Man Arrested By Neighbors, Jailed For Stabbing To Death His Pet Dog

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 42-year-old man who was taken to police by angry neighbors in a citizens' arrest was charged with stabbing his dog "Snow White" so badly it had to be destroyed.

Leroy Whitley, a laborer, was accused of attacking his pet wire haired terrier with a pocket knife when the dog became frisky while Whitley was drunk.

Police said Whitley became angered and called the dog. Snow White obediently trotted to him, and Whitley slashed the dog and flung it into a trash can.

A crowd of neighbors gathered around Whitley and arrested him, forcing him to go to the police station.

Magistrate Reuben Levy, who said the case was the first "caninicide," in his memory, held Whitley in $500 bond on a maiming charge.

He said the defendant apparently never heard of Sen. George C. Vest's eulogy to a dog delivered in the Senate in 1884. Vest said the dog was "the one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world."

Kin Of Pampans Among 7 Killed In Air Crash

Lt. Dudley J. Hughes, 28, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Myatt, 601 N. Nelson, was one of seven military personnel killed when their Air Force C47 crashed and exploded shortly after takeoff yesterday on an air field at Greensboro, N.C.

Former Pampa Mayor Ed Myatt, a brother-in-law of the crash victim, said Lt. Hughes and his wife, the former Norma Jean Myatt, had visited in Pampa during the Christmas holidays. Their home is in Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

The air force lieutenant was stationed at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida. He was riding as a passenger at the time of the crash.

Mary Myatt, a sister-in-law of Lt. Hughes, left for Florida this morning.

The twin-engine plane apparently lost power about 150 feet up, faltered, and plunged to a grassy area at the edge of the Greensboro-High Point Airport. Its left wing hit first and its gas tanks blew up.

Two bodies were thrown clear of the flaming wreckage. Five others were taken later from a huge hole in the fuselage.

Air Force spokesmen said the plane was en route from McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., to its home field, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. It apparently had landed at Greensboro about 4 p.m. to pick ATLAS GOES FOR EARTH RIDE — An Atlas rocket similar to the one astronaut John Glenn Jr. will ride into space was transported from California to Cape Canaveral in an Air Force (MATS) C-133 Cargomaster. Here, the booster section of the Atlas is being loaded into the aircraft for its trip from the Miramar Naval Air Station, California.

Hunt Pushed For Bomber In California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police today sought the driver of a souped - up dark sedan with chrome-plated dual exhaust pipes for questioning in the bombing of two ministers' homes.

Witnesses obtained part of the automobile's license plate number as it cruised near the home of the Rev. John G. Simons Thursday night shortly before a bomb exploded.

Authorities pored over millions of automobile registrations on file with the State Department of Motor Vehicles to locate the owners of vehicles fitting the description of the one being sought.

Simmons and the Rev. Brooks Walker were speaking at a meeting on the threat of "the radical right" when bombs exploded outside their San Fernando Valley homes, causing minor damage but no injury to their families.

Actress Marsha Hunt was another panelist at the meeting, but her home was not bombed. She speculated the bombers probably did not have her address.

Police posted guards at the homes of all three speakers following the bombings.

Officers also began maintaining a watch on the Holmby Hills home of actor Robert Ryan after his family received a telephone bomb threat, a family spokesman reported.

The spokesman, Leonard Kaufman, said Mrs. Ryan received the threat Sunday.

"It was a very short one. A voice said that unless Bob stopped participation in a radio program about John Birch he would get the same thing that happened last week," Kaufman said.

He said Ryan, actress Rita Moreno, singer John Raitt and other Hollywood personalities had recorded passages from Birch Society founder Robert Welch's "blue book."

'I talked to Mr. Ryan in France and he was quite disturbed," Kaufman said. "But his wife said, 'Don't be ridiculous, don't come home. We're all right.' "

A spokesman for radio station KPFK in North Hollywood said the station also had been threatened three times in the past three days. He said the recordings were to be played starting tonight and that the programs were intended to be neither pro-Birch nor anti-Birch.

Police Chief William H. Parker said of the explosions, "it can only be conjectured that they were politically inspired."

Castro Charges Interference In Internal Affairs

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Cuba, hoping for African and Asian support to add to its Communist backing, took its battle against the United States before the United Nations again today.

Still smarting from censure by the Organization of American States OAS, Premier Fidel Castro's "Marxist-Leninist" government was expected to open all stops in pressing its charges of "imperialist" aggression by the United States.

Czechoslovakia and Romania submitted in advance to the debate in the General Assembly's Main Political Committee a draft resolution calling on the United States to end its "interference" in Cuba's internal affairs and settle its dispute with Castro's government amicably.

Carrying its implcations of U.S. guilt, the Communist resolution appeared sure of defeat. The debate is expected to consume at least a week.

Officials of the Cuban regime, which Castro has admitted is oriented along the "Marxist-Leninist" lines of the Communist bloc, have accused Washington of using "imperialist" and "colonialist" tactics against a small country.

This is an approach that has found favor among the anti-colonial African and Asian nations during all debates in the current session. The 50-nation Afro-Asian bloc now dominates the assembly numerically.

An authoritative American source said, however, that the Africans and Asians appeared reluctant to intervene in a dispute which they regard as an affair strictly between Cuba and the United States.

Fidel Says JFK Embargo On Imports Is 'Felony'

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro declared his defiance Sunday night of the United States and the Organization of American States, saying nothing could prevent the spread of Castroite revolution throughout Latin America.

In a 3-hour speech to an estimated one million Cubans, Castro denounced President Kennedy's embargo on imports from Cuba as a "felony."

The vast crowd, biggest ever to attend a Castroite mass meeting here, cheered repeatedly as the bearded premier spoke. Many greeted him with the clenched-fist Communist salute and the Red "Internationale" anthem.

The meeting was called to hear what was described as Castro's answer to the decision of New World foreign ministers at Punta Del Este, Uruguay, last week to exclude the Castro regime from the inter-American system.

Castro said his variety of revolution is spreading to other Latin American countries. He charged that several Latin American presidents are ready to use American troops against their own people to stay in power.

He denied, however, that his regime is "exporting revolution."

Castro said the U.S. embargo would deprive his regime of the dollars it would need to buy the food and medicines Kennedy still is willing to export to Cuba.

"The felony would not be so complete if Kennedy had at least extended us credits to buy medicines," he said.

He said the United States fostered the foreign ministers' action and proclaimed the embargo "because they are afraid . . . of a Latin American revolution."

"They are afraid that workers, farmers, students and middle-class progressives in other Latin American countries . . . will (follow the example of the revolutionaries who) took power in Cuba," he said.

Campaign Money To Be Scarce In Texas This Year

AUSTIN (UPI)— The stormiest campaign for the governorship of Texas since 1946 may put a pinch on those "big rich" political pocketbooks.

Six Democrats and a Democrat-turned - Republican are running, and they all know the boys who usually pick up the tabs have been hit heavily the past two years.

They dug deep to push Lyndon B. Johnson for the presidency and then the vice presidency. Next came a flock of candidates seeking Johnson's seat in the Senate. By the time three recent congressional elections arrived, including the one to fill the late Speaker Sam Rayburn's place, contributors were beginning to look a bit weary. Even and oil - lined Texas pocketbook has a limit.

Several of the six Democratic candidates admit the campaign money isn't there like it used to be.

Ultra-conservative former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker may find himself in the best financial condition. Talk is strong that Dallas multimillionaire H. L. Hunt will back him. Walker denied this at a news conference. If Hunt backs him, the least of Walker's worries will be money.

Gov. Price Daniel, who is seeking an unprecedented fourth term, used to hit a gusher anytime he announced.

Now he is just one of four moderates seeking the Democratic nomination and must share the support.

Former Navy Secretary John Connally should know whom to ask for money. He handled Johnson's fund-raising for years. One of those who admits the pinch is on the "big" contributions is Atty. Gen. Will Wilson. He and Connally are classed as the other moderates along with former State Highway Commissioner Marshall Formby.

Liberal Don Yarborough, a Houston attorney, hopes to win labor's endorsement and receive the rank-and-file contributions.

Denver Police Scandal Grows

DENVER (UPI) — The largest police department scandal in the history of the United States will expand even further this week when criminal charges are filed against the 50th and 51st "burglars-in-blue."

Dist. Atty. Bert M. Keating will not disclose the names of the two new suspects, but he said he has evidence with which to charge them.

He said evidence against them was gathered last week by visits to the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., where some of the convicted Denver patrolmen are serving terms.

"The evidence for these criminal cases was developed by the joint DA-Governor's investigation," Keating said. State investigators joined the police department probe last year.

Keating said the new Denver County grand jury no longer is investigating the police department.

"I can see only a waste of taxpayers' money and the grand jury's time in attempting to divert this body's efforts toward the police department at this time," Keating said.

Report Says Missile Detection Radar Flashed False Warnings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — False warnings from America's giant missile detection radar in Greenland were numerous over a period of five months, it was indicated today.

The Defense Department said in an annual report to the White House that "the majority of false reports which first plagued it were eliminated by February, 1961."

The radar, known as BMEWS for Ballistic Missile Early Warning System, became operational in September, 1960.

One of the early false warnings became public knowledge at the time because three visiting businessmen were present in Colorado Springs, Colo., when the warning was flashed to air defense headquarters there.

Before the falsity of the signal could be established, the businessmen spent 20 tense minutes under an impression that a massive missile attack might have been launched against the United States.

On Nov. 22, 1960, the Air Force said technicians discovered that reflections from the moon picked up by the powerful BMEWS radar were responsible for the false alarm.

But the Air Force said this difficulty had been eliminated after one month of operation. The statement said the technicians had "refined adjustments in a built-in device which now causes the computer to ignore the return from the moon."

The Defense Department report did not specify the nature of the further difficulties encountered during the next four months.

The brief statement was contained in a 41-page printed document, transmitted to President Kennedy by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. The report reviewed progress in military programs through the fiscal year ended June 30.

The report noted that "Site II at Clear, Alaska, became operational in June, 1961, giving BMEWS partial capability pending completion of Site III at Flyingdales, England."

The department added that "an average warning time of 20 minutes will be provided when the BMEWS is completed." The Flyingdales station is still under construction.

Secretary Rusk Defends Aid To Red Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk today strongly defended continued U. S. economic and military aid to Communist Yugoslavia.

Testifying before the special House exports committee, Rusk said any other policy would be "sterile and defensive."

He said, however, the United States would continue efforts to deny strategic material to Cuba.

Committee Chairman A. P. Kitchin, D- N. C. and other members of Congress have voiced other criticism of the Kennedy administration's decision to continue foreign aid, including jet fighters, to Yugoslavia.

Rusk called the original decision to help Yugoslavia "imaginative and courageous." The results, he said, "have more than met our expectations."

Rusk said the Yugoslav government has "shown good faith in their commitment to us, and have made it possible for us to accord Yugoslavia, in the field of foreign trade, the same treatment accorded Western European countries."

He said that less than 30 per cent of Yugoslavia's trade is with the Soviet bloc. Its sources of capital, raw materials, equipment and even military supplies are largely in the West, he said.

The House inquiry coincided with a report by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N. Y., calling for the United States and its allies to get together on a trade policy for dealing with the Soviet bloc.

Scientists Get Remarkable View Of Planetary Line-Up

LAE, Australian New Guinea (UPI)—The moon slid directly between the earth and the sun today, darkening an 8,000-mile slice of earth with its shadow and giving atronomers a rare, perfect view of a total eclipse.

U.S., Japanese and Australian astronomers trained nearly $1 million worth of equipment on the phenomenon at this beach, famed for a World War II Allied landing, and were delighted with their observations.

For 2 minutes and 45 seconds day turned to night so dark that editor Jim Huxley of the New Guinea Times could not see the numbers on his camera.

Dogs barked, roosters crowed and Papuan natives throughout the area disappeared in their homes and huts or under crude grass shelters.

As the world turned dark, the sun's corona, or outer shell of gas, burst into view, yellow and pearly white, broken by three tongue-like jets of incandescent hydrogen gas called "prominences."

Dr. Richard Dunn of Sacramento Peak Observatory, New Mexico, described the eclipse as "magnificent."

"It was 100 per cent perfect," he said.

Making this eclipse even more extraordinary was the fact that the five planets that can be seen with the naked eye from earth, Mars, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn—were lined up with the sun and the moon, giving the scientists a remarkable view.

This extraordinary lineup — the first during a total eclipse in nearly 1,600 years—had caused astrologers the world over to predict a weekend of disaster.

At 3 a.m., it was raining at Lae and astronomers were fear-

New Arctic Blast Chases Warm Air From Panhandle

By United Press International

A frigid mass of arctic air, driven southward by brisk northerly winds, chased balmy spring-like weather out of Texas today.

The mercury fell to 23 in Pampa at 6 a.m. today. The noon reading was 32 and the weatherman says it will get down to 15 degrees tonight. Yesterday's high was near 70.

Considerable cloudiness along and ahead of the front was swept from the skies as it moved southeastward. The Weather Bureau said the cold air would overflow the entire state by tonight causing temperatures to drop as low as 10 degrees in the Panhandle.

Freezing temperatures were expected to bite deep into South Texas. Forecasts called for only the Rio Grande Valley to escape freezing or below reading by Tuesday morning.

The Weather Bureau said that while no extremely low temperatures are expected, the cold front will be a marked contrast to the nearly two weeks of bright sunshine, blue skies and temperatures in the 70s and 80s that sent thousands of Texans to picnic grounds, golf courses, lakes and streams.

Five day forecasts called for the cold weather to continue through Wednesday or Thursday, then begin warming back up once again.

The Weather Bureau said temperatures today would climb no higher than freezing in northern parts of the Panhandle, range generally through the 40s to near 60 in North Texas and up to the mid-60s in south Texas.

Critical Period Passes And Earth Spins On Without Catastrophe

By PATRICK J. KILLEN
United Press International

BENARES, India — Mother Earth spun merrily through the universe today — unflipped, unshattered and still on course — despite a rare celestial display that had terrified millions of its people.

A total eclipse and an extraordinary lineup of five planets — Mercury, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Venus—with the earth, moon and sun delighted astronomers but confounded astrologers.

The men of science witnessed a remarkable heavenly spectacle from their observation point in New Guinea.

The astrologers witnessed the collapse of their predictions of dire calamity which had set off the worst wave of superstition since Haley's Comet in 1910.

Half a million Hindu pilgrims bathed Sunday in the chilly waters of the sacred River Ganges in a gesture for their survival.

Hundreds of thousands of Hindu pilgrims flocked to Benares as the time approached for the conjunction of the eight heavenly bodies in the Zodiac sign of Capricorn.

According to Indian astrologers, the time of greatest danger ended this afternoon although some danger will continue all week. They had predicted earthquakes, floods, droughts—almost the whole range of natural disasters.

High priests conducted yagnas —or non-stop prayer sessions—in New Delhi but at least one yagna packed up its sacred fire and scented leaves Sunday morning and decided the job was finished.

The wave of fear was not confined to the Orient.

Twenty-two members of a California religious cult took to the hills around Cleator, Ariz., last August to prepare for doomsday, believing Cleator would be one of the 12 places on earth spared from plagues, tidal waves and World War III.

In England, members of the Aetherius Society climbed to the top of a 2,636-foot mountain near Coniston to "send off spiritual powers" to ward off calamity.

In New York City, the Hayden Planetarium reported it had been flooded with thousands of calls from people worried that the end of the world was at hand.

Dear Abby....

Had Five Husbands Trying For Six!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I wear a size 12 dress, have silver blonde hair and people don't believe me when I tell them I am 61 years old. I have had five husbands, but don't jump at any conclusions. I was divorced only once and had four husbands die on me. The man who is my problem at the moment is a 50-year-old bachelor. He is well-to-do, refined and hard to get. He can never get away to see me until after his mother has gone to bed, which is about 9:30 p.m. She has him under her thumb, but good. Oh, brother, talk about a mamma's boy! How do I land this one?

"THE DUCHESS"

DEAR "DUCHESS": If I told you, you'd only hate me. If you think you'd be happy married to a 50-year-old man who can't leave his mother until she's sleeping, think again. Enjoy your blessed singleness.

DEAR ABBY: I have always been able to make my own decisions, but this time I would like some help. How old should a girl be when her dolls are put away? My twelve-year-old daughter raised a terrible fuss because, when she was at school, I rearranged her bedroom and put all her dolls away. I think it helps a girl to grow up to take away all the childish toys of her babyhood. (She has had some of those dolls since she was 4.) I have had several of my friends tell me I am wrong. I would like your opinion.

GOOD INTENTIONS

DEAR GOOD: Your friends are right. Your daughter's dolls should not have been put away until she herself initiated it. Older girls do not actually "play" with dolls, they just like to keep them around for ornamental—and sentimental—reasons.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my mother-in-law by a previous marriage, my first husband being deceased.

She has become "Chief Sitting Bull" in my house. She pops in on me before noon — with no notice — and she sits here until 8 or 9 o'clock at night. It seems she always comes when I have something else planned. Not wanting to offend her, I quietly cancel my plans and attempt to entertain her. She doesn't have many friends, and goes practically nowhere, so she is not very good company. How can I get her to let me know in advance when she's coming? Her visits are becoming more frequent.

SITTING BULL'S VICTIM

DEAR VICTIM: Take "Sitting Bull" by the horns and ask her to let you know when she is coming so you can plan your time. When you "quietly" cancel your plans, you give her the mistaken impression that she can visit any old time because you, too, just sit around doing nothing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MOLLY: Yes, money talks. But it doesn't always talk cents!

Longest Ocean Liner Off On Maiden Trip

LEHAVRE, France (UPI) — The longest liner in the world, the new 66,000-ton France, sailed on her maiden voyage to New York Saturday 46 minutes late.

The 1,035-foot long French Line luxury ship—four feet longer than the Queen Elizabeth—is regarded as France's challenge to the U.S. Line's United States.

A thick mist and fine rain cloaked this port as the liner began her first trip to the United States, cailing at Southampton en route.

But thousands of "Havrais," as the French call the local residents, came out into the streets to wave the giant liner they call "theirs" on their way.

Most of the passenger list consists of persons directing various aspects of tourism or entertainment in France, as well as a number of French officials and those concerned with building the liner, and returning American business executives.

When the liner makes its second voyage to New York Feb. 23 it will carry a virtual floating exhibition of French elegance and taste, with Paris models, special supplies and champagne and other exhibits of French good living.

Youth Hunted In Stolen Car Case

Law enforcement authorities in New Mexico are searching for the driver of an automobile stolen sometime last night from Joe D. Cree, 1819 Dogwood.

According to a report from officers in Santa Rosa, N.M. the automobile is being held in that city.

Police Captain Denny Roan said New Mexico officers reported the driver of the auto, described as a youth about 15 years-old, was stopped at 4:10 a.m. today for routine questioning. Officers said he gave his name as Smith and said he was a nephew of Cree. Upon investigation officers said the youth admitted the car was stolen and when police attempted to apprehend him he broke away and ran.

City police also received a report early today from Mrs. W. A. Morgan, 1938 Evergreen, that someone had just tried to steal their automobile parked in front of their home.

Mrs. Morgan told officers she heard a noise outside the house at 12:15 a.m. last night and when she turned on the porch light the prowler was scared away.

Investigating officers said they found an abandoned 1961 Chevrolet parked next to the Morgan home which had been reported stolen from W. R. Steger, 2312 Navajo, earlier in the evening.

Roan said it is possible that the reported car thefts in Pampa will be linked with the youth who has now stolen another automobile in New Mexico, according to word from Santa Rosa.

Six of the dead were identified today as five crew members and a passenger. Authorities still were attempting to identify the other one. The dead included, in addition to Lt. Hughes:

Capt. Richard J. Rice, Fort Walton Beach, Fla., 27, aircraft commander.

Capt. David L. Murphy, Bloomfield, Neb., 30, pilot.

Capt. Thomas W. Carter, Helena, Ark., 27, navigator.

Memorial Home Fund Growing

CANADIAN (Spl) — More than $10,000 in contributions and pledges have been received for the Edward Abraham Memorial Home project, according to Finance Chairman Harry Wilbur Jr.

The fund drive aims to match or exceed a $50,000 contribution offered for establishment of the Memorial Convalescent Home by the Abraham families of Canadian. The fund is being collected, and the home will be established and administered by trustees appointed by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, one of the terms of the gift from the Abrahams.

While the finance committee is working to raise the required funds in cash and pledges, another committee headed by Erbin Crowell has already begun visiting convalescent homes to prepare a report and recommendations on the facilities to be built here.

Eclipse

ful their view would be blocked. But about 7:40 a.m., cracks appeared in the cloud cover and at 8:50 (5:50 p.m., EST, Sunday) — when the eclipse started the skies when the eclipse started — the skies were clear and the scientists were jubilant.

"Early in the morning we had very little hope of even seeing a thing with such clouds about, but in the long run it could not have been possible to see a better eclipse anywhere in the world," Dr. Dunn said.

The eclipse was total from Borneo and over an 8,000-mile stretch eastward to a point in the Pacific about 1,000 miles west of Mexico.

Darkness fell over such land areas as Celebes, Ceram, New Guinea, The Solomons and Palmyra Island.

A partial eclipse was seen in a much wider area including Hawaii, Guam, Wake Island, parts of Southeast Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

Texas Highway Toll Held Down During Weekend

By United Press International

A United Press International survey for the period that began at 6 p. m. Friday showed 14 violent deaths, five attributed to highway accidents.

A fiery collision of two trucks Saturday near Houston was the worst traffic accident. The drivers, W. T. Gregory, 40 and Thomas Bell, 58, both of Houston were killed.

Other fatalities included:

Charles Armstrong, 14, of Tyler, drowned Sunday in a farm pond northwest of Tyler.

Bobby Ray Hamilton, 22, and his brother, Ronny Lee, 18, burned to death early Sunday when fire swept their Dallas apartment.

Joey Briggs, 2, of the Minden community near Henderson, drowned in a fish pond near his home Sunday.

An automobile struck a bridge abutment Saturday, killing Byron D. Redden, 58. The accident happened a mile west of Kleberg.

Jimmy L. Reed, 19, of Cleburne, a student of Arlington State College, was killed Saturday in a one car accident two miles north of Mansfield.

Police Checking Three Break-Ins During Weekend

Police today were investigating three break-ins reported over the week-end.

Homer McNeil, owner of McNeil Produce Co., 514 S. Cuyler, reported burglars broke in sometime last night and stole an Army car coat valued at $20.

Officers reported at 1:25 a.m. today they found the front door of the Satellite Club, 1012 Octavius, broken open. Two vending machines had been pried open and some change taken.

Aubrey Tillery, bookkeeper at the Foxworth Galbraith Lumber Co., 214 E. Tyng reported today that someone had entered the business office by breaking out a rear window and ransacked a cash drawer. Tillery said about 14 pennies, a dime and two screw drivers were taken.

Episcopal Church To Hold Exhibit

An art exhibit of ceramics, woodcarving and paintings executed by members of St. Matthews Episcopal Church is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday in the parish house at 727 West Browning. The free exhibit is open to the public. Tea will be served to those attending.

Between 10 and 15 members of St. Matthew's will exhibit their art works which include many oil paintings, numerous ceramic pieces and several objects of a religious nature created out of wood. Some of the objects have been given to the church and are in use in the various buildings.

Mrs. Charles Russell has given in memory of her brother, Lt. Cleveland Null, a handsome walnut altar, hanging cross, credence table and candlesticks. Mrs. Russell built and carved the articles from walnut wood obtained from her home in the East.

A national Episcopalian magazine has noted the exhibit and has arranged for a reporter-photographer to cover the show. The magazine, The Living Church, plans to feature pictures of the art exhibit in one of its Spring issues. Jerry Sinise of Amarilo has been commissioned by the magazine to write the picture-story.

Cold Warnings Up In Northern Tier Of States

By United Press International

Polar cold derailed the balmies weather of the season from the Rockies to the Great Lakes today, dropping temperatures as much as 50 degrees and fanning snow with blizzard-like gusts across the great plains.

Cold wave warnings were up for 14 states, from Montana to Tennessee.

Fog clung to California's central valleys along with parts of Utah, Idaho, the Gulf Coast and the Atlantic Seaboard from Philadelphia to Boston.

Winds up to 60 miles an hour carried the cold into Nebraska. The temperature dipped 30 degrees in six hours at Omaha Sunday night. Minnesota also measured 60-mile winds and blizzard-like snow cut visibility to zero in many areas.

The temperature fell 15 degrees in 30 minutes at Denver Sunday night. It was 13 degrees at Denver shortly after midnight, a 12-hour drop of 41 degrees.

The cold arrived on the heels of record warmth. The temperature reached 70 degrees at Cincinnati Sunday afternoon, the same mark as the record for the date set in 1890.

It was 50 degrees in Chicago, the warmest since last Dec. 4. Detroit also recorded 50 and Omaha 57.

The warm air in Ohio brought thousands of motorists to the highways and 29 of them were killed in traffic accidents—the highest weekend total in two years.

Forty-mile winds accompanying the cold front into Iowa fanned a fire out of control and the blaze left two-thirds of a block of the Independence, Iowa, business district in ruins, causing damage estimated at $200,000. Seven families were made homeless.

Texas Publisher Dies In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)— John R. Killgore Sr., 59, publisher of the Rosebud (Tex.) News, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack in his room at the Astor Hotel.

Killgore, accompanied to New York by his wife, Vivian, was attending a meeting of the National Association of Postmasters. His body will be sent to Texas today.

Green's Funeral Home in Rosebud will handle funeral arrangements.

Mormons To Hold Conference In Amarillo Sunday

The Pampa branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) announces a North Texas district conference to be held February 11 at the James Bowie Jr. High School, 3001 East 12th Ave., Amarillo.

Presiding over the conference will be Ralph J. Hill, president of the Texas Mission of the church.

The Sunday morning services will begin at 8 a.m. with a Relief Society meeting for the women and at 8:30 a.m. with a priesthood session for the men. The two general sessions will begin at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

There will be no meetings held at the Pampa Branch chapel, 731 N. Sloan, next Sunday. The conference will be open to the public.

Circus Folk Pay Tribute To Two High-Wire Artists

DETROIT (UPI)— The people who make others happy cried Sunday.

These were the circus folk who stood by helplessly last Tuesday when two members of the Great Wallendas high wire aerialist troupe fell to their deaths during a performance.

Services for the young men, Richard Faughnan, 29, and Dieter Schepp, 23, were held in a funeral home here. The bodies were sent to the Wallenda home in Sarasota, Fla.

The funeral chapel was filled with roustabouts and trapeze artists, clowns and bareback riders, wirewalkers and waterboys. June, the midget clown, cried. Karl Wallenda, leader of the troupe, clutched a handkerchief to his face.

Karl was one of those on the wire when the seven-person pyramid collapsed. He was limping slightly from a pelvic injury suffered in the accident.

Mario Wallenda, 22, and Schepp's sister, Jana, 17, were among the few circus folk missing from the services.

Mario was still hospitalized in critical condition after the 35-foot fall. Jana quit the circus and returned to Sarasota a few days ago. She was at the peak of the pyramid when it collapsed but was saved when Karl grabbed her by the wrist as she fell by him.

Clay To Be Ready For Heavy Title Shot Soon

MIAMI (UPI) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Cassius Clay, the olympic boxing champion from Louisville who is forging ahead slowly and surely in the heavyweights ranks, now is crowding the 200-pound mark and fight experts in these precincts expect him to be ready for a shot at the heavyweight title within two years.

There was a rap against Clay when he turned professional, that he was too egotistical and too much of a showboat. But promoter Chris Dundee is quick to speak up in his defense and protests that "Cassius has learned a lot and now is a fine boy." ... Meaning, to quote "Willie the Shake," "Yon Cassius no longer hath a lean and hungry look,"...

"Wee Willie" Turnesa was guilty of a bit of double-talk hogwash when he said that the U.S. Golf Association has missed the boat by not making a bigger effort to keep Jack Nicklaus in amateur ranks.

Willie mourns the lack of such dedicated amateurs as Bobby Jones and Francis Ouimet. The truth is that, back in their day, pro golf didn't offer enough of a payoff. Willie says the USGA should have pointed out to Nicklaus the fine prospects the game affords in the business world." ... Meaning that he should have acted like a tennis "amateur" instead of calling a sawbuck a prize ...

They'll run the seven-furlong Bahamas at Hialeah Wednesday and, in view of the fact that it's only a sprint, everybody is going overboard on it as "the greatest race of the year" because Ridan will hook up with Crimson Satan, Sir Gaylord and Rainy Lake.

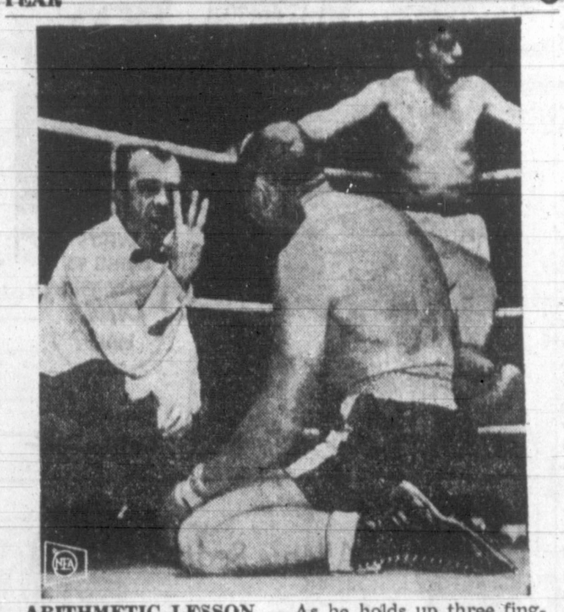
It's almost like those "Fights of the Century" they used to have every other week. After all, Ridan never has been more than six and one-half furlongs, Crimson Satan is the only one to have handled a mile and a sixteenth, and coming along are such mile and an eighth races as the Everglades and Flamingo — with such distance events as the Derby, Preakness and Belmont several months away ... Jockey Bobby Ussery almost trapped himself with the "Race of the Year" line but quickly added "well, a pretty good race, anyhow." ... Which it merely is ...

Pete Fullmer, Tom McNeeley's manager, says he probably will never handle another fighter "You get too emotionally involved and I can't stand the pace, he observed ... He'll give McNeely, flattened by Floyd Patterson, one more chance to look good or the axe falls on both their ring careers ...

Ponce de Leon didn't find the fountain of youth in Florida but some of the athletes must have found a substitute. Sam Snead, soon to be 50, still is chopping them up down here; Sam Griffith at 52 is the best offshore power boat pilot, and Gar Mulloy, after winning his fifth Miami Invitational, at 47 is the most feared man on the tennis circuit ... Bottoms up ...

Jack Price, who owns Carry Back, says that "Black Beauty" has changed his whole manner of living. When the Prices "retired" to horse racing they got off to a slow start and were digging into their cash reserves.

"I started leaving 10 per cent tips," Price grins as he contemplates the fantastic four-year-old which is "everybody's horse" in Florida. "But Carry Back came along and forced me to become one of the last of the big spenders. It was a tough adjustment."



ARITHMETIC LESSON — As he holds up three fingers, the referee seems to be giving Pete Rademacher a lesson in counting.. Actually, the official is tolling over the former Olympic heavyweight champion after he was floored in the seventh round by German's Karl Mildenberger, who took a 10-round decision in Dortmund. German is promising.

Tech Riding Crest, But Remains Leary

United Press International

Texas Tech's hard-earned Southwest Conference leadership doesn't appear to be in major danger this week against teams which have won only one of 11 league starts between them. But, the Raiders are wary.

The defending champions, a superb pair of road victories over Southern Methodist and Arkansas behind them, should be able to relax a bit this week as they entertain Texas Christian Tuesday night at Lubbock and face Baylor at Waco Saturday night.

The only victory owned by either team is TCU's 69-53 defeat of Baylor last week, but TCU's four losses have been by a total of just 25 points and Baylor has played its best against the toughest foes. The Bears lost only 54-52 to Texas A&M at home and to Tech 55-51 and Texas 76-71 on the road.

On the basis of these facts, Coach Gene Gibson isn't apt to allow his champions to get too cocky over the 69-63 and 66-64 road triumphs chalked up last week over SMU and Arkansas.

With the race hitting the halfway point Tuesday night, Tech's 5-1 record gives the Raiders a one game edge over Rice and Texas A&M (4-2), a game a half over Texas (3-2) and two full games over SMU and Arkansas (3-3).

Rice and the Aggies break up that second-place deadlock in a showdown Tuesday night at College Station, while both Texas and Texas A&M face the dangerous task of trying to corral SMU in Dallas Tuesday and Saturday nights, respectively.

Arkansas must visit Waco to meet Baylor Tuesday night, then will be at home to TCU Saturday night, while Texas and Rice get together at Austin in the other Saturday encounter.

Of the four major title contenders, Texas AM has a 5-3 edge in number of home-road games left to play, while Rice and Tech have an even 4-4 break and Texas, if it makes up its weather-postponed game at TCU, will have a 4-5 deficit. SMU and Arkansas, which still must rate an outside chance, have contrasting 5-3 and 3-5 balances, respectively.

Tech has won two out of its three road games to date and still must meet Texas and Rice away from home as well as Baylor and TCU. Rice still has A&M, Texas, SMU and TCU on the road; A&M must play SMU, Rice and Tech away from home, and Texas has SMU, A&M, Baylor, Arkansas and possibly TCU on the road.

Tech's two big victories spotlight last week's play, but Rice lost to Arkansas 104-84 then bounced back to trim SMU 61-53; Texas nipped Baylor 76-71 and A&M beat TCU 79-72 in league games. Texas also whipped Trinity 95-89 and A&M bowed to Houston 73-69.

The individual scoring races remained a tight scramble with new leaders taking over last week. Arkansas' Jerry Carlton jumped to the front in full-season scoring with 295 points and an 18.4-point average, while teammate Tommy Boyer bounced to the top in league actiin with 115 points and a 19.2-point average.

Ski Title Competition Might Fold

BERNE, Switzerland (UPI)— The 1961 world alpine ski championships, scheduled to start at Chamonix, France, next weekend, will be cancelled if the East German team fails to receive travel permits by Tuesday.

The executive council of the International Ski Federation appealed Sunday to "the appropriate authorities" to withdraw their refusal "of entry permits to the team of the German Democratic Republic."

"If this permission is not given by Tuesday ... the council (will) cancel the alpine world championships in Chamonix," it was announced by federation president Marc Hodler.

This is the second time in recent weeks that an East German team has been refused travel permits by the Allied Travel Office (ATO) in West Berlin. The ATO also turned down a similar request from the East German hockey team, which had hoped to compete in the world tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., next month.

The ski federation also decided Sunday to cable French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to intervene with the travel office. Hodler had cabled [illegible] John F. Kennedy [illegible] a similar request.

Dupas Slated For Another TV Tussle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Welterweight contender Ralph Dupas, who outpointed Charley Scott Saturday night, will get another TV fight at Madison Square Garden on March 31 with Argentina's Jorge Fernandez if matchmaker Teddy Brenner can close the deal.

"I'm working on the Dupas-Fernandez match," Brenner said today. "It shapes up like a good one."

Dupas of New Orleans, second-ranking contender among the 147-pounders, made an unexpectedly pleasing performance in the Garden TV fight Saturday. He changed his style from the hit-and-run to an aggressive slam-bang bore-in attack.

It was his third victory in their four fights.

Badgers Hoping To Upset Buckeye Cart

United Press International

Young John Erickson, coach of the Wisconsin Badgers, is pulling for one of the longshots of the season—that his club can at least tie Ohio State for the Big Ten title and thereby gain entry into the NCAA championships.

Ohio State, ranked the top college basketball power in the nation all season long, could conceivably sit out this year's NCAA championships because of a Big Ten ruling that in case of a tie the team that failed to go the year before would gain the bid.

The unbeaten Buckeyes, upset by Cincinnati in last year's finale, possess a 16-game winning streak and are 6-0 in conference play, while Wisconsin is 12-3 overall and 5-0 in Big Ten action.

The Badgers have nine games remaining, all against league rivals, including the March 3 possible showdown with the Buckeyes. Ohio State has eight more conference games to play.

Both Big Ten contenders play Monday night and again on Saturday. Ohio State, which made Northwestern a 97-61 victim last Saturday night, hosts Iowa Monday night and Minnesota Saturday. If Jerry Lucas & Co. win these next two games, the Buckeyes will tie the Big Tenn all-time record of 23 straight victories (including last season), set by Wisconsin in 1913.

What makes Erickson's task even more difficult is that Wisconsin will be without sophomore star Ron Jackson, who has been declared ineligible because of scholastic shortcomings. Playing for the first time without Jackson Saturday night, the Badgers edged Minnesota, 94-88.

Wisconsin's next opponents are Michigan Monday night and Michigan State Saturday, both at home.

Lucas led Ohio State with 24 points, 17 coming in the first half against Northwestern. In other games involving the top 10 teams Saturday, only 10th-ranked Villanova tasted defeat, losing to tournament-minded Detroit, 93-89, in overtime.

Second-ranked Cincinnati downed North Texas State, 77-50; fourth-ranked Kansas State defeated Nebraska, 72-53; sixth-ranked Duke knocked off North Carolina, 79-57; seventh-ranked Duquesne walked over St. Francis of Brooklyn, 99-44; eighth-ranked Bradley beat St. Louis, 72-67; and ninth-ranked Oregon State toppled Oregon, 82-66.

Jackson Is Star With Majors' Team

By United Press International

They'll have to move those 25-foot lines farther back if Tony Jackson is to be stopped from flooding American Basketball League nets with three-point field goals.

Jackson, a super marksman at St. John's during his college days, tied his own ABL record for three point field goals in one game when he netted seven distant shots in Chicago's 109-107 victory over San Francisco on Sunday.

The game was tied four times in the final period before Hank Whitney scored for Chicago with 1:10 remaining in the game to break a 107-all tie. Jackson contributed almost a third of the Majors' total output with a game high of 31 points. Jim Francis led San Francisco with 20.

New York defeated Cleveland, 117-109, and Kansas City rallied for a 105-92 win over Hawaii in the other scheduled games.

The Tapers of New York beat the Pipers from the foul line by sinking 40 of 47 free throws. Don Swartz connected on 17 of 19 attempts and Roger Kaiser hit on 13 of 15. Swartz had a Taper high of 31 points while Dick Barnett tallied 35 for Cleveland.

Uelses Setting Marks When Cold

BOSTON (UPI)—If Marine John Uelses, a 24-year-old resident of pole vault when he's "cold" and very tired, what's he likely to do when he's rested and ready?

That question may be answered in Philadelphia this week when Uelses, a 24-year'old resident of Miami, Fla., takes new cracks at the 16-foot vaulting level once considered impenetrable until he began orbiting near the mark last week.

"I think I can do 16 feet, 6 inches this year," Uelses said after setting his newest altitude mark at 16 feet, ¾ inch during the 73rd Boston Athletic Association meet Saturday night. Only the night before in New York, he broke 16 feet for the first time by a quarter-inch.

On Friday night, the German-born Marine corporal said he hadn't had time to warm up properly. After vaulting, he said he was too tired to consider high altitude vaults in Boston.

Because the crossbar was jostled off the standards in New York before the height could be rechecked, there was some question on whether the record would be accepted.

There was no doubt that the Boston mark was acceptable, however, because four judges, working in teams, checked the height of the bar after the Uelses leap. They agreed the height was 16 feet, ¾ inch, not the previously measured and announced 16 feet, 1 inch.

SETS COURSE RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete McArdle of the New York Athletic Club set a course record of 41 minutes and 56 seconds in winning Sunday's Metropolitan AAU eight-mile race. McArdle, the national 20,000, 25,000 and 30,000 kilometer champion, erased the old mark of 42.23 set two weeks ago.

Harvesters Looking To Future With Prospects

Pampa's Harvesters, who are experiencing a year of famine as far as victories are concerned, aren't worried too much about the future.

Though the Harvesters possess a 3-7 mark in district play and the prospect of finishing the season with no better than a .300 mark, the outlook for the future looms as a bright one.

Of the starting Harvester five this year, only two will be lost to graduation, Bob Neslage and Lloyd Balch. Two reservists, Harold Burgess and Mike Stewart will also be lost via the graduation route.

Back in the harness next year will be Randy Matson, Wayne Kreis, Gordon Balch and the rest of Coach Terry Culley's reservists who will no doubt be seeing regular action for the Harvesters. Included in this group will be Gary Sikes who will be a junior and C. E. Cantrell, Keith Swanson and Ronnie Chase, each of whom will be seniors.

Up from the B team will be such cage stalwarts as Larry Clifton, Donnie Ayers, Ricky Stewart, Charles Price and Kenny Hebert, all of whom have performed yeoman duty for Coach Roy Kieval's Shocker team. The Shockers this year have posted a glittering 17-5 record overall and a respectable 6-4 record in loop play thus far.

Then there is the Lee ninth grade team, which has stormed through the 1962 campaign in fine fashion with an 8-1 record in district and a 10-3 mark overall. Leading the way for Lee have been David McDaniel and Robert Howard.

It may be a rather lean year for the fighting Harvesters, but the outlook for the future seems to be somewhat brighter with the performance of the "future Harvesters" this year in their respective training gounds.

With such calibre play by this year's cagers on the B team and the Lee ninth grade unit, plus the return to action of the "big guns" on the Harvester quintet, there might just be another state championship team in the making in the not too distant future out at Pampa High School.

Palmer Winner Of Palm Springs Open

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)— Arnold Palmer, one of the giants of golf history who got off to a slow start this year, is back on his game today.

He proved he's as good as ever when he came from behind Sunday to overtake Gene Littler in the fifth and final round of the $100,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

Beating Littler, the National Open champion, when he's out in front on the final day is something that had never before been accomplished, according to hisians.

Palmer took down top money of $5,300 when he overcame Littler's three-stroke lead. Arnie shot a three-under-par 69 on the Bermuda Dunes course, one of five used in this golf marathon, and finished with a five-round total of 342-17 under par.

Littler slumped to a two-over-par 74 on the final day and finished in a tie for second place with Jay Hebert at 345. Each won $2,800.

The surprise of the tournament was young Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., who collected $1,700 for his 346. He was tied at that figure with Gardner Dickinson Jr., Tequesta, Fla., veteran, and Al Geiberger, the former collegiate champion from the University of Southern California.

Aaron also picked up $2,000 as the low pro in the pro-amateur division which ran for four rounds.

The biggest money-winner of all, however, was Dick Mayer, the 1957 National Open champion, who fired a $50,000 hole-in-one at the Tamarisk course Saturday on the 174-yard second hole.

This was the third year for this tournament and each year the sponsors have had to come up with 50 grand for an ace. Lloyds of London insures against the ace and they boosted the premium to $18,800 this year. Another boost is in prospect, no doubt.

Mayer also won $1,050 for his 90-hole score of 349.

The win was a satisfying one for Palmer who is a man of great pride in his profession.

"The biggest shot in the arm I got," he said, "was when Joe Black (PGA tournament supervisor) told me I was 22nd on the money list last week at San Francisco. And that's a long way down the line so I knew I had to get to work."

He said his game is up to the level it was last year when he won the British Open.

Hunt Captures Senior Men's Skate Title

PETOSKEY, Mich. (UPI)—Dick Hunt failed last week to win the national title, but the 26-year-old Olympic skater from La Canada, Calif., derived some consolation Sunday by copping the senior men's crown at the two-day North American speed skating championships here.

Hunt led all the way, though he had to fight off a determined bid by three other skaters in the final event of his division—the five-mile race.

He managed a third place to give him the needed total of 16 points to clinch the championship. Earlier, he had won firsts in the two-mile and ¾-mile events.

Bunched in a second place tie were three skaters with 13 points each. They were Arnold Uhrlass, Elmhurst, N.Y., defending senior men's champion; Harry McDermott, Essexville, Mich., and Tom Augustitus, Detroit.

Bob Fenn of Flushing, N.Y., was fourth.

Jeanne Omelenchuk, three-time national women's champion and winner last weekend at St. Paul, Minn., overcame a bruised hip sustained in practice to grab her fourth senior women's title.

The 30-year-old Detroit art teacher won both the 880 and mile Sunday to finish with 20 points. Her chief competitor at St. Paul last week, Bev Gorton, was second again with 14 points. Last year, the University of Minnesota coed won the North American intermediate title.

Third place in the senior women's class went to Lu Whitney, Minneapolis, who had 11 points. Karen Kaper, Chicago, was fourth with nine points.

STEERS WINNING SLEDS

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI)— Larry McKillip of Saranac Lake, N.Y., climaxed a weekend of bobsled victories by driving a four-man crew to victory in the AAU Beaty Memorial Trophy race on Sunday. McKillip steered a winning two-man sled in the J. Herbert Stevens Memorial Trophy event on Saturday.

WINS 100-MILE RACE

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Britain's Sterling Moss drove a Cooper-Climax to a winning time of 74 minutes and 36.6 seconds in an international 100-mile auto race at Warwick Farm. Moss averaged 81.49 m.p.h.

Roberts Gets Inside Pole At Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) Glenn (Fireball) Roberts will have the inside pole position and Darel Dieringer the outside when the nation's fastest stock cars break away in the Daytona 500 here Feb. 18.

The spots were determined in two 25-lap qualifying races run Sunday.

Roberts, of Daytona Beach, driving a 1962 Pontiac, sped to victory in one race at an average speed of 156.044 miles per hour. Dieringer, of Charlotte, N. C., drove a 1961 Pontiac 155.086 m.p.h. to win the other.

Behind Roberts were Nelson Stacy of Daytona Beach, second, and Fred Lorenzon of Elmhurst, Ill., third, both in 1962 Fords.

Owls Start Month Long Grid Grind

HOUSTON (UPI)— Jess Neely, Rice University football coach, looks for 80 candidates, including 14 lettermen today when the Owls start the month-long spring football training season.

Coach Jess Neely, who starts his 23rd year at Rice, said he expects 56 sophomores, 12 seniors and 12 juniors.

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilites in harmony with the above moral principles.

A Thing Of Shame

We hear it said rather often that the preceding thirty years in America have been outstanding because they are years in which a great deal of "social legislation" has been passed. In article after article and speech after speech, we read and hear that Americans are "proud" of the welfare programs that have been adopted, "proud" of the fact that so many are being cared for by government, "proud" that large incomes are taxed progressively more than small incomes.

Is any of this occasion for pride?

True, Americans have much to be proud about. They have the highest living standards in the world. They have a mighty productive economy. They have a rich heritage.

But the alleged social gains made thru legislation are no cause for pride; rather, they are cause for alarm. We appear to be hopelessly committed to folly in trying to make life a delightful affair for those who produce the least, even if it takes every last dime of those who produce the most.

Were objective viewpoint to be obtained, say by some visitor from another planet, that viewpoint would surely pigeon hole us as a passel of idiots. How else could people be categorized who take pride in the increase in the number of welfare cases and who are equally delighted when they learn of some new incursion against the better and more productive element?

Yet, isn't this precisely what we are guilty of doing?

We support political candidates who promise a surcease from all risk thru doles, subsidies, gargantuan regulatory programs; and we banish to limbo private persons who have the temerity to suggest that individual effort may properly be rewarded individually.

We now have the "group" point of view. Whatever benefits the majority, we must have. If the "group" is short of dollars, what is wrong with taking dollars from individuals outside the group and redistributing them?

We have even seen it argued that government can do no wrong. It is claimed that government is not bound by moral laws because government is only a mechanism and therefore is neither good nor bad. While it is true that government is only a mechanism, it is equally true that the mechanism is always manned. And the mechamism, by the nature of its devising, is an instrument of force. Like a gun.

The men who man the mechanism make it work. And there is only one moving part, the trigger. That works. So the men who operate the mechanism pull the trigger. That is all they have to do.

The gun goes off. It always hurts someone.

If the gun is held by the "good guys" (our political friends), when it goes off it hurts our enemies and we rejoice. But when the gun is held by the "bad guys (our political enemies), its firing injures our friends.

Perhaps it is time for us to see that in politics there are neither friends nor enemies. There are only operators and victims.

But a majority of Americans seem to believe that by destroying the right to own property privately, they will some way acquire more property. Therefore, they have little objection to the use of the gun to injure people who own property. They seem committed to the fancy that once the present holders of property are ousted from their holdings, they, as the new property holders, will be able to hang on to what they have immorally wrested from others.

But it is not so.

The real problem is not a matter of WHO owns the property. The real problem is whether property can be privately owned as a sacred and inviolate right. If the present holders of property cannot be certain of keeping what they have earned, how can future holders of property be certain?

We should learn to take pride in our achievements, not in our failures. The entire government welfare program is a matter of great shame for every right-thinking person.

The Base Of Liberty

Does your freedom depend on your actions or upon the actions of others?

This is a profoundly important question.

Nearly always, men in the past have concluded that freedom was wholly dependent upon the actions of others. These men who so concluded have always aided in losing freedom for everyone. The history of the human race provides melancholy repetition of this fact.

But what is wrong with the idea? Surely, if some men exert force and power over you, they are in a position to deprive you of your freedom. And this is true.

But if we base our thinking concerning freedom on this point, then our first actions to win freedom for ourselves must consist of efforts whereby we limit the freedom of others. So we divide the world into two groups of people. These groups are: "the good guys" (us) and "the bad guys" (them.)

"Our side" is for freedom. "Their side" is aggressive, vicious, intent only on enslaving us. Therefore, we must enslave them so they don't enslave us or we cannot be free.

But speaking practically, freedom cannot exist even for us if our principal concern is to eliminate the freedom of others. The slave master . . . he who binds the will or the choices of others . . . is himself bound by his own device. The man who holds another man down so that the second man is not free, is himself deprived of freedom. He can do nothing constructive. He must nullify himself in order to nullify his opponent.

In other words, expending energy in promoting slavery, is a non-freedom expenditure of energy.

One cannot argue, of course, that there is no such thing as a threat from "others." Alas, it is true that such threats exist now and that they have always existed. But we are of the view that the existence of such threats resides firmly on a base of ignorance and fear.

Those "others" who threaten have taken the same short-sighted view of freedom that we have taken. With the same rationale they act to rob us of our freedom because they are both ignorant and fearful insofar as we are concerned.

This has been the history of the human race.

But there is a rift in the cloud which otherwise might overwhelm us. That rift is the fact that human beings HAVE made progress in rolling aside ignorance and in overcoming fear. It is knowedge, experience, wisdom . . . true education . . . which has opened a hole in the darkness. And men have made progress thru this opening in spite of the glowering overcast which perpetually has shadowed their efforts.

Ignorance and fear go together. The things we fear are almost always the things we do not fully understand. And there, partial knowledge is almost as bad as no knowledge at all. For it is also true that the things we understand only superficially are frequently the things we fear the most.

Take the early history of America. This nation arose in a hostile world. It was an armed camp, which all our neighbors maintained.

What was our own situation then? Militarily speaking we were a non-entity. We could never have defeated Britain in our first engagements with her during our Revolutionary War period, if Britain had concentrated her energies against us.

But we had made it clear in our Declaration of Independence that our aim was NOT to topple the British government, but rather to get the British government off our own backs. We did NOT want to harm Britain. We did not want to harm anyone. We wanted to go our own way and we did not propose to take sides within the armed camp which was Europe and the rest of the world.

In other words, we created an image of HARMLESSNESS. We were not bound to commit aggression. Rather, we were bound to mind our own business. And in spite of our pitifully weak position, militarily, this was something the other nations of the world respected. We convinced them that we would NOT hurt them. They might hurt each other but we would NOT be on either side of such injury.

Apparently, we have been forgetful of these early lessons in the real meaning of freedom.

TRUTH-FORUM

With Ed Delaney

Has the thinking of those in the Western countries changed? Are we becoming an unorganized society of mollycoddles without the determination to assert our rights as nations, where the Soviet Union is concerned. Is the West really in its decline with the communist East in the ascendant as Khrushchev and his sychophants constantly boast?

Some European editorial writers are expressing the view that we are on the downward scale in international morality. They note as a case in point, that pussyfooters are quite willing to compromise with Khrushchev in the matter of Berlin and on the entire question of Germany's reunification. Some of the conscious or unconscious aides to the enemy appear willing to accept de facto recognition of the illegal, brutally oppressive communist regime in East Germany as a sop to the expansionist designs of Khrushchev and the caliphs of the Kremlin. They have the wholly fallacious notion that having gained that point the Soviet will lessen its cold war against the West. A few of those who are ashamed to openly espouse a doctrine of "surrender" call this solution "disengagement." That is a weasel word meaning the same thing.

Sen. Paul Douglas, Democrat of Illinois, does not entirely agree with the President's policy of "negotiating" these vital issues. In an article given a German publication recently, Douglas states that we can only reach an honorable settlement over Berlin and Germany if our rights are secure before we enter into negotations and we should not merely "negotiate" over demands made on us by Khrushchev.

Douglas goes on record as saying that as the first step toward negotiations, the stone wall through the heart of Berlin be torn down. We should, said the senator, call for free elections in East Germany. We should press for the ultimate reunification in West Germany and the Soviet zone under a peace treaty, not a treaty with the sham puppet regime that is a front for Moscow. We must deal with a bully by standing up to him, if not he will run over us, notes Douglas.

He points out that we Americans and the Western Allies have a right to go into East Berlin. It is not a part of East Germany. The whole of Berlin is under the four-power agreement, signed by the Russians. They have no legal right to prevent us or any West Berliner from free access to the entire city. But on Aug. 13, 1961 the communists made a Red Ghetto of East Berlin and we "pussyfooted." We and our allies suffered an ignominious defeat.

For more than 20 years we have refused to recognize the seizure of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania by the communists, which are now colonies of the Soviet. When our "co-existence" and conciliatory ones both in and outside the Washington bureaus hint at recognition of the East German puppet regime, it is a complete reversal of our policy in regard to the captive nations for which we express such sympathy.

Khrushchev is playing for more than Berlin. For him, as for Lenin, there can be no communist conquest of Europe without the capture of Germany, the geographical and industrial heart of that continent.

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The second round of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee's hearings on the muzzling of military officers could easily turn out to be even more sensational than the first.

This phase of the investigation, exploring the Pentagon's troop information and education program, is going to raise the dynamite-loaded question of the fate of Americans taken prisoner during the Korean war who are still unaccounted for.

These "forgotten" heroes number about 375. They are carried on the Defense Department's official rolls as "missing" and "presumed to be dead."

But are they?

The Senate probers, headed by Senator John Stennis, D, Miss., and Senator Strom Thurmond, D, S.C., believe that at least some of these prisoners may still be alive.

They plan to air long-suppressed evidence, gathered during the Eisenhower Administration, that 200 of these prisoners were taken to Russia during the Korean war and may still be alive.

This unpublished information came from two widely different sources.

The first informant was a Chinese Communist prisoner of war. When questioned by U.S. counter-intelligence officials after his capture, he told of seeing 200 U.S. prisoners being taken from a Korean train and put aboard a Soviet train at the border town of Nan-Chou-Li.

This Korean - Soviet junction point is where the narrow-gauged Korean line connects with the wider Soviet line. The prisoners were observed crossing the platform that separated the two lines.

The Chinese Communist soldier, who spoke English, said he not only recognized the prisoners as being American but also heard them speak.

The second informant was Yuri Rastvorov, a Russian MVD intelligence officer who defected to the West in 1954 while employed in the Soviet embassy in Tokyo.

In revealing details of a major Soviet spy network in the Far East, Rastvorov told U.S. intelligence officials that other authorities in the Soviet embassy had reported that U.S. prisoners of war were taken to Russia from Korea.

Armed with this information, committee members are planning to make an extensive inquiry into these reports. They plan to call U.S. officers who had interrogated the Communist informants.

The senators want to know what action, if any, responsible officials of the Eisenhower Administration took to corroborate these reports, and whether our government made any formal protest to the Soviet Union.

TROOP INFORMATION — In their investigation of the Pentagon's troop information program, the senators will call as a witness Major William E. Mayer, a brilliant neuro - psychiatrist, who was a member of the task force responsible for the rehabilitation of American GIs brain-washed in Korea by the Chinese Reds.

In 1953, Army Intelligence rushed Major Mayer to Korea to study returning American prisoners who had cooperated with the enemy. He spent months with these men, probing their minds to learn why they had succumbed to Red brainwashing.

Major Mayer reached the conclusion that too many of the U.S. prisoners had lost the mental and physical toughness necessary to meet the Communist challenge.

He will be questioned about whether the present troop information and education programs are adequate to train U.S. soldiers to withstand Communist brain-washing in the future.

The Senate probers also plan to question some of the Pentagon's new panel of distinguished citizens. Secretary McNamara named the group to assess troop information programs.

NOTE: Since the Stennis subcommittee began its investigation, the State Department has dropped or abolished the jobs of four of the censors who made deletions in speeches of military officers.

UNREPORTED EVENTS — A veteran Southern congressman is being investigated by a third federal grand jury here. Impaneled on orders of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, the jury is probing charges of kickbacks and bribery in a Defense Department ship repair contract in New York. The first two grand juries refused to return an indictment. A number of other individuals are involved in this affair. . .Secretary of State Dean Rusk has warned U.S. Ambassador John Badeau in Cairo to watch for a move by top Egyptian officials to try to bring trumped-up charges against him similar to those brought against four French diplomats. . .Defense Department scientists are quietly developing what they call the "ruby gun." In experimental tests, this death-ray type gun has burned holes through two - inch thick steel plates. It uses short-bursts of radiation from an artificial ruby rod. Some scientists believe the gun can be developed into a "tank killer."

Today is Monday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of the year with 328 to follow in 1962.

The moon is in its new phase.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history:

In 1631, Roger Williams, seeking religious freedom in America, arrived at Salem, Mass.

In 1904, Russia and Japan severed diplomatic relations as the result of rival designs on Manchuria and Korea.

In 1937, a bitter controversy began as President Roosevelt sent a series of proposals to Congress to reorganize the federal judiciary.

In 1945, the U.S. 3rd Army broke through Germany's Siegfried Line.

A thought for the day: British philosopher David Hume said: 'The most lively thought is still inferior to the dullest sensation."

Bid For A Smile

Sue — So the heiress refused Jack?

Anne — Yes, it's too bad. He made a very fair proposition too.

Sue — What was it?

Anne — He promised to be a good husband, and offered to refund the money if he did not turn out exactly as represented.

If you must talk about your troubles, don't bore your friends with them — tell them to your enemies, who will be delighted to hear about them.

The Nation's Press

A HURDLE CLEARED
(Chicago Tribune)

The six Common Market countries have at last agreed on a common policy toward farmers and farm products — or, more accurately, they have agreed on most of a policy and have agreed to postpone agreement on one or two of the stickier questions.

The agreement is important for the Common Market peoples, and for Americans too. For western Europe, it demonstrates the ability to overcome a hurdle which, for a time, seemed insurmountable. The Treaty of Rome, which created the Common Market calls for a common agricultural policy, but only in the vaguest of terms; the details were to be worked out by the six countries, and for four years nothing was accomplished.

The cleavage has been mainly between France and the Netherlands, on the one hand, and West Germany on the other. In France and the Netherlands the average farm has increased in size and efficiency, and both countries have become exporters of farm products — notably wheat from France and dairy products from the Netherlands. In West Germany, on the other hand, the emphasis has been heavily on industry; farms remain small and the cost of farm production remains high.

The rapid reduction of industrial tariffs between Common Market countries has, in the eyes of French farmers — who are numerous and politically powerful — favored German manufacturers. Yet French farm exports still must face the high tariff wall which Germany maintains to protect its own farmers.

France brought matters to a head last fall by announcing that it would not agree to move into the second four-year stage on the Common Market timetable — which was to have been done on Jan. 1 — until the farm issue was settled. Until now, major decisions in the Common Market have had to be unanimous; under the second stage they will require 12 out of 17 votes, and France, with four votes, would lose its veto power. To many Frenchmen, no doubt, it seemed a matter of now or never.

Under the agreement, Germany will reduce its tariff by stages. Germany won the controversial right to suspend imports if they hurt too much; but the Common Market commission may modify or cancel this suspension. Germany must pay five-sixths of the cost of helping farmers who are hurt by the transition during the first year (nearly all of them of course, will be German), but in time other countries will pay larger shares into a fund for this purpose. The very touchy problem of new uniform price supports — if, how, and at what level they should be established was put off until some other time.

For the United States, the agreement has a good side and a questionable side. The good side is that it clears the way for reciprocal reductions of industrial tariffs between the Common Market and the United States.

The questionable side is how the agreement will affect our farm exports to the Common Market. Western Europe has been about the only place abroad where our farmers could sell their produce profitably. If the Common Market settles upon high support prices, they will stimulate European farmers to produce more and would probably mean high Common Market tariffs against our agricultural goods. They would also mean higher living costs for the European consumer.

If a low support price is set, it may hurt some European farmers, but it will help the European consumer and the American farmer.

The Common Market countries are booming today. In many areas there is a labor shortage and industry could easily provide work for farmers who might decide to give up farming. This, as American spokesmen have pointed out, would seem a sensible time to lower the supports and let European consumers benefit from low-cost American production. But we'll have trouble putting this argument over as long as we keep our own farm price supports high. Now is a good time to set the example we would like Europe to follow.

Suggests Hollywood Turn On The Gloom In Movies

By HENRY McLEMORE

If it's true that Hollywood is losing its place as the movie capital of the world to such cities as Rome, Paris, Athens and Calcutta, I have a suggestion as to how it could easily regain its former No. 1 spot.

This is the suggestion:

Stop making pictures that are enjoyable, and shoot nothing but films based on scripts tht emphasize starvation, displaced persons, murder, assault, mortgage foreclosures, and other bright and happy events.

I am a constant patron of foreign films. It's a sort of penance. Happy by nature, blessed with a happy life, I go to French and Italian films to settle me down To make me unhappy, in other words.

Exhibitors of foreign films shouldn't sell popcorn and soft drinks. They should peddle handkerchifs, tranquilizers, and a shoulder to sob on.

If I had a camera, a foreign name, and about two weeks of free time, I could produce a film that would bring me world acclaim. It would make me the sort of man movie critics would interview, and they'd go away saying I had depth, feeling, insight, compassion, and a grasp of the world.

The first movie I would shoot would be entitled, "The Day The Roof Fell In."

It would be about an empoverished Italian family of 10, all living in an abandoned basketball court. Two of the children have to sleep in the overhead baskets. There is nothing to eat except an old deflated basketball which Mama, using her crutch as a stirring spoon, heats and reheats every day.

Papa lives in a corner of the court (near the free throw line) on a mattress of mildewed corn shucks. He was badly wounded in World War II, is an opium smoker, and a convicted collaborator.

Six of the daughters are employed in a spaghetti shop where they are paid five cents a week, and are constantly hounded by young and handsome men whose intentions are far from honorable.

The two small children are forever falling from their beds in the baskets. They are a mess of casts, bruises and abrasions and the doctor who attends them is a counterfeiter who is hiding from the police.

The daughters all make had marriages, and their husbands all move into the old basketball court.

Papa is caught smoking opium and is sentenced to hang.

Mama, angry for once in her life, fractures the skull of a son-in - law (Rocco) with her crutch. The blow breaks the crutch and for the rest of the picture Mama has to crawl.

The weather is never nice.

The climax comes when the whole bunch of them are eating the last serving of old basketball, boiled and flavored with a few tired carrots.

Just as Mama is saying how important it is that they all stick together, the roof falls in.

There's a shattering roar. Flying bricks and cement rain down.

All save one. One of the babies in the basket escapes.

The picture ends with this toddler already taking secretive puffs of his Papa's opium pipe, walking out into the crowded street and wandering off toward a bus intersection, where it is obvious that he will be run over by a passing truck.

This is the sort of picture that brings fame to producers, directors and actors.

Hollywood has only to listen to me to become the cinema center of the world once again.

matter of fact

Ever been at an auction, wanted an object, and known that the price would be bid up too high for you to afford? Then a Dutch auction is the place for you. At such an auction the bids keep getting lower. An item is put up for sale at a certain figure and then offered successively at lower prices until it is sold.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Argentina's quick about-face in its "soft" stand on Cuba suggests that Argentine military leaders presented President Arturo Frondizi with an ultimatum couched in the toughest possible terms, including the threat of military revolt.

In any event, it is obvious that if Frondizi believed he had strong reasons why he should not join in the move ousting Communist Cuba from the family of American nations, then the Argentine military convinced him that there were better reasons why he should.

Earlier, he had remained unmoved despite a personal appeal from President Kennety in a meeting last December and another from U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson at a meeting in Grinidad.

Contributing to his change of heart may have been reports that the armed services heads had ordered their forces confined to barracks for possible emergency action.

At Punta Del Este, until almost the last moment before the vote, Secretary of State Dea Rusk had held the hope that Argentina might split off from the "soft six" and perhaps influence other hesitant Latin American nations to join the majority in expelling the Castro government from the Organization of American States.

Others of the six were Brazil, Bolivia, Mexico, Ecuador and Chile. They, along with Uruguay are the Latin American nations still maintaining relations with the Cuban regime.

Assuming that Frondizi has weathered another and perhaps the most dangerous threat to his regime, it is expected now that Argentina not only will vote to expel Cuba from the OAS but shortly also will move to break diplomatic relations.

Presenting the military ultimatum to Frondizi were Navy Secretary Vice Admiral Gaston C. Clement, Air Secretary Brig. Gen. Jorge Rojas Silveryra, Was Minister Brig. Gen. Rosendo M. Fraga and Army Commander Gen. Raul Alejendro Poggi.

The communique which emerged from the long, secret sessions made at least one face-saving gesture toward Frondizi.

"The abstention of Argentina (at Punta Del Este) did not mean," it said, "that Argentian was breaking its solidarity with the other nations who voted."

It said the Frondizi government 'supported the absolute incompatibility of the Marxist-Leninist regime with the inter-American system.... as a consequence, Argentina supports the necessity of expelling Cuba from the inter-American system, according to the procedures established in international law."

Still unclear was the ultimate fate of Argentine Foreign Minister Dr. Miguel Angel Carcano, who headed the Argentine delegation at Punta Del Este.

Frondizi sharply defended his foreign minister in a speech on Saturday and said Argentine action at Punta Del Este was taken according to written instructions.

Frondizi Takes Blame For 'Soft' Stand On Cuba

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Arturo Frondizi has taken full responsibility for Argentina's soft stand against Cuba that has aroused the anger of his nation's military leaders and led them to alert their troops for any eventuality.

Observers saw in Frondizi's stand a direct support and ratification of Argentine foreign policy which the military leaders have attacked vigorously. What effect it would have on the generals and admirals remained to be seen.

The feud between Frondizi and the chiefs of his armed forces has simmered for a week with the military demanding a break in diplomatic relations with Cuba and forcing the recall of Argentina's ambassador to Havana, Julio Amoedo.

Graham Received In South America

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI)—American Evangelist Billy Graham, pleasantly surprised by his reception at previous stops on his tour of South America, held a rally in Ecuador Saturday night for the first time.

Graham arrived here Friday from Colombia for religious rallies Saturday night and Sunday at the sports coliseum which seats 12,000 persons.

He said that his reception in Colombia and in Venezuela exceeded his fondest expectations.

Reds Accused Of Draft Violation

BERLIN (UPI) — An Allied spokesman yesterday warned the Soviets that the drafting of East Berlin men under Communist East Germany's new military conscription law would be a "grave violation" of postwar four-power agreements.

The spokesman said the agreements between the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union specifically prohibited the raising or stationing of German troops in Berlin.

FOR LIFETIME

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—It's "old fashioned" to believe that false teeth are inevitable, the president of the Iowa Dental Association said Sunday.

"A person's teeth should last a lifetime," Dr. C. F. Carstensen said.

Homeowner's Policy Does Work of Four

Modern fire insurance protection—one Homeowner's Policy to do 4 different jobs—it covers: (1) Your home (2) Its contents (3) Legal liability (4) Theft losses too! Actually costs less than the 4 separate policies you would need to get similar protection. Ask about it soon.

Gen. Walker Says 'Thunder On Right' Will Elect Him

AUSTIN (UPI) — Ultra-conservative former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker said Saturday that "thunder on the right" will elect him governor of Texas on the sin le plank of anti-communism.

He refused to say whether he believes a vote against him will be a vote for communism.

Walker, 52, who resigned from the Army last Nov. 2 after an uproar over his "pro-blue" anti-Communist program for troops of the 24th Division in Germany, filed as a Democratic candidate for governor Friday.

He met newsmen Saturday in his first news conference as a political candidate and assailed the "no win policy" of the federal government.

Walker said the controversial John Birch Society, to which he belongs, "compliments the United States military forces in their efforts to expose the enemy and indoctrinate troops adequately in combatting an enemy like communism."

Rise In Business In Prospect For Texas During 1962

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas business rose 6 per cent in 1961 over 1960 levels, and more of the same is in prospect for 1962, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

The 1961 index of all Texas business was 239 compared with 1960's 226 points of the base years, 1947-49.

"The overall outlook for the state in 1962 will be good," statistician Francis B. May said.

"The rate of improvement will approximate the national increase. The Texas economy is more closely tied to the national growth rate now than it was when oil output was increasing at a 5 per cent to 6 per cent annual rate," May said.

He added that "the oil glut is likely to continue."

Business areas showing increases were electric power consumption, dp 4.7 per cent in 1961; industrial power consumption, up 2.9 per cent; gasoline demand, up 1.33 per cnt, and personal income, up 2.5 per cent.

Texans' personal income soared to $18.9 billion for the year, but the population increased 2.2 per cent so that a per capita income increased would be slight if any, May said.

Total retail sales in Texas were equal to the previous year, even though durable goods sales rose 1 per cent.

December business showed rises in total retail sales, urban building permits, and crude oil production from November. Otherwise, the state's business showed declines in December from the previous month.

Total business activity in December was down 6 per cent from November, and freight carloadloadings, bank debits, life insurance sales, urban building permits, and durable goods sales showed substantial declines for the month.

Much of the 1961 business picture was dominated by the oil industry, May said.

For 1961, demand for residual fuel oil was 3.7 per cent below 1960, but distillate fuel oil and kerosene were up.

May said the Texas production is necessarily tied to national conditions. Domestic output of crude oil rose only 2.2 per cent in 1961, May pointed out, and crude imports rose 2.7 per cent for the same period.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.
