Reagan still studying defense cuts

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, choosing among three Pentagon options for trimming defense spending, met with his economic advisers today for an overall assessment of the nation's economy before deciding how deep the cuts will have to be.

"I think there can be some cuts in every place," Reagan said Monday. But lowered spending, he added, "does not mean there will be a retreat from our determination to rebuild the military."

Reagan met today with Vice President George Bush; budget director David A. Stockman; Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige; domestic adviser Martin Anderson, and senior White House aides to get an update on economic developments.

Asked during a photo session at the beginning of the meeting how things look on the economic front, the president said, "That's what I'm going to find out."

Pressed for any indication of the outlook, Reagan looked around the room and said of his advisers: "They're all smiling."

But he said the administration's original proposal to cut "somewhere in the neighborhood of $70 billion" from the fiscal 1983 and 1984 budgets "hasn't changed at all."

The president didn't mention that Stockman has launched a search for new cuts in appropriations for fiscal 1982, which begins next month. Congress is just starting work on those appropriations bills, and the administration hopes to offset the effect of continued high interest rates and slowed economic growth by limiting spending even more than Congress already agreed to in its budget bills earlier this year.

The Pentagon options, awaiting the president when he returned from a Labor Day trip to New York, were characterized by deputy press secretary Larry Speakes as "low, medium and high."

The Office of Management and Budget had suggested alternative spending reductions for fiscal 1983 of about $4 billion to about $10 billion and in fiscal 1984 from $8.5 billion to $17.2 billion.

Top Reagan aides have said the president is prepared to cut up to $30 billion from the projected defense budget for those two years as part of a broader plan to further trim federal spending as he continues to aim for a balanced budget in 1984.

Stockman favors the larger cuts, but Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger wants his funds slashed as little as possible. Their disagreement has become public and bitter.

"There's not really any bickering, it loses something in translation," Reagan said Monday after he returned from New York. "Everybody's got their ideas and opinions and we openly debate them but I think you'll find there's a great sympatico and great accord among them. They'll all go for the decision."

The morning meeting with Stockman and Weidenbaum was the start of a busy post-vacation week for Reagan.

He scheduled a working lunch with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig and Weinberger to prepare for the two-day visit of Israel Prime Minister Menachem Begin that starts Wednesday. It will be the first meeting between the two leaders.

Begin told reporters in New York, "We are going to see President Reagan and bring to him our case against the AWACS."

The Reagan administration wants to sell five of the sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia, a sale that the Jewish nation vehemently opposes.

Stockman and Weinberger will meet with Reagan on Wednesday to discuss the defense budget.

Singing out their support

A group of activists joins in a chorus of "We Shall Overcome," demonstrating their support for 21 peaceful protesters who intentionally walked through the pictured barrier at the Waste Isolatin Pilot Project site near Carlsbad, N.M.

WIPP marchers to be arraigned

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Arraignments were being held today before Magistrate H.H. Linneweh for 29 people arrested during a peaceful demonstration at the site of a proposed nuclear waste facility.

Those arrested Monday at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant site comprised seven newspeople, a freelance journalist and 21 demonstrators, said Eddy County Sheriff Jack Childress.

The demonstrators were part of a group of about 150 people protesting the site of the WIPP, a proposed low-level nuclear waste repository about 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad.

All 29 were booked at the county jail on criminal trespass charges, Childress said.

Kenneth McCormick, who identified himself as an Albuquerque freelance journalist, and Janet Greewald of Albuquerque, additionally were charged with failure to obey a police officer and resisting arrest, authorities said.

Joe McGough, WIPP project engineer for the U.S. Department of Energy in Albuquerque, said late Monday he intended to have his assistant, Roger Bintaman, appear in court to drop charges against the media representatives.

He told the Carlsbad Current-Argus that the DOE "had no intention for the media to be arrested" and said the agency may have overlooked a critical point leading to the arrest of the media.

Childress said he was under orders from the DOE to arrest anyone crossing the buffer zone at the WIPP site.

The plant is a $1 billion federal project designed as the first repository in underground salt beds for low-level nuclear waste generated from the nation's weapons program. Contractor crews are sinking a shaft and construction has been under way since early summer.

The arrests came after protesters entered a "no-man's land" between a series of wooden barricades and the fenced-off site.

About 40 law enforcement officers were lined up between the fence and the barricade, which was festooned with no-trespassing signs, Childress said.

There also were placards reading "Caution Rattlesnake Area" outside the barricade.

The 21 protesters entered the buffer area in three waves of seven each, arms linked, and the reporters and photographers followed.

Philadelphia teachers picketing; Boston strike delayed

Layoffs, wage freezes at issue in walkouts, threatened strikes in three states

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia teachers angry over layoffs and wage freezes set up picket lines today, while a walkout threatened in Boston over the same issues was postponed for two weeks.

Teachers elsewhere in Pennsylvania and in Michigan were also on strike.

"The mood of the teachers is ugly," said Mel Driban, a vice president of the 22,000-member Philadelphia Federation of Teachers. School starts Thursday for the city's 224,000 students, and teachers were due in today to start preparing.

"This is not the strike that we're used to being involved in," Driban said. "Our contract has been abrogated."

Philadelphia's 13,000 teachers struck for 22 days last year. The rest of the union members are not teachers.

Picket lines went up before dawn, with about 100 teachers blocking the four entrances of the school administration building where about 30 administrators, including School Superintendent Michael Marcase, had spent the night.

Elliott Alexander, an information specialist for the school district, said officials have not yet decided whether classes will open on schedule.

School board attorney Eugene Brazil filed a motion today seeking a a court order limited picketing at the school administration building.

City Councilman John Street also went to court this morning, seeking to force the teachers back to work immediately, on grounds that the walkout posed a threat to public health and safety.

Community organizers were setting up strike schools in churchs, storefronts and private homes around the city. About 7,000 children had been registered for the half-day classes, according to the West Philadelphia-Wynnewood Political and Educational Caucus.

Picket lines were set up at school district offices and at the district's 270 school buildings, union officials said.

The dispute centers on the Philadelphia school district's plan to lay off 3,500 workers and deny teachers a 10 percent wage increase promised in a two-year contract reached after last year's strike.

School administrators, facing an estimated $223 million budget deficit, say they do not have the money to grant the raises. Philadelphia teachers earn an average of $24,443 for a 10-month year.

In Boston, where school starts Wednesday, teachers voted to strike in two weeks unless their dispute with the city is settled.

"We're willing to go the extra mile," Kathleen Kelley, president of the Boston Teachers Union, said Monday after a closed, five-hour union meeting called to take a strike vote.

About 2,500 teachers, by a show of hands, authorized the union's executive committee to call a strike Sept. 21, unless "circumstances change and the crisis we face is resolved," Ms. Kelley said.

The union is angered by layoffs of approximately 1,000 teachers and a freeze on wages, measures the School Committee said were required to meet budget cutbacks.

Earlier this month, the Boston union's leadership urged that teachers strike today, one day before the city's 119 schools open their doors for 60,000 students. Ms. Kelley said the union's executive board met Sunday night and decided to recommend postponing the strike, while seeking to reach an agreement with the city.

A motion to strike today was rejected by a loud voice vote Monday. The base salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and 10 years of teaching experience is $21,195.

About 21,000 Michigan school children were out of classes today as teacher strikes began in four districts and continued in two others.

In the Fraser public schools, 320 teachers struck, delaying opening; schools didn't open on schedule today in the Huron Valley district as 450 teachers failed to report; teachers also struck in Madison Heights today and in Walled Lake. Teachers who walked out last week in the Decatur and Sanilac districts remained off the job today.

A total of 18,166 teachers in the state have no contracts, said Harry Boyes of the union. He estimated strikes by those teachers could idle 368,561 pupils in 129 districts.

Excluding Philadelphia, 1,359 teachers in nine districts remained on strike in Pennsylvania, affecting 25,800 students.

Most of the strikes stemmed from wage disagreements or failure to reach contracts. Teachers in the Lehighton Area School District in northeastern Pennsylvania struck over demands for a pupil-teacher ratio in their contract.

In Illinois, classes were set to resume in one district and begin as scheduled in another today after settlements with striking teachers e in O'Fallon over wages ratified a contract Monday with School District 90. Since the 78 teachers walked off their jobs on Aug. 25, classes had been canceled for 1,700 elementary and junior high school students.

In Texas, the fruit fly search remains 'fruitless'

DALLAS (AP) — Texans are waging a fruitless search for the Mediterranean fruit fly — and state agriculture officials say they have fielded calls from hundreds of people convinced they have found the first fly in the Lone Star State.

But none of the insect finds will fly, said E.W. Wesley, of the Dallas district of the agriculture department.

"We've seen everything but Mediterranean fruit flies," Wesley said.

"The first question we åsk is what size the alleged fruit fly is," said Mark Trostle, Texas medfly program director. "If it's 4 inches long, we rule it out."

The fruit fly is smaller than a housefly, and its larvae are maggots, not worms. California officials are battling the destructive mite with Malathion to quash its spread.

"I tell them they are smaller than a house fly with colors of brown, yellow and black," said Mary Ann De Grant, who screens medfly inquiries for the agriculture department in Houston.

"Their wings are iridescent. If they keep telling me that's what they have, we send somebody out there and have it analyzed. Everybody in Houston thinks they've seen a medfly," she said.

"One man was worried about the medfly being a danger to his health. I told him it won't hurt a thing if a medfly lands on him."

"People are very concerned about the whole thing," Trostle said. "They see the price of produce going up, their tax money being spent. The people of Texas don't want to spend a hundred million to solve the problem."

But Dr. John Owens, entomologist at the Texas A&M Extension Service in Dallas, has a different theory. He says people are disappointed that they have found something besides the tenacious medfly.

Weather delays some flights

The sudden onset of thundershowers in the Permian Basin has not only caused some problems on the ground, but also in the air.

Bill Hill, chief control tower supervisor at Midland Regional Airport, reported "some delays in flights" today because of the weather.

"Weather is definitely a factor causing some delays," Hill said. "But not because of our center here. The flow of traffic is experiencing delays from Fort Worth Center."

Hill said the tower crew expected these delays Friday when the forecast was projected. He added the weather factor is "more significant now that there are fewer controllers" in the tower than before Midland's 18 Professional Air Traffic Air Controllers' Organization members chose to participate in the Aug. 3 strike.

However, the tower has been continually rebuilding its workforce, and Hill announced today a controller from Hobbs, N.M., will report to work Wednesday.

"The controller is part of the bargaining unit who chose not to participate in the strike," Hill said.

The control tower is now staffed with 14 controllers plus Hill, falling four short of the original crew. But Hill said there will be four military controllers arriving in the future.

Chance for rain showers decreasing

After a long holiday weekend of threatening skies and occasional showers, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting decreasing clouds and cooler temperatures tonight. No chance of rain is mentioned for tonight or Wednesday.

As of this morning, the recorded rainfall at the NWS for the last 24 hours was .58 of an inch. This brings the total for the year to 11.14 inches. According to the NWS, this amount is running "pretty close to normal for this time of the year." The average annual rainfall for this time is 13.51.

Recorded rainfall in the area was varied. Midland College reported 1.8 inches while at El Paso Natural Gas in Midkiff, an employee said they received "maybe" a quarter of an inch. The gauge at Midland Farmer's Cooperative registered .85 of an inch and in Warfield, west of Midland, it registered .75 of an inch.

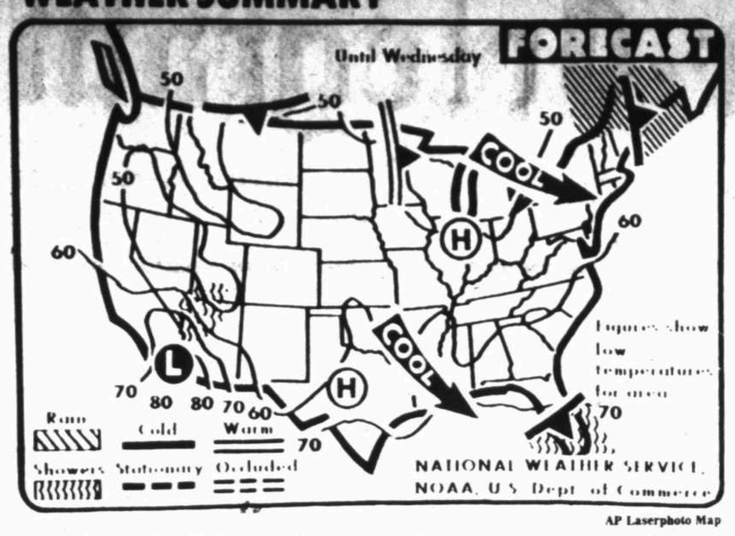

It will be partly cloudy and a little warmer Wednesday. The low tonight will dip down into the lower 50s with the high on Wednesday climbing into the middle 80s.

Winds will become light and variable tonight and Wednesday.

Monday's high temperature of 89 degrees was 10 degrees short of the record high of 99 set in 1930. The record low of 55 set in 1957 was 11 degrees cooler than the recorded low of 66.

Reagan reviewing tax-raising proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, which made cutting taxes its economic hallmark, is reviewing an array of tax-raising proposals that the president may find irresistible if he still hopes to balance the budget by 1984.

Under preliminary consideration at the Treasury Department are crackdowns on tax cheating and other abuses, increases in excise taxes on tobacco and alcohol and restrictions on income tax interest deductions.

R. Tim McNamar, deputy secretary of the treasury, said in an interview that the department is reviewing "a catalogue" of tax-raising ideas from which "we will pick and choose."

Stressing that neither top Treasury officials nor the president have approved any of the proposals, McNamar said it is possible that a "revenue raiser" bill would be submitted to Congress this fall, just months after the administration won the largest tax cut in U.S. history.

The administration soon will try for a second time to raise user fees for private aiated facilities and equipment, McNamar said.

President Reagan proposed in March to raise user fees by $2.1 billion in fiscal 1982. Congress refused. McNamar said the administration will come back with its original proposals plus some new user fee increases that could bring in an additional $1 billion.

The user fee announced later this month, with deeper 1982 spending cuts the administration will seek to keep the projected budget deficit from ballooning to $60 billion or more in the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. Initial administration estimates put the deficit at $42.5 billion.

McNamar said more tax-cutting proposals also are under consideration, such as a tuition tax cple who send their children to private schools. However, the cost of such proposals could be more than offset by revenue-raising plans, he said.

Seeking tax increases could be politically embarrassing for a president who has blamed higher taxes for choking economic expansion. But they may be the only way for Reagan to balance the federal budget by 1984 as he ged to do.

Most economists outside the administration predict that Reagan's mix of military spending increases and tax cuts will guarantee bigger and bigger deficits down the road — a prospect that could sustain interest rates at historic highs for the indefinite future.

Reagan has vowed to keep trimming federal spending. But it is questionable whether he can Congress to offset rising interest rates, which drive up government borrowing costs, and a tax cut that will slash revenues by some $280 billion in the next three years.

It is understood that the list of proposals the Treasury Department is considering would increase revenues by more than $50 billion in fiscal 1983. One of the proposals under study would raise excise taxes on cigarettes and alcohol by $7 billion.

Another proposal would limit the amount of interest costs that could be deducted from income taxes. Among the possibilities are disallowing deductions for mortgage interest on a second home or comercial property, or limiting the total amount of interest that could be deductration also is considering many ideas for dealing with tax abuses related to the growing "underground economy," in which people avoid paying taxes by conducting non-recorded cash transactions.

"We're studying everything" dealing with abuses, he said, such as a requirement that no deductions be allowed unless they can be verified by a chstrictions on interest-free loans made between family members.

"We don't have to make a very big improvement in this area to raise enough revenues so if you did the first 10 things on (tax-cutting) reforms, you'd still have a net revenue raiser," he said.

McNamar said the administration might try to get tax increases throuthe end of enact in time for the 1982 elections.

Members of Congress are sure to be skittish about voting for tax increases so soon after voting to cut taxes. But McNamar said they may be amenable to the idea because of public pressure to do something that will lower interest rates.

"If Congress comes back in the mood I think it's in, I think there's a window of opportunity," he said.

Nurses charged with 'mercy killing'

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — The pain for cancer patient Norma Leanues was so severe the night of May 18, 1980, that hospital workers heard her cries echo down the hallways. As the patient's husband kept vigil, a nurse eased her suffering with an injection.

The 54-year-old mother of four died sometime during the night — a victim, the death certificate said, of runaway cancer.

But Wednesday, Anne Capute, a 44-year-old licensed practical nurse, is to go on trial on charges of murdering Mrs. Leanues.

The cause of death, according to Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina, was morphine sulfate, the powerful drug used to quench the fire of terminal pain.

Mrs. Capute, a nurse with three years' experience, has said she was following the doctor's orders when she injected Mrs. Leanues with what she claimed was less medication than was contained in previous doses.

Two other nurses who were on duty with Mrs. Capute are also charged. Registered nurses Nancy Robbins, 26, of Taunton and Judith Foley, 30, of Foxboro were indicted with Mrs. Capute last August on charges of murder and illegally distributing and administering a controlled substance.

Both have pleaded innocent and face separate trials in the case that Pina, a former state legislator, says could set needed standards in the way doctors and hospitals care for terminally ill patients.

Mrs. Capute's trial is expected to be a long one with the likelihood that jury selection will take a week.

Defense attorney Pat Piscitelli said the long-delayed trial comes as a relief to his client, who was suspended from Morton Hospital in Taunton after the investigation. Mrs. Capute, a mother of seven, has been unable to find another nursing job.

Piscitelli — a Brockton attorney who once represented Albert DeSalvo, the reputed Boston Strangler — disagrees with Pina's assessment that the case could set a national precedent.

"It's significant for what he's trying to make it," said Piscitelli. "From my estimate the woman did what any nurse does: comply with a doctor's order to make the patient comfortable."

The trial is at least the third case in recent years in which hospital personnel were accused of the "mercy killings" of their patients.

In 1979 Mary Rose Robaczynski, a 24-year-old nurse at Maryland General Hospital in Baltimore was charged with murder for allegedly stopping a patient's respirator. A mistrial was declared and the state dropped the charges after Ms. Robaczynski agreed to surrender her nursing license.

Last year, Jani Adams, a nurse at a Las Vegas hospital, was charged with disconnecting a patient's life support system in a case dubbed "the Angel of Death." The charges against the 32-year-old nurse were thrown out because of lack of evidence.

This year, state and local officials began investigating 25 mysterious deaths of elderly patients at Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris, Calif. The investigation, expanded to several other hospitals, found that at least nine deaths may have been caused by lethal doses of lidocaine, a drug commonly used to regulate erratic heart beats.

No one has been charged so far in that case.

An irony in the Massachusetts case is that some medical experts believe Mrs. Leanues was not terminally ill.

Mrs. Leanues discovered she had cancer after undergoing hip surgery in 1979. Medical evidence gathered after her death showed the cancer had spread from an undiagnosed tumor in her breast.

She received radiation treatment in Rhode Island but returned to Morton — a 200-bed facility in the southeastern corner of the state — for an operation to remove a malignant tumor from her spine.

She died two weeks after the operation. The cause of death was listed as lung and bone cancer.

But four days after she died, hospital officials began an internal investigation, stating publicly that they had discovered the "possible intentional overdose sedation of a terminally ill patient."

Pina had the body exhumed six weeks later and state pathologist Ambrose Keeley found no evidence of cancer in the woman's vital organs. Keeley, an important witness in the case, died this summer, forcing a three-month delay in the trial.

When a grand jury was convened, witnesses included cancer specialist Dr. Robert Green of Boston's New England Deaconess Hospital. After appearing before the panel, Green told reporters Mrs. Leanues might have lived for several years with the proper treatment.

While the grand jury was considering the information, The Brockton Enterprise published a copyright story quoting transcripts from hospital interviews with nurses involved in the case.

One nurse was quoted as saying she was only trying to help the patient — not kill her. But the transcripts also quoted her as saying "I just wanted to stop her suffering...she had enough MS (morphine sulfate) to kill an elephant....I knew I killed her the next morning."

The nurse was not identified.

Mrs. Capute has denied the statements were hers.

Jewelry, stereo equipment stolen from Midland home

The theft of $4,700 worth of jewelry and stereo equipment from a Midland residence was reported to police Sunday evening.

Eugene Andrews of 2826 Durant Drive told police his home was entered through a north window Saturday night. Burglars reportedly took a large amount of stereo equipment including two tape decks, a television, a video cassette recorder and several pieces of jewelry.

The burglars reportedly left the residence through a north door.

Police, Fire Roundup

Midland firemen responded to a fire call just before 8 p.m. Sunday at the home of Thomas Friday, 1205 W. Missouri Ave.

Owner of the residence reportedly was removing a gasoline tank from a car parked in the garage when gasoline spilled from the tank was ignited by the nearby hot water heater. Firemen fought the blaze more than an hour, finally extinguishing it with 300 gallons of water.

The fire caused heavy damage to the interior of the garage and some contents. It also damaged the left quarter and rear of the car, fire reports indicated.

A fire shortly before noon Sunday at the residence of Ray Tant, 4504 Andrews Highway, caused moderate damage to a horse shed.

Fire reports indicated the shed, constructed of tin on wood, was blazing when firemen arrived, but was quickly extinguished with 325 gallons of water. Cause of the blaze was unknown.

Odessa man charged in death

ODESSA — A 21-year-old Odessa man surrendered to Odessa police Monday in connection with the Sunday shooting death of Maria Anna Olivas Ulate, about 19.

Police officials said Roberto Jimenez Castillo surrendered to them about 2:30 p.m. Monday. Later, Castillo, who is charged with first degree felony murder in the case, was released on $25,000 bond.

Police were called to 613 W. 9th St. about 8:45 p.m. Sunday by neighbors who reported hearing a gunshot. Miss Ulate was found inside the residence. She had been shot once in the left chest, officials said.

She was taken to Medical Center Hospital where she died two hours later.

Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee ordered an autopsy. Castillo was charged before Peace Justice Jimmy Harris.

Police say the shooting may have been the result of a domestic quarrel.

3-year-old boy shoots infant sister with revolver

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 3-year-old boy who found a .357 Magnum revolver in his grandfather's home accidentally killed his 18-month-old sister, police said.

The victim, Jennifer Maynard, was shot by her brother Joshua shortly before 7 p.m. Monday in the apartment of John Maynard, investigators reported.

They said the children were playing on a bed when the boy found the weapon in the drawer of a nightstand.

He pulled the gun from the drawer and was playing with it when it discharged, striking the baby in the neck, police said.

They said Maynard was caring for the children while their parents attended a movie. They said he was in another room when the shooting occurred.

Weakened Hurricane Floyd whirls past Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Islanders shuttered storm windows and schools were closed here today as a tamed Hurricane Floyd whirled through the western Atlantic bearing 75 mph winds.

Meanwhile, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands felt the effects of tropical storm Gert, which was moving through the northeast Caribbean.

"People are pretty well drilled here," said Sgt. John Instone at Bermuda Police Headquarters. "And Floyd has apparently lost his punch."

Instone said the winds apparently had shifted and the brunt of the storm would be felt about 60 nautical miles south of Bermuda. A light drizzle fell this morning.

"Of course these things are very fickle," he said.

About "2,000 tourists seasoned" to tropical storms were "stranded" today, Instone said. "They're just enjoying an extra day," he added. There were reports that some airlines had cancelled flights to and from the island today.

Businesses were open today and the sergeant said Bermudians and their guests "are playing it by ear."

Forecasters had earlier predicted Floyd's center would pass this morning just south of Bermuda, which has 55,000 residents and 10,000 visitors.

The hurricane's winds had dropped from 100 mph to 75 mph, said Miles Lawrence, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Floyd is just a minimal hurricane now," Lawrence said. "It also looks like the organization of Floyd's clouds was interrupted by the wind field from Emily."

Emily, slowly weakening, was downgraded Monday from a hurricane to a tropical storm in the North Atlantic.

"Bermuda's probably not going to get it too bad, although it's not absolutely clear yet what's going to happen," Lawrence said.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the center of Floyd was near latitude 31.0 north and longitude 66.0 west, or about 100 miles southwest of Bermuda. It was moving northeast at about 10 mph.

Small craft were advised to remain in port in Bermuda, largest in a chain of 20 inhabited islands located more than 500 miles east of South Carolina in the Atlantic Ocean.

Floyd formed late Thursday north of the Virgin Islands. It became the sixth storm of the season Friday. On Saturday, it became the third hurricane.

Meanwhile, a depression just west of the island of Guadeloupe grew into tropical storm Gert on Monday and threatened to bring gale force winds, heavy rain and rough seas to the Leeward Islands. Forecasters said gale warnings may also be needed over the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico later today.

"This is the kind of system from which we do get our hurricanes," Lawrence said of Gert. "It's moving across the islands of the Lesser Antilles, and storms have been known to strengthen in these islands."

Gert's highest winds were about 45 mph, with gales extending out 50 miles to the north and 25 miles to the south. Small craft in the Leeward Islands, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico were advised to stay in port.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Gert was centered near latitude 16.0 north and longitude 63.5 west, or 240 miles southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. Forecasters said Gert, moving almost due west at 20 mph, was expected to turn gradually toward the northwest sometime during the day.

Emily's highest winds, sapped by chilly ocean waters, were estimated at 55 mph as it moved toward the east-northeast at 10 mph.

At 6 a.m. EDT Emily was located about 260 miles south-southwest of St. Johns, Newfoundland, near latitude 43.1 north, longitude 51.7 west.

The hurricane brought rain and high winds to Nova Scotia's Atlantic coast Sunday, but no damage or injuries were reported.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Teen-age pregnancy is risky

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 19 years old, married and pregnant. I recently finished reading about the complications of pregnancy in teen-agers, and the story just didn't make sense. I'm still a teen-ager even though I am married, and my obstetrician says he sees no problems. How do you explain this? — Alice, New York, N.Y.

Dear Alice: There are teen-agers and there are teen-agers. I'm not going to defend the story you refer to because I haven't read it, but I think there are some facts we might agree on.

An adolescent girl generally is not fully matured until about four years after menarche (the onset of menstruation). Therefore, girls who become pregnant within this four-year period are felt to be at risk of complications such as anemia if they become pregnant.

The reasons for this are clear. In the first place, the adolescent girl is still growing, more so than at any other time in her life. Secondly, the pregnancy in itself is a period of rapid growth of both fetal and maternal tissue. The situation is further aggravated if, as often happens, the girl has been subject to poor diet and inadequate health care.

Of course, if the onset of menstruation occurred at age 14, for example, the teen-ager would have reached her full stature by the time she was 18 years.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I learned that my child has diabetes, I was so overwhelmed I could hardly think straight. I have an awful lot of questions, but what I'd like to know now is how it happened? — Mrs. M.H., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Mrs. H.: I'm sorry I cannot give you a definite answer to your question. It used to be thought that diabetes was strictly a hereditary disease. However, some recent research suggests that certain viruses, in addition to an inherited susceptibility, may play a part.

The one statement I can make with certainty is that nothing you did — or did not do — caused the condition.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've heard that married men generally are healthier than single men. Is there any evidence that the same holds true for women? — Jack, Tucson, Ariz.

Dear Jack: Dr. Lois M. Verbrugge, a researcher at the University of Michigan, reports that married women are indeed healthier than single women. Moreover, she says that women who work are healthier than those who do not work; and those who are employed, married and have children are the healthiest of all. Homemakers and divorces or separated women have the poorest health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've tried using flavorings instead of salt because my husband has a tendency to high blood pressure. Now I'm told that soy sauce contains salt. Is this something else I have to cross off my list? — Kate, Seattle, Wash.

Dear Kate: Some flavorings, such as soy sauce, do contain relativley large amounts of sodium. How about trying herbs, spices and lemon juice?

(Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Research team claim first successful transfer of genes between animals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientific team using rabbits and mice claims to have made the first successful gene transfer between animals, the Washington Post reported today.

Describing the DNA experiment as a "history-making first," the newspaper said it was carried out by a group of researchers headed by Dr. Thomas E. Wagner of Ohio University, who says he is now working on gene transfers in cattle.

In the past, scientists have reported such transfers involving yeast, bacteria and at least one pair of plant species — beans and sunflowers.

Wagner was quoted as saying his team tranferred hemoglobin genes — which govern the blood's oxygen-carrying molecules — from rabbits to mice.

Wagner said that segments of rabbit DNA making up the hemoglobin gene were injected into mouse sperm just after the sperm cells had penetrated eggs and just before the male mouse genes began combining with female mouse genes.

"This is the one time in an animal's entire life history when it is normal for it to accept foreign genetic material," Wagner was quoted as saying.

Business of peace

A recent front page in The Reporter-Telegram was graphic testimony to the violence that increasingly plagues the nations of the world and, at times it seems, threatens to consume mankind.

The bombings that have rocked widely separated points in recent days are just one indication that the world is becoming a more violent place. Newspapers do not create the news, they report it. They reflect the world as it is.

Sometimes, as illustrated lately, that reflection is an unpleasant one. It shows the ugliness of mankind; hatred for fellow man and inability to live together in peace and harmony and deal effectively with the problems of the day; his weakness of will when it comes to refraining from violence directed at his fellow man.

Who is responsible for dealing with the violence of man, for keeping nations from warring with their neighbors, for bringing warring neighbors to the negotiating table to reach a peace settlement, or speaking out against human rights violations and for taking positive action to end acts of terrorism? Obviously no one person, no one nation could embark on such an endeavor with any hope for an acceptable degree of success.

Rather, that is a task for a body comprised of representatives of the various nations. The United Nations is such a body, but it has been embroiled increasingly during recent years in ineffectual pursuits and petty bickering that have led it away from its original purpose — promotion of world peace and security, and the betterment of mankind.

Those goals are elusive, but not impossible to achieve. It's time to return the United Nations to the purpose for which it was intended, and for that body to get back to the business of peace.

Filling the reserve

The government's new contract with Pemex, the Mexican state oil monopoly, will not fill this country's strategic oil reserve, but it's an important step.

Under the contract, the government will buy 24 million barrels of Mexican oil before the end of this year and will purchase 50,000 barrels a day through 1986. Since a reserve of 750 million barrels is regarded as adequate protection against sudden interruptions in world oil shipments — roughly the equivalent of 100 days of imports at current levels — the Mexican contract provides only a small fraction of the needs during the five-year life of the contract.

What's more significant than the numbers, however, is the administration's resolve to begin moving on the reserve, despite the official objections of Saudi Arabia and other OPEC suppliers. Those objections until now had all but blocked action on filling the reserve, despite congressional mandates requiring the administration to begin filling it.

The contract comes at a time when the oil glut has held world prices down. The government recently paid a price of just over $31 a barrel, considerably below the OPEC price. In the face of the deep divisions within OPEC and the world surplus, it's not likely that this country's Arab oil suppliers will be able to do much more than complain.

The Mexican deal, coming coincidentally on the heels of the U.S.-Libyan shoot-out over the Mediterranean, is another indication that the psychological balance between oil producers and oil consumers has begun to tip. That may be only a temporary luxury for the West, a hiatus until the next embargo or next little war in the Middle East. But it surely is also an indication that if the West disciplines itself in its consumption of oil and its response to the producers, it can achieve a reasonable balance, if not superiority, in the petroleum war of nerves.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Patent bill favors pharmaceutical firms

WASHINGTON — The multibillion-dollar pharmaceutical industry has a number of faithful lackeys on Capitol Hill, but none is more influential than Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the 78-year-old chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Jack Anderson

Thurmond got $2,500 from Pfizer, an industry giant, in his last Senate campaign. Earlier this year, he did the drug companies a huge favor by holding lopsided hearings on special-interest legislation in their behalf. The bill negated a 1978 Supreme Court decision that allowed foreign governments to bring anti-trust suits against U.S. drug firms. Thurmond's hearings did not include any opposing witnesses.

More recently, Thurmond has been giving strong support to another piece of special-interest legislation that would benefit the pharmaceutical leviathans. It's called the Patent Life Restoration Act, and it could cost the drug-buying public millions of dollars. Under Thurmond's aegis, it passed the Senate with ease.

What the bill would do is extend a drug company's patent protection for seven years beyond the standard 17 — thus giving it freedom from competition for a substantially longer period than other patent holders.

On the face of it, the drug industry seems to have a good point. It argues that the government's requirement that drugs be proven both safe and effective forces the drug companies to spend years meeting the regulatory criteria — years that eat into the 17 year monopoly period.

Congressional supporters of the industry's position have cited an unfinished report by the Center for the Study of Drug Development in Rochester, N.Y. According to the center's study, effective patent life for new drugs dropped to an average of 9.5 years in 1979.

But the center is not exactly a neutral observer of the pharmaceutical field. Although the patent-life study is being financed by the government, the center itself gets about half of its funding from the drug industry.

Furthermore, the Rochester center's top man, William Wardell, has spent years testing drugs for such pharmaceutical giants as Merck, Lederle and Bristol.

And there is evidence that the center's estimate of 9.5 years as the effective life of a drug company's patent protection may quite simply be wrong. A draft report by the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment concludes that the effective patent life of eight top-selling drugs averaged more than 15 years.

In other words, the legislation extending patent protection for seven years would give drug companies more than five years of additional time to peddle their best-selling products without competition from generic drug manufacturers.

"The consumer will pay more for the drug during patent-term extension," the OTA report states. "Furthermore, some groups of consumers, the elderly and the chronically ill, will be disproportionately affected ..."

"It's a classic big steal," a generic drug industry spokesman told my associate John Dillon. "This is a case study of how you can con the whole Congress."

But the whole Congress hasn't been conned — yet. Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., plans to hold hearings in his oversight subcommittee of the House Science and Technology Committee. And part of his investigation will be a look at the Rochester center's finances.

"The only side being discussed is the pharmaceutical industry side," Gore said. "Clearly, the evidence is not what the industry would have you believe."

STILL PUNCHING: Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, the onetime middleweight boxer who was twice convicted of murder, still maintains he was fouled by the prosecution. From a prison cell in the New Jersey State Penitentiary, Carter told my reporter Ben Lay he is tired of "battling lies all these years," and looks forward to the possibility of yet another retrial.

Accused of killing three persons in a Paterson, N.J., bar in 1966, Carter insists he is innocent. "I didn't commit the crime," he said. "I was taken to the witnesses shortly after the shooting, and they said I didn't do it. I took lie detector tests administered by (the prosecutors') experts and passed. Yet somehow they still managed to manipulate this."

The lie detector tests are central to Carter's hopes for a new trial. He says he passed, but the results were lost; and the prosecutors reported that he had flunked. That damaging report was apparently leaked to the Paterson Evening News. The paper published it before and during selection of jurors for his second trial — which was granted because of recantations by government witnesses and the possibility that evidence had been withheld from the defense.

The New Jersey Supreme Court is reviewing the evidence and is expected to decide soon whether valuable exculpatory information was kept from Carter's attorney at the second trial.

An alternate juror in the 1976 retrial claimed that false lie detector tests were circulated among the jurors, and offered to take a polygraph test himself to prove his charge.

John Geoceljak, a Passaic County prosecutor, says Carter was offered a chance to take another polygraph test. Despite the fact that such tests are not admissible in court, Geoceljak says charges would have been dropped if the ex-fighter had passed.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Reagan's policies winning back friends in Latin America

President Reagan seems to be winning back many of the friends the United States has lost or was losing in Latin America.

William Giandoni

Virtually all of the Latin American governments now say that their relations with the United States are good and improving.

That is not to allege that they do not have specific problems with the United States and vice versa.

But it is to affirm that President Reagan appears to have gained the confidence of most hemisphere republics.

How did he do it?

First by reassuring them that the United States really is on their side in the protracted ideological conflict with Marxism-Leninism and, then, by demonstrating that he is serious about putting the U.S. economic house back in order.

True, of course, that Latin Americans as prominent as Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo have complained that the measure the Reagan administration is taking to halt inflation and to strengthen the dollar are having adverse effects in other American republics. Lopez Portillo is right.

But it is equally true that, a few years ago, when the dollar was sliding in value, some of those same Latins were complaining that the lack of monetary discipline in the United States was prejudicing their economies. They were right then, too.

But times have changed. A decade or so ago, the international bankers and monetary experts seemed to believe that a sound dollar was relatively unimportant. They were going to get around the problem with Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) or "paper gold," as the SDRs were sometimes called.

By now, though, more and more Latin countries seem to recognize the error of the "easy" money policies of the past. They have learned that inflation is as inevitable in the United States after devaluation of the dollar as it is in Mexico or Agentina or any other country after devaluation of their peso. Now they know that manipulation of the currency, in the United States, in Brazil, in Bolivia, everywhere, has its greatest impact on the middle-income and poorer people.

Still and all, it was not until the Reagan administration started trying to bolster the dollar and to cut back on government spending that other hemisphere republics began to move similarly.

Clearly, most of Latin America is well aware that their prosperity at home depends to some degree on the health of the U.S. economy. If the United States enters a recession, the United States buys less of their oil or copper or cotton or coffee. That means they earn fewer dollars. On the other hand if the United States prospers, Latin America gains.

But the emerging consensus in favor of the Reagan administration is not just a matter of dollars and cents. It also has to do with hopes for individual freedom and domestic peace.

Mr. Reagan's decision to take a strong stand against Marxist subversion in Central America heartened Latin American anti-communists. Not only the military-dominated governments but those run by civilians as well have long been waiting for some such sign from the United States.

Virtually all politically aware Latin Americans have read Marxist analyses of their failure in Chile, where a socialist-communist-radical coalition ran the country for almost three years up to September 1973.

The Latin military men and police know they are right at the top of the list of those to be purged, were the Marxists to gain power. Civilian anti-communists have only to consider the fate of their Cuban, or Nicaraguan or Grenadan counterparts to guess they would not be far down the hit list. Farmers, bankers, businessmen and journalists are well aware that they would be slated for early elimination or neutralization.

So it is that now the only vociferous opposition to the United States in Latin America comes from the radical Marxist minority.

The general silence, even in Mexico, that followed President Lopez Portillo's announcement that communist Cuba was not being invited to attend the coming North-South summit meeting because of U.S. objections, was eloquent.

In an earlier day, spokesmen for the governments of Costa Rica, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Venezuela and other countries would have reacted in furious protest.

Now, though, the majority of the Latin American countries want to get along with the United States.

That is something the world has not seen before.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 8, the 251st day of 1981. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 8, 1943, Allied commander Dwight D. Eisenhower announced Italy's unconditional surrender in World War II.

On this date:

In 1565, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla., and founded the first permanent European settlement in North America.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1934, a fire aboard the luxury liner, "Morro Castle," off the New Jersey coast took 134 lives.

And in 1954, the Southeast Asia Defense Treaty and Pacific Charter were signed in Manila by Britain, France, the United States, Austria, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines.

Ten years ago: The $70 million John F. Kennedy Performing Arts Center in Washington, D.C., was officially opened.

Five years ago: The Civil Service Commission ordered the deletion of all political loyalty questions from standard job applications in compliance with a court ruling.

One year ago: A Carter Administration official said it would use the five-year-old Helsinki human rights agreement to attack the Soviet Union's intervention in Afghanistan.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Sid Ceasar is 59. Democratic Senator Wendell Ford of Kentucky is 57.

Thought for today: There is nothing so powerful as the truth, and often nothing so strange. — Daniel Webster, U.S. statesman (1782-1852).

CHARLEY REESE

Col. Khadafy just a typical Arab leader

Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan dictator, is dangerous, but he is neither crazy nor especially evil by Middle East standards as some people in the Western press are portraying him.

Charley Reese

Khadafy's use of assassination squads is a common practice in the Middle East. Assassination is the "normal" means of changing governments and of silencing opposition in nearly all of the Arab countries. Even the word, "assassin," originated in the Middle East. It was first used to describe a fanatic Moslem cult. Khadafy's support of international terrorism is also not unusual. "Moderate" Saudi Arabia is the principle source of funds for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Khadafy's major problem is his foreign policy which is based on two principles. One is Nasserism, which is Khadafy's version of the old dream of pan-Arabism. By it, he means a hegemony of all the Arabs in North Africa under his leadership.

The second principle is "radical Islam" by which the very religious Khadafy means that he will support the Islamization of all of north and central Africa. This is only a new twist on a very old conflict between the Arab, Islamic people and the non-Islamic, mostly black Africans.

Where Khadafy bumps head-on into U.S. strategic interests is that all of this ambition is expensive. Libya's oil reserves are expected to last only 8 to 10 more years. Khadafy, however, continues to pump it out at the rate of 1.75 million barrels a day because he needs the money to buy arms. Therefore, he must expand into other geographic areas — hence his invasion of Chad, reputed to have a huge potential for oil and other minerals; his annexation of a Chadian area known as the Aouzou; and his claim of territorial rights in the Gulf of Sidra.

Khadafy has published a map of "Greater Libya" which includes among other areas Chad, Niger, Tunisia and Algeria. He is also a threat to Egypt and the Sudan where incidentally, Americans have reportedly found large oil reserves.

Thus the conflict is much more mundane than you would believe from reading all of the stories about the "terrible madman, Khadafy." Khadafy is no more, no less an outlaw than the leaders of the Soviet Union and Saudi Arabia. He just happens to be a threat to our strategic interests and one we can deal with without risking World War III.

Khadafy and the Soviets have only a marriage of convenience. The Soviet Union is Khadafy's principle, but not sole, arms supplier. There are an estimated 2,000 East German and Soviet advisors in Libya, but also some renegade ex-CIA agents. The Soviets are the world's greatest opportunists when it comes to de-stabilizing any country or region which is not aligned to them so they welcome Khadafy's meddling in those areas of Africa which lean toward the French or the United States.

Khadafy, however, is not a vital interest of the Soviet Union or even an ally on a par with Cuba's Fidel Castro. In fact, Khadafy tried to get Cuba thrown out of the Non-Aligned Summit in 1973 in Algiers on the grounds that as a communist nation, Cuba was not "non-aligned."

I'm delighted our planes shot down Khadafy's planes. It is necessary for us to contain his ambition and to demonstrate to the rest of the world that the use-us-for-a-doormat foreign policy of Jimmy Carter is gone the way of Carter himself.

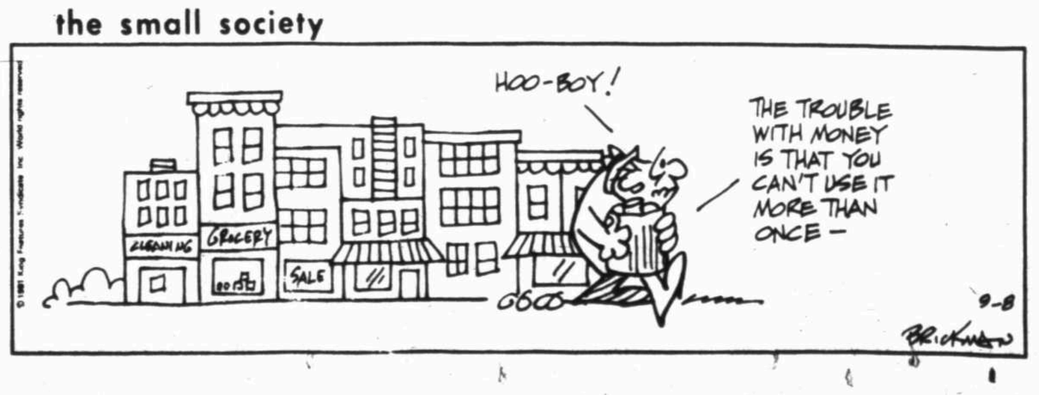

But there is no need to create a bogey-man out of Khadafy. He is more typical, than atypical, of Arab leaders, and viewed from the Arab perspective, a great deal more idealistic than most.

Former President Jimmy Carter talks to Japanese students during a televised teach-in Sunday near Osaka. The ex-president spoke on the theme of the "meaning of youthfulness."

Carter ends Japan tour

TOKYO (AP) — Former President Carter and his family left Tokyo for Los Angeles today after concluding a 16-day swing through China and Japan.

Carter, accompanied by his wife Rosalynn, son Chip and daughter Amy, was heading home to Plains, Georgia, where he is writing a book about his four years in the White House.

While in Japan on a private visit, Carter gave his first in-depth television interview since leaving the White House, met with Japanese college students and gave a lecture to some 1,000 Japanese businessmen.

Carter gave several interviews for the Osaka television station that sponsored his visit and met with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki.

On his final day in Japan, Carter caught four river trout to the applause of Japanese villagers today but his 30-year-old son Chip outfished him.

Carter spent about two hours along the banks of the Katsura River in the mountain resort of Hakone west of Tokyo while about 50 local residents commented on his casting prowess and clapped whenever a fish was hooked. Carter responded with waves and a deep bow.

Chip Carter reeled in six fish from the mountain stream, which residents of Oshino Village, a hot springs resort of 6,000 people, had cleaned the previous day in preparation for the visit.

While her father and big brother fished, 13-year-old Amy Carter took a bus about halfway up 12,385-foot Mount Fuji nearby, Japan's highest peak.

Buckley talks to Pakistan about F-16 delay

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — U.S. Undersecretary of State James L. Buckley said today it was an "extraordinary coincidence" that Afghan forces raided Pakistani border areas each time he visited Islamabad for arms talks.

Buckley, who arrived today for discussions on snags arising over delayed deliveries of U.S.-made F-16 warplanes, referred to an Afghan strafing incident the day before his June 11 visit and Monday's incursion by Afghan ground troops in the same Pakistani province.

"I don't know if I'm a bad luck stone or not," Buckley said.

Afghan troops crossed into Pakistan on Monday and confiscated weapons in a house-to-house search at a border village in the southwestern province of Baluchistan, a Defense Ministry statement said.

It was the first report of a ground incursion by regular troops since the outbreak of Afghanistan's civil war between Moslem fundamentalist rebels and the Soviet-backed government in Kabul. No shooting or injuries were reported and there was no immediate confirmation of the action from Kabul.

Pakistani army sources said the Afghan raids underscore the need for American defense equipment to bolster the country's largely unmarked border with Afghanistan.

There have been a number of reported air violations by Afghanistan since the Moslem rebellion erupted after a 1978 Marxist coup in Kabul. The most recent was Saturday's strafing of a Baluchistan border post where five civilians were slightly wounded. Afghanistan called the report "a complete fabrication."

In late December 1979, the Soviet Union sent an estimated 85,000 troops into Afghanistan to back the government's attempt to suppress the rebellion. The Soviet intervention provoked an international outcry and demands that the Kremlin pull out, but the troops remain and the fighting continues.

Afghanistan's foreign minister, Shah Mohammad Dost, returned to Kabul today but gave no specific details of his one-day mission to New Delhi to promote the Afghan government's Aug. 24 proposal for negotiations possibly leading to eventual withdrawal of Soviet troops from his country.

Dost told a reporter he "achieved all that I wanted to" in talks with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other Indian officials.

He said he will be going to the fall United Nations General Assembly session in New York in a few days. Diplomats believe the lastest Kabul proposal was timed to head off another assembly vote condemning the 1979 entry of Soviet troops into Afghanistan and demanding their withdrawal.

Iran and Pakistan have treated the latest proposal for negotiations on "guarantees" against alleged interference in neighboring Afghanistan as largely unchanged from previous unacceptable proposals.

Asked whether he carried any assurances of early deliveries of the F-16s, Buckley said only, "I believe we are making good progress." Washington officials have said Pakistan might have to wait two years instead of the six-to nine months it expected.

President Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq two weeks ago publicly warned the Reagan administration that a delay in receiving the sophisticated warplanes could seriously undermine U.S. "credibility" among Pakistanis.

Some observers said the issue could jeopardize the entire $3 billion package of aid and military sales credits pledged by Buckley during his June visit. The F-16s were to be part of "urgently required" cash sales and the first of 36 aircraft had been expected by the end of the year.

Two policemen killed by IRA landmine

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The shattered bodies of two young policemen killed in an IRA ambush lay through the night where they fell at the side of a country road while security forces waited for dawn to retrieve them.

The officers' car was blown off the road Monday by an Irish Republican Army landmine detonated by remote control from a hillside a quarter of a mile away in the village where one of the 10 dead Maze Prison hunger strikers had lived.

Police and troops waited until morning to recover the bodies because other bombs might have been planted at the spot, a police spokesman said.

One of the two constables killed, John Montgomery, was 19 and on his first day of duty after completing training. Mark Evans, 20, died with him.

In a statement issued in Belfast, the IRA said it killed them.

Police said the mine had been hidden in a road culvert near Cappagh, 12 miles from the border with the Irish Republic. The village was the home of Martin Hurson, the sixth guerrilla to starve himself to death in IRA's hunger strike for political prisoner status for nationalist guerrillas in the prison outside Belfast.

Earlier Monday, the IRA weekly Republican News warned it will "pay the British government in kind" for the deaths of the 10 jailed guerrillas and a dozen Roman Catholic supporters who died in street clashes during the six-month-old fast.

Thirty-two members of the security forces have been killed in Northern Ireland this year, 16 of them police officers. An off-duty British soldier was killed Saturday and another seriously wounded after two women lured them to a Belfast apartment where gunmen ambushed them.

The number of men fasting at the Maze returned to six Monday when John Pickering, a 25-year-old convicted IRA killer, joined the strike amid signs of a growing rift between guerrilla groups and prisoners' families over the fast.

For the second time in three days, a striker's family suspended his fast and told prison doctors to save his life after he went into a coma. And the Irish National Liberation Army, an IRA splinter group, said it was scaling down its participation in the protest in which three of its members have died.

Lawrence McKeown was taken to a Belfast hospital after his mother authorized emergency medical care for her 24-year-old son Sunday. It was his 70th day without food.

Matthew Devlin, 31, was removed from the strike by his family Friday on the 52nd day of his fast. Two other dying protesters have been removed from the strike by their families and another was ordered off by his doctor because of a bleeding ulcer.

Although the INLA assured the IRA of continuing military support in the campaign to unite the mostly Protestant province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic, it said contributing one INLA member to the hunger strike for every three IRA fasters would wipe out its prison population within six months.

But the Rev. Denis Faul, a Catholic priest who visits the prison regularly, predicted it would drag on for as long as four months if the government insisted on total victory and then would end with deep recriminations that would sow the seeds of another hunger strike.

Popular cultural chief trying to give Rome a new image

ROME (AP) — Renato Nicolini hasn't thrown anybody to the lions. But he is giving Romans and their summer visitors a series of spectaculars ranging from bare-breasted dancers to an open-air film festival alongside the ruins of the Colosseum.

The city government's cultural chief has been accused of using "bread and circuses" to win votes for the Communist Party. He says he's trying to turn the Eternal City into a modern metropolis.

The Romans have always enjoyed a good show, whether it was gladiator combat in the Colosseum or mock naval battles in the flooded Piazza Navona in the 19th century.

This has paid off for Nicolini, a 39-year-old architect whose taste runs to yellow ties and 1920ish blue-striped jackets instead of the somber gray favored by other city council members. In the June election he got the second-largest vote, topped only by the Communist mayor, Luigi Petroselli.

He says he wants to give Rome a new image with a steady flow of entertainment, museums open in the afternoon and on holidays and bars and restaurants open later at night.

"Rome should be more metropolitan," he said in an interview. "We don't even have one all-night restaurant while Paris has several and New York many."

He has also voiced support for the unlicensed youthful vendors who sell ice cream, sandwiches and soft drinks on the streets at night despite opposition from bars and restaurants.

"They are providing a service, and it's a good way of keeping down unemployment among young people."

Nicolini's biggest success has been his revival of the summer festival in a city where many restaurants, movie houses and theaters close for August.

On one night there was a choice of a rock band, a concert atop the Capitoline Hill or topless dancers from the South Seas performing on an island in the Tiber River.

The centerpiece is an open-air film festival, running from August through mid-September, with more than 80 movies projected on giant screens set up on streets adjoining the Colosseum and the Arch of Constantine.

The highlight is a revival of Abel Gance's four-hour silent epic "Napoleon," with American Carmine Coppola conducting the 80-piece Italian Television Orchestra to provide accompaniment. A ticket cost $3.20, compared with $25 when the film was shown in New York.

Five wildcat gas discoveries completed

Basin oilmen have completed five discovery wells.

CONCHO DISCOVERY

Tucker Drilling Co. Inc., San Angelo, has finaled its No. 1 Miller as a Goen lime gas discovery in Concho County, 12.8 miles west-southwest of Eden.

Finaled for a calculated absolute open flow of 3,786,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, production was natural from perforations between 4,140 to 4,142 feet.

It was drilled to 4,300 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set on bottom and plugged back to 4,250 feet.

Location is 467 feet from the north, and east line of section 33, block 8, H&TC survey.

TERRELL STRIKE

Sioux Natural Gas Corp. has completed its No. 1 P.C. Garner "10" as a Devonian gas discovery in Terrell County, six miles south of Sheffield.

Calculated absolute open flow was 12,200,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations between 9,583 to 9,779 feet, which had been acidized with 15,000 gallons.

Drilled to 9,915 feet, with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 9,884 feet, it is plugged back to 9,805 feet.

Location is 1,500 feet from the south and 1,000 feet from the west lines of section 10, block B-2, CCSD&RGNG survey.

EDDY FIND

Southland Royalty Co., Midland, No. 1 Empire "21" Federal Communitized, has been finaled as a Strawn gas discovery in Eddy County, eight miles southwest of Loco Hills.

The well flowed 562,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations at 10,420 to 10,422 feet, which had been acidized with 4,350 gallons.

Location is 860 feet from the south and 2,180 feet from the east line of section 21, township 18 south, range 29 east.

CHAVES DISCOVERIES

Mesa Petroleum Co., Midland, has completed its No. 1 Boswell State, as an Abo gas discovery in Chaves County, 49 miles northwest of Boaz.

The well flowed 600,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations at 2,478 to 2,636 feet, which had been acidized with 3,500 gallons, and fractured with 42,000 gallons and 92,800 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 3,125 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 3,118 feet, it is plugged back to 2,870 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the north, and east line of section 30, township 4 south, range 21 east.

****

Mesa Petrolem has also completed its No. 1 Melena Federal as an Abo gas discovery, 28 miles southwest of Elkins.

It was finaled for a calculated absolute open flow of 42,000 cubic feet of gas per day through perforations between 3,368 to 3,390 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons, and fractured with 40,000 gallons and 60,000 pounds.

Drilled to 3,776 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 3,775 feet, it is plugged back to 3,745 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 15, township 9 south, range 24 east.

Labor leader urges increase of petroleum taxes

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — President Harry Hubbard of the Texas AFL-CIO Monday proposed raising oil and gas production taxes to 15 percent in order to cut local school property taxes by more than half.

Hubbard also said Gov. Bill Clements and the Legislature had "made it impossible for young Texas workers to reach the American dream of owning their own home."

Hubbard spoke at a union rally kicking off the first Labor Day parade in Texas in 25 years.

"Higher interest rate ceilings and skyrocketing property taxes have put home ownership out of the reach of the average young Texas working family," said Hubbard in remarks prepared for the rally.

"The blame for both lies squarely with Gov. Clements and the majority of the Texas Legislature," he said.

"During the Legislature, working Texans are no match for the high-paid lobbyists for the banks and real estate interests," Hubbard said. "Because when the lobbyists say 'Jump,' all that Clements and the majority of the Legislature say is 'how high?' "

"The Clements administration will be remembered for two things: raising the interest rate ceiling by as much as 50 percent and for promising us lower property taxes and giving us the biggest increase in property taxes in our state's history," Hubbard said.

He said in the 1982 elections "working Texans" will "be looking for candidates who vote to increase the oil and gas severance tax in order to reduce property taxes."

"By raising the severance tax on oil and gas to 15 percent — only half of what Montana charges us for coal — we could raise over $3 billion — which is more than our school districts collect in property taxes," he said. "In other words, a 15 percent severance tax dedicated to school operations could reduce our school property taxes by more than 50 percent."

Now the severance tax on oil is 4.6 percent of value at the well, and the tax on natural gas is 7.5 percent.

Hubbard said the Legislature would never raise the severance tax "until working Texans change some faces in Austin — including that of the governor, who is in the oil business and would never allow an increase in the severance tax — even if it meant a 50 percent school property tax reduction."

OPEC could collapse if price policy continues, Yamani says

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, was quoted today as saying OPEC's oil price should be unified at a rate lower than $34 per barrel and suggesting the cartel would collapse if the current high price policy continued.

The news sent the dollar up against most world currencies and came as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin prepared to ask President Reagan to hold off the planned sale of sophisticated U.S. reconnaissance AWACs planes to Saudi Arabia.

Defending his oil-rich kingdom's price policy as in the "best interest" of the world economy, Yamani told the English-language newspaper Arab News, "No scope exists any longer for a unification at $34."

Yamani offered last month at the Geneva meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to cut back the Saudi production rate and raise the price from $32 to $34 a barrel only if all 13 OPEC member countries brought down their prices to that level.

Some members rejected the offer outright, while others tried to talk Yamani into accepting a $35-a-barrel floor price to be observed by all. Yamani was adamant about the $34 level.

"Our desire has always been to protect the world economy and to uphold the interest of the developing nations," Yamani told Arab News.

He blamed the current glut in oil markets — estimated at 2.5 million barrels a day — on lower demand which, in turn, he said, was due to inflated oil prices.

Yamani noted that the OPEC share of the world oil market fell from 31 million barrels a day in 1979 to less than 24 million barrels a day this year and that some analysts were predicting the OPEC share would decline even further to 15 million barrels a day.

"This would mean the collapse of OPEC and a lot of economic hardship for Saudi Arabia," he said. "Oil prices must be brought down if we can or at least remain at the present level for a long period of time, until we are able to hold back investors from searching for energy alternatives and until OPEC restores its previous position."

Saudi Arabia's daily average production rate was decreased Sept. 1 by 1 million barrels from the previous level of 10.3 million barrels. Yamani labeled the decision a boon to OPEC to help wipe out the market glut.

Yamani declined to predict the outcome of the next OPEC ministerial meeting, scheduled for Dec. 10 in Abu Dhabi. But he said that "no scope exists" for unifying prices at $34 a barrel.

"The $34 mark which could be agreed upon (at the Geneva meet) will be difficult to attain in the future," Yamani told arab news.

He firmly ruled out any increase in Saudi Arabia's oil price before the Abu Dhabi OPEC conference.

"Saudi Arabia perceives its interest and the interest of OPEC in its (Saudi) oil stance," said Yamani. "It is a fact that many of these states which are said to be exercising pressure on the kingdom know from the economic point of view that Saudi Aabia's stance serves their own interest and that of the kingdom. But they act on political bases, which are opposed to their own economic interest."

Yamani contended that high oil prices have weakened the "Arab oil weapon."

Eight wildcats planned

Eight new wildcats are planned for the Permian Basin.

REEVES VENTURE

M. Brad Bennett, Inc., Midland will sink the 4,850-foot wildcat No. 1 Collie-A 1 3/4 miles east of Pecos, just south of the river.

The location is 9,820 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 1, block 5, H&GN survey.

Apparently, the well wil be deeper than any other in the vicinity — as much as eight-times deeper.

WINKLER WILDCAT

Oxy Petroleum, Inc., Houston, will drill the No. 1 Oxy-Amburgey, a 12,000-foot wildcat, 20 miles northeast of Monahans.

This well, it appears, will be 3000 feet deeper than the other wells in the area. It will be located northeast of Paladin Field, and the Sealy-Smith fields.

The stake is set 660 feet from the sosuth, and 810 feet from the east line of section 18, block B-9 PSL survey.

SCHLEICHER WILDCATS

Vision Inc., Midland, will drill two 6,000-foot wildcats in Schleicher County, five miles northeast of Eldorado.

The projects are in section 70, block LL, GC&SF.

The No. 2 J.L. Cheeck is located 2,472 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east line of the section.

The No. 3 J.L. Cheeck is located 1,262 feet from the south, and 760 feet from the east line of the section.

****

Anderson Petroluem Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1-2 Viola Finnigan, a 7,800-foot wildcat five miles north of Eldorado.

The location is 1,200 feet frm the south, and west line of section 29, block LL, RCRR.

It is one location southeast of the 6,300-foot failure.

CROCKETT VENTURE

J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, will drill the No. 4 J.W. Childress "C", a 9,000-foot Ellenburger wildcat nine miles east-northeast of Ozona.

The location is 1,650 feet from the south, and 990 feet from the east line of section 27, block GH, GC&SF survey.

It is one location northeast of the 8,100-foot failure, Southwest Natural Gas Inc., No. 1 John W. Childress, abandoned Aug. 11, 1969.

FISHER PROSPECT

Jones & Co., Albany, will drill the No. 1 Robertson "185" as a 5,650-foot wildcat in northeast Fisher County, 3 1/2 miles northwest of Hamlin.

The well will test the Coffin (Strawn sand).

Location is 2,276 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of section 185, block 1, BBB&C survey.

NOLAN SEARCHER

Barfield Resources Corp., Amarillo, will drill the No. 1 Boothe, a 6,800-foot wildcat in Nolan County, five miles south of Sweetwater.

Location is 660 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 80, block 21, T&P survey.

DEATHS

Ruth Lollar

SWEETWATER — Services for Ruth Lollar, 72, of Abilene and formerly of Sweetwater, sister of Edward Lohman of Midland, were Monday in Sweetwater Cemetery under the direction of Cate-Spencer Funeral Home.

She died Saturday at her residence after a brief illness.

Mrs. Lollar was born Feb. 13, 1909, in Needles, Calif. She married Richard B. Lollar in 1928. He died April 18, 1963. She was a sales clerk for J.C. Penney Co. in the Sweetwater-Abilene area.

Other survivors include three daughters and four grandchildren.

Ella Grammas

STILLWATER, Okla. — Services for Ella Grammas, 93, of Midland are pending with Stroude Funeral Home Inc., in Stillwater, Okla. Local arrangements are under the direction of Newnie Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Sunday in a Midland nursing home after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Grammas was born Jan. 8, 1888 in Skiathos, Greece. She married Tom Grammas in 1903 in Greece. He preceded her in death in 1930. She lived in Greece until 1914 when she moved to Stillwater, Okla. She moved to Midland from California in 1981. She was a former member of the Stillwater Women's club, Sigma Nu Mother's club and the garden club.

Survivors include four daughters, Anna Hamilton and Angela Thompson, both of California, Margaret Holman of Hobbs, N.M., and Helen Dempsey of Midland; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mrs. McCleskey

Services for Mrs. Preston (Elizabeth Ann) McCleskey, 54, 812 Lawson Ave., are pending at Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

She died today in her home.

Mrs. McCleskey was born Aug. 1, 1927, in Gatesville. She married Preston McCleskey in 1949. She was a graduate of Howard Payne College at Brownwood. She taught in May, Texas, for a brief period before moving to Plainview in 1954. She moved to Midland in 1956. She was a member of the Trinity Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include her husband; two sons, Gene McCleskey of New Orleans and David McCleskey of Newton; a daughter, Dianna McCleskey of College Station; a brother, George Ricketts of Dumas and two grandchildren.

The family request memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland or the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

NAACP chief dies at 80

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Wilkins, leader of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People during the turbulent two decades that followed the Supreme Court school desegregation decision, died today at New York University Medical Center. He was 80.

Hospital spokesman John Deats said Wilkins, who had been in intensive care for almost two weeks, died at 9 a.m. He said doctors were trying to determine the exact cause of death.

Wilkins had a history of heart trouble, dating from March 1979, when he had a pacemaker implanted to correct irregular heartbeat.

The landmark school decision of 1954 was the major achievement of the strategy Wilkins championed of attacking segregation through legal means. It was a prelude to the string of legislative triumphs in civil and voting rights that the NAACP worked to have enacted.

But also, amid searing ghetto riots and campus eruptions of the 1960s and early '70s, he and the nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization came under attack by a new generation of militants. They said the NAACP was irrelevant to modern blacks and too cozy with the white establishment.

Wilkins knew how to walk a picket line and was willing to use direct-action tactics, but believed the best weapons for advancing black Americans were lawsuits, legislative lobbying and public education. The NAACP was perceived mainly in the image of its leader, cool and low-keyed.

Raised in an era when lynchings were numerous and unpunished and most blacks were invisible and voiceless, Wilkins responded with scorn to what he characterized as young activists' blindness to history.

"It used to be that picketing, except for a labor cause, was against the law," he said. "We went to court over that and won the right for these kids to march and picket now.

"I understand their impatience. I share it. But they should have some idea what it has taken to get them the right to raise hell."

It was for then-illegal picketing in 1932 that Wilkins was arrested for the first time, protesting refusal of the attorney general to put lynching on the agenda of a national law enforcement conference.

"The whole point of the NAACP was to establish the Negro as a legal entity with the rights and privileges of a citizen," he said.

He continued to use the word Negro after the one-time epithet, black, became the preferred designation of young militants who were attacking him for stands they viewed as Uncle Tomism.

He denounced black students who brought guns onto the Cornell University campus. He opposed the idea of separate black dormitories and black-study departments and was contemptuous of campus rioters' "non-negotiable demands," the first of which usually was no punishment for their acts.

He criticized two of the most flambuoyant and popular idols of his race, heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, then embroiled in the courts for refusing to be drafted and serve in Vietnam, and Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, who was undergoing censure and expulsion.

But at the same time Wilkins also was assailing the administration of President Richard M. Nixon for what he felt was its neglect of the needs of blacks.

He had been sought out for advice and consultation in the two preceding administrations, of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, and Johnson's last presidential act was to bestow on Wilkins the nation's highest civilian award, the Freedom Medal.

Wilkins retired formally as executive director of the NAACP in July 1977 at age 75, but he had given up day-to-day direction of the 450,000-member, integrated organization a year earlier.

Dallas cartoonist dies

DALLAS (AP) — Award-winning cartoonist Bill McClanahan, who joined the Dallas Morning News in 1930, has died of a heart attack. He was 73.

McClanahan first was a sportswriter for the News and its companion publications, but was named full-time cartoonist when he returned from World War II in 1946. He retired in January 1973.

He went on to win several national awards, including 11 National Freedom Foundation (Valley Forge) Awards, six Congress of Freedom Awards and the Southwest Journalism Award for continued excellence in sports and editorial cartooning from Southern Methodist University and the Press Club of Dallas.

McClanahan created all the mascot symbols he used in cartoons of Southwest Conference athletic teams. His most famous editorial character was Lefty Q. Liberal, a cretin in tennis shoes and a beret.

A native of Greenville, McClanahan moved with his family to Dallas, where he graduated from Highland Park High School. He studied engineering at SMU, then switched to art school.

He and his wife, Mary Eloise, recently observed their 50th wedding anniversary. They had no children.

Midland census surveys begin

DALLAS — Two surveys by the Bureau of the Census will begin in the Midland area this week.

One survey is to determine the extent to which people have been immunized against selected diseases, according to Director John Reeder. The other will look at housing.

The first survey will gather statistics that will provide information on immunization against measles, influenza, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, rubella and mumps. These questions will be in addition to the usual ones listed in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted by the Bureau for the Department of Labor.

The housing survey that starts this week will continue for four months, according to Reeder. Selected households will be mailed an introductory letter prior to being contacted by the Bureau interviewer.

This survey is being done for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Results should be issued in late 1982 and should reflect the nation's housing inventory.

Trinity announces record enrollment

With 497 students in class on the first day of school last Tuesday, Trinity School has announced a record enrollment for the fifth straight year.

Dr. Sam Hooper, child psychologist, presented a faculty workshop and orientation for 50 new students above the kindergarten level last week.

The school, which includes kindergarten for ages three through five and grades one through nine, has re-instated Latin as a requirement in the upper grades and has added tennis to its physical education program for grades four through six. Tennis is still offered as an interscholastic sport for grades seven through nine.

Trinity, located at 3500 W. Wadley Ave., is accredited by the Independent Schools Association of the Southwest and the Texas Education Agency.

Livergood named Cystic Fibrosis head

The Lone Star Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation has named Noreta Livergood as chairman of its 1981 Bowl-a-Thon in Midland.

The campaign will be held to provide the community with information about Cystic Fibrosis and to raise funds to support research, education and care programs for CF patients. Anyone wanting to sign up may pick up a sponsor form at Air Park Lanes, 413 Air Park.

Cystic Firbrosis is the number one genetic killer of children, and is inherited and incurable — claiming three lives each day, according to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

DEAR ABBY

Teacher's lessons followed to the bed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18, just graduated from high school, and for the last six months I've been dating a woman of 30. I would like nothing more than to marry her, but there are problems.

She teaches high school. (That's how we met — I was one of her students.) We started dating while her divorce was pending, but because of school-district policy, we couldn't go public with our affair. Only her sister, my family and one mutual friend (another woman teacher) know about us. After her divorce, she plans to move in with the mutual friend to avoid gossip. I offered to stop seeing her, but she refused.

She admitted that when we first started seeing each other she was interested only in sex and didn't intend to fall in love with me, but she couldn't help herself. If we get married, she could go on teaching and I could work part time and go to college. The only barrier we have is that she worries about what "society" will think because of the age difference, and because she's a school teacher and I'm a student. I don't care what anybody thinks. I've always been mature for my age and know we could be happy together. What do you think? — 18 GOING ON 30

DEAR 18: I'm sure you could be happy together, but for how long? I recommend a long engagement. Very long. And if you still feel the same way about each other in two years, I'll buy the rice.

DEAR ABBY: Granted, western attire is the big fad now, but I think there's a time and place for everything. Lately I've seen men of all ages — bankers, salesmen, business executives, you name it — all wearing cowboy boots with business suits. I think they look ridiculous. I can see cowboy boots with jeans or western clothes, but to me, a man dressed in a business suit and cowboy boots looks dumb.

What are those idiots trying to prove? Send me your opinion. — PETE IN PA.

DEAR PETE: Cowboy boots with business suits are part of the culture in certain parts of the country (Nevada, Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma). I happen to think they look neat. And those who wear them say they're far more comfortable than regular shoes. Don't judge a man until you've walked 10 miles in his cowboy boots.

DEAR ABBY: Brian (not his real name) and I met when we were 15 and 14. We were "sweet" on each other throughout the summer, but went our separate ways later in the fall. We kept in touch for a while, but eventually we lost all contact. That was 12 years ago. I am 26 now, graduated from college, married and "Mama" to two young sons.

In our community newspaper, I read that Brian and his wife have moved into our neighborhood. Considering that we live in a large city, New Orleans, I was quite astonished that someone I knew years ago would end up in our neighborhood.

My first impulse was to get in touch with Brian and rejoice at renewing an old friendship, then I wondered if it would be too forward, and possibly be looked upon as improper by his wife. I'd like to be hospitable, but don't want my actions to be misinterpreted. What would you do? — DIANA

DEAR DIANA: Since you now live in the same neighborhood, give it a little more time — you may run into each other. If you don't, I see no harm in writing a note to him AND his wife welcoming them to the neighborhood, and inviting them to call you and your husband.

After all, you were only "sweet" on each other for one summer when you were a couple of kids.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

Getting prepared for the event are, from left, Leonard Wood, worshipful master of Acacia Lodge No. 1414 AF & AM; Pam Culbert, worthy matron, Norman Read Chapter 1010, Eastern Star; and Pat Kinnison, worthy matron, Midland Chapter 253, Eastern Star. Those attending are requested to bring a meat casserole dish and one of the following: a vegetable dish, salad or dessert. Paper goods and cold drinks will be furnished by the Blue Lodge of Midland.

PTA officers, chairmen attend workshop

Two hundred and fifty Parent-Teacher Association (PTA) members representing 27 Midland schools attended the School of Information workshop for local officers and chairman hosted by the City Council PTA last week.

Workshops were held for various PTA school officers, for chairmen of the Halloween carnivals, and for chairmen of special projects, such as Helping Hands.

Keynote speakers were Dr. James Mailey, Midland school superintendent, who spoke on parental involvement; and Dr. Joseph Baressi, deputy superintendent, who spoke on home/school communication.

Midland City Council Parent and Teacher Association is composed of all PTAs in the Midland Independent School District for the purpose of conference, leadership training and coordination of the efforts of the local PTA units.

Each person who is a member of a local PTA is automatically a member of Midland City Council PTA. Membership last year was 7,200 members, making PTA the largest volunteer organization that focuses entirely on the children and youth in Midland.

No waste fruit

HONOLULU (AP) — The pineapple is virtually a "no waste" fruit, says Bob Warren, plant superintendent for a canned-goods manufacturer.

"The average pineapple for processing weighs between 3 and 4 pounds," the Del Monte supervisor says. "Two pounds go into canned pineapple or full-strength juice. Another pound and a half goes for by-produces such as alcohol, sugar, and cattle feed — all extracted from the pineapple shells, ends and trimmings."

Tobacco auctioneers fast talkers

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — Professional tobacco auctioneers speak 400 or more words per minute. This compares with 105 words per minute for a well-paced radio news announcer.

The chant is based on the Gregorian chant of the Roman Catholic Church, according to Reynolds Tobacco. It was first heard in this town, considered the birthplace of the modern tobacco auction, in the 1850s.

DIET CENTER®

Diet facts & fallacies

ADVICE FOR THE "NIGHTTIME NIBBLER"

CAROL MILLER COUNSELOR

Nighttime eating is so common among overweight people that doctors concerned with treating obesity have given it a formal designation: "The night Time eating syndrome, Many people who are plagued with this problem eat at night because they are Bored, lonely or just in the habit of doing so. Others experience anxiety for which food acts as a tranquilizer.

Among those who are attempting to lose weight, night - eating is the most common deviation from a diet plan. Commonly, the dieter eats very little during the day; perhaps even skipping some meals all together. Busy with days's activities, the dieter does not feel excessively hungry and by the end of the day, feels proud for having eaten so little. That evening the body is in dire need of nourishment and as a personal reward, the dieter decides to allow himself some snack. Unfortunately, sweet treats are often selected...and one or two soon lead to the entire package.

Whatever the reason, night - eating can be curtailed or eliminated with concentrated effort and planning. Your body requires adequate nourishment every day. A more realistic approach would be to start with nutritious balanced meals at lunch and dinner. If hunger occurs between scheduled mealtimes, be prepared with a snack consisting of fresh fruits, vegetables, cheese or other natural food instead of processed snack foods high in salt or sugar content. Adjust your schedule so that no food is consumed after 8 p.m. By eating only during the day when your e energy expenditure is higher, and in quantities sufficient to meet your nutritional needs, you will find that it is much easier to achieve and maintain your ideal weight.

'False Witness'

Writing changes policewoman's life

NEW YORK (AP) — In the prologue to Dorothy Uhnak's latest novel, "False Witness," a beautiful woman lies near death, as the fingers of her severed left hand remain tightly gripped around the receiver of a nearby telephone, the blood dripping on the white tiles of the kitchen floor.

Did such a violent event occur during Ms. Uhnak's years as a New York City police officer?

"No," Ms. Uhnak said reassuringly, "this was the writer's imagination, fed by police officer's experience and some research."

Ms. Uhnak was a New York City transit police officer for 14 years. It wasn't an easy job. She encountered lots of opposition, not only from her male co-workers, but also from friends and neighbors who couldn't understand why she didn't want to stay home and take care of her husband and child.

"I had great energy and great ambition and great dreams," Ms. Uhnak said with a smile. "If I had put all my energy into pushing some man, I probably would have pushed him into a crackup. But I didn't do that. I pushed myself."

Ms. Uhnak was born in the Bronx borough of New York City. She was married at the age of 19, quit college and went to work to support her husband while he finished school, then she returned to college.

In 1953, she decided to become a police officer.

"At the time, there were really very few choices for a young woman of 21. I was married. I was supposed to have been finished with my choices, having gotten married. I was supposed to stay home and have children," she said.

"I could have been a schoolteacher, which I didn't want, or a social worker; I couldn't afford to go for the graduate training. And police work was something that interested me. I grew up around a police precinct and it seemed like an active, adventuresome kind of thing."

She said it was difficult being accepted by the men she worked with because there were so few other women police officers.

"I was thrown into remarkably violent and very explosive situations and no one worried whether I was male or female. I was very determined to hold up my end, and I ended up in the hospital many times," she said.

Although her novel, "False Witness," is the story of a television celebrity who is brutally attacked, it is also the story of an assistant district attorney named Lynne Jacobi, a character who mirrors some of the frustrations Ms. Uhnak experienced as a police officer.

"What I wanted to do was to deal with a woman in the sort of society or surrounding that I was in, show that she is terrifically qualified and is stopped cold at a certain stage, where the men she had started out with 14 years earlier by and large now are judges or heads of corporations or partners of very prestigious law firms, and she's still pretty much where she was," Ms. Uhnak explained.

Ms. Uhnak said that during her years as a police officer, she was "re-designated" from detective third-grade back to police officer on the day she left the force on a 10-month maternity leave. When she returned to the job, she worked her way back up through the ranks.

"I took the first promotional examination I was allowed to take for sergeant, came in No. 1, then I quit," she said. "And in quitting I cut my family's income exactly in half. It was a big decision because I could have stayed on the job for six more years and retired at half pay for life."

Ms. Uhnak had published her first novel, "Policewoman," in 1963 but had continued to work as a police officer. She decided to pursue fiction-writing full time, and published several novels, among them the best selling "Law and Order," and "The Investigation."

"I became rich," Ms. Uhnak said. "It was quite a change from where you've been on a salary every two weeks for all of your life and every penny is accounted for.

"The main change was I became my own boss. I worked my own timetable. And I put my husband on his own timetable. We have freedom that very few people have at our age. And I was able to do things for my family, which was terrific. I bought a condominium for my parents."

Ms. Uhnak, attractive and silver-haired at the age of 51, has been married for 31 years, and has a 24-year-old daughter. The family divides its time between a home in Queens and a 26-room house on Shelter Island, N.Y.

Ms. Uhnak's plans for the future include writing a screenplay adapted from "False Witness" and another novel.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Clothing care commandments

DEAR FOLKS:

With the high cost of new wardrobe items and inflationary pressures taking their share out of family budgets, here are ten commandments for taking care of clothing.

These tips from the Guild of Professional Drycleaners can save you that hard-earned money by prolonging the life of expensive garments.F

Clip these out and place them on the door of your closet. Read them every day until they become so familiar to you that you wouldn't dream of ignoring a single one of them. THOU SHALT:

I. Hang garments immediately after wearing.
II. Not hang wet or damp clothes in closets.
III. Have all rips and tears mended promptly.
IV. Not store away dirty clothes for next season.
V. Remove all stains promptly.
VI. Follow all care label instructions.
VII. Not apply perfumes or fragrances directly to fabrics.
VIII. Store clothes properly to avoid a bulging closet.
IX. Inspect garments carefully after each wearing.
X. Care for your wardrobe on a regular basis.

Makes sense, doesn't it! Besides, look at it this way...

In addition to saving money by following this advice, you will never have to use the excuse, "I don't have a thing to wear," as everything you own will always be ready to go! — Hugs, Heloise

BUMPER BEAUT

Dear Heloise: To remove bumper stickers without a lot of hard work, just use an ordinary hair blow-dryer. (You will, of course, have to use an extension cord from the nearest electrical outlet if you don't happen to have one near the car in the garage.) The heat from the dryer makes the stickers almost slide off. — Mrs. Sidney Freyon

NO STICKY FINGERS

Dear Heloise: When packing a piece of cake with sticky icing in school lunches, etc., cut the piece through the center and turn the icing side to the middle, making it like a sandwich.

Your family can enjoy their favorite icing without having to pry it loose from the wrapping. — Kay Haupricht

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: First, may I say your column is very important to me. What is so funny, though, is that it has proved that Solomon of long ago was so right when he said "There is nothing new under the sun."

I am shocked some days when I read a "hint" of something I thought I alone had figured out! — Mrs. V.A. Fuller

TWO-LITER BOTTLES

Dear Heloise: I use the two-liter plastic soft drink bottles for making powdered drink mixes. Pour in the mix, sugar and water. Put the top back on tight and shake well, then store in the refrigerator. Children can handle this easier when pouring their own.

Also, we use them on trips. We just fill with water, or whatever, and freeze, leaving space at the top of the bottle.

Usually, by the time someone is thirsty, enough has thawed for drinks. Lasts quite awhile for later drinks.

No empty container to take up space going home — just throw it in a trash can. — Juanita Southard

Ugly carpets non-degradable

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's only been within the last ten years that we've become conscious of how long things endure that are left to litter the countryside.

They've figured out an aluminum can will take up to 500 years to disintegrate. A polyethylene bag will take nearly three months to self-destruct. And the degradable period of a soft-drink bottle is forever.

It makes one wonder what else will be left on this planet to mystify historians long after the families have ceased to exist. Ugly carpets will be here. They never degrade. Trust me. They will live to taunt another culture with their stain patterns and their holes that heal themselves even after the houses around them have fallen.

Trees that smother septic tanks will flourish long after mankind has given up. Somewhere it is written that they will survive plagues of medflies, tornadoes, fire, and whole sonnets carved in their trunks.

Keys that never fit anything will have strange sex, multiply, and confound those who came later as they did us. All attempts to make them disappear will fail.

Book and record club computers will continue to spew out selections even if the world is without population. They will cover the barren countryside with mountains of hermetically sealed books, records and envelopes that chastise you for not changing your address and bringing their records up to date.

Soap slivers never die. I have seen them grafted onto bigger ones, thrown away, abandoned in water-filled soap dishes, and forced down drains. They still endure.

Have you ever seen a dress that wrinkles on the hanger wear out? Go out of style? Rot out under the arms? Get lost? Be permanently stained? Stolen? Never! A dress that wrinkles, no matter what the temperature or conditions, is non-biodegradable.

We know that rope will disappear in a little over a year, a railroad cross tie in 30 years, and a steel can in less than 100 years. A paper traffic ticket, they tell us, has a life of two to four weeks.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wed., September 9, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor Cliff Robertson was born on this date. Family members continue to play a major role in the decisions you make. Their actions and comments could affect not only your finances and business prospects but also your love life. Be cautious where investments are concerned. Although unexpected good luck aids your efforts during the first half of 1982, you still cannot afford to throw money away. Look for new outlets for your managerial talents! Your observant eyes catch errors that other people miss. A born peacemaker, you will not waste time arguing over minor matters. You save your eloquence for matters of principle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tread lightly today or you could set off some fireworks. Maintain a sense of humor around higher-ups. Keep accounts up to date. Social life accelerates. Make plans for the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Letter or phone call will bring good news, and relieve tension. Contact with people who work in the background can help you solve a puzzle. A pleasing surprise will be sprung on you!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Act on your instincts when handling money. People who work behind the scenes will bring you glad tidings. A kind deed will win you a new admirer. Romance is lively.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family problems merit immediate attention. Be prepared to shoulder heavier responsibilities. Higher-ups may be demanding. You will not be asked to work overtime without compensation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An influential person is willing to give you some excellent advice. Teamwork pays off handsomely. Family member may strain your patience. Adopt a give-and-take attitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Start a new savings program, and look for additional ways to trim the budget. Postpone making major decisions regarding partnerships, commitments. Pursue self-improvement projects.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An abrupt change at work could cause some uncomfortable moments, but the end result will be new peace of mind. Join a community group. Buy property for investment purposes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone's negative comments may be a bid for attention. Meditation helps you find some important answers. Postpone starting new projects, signing legal papers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The financial picture brightens. Something that once looked hopeless may turn out to have been a sound investment. An affair of the heart commands more time and attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Contractural agreements may be in the spotlight. Trust your own judgment! Be gracious and diplomatic when dealing with an elder statesman. Express your views but show that you are also willing to listen.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone may be trying to pick a fight. Be mature enough to avoid compounding an error. Ignore anyone who has a jealous streak. Preserve your reputation for reliability; meet all deadlines.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may need to obtain additional information before signing contracts. Take a peek behind the scenes. A special appearance may be required in connection with an organization.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

Dummy play is like detection, with the declarer cast as the sleuth. He uses deduction and assumption, based on the auction and the play, to solve his problem. And that solution might be startling, as this deal proves.

Since North could not bid three spades at his first turn (over a double that action is preemptive), he could only show his hand by first redoubling and then bidding spades at his next turn. South needed no more urging to go on to game.

West led the king of diamonds, and East discouraged by playing the two. West shifted to the queen of hearts. It seemed that the fate of the contract hinged on a finesse for the king of clubs. If West did, in fact, have the club king, declarer would be able to discard a diamond on the third club.

Declarer was about to embark on this line when he realized that there was a fatal flaw in his reasoning. West's play had marked him with the ace-king of diamonds and queen-jack of hearts. If he held the king of clubs as well, he would have had a very sound opening bid in first seat. Since he had passed, the king of clubs had to be with East. If declarer took a losing club finesse, a diamond return by East would sink the contract. East had to be kept off lead at any cost.

Declarer's solution to the problem was ingenious. He allowed West's queen of hearts to win the second trick!

West continued with a heart to declarer's ace. Declarer drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy, and then cashed the king of hearts. On this trick he discarded a club!

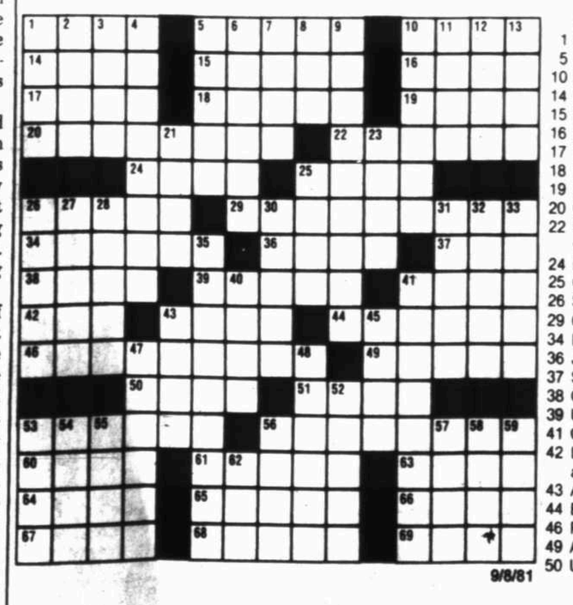

Next, he cashed the ace of clubs and then led the jack through East for a ruffing finesse. Had East not covered, declarer intended sluffing a diamond. When East played the king, declarer ruffed, crossed back to dummy with a trump and discarded a diamond on the ten of clubs. Thus declarer made his contract, losing only two diamonds and a heart.

Senate confirmation process subject of debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is cranking up its advice and consent machine again as the Judiciary Committee prepares to consider the nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court.

The outcome, as usual, is pretty well assured. Mrs. O'Connor is expected to be asked more than the usual number of questions. But in the end, she is expected to be recommended for confirmation and confirmed by the full Senate.

The process has been the subject of debate ever since the Constitutional Convention of 1778. It was denounced as a "rubberstamp" as recently as 1977. But it survives with little change.

Article II of the Constitution gives the president the power to appoint the principal officers of the federal government "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

The provision itself was a compromise. Some delegates to the Constitutional Convention wanted to give the Senate the power to make the appointments. Others wanted the president to have it.

The result left the standards for confirmation vague, as they remain today.

Alexander Hamilton wrote in The Federalist that, "If an ill appointment should be made, the executive, for nominating, and the Senate, for approving, would participate, though in different degrees, in the opprobrium and disgrace."

According to a study by Common Cause, a group which monitors the government on behalf of what it considers the public interest, the Senate received 133,302 nominations during the 94th Congress.

The nominees all are not as controversial as Sandra O'Connor, however. Joseph P. Harris, author of "The Advice and Consent of the Senate," calculated that 99 percent of the nominations are routine appointments and promotions in the armed forces, the Foreign Service and the like.

These are ordinarily approved in committee and on the Senate floor without a roll call, a debate or a hearing. Frequently, a large number are confirmed at once by voice vote.

Confirmation proceedings for more exalted offices are more searching, but often not very much more. Common Cause, in a report called "The Senate Rubberstamp Machine," found that only eight Cabinet nominees had been rejected by the Senate since 1789. The report found that potential Supreme Court justices were scrutinized more closely, but rarely rejected.

Until fairly recent years, the Judiciary Committee did not even question Supreme Court nominees, apparently reckoning that doing so might prejudice the independence of the nation's highest court.

The most recent nominees for the court to be rejected by the Senate were Clement F. Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell, nominated in 1969 and 1970 by then President Richard M. Nixon.

Common Cause examined the printed records of 49 confirmation hearings and found they varied from 759 pages, for former Attorney General Griffin Bell, to 176 words in the case of Robert Carswell, deputy secretary of the Treasury.

There have been some changes since the highly critical Common Cause study. The Judiciary Committee, for instance, now submits questionnaires to all judicial nominees, asking them for a wide range of financial and other information.

For the most part, however, the process remains a casual and occasionally cozy one.

Take, for example, the case of Daniel Terra, recently confirmed by the Senate as ambassador at large for cultural affairs.

At his confirmation hearing, Terra was questioned by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a neighbor of Terra's in a Chicago suburb.

Customarily, a witness addresses the committee chairman as "Mr. Chairman." At least, he will usually address him as "Senator."

Terra, at one point, called Percy "Chuck."

Death toll more than predicted

By The Associated Press

The Labor Day traffic toll exceeded the number of deaths predicted by one, but Texas Department of Public Safety officials say reports could continue to trickle in the next few days.

Between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight today, 49 deaths had been reported on Texas roads. The DPS predicted 48 would die by midnight today.

Of the 49 victims, at least nine were pedestrians, including a 3-month-old boy and an 82-year-old man.

Defense begins in Layton trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former Peoples Temple member Larry Layton was going to court today to open his defense to charges that he conspired to kill Rep. Leo Ryan on a jungle airstrip in Guyana.

On the last day of prosecution testimony Thursday, a Guyana police superintendent read the confession Layton made there in connection with the ambush slayings of Ryan and four others.

Layton said he was "responsible" for the killings, but he has since declared he made the statement under duress. He is charged here in a federal indictment with conspiring to attack Ryan, a California Democrat, and Richard Dwyer, former deputy U.S. chief of mission in Guyana.

Dwyer was wounded, but survived the attack.

Hours after the Nov. 18, 1978, ambush, the Rev. Jim Jones led 912 of his followers in a bizarre murder-suicide ritual. Ryan had visited the settlement to investigate complaints that Jones was mistreating his followers.

Government prosecutors sought to prove Layton, 35, had conspired with Jones to kill Ryan and the others. The disputed confession was the only direct evidence; all of Layton's alleged coconspirators died at Jonestown.

Frank Bell, an assistant federal public defender, said the prosecutors' case "was not as strong as they claimed it would be" and indicated the defense may be altered accordingly.

Government attorneys said evidence that Layton talked to Jones before presenting himself to Ryan as a defector proved Layton conspired to kill the congressman.

Defense attorneys also belittled eyewitness testimony that Layton killed two temple defectors at the airstrip. "That's right. So what? That's not what he's charged with," James Hewitt, federal public defender, said Thursday after court.

Layton was cleared in Guyana of charges related to those killings and cannot be charged here because the deaths occured on foreign soil. The charges against him in Ryan's death and the attack on Dwyer are possible because incidents involving American officials that occur on foreign soil come under U.S. law.

Layton could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted.

Mt. Saint Helen's eruption ends

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Just as quietly as it began, the latest eruption of Mount St. Helens appeared to have ended, with only an enlarged pile of molten rock in the crater as evidence.

U.S. Geological Survey scientists canceled an eruption alert at 5 p.m. Monday after earthquakes and other "seismic events" diminished to pre-eruption levels, said Dick Janda, a USGS geologist.

The Forest Service reopened the Red Zone around the volcano an hour later, said Ben Hurliman of the Forest Service's volcano information center.

A USGS official said field crews planned to return to the volcano today.

"All the indicators are that the eruption appears to be over," Janda said.

Scientists were unsure if the lava dome in the volcano's crater had stopped growing, though growth "seems to have subsided," he said.

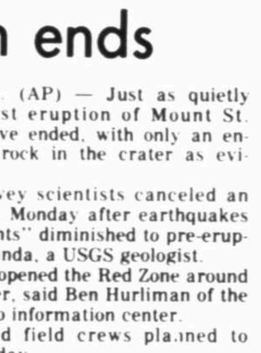

"We're still keeping a close eye on the situation," Janda said.

Scientists were predicting more low-level "seismic events," reflecting continuing rockfalls and avalanches within the crater, he said.

Several three-person USGS crews entered the crater Monday, some spending several hours, Janda said.

The crews found that the latest volcanic activity destroyed some cables that carry signals from monitoring equipment to a transmitter. But replacing the cables will not be difficult, Janda said.

A policman stands guard as Orthodox Jews, wearing black hats and suits, gather outside a New York hotel where Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was a guest. The crown roared their opposition to archaeological digs in Israel.

Begin heads for capital

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, looking "full of energy," discussed "personal things and the Middle East political situation" at lunch with Cyrus Vance, the former secretary of state said.

Begin planned to leave New York City for Washington, D.C., today to meet with President Reagan on Wednesday and Thursday. The prime minister has armed himself with documents to support his arguments against selling AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

Begin has said the Reagan administration's plan to sell Airborne Warning and Control System surveillance planes and other sophisticated military equipment to Saudi Arabia endangers Israel's security.

Vance described Begin as "relaxed and anxious to have his first meeting with Reagan."

Outside Begin's hotel, about 2,000 black-hatted and black-suited Orthodox Jews demonstrated Monday against archaeological digs in Israel they said are "disturbing the graves of our holy sages."

The demonstration, sponsored by the Central Rabbinical Congress of the United States and Canada, also protested what the congress called "police brutality" against Orthodox protesters in Israel.

The Orthodox Jews oppose excavations south of Jerusalem's city walls that have uncovered 3,000-year-old ruins that they say are a medieval cemetery. Archaeologists deny unearthing any graves, and Israel's Supreme Court has allowed the digging to continue.

Begin is scheduled to return to New York on Friday for a round of receptions, banquets, meetings and a ceremony at which Mayor Edward Koch will present him with the City Medal.

On Sept. 15, Begin plans to go to Plains, Ga., to meet with former President Carter before flying home.

Begin visit to renew Camp David accords

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's talks with the Reagan administration this week will go a long way toward determining whether there is any meaningful life left in the 1979 Camp David peace accords.

Begin planned to arrive in Washington today for meetings this week with President Reagan and other administration officials. His first meeting with Reagan is scheduled Wednesday, following an official White House welcoming ceremony.

Senior administration officials hope to impress on Begin the need for rapid progress toward achieving autonomy, or self-rule, for the 1.2 million Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

PALESTINIAN autonomy, which is the next step in the peace process, is already more than a year behind the schedule that Israel, Egypt and the United States agreed to at Camp David.

Official U.S. and Israeli sources say next April is emerging as a deadline for achieving meaningful results in the peace process. That is when Israel is scheduled to complete the withdrawal of its troops from the Egyptian Sinai, occupied since the 1967 war.

If there is no progress by April, the Camp David accords, which brought peace between Egypt and Israel, may have to be scrapped in favor of something else. There is a hint — just a hint — that it might mean finding a role for the Palestine Liberation Organization, which Israel doesn't recognize.

"Time is running out," said an Israeli diplomatic source, who did not want to be identified. "After the withdrawal, there is a question whether Israel would have any leverage left."

U.S. officials clearly hope they can persuade Begin to be more flexible in negotiations with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. They caution against any breakthrough during Begin's visit here, although they hope to set in motion renewed momentum for achieving a plan for Palestinian autonomy that will be acceptable to all parties.

SADAT, WHO was in Washington last month, also is said to want progress by April. Otherwise, it might look as if his only motives for peace with Israel were to get back the Sinai Peninsula without concern for the Palestinians, whose cause is embraced throughout the Arab world.

The nightmarish fear for Israel is that after it withdraws from the Sinai, Sadat might rejoin other Arab nations in confrontation with Israel. While Sadat has repeatedly denied he would do that, the process of normalizing Egypt's relations with Israel has been noticeably slow.

Sadat and Begin agreed on their own late last month to resume autonomy talks in Cairo on Sept. 23-24. The talks have been suspended for more than a year.

While the administration wasn't consulted on the date and was surprised by the announcement, it favors resumption of the talks and plans to participate in its role as a "full partner" in the peace process.

A diplomatic source said Begin wanted to set a date for resuming the talks before coming to Washington so he wouldn't be perceived in the United States as dragging his heels.

HOWEVER, resuming talks and agreement on autonomy are entirely different things. Israel favors only an ambiguous local administrative setup for the Palestinians, while Egypt favors something closer to a formal Palestinian state with full powers of self-government.

There is a disagreement, too, over whether Palestinians living in occupied East Jerusalem should be allowed to vote in Palestinian elections, a proposal advocated by Egypt but opposed by Israel.

There is also the issue of what to do about Israel's settlements in the occupied territory. Begin has pursued an aggressive settlement policy.

In addition, Israel hasn't had much luck in its search for someone besides the PLO to speak for the Palestinians. After an autonomy agreement, the Palestinians are supposed to hold elections for a self-governing authority.

While Israel claims non-PLO leaders are there, the diplomatic source here concedes, "We've not heard anyone come up and say they would be ready to be the first to step forward."

Sadat is now urging that the PLO eventually be given a role in the peace process. This would be a partial undoing of the Camp David accords, which don't envision a PLO role.

WHILE THE Reagan administration and Israel have rejected the suggestion, many other nations, including some of the United States' European allies, advocate PLO participation as the only way to achieve a lasting peace.

Sadat cracks down on Moslem mullahs

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Preachers appointed by the government will replace fundamentalist mullahs at 65 private Moslem mosques accused by President Anwar Sadat of fomenting sectarian strife, a Ministry of Religious Affairs spokesman announced.

He said the mosques were owned by groups disbanded by Sadat Saturday after clashes this summer between Moslems and Coptic Christians in which at least 75 people were killed.

The spokesman said the purge of the fundamentalist mullahs was the first step in bringing the 40,000 private mosques in the country under government control.

Sadat in a speech to Parliament Saturday announced the arrest of 1,536 religious leaders, lawyers, journalists and politicians for inciting or contributing to the violence. He said most of them were Christian and Moslem extremists, but leaders of opposition political parties said Sadat arrested a number of political opponents.

The president also stripped Coptic Pope Shenouda III, leader of the nation's 6 million Coptic Christians, of government recognition. This was seen as an attempt to appease the Moslems for the more sweeping crackdown on Islamic fundamentalists.

Breves Declaraciones Explicativas De Las

ENMIENDAS CONSTITUCIONALES

PROPUESTAS

ELECCION ESPECIAL

3 DE NOVIEMBRE DE 1981

PROPOSICION NO. 1 EN LA BOLETA

Resolucion Conjunta No. 8 del Senado propone una enmienda constitucional que permita a la legislatura autorizar a ciudades, pueblos y otras entidades fiscales conceder exenciones de impuestos por avalúo en una área no productiva, subdesarrollada o deteriorada para estimular su desarrollo. La enmienda también permitiría a la legislatura autorizar a una ciudad o a un pueblo emitir bonos o vales para financiar este desarrollo y compensar futuros aumentos en los ingresos de impuestos por avalúo sobre la propiedad en dichas áreas para pagar estos bonos o vales.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que autoriza a ciudades, pueblos, y otras entidades fiscales estimular el mejoramiento, desarrollo, o redesarrollo de ciertas áreas por medio de auxilio en los impuestos sobre la propiedad y la emisión de bonos y vales."

PROPOSICION NO. 2 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 117 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda constitucional que autorice a una persona a recibir título de terreno del Comisionado de la Oficina General de Terrenos bajo ciertas condiciones. La solicitud para el título se tiene que hacer dentro de cinco años a partir de la aprobación de la enmienda. El terreno tiene que ser terreno de las escuelas públicas libres, medido, y no previamente titulado. La persona tiene que tener una escritura del terreno propiamente registrada, que adquirió sin saber del defecto de título y que él y sus antepasados interesados han tenido por lo menos durante 50 años. La persona y sus antepasados interesados tienen que haber reclamado el terreno continuamente y pagado los impuestos por lo menos durante 50 años.

Esta enmienda no se aplica a terreno de playa, a terreno sumergido ni a islas. Un solicitante no puede usar esta provisión para resolver una disputa de límites de terrenos. Esta enmienda no se aplica a terrenos que hayan sido declarados propiedad del estado por una corte de jurisdicción competente ni a los que tienen un arrendo estatal de minerales, los cuales estén produciendo en la fecha efectiva de la enmienda.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que autoriza al comisionado de la Oficina General de Terrenos a dar títulos para ciertos terrenos del fondo para escuelas públicas libres tenidos en buena fe bajo título aparente durante por lo menos cincuenta (50) años antes del 15 de noviembre de 1981."

PROPOSICION NO. 3 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 38 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda constitucional que autorice a la legislatura conceder a un comité estatal de administración financiera la autoridad de administrar fondos estatales. Los fondos destinados por la constitución a fines específicos no estarían sujetos a la administración del comité. El comité estaría compuesto del Gobernador, el Gobernador Teniente, el Presidente de la Cámara de Representantes, el Presidente del Comité de Finanzas del Senado, el Presidente del Comité de Asignaciones de la Cámara de Representantes, el Presidente del Comité de Asuntos de Estado y el Presidente del Comité de Medios y Arbitrios de la Cámara de Representantes.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que permite a la legislatura conceder a un comité estatal de administración financiera la autoridad de administrar el gasto de ciertos fondos apropiados."

PROPOSICION NO. 4 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 6 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda constitucional que disponga que la mitad de los ingresos sobrantes de impuestos, sobre el límite de gastos dispuesto por el Artículo VIII, Sección 22, de la Constitución de Texas, sean depositados en un Fondo de Asistencia del Agua a ser usados como provea la ley, incluso en proyectos para el desarrollo y la conservación del agua, la mejoría de la calidad del agua, el control de inundaciones o para cualquier combinación de estos propósitos.

La enmienda también provee $500,000,000 del crédito general del estado para garantizar bonos emitidos en mercados comerciales por subdivisiones políticas locales, incluso ciudades, condados y distritos especiales. La enmienda permite que se establezcan cantidades para disminuir o para retirar deudas del estado, las cuales se detienen como deudas garantizadas por la plena fe y el crédito del estado. La enmienda aumentaría el interés que se pueda pagar en bonos autorizados pero no emitidos, garantizados por la plena fe y el crédito del estado, de 6% a 12%.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: La enmienda constitucional que autoriza el uso de una porción de los ingresos sobrantes del estado para el desarrollo, la conservación y la mejoría de la calidad del agua y para el control de inundaciones; que autoriza el uso del crédito del estado, no en exceso de quinientos millones de dólares, para garantizar los bonos de ciudades, condados, pueblos, y otras entidades de gobierno local en la financiación de proyectos dedicados a tales fines; que aumenta la tasa de interés que se puede pagar por bonos estatales previamente aprobados pero no emitidos; y que autoriza un programa para pagar bonos."

PROPOSICION NO. 5 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 49 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda constitucional que dejaría libres de impuestos el ganado y las aves. Actualmente los productos agrícolas en manos del productor y las provisiones familiares para el uso de la casa y de la granja están libres de impuestos.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que permite incluir el ganado y las aves con los productos agrícolas libres de impuestos."

PROPOSICION NO. 6 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 81 de la Cámara de Representantes autoriza al cuerpo gobernante de un condado, una ciudad, un distrito escolar u otras subdivisiones políticas declarar libre de impuestos una porción del valor de mercado de un hogar de residencia. La porción libre de impuestos puede ser hasta 40¢ para el período 1982-1984; 30¢ para 1985-1987; y 20¢ para 1988 y los años siguientes. La cantidad de la exención no puede ser menos de $5,000 a menos que la legislatura por ley general prescriba otras restricciones monetarias de la cantidad de exención. A un adulto elegible se le permite recibir otras exenciones aplicables provistas por la ley. Se hace excepción en caso de que los impuestos por avalúo hayan sido comprometidos previamente para el pago de deudas.

La enmienda además dirige a la legislatura que requiera que se les de a los propietarios una estimación razonable de impuesto sobre su propiedad en ciertas situaciones.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que autoriza a una subdivisión política proveer auxilio en los impuestos sobre la propiedad para los dueños de hogares de residencia y que cambia ciertos procedimientos administrativos en los impuestos sobre la propiedad."

PROPOSICION NO. 7 EN LA BOLETA

Resolución Conjunta No. 4 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda que autorice a la Junta de Terrenos para Veteranos poner en circulación y vender bonos adicionales en la cantidad de $250,000,000 lo cual aumentaría de $700,000,000 a $950,000,000 la autorización total de circulación de bonos del Fondo de Terrenos para Veteranos. La enmienda aumentaría el interés máximo pagable por el estado por estos bonos de 6% a 10% y permitiría una tarifa aun más alta si fuera especificada por la legislatura.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue: "La enmienda constitucional que autoriza la emisión de bonos adicionales para financiar el programa de terrenos para veteranos y que aumenta la tarifa máxima de interés que se permite en los bonos del fondo de terrenos para veteranos."

An unidentified man zips by this almost submerged car on an Amarillo street. Torrential rains caused flooding in this Panhandle city, prompting Texas Gov. Bill Clements to declare the city a disaster area.

Amarillo battling flooding streets

By The Associated Press

Huge pumps continued to drain flood water from streets in Amarillo today as city officials planned to meet with state authorities to determine the next move in battling the flooding in the Panhandle city.

No rain fell in Amarillo during the night and rain wasn't in the forecast for today.

Some streets were covered with as much as 5-7 feet of water and an estimated 500 businesses and homes have been damaged by the flooding triggered by lengthy, heavy rainfall.

A city official at the flood scene early today said the pumps were draining water from the streets of a nine-square mile area at the rate of about 8-10 inches per day. At that rate it is estimated that Amarillo needs about five rain-free days to remove the flood water.

About 500 persons have been evacuated from their homes and National Guardsmen are patrolling the flooded area to prevent looting.

The National Guard was called out Sunday after Texas Gov. Bill Clements declared a disaster situation.

Elsewhere around the state, scattered showers and very heavy thunderstorms were reported early today over portions of the South Plains, Permian Basin and Pecos River Valley.

Other areas of showers and thunderstorms were located in northern portions of South Texas. That activity was expected to move southward as a cold front moved across the state today.

The front early today was located along a line from just north of Lufkin to just north of San Antonio westward into the Big Bend area.

Clearing skies were forecast for the northern half of the state today.

Highs were to range from the mid 70s over the Panhandle to the upper 90s in South Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the mid 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and northern sections of the Panhandlee to the upper 70s and low 80s in South Texas. Extremes ranged from 53 at Dalhart to 80 at Austin.

Wyoming State 'Lottery' Offers Every U.S. Citizen Chance To Own An Oil Lease

CARSON CITY, NV— Hundreds of average citizens will acquire oil lease rights in upcoming public awards conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifelong royalties on any oil or gas production.

Incredibly, most will risk no more than $25 and a minimal filing fee to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands.

Information and entry details are available from The H. Kirk Sanders Co., Oil Lease Division, P.O. Box 660 (404 N. Valley), Carson City, Nevada 89702. Enclose $1 for postage and handling.

Official entry cards will be rushed by return mail to permit the timely filing of entries before cut-off date.

Indians willing to give up lives for land

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Members of the American Indian Movement say they are willing to give up their lives to remain on land they claim was stolen from Indians, but U.S. Forest officials say no confrontation is planned.

The AIM members are occupying federal property in the Black Hills which they claim belongs to Indians under terms of a 113-year-old treaty. The U.S. Forest service has told them to leave by tonight.

"We're not going to go in there and bodily throw them out," said Mary Sue Waxler of the Forest Service. "If they're still there Wednesday morning, what we'll probably do is go back to the U.S. attorney's office and go with some sort of legal action."

Meanwhile, a group of Oglala Sioux occupying a different campsite at Sheridan Lake reported an agreement with the government to negotiate ownership of the federal land.

Under the agreement, as many as 150 Indians will leave the Sheridan Lake campsite, Oglala Sioux Tribal President Stanley Looking Elk said Sunday. He said negotiations would begin Wednesday.

The U.S. government filed a civil suit against the Oglala last week seeking to have them ordered out of the area and restrained from further camping in the Black Hills.

A court hearing on the civil action was scheduled for today in Pierre, S.D. It was not known what effect Monday's decision would have on the hearing.

The AIM members have been camped on the Forest Service land since early April to press their demands for land they said was taken in violation of the Fort Laramie Treaty of 1868.

Their request to put up permanent buildings on the land was denied late last month, but the Indians have appealed that ruling.

AIM leader Russell Means said Sunday his people will stay in the Yellow Thunder Camp in the Black Hills southwest of here, even if it means "giving up our lives."

Meanwhile, actor David Soul sent a telegram to President Reagan pleading with him to postpone evicting the Indians from the land.

The wire was signed by Soul, a South Dakota native who appeared on the TV show "Starsky And Hutch." Other signers were actors Rock Hudson, Burt Reynolds, Jack Lemmon, Max Gail, Will Sampson, Haskell Wexler and Paul Michael Glaser.

The same telegram also was sent to U.S. Attorney General William French Smith and the governor of South Dakota.

Five gold miners killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Five workers were killed at the world's largest gold mine when a collapsed valve in an underground dam sent 1.5 million gallons of water roaring down the shaft, the Rand Daily Mail reported today.

A spokesman for the Vaal Reefs Mine said the bodies had been recovered but it was not immediately known whether the men drowned or were crushed when the water rushed down the No. 5 shaft where they were working Monday. The mine is about 110 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

"The water escaped from a shaft 140-meters (460 feet) high and was therefore under very considerable pressure," the spokesman said.

The victims included a boilermaker, a fitter and three assistants.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

SPECIAL ELECTION
NOVEMBER 3, 1981

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to authorize cities, towns and other taxing units to grant exemptions from ad valorem taxes on ar. unproductive, underdeveloped or blighted area in order to encourage its development. The amendment would also allow the legislature to authorize a city or town to issue bonds or notes to finance this development and to pledge future increases in ad valorem tax revenues from the property in such areas to repay these bonds or notes.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize cities, towns, and other taxing units to encourage the improvement, development, or redevelopment of certain areas through property tax relief and the issuance of bonds and notes."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 117 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize a person to receive a patent to land from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under certain conditions. Application for the patent must be made within five years from approval of the amendment. The land must be surveyed, public free school land not previously patentable. The person must have a properly recorded deed to the land, which he acquired without knowledge of the patent defect and which title he and his predecessors in interest have held for at least 50 years. The person and his predecessors in interest must have continuously claimed the land and paid the taxes for at least 50 years.

This amendment does not apply to beach land, submerged land, or islands. An applicant may not use this provision to resolve a boundary dispute. This amendment will not apply to land which has been determined to be state-owned by a court of competent jurisdiction or that has a productive state mineral lease on the effective date of the amendment.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the commissioner of the General Land Office to issue patents for certain public free school fund land held in good faith under color of title for at least 50 years as of November 15, 1981."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 38 proposes a constitutional amendment that would enable the legislature to grant to a state finance management committee the authority to manage state funds. Funds constitutionally dedicated to specific purposes would not be subject to committee management. The committee would be composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee, and the Chairman of the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to allow the legislature to grant to a state finance management committee the power to manage the expenditure of certain appropriated funds."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 6 proposes a constitutional amendment that would provide that one-half of the surplus tax revenues above the spending limit provided by Article VIII, Section 22, of the Texas Constitution would be placed in a Water Assistance Fund to be used as provided by law, including projects for water development and conservation, water quality enhancement, and flood control purposes or any combination of these purposes.

The amendment also provides $500,000,000 of the general credit of the state to guarantee bonds issued in commercial markets by local political subdivisions, including cities, counties, and special districts. The amendment allows amounts to be established to decrease or retire state debt, which is defined as that debt secured by the full faith and credit of the state. The amendment would raise the interest that could be paid on authorized, but unissued, bonds guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the state from 6% to 12%.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the use of a portion of the excess revenues of the state for water development, water conservation, water quality enhancement, and flood control purposes; authorizing the use of the state's credit, not to exceed five hundred million dollars, to guarantee the bonds of cities, counties, towns, and other units of local government in the financing of projects for such purposes; increasing the interest rate that may be paid on previously approved, but unissued, state bonds; and authorizing a program to retire state bonds."

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 19 proposes a constitutional amendment that would exempt livestock and poultry from taxation. Currently, farm products in the hands of the producer and family supplies for home and farm use are exempt.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of additional bonds to finance the veterans' land program and to increase the maximum interest rate allowable on veterans' land fund bonds."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 81 authorizes the governing body of a county, city, school district or other political subdivisions to exempt from taxation a portion of the market value of a residence homestead. The portion exempted may be as much as 40% for 1982-1984; 30% for 1985-1987; and 20% for 1988 and after. The amount of an exemption may not be less than $5,000 unless the legislature by general law prescribes other monetary restrictions on the amount of the exemption. An eligible adult is allowed to receive other applicable exemptions provided by law. An exception is made where ad valorem tax has previously been pledged for the payment of debt.

The amendment further directs the legislature to require that notice be given to property owners of a reasonable estimate of tax on their property in certain situations.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing a political subdivision to provide property tax relief for owners of residence homesteads and changing certain property tax administrative procedures."

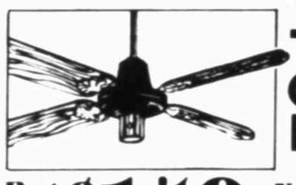

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Veterans' Land Board to issue and sell an additional $250,000,000 in bonds increasing the Veterans' Land Fund's total bond issuance authorization from $700,000,000 to $950,000,000. The amendment would increase the maximum interest payable by the state on these bonds from 6% to 10%, and permit an even higher rate, if specified by the legislature.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of additional bonds to finance the veterans' land program and to increase the maximum interest rate allowable on veterans' land fund bonds."

Unions snub Reagan at Labor Day parade

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan, snubbed by unions at the nation's largest Labor Day parade, says he wants to walk next year with workers who marched several thousand strong in New York and angrily denounced him as a foe of labor.

Reagan made a brief visit to New York on Monday, donned a hard hat and presented an outsized U.S. Treasury check for $85 million to Mayor Edward Koch for the Westway highway project Reagan had promised as a candidate.

The president also was criticized by labor officials and Democrats at rallies, parades and speeches across the country on the day unions used to mark the beginning of the 100th year of the organized labor movement in the United States.

But Americans also worked hard at playing on the last holiday of summer. In Malibu, Calif., the "first-ever potatolympics" featured such contests as spud bowling and potato digs.

Accidents marred the holiday weekend as thousands took to the nation's highways. Authorities said at least 415 people died in traffic accidents over the three-day period.

Reagan was not invited to New York's first Labor Day parade in 13 years which drew 200,000 participants according to union organizers and 100,000 according to police.

It featured 4,000 members of the striking Professional Air Traffic Controllers union chanting "Strike! Strike! Strike!" as they marched down Fifth Avenue.

PATCO president Robert Poli said: "There's not going to be any dismantling of our union or just blowing 12,000 people away."

Reagan fired striking members of the federal employee union after they began an illegal walkout Aug. 3. The administration is trying to decertify PATCO as the bargaining agent for the controllers.

Referring to the AFL-CIO snub, Reagan said his support for the highway project would provide jobs.

"Next year we should all come back and march together," Reagan said during the ceremony, "knowing that because what we did here, tens of thousands of people will have work."

Reagan called the presentation of the check "a victory over the inertia of buearaucracy," which would mean jobs instead of welfare.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, who led the parade, said of Reagan: "All presidents usually think of some Labor Day gimmick to give the appearance that they favor the working man. He's taking full advantage of it."

At a Catholic Labor Institute breakfast in California, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. lashed out at the Reagan administration as one "which has already launched a major assault not only on the union movement itself but the rights of 100 million workers in this country."

Former Vice President Walter Mondale told a solidarity day gathering in Jacksonville, Fla., that Reagan was like a doctor whose medicine was making the nation sicker.

"When that happens, it's time to get a new doctor," Mondale said. "And I predict starting with the 1982 elections, that is exactly what the American people are going to do."

In Detroit, where auto workers have faced layoffs for several years because of declining domestic car sales, only 500 to 700 people turned out for that city's first Labor Day parade in 15 years.

"We need a new demonstration of solidarity on the part of labor," a disappointed Mayor Coleman Young said.

About 33,000 people joined Michigan Gov. William Milliken for his traditional Labor Day walk across the five-mile Mackinac Bridge connecting the state's upper and lower peninsulas. At the end of his walk, Milliken declared Sept. 20 as "Buy American Day."

Auto makers in Michigan have been badly hurt by competition from imports.

Pres. Ronald Reagan and New York City Mayor Edward Koch pose Monday with a symbolic check for $85 million that is meant to represent the federal governenment's down payment on $1.3 billion it will spend to help New York build the Westway Highway. Despite the president's presence in New York City, he was not invited by the unions to attend the Labor Day parade.

Holiday traffic accidents fall way below estimates

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents throughout the nation claimed 418 lives during the three-day Labor Day weekend, a toll well below the low range of advance estimates by the National Safety Council.

The council estimated before the holiday began that there might be 480 to 580 traffic deaths during the holiday period, which started at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday. A year ago there were 521 deaths.

During a three-day, non-holiday period this time of year, 460 highway deaths could be expected, the council said.

During the 1968 Labor Day weekend, 688 people died in traffic accidents, the most for any three-day holiday period on record.

Two-year-old Special Effort nears the finish line to win the All-Ameican Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, N.M. Monday. In winning the race Special Effort became the first horse to capture the Triple Crown of Quarterhorse racing. The other gems in the triple crown are The Kansas and Rainbow Futurity.

Special Effort perfect in winning triple crown

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — Special Effort, destiny's colt, ran a picture-perfect race over a muddy track Monday to capture the $1.53 million All-American Futurity, becoming the first winner of quarterhorse racing's Triple Crown.

The victory was the ninth in a row for the brilliant two-year old as he became the first quarterhorse in history to win the big three races for the first-year runners, the Kansas, Rainbow and All-American futurities.

THE VICTORY was worth $528,000 from the total purse, makings Special Effort the all-time leading money winner, with $1,026,723. That tops the $1,009,362 earned by Special Effort's 3-year-old stable mate Higheasterjet, the winner of both the 1980 All-American Futurity and this year's All-American Derby.

Special Effort broke cleanly from the outside and No. 10 post position and had clear sailing to the wire. As he has done consistently throughout the summer, he daylighted the field and hit the finish line four lengths in front of runner-up Go For Bugs. The victory margin was the biggest in the 23-year history of the race.

RIDDEN BY jockey W.R. Hunt and trained by Johnie Goodman, Special Effort handled the mud-covered track with the same ease that he handled the nine-horse field.

The victory also made Goodman and Hunt the first jockey-trainer team to win the futurity back-to-back. The two teamed up for the win with Higheasterjet last year.

The victory also was the second in the futurity in three years for Canadian, Texas, oilman and rancher Dan Urschel. Urschel, who purchased Special Effort for $1 million in June, also won with Pie In the Sky in 1979.

Special Effort was syndicated for $15 million after he swept the first two legs of the Triple Crown.

GO FOR BUGS, ridden by Nicky Wilson, avoided a collision course right out of the gate involving the No. 8 horse Cute Investment and the No. 9 horse Exclusive Roula and edged out the fast-closing filly Classy Native for second place. But neither Go For Bugs nor Classy Native seriously challenged the winner.

Go For Bugs, owned by Cleo Graham of Winnewood, Okla., earned $213,600 for second place to hike his career earnings to $319,223.

Classy Native, who went off at 25-1 odds, earned $99,600 for the third-place finish. The filly is owned by L.V. Bell of Wichita, Kan.

Chargers fly over Cleveland

Fouts, Muncie combine to lead rout

CLEVELAND (AP) — Air controllers strike or no, Air Coryell is flying again.

"Everything just fell into place, obviously," said Don Coryell, coach of the San Diego Chargers. And he was obviously talking about Dan Fouts' passes.

FOUTS COMPLETED 19 of 25 passes for 330 yards and three touchdowns in a near-record performance and, when the Chargers weren't flying, Chuck Muncie was rambling wherever he wished.

The New Orleans reject equaled his single-game rushing high with 161 yards and a touchdown.

It all added up to a 44-14 victory over the Cleveland Browns Monday night.

"We expected a shootout," said Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano, "but we didn't expect it to be so one-sided ... the only thing positive I can say is that we have 15 more games. We have been at this point before."

"This was a welcome surprise," said Muncie. "I said we could come out and take it to them. It wasn't easy, though. If my body could talk, it would say it's pretty beat up."

Fouts, who shattered his own National Football League single-season passing yardage record in 1980, with 4,715, completed 15 consecutive passes in one stretch, a club record and within two of the league mark, established by Baltimore's Bert Jones on Dec. 15, 1974, against the New York Jets.

In that span were third-quarter touchdown passes of 13 yards to rookie running back James Brooks and 4 yards to veteran back Hank Bauer. Fouts also connected with Ron Smith on a 38-yard TD pass in the fourth period.

Brooks, the Chargers' No. 1 draft choice out of Auburn, opened the scoring with a 4-yard touchdown run in the first period. And Muncie, obtained in a trade with New Orleans four games into the 1980 season, matched his personal one-game rushing record of 161 yards, set in 1979 against Atlanta. Nine of his yards came on a touchdown run in the second period.

It was a devastating performance by Fouts and his receivers, most notably Charlie Joiner, who caught six passes for 191 yards. In all, the Chargers rolled up 535 yards on 66 plays, an average of 8.1 yards per play.

Brian Sipe, the NFL's Most Valuable Player and statistical passing leader last year, tried in vain to keep the Browns in the game. He completed a club-record 31 passes on 57 attempts for 375 yards, including touchdowns of 18 yards to Ricky Feacher in the second quarter and 4 yards to Greg Pruitt in the third quarter. Sipe was also intercepted twice, the only two turnovers of the game.

Rolf Benirschke kicked field goals of 50, 43 and 33 yards to complete the scoring for the Chargers before a Municipal Stadium crowd of 78,904. That crowd put the NFL's season-opening weekend total at 866,788, surpassing the league's first weekend record of 837,755 set two years ago.

The game was only 4:10 old when the Chargers took the lead on Brooks' run, capping a seven-play, 52-yard drive highlighted by Fouts' 16-yard pass to Dwight Scales on San Diego's first play of the game.

The Chargers made it 10-0 with eight seconds remaining in the first quarter on Benirschke's 50-yard field goal.

While Dan Fouts and Chuck Muncie were providing the offensive fireworks, the San Diego defense was making life miserable for Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe. Charger defensive tackle Leroy Jones (68) does the honors this time as he grabs a handful of Sipes' jersey as the Brown quarterback attempts a pass.

Lendl heads Open upset list

NEW YORK (AP) — He was bringing home the bacon, but did he really have to go for groceries?

Vitas Gerulaitis upset third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 3-6, 6-4 Monday in the fourth round of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

A TOURNAMENT aide said later he was escorting Gerulaitis to his meeting with the press, when the player suddenly headed in another direction.

"Where are you going?" queried the young aide, Dave Morton of Indianapolis, Ind.

"I'm going to get groceries," replied Gerulaitis, and with that the yellow-haired New Yorker got into his yellow Rolls Royce and drove away.

It conjured up a vision of a rich, successful young man heading off to the store with a list from his mother — a quart of milk, a loaf of bread ...

The shopping trip was expensive. The Volvo Grand Prix tour, the main circuit for the men, fined him $500 for missing his interview session.

That was in addition to the $750 he was assessed for spectator abuse. After a point in which he was called for a foot fault, he bashed a ball into the stands, hitting a spectator. He apologized immediately, and the spectator was not hurt, but the officials were not merciful.

That game was nearly his undoing. He played poorly for a set and a half before rallying his temper and his game in the fifth set.

Lendl headed a list of upset victims Monday.

Bruce Manson ousted No.5 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 6-3, 7-6, 6-3. Manson, a 25-year-old from Fort Worth, Texas, plays the 15th-seeded Gerulaitis in the quarterfinals.

NO.8 Pam Shriver fell to Anne Smith of Dallas. Smith plays fourth-seeded Martina Navratilova in a quarterfinal match tonight.

Navratilova beat No.14 Kathy Jordan 6-0, 6-1 Monday.

Defending champion John McEnroe defeated Kevin Curren of South Africa 7-5, 6-0, 6-1.

McEnroe will play in the quarterfinals against Ramesh Krishnan of India), who advanced when No.7 Gene Mayer was forced to retire because of leg cramps Monday night. Mayer had won the first two sets, 4-6 and 6-1 but then Krishan won the next two 7-6, 7-5 before Mayer retired.

"I started to feel twinges midway through the third set. The cramps started in my legs and eventually reached my groin, arms and (racket) hand." Mayer explained.

Chris Evert Lloyd, the other defender, was to get her big test today. She played fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova in the quarters. Mandlikova lost to Lloyd in the final here last year and in the Wimbledon final this year. In the remaining men's fourth-rounders, second-seeded Bjorn Borg will play today against No.13 Yannick Noah of France, and fourth-seeded Jimmy Connors plays Mike Cahill, who was inserted into the draw after the tournament started when another player didn't show up.

NO.6 Guillermo Vilas Of Argentina will play No.9 Roscoe Tanner, and No.8 Eliot Teltscher will play tonight against No.16 Brian Gottfried.

Lloyd defeated No.12 Bettina Bunge with surprising ease Monday, 6-2, 6-0. And Mandlikova beat Duk Hee Lee of South Korea 6-1, 6-0.

Third-seeded Tracy Austin, the 1979 champion, took just 50 minutes to breeze by veteran Rosie Casals, 6-1, 6-3 Monday night.

Austin is to play No.6 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany in the quarters.

Hanika defeated Sharon Walsh 6-2, 7-5 Monday.

And in the other women's quarterfinal, 17-year-old amateur Barbara Gerken, who played the qualifying round to get into the Open, will face 11th-seeded Barbara Potter.

Potter has already had a good workout with a 17-year-old amateur. She beat Andrea Leand Monday night, 6-7, 7-6, 6-3. Leand had defeated second-seeded Andrea Jaeger in the second round.

"Everything was just right for an upset," Manson said, who had beaten Clerc before.

GIANT-KILLING is not new to Manson, who is ranked No.74 in the world. Although he has lost to Gerulaitis in their previous meetings, he has beaten Borg once.

"When you beat the best players in the world, it's a completely different feeling," he said. "You feel like you can beat anybody. You're not as intimidated when you go out there. You feel like you belong."

Musical chairs continue in George's manager game

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Michael, who had been fired as New York Yankees manager Sunday in Kansas City, was not at Yankee Stadium when the club opened a homestand Monday.

But he issued a statement which the Yankees' public relations department released after the Yankees had defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 to give Bob Lemon, Michael's successor, two victories in two tries.

MICHAEL IN the statement said for the sake of his baseball career he felt it necessary "to refute certain allegations that have been made."

"I never complained about front office interference," the statement said. "I never failed to cooperate with the front office, with two exceptions — when the dugout was called during ballgames by Yankee personnel other than the owner."

Michael's statement added, "I also don't feel that I 'always' go public with statements as has been alleged."

Michael, who had been with the Yankees organization as a player, administrative assistant, coach, a minor league manager and general manager, was fired by Steinbrenner because he was, in the owner's words, "not a good soldier."

Steinbrenner was angered by Michael "going public" with complaints about the owner.

TEN DAYS earlier, Michael had voiced disapproval of Steinbrenner's tactics in dealing with him. The owner supposedly had threatened to fire him before a game with the Chicago White Sox. Michael was quoted as saying, "If you are going to fire me, fire me. Don't talk about it. Do it." He also held an impromptu news conference in which he expressed his resentment toward Steinbrenner.

Earlier that week, after a loss to the White Sox, Steinbrenner had ordered an off-day workout. Michael disagreed, saying that the players needed the rest. The Yankee manager finally gave in, but told Steinbrenner that he would inform the players the workout was demanded from "upstairs." That incident, it was speculated, triggered Michael's remarks to newsmen.

For Lemon, who will turn 61 before the month is out, it was a resurrection. For the second time in his career, he was the manager of the Yankees.

"To be honest, I never thought I'd manage again," he said Monday.

Lemon, who also managed the Kansas City Royals and Chicago White Sox, first took over the Yankees on July 25, 1978. That year he led the team to its 32nd American League pennant, after coming from 14 games back to win the Eastern Division title, and its 22nd World Championship. He replaced Billy Martin, who bowed out after verbally attacking Steinbrenner and outfielder Reggie Jackson. Referring to the owner and star player, Martin said, "One's a born liar and the other's convicted."

THE NEXT season, strangely, Martin replaced Lemon on June 19 as the Yankees struggled in fourth place with a 34-31 record.

Now Lemon is back again, replacing Michael, who led New York to first place in the AL East the first half of this season.

"Michael is a low-key guy," said third baseman Graig Nettles. "I never thought 'Stick' would get into any bouts with George, but obviously I was wrong. I don't know all the reasons or what was behind all this but I feel it had been building up for a long time with Gene."

Lemon, who was named The Associated Press Manager of the Year in 1978, talked about the two victories in his two days back. "I don't remember it being so easy.

"Maybe it'll be this way the rest of the season. Maybe it's better the second time around."

"I don't want to get into any fights," he said. "I want the rest of the season to be serene. I never had any problems with George in the past and I don't forsee any in the future. When George fired me the first time, I guess I was angry. But now, when I think about it, I realize he was right. It took time for me to see his point but I see it clearly now. In fact, after that, I was offerd a couple of managing jobs that I turned down. I just couldn't manage."

STEINBRENNER HAD maintained that Lemon, after the death of a son in an automobile accident, had lost his will to drive players.

"He's the guy who runs the show and he can do what he wants." Lemon said.

Jackson cools SA in playoffs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Scott Holman limited the San Antonio Dodgers to only four hits Monday night as the Jackson Mets took a 10-0 victory over San Antonio in the first game of the Texas League championship playoff series.

Butch Wickensheimer was the losing pitcher.

The victory gives Jackson a 1-0 advantage in the best-of-five series for the Texas League title. The second game of the series is to be played Tuesday night.

He's last of great racketeers

Los Angeles Times

He bills himself as the last of the great racketeers, a guy who has made more money out of the rackets than anybody since Charley Lucky got deported.

This king of the rackets doesn't go around shooting people from a moving car, or lending money at hourly interest to small-time losers, but he does spend most of his life in a court. His competition is also cutthroat at times, and his speciality is sudden death.

Before you alert Elliot Ness or conclude this is a meaty part for Marlon Brando, be advised that what Marty Hogan does for a living is as legal as a taffee pull. What Marty Hogan is the chief of all chiefs at is the fastest-growing sport in this country at the moment. His racket is indoor tennis, or a form of it, and Marty is the Godfather of this sport. "Marty is the greatest racquet athlete I've ever seen," insisted the Racquetball pioneer, Charlie Brumfield. "And this includes Borg, McEnroe, Connors, or Nastase."

Marty Hogan probably couldn't win Wimbledon. But neither could Borg or Connors win the Leach Trophy. Racquetball is a game which was invented less than 30 years ago by a tennis pro in Greenwich, Conn., who found handball too hard on the hands, squash too hard on the legs, and table tennis too much like pinochle in the firehouse. Joe Sobek took a wooden paddle tennis racquet, strung it like a sawed-off racquet, re-designed a handball court, and invented a new YMCA sport which he originally called "Paddle Racquets." His rules combined aspects of handball and squash, and the game could be played on a 40-by-20 court by two, three or four players at a time.

The acceptance of this sport was astonishing. The sport was ideal for the businessman's lunch hour, could be played in city lofts, and was perfect for conditioning, the fast sweat, the refreshing shower, and the gospel of the game was spread quickly by transferred businessmen who packed their racquets to their new branches. Sobek cast around for the ideal ball, finally settling on a seamless rubber sphere which gave a satisfactory "pop" when struck against a wall. The game, like most court games, was a 21-point set, on which one could score only on his own serve. The strung part of the racquet is 11-by-9 and the handle is only 7 inches long, fastened to the wrist by a thong. The ball weighs only 1 14 ounces, but smarts where it hits. It is blue for perception but not black and leaves a wall un-pocked when it strikes.

The charm of the game is, it's easily learned, and one of the earliest converts was Goldie Hogan a St. Louis housewife and Marty's mother, who became a world class player herself in the '50s. Son Marty was a running back in high school, and a major league prospect at shortstop, but he became a racquetball player because he got irritated at his mother's beating him.

Hogan changed the basic pattern of the game from trench warfare, to blitzkreig, from defense to assault. His nerve has been clocked at 142-miles-per-hour, and his all-court scramble has been likened to what happens in a chicken coop when a fox walks in. "Marty's in the air so much, he looks like he's walking on the ceiling," Brumfield once complained.

Only 23, Marty Hogan has won the national racquetball title four years in a row, has won $400,000 in official prize money on the tour, but racquetball devotees were disappointed at this year's final when the world's second-best player, Dave Peck, fell out of the tournament early, and Hogan went into the finals against a lesser player. It was as if Borg and McEnroe missed facing each other at Wimbledon.

But Hogan and Dave Peck will meet and it will be the greatest rackets' face-off since J. Edgar Hoover and Al Capone. Only, in this rackets game, the loser doesn't find a horse in his bed, just the acknowledgement that he's the best player in the world in a sport that now numbers 15 million practitioners, no less.

Martin influence felt in suspension

Billy motivates Norris to win over Rangers

Just because Billy Martin is suspended doesn't mean the Oakland A's manager is invisible.

Martin, who this week is sitting out the remainder of a seven-day suspension for bumping umpire Terry Cooney on May 29, was at the Oakland Coliseum Monday, watching the Texas-Oakland game on television in the clubhouse and dispensing influence.

"Billy's a great motivator. Just seeing his face at the ball park makes me feel good," pitcher Mike Norris said after he picked up his first victory since Aug. 11 with a seven-hit, 2-1 decision over the Texas Rangers.

NORRIS, WHO won his 10th game in 16 decisions, made frequent visits to Martin's office during the game.

In other American League games, New York beat Milwaukee 4-2, Seattle tripped Chicago 9-5, Baltimore bombed Cleveland 9-2, Detroit stopped Boston 3-1, Kansas City ripped California 7-1 and Minnesota blanked Toronto 4-0.

Norris blanked the Rangers until there were two outs in the ninth, when Bobby Jones ruined the shutout bid with a solo homer.

Oakland's two runs off Texas lefthander Rick Honeycutt, 9-4, who allowed only seven hits, came in the first and fifth innings.

Yankees 4, Brewers 2

Ron Guidry, 5-0 since the players' strike ended, pitched hitless ball for 51-3 innings and had plenty of power support from Graig Nettles and Dave Winfield.

Nettles went 3-for-3 with two homers, giving him 13 for the season, and three RBI and Winfield gave New York a 1-0 lead in the first inning with his ninth homer.

Robin Yount broke up Guidry's bid for a no-hitter with a homer in the sixth. Guidry, 10-3, left the game after 62-3 innings, allowing three hits to snap Milwaukee's four-game winning streak.

Twins 4, Blue Jays 3

Minnesota snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating Toronto behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Darrell Jackson and Doug Corbett.

John Castino had a two-run double in the fourth inning when left fielder George Bell failed to make a diving catch of a sinking liner. Tim Corcoran hit a two-run single in the eighth.

Mariners 9, White Sox 5

Tom Paciorek hit his ninth home run and Casey Parsons and Paul Serna hit their first major-league homers for Seattle to hand Chicago its 10th loss in 11 games.

The Mariners scored five runs in the second inning on Parsons' two-run homer and Paciorek's three-run shot.

Orioles 9, Indians 2

Eddie Murray's grand slam homer, Baltimore's fifth since the players' strike ended, climaxed a five-run fifth inning.

Murray hit his second slam of the season and fourth of his career after Cleveland reliever Wayne Garland walked Ken Singleton with the bases loaded.

Jim Palmer, 5-7, pitched hitless ball until the fifth and allowed only four hits in 71-3 innings, including Von Hayes' first major-league homer.

Tigers 3, Red Sox 1

Jack Morris became the AL's first 12-game winner with a two-hitter for Detroit, giving him 11 victories in his last 12 starts.

Steve Kemp gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead with a homer in the second and Boston tied it in the seventh on Carl Yastrzemski's homer.

Lou Whitaker tripled home the tiebreaking run in the eighth and scored on an infield single by Alan Trammell.

Royals 7, Angels 1

Willie Wilson had four hits and scored two runs and rookie Mike Jones won his fourth game in five decisions in the second season to lead Kansas City over skidding California.

United States skates by Czechs, 6-2

MONTREAL (AP) — Dean Talafous and Mike Eaves each scored their second goals of the game in the first minute of the final period to power the United States to a 6-2 Canada Cup victory over Czechoslovakia Monday night and into the tournament semifinals.

In the first game of a doubleheader at The Forum, Team Canada also clinched a spot in the semifinals with a 4-3 triumph over Sweden on Gilbert Perreault's tally at 6:55 of the third period. Perreault was lost for the rest of the tournament when he broke his ankle later in the game.

In the final game at Winnipeg, the Soviet Union blasted Finland 6-1 to clinch a spot in the semifinals. Winless Finland was eliminated.

Team USA, 2-2, handed the surprising Czechoslovaks their first loss in the tournament after a victory and two ties. Czechoslovakia grabbed a 2-0 lead just 35 seconds into the second period but the Americans stormed back to tie it, then connect for four goals in the third period.

The Americans and Czechs are tied for third place in the six-country tournament with four points apiece.

Jindrich Kokrment and Darius Rusnak each scored their second goals of the tournament to boost Czechoslovakoia ahead 2-0. But Eaves, of the National Hockey League Minnesota North Stars and Talafous, of the New York Rangers, began the Team USA comeback.

Eaves beat Czech goaltender Karol Lang with a 30-foot drive at 5:07 and 12 minutes later Talafous' shot bent the webbing of Lang's glove and trickled into the net.

With Czechoslovakia's Jan Neliba in the penalty box, Talafous put the United States ahead at 23 seconds of the third period. Eaves then beat Lang 18 seconds later; Defenseman Richie Dunn of the Buffalo Sabres scored his first goal of the tourney at 5:01, and Warren Miller of the Hartford Whalers struck 19 seconds later with his first goal to complete the American scoring.

U.S. netminder Tony Esposito faced 27 shots, while Lang was tested 25 times in the Czech goal.

The Swedes, who had won only one of their first three games in the tournament, came close to tying the score in the third period but Team Canada goaltender Mike Liut — who was shaky on two of Sweden's goals — held the Swedes off.

Denis Potvin, Mike Bossy and Guy Lafleur also scored for Team Canada, which has won three games and tied another in the tournament. Canada has one preliminary-round contest left — here against the Soviet Union on Wednesday night.

A pair of National Hockey League veterans, Anders Hedberg of the New York Rangers and Anders Kallur of the Islanders, provided Sweden's offense. Hedberg scored twice and Kallur once.

Peter Lindmark played a solid game, turning aside 29 shots in goal for Sweden. Liut stopped 13 shots.

A disappointing crowd of 11,603 watched the game.

Potvin, slowed somewhat by a nagging groin injury, opened the scoring at 3:57. The Islanders defenseman started the play which led to his goal. He slid a pass to Lafleur in the slot and only an outstanding leg save by Lindmark prevented a goal.

But Lindmark kicked the rebound to Potvin, who snapped it past the Swedish goaltender before he had a chance to respond.

A rebound also led to Bossy's goal which gave Canada a 2-0 lead at 5:29 of the first period. Defenseman Ray Bourque drilled a shot from the point that Lindmark squeezed between his pads. But the puck came loose among a cluster of players and Bossy, another member of the Stanley Cup champion Islanders, cracked it into the net.

Marriage makes new man out of Tony Dorsett

An AP Sports Analysis
By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Marriage has made a new man out of Tony Dorsett. The transformation began when Julie started throwing him out of the house.

"NO QUESTION, I'm a different person now, being married. Leastwise, I'd better be," the star running back of the Dallas Cowboys said with a laugh. "I'm more stable. Along with marriage comes a little more maturity, a little more responsibility. It kind of helps you to put your priorities in perspective. All in all, I think marriage is the best thing that could have happened to me.

"It's a different time and I'm in a different place as far as my life is concerned," he went on. "I got married in the offseason. I wasn't doing as much traveling as I normally do, so there weren't that many outside distractions as far as my life was concerned.

"So I was in the city of Dallas quite a bit more. Consequently, I didn't have very much to do except to go home and be with my wife, which I love to do. But, you know, at times she wanted to put me out of the house. She'd tell me, 'Go work out. I'm tired of lookin' at you all day.' So, being as I was in the city anyway, I worked out. And I think it's paying off."

IT'S PAYING off in more ways than one for the Cowboys' superstar, the only player in National Football League to rush for at least 1,000 yards in each of his first four seasons.

For one thing, by working out as much as he did, he showed up at training camp virtually in game-ready condition. It used to be that he'd work his way into peak shape through the early regular-season games.

And by being that ready that soon, Coach Tom Landry had no hesitation in calling Dorsett's number over and over again, 21 times to be exact, in Sunday's season-opener against Washington. Dorsett, rarely used that often this early, responded with 132 yards in the 26-10 victory.

One thousand yards this year? Barring injury, that seems a foregone conclusion. So what other goal does he have, beyond another Super Bowl for the Cowboys. How about 2,000?

"I feel I can be right up there with the top backs in the league," he said. "If I'm used like they're used, I can perform just like they perform. Two thousand? I think I can do almost anything."

One thing is for sure; he wants to do more than he did in last year's National Conference championship game (41 yards gained and a costly fumble lost in Philadelphia's 20-7 victory). "When we lost to the Eagles, I was thinking about this year right then," he said: "I was eager and hungry and have a point to prove — and I'm going to prove it."

The point?

"I'll tell you when it's all over and done with.

"I'm looking for this to be my best year," added Touchdown Tony, whose previous best was 1,325 in 1978. "That's what I spent all that time in the off-season working towards — having the year I feel I'm capable of having."

ON A few occasions Sunday, Dorsett ambled off the field s-l-o-w-l-y to the Cowboys' bench. One couldn't help but notice how he'd reach the sideline barely a second or two before the snap of the ball. Part of the look-at-me superstar syndrome?

"I hear there's an energy crisis. So what I try to do is conserve energy," he said with a sly smile. But he did have a point.

"FOOTBALL IS a 60-minute game. I'm in excellent condition but what determines just how good a shape you're in is your recovery time. If I'm tired, I don't want to sprint off and burn some more energy and then have to wait a little longer before I can get back in ... Besides, I'm a slow-moving guy. My mom and dad never thought I'd be a football player. Mom said I moved around like a turtle. I'm not in a hurry 'til I get in my stance and the ball's snapped."

Just like Earl Campbell, someone suggested.

"He's just like Tony Dorsett," Tony Dorsett corrected.

SWC injury report

TWO TEXAS Tech Red Raiders may be forced to sit out this week's opener against Colorado, football coach Jerry Moore said Monday.

Center Denny Harris "still is experiencing some back problems" and offensive tackle Matt Harlien "is a wait and see situation. He is wearing a back brace so he possibly could be redshirted," Moore said.

LONGHORN TAILBACKS A.J. "Jam" Jones and Rodney Tate will not play against Rice in the University of Texas opener Saturday, Coach Fred Akers announced Monday.

Jones has pulled a hamstring, and Tate has been sidelined with a hip pointer.

Should pig-tailed lasses be banned?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Should we ban all those precocious, pig-tailed little girls with those wicked two-fisted tennis backhands?

That's the noise we're hearing around the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadow where the U.S. Open Championships are being decided this week.

Why?

Listen to the literary essayists who record the sport: "The tykes are endangering their health. They are being spoiled by all the easy money. They are depriving themselves of normal childhood. They shouldn't be allowed to turn pro until they're 18"

Call in the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Minors, say these pontifical, self-appointed judges of the national norm.

ANDREA JAEGER should be out in the corner lot playing soccer with the boys. Kathy Rinaldi ought to be cutting out paper dolls and Hana Mandlikova — why isn't she back in her native Czechoslovakia skate-boarding on the sidewalk with the other kids?.

The matter came up for discussion again after Jaeger, who is an international court veteran at sweet 16, lost to unhealded Andrea Leand of Brooklandville, Md., an amateur who is preparing to enter Princeton University in the fall at age 17.

After losing, Jaeger was red-faced. Some say she even cried. She may have wept in private but she was composed when she met the media.

"Ah, a," said alarmists who jumped on reports of the youngster's tears. "What have we been telling you? The fact Andrea cried shows she is not mature enough for the pressure of bigtime tennis."

Hogwash.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-old girls are supposed to cry — when they stub a toe or get stood by by a beau, certainly when they lose a center court match before a howling crowd of 20,000.

Grown women cry. Even grown men cry — mean and tough boxing champions and 280-pound football players.

But there was another reason for saying such tykes should be held closer to their mothers' apron strings.

She came up with an arm injury and missed a preparatory tournament just before the Open.

"See," said the viewers with alarm, "that proves that little girls are fragile and have no business in so tough a competition."

As if they needed support, they pointed out that Pam Shriver, all of 19, had her career interrupted because of an acute shoulder injury.

MANDLIKOVA, the bouncy, snub-nosed Czech who has been in the finals of the last four major tournaments (U.S., Australian, French and Wimbledon) has periodically suffered a backache.

Just babies,' we are told, "They should be playing with dolls."

Come again?

These kids are athletes. All athletes are subject to frequent injuries. Football players twist knees. Basketball players turn ankles. Baseball players sprain shoulders and arms.

It's one of the risks of the trade.

Fuel for the debate was stoked by a chance comment by Chris Evert Lloyd, current queen of women's tennis.

I don't think it's healthy," Chris said in a postmatch interview. "I'd rather see them go through the juniors and compete with kid their own age."

Chris is now the wise old matron of the game at 26, winner of the major tournaments many times over and a secure multi-millionaire.

Chris surely can't have forgotten that it was largely she as the teen-age, two-fisted phenom of the early 1970s who created the current glut of young court killers.

They all have been copying her, wanting to be the new Chrissy. Granted she waited until she was 18 to turn pro but that is immaterial. Chrissy spent as many long hours under her dad's wing fashioning her game and there were other youngsters fighting for fame before the sport went open in 1968.

IF SOME age limit had been invoked for major events, we would not have been able to enjoy the glorious triumphs of the late Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly, perhaps the greatest ever, or of Chris herself.

The problem with the modern crop of pig-tailed giant killers is not that they are too young and immature, it's just that they are too good.

If it's their aim to make tennis their career, why should they not be allowed to play up to their standard?

Hana Mandlikova...there's a move afoot

Opening weekend busy and profitable for SEC

It was a busy and profitable weekend for the Southeastern Conference as the college football season began.

Led by defending national champion Georgia and perennial power Alabama, each of whom romped over conference rivals, six SEC teams were victorious Saturday. Four of them — Mississippi, Mississippi State, Auburn and Kentucky, won against non-conference foes, while only Florida was beaten by an outsider.

THE GATORS also were the only ranked team beaten Saturday, losing to bitter rival Miami 21-20 on a last-minute 55-yard field goal by Danny Miller. Miller's kick glanced off the upright and fell over the crossbar, dooming No. 17 Florida.

Tenth-ranked Georgia bombed Tennessee 44-0 as Herschel Walker and Buck Belue picked up where they left off in leading the Bulldogs to an unbeaten season last year. No. 4 Alabama made Bear Bryant's 307th coaching victory easy with a 24-7 romp over Louisiana State. No. 14 Mississippi State handled Memphis State 20-3; Auburn beat Texas Christian 24-16; Kentucky took North Texas State 28-6, and Mississippi edged Tulane 19-18.

Other ranked teams winning Saturday were No. 8 Pitt, which overpowered Illinois 26-6; No. 16 Brigham Young, a 31-8 victor over Long Beach State, and No. 19 Florida State, which blanked Louisville 17-0.

NEITHER TENNESSEE nor LSU really had a chance for victory after the opening moments of their games. The Vols — and a record crowd of 79,600 — saw homestanding Georgia march 92 yards for a touchdown on its first possession, with Walker scoring from a yard out. The sophomore tailback rushed for 161 yards in 30 carries and Belue threw to Lindsay Scott for two scores in the rout.

Alabama unveiled a young offensive backfield that did in LSU in a hurry. Quarterback Ken Coley ran for 108 of the Tide's 294 rushing yards, including a 51-yard jaunt on Alabama's first series.

Ken Simon matched Coley's romp with a 51-yard TD run on the next series, Coley later added a 42-yard sprint and a 49-yard pass to halfback Jeff Fagan and Alabama breezed in the nationally televised contest.

Mississippi State scored on three straight first-half possessions to subdue Memphis State. Sophomore quarterback John Bond led the Bulldogs to two touchdowns and a field goal in that spree.

AUBURN MADE Coach Pat Dye's debut a success as freshman fullback Ron O'Neal rushed for two touchdowns and 75 yards in one half. That offset the TCU pass-catch combo of Steve Stamp and Stanley Washington. Stamp hit 18 of 28 passes for 210 yards and Washington grabbed eight of them for 168 yards.

Sophmore quarterback Kelly Powell hit flanker Breck Tyler with a 39-yard scoring toss with 1:01 left to rally Mississippi over Tulane. Powell marched the Rebels 66 yards in the final three minutes for the tying touchdown, then kicker Todd Gatlin tacked on the decisive extra point.

Pitt, which wound up second to Georgia in the final Associated Press poll last season, overcame a shaky start by quarterback Dan Marino, who completed only two of 14 first-half passes. Marino did throw for two touchdowns and wound up 14-for-35.

Brigham Young quarterback Jim McMahon threw for 403 yards, completing 28 of 45 passes, but none for touchdowns, as the Cougars defense accounted for two TDs on a blocked punt and an interception return.

ELSEWHERE, IT was Rutgers 29, Syracuse 27; Temple 42, William & Mary 0; Clemson 45, Wofford 10; North Carolina State 27, Richmond 21; South Carolina 23, Wake Forest 6; Drake 39, Northern Iowa 30; Houston 21, New Mexico State 10; Kansas 15, Tulsa 11; Lamar 18, Baylor 17; New Mexico State 14, Texas-El Paso 7; Southern Methodist 48, Texas-Arlington 0; Fresno State 23, Oregon 16; Texas A&M 29, California 28; Utah 10, Utah State 0, and Wyoming 38, Fullerton State 3.

Carner moves to top spot with Rail Charity win

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Victory at the Rail Charity Golf Classic has moved veteran JoAnne Carner to the top spot on the Ladies Professional Golf Association money-winners list.

BATTLING RAIN and cold, Carner shot a final-round 6-under-par 66 Monday to win the tournament with a three-round total of 11-under-par 205.

The victory, Carner's fourth of the year and second in a row, gave her the championship that eluded her a year ago when she finished second to Nancy Lopez-Melton.

"The crowds here — I have a feeling they like me," Carner said. "That just carries over so I play well and it's nice to produce for them."

Carner played the entire round in a light, cold rain on the 6,281-yard, par-72 Rail Golf Club course.

"Yeah, it was a good day," she said. "I love that rainy weather."

Rookie Kyle O'Brien shot a 2-under-par 70 on the final day and finished second, at 5 under par.

"I'm just glad I stood up to the pressure," O'Brien said. "I didn't give it away. She went out and won it."

PATTY SHEEHAN, the second-round leader, shot a 72 Monday and finished third at 8 under par. Pat Bradley, a tour veteran who was in contention all day, finished fourth after taking a double bogey on the final hole.

BRANIFF STRIKES BACK!

New Braniff Express - all one class, all seats at a discount.

Face it flyers, you're in the midst of air wars. All the airlines want your business. Yet they all offer you the same old thing.

But now Braniff strikes back. With choices in fares and services you've never had before.

WE'RE STRIKING BACK WITH BRANIFF EXPRESS.

It's a cinch you think airline fares are too high. And we agree.

That's why we're striking back with one-class flights where absolutely every seat is discounted at least 20% with absolutely no restrictions. The fares are even lower on some routes and during certain days and times.

Best of all, you still get Braniff's roominess and comfortable leather seats. (Of course, with fares this low, the meal service is limited on Braniff Express flights.)

WE'RE STRIKING BACK WITH BRANIFF PREMIER.

You can still get the best of Braniff on our Premier First Class/Coach flights.

We offer Braniff Premier Service at preferred times almost everywhere we fly. And whether you choose Coach or our expanded First Class, you get the full range of comforts and in-flight services Braniff is known for.

WE'RE STRIKING BACK WITH 10-SECOND CHECK-IN, SHORT FORM TICKETING AND MORE.

We're improving service at the airport too.

Take our new check-in system for example. It's simple. Hassle-free. And fast. In fact, just to give ourselves a goal, we're calling it 10-Second Check-In.

We're also making it easier to buy a ticket at the airport. Braniff Short Form Ticketing takes a fraction of the time most airline ticketing takes.

And we haven't stopped there. We're striking back in ways you'll see every time you fly with us.

We're striking back with a whole new Braniff.

Come fly the new Braniff. For information or reservations, call your travel agent, corporate travel office or Braniff in Midland or Odessa at 563-3885. All other Texas cities call toll-free (800) 492-4300.

Theses misses are all hits

The fifty contestants for the Miss America title pase for photographers on the beash in Atlantic City, N.J., Monday. Competition will continued through the week, with a winner chosen at ceremonies to be televised Saturday. At right, Miss Texas, Sheri Ryman, dusts off the sand and puts on her shoes at the close of the photo session.

Does she or doesn't she? Ask Miss America

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Despite the careful record-keeping of measurements by Miss America Pageant officials, only the contestant knows for sure if she has altered a less-than-perfect bustline.

The use of padding and stuffing to improve measurements are definitely legal in the contest -- unlike the Miss U.S.A. pageant — and strictly confidential, pageant officials say.

"If a contestant can enhance herself physically, that's fine with us," pageant chairman Albert Marks Jr. said Monday. "I strongly feel that what a woman wears is her own business. I'd hate to have a contestant ask me what color shorts I have on."

Pageant officials also decline to check for padding and refuse to verify contestants' claims on their measurements, Marks said, because "we're not physically oriented. It's just not what we look for."

Contestants' hostesses and chaperones are considered to be experts at creating the right proportions with cotton and tissue.

And the women have been known to tape their breasts and use makeup to create an optical illusion if necessary.

But hostess chairwoman Ellen Plum denies much of that goes on any more.

"In this day and age, the natural look is in," she says.

Miss America officials say they are amused at last May's brouhaha at the competing Miss U.S.A. Pageant in Biloxi, Miss.

In that contest, Deborah Ann Fountain claimed she was disqualified as Miss New York when she revealed that curious pageant officials had uncovered unauthorized padding in her swimsuit. Her cries of foul have been thrown out of two New York courts.

The average contestant at this year's Miss America contest, which culminates Saturday, comes in at 35-23½-35½. She stands 5-feet-6¼-inches tall and weighs 117 pounds.

When an ambitious contestant is battling 49 others for the title of Miss America, with a $20,000 scholarship and more than $50,000 in bookings, every little bit helps — or hurts.

Only Miss Washington, Kristine Elizabeth Weitz, 19, of Pasco, dared to list her bust at more than 36 inches. She's 37-24-37.

At the other extreme is Miss Wyoming, Keri Lyn Borgaard, 23, of Cheyenne, who measures 33-22-32. But then Miss Borgaard is 5-foot-1 and weighs only 95 pounds.

The trend in recent pageants has been to smaller bustlines. The last official 36-inch Miss America was New York's Tawny Godin in 1976. The reigning Miss America, Susan Powell, of Elk City, Okla., i: isted at 35-24-35.

Only two women have won with bigger bustlines, and both of them were more than 25 years ago — BeBe Shopp in 1948 and Evelyn Ay in 1954. Both were 37.

"Frankly, whether all these figures are real or imagined," Marks says, "I couldn't care less."

Producer, bride hold 'Roaring Twenties' wedding

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Theatrical producer Roy Radin and Toni Fillet, his co-defendant in an alleged attack on a young actress, have been married in a stylish wedding at Radin's Southampton mansion.

Newsday, a Long Island newspaper, said the two were married Saturday in a civil ceremony which was followed by a reception in the 72-room oceanfront home.

The couple chose a "Roaring Twenties" theme for the wedding, and vintage cars and flappers were out in force at the party.

Radin, 31, and Miss Fillet, 28, pleaded guilty in Suffolk County Court in Riverhead last October to charges stemming from an alleged attack in April 1980 on Melonie Haller, an actress-model.

Radin was fined $1,000 and was given three years probation for possession of a weapon. Miss Fillet was fined $50 on a misdemeanor charge of harassment.

Miss Haller claimed she had been raped by Radin, but a grand jury did not bring rape charges. She was a regular on the "Welcome Back, Kotter" television series, and posed in the March 1980 issue of Playboy.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Comedian and activist Dick Gregory is risking death by carrying on a water-only fast to study the effects of malnutrition and starvation, doctors say.

As of Monday, Gregory had survived on just water for 42 days. He has previously fasted as a form of political protests, but a press release stated the current fast is solely for research.

Gregory has lost 35 pounds and dropped to a weight of 119 since he entered Flint-Goodridge Hospital at Dillard University July 21, Dr. Joseph Allain said.

Allain said a four-member medical team observing Gregory advised him he must stop the fast by Sept. 13 or he could die, but Gregory has vowed to continue the fast until Sept. 29.

The medical team will continue to watch Gregory while he fasts "although he knows he would be proceeding against medical advice."

•

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II was joined by several thousand spectators as he watched "The Legend of St. Catherine of Siena," a play by the Rev. Raffaello Lavagna.

The play, staged Monday in the courtyard of the papal summer palace, has been put on in other cities in Italy for the 600th anniversary of the saint's death in 1380.

The pontiff is recovering from surgery to correct complications caused by gunshot wounds he suffered in a May 13 assasination attempt.

•

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball remains in satisfactory condition at LDS Hospital, where he underwent a successful operation Saturday morning to remove blood and scar tissue from beneath his skull.

Church spokesman Jerry Cahill said that after the 2½-hour operation, doctors said they expected to keep the 86-year-old church leader in the hospital's intensive care unit for 48 to 72 hours.

These babies aren't pretty

MIAMI (AP) — The 17 baby Siamese crocodiles may be ugly, but to Dade County Metrozoo officials, the 3-inch-long reptiles' looks are secondary.

What matters is that for the third time since 1978, Miami has successfully bred in captivity the rarely seen Southeast Asian crocodile.

"They're not pretty," Metrozoo reptile keeper Ron Magill said of the newly hatched babies, "but these may now be extinct in the wild."

The curator of the Western Hemisphere's only successful Siamese crocodile breeding facility finds no fault with the creature's looks.

"Crocodile-wise, they're so ugly that people want to look at them," said Metrozoo general curator Bill Ziegler.

Only Thailand has a facility where the broad-snouted cousins of the American crocodile are harbored.

The Siamese crocodiles come in greens, browns and blacks. They rarely reach 9 feet in length, while America's crocodiles grow up to 14 feet long, said Magill.

Professional poachers in Southeast Asia make a handsome living selling the Siamese crocodiles' hides, which are made into expensive luggage, shoes and cases much prized by Europeans, he said.

The poaching and habitat destruction through intensive field irrigation have made Siamese crocodiles nearly extinct in the wild, Magill said.

The freshwater crocodiles in the Metrozoo facility have bred three times since 1978, including the 17 hatchings over the weekend.

ENTERTAINMENT

One crocodile survived the first hatching in 1978, with seven "subadults" still alive from last year's hatching, Magill said.

Magill attributed the facility's breeding success to the near-tropical southern Florida climate and "a lot of luck getting two compatible animals."

The Metrozoo currently has two Siamese crocodiles on loan from New York's Bronx Zoo in hopes the pair also will breed.

After the babies emerge from their shells, zoo workers feed the animals live crickets. In a few weeks, the baby crocodiles will be fed live mice, and then are expected to catch them, Ziegler said.

Introductory electrical course set

ODESSA — As a result of a joint effort between the Permian Basin chapter of the Association of Builders and Contractors and Odessa College, an introductory course to the electrical field will be offered beginning Sept. 22.

The task training class is a pilot project developed by Massey Brand, director of the Permian Basin chapter of ABC, and Sam Holloman, ABC member and head of Holloman Construction, in conjunction with the ACTION program currently under way at Odessa College.

OC's ACTION program began last spring to help local employers in business and industry meet employee shortages by offering special training courses, seminars, workshops or other programs.

The Permian Basin chapter represents more than 160 companies in West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico. Members include those involved in general contracting, sub-contracting, oil field rigs, pipeline construction, heating and air conditioning, welding, well service manufacturing, machine shop, mechanical and electrical contracting, financial institutions associated with the building industry and others associated with building and contracting.

If the pilot project works well, ABC officials have indicated an interest in developing other types of training courses in such areas as welding or pipe-fitting.

The course, entitled "Electrical I," will meet 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays from Sept. 22 through Nov. 5 in the Instructional Building, room 101. According to Brand, the limit is 20 students and 15 have already registered.

Persons who are interested in learning about the electrical field and in the possibility of a job following completion of the course should contact Brand at the Association of Builders and Contractors office in Odessa, 367-5888.

Coloradan wins balloon contest

LACLEDE, Mo. (AP) — An annual Labor Day hot air balloon contest, the Pershing Balloon Derby, was won by Colorado native Nick Saum, this weekend in north-central Missouri.

Second place went to Michael Ledbetter of St. Louis, and Jerry Riley, of Indianola, Iowa took third.

Some 62 balloons competed in the contest, named for a Chicago balloonist who died earlier this year, and they started Friday evening.

Atlanta newspapers available on TV

ATLANTA (AP) — Residents of the Atlanta area who have home computers now are able to receive electronic editions of The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal over their television sets.

The newspapers began their electronic editions Monday after announcing Sunday that the project would be a year-long experiment conducted with The Associated Press through CompuServe Information Service.

"This experiment will allow our newspapers to explore a whole new arena of disseminating the news," Atlanta Newspapers President Tom Wood said. "This is not an attempt to replace the newspapers but is a supplement to our regular editions.

"This is a project in which we are attempting to see what the future might hold. As a newspaper, we are committed to supplying information and examining other media to reach an increasingly diverse readership," he said.
