F. W. D. SENDS WATER

Reports Early Today Say Flames Are Under Control

VERNON, Oct. 12.—Oklaunion, west of here, is burning.

According to word received here at midnight a grain elevator owned by the Kell interests of Wichita Falls has been totally destroyed.

Several box cars were also burned, and sparks from them ignited the cotton yard.

The cotton is on fire.

Oklaunion is without water, but attempts are being made to extinguish the burning cotton

A chemical truck from Vernon has been sent to help local fire fighters.

The Fort Worth and Denver railway rushed several tank cars full of water from Vernon and with the aid of a chemical truck sent by the Vernon fire department, the blaze was being held in check at an early hour Monday morning.

It was expected that the loss would be confined to the grain elevator and to several dozen bales of cotton in a compress nearby.

Frank Kell, owner of the grain elevator at Oklaunion which was destroyed by fire early this morning, said the property was covered by insurance and that the elevator itself was worth approximately $3,500.

14 Lose Lives As Pleasure Boat Is Upset

EAUGALLIE, Florida, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The pleasure boat Clara B., owned by Captain Ed. Arnold of Malabar, Florida, and under contract to the Melbourne Farms, capsized when attempting to turn about just inside Sebastan inlet 25 miles south of here tonight. Fourteen are known to have drowned while several are reported missing.

A rough sea made rescue almost impossible, while those who were saved are badly cut from being thrown against the rock jetties.

The bodies rescued and brought here are those of Mrs. L. Davidson, wife of the manager of the Melbourne Farms, Mr. Rach and his 12-year-old son, and Mr. Salmon all of Wichita, Kan.

The remainder of the party is said to have come from Wichita and surrounding territory last Thursday to look over property of the Melbourne Farms company.

The boat left late this afternoon for a short sea journey, but on passing through the inlet south of here found the sea running so high that it was decided to put about and return to port. The rough sea and the short turn are thought to have been the cause of the upset. Fishermen joined in the rescue and other bodies are expected to be brought here tonight.

Four of the living were in serious condition.

Melbourne is a small city on the central lower Florida east coast, 200 miles south of Jacksonville.

Rescuers are still bringing in the bodies.

The Dead.

The death list at a late hour stood as follows:

Miss Dreiling, a Mr. Burton and wife, and Miss Larson and Mr Buckles, all of Wichita Kansas.

Mrs. L. Davidson, Melbourne, Florida.

Harry Kopperek, Kansas City, Kansas.

L. Wagstaff, said to be a Californian; a man named Salmon, believed from Wichita.

A Mrs. Ruckless was rescued but is in a dangerous condition from being washed against the rock jetties.

Rescued almost uninjured from the vessel, were:

David Barnes and wife, Wichita, Kansas.

Locke Davidson, Melbourne, and a Mrs. Dyckson.

SENATORS WIN 4 TO 0, TAKING 3-GAME LEAD

Walter Johnson Scores Second Series Victory Over Pirates

GRIFFITH STADIUM, WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Walter Johnson pitched his second victory of the world's series over the Pittsburgh Pirates today, blanking them, 4 to 0, and giving the Senators a lead of three games to one in the championship battle.

Washington now needs only one more victory to clinch the title for the second straight year. Stanley Coveleskie will try to pitch the club to this here tomorrow.

Goose Goslin's home run with Rice and Stanley Harris on base in the third inning gave Washington the winning margin and ended the southpaw hopes of Emil Yde, who was withdrawn after Joe Harris had followed with another circuit blow and Joe Judge had walked.

Get Second Homers.

It was the second homer of the series for both Goslin and Joe Harris and gave the Goslin the record for most circuit blows in the championship games

The Pirates got six hits off Johnson, one more than in the first game, and had several chances to score but found the big veteran's "smoke" and the Senator defense invincible in every emergency.

Stanley Harris was particularly brilliant on the defense, spearing Wright's smash with a jumping one hand catch in the seventh and doubling Traynor off first, while in the ninth the Senator leader picked up Traynor's grounder, tagged out Barnhart on the baseline and got the batter at first for another double play.

LIQUOR-LADEN FUGITIVE ENDS IN HOSPITAL

Cops Shoot Casing Open After Long Pursuit of Bootleggers

RIBS ARE BROKEN

Federal Whiskey Charges To Be Filed In Court Here Today

One man is in the hospital last night and another in the city jail awaiting filing of charges today as a result of a liquor-splattered chase late Sunday afternoon which ended in the wrecking of a car and the capture of two men well known to police. A charge of transportation of liquor will be lodged in federal court this morning against the man in the hospital, while the same complaint and one alleging driving a motor car while intoxicated may also be filed against his companion who is now in the city jail.

The chase started yesterday when Plainclothesmen Minnick and Jenson walked up on the car in the business district and ordered the occupants to submit to a search. Their reply was to step on the gas.

Chase Starts

Minnick and Jenson gave chase in their own car and followed the fugitive machine out Tenth street. It was disgorging pint bottles of whiskey right and left as it sped out the road. Ten or a dozen in all were heaved out, officers later estimated.

Winding in and out on cross streets failed to throw the pursuers off the track. The liquor-laden machine dodged and twisted but all to no avail.

Casing Shot Open

At Sixth and Van Buren the speeding pair had emerged sufficiently far from crowded traffic to allow the officers to use their guns. This they did, with the result that a rear casing of the fugitive machine was shot open and the car turned over.

A pint of liquor was found under one seat—enough to serve as evidence, while the two occupants were somewhat the worse for wear. One of them had two broken ribs and was taken to the hospital for treatment. The other was somewhat scared and shaken but otherwise was all right and was carried to the city hall and locked up for the night. He will be turned over to federal authorities today.

The jury reported at 8:55 o'clock this morning, after having deliberated over night. Martin, who sat in the court room with his eight-year-old son was unmoved when the prison sentence was read by Judge C. A. Pippen.

Maury Hughes, counsel for the defense, announced that he would file a mention for a new trial tomorrow.

Indicted In Robbery

Martin has been on trial since Monday. The case was transferred to Dallas from Denton county on a change of venue, upon motion of the defense. The case went to the jury shortly after noon Saturday.

The state alleged that Martin killed Parsons because the deputy had assisted in the gathering of alleged evidence that might implicate him in recent bank robberies in Texas. State attorneys spread before the jury 11 indictments for robbery which had been returned following a raid on the Yancey Story farm in Denton county.

Nature's Plot Fails As Lost Flyer Is Found

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP)—The frantic search for Charles Ames, air mail pilot who disappeared 10 days ago, ended today on Nittany mountain, six miles northeast of Bellefonte, when the body of the birdman was found in his wrecked plane, which had crashed against the side of the mighty hill. A party of searchers, one of the thousands who trampled the hills and valleys since Ames was reported lost, came upon the wreckage late this morning. Ame's body bearing only a few bruises was found in the cockpit of the ship.

Nature conspired to keep the fate of the birdman unknown, for when the wrecked ship of the air was found, it was discovered that four kings of the forest, broken off when the plane crashed into them, had formed a perfect cover. Under these four big trees, completely surrounded, rested the wreckage containing the pilot's body.

Word of the find spread through the mountains like wildfire, and within a short time, hundreds of the searchers, together with air mail officials from the Bellefonte field were on the scene.

Died Instantly

The body, lifted from the cockpit, was brought to Bellefonte and taken to an undertaking establishment.

That Ames met instant death was the belief of the airmail officials. His face was badly bruised, but the body contained few other marks.

The point where Ames crashed is densely wooded. It was evident that the pilot was flying low, crashed into the four trees, the plane coming to stop against the trunk of a fifth. The trees closed in upon the wreckage, making it impossible for the airmen, who have searched this entire region to locate the spot where Ames met death.

Mail Intact

Ames was on his course and was near the Heckla light, beacon for airmen, when he met his fate. Over the point where his body rested in the debris, other airmen have passed each day, flying east and west with their cargoes of mail for New York and Chicago.

The shipment of mail in Ames' plane was intact, and shortly after it was removed from the wreckage, it was on its way west in a plane piloted by F. B. Hill.

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 11.—President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers' college stated in an address before the ex-students of this institution at Amarillo this week that when the next legislature convenes he will ask for an appropriation of $500,000 for two new buildings. One of these will be an educational building costing $300,000, the other a library building costing $200,000.

BURK BAPTISTS DEDICATE NEW CHURCH SUNDAY

$21,000 Raised to Lift Last Indebtedness On Structure

BURKBURNETT, Oct. 11.—With all the enthusiasm inspired by lifting of a $21,000 debt, the new First Baptist church of this city was dedicated here tonight by Dr. George Truett of Dallas before a crowd that packed the big building to its very portals.

Sunday was a big day for Burkburnett Baptists who, to begin with, made pledges exceeding $21,000 which was the last of the indebtedness against their new building. It was completed last August and has been in use since then but has never been formally dedicated. It represents a $100,000 investment.

The Sunday morning services were given over by Dr. Truett to a campaign to raise funds necessary to cancel the notes; and with this accomplished, formal dedicatory services were held tonight. Dr. Truett delivered an inspiring sermon and some exceptional musical numbers were rendered. Visitors were on hand from points as far away as Mangum, Okla., while the more nearby communities poured legions of Baptists into Burkburnett for the day. Wichita Falls sent one of the largest delegations.

Dr. Truett will remain here until Wednesday, preaching at the noon hour and again in the evening. Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, Dr. F. S. Guener, secretary of the convention, Dr. E. C. Routh, editor of the Baptist Standard, and other noted Baptists are scheduled to make addresses here.

"The Open Water Ditch"

Editor's note: Because publication in Wichita Falls has been made of the charge that arguments for closing the open water ditch from Lake Wichita to the city water plant is nothing but propaganda, the Record News is printing a series of articles setting forth the conditions surrounding this ditch that readers may determine for themselves whether or not the ditch should be closed. Following is the third of the series.

AT A VERY small expense it is possible to connect the irrigation laterals now running from Lake Kemp to the present open ditch leading to the water plant. Such a connection would serve to keep hard water out of the lake but would leave us in as bad shape as before because the hard and soft water would mix in the ditch the same as they now do in the Lake. Remember there is just one channel to carry water to both the irrigated lands and to the water plant.

However, with a seperate channel for hard irrigation water and another for soft domestic water we can keep them seperate.

Two channels of any kind would do. Two open ditches would do it, or two pipes, or an open ditch and a pipe.

Two open ditches are not feasible because the right of way for the present ditch is only fifty feet wide and the ditch now takes up about all the room. Of course additional right of way can be condemned but this would be enormously expensive and slow. Much of the land that would have to be taken is residence property. Houses would have to be wrecked or moved. Streets closed or re-located. It is probable that a hundred condemnation suits would have to be brought to get enough land to build another ditch on. It would take a long time and would cost lots of money.

But with a pipe line and an open ditch the problem solves itself. The pipe can be laid in a trench dug along side of the present ditch and kept on the right of way. There would be no additional expense and no delay.

Certainly if we are going to have soft water there is no other way so cheap and so feasible as turning the open ditch over to the Irrigation District for their use in carrying Lake Kemp irrigation water to the lands which they have to irrigate, and then building a pipe line in a trench along side to carry

SATTERWHITE SAYS INQUIRY IS NECESSARY

Believes Majority of Members Favor Calling of Legislature

PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW

Citizens Entitled to Facts In Government, He States

AMARILLO, Oct. 11.—(AP) — Speaker of the House, Lee Satterwhite, Saturday said he believed that in all probability the required number of house members would respond to A. H. King's proclamation for a special session of the legislature to convene that body on Nov. 2. He declared the people are entitled to know the facts relative to state affairs at this time.

Mr. Satterwhite is inclined to favor a special session to investigate the conditions referred to by Mr. King, representative of Throckmorton, he said.

He explained a majority of the house members signing a petition gave authority for convening the legislature, regardless of the attitude the governor might take.

KING SAID VICE WAS RAMPANT IN TEXAS

Rep. A. H. King of Throckmorton on Friday of last week issued a call for an extraordinary session of the legislature naming among eight reasons therefor that it should be called "to investigate the abuse, if any, of official powers and prerogatives by state officials."

In a telephone message to the Record News from Seymour Rep. King declared that vice in Texas was rampant, that it stalked abroad "by day and night" and that virtue was asleep.

Headlines in newspapers of the day previous, he said, moved him to make the call, especially because of the Harris county highway investigation.

Negro Club Yields A Big Crap Game

The doors of a negro club house in the negro section of the city were closed Sunday night following a raid which netted city police 11 crap-shooters and sufficient evidence to convict the proprietors of operating a gambling hall. A state license recently issued allowing the place to run as a domino and pool emporium will be revoked if the gaming charges are proved, police said.

All the negroes arrested put up bond or went to jail on charges of gaming.

REV. JOHNSON TALKS TO 288 AT KAY CLASS

"Be Not Afraid, But Speak and Hold Not Thy Peace," Is Text

Rev. Walter J. Johnson, pastor of the Methodist church, south, spoke to 288 members of the Kay Bible class Sunday morning at the Strand theatre when he spoke on the text, "Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace," taking up the experiences of Paul, the apostle.

The text of the lecture follows:

I remmember the statement made by the founder of the Methodist church, Mr. Wesley. His injunction to preachers was to be always ready to do one of two things, either to preach or to die. And, I am not ready to preach this morning, and I don't want to die, but I am forced into this position because of the exigencies of the case, as I was met just outside of the building and asked to speak to you a few minutes this morning on this lesson.

We are here this day to meditate upon God's word and surely we may be directed in some thoughts that may be beneficial to us, stimulating to us amid the trials and temptations that come to us in every passing day, so I am reminded here of this text. If it was necessary for a great man like the apostle St. Paul, it is necessary for us all, and should come to us with added influences, this text: "Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace." A man can only speak something that he knows. You cannot be a witness in that about which you are not informed. Also, there must be ready hearers; there must be a soil for the seed of truth that is sown by a speaker.

Great Mind

Now, this great man who is regarded as one of the great minds of all history. He spoke most eloquently, as is related in the very first verse of this passage of scripture, on Mars Hill at Athens. I had a great jurist say to me that that was one of the most eloquent speeches ever delivered by human tongue and, yet, the soil there was not sufficiently cultivated for the reception of the truth uttered by this great man, for spiritual things are spiritually discerned, and so far as outward results coming from that eloquent discourse from St. Paul is concerned, there is no record of anything being accomplished particularly by it.

Those Greek philosophers rejected it. They were worshipping all kinds of gods, and you remember Paul said, "Ye, whom you ignorantly worship, I declare unto," so you cannot always determine results by outward appearances, when we are dealing in spiritual forces. But this man left Athens, going on down to Corinth, where one might think that he would have greater discouragements than in Athens, where there was so much learning, where men had been trained to think and reason concerning intricate questions, for Corinth was known as one of the great commercial centers of the world. People there were not engaged so much in thought or in philosophy, but they were engaged there in commercial things, in the making of money, in the exchange of commodities of life, but there Paul seems to have found a fruitful field. There he found that the people perturbed by the varying and contradictory elements of life in the competitions of trade, were more ready to receive the truth than even those at Athens. He joined himself to a number of Jews over there who had been driven out of Rome—Rome had always been unkindly to the Jews. I remember of seeing in Rome an arch called the "Arch of Titus," and you who are familiar with the Arch of Titus know it was erected for this man Titus who destroyed the temple, bringing thousands of slaves, dragging them along the way, bringing them back to serve his own people as slaves. It is said that no Jew will pass under this arch, and who can blame him?

Paul Unselfish

But, Paul could not find a ready reception by his own people. His heart went out for his people, and you will remember on one occasion he made this declaration; he could with that himself were a castaway, if his own people might be saved. He was willing to lay down his own life for those whom he loved. He had been forsaken by those with whom he was reared; his own family turned their backs on him. He went out to carry the good tidings of the gospel to his own people, but they turned him down. And, on this particular occasion, when he was speaking in the synagogue, the people blasphemed; contradicted his teachings, turned away from him with scorn, and then it was that he made that declaration that "Thy blood be upon mine own head. I am clean. I have discharged my duty."

I wonder if we ever think of that great truth. I wonder if we have discharged the duties of life incumbent upon us. I wonder if we have met our responsibilities and can look into the face of our Lord and look deep into our own conscious matters, and say: 'I have done my best, and the responsibility belongs to you, my fellow citizen, my business associate, in every day life, I have tried to live a christian life before you. I have tried not to be fanatical, but it has been the first and foremost question in my life.' I wonder if it will ever be said of us, as I once heard said of a man who died. It was said that his partner in business never uttered one word to him about christianity. I wonder if we realize this is the supreme question, the paramount issue of life. It doesn't mean that we have to surrender our business to be christians, but it means that christianity enters into our business and elevates it, an dlifts it up. And, when the end comes, can we say that 'I am clean,' 'I am a christian, I know that I am.' Christian evidence is very simple. One evidence is that a man loves his brethren; another evidence is, he is willing to tstify before the world. He is willing to carry this into the practical affairs of every day life. 'I know that I am a christian because I am not ashamed of the Lord, Jesus Christ.' I know that I am a christian because I can look into the faces of my fellows and, with joy in my heart, acknowledge to the world that Jesus Christ is Lord of Lords and King of Kings, that Jesus Christ was the son of the living God. There are those today who will not accept it, perhaps, but that is not my side of the question or ours. Yours is to be a witness for Him who suffered an ignominious death upon the cross in order that I might have life, and opportunity, and a place in the world, and be a co-operant with God in the great issues of time and of eternity.

Was Discouraged.

But, St. Paul, naturally, as a human being, was somewhat discouraged. I am sure that the father, looking upon a wayward son, in whom his ambitions were centered seeing that boy go astray, having prepared him in mind and in body for the duties and responsibilities of life, he throws aside these opportunities, tramples them under foot, and disgraces his own name and that of his father.

He goes out into the world a spendthrift, a high roller, a boy without care or responsibility, and no worth. The father is discouraged. And, they are all over our land. I would you could know. Sometimes people, stern business men, have communications with pastors. I receive letters, particularly from fathers in other states, asking me please to see after their boy; if I would not help him, as much as possible, to guide his feet in moral and religious paths. Ah, men, when we come down to the serious side of life, if men have everything else, and not a moral stamina, or moral basis in life—ah, life is a failure.

St. Paul was discouraged, and the message comes to him: "Be not discouraged. Be strong. Speak out promptly. There are a lot of others in the world, and even in the city of Corinth. There are those in the world who will hear you and will not ignore you." St. Paul began to think, perhaps, like Elijah of old. You remember when he had that severe test on Mount Carmel. After the test was over, there was no longer this high excitement of the physical man, he got into a state of the blues. He went off down into the wilderness, and, under a juniper tree, he said: "Let me die. Let me die. I am the only good man left in the world"; and, St. Paul, perhaps, felt something like that in Corinth, and the Lord told him that there were numbers of people in Corinth who were not ashamed of Jesus Christ, who were followers of His in their every day life and practice: men who, at the head of their table, recognize Him in asking His blessings upon the food they had; men who made Him first. And, business men, in every day life, let me tell you my honest observation, the great neglect of men, and the saddest and most hurtful, is to neglect Him who made this world, and without whom there is nothing made that is made. The man who thinks that he is sufficient in himself, by his business acumen, to go out into the difficulties of the world, and meet responsibilities along, unladed by the power of the unseen source; that man who leaves his house in the morning without invoking divine guidance through the day; that man, nor any other man is sufficient in himself to cope with the difficulties and responsibilities that rest upon him.

Made for a Purpose.

God has made you for a purpose, and expects something of you. God is disappointed in the man who can not arise in the morning and go out into the world upon his responsibility, to do something worth while in that day and every day. Along your pathway of life, God has rained down opportunities that could have been gathered up and enriched your own life, and made humanity better and brighter, so it is your responsibility, men, to recognize this great Christ, the way, the truth, the light.

The time is coming, men, with you and with me, when He is the only friend who can stand by us in that hour and give us strength, and accompany us through the valley of the shadow of death, so I repeat to you this morning, this golden text, 'Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace.' Be men! Be men of God!

Mrs. J. A. Brannen entertained with a birthday party Monday afternoon at her home on North Wichita street honoring her small daughter Fern, on her third birthday. A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations and the big birthday cake, with yellow and white decorations. Favors for the little girls were colonial dolls, with yellow and white dresses, and French harps for the boys. Delightful refreshments were served to the following little folks: Eleanor Lebus, Margaret Ann and Gloria Ann Grizzle, Beth Miller, Nova Gene Tegarden, Bert Weatherall, Mary Edith Dinsmore, Georgia Lee Simmons, Elizabeth Decker, Ann Clair Branner, James Lloyd Miller, Henry Odgen, Marshall Carr Peck, Hey Seay, Frank Lebus, Jr. The little hostess received many lovely gifts from her little friends.

MRS. LEBUS HOSTESS

The Sunday school class of senior girls met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. F. Lebus on Harrison avenue, to complete the plans for the newly organized group of young ladies. One of the principal things to be taken up was the plans for building a Sunday school class room on the church lot. Mrs. Byron Hastor presented some plans to the class to which they agreed to accomplish. Miss Virginia Douglass, the class president presided and the young ladies had a very interesting business session. After the business meeting, Mrs. Lebus served refreshments to the following young ladies, Misses Irene Lebus, Anna Dell Skinner, Bina Magee, Dixie Tuttle, Earline McDannald, Myrtle Maynard, Wilma Kilpatrick, Virginia Douglass, and Mrs. Byron Hestor.

The Catholic Alter Society will hold a meeting for the ladies at the K. C. Hall on Monday afternoon, at which time all the ladies are requested to be present.

The Rainbow girls had a parctice meeting at the Masonic Hall at 9:00 o'clock Friday evening, preparing for the initiation of a candidate on next Thursday evening. About seventeen young ladies were present at this meeting, and according to Mrs. Sam Ripley, guardian of the Rainbow girls, much enthusiasm is being shown in these meetings.

HORSES OWNED BY WICHITANS WIN HONORS

Law Entries From Oklahoma City Give Competition, However

Horses owned and driven by R. L. and Mrs. Law of Oklahoma City gave Wichita Falls horse fanciers all the competition they wanted Sunday afternoon when the final events of the society horse show division of the Texas-Oklahoma fair were run off at Fairpark. The exhibition, judging and making of awards were the real windup of the 1925 exposition, they having been delayed from last Thursday night, the final fair period, by inclement weather.

The Law entries figured prominently in every event, although in the two major classes of the afternoon they bowed to Wichita Falls horses In the grand championship for five-gaited horses, the winner of which was awarded the Kruger gold cup, W. B. Hamilton's "Susan Francis" was returned victor; while in the grand championship for three-gaited horses, the winner of which was awarded the Dave Paul cup, D. O. Johnson's "Moving Picture" came out ahead of the field. A Law horse was declared reserve winner in this event while a horse owned by Dr. John E. Hatherly of Chicago was reserve winner in the five-gaited event.

Buford Rides Winners.

Only a handful of spectators were on hand for the afternoon show but they were plainly dyed-in-the-wool horse enthusiasts and all got a big kick out of the exhibition.

One feature of the show was a polo pony race of one-quarter of a mile, run near the conclusios of the program. Wichita Falls ponies outstripped their rivals from the Fort Sill, Okla., military camp by finishing first, second and third. A horse owned by Dave White came in winner by a nose from one of C. H. Featherstone's mounts which in turn won by a scant margin from one of Dr. J. H. Fletcher's ponies. The rest of the big field trailed in the rear by several lengths.

The Fort Sill officers, however, bowed to the Wichitans only in speed and in polo periods played between show events the visitors emerged on the long end of a top-heavy 9 to 2 score. The field was muddy and slow.

Music for the afternoon was supplied by Leon Taylor's military band.

There Are Many Ways To Do the Trick, But the Right Way Will Net You $500

What's your method of adding up the figures on the Record News elephant's hide? Are you giving his tail a twist first and gradually reaching the trunk, or are you starting with the trunk and going to the "valise?" Judging from what some of the contestants have been telling the Record News contest manager, there promises to be as many tackling the elephant as there are in beating the races.

Barnum knew his stuff when he brought the first elephant over the pond, but the Record News was not much behind when it secured the $1,000 prize elephant for its first appearance here. And the contestant who wins the first prize of $500 and the others who share in the remainder of the $1,000, will be the brightest of all. Will November 14 be just another day for you, or will it be the day on which you will gather in the shekels?

Get your answer and subscription in early. Pay your paper one year in advance and get the full benefit of the prizes offered. In addition, of course, you will receive one of our $1,000 accident insurance policies free of charge. This last will protect yourself and family for the future.

The Record News has a bag full of presents, it would seem, for its readers and friends. It is eager to give the best of everything in the news line and then to top it off by letting its friends into such big rewards as this elephant contest. That the public is more than appreciating it, is borne out by the fact that already hundreds of answers have been sent in.

OPEN DITCH

It will probably be advisable in the near future to build at some point near the west end of the city and nearer to the lake another pumping plant. It is inconsistant with true economy to run water for the entire city down to theeast side and then pump it back four or five miles to a portion of the city that would be much nearer to an auxiliary station.

But regardless of whether or not such a plant is built now or in the future the pipe line must be built. There is no other feasible way. The two kinds of water must be kept reparate.

Of course the greatest use of water will always be from the present site It is located closest to the business section and to the railroads, refineries and other large consumers of water. The main pumping plant will probably always be best located just where it now is, but no doubt other plants will be built as the need arises.

Perhaps there are some who do not feel that soft water is worth all this expense. Hard water suits them all right. So let us see whether or not hard water is more costly to the user than soft water and what effect it has on pipes, boilers, household water heaters and plumbing generally, and on the use of soap in our homes.

Let us take up the last item first and find out about soap. As we stated some time ago the waters of Lake Kemp are 18 times harder than those of Holliday creek. Or it takes 18 times as much soap to clean clothes or make it lather as it does if you use Holliday creek water.

No doubt you have noticed when the water was hard here how much soap you had to use. The water is not nearly so hard now as the the lake has only recently filled up with soft water on account of the heavy rains.

It is estimated by competent authority that the average increase in the consumption of soap here on account of hard water is about $2 per family every month. As we have about 60,000 people and there are about five people to the family this means 12,000 families. This is $24 per year per family, or for the whole town in a year the sum of $288,000. The proposed pipe line is estimated to cost only $135,000 so the saving in soap alone would more than pay for it every six months. This increase in the use of soap is a rather invisible tax but a very real one never the less.

Many people here have considered the matter of soap consumption and have found that really the increase was more apparent in the use of toilet soaps than in the laundry variety The reason for this is that it is quite impossible to get clothes clean and white by washing them in hard water so they are sent to the laundry instead. The expense is just as great but the results of hard water are not so apparent in the use of laundry soap.

This is a fine thing for the laundries who have installed softening plants and can therefore do a fine job, but it is rather expensive to those families of moderate means where the washing is normally done at home.

Numerous domestic water softeners have been installed in the city since we began using hard water. One firm at least has gone into the business of manufacturing a water softener for household use and is doing a very nice business. It is estimated that around 1,000 of these devices have been installed here during the past year or 18 months.

A softener costs at least $150 installed and many of them more. Taking them at the lowest figure at least $150,000 has been spent in this way and no doubt that much more will be expended in the next year. With a pipe line costing only $135,000, it is easy to see that on water softeners alone it would pay for itself in a year. This is an invisible tax only to the fellow who has not installed one. Of course most of us have not been able to afford such a luxury or have been hoping been hoping that soft water would return again.

COTTON CROP IN CHILDRESS PUT AT 30,000

Yield To Be Much Better Than Expected, Is Belief

CHILDRESS, Oct. 11.—Local cotton men are now predicting that if frost holds off until November that the crop in Childress will be larger than expected. Some place the figure at 40,000 while others think 30,000 bales will be nearer the mark. Three thousand bales have been ginned up to the present time.

BUSINESS REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—All of the familiar signs of trade expansion were present last week, giving definite indications of a sound and healthful state of business. In many instances the progress of commercial activity was slow but there was a distinct quickening of retail trade that carried promise of further improvement in wholesale channels and in manufacturing lines.

Resumption of the gold movement from London to New York was the most interesting development of the week from the viewpoint of international trade. Shipments of 6,000,000 or more are now on their way to swell the enormous stocks of the metal already held in the United States. Unless the movement becomes considerably larger, it is expected to have little effect on conditions here.

Reports of railway operations which appeared last week were unmistakably favorable. Not since the transportation act became operative five years ago have August earnings of the class one carriers been so impressive. The total of almost $125,000,000 was equivalent to more than six per cent earned on the combined tentative valuation of the railroads—the first months this year that the "fair" return of 5 3-4 per cent has been exceeded.

Continuation of the freight movement at a high level was reflected in the announcement that car loadings for the week ended September 26, numbered 1,120,643, a figure exceeded only once before this year.

Steel operations expanded to about 80 per cent of capacity for the entire industry, with steady growth reported in the volume of inquiries for various steel products. Several large rail orders were placed during the week and more are in sight for the next few weeks.

BOND REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP).—The prospective flotation of several hundred million dollars in foreign loans overshadowed the relatively narrow movement of bond prices last week. Trading in the bond market was restricted by the stiffening of fine money rates, with loans quoted as high as five per cent for the first time this year.

All signs in the investment field points to active preparation by the banks to accommodate a large number of foreign borrowers. Financial representatives of three nations—Belgium, Germany and Japan—were scheduled to reach New York this week to disicuss new financing for their respective countries.

The Belgian negotiations, it is understood, will involve a comprehensive plan for financial rehabilitation. Following a visit to London, both the finance minister of Belgium and the governor of the national banks were reported ready to come to New York to arrange credits and loans aggregating $150,000,000.

The forthcoming visit of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German reich bank, is not expected to lead to active negotiations for new financing but will unquestionably pave the way for further advances to German cities and industries, many of which have been clamoring for loans. Most of these will be for $10,000,000 or less but the large number pending will run the total of German borrowings up to an impressive figure.

Settlement of the $115,00,000 Czecho-Slovakian debt to the United States is expected to clear the way for a $5,000,000 private loan to the government. The initial installment, which will probably amount to $25,000,000, is said to be ready for the market.

Dispatches from Tokyo last week confirmed reports that efforts would be made in New York to float a 100,000,000 yen reconstruction loan for the city authorized after the earthquake in 1923.

Wall Stree talso was flooded with rumors of new South American financing. Strength of Brazilian and Uruguayan exchanges was attributed to talk of a $35,000,000 Sao Paulo loan and one of $45,000,000 for Uruguay.

A large bond issue for the Chilean Nitrate and Railway company is scheduled for offering this week.

A marked contraction took place in the volume of new offerings, which approximated $40,000,000 as compared with $55,000,000 in the preceding week and more than $100,000,000 in the corresponding period of last week.

COTTON REVIEW

NEW ORLEANS. Oct. 11.—(AP)—The most surprising event of the past week, was the publication of the large preliminary estimate of the crop by the government Thursday. The trade had been prepared to expect an increased crop indication over the figure of two weeks previously and an estimate of 14,250,000 bales would have occasioned no great surprise, but the estimate of 14,759,000 bales dumbfounded traders as such a total meant a revision upward of the agricultural department of its views of two weeks ago by an increase of 828,000 bales.

The result was a drastic drop in prices amounting to more than 180 points, or nine dollars a bale. While many traders were disposed to accept the census bureau's report showing that 7,101,000 bales had been ginned to October 1, as confirmation of the big crop estimate, others were not convinced.

The decline was halted by a good trade demand. There evidently existed a number of orders to buy on the scale down. This, with reports of a continued good spot demand, brought about a moderate rally.

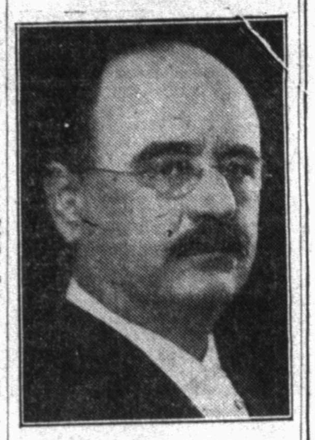

The rally of Friday was helped by an official forecast of frosts and cold weather in the northern part of the western belt. It is known that considerable late cotton remains to mature in Oklahoma and the northern part of Texas and Arkansas, which would be practically eliminated by a sever freeze. As a result, prices recovered more than two dollars a bale.

On Saturday most of the gain of the previous day was lost when the weather map showed there had been no killing frosts and the offical forecast predicted fair and warmer weather over Sunday.

MARTIN

They had been introduced to test the credibility of Martin as a witness.

The defense attempted to show the existence of a political feud, from which the killing developed. The defense introduced evidence to show that Martin had been the political opponent of Sheriff W. S. Fry in his race for sheriff and that a conspiracy had existed to employ Parsons to kill Martin. Fry stoutly denied this. Martin testified he shot in self defense when Parsons drew his pistol. The state introduced witnesses who said that Parsons never drew his pistol.

Spectacular Battle

After the shooting Martin barricaded himself in his home at Denton and defied officers from Dallas and Denton counties, and surrendered only after a fussilade of bullets was poured into the house.

In the trial Sheriff Schuyler Marshall of Dallas county, who aided in the capture of Martin, testified that Sheriff Fray instructed him to kill Martin and everybody in the house, while Sheriff Fry said he told Marshall to take Martin "dead or alive."

At the time of the killing Martin faced charges of assault with intent to murder, in connection with a similar attempt to resist arrest. He had barricaded himself in his house and several shots were fired into it by Tarrant and Denton county officers. He finally surrendered. Trials on the charges had been transferred to Wise county on a change of venue. The cases had not come up for hearing.

Martin was also indicted by the Denton county grand jury for participation in Denton county bank robberies after a raid on the Story farm by state rangers and Dallas and Denton county officers. Numerous charges of robbery developed from the discovery of many articles found on the farm. Martin was subsequently charged as being implicated in the robbery of a bank at Holland.

LOWDEN ON THE FARM PROBLEM.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is one of the most successful of American farmers and one of the foremost American business men. He was invited to go before the American Bankers' association at its golden anniversary convention to discuss the farm problem. He appeared, and he made an appeal to the bankers to help the farmers organize their great industry and "thus take their rightful place in the organized world in which we live."

He submitted facts and figures for his audience of American bankers. He said that the farmers returned on their investment averaged only three and six-tenth per cent last year after an allowance for wages that was less than the average paid in other industries.

He denied that the farmer was inefficient, as charged frequently, and pointed out that while American farm laborers represented less than 4 per cent of the world's farm labor in 1921, it produced nearly 70 per cent of the world's corn, 60 per cent of the world's cotton, 50 per cent of the world's tobacco, 25 per cent of the world's oats and hay, 20 per cent of the world's wheat and flax seed, 13 per cent of the world's barley and 75 of the world's potatoes.

Frank O. Lowden has a cotton plantation in Arkansas and he is interested in farm land in Texas. He had something to say concerning the fleecy staple and bumper crop. He declared as a matter of fact a bumper crop usually brings ruinously low prices. For instance,

"A year ago this summer there was a drouth in the southwest which was injuring the cotton crop. The government estimated the crop of the year at 12,400,000 bales, and then the drouth was broken. The government got out another report and this time estimated a yield of 13,000,000 bales, an increase of less than 5 per cent. Prices at once fell about 20 per cent. If these prices reflected real values, the loss to the cotton farmers of the south, due to a timely rain, was something like $300,000,000, and yet there was a dirth of cotton such as had not existed since the civil war. The press had been filled with fear of a cotton famine."

This noted farmer and business man of Illinois is a republican. He declined to take second place on the ticket with Calvin Coolidge. He is a real farmer. He is not a political farmer who farms the farmers. His figures are interesting. His comment anent the cotton conditions in 1924 are interesting.

There is another drouth this year. There has been a lot of guessing relative to the Texas yield this year. Every time the government makes a new guess, the price of cotton goes off. After the shock has spent its force, the price of cotton comes back.

GIGANTIC INSURANCE COMPANY.

Now the American Federation of Labor is going into the insurance business. This great organization of organized wage workers is going to float its own insurance company. Millions of members will be insured, and according to the present plans it will take a two billion dollar corporation to carry the business.

There are successful labor banks and trust companies. They are found in the great cities of America. Now the greatest of America labor organizations is going to establish an insurance company exclusively for its own membership.

There is a new civilization here. There are men who are not aware of it. A two billion dollar organized labor life insurance company is certain to attract some attention in the business as well as the labor world.

WALL STREET CUT THE MELONS.

Call money climbed to 6 per cent in Wall street in the closing days of September, the highest since 1923. This was caused by preparations for a heavy disbursements of dividends and interest on October 1st, when these payments totaled $500,000,000, which topped all previous records for this season of the year. All the trade papers of America and all the trade kings of America are predicting an era of prosperity that will continue for years to come.

AN APPEAL TO THE HEART.

Before sailing for France Finance Minister Caillaux made what he called his last appeal to the heart of America. He made a mistake. The heart of America is not located in the pocketbook of the American taxpayer.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Education Begins With Imitation.

The one way to learn is to watch other people—at first.

Education begins with imitation.

All children are imitators.

By imitating they learn to walk, to talk, to do all the things that they are to do later in their own way.

Bring up a Chinese child among Caucasian people, and he will grow up a Caucasian, save in appearance and in certain racial traits which will be hardly noticeable.

The fear of being known as an imitator is foolish in the young.

Not until one has learned a great deal, and thought a great deal can he afford to try to be original.

Through Europe every day go thousands of young people who mean to be painters by and by.

Some of them will be great painters. But these as well as the others are now studying the work of Michael Angelo and Leonardio di Kinci and other great painters, and trying for the time being to paint as nearly in the same way as they can.

Robert Louis Stevensin says that when he was a young man, trying to write he made many slavish imitations of the work of other men.

But when he had mastered a style of his own it was different from that of any other writing man of his time.

Keats wrote much in the style of some of the poets he had read when he began.

But he soon knew what he could do, and he wrote as no man had written before.

It has been many thousand years since men first began to think and work in this world.

In these thousand years have lived many great geniuses, who with all their originality still learned from those who had gone before them.

When they had learned as much as they could learn they developed their art along original lines.

In mechanical progress, which is more marked in the present century than is any other form of human effort, one set of engineers builds upon the work of others.

The modern steamship is not a sudden development. In the great engines that drive it alone, in the lines that enable it to move through the water with the minimum effort of the propellor is the work of many years of thought and invention.

Unless the men who put the latest great steamship into commission had imitated their predecessors, their accomplishment would not be possible.

People are often told not to imitate, but they must imitate, or they will never learn.

And inasmuch as they could not help imitating if they wanted to, the advice given them by solemn mentors is rather foolish.

To people of talent, originality will come. But it will be of far more value if there has been in early life intelligent imitation of the work of the intelligent men of the past and of the present.

STUPEFYING THE MASSES.

Man has a various nature, which requires a variety of occupation and discipline for its growth.

Study, meditation, society, and relaxation need to be mixed up with his physical toil.

He has intellect, heart, imagination, taste, as well as bones and muscles. He is wronging himself when his life is nothing but drudgery for bodily subsistence.

"Life should be an alternation of employments, so diversified as to call the whole man into action," Channing observed.

Unhappily our present civilization is far from realizing this idea.

It tends to increase the amount of manual toil, at the same time that it makes this toil less favorable to the culture of the mind.

The machine age is getting us in its grip.

The division of labor, which distinguished savage from civilized life, and to which we owe chiefly the perfection of the arts, tends to dwarf the intellectual powers, by confining the activity of the individual to a narrow range, to a few details, perhaps to the heading of pins, the pointing of nails.

In the Ford factory in Detroit, there are thousands of men who do nothing hour after hour, day after day, but one such simple task as screwing a nut on a certain bolt.

Everywhere there are men deadening their brains with some such monotonous toil.

While the savage has his faculties sharpened by various occupations, and by exposure to various perils, the so-called civilized man treads a stupefying round of unthinking toil.

Channing calls variety of action, corresponding to the variety of human powers, and fitted to develop it, the most important element of human civilization.

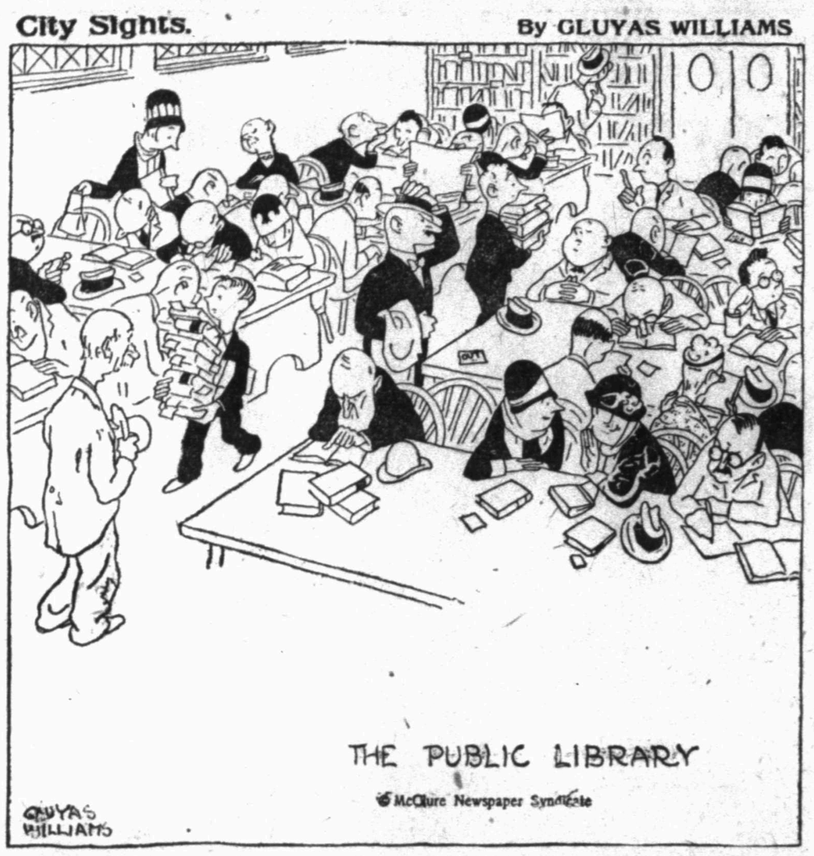

It is obvious that a system of labor which saps the health, and shortens life, and famishes intellect, needs, and must receive, great modification.

SPEAKING OF FAIRS.

Texas has many fairs and expositions. There is one at Dallas. A newspaper publisher launched it 40 years ago. Colonel Frank P. Holland, publisher of Holland's magazine, organized the institution which is known as the state fair of Texas. He is in the land of the living; the fair he launched is in the land of the living, but the Texas of today is not the Texas of 40 years ago. It must be true that mighty oaks from little acorns grow.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

Libra

Today's planetary aspects are very favorable, and remain so until sundown when they become overcast and gloomy, and all vibrations of a stimulating nature are lacking. Every effort should be made during the early part of the day to crystallize into positive action those thoughts and ideas with which you, possibly, have been obsessed, regardless of the fact of whether they are related to side of your life. If you have been contemplating a business change, if you have though out some new project, if you have been meditating some act that will inure to your happiness, be encouraged by today's signs to put the issue to the test, as all indications point to success. In the evening, the maintenance of poise, and a determination not to let trifles worry you, will avoid any disturbing influences of exteremely adverse aspects.

Children born today are, according to the signs, destined to enjoy rugged health, and promise to be practically exempt from all serious ailments. They will, however, need watching during their teens, as overconfidence in their own physical strength will, without restraining influence, tempt them to tempt providence and "take chances." Temperamentally, they will be boisterous and keenly alive to their responsibilities, and will always be disposed to take for them—whether it be good or bad degree of callousness. Even in later years, they will be more successful if they are subjected to a strong curb than if left with a loose rein. They will be bubbling over with affection, but a disappointment in love will never disturb their equanimity for any length of time.

If today is your birthday, you are not a good sales agent of your own wares. You possess many inherent virtues and great capabilities. It takes, however, a long acquaintance with you to determine these facts. Your excessive modestry, your dislike to talking about yourself, your ever constant fear that you might "bite off more than you could chew," your reticence and your exaggerated self-consciousness, militate, although very unjustly, against your success.

In your home life, those who know you best are happy in their intimate association with you, although they often lament the absence of a compelling and forceful aggressiveness that, in your case, would inure to the benefit of all concerned.

Successful people born on this date are:

Alexander T. Stewart, merchant.
Lyman Trumbull, senator.
George W. Cable, author.
Helena Modeska, Polish American actress.
Alvina Valleria, singer.
William Luther Sibert, General in U. S. Army.

OFFICIALLY "SILENT"

French Debt Board, However, Pleased With Trip to America

PARIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Silence, complete official silence, was the watchword of the entire French mission which reached Paris this evening from Washington. Official silence, however, soon gave way to informal friendly talks, from which the opinion was gathered that the members of the mission were greatly impressed by the continued courtesy and welcome they were accorded in the United States.

They believe that the mission's trip to Washington in spite of failure to reach a final accord will not have been in vain.

M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, and the members of his party arrived at Havre early in the afternoon. They came direct to Paris.

HOW IT STARTED

CALLING IT "CRESCENT"

When we hear this word used, the imagination flits naturally to the crescent moon. And it is, of course, with reference to the new moon that it is most familiar in common speech. However, the word is correctly used with reference to anything that is of the shape of the new moon. The crescent, incidentally, is the national emblem of the Turkish empire.

Strangely, the origin of the word has no reference to the crescent curve, nothing of which an inkling might be found in the syllables of the word. For "crescent," derived from the Latin "crescere" means simply to increase. And it is from the circumstance that the new moon increases until the full orb is reached, growing larger with each passing night, that it was called in early times, "crescent," the word taking its place in our language for anything of the same shape.

POEMS THAT LIVE

THE LAST VOYAGE

Some morning I shall rise from sleep,
When all the house is still and dark.
I shall steal down and find my ship
By the dim quayside, and embark.

Nor fear the seas nor any wind.
I have known Fear, but now no more.
The winds shall bear me safe and kind,
Long-hoped for and long-waited for.

To no strange country shall I come,
But to mine own delightful land,
With Love to bid me welcome home
And Love to lead me by the hand.

TROLLEY "STRIKE" ENDS

Port Arthur Traction Service Resumed After Two Months

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 11.—The "strike" of the street car company is off. Howard Smith, general manager of the Port Arthur Traction company, announced last night that service would be resumed at once. The calling off of the "strike" is due to the fact that the voters adopted a new traction company franchise by a vote of 857 to 700.

The street car company contended that it was losing money and until the new franchise was granted it would close down. All the street cars were run into the barn about two months ago and there they have remained awaiting the outcome of this election.

The Storm CenteR

By BURTON L. STEVENSON

He made his way back to the door, and as he ran his hands over its surface, came upon a little square near the top with a heavy bar of iron across it—a peep hole, evidently, through which the prisoners could be inspected. He looked through it, but could see nothing. If he was really gazing into another chamber, it was as dark as this one. He ran his fingers through—yes, it was another chamber. He grasped the bar firmly and pulled with all his strength, but the door did not even quiver.

With the frenzy of despair, he snatched his pistol from his pocket, thrust its barrel through the opening and fired. Let them come, the whole crew—at least he would kill a few of them before he died himself!

The report echoed along the outer chamber and fell away into silence. He waited, alert, straining his eyes into the darkness. Then, far away, he caught a flash of light.

The light had vanished as suddenly as it appeared, and he could hear nothing. Then there was another flash, nearer at hand, almost in his eyes, and he realized it was from an electric torch. When it came again he would fire at it, and he stood in trense readiness, his finger on the trigger.

But it did not come again. Instead, as he strained eyes and ears in the darkness, he fancied he caught the sound of a cautious movement on the other side of the door.

He could stand it no longer.

"Open the door!" he said in French, his voice thick with rage. "Open the door and fight like a man!"

He heard a quick gasp of astonishment.

"Is it you, Monsieur O'Neill?" asked a low voice.

"Yes, yes!" cried O'Neill, his senses reeling. "But who—oh, no, it can't be! I am dreaming!"

"No, no," said the voice. "It is I! Be patient but a moment!"

The light flashed on again; there was a moment's struggle; a heavy bar was lifted, the door swung open, and O'Neill, his knees giving way beneath him, his eyes dazzled, staggered out into the arms of Delage's sister.

"What were you doing in there?" she askel.

"Sidi Yada dropped me through a trap to get me out of the way."

"Lets hasten," and she started to turn away.

But he put his hand upon her arm and stopped her.

"Wait," he said; "there is something I must know first. Why did you assume this disguise?"

"As a dancer?"

"Yes."

She smiled as she saw the expression of his face.

"I thought you could guess," she said.

"How else could I gain admittance to Ahmed's private apartment, stupid?" she demanded impatiently.

"But why should you want to go there?" he asked.

"Come with me and I will show you," she answered.

He followed her across a chamber of considerable sie and through a narrow door at the farther end.

Beyond it was a narrow corridor between stone walls, and at the end a heavy door of some dark lustrous metal, encrusted with ornament. It stood ajar.

"Part of the spoils of Timgad," remarked his guide, and flashed her torch over it. Then she swung it open and stepped through into the room beyond. "I was here when I heard your pistol shot," she added.

O'Neill started about him as she flashed her torch around the room. He saw that it was almost filled with huge oblong boxes set in ordered rows upon the floor. To his fevered imagination it looked like a burial chamber.

"What it it?" he asked.

"It is Armed's strong room," she answered.

She stepped to the nearest chest, caught hold of a corner of the lid, and pulled it open. He caught a glimpse of a heavy lock.

"See there," she said, and flashed her torch inside.

The chest was empty.

"They are all like that—carefully locked but empty. I have been almost an hour opening one, after another. The treasure has disappeared. I was certain it had not survived sixteen centuries!"

O'Neill stared down into the empty chest.

"Are they all empty?" he asked. "Surely there must be some . . ."

"I have been unable to open this one," she said.

The lid stuck tight and refused to yield to his tugging.

"Wait," she said. "Don't exhaust yourself. You must get a lever of some sort."

"I have it," said O'Neill; "the bar from the dungeon door back yonder. It would be just the thing."

She nodded without speaking, and together they hurried back along the corridor and across the farther chamber to the door. O'Neill caught the bar and lifted it out of its sockets.

"Splendid!" he cried, as he weighed it in his hands.

And then he stood transfixed to the spot. For the door of the dungeon swung slowly open and two figures sppeared upon the threshold. One he recognized instantly as Pat. But the other . . .

Then the light from the torch caught the red burnoose, flashed back from the gold embroidery on the jacket underneath . . .

It was Armed Ammar.

It was with an inward trembling which she did her best to conceal that Pat had arisen to follow Ahmed. The significance of the broken egg and of Sidi Yada's greeting had not escaped her. But against all this she had steeled herself. She must carry through the task which she had assumed. Delage's absence troubled her, but she reassured herself by patting the little pistol which lay snug in her pocket.

The dark passage along which they made their way seemed to be interminable. But at last Ahmed drew back a curtain and stood aside for her to pass. In another instant Pat had stepped into fairyland.

Before her was a tiny court, softly illumined by the light from a dozen jewelled lanterns. It was paved with wonderful mosaic, and in the middle of it a little fountain splashed and tinkled. Opening from a colonnade was a series of rooms, each one a jewel. The very flower of Roman art was here, overlaid with the luxury of the Orient—Mosiac pavements piled deep with Persian rugs, marbel benches, heaped with downy cushions. Ahmed paused before a superbly carved table covered with tiny boxes and flasks of lacquer and chased silver.

"There are perfumes," he said, indicating the flasks, "the rarest in the world; and there are jewels for your adornment."

He touched a spring in one of the little boxes and the lid flew open, revealing a coruscating heap of brilliants. t was a necklace, and before she could protest, he had flung it over her head.

"Is it not beautiful?" he asked.

"It is wonderful," said Pat, "but—"

"Do not take it off. Wear it to please me. Come."

He led the way into the room beyond.

"Let us sit here," said Ahmed, and led to way to the divan.

"Well," he said at last, "what think you of this bower of love? My ancestor was an artist, hein?"

"t is very beautiful," said Pat. "I have never seen anything so beautiful."

"He was also a great lover, that ancestor," went on Ahmed, with a smile. "He built this place as a fitting nest for a princess of Circassia, as I have said. He poured upon her—treasure which was not his, which had been placed in his keeping for another purpose."

He drew a deep, convulsive breath and moistened his lips.

"Not often has any woman been found worthy of it," he went on. "I have never in my life admitted any woman to it until tonight."

"I feel very honored," remarked Pat weakly. Was this man, after all, going to prove too much for her?

"Wait until you have heard," he said. "It is not this alone that I am offering you. First let me explain that I have opened my project to your father and that he approves."

"Dad has not been himself," said Pat quickly, "not since that night at Teniet."

"He has been himself only since that night," corrected Ahmed. "Before that he was weighted down with foolishness and error. There for the first time he caught a glimpse of the great truths which are commonplace to us, but which the stupid people of your race know nothing of. You, too, shall know these truths—all of them. And you shall be a queen, millions of people shall bow before you."

"But me!" protested Pat. "Why me? I am just an ignorant American girl . . ."

"Because you have fired my blood," he broke in. "Because you are the woman I love. Because I want you; because I am at your feet."

"Do not deny me," he added thickly. "You are my wife."

"Oh, no," cried Pat, and struggled to free herself. "No—that is absurd."

But he only held her the tighter. She could feel his hands creeping up along her hips, about her waist. With a desperate effort, she managed to wrench the pistol from her pocket and press it against the back of his head as it lay in her lap.

"Release me at once or I will kill you!" she said, between set teeth.

She felt him go rigid as the cold barrel touched his skin; then his arms loosened and he stood erect. She was shaking convulsively with fear and angry humilitation, but she managed to keep the pistol pointed at him.

He regarded her for yet a moment, then he lighted a cigarette and dropped the still burning match into a little alabaster vase on the tabouret at her side.

CHAPTER XXI
The Empty Chests.

Pat passed her hand before her eyes for again she was beginning to feel a little dizzy. She was conscious of a strange perfume in the air.

And before she realized that he had moved, he snatched the pistol from her hand and tossed it to the other side of the room.

She tried to rise, but his arms were about her, pressing her back. The room whirled before her; she understood now; he had set some drug alight when he had dropped the burning match into the vase.

She had time for one scream, shrill and agonized and then his hungry lips were upon hers, and he was crushing her back; she felt herself helpless in his grasp; a great sickness welled up within her; she knew that she was fainting.

And then the pressure relaxed. She opened her eyes dizzily and screamed again. For the the face peering into her own was not Ahmed's face, but a horrible face, livid, distorted, with goggling eyes and protuding purple tongue.

At sight of that hideous nightmare, her heart seemed to stop and with a long sigh she sank back unconscious among the cushions.

Pat, struggling slowly back to consciousness, opened her eyes to see dimly a dark face bending over her. The face above her, gazing down at her so anxiously was that of Delage. For an instant she could not believe; then she flung her arms around him and drew him close and burst into a torrent of tears.

"There there, little one," he said, smoothing her hair and pressing his cheek to hers. "It is all right. You are safe. Now I am going to take you away."

"Yes, yes, take me away," she sobbed.

"What happened? I don't understand."

"I was searching for you; I had lain concealed all the evening waiting for you to pass. But Ahmed must have taken another way—at any rate I missed you. I thought I knew the way to this place but I lost myself in that labyrinth out there. It was your scream that guided me."

"Yes; but what happened? I saw his face just for an instant. It was horrible."

"A cord about the neck," said Delage shortly. "It was not a pleasing thing to do—but necessary. Are you able to walk? I must leave you for a moment."

"You are not going far?"

"Only into the next room," he said, and caught up Ahmed's burnoose from the floor. "Do not be afraid. There is no danger."

He smiled back at her from the doorway and disappeared.

She looked again about the room. How beautiful it was. Ho wexquisite this whole bower of love. What a place for a honeymoon. And she sighed softly.

More Truth Than Poetry

PRETTY TOUGH

A new boll weevil has been discovered

No earnest nature lover
Within the forest deep
Seems ever to discover
A newer kind of sheep.
No man, who gales has thwarted
Upon the mountain's brow
Has come home and reported
A different kind of cow.
These good and useful creatures
Of great and honest worth,
Have always been fixed features
Of this, our little earth.

But things whose ways are evil,
For instance like the germ,
The aphis and the weevil,
The beetle and the worm—
Are picked up almost daily
In new and frightful forms,
They eat our produce gaily
In multiplying swarms.
Voracious, unrelenting,
Amid our fields they throng—
For nature is inventing
New bug-pests right along.

Forever we seem fated
To go our weary round;
One bug's exterminated
Another bug is found.
We organize to fight 'em,
And newer sorts appear—
And so ad infinitum,
(Which means year after year)
"And thus until the finish,"
Distressfully we cry—
"Our blessings will diminish,
Our evils multiply."

Electra Training For Big Game Here Saturday With Coyotes

TIGER FORCES IN CONDITION FOR THE GAME

All Injured Men of Electra Are To Be Back In Lineup

ELECTRA, Oct. 11.—The Electra Tigers will start their training this week for the first conference game of the season with the Wichita Falls Coyotes which is scheduled for next Saturday at Wichita Falls.

The locals came out of their scrap with Burk with no serious injuries. Wilis Carnahan was taken out of the game in the third quarter with and badly bruised shoulder but he is expected to be ready to start next Saturday's fray. Others received bad bruises but none have been reported as serious.

Captain Olen "Pug" Sanderlin was out in uniform during the Saturday melee but saw no action. Sanderlin will probably be able to start at end, his regular post, next Saturday, which will be a great boon to Tiger hopes, despite the fact that he will not be at his best as he has not fully recovered from his injured shoulder sustained several weeks ago which has kept him out of the practice games and several weeks of practice.

With Sanderlin back in the line-up Reese will have his hands full in deciding the man for the other wing. Joel "Boney" Melton and Mike Brown will be waging a two cornered fight for this position as both of these lads have made good showings at this position during the practice and the games to date. Brown has played in all of the two games while Melton has played only the Burk clash. Both have showed to a good advantage in these games.

Frank Stephens, the new man from Chillocothe, has not been eligible to date and it is doubtful if he is able to play.

Coaches Reese and Coke will probably give their men much training at interference and tackling this week as the squad showed a considerable weakness in these two departments during last Saturday's game.

COYOTES READY FOR GRUDGE CONTEST.

The Coyotes are ready to meet Electra with full force Saturday, and with any fair amount of the breaks should get the flying start. The Electra battle is an event that all the local fans look forward to as the annual grudge battle.

Rowdy Curtin, Captain and Electra jinx, will be in the game with all the fighting vim and vigor that he displayed last year in the 0 to 0 tie on the Electra gridiron.

The forward wall of the Coyotes is strong, and Electra may find it hard to break through.

The backfield is a far better machine than that of last year. The best fortified position is that of halfback. Captain Curtin, Hodges, Mitchell and Steed are all nice players, although the last named is in no condition yet for football, and may still be out of running order Saturday. At fullback is Dempsey Moore one of the hardest hitting bits of human flesh the Coyotes have boasted in some time. Quarterback is also well covered with Ed Powell, Coyal Francis, Tank Horton, Claude Miller and Clarence Adams for the position.

WORLD'S SERIES

rail cut off another prospective home run from the bat of Joe Harris, and was the big defensive play of the Pittsburghers.

Johnny Morrison and Babe Adams, playing in his first world's series since 1909, shared the hurling burden for the Pirates, after Yde went out and held the Senators scoreless.

Max Carey got to second twice, in the first and sixth, but was stranded both times, but the Pirates missed their best scoring chance in the second when hits by Traynor and Grantham, mixed with a force out by Wright, put two men on bases. They advanced to second and third on Gooch's out but Yde grounded to S. Harris to close the spurt.

Johnson pitched two called strikes and two balls to Moore opening the first inning before Moore flied to Rice. Carey, crowding the plate, worked Johnson for a walk, going to second while Stanley Harris was throwing Cuyler out at first. Barnhart fanned, swinging at a fast third strike.

Neat Double Play

A neat double play pulled Yde out of a hole in the Senator's first. After Rice grounded out to short, S. Harris and Goslin walked, but Joe Harris hit into a double play, Traynor to Moore to Grantham.

Traynor opened the second with a grounder to third, but he was forced at second by Wright, Peckinpaugh to Stanley Harris. Wright and Grantham who beat out a hit, were stranded when Peckinpaugh threw out Gooch and S. Harris took Yde's grounder.

Judge's weak fly in the last half of the second was taken by Wright and Traynor threw Peckinpaugh out on his hard grounder. Ruel singled sharply past second but was left when Myer took a third strike.

Moore and Carey hit the first pitches in the third, but flied to Goslin and J. Harris, respectively. Stanley Harris made a driving catch of Cuyler's drive and threw him out.

Johnson began the Senator's third with a hit to left but was out stretching it. Rice made first on a hit to Moore and he was safe at second when Wright dropped Grantham's peg of S. Harris' grounder. Harris and Rice then scored when Goslin rapped a home run into the left field stands. Joe Harris hit Yde's next pitch for another homer in the same place. Yde then walked Judge and he was replaced by Morrison. Judge was caught stealing just before Peck singled past Traynor. Peck stole second and Ruel walked, but was forced at second by Myer, moore to Wright.

Ruel took Barnhart's foul in the fourth and Johnson threw Traynor out. Wright went out, Harris to Judge.

Johnson took three strikes in the fourth before Rice got his second hit to Traynor. S. Harris flied to Barnhart and Goslin let a third strike go by. In the fifth Grantham, fouled to Ruel behind the plate and Gooch flied to Goslin, while Morrison flied weakly to Rice.

Joe Harris was thrown out in the last of the fifth after Gooch dropped the third strike. Peckinpaugh was the second strike out victim of the inning, after Morrison had tossed out Judge at first.

Carey Bunts

Carey beat out a bunt to first in the sixth after Moore had flied to Goslin. Carey stole second while Cuyler took a third strike. Ruel then ran nearly to third base to take Barnhart's pop fly.

Ruel got his second hit in the sixth over Traynor's head. Myer popped to Grantham trying to bunt and Ruel was safe at second when Gooch's relay of Johnson's roller was late.

In the seventh Traynor singled past Harris, but was doubled at first when S. Harris made a leaping catch of Wright's line run. Grantham got a hit off Judge's glove but Gooch flied to S. Harris.

Harris singled to left in the seventh, going to second when Goslin dropped a Texas leaguer into center. Barnhart took J. Harris' liner just as it was about to enter the stands, and S. Harris took third when Judge forced Goslin at second. On a double steal, Harris was out at the plate on a protested decision.

Bigbee, batting for Morrison, and Carey flied to S. Harris with Moore's single in between. Cuyler flied to J. Harris.

Babe Adams took up the hurling for Pittsburgh in the eighth and after Traynor tossed out Peckinpaugh, Ruel got his third with a double down the left field line. Myer was safe at first on a hit to Grantham. Ruel was tagged at the plate by Gooch, who gathered in Johnson's short roller. Johnson was forced at second by Rice.

Johnson had trouble in finding the plate in the Pirates' ninth, walking Barnhart and working up a three and two count on Traynor before he grounded to S. Harris. Bucky touched Barnhart on the line and threw Judge for a double play. Harris also took Wright's grounder and got him at first.

BLANKENSHIP DEFEATS CUBS FOR FIRST GAME

Texas Cowboy Puts Sox In Running For City Series

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP).—Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy who battled Grover Alexander, the veteran Cub ace, to a 19-inning 2 to 2 draw in the first game of the series, came back today and put his club into the running by defeating the Cubs 7 to 2, after the Nationals had won two straights. The series now stands two games for the Cubs and one for the White Sox.

Percy Lee Jones started for the Cubs in an effort to make it three straight but he was found wanting in the first inning. He walked three men and was touched for three solid blows which gave the White Sox a four-run lead which was never threatened.

Guy Bush held the ox safe for the next three innings, but a fusillade of hits in the fifth inning scored another run, some great fielding by Brooks and Freigau saving him from further damage. In the next inning, Lefty Milstead wa stouched for two runs when he Mostil and Barrett hit a double to right and continued on home when Gonzales threw wild to third base.

The zone of the conflict will shift to the Cub's par ktomortow.

The score:

Cubs	2	10	1
Sox	7	11	2

Jones, Bush, Milstead and Gonzales; Blankenship and Schalk.

BRAVE ACT COSTLY

CHILDRESS, Oct. 11.—Morris Curren, employee of the Childress Shops, is in a Fort Worth sanitarium recovering from painful burns he received when he carried a bucket of blazing gasoline from the building Wednesday. It is thought a spark from an electric light socket fell into the pan of gasoline causing the blaze. Curren's act probably saved the building from being destroyed by fire.

Chasing the Flag

(By The Associated Press.)

Goose Goslin's home run in the third inning gave him the world's series record for circuit clouts. It was his second of this series and his fifth in two years of championship competition, displacing the previous high total of four, hung up by Babe Ruth.

But for Walter Johnson's attempt to reach second on his drive to left that opened the inning, Goslin's blow could have come with the bases full. The Goose's clout grazed the finger tips of Barnhart before it bounded into the bleachers, but Joe Harris, who followed with his second homer of the series, put the ball high and far into the same stands with one of the most terrific smashes of the series.

This home run orgy also tied several other series records, including the mark of two in one inning by one club, first done by the Giants in 1921, and the record of five for one club in a series, which the Senators themselves equaled last fall after the Giants and Yankees each had set the standard with five each in 1923.

Stanley Harris was called out at the plate in the seventh inning on an attempted double steal with Judge, but from the press box he looked safe by a good margin. The crowd thought so, too, for it jeered Umpire Moriarity for several minutes. Harris kicked strenuously but since it wasn't a vital situation for the Senators, the squawks soon were silenced.

There was a big cheer in the eighth inning when Babe Adams, a veteran hero of the Pirates' triumph in the 1909 series with Detroit, was sent to the box to replace Morrison.

Ruel, batting "dub" of the 1924 series, ranks among the heavy stickers this time. He had a perfect day at bat this afternoon, blazing out three safe blows, one a double off Adams, and getting to base when hit by a pitched ball in his other appearance at the plate.

In the final overnight ruling of official scorers on the disputed play by which Goslin got to first base in the first inning of Saturday's game, Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, is credited with an error as well as a passed ball.

Yde got away to a shaky start when he passed Stanley Harris and Goslin in the first inning but Joe Harris rapped to Traynor and a snappy double play snuffed out the side.

Buddy Myer, Bluege's substitute at third, put Johnson in a hole in the second inning when he failed to handle two raps by Traynor and Grantham. Both were credited as hits but they were of the scratchy variety and probably would have been outs in the hands of a more experienced and steady infielder.

The Washington crowd came out today to see Johnson pitch and Goslin pickle one. They got what they came for and went away happy.

Stanley Harris pulled a neat bit of strategy in the eighth inning even if it did not work out. With Ruel on third and Myer on first with one out and Johnson coming up, Bucky figured that the percentage favored Johnson hitting into a double play. He ordered a squeeze play and had Johnson's tap been a bit longer Ruel would have scored. As it was, Gooch took Johnson's roller and plastered Ruel with the ball as he came up the line under full headway.

Ossie Bluege, Washington's star third baseman, who has been out of the game since he was hit in the head by a pitched ball in the second contest, watched today's battle in citizens' clothes from the bench. He is coming around alright but physicians are taking no chances, fearing a slight concussion.

Secretary of State Kellogg, an enthusiastic fan dropped in at the champions' dressing room before the game to congratulate Manager Harris on yesterday's victory. He also posed for pictures with the manager.

Eastland Victory Upsets Grid Dope

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—(AP).—High school football in the main ran true to form last week, Roy B. Henderson, athletic director of the Texas university interscholastic league, said today. Probably the major upset was the decisiveness of Eastland's victory over Breckenridge. The two schools were figured to be equally strong, but Eastland broke through for a 27 to 3win.

"The teams jockeying for position now, and two weeks must pass before the outstanding teams in the various sections will forge their way into the limelight," Mr. Henderson said. All indications point to the most successful year in the league's history, with a large number of teams apparently having an even chance for the title.

Dalls' Oak Cliff high, champions of 1924, showed fair form Saturday in trouncing Stephenville, 19 to 0. Hopper, all-state fullback of last season and the biggest factor in the winning o fthe 1924 title, was the big star.

PLAN NEW GAS LINE

San Antonio Will Get Fuel From Callahan Field Near Laredo.

LAREDO, Oct. 11.—San Antonio will get gas from the wells of the Laredo district, production of which is now estimated at more than 500,000,000 cubic feet a day. Connections will be made from the Callahan field with the Southern Natural Gas company that supplies San Antonio with gas.

SPLIT SEASON IS ABOLISHED

DALLAS, Oct. 11.—(AP).—The split season, which has been resorted to in the Texas league in six of the last seven pennant races to increase interest and gate receipts, was ordered abolished at a meeting of the league here today.

The league adopted a new scheme of disposing of the players' share of the Dixie series receipts, under which the second and third place clubs will obtain 20 and 13 1-2 per cent, respectively.

There will be no change in the personnel of the league next season, although representatives from El Paso and Abilne attended the meeting and urged that their cities be given berths in the league. The league was assured that Beaumont under a new plan of financing would go through as franchise owner. The resignation of William B. Ruggles of Austin as secretary-statistician was accepted. His place will be filled in January.

Who Said He Was "Dead"?

Here is Walter Johnson whom sport writers five years ago said was a "dead one," who smoked the Pirates again Sunday afternoon. This is the second win for the old war horse during the present series. Johnson blanked the Pirates Sunday and allowed them only six hits, two of which were scratchy, while the other four were only singles.

BRIDGES' BEARS IN TRIM FOR CONFERENCE OPENER TUESDAY WITH T. C. U. FROGS IN DALLAS

WACO, Oct. 11.—(AP).—The eve of the first conference football game of the season between T. C. U. and Baylor university finds the Baylor Bears in splendid physical condition, after a week of worry with sickness of various but not serious nature. With the exception of Jack Sisco, who was injured in the Notre Dame game, every Baylor athlete will be available for duty in the game against T. C. U. Tuesday, which promises to be attended by more than 1,500 fans from Waco, a crowd of 10,000 being expected for the contest, it being staged on Dallas Day of the Dallas fair. Likewise it will be T. C. U.'s homecoming day.

Go to Dallas Monday.

The entire Baylor squad, composed of 38 men, Coach Bridges, Assistant Coach Jim Crow, Trainer Ralph Wolf and Student Manager Marshall, will leave Waco at 5:15 o'clock Monday afternoon for Dallas.

Coach Bridges attended the Aggie-Sewanee game in Dallas Saturday but under the direction of Jim Crow, the Baylor squad went through one of the most strenuous and one of the most enthusiastic practices of the season. And on the eve of the game, Coach Bridges is more encouraged than he has been since the poor showing of the Bears against the Denton team. Bridges does not think that his club has better than an even chance of victory. He does not figure that the Bears can win if the Frogs get the breaks, but he does believe that the game will be so closely fought that the Bears by taking advantage of breaks if they come their way can put over a victory.

Bridges is undecided as to the line-up. It would not be surprising should Jimmy Green of Itasca be found at one end and Bubber Nash at the other. The tackles will be Hartsoe and Coates, while Jack Taylor may start at a guard position with Riley at the other guard, and Captain Walker at center. In the backfield, if Nash starts at the end, C. Fall will start at quarterback. Strickland will be at one halfback more than likely, with George Morris at the other and Jones at full. Kelly and Johnson will see service in the backfield. Morris has been showing real form in smearing passes, and it is largely for this reason that he will receive the call in the backfield.

FROGS IN FINE CONDITION FOR GAME

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11.—Taking a brief workout Sunday afternoon, the T. C. U. Horned Frogs were in fine trim. Matty Bell, after putting his club through a hard day Saturday, took his charges on a hike today. Every man on the club with the exception of Don Frazee and Ansell Greer, is in good condition.

Levy, 190 pound guard and a four year man, will get into the game with Baylor at Fair park stadium Tuesday, his ankle, which was infected, being in good shape again. Scarborough, 207 pounder, will play the other guard, in the absence of Greer. Wolfe and Brewster, the latter weighing all of 210 pounds, will be tackles. With two ends averaging 175 pounds, the line should be fairly heavy against the Bears.

Offensive plays have been given the Christians all week, and they are showing fair speed. Carson, H. Taylor, Williams and Clark will start for the Christians at backs in Dallas.

VERNON HIGH PAYS DEARLY FOR VICTORY

Crouch, Ryan and Robinson On the Injured List

VERNON, Oct. 11.—With a game scheduled with Quanah for Saturday, Lion fans appeared to be pleased that Quanah is no longer in class A. It seems that Vernon's victory over Sayre was more costly than it was at first thought. Crouch, Ryan and Captain Robinson, three outstanding Lion players are on the injured list following Saturday's game.

Crouch and Ryan, Baggett's broken field stars, were both removed from the game Saturday with wrenched knees which have kept the boys off the streets since the game. Robinson sustained a wrenched ligament in his thigh, but will likely be out for practice in the first session this week.

Look Better.

Baggett's departure from fundamentals in training last week was clearly noticeable in Saturday's game. The Lions, in early games, were exceptionally weak in breaking up passes, but Saturday they kept the visitors from completing a single pass.

The backfield was running good interference Saturday for the first time. When Ryan made his fifty-two-yard run for a touchdown, not a single opposition player had a chance at him, although his way lay through a field dotted with opposing players. All were cut down by the Vernon men.

Ends Are Stronger.

The Vernon ends were playing a much better game. In fact, it was clearly evident that Baggett had been picking up the loose ends during the past week. Sayre was undoubtedly the strongest club the locals have met this year. That the Lions gained an overwhelming victory was due to the fact that the club played 100 per cent stronger than usual, working together better in every department of the game.

MACCABEES TO MEET.

Will Have Practice Session Here at 11 a. m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Mamie Brown, district deputy of the Women's Benefit association of the Maccabees is in the city and has called a meeting of all members and visitors for practice at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Members are asked to meet at the labor temple at that hour and to bring their lunch.

The practice period will be followed by the regular business session at 2:30 o'clock. A full attendance for the session is asked.

COMPOSER OF COWBOY SONGS HERE TONIGHT

Oscar J. Fox and His Tenor Are In Program at College

The program to be given Monday night at the Junior college by Oscar J. Fox, famous cowboy ballad composer, and his tenor, Eric Harker, will be one of much variety, according to the program.

"The Cowboy's Lament" is filled with the pathos of the cowboys; so is "Home From the Range," and others. "Greer County" and "The Old Chisholm Trail" are rich in color and feeling in picturing the ballads of the range days.

The Junior High School Girls' club, out of a desire to serve the community, are sponsoring Mr. Fox's coming to Wichita Falls.

Miss Elizabeth Langford, president of the club, will present Alva Willgus, prominent in local musical circles, who is a special friend of Mr. Fox. Mr. Willgus says that both Mr. Fox and Mr. Harker are artists of extraordinary interest.

The concert begins at 8:15 o'clock in the college auditorium.

SUBSTITUTION FOOTBALL SEEMS TO BE REPLACING OLD TIME GAME.

There are several kinds of football.

England has two—soccer and rugby, or "rugger," as they call it. America, for many years has had but one—good old American football. Of late years, however, another type has been creeping in to keep pace with those of our British cousins.

This is "Substitution Football." It isn't much of a game compared to the all-wool-and-a-yard-wide type from which it springs. In the big collegiate games of recent years the average number of substitutes inserted into a game amounts to something like thirty-five.

What does this indicate? Is the game becoming rougher? Are there more injuries? Are the men softer today than of old? Or is there a new theory of success raging on the coaching lines—the survival of the freshest. Mulling over the question the writer comes to the conclusion that the last named is the answer. The practice is getting worse with every season, with every indication that "Substitution Football," as the writer is pleased to call it, will again be featured this year. The preliminary games seem to betoken this. Against little Baylor college Notre Dame shot in fresh men every quarter and sometimes oftener.

* * * *

Substitution Football is worse than a vicious article. It is a denatured article. Still worse, it is in a strong sense unfair. The soul of the good old game was the survival of the fittest. Too often today, as noted above, it is merely a case of the survival of the freshest.

Of course there were plenty of substitutions in the days of the "good old game." Still it must be considered that at least three quarters of these replacements were justified by injuries. Today they do not wait for men to be injured. If a man is tired, or is being outplayed by his rival the incompetent is taken out. The coach cannot afford to lose ground, which means losing his reputation, because one of his men is being worsted by the opponent opposite him. It is here that the element of unfairness creeps in.

The writer has frequently seen one man survive a game, and during the course of the struggle be obliged to encounter three opponents in his position. He battled the first one on even terms of freshness. The second man who faced him enjoyed a big advantage, because of the stamina the victim of "Substitution Football" had wasted on the first opponent. The second substitution had the benefit of meeting a man wearied by outplaying two others before he had made his appearance. Should the substitutions experience satisfaction in outplaying a rival who has thus been handicapped.?

PINCH KICKERS

"Substitution Football" produces another inglorioussness, to our mind, in the "pinch kickers," the prima donna specialists of the gridiron.

These are the gifted chaps who sit on the side-lines throughout the play until a "phychological moment" arrives when they are needed to do their stuff.

The "pinch kicker" is one type of "gridiron hero." There are others. They are the ones who have outkicked the "pinch kicker" while playing the full game. And in exhausting positions, too.

What of Walter Eckersall, the great Chicago quarterback who kicked five field goals against Nebraska in 1906, and the same against Illinois the year previous?

What of Ted Coy who kicked two field goals for Yale against Harvard in 1909?

What of Capron's three drop kicks for Minnesota against Wisconsin in 1907?

What of Jim Thorpe's three field goals for the Carlisle Indians against Penn State in 1908?

What of Balenti and Pete Houser, two other "full game" Indians? Balenti against the Navy in 1908 kicked four field goals. Houser against Chicago in 1907 made three.

What of the immortal Arthur Poe? Poe played through a knock-down-and-drag out game against Yale in '99. And had enough left to produce the winning field goal with but 36 seconds of the game left.

They played AMERICAN FOOTBALL, NOT SUBSTITUTION FOOTBALL.

While on the subject one might find food for thought in a comparison of American and European football regarding the substitution phase of the game. In soccer when a team suffers an injury to a player that team really suffers. It is obliged to play the remainder of the game without him. No substitutions are allowed. And it is remarkable how few, in comparison, are compelled to leave the game. The rule developes a courage and spirit of resistance which is absent in "Substitution Football."

Brown Declares He'll Beat Matsuda

Jim Brown, Matty Matsuda's most persisten challenger and the man who has been matched with the welterweight wrestling champ for a finish match Tuesday night on the Wichita Falls wrestling association card, has arrived to town and declares himself in great physical condition for the bout.

Brown said yesterday that he has been waiting almost a year now for a return match with Matsuda following their three hours and 45 minutes draw battle in Chicago last winter, "and I'm sure I can beat him."

The Chicagoan is seen in the picture putting one of his wrestling partners in a precarious position as he applies the pressure on a toe hold.

SOUTHWEST MACHINES, WITH AN EVEN BREAK IN GAMES, WIN CIRCUIT PRESTIGE

Showing Made in Saturday Battles Inspires Hope of Future Success

DALLAS, Oct. 11.—(AP).—Although able to get only an even break in three major sectional gridiron classics, southwest conference elevens last week by the spirited, never-say-die play gained prestige for their organization. Smashing victory of the S. M. U. Mustangs over Washington university, holding of the Sewanee Tigers to a deadlock by the Texas Aggies, and the game fight of Texas university Longhorns as they went down before the Vandy Commodores gave the dopesters plenty of material for their calculations—after they had recovered from the shock of Trinity university's convincing sensational 13 to 0 victory over the Rice Owls.

New Star Found.

Coach Ray Morrison's Ponies in whipping the Washington Pikers, 20 to 6, featured the man who may be the outstanding offensive player in the southwest conference this season. Christopher Cortemaglia, 190 pounds, of speed and drive, crushed his way through the line of the Missouri conference valley representative with astounding ease. Last season Cortemaglia's line smashing was largely responsible for his team's victory over Texas university. This year, he is working behind a much more powerful forward wall and is certain to be more effective.

All in all, work of the Steeds against Washington sent championship stock of S. M. U. soaring. With a wealth of line material, a versatile backfield, the most dangerous overhead offensive in the conference, and a great head coach in Ray Morrison, the Mustangs certainly must be given the most serious consideration by the prognosticators.

The 6-6 tie game the Texas Aggies played with the Sewanee Tigers may be conceded a moral victory for the Aggies. Without opening up its attack, Coach Bible's eleven, though outplayed all the way by the colorful combination from the Tennessee mountains, managed to get a draw.

Guarded Secrets.

It was apparent the Aggies would have preferred defeat to showing scouts of rival southwest conference elevens just what they have on the offensive. Coach Bible and his men have visions of a conference championship, the first for the Aggies since 1921, and they are overlooking no bet that may carry them to the cherished goal.

The Texas farmers owe the draw verdict to the traditional gameness of a line that fought superbly when within the shadows of its goal posts, to the great punting of Captain "Mule" Wilson, and to the inspired playing of Norman Dansby, guard, who broke through to block a Tiger punt, and fell on the leather for the Aggies' score.

Coach Bennett's Tigers carried back to their mountain home the reputation of being one of the most colorful combinations ever to appear on a Texas gridiron, while the lateral passing attack of the Tigers that time after time threatened to sweep all before it for many days will be talk of grid enthusiasts who witnessed the struggle.

Texas university partisans are inclined to blame the "breaks" of the game for Vandy's 14-6 victory over "Doc" Stewart's Longhorns. While the gods of football chance smiled more kindly on the Commodores than on the Steers, the Vanderbilt players must be given credit for their splendid following of the ball, and for the sustained fight and courage that carried them to victory in the final period, after being outplayed in the first half by the Texans.

Wright's Loss Hurts.

Texas university really lost the game when Captain Stewart Wright was injured in the third period. It is true Wright's fumble allowed the Commodores to score their first touchdown; but his long-distance booting was a big factor in the Longhorn defense, until he was carried from the field. With Wright out, Coach Stewart substituted Fred Thompson for Rufus King in hope of replacing Wright's punting. When King was removed, the big offensive threat of the Longhorns went to the side lines, for King it was who practically single handed had scored Texas' touchdown.

Despite defeat, most encouraging was the work of the Texas forward wall, which fought to a standstill the heavier and more experienced Vandy line. Sport writers had written many columns regarding the brillance of the Longhorn backfield, and the weakness of the Longhorn line; yet the line against Vanderbilt gave a much better account of itself than did the backfield.

After the Trinity Tigers had held the Texas Aggies to a 20 to 10 score two weeks ago, Waxahachie citizens honored Barry Holton, new Trinity coach, with a "Barry Holton Day." Because of the remarkable victory of the Tigers Saturday over the Owls, it is likely Holton will be even more signally honored by Trinity partisans. Holton, a product of Knute Rockne's Notre Dame school of football, has more than made good his first year at Trinity.

Cecil Manning, captain of the Tigers and unquestionably one of the greatest centers Texas football has produced, shone brilliantly against the Owls. He was the heart and soul of the Trinity defense and figured prominently in both touchdowns.

Many critics are counting the Owls out of the southwest conference running. And while the chances of Coach Heisman's charges for a southwest conference championship seem slim, the defeat by Trinity may be just the spur to send the Owls to victory over more than one conference rival.

THE PROBLEM: The problem is to find the sum total of the figures shown on the Elephant in the picture. There are no marks, lines or characters on the body of the Elephant except figures. These figures range from 2 to 9, each one standing alone. There are no "ones" or "ciphers" in the animal. There are no groups of figures—that is, the figure "2" is the highest figure shown; there are no "23's," "42's," "89's" or like groups. If you find a "2" and "3" are written so closely together that they look like "23," it means that the "2" and "3" are to be added just as you would if they were an inch apart. The tops of the SIXES are distinctly curved, and the bottoms of the NINES are straight, or nearly so. There is no trick or illusion in the chart.

The Sum Total of Figures Is Not Known to Anyone

The drawer and maker of the cut knew the total as he drew it, and no one else. When the cut was received by The Record News several figures were clipped out. No Record News employe knows the drawer's solution and the drawer does not know what numbers were cut out by The Record News, and will not know until after the closing date. November 14th, 1925. No one knows any more about what the correct answer is than the contestants themselves.

General Rules of the Contest

This competition is open to all residents of the states of Texas and Oklahoma, except employes of The Record News and members of their families.

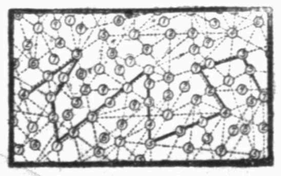

Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire provided a payment of one of the amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution. NO SOLUTION UNACCOMPANIED BY A SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENT WILL BE REGISTERED.

The Record News offers these prizes for individual effort. While it is proper for members of one household to work together or several friends, it is not permissible for more than one of those working in unison to send a solution of the puzzle. When in the judgment of the contest manager more than one member of the same family, or more than one of any number of persons he believes have worked together send in a solution of the puzzle, he reserves the right to refund subscriptions and return the solutions he believes have been submitted contrary to the foregoing rule. The Record News reserves the right to reject any solutions it believes have not been submitted under proper conditions. The Record News also reserves the right to finally decide any other questions or points which may arise and those entering the contest agree to abide by such decisions.

In the event of ties on this puzzle, as many prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied, before any prizes are awarded for a less correct solution. For instance, if five people were tied on the best solution, the first five prizes will be reserved for them, and they would be awarded the prizes in accordance with the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle. That is, the one submitting the best solution of the second puzzle would receive the first prize; the one submitting the next best, the second, and so on.

Subscriptions may be NEW or RENEWALS. Both count the same.

DECIDING TIES

In case of ties those tied for any prize will be presented with a second puzzle, which will consist of drawing a line across the face of a chart of figures, like the accompanying chart, only larger, so that the figures thus connected when added together will total the greatest sum. If necessary this chart will be used four times, after which, should any ties remain, each contestant will receive full value of any prize tied for.

In case there are no ties on counting the Elephant no other puzzle, of course, will be presented.

WINNING ANSWERS WILL RECEIVE PRIZES AS FOLLOWS

$2,000,000 OIL SUIT IS TO OPEN MONDAY

Oxford vs. Rail Commission To Be Called At Corsicana

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—The $2,000,000 suit of the Oxford Oil company against Dr. Walter Splawn, now president of the University of Texas, and other members of the state railroad commission as of 1924 and R. B. Walthall, former chief oil and gas supervisor, will be called for preliminary hearing at Corsicana next Monday, the officials were notified. The suit grows out of charges of alleged illegal enforcement of "Rule 37" and other oil and gas rules, whereby the company was restrained from drilling additional wells on its land, while it alleges oil was drained by other companies from beneath its holdings.

Ernest May, assistant attorney general, will go to Corsicana to represent the defendant officials, who are sued individually and personally, on official acts in connection with the oil and gas division.

Other defendants besides Dr. Splawn and Walthall are Chairman Clarence E. Gilmore of the railroad commission and Former Railroad Commissioner W. A. Nabors.

TEXAS COTTON CROP MILLION BALES SHORT

George B. Terrell Estimates State's Yield at 3,667,00

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—(AP).—Texas cotton will make 3,667,000 bales, or more than a million less than the 1924 crop of 4,815,000 bales, George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, said today in commenting on crop conditions as of October 1. He estimated total production would reach 13,720,000 bales, or more than a million less than the government estimate of 14,759,000 bales released October 1.

Cost of producing cotton in Texas this year exceeds 30 cents a pound, if the drouth stricken area is included, or approximately 24 cents a pound, excluding the drouth area, the agricultural commissioner said. The minimum price of cotton should be 25 cents "if farmers are to receive cost of production, or if supply and demand control the price."

Feed Crop Short.

Although late feed crops have been benefitted by recent rains, 70 per cent of Texas farms will not produce enough feed to run them next year. This percentage is high because of the drouth in central and southwestern sections. Western and northwestern Texas will have a surplus of kaffir, milo maize and other grain sorghums to sell. Forty per cent more wheat and oats will be sown this fall than last.

Commenting on the government report, Mr. Terrell said: "I have always favored official reports by the government or by states as being more reliable than private reports of speculators, but I believe the estimates should be made monthly, and that the first estimate should be made simultaneously with first gin reports, or about the middle of August or first of September.

"The government estimate of 14,-79,000 seems to be too high. I believe the crop estimating board was misled by the unusually large ginnings of 7,101,710 bales, which is not an indication of a large crop, but of immature opening of the cotton caused by drouth. It is my opinion that more than half of the crop has been gathered. Our estimates of cotton production in other states are based on reports from commissioners of agriculture in cotton producing states and on reports of the American Cotton association, which reports indicate 13,440,000. We believe the production will be slightly higher."

October 1 approximately 52 per per cent of the total crop, or 1,881,-189 bales had been ginned in Texas, Mr. Terrell estimated. Ginnings are unusually high at this stage because of early planting and hot, dry weather of late summer months.

By Districts.

Estimated crop by districts follows: Eastern, 48 counties, 735,000 bales; northern, 17 counties, 685,000 bales; western, 53 counties, 485,000 bales; central, 34 counties, 427,000 bales; southwestern, 38 counties 358,000 bales, and northwestern, 977,000 bales.

In 1924 the 34 counties of the central district produced 1,440,705 bales. This district this year is suffering from severe drouth.

"Held In Trust" Is Dr. Grafton's Tenth Anniversary Topic

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR TALKS TO BIG CROWD

Scores Throng Church to Honor Long Term of Minister

Before an audience which packed First Presbyterian church yesterday morning, Dr. Nat F. Grafton delivered his tenth anniversary sermon, taking as his topic, "Held in Trust."

"The custodian of a trust fund is in an honorable position. It carries with it a badge of integrity. It is witnessed through the ability to handle the funds with prudence," he declared.

He took his text from First Thessalonians, 2:4, "But even we have been approved of God to be entrusted with the gospel." The speaker said the text was like a modern account of the preliminaries to the administration of an estate. The "approved of God" is the bond required of the trustees; the "gospel," the estate held in trust; and every Christian is an administrator of the estate.

"No greater disgrace can come to a man than through the careless or dishonest handling of a trust fund," Dr. Grafton asserted. "The stigma of unfaithfulness follows him wherever he may go.

"The gospel is our trust fund; every Christian is a trustee, an eternal destiny is our environ. The church has a moral obligation as a custodian of the riches in grace to handle the trust fund to the greatest good for the largest number. Every man of his church will be held in account."

The First Presbyterian church was crowded to its capacity to hear Rev. Grafton in his seven hundred and forty-first sermon which he has preached during his ten years' pastorate here.

Wallace Services Start Here Sunday

"Every good and perfect gift comes from God," declared Rev. Foy E. Wallace, evangelist, in the first of a series of sermons which he is conducting at the First Church of Christ, beginning Sunday morning. "Those gifts are the Bible, Christ and the church," proving the divinity in the Bible by its antiquity, content and eternity.

In his comments on the second gift, Christ, Rev. Wallace portrayed the life of Christ, words, work and influences. In bringing out the last gift, the church, he spoke of the author, establishment and mission, calling special attention that spiritual needs and guidance are supplied only through the church.

Contempt of Court Hearing Up Today

Hearing of the case of Edna Gabbert on an alleged contempt of court charge will come before Judge P. A. Martin this morning, the hearing having been postponed from Saturday afternoon.

The woman was arrested by county officers and the constable's department Friday night when it is said evidence was secured of the sale of whiskey. An injunction was procured by the state against the woman prior to that time, restraining her from selling or keeping whiskey in her possession, or in quarters occupied by her.

Bonner Home Loses Silks and Money

The home of Jouette Bonner, 1509 Tilden, was entered from the rear and robbed Friday night of a quantity of silk underwear and a small sum of money. The intruders gained entrance by cutting a small hole in a screen over a side window, unlocking the screen and raising the window.

Prowlers were frightened away from the home of D. W. Johnson, 2700 Tenth, when, on seeing the form of a man at the window, Mrs. Johnson screamed, causing the intruder to run away.

THE SUCKER CLAN

Dempsey knows just who he'll fight
Also when and where—
But the papers day and night
Ballyhoo the air!
When the bout is made and set—
A million frantic men
Will part with all they hope to get
For tickets once again.

One each minute, Barnum said, is born—I think it's two—Mr. Barnum's cold and dead—but his dope is true.
One each minute, Barnum said, was the birth-rate then,
But since Mr. Barnum's dead, I think it's changed to ten!

Scalper asks for fifty bucks,
For series' seats each day
The title don't amount to shucks,
But wild fans pay and pay:
Where a million men horn in—
Others must horn, too—
And we part with all our tin
Just to see we do.

The Conference Week-end

Five conference teams finished the week-end on their pre-championship campaigns still undefeated, Arkansas joined Baylor in the beaten class, going down like the Bears before a formidable intersectional rival doped to best them. A victory would have been a totally unexpected feather in the chapeau of lean Francis Schmidt.

The games at Austin and Iowa City hogged the interest of the section because here the southwest was on trial against rivals from other geographical centers. Neither result was an upset. Iowa was certainly expected to beat the Razorbacks——little was known of "Ole Miss," but there has never yet come out of Oxford a team capable of beating an adversary it has met in Texas—and in 15 years of history, no team has yet matched the brilliance of Stauffer's 1911 combination, which at that was defeated by Moran's Aggies. Hazel's team was no exception. It was a big squad exceptionally weak in the greatest defensive assest—tackling.

The Texas team, as it came out of the Mississippi game, showed the need of material improvement before it strikes Vanderbilt, but it left even more conclusively than after the Southwestern game the impression that here is a squad that will be heard from before the end. Vanderbilt may be too close on this green, shaping team——Auburn may be too close. But in the long run it is going to be a great machine.

Mr. Grange—Mr. Pfannkuche.

Two things stand out in the reports of the Saturday game at Austin and at Champaign that merit notice. It is Heywood Broun's old story of the plumed knight.

Barring Bill Smith of the Austin American, who devoted an extensive paragraph to the work of Pfannkuche at center for Texas, no story carried on the game either by special correspondent or by college writers devoted more than passing attention to the extraordinary defensive game played by the giant center. Yet it is a fact that style of football that in 1923 and 1924 put Lawrence Reisor of SMU on the All-Southwestern.

At Champaign, the "AP" had this to say of "Red Grange," a decidedly plummed knight of the past two seasons: "Nebraska was able to completely stop Red Grange. He was unable to pierce the magnificent Nebraska defense, chiefly due to the deadly tackling of Weir."

What happened to that particular plummed knight was the absence of Illinois' great interference running star of last year to give him a start. When Weir broke through the blockers were not there.

It is worth noting that at Austin, Cook, until injured, and Martin did not get away either. Their interference was not there and Pfannkuche was playing the part of Weir.

TWO GREAT ASSETS.

So far as Stewart's team is concerned, the fact that has been overlooked in its season possibilities is that regardless of what happens on offense, it has two remarkable defensive players in this center and Mack Saxon. A team that has one great line backer is fortunate Ole that has two is super-equipped.

Saxon has been a surprise on offensive in both games so far. In his Austin college year, he was a great one-yard man—the line plunger who could gain a needed distance. But pre-eminently he was a line backing phenomenon, and had his team been in the conference in 1923 he would have had to be ranked as an All-Conference player.

His long gains on offensive have been made by his ability to run low and hard after his interference has been scattered and from this viewpoint he may continue. But he faced poor tacklers on successive Saturdays.

A factor in Stewart's offense against Mississippi that merits notice was the use twice of an effective running pass played as Notre Dame has played it——not a pass from what is to all intents and purposes a fake run, but a pass at the conclusion of an end run that might be carried on if not stopped. It was handled capably—and looked a real threat, since Wright promises to be a superb passer.

Against Odds.

Arkansas faced odds in the other intersectional contest. The muddy field sided a heavier team in line plunging and since only one style of play could be used, this game could not be fairly held against the season outlook of the Fayetteville men.

Yet in all reason, little can be expected of the Razorbacks this year. They have a new team recruited from a freshman team not regarded too highly. Unexpected circumstance has deprived Schmidt of two veterans on whom he had a right to depend heavily this year. Details are lacking on the Iowa City combat, but it was the debut game for Arkansas.

BISHOP BROWN SENTENCE TO BE PASSED TODAY

Head Churchman Orders Defendant to Appear Before Him

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—(AP) Deposal sentence, ordered by the church court finding him guilty of heresies, will be pronounced upon the Right Rev. William Montgomery Brown by the presiding bishop of the Episcopal church here tomorrow.

The Most Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, presiding bishop, has ordered Bishop Brown to appear tomorrow morning for sentence. Bishop Brown has announced that he will not appear, but tonight said he would be represented by counsel.

Bishop Talbot will answer in federal court next Wednesday the petition filed by Bishop Brown's attorney, Joseph W. Sharks, asking for an injunction to prevent the presiding bishop and the house of bishops from unseating the accused prelate or from divesting him of his church rights. Federal Judge Louis Burns refused Saturday to grant a temporary restraining order, which would have halted the formal expulsion of the bishop from the house of bishops.

Under the verdict which was affirmed by a court of reverends and approved by the house of bishops Bishop Brown will not be expelled from the Episcopal church but will lose his status as a bishop and his seat in the house.

It was announced tonight that the deposal sentence will be issued publicly at St. Paul's church with but two members of the house of bishops present as witnesses for the church.

Bishop Brown spoke here today at Labor Temple before a small audience which, however, applauded him repeatedly. He reiterated precious arraignments of orthodox principals saying in part:

"My fellow bishops, at least a substantial majority of them, do not really subscribe to certain orthodoxy principles. Some day, I hope we shall have a science of religion which will satisfactorily supplant theology but for the present no two people can agree exactly as to what Christ's teachings imply."

NEW HIGHWAY CONTROVERSY BEFORE BOARD

Valverde Road Row to Be Aired at Hearing Today

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Interest is centered on the state highway commission meeting, the meeting of the textbook commission and awarding of textbook contracts and the Travis county grand jury at the Texas capital this week. In addition several important decisions are expected to be made by the supreme court, which with the criminal court of appeals and the third district court of appeals, handed down the first opinions of the fall term last Wednesday.

Among the most important things to be brought before the highway commission, according to rumors, is the controversy over the Valverde county highways. Just what the contentions are in Valverde county probably will be learned when the highway commission sits Monday.

Moody Audits Books.

Attorney General Dan Moody, who has been carrying on a personal inquiry into the transactions of the highway commission, studied the records of the commission Saturday. Late Saturday night he was called to Dallas, where he has an auditor working of the books of the American Road company, which holds highway maintenance contracts in numerous counties.

How far the attorney general intends to conduct his investigation, he has declined to state. Recent allegations made against the highway commission are expected to be investigated by the Travis county grand jury now in session.

Upon his return from New York, L. W Kemp, deposed executive secretary of the Texas Municipal and Highway Contractors' association, is expected to go before the grand jury. Kemp's charges that Sherman and Youmans, Houston contractors, were using state highway equipment on private contracts, brought the first open criticism on the highway department. This resulted, eventually in the injunction restraining the state highway department from paying Sherman and Youmans for maintenance work in Harris county done in August and in part of September.

May Call Maddox.

Indications were that John Maddox, chief liquidation agent in the banking department, will go before the grand jury to explain the disposal of the funds of a $3,500 check, which, it is charged in the injunction petition, be received from Sherman and Youmans.

For several weeks book agents have been swarming the capitol visiting the governor and S. M. N. Marrs, superintendent of public instruction, and presenting the merits of textbooks, in anticipation of contracts valued at approximately $1,500,000 to be let by the textbook commission.

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson apparently won only mildly interested in the proclamation issued this week by Representative A. H. King of Throckmorton, calling a special session of the legislature to convene in Austin, Nov. 2. Besides the governor, according to the law, a majority of the house of representatives, or the speaker and fifty representatives, can call a special session and thn only for impeachment proceedings.

State Funds O. K.

Although this is the most strenuous time for the general revenue fund during the year, a deficiency in state funds has been avoided and both Comptroller S. H. Terrell and State Treasurer W. G. Hatcher have predicted that when revenue from taxes start coming in the latter part of the month, the general revenue fund will be in "a healthy condition."

The University of Texas oil royalty situation remains unchanged. Comptroller Terrel maintains his stand by the attorney general's opinion that the $1,400,000 should be placed in the permanent building fund, while Treasurer Hatcher continues to follow the law, placing the royalties in the available building fund.

During the past week, headquarters of the Texas department, American Legion, were moved from Dallas to Austin to occupy offices in the state land offices. The commissioner of insurance moved his offices to the land office building and the banking department expanded in the state house.

WORK STARTS MONDAY FOR NEW CANALS

8,000 Acres Near Iowa Park to Come Under Irrigation

Engineers will begin today a preliminary survey for the extension of laterals and canals of the Wichita County Improvement Districts on the project to irrigate 8,000 additional of land west, south and east of Iowa Park.

The survey will continue probably more than a week, while a definite program is mapped out. The route of the proposed new canal will be located and should other extensions come up in the future, the proposed canal could be continued into Clay county.

RESUME TRIAL OF OIL FRAUD CASES TODAY

Two Accused of Illegal Use of Mails First On Docket

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 11.—Trial of oil fraud cases will be resumed in the United States court for the Western district of Arkansas here tomorrow, with enough cases in sight to keep the court busy for the balance of this month. Government officials expect to dispose of most of the major cases and all minor cases, except a few in which the defendants never have been arrested.

Mail Cases Up Today.

Cases set for tomorrow are those of Homer Taylor and John Messenger, both charged with use of the mail to defraud. Other cases for the term on the same charge are those of Jess L. Tomberlin, William J. Hubbard and Harvey B. Pratt.

Co-defendants in an indictment charging both with use of the mails to defraud and conspiracy are Jim Drever, Louis S. Grimm and Pat Murphy.

There are three defendants in an indictment charging attempts to influence jurors in the famous Pat Marr case. These are J. R. Farr, Lafayette Thomas and William P. Hudgins. It is expected that all these, and probably others will be tried at this term of court.

184 Defendants.

There have been a total of 37 indictments in these oil fraud cases, with 184 individuals and seven corporations as defendants. There have been 38 pleas of guilty, verdicts against ten defendants, and verdicts of not guilty for six defendants. Nolle prosequie has been entered for 17 defendants. The aggregate of the sentences to date totals 59 years and 259 days, with fines assessed to date totaling $80,080. The heaviest sentence was five years. At one time the government held $591,000 in cash and securities as bond, and is now holding as bond cash and securities totaling $160,000.

Episcopal Church Willing to Join The Federation

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The Episcopal church in the United States will become a consistent member of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America, if the recommendations of the committee appointed to consider the existing relations between these two bodies is accepted by the triennial general conference of the church meeting here. This committee will recommend to the general conference early this week, membership in the council "with such reservations as the general convention shall determine."

The committee also recommends before the final action is taken that the whole question be debated simultaneously in the committee of the whole in both house of the convention separately, and that if in either house there is less than a two-thirds vote in favor of the proposal, the committee of the whole report adversely on the church's becoming a member at this time and that the status quo be continued through the coming triennium.

Mitchell to Be In Dallas This Week

DALLAS, Oct. 11.—Colonel William Mitchell, who has recently attracted attention by his criticism of the army and navy administration of the United States air service, is due to arrive in Dallas next Saturday or Sunday to judge horses and referee a polo game at the state fair of Texas, it was announced Sunday by A. C. Adkins of the fair horse show committee.

A banquet for Colonel Mitchell is being planned by the Dallas polo club. Plans for an informal entertainment for Colonel Mitchell will be made by the Dallas flying club at a meeting of the directors Monday night, C. W. Cahoon, Jr., the president, said Sunday. Colonel Mitchell is to referee a polo game between the Dallas team and the El Reno, Okla., team, and to judge jumpers, hunters, and polo ponies at the horse show to be held during the second week of the fair.

Since no message declining the invitation to take part in fair horse show activities has come from Colonel Mitchell since he accepted it recently, the invitation committee is confident that he will come, Mr. Adkins said.

The Safeness Of a Safe
It's not always the big massive iron safe that's safest. For there is a sterner enemy than burglars—fire! And the especially built fireproof safes are deceptive in appearance. A good safe is cheap insurance. Let us tell you.
