Senate Committee Investigating Lobbies Learns Of Attack On Tariff Expert

POTTERY MEN OPPOSE KOCH, INQUIRY FINDS

Veteran Lobbyist Grilled By Senators Seeking Tariff 'Interference'

BIG SALARIES BARED

Committee Upholds Action Of Expert in Advising Senator King

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (UP)—The special senate committee which began an investigation of lobbies today developed that one part of the extensive tariff lobby has carried its operations beyond congress to the U. S. tariff commission in its attempt to secure favorable legislation.

The special committee, meeting in the senate office building room where the Teapot Dome investigation was held, devoted a whole day to tracing all angles of protests made to the commission by pottery representatives against Frederick L. Koch, commission pottery expert who testified efforts had been made to have him removed from his job.

Member Protested

William K. Burgess, member of the commission from 1921 to 1925, and representative of pottery interests from 1894 to that period and since, told how he protested to Chairman Thomas O. Marvin of the commission against Koch's activities at senate finance committee tariff sessions but said he did not ask that he be removed.

During the trailing of this alleged attempt to influence the tariff commission, sought from several witnesses, it developed the present chairman represented the Home Market club of Boston, a protective tariff organization, here before congress in 1913.

Burgess, too, a former member of the commission, revealed himself as perhaps the veteran lobbyist now operating before congress, having come here first when Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, the youngest member of the investigating committee, was a youth of 13 in short pants.

Salaries Revealed

Burgess, who has been concerned with every tariff bill since 1894, revealed that he receives $7,500 from the U. S. Pottery association, and later said he gets $2,400 a year from the electrical industry and $1,800 a year from the woolen industry. He declined first to disclose his salary as representative of the two latter industries, but

Drug Store Hijackers Rob Safe Of $75, Serve Customer, Then Depart

What police believe to have been the height of nonchalance was attained Tuesday night when two unmasked bandits held up the Wilford-Harrison drug store No. 2, Eleventh and Grace streets, obtaining about $75.

The two young men, both well dressed, sauntered into the store just as T. R. Allen, prescription clerk, Paul Howell and another employe, were preparing to close up for the night. They slowly pulled out guns and ordered Allen to open the safe. They rifled the safe and cash register, carefully separating and leaving the checks and taking only the cash. As they were about their work, a customer unsuspectingly walked into the store.

The two hijackers appeared entirely at ease. One of them courteously asked the customer what he would have and sold him a package of cigarets, thanking him for the sale. When the customer had departed, the bandit casually pocketed the 15 cents for the sale and the two of them left the dumfounded clerks standing in the store. When the employes had recovered from the shock, they telephoned police headquarters, but the hijackers had had sufficient time to leave in an automobile.

Police were given little to work on in tracing the hijackers except their appearance, no description of their car having been obtained. The clarks were not sure that the two drove off in a car, stating only that they "heard a car leave" after the bandits left the store.

GARNER URGES CUT IN TAXES

$300,000,000 Slash Aim of Texas Solon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (UP)—A tax cut of $300,000,000 by the regular session of congress in December was advocated today by Representative John N. Garner, Democratic floor leader and ranking Democratic member of the house ways and means committee.

"Taxes could be cut even $350,000,000 without running the government into a deficit," Garner said. "I am going to recommend to the committee when the regular session starts that taxes be reduced so the public in general will benefit."

Garner pointed out that treasury statistics showed the government had a deficit of $7,442,061 from July 1 to Oct. 12, but added this amount was negligent when it was considered that during the same period last year the deficit was $238,757,216.

"Every indicator at present reveals a good sized tax cut is possible this year," he continued. "Last year I recommended a $400,000,000 reduction, but instead the policy seems to be to reduce taxes a little every session so congress will reap the polical benefits from the move."

STATE OPENS TESTIMONY IN ATTACK TRIAL

Jury Completed After Two Attorneys Pay Fines for Fisticuffing

ALLREDS IN BATTLE

Boy Escort of Girl Tells of Events Preceding Alleged Assault

Special to The Record News

PAMPA, Texas, Oct. 15.—After considerable gyrations, during which the court fight turned into a fist fight among opposing attorneys, a jury was completed and introduction of state testimony started late today in the assault trial of Tom C. Johnson, accused of attacking a Chillicothe girl.

The difference among the attorneys ended this morning when W. W. Lewright, special private prosecutor, and Raymond Allred, witness in the case, paid fines of $10 each assessed by the court as the climax of an altercation which involved Ben P. Allred, brother of Raymond Allred and former district attorney of Wichita Falls, who is here aligned with the defense counsel.

Altercation Stirs Court

The altercation occurred in a night session of the court last night. A remark by Ben Allred, it was said, angered Lewright, and Allred was struck on the jaw. Raymond Allred then joined the fracas, spectators said, and Lewright was hit under the left eye.

The court was thrown in a turmoil, and Raymond Allred and Lewright immediately were fined $25 each by the presiding judge. The fines, however, were reduced this morning, when the attorneys announced they had settled their differences.

The first state witness today was Naylor Pogue, who said he and Earl Lee Elliott were the escorts of two young Chillicothe girls who allege they were attacked at Shamrock on the night of March 17 last by Johnson. Wheeler county deputy sheriff, and W. W. Davis, former Shamrock deputy constable.

Arrested in Shamrock

He said they were en route from Chillicothe to McLean when they were arrested in Shamrock by Johnson and Davis. A fight ensued, he said. Later, he continued, he and the three others were fined for vagrancy, an additional charge of reckless driving being filed against Elliott. The boys, he said, paid the girls' fines and, not having enough money, were remanded to jail.

It was after the girls were released that the alleged attack is said to have occurred.

State testimony will be continued Wednesday. Johnson formerly was a Wichita county deputy sheriff.

Nocona Suspect Removed From Jail at Montague

One of Two Men Charged With Murder of Ed Powell Taken To Denton as Citizens' Feeling Rises

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, Texas, Oct. 15.—As scores of his former friends left the bier of Ed Powell, slain Nocona city marshal, after funeral rites this afternoon, their attention was directed to a rumor of possible mob violence being secretly planned for one or both of the men held in the county jail at Montague under murder charges.

Out of the welter of rumors in circulation throughout the town, excited to a high pitch over the violent death of its second city marshal in the last nine months, came official confirmation that possible mob violence had been anticipated on the part of county authorities, and that one of the men being held has been spirited away from the jail at Montague.

Death Follows Shooting

Powell died at 10:20 a. m. today from a gunshot wound sustained last Saturday in a scuffle which ensued when he attempted to arrest Claud Dix. Dix was arrested and charged with assault with intent to murder. Today, with Powell's death, the charge was changed to one of murder.

A second arrest was made today, when Walter Reagan was taken in custody, after Powell's death, and charged with murder.

Reagan, according to reliable advices, is the prisoner who has been taken from the Montague jail. Jail authorities there Tuesday night admitted he was not within the enclosure.

QUESTIONS EVADED

Theater Man's Witness Reluctant to Answer Prosecutor's Quiz

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 15. (AP)—The state rested today in its prosecution of a statutory charge against Alexander Pantages, theater multi-millionaire, then, after cross-examination, ordered arrest of Garland Biffle, the first witness for the defense, on a charge of perjury.

Defense Attorney Joseph Ford, during a 30-minute examination of Biffle, law book salesman and attorney, drew from the witness statements contradicting part of the testimony of Pantages' accuser, 17-year-old Eunice Pringle.

Fitts Questions Biffle

District Attorney Buron Fitts, undertaking the cross-examination, soon had before him a long list of neutral answers by Biffle to question relating to the young dancer's appearance and that of her companion, Nicholas Duneav on Aug. 9, the day of the alleged attack in Pantages' private offices here.

Attorney Ford had plunged into the circumstances preceding the alleged attack.

Q—About 3:30 p. m. Aug. 9, you went to the Pantages' theater building on business and saw Eunice Pringle in the lobby, did you not?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—You saw a man with her, did you not?

A—Yes, sir.

Mme. Curie, Discoverer of Radium, Arrives as Guest of Owen D. Young

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (US)—A fragile little old lady who, at the cost of her health, has bestowed on humanity one of its greatest blessings, arrived in New York today.

She was Madame Marie Curie, co-discoverer with her husband, Pierre, of radium. But she walked from the gangplank of the French liner Ile de France, her hand tucked in the arm of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, as shy and timid as any school girl. Behind her walked Owen D. Young, author of the Young reparations plan, whose guest she will be in the course of her visit to the United States.

She gave out a statement, expressing her happiness at being again in the United States. It was written for her by a friend, Van Ness Harward, for Mme. Curie wanted only rest.

For one thing, she is not a good sailor. For another radium is dangerous stuff and it has affected her to the extent that she cannot shake hands with anyone without feeling intense pain. Radium eats live tissue as well as dead, and Mme. Curie has been handling radium since she and her husband discovered it in 1898.

Q—Did you not see Eunice Pringle and Nicholas Duneav go near or about the foot of the stairway in the lobby and hear her say: "If he doesn't place my act he will always be sorry" and Duneav replied: "Don't get cold feet" and she said "I won't."

A—Yes, sir.

Q—That was said and done?

A—Yes, sir.

Cross-Examination

The defense surrendered the witness to the state.

Q—How was Duneav dressed?

A—I don't know.

Q—Have a shirt on?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Just where did you see them?

A—Near the elevator.

Q—But you did not see Duneav face to face?

A—No.

Q—Then how did you see his face?

A.—When he was walking toward the stairway.

Q.—Then his face was away from you?

A—No. I saw him walking so that he was sideways to me.

Q—Now in your recollection wasn't there a girl or woman standing in the vicinity of the elevator.

A.—I don't recall her.

Q.—Wasn't there a woman behind Miss Pringle and Duneav?

A—I don't remember any.

Positions Charted

Fitts ordered Biffle to mark on a chart where the couple was standing. The witness then testified they walked up the stairway to a mezzanine landing talking to each other.

Q.—What color stockings did Eunice have on?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—What color shoes?

A—I don't know.

Q.—Now whom did you talk to first about this?

A.—Mr. Ford (the answer was made reluctantly).

Q—Did he call you up or did you go to see him.

A.—I went to see him.

Biffle admitted he knew the case was under investigation at the time of his visit to Ford Aug. 17 during Pantages preliminary examination.

Q.—But you never came to the district attorney nor the police nor any other law enforcing agency with this evidence?

A.—No.

Biffle testified the alleged conversation between the couple was in an ordinary tone of voice and that he was standing about eight feet away when it occurred. He said he first recognized the pair from photographs but did not see them in person until a week ago.

Q.—You are absolutely positive that Eunice Pringle walked up those stairs?

A.—Yes sir.

A recess was taken as the answer was made.

Texas Won't Delay Action on Boundary

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—Attorney General R. L. Bobbitt said today Texas would not join Oklahoma in asking the United States supreme court to defer action on the report of its commission appointed to fix the boundary between Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

The attorney general said that some time ago he, Governor Moody and the chairman of the boundary committee of the Texas legislature conferred and decided to recommend that the supreme court go ahead with its scheduled action on the commission's report.

Relief Society Aids Prisoner's Family

Little Group Is Given Upward Boost

"Why doesn't daddy come home?"

Little Brother, a dimpled cherub who is so fat that he almost waddles, wears a worried expression as he queries about the nice daddy who has always come in every night until lately. Daddy used to throw him up over his head and "play horsie" and tell him stories. Big Sister, the oldest of the four children, doesn't ask so often, because she can tell from mother's expression that something is wrong, but she doesn't know that daddy is in jail.

It isn't a mere "sob story" or invention of an enthusiastic welfare worker and a gullible reporter. It's a true happening—one that was revealed only this week, when Mrs. Effie McHam, Family Relief secretary, visited the little two-room house in which the family lives.

The young mother, holding her five-weeks-old infant in her arms, was sobbing when Mrs. McHam made her unexpected entrance. Another child tugged at her skirt and whimpered, "I wanna piece of bread!"

Through the Family Relief society, the family is now receiving groceries, the father is being given all the help possible, and kindly advice and sympathy is keeping up the morale of the mother. "I don't know of any more typical case of the work the Family Relief has done," says Mrs. Charles R. Hartsook, president of the board. "Throughout its entire existence, it has given encouragement and sympathy as well as material aid."

New Mexico's Piano Playing Senator Proves to Be First Rate Statesman

By FRASER EDWARDS

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—What would you do if somebody called you a piano player?

Well, different people have different reactions to such things. For instance, Ignace Paderewski would bow politely and admit the soft impeachment. But Ignace was only premier of Poland once and never was a candidate for senator in New Mexico.

Most any candidate for senator in New Mexico would sock somebody on the nose if that somebody called him a piano player. But Bronson Murray Cutting, junior senator from New Mexico, was made a candidate for senator because somebody did call him a piano player.

No Desire to "Sock"

Of course, Bronson was not a candidate for senator from New Mexico at the time he was called a piano player or things might have been different. But he hasn't the least desire to sock anybody on the nose for calling him a piano player. On the contrary, he is ever so grateful.

This turning point in the life of Bronson Cutting occurred in February, 1928. Bronson was in the senate at the time, having been appointed by Gov. Dick Dillon to succeed the late Senator Andrieus Aristieus Jones. But Bronson was not impressed and was all set to get back to the even tenor of his ways.

James Alexander Reed, then a senator from Missouri, served as the deus de machina. As candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Jim stopped off in Albuquerque to make a speech. In the course of his remarks the saw-voiced raven of the caw, who can make things sound twice as terrible as they are, rasped out:

"Why do you want to send a piano player with a bag of gold to the senate?"

Editor Speaks Up

Horrified by the thought of the political effect such a stigma would have on the candidacy of his chief, Dana Johnson, editor of Cutting's Santa Fe New Mexican, with more loyalty than discretion, arose in the audience and yelled:

"You wouldn't say that to his face!"

"I'd say it any place in the world," croaked Jim in that awful voice that sometimes sounds like a rat-tailed file being pulled over a rusty pipe.

"Throw him out," yelled the crowd.

"No; let him stay," begged Jim with upraised hand. "He'll only lower the average a little."

Well, that decided Bronson. He'd show 'em what a piano player could do in the senate. So he declared himself and got himself the handsomest majority ever given a piano playing candidate for the senate, or any other kind, in the history of New MDexico.

So far be it from Bronson to bear any ill-will for his dirty crack. On the contrary, he is most appreciative. In fact he said:

"It's a pity that Jim Reed quit the senate—we need him."

Bronson Is Modest

Bronson is too modest to lay any claim to being a piano player. But he admits that he would like to be. He can strike a few chords—enough for a barber shop quartet—but beyond that he is not so hot.

He admits the bag of gold, however. He got it like the boy got the itch. It was "gived" to him.

Bronson is probably the strangest senatorial product ever produced in New Mexico. One just ordinarily expects a New Mexican senator to have a sweeping mustache like Albert Fall, a few notches on his gun and hair filled with alkali dust and cactus spines.

But Bronson is a product of the effete East. He was entered in Groton school and graduated with honors from Harvard. He went to New Mexico because he wanted to and now he is wedded to the West. However, he is just passed 41 and probably the most eligible bachelor in the senate.

Bronson is not what one might call an orator. But in spite of this he not only held the attention of the senate, but of the press gallery last week when he upheld the best American traditions for freedom of speech and freedom of thought and forced the repeal of a censorship law on obscene and seditious literature.

Moreover, Bronson does not care a rap whether he is re-elected or not. And that stamps him as a statesman.

Negro Seriously Cut in Row With Woman Over Dime

Aggravated assault charges were filed Tuesday afternoon against Bualar Ross, negress, accused of using a 22-inch butcher knife against Gus Reeves, 60-year-old negro man, after a dispute over a dime early Tuesday morning. The charges were filed by L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, after the woman made a statement declaring she had used the knife after Reeves had started toward her with a drawn pocket blade of his own. The aged negro was cut across the head and face, and his left hand, with which he had attempted to grasp the butcher knife, was almost severed. He is under treatment at the Wichita General hospital. The argument grew out of Reeves' anger when the woman refused to repay a 10-cent debt, Mr. Abernathy was informed.

did so when Chairman Caraway reminded him that he could be cited for contempt if he refused to answer. He also revealed he worked for toy, greeting card, velveteen and other interests.

Burgess' particular objection to Koch was that the tariff commission expert had passed "notes" to Senator King, Democrat, Utah, during senate finance committee sessions which Burgess said was to prejudice the case of the American pottery interests in favor of foreign pottery interests.

Suggestions Proper

Members of the committee and Marvin agreed that it was perfectly proper, in fact the duty of the commission experts, to make suggestions to senators to get all the facts.

Burgess objected further to Koch because of his close personal friendship, which the tariff expert admitted, with David Walker, director of the largest Japanese pottery importing concern. This friendship was cited in a letter sent to President Hoover by H. R. Wyllie, Huntington, W. Va., china manufacturer, who charged that Koch was prejudiced in favor of pottery importers. The letter was turned over to the tariff commission by the White House. Koch insisted his friendship with Walker was purely personal.

Other witnesses included Commissioner Edgar B. Brossard, who testified briefly of being in Marvin's office when Burgess and his group brought their protest, and Karl Laugenbeck, predecessor of Koch as pottery expert, who related how he had been summarily dismissed. He explained he never did inquire why.

The committee will turn tomorrow to the sugar lobby, and for Thursday has called Charles L. Eyanson, official of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association, who was employed by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, as secretary and participated in executive sessions of the finance committee. Representatives of various interests were present at the session today.

Court Citation in Suit Tried Here 14 Years Ago Returned to County

Back from 14 years of aimless traveling across the continent and back again in the United States mails, an age-yellowed legal citation, filed in the district clerk's office here in 1915, mystified local officials Tuesday morning when it re-appeared at the courthouse, directed only by a slip of paper stamped Los Angeles and bearing the brief explanation: "Found loose in the mails."

Signatures and dates on the document indicated that it was placed in the files here on Dec. 8, 1915. How it got out again and found its way, undirected and without even an envelope, into the mails was as great a source of wonderment to the district clerk's office as the means through which it came back after 14 years of travel to the box from which it was taken. The old paper, received here by Miss Nina McDowell, deputy district clerk, is styled: Schloss Brothers and Company vs Davis and Schnell, and is concerned with the efforts to collect an alleged debt for $686.84. It bears the signature of A. F. Kerr, former district clerk, and of G. A. Hawkins, one time sheriff here.

AIRPORT FIRM RAISES STOCK

$37,480 to Go Into New Municipal Field

A complete tentative plan for extensive permanent improvements at the Municipal airport was presented to the stockholders of the Wichita Falls Airport company, Inc., at a meeting in the directors' room of the City National Bank building at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The plan is the first complete outline of improvements for the port to have been made.

In order to provide the funds necessary for the proposed improvements, the company voted to increase its capital from $25,000 to $75,000, trebling the present stock, it was announced by C. W. Cahoon, president of the company.

An estimate of the cost of the improvements, compiled by F. M. Rugely, city engineer, totaled $37,480, the expense of hard surfacing the road from the Burkburnett highway to the field having been eliminated by the announcement that the county had advertised for bids for the work.

The list of improvements includes an administration building, with offices for all concerns interested in the port, a waiting room, ticket office, telegraph office, rest rooms, pilots' rooms and other space; a well and pumping equipment; gas lines; a septic tank and disposal field; gas and oil pumps and tanks; fencing; grading of 200,700 square yards of runways; oiling of 39,100 square yards of the ways; a concrete circle for the center of the landing field; a concrete taxi strip and apron, to extend 600 feet north and 200 feet east from the hangar at a distance of 100 feet from the administration building; a concrete floor in the hangar; and several minor improvements.

Specifications for the administration building were placed in the hands of an architect immediately following the meeting.

A finance committee, with Charles P. McCaha as chairman, was named to include L. H. Cullum and Charles I. Francis. This group will begin the work of increasing the stock of the company at once, it was announced.

Only Thing That Relieves Headache

More than one headache has been caused, not by the stomach or eyes, but by congestion in the breathing passages.

Here's a good way to prove the truth of this statement—just go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes. It may seem queer that a few little cigarettes could help you, but just notice how the first few puffs you inhale clears out and opens up the breathing passages. Mr. C. T. of Merrimac, W. Va., says Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes were the only thing that relieved his headache, and he's not the only one.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are the formula of a famous specialist, who discovered a way of preparing in cigarette form medical herbs, berries and flowers, known the world over for their beneficial effects on the irritated membrances of the nose. Fine, too, to relieve spasms of asthma. Harmless for everyone. At all druggists.

Court Hears Testimony For $6,924 Compensation

Testimony in a $6,924 compensation suit brought by L. M. Owens against the American Employers Insurance company, begun before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Tuesday, will probably be completed early Wednesday, according to attorneys' estimates. The case is expected to go to the jury early in the afternoon.

The plaintiff, a resident of Corsicana in Navarro county, is asking compensation following an accident alleged to have occurred in April, 1928, while he was in the employ of the Harry Hines Oil company in Wichita county. He claims that total and permanent injuries resulted when he was struck on the right hip by a heavy derrick sill being moved from a lease.

The fall ceremonial of Hope chapter, Order of DeMolay, will be held in the auditorium of Maskat temple, atop the City National bank building, at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday night, it was announced Tuesday by Joe Gugenheim, scribe. A class of nine candidates will receive the initiatory degree of the order.

Election of the master, senior and junior councilors and the scribe will follow the ceremonial. The councilors hold office for a period of three months and the scribe for a term of one year. Several medals for excellence in DeMolay work and activities will be presented by a master Mason.

An honor seldom conferred upon a DeMolay will be given to Joe Gugenheim, scribe of the chapter, when he is presented with a medal for representative DeMolays. Attendance medals will be presented to Rowland Dills and to Mr. Gugenheim and one for excellence in ritualism to Bob Crocker, present councilor.

A large delegation of DeMolays from the Duncan, Okla., chapter, newly organized, will be present to witness the degree work here on Wednesday night, according to a message received by Mr. Gugenheim Tuesday. The letter stated that members of the new chapter would visit here in order to obtain ideas for putting on their degrees.

All visiting DeMolays in good standing and all master Masons were urged to attend the ceremonial.

Airport Notes

Among the week-end visitors at the Municipal airport were Lieut. C. T. Johnson and Lieut. Fred Clary, both of Galveston, who landed late Friday evening in their U. S. army Curtiss-Falcon D12 combat plane for a few days visit with friends here. The two were from Fort Crockett on the gulf. Their ship, a fighting plane, is one of the fastest in the army and is equipped with six guns, two for firing through the propeller, two pointing to the rear and two downward. The officers took off for the return trip Monday morning, promising to fly back when the opening of the Municipal port is held.

The Safeway and Braniff airlines reported a total of 30 passengers Tuesday. On both morning and afternoon schedules the Braniff ships carried capacity loads. Seventeen passengers were in transit through the Municipal port Tuesday morning, three having the boarded the ships here. In the afternoon, 13 passengers were in transit, two having embarked at the port.

A possibility that Wichita Falls may find itself on a direct air mail route was indicated Tuesday with the announcement that Erle P. Halliburton, president of the Southwest Air Fast Express, and William Gibbs McAdoo, chairman of Southern Sky lines, had sent a message to Postmaster General Walter E. Brown offering to carry mail at the rate of two cents a letter or 60 cents a pound. The offer, if accepted, would bring air mail service to Wichita Falls via the Safeway lines, whose planes land from three different points each day at the Municipal airport. It was pointed out that the offer would reduce the present rate of five cents an ounce to two cents an ounce, making all first-class mail eligible for air delivery; give air mail service to all points on commercial air lines; and would place all commercial air lines on a profitable foundation, assuring the sound future of commercial aviation. Wichita Falls would benefit from each of these advantages.

Wichita Falls Illustrator Visits Parents on Way to New Ranch Home

Leslie Turner, Wichita Falls artist who has won national recognition as an illustrator during the past six years, is visiting his mother, Mrs. W. F. Turner, and completing plans for a move onto the Colorado sheep ranch which is to claim a part of his attention during the coming few years. Mr. and Mrs. Turner, with their two small daughters, recently left their New York home, planning to spend most of the winter in Texas before launching into the development of the new ranch headquarters.

Mr. Turner, who spent his boyhood and youth in Wichita Falls, has been working in a New York studio since 1923. His drawings in the Saturday Evening Post, the Red Book, and other national periodicals have won a widespread recognition and placed him among the leading illustrators of the nation. Since his arrival in Wichita Falls he has completed a series of Red Book drawings for a manuscript which followed him here.

Although he is interested in sheep ranching for its own sake, Mr. Turner expects to make his workshop one of the most important rooms in his ranch home, he has explained, going on with his illustrating in connection with the new activities.

Oil Man Pays Cult's Ritual Book Expense

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15. (UP)—Orders transmitted from the solar system through the medium of two high priestesses of "The Royal Arms of the Great Eleven," caused Clifford J. Dabney, wealthy oil man, to pay the women $27,800 to aid in completion of a ritual book, he testified at their preliminary hearing on grand theft charges today.

The priestesses whom Dabney charged with obtaining the money under misrepresentation were Mrs. May Otis Blackburn and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Angeline Welland.

Negro Couple Robs Man of $1 in Holdup

Hijacking was resumed momentarily, though on a small scale, about 8 o'clock Tuesday night when a negro man and woman held up F. Southlove, operator of the Mission cafe, near the corner of Twelfth street and Scott avenue and took his purse which contained a one dollar bill.

Mr. Southlove hurried to his home, 1706 Travis street, and telephoned police. He told them that the woman had held a knife at him and the man had pointed a small pearl-handled pistol at him, demanding his pocketbook. They ran following the holdup, he said, and tossed the empty purse away in a nearby alley. He recovered the pocketbook. He had about 75 cents in small change in his pocket.

Police were sent to search the neighborhood. They arrested a negro woman suspect and lodged her in the city jail, pending investigation Wednesday morning.

Waitt, Fort Bliss soldier who slew his wife and her lover with an axe when he found the two together in his home several weeks ago. He was tried for the death of his wife.

Selection of the jury took a day and a half, the box being filled at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Testimony was complete at 4:10 p. m. The jury was given its choice of three verdicts—not guilty by reason of insanity; guilty of first degree murder; or guilty of unpremeditated murder.

Miami Suburbs Feel Brunt of River Floods

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15. (AP)—Hialeah and Country Club Estates, Miami suburbs flooded during recent days by waters draining through canals and the Miami river from the rain-soaked everglades, have felt the peak of the flood, officials here said tonight.

Report that the level of the waters had fluctuated less than an inch in the last 18 hours was made by officials tonight. This was attributed to tides from the Atlantic ocean to which the river and canals are tributary.

Officials said "the worst is over."

MAD ELEPHANT WAITS DOOM

Circus Brute's Execution Delayed by Rage

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Oct. 15. (AP)—Isolated from the crowds he had been so accustomed of seeing, Black Diamond, nine-ton circus elephant, today remained trussed in his death cell—a circus freight car—awaiting a spell of madness to subside that he might be taken out and executed.

The massive bull elephant's execution was ordered after he caught Mrs. Eva Donahoe of Kerens, Texas, in his trunk and whipped her to death after injuring a former trainer during a street parade at Corsicana Saturday.

Owners of the beast today refused an offer of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce to defray expenses in having Black Diamond executed in the most humane way possible, that of drowning.

The chamber's plan was to have the animal's car switched to the wharves, to tie 30 tons of lead to his feet and to have two tugs drag him into the bay.

Circus officials, however, feared the beast had not come out from under his jungle madness sufficient to permit trainers and attendants to unchain him. They said it was possible that Black Diamond would be executed while the circus is showing at Kenedy, 90 miles north of here.

CIRCUS REFUSES TO SEND BEAST HERE

The efforts of Dr. R. H. Graham of the Wichita Falls Lions club to obtain for the Municipal zoo the huge elephant, Black Diamond, which went mad last Saturday and killed a woman and injured a man, were frustrated Tuesday when officials of the Al G. Barnes circus notified Doctor Graham that the execution would proceed as scheduled. Doctor Graham made no statement as to the reason for the refusal of his request. He had hoped to obtain the animal for the zoo, where it could be placed in a stockade so that would be harmless. His value would approach $10,000, the doctor said. Members of the city council and officials of the park department Tuesday stated they would oppose all efforts to bring the beast here.

Survivor of Gun Battle Liberated

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Oct. 15. (AP)—A. J. Wimberley, 60, sole survivor of a pistol battle Friday in which two were killed and one wounded, was released on bonds of $9,000 today.

One bond of $7,500 covered a charge of murder in connection with the death of Riley W. Plant, who was under indictment for an alleged criminal attack on Wimberley's daughter. A second bond of $1,500 covered a charge of assault with intent to murder in connection with the wounding of M. B. Cochran of Cotulla.

Plant and Cochran were in a car and were backing away from the courthouse on the public square when Wimberley rounded the corner and the fight started.

Helmuth Herbald, truck driver, was passing as the shooting started. He was shot in the head by a stray bullet and died instantly.

M. B. Gault, Texas state ranger, examined the bullet taken from Herbald's head and announced it was not from Wimberley's pistol. Gault said it was from a 38-caliber gun similar to Plant's. No charges were pending in Herbald's death.

No Harm in Pure Cascara

Whenever a coated tongue, bad breath, disordered stomach or general "run-down" feeling tell you Nature needs a little help in promoting normal elimination you can take a Cascaret without any fear of unpleasant after effects. Cascarets are a pure vegetable product, made from Cascara Sagrada, a substance which unquestionable authorities say actually strengthens the bowel muscles.

That's why you can take these pleasant-tasting tablets as often as you please—and give them freely to children or old folks. They are not habit-forming, like so many laxatives; they make it unnecessary to use violent purgatives that upset the system and soon call for more.

Cascarets are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with licorice; you simply eat them like candy. Then sleep right on while they are preparing your intestinal tract for a thorough cleansing in the morning. Cascarets never cause discomfort or that nauseous feeling usually associated with laxatives.

The next time you have that bilious, headachy, dejected feeling that comes from a disordered stomach—or for any reason you suspect liver and bowels are not functioning just right—take a candy Cascaret.

THERE'S no denying an "extra something" to Chesterfield.

Call it better tobacco, or higher standards of manufacture . . . more skilful balance, or more expert blending . . . the fact remains that in Chesterfield you get a smoother shading of flavor, a richer tobacco character, a spicier aroma—without one hint of harshness or "heaviness."

Taste is what counts, in any cigarette; and in Chesterfield it's Protection of Juveniles Stressed by Reagan P.-T. A.

A juvenile protection program was the feature of the meeting of Reagan Junior High school P.-T. A. at the school Tuesday afternoon with approximately 125 members present.

Mrs. John M. Fox, president, was in the chair during the business meeting when the members of the association elected her delegate to the 20th annual state P.-T. A. convention which meets in Waco, Nov. 18-21.

After the business session, the meeting was turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. E. W. Napier, who announced the speakers.

Mrs. Grover C. Johnson made a direct and appealing speech to mothers in her talk on "The Adolescent." She said in part:

"If nature is to score in her preparation of the home builder and family maker this preparation must begin in early childhood, must be continued as a definite unfolding of life lessons and must establish right habits, high ideals and aspirations. . . . No generation of young people since the beginning of time has had the educational advantages that are open to the present generation . . . While the young person of today has the prospect of greater service, they also have a greater resistance to meet."

Mrs. Johnson's talk was brilliant in the discussion of child labor; she compared the youth of yesterday and today and told of the survey recently made when a decrease was shown in a number of large cities in juvenile delinquency. "Broken homes," Mrs. Jhonson said were the cause of most trouble. She advised home training, clean recreation, clean theaters and stressed the need of a woman police officer in Wichita Falls.

J. A. McDonald, juvenile officer, followed Mrs. Johnson, discussing the local problems of juvenile delinquency. In the last year, he has handled 181 boys and [illegible]ls, and of these, 121 were from broken homes. Of 54 boys carried to the juvenile court and released on probation, only nine were brought back for trial. Of the 27 girls sent away to different institutions, Mr. McDonald said 22 came from broken homes.

Following Mr. McDonald's talk, Miss Mary McIlheran, Camp Fire executive, talked on the Camp Fire activities and made several announcements.

The auditorium was filled with teachers of the school and the mothers of the P.-T. A. and their interest is reported to have been intense during the talks.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The moon was shining Monday night and trees made pictures on the grass. We thought of a story we had heard at a department luncheon at the Forum clubhouse, when one of the ladies who lived in Wichita Falls before it was a city, told of living on Burnett street when people going out at night carried lanterns to light their way up to Brook. Judge Montgomery, we were told, put up the first street light and paid for it himself.

◇ ◇ ◇

The pioneers in Wichita Falls lighted the way for the later comers in so many ways. Not with corner lights but in building schools and churches and laying the foundation for a growing city.

◇ ◇ ◇

We wonder often if they do not look upon the work and call it good. Cities are like faiths. When one loses faith in a person, it is so much harder to believe a second time. A city is so much harder to rebuild than to build. Wichita's pioneers did not let the city slump.

◇ ◇ ◇

October in Wichita Falls is a time when every citizen should be proud of the home town. Not only radiance roses, (of which we seem to hear a deal), but other flowers are blooming in profusion.

◇ ◇ ◇

Let anyone drive down Huff avenue and see the wealth of orange cosmos. And if we had not already said so much of the W. B. Hamilton home, we would say something of how orange cosmos and blue ageratum make a lovely color combination.

◇ ◇ ◇

In a bed at the Forum clubhouse door grows a foreigner in flowers. We noticed the purplish blue from a distance, a little round bush, covered with blossom. It looked as if some one had dipped a daisy plant in blue dye.

Bride-Elect Honored With Dinner-Shower

Miss Birmah Arnold, whose marriage to Louis Malone will be an event of Saturday, Oct. 19, was honoree at a lovely miscellaneous shower and dinner in the Y. W. C. A. club rooms Monday evening.

The table was attractively decorated in pink and white, the bride elect's color scheme, and her chair was marked with a bow of white maline. A basket of pink roses tied with white maline formed the center piece and white lighted tapers were placed on either side. Miss Margaret Brand introduced the guests.

Hubert Monroe sang a group of popular selections and Miss Letitia Keith sang "Carolina Moon" and "I'm in Love With You."

Covers were laid for Misses Maurine Ulmer, Fay McBride, Thelma Wisdom, Carry Koenig, Nettie McCain, Margaret Brand, Christine Harris, Pauline Skaggs, Vera Parker, Birmah Arnold, Beulah Gilbreath, Rachel Gilbreath, Ova Nelson, Ruth Lammers, Miss Catherine Walker, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and Miss Erma Schnelle, associate secretary.

Princess Dresses To Feature Style Show

The princess silhouette will be featured at the style promenade given by Saul's store at the weekly Hostess Day luncheon at the Woman's Forum Wednesday.

Saul's models will display several new creations that have just been unpacked since Tuesday.

Rid teeth
of dangerous, glue-like FILM

Remove FILM daily. Ordinary brushing methods fail. Employ this special way

TOOTH DECAY is caused by germs. Pyorrhea usually results from germs and tartar.

Germs are imprisoned in a dingy, glue-like coating on the teeth called film. There they breed by millions in contact with the teeth and tissues in every crevice.

Film clings so stubbornly ordinary ways are not successful in removing it. Use the special formula called Pepsodent. You instantly notice the difference in the way it feels. Film vanishes. Teeth become gleaming white. Yet Pepsodent acts gently. No pumice, harmful grit or crude abrasive—but a soft, creamy paste that is prescribed for the softest teeth and tenderest gums.

Lucky salesman gets a hint from doctor that does the trick

IT'S a wise man that knows when he is slipping. Mr. R. F. Myers of 711 Rosedale Street, Baltimore, had the good fortune to get his tip straight from one of his doctor customers (he was selling for a pharmaceutical house) and since that lucky visit he has increased his business 50 percent.

For two years he had been driving from town to town, and naturally this threw his elimination out of shape. He felt himself slipping. Cathartics only made him worse. Then one day he was calling on a wise old physician, and asked his advice. "What you need, my boy," said the doctor, "is a simple, easy, normal way to clean the poisons out of your system—we all have them—and with your kind of work they certainly cut down efficiency. Why don't you try Nujol?"

"Well, believe it or not," says Mr Myers, "in a few days I felt like a new man. 'What's got into you?' asked the home office, 'your business has increased 50 per cent!'"

That's the great thing about Nujol. As soon as it begins to clean the poisons out of your system it makes you feel so well that you can almost always do a much better job.

Nujol is not a medicine and contains no drugs. It is perfectly harmless, forms no habit. It is simply bodily lubrication, which everybody needs. You, like everybody else!

Why put off good health any longer? Go into any good drug store and get a bottle of Nujol in a sealed package. Costs so little and means so much! Maybe you can increase your efficiency 50 per cent too!

EASY--The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy, though young and pretty, is the "easy mark" of her motherless family. She is forever waiting on her more modern, flapperish sisters, Alice and Jeanie, and lending them her clothes and trinkets to aid in their conquest of the boy friends. The money she earns by painting cards for her father's bookstore partly goes in payment of her brother, Howard's debts. She is hoping to earn enough to pursue her art course. When Neal Forsythe arrives to visit the wealthy Lawlers Ann Marie quickly loses her heart to him in spite of her disillusionment when she finds him embracing Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Her dream of an art course is rudely shattered when Howard, her brother, tells her he is in trouble with Leota and asks Ann Marie to intervene. Leota unexpectedly appears at the Macy home as Florence and John Lawler call.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XIII

Ann Marie carefully closed the door of the front parlor so that Leota would not be able to see Florence Lawler and Howdy if she came into the house.

Then she opened the front door to her.

On the floor of the porch, at Leota's feet, were two bags and a cheap oil-cloth hat box.

As Ann Marie looked at them a feeling of sudden and enormous relief came swelling up into her heart . . . It almost looked as if Leota were getting ready to leave town!

"Going away, Leota?" she blurted out hopefully.

The girl put her head, in its loud pink felt hat, to one side.

"That all depends," she said slowly, "on your brother. I want to see him."

Some of the hope in Ann Marie's heart died . . . Perhaps Leota had come to the house to persuade Howdy to run away with her and be married! To threaten him into doing what she wanted him to do—

But she kept her fear out of her voice and manner when she answered.

"Won't you come in?" she asked pleasantly. "I'll call Howdy."

She helped Leota bring her bags into the hall.

At the far end of it, under the staircase, was the tiny room that Jeanie used for a sewing room. The door stood open.

"Won't you come in here and sit down?" she asked, still smiling as naturally as she could. "Howdy is talking to a—a caller in the parlor but I'll get him."

She turned as if she were going out of the little room. But she had no intention of letting Leota see Howard if she could prevent it.

She had always realized that he was weak; since that morning she had known that he had once been in love with Leota. Perhaps he still was, she figured. . . . And it would be just like him to give up everything all at once and run away with this worthless girl!

"Leota," she said, stopping with her hand on the door knob, "do you mind if I ask you something that probably isn't any of my business?"

Leota looked at her dully for a minute. "Naw; go ahead," she said finally.

"Do you need some money?' Is that why you want to see Howdy?"

Leota nodded. "Yes, and he's got to give it to me!—I been thinking things out, and I don't want to marry him if he's off me like I think he is."

It seemed impossible that so coarse and common a voice could come from between those perfect cupids bow lips of hers.

"But I ain't going to stay here no more, now that this story about his giving me the run-around is out," she went on sullenly. "So I'm going to get out. I hate this little one-horse burg, anyhow, and I know a man in New York who says he can get me work as an artist's model. But I got to have some money to take me there and keep me for a while. See?"

Ann Marie nodded, thinking hard. . . . "A man in New York who can get me work as an artist's model." . . . That would be Neal Forsythe! . . . That had been Neal Forsythe's letter lying on the desk in Leota's sloppy little flat that morning, of course!

"I knew it all the time!" said Ann Marie to herself.

"And you want the money from Howard?" she asked aloud. "How much will you have to have, Leota?"

Leota's beautifully arched eyebrows went up into her shining hair." Oh, a couple of hundred will do me," she said airily.

Two hundred dollars!—Ann Marie's heart sank. She had only about half as much as that in her little savings account at the bank.

"Wait a minute," she said, and went out, closing the door carefully behind her.

Jeanie and Alice were coming down the stairs, dressed within an inch of their lives and both of them fragrant with Ann Marie's French perfume.

"Listen, you two!" she said to them in a tense little voice that was not much more than a whisper, "get Florence Lawler out to that car as quickly as you can! Don't ask me questions, but just do it!"

Then she flung open the door of the parlor.

"Howdy, come here a minute," she called to him. "Come on, Florence, we're all ready to go! You girls go out to the car and Howdy and I'll be there in a sec!"

She could hardly breathe until the three girls were out of the house and the door closed behind them.

She then turned to Howdy, her eyes going from him to the shut door of the sewing room.

"Leota's in there!" she told him in a frightened whisper. "She's going to leave town right away—if only you and I can get a couple of hundred dollars together for her!"

She clasped her hands and unclasped them nervously.

"Well—why ask me about it?" Howdy said after a long pause. "You know I haven't any money for her! Last night you promised me that you'd give her money if that was what she was after. And now you don't want to make good on it, do you?"

He took his smart double-breasted overcoat from the hall rack and began to put it on.

"Oh, Howdy! You know I meant what I said!" Ann Marie's voice was a wailing cry now. "But all I have is a hundred dollars or so—and she wants two! She says she won't leave town unless she has two—." He adjusted his hat at just the right angle. "Oh, shucks!" answered Howdy, putting on his new tan gloves.

He quietly opened the front door. "Offer her your hundred," he said easily. "You'll see she'll jump at it! And if she says she's got to have more, tell her you'll send it to her."

"That's all I can do," Ann Marie decided, watching him go swaggering down the front walk to the Lawler's car and get in.

"Don't wait for me, kids!" she called out. "I'll be along pretty soon."

They drove away. And not until they were out of sight did Ann Marie feel safe.

Then she went back to the sewing room.

Leota has taken a cigaret case from her bag and was placidly smoking.

"I thought you wasn't never comin' back," she said, blowing blue spirals at the ceiling. "What kep' you so long?"

"I asked Howdy if he had any money," Ann Marie told her frankly. "But he didn't—he never has any money, Leota, just as I tried to tell you this morning. Didn't I?"

Leota just blew smoke out of her nostrils and said nothing.

"But I have a hundred in my savings account," Ann Marie said quietly, "and I'm going to write you a check for that. Probably your friend in New York will cash it for you."

"Probably," said Leota. "But I've got to have some cash right now—for my train fare. I'd like to get the 6 o'clock train if it's all the same to you."

Once more Ann Marie turned to go out of the room.

"All right. Wait a minute," she said again.

Mrs. Leezy was asleep on her bed, snoring all up and down the scale, when Ann Marie opened the door of her room and shook her.

She sat bolt upright and stared wildly.

"Great heavens! What's happened?" she cried out. "Don't ever wake me up like that again, girl! You've given me a shock I'll never get over in a month of Sundays!—What is it you want, for mercy's sake?"

"About $30," answered Ann Marie. "And I want it right away."

On the top of Mrs. Leezy's dresser lay her old brown suede handbag.

Ann Marie picked it up and handed it to her.

"Please don't tell me you haven't that much!" she cried. "If you haven't, I don't know what I will do!"

Muttering and still confused with sleep, Mrs. Leezy's work-worn hands went through the bag, tossing keys and handkerchief and old letters out upon the bed-spread.

At last she held out three $10 bills. "There 'tis," she said, sniffing. "You'll pay it back to me, won't you?—I put it aside for my insurance money—"

Her anxious voice followed Ann Marie down the stairs.

Leota had come out of the sewing room and was standing at the bottom of the steps, looking at the cheap little silver watch on her wrist.

Ann Marie flung her the money and flew into the back parlor, where Mr. Macy was still dozing on the couch.

Slipping softly past him, Ann Marie sat down at his desk and wrote a check for $104.50, and it was for every penny that Ann Marie had in the whole world.

"Send me your address in New York, Leota," she said, when she handed over the slip of paper to Howdy's ex-sweetheart. "And I'll send you the rest just as soon as I can."

Leota looked doubtful.

"I'll give you my friend's address now," she decided. "You can send it to him, and he can give it to me. He'll know where I am."

She took from her handbag a large square white envelope covered with fine, dashing writing—the envelope that Ann Marie had seen on her desk that morning.

"Here's his name and address," she said, turning it over.

Ann Marie copied it down:

"N. Forsythe, 2 Susquehanna Hall, Perry street, New York, N. Y."

Neal Forsythe! . . . She had known it all along, she told herself.

She had known all along that he was the kind of Don Juan person who would make friends in a few hours with a Letota Ingram! Who would write her letters, promising to find work for her in New York, where he was, if she would come there—.

"Now she's going to him—and I'm paying her way!" thought Ann Marie bitterly.

She wanted to run after Leota and take the check and the money out of her hands! To tear them up and scatter them to the winds! . . . Then Leota would have to stay here and Howdy would have to marry her whether he wanted to or not!—Or he'd have to get out of it the best way he could!

But it was too late now to do anything about it . . . Leota was on her way to Neal Forsythe. On her way to Neal Forsythe—

"And I'd give anything on earth just to be in her shoes!" thought Ann Marie, suddenly sick with jealousy. "Anything — anything — anything—"

In that moment she made up her mind to go to him.

The previous record was held by the Chicago market—71,792 head, and established Oct. 16, 1911.

Eight go-car trains were required to handle the sheep yesterday.

REWARD DEATH CASE PUT OFF

Dumas and Wood Trial Is Continued to March 3

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Oct. 15. (AP)—District Judge M. S. Jeffreys today granted a continuance in the so-called "bank robbery reward" and murder trial of J. H. Dumas and "Red" Wood. The case was continued until March 3.

Postponement was asked by District Attorney Fred Blundell, who said a number of material witnesses were absent and the prosecution had not had time to make a thorough investigation of the slayings.

District Attorney Blundell said that among the absent witnesses were several West Texas officers. W. M. Massie of Fort Worth, secretary of the Texas Bankers association, had not arrived. The state contends the organization's $5,000 reward offered for dead bank bandits inspired the killing of the two men at Rankin, for which Dumas and Wood are to go to trial.

Other missing state witnesses were Reeder Webb, sheriff of Ector county, which also had a bank killing; Tom Jones, one of his deputies; A. E. Fletcher, Rankin justice of the peace; Sam Arnett of Rankin, and seven other West Texas witnesses, including a woman.

Bud Barfield, sheriff of Upton county in which the killings occurred; Ranger Captain Frank Hamer and Ranger Light Townsend were present and Ranger Captain Tom Hickman was said to be on his way here.

The prosecution alleges Dumas and Wood put the victims of the alleged plot "on spot" so that Upton county officers would kill them on suspicion as they were about to rob a bank at Rankin.

Honest Prof Surrenders Deer Accidentally Slain

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—Diogenes may now blow out his lantern, the game, fish and oyster commission of Texas believes.

When D. F. Holland, University of Texas professor, reported he had accidentally killed a 6-months-old buck deer, 45 miles from Austin, and turned the animal over to the commission for legal disposition, the commission turned over another leaf in its great ledger and put down a single mark.

Although many deer are killed on the highways at night each year, this is the first time an accident of this nature has been reported to the commission and the dead animal surrendered to them.

Holland will not be fined for the violation, but he will not get to partake of the meat of the deer. It will go to a charitable institution, the law says.

Railroads Not Opposed To Inland Waterways

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15. (INS)—The railroads are not opposed to the development of inland waterway transportation if economically justified, but they are opposed to the federal government entering into competitive transportation operation with them, R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association, told the semi-annual convention of the Associated Traffic clubs of American today.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks VapoRub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popularity of Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standby for all colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.—Adv.

Have You Tasted This Mountain Coffee Flavor People Are Changing To?

Experts say its rare tang and rich, mellow body are unlike any other coffee known

WHEN you have tried a dozen different ways of making coffee, and it all seems "thin" or "flat" and tasteless—in fairness to yourself, do as thousands have, try another kind of coffee. Try one that Nature has given a richer, tangier flavor—the flavor of mountain coffees from Central America.

In the fertile volcanic districts of Central America, drenched with tropic rains and fanned by the breezes of two oceans, is grown a coffee that leading experts agree has the tangiest flavor, the richest, mellowest body of probably any in the world today.

We don't attempt to describe the flavor of this coffee. So we ask you to taste it and see for yourself why it is captivating the world.

The Secret of Flavor

Ordinarily when you change from one brand of coffee to another, you note little difference in taste. That is because 70% of all coffee sold in the United States today (regardless of brand names) is of one common flavor, grown in the same general region. So-called "blending" and special roasting processes (in spite of advertising talk) can not change it. For roasting coffee merely brings out whatever flavor Nature has already put in. It is a different type of coffee that makes Folger Flavor different—the rare mountain coffees of Central America.

The Famous Folger Test

Get a pound of Folger's Coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it? You risk nothing—so why not order Folger's now for the test? ms

RAISING THE CHECK

Daily Editorial

BISHOP CANNON'S board of temperance, sponsor, if not author, of the Sheppard "equal guilt bill," not content with the fangs in the Jones act, now instructs congress to inflict like penalties on the purchaser and peddler of alcoholic liquors.

The 18th amendment, which required national consent to become operative, carried no such provision.

Therefore, if its powers are enlarged without previous appeal to the polls, house and senate will be put in the position of a man who receives a check for a given amount, and then raises the figures.

Democracy steps out of character and betrays its trust when that sort of thing happens.

The plea that effective enforcement necessitates this drastic move does not license legislation to submit a proposition to the electorate, secure the specific authority vested in that proposition and enlarge that authority, without the expressed consent of the parties in interest.

Prohibition is not worth results if it can only be established by suspending the processes of popular government.

And prohibition is not worth the price, when its continuance depends upon the alliance of church and state—a coalition forbidden in the charters of this republic, founded in protest against every contravention of personal liberty.

◇ ◇ ◇

A MINORITY influence, strong enough to control congress on one issue, will later instruct congress in other matters.

Members of congress, who obey the orders of an election-swinging bloc with respect to one national habit, will soon be found interfering with other privileges.

Intolerance, like the tailor's camel, has wriggled into the capitol—nose, neck and forefeet—and the judiciary committees of both branches are its obedient servants.

Volsteadism, as fanatic as Cromwell's bluenoses and the Salem Puritans, is picking the heaviest rod that ever fell upon a free community.

"Better results," declares Bishop Cannon's lobby, "can be secured in curtailing the traffic, if the purchaser is also branded as a criminal."

"Buyers should be held equally guilty as enemies of the school, the home, the church and the state."

And these verbal scourges are not laid upon treason, murder and burglary, but aimed at the beer bottle, the wine glass and at every flask of brandy held against the day of sickness.

The Sheppard bill is fraught with reigns of terror—it invites spite work, false witness, payment of grudges, and the dismemberment of households. It will congest the courts with cases and crowd the land with jails.

It will invoke search warrants, wreck businesses and scatter disrepute and disgrace.

The country doesn't want it. Otherwise, its features would originally have been written into the 18th amendment—and, if placed upon the statute books, will provoke a referendum and repudiation of the 18th amendment itself.

Excess is a self-defeatist; it's a wise reform that knows where to halt.

In Longview, Wash., a man's car collided with another driven by his wife. Of course, you know whose fault that was.

Julius Rosenwald expresses the belief that success is 95 per cent luck. That's a tough break for the "self-made" men.

Paying for Corruption

WE AMERICANS, as everybody knows, are a fine and intelligent people. But somehow there seem to be times when we are guilty of some extremely foggy mental processes.

There is, for instance, the matter of the prohibition indictments recently voted in northwestern Indiana.

Nearly 300 men were indicted there after a long investigation by federal officials. Among this number, in addition to the usual collection of bootleggers, restaurant keepers, vice lieutenants and such fry, there were one mayor of a city, several other city officials and a group of policemen.

When this news appeared in the papers the ordinary, respectable American shook his head sadly and wondered what things were coming to, and why. The ordinary American thereupon convicted himself of some foggy thinking.

Corruption such as was just uncovered in Indiana is a thing that can be traced directly to the doors of several millions of men who do not, ordinarily, consider themselves poor citizens.

These guilty ones are the men who patronize bootleggers.

They, in the last analysis, are the men who are responsible for this kind of scandal. They are the men who provide the money that bribes policemen and prohibition agents, the money that trickles illegally into the pockets of mayors and councilmen, the money that pays for gang wars, corrupt politics and crooked attorneys.

The thing is so obvious that it hardly needs explanation. Yet most of us utterly fail to see it.

The country is full of upright, well-intentioned people who deplore lawlessness and corruption—but who also ring up their bootleggers every so often to buy a little liquid cheer.

Did you, oh gentle and fearleess reader, ever perchance buy a pint of gin for a few after-dinner cocktails? Did you ever invest in a few bottles of beer to enliven an evening's poker party? If you did, you have no reason to complain of crooked officeholders or corrupt police officers. Your own money helped to corrupt them. You yourself were the original bribe-giver.

This, of course, is self-evident. Yet most of us don't grasp it. We throw up our hands when we read of a mess like this in Indiana—and then we do our part to multiply such messes by putting more dollars into the rum ring's slush fund.

You can think as you please about the virtues or otherwise of prohibition, of course. But if you patronize the bootlegger—even if it's only occasionally—don't be surprised at the things that your money does.

Whether you like prohibition or not, it's an obvious fact prohibition's corruption is paid for by the bootleggers' patrons.

Doing More Than His Job

IT OFTEN HAPPENS that a newspaper man's best work is work that is not done directly in the line of his ordinary duty. There is, for instance, Mr. Edward Price Bell, London correspondent for the Chicago Daily News.

Rodney Dutcher reveals that it was Mr. Bell who originally suggested the visit to America of the British prime minister. It was he who first grew alarmed at the increasingly strained relations between America and England, and it was he who instituted the negotiations that led to Ramsay MacDonald's visit.

That bit of work was not, strictly speaking, in the line of his regular duty. If he had not done it he would not in any way have been scamping his job. But, being an alert and conscientious man, he saw a chance to do something for his country—and he did it, even though there was no obligation resting upon him.

Safe, Despite Accidents

ALTHOUGH 384 persons were killed in airplane accidents in the United States last year, a writer in the current Review of Reviews demonstrates that traveling by a modern transport airplane is practically as safe as traveling by automobile, train or steamship.

Only 13 of these 384 casualties occurred to passengers on authorized air lines. The vast majority of those figuring in accidents were stunt fliers, amateurs who had not learned how to handle their planes, army and navy fliers engaged in experimentation and others following the more risky branches of aviation.

When you book passage in a recognized transport plane, your chance of being killed is only 1 in 4,000. That safety margin ought to be nearly wide enough to suit anybody.

Let the Government Do It

RODNEY DUTCHER reports that one of the chief results of the Shearer naval investigation is a greatly increased sentiment in congress for having the government build all of its warships in its own navy yards.

To us this sounds like an excellent idea. As long as we have huge corporations which stand to make enormous profits out of preparations for war, we are bound to have propaganda episodes similar to the Shearer affair—episodes that can be extremely costly to the nation.

Putting all naval construction work in the hands of the navy yards would go far to end that evil. The shipbuilders would never have sent Shearer to Geneva if it had been known in advance that no private corporations would build any more of Uncle Sam's war vessels.

On Broadway

The Other Side of It

The passing of the adorable Myrna Darby, 21-year-old Ziegfeld charmer, aroused most local reporters, who wrote: "Broadway couldn't get up early enough to attend her funeral." As a matter of fact, hundreds of her pals, friends and admirers frequented the death-room the day and night before, several of the girls in other shows still being confined to their own homes from the shock.

Then, too, numerous gentlemen friends, who admired Myrna, dared not risk being seen at her funeral by newspapermen and others. They are married men and you know how that is. Instead of attending the proceedings that Sunday at 2 p. m., the time scheduled, they came early in the morning, left their posies and otherwise paid their respects to one they liked so well. The girls in the "Whoopee" show pooled the coin they would have spent on flowers and turned the money over to Myrna's mother, who is penniless.

But the one man Myrna grieved over and adored was the mourner who interested us most. He was the lad she loved, but who deserted her for another, and in the two years she pined for him he ignored her. That, if you asked one who knew Myrna well was what hastened her end. The too much sunburn theory is strictly the berries. Myrna worshipped that man and he broke her heart. When she needed him and wanted him to cheer her, he failed her. Then on that Sunday morning he came with bowed head and was ushered into the death chamber where her beautiful form was laid out in her favorite dress.

He never realized they would leave him alone with Myrna, and the remorse that swept over him, coupled with his fright of being alone there, sent him into a panic. He was carried away on the verge of hysteria.

Why he was afraid of poor Myrna then, one will never know. Gosh, you can't bruise a tombstone and, anyway, he might have known that taffy, as the saying goes, is better than epitaphy.

Old Mamie

Those historians who make a living jotting down biographies of People Who Have Lived are welcome to this tip. In the Childs' restaurant, they would have you believe, at 10 East 23rd street, there is an ancient known as "Old Mamie" who will tell you that she was the first Childs' waitress, having gone to work for William Childs years ago when he did his own cooking in his first restaurant.

Today she is reputed wealthy and the owner of several apartment dwellings, but she is still carrying buckwheat cakes and java—probably from force of habit.

By Way of Report

Before his show arrived on Broadway his producer, an intelligent fellow, altered it here and there until it was whipped into tip-top shape, but the embryo author was indignant about having his manuscript doctored, and hired a lawyer to stop the producer from toying with his play. The producer was pounded with threatening letters, one of which warned him that if the play opened with the producers' version a lawsuit would follow.

But the play opened and it was greeted fervently by the critics, who raved about the author's cunning and artful style and so forth. The threats of an action, of course, stopped immediately, and the author now struts about like a peacock, while the producer, who really made it a hit, is being called the luckiest showman in town for having discovered a newcomer who can write smash hits.

Them As Has Gits

The Colony, New York's most exclusive restaurant, is only about five seasons olds, and probably is the most prosperous, too. It is located on 61st street east of Madison avenue and the town's snootiest celebrated dine there. While it isn't compulsory the frequenters usually attire themselves in their ermines and tail millinery and the cuisine is grand. There is no floor show, no orchestra or music of any kind. The only attraction is the food, which is peddled, as we have remarked before, at so much a karat.

But what we started out to report was that it is owned by Ernest, Gene and the chef of the place, the first mentioned duo superintending the service at every table. Both are personable fellows, who have better manners and more charm than all of New York's night club hostesses. When they negotiated for the location, it appears, they couldn't promote the necessary $9,000 rental guarantee so they offered a fourth interest to the landlord, which he accepted.

His first year's profit was $85,000.

Novelette

Jim was one of those unfortunates who treated his friends four-square and white. His friends—believe it or not—treated him the same. No one of them could bring himself to the point of playing him dirty or digging him in the back.

So Charley—one of the aforementioned friends—ankled right up to Jim with a frank, wide open confession . . . "Jim, I—I'm terribly in love with your wife, and she feels the same way about me! Somethings' got to be done about it!"

"You're darn tooting something's got to be done about it!" Jim replied as gravely as a columnist, "I'll speak to Helen about it! You're the fourth guy to tell me this since Monday!"

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXVIII

Our stretchers stand on the platform. We wait for the train. It rains and the station has no roof. Our covers are thin. We have waited already two hours.

The sergeant-major looks after us like a mother. Although I feel pretty bad I do not let our scheme out of my mind. Occasionally I let him see the packet, and give him one cigar in advance. In exchange the sergeant-major covers us over with a waterproof sheet.

"Albert, old man, I suddenly bethink myself, our four-poster and the cat—"

"And the club chairs," he adds.

Yes, the club chairs with red plush. In the evening we used to sit in them like lords, and intended later on to let them out by the hour. One cigaret per hour. It might have turned into a regular business, a real good living.

"And our bags of grub, too, Albert."

We grow melancholy. We might have made some use of the things. If only the train left one day later Kat would be sure to find us and bring us the stuff.

What damned hard luck! In our bellies there is gruel, mean hospital stuff, and in our bags roast pork. But we are so weak that we cannot work up any more excitement about it.

The stretchers are sopping wet by the time the train arrives in the morning. The sergeant-major sees to it that we are put in the same car. There is a crowd of Red Cross nurses. Kropp is stowed in below. I am lifted up and put into the bed above him.

"Good Lord!" I exclaim suddenly.

"What is it?" asks the sister.

I cast a glance at the bed. It is covered with clean snow-white linen that even has the marks of the iron still on it. And my shirt has gone six weeks without being washed and is terribly muddy.

"Can't you get in by yourself?" asks the sister gently.

"Why, yes," I say in a sweat, "but take off the bed cover first."

"What for?"

I feel like a pig. Must I get in there?—"It will get—" I hesitate.

"A little bit dirty?" she suggests helpfully. "That doesn't matter, we will wash it again afterwards."

"No, no, not that—" I say excitedly. I am not equal to such overwhelming refinement.

"When you have been lying out there in the trenches, surely we can wash a sheet," she goes on.

I look at her, she is young and crisp, spotless and neat, like everything here; a man cannot realize that it isn't for officers only, and feels himself strange and in some way even alarmed.

All the same the woman is a tormentor, she is going to force me to say it. "It is only—" I try again, surely she must know what I mean.

"What is it then?"

"Because of the lice," I bawl out at last.

She laughs. "Well, they must have a good day for once, too."

Now I don't care any more. I scramble into bed and pull up the cover. The sergeant-major. He goes off with the cigars.

An hour later we notice that we are moving.

At night I cannot sleep. Kropp is restless, too. The train rides easily over the rails. I cannot realize it all yet; a bed, a train, home.

The train travels slowly. Sometimes it halts and the dead are unloaded. It halts often.

Albert is feverish. I feel miserable and have a good deal of pain, but the worst of it is that apparently there are still lice under the plaster bandage. They itch terribly and I cannot scratch myself.

We sleep through the days. The country glides quietly past the window. The third night we reach Herbstal. I hear from the sister that Albert is to be put off at the next station because of his fever. "How far does this train go," I ask.

"To Cologne."

"Albert," I say, "we stick together; you see."

On the sister's next round I hold my breath and press it up into my head. My face swells and turns red. She stops. "Are you in pain?"

"Yes," I groan "all of a sudden."

She gives me a thermometer and goes on. I would not have been under Kat's tuition if I did not know what to do now. These army thermometers are not made for old soldiers. All one has to do is to drive the quicksilver up and then it stays there without falling again.

I stick the thermometer under my arm at a slant, and flip it steadily with my forefinger. Then I give it a shake. I send it up to 100.02 degrees. But that is not enough. A match held cautiously near to it brings it up to 101.6 degrees.

As the sister comes back, I blow myself out, breathe in short gasps, goggle at her with vacant eyes, toss about restlessly, and mutter in a whisper: "I can't bear it any longer—"

She notes me down on a slip of paper, I know perfectly well my plaster bandage will not be reopened if it can be avoided.

Albert and I are put off together.

We are in the same room in a Catholic hospital. That is a piece of luck, the Catholic infirmaries are noted for their good treatment and good food. The hospital has been filled up from our train, there are a great many bad cases amongst them. We do not get examined today because there are too few surgeons. The flat trolleys with rubber wheels pass continually along the corridor, and always with someone stretched at full length like that—the only time it is good is when one is asleep.

The night is very disturbed. No one can sleep. Toward morning we doze a little. I wake up just as it grows light. The door stands open and I hear voices from the corridor The others wake up too. One fellow, who has been there a couple days already, explains it to us: "Up here in the corridor every morning the sisters say prayers. They call it Morning Devotion. And so that you can get your share, they leave the door open."

No doubt it is well meant, but it gives us aches in our heads and bones.

"Such an absurdity!" I say, "just when a man dropped off to sleep."

"All the light cases are up here, that's why they do it here," he replies.

Albert groans. I get furious and call out: "Be quiet out there!"

A minute later a sister appears. In her black and white dress she looks like a beautiful tea-cosy.

"Shut the door will you sister!" says someone.

"We are saying prayers, that is why the door is open," she responds.

"But we want to go on sleeping—"

"Prayer is better than sleep," she stands there and smiles innocently. "And it is seven o'clock already."

Albert groans again. "Shut the door," I snort.

She is quite disconcerted. Apparently she cannot understand. "But we are saying prayers for you too!"

"Shut the door, anyway."

She disappears, leaving the door open. The intoning of the Litany proceeds.

I feel savage and say: "I'm going to count up to three. If it doesn't stop before then I'll let something fly."

"Me, too," says another.

I count up to five. Then I take hold of a bottle, aim, and heave it through the door into the corridor. It smashes into a thousand pieces. The praying stops. A swarm of sisters approach and reproach us in concert.

"Shut the door!" we yell.

They withdraw. The little one who came first is the last to go. "Heathen" she chirps, but shuts the door all the same. We have won.

At noon the hospital inspector arrives and abuses us. He threatens us with clink and all the rest of it. But a hospital inspector is just the same as a commissariat inspector, or anyone else who wears a long dagger and shoulder straps, but it is really a clerk, and is never considered even by a recruit as a real officer. So we let him talk. What can they do to us, anyway—

"Who threw the bottle?" he asks.

Before I can think whether I should report myself, someone says: "I did."

A man with a bristling beard sits up. Everyone is excited; why should he report himself?

"You?"

"Yes. I was annoyed because we were waked up unnecessarily and lost my senses so that I did not know what I was doing."

He talks like a book.

"What is your name?"

"Reinforcement-Reservist Josef Hamacher."

The inspector departs.

We are all curious. "But why did you say you did it? It wasn't you at all!"

He grins. "That doesn't matter. I have a shooting license."

Then, of course, we all understand. Whoever has a shooting license can do just whatever he pleases.

"Yes," he explains, "I got a crack in the head and they presented me with a certificate to say that I was periodically not responsible for my actions. Ever since then I've had a grand time. No one dares to annoy me. And nobody does anything to me."

"I reported myself because the shot amused me. If they open the door again tomorrow we will pitch another."

We are overjoyed. With Josef Hamacher in our midst we can now risk anything.

Then come the soundless, flat trollies to take us away.

The bandages are stuck fast. We bellow like steers.

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 15.—Several gym classes have been organized in the Hollis Junior high school by Miss Lena O'Toole, Junior high teacher. This is the first year that the Hollis schools have had gymnasium classes. The classes are for girls only and they are required to wear uniforms of white middies, black gym bloomers, and black hose. About 35 girls have reported.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE RETURN OF A MAJOR NUISANCE

Arise men! Get together! Stand fast!

A great menace stares you in the face. Trouble lies ahead. It looks like a tough winter.

PHILLIPS

Hooks and eyes are coming back!

◇ ◇ ◇

Read this Paris dispatch and weep:

"Paris—The return of the old-fashioned hook and eye is seen on women's dresses at the latest showings here. Many of the newest dresses are hooked up the back. Autumn suits and cloaks revive the hooks and eyes of pre-war wraps."

◇ ◇ ◇

Is there no justice? Have these French dress designers no heart? What's the world coming to, anyway?

◇ ◇ ◇

If there was one cry men thought they would never hear again it was "Hook me up the back, will you, dear?"

◇ ◇ ◇

They had assumed this call had disappeared forever together with "Would you like to look over the family album, Otis?" "How about some lovely lantern slides after dinner?" "Where's my bustle, Willis?" and "Listen, darling, could I buy a new bird for my hat?"

◇ ◇ ◇

They had felt there was less chance of a return of hooks and eyes than of hair "rats," balloon sleeves, old-fashioned underwear, dotted veils, fur muffs, woolen stockings and picture hats.

◇ ◇ ◇

Life for many years had seemed everything considered, tolerable with the little woman. A husband could read his paper in peace while she was dressing. She could get into her clothes with a few simple and direct motions. There was no call for assistance.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Well," many a husband would reflect over the last decade, "she has her faults and is somewhat exasperating but, after all, I don't have to hook her up the back any more!"

◇ ◇ ◇

Emancipation from that ordeal had seemed permanent. One great burden had been lifted from the white race forever, it had been hoped.

◇ ◇ ◇

And now the great blow, the rude awakening!

◇ ◇ ◇

The inconsiderate, vicious, despicable nitwits who design women's clothes have reached back into the dark ages and brought back the Curse That Men Had Forgotten.

◇ ◇ ◇

They have gone the limit. Some of the dresses that will appear early in midwinter will have so many books and eyes on them that a woman planning to wear one to the theater at night will have to send out a call for her husband's assistance in the middle of the afternoon.

◇ ◇ ◇

Once again the Little Runt will spend the long winter evenings twisting himself in seemingly impossible attitudes and cursing softly as he struggles to get the hook in the eye while the Old Amazon twitches irritably and exclaims, "Goodness, Ellis, you must be frightfully clumsy to take all that time!"

◇ ◇ ◇

It's a hard world, mates.

Why, Grantland!

"The long lazy right arm of Howard Ehmke sounded the drum beat of woe to 51,000 rooters as it fell across the backs of the Cubs like the lash of a whip."—Grantland Rice in the Herald Tribune.

Talk about mixed metaphors!

In a federal court men are being tried for selling redistilled roach poison as pre-war whisky. Now you know why so many scofflaws, after a couple of drinks, crawl under the rugs or try to go to sleep in the sink.

Ima Dodo thinks the author of "Farewell to Arms" is Ramsay MacDonald.

Prohibition Officer Sentenced for Crime

OPELIKA, Ala., Oct. 15. (AP)—Grady Cobb of Athens, Ga., who as a federal prohibition agent, shot and killed Albert Edmunds in June, 1927, during a liquor raid at Phenix City, Ala., must serve 12 months at hard labor in the Russell county jail. He was convicted yesterday by a jury.

Prosecution witnesses testified Edmunds was fleeing from a house when he was shot. Cobb testified he and Edmunds fought in the house and he shot the man when Edmunds drew a knife.

SHEPPARD BILL BRINGS SPLITS

Wets and Drys Both Divided on Drastic Plan

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The Sheppard bill to make the buyer of bootleg liquor equally guilty with the seller has split the wets, the drys, the judiciary, and the constitutionalists in congress wide open.

No single question that has arisen in connection with the many-sided prohibition controversy has caused such a wide divergence of opinion among both friends and foes of Volsteadism, a survey disclosed today.

There will be a battle over it when congress convenes in regular session in December that is going to reveal some strange political bedfellows.

Courts Disagree

Two federal district courts have held that the man who buys an illegal drink is equally guilty of a felony with the man who sells it. The circuit court of appeals, second district, has held he is not.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat of Texas, the so-called "father of prohibition," regards his new bill as the logical concluding step in the enforcement of prohibition. Dr. A. J. Barton, a prohibition pillar for many years, deplores the Sheppard bill and doubts its legality or its wisdom.

The drys are split wide open—some, like Sheppard, contending that it is the logical next stop, and others, like Barton, fearing that it will cause such a revulsion of feeling and arouse so much opposition as to seriously menace the maintainence of Volsteadism on the statute books. They fear it is so drastic that "the country won't stand for it."

Wets Divided on Bill

The wets are split equally wide open—some cynically hoping that the measure will pass because they sincerely believe it will "kill prohibition," and others contending that it will merely extend the "evils of the present system."

The constitutionalists of the senate merely reflect this patchwork of divergent opinion. Their opinions were sought and obtained by International News Service today and disclosed some unusual differences.

"It is a very close question," said Senator William H. Borah, Republican of Idaho, who is a dry among drys, referring to the constitutionality of the measure.

"Congress naturally cannot go beyond the constitution, but the constitution prohibits the sale of liquor and there cannot be a sale without a purchaser. It is a very close question, indeed. Undoubtedly, the supreme court will have to pass on it."

Walsh Favors Measure

"I think it is constitutional," said Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, another outstanding dry. "It would be a means of preventing the sale of liquor which the constitution forbids.

"After all, congress is authorized to pass any legislation which is necessary to prevent the sale of alcoholic liquors. If congress believes that a specific act, making it illegal to purchase liquor, would help prevent its sale, then such an act in my opinion would be constitutional. The man who buys liquor is aiding in making a sale and therefore can be punished."

A directly opposite view was taken by Senator King, Democrat of Utah, another constitutionalist of the senate, and also a dry.

"I have very serious doubts as to the constitutionality of such a law as Senator Sheppard proposes," said King. "Congress cannot create crimes. It can only act under the powers granted it by the constitution. To make the purchase of liquor illegal would undoubtedly create a new crime. I do not believe congress has that power."

Number of other senators, both wet and dry, evaded expressing an opinion publicly on the matter, but their opinions, privately expressed, disclosed a wide range of disagreement.

Undisturbed by the clamor, Senator Sheppard is going ahead with his plans to force a show-down on his bill as early in December as possible.

BADEN, Austria (AP)—Bernhard Nefzger, choir master of the state church here, has found among old papers the manuscript of a mass in the key of B signed with the name of Mozart and not previously known among works of that master. Mozart lived at Baden for several months in 1791.

Federal Judge Instructs Grand Jury To Indict Buyers at Louisville, Ky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15. (AP)—The October grand jury of the United States district court here today was under instruction from Judge Charles I. Dawson to indict, if the evidence warranted, the buyer as well as the seller of liquor.

Attacking the "so-called good citizen" who patronizes bootleggers, Judge Dawson, former Kentucky attorney general, declared the widespread impression it is not against the law to purchase liquor is erroneous.

Referring to a recent decision of the circuit court of appeals of the second district at Philadelphia, Judge Dawson said he had not read that court's opinion, but it was his opinion "that what that court really decided was that one who purchases liquor is not such an aider or abetter of the seller as to make him guilty as a seller under the federal law."

To that extent, Judge Dawson said in his charge, "I agree with the opinion, but if that opinion holds it is not an offense against the national prohibition act for one to purchase liquor without a permit and not on a prescription, then I cannot agree with it, because I have no doubt whatever that the Volstead act intended to and does, in express terms, make it illegal for individuals to purchase liquor for personal consumption for beverage purposes."

CAPONE'S AIDE KNOWS NOTHING

At Least He Hasn't Told Yet Who Killed Man

By FRANCIS F. HEALY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—"Who killed Billy McSwiggin and why?"

Also, who killed Cock Robin?

This age-old puzzle—one which police have attempted to solve since Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin met death in a gangland roadhouse several years ago, was again the leading question today following the arrest and interrogation of Frank Biege, alias Perry, who is termed by police as "chief executioner for 'Scarface Al' Capone."

"Machine Gun" Jack McGurn was also called that. So were a host of others.

Special "Dope"

The "inside office" was said today to have some special "dope" on the activities of Biege but Chief of Detectives John Stege scoffed at the idea Biege was the killer of McSwiggin, "Bugs" Moran's men, and other gangsters.

Biege's wife wrote two threatening letters to Capone in a Philadelphia prison, both of which were intercepted. She demanded $10,000 for "hush money" or threatened that Biege, whom she said was "holding the bag" would "squawk."

Frank is now arrested and has been grilled by the best interrogaters in the state's attorney's office and he hasn't "spilled" or "squawked" or "cracked" or given any intimation that he is conversant with any gangland activities. He failed to avail himself of this "golden opportunity" nor did Frank get the $10,000 he said.

Stege Philosophizes

"You know," said Stege philosophically, "how these cheap stickup guys are. They make a big noise with the missus about just how big they are when they've pulled a minor stickup and she gets all het up and thinks he's a big shot. If he was a big shot, don't worry, he wouldn't crack to anyone, least of all his wife because you know how those dames can talk when they get sore. You never heard of Capone talking to Teresa, did you? (That's Capone's wife).

"Well, who killed Billy McSwiggin and why is something I don't think we'll know for a long, long time."

Stege later declared he had never seen the threatening letters alleged to have been sent to Capone. He said his information came from the state's attorney's office, to which he was returning Biege.

Special Investigator Roche of the state's attorney's office said he had questioned Biege and had received no information. Asked if he would produce the letters Roche said "there are no letters" and with that enigmatic reply refused to discuss the case further.

Kaysee Milkmen May Call Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 15. (INS) — Following organization methods said to have been successfully used in a recent milk strike in Chicago the Milk Producers' association of the greater Kansas City territory plans to launch tomorrow a campaign to organize milk producers in the entire area tributary to Kansas City and shut off milk sources now being utilized by the Pasteurizing plants here during the milk strike.

It was announced that a crew of approximately 25 organizers would be sent to Butler, Mo., district tomorrow, a territory which is sending large quantities of milk to this city.

Efforts are being made to enlist every milk producer who could sell to the Kansas City market.

HEARINGS CONTINUED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15. (UP)—The corporation commission today continued until Oct. 15 hearings on the applications of 62 motor freight carriers for class B permits. Class B permits are for transfer companies and other truckers who do not operate over a fixed route.

100 EXPECTED AT LUNCHEON

Report on Deep Drilling Scheduled Today

Invitations sent out to 150 business men of Wichita, Wilbarger, Clay, Young and Archer counties are expected to bring more than 100 men together at the Wichita club Wednesday noon to hear the report of the deep oil drilling plan committee appointed at a general meeting held on Sept. 27, according to Frank Kell, chairman of the invitation committee.

Recommendations for the organization of this community for the thorough testing of deep oil levels believed to underlie shallow production in the counties concerned will be offered by the committee, composed of N. R. Martin, chairman; W. M. McGregor, J. J. Perkins, J. C. Mytinger, Dr. A. D. Edwards of Henrietta, Frank M. Power of Archer City, and Luther Webb of Vernon.

At the first meeting, held on Oct. 27, numerous oil men and geologists of this district expressed confidence in the existence of deep oil in paying quantities here, and emphasized the importance of sinking a number of test wells as a means of renewing aggressive oil development in this area.

The report to be submitted by Mr. Martin's committee Wednesday will include suggestions made by citizens at an open hearing held about two weeks ago. It will be subject to such revision or additions as the meeting may choose to make, or may be set aside for some other plan, it was said.

President Studies National Air Routes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (AP)—The administration is giving close attention to the principal air routes in the hope of setting up a system of national airways as mediums of mail transportation and passenger traffic.

The question of determining what air lanes could constitute a national system has been placed by President Hoover before the aviation section of the postoffice, war and navy departments for study.

Regarding the letting of air mail contracts, Mr. Hoover believes a liberal government subsidy is advisable and necessary to establish this method of transporting mail, and it was said the postoffice department had been proceeding upon that basis.

ELECTRICITY

"The most amazing Nation in the world" That is the expression most commonly used by civilized people all over the world in referring to the United States.

Electricity is the amazing factor responsible for the magic transition of the United States. Especially transmission line electric service.

Transmission line electric service has revolutionized Texas. It has brought the conveniences of electricity within the reach of the homes of even the smallest of Texas communities. The Texas Electric Service Company furnishes this type of electric service to many West Texas communities.

Electricity burns the dim light in the baby's nursery in his first hours of infancy, and from then on through life diligently serves him in countless ways. First it frees his mother's hands from the drudgery of housework and wills to her those precious hours of companionship which have such powerful influence on his life. It saves his mother's strength and preserves her youth along with his. It cooks his food, and then preserves it by electric refrigeration. Then as he attains maturity the work of his hands is multiplied a thousandfold by the efficiencies of electricity. The comforts and conveniences of his home will be magnified by the use of electric appliances.

And if he lives in one of the communities served by the Texas Electric Service Company, he will find that as time goes on the use of electricity will be more and more economical. Ever since this Company started its transmission line service to Texas cities and towns, a number of years ago, electric rates have been voluntarily lowered a number of times—as rapidly as the great economies of this system have made it possible.

For the past year and a half the management of this Company has been working on a revision of its rate which would make possible a wider and more extensive use of electricity in the homes of its customers at a cost lower than has ever been possible heretofore. This new rate is now in effect. You can now use double the amount of electric energy which you have been using at but a slight increase in your aggregate monthly bill. This new rate will permit you to use double electricity. Enjoy the benefits of cheaper electricity. Let "The Economy Twins" serve you.

PACK AND INDIANS STAGE MIMIC GRID WARFARE TUESDAY

COACH BAGGETT DRIVING HARD

Holton Feels the Loss of Four Men

A real mimic battle was staged out on the Junior college football practice field Tuesday afternoon when Coaches Barry Holton and E. A. Baggett sent their respective charges flying at each other for the first scrimmage of the week. The chill autumn air reverberated with the heavy impact of football players, the thudding sound of the punted ovals, and the barking voices of the two gridiron mentors as they hammered home their coaching instructions.

Collegians Cut Loose

The junior collegians took the ball on the first offensive play and cut loose with a short pass from Luttrell to Cox and completed it. Two other short lateral passes and a couple of bucks carried the pigskin steadily down the chalked off field. Then Cox got loose for a long right end run that looked like a million dollars until "Smity" Smith loped in from behind and nailed him.

The ball and two elevens seesawed up and down the field with first one team and the other doing the sawing. Both coaches kept a stern eye on their teams and were pretty free with critical suggestions as to how it should and how it should not be done.

Baggett Hard Boiled

Coach E. A. Baggett is one hard man to get along with since his eleven lost their fracas with the Denton pedagogues. By rights the Indians should have won the game and the coach knows it. The Junior college boys outplayed the visiting eleven in nearly every apartment of the game as shown by the number of the first downs registered by the teams. But they were not able to put over the winning punch and that is what perplexed the coach.

Double Dose Training

As a result the Indians are getting their training in double doses this week. Beginning with the first minute and continuing until the dark of the evening Coach Baggett is "herding" those Indians along at a galloping pace. Still not satisfied boys catch it that night in skull practice. Such a program is calculated to transform a "team that should have won into a team that did win."

The interference department of the Indian game is getting a thorough overhauling for this was the principal weakness of the Saturday debacle. The squad has a world of backfield power if the interference would only play the game. Both the line and the backs can be scored for this let down and the coach is making no alibis about it.

To Paris Thursday

The long trip to East Texas will begin on Thursday, thus cutting the week's training only three days instead of the customary four to five.

Just how strong the Junior college Dragons nobody knows but from reports from over Paris way have that they are expecting a larruping battle when the two teams square off.

Holton Pulls Plays

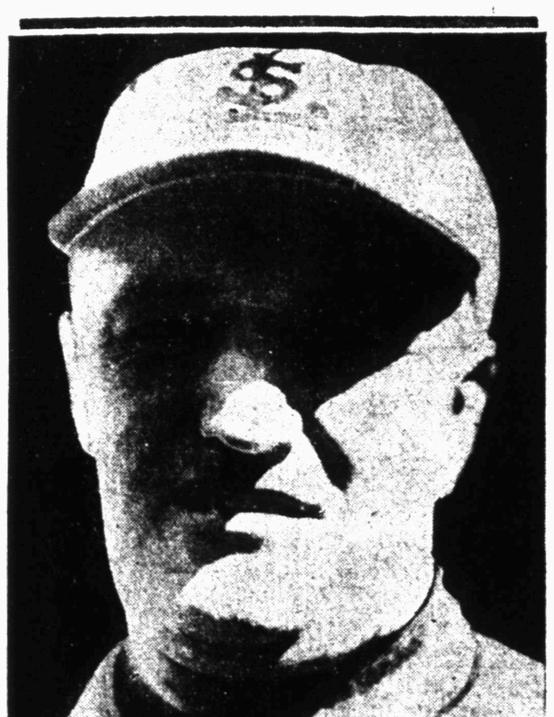

Coach Barry Holton took advantage of the opportunity of trying out some of his new plays Tuesday. Against the Junior collegians a mistake would not make so much "diff." Try them on the Indians and see first how they are going to click before springing them in a match game seems to be the coache's policy with reference to new fangled plays.

Coach Feels Loss

Coach Holton feels very keenly the loss of four members of his Coyote squad. Such a blow is bound to weaken any football squad and will require much time to find men to fill the shoes of the retiring players.

Fortunate for the Pack, however, is the fact that the game coming up will not furnish any serious opposition. The Quanah Indian eleven is one of the push overs in the District race. The coach will thus have some time to cast about for the logical replacements.

Will Boss Reds Next Year

Dan Howley who quit as manager of the St. Louis Browns this season will manage the Cincinnati Reds during the next season, according to announcement of President Sidney Weil. Many fans had expected the former Brown pilot to succeed the late Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees.

Grid Battles Furnished Few Upsets But Astonishing Reversals in Form

By JOHN W. HEISMAN

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—While there were but four upsets in the major games of the country last Saturday a number of others resulted in some very astonishing scores and reversals of playing form.

Undoubtedly the greatest upheaval took place in Athens, Ga. I have for I had seen them in scrimmage, still, neither I—nor anyone else, I fancy—could picture them getting larruped by the team that lost to Oglethorpe, who lost to Citadel.

Ranking second as a consternation-maker was the pummelling that Fordham gave N. Y. U. The Violet seemed to gain the most terrain but the heroic defense of the Maroon, twice driven back to her very goal line, must be accounted the superior achievement. Fordham must be deemed a team with great and outstanding possibilities.

Words and wisdom fail utterly when we contemplate a team leading by 16-6 at the end of the third quarter yet losing by 30-16 at the end of the fourth. I'll have to leave that to Coach Kipke or the wolverine scribes. That fourth-quarter exhibition of the "Boilermakers"—a team that didn't know, and refused to believe when it was licked—will go down in history.

The bear is not often able to get the better of the tiger, but it can happen—witness Brown's defeat of Princeton. Yes, 13-12 is mighty close. (By the way, that's exactly how the total first downs for each team stood), but after seeing the game—and it was a nectarine—I'd just as soon put my money on Princeton tomorrow as on Brown.

Before the games opinion was about evenly divided as to the outcome of the Chicago-Indiana, Virginia-Swarthmore, V. M. I.-Citadel, Wisconsin-Northwestern, Bucknell-W. & J., Penn-V. P. I., Lehigh-Gettysburg, Texas U.-Arkansas, Syracuse-Nebraska and Ohio State-Iowa U., and with good reason.

It's very clear that California U. Purdue, Illinois, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, Harvard, Tennessee and perhaps, Alabama will ride "high, wide and handsome" this season, but the one that would claim a national championship is going to have to show superiority over the three first mentioned.

Tennessee and Alabama continue to roll up prodigious scores against worthy opponents and, along with North Carolina, promise to take part in a triangular race for their conference pennant. Florida and Georgia appear not far behind.

The Texas Aggies performed nobly to down Kansas State 19-0. Dartmouth and Harvard are still making good on my early season predictions, as are Minnesota and Illinois.

Texas A. & M. Has 21 Track Men Out

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 15.—With a squad of 21 candidates, four of them lettermen forming a nucleus around which to build his 1929 team, Coach Frank Anderson is driving his Texas Aggie cross country runners hard in preparation for their defense of the Southwest conference cross country title they have held since 1927.

Lettermen Back

C. Y. Shoemaker, Palestine, captain-elect of the Aggie harriers; Ed Thompson, Cameron, captain-elect of the Aggie track team; R. N. Winders, Houston; and J. B. Michael, Fort Worth, are the lettermen back this season. All were lettermen last year except Thompson, who lettered the season before.

Eight From Last Year

The eight squadmen from last year are: Y. B. Griffis, Dallas; R. M. Howard, Austin; J. R. Johnson, Pharr; E. E. Kyser, Marlin; M. G. Perkins, Mt. Pleasant; N. G. Schuessler, Llano; F. M. White, Littlefield; and I. L. Williams, Dallas.

The sophomore candidates are: D. Barron, Kyle; T. G. Bostick, Bertram; R. B. Collier, Houston; R. W. Green, Dallas; I. C. Hahn, Houston; T. W. Klein, Texarkana; J. E. Monroe, El Paso; and M. Smith, Sulphur Springs.

Electra Volley Ball Team Plays Burk Club Friday

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 15.—Miss Ethel Varnell, volley ball coach, plans to put the volley ball teams through hard practices every day this week in preparation for the games with Burkburnett Friday night in the local gymnasium. The Electra girls are weak on the new rules as was seen Friday night when the Iowa Park team defeated the seniors 39-10.

A number of new players were tried out, and prospects for a good team are bright. The lineup against Iowa Park included Lois Chesher, Mary Brown, Pauline Adams, Captain Rose Nell Lowrie, and Louise Lewis. Substitutes were Leona Mae Parr, Novell Hassall, Catherine Sherrod, and Blanche Butler.

BUDAPEST (AP)—To mark the four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Jasper Karoli, who was first to translate the Bible into Hungarian, protestants of Transylvania gathered an exhibition of old Bibles. The most ancient was a Karoli edition of 1592.

BLONDES DOOMED?

Dominance Fair Headed Ones Is on Wane, He Says

LONDON, Oct. 15. (US)—The dominance of the blonde among the Nordic races is on the wane, the brunet is in the ascendancy, and it is all on account of the war, according to E. N. Fallaize, secretary of the Royal Anthopological institute.

"From the earliest times," he says, "the fair Nordic types have been the rulers and leaders of the communities largely composed of conquered peoples. But owing to the war and subsequent political and economic changes this predominance has diminished."

Is the tall fair blond, typical of the Saxon conquerors of England, doomed to extinction? This is one of the questions that Fallaize suggests might be settled by a race survey of Great Britain.

PROS IN TOURNEY

18 Texas Golfers to Stage Three-Day Meet

WACO, Texas, Oct. 15. (AP)—More than 18 pairs of Texas professional golfers will tee off tomorrow morning in the opening event of the Texas Professional Golf association tournament that will keep moving through three days of golfing activity at the Spring Lake country club. The winner and 1929 champion will be crowned Friday, and the five low scorers of the tournament will be selected as Texas' official representatives to the National Professional Golf association event to be played in December at Santa Barbara.

Nocona Set to Get Measure of St. Jo

NOCONA, Oct. 15.—Nocona high is looking forward in great hopes of taking another victory Friday afternoon here, from St. Jo high. Their last victims were Bellevue high when the score was 54 for Nocona to a very large "goose egg" to the credit of the visitors.

Coach Jenkins is very alert and will try to have no gaps nor bars down. The team has been working hard and much improvement can be seen. Line is showing good defense. Backfield, Zachary, Keck, Cariker and Evans all making good showing.

A strong lineup with plenty subs. Nocona second team will play Zundy Jr. high at Wichita Falls Thursday afternoon. This is expected to be a good game, as the Nocona boys are taking some good material along.

Then the next and most important game of the season will be with Bowie high Friday, Oct. 23, conference game for district championship.

1929 HUNTING OPENS TODAY

Sale of Sporting Goods Means Big Year

The hunting season will get off with a bang around Wichita Falls and vicinity Wednesday morning. As reflected by the sale of hunting licenses and sporting goods equipment this coming year will be the biggest ever in this section of the country.

Although the majority of hunters will go out in search of ducks, the season will also allow the shooting of geese, brant and the lesser varieties of migratory game birds, if any are to be found. Dove hunters in the last few days reported seeing a fair assortment of ducks, some few geese and scattered brants. The early season hunters will find but few mallards and geese, although they should find deep water ducks, including redheads, canvas backs and teal, in fair quantities on the larger lakes within the next week or two.

At Lake Wichita, the Diversion lake and Lake Kemp the early season huntsmen will find game in fairly plentiful numbers, but in the Red river region the best hunting will not be found until the first norther and frost has brought the geese, mallards and brant toward warmer climes. The brant, similar to a goose but smaller in size, will be found in grain fields and on mud flats following the first cold snap of the winter. The geese, more difficult to find, will probably stop for short intervals near lake shores and in more secluded spots.

By the end of dove season, which closes Oct. 31, migratory game hunting should be in full swing and colder weather will probably give hunters a wide selection of game. Both Texas and Red river hunting licenses are on sale at all Wichita Falls sporting goods stores, hardware stores and at many drug stores. The Red river licenses require only a $2.50 fee this year, by special act of the Oklahoma legislature, but they are legal only in the river region. The regular $15 fee will be required north of the north bank of the river.

Differences in the regulations of the two states should be noted by hunters since game wardens, both state and federal, are keeping sharp lookout for infractions of the game laws. The Texas law allows hunting from one-half hour before sunrise until sundown, while the Oklahoma law, regulating the river region, allows hunting until one-half hour after sundown. Neither state allows shooting from any motor propelled vehicle, including motor boats. The bag limits are also different, those of Texas being as follows: Ducks, 25 in one day or 50 in any seven consecutive days; geese, four in one day or 12 in any seven consecutive days; brant, same as geese.

The season in each state ends Jan. 31, 1930. Texas licenses must be purchased by all hunting outside their county of residence but are not legal in the Red river region, where the special Oklahoma license is required.

Coyote Pups Lose By 13-0 Fairview

The Fairview Wildcats were too much for the Wichita Falls second string Pack and downed them by the count of 13 to 0. The Wildcats playing on their home field played a slashing game and time and again punctured the line of the visiting Coyote pups for long gains.

H. Hodges and Prewitt were outstanding performers for the Wildcats and treated the crowds to a pretty exhibition of football. King for the Pack did good work and brought polite applause from the stands.

From the Camp of the Beaten

I have learned something well worth while
That victory could not bring—
To wipe the blood from my mouth and smile
Where no one can see the sting;
I can walk, head up, while my heart is down
From the beating that brought its goad,
And that means more than the champoin's crown,
Who is taking the easier road.

I have learned something worth far more
Than victory brings to men,
Battered and beaten, bruised and sore,
I can still come back again;
Crowded back in the hard, fast race,
I've found that I have the heart
To look rank failure in the face
And train for another start.

Winners who wear the victor's wreath,
Looking for softer ways,
Watch for my blade as it leaves its sheath,
Sharpened on harder days;
Trained upon pain and punishment,
I've groped my way through the night,
But the flag still flies from my battle tent
And I've only begun to fight.

Heavy Artillery

They crack with an even louder roar next Saturday—California and Pennsylvania, Army and Harvard, Illinois and Iowa, Michigan and Ohio State, Princeton and Cornell, Yale and Brown, Georgia Tech and Florida, N. Y. U. and Penn State, Fordham and Holy Cross, Notre Dame and Wisconsin, Tennessee and Alabama, Pittsburgh and Nebraska, Stanford and Oregon State, Columbia and Dartmouth, Georgia and North Carolina—and that is only a start, including Minnesota and Northwestern. Here is the chance to do a lot of fancy guessing where more than one proud, unbeaten banner will flop and flutter into the dust, or mud, as the case may be. Few days in football will bring about more action. Few days will have as vtial a bearing on the season's ranking.

The Army and Harvard are rated as two of the strongest along the Atlantic coast. Six leading Western conference teams will figure in decisive contests. In the South, Georgia Tech, Florida, Tennessee and Alabama are four of the strongest entries, and two will have to go. Even November will have a tough time over matching this occasion.

Having tackled Indiana and the Navy in order, Notre Dame now has nothing to face this Saturday but Wisconsin. And her schedule is just warming up.

Our Western Scouts

Dear Sir: A lot of big boys are playing this game of football. Michigan's ends, Truskowski and Draveling, each weigh 200; Bob Zuppke has a pair of giant tackles in Gordon, 246, and Hill, 220, while Temple's guards win the prize. Davis, who plays one side of Temple's line, weighs 310, with Patchefsky on the other, tipping the beam to 296. Fred Barratt, of Ohio State, is the most obese center, with his 245 pounds, while Herbie Fleischacker, of Stanford, is our quarterback, with 218. Go pick yourself three other backs to match this bunch and you will have a team that can knock down anything in the country.

THE LANCE CORPORAL.

Dear Sir: Lonnie Stagg's young son Paul seems to have inherited much of the ability the old man showed for Yale long about the time you were shooting marbles down in Tennessee. Paul never played high school football, but came out for quarterback at Chicago, and is going to win the job—after a little experience. He already is the best handler of punts on the team and seldom misses a tackle.

MAROON.

Dear Sir: Michigan has found a real halfback in Roy Hudson, a sophomore. He weighs better than 195, and can kick, pass, run and smash. He is going to pair up nicely with Joe Gembis, Simmal Morrison and Wheeler, and give Michigan the best back field it has had in several years. This Michigan team will be plenty rough and tough before snow falls.

ROGER BERWALD.

Harvard and the Army

This game should be one of the best played in the East, West or anywhere else. One of the best from the viewpoint of hard, smashing football, where the Army's fine backs will be sent against a strong Crimson defense, featured by one of the best forward walls Harvard has had in many years.

Even Cagle and Murrel will have their day of trouble against this line, so it will be largely a matter of Harvard's pass defense.

CINCY BEGINS FOR NEW TEAM

Dan Howley's Services Much Valued

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15. (AP)—The first step to rebuild the Cincinnati Reds for the 1930 pennant race was taken today by Sidney Weil, the club's new president, who announced Dan Howley, recent St. Louis Brown manager, would pilot the team next year and that Harry Heilmann, hard hitting Detroit outfielder, has been purchased outright from the Tigers.

Succeeds Old Leader

Howley succeeds Jack Hendricks, leader of the Reds since 1924. He has had three years managerial experience in the major leagues, all with the Browns. His team finished fourth in the American league this year while the Reds landed in seventh position.

Weil secured control of the Reds less than a month ago, and announced he would make the club a factor in next year's flag chase. He said he would trade all but three of the present roster, if necessary, to improve the team. The three were Captain Hugh Critz, second baseman; Red Lucas, pitcher, and Evar Swanson, fleet rookie outfielder.

Coach Beck Takes Juniors to Denton

The Reagan Junior High school football team will play its third match game of the season when they journey to Denton on Saturday, there to meet the Junior High school of that city. In two other games this season the local junior greats have shown their mettle against strong elevens and acquitted themselves most creditably.

Against the Bowie Junior High school last week, the Reagan boys played a close game only to drop the decision by 6 to 0 when a fleet footed Bowie halfback intercepted a pass in the closing minutes of the game and raced across Reagan goal line. Burkburnett was too much for them, however, and they lost by 20 to 0, but not without a hotly contested struggle through the whole game.

Denton Team Strong

The Denton Junior boys are reputed to have a corking little club and Coach Beck is expecting a tough time with them. In preparation for the fracas he is sending his junior charges through a stiff training program this week, working till dark every evening.

When Reagan played Burkburnett they used only three or four plays, but they are now practicing on several new offense plays, and when they clash with Denton Junior boys they expect to employ seven or eight plays, approaching something like the reportoire of a full fledged high school eleven. Coach Beck is bending every effort to perfect his new plays and polish the old one in getting set for the Saturday tilt.

The team will leave Wichita Falls at 6 o'clock Saturday morning and will arrive in Denton about noon. They will play on the Denton Teachers college field.

Sport Loose Ends

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

It's all over now, including most of the shouting. And take from this column there was no lack of material over which to go rabid. We refer, of course, to the late world series. Barring the Athletics' Saturday amazing 10 to 8 triumph, the fifth and deciding game of the 1929 world series was a baseball phenomenon, no doubt. No world series was ever brought to a more dramatic climax than that which was written into the annals of history at Shibe park in the year of grace October 14, 1929.

All of which goes to prove that there is nothing certain in a ball game but the uncertainty. Anything may happen. One minute the Cubs had the fifth series in a jug. With a 2 to 0 lead in the ninth inning they needed only one strike and one out to carry the series back home to Chicago, there to decide the issue. All there was to do was to sit tight and hold what they had. But what happened? Connie Mack's Athletics proceeded to throw another one of their "spells," broke into a stampede, and went crazy.

The rumor is abroad that, perhaps, the government intends to look into the corrupt situation of the national pastime. News of the disorderly baseball, and the rough treatment of the Cubs by the Athletics on Saturday spread to Washington and on Monday a special train brought President Hoover and part of his cabinet to witness first-hand the Athletic menace to the baseball culture of the land.

Let us hope that the president is an unbiased man in the baseball situation and will appoint a special commission to make a thorough investigation of the matter, somewhat after the fashion of the "noble experiment."

Allegorically speaking in a paradoxical manner this week-end football game at Amarillo should reenact a Roman gladiatorial extravaganza when the Plainview Bulldogs are tossed onto the gridiron arena against the Golden Sandies. Slaton defeated Plainview 40 to 0, Lubbock humbled Slaton 7 to 0, and Lubbock is to be inferior to the Sandies by several touchdowns. Now, let reason be the dictator and draw your own conclusions.

The talk goes the rounds up in the Panhandle country that Amarillo is expecting a tough go of it when they meet Wichita Falls, Vernon and Lubbock. In the pre-season games so far, the Sandies have scored 94 against their opponents 9. The lone touchdown scored against them came as a result of their one weak spot in the eleven—the lack of a capable punter. The Sandies were simply outkicked in the contest.

If that spells anything they will certainly be scored on when they clash with Coach Barry Holton's Coyote Pack. Against Grinnell of the powerful Sherman Bearcats Chick Holton looked great and gained five, 10 and 15 yards on practically every exchange of punts. One of Chick's terrific boots looked to be every bit of 60 yards, no foolin'.

Pain in the Largest Nerve

The sciatic nerve, which is the large nerve going into the legs, is the largest nerve in the body. When pain occurs in this nerve it is usually called sciatica or sciatic rheumatism. This is really a form of neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. It may occur with those of a rheumatic tendency, those having pelvic tumors, or in case of either a nerve injury, nerve inflammation, and in certain spinal diseases.

Sciatica is usually characterized by sharp stabbing pains or a burning pain about the hip region. These pains are usually very severe.

One form of sciatica is caused by an inflammation of the nerve caused through a deposit of rheumatic poisons. The pain may start in the back of the sacrum and extend down the leg in both the front and back. This form of sciatica is easily cured through a dietetic treatment which will eliminate the rheumatic poisons. Another form of sciatica may be from any pressure in the pelvis, such as from a packed rectum due to constipation. The pressure may also come during the latter months of pregnancy, or be due to the growth of pelvic tumors. If the tumor presses toward the right side of the abdomen, the pain may shoot down into the right leg, and in the case of certain kinds of cystic tumors where the tumor changes its position from one side of the pelvis to the other, the pain may change from one leg to the other, according to whether the tumor is pressing to the right or to the left.

Another form of sciatica is caused from a malposition of the lower lumbar vertebrae or the sacro-iliac bones of the pelvis. Such faulty positions often cause a pressure on branches of the sciatic nerve and the pain will continue until the proper treatment is given to adjust the bones to their normal positions.

One form of sciatica is caused from either tuberculosis of these same spinal or pelvic bones or from a localized case of rheumatoil arthritis of these joints. Sometimes the hip joint may alone be affected with arthritis or tuberculosis and the inflammation from this one joint may affect the sciatic nerve in such a way as to cause sciatica.

A careful diagnosis is usually necessary in order to arrive at a correct conclusion concerning the exact causes of any specific case of sciatica. One of the simplest tests for the patient to use at home is to try a fast for about a week to see how much effect this has. If there is not a decided change within a week on an orange juice fast, the patient may rest assured that there is either an inflammatory condition of the pelvic bones—that these bones or those of the lower spine are out of position—or that there is some definite pelvic pressure, possibly caused from constipation or a tumor formation.

A careful diagnosis will always disclose the real cause or causes, and this, of course, suggests the proper procedure to follow in bringing about a cure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Attacks of Numbness

Question: Mrs. G. writes—"On three occasions during the past year I have been awakened from sleep with a numbness creeping over me. Have tried to call for help but could not move my lips, neither could I raise my hand or any part of my body for what seems like a minute. I would appreciate if you would inform me of the cause, and if there is danger of paralysis. I am 30 years old and weigh 130 pounds."

Answer: The numb attacks you have at night are probably caused from nervousness and would be classed under the name of hysteria. There is no reason for suspecting you are subject to paralysis because of this, but you certainly should have a good diagnosis made, and study how to remove the cause of your nervousness.

Wholewheat Muffins

Question: Mother asks—"Will you kindly print again your recipe for wholewheat muffins?"

Answer: To a well beaten egg add one cup of sweet milk. Then stir in one cupful of genuine wholewheat flour and beat until smooth. Next add a half cupful of the wholewheat flour into which has been thoroughly mixed one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Bake in muffin tins in a moderately hot oven until brown. The quantity makes six medium or eight small muffins.

Loop in Colon

Question: M. K. B. asks—"Can a loop in the colon be cured by dieting? What would you advise?"

Answer: A loop in the colon can be corrected through proper manipulative treatment, supplemented in some cases by certain electrical treatments. If these treatments are not taken we cannot expect diet to produce a cure, although one with a kinked or looped colon will certainly be in better health on a well-balanced diet than when eating haphazardly.

Crime Commission Resumes Parleys

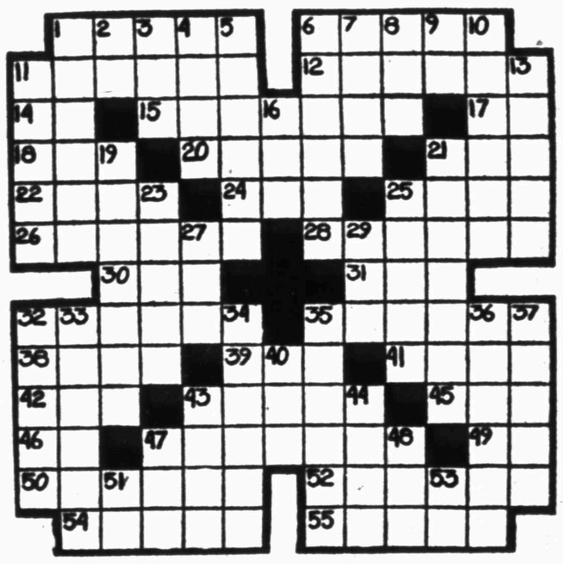

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (AP)—A review of the progress and problems of the gigantic task imposed upon it by President Hoover—nationwide survey of lawlessness and the conditions which it produce—today drew the chief executive's law enforcement commission into session at its headquarters here.

Although the object of the meeting, expected to continue for several days, was disclosed in only a general way, there were intimations that before reaching an adjournment, the commission might take action regarding selection of additional experts to deal with specific phases of crime.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—Continued southern selling and reports of favorable weather for the movement, were reflected by further but comparatively limited declines in cotton today. December contracts sold off to 18.15 or 6 points net lower, but were steadied by the scale down buying of the trade and closed at 18.19. The general market closed steady at net declines of 1 to 4 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 1 point. Prices eased another 2 or 3 points during the first few minutes, but then steadied on covering with the active months selling about 4 to 7 points net higher during the middle of the morning.

December which had eased to 18.17 under initial offerings rallied to 18.28 while March sold up from 18.56 to 18.66 before this demand was supplied. The southern selling continued, however, and the market eased again, reaching the lowest levels of the day and movement during the middle of the afternoon.

October sold off from 18.15 to 18.05 and March declined to 18.53, making net losses of about 5 to 7 point on the active months. There was renewed covering and trade buying at these figures, and closing quotations showed rallies of 2 or 3 points from the lowest on most positions.

The report of the census bureau showing 545,649 bales consumed in this country for the month of September compared with 558,113 for August and 492,307 for September last year, appeared to be about in line with expectations and was not considered a factor in the immediate market.

Liverpool cables reported liquidation by tired holders and liquidation in that market, and said that Manchester was quieter with moderate sales of cotton cloths and yarns. Port receipts today 128,139; U. S. port stocks, 1,815,487; exports 17,746, making 1,405,517 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15. (AP)—Cotton prices worked moderately lower today under selling on the good weather in the belt and a disposition to entertain larger crop ideas coupled with continued hedging. Although the official consumption report was bullishly construed, its influence, except for a short lived rally, was negligent. December contracts after rallying to 18.20 eased off to 18.05 and closed at 18.09, or 4 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net declines of 4 to 7 points.

Although Liverpool cables were relatively steady, the local market opened irregular, first trades showing 2 points advance to 2 points decline. Positions later receded 5 to 6 points under yesterday's close with January at 18.18.

The total of 545,649 bales consumed during September by domestic mills as shown by the census bureau was much larger than last year and was followed by moderate trade buying. This demand carried January to 18.29 or 4 to 7 points over yesterday's close.

At the lowest January hit 18.20 and March 18.45, or 12 to 15 points below the highs. December rallied 4 points. Later positions, however, closed at the bottom.

Stocks Fall in Quiet Session Mostly Devoted to Professional Trading

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (US)—Stocks slid off in another very quiet session today, in which trading was almost entirely professional. There was a little outside liquidation induced, especially in the Utility group, but it was fairly well taken. Higher call money rate was the main influence to offerings as the call charge was raised to 7 per cent from renewal of 6 as the banks called loans. Steel remained soft throughout and closed 4⅜ points lower while Consolidated Gas dropped 3½, American Telephone 4⅛, American and Foreign Power 4¼ points. A few issues moved higher as a result of individual influences with Timken gaining 7¼ and St. Joseph Lead 7⅛ points. Rails were quiet but fairly orderly with New Haven adding over a point to its gain and a few others finishing fractionally higher. Turnover held around the 3,000,000-share level.

The advance in the call rate to 7 per cent was explained as being due to the mid-month turnover of funds. There were some withdrawals made. If they were for the purpose of meeting Oct. 15 dividend and interest payments it would seem that the funds should be returned to the banks within a day or two and easy money conditions be witnessed again. The advance in the rate would have been larger, bankers declare, if it were not for the change in policy of the Reserve which is believed due to Mellon supervision of its activities. Had the Reserve pressure on the banks of a month or so ago continued it would have been likely that the call rate now would be 12 per cent or higher. While the time money rate was quoted a little higher, today, at 7½ per cent for 30 and 60-day funds and 8 per cent for longer accommodations there were no takers, it was stated.

Several brokers continue to talk of good absorption of the Rails and particularly emphasize such as New Haven, Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific and Erie, from which they expect favorable news in the way of increasing earnings and dividend announcements. Another increase in car loadings is expected for this week and if recorded it would indicate that earnings of the carriers will hold up to current high levels for the remainder of the year.

Flurry in the Amusement shares early in the day reflected expectation of special development prior to combine of Paramount and Warner Brothers. Report that earnings of Paramount are almost double those of last year also influenced some demand. The further weakening in Steel was influence to greater uneasiness. While it was accompanied by talk of decline in operations it was felt that earnings this quarter would come close to the good showing of the last three months which, from all reports, resulted in net of well over $6.50 a share for the common stock. Expectation was voiced that the Bethlehem directors would declare an extra dividend at a meeting the 24th of this month.

Working of the Utility group was the main influence to the market's irregularity. It was due to short selling and some liquidation influenced by refusal of the Massachusetts Public Utilities company to permit Edison Electric Illuminating company to split up its stock.

The refusal was based on the commission's idea that the price of the stock was too high. Dominant interests in the Consolidated Gas and the Electric Bond group did not appear disturbed at the decision. They expect it may crop up in any hearings along similar lines in connection with the affairs of other companies but maintain it will not change the plans for centralizing control of leading companies. The Massachusetts decision, it is stated, will now be fought out in the courts.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. (AP)—Argentine crop developments of adverse character, as well as curtailed estimates of exportable supplies of wheat in Argentina, did much to lift wheat values today. A sharp closing rally in the Liverpool wheat market also was a strengthening factor here.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ⅝c to 1c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to ½c up, oats ¼@⅜c to ⅝c advanced, and provisions 2c to 55c down.

Official figures were cited showing that Canadian wheat exports for September amount to only 9,697,000 bushels against 31,076,000 bushels a year ago.

Later advices today from Argentina, however, said the wheat exportable surplus in that country at present is only 18,000,000 bushels.

After selling today at a new all-around low price record for the season, corn advanced as a result of improved cash demand. Weather conditions were ideal for harvesting the new crop, and cribbing was reported as under way in Kansas. Oats were also in better cash demand.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by packers' selling and by down turns in the value of hogs.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 15. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Although cattle receipts around the 11-market circuit were fairly liberal, trade was moderately active on all classes. Country demand for stockers and feeders had more breadth than at any time this season. Prices on replacement stock were steady to strong. Killing classes were on a firm to higher basis. Aggregate receipts 51,200, an increase of 6,000 over a week ago and 3,000 more than the corresponding day last year.

Hogs, slow at steady to 25c lower. Most markets reporting losses of 10@25c. The top of $10.05 was paid at St. Louis. Total offerings 84,900 against 81,388 last Tuesday and 89,282 a year ago.

Liberal receipts of sheep failed to slow up demand for fat lambs to any marked extent. Fat lambs in Omaha strong to 25c higher. At other markets values were steady to slightly lower. Aged stock steady. Feeding lambs firm to 25c higher. Choice native lambs in Chicago $13.50. Best rangers $13.25. The supply was 104,800, an increase of 14,500 from a week ago and 27,000 heavier than a year ago.

GINS REPORT LIGHT RUNS

Poultry and Egg Receipts Continue Dull

Wet weather continued to hold down cotton ginning activity in Wichita county Tuesday, with only 64 bales reported for the day's run. Of that small total for the day, Burkburnett had 21 bales. Reports from all sections of the county predicted a resumption of heavy ginning Wednesday.

Still further increases in the season's yield in this district were predicted to result from the rains which fell Saturday and Sunday. Many fields were completely lost before the rains, which revived many others, fell in mid-Spetmber. Wichita county now lacks about 5,000 bales of equalling the total ginnings of 1928, and it was prdicted that the season's yield will equal or exceed that of last year.

Prices prevailing in the limited buying which took place Tuesday ranged from 14.50 cents to 19.50 cents per pound on middling cotton. Iowa Park enjoyed the highest scale of prices, with buyers there paying from 15.50 to 19.50 cents.

Ginnings from Iowa Park included about 50 full bales of long staple cotton raised on the Birk-George farms, but the prices reported from that city apply only to the ordinary short staple commonly grown in this area.

With deliveries of poultry and eggs negligible on the local market, sufficient hides were assembled at the Armour creameries plant Tuesday for shipment of a carload to Fort Worth.

Hollis High School Quartets Are Named

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 15.—The Hollis High school quartets have been chosen by Miss Alline White, high school music teacher. The girls' quartet is composed of Thelma Garrison and Maulcie Hollis, sopranos, Clarice Smith, contralto, and Josephine Coleman, alto. The Lackey brothers, Ennis, Con, Cleo and Ford compose the boys' quartet. Both these quartets have had experience and each member is a good singer.

The Glee clubs have received their music and are working on their selections. The Senior high glee club is working on two different selections, "Gypsy Love Song," by Victor Herbert and "Who Is Sylvia," by Schubert. The other glee clubs are working on lighter selections. Music has been ordered for the operetta, "College Days," which Miss White will present some time this fall.

Electra News

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smith of Electra announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Nadine, to J. B. Darland on Oct. 20 at Grandfield, Okla.

Miss Smith has attended Electra High school a number of years and was one of the star players on the girls volley ball team. Mr. Darland is connected with the Philips Oil company. Both have a large circle of friends in Electra. They plan to make their home here.

The County Line school, according to Mr. Austin, one of the board of directors, will open Monday. The school will be held in several small buildings that have been moved there until the school building that was recently destroyed by fire can be rebuilt. The teachers of the school include Superintendent Matthews, Miss Margie Moore and Virgil Clynch.

James Thomas McDannald was one of the freshmen at Oklahoma university, Norman, Okla., who were issued football suits, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McDannald of this city. James Thomas is one of the letter men on the Electra Tiger team and graduated with the class of 1929. He writes that he is pledged to Kappa Sigma fraternity and is classified in the Petroleum Engineering department.

Mrs. Bessie La Poe received word Friday that her son, Alton Herrin, of this city, had been elected president of the sophomore class of North Texas State Teachers college at Denton. Alton is a graduate of Electra High school and was an athlete in track and field events. He attended school at Denton last year and was very popular in freshman athletics.

GEAR MAKER FLAYS GOLF

Mad Race for Pleasure Is Ruinous, He Says

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—"Too much golf."

That's one of the few things wrong with business today, in the opinion of George L. Markland, chairman of the Philadelphia Gear Works, and one of the 1,000 delegates attending the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers at the Roosevelt hotel.

"Fundamentally business is sound and getting better," said Mr. Markland in an exclusive interview this morning. "But"—he emphasized the "but."

"But too many business men and executives are afflicted with golfitis," he declared. "Why, they're more serious about golf than about their business.

"Form of Hysteria"

"This country is not going to produce Andrew Carnegies, Charlie Schwabs, J. Pierpont Morgans, Henry Fords and John Wanamakers on the golf links. No, sir! And take the Carnegies and the Wanamakers out of industry and industry will collapse."

The silver-haired, 61-year-old manufacturer (he calls himself "just a kid") warmed up to his subject.

"The country is in the throes of a mad race of pleasure. Golf, the movies, radios, world series, big football games, dancing—everybody thinking of how to have a good time and not enough thinking on how to use their hands and their brains.

Play Every Day

Mr. Markland recalled how, for years, when he was building up his gear business he was down to work at 6 a. m.

"Where do you find business men now at 6 a. m.?" he inquired. "On the golf links. One day a week for golf isn't enough any more. It's every day.

"And lot of these business men can't stand it, physically. It's tiring them out. They're all in when they reach their offices.

"Why, we had a business meeting scheduled here yesterday and a lot of the manufactures were absent. Where were they? Out playing golf and taking in the shows.

"I have always believed that a man gets more pleasure out of work—out of achievement—than out of play. I believe everyone should relax. If a busy man did not he would break down. Golf once in a while is all right but too much is all wrong."

Five-Day Week

The "hysteria" of Americans for a good time is also manifested by working men who are bent on establishing a five-day week, Mr. Markland said.

He also had a word or two for the people who are trying to get rich in the stock market so that they can have more leisure for play.

"Stay out of the market," he advised. "You (the general public) are being used for suckers. If you must buy stocks, chuck them in the safe and hold them. Don't speculate on margins. That's cream for the stock brokers and these investment houses."

PAVING AGREEMENT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15. (UP)—The state highway commission today made an agreement with a delegation from Ottawa county to pave two miles of highway 66 from Afton south.

DEATH RATE IS ON INCREASE

Census Bureau Refutes Contrary Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (UP)—Savants will study more closely the effect of the dizzy merry-go-round of machine age civilization with the surprising revelation that America's death rate is increasing.

The revelation, made in cold statistics of the U. S. census bureau, refuted the generally accepted theory that the rate was declining in this age of medical and scientific progress.

Although statistics from only 22 of the 48 states have been prepared by the census bureau, the death rate increased in every one of them. On the basis of reports from these states, the national death rate rose from 1,128 per 100,000 in 1927 to 1,191 in 1928.

Those who have contended the speedy, nervous life of today is taking its toll and offsetting advances made by science in conquering deadly diseases may find some ground for their theory in the increase of death from heart disease. Cancer, influenza and pneumonia also rank high in the causes of death. No average of causes of death among the states has been made.

Idaho was indicated as the healthiest of the states, having a mortality rate of only 765 per 100,000 last year and 709 the year before.

According to the bureau's estimates, a larger percentage of people died in New Hampshire last year than in any other state. Its ratio was 1,412 per 100,000. Arizona followed with 1,395.

NEW SIGNALS EXPECTED SOON

Traffic Lights and Street Markers Shipped

Arrival of the 13 new traffic signals and the new street signs to be placed at every intersection in Wichita Falls is expected within the next few days, it was announced Tuesday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

Notification of the shipment of the traffic signals has been received from the General Electric company and completion of the street signs is expected at once, Mr. Fairtrace said. Installation will require about 10 days or two weeks and work of erecting the signals and signs will begin immediately upon delivery.

The traffic signals will be placed at several additional intersections in the business district and at three crossings on Brook avenue in the residential section. Those in the residential part of the city will not be equipped with bells, as in the downtown section, but will change from red to green with only the intermediate amber light, it was explained. The street signs will be placed in such a manner as to be visible from any direction. They will consist of crossed name plates, bearing also the block number.

Material for Hollis Debating Team Arrives

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 15.—The Hollis High school, which is a member of the Oklahoma High School Debating league, has received material from the extension department of Oklahoma university for the debating teams.

The question for debate this year is, "Resolved, that installment buying of personal property as practiced in the United States today is both socially and economically desirable." Miss Katherine Hardy, expression teacher, will have charge of the enunciation, delivery, stage appearance, etc., of the teams and Ryan Kerr, high school principal, will instruct them in preparing their speeches and getting their material ready. Members of the debating team will be chosen later.

Schools and colleges in the United States are expected to spend $425,000,000 for new buildings this year.

Mother and Daughter Are Benefited by Orgatone

"I Feel One Hundred Per Cent Better and My Daughter Feels Fine," Says Mother

"Yes, I feel 100 per cent better, and I have only taken one bottle of Orgatone," said Mrs. Ysabel Ortez of 624 South First street, Waco, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone representative regarding the merits of the medicine.

"I am more than glad to let other people know of the benefits I have derived from Orgatone," she continued. "I was in a general run-down condition, and had indigestion so bad at times my whole body would ache, and I would have sharp, severe pains in the small of my back. I had to watch my food, and eat only the lightest of foods, and then it disagreed with me. I was nervous and restless and had gas on my stomach and bloating spells. I was going downhill rapidly and got to where I wasn't able to do my own housework.

"My daughter was in a run down condition and needed a good building up. We heard so much about Orgatone and decided to try it. We both feel fine now, and I'm 100 per cent better. I'm not bothered with indigestion as I was, and eat just anything I care to. I am very much stronger now, and can do all of my own housework. I feel fine over the wonderful results I have obtained. I have tried many different kinds of medicines and treatments, and none did me any good, until I got hold of Orgatone. Orgatone has done so much for my daughter and myself I am telling all my friends about it, and hope other other people will profit by my experience."

On the other hand, Will's weekly comment last Sunday contained a goodly ration of up-to-date information on Hollywood's favorite industry, and if you didn't read it, dig out the Sunday paper and spend 10 minutes getting better informed.

Particularly interesting is the Claremore wise-cracker's observations anent the double-width film and triple width screen with which the William Fox company promise to revolutionize the movie industry. The first material change to be effected for the "Grandeur" screen will be the reconstruction of motion picture show houses for its accommodation. Using specially designed cameras and projecting machines, the new films have the advantage of reproducing the action of a much larger area than can be shown with the old type. On a "Grandeur" screen, views of the world series games would show not only the elongated old Howard Ehmke unfolding for the delivery of a slow ball, but would reveal Al Simmons nervously waiting in left field and peppery Jimmy Fox dancing around first base—all at once, without changing flashes.

Critics who have witnessed the results of wide-film photography and projection at the old "Gaiety" theater in New York see in it definite possibilities for great improvement in the motion picture's ability to reproduce great pageants of action. For indoor scenes, such as are used almost exclusively now in the talking pictures, full stage effects may be used without sacrificing proportion and perspective. Best of all, it promises to eliminate closeups. (Then what will Colleen Moore do?)

◇ ◇ ◇

Will's observations also furnish support for our strong objections to inane titles, selected presumably with the thought that half a dozen adolescent slang words may profitably be used to designate any kind of a show. Among other illustrations, the Follies cowboy registers astonishment at finding Ring Lardner's very appealing yarn, "Elmer the Great," playing in the talking-films (Jack Oakie and Evelyn Brent) behind the idiotic title of "Fast Company." Incidentally, of course, we think it very well of Mr. Rogers to adopt the position formerly advanced in this column that the title hung on that estimable baseball yarn drove away more customers than it brought in.

◇ ◇ ◇

While strolling over the hills of ancient Greece, in the rural districts surrounding Athens, old man Diogenes probably never had the faintest suspicion that a talkie "short" in 1929 A. D. would occasion the retirement of his famous lantern. Yet even so has it transpired. For the Paramount short, "Highlowbrow" at the Majestic this week speaks right out and tells the weary young business man to stay home nights and read good books instead of seeking entertainment at the shows. To point the point, brief dramatized episodes from tales by Guy de Maupassant, Lord Dunsany and O. Henry are shown. After hearing "Highlowbrow," however, we would suggest that when Diogenes gets back home, he send Demosthenes at once to Hollywood. There should be a large class available, and the Pacific coast would furnish abundant pebbles.

◇ ◇ ◇

Reels and reels of films shot in and near the speedway at Indianapolis presumably on last Memorial day enters into "Speedway," now showing at the Majestic. Of course, they had to be broken up a good bit to allow William Haines to do some more of his cute little tricks, so that the suspense aroused by dozens of racing cars, hurtling at dizzy speed round the oval, sort of bogs down. The trouble with the picture is that William was just too full of cute tricks. He probably never had suspected before how perfectly killing he was at being just a big, good-natured boy, brimming over with good humor and a preposterous capacity for jokes. The spirit of Mr. Haines' performance mixes with the atmosphere of America's greatest automobile derby just about the way delicious castor oil blends with water.

Police Officer's Testimony Acquits Man of Driving While Intoxicated

The trial of Alfred Jennings, charged with driving while intoxicated, Tuesday afternoon ended in an acquittal after John Lowry, city officer and one of the complaining witnesses, admitted on the stand that he couldn't swear which of two men in the automobile was driving at the time of the arrest last April. Jennings, represented by Earl Kuntz, attorney, pleaded not guilty to the charge, but presented no testimony, the defense relying on the cross examination of state witnesses. A second indictment on another charge of driving while drunk was returned against Jennings by the 30th district grand jury last week and will be tried within a few weeks, George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, announced Monday afternoon.

The Jennings case was the second called in the 30th district court Tuesday, an earlier jury having returned a five year suspended sentence against P. E. Wood, 17-year-old youth accused of forgery. Mike Anglin and Mr. Anderson, assistant district attorneys, did not oppose the recommendation for the suspended sentence. A second indictment, charging another forgery, will not be pressed so long as the youthful defendant stays out of trouble, members of the district attorney's office said. Wood, wanted by local authorities, surrendered here several weeks ago because he was tired of "dodging," he told the state's attorney.

KENNEDY FREE ON $500 BOND

Wichitan Indicted for Perjury, Barratry

Attorneys for R. I. Kennedy, indicted last week on barratry and perjury charges, Tuesday morning arranged two $500 bonds for the defendant, according to information given by Sheriff W. G. Bralley. The charges grew out of the testimony given by Kennedy in a recent barratry charge brought against E. A. Martin, local attorney, in the county court-at-law. Martin was found not guilty.

As one of the principal defense witnesses in the earlier trial, Kennedy, local insurance salesman, told the jury of his part in bringing the attorney into communication with Mrs. John A. McCarty in connection with a proposed damage suit following the death of Mr. McCarty last July. The indictments against him here allege that the testimony was untrue and that the actions of the agent constituted "inciting to litigation" and an act of barratry.

SEASON OPENS

Police Hunt Thief Who Took Equipment of Duck Hunter

Duck season has begun—among the criminal element in Wichita Falls as well as among the law abiding.

At least one thief began his hunting early, and while hunting around in the apartment of B. Meltzer, 909 Bluff street, he ran across an automatic shotgun, which was just the thing for duck hunting. But to make the hunting trip complete, one must have accessories. So the hunting thief hunted a bit further and found a leather jacket, which is appropriate for the best duck hunting days, when the first norther has brought the mallards and the lines of geese southward.

Mr. Meltzer reported the theft to police, who are now doing a bit of hunting on their own part.

Prized Herefords Seen At Northwest Texas Fair

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 15.—R. V. Colbert and son of Stamford exhibited at the Northwest Texas fair here several head of registered Hereford cattle. One of the individuals was a yearling heifer "Lovely 16th" sired by Superior 30th, 1193232, son of the great herd bull Superior Mischief, for which Pat Sullivan of Denver, Colo., paid Mousel brothers $22,000 in 1920. The dam of "Lovely 16th" is "Lovely 5th" from Jewell and Jowell's herd out of Domino Jr. and "Lovely 4th" by the great herd bull "Beau President" owned by Gudgell and Simpson. This very superior type individual "Lovely 16th" from the Colbert herd was given to the Texas Technological college following the Spur fair, and will add very materially to the college herd.

Electra Man Held On Charge of Forgery

Charles E. Fowler, indicted on forgery charges in connection with the signature on a $400 note presented in Electra early last year, was brought to the Wichita county jail from Electra Tuesday afternoon in the custody of Sheriff W. G. Bralley. Fowler is accused of having gained possession of a truck load of furniture belonging to S. L. Orr by presenting a $400 note purporting to bear Mr. Orr's signature. He has been at large for more than a year since his indictment here.
