Jubilee grand finale coming up Saturday

Variety of activities on tap Friday

Although the 1995 Town and Country Jubilee officially kicked off last weekend, the clock is ticking toward the grand finale of the annual event.

Jubilee events swing into high gear starting tonight as excitement builds toward Saturday's Jubilee Parade and Jubilee Junction.

On tap today was the Fall Style Show, which was held at 11:30 a.m. in the Hereford Country Club.

Sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, the show featured back-to-school and fall fashions for people of all ages.

On Friday, a variety of activities are on tap, including the Crowning of the Queen by the Hereford Riders Club and the start of the Jubilee Volleyball Tournament.

Also scheduled for the day is the official ribbon cutting and grand opening of the Hereford Aquatic Center.

The grand opening is set for 10 a.m. and the public is invited.

The volleyball tournament will be held on the sand volleyball courts at Dameron Park. For more information 363-7101.

The Crowning of the Queen will be at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Riders Arena. It is open to the public.

On Wednesday, the chamber released the list of performers for Saturday's "Jubilee on Stage" entertainment program, which is a feature of the annual Jubilee Junction.

Performances will be held from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Dameron Park. Residents are invited to bring lawn chairs and sit back and enjoy the music.

Performers are: Texas Country; Deanne Timberlake; Vickie Ortiz;

Suit challenges rollback law for school districts

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A new state law could potentially result in "meaningless" tax rollback elections in hundreds of school districts, says a lawyer for a school district challenging the measure.

The law would have the "absurd result" in such school districts of allowing the same or even higher taxes after voters have approved lowering rates, according to the lawsuit filed by Austin lawyer Buck Wood on behalf of Round Rock Independent School District.

That's because the rate that triggers an election, under the new law, doesn't include adjustments for rising school enrollment or lost state aid, as certified by the education commissioner.

But the formula used to calculate the maximum rate after a rollback election does include those factors.

That could mean a higher allowable tax rate after a successful rollback election in certain school districts, according to Wood and state officials who acknowledge there's a problem with the measure.

"It would destroy the people's confidence ... in their school boards, in their school systems, the Legislature, the whole process," Wood said.

While it's unlikely a school district would raise its tax rate in the wake of a rollback election, Wood said, "They would not roll that rate back. They set that rate knowing they've got to have that amount of money to function. ... They would just have to go through that meaningless election."

The lawsuit, set for a Monday hearing before State District Judge F. Scott McCown, proposes raising the rate that triggers a rollback election by including adjustments for enrollment and lost state aid.

"They (lawmakers) couldn't have possibly wanted to leave that out of the trigger rate," Wood said.

Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, said the Legislature did intend to allow school districts to raise taxes to account for student growth.

However, he said, "We didn't ever contemplate giving them the ability to raise taxes because their property wealth went up" and caused them to lose state aid.

While acknowledge the provision in state law is "poorly written," Ogden defended the Legislature's effort.

The provision was hurriedly drafted near the end of the 1995 legislative session to restore automatic tax rollback elections to school property law at the behest of House Republicans. Otherwise, petitions would have been required for rollback elections.

"The Legislature intended for school boards to have some fairly significant limitations on their ability to raise taxes without voter approval," Ogden said. "The effect of the lawsuit by Buck Wood is to pretty much gut that statute."

Wood disputed the idea that if Round Rock ISD wins the lawsuit, it will mean higher taxes. "It doesn't raise the level at which the school district could set their taxes," he said.

He added that he got involved in the case after "The state leadership asked us to see if there wasn't some way to solve this problem."

Gov. George W. Bush's office, along with that of state Comptroller John Sharp, expressed concern about the law's possible effects. But that doesn't mean they agree with the lawsuit's proposed solution.

The proposal "will eliminate the bizarre result of meaningless rollback elections that actually serve to raise the cap on a school district's tax rate," says a memo to the attorney general's office from Ray Bonilla, the comptroller's general counsel.

Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes said, "We support clarifying the Legislature's intent. We believe the Legislature's intent was to allow citizens to challenge their property taxes if they felt the rate increase was too onerous. ... We have not taken a position on the exact formula."

Ribbon cutting at Aquatic Center to officially open city's new pools

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

In a ceremony at 11 a.m. Friday, the Hereford Aquatic Center will be formally opened, even though the facility has been attracting crowds for almost a week.

To mark the occasion, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Hustlers will conduct a ribbon-cutting.

At the conclusion of the program, Hereford Aquatic Center will be open until 5 p.m. for free swimming.

Attendance by Hereford and Deaf Smith County residents is invited and encouraged, said City of Hereford officials.

Invited to the event are members of Los Ciboleros chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution and representatives of Deaf Smith County, Deaf Smith Hospital District and Hereford Independent School District.

Each of the entities contributed funds or services for the center.

A special guest of the city will be Jim Allison, executive director of Amarillo Area Foundation which was responsible for a $250,000 grant for the project from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation.

Although a grant from Texas Parks and Wildlife of $750,000 got the center project underway, apparently no officials from the state agency will be able to attend.

Flags, given by the DAR chapter, will be raised by members of Boy Scout Troop 52, under leadership of the scoutmaster, George Denton.

Argen Draper, vice regent of the DAR, will explain significance of the Texas and United States flags being provided. The chapter also paid for the flagpoles, located at the entrance to the Aquatic Center.

Master of ceremonies for the event will be Hereford Mayor Bob Josserand who will invite representatives of participating entities to make remarks. Youth who have enjoyed the facilities since last Saturday's opening also will be given a chance to talk about the new recreational center.

Last Saturday, 2,267 swimmers and guests passed through the gates on opening day. The total on Sunday was 430; Monday, 450; Tuesday, 470, and Wednesday, 268.

"Besides the swimmers, each day we had about 200 who just wanted to look at the facility," said City Manager Chester Nolen.

City officials are encouraged by the response to the aquatic center. Nolen said receipts from admission and concessions were $1,386, Sunday; $1,815, Monday, and $1,058, Tuesday.

A glitch in equipment has prevented heating of both leisure and competition pools.

Nolen said the problem should be corrected in time for the grand opening.

"We asked the dealer to light the heater last week, but he didn't," said Nolen. "Then, we got in touch with the manufacturer who said a serviceman would come Thursday."

The serviceman was on the site Thursday morning to light the heater.

Start of at least one program, water aerobics, was delayed until pools are heated. Sandra Kalinowski, HAC director, said she expects that

Inflation remains steady following drop in June

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inflation at the wholesale level was absent in July as prices remained unchanged after slipping slightly the previous month.

The Labor Department said today that the biggest drop in energy prices in nearly two years - led by the steepest decline in gasoline in over four years - more than offset rising food prices.

The Producer Price Index was flat in July after falling 0.1 percent in June for the first time in eight months. Wholesale prices are rising at a tame annual rate of 1.8 percent so far this year.

In another report today, the Labor Department said the number of American workers filing new claims for jobless benefits rose by 14,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted 335,000, up from 321,000 the previous week.

The moderation in wholesale price pressures underscored the slowdown in the economy that the Federal Reserve helped engineer by raising interest rates seven times over a one-year stretch. The Fed lowered a key interest rate July 6, the first cut in nearly three years, declaring it had won the battle against inflation.

Today's figures matched analysts' expectations. The so-called core rate of inflation, excluding volatile energy and food costs, rose a benign 0.2 percent in July.

The Producer Price Index measures inflation pressures before they reach the consumer. The Labor Department announces its Consumer Price Index for July on Friday.

Today's report showed that despite increased use of air conditioners energy costs fell 2.5 percent last month, the largest drop since an identical decline in December 1993. Gasoline prices plummeted 10.1 percent, the biggest drop since they fell 11.7 percent in February 1991.

Picking up schedules

The library of Hereford High School came to life on Wednesday as students and teachers gathered for the first official activity since May. Wednesday was the first day students could pick up their fall semester schedules. School starts Aug. 21. Schedules will be given out the rest of this week at the school. The office is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Harm may outweigh rain benefits of storm

HOUSTON (AP) - A tropical depression moved near the Texas coast today, with agriculture officials mixed on whether it would work to the benefit or harm of the state's parched crops.

The National Weather Service issued a tropical storm warning Wednesday along a 275-mile stretch of coastline from Baffin Bay in South Texas to La Pesca in northern Mexico, where the storm was expected to come ashore.

The storm was actually a tropical depression on Wednesday - bearing the formal title of Tropical Depression No. 8. It was packing 35 mph winds and heavy rains.

Parched by a summer drought, many in South Texas likely will welcome the rain.

But some farmers warn that healthy cotton crops are now in the final stage of harvest and heavy rains would be unwelcome.

"The crop is at a vulnerable stage now. The rain could delay the harvest, and we face possibly losing the remainder of the crop or perhaps the profit," Corpus Christi cotton farmer Jerry Hunt said.

Should the depression become a storm with winds in excess of 40 mph or higher, it has a 1-in-4 chance of striking Brownsville and a 1-in-8 chance of hitting Corpus Christi, National Weather Service meteorologist Bill Read said.

Rain from the storm could dump from 4 to 10 inches in parts of South Texas, with Mexico expected to receive even more precipitation, he said.

South Texas has been gripped by unusually dry weather this summer with Brownsville receiving only 9.2 inches of rain this year compared with the 12.8 inches it usually gets by early August.

Saturday's Jubilee events will start with a "bang" -- literally, as the starting gun sounds at 8 a.m. for the Greg Black Memorial 10K, 2 Mile Fun Run and 2 Mile Walk. The races will be held at the YMCA.

For those who want breakfast before they start the day, the Cowboy and Cowgirl Camp Meeting kicks off at 6:30 a.m. in Dameron Park.

Gospel music begins at 7 a.m. with Connie Walker and the Texas Drifters, and Cowboy Evangelist Boyce Evans will take the stage at 7:30 a.m.

The Camp Meeting continues at 6 p.m. with a free barbecue, music at 6:30 p.m. and Evans at 7 p.m.

Tickets are required for the meals. They are available by calling First Baptist Church, 364-0696.

The Jubilee Parade takes to the streets at 10:30 a.m. The annual parade is sponsored by the Whiteface Kiwanis Club.

The parade will leave Hereford High School, march south on Avenue F to Park Avenue, west to Main Street, then south to downtown.

Jubilee Junction will begin immediately following the parade in Dameron Park.

On tap for the Junction is food, games, a Petting Zoo, Pet Parade, children's games, horseshoes, washer pitching and -- of course -- the stage activities.

Also during the Junction will be the Bungee Jump Trampoline, also in the park.

Across the street, Jubilee-goers can enjoy the Jubilee of Arts in the Community Center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Jubilee of Arts is sponsored by the Pilot Club and features artists and craftsmen from Texas and New Mexico, who will display items for sale.

Also at the community center that day will be the Hereford Senior Citizens Quilt Show from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Young people in sixth through ninth grades can get a little physical activity in on Saturday and Sunday in the 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament, which will be held on the old Park Ave. Bowl parking lot on West Park Avenue. For more information call Tom Bailey at 364-1606.

As night falls, the cowboys will take to the Hereford Riders Arena for the Jubilee Cowboy Rodeo, set to start at 7 p.m.

The 10 teams participating will try their hands at cutting, doctoring, branding, mugging and sort & load.

Through the entire weekend, the return of several classes of Hereford High School graduates will be celebrated with class reunions. Many of those classes will be represented in the parade and some returnees will wear T-shirts proclaiming their class allegiance to the Junction.

Both sides are angry over welfare reform delay called by Dole

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate wallowed in angry recriminations after Majority Leader Bob Dole's abrupt decision to postpone debate on a Republican bill to replace dozens of federal anti-poverty programs with 50 state experiments.

Dole, lacking the votes to push his far-reaching welfare overhaul through the Senate, announced Tuesday that he was delaying debate on the legislation until early September, when lawmakers return from their summer recess.

On Wednesday, Republican leaders blamed Democrats for the delay. Democrats, in turn, said Dole's plan was not ready for prime time. And GOP conservatives and moderates weighed in with their own criticism of the bill.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., called it the "welfare trash wars" and pleaded for a quick end to the Capitol quarrelling.

The fighting started with Democrats describing the GOP blueprint as the "Home Alone" bill and asserting that it merely boxes up the welfare system and dumps it on the states. The legislation tells poor children, said Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun of Illinois, "You should not have been born."

Dole, R-Kan., and other Republican leaders accused the Democrats of favoring "welfare expansion" and clinging to the status quo.

Dole's bill was then belittled by a conservative welfare expert, Robert Rector of the Heritage Foundation, as "a complete disaster."

"It increases welfare spending, preserves almost every single existing welfare program, gives virtually no state flexibility, its work requirements are a sham, and it maintains a system that deliberately promotes illegitimacy and destroys marriage," Rector declared.

Key differences separate the factions:

-Democrats and some GOP moderates insist that reform must provide adequate child care for welfare recipients who are required to work, put more money into education and training programs, and require states to contribute to the costs of running welfare.

-Conservatives demand an end to cash assistance to unmarried teen-age mothers and a "family cap," a ban on additional benefits to women who have more children while on welfare.

-The Dole bill leaves those decisions to the states, but requires teen-age mothers to live at home and attend school as a condition of receiving aid. It dismantles federal cash welfare, job training and child care programs and sends them back to the states as block grants; pares spending by $70 billion over the next seven years; and imposes a five-year time limit on a family's cash benefits.

Wednesday's welfare wars came as Dole sought the compromises he needs to pass the keystone of the GOP's social agenda this year. The House passed its welfare bill in March.

Dole said that Republicans are continuing to unite around his bill, which has the backing of 36 of the Senate's 54 GOP members, and that he is negotiating with the holdouts.

But one of them, Sen. Phil Gramm, a Texan and a rival for the GOP presidential nomination, was refusing to budge from his bottom-line demands.

"We can't keep giving people cash bonuses to have illegitimate children, we can't keep inviting people to come to America to go on welfare, and we can't keep letting people make excuses why they won't work. On those issues, there's not going to be any compromise," Gramm said.

A moderate Republican, Sen. Jim Jeffords of Vermont, has different concerns. He wants adequate child care, education and training, and a requirement that states also underwrite the costs of welfare programs.

"I remember back when we (the federal government) took everything over from the states because it was such a horrible mess, in the hills and the inner cities," Jeffords said.

Dole, in turn, was criticizing the Democrats for backing what he called a flawed bill.

"They call theirs Work First," Dole said. "I think it really ought to be named 'Weak First.' It's weak on work, it's weak on limiting dependency, it's weak on state innovation, weak on savings, and weak on real reform."

Defense must take different tack after judge rules leak irrelevant

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Dealt yet another setback by the O.J. Simpson judge, the defense regrouped and rejuggled its witness list to shift the focus from bloody socks and news leaks to autopsy evidence.

Defense attorneys said today's testimony at Simpson's murder trial probably would come from Michael Baden or Barbara Wolf, two forensic pathologists working for Simpson.

Whoever takes the stand was expected to heap criticism on the doctor who conducted autopsies on the bodies of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman, and suggest the evidence points to a later time of death closer to when Simpson has an alibi.

Jurors were given the day off Wednesday to allow the defense to shift gears.

The defense had hoped to be calling police technicians, laboratory officials and two journalists to press a theory that a news leak about DNA tests was linked to a police conspiracy of evidence tampering.

But Judge Lance Ito ruled Wednesday that the leak about tests on a bloody sock was irrelevant to the case. That dashed the defense's hopes of seeing confidential police documents and avoided a First Amendment battle with the journalists over whether they would have to reveal confidential sources.

"Without this ruling, we would have seen the LAPD on trial," said Loyola Law School professor Laurie Levenson. "Now the defense must decide who of the wealth of experts they have hired will testify."

Outside court, defense attorney Carl Douglas said his team was disappointed in the ruling, but added, "We remain undaunted. We're not going to cry about it. The central aspect of our claim that blood on the sock was planted has not been affected by this ruling."

Ito acknowledged the defense has presented extensive material to show blood could have been planted on one of the socks at Simpson's house. But he said the defense failed to show that whoever prematurely revealed test results to journalists also probably tampered with evidence.

"Viewed optimistically," the judge said in a written ruling released after his remarks from the bench, "a forced disclosure (of reporters' sources) would reveal a police officer in possession of misinformation. This does little to advance the defense case."

He suggested in court the leak could have been the result of "elevator gossip" rather than a purposeful plot to frame Simpson for the June 12, 1994, knife murders of his ex-wife and her friend.

Some of the sting from Ito's ruling - one of many adverse decisions for the defense - was lessened by a North Carolina appellate court decision that a screenwriting professor and her Mark Fuhrman tapes must go to California. Those taped interviews have Fuhrman using a racial epithet, in what the defense claims is direct contradiction to his testimony that he never used the slur in the last 10 years.

Ito already has declared the Fuhrman tapes relevant. Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley expected the judge to take the next step and actually admit into evidence some of the material and testimony from professor Laura Hart McKinny.

"I think that (North Carolina ruling) is certainly a huge consolation prize. Because of that victory, they're not nearly as bad off as they could be," Pugsley said.

The news leak ruling pertained to a newscast in September, when prospective jurors still had access to news reports on the case.

Los Angeles TV station KNBC reported that DNA tests on the sock revealed the blood of Ms. Simpson. At the time, the socks had not been sent out for DNA testing. Ito himself denounced the broadcast as irresponsible and said the results were wrong.

Subsequent DNA tests, however, produced the same results as those reported. Defense lawyers said it was a self-fulfilling prophecy: that whoever leaked the information was also involved in planting the blood and therefore would have known whose blood was on the evidence. The defense wanted to see reports on the police department's internal investigation of the leak.

Government assured men of no prosecution

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government assured the two commanders of the failed 1993 raid against the Branch Davidians that they would not face criminal prosecution, an attorney for one of the men said Wednesday.

The contention by Dallas attorney Steve Gardner came a day after a Justice Department official confirmed that an investigation against the two Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officials remains open.

At issue is whether the two men, Phillip Chojnacki and Chuck Sarabyn, made false statements to federal officials in the wake of a raid that claimed the lives of four ATF agents and six Branch Davidians. Another 81 Davidians, including leader David Koresh, died seven weeks later after a fire raced through their compound following an FBI tear gas assault.

Chojnacki and Sarabyn were fired in 1993 after a Treasury Department review placed much of the blame for the botched raid on their shoulders. They appealed their firings and were reinstated with back pay in a settlement last December with ATF.

"We needed assurances that the government was not going to hire them back ... and then trump that by prosecuting them criminally," Gardner said. "As best I'm able to tell you, we were assured there was not going to be a prosecution."

Gardner declined to say who provided the assurance.

He and Chojnacki's attorney, Houston lawyer A. David Carlson, said they were unaware of a Justice investigation.

A Justice official said Tuesday that the department is "a month or two" away from completing its probe. The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the investigation was kept open to see what Chojnacki and Sarabyn would tell congressional subcommittees investigating the raid.

The Waco Tribune-Herald on Tuesday quoted an unidentified federal official as saying Justice was examining whether congressional testimony by Chojnacki and Sarabyn last month conflicted with statements they gave to the Texas Rangers two years ago. The Rangers were sworn in as special assistant U.S. marshals to conduct the post-raid review. Making false statements to federal officers is a crime punishable by up to five years in prison.

While Carlson said it's appropriate for Justice to compare statements, he added "it would be an outrage" if indictments resulted.

Echoed Gardner: "I would find it extreme bad faith and political weaselness ... for Justice to go after Phil or Chuck now for perjury."

ATF spokeswoman Susan McCarron said "there is nothing in the formal settlement" protecting the men from prosecution. She referred questions to Justice regarding any possible informal agreement.

Ms. McCarron also said no formal settlement language bars Chojnacki and Sarabyn from publicly discussing Waco, as Gardner contends. She did note, however, that since lawsuits have been filed by Davidian survivors and others, their comments as federal employees are restricted.

A scathing Treasury review was harshly critical of Chojnacki and Sarabyn, saying the two provided conflicting stories about whether they were notified by an undercover agent that Koresh was aware a raid was imminent.

Deaf Smith County 4-Hers held their annual Bake Show on Tuesday.

Judges Edna Marnell of the Cultural FCE Club and Jo Lee, County Council Chairman and Wyche FCE member judged quick breads with flavors of nut, chocolate date, apple cherry, blueberry orange, pumpkin, lemon and many others.

The event is conducted annually in the top 20 counties of the Texas Panhandle as a way to help youth understand and value the agricultural commodity of WHEAT.

The workshop held earlier in July focused on types of flours, nutritional impact of wheat products and product making demonstrations.

The overall winner of the '95 Bake Show was Jaime Steiert with her entry of pumpkin bread. Jaime was also the winner of the best senior record.

Other senior entries included Amanda Sims, Amber and Joanna Brumley, and Julie Schlabs.

The best junior winning bread was made by Celeste Louder.

Celeste made fruited banana bread. Best record winner was Janae Schlabs, and Jessica Matsler was the best rookie of the breads project.

Other junior entries included Erin and Nathan Louder, Jenna Schlabs and Dawn Auckerman.

Steiert will represent the county at the district bake show to be held in conjunction with the Tri State Fair on September 16th.

The district bake show is sponsored by Arrowhead Mills and Texas Wheat Producer's Association.

Recipes of the youth's entries may be obtained by calling the county extension office at 364-3573 or may be picked up in room 402, of the Courthouse.

Clark, bride-elect of Veazey, is honored with bridal shower

A bridal shower in honor of Ronda Clark, bride-elect of Johnny Veazey, was held Aug. 5 in the home of Mary Sue Hull.

The couple has set a wedding date of Sept. 16.

Greeting guest with the honoree were her mother, Merle Clark; her grandmother, Estell Ware; and her future mother-in-law, Lola Faye Veazey.

Melody Seiver presided at the guest register.

Refreshments of sausage balls, miniature cinnamon rolls, cookies, fruit place, pecan tassies, punch and coffee were served by Kristi Hollingsworth and Dolores Foster.

The table was covered with a handmade floral patterned silk tablecloth, centered with a burgundy and hunter green bouquet and featured silver and crystal appointments.

Calphalon cookware was the gift from hostesses Barbara Manning, Bettye Owen, Beverly Lambert, Alva Lee Peeler, Mary Beth White, Mysedia Smith, Francyne Bromlow, Marguerite Cole, Joan Bookout, Vesta Mae Nunley, Dolores Foster, Joan Hopper, Judy Williams, Peggie Fox, Carolyn Baxter, Sandra Saul, Jan Metcalf, Marline Watson, Rosemary Shook, Melody Seiver, Susan Robbins, Opal Blakely, and Mary Sue Hull.

Life can only be understood backwards, but it must be lived forwards.

Head cashier accepts challenges associated with name change

There's never a dull moment in banking, according to Rita Bell, and she's looking forward to the challenges involved as First National Bank of Hereford changes its name to FirstBank Southwest on Aug. 25.

Several events have been planned to celebrate the FirstBank Southwest merger. A special tree planting ceremony, with refreshments and free tree seedlings for all attending, will be held at 2 p.m. Aug. 24.

The bank will have a window washing event on the formal merger day, Aug. 25. Bank customers who use the drive-up service will get their windshields washed, and kids will receive a special surprise.

While banking wasn't particularly her field of choice, Mrs. Bell has certainly made a career of it. She has been at the bank 29 years and is currently the head cashier.

And, as with every job, changes keep her on her toes. "I've found through the years that my banking career has always been very challenging. As technology continues to change, and regulations get more complicated with each passing year, there's never a dull moment."

Bell began her career after deciding college was not for her. She began working at FNB Hereford in 1964 and, except for two years at First National Bank in Athens, she's been at the local bank ever since.

"I thought college was boring and wanted to go to work to be trained for a specific field," she said. "Banking just happened to be the first thing I found open, and I love it. I have always enjoyed working with the other employees of the bank. We become a family as we work together each day."

Along with her job, Bell keeps all her irons in the fire as an active member in the Hereford community. She is the president-elect of the Deaf Smith County Volunteer Board, past director of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, past president of the C of C Women's Division, and has co-chaired the Miss Hereford Pageant. She also works with the Miss Top of Texas Pageant and the Christmas Lighting Contest.

She and her husband, Ronnie, have one daughter, Brenda Davis, who lives in Summerfield.

CARING TEXAS FAMILIES SOUGHT

American Intercultural Student Exchange is seeking host families for exchange students arriving in August

Each year, thousands of families across the nation host AISE exchange students. It's an exciting way to meet people from different countries, while opening a young person's eyes to the world around them. Students arrive in August, spend a semester or school year with American families, and return to their home countries with a deeper understanding of the American people. AISE students speak English, have their own spending money and medical insurance, and are eager to become part of an American family. Couldn't your family use a little cultural diversity?

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is the lawyer that sued Lord & Taylor for not having a diaper-changing table in the men's room. (There was such a table in the ladies room.) Contrary to your conclusion, Ann, this was not just another case of lawyers acting goofy."

My husband took a year off work as an attorney to care for our baby and frequently encountered this sort of discrimination. He filed suit because it is illegal in our state to provide facilities to one sex and not the other. He felt something should be done to call attention to the inequity.

The case was settled quickly when Lord & Taylor agreed to install diaper decks in the men's rooms of all their stores.

We hope the suit created enough attention so that other public places, such as museums, stores, restaurants, libraries and airports, will give the same consideration to dads who care for their babies as they give to mothers. -- Deborah Ellis, New York

DEAR DEBORAH: Thank you for the update. And thank your trail-blazing husband for his pioneer spirit. Because of his courage and tenacity, a great many dads are going to find it easier to give proper care to their little ones.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a pair of adult male and female Pekingese dogs. Six months ago, the female gave birth to seven beautiful puppies. One puppy died three days after birth, which broke my heart. The rest were lively and healthy until two weeks ago.

I noticed one of the male pups refused to eat or drink, so I took him to the vet. That's when my nightmare started. The vet said he had contracted the parvo virus, which I had never heard of. The puppy stayed in the hospital for three days and recovered. The bill was over $200.

Then the other five pups came down with the virus. I couldn't afford to hospitalize all of them, so I put the sickest pup in the hospital and decided to care for the other four at the home with prescription medicine.

That decision cost me the lives of two of the pups. One died in my arms, and the other died 20 minutes later while my son was holding him. I realized the two other puppies were going to suffer the same fate, so I rushed them to the hospital. So now, I have one healthy pup at home and three in the hospital. The medical bills are going to be staggering, but I just couldn't let these darling puppies die.

Please warn your readers about he huge expense of keeping a whole litter of pups. I wish someone had warned me. -- Animal Lover in Lubbock, Texas

DEAR LUBBOCK: Thank you for sharing your story with many readers. Your misery should be reduced considerably by the knowledge that you have educated several million people today. (P.S. The trouble with "darling little puppies" is that they grow up to be normal-size dogs.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 11 years old, and already I have a problem for you. It is this: I am adopted. I have known this ever since I was about 4.

A lot of people say in front of me that I look like my dad. Should I tell them I am adopted or let it go? -- Edmonton, Alberta

DEAR ED: Handle it any way you are comfortable with. You don't owe anybody information about your birth.

Several Jubilee events set for Saturday

The last Saturday of the Town and Country Jubilee is packed with sports, including running, volleyball, basketball and a cowboy rodeo.

The Greg Black Memorial 10-K Run will start at 8 a.m. Saturday in front of the Hereford YMCA, and it can be entered up to 15 minutes before the race. The event also includes a two-mile fun run and a two-mile walk.

The 10-K race includes many divisions: six age groups each for men and women, plus wheelchair divisions for each gender. The two-mile run and two-mile walk races are divided only by gender.

Entry fees are $8 if paid in advance at the Hereford YMCA. Day-of-race entries cost $10 and should be paid from 7-7:45 a.m. at the race site.

For more information, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

*

The Town and Country Jubilee Volleyball Tournament includes nine two-person teams (in three divisions) and only two six-person teams.

Both divisions will start single-elimination play Saturday in the sand pits at Dameron Park. The finals will be held after the parade Saturday.

*

The Town and Country Jubilee 3-on-3 basketball tournament will start at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the former Park Ave. Bowl. The tournament will be completed by 5:30 p.m. the same day.

*

The Town and Country Jubilee Cowboy Rodeo will start at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Riders Arena.

Teams of working cowboys will compete in various events, including cutting, doctoring, branding, mugging and sort and load.

Scramble ends in tie for 3rd week

The Weekly Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course wound up in a tie Wednesday for the third week in a row, so $680 in merchandise prizes will be carried over into next week's play.

Playing on the back nine, the team of Craig Nieman, Wendell Burdine, Charles Hoover and Charlotte Clark came in with a 30. So did the team of Jerry Stevens, Speedy Nieman, Gene King and Bill Lyles.

When there is a tie, the prizes carry over to the next week. A winning team next week could claim more than $800 in golf merchandise. Players who miss a week are required to pay the extra entry fee.

Cowboys' No. 1 pick from '94, Carver, wants to redeem name

AUSTIN (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys' Shante Carver is out to clear his name.

The Cowboys' first-round draft pick in 1994, Carver says he was unfairly labeled a bust at defensive end - even by his own teammates - before being given a chance to prove himself in a game.

Carver may have climbed into position to take over the end spot left open by departed free agent Jim Jeffcoat by adding 20 pounds of muscle to his slender frame and by working on his rushing techniques during the off-season.

"The year of experience has helped me a lot. I feel very confident," said Carver, who was taken from Arizona State with the 23rd overall pick in 1994.

Coaches have noticed a difference. In a recent scrimmage against the Houston Oilers, Carver recorded a sack, forced a fumble and recovered another while turning in four tackles. The performance surpassed the production from his entire rookie year (two solo tackles and three assists).

"Shante's played well," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "His effort has always been there. He's got some great rushing talents, and that's where he's got to help us."

In a calm, rational voice, Carver says he doesn't understand his label as a bust after last season. He points out that he was behind veterans Haley, Tony Tolbert and Jeffcoat.

"Where was I supposed to start? Was I supposed to start over Haley or Tolbert?" Carver asked.

"I guess it means that I am a bust because I was a first-rounder and didn't play. Most first-rounders play, but most don't have a Pro Bowl player (Haley) and another guy who should be in the Pro Bowl (Tolbert) in front of them.

NBA players mull deal for Aug. 30 vote

NEW YORK (AP) - This time, NBA players have plenty of time to analyze a new labor deal negotiated by their union and the league.

An earlier agreement was a rush job, presented to players for a vote less than 48 hours after it was put together. For that reason, one player agent said Wednesday, a revised agreement stands a fair chance of being ratified, bringing an end to a 40-day lockout.

"The union now won't make the mistake of jamming it down the players' throats," said Bill Duffy, whose clients include Dallas' Jason Kidd, Seattle's Gary Payton and Indiana's Antonio Davis.

Instead, the union will use the time before an Aug. 30 vote to hold several regional meetings to brief a divided membership and sell the proposals' merits. The league will launch its own lobbying effort, communicating to the players through its teams.

"We believe we will win if we're aggressive and effectively communicate to the players and satisfy them it's a good agreement," said Simon Gourdine, the union's executive director. "If we're complacent, we won't win."

What was to have been an Aug. 30 vote on disbanding the union will now serve as a ratification vote. The union has said players can either vote for decertification or for accepting the new contract, which replaces the one players rejected in June.

The other voting day is Sept. 7. More than 400 eligible players can cast ballots either day at regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board.

Reds spank Maddux, ending his 10-game win streak

By VINCENT CINISOMO
Associated Press Writer

The Cincinnati Reds not only beat the unbeatable Greg Maddux, they also impressed him.

Maddux's career-high 10-game winning streak ended Wednesday night as Benito Santiago hit a three-run homer, leading Cincinnati to a 9-3 win over Atlanta.

Maddux (12-2) had not lost since May 17, a span of 14 starts, and his streak was a season-high in the NL this season.

"The Reds are a very aggressive club on the bases and at the plate," Maddux said. "They run the bases well, hit with power and play good defense. There are a lot of reasons they have the best record in the league."

Cincinnati has won seven of eight to compile the NL's best record, one game better than Atlanta.

Maddux took a two-hitter and a 2-0 lead into the sixth, but Santiago hit a three-run homer, his seventh, and Hal Morris, a .436 hitter lifetime against Maddux, singled in another for a 4-2 lead.

"I had good location on the fastball to Santiago, but it was up a little and outside, and he did a good job going with the pitch to right," Maddux said.

Maddux allowed five runs on eight hits in 6 2-3 innings, and his ERA rose from a league-leading 1.74 to 1.96. Hideo Nomo leads the NL at 1.89.

Maddux walked a season-high five and struck out eight to drop to 8-10 lifetime against the Reds. He also threw his first wild pitch since April 14, 1994.

"Walks happen sometimes," Maddux said. "The walks definitely hurt, but I'm not really dissatisfied with my game. I made some pretty good pitches and Santiago, Ronnie Gant and Reggie Sanders hit some good pitches. Give them credit."

Dave Burba (6-2), making his second start for the Reds, held the Braves to three runs on six hits in six innings. He struck out four and did not walk a batter. Jeff Brantley got four outs for his 24th save.

"I can't say I beat Maddux," Burba said. "He was just a pitcher facing the Reds, and I was just a pitcher facing the Braves. I beat the Braves."

With the win, the Reds improved to 60-33. Atlanta is close behind at 60-35. Cincinnati holds a 5-4 edge in this season's series against the Braves. The teams play one more game tonight in the current three-game stand, which could be a preview of the NL playoffs.

In other NL games Wednesday, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 4-3; Florida nipped Colorado 2-1; New York shut out Philadelphia 4-0; Montreal beat Houston 6-5; Los Angeles defeated St. Louis 4-2; and San Diego at Chicago was rained out.

Marlins 2, Rockies 1

Kurt Abbott had three hits, including an inside-the-park home run, and drove in both runs as host Florida beat Colorado.

The Marlins have won 10 of 12, and are 19-13 career against their expansion brethren.

John Burkett (10-10) allowed six hits in 7 1-3 innings to win his third straight.

Kevin Ritz (9-7) gave up two runs and six hits in six innings.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 2

Eric Karros homered for the third straight game as host Los Angeles beat St. Louis to move within a game of the NL West lead.

Tom Candiotti (6-10) allowed a run and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings, helping the Dodgers capitalize on Colorado's 2-1 loss at Florida.

Mike Morgan (4-5) gave up eight hits and four runs in six innings.

Expos 6, Astros 5

Mike Lansing's two-run double highlighted a three-run fifth inning and Pedro Martinez scattered 11 hits in eight-plus innings as Montreal hung on to win at Houston.

Martinez (10-7) gave up four runs.

Greg Swindell (7-6) gave up 10 hits and four runs in 4 2-3 innings.

Mets 4, Phillies 0

Rookie Jason Isringhausen pitched eight shutout innings as New York won at Philadelphia.

The Phillies lost their season-high seventh straight and dropped to .500 (48-48) for the first time since May 3, when they were 3-3.

Isringhausen, making just his fourth major league start, allowed just six hits, struck out two and walked none.

Paul Quantrill (9-7) gave up 10 hits in seven innings.

Giants 4, Pirates 3

Glenallen Hill's two-run homer in the seventh inning kept William VanLandingham's record perfect at Candlestick Park and gave San Francisco the win.

VanLandingham (3-2) allowed three runs and eight hits in eight innings. He has a 7-0 record in 14 career starts at home.

Jason Christiansen (1-2) gave up Hill's homer.

Mariners in chase for wildcard; Griffey due to start rehab soon

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The New York Yankees got David Cone, Ruben Sierra and Darryl Strawberry. The Baltimore Orioles added Bobby Bonilla, and the Texas Rangers acquired Bobby Witt.

Still, the Seattle Mariners might be ready to play the trump card in the wild-card race - Ken Griffey Jr.

The Mariners, who have hung in the chase for 2-1/2 months despite missing Griffey, won their season-high fifth in a row Wednesday night, beating the Chicago White Sox 11-8.

Mike Blowers and Jay Buhner each homered during a seven-run fourth inning as the Mariners moved within one game of the Yankees in position for the wild-card spot. Texas and Seattle are tied.

The Mariners' push for their first-ever postseason slot could get a big boost within in a week if Griffey returns to the lineup. Out since breaking his left wrist May 26, he's expected to begin a rehabilitation assignment this weekend with Triple-A Tacoma.

"Obviously, it's going to help to have Junior back," Blowers said.

In other AL games, Boston beat Cleveland 9-5, California defeated Kansas City 9-1, Baltimore beat New York 7-2, Texas topped Detroit 13-5, Milwaukee downed Toronto 12-7 and Oakland defeated Minnesota 6-3 in 10 innings.

Blowers connected for the fourth straight game and matched his career-high with his 15th home run. Buhner homered in his third straight.

"This feels good, especially because this team has needed me to swing the bat well with Junior out of the lineup," Blowers said.

The biggest bat at the Kingdome, however, belonged to Frank Thomas. He homered twice for the White Sox and took over the major league lead with 31.

Red Sox 9, Indians 5

Erik Hanson overcame one bad inning and pitched Boston to its seventh consecutive win. The Red Sox swept the two-game series between division leaders at Fenway Park and sent Cleveland to its third loss in a row.

Pinch-hitter Matt Stairs singled home the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning and Chris Donnels, called up from the minors earlier in the day, followed with a two-run triple.

Hanson (10-4) gave up five runs in the third, three on Albert Belle's 25th homer. The Indians lost for only the third time in 50 games when leading after six innings.

Rangers 13, Tigers 5

Lou Frazier, a former Detroit farmhand, had three hits and scored the go-ahead run in the sixth inning on a single by Ivan Rodriguez.

Frazier, who recently moved from Montreal to Texas, drove in four runs. Otis Nixon also had three of the Rangers' season-high 17 hits.

Danny Bautista, in an 0-for-36 slump for the Tigers, was sent to Triple-A Toledo.

Brewers 12, Blue Jays 7

Juan Guzman walked three straight batters in the first inning and left with soreness below his right armpit, and host Milwaukee sent Toronto to its sixth straight loss. Blue Jays pitchers walked 13, one short of the team record.

Rob Dibble made his debut for Milwaukee, retiring five of six batters. He signed with the Brewers after serving a two-game suspension for throwing at Milwaukee's Pat Listach while with the White Sox.

Angels 9, Royals 1

Tim Salmon homered twice and Jim Edmonds and J.T. Snow also connected as California won its eighth straight road game.

Salmon drove in four runs with his 25th and 26th homers. Edmonds homered for the third straight day, giving him 25, and also doubled and scored three times.

Chico Lind, released by Kansas City on July 13 a month after leaving the team because of personal reasons, went 2-for-5 in his debut for the Angels. He was booed by his former Royals fans.

Chuck Finley (11-8) beat Kansas City for the ninth consecutive time, and won the 110th game of his career, moving past Mike Witt into second place on California's list. Nolan Ryans leads with 138.

Athletics 6, Twins 3

Geronimo Berroa doubled home the go-ahead run in the 10th at the Metrodome. Oakland won despite losing Rickey Henderson with a hamstring injury in the fifth inning.

The A's held Minnesota hitless in the last six innings. Dave Stevens, 7-for-7 since inheriting the Twins closer role when Rick Aguilera was traded, could not hold a 3-2 lead in the ninth.

Orioles 7, Yankees 2

Cal Ripken homered, doubled twice and drove in four runs, drawing a standing ovation from the fans at Yankee Stadium. It was the first time he'd ever had more than two RBIs in 90 career games in New York.

Only one thing did not go right for Ripken - he made his first steal attempt of the season and was thrown out.

The game was Ripken's last in New York before he is scheduled to break the consecutive games streak record held by Yankees Hall of Famer Lou Gehrig.

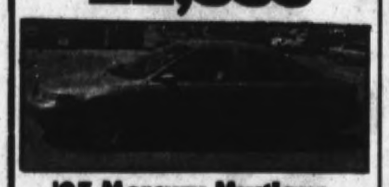

Jamie Moyer gave up a home run to Wade Boggs on his first pitch. Moyer allowed only two more hits in eight innings, both by Boggs.

Don't be hip: Young Republicans advise hopefuls

18- to 24-year-olds care more about issues than knowing rock bands

By DANA CALVO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republican presidential candidates are getting some free advice from their young staffers: Don't court the youth vote by trying to be hip.

"I think people are more interested in a strong economy than someone who can tell you if 'Hootie and the Blowfish' are going to have a strong album next time," said Nelson Warfield, press secretary for 72-year-old Sen. Bob Dole. (Hint: Hootie and the Blowfish is a popular rock 'n' roll band.)

Young people could make up 18 percent of next year's registered voters, and Republican candidates are not about to yield those votes to baby boomer Bill Clinton, who won over 18- to 24-year-olds in 1992, when they were 11 percent of all voters.

Hap Hinman, youth director for Pat Buchanan, suggested the saxophone-playing, sunglasses-wearing antics that Clinton employed in 1992 will not work in 1996. "Not only is it unpresidential, it's cheesy," he said.

Marco Rodriguez, 28, executive director of California College Republicans, shook his head when a visitor at the College Republican National Convention asked about Clinton's confession that he preferred boxers over briefs.

"That's shallow," he said. "We're issue-oriented."

Forget Elvis Presley. Young Republicans want Ward Cleaver for president.

While young Republicans are pressing the candidates and the media not to talk down to them, young Democrats say Clinton will continue to speak directly to issues affecting young people, such as education costs and public service.

"Clinton rolled up his sleeves and got to work," said Adam Sohn, 26, assistant press secretary for the Democratic National Committee and a former campaign staffer.

Sohn said the need to be treated like "grownups" means young Republicans don't encourage candidates to deal with the issues specific to his generation. He said young people should be treated as a rightful constituency.

Republican aides said the GOP distaste for the youthful Clinton, who likened himself to John F. Kennedy and Elvis during the campaign - depending on the event - has enabled GOP candidates to be the everyman, not the superstar.

Matt Zandi, a recent graduate of University of California, Irvine, and national director for Young Americans for Freedom, a Republican youth group, said young GOP voters just want a traditional candidate with dignity.

"We're all children of Ronald Reagan," he said.

But even Reagan's staff kicked back and had some fun. During Reagan's 1984 re-election campaign, strategist Lee Atwater sent a courier to the MTV studios for a copy of the latest music video by rock star John Cougar Mellencamp. Months later Atwater admitted the president never watched the video, but for a week the campaign enjoyed news reports on MTV that Reagan watched rock videos in his spare time.

A greater share of young voters cast ballots in 1992 than at any time since 1972, the year 18-year-olds were given the vote. Analysts say that share will be even larger in 1996.

"You're talking about maybe 15 or 18 percent of the electorate. That's significant," said Mark Gersh, Washington director of the National Committee for an Effective Congress, an independent political action committee established in 1948.

In addition, young people tend to vote for the candidate, not the party.

Ricki Seidman worked in Clinton campaign headquarters in Little Rock, Ark., in 1992. Now she is president of Rock the Vote, a nonprofit organization aimed at getting more voters between 18 and 24 involved in political issues and to the polls.

"The sense is that voters under 25 went to Clinton in '92, but they also went overwhelmingly for Reagan in the '80s," she said. "No one is guaranteed the youth vote."

Clinton won 46 percent of the 18-to-24-year-olds' vote. President Bush got 33 percent, and independent candidate Ross Perot got 21, according to Voter News Service.

Eileen Nash, 22, youth director for Indiana Republican Sen. Dick Lugar, says young voters are looking for a realistic role model.

"He (Lugar) has four children and seven grandchildren. He's never asked me who (the grunge band) 'Nirvana' is, but I don't doubt he knows."

Nash said Lugar won't try to impress young voters with pop culture knowledge. "He's not a circus act," she insisted.

But Sohn said Republicans can't deny that Clinton's commitment to young people won him the youth vote.

"Young Republicans are just like old Republicans," he said. "There's no dynamism."

> "I think people are more interested in a strong economy than someone who can tell you if 'Hootie and the Blowfish' are going to have a strong album next time."

Heavy rains cause ag problems

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Much of Central and East Texas got rainfall from the remnants of Tropical Storm Dean that moved inland from Galveston Bay last week, according to the state Agricultural Extension Service.

The rainfall was welcome following a week of record heat in some areas of the state, but other areas received more than they bargained for.

Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said remnants of a storm can bring more rainfall farther inward than the center of the storm itself that hit along the coast.

Hardeman County received 10 to 14 inches of rain Sunday and Monday, said Douglas Wilson, county extension agent in Quanah.

"Due to the massive amount of rain, all hay on the ground was washed away," Wilson said. "Also, a tremendous amount of erosion resulted from the rain and terraces in fields were washed away as well."

He said although this rain didn't do as much damage to crops as the flood they experienced in the first of June, it did extensive damage to roads and fences.

"In the last flood we lost our wheat and cotton crop and had to start over," he said. "This time we had a lot of damage to fences and we lost a lot of county roads."

The county extension agent in Vernon, said Wilbarger County received 10 to 15 inches of rain in those same two days and experienced many of the same problems as Hardeman County.

"We experienced tremendous erosion damage and lost some alfalfa," said agent Dempy Wise. "And with all the rain, we are concerned about an increase in disease problems, especially in melons and watermelons.

"We just received way too much rain in too short of a time," he said.

Producers in other areas received just enough rain to benefit their drought-stricken crops and rangeland.

Charles Stichler, extension agronomist in Uvalde, said showers scattered throughout the Southwest provided at least some short-term relief.

"Most areas received up to two inches of rain, while the Hill Country received up to four," Stichler said. "This was very timely, much needed rainfall and pastures, ranges and crops are all improving due to it.

"Corn, sorghum, peanuts and cotton are taking full advantage of the rainfall," he said.

Stichler added that the rainfall did slow cabbage and onion harvest, but no damage has been reported and the harvest will resume in a couple of days.

Zeitler said to expect hot and humid weather conditions to continue across Texas from Wednesday through Saturday.

"High temperatures will range from the middle 90s to lower 100s, while lows will vary from the middle 60s in Northern Texas to near 80 along the Gulf Coast and in Southern Texas," he said.

Zeitler said thunderstorms will bring up to one inch of rain to portions of the Coastal Plains, while widely scattered thunderstorms are possible across the rest of the state.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate to short. Pastures, ranges in need of moisture for continued growth. Dryland sorghum stressed for moisture. Insect problems in some cotton fields. Processing onions, potatoes.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Pastures need additional moisture after recent rainfall. Temperatures are cooler. Cotton progressing. Sorghum heads developing. Harvesting potatoes, onions.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Western, southern counties received two to five inches of rain. Some counties received 12 to 15 inches. Cotton in good condition; some insect problems. Peach harvest almost complete.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to very short. Pastures, ranges in fair condition in some areas due to recent rainfall. Corn, cotton, sorghum in fair condition. Watermelon harvest continuing. Sweet potatoes in fair to good condition.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures responding to recent rainfall; second hay cuttings assured, cattle in good condition. Harvesting of okra, peas, watermelons, tomatoes continues. Peach harvest near completion.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges in poor condition. Cotton in poor to fair condition. Irrigating, cutting, baling hay. Harvesting peaches. Pecans in poor condition due to drought conditions.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to surplus. Pastures, ranges in excellent condition due to recent rainfall; up to 10 inches in some areas. Sorghum, peanuts in good condition. Oat production in poor to fair condition. Peach harvest almost complete.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus. Pastures, ranges improving due to recent rains. Early yields of sorghum, corn above average. Harvesting late maturing peach varieties. Peanut planting complete.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures improving due to rains from tropical storm. Harvesting watermelons, corn, grain sorghum, rice. Preparing land for fall gardens. Peach season coming to an end.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to needed rainfall. Improved forage conditions beneficial to livestock. Cotton progressing. Excellent corn yields expected. Harvesting cabbage, onions.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture short.
