concentration of Siegfried line defenses in this area is about ten miles north of Sarreguemines. The outer fringe of the west wall barriers, however, begins just across the river. Expensive entrenchments and pillboxes are placed there.

The 90th division crossed the Saar in a rain of rifle and machine gun fire and was fighting on the east bank in the edge of the Siegfried line defenses. At the original bridgehead inside Saarlautern, the 95th infantry reported artillery fire coming in at the rate of 240 rounds an hour yesterday. The Fifth division cleared out the Karlsbroon forest and wiped out a salient south of Saarlautern in advances ranging up to two miles.

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—The London Daily Herald said today a $210,000 payroll for United States troops on the western front had been stolen while in transit in England.

It was the most "hush-hush" crime of its kind in England's history, the Herald said. How and when it occurred is a mystery, and nobody will talk about it.

More Emphasis On Cattle Said Needed

DALLAS, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—Pulitzer Prize Winner Louis Bromfield said today that Texas, to survive as an agricultural state, must put more emphasis on the cattle industry which made it famous.

Bromfield, who is regarded as one of the nation's most progressive farmers as well as one of its outstanding authors, said that Texas farming land generally was becoming so depleted of its natural fertility, that it would have to be built up by more emphasis on grazing land and crops that create nitrogen in the soil and prevent erosion.

Bromfield will be the principal speaker tomorrow at the Texas Chemurgic conference currently being held here. He wil ltell how the "American Revolution in Agriculture" has left European agriculture far behind in its methods of soil conservation.

Jap Land Aviation Said Stronger Now

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP) — Increasingly strong opposition to American advances in the Pacific may be expected from Japanese land based aviation, Navy Secretary Forrestal reported today.

Forrestal said the enemy's land aviation now is stronger than at any time in Japan's history.

At a news conference, he said that in the battle for the Philippines American carrier planes and aircraft carriers met major forces of land based Japanese bombers and fighters for the first time.

A year ago, Forrestal said, American aviation had a great technical advantage but "now it is very slender."

He added that only a few of the newer improved enemy planes have been met in combat and said "there is good reason to believe that they are holding a large stock of these new army planes in reserve on the Jap mainland."

But the parents had their own theory.

Churchill Vetoes Coalition

No American troops are involved in the Athens fighting.

Themistokles Sophoulis, 85-year-old dean of the Greek Liberal party, declared yesterday that Prime Minister Churchill, through instructions to British diplomats in Athens, had vetoed replacing Premier George Papandreou in a government change that might have solved the crisis which came into the open Sunday with a series of disorders.

Papandreou offered yesterday to resign in favor of a coalition cabinet under Sophoulis.

The Liberal leader said all political factions had asked him to form a new government, even leftist leaders expressing their willingness to serve under him "in tion of the situation and blood-order to prevent further dsteriorashed."

Before any action was possible, however, Sophoulis continued. "British Minister Leaper called at my house and told me that, according to the latest instructions received from the British premier, 'any change in the present head of the government is impossible.'"

Grand Jury To Probe Slaying Of Mexican

TAHOKA, Dec. 6 (Special)—A January grand jury of the 106th judicial district will investigate a murder complaint accusing Jack Corley, Tahoka cafe owner, with murder of Mike Garcia, 45, a Mexican.

Garcia died early Tuesday in a Lubbock hospital, of gunshot wounds in the chest.

The charge was prepared by W. C. Huffaker, jr., Lynn county attorney and district attorney-elect, and was filed in the court of P. D. Server, justice of peace. Corley earlier had posted a $2,000 bond in connection with a charge of assault with intent to murder the Mexican, who, Sheriff Sam Floyd was informed, had gone behind the counter of Corley's restaurant early Sunday and figured in an argument that ended with a soft drink bottle attack and a gunshot.

King Is Accused Of Sacrificing Lives

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (AP) — The complexity of Canada's conscription dilemma was emphasized today by charges in the House of Commons that Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King was sacrificing soldiers' lives for political reasons —one of his accusers declaring the new reinforcement policy does not go far enough, another insisting it goes too far.

Proposing conscription of all of the 60,000 home army troops, Dr. H. A. Bruce, a member of the official opposition progressive conservative party, declared that King was sacrificing "the lives of our Canadian boys on the battlefields of France and Italy rather than lose votes in the province of Quebec."

Representing the extreme anti-conscriptionists, Armand Chopuette, a Quebec member of the nationalistic bloc populaire charged that the prime minister was wasting lives by giving in to the conscriptionists.

Eleven Persons Killed In Ammunition Blast

McALESTER, Okla., Dec. 6 (U.P.) —Names of four civilians and seven naval enlisted men killed late yesterday in an explosion of torpedo warheads at the McAlester naval ammunition depot were announced today by Capt. Elmer Woodside, commanding officer.

Woodside said cause of the tremendous blast at the cave-like magazine, or "igloo," in an isolated valley of the huge depot probably would never be known. The blast left no trace of any of its victims, tearing a hole in the ground 15 feet deep and 20 feet in diameter.

"The men were handling warheads in a routine operation," Woodside said. "Several of the warheads had been removed from two trucks parked outside the magazine and stored inside. Something went wrong. We probably never will know."

None of the victims was from Texas or New Mexico.

House Group Visits Patton Headquarters

U. S. THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 6 (AP) — Rep. Clare Boothe Luce, wearing something different in war zone fashions, and 16 male members of the House military committee visited Third army headquarters today.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., conducted the party on a tour of military installations immediately behind the front lines.

At headquarters in mid-morning, all but Mrs. Luce were briefed on the war situation by Patton and his aides before beginning the tour.

Mrs. Luce skipped the briefing and preceded the others to a nearby Army hospital, where she chatted with wounded GIs until the rest of the party caught up.

Youth Is Held In Burglary

A 16-year-old Lubbock youth, run down after he allegedly had burglarized People's Ice Co., at 418 Ave. H, Tuesday night was being questioned this morning into his possible connection with a series of other burglaries here recently.

Abdon F. Holt, secretary-treasurer of the Ice company, had set up a several-nights watch for someone suspected of having regularly entered the place, police and juvenile officials explained. Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, no one came into the place. Sunday night a youth was observed to slip in through a west window, against which a ladder had been placed, and crawl down through rafters and take $1.50 from the unlocked cash register. Holt allowed the youth to escape, "because I hoped that might be his last attempt."

"Watch" To Continue

Monday night's watch developed no "incident," but Holt was ready again Tuesday night, and so were two employes stationed outside the building.

Surprised by Holt, the youth jumped through a window and ran toward the Mexican section. The outside guards ran him down.

He was transferred to the juvenile ward of the sheriff's office. No petition had been filed.

Police, harrassed by break-ins, decided Tuesday night to study the adage of "honest people go to bed early and let the rogues ramble." They arrested three young men after 3:15 o'clock this morning and lodged them in jail on open charges and for investigation.

Reds Near Austria

for a desperate stand in the 31-mile corridor extending south from Balaton to the Drava river.

The Russians said a steady flow of German reserves was being drained off from the Italian and Balkan fronts in an effort to stem the Red army sweep toward Austria, and Berlin dispatches relayed through Stockholm claimed units of Marshal Maximilian von Weich's Balkan army already had crossed the Drava into the imperiled gap.

Reds Reported At Border

A Swiss broadcast claimed that Russian tank spearheads had punched through the southern corridor all the way to the Austrian border, but Moscow's early morning war bulletin apparently negated that report.

The communique placed Tolbukhin's southern vanguard in Marcali, 52 miles east of the border and 21 miles northeast of the gateway stronghold of Nagykanizsa last night, and the pace of the Russian advance indicated they would bring that fortress under attack within the next 34 hours.

At the opposite end of the lake, the Russians were racing full tilt toward the railway hub of Szekesfehervar 25 miles northwest of the shore town of Siofolk, which Berlin said fell to the Red army early yesterday.

Unconfirmed Swedish reports said Adolf Hitler had received Hungarian Premier Ferenc Szalasi in an emergency council of war, and Berlin declared that the wehrmacht would fight for every foot of Austrian soil.

Subject To Ratification

It establishes, subject to ratification by 26 nations, an international civil aviation organization whose functions are primarily ministerial and advisory, but which can be used to arbitrate disputes.

It establishes a similar organization, but with no punitive power, for the interim period.

It brought agreement on most of the matters involved in air navigation and technical standards for aircraft used in international air operations.

It prepared a standard form agreement by which all nations participating in the main convention agree to use a standard form for bilateral negotiations for commercial air rights.

It approved two separate "freedoms" documents which will grant to signers a mutual exchange of rights, one relating merely to transit and stops, the other covering the right to carry traffic of the home country of an airline and to pick up and discharge traffic at intermediate points.

Communism Issue In Greek Trouble

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

This column has been asked to interpret Britain's intervention in the Greek political crisis to prevent, as Prime Minister Churchill has made clear, any attempt to "impose by violence a Communist dictatorship" — a crisis which is producing fresh bloodshed in ancient Athens as this is written.

This situation strikes me as giving us in miniature a very accurate picture of the whole European politico-social upheaval.

There is focused in this fiery little Balkan kingdom of Greece, which stands at one of the world's strategic cross-roads, all the elements that are ushering in a new era on the continent. So let's restate those elements as an aid to visualization:

Russia Important Power

Russia is coming out of the war as the dominant power of Europe. John Bull naturally is increasingly active in trying to salvage what he can of his old prestige. Coincidently many continental countries are seeking eagerly for solution of great economic, social and political problems.

These seekers after relief are tending towards the left. In most cases Communism is playing a strong role. This is true in most of the remaining monarchies of the continent, and Greece is an outstanding example.

Throne Wants Company

Now while the spread of Communism certainly can't be abhorrent to Russia, it isn't calculated to help John Bull maintain his place in the sun. This is particularly true as regards the monarchies, for Britain's throne wants company.

When you add all this up it seems to me to provide one cogent reason why John Bull is intervening in Greece, which long has been in his sphere of influence.

No Isolated Instance

The Greek imbroglio isn't an isolated instance. Britain also is supporting the Bonomi government of Italy, which is having hard sledding against Communist and other leftist opposition that is against the monarchy. London also has turned thumbs-down on Count Sforza for Italian foreign minister. The count reputedly leans towards the left and is anti-monarchist. Similarly England is supporting the Belgian government.

In all this Moscow has sat very tight. The Washington State department, however, yesterday came out with its striking declaration that the United States expects the Italian people to develop their government "along democratic lines without influence from outside." That's blunt enough, but more sweeping is the additional statement: "This policy would apply to an even more pronounced degree with regard to governments of the United Nations and their liberated territories." And Greece is a liberated United Nation.

One-Armed Guard's Dream Comes True

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 6 (AP) — Ellis Jones, one-armed guard who climbed to southwestern football fame with the Golden Hurricane of Tulsa university, is realizing a grade school dream in a big way.

Now, a veteran of two Sugar Bowl games, he goes with Tulsa into the 1945 Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., a 185-pound hunk of hope to all who lose legs or arms in today's game of war.

Ellis fell out of a tree when he was 11 years old and broke his right arm. Later it was amputated at the shoulder, a loss that to many boys might have meant the end of all ambitions.

Football Scoring Hits All-Time High In 1944; Point-A-Minute Army Sets Pace

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Army's point-a-minute football machine set the pace in 1944 as college teams throughout the nation rolled up scores at a faster clip than they have in any season since the early 1920's.

The Cadets garnered 504 points in their all-winning nine-game season for an average of 56 points a game. In spite of that feat, the Eastern sector was the only one which showed no marked scoring gain in the annual Associated Press analysis of scoring figures.

The 104 teams covered in the 1944 survey totalled 14,336 points during the just-completed season, averaging 137.85 points each for the campaign and 17.29 points in each of the 829 games they played.

General Increase Shown

These figures showed a general increase of considerable proportions, continuing the trend that began in the late 30's, when the average had fallen under 13 points a game. Last year the National average was 16.91 per game and 129.46 per team. The high mark shown in the survey which was begun after the 1921 season was a 19-point a game average established in 1922.

The far Western sector, including the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast areas, registered the biggest scoring gain. The Midwest again was the scoring hotspot, with a season total average of 171.37 and a game average of 20.31.
