Mayor Burns probably won't run again

Staff Writer

Midland Mayor Bobby Burns has determined he probably won't run for re-election this spring.

He's thought about it long and hard. And, ultimately, Burns came up with three chief reasons not to run again.

First, Burns said he'd like to have more free time to spend with his 14-year old son, Austin.

Second, he said he'd like to focus more energy on his insurance business.

Third, he said he'd feel uncomfortable running for a fourth term after the people of Midland in 1997 limited city officeholders to three terms.

"I obviously enjoy the job as mayor and consider it a great honor," Burns said in an interview this week. "But there was an ordinance enacted in 1996 that limits an officeholder to three terms. I have to give that serious consideration. The people voted for term limits."

Midland voters approved an ordinance to limit the number of terms held by a city council member to three three-year terms. Prior to that there were no term limits and council members could be elected to an unlimited number of two-year

Superintendent search, academic achievement on MISD retreat agenda

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland Independent School District's trustees and executive staff will be in a six-hour retreat on Saturday to set and discuss district priorities from strengthening academics and addressing teachers' pay to building MISD credibility with the community.

'As a district, we need to have visions beyond that (the bond issue).'
— George Lara, MISD trustee

'Everybody in the community wants you to cut the (overall) budget, to be conservative as possible with our (tax) money. But that leaves you the question of 'What exactly gets left out?'"
Dale Strauss, MISD trustee

"If we focus on strong academics for all students, I think then we're heading in the right direction," said George Lara, president of the seven-member board of trustees. "Everything should fall in place."

The trustees and the nine-member MISD executive staff that is headed by MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. will be guided in the retreat by facilitator William Nemir, who is director of Leadership Team Services for the Austin-based Texas Association of School Boards.

His fee for the 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. session in the MISD Administration Building's first-floor Board Room at 615 W. Missouri Ave. is $900 plus travel and other expenses.

"My job is to kind of keep them (trustees and administrators) on task and to keep the conversation focused," Nemir said. "My mission is just whatever they want it to be — to try to get a sense of what the emerging issues are and for the district to address those issues appropriately. They set the goals for the session — the desired product of the session."

The working retreat is a public meeting and is open to the public.

"I would like to encourage all board members, whatever issue they have, to please bring it to the table, discuss it," Lara said. "Let's find the common ground, put in prioritized sequence, so we can work with those goals. It is important and vital to keep everyone in the community abreast of what direction this district is taking."

Serving with Lara, who was elected to the board in 1999, and their first year in office are trustees Dale Strauss, 2000; Shane Boring, 1999; Linda Foster, 2000; James E. Fuller, 1988; Rebecca Oekerman, 1998, and Charles Tighe, 2000.

"We need to address the issues as they relate to the educational instruction and also the facilities," including the proposed building of a new Midland High School and the renovation of Lee High School under the $72.2-million MISD bond referendum that is to be decided on Oct. 7.

MISD has a $134.6 million budget, 20,006 enrolled students from kindergarten through the 12th grade, and a workforce of 3,200, including 2,800 full-time staffers, including teachers and administrators.

Hispanic chamber begins new lending program

By Brian Rogers
Staff Writer

The Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Thursday unveiled a micro lending program for new business start-ups and expanding businesses within Midland's community development block grant area.

"We've been working to get this loan program together for businesses for a few months now," said David Diaz, executive director of the Hispanic chamber. "In the past three years, there has been an unprecedented increase in investment in east Midland, including a funeral home, a day care center, a gymnastics school, and a family medical clinic."

Diaz said the Hispanic chamber is helping to further economic development by creating a pool of funds with the cooperation of Chase Bank, Community National Bank, First National Bank, Wells-Fargo Bank and Western National Bank. "This would not be possible without the support of our banking community," Diaz said.

Diaz went on to say that three businesses have already been approved for loans:

- Garcia's Burritos, on N. Lamesa Road, which will expand from a take-out establishment into a restaurant with seating for 80.

Chamber backs MISD bond

From Staff Reports

The Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors Thursday unanimously passed a resolution to support the MISD $72.2 million bond issue.

Madeline Garcia, board chairman of the Hispanic chamber, said, "I feel that an investment in our schools is an investment in our future. It's also important to be technology ready, and make Midland as attractive as possible to outside businesses for economic diversification."

David Diaz, executive director of the Hispanic chamber, echoed that sentiment saying, "This is a continued effort to invest in our kids. We've given thousands of

"We see great potential for the Permian Basin as CO2 recovery becomes more widespread," said Tim Bradley, president of Kinder Morgan CO2, who on Thursday announced the opening of a new office in Midland.

Glamorous judge under fire over transsexual's sentencing

BOSTON (AP) — Judge Maria Lopez has felt the soft glow of the media spotlight. As the subject of adoring profiles and stories about her marriage to a Boston newspaper publisher, she achieved a glamour few jurists attain.

But a single ruling has changed everything.

Last week, Lopez sentenced child molester Charles Horton, a 22-year-old transsexual, to home confinement, despite a prosecutor's request for eight to 10 years in prison. Since then, the spotlight on Lopez has been glaring.

Some legislators are demanding her removal from the bench, and columnists and talk show callers have vilified her.

The details of Horton's crime — while dressed as a woman, he lured a 12-year-old boy into his car and made him simulate a sex act on a screwdriver — have prompted attacks on everything from Lopez's courtroom demeanor to her flamboyant personality.

The atmosphere is so superheated that those who defend her run the risk of being labeled "propedophile."

"People are outraged by this and want to say we ought not to idly stand by and watch it happen," said House Minority Leader Francis Marini, a Republican who on Wednesday filed a resolution co-signed by 47 other legislators to begin the process of removing Lopez from the bench. The resolution is given little chance of success.

Lopez did not explain herself at Horton's sentencing except to call Horton's crime "low level." Outside of court, she has declined to comment except to say there were unspecified mitigating circumstances.

Some legal observers say Lopez, 47, is knowledgeable and fair. They say that if she were removed because of a legal, if unpopular, ruling, it would set a dangerous precedent. Others suggest that Lopez's gender has fed the criticism and that questions about her personal style are out of bounds.

"There's something about the coverage of this that has been particularly demeaning to her," said U.S. District Judge Nancy Gertner.

Lopez, a Cuban emigre, was nominated in 1993 by Republican Gov. William Weld, becoming the first Hispanic woman on the state Superior Court bench.

She was a most unusual judge: The attractive Lopez was unafraid to paint flashy colors on her fingernails, go in-line skating on city streets in Spandex, or pose coyly for a newspaper photographer.

A 1994 Boston Globe profile raved about her "energy and joie de vivre." Her 1995 marriage to Stephen Mindich, publisher of the alternative weekly The Boston Phoenix, made newspaper feature pages, and stories about the couple often appear in the society and gossip columns.

Some of her previous rulings made headlines and prompted criticism. Among them: an order that the state pay for a transsexual's breast reconstruction, and a requirement that a man who killed his friend in a boating accident build a memorial to his victim.

Complaints of leniency were first loudly made against Lopez over a 1992 case in which she refused to keep a man in jail after his juvenile sentence for killing his 5-year-old neighbor was up.

MISD: Budget among items on retreat agenda issue)," said Lara, who cited teachers' salaries, the budget process, and campuses in south Midland.

Lara said that the board has been "bombarded very recently about not having plans. But we do have plans, but we are going to add onto those plans. This district does have a vision."

Joining the board in the retreat will be Baressi's executive directors. They and their areas of responsibility are: Joe Cummins, Administrative Services, Evaluation and Planning; Milton Evitt, Computer and Pupil Services; Wilson Heidelberg, Auxiliary/Construction Services; Thomas Holland, Human Resource Services; Art Martin, Business Services; Dorsey Rushing, Elementary Education; Ricardo Torres, Secondary Education, and Barney Welch, Communications Services.

Ms. Foster, a trustee with a background in business management, said that the trustees would be "talking about issues that are high on our radar" and that she would "prefer outlining a framework of how we proceed over the next years."

Among Ms. Foster's salient issues are "finding a new leader" to succeed Baressi, who is retiring in 2001; analyzing the budget; reviewing academic programs; building "credibility with the community."

Important, too, she said, is "relationship-building" among the trustees.

"We have never spent much time (together) other than coming to work meetings and trying to pound out issues," said Ms. Foster, who noted that the retreat is about "solidifying" the board.

"We may have differences, but we are going to rise above personal issues, and we are going to deal with the business of running a district, setting policy, holding the administrators' feet to the fire. That's what our role is. It is not to fight among ourselves."

In the MISD hierarchy, the superintendent, who is the district's chief executive officer, "reports to the board" and has "the complete responsibility of the day in and day out running of that business. It is a big business, and it is a huge job," Ms. Foster said. "But the board needs to set policy and set the policy in a way that makes it workable for the superintendent to carry it out. I don't want to micromanage. I don't what to have to deal with the day-to-day issues."

Strauss, who is one of two lawyers on the board, said that "one of the things we need to accomplish is to focus very hard on that budget and doing it as an all-year exercise, not just something we do in the spring" prior to setting the tax rate.

"We have independent campuses, and each campus has its own budget," Strauss said. "Everybody in the community wants you to cut the (overall) budget, to be conservative as possible with our (tax) money. But that leaves you the question of 'What exactly gets left out?'

"Before we can answer that question, we need to know what is in there," Strauss said.

He suggested a need to better understand "how our various programs are put together whether you are taking about band or football or reading recovery or bilingual education or strings or foreign-language programs.

"The retreat is to get the board focused back on academic issues," Strauss said. "The objective is chasing after advancing education. I want to see us focusing on our student achievement, not just the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) scores but our TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills) scores and the other testing that we do" in working toward students' excelling in schools.

Baressi, who has been MISD superintendent since 1982, said that major issues in the retreat would be "our student achievement and our academic programs, our (financial) resources both state and local. We need to analyze the impact of our enrollment decline and what the response needs to be to that as far as downsizing."

BURNS: Mayor can legally seek re-election

terms.

Burns was first elected to a two-year term in 1994. He was re-elected in 1996, but the new ordinance did not impact city office holders until 1997. After serving two two-year terms, Burns was elected to his first three-year term in 1998. Burns could legally seek re-election in 2001 and 2004 and then leave office in 2007. But Burns said he would be uncomfortable doing so.

"Although I'm grandfathered and can run legally, at this stage I am uncomfortable running for a fourth term when the voters have said that three terms should be the maximum. I don't think I should be treated any different than anyone else, even though I'm grandfathered."

With that in mind, Burns looks back fondly on his years as mayor saying it was an honor to serve.

"I love having the opportunity to serve the people of Midland," he said. "It would be a great opportunity for anybody. As I look at the last six and a half years I see a great deal for Midland to be proud of."

Burns said Midland has accomplished a lot since 1994 including the construction of the new Midland International Airport, the construction of Loop 250, the economic development along Loop 250, voter approval of a quarter percent sales tax increase to build the Scharbauer Sports Complex, six straight property tax rate reductions by City Council and the rejuvenation of city parks.

"I think this is a credit to our councils and city staff and many good Midlanders that made this happen," Burns added.

Burns said he had only one regret in his six years as mayor: the unsuccessful campaign to get the economic development sales tax increase approved by voters in 1996.

"I think one of the most important issues we looked at was the economic development fund. I wish we would have won in 1997. I believe in the future we will answer that challenge," Burns said.

And Burns said, the two most important challenges facing Midland today are jobs and education.

"I believe Midland will be courageous and face both of these challenges," he said.

With his term ending in less than a year Burns said, "I look forward to working hard all the way through."

Dale Brown, a former council member and friend of the mayor, said Burns' decision against seeking re-election is a great loss for Midland.

"I regard Bobby Burns as a very exceptional mayor for Midland," Brown said. "He came into office with a vision of what the city could be and has been consistent in pursuing that with skill and integrity. I hate for us to lose him."

OFFICE: Company will not rush to buy CO2 projects increase oil production from the SACROC Unit to more than 10,000 barrels per day, compared to current levels of about 8,500 barrels per day. He said some engineers have suggested that Sacroc, with intensive development, might eventually produce 30,000 barrel per day.

Kinder Morgan CO2 purchased a 71 percent working interest in the SACROC Unit in June from Devon Energy Production Co. Located in Scurry County, the 50,000-acre SACROC Unit is one of the largest oil fields and the oldest operating CO2 recovery projects in the Permian Basin. Since its discovery in 1948, it has produced 1.2 billion barrels of oil and has at least that much oil left in place.

"The Midland office and our development of SACROC is part of our commitment to the Permian Basin oil industry and the local economy," Bradley said. "As we bring abundant CO2 supplies, proven technology and a cost-effective, extensive transportation system to the area, we are making CO2 enhanced oil recovery more affordable for everyone. One of our goals is to expand the use of CO2 flooding — a proven technology for increasing the production of oil reserves — by providing cost-effective access to CO2, transportation and technology to all operators of prospective oil fields."

Bradley said ownership in Permian Basin assets may be changing but his company did not see that as a negative. "New ownership and CO2 recovery will bring greater focus to projects, and that will mean more oil recovered."

He said Kinder Morgan CO2 would not rush out to buy a large number of CO2 projects, but would continue to focus on supply and distribution, promotion of CO2 projects and would pursue other ventures only as a niche player. If the company is able to pursue other niche opportunities, he said the Midland office might grow.

The Midland office is located at Heritage Plaza, 500 N. Lorraine, Suite 1175. Pete Hagist, SACROC's director of operations and engineering, Scott Wehner, Becky Larkin, and six more technical professionals will be employed at the office.

The company, since buying out Shell CO2, is now in a hiring mode as it rebuilds its organization. When hiring is complete, Kinder Morgan CO2 Company will have approximately 70 people operating from offices located in Odessa, Snyder and certain Cortez Pipeline operations in Denver City, in addition to Midland. The company has 25 employees in Houston.

LOANS: Chamber is beautifying east Midland

■ Roberto Rivera will relocate Triple R Collision and Repair to South Rankin Highway.

■ Rigo Hernandez will be able to expand Sierra Landscape Construction as a licensed irrigation contractor.

Theresa Garcia, of Garcia's Burritos, said that the Hispanic chamber was encouraging and the loan would be helpful.

"They (the Hispanic chamber) want to help us get bigger. And it was simple to get the loan."

Ms. Garcia, who opened Garcia's Burritos in 1966, transferred the business to her daughter, Jo Ann Ochoa, at the beginning of this year.

Rivera is planning on relocating his auto paint and body shop. Rivera also said the Hispanic chamber had been helpful.

"I appreciate all of the hard work they've done for me," he said. "They show interest in the whole community, not just the Hispanic community, and we need loan programs like this throughout the whole community."

Hernandez, who just took the licensing exam for irrigation contractors, is already planning on advertising as an irrigator. "I've been a small operator for over 10 years, and the Hispanic chamber is helping me to operate my business. They've been very helpful with this loan and, they've encouraged me to take on the expense of licensing."

Meanwhile, Steve Sanchez, a vice president at Western National Bank, who is also on the loan committee, said, "This is a micro lending program where the Hispanic chamber has gotten involved with banks to pool money to make loans available to small businesses. These businesses might not qualify for traditional loans. The program is for economic development and provides a different source of funding for these businesses."

Sanchez said the process usually involves a $5,000 to $10,000 loan.

"The Hispanic chamber does the initial screening, then it goes to a loan committee which decides on it," said Sanchez.

Although Diaz is proud of the new loan program, the Hispanic chamber is also working on several other projects, including the beautification of east Midland. "We're trying to increase the aesthetics of Lamesa road to bring in more business," Diaz said.

The Hispanic chamber has beautified more than 20 intersections along Lamesa Road and Florida Avenue with red lava rocks, and is involved in replacing more than 100 dead trees.

dollars in scholarships, and this bond is in the best interest of our community.

In the resolution, the directors agreed to endorse the passage of the bond, and encouraged the citizens of Midland to vote for it.

The resolution states that the Hispanic chamber has always been an advocate of economic and community development through a well-trained work force, and the bond issue will provide area students with an environment better suited for learning. The resolution also states that this commitment to a quality education requires the community's collective support.

The bond referendum for construction of a new Midland High School and the expansion and renovation of Lee High School is slated for a public vote on Oct 7.

'Nutcracker' auditions slated for Saturday

From Staff Reports

"Nutcracker" fans have the chance to see two separate productions of the famous Russian ballet presented here this season. The Moscow Ballet production is set for Nov. 16 with area auditions for the children in the production set for Saturday at 3 p.m. at Music City Mall, Odessa.

Midland Festival Ballet's production is set for Dec. 16 and 17. Both productions of "Nutcracker" will be presented at Lee High School.

The Midland-Odessa Symphony will be performing Tchaikovsky's masterpiece for the Midland Festival Ballet production. Local auditions have already been held for the MFB production, and Carissa Oei has been chosen to play the role of Clara. Soloists include Valentina Koslova of New York as the Sugar Plum Fairy, Cornel Crabtree of Chicago as her cavalier, John Simons of Fort Worth as Drosselmeir and Regina Gonzales-Willoughby of Columbia, S.C., as the Dew Drop Fairy.

For the Moscow Ballet's production, a ballerina from the company, Svetlana Safronova, is conducting the auditions Saturday on the Music City Mall Grand Stage, 4101 E. 42nd. The auditions are for children ages 8 to early teens. Roles available include party children, mice, snowflakes, angels and butterflies.

The Moscow Ballet presentation of the classical ballet features a new production with 300 costumes, a Russian storybook set and 50 Russian dancers, including, among others, Marina Gochko and Andrei Prikhodko, winners of the Arabesque and Diagelev International Ballet competitions, and Sergei Vladimirov, winner of the Yuri Gregorovich International Ballet Competition.

Unlike American versions, the Moscow Ballet production is mostly a grown-up ballet. For example, the role of Clara is danced by a company ballerina who takes over the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy in the Second Act. The Russian company is touring the United States this fall with this ballet. For ticket information to the Moscow Ballet performance here or elsewhere call Central Tickets (800) 462-7979 and for group tickets call (800) 320-1733.

Teen pleads guilty to burglary

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen assistant night manager of a southwest Houston fast food restaurant was sentenced Thursday to two years behind bars for helping three others carry out a burglary that sparked a fatal fire.

Edson Garza Orozco, 16, pleaded guilty to burglary. Garza Orozco, who was 15 at the time of the Feb. 14 burglary and fire at the McDonald's where he worked, had been certified to stand trial as an adult.

Three other teens were convicted of felony murder for torching the restaurant after their overnight break-in. Houston firefighters Lewis Mayo, 44, and Kimberly Smith, 30, died battling the blaze.

According to court documents and testimony, Garza Orozco gave his keys to the other teens so they could burglarize the McDonald's.

Mayo and Davis were the first full-time Houston firefighters to die at a scene since 1977.

Groups call for end to discount for polluters

By Natalie Gott
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Saying the state should reward companies and cities that reduce pollution, a coalition of public interest groups on Thursday urged state leaders to consider new options for funding environmental programs.

By adopting the proposals, the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission programs could receive an additional $10 million annually in fees, the groups said.

One proposal calls for lowering the air pollution emissions fee from $26 per ton to $20 per ton, but removing the current 4,000-ton cap on pollution emissions fees. Removing the cap would generate between $8 million to $12 million a year in additional revenue for TNRCC's air quality protection programs, said Tom "Smitty" Smith, director of the Texas office of Public Citizen.

The proposals are part of a report from the Texas Center for Policy Studies that examines fee structures on air, water and wastewater.

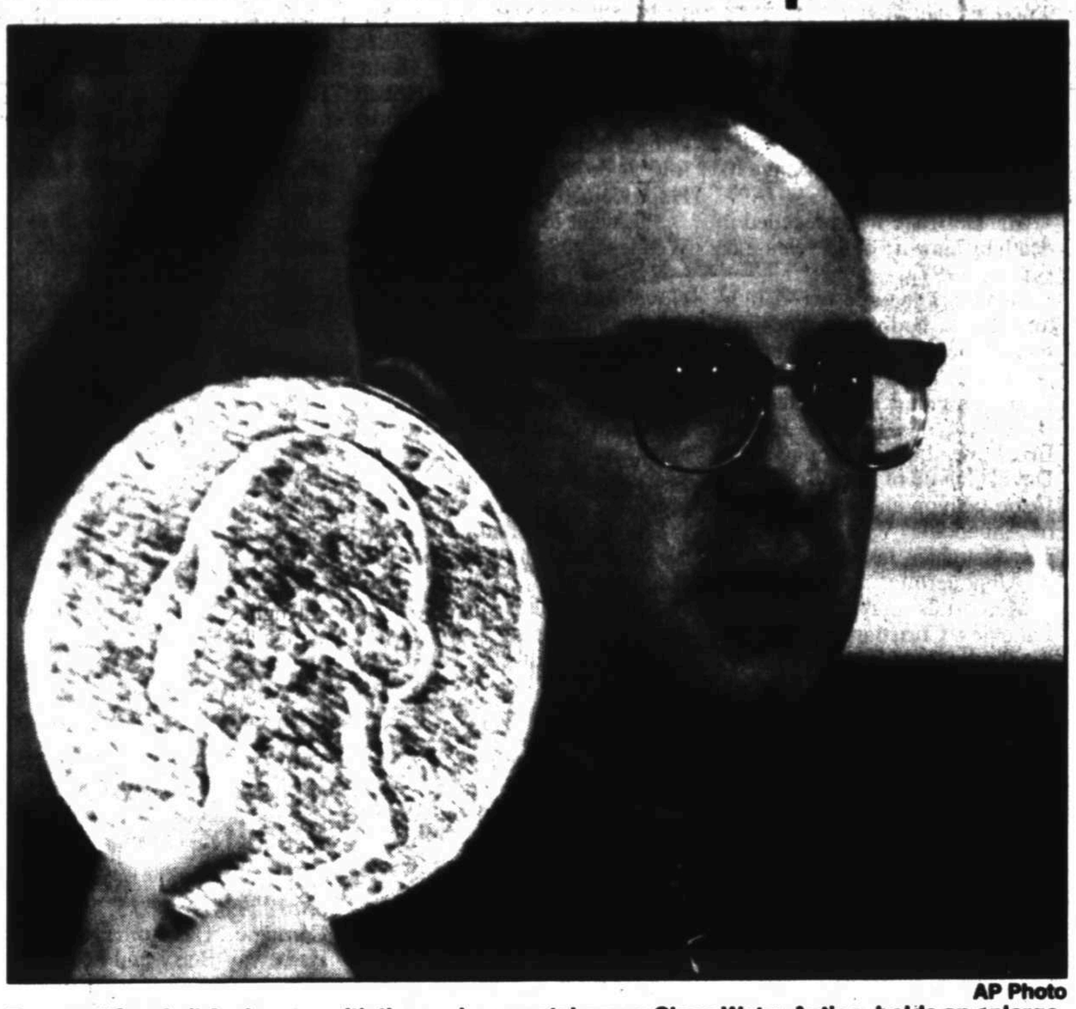
Glenn Shankle, TNRCC deputy director, said the commission is in the process of implementing the federal Clean Water Act, which requires industries to make 90 percent reductions in pollution. With those policies in place, the 4,000-ton cap may no longer be an issue for most industries, he said.

Shankle added that since the TNRCC is funded through fees, lowering the fee-per-ton could hinder the state's ability to enforce and regulate pollution laws.

"Lowering that fee will lower our ability to have the resources to lower pollution," Shankle said.

Smith said the proposal would bring fairness to the pollution fee system by allowing those companies that pollute less to pay fewer fees.

"It reduces the competitive advantage older, dirtier plants enjoy over plants using newer, cleaner sources of energy which have to pay more per ton of air pollution emissions," Smith said.



AP Photo

Dwayne "Sparky" Anderson, with the environmental group Clean Water Action, holds an enlargement of a quarter dollar and speaks during a news conference on Thursday in Austin. Anderson and other public interest organizations urged Texas leaders to consider new options for funding state environmental programs.

The group also proposed a new water quality and drinking water fee structure that replaces the current connection fee system with a flat fee of 75 cents per connection. The system is set up in a way now that water connection fees are higher in smaller cities than they are in larger cities, said Dwayne "Sparky" Anderson, program director of the Texas chapter of Clean Water Action.

The proposal would raise $2.3 million per year in additional revenue and lower fees for small, rural drinking water systems, Anderson said.

The groups also called for eliminating the cap on waste water treatment inspection fee, which they said would raise an additional $412,000.

"Under our proposal, the current disproportionately high fees paid by small water and wastewater systems would be reduced to a fairer level, and the bigger polluters would pay more," Anderson said.

Shankle said the TNRCC is reviewing both the issues related to water.

"We think there should be some equity in the water system," he said.

The Sunset Advisory Commission is set to review the TNRCC on Wednesday. Funding will be one of the items discussed, but some of the programs recommended by the public interest groups might be beyond the scope of the commission, said Joey Longley, director of the Sunset Commission.

"We did recommend some flexibility in fee structures, but it is not nearly as controversial or as big as what they are proposing," Longley said.

Abell Junior High wins state award

By Judy Serbantez
MRT Correspondent

Abell Junior High School has received the Texas Mentor School status award, which is based on meeting specific criteria set by the state of Texas. In addition to acquiring state recognition, AJHS will also receive state funding for professional development.

The Texas Mentor School status means a school becomes a mentor to area schools. The mentor school teaches those area schools practices which optimize TAAS scores, including improvement in the classroom.

"The criteria we met included a positive line in test scores, and we organized academic teaming," said David Adams, principal at Abell. "Through the academic teaming we taught area schools in the San Angelo and Odessa districts block scheduling (the class meets for 100 minutes every other day) and teacher training."

Adams added that the school systemized workshops for area schools that taught vertical articulation, and orientation programs.

Approximately $8,000 was awarded to Abell Junior High School, in addition to receiving the recognition.

"The funds will be used for teacher in-service days," Adams said. "Teachers will learn techniques to strengthen their teaching skills. A few of those techniques include learning about student re-attainability in material, and the students ability to understand the material ... basically, how the brain of the student works, and what techniques can be used in the classroom to enhance improvement in learning."

Alleged cartel leader charged with 10 counts of murder

EL PASO (AP) — The alleged leader of the powerful Ciudad Juarez drug cartel has been charged with silencing 10 people who knew of cartel operations by ordering their deaths, the Justice Department said Thursday.

Seven of the victims were found last year at Juarez ranch sites near El Paso and the other three victims, the former head of the Juarez State Police and his two sons, were found on a bridge between Juarez and El Paso in 1994.

Carrillo Fuentes, who is charged in a 46-count federal indictment that was unsealed Wednesday, already was a fugitive from the U.S. government, facing a 1997 indictment charging him with distributing cocaine and marijuana and laundering money. The current charges supersede those in the 1997 indictment.

In a federal indictment, Carrillo Fuentes is charged with 10 counts of murder committed as part of a continuing criminal enterprise and nine counts of ordering the intentional killing of individuals to prevent communication of information by them to U.S. law enforcement officers.

Last fall, dozens of FBI agents and Mexican military and federal judicial police began exhuming remains from clandestine graves situated on three ranches after a U.S. government informant told authorities as many as 100 bodies might be found at the sites.

Eventually, the remains of nine individuals were found. Carrillo Fuentes was charged in the murders of the seven who were identified.

In addition to the murder charges, Carrillo Fuentes is charged with importing and distributing tons of cocaine and marijuana into the United States since 1985. The indictment is based on evidence from seizures of nearly 43,000 pounds of cocaine and 7,000 pounds of marijuana.

Federal open-container, punishment standards unmet

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas leads the nation in alcohol-related traffic deaths and will lose $96 million in federal highway construction funds over the next two years because state law is not tough enough on drunken drivers, a state official says.

Mark Cross, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Transportation, said federal law requires the state to divert the money from construction to traffic-safety efforts because Texas doesn't ban open containers of alcohol in vehicles or meet federal standards for punishing repeat drunk drivers.

State Rep. Fred Hill, R-Richardson, who has tried five times to pass legislation banning open containers in vehicles, said he would try again when the Legislature convenes in January. But it won't be easy to overcome what he called traditional opposition from the liquor industry and from lawyers who defend people charged in drunken driving.

Fifteen other states also will lose some of their federal highway construction funds by Oct. 1 under a 1998 federal law that holds back the money unless states ban open containers of alcohol and strongly punish people who are convicted of drunken driving more than once.

Texas will lose the most, however, at $48 million a year and the federal penalty soon will escalate to $80 million a year, Hill said.

Instead of road construction, the money can still be used for road-safety projects such as widening intersections.

Texas leads the nation in alcohol-related traffic deaths.

In 1999, Texas had 1,73- alcohol-related traffic fatalities, about half of all driving deaths in the state that year, according to figures from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Nationwide, about 38 percent of all traffic deaths are alcohol-related, according to federal figures.

Under Texas law, police can cite drivers for possessing an open container of alcohol only if they witness the driver drinking from it.

CAMPAIGN 2000 IN BRIEF

■ Trial lawyer money to Dems reviewed

A trial lawyer at the center of a dispute with Texas over tobacco litigation has given hundreds of thousands of dollars from his law firm to the Democratic Party over the last four years since Al Gore was asked to call him to seek a six-figure check. A Gore aide said the vice president never made the phone call to Texas trial lawyer Walter Umphrey. Gore was asked to make the call in 1995 by Democratic Party chairman Don Fowler at a time when they were concerned with Republican legislation that would have put limits on lawsuit awards. Democratic call sheets that recently have been scrutinized by Justice Department investigators suggest Gore and Fowler were asked to solicit Umphrey for contributions beginning in late 1995.

■ Bush flays Gore's alleged money call

George W. Bush criticized Al Gore Thursday over what he called misuse of the White House to secure campaign contributions in 1995. Bush said voters should elect a new administration to "restore honor and dignity" to the Oval Office. Addressing a crowd of National Guard members in Newport Beach, Calif., Bush also criticized the Clinton administration for running down the military. Bush also planned to visit schools, take in a county fair and hobnob with donors during his 2 1/2-day visit to California — his 15th in a year and the third since the GOP national convention last month.

■ Gore's ties to producer defended

Al Gore's campaign is defending his raising of millions of dollars with the help of celebrities and movie moguls who put out the kind of films he and running mate Joe Lieberman have criticized. Republicans seized on his close association with movie mogul Harvey Weinstein, whose company, Miramax, has released violent films like "Reservoir Dogs" and "Pulp Fiction." The Democratic ticket has threatened new federal legislation or rules against the entertainment industry within six months if it doesn't stop marketing violent and sexual products to young people. Nonetheless, Gore was to attend a fund-raiser tonight at New York's Radio City Music Hall that Weinstein helped organize, capping a week of fund-raising reaching $9.3 million.

■ Papa Bush chats with Imus on radio

Ex-President George Bush made a surprise call to the "Imus in the Morning" radio show in New York where Don Imus has turned his full satirical guns on Bush's son, George W., in recent weeks. Calling from Kennebunkport, Maine, the elder Bush told Imus he had just received a jar of the radio host's personal salsa. "I haven't felt that way since I threw up on the Japanese prime minister," Bush deadpanned. The former president invited Imus to his vacation home for a horseback ride. Imus was seriously injured this summer when a horse threw him. The horse's name, Bush said, is Subliminal. Imus had a big laugh, and said later the ex-president "was pretty good."

■ Gore sticks to education issues

Al Gore spoke at a Manchester, N.H., middle school Thursday, continuing his focus on education. He said education issues provide "one of the biggest differences in this election" as he capped a week of drawing contrasts with George W. Bush. Gore has argued repeatedly that Bush would use up too much of a projected federal surplus on tax cuts, leaving no money for bolstering schools. "We can't reform education with half an agenda," he said. "We can't make education our top priority if huge tax cuts for the wealthy are already the first, second and third priority." Gore, who revels in detailed policy talk, has focused on a specific aspect of his education policy each day this week, and he presented the entire package in New Hampshire.

■ Endangered bird inhabits Bush ranch

They don't have salmon in Texas, George W. Bush told local conservationists at a campaign stop highlighting local save-the-salmon efforts in rural Washington state. But Bush said he's done his part to save the golden cheeked warbler, an endangered bird found only in Texas that nests in cedar trees found on his own 1,600-acre ranch in Crawford. "A man from the federal government came down to see me," Bush said. "I was a little suspicious frankly." The man — Bush didn't say what agency he was with — told Bush that the government wanted to protect the cedar trees to help save the birds. A strong advocate of property rights, Bush nonetheless decided that preserving the fate of a 5-inch songbird species outweighed his concerns about intrusive federal government practices. "I agreed after listening to the man," said Bush.

Bush bows to Gore's debate demands

By Bennett Roth
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Gov. George W. Bush bowed to most of his presidential opponent's debate demands Thursday as he and Vice President Al Gore agreed to participate in three debates sponsored by a bipartisan commission.

After meeting for more than four hours, top advisers to Gore and Bush announced the deal that also will include one face-off between their running mates. The first presidential debate will be Oct. 3 at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

The agreement marks a turnaround for Bush, who earlier had rejected most of the recommendations by the Commission on Presidential Debates and instead proposed alternative forums.

But with Gore pulling slightly ahead or even in the polls, Bush now appears eager to engage his opponent in nationally televised events that have the potential to shake up the race.

After meeting with commission officials, Bush campaign chairman Don Evans said, "We have agreed to the sites. We've agreed to the time. The governor is very eager to debate. He's looking forward to a free-flowing, substantive, real and genuine discussion of the issues."

Gore previously had embraced the commission's recommendations and rejected Bush's insistence on face-offs on a special edition of NBC's "Meet the Press" and CNN's "Larry King Live."

Gore campaign chairman Bill Daley, who led the debate negotiations for the vice president, praised the progress in the debate talks.

"This is good because the American people want to hear from these people in formal settings that give them the opportunity to express what they will do as the next president of the United States," Daley said.

The two sides will return today to hash out other details, including the exact format of the 90-minute debates.

Bush campaign spokeswoman Karen Hughes said the governor has been pressing for a more "unstructured free-flowing format."

Hughes said that the Bush campaign had agreed to accept the commission's dates and times with the expectation that they would win concessions on format.

Besides the Boston debate, the presidential candidates will meet at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C., on Oct. 11 and at Washington University in St. Louis on Oct. 17. The vice-presidential debate between Democrat Joseph Lieberman and Republican Dick Cheney will be held at Centre College in Danville, Ky. on Oct. 5.

The agreement to hold the first debate at the University of Massachusetts is particularly striking since Bush strategists had been adamant that they did not want to meet in such a staunchly Democratic city at a site across from the John F. Kennedy Library — which honors the Democratic president.

But political analyst Stuart Rothenberg said the Bush campaign has had to change strategy after a string of disappointing weeks.

"Somehow there is a different perspective when you are 12 points ahead than when you are five or six points behind," Rothenberg said. "Now Bush needs the debates. He needs as many as he can get and needs to cross his fingers and hope they help him."

In a related matter, the FBI is continuing its probe of a mysterious package of Bush debate preparation material that was mailed to a Gore ally who was helping the Democrat prepare for the debate.

Former U.S. Rep.Tom Downey immediately turned the package over to authorities. It included a videotape of a practice debate between Bush and Sen. Judd Gregg, playing the role of Gore. The package was postmarked Austin.

Hughes, Bush's spokeswoman, said the governor's lawyer has examined the tape and determined that it is either the original or copy of an authentic tape. She also said the package included "copies of legitimate debate documents."

She said that the mock debate took place at the governor's ranch in Crawford, and that only a handful of senior staff would have had access to the tape.

"The distribution was very, very small," she said. Those members include Hughes, campaign manager Joe Allbaugh and advisers Karl Rove and Mark McKinnon.

Hughes said that whoever obtained it and sent it to the Gore campaign did so "in an unethical way."

Hughes said the FBI had asked to talk with members of the campaign about the tape.

Marathon Oil Co. standing by pledge to stick with Midland

Hooray for Marathon Oil Co.!

At a time when too many major oil companies have decided to cut their presence in Midland, Marathon Oil has declared its intention to stick with the Tall City.

This weekend, to the great relief of many in Midland, Marathon Oil Co. executives announced that Marathon would reorganize its structure and Midland would become a major hub for the company.

Company officials announced Wednesday that employment increases in Midland are expected to come from the Southern Region, which has a total of 240 employees. The Tyler office, which will be consolidated to Midland, has 117 employees, but the outlying office will remain intact. Marathon Oil spokesman Roger Holiday said Midland has a "strong role to play in the operations of Marathon."

Marathon Oil Co.'s Mid-Continent Region in Midland employs 271, with approximately 200 employed in the Midland office.

Marathon officials have said it is unclear at this time precisely how many company employees will be relocated to Midland. Final word is expected to come at the end of October.

This is all part of a $75 million cost-cutting program throughout the company.

Too many times when we in Midland have heard rumors of cost-reduction programs, we have assumed the worst. We have assumed that more oil company families would be uprooted and leaving Midland.

We have good reason to harbor such fears. In the past two years, Midland has been brutalized by job cuts in the oil company ranks.

Those job cuts have forced this community's leaders to concentrate on finding new ways to diversify our city's economy. The great news coming out of Marathon should not slow those efforts. In fact, we would strongly recommend that our community's leaders proceed full steam ahead with diversification efforts.

The Marathon Oil Co. news comes as a great relief.

When you arrive at Midland International Airport, there is a sign in the airport terminal proclaiming that Marathon Oil Co. is here to stay in Midland, Texas.

We are thankful that Marathon Oil Co. is standing by that pledge.

Today in History

Today is Friday, Sept. 15, the 259th day of 2000. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 15, 1950, during the Korean conflict, United Nations forces landed at Inchon in the south and began their drive toward Seoul.

On this date:

In 1776, British forces occupied New York City during the American Revolution.

In 1789, the Department of Foreign Affairs was renamed the Department of State.

In 1821, independence was proclaimed for Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and El Salvador.

In 1857, William Howard Taft — who served as president of the United States and as chief justice — was born in Cincinnati.

In 1917, Russia was proclaimed a republic by Alexander Kerensky, the head of a provisional government.

In 1935, the Nuremberg Laws deprived German Jews of their citizenship and made the swastika the official symbol of Nazi Germany.

In 1940, during the Battle of Britain in World War II, the tide turned as the Luftwaffe sustained heavy losses inflicted by the Royal Air Force.

In 1959, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in the United States for a 13-day visit.

In 1963, four children were killed when a bomb went off during Sunday services at a black Baptist church in Birmingham, Ala.

In 1989, Pulitzer Prize-winning author Robert Penn Warren, the first poet laureate of the United States, died in Stratton, Vt., at age 84.

Ten years ago: France announced it would send 4,000 more soldiers to the Persian Gulf and expel Iraqi military attaches in Paris in response to Iraq's raids on French, Belgian and Canadian diplomatic compounds in Kuwait.

Five years ago: Hurricane Marilyn, the third major storm to batter the Caribbean in less than a month, hit the Virgin Islands with heavy rains and 100 mph winds. The UN's fourth World Conference on Women adjourned in Beijing after approving a wide-ranging platform running the gamut from promoting inheritance rights to condemning rape in wartime.

One year ago: One month after being charged in the United States with laundering suspected drug payoffs, Mexico's former top drug prosecutor, Mario Ruiz Massieu, was found dead in his New Jersey apartment, an apparent suicide. Gunman Larry Ashbrook opened fire in a Fort Worth Baptist church, killing seven people and himself.

Journalism sometimes slants too far to the left

George W. Bush called a New York Times reporter a bad name the other day and didn't apologize. I like that.

A letter writer remarked that anyone who knows anything about The New York Times knows that Bush was using a euphemism. I don't know if the letter writer was recalling when The New York Times covered up Josef Stalin's crimes in the 1930s or when it was selling Fidel Castro as the new George Washington of the Caribbean. When it comes to spotting evil on the left, The New York Times and the CIA have similar records.

Reese

At any rate, anyone offended by Bush's remarks are those who are already committed to Prince Albert Gore. Lest you worry about the sensitive feelings of American journalists, let me reassure you that there is no more arrogant or profane trade in the United States.

People these days are used to the idea of slanted news and biased coverage. The press, however, by and large is blind to its own sins. It's not just the natural defensive arrogance of an institution accountable to no one. When a liberal pronounces a conservative a fool, he thinks he's just telling the truth. To a liberal, the idea — even the possibility — that he, the liberal, might be wrong is strictly beyond the pale.

Of course, even liberals are entitled to their opinions, but if they are journalists, they are not entitled to slant the news to bolster their opinions. That's where American journalism has gone wrong.

The formula for slanting the news is quite simple: If you don't like the guy, you maximize his mistakes and minimize his successes; if you like him, you reverse the process. You can watch this process in the presidential campaign. Remember, in-depth national surveys have shown that America's journalistic elite are, with rare exceptions, liberal Democrats. Any slip of the tongue by George W. Bush will be big news, while Al Gore's more serious sins will be ignored or minimized.

Some years ago, for an article in a journalism trade magazine, an enterprising reporter interviewed editors who had been interviewed for news stories. You guessed it — the editors had the same complaints that readers have. Many said that it was obvious that the reporter had already decided what the story was going to be even before the first question was asked. Some complained of being misquoted.

This is all inside stuff and of no real interest to you, the reader, except as a reminder to read critically anything you see in the press or on television. The most insidious sin is to take things out of context. Another technique is ignoring people wit h opinions that the liberal papers don't like.

I know of one case where a woman was elected president of the national Right to Life organization. The newspaper's readers never knew, even though she lived within blocks of the office. Yet when the late Abbie Hoffman made an appearance at a university (he wasn't late at that time) well out of the newspaper's circulation area, it gave his puerile ranting two pages.

A similar technique translated to television is to pick the handsomest, most-articulate person you can find to represent the opinion you favor and the ugliest, least-articulate person you can find to represent the opposing view. Then, of course, you just turn on the cameras and let them have a "fair" debate.

View and read everything with skepticism. Remember that truth and information are not synonyms. And do learn to think for yourself. There are already more than enough sheep in this world.

Wall Street much like Little Red Riding Hood

Once upon a time there was a sweet thing named Red Riding Hood, who owned Little Red Riding Hood, Inc., a small company that made children's dresses. One day she was walking down Wall Street when she met a great big wolf (Amalgamated Wolf).

Buchwald

"Where are you going, Red Riding Hood?" the wolf asked.

"To Grandmother Pizza's office, with this new issue of stock that I hope will make her well."

The wolf thought to himself, "What a tasty morsel. I could eat Grandmother Pizza for breakfast and Red Riding Hood, Inc. for lunch."

The wolf then said, "Where is your grandmother's office?"

And Red Riding Hood replied, "In the World Trade Center building."

The wolf then said, "Would you like to have a hot pretzel from the stand over there?"

"Why not? They are not expecting me at Grandmother's board meeting for a half-hour."

While Red Riding Hood was eating her pretzel and drinking her soda, the wolf sped off to the World Trade Center. He dashed into Grandmother Pizza's office and ate poor Grandmother up.

Then he pulled the curtains and sat in her leather chair.

Red Riding Hood was ushered in by the secretary.

"Good morning, Grandmother."

The wolf did not reply.

"Oh, Grandmother, what big ears you have."

"The better to hear all the merger rumors on the Street," the wolf replied.

"Oh, Grandmother, what big eyes you have."

"The better to read everyone's latest financial report."

"What big hands you have."

"The better to grab all your assets with, my dear."

"Grandmother, what big teeth you have."

"The better to eat you with!" And with that the wolf sprang out of his chair and made a lunge for Red Riding Hood, who easily sidestepped him and knocked him to the floor.

"What are you doing?" the stunned wolf asked.

Red Riding Hood sat on the wolf's stomach and said, "I'm taking you over."

"You can't take me over," the wolf cried. "I'm five times bigger than you are."

"Size means nothing," Red Riding Hood said. "The only thing that counts is how much money I can raise to get control."

"Where could you find enough dough to buy a great big wolf?"

"I'll make a leveraged buyout. I'll cut off your head and sell it to a museum, your coat to a furrier, and your teeth to a key-chain company. It's all here in the prospectus."

"The SEC will never let you do it."

"They haven't stopped anyone from swallowing up anybody else yet," Red Riding Hood retorted.

"Wait," the wolf said. "Why can't we make this a friendly takeover? Give me a golden parachute and I'll never try to eat you again."

"Sorry, but it's too late." And with that Red Riding Hood cut open the wolf's stomach and out popped her grandmother, who had a grin on her face.

The grandmother said, "It worked. I knew we could get control once he got fat and cocky."

Red Riding Hood said, "Where do you get that 'we' stuff, Grandma? I'm spinning you off to Standard Oil of New Jersey."

Restaurants do not observe proper food handling procedures

Recently I have been shocked and appalled at the way restaurants and their employees cook, handle and serve our food. Just this morning I pulled into a donut shop and ordered a donut. A lady with long hair (flying everywhere) and no gloves picked up my donut and put it in a bag and handed it to me as if I would be happy to eat it.

The other night my husband and I were dining at one of the more costly restaurants in town. When we were served our food, my husband's steak had a hair on it. This took away from the meal and we lost our appetites.

In all the restaurants I have dined in never do I see anyone wearing gloves or hair nets. My question is why!

I work in a dentist's office where we have to be very meticulous — wearing gloves, hair pulled back, always cleaning and making sure everything is sterile. This is a way of life for us.

It should also be a way of life for restaurants.

Bands have seen increase in members with no room to grow

When I became the band director at Lee High School 21 years ago, the band had 140 members. The students were crammed into a band hall that had been designed for an 80-piece ensemble.

Two decades later, we still have the same 80-piece band hall. Now the band is 230 members strong, nearly three times as l ; as the band hall was intended for. The band is too large to fit in the band hall, we can not rehearse the entire group at the same time. Our valuable instruments have been subject to accidental damage that would not have taken place in a band hall with adequate storage space. Expensive instrument repairs and needed replacements are not covered by our insufficient budget. We also share the same facility with the terrific strings program and orchestra that require our needs as well.

The Midland Independent School District has done a great job determining the needs of both high schools. The teachers and the community had the opportunity to give input towards the planning. The suggestions that the Midland High School Band Director Gary Doherty and I gave, have been incorporated into the plan. The architects have transformed the needs and ideas into high schools we can all be proud of. MISD has done its homework.

Massive overcrowding exists on both campuses in academics, music, sports, and more. The problems with our high schools inadequate and run-down facilities need to be resolved. I hope you will agree that the kids in our community deserve better high school facilities than we currently provide.

Please, let us all go out and vote for the schools, and the future they hold.

Technology center welcomes all students of all backgrounds

While the majority of your report of my speech to the Republican Women this week was accurate, I wish to register my concern with a major misquote. The term "academically challenged" is not in my vocabulary and certainly should not have been applied to any of the students I was referring to in my speech. The fact is that the vast majority of students can achieve mastery in any area they choose, given motivation and opportunity. Today's technology is just as challenging as any "academic" pursuit.

I do not believe that students who are not baccalaureate bound are less intelligent or less capable than those who are seeking the baccalaureate. To the contrary, these are the very persons who will lead us in the technological revolution. Therefore, the Advanced Technology Center is a place of opportunity and challenge for these talented students.

Clinton disagrees with Reno, Freeh over handling of Lee case

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rare public disagreement, President Clinton said Thursday that Wen Ho Lee's long detention "just can't be justified," but Attorney General Janet Reno refused to apologize and said the confinement was the nuclear scientist's own fault.

The 60-year-old Lee, a former Los Alamos laboratory scientist, went free Wednesday after pleading guilty to one felony of mishandling weapons secrets.

Reno told her weekly news conference that Lee could have avoided nine months of detention by agreeing earlier to plead guilty and tell the government what he did with the secrets.

FBI Director Louis J. Freeh said "the safety of the nation demands that we take this important step" under which Lee was sentenced to the 278 days he had served. The government dropped 58 other counts.

Hours after Reno spoke, Clinton expressed an opinion far closer to that of U.S. District Judge James Parker, who said Lee's detention "embarrassed our entire nation."

Clinton, who met with Justice officials at the White House before Lee's indictment last Dec. 10, said he found it difficult in retrospect to reconcile how the government could "keep someone in jail without bail, argue right up to the 11th hour that they're a terrible risk, and then turn around and make that sort of plea agreement."

"It just can't be justified. ... I too am quite troubled by it," Clinton said. Reno did not respond.

Later, White House press secretary Joe Lockhart told reporters Clinton's comments should not be read "as a blanket criticism of anyone" and added that Reno and Energy Secretary Bill Richardson retain Clinton's support.

Republicans who have spent months calling Reno too timid in investigating leaks from Los Alamos slammed her for being too aggressive with Lee.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said Reno and Richardson would resign if they "had any honor and any shame." Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who is leading a subcommittee probe of the case, said it looked like Justice and the FBI "threw the book at Dr. Lee to make up for their own failings."

Earlier, Reno said she was comfortable with the government's handling of the case. "I'm not embarrassed."

"I think Dr. Lee, from the beginning, had the opportunity to answer this and I think now he needs to look to himself," rather than expect a government apology, she said.

The government "tried from the beginning" to win Lee's cooperation to help verify his claim that he had destroyed seven of 10 computer tapes he made of nuclear weapons data. "We now have what we sought then," Reno said.

Lee now acknowledges illegally transferring the data from a highly secure computer at the nuclear weapons lab into personal files on an unsecure computer where, Reno said, it was "accessible to intruders, hackers or other governments who could hack into that computer."

"With all my heart and soul," Reno said she wished "Dr. Lee had come forward, said, 'This is what I did with the information ... (and) I'll ... try to give you as much information as possible to permit you to confirm and corroborate it.'" If he had done so, the government would have reconsidered detention and its charges, Reno said.

But Judge Parker said he wished prosecutors had taken up an offer from Lee's attorneys that arrived the day of his indictment to submit to a polygraph test "to confirm that he did not provide the tapes to any third party."

Prosecutor George Stamboulidis said the government did pursue it but concluded it was "cosmetic, not a real offer."

Defense attorneys would allow only two questions, Stamboulidis said: Did Lee destroy the tapes? Did Lee pass them to others? "How can you test his credibility with only two questions?"

Stamboulidis disputed Parker's contention he was misled about the seriousness of the case against Lee.

The data Lee removed came from 1,000 missile tests and was classified restricted from its very creation, Stamboulidis said. It existed in only two government labs behind fences and armed guards until Lee copied it "into a personal library ... in a 'have documents, will travel' position."

Parker asked how the government could insist on Lee's confinement as a security risk right up to the moment of agreeing to set him free.

As part of the plea bargain, the government has already received three written sworn statements from Lee with more detail than he provided before, Stamboulidis said. Those are being checked through computer forensics and other witnesses.

Wildfires scorch thousands of acres in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A wildfire at Vandenberg Air Force Base that forced evacuations in a nearby town grew to more than 11,000 acres Thursday, the largest of several blazes in Southern California.

Another fire that destroyed two homes in the Agua Dulce area of the Angeles National Forest was 90 percent contained, fire officials said. The 750-acre fire started Wednesday.

"We're working on getting a complete, solid (bull)dozer line around the fire," said Inspector Roland Sprewell of the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

The Vandenberg fire, on the air base between Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo, was about 40 percent contained. The wind-whipped blaze started Wednesday and spread to 8,000 acres within three hours.

Firefighters were helped Thursday by a morning blanket of fog.

A voluntary evacuation for the 200 residents of Casmalia was lifted at noon Thursday, the same time Highway 1 was reopened with traffic controls, said Bill Peters, spokesman for the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

High crude prices are a mixed blessing for oil exporting Mexico

By Mark Stevenson
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — It may be hard for Mexican officials to keep a straight face while bemoaning high oil prices, with billions of dollars in extra oil revenue now flowing into government coffers.

Still, high crude prices are hardly an unqualified victory even for an oil-exporter like Mexico. Globalization has bound it to the U.S. economy, and manufactured exports — vulnerable to high fuel prices — are now Mexico's mainstay, not oil.

The government is expected to collect some $3.6 billion in extra oil revenue this year. How that windfall is spent may well decide whether the price boom ultimately benefits or hurts Mexico, the world's fifth-largest oil producer.

It's a tale about how globalization has put Mexico on the horns of a dilemma: the peso gained in value as oil prices rose, but then lost ground Wednesday as oil hit $35 per barrel — because markets saw that price as detrimental to Mexico.

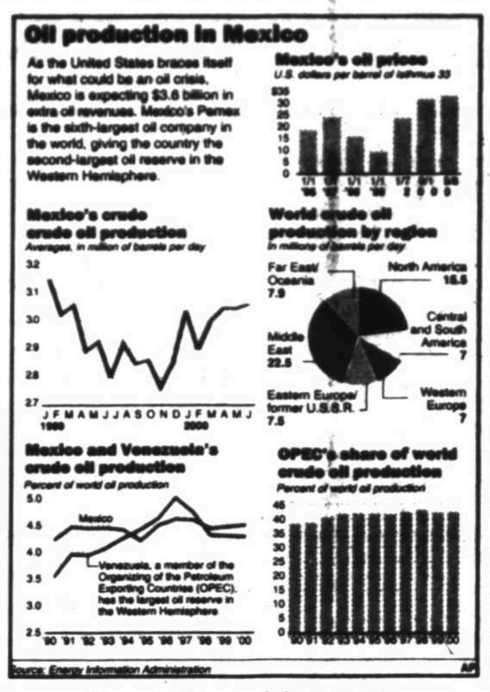
Mexico "should be careful, and not be too greedy," said Fausto Alzati, who is coordinating energy affairs for president-elect Vicente Fox.

Fox has sounded even more concerned, saying "prices should not hold back growth, because if this happens, the first to be affected would be Mexico."

Many see the expressions of concern as disingenuous.

"They're play-acting ... laughing all the way to the bank," said Walter Molano, an analyst at BCP Securities in Connecticut who also suggested that "Mexico is lining itself up for a recession, for a pretty severe shock right now."

Still it's a far cry from the 1970s, when Mexican officials saw international economics in Darwinian terms: some countries are fortunate enough to have oil, some aren't. The president at the time, Jose Lopez Portillo, proudly announced that his main job was to "manage all the wealth."



Fox said this week he wants "a fair price," but has a tough time determining what exactly that would be. His 2001 budget plan is expected to set a projected price of about $18 per barrel.

But Energy Minister Luis Tellez predicted prices will remain much higher than that for months to come — a situation he blamed on the bargains enjoyed for years by oil-consuming countries.

"Because of the low prices in 1997, 1998 and 1999, there were few investments (in production), so now demand is using up all the capacity," Tellez said, explaining why Mexico can't increase output by a promised 200,000 barrels per day in the short term.

The memories of the lean times — when oil prices dropped below $10 per barrel, forcing government spending cuts — makes it hard for many here to be too sympathetic about price complaints.

"It's a small little blip of compensation, that's called justice," said Federico Estevez, a political scientist at the Autonomous Technological Institute of Mexico.

There's a sense of injustice among oil-producing nations being blamed for the problem. Venezuelan Oil Minister Ali Rodriguez noted that "the principal factor that increases (fuel prices) for the man who goes to the gas station to fill his tank, are high taxes."

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, of which Mexico is not a member, estimates that taxes and refining activities contribute to 84 percent of gasoline prices while the price of crude contributes 16 percent.

And international oil prices, in real terms, are nowhere near the levels seen in the 1980s. Taking into account inflation, even at current prices oil remains a bargain, Molano notes.

But Mexico has changed a lot in the 1990s, becoming a sort of hybrid of producer-consumer. Domestic fuel prices have been raised to international levels, so consumers here don't get any breaks.

And now, roughly three-quarters of Mexico's exports are manufacturing goods — most bound for U.S. markets — and oil accounts for less than 10 percent.

"If there are any concerns on the U.S. economy, that will affect Mexico," said Gabriel Sod-Hoffs, a currency analyst at Chase Securities. "If the economy cools down too much, then all of (Mexico's) other exports would slow down and that would be dramatic."

What Mexico should do, analysts say, is use the oil money to pay down debt, and reduce the government's reliance on oil income — which currently accounts for about a third of federal revenues — by implementing tax reforms.

If not, Mexico could relive the dark days of the early 1980s, when the government spent oil money freely and ran up debt. Then the world economy slowed, crude prices plummeted and Mexico entered a recession.

But many people in Mexico, long battered by the whims of crude markets, have become a bit fatalistic about events far beyond their control.

"It's a wheel of fortune," said Estevez. "When it turns again, we'll be back where we started."

Growing anxiety in Israel as West Nile virus claims eighth victim

JERUSALEM (AP) — Anxiety in Israel was growing Thursday after the West Nile virus killed an eighth victim this summer, and hospital emergency rooms were crowded with people who feared they had contracted the mosquito-borne disease.

In two dozen towns in Israel's hardest hit coastal plain, residents closed their windows this week as machines belched forth clouds of insecticide mixed with diesel oil to wipe out the mosquitoes.

In southern Israel, 3,300 geese were destroyed at a farm after some of the birds died of the disease. There were minor outbreaks among geese at other farms but no wholesale slaughter.

Most flocks have been vaccinated against the virus, said Dr. Oded Nir, chief veterinarian at the Ministry of Agriculture. "This is not like last year's outbreak of the virus in New York where they had crows falling out of the sky," Nir said.

There was little chance the outbreaks in New York and Israel were connected, officials said. The virus was probably brought to Israel by wild birds migrating from Europe to Africa, said Dr. Alex Leventhal, the Health Ministry's director of public health.

Concerned by the cases in Israel, neighboring Jordan asked hospitals and clinics throughout the kingdom to notify the Health Ministry if any cases were detected.

Eight people in Israel have died this summer, and 120 more have contracted the disease. The latest victim was Nurit Gurwitz, 54, from Rishon Lezion, south of Tel Aviv, who was hospitalized two weeks ago and died Wednesday.

Gurwitz' family was only informed a few hours before her death that she had contracted the illness, said her husband, Shlomo, suggesting that his wife did not received the proper treatment from the start. The hospital denied the allegations.

Most cases were diagnosed in Israel's coastal plain, where many migratory birds rest after long flights. None were in Jerusalem, which is in the hills. "The birds don't stop in Jerusalem and there are fewer mosquitoes there," Leventhal said.

He said the number of cases does not in itself constitute an epidemic, but that nobody could tell how many mild or undetected cases there were. "It could be the tip of the iceberg," he said.

The virus has been known in Israel for decades. Outbreaks were recorded among Israeli soldiers in the 1950s and 1980s. Fifteen percent of Israelis have antibodies against the virus, indicating they had it in the past. All the wild birds tested in Israel's national parks carry the antibodies, Leventhal said.

China executes highest-ranking official for taking bribes

BEIJING (AP) — A senior Chinese legislator who took nearly $5 million in bribes in hopes of marrying his mistress was executed Thursday in a highly publicized case meant to convince an angry public that communist leaders are stamping out rampant corruption.

Cheng Kejie, vice chairman of China's national legislature, became the highest-ranking figure put to death for corruption since the communists came to power in 1949.

Hours after the execution was announced, portions of the 66-year-old Cheng's trial in July were shown on national television, adding to a propaganda campaign meant to show official determination to attack abuses at even the highest levels.

Cheng was convicted of extorting $4.9 million while he was the governor of Guangxi, a poor southern region. Earlier reports said that beginning in 1992, he took payoffs for land deals, building contracts, promotions and allocations of subsidized commodities.

The case illustrated the pervasive corruption that is costing China's struggling economy heavily and undermining public acceptance of communist rule. A recent series of unusually candid reports by China's auditor general accuse officials of stealing or squandering billions of dollars in a country with an average per capita income of about $700.

Almost daily, Chinese state media announce officials being punished for corruption, though most are low-ranking. More than 132,000 officials received penalties for misconduct last year that range up to death sentences, according to the China Daily newspaper. Cheng's case featured prominently in a Beijing museum exhibition on economic crime.

According to the official account, Cheng's partner in crime was his married lover, Li Ping. Both planned to divorce their spouses and marry each other. Li has been sentenced to life in prison for handling Cheng's bribes. The Supreme People's Court, which upheld her sentence last week, said she did so to keep him free of suspicion.

Xinhua didn't say how Cheng was executed. China has usually used a bullet to the head or neck. Last month, it ordered nationwide use of lethal injection, but said firing squads still would be used.

Perfect pairs

Midlanders try their hand at movie match making

By Georgia Temple

Electricity sparks with some on-screen couples and fizzles out with others. The failures leave audiences thinking as they exit the theater, "So and so would have been better together," and encourage directors and studios to return time and again to the couples with box-office success.

But what if you could chose the leading man and leading lady? More than a dozen area residents spent moments recently — just for the fun of it — doing just that.

"Nicolas Cage and Ashley Judd," said Rino Irving. "That'd be a good combination. In a romantic comedy. They're both fine actors and they both seem to have a sense of humor. Neither of them seem to take themselves too seriously, which comes across really well."

Irving has a favorite combination: Tom Cruise and his wife, Nicole Kidman, in "Eyes Wide Shut." But he said, somewhat sadly, "Of course, the guy (Stanley Kubrick) who directed that is dead now. We may not get that exotic again."

As far as Joyce Wilson is concerned, the movie industry has already filmed her favorite duo: Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan. Her choice is seeing those two together again.

"I would like to see Meryl Streep and Harrison Ford in a romantic comedy," said Sue Smith. "They're just people that I like to watch, that I think are good at their craft. I think there'd be a lot of electricity."

"I love Meg Ryan and Melanie Griffith," said Cathy Mackay. "They are probably my two favorite female actors. And I like Tom Hanks. I've seen Tom Hanks with Meg Ryan three times, but not with Melanie Griffin. I'd like to see them (Griffin and Hanks) in a romantic comedy because they're just two of my favorite actors. So I think having them both in the same movie is like bonus bucks."

"Bill Murray and Meryl Streep in a romantic comedy," said Lurene Spear, who was speaking for herself and her husband, Shane. "We think the contrast between the two would be great. He is so funny, and she is so serious."

Meryl Streep and Anthony Hopkins were suggested by Beth Hickey, who also thought of Harrison Ford and Michelle Pfeiffer, then remembered they were starring in the thriller, "What Lies Beneath," that was released this summer.

"I want to see the British actor, Anthony Hopkins, and Vanessa Redgrave," said Jeannine Donnelly, stating her preference for the two to co-star in a British period piece. "They both would do that well."

Action movies and love stories appeal to Shery St. John, who selected Pierce Brosnan and Julia Roberts.

Ms. St. John's daughter, 13-year-old Haley Metheny, reminded her mother that she also likes Richard Gere, saying, "I always remember him. You always forget him."

The two have been paired romantically twice: the much talked about "Pretty Woman" and the 1999 romantic comedy "Runaway Bride."

Sisters Lauren and Ashley Wilson of Odessa, selected Julia Roberts as the female lead they would most like to see in a film. Ashley chose Mel Gibson as Ms. Roberts' co-star. (And they have been paired once in "The Conspiracy Theory.") Lauren picked Richard Gere.

Mel Gibson and Meg Ryan in a romantic comedy, suggested Odessan Tom Laney, who writes the Parent to Parent movie review column in the Midland Reporter-Telegram. "Tommy Lee Jones and Helen Hunt also in a comedy — a romantic comedy.

"Helen Hunt is more known for comedy than any of the other three that I mentioned, but I think there would be some pleasant surprises. Gibson is a lot funnier than he gets credit for and so is Tommy Lee Jones. Meg Ryan has done romantic comedies and so has Helen Hunt. I think they would be interesting pairings."

"It's hard to say," said Jeff Lastrapes. "There's been some awfully good couples and some awfully bad ones pushed on us.

"Harrison Ford and Rene Russo. Actually, Rene Russo and anyone. She was terrific in 'The Thomas Crown Affair.'

"Here's a pairing for you — Harrison Ford (age 58) and Raquel Welch," said Lastrapes. "Raquel Welch is one of the most beautiful women on the planet. She's in her 60s I think. That could be a pretty good movie. Something with those two."

Born Sept. 5, 1940, in Chicago, Ill., Ms. Welch recently turned 60. She received a Best Actress Golden Globe Award in 1973 for her role in "The Three Musketeers." Absent from the screen since 1979, Ms. Welch can be seen on television in reruns of her movies.

"It's not simply the stars, but what kind of movie it is," said David R. Allen, who, along with Tim Jebsen, writes The Movie Guys' Black Gold Review in the Reporter-Telegram. Allen is the drama instructor at Midland College.

If he heard Meg Ryan and Tom Hanks were paired in a spy film, Allen said his reaction would be, "I'm not going to go near it. It's not the kind of film they work best in."

If Tommy Lee Jones and Meg Ryan were paired in "You've Got Mail" instead of Ms. Ryan and Hanks, Allen said, "The movie falls flat on its face."

There's a long history of actors turning down roles that wound up making other actors famous, Allen said, noting that their reasoning is that the role was not suited to them. "And when you stop to think about it for a minute, you realize it's not their kind of role, and the movie wouldn't have worked."

As a director, critic and movie buff, Allen said he thinks more often about how he would recast a classic film with today's actors citing, as an example, "The Philadelphia Story,' with James Stewart, Katherine Hepburn and Cary Grant.

"Meg Ryan could play that role, although I think Katherine Hepburn was probably younger when she played that role than Meg

ONE ON THE AISLE

'Gypsy'

Taking the main stage last Friday night was Midland Community Theater's first production of the musical comedy — Gypsy. This is, on the one hand, the story of how Louise started as an untalented child singer and dancer in her mother's troupe of children, who had varying degrees of talent, to become the international burlesque star Gypsy Rose Lee. On the other hand, this is really the story of the "stage mother" to end all stage mothers.

Jo Richards as Mama Rose plays the role like a field marshall moving the troops always in her own direction. Mama Rose bashes her way through Louise and Baby June's life and the lives of everyone around her. Ms. Richards plays her with an edge that at time makes the character frustrating and at the same time funny. She was born too late to become a star herself, so she pushes her daughters hard to be what she couldn't be.

Carl Berry Moore as Herbie, her sometime fiance and agent for the group, more than matches Rose's intensity. The quieter scenes between them are charming. Moore is totally believable in this role. He has to be strong to put up with Rose.

Vocally, Ms. Richards seemed to be straining and tired at times, mostly because she gives 120 percent of herself to her characters. Also, after a long week of being that loud yelling and singing every night in rehearsals last week, I'm surprised she still had a voice.

Stephanie Rivas who plays Louise and becomes Gypsy Rose Lee, is a competent actress with a very nice voice. In her quieter moments, Ms. Rivas needs to "speak out, Louise," so the back row can hear her.

Various girls played the different ages of Baby June, Louise's little sister, from a quite young singing/dancing vaudeville star that Rose pins her hopes on to the oldest June, nicely played by Valerie Jackopin, whose duet with Louise, "If Mama Was Married," has always been a favorite of mine.

In a show this size, there are always some stand-out roles among the bit-part players that make you take notice. For instance: Max Howard playing Rose's father is one of these; John Briggs in three different parts — Uncle Jocko, Mr. Goldstone, and Pastey; and Shirley Suttle as Miss Crachitt, every boss's favorite assistant. One of the young girls playing a Texas Toreadorables in Act Two bears watching in the future. She comes from an all around MCT family: Melissa Steanard in the role of Agnes. She has a striking presence on stage.

My favorite characters in the whole production were the three burlesque dancers, aka strippers. Shauna Allen as Tessia Tura, Charlotte Wornell as Mazeppa and Diane Faulkner as Electra. In the show-stopping number "You Gotta Get a Gimmick," the three ladies steal the audience. As raunchy a number as you've seen on this stage, with a bump, and a grind and a uh...uh...uh, they do it with a horn, electric lights and feathers and a butterfly costume. Great fun!!!

The staging was fairly fast paced. The production features a good-looking set that for the first time in my memory was whisper quiet as it smoothly moved into place — Yay team! With the exception of a few unplanned sound cues and some zipper problems, opening night was a hit of an introduction to MCT's fall productions.

Gypsy, rated PG, will be playing until Sept. 30. Call the box office for reservations, 682-4111 and (metro) 570-4011. Prices are $12 & $14. This one will sell out fast!

PAIRS: Midlanders come up with movie matches

(From 1B)

Ryan (38) is now. Tom Hanks comes obviously to mind when you talk about Jimmy Stewart because, I think, Tom Hanks has inherited the mantle of Stewart. Steve Martin in the other role might work."

When it comes to casting two of today's actors who have not been seen on the screen together, Allen did make one suggestion: "Geena Davis and Bruce Willis in a comedy." He added, "I doubt they ever will. They are into different kinds of movies, and their careers are in totally different paths right now.

"He's reforming his career, surging ahead in terms of doing non-action movies, and her career is close to being over for several reasons. The last two films have been terrible. After 'Thelma and Louise,' her choices for films have been awful.

"And people don't have that up feeling about her anymore. And she's approaching the age for an actress where unfortunately the actresses stop getting roles. We used to see Sally Field all the time. When was the last time you saw Sally Field in a movie, in a major role?"

Ms. Davis is 43. Ms. Field is 53. A two-time Oscar winner, Ms. Field will be seen by audiences this year as Mama Lil alongside Natalie Portman in the feature "Where the Heart Is." She also is making her feature directorial debut this month with the film "Beautiful" starring Minnie Driver.

In 1985, Ms. Field played the romantic love interest opposite James Garner in "Murphy's Romance." He was 18 years her senior.

Hollywood has played favorites, selecting the older-man, younger-woman scenario much more often than the reverse.

"I'm tired of seeing Richard Gere (51) or 50-or 60-year-old men paired with 20-year-old women," said Tim Jebsen, executive director of Midland Community Theatre.

Some moviegoers grumbled about the casting of Catherine Zeta-Jones opposite Sean Connery in the 1999 film "Entrapment." Although she was not in her 20s, she seemed much younger than her 30-something years.

Born Sept. 25, 1961 in Mumbles, Wales, the now 38-year-old actress began her career in the United Kingdom. She was an established actress there when she burst onto the American movie screen in "The Mask of Zorro" opposite Antonio Banderas. Connery, who was born in Edinburgh, Scotland on Aug. 25, 1930, recently turned 70. The age difference between the two is 32 years.

"Why don't we see a 50-year-old female paired with a 30-year-old male?" Jebsen asked. "Why don't we see Michelle Pfeiffer (43) and Ben Affleck (28)? Matt Damon (29) and Glenn Close (53)?

"Something like that would reverse this sexist trend of putting older men with younger females. It's great that Hollywood likes to show that relationships can transcend an age difference, but it would be nice if it went in both directions."

Julia Roberts and Brendan Fraser were suggested by Nancy Leon, who said she makes her decisions about movies based upon the reviews and the content and "not on the stars." However, she suggested Ms. Roberts because she is more "apt to go see Julia Roberts in anything." And she also likes "Brandon Fraser, and the stuff he does. But they don't make the same type of movies. It would be real interesting."

Dolly Parton and Porter Waggoner, quipped John Paul Pitts, then chuckled to himself.

And later, much, much later, a vaporous voice hissed its suggestion from the shadows of the night: The Grinch and that whinny wench in "The Nightmare Before Christmas" meet in the prequel to the "Home Alone" trilogy — "The Exorcist Slimes Hollywood." Hummm.

Summer box office lacked buzz

By Rick Lyman
N.Y. Times News Service

HOLLYWOOD — In the end, the summer movie season was neither as lucrative as it looked at its onset nor as disastrous as it appeared at its midpoint, but what exactly was it?

In raw numbers, the movie season that ran from Memorial Day to Labor Day, traditionally Hollywood's most lucrative period, generated $2.7 billion at the box office, about $200 million less than last year's record. Eleven of the films released earned more than $100 million each, and one or two others may eventually surpass that mark.

Not so bad, on the face of it, but there were some disquieting details beneath the surface.

While overall box office looked fairly strong, even in comparison with last year's sizzling pace, that was partly because of an increase in ticket prices. In fact, attendance at movies was down significantly, by 9 to 15 percent, depending on what the National Association of Theater Owners concludes was the summer's average ticket price, said Paul Dergarabedian, chairman of Exhibitor Relations, a Los Angeles company that monitors box office performance.

While there were just as many $100 million movies this summer as last, there was only one $200 million movie ("M:I-2," the season's biggest hit at $214 million), compared with three last summer ("Star Wars: Episode 1 — The Phantom Menace," "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me" and "The Sixth Sense"). At the same time, many movies that opened strongly this summer quickly fell off.

Most disturbing to many in the movie business was that people just weren't talking about movies this summer. Last year, the hottest topics of conversation and magazine covers were the new "Star Wars" prequel and the surprise success of "The Sixth Sense" and "The Blair Witch Project." This year, no movie seemed to generate that kind of buzz.

"People's attention was on other things," Dergarabedian said. "Last summer, to be included in the discussion you had to go see 'Blair Witch' or "Sixth Sense.' This year, you had to watch 'Survivor' on television to be part of what everyone was talking about. There was nothing on the order of a cultural phenomenon, which is what you need to keep attendance from falling flat or dipping. General malaise sort of overtook the summer."

Part of the problem, some said, was that the summer of 1999 was such an unusual one, kicked off by a frenzy over the "Star Wars" film and then powered by one major hit after another. It was unfair, they said, to expect a subsequent summer to live up to that.

"The summer of '99 was an extraordinary summer, and I think that to use it as a benchmark is difficult," said Robert G. Friedman, vice chairman of the Paramount Motion Picture Group. "You need to look over the last three years and, when you do, that tells you that the summer of 2000 was a very good summer, equal to or even better than '97 and '98."

Friedman said he was not overly concerned about the attendance drop. "Our business is movie-driven," he said. "It's not as though people have gone to other forms of entertainment. It's not as though we've lost them as future moviegoers. They've just responded to the product that's been offered to them."

Traditionally, the summer movie season begins on Memorial Day, but the trend in recent years has been to release big-budget, summer-oriented films earlier and earlier. This year, for instance, Ridley Scott's "Gladiator," the summer's second-biggest hit at $184 million, opened the first weekend in May, followed by Disney's "Dinosaur" ($136 million) in mid-May. Then came a record-breaking Memorial Day weekend led by "M:I-2" and, shortly after, the surprise success of Martin Lawrence's "Big Momma's House" ($116 million).

After that, moviegoers seemed to get pickier, and it was not until after a monthlong slump that the box office revived over the Independence Day weekend, thanks in part to Wolfgang Peterson's "Perfect Storm" (at $178 million, the summer's third-biggest hit). Other hits followed, like "Scary Movie," a $19 million spoof of teen-age slasher films that has earned nearly $150 million, and more expected successes like "Nutty Professor 2: The Klumps" ($115 million) and "X-Men" ($153 million).

By August, however, ticket sales had cooled again.

"The bottom sort of fell out," Dergarabedian said. "We ended up the summer with 10 out of 15 weekends performing more poorly than the same weekends last summer, and you just can't recover from that."

One problem was that, except perhaps for "Scary Movie," the summer produced nothing like the kind of sleeper success enjoyed by "Sixth Sense." Outside of a few films, notably Robert Zemeckis' "What Lies Beneath" (which has earned $137 million and is still attracting audiences) and Clint Eastwood's "Space Cowboys," the summer releases did not seem to hold on at the box office week after week, indicating that people were not telling friends to go see them.

Particularly disquieting to studios and theater owners is that no movie coming out of the summer seems likely to run strongly into September, as "Sixth Sense" did last year. With the Olympics about to begin and few major releases in the immediate offing, there are fears that it will not be until after the World Series and the presidential election — until November, that is, and the release of the big holiday films — that the box office will recharge.

"I think it's been a good summer, though obviously not a great summer," said Jim Tharp, head of distribution for DreamWorks. "I think it always goes back to the movies. Now, we have more theaters, more conveniently located, more up-to-date and nicer to be in, so that would seem to indicate you'd get more attendance. But we didn't. So the issue has to be the movies."

PARENT TO PARENT

a family guide to current movies

By Tom Laney

This column rates current movies for parents and others who want help in choosing films that reflect traditional values and are suitable for family viewing. Films are rated in two categories: Entertainment (rated 0 to +4) and Acceptability (rated -4 to +4). I'll add brief comments to clarify the reasons for the ratings. Movies listed are currently playing in Midland and/or Odessa as of this writing.

NURSE BETTY (R; 2, -3) This film was supposed to be a comedy, wasn't it? Then can anyone explain to me why unsuspecting viewers are subjected to the shocking and graphic sight of a man being scalped in the opening minutes of the movie? Why couldn't they just shoot the guy and get it over with? These are some of the unanswered questions that "Nurse Betty" leaves us with. And, while we're at it, why do so many parents unhesitatingly take their children to R-rated movies without having previewed them? Forgive me for saying for the umpteenth time, "R" movies are "R for a Reason!" In this case, the reason is graphic violence and language. Not a family film.

THE WATCHER (R; 3, -2 1/2) Everybody's playing against type nowadays...Harrison Ford in "What Lies Beneath," Matt Damon as the perverted Mr. Ripley, and now Keanu Reeves as a serial killer. Reeves does a convincing job here, and the film keeps our interest with car and foot chases and a relentless countdown. Sounds like "Gone in 60 Seconds" with a strangler, doesn't it? Intense violence, language, and voyeuristic themes render the film unsuitable for those under 17.

SAVING GRACE (R; 2 1/2, -1 1/2) My "exit polls" told me that this British marijuana comedy was "OK" to "pretty funny." When I finally saw it, I had to disagree with both of those descriptions. Although some scenes were clever, the film was basically boring. It also must be criticized for a pro-drug message. A skippable film, and definitely not for your kids or teens unless, of course, you agree with the film's "pot is just harmless fun and should be legal" message. Let's hope not.

WHIPPED (R; 1, -4) Before I saw this film, I read that its release was delayed so that its raunchy sexual content could be edited down from an "NC-17" to an "R" rating. So I figured that in this review I'd have to tell you how awful it would be for young people to see. Imagine my surprise after sitting through the movie, when I realized my task instead would be just to try to warn you how awful it is, period. This is a major stinker which has been playing to incredibly small audiences. I have only talked to one person who liked it at all. It tries to be a comedy but continually shoots itself in the foot with boring interview scenes where the characters look directly into the camera and share their thoughts with us. And the raunchiness was obviously not edited much — one particularly disgusting scene has a character trying to retrieve his girlfriend's vibrator from an unflushed toilet. This is not a film that makes one proud to live in the same country where Hollywood is located. Skip the film, and skip the video when it's released.

FILMS TO AVOID: Whipped; Me, Myself, and Irene; Nutty Professor II: The Klumps. These are all raunchy, sex-filled, dirty movies which nobody under 17 should see under any circumstances.

FILMS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY: Disney's The Kid, X-Men; Rocky and Bullwinkle; Dinosaur.

FILMS FOR THE SLIGHTLY MORE MATURE: The Perfect Storm; Gladiator; Space Cowboys; Gone in 60 Seconds; Coyote Ugly; Big Momma's House; Bring it On; The Replacements; Shanghai Noon; Mission Impossible: 2.

FILMS FOR ADULTS ONLY: Hollow Man; What Lies Beneath, The Cell, Bless the Child, The Art of War; Autumn in New York; The Crew; Nurse Betty; The Watcher; Saving Grace; Way of the Gun; The Original Kings of Comedy.

FILMS FOR NOBODY BUT HARDCORE POKEMON FANS: Pokemon 2000.

Next time, we'll look at some more new releases, including the profanity-filled "Original Kings of Comedy," the ultra-violent "Way of the Gun," and Jamie Foxx's new action comedy, "Bait." Previously, I have recommended three good Web sites for information on new movies: www.screenit.com, www.gospelcom.net/preview, and www.upcomingmovies.com. Don't hesitate to check out any of these sites for further information, or e-mail me with your comments and questions at: tlaney@apex2000.net. Thank you for all the positive comments I've received so far — it's a pleasure to be of service to you.

DEAR ABBY

Mom, sister don't know why brother sides against them

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 37 years old and have one older brother who is 39. When we were growing up, our family was very close, but something happened when my father passed away eight years ago. Within a few years my mother remarried. Soon after, my marriage to an abusive man fell apart.

Van Buren

My brother decided to support my ex-husband and held me responsible for not giving him a "second chance." This hurt me deeply. When my mother recently divorced — her husband wanted the divorce — again, my brother took the husband's side. My brother's wife is a born-again Christian and doesn't believe in divorce, no matter what the reason.

My mother is heartbroken and so am I. I always looked up to my brother. I wish I knew it was his wife's influence and not his choice. He promised our father on his deathbed that he would take care of us. Not only has he walked away from us in our time of need, he has sided against us. I have tried talking to him, but it doesn't work. Is there anything I can do? I still love my brother and always will. — SNIFFLING SIBLING IN TEXAS

DEAR SNIFFLING: If talking to your brother hasn't helped, there is nothing more you can do. I don't know whether his identification with other men is so strong that it colors the way he views you and his mother — or whether he is unable (or unwilling) to keep his deathbed promise and can't face either of you. However, the reality is that you and she will have to rely on yourselves. Love him if you wish, but don't count on him for anything.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who lives with us, still clings to the cultural values of the old country and expects everybody to conform to them. This sometimes results in confrontation and ill feelings among family members.

My son, who is 16, frequently brings friends home. Most of the time he remembers to introduce them to the family members, but there are times when he thinks he has already introduced them, so he doesn't.

My mother-in-law gets upset when the young people who show up at home do not acknowledge her. She comes from a culture steeped in values such as respect for elders. She feels these young guests should greet her, or smile at her, and that they have to do it first before she will return the greeting.

Although I value such traditions, in my opinion she does not have to wait. She can initiate the introduction. I told her she should just say hello to them and ask them nonchalantly to introduce themselves. She is adamant that she should be greeted first. I explained that we do not know if these young people are shy, or whether they have not been properly taught by their own parents. None of the kids are overtly rude, either to my mother-in-law or me. Who is right in this instance? — MODERN MOTHER, CERRITOS, CALIF.

DEAR MODERN MOTHER: I don't know where your mother-in-law hails from, but in our culture it is also proper for young people to defer to older people. Make it clear to your son that when he brings friends to the house, he should make a point of greeting his grandmother and asking if she has met them. If she hasn't, he should introduce them. He should also explain to his friends what kind of behavior is expected from him — and them.

FAMILY MATTERS

Husband's anger affects family

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I think you wrote something about anger before, but I didn't save it and I should have.

My husband is angry all the time. Every little thing at home bothers him, and he either starts yelling or leaves the house and won't talk to anyone. This bothers me, and now it's bothering my 7-year-old. She's started yelling at her 4-year-old brother and saying ugly things to him. What's all this been teaching her?

May

I've talked and talked to him about doing something about his anger, but he says he's always had a temper and that it's OK. He has — but what he doesn't know is that his mother says that his temper has always been a source of great pain and embarrassment to her too.

We all love him and I know that his tantrums can't be good for him and they're definitely not good for us. Can you think of a way that I could bring this up to him so that he might listen? If you will answer another question about anger, I promise to save the answer this time. DODGING THE ANGER EXPRESS

DEAR DODGING: Often when people have acted a certain way all of their lives, they believe that such behavior is "normal." While it may be normal to them, it may not be normal nor acceptable to others.

Your husband's anger and his acceptance of it in no way makes it acceptable or appropriate.

While anger is a normal emotion, the expression of it must be in a way that is acceptable. In other words, anger is designed to convey to others that a person has a problem with something.

But like the referee's whistle, it is only the indication of an infraction. One must then decide what caused the anger — for example, "I am angry because your bicycle was in the driveway again and I couldn't pull into the garage."

From that point, a consequence and a solution are calmly created and implemented.

You are right to be concerned about the effect of anger on your husband's health. A recent large-scale study of 13,000 middle-aged men and women found that, "anger-prone people had two to three times the incidence of heart attacks, bypass surgery and balloon angioplasty."

Many experts believe that anger-prone people release more stress hormones that, in turn, can cause "blood pressure to surge, heart rhythms to disrupt, and blood platelets to clot blocking an artery."

Ask your husband to take the following "Anger Self Test" (adapted from the Speilgelburg Anger Scale):

Answer each question with one of the following: ALMOST NEVER score 1; SOMETIMES score 2; OFTEN score 3; and ALMOST ALWAYS score 4.

1. I am quick tempered.
2. I have a fiery temper.
3. I am a hotheaded person.
4. I get angry when I am slowed down by other's mistakes.
5. I feel annoyed when I am not given recognition for doing good work.
6. I fly off the handle.
7. When I get angry, I say nasty things.
8. It makes me furious when I am criticized in front of others.
9. When I get angry, I feel like hitting someone.
10. I feel infuriated when I do a good job and get a poor evaluation.

After scoring the response for each item, add up the total for all items. A score of 10-14 indicates "low anger," a score of 15-21 indicates "moderate anger," and 22-40 indicates "high anger."

You and his mother might want to take the test for him too, as he may minimize his feelings and actions. Hopefully, you will get an accurate evaluation and can encourage him to seek counseling for anger management.

Depression can express itself in anger too.

Regardless of his response, you may benefit from learning more about anger management. Self-help books, such as R. Williams' "Anger Kills: Seventeen Strategies for Controlling Hostility That Can Harm Your Health," And Albert Ellis' "Anger: How to Live With and Without It," may be of help.

Continue to explain to him and your children that his anger and expressions of anger are completely unacceptable and a change is necessary. Give your daughter consequences for her unacceptable expression of anger toward her brother.

Do not let your husband's anger rule your life.

Couple are volunteers together

By Lana Cunningham

The moon shimmered in the cold New Year's Eve night. Clarence Tucker took a look at the woman sitting in the car next to him and thought, "This old gal is going to make someone a good wife."

Tucker paused for a moment as he recalled that fateful night in 1958 when the two went out for breakfast after a square dance. She had just returned from a trip and her girl friend didn't want to go dancing. Tucker had gone with two other couples. That left him free to talk this single woman into giving him a ride home. "I never dreamed it would be me," he said with a laugh.

For 41 years they have been partners in life, sharing the laughter and holding each other up through the tears. Twice a week, they take their "team spirit" and give it to people receiving Meals-on-Wheels. Occasionally, if a driver doesn't show, they volunteer to deliver another route.

Like their marriage, delivering Meals-on-Wheels means team work for this duo. Tucker drives while wife Lila takes the food inside the client's house. But if the client is a man, Clarence does the delivery. "They'll visit with me more than her," he explained. "For some people, we're the only visitors they'll have all day."

One morning a week, the Tuckers pull up at the Community & Senior Services' kitchen where the meals are prepared, load up the car and head out into the county. They have 24 meals to deliver on a route that takes them far and wide. Two hours and 35 miles later, they return the empty coolers to CSS.

The first time they handled this county route, the Tuckers wandered around roads in their vehicle, trying to find addresses. It took more than 2-1/2 hours to deliver those meals. The other route they deliver is inside Midland and takes about 45 minutes.

"These people are so grateful to us," said Mrs. Tucker, 76, a retired nurse. "They're so glad to see your smiling face. Some of the people on the routes are in terrible shape (healthwise)."

Tucker is a native of the Permian Basin; his wife grew up in Red Lodge, Mont. During their marriage, they have lived in Las Vegas, California and Midland-Odessa.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Clarence and Lila Tucker are volunteers for Meals-On-Wheels.

The couple made one last move to Midland four years ago. They had lived here previously for a 14-year period. "We had so many friends here," she said. "And we liked the climate, except for these summers."

Retirement wasn't to be as carefree as they had hoped.

"We came here the first of May. In August, I discovered I had leukemia. Oh, it's the least devastating of the leukemias. Then in June 1998, I had a heart attack. In August, I had another one." Tucker, 70, has been hospitalized 12 times in those four years.

It's not the first time Tucker has run into the brick wall of death. However, he keeps turning around and coming back. In 1990, he suffered his first heart attack. "I was already in the emergency room when it happened. A nurse said they almost lost me several times."

Since then, he's had 10 heart catheterizations. "I have a zipper down there," he said jokingly of the area in the groin where the catheter is inserted.

It was the heart attacks that sent Tucker to Meals-on-Wheels. "I'd sit here and watch a guy mow my yard. I wondered what I was going to do with the rest of my life. I told Lila we had to do something." He checked into Meals-on-Wheels and discovered the coordinator was a young woman he once taught in Sunday School. "I asked her what I had to do to deliver meals. She said, 'Just say yes when I ask you.'"

Admittedly, some days Tucker doesn't feel like getting out of the house and delivering meals. But he gets behind the wheel and with each stop the former construction worker gets a little more energized. "I know if I give up, I won't be alive in a few months. You've got to keep on keeping on." And every time Tucker goes to oncology for chemotherapy, he looks around at the other patients and considers himself fortunate.

Church has been another outlet for the Tuckers' energy and time. As members of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, they enjoy a mid-week Bible study. "We go out to eat lunch after the Bible study," said Mrs. Tucker, who also works with the church's women's group.

"I'm the only man in the group and they call it Tucker's Harem," laughed the husband.

He also spends time every morning in a water walking class, trying to re-build his energy after the heart attacks and chemotherapy and to ease his arthritis.

Life did not always hand roses to the Tuckers. They had three daughters: the first died 20 minutes after birth and the second has Down's Syndrome. However, they delight in the two living girls, a granddaughter and twin grandsons.

"It's been a good marriage," Tucker reflected. "God has His hand in our life more than we know. If I had met Lila a few years earlier, I probably wouldn't have dated her."

Luckily, the moon cast its spell that night, and the Tuckers continue to spread their smiles and good cheer to the clients receiving Meals-on-Wheels.

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS

Two local organizations plan celebrations

By Alexandria L. Rose

This coming Saturday, Sept. 23, is a very special day. Every year, across the nation, one day is set aside in honor of the organization of AARP. And every year the Alzheimer's Association has its big fund-raiser known as the Memory Walk.

Rose

This year we celebrate together. What makes it so much fun is that AARP/Area Agency on Aging Team is hoping to outdo the other teams registered in in its fund raising.

One of the purposes of AARP is to connect with the community and help where it is needed. This was a golden opportunity to reach out and become team mates with an organization that works mostly with a senior population.

More than 4 million Americans have Alzheimer's disease, including more than 14,000 Permian Basin residents. It is the fourth-leading cause of death among adults in this country. The disease is incurable and has no single-test diagnosis. Family and caregivers shoulder emotional, physical and financial burdens. The community must step forward and help ease the toll this disease takes on residents. I was involved with the care of my father, who had Alzheimer's disease, so I know how painful and devastating it can be to care for someone you love so much.

All but a small percent of the money raised will stay in the Permian Basin to help support groups, educational programs and professional training throughout the year. The amount that does not remain here will go to Alzheimer's research.

Memory walk begins at 9:15 a.m. Saturday at Midland College. If anyone would like to participate and has not been contacted, just come on out. If you would like to make a donation to this worthy cause, our team would love to add your name to the list of donors of the winning team.

Besides walkers, entertainment and information will be available.

Sounds like too much fun to miss! This is your chance to get your exercise program in gear and be part of the crowd. Just in case you are wondering, the whole family can come — including the dog if he or she is on a leash.

Hope to see you there!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Sept. 15, 2000:
Deal with finances and partnerships head-on. Many professional opportunities drop on you. You need to be willing to learn more and go in a new direction. The unexpected occurs at work. Flow with new technology and change. If you are rigid, you could become very uncomfortable. Be willing to spend on you, your health and your education. You will gain. If you are single, you could meet someone through work. As a result, you'll broaden your circle of friends; 2001 gives birth to a very special relationship.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Your personality makes problems dissipate. Early-morning confusion could be disconcerting. The unexpected occurs where you least expect it. A friend might be full of surprises. He does mean well. Extremes mark your relationships. Be direct when dealing with others. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★ Your nerves could be shattered by recent developments. You might not be clear about what a co-worker or associate is saying. Stay secure when dealing with others. Emotions easily swing out of control, and you discover that you swallow too many feelings. You understand a boss's unpredictability better than you realize. Tonight: Take it easy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You could be out of sorts and somewhat frayed at the edges as the day begins. Continue working toward a key goal. You could be surprised by information. Listen carefully to news. A child or loved one spoils you and makes you feel very special. Allow your imagination and creativity to surge. Tonight: Where your friends are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

A partner gives you unexpected support and help. Working as a team proves to be rewarding and fulfilling. Indulge another. Tonight: In the limelight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Early confusion can melt away if you tighten up your communication. Listen carefully to what another suggests. Take an overview of plans and see the big picture. Do something special for you. Schedule a massage or maybe time with your best friend. You need to indulge. Tonight: With your best friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Defer to others. It doesn't really matter who is right or wrong. Let go of this type of conflict. Your spontaneity makes a big difference to a loved one, who also delights you with an unexpected action. Your smile draws others toward you. Use your charm and grace. Tonight: Let another make the choice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Pace yourself — you might have a lot on your plate. Your nerves could be jangled. Look toward expressing some of your feelings that you are keeping to yourself. You could be touchy and cause yourself problems. Get to your roots and deal with the problems. Deal with a domestic issue as well. Tonight: TGIF with your friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Allow your imagination to speak. Don't get into a rut. A partner could act up or create an uproar. Actually, this person might be confused. Another's point of view could differ from yours. Indulge a female friend or a friend who does a lot of favors for you. Express feelings to a loved one through your actions. Tonight: Be a wild thing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Bosses say one thing but mean another. Your sense of direction plays out when dealing with others. Your sense of humor comes out when another realizes his mistakes and back-pedals. Be gracious and open to someone. Expenses could surprise you, yet they could ultimately be worthwhile. Tonight: At home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Keep communication flowing, even if there is a lot of uproar. Tighten up plans, making sure you and another are hearing the same thing. Someone at a distance goes out of his way for you. Share feelings with a loved one. Consider taking off for the weekend — the sooner the better. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Expenses go overboard because what another considers appropriate might not be the same as what you consider appropriate. Work on understanding and clarifying what this person says. Indulge a loved one, and let him know how much you care. Go with the moment and with spontaneity. You gain unexpected insight. Tonight: Curb spending.

Opening lead: King of ♠

You deserve to be punished for entering the auction simply for the sake of being heard. Being penalized is more difficult to take when a perfectly normal action draws a blueprint of the hand for declarer.

North's cue-bid showed a limit raise or better in clubs. With 16 high-card points and a stopper in the enemy suit, three no-trump seemed like a playable spot.

West led the king of spades. Declarer held up for one round, winning the continuation of the queen with the ace. A simple contract developed major complications when declarer now led the 10 of clubs and West signaled encouragingly with the nine of diamonds.

On careful reflection, however, declarer decided that the contract could still be made as long as West held the jack of spades. The early play and vulnerable overcall marked West with the king of diamonds, and that would be the defender's downfall.

Declarer rose with dummy's ace of clubs, then cashed four rounds of hearts. West was able to discard another diamond in comfort, but when declarer next led to the king of clubs, West was finished.

If the defender bared the king of diamonds, the ace of diamonds would pick up the monarch and the queen would be the fulfilling trick. And if the defender sluffed a spade, coming down to three spades, a king and another diamond, South would win the club and throw West in with a spade. After cashing the spade tricks, West would then have to lead away from the king of diamonds into declarer's combined A-Q tenace. Either way, nine tricks were there.

Would you have overcalled one spade? Switch the North and East hands and four spades is an easy game.

Elton walks out on sold-out concert

LISBON, Portugal — Elton John walked out on a sold-out concert just 30 minutes before it was supposed to start, organizers said.

The singer appeared worried that the theater at the Estoril Casino near Lisbon was half-empty, casino spokesman Nuno Lima de Carvalho said.

"He said he was going out to get some air, but then he jumped into his car and went to the airport to catch his private jet. He never said goodbye or anything to anyone," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the audience of 1,250 people, including government ministers and bank presidents, was slow to move from the dining room Wednesday night.

The casino is considering legal action, he said. Tickets for the show cost more than $200.

Paul Carey, a London spokesman for the singer, said he was unaware of the incident and had no comment.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Ricky Martin will be gyrating his hips for President Clinton.

Vice President Al Gore and former President Ford will also be on hand for the 14th Carousel of Hope gala Oct. 28 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Singer Toni Braxton will also perform, and Jay Leno will be master of ceremonies.

The benefit raises money for the Barbara Davis Center for Childhood Diabetes in Denver and the American Diabetes Foundation.

"We are sure that President Clinton's presence will be inspiring to everyone and the medical profession who are working every day to find a cure for diabetes," Davis, wife of billionaire Marvin Davis, said Thursday.

The Carousel of Hope has raised nearly $50 million since 1978.

LOS ANGELES — The star of the rap group Bone Thugs-N-Harmony pleaded no contest to possession of a sawed-off shotgun in connection with a January confrontation at a relative's house.

Stanley Howse, known as Flesh-N-Bone, entered the plea Wednesday and is expected to be sentenced to two years on Oct. 24, prosecutor Eric Lavine said

The 27-year-old Grammy winner also faces sentencing later this month in Van Nuys in an assault case involving threats using an AK-47 machine gun..

Howse was arrested Jan. 3 after relatives called police over an argument that started when the rapper arrived for a visit. Officials said he had a shotgun.

The group won a Grammy in 1997 for best rap performance for the song "Crossroads."

LOS ANGELES — This Oscar isn't going over the rainbow or anywhere else for at least a while.

Superior Court Judge Dzintra Janavs on Wednesday issued a preliminary injunction blocking Judy Garland's former husband Sidney Luft from selling her statuette.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, vigilant in protecting Oscar, says it has first crack at buying the Oscar for $10.

The academy claims that Garland notified the organization in 1958 that the statuette she won in 1940 for "The Wizard of Oz" was missing. She got a replacement after signing a $10 buyback agreement, the academy says.

Garland eventually found the original, and Luft got both when she died.

Luft and Nate's Autographs owner Nate Sanders claim their statuette is the replacement. Another collectables dealer said Luft told her it is the original.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — The beat goes on in the desert: Tourists may one day sit on a park bench alongside the late Sonny Bono.

As a tribute to the mayor, actor, singer and congressman, the city is proposing a fountain and a life-size bronze statue of Bono sitting on a bench downtown. Bono died in a skiing accident in 1998.

Developer John Wessman is paying for the $125,000 memorial, which would be similar to a statue of Lucille Ball and would be completed next year, pending city approval.

NEW YORK — Tom Hanks, Paul Newman and other stars turned out to support striking commercial actors at rallies on both coasts as federal mediators attempted to restart talks in the 5-month-old walkout.

"Actors are the best bargain in the advertising business. We bring life to words on a printed page," Hanks told a crowd of about 1,000 people in Los Angeles on Wednesday.

Hanks, appearing with Alfre Woodard, David Hyde Pierce and others, called on the advertising industry to negotiate a fair contract with the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

'Dogs return to field, renew rivalry

■ Midland High uses open week to prepare for first game against San Angelo Central since 1997.

By Terry Williamson

Homecoming activities may be the emphasis of Midland High fans and students this week, but the action on the Memorial Stadium grass tonight against San Angelo Central could have a major impact for the Bulldog football team.

Midland High vs. SA Central

It's no secret that MHS coach David Browning has given his squad a major challenge this season by upgrading his schedule significantly.

"The open dates are over," Browning said. "We're in the long haul now. All five of our games on the non-conference schedule are against teams that made the state playoffs last season."

MHS has had a week off to prepare for this game and fine tune any mistakes found in a 28-7 loss to Irving Nimitz two weeks ago in the season road opener.

Now, MHS has a chance to perform before the home crowd in a renewal of a rivalry that skipped the last two seasons. Central defeated the Bulldogs, 35-31, at Memorial Stadium in 1997, the last time these two teams met.

"An open week is never fun for a football team and this has been a tough one," Browning said. "Especially, if you want your team to play more physical football, then you have to work that way."

The Bulldogs also catch the Bobcats at a tough time. Central opened the season with a loss to Class 4A power Brownwood, but came back last week

Bulldogs-Bobcats game could last a while

Spending time in the world of District 4-5A football.

Long Time Passing: If Midland High quarterback Chris Howard and San Angelo QB Sol Southall get into a passing showdown at Memorial Stadium tonight, expect to eat breakfast when you get home. You might be there for a while. Both threw for over 200 yards in the first game of the season. Also, and a big factor, this game is MHS' Homecoming. It's takes a lot of time to crown a queen.

Comparison Time: MHS vs. Central is only a non-conference game, but it's the first real comparison between 4-5A schools. OHS lost last week to the Bobkitties. The Bulldogs should know somewhat better at how they stand after this game.

Time Off: Lee has the week open and word is that the Rebels are using this week to experiment. Expect some lineup changes down the road. After all, Lee needs to be making lineup changes after their slow start of 80 points in just two games.

There Was a Time When: Back in my high school days, Homecoming was always placed on the date of your major rival. Today, coaches call it a "distraction," and no one even wants Homecoming to fall on any district game.

Quick Time: District 4-5A is off to an 8-3 (.727) non-district start to the football season.

Missing Time: San Angelo Central still plays MHS, OHS, Abilene High and Abilene Cooper. It almost seems like the Bobkitties are still in the league. We still wish San Angelo was a member of the elite since we still have such close ties with that school in all other sports as a league member. Central has to wear two district hats as the scapegoat of the UIL.

Time Out: One week and counting until the Texas-Louisiana non-mythical championship. Never in the history of 4-5A has there been a more anticipated non-conference game as the one between Lee and West Monroe.

We were 3-1 in the District 4-5A picking game last week, bringing us to 8-2 (.800) for the season. Here's how this week will go down.

Midland High 24, San Angelo Central 22: Kyle Gandy seems to be turning the Bobcats in the right direction, but the Bulldogs really need this win. Central won seven of the eight meetings with MHS in the '90s. MHS' only win that decade was in 1994 (the Roy Coats season). Central won 35-31 in Midland in 1997, the last time these two teams played. Expect another thriller.

Odessa High 20, Lubbock Coronado 17: The Bronchos have cost me two losses already, but I'm sticking with OHS until they get it right. Coronado has won three of the last four regular season games against OHS, but the Mustangs appear to be a half-step off this season.

Abilene High 15, Irving 13: These two have never played each other, but indications are that this could be one stiff matchup. Give the Eagles the edge at home.

Abilene Cooper 35, Killeen Ellison 28: The overall series is tied at 1-1. Both are unbeaten this season and both are putting points on the boards. This could be a dandy.

Brownwood 13, Odessa Permian 7: The first real shock wave to hit District 4-5A this season comes on Saturday. Just one little hint (as if coaches need any more ideas), Justin Whitaker needs to look deep against the B-Wood secondary.

Midland Lee 40, Open 0: Open hasn't won a game this year, didn't have any preseason scrimmages and there are no reports of any major chances of rain.

Trinity can't keep Lee JV from its 27th straight win

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

The Midland Lee JV kept its winning streak alive by showing some smothering defense and a bevy of talented tailbacks against the Trinity Chargers Thursday night at Memorial Stadium.

Trinity (3-1) put up a good fight, but in the end, the Rebels were too much as Lee JV ran its unbeaten streak to 27 straight games in a 23-7 win.

The Rebel defense held Trinity to 214 total yards and eight first downs, five of which came in the fourth quarter. The Lee defense also came up with five turnovers on the night.

"We wanted to improve on how we play defense from last week (a 41-27 win over Abilene Cooper)," said Lee JV coach Scott Hicks. "This week, we had a pretty good idea of what we were going to see. The kids executed the game plan. Trinity had some weapons, and we contained them and didn't let them hurt us with the big play until the fourth quarter."

"We just couldn't get anything going, especially throwing the ball," said Trinity coach John Wilkins, whose team passed for 111 yards in the game but only on 4-of-17 passing with three interceptions. One of

Australians cheer torch as Games get ready to open

By Ted Anthony

SYDNEY, Australia — At the opera house, they packed the water's edge and cheered. They watched from buildings, from a docked oceanliner, even from atop the steel skeleton of the fabled Harbor Bridge. They oohed and ahhed as the Olympic flame went by.

Ready to greet the world, Sydneysiders paused Thursday at the edge of the Olympics to see their downtown awash in fireworks, an Olympic-rings light show and even a big round moon, delivered against a cloudless sky. The collective exhortation: Let the games begin.

"This shows people what we're about — whatever that may be," said a smiling Gloria Garton, pressed up against a barricade with her husband to see blind Italian opera singer Andrea Bocelli pass the Olympic torch to Australian pop star Olivia Newton-John.

Australian sprinter Melinda Gainsford-Taylor, women's captain of her nation's Olympic team, brought the torch into the Sydney Opera House grounds at dusk, passing it to Bocelli.

He held it aloft before thousands of cheering people crowded into Bennelong Point, then handed it to a grinning Newton-John. She carried it off into the night on the last leg of its journey toward Olympic Park and Friday's opening ceremony. Then Bocelli sang Verdi's "Di quella pira."

With the crowd roaring, the Olympic rings that hang from the landmark bridge illuminated as the last sunlight faded, and fireworks shot from the bridge's anchorage. Five helicopters and the Goodyear Blimp — rechristened the "G'Day Blimp" for the games — hovered overhead.

"It's all happening," enthused Lawrence Nethery of Sydney. "The rings look fantastic, but the moon looks even better. One of the best things I've ever been to."

"A lovely day on the harbor," said spectator Lorraine Askew.

Half of the seats outside the opera house went to the general public; the other half went to those attending the Thursday opera program. It created an odd juxtaposition: On one side, rowdy youths held Australian flags aloft and chanted "Aussie! Aussie!" while opera-goers in formal garb applauded sedately on the other.

In the crowd on the quay, chants and shouts erupted after a clarinet player in the crowd performed a slow, haunting rendi-

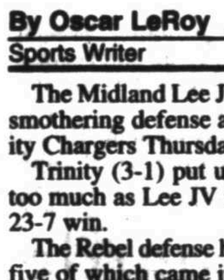
Wortham finally gets to start in Dallas

By Stephen Hawkins
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — An injury during training camp kept Barron Wortham from really competing to be a starter for the Dallas Cowboys.



And the Cowboys had already penciled in second-year player Dat Nguyen as the starting middle linebacker. They were so confident in Nguyen that they made no real attempt to re-sign free agent Randall Godfrey.

But with Nguyen out 2-4 weeks with a sprained left knee, Wortham — a starter for Tennessee in last year's Super Bowl — gets his chance to start in Dallas. Wortham will be in the starting lineup Monday night when the Cowboys play at Washington.

"Barron has been battle-tested. We feel he will go in and play very well," Cowboys coach Dave Campo said. "Obviously, we had made the decision that Dat was the starter, but that would have been a pretty good competition if Barron had been healthy all the way through two-a-days."

After signing with the Cowboys as a free agent, Wortham had to undergo arthroscopic surgery to repair cartilage in his left knee the second week of training camp. He missed the first four preseason games.

"Unfortunately, I got hurt. Who knows what would have happened if I hadn't gotten hurt," Wortham said. "After the surgeries and rehabs and all of the things I've been through the past 4-5 weeks, I feel pretty healthy. My leg's real strong."

Nguyen is now out because of his left knee, sprained last week at Arizona, and could miss three games.

In his first career regular-season start, the Cowboys' season-opening 41-14 loss to Philadelphia, Nguyen had eight tackles. Even though he was slowed and missed playing time last week because of the injury, Nguyen had 12 tackles against the Cardinals.

Battle of No. 1's

Good timing lets Tors, Tigers meet as No. 1-ranked teams

By Michael A. Lutz

■ Texas High School Football

It was already going to be a big game between two good West Texas teams. Then, it turned into a battle of No. 1s and it got even bigger.

A week of upsets and shuffling in The Associated Press High School Football Poll created a rarity: a Friday night showdown between Class 4A No. 1 ranked Wolfforth Frenship and Class 3A No. 1 Lamesa.

It's believed to be only the second time AP No. 1 ranked teams have met in the regular season. It happened previously in September 1997 when Class 5A No. 1 Tyler John Tyler met Class 4A No. 1 ranked La Marque.

"When we scheduled this game, we had no idea we'd both be No. 1," Lamesa coach Tim James said. "We've played them before and we felt it would be a good game to get our kids ready for district play."

Frenship and Lamesa are each defending the No. 1 rank for the first week. Frenship ascended to the top in 4A when Texas City lost the No. 1 ranking last week. Lamesa reached the top after preseason No. 1 Newton lost its season opener.

Lamesa must face one of the state's top quarterbacks in Kendal Briles, who led Stephenville to its second straight Class 4A state title last year before transferring to Frenship.

"Being No. 1 has really turned up the volume on the excitement of the game," Frenship coach Bobby Davis said. "I don't think it will change the type of game that's played. They beat us when our seniors were freshmen. I'm sure our seniors and their seniors remember that.

"From that standpoint, I guess it's a rivalry."

Lamesa isn't bothered by being the underdog.

"Our seniors played them when they were freshmen and beat them," James said. "So, our kids feel they can play with them. We can't shut Briles down, we just have to contain him as best we can and not let him have those big plays."

In another battle of ranked teams, Newton, which drooped to No. 4 on the 3A list, gets a chance to rebound against No. 2 ranked Crockett.

Garland, the Class 5A leader, will play unranked DeSoto after getting off to a 2-0 start with victories over ranked teams. The Owls beat No. 9 Arlington Lamar last week.

Class 5A has another game pitting ranked teams. No. 7 The Woodlands will play at No. 8 Duncanville on Saturday.

Class 5A second ranked Midland Lee (2-0) takes the week off. No. 3 Austin Westlake hosts A&M Consolidated; No. 4 Katy is at Humble and No. 5 Aldine Eisenhower is at Alief Elsik.

In Class 4A, No. 2 ranked Stephenville, the preseason No. 1, hosts Weatherford; No. 3 Wichita Falls is at Duncan, Okla.; No. 4 Texas City is idle and No. 5 Ennis plays at Mesquite Poteet on Saturday.

La Grange, the No. 3 team in Class 3A, plays at Sealy; and No. 5 Everman hosts Fort Worth Southwest.

In Class 2A, No. 1 ranked Mart is idle while No. 2 Celina plays Sanger; No. 3 Refugio is at Corpus Christi West Oso; No. 4 Sonora is at Brady and No. 5 Olney is at Quanah.

Iraan takes the Class A No. 1 ranking on the road at Ozona and No. 2 Shiner plays at Karnes City.

MHS: Bobcats look strong vs. OHS with surprisingly easy 31-7 win over Odessa High. The Bobcats should enter the game on a high note.

(From 1C)

"San Angelo showed a ton of improvement from Week 1 to Week 2," Browning said. "They got five turnovers from OHS and are really playing with confidence."

Kyle Gandy is in his first season with the Bobcats, returning to San Angelo from Baytown Sterling. Gandy formerly was an assistant coach at Central before moving over to take over the San Angelo Lake View program. He's home again.

"It's really been neat being back in San Angelo," Gandy said. "It's really like home for me. It helps, also, that I have some loyal coaches and kids who want to do well."

But MHS is going to have to figure out which Bobcat team will show up. Against Brownwood, Central had no rushing game, but quarterback Sol Southall threw for more than 200 yards. Against OHS, tailback Roy Bishop had 182 yards rushing and four touchdowns.

"They have a quarterback named Southall, so that about says it all right there," Browning said. "He's just another in a long line of good quarterbacks. And the Bishop kid is 200 pounds."

Even with the lop-sided win over OHS, Gandy fears the Bulldogs.

"We've looked at their game with Nimitz and they really moved the football," Gandy said. "They should have had a lot more than seven points to show for it. They impressed us with what they are doing. Midland is much better than what I remember when I was out here before. Coach Browning has done a really good job with that team."

MHS, as promised, went to the air against Nimitz and quarterback Chris Howard completed 20 passes for 201 yards. Receivers Colter Lange and Ray Johnson (both of which play full time in the defensive secondary) each caught five passes from Howard. But mistakes in the red zone kept MHS out of the end zone against Nimitz much of the game.

"There are four major areas in which we want to improve on from the Nimitz game. And we've been working on those areas," Browning said. "First, we have to eliminate the big plays. For the most part, we played a good defensive game, but we gave up some big plays that really hurt us.

"We also want to be sound in the kicking game because San Angelo had a couple of big punt returns against Odessa. We also have to be much more physical than we were in Week 1. We've got a lot of young kids playing for us and I really think they were really wide-eyed in that first game.

"And, of course, we've got to eliminate offensive mistakes. We had plenty of chances to score more points against Nimitz, but didn't get it done. We want to score when we get the opportunity."

DOG POUND NOTES: San Angelo and Midland have played against each other going all the way back to the 1920's... They played continuously from 1953 to 1997 before not meeting the last two years... Since 1961 (with the formation of District 4-5A as we know it today), San Angelo owns a 24-12-1 record against MHS... The Bulldogs defeated the Bobcats the last time in 1994, 26-0... MHS is only 1-7 against the Bobcats in the last eight games between the two schools. Central has been in the state playoffs two consecutive years as a member of District 3-5A, losing in the Class 5A Big School bi-district round both times to Odessa Permian (1998) and Midland Lee (1999)...

Aikman still isn't sure of whether he'll play

Associated Press

■ Cowboys Briefs

IRVING — Not even Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman is sure of his playing status.

After practicing for the second time since missing Sunday night's game at Arizona because of a concussion, Aikman said he felt good but didn't know if he would play Monday night at Washington.

"I'd like to be a little more committal on what I'm going to be able to do ... I don't know. I really don't know," Aikman said after practice Thursday. "It's something we're taking a lot of time in deciding and trying to make a decision on this thing and it's not easy. It's not real clear-cut and black and white."

Aikman suffered his ninth career concussion — and third in 10 regular-season starts — in the season-opening 41-14 loss to Philadelphia. He missed two games last season after concussions in consecutive games.

When asked Thursday if he still had headaches or any other lingering affects from the latest concussion, Aikman provided an evasive answer.

"I'm not at liberty to discuss some of the things that I've experienced or haven't experienced or where I'm at with all of those things," Aikman said. "Those are things being discussed with the doctors, and that evaluation process is obviously the reason why we haven't come to a clear-cut answer yet."

Aikman has split snaps in practice this week with Randall Cunningham, who completed 24 of 34 passes for 243 yards and two touchdowns Sunday night in Dallas' 32-31 loss to Arizona.

Aikman, 33, admitted to treating this concussion differently than others he has had.

"That's probably partly true and I think last year is what initiated that," he said. "I think because of what took place last year is why there's extra caution. And then in addition to that, probably my age and my stage in my career has instigated a lot of this."

Dallas releases Kevin Smith

IRVING — Dallas cornerback Kevin Smith was released by the Cowboys on Wednesday.

Smith spent the first three weeks of training camp with the Cowboys in Wichita Falls, Texas this summer before leaving the team to contemplate his retirement. He was put on the reserve-retired list Aug. 22, before the start of the regular season.

Sanders set for prime time on Monday night

ASHBURN, Va. — Deion Sanders has a lot to prove Monday night when the Washington Redskins face the Dallas Cowboys.

The star cornerback, who signed with Washington this summer after being released by Dallas in a cost-cutting move, is coming off one of the worst games of his 12-year career.

"For me, it was a bad day," Sanders said Thursday of his performance Sunday in the Redskins' 15-10 loss to Detroit. "For most corners, it was an average day. ... They just moved the ball with short curls all day, particularly on me. But that will be corrected this week, I assure you of that."

He spent five seasons with the Cowboys.

"I can't say it's just another game, because I have so many wonderful relationships with my past teammates in Dallas," Sanders said.

Colorado gets visits from ex-coach

Associated Press

BOULDER, Colo. — Rick Neuheisel returns to Boulder on Saturday with his ninth-ranked Washington Huskies, hoping the focus will be on football and not his abrupt and bitter departure from Colorado 20 months ago at the height of recruiting season.

While Colorado players say Neuheisel has been forgotten, fans may not be so forgiving.

Neuheisel acknowledges he's likely to receive a rude reception.

"I don't anticipate a lovefest or anything like that," he said. "If people are bitter that I left, then that's part of college football."

Neuheisel watched with interest the return of former Mississippi coach Tommy Tuberville — now at Auburn — to Oxford, Miss., last weekend. Some Rebel fans wore T-shirts featuring Tuberville's face and "Liar, Liar" printed under it.

"There's a lot of passion associated with college football," Neuheisel said. "If the passion manifests itself in a distaste for me, I've got big enough shoulders to handle that. As long as they're passionate about the Colorado Buffaloes, that's OK by me."

Neuheisel calls his four years in Boulder — when he led Colorado to 10-2, 10-2, 5-6 and 8-4 records — "a great time in my life and my family's life. It will be neat to be back there."

But will CU fans who felt jilted by Neuheisel have the same sentiment?

When he walked away from Boulder to sign a $1-million-a-year contract with Washington, Neuheisel, once a darling of the Colorado media and of fans, was instantly vilified.

Initially, he was applauded as a different kind of coach who wasn't afraid to be frank, to sing and play the guitar in public or to be close to his players. He became famous for taking his players on inner-tubing trips down Boulder Creek and instituting Popsicle breaks at practice.

But when his teams began showing signs of lacking discipline such as excessive penalties, his approach began to be questioned. A reputed quarterback guru, he was criticized for failing to develop a worthy successor to Kordell Stewart. And his emphasis on a finesse passing game at the expense of running caused his teams to suffer in the ground-oriented, physical Big 12.

The former wunderkind began to be seen as all style and no substance.

He departed on a recruiting weekend when CU officials discovered him negotiating with Washington while at the same time entertaining CU prospects.

Neuheisel was Topic A when the Huskies entertained and defeated Colorado 31-24 last season.

those interceptions was returned 25 yards for a touchdown by Michael Skinner, his first of two picks on the night. "They're an awfully good football team and they're very well coached.

"I'm proud of our kids, they never gave up. It was poor coaching on my part. I made some bad decisions. I don't think we're going to play a better football team than that."

Most of Lee's offense came on the ground as 306 of its 312 yards of total offense was churned out by nine different ball carriers. Cliff Goyang led the way with 114 yards on 13 carries, including a 1-yard touchdown in the first quarter to put Lee up 7-0 on its first drive. Eric Gutierrez, who rushed for 344 yards the week before, added 74 yards for the Rebels.

Lee JV (2-0) took a 14-0 lead into the locker room but had chances to score more. The Rebels fumbled twice inside the 20-yard line, including a fumble at the goal line.

"Offensively we made some mistakes that kept us from scoring early in the game, and it could've been 21-0," Hicks said. "We came off a good game last week (on offense) and tonight we sputtered. We just can't do that. We've got to get better every week on offense. Trinity has a good football team, their kids played hard."

The Trinity defense led by Dustin Truitt held its own as the Chargers shut down the passing game by the Rebels and came up with three turnovers of their own.

"If we play defense like we played tonight, we'll be fine," Wilkins said.

The second half started as a defensive struggle as the only score came from Coby Gleghorn on a 29-yard field goal to put Lee up 17-0.

The Rebels made it 23-0 when Lee quarterback Kevin Jumper scored on a 5-yard keeper early in the fourth quarter.

It was the final quarter when the Chargers showed some life on offense. Matt Midkiff completed a 59-yard pass to Clint Kitto, and then two plays later, Midkiff found Chase Woerndle on the right side for a 17-yard TD catch-and-run.

The Chargers had an opportunity to grab the momentum on the following kickoff when Jeehoun Yi recovered the onside kick to give Trinity the ball at Rebel 42. The celebration was short-lived, however, as the Chargers coughed up the ball on the following play.

Nathan Pirtle had 92 yards rushing for the Chargers.

DALLAS: Wortham has started for Tennessee

(From 1C)

Philadelphia, and two against Arizona while replacing Nguyen on the field.

"There are still a few kinks to work out. Obviously I haven't gotten the reps that Dat has gotten," Wortham said. "But the more reps I get, the better I'll get as the game goes on. It's just a matter of me going out there, being comfortable and playing football."

Wortham was released by the Titans after the Super Bowl. Until then, he had spent his entire career with that organization, going to Houston as a rookie in 1994 and staying with the franchise through its move to Tennessee in 1997.

Wortham has started 51 of his 94 NFL regular-season games the past seven seasons, including all 16 games in 1997 and 15 last season as the Titans won the AFC championship.

"I just have to go out and play my game, just go out line up and play ball," Wortham said. "I've been in this situation before. It's nothing new. I just go out and do my job."

And he knows what that job is with the Cowboys.

"I'm here in case Dat goes down. That's what they got me here for — quality depth," Wortham said. "Dat went down and I'm here."

Ex-Marquette coach has leukemia

NEW YORK — Al McGuire, the former Marquette basketball coach who was hospitalized in July with an unspecified illness, has leukemia, Sports Illustrated magazine reported.

Columnist Rick Reilly said the illness has whittled McGuire to 115 pounds. Leukemia is a cancer of blood-forming tissues.

Last week, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported that McGuire was living in a managed care facility.

The newspaper said McGuire, 72, entered a Milwaukee-area hospital July 27 and some days later was transferred to the managed care facility where he is being treated for an unspecified illness.

When McGuire retired from CBS as a broadcaster after calling the Wisconsin-Indiana game March 5, he said he had a form of anemia, a blood disorder. He has been no more specific about his ailment.

When he entered the hospital, his wife, Pat, said he was being treated for a viral infection, apart from his blood disorder.

The McGuires' home telephone number is unlisted and calls by The Associated Press to several of his former players weren't immediately returned.

McGuire retired from coaching after leading Marquette to the 1977 NCAA title. He was 295-80 in 13 seasons at the school.

Mississippi St. 44, BYU 28

PROVO, Utah — Josh Morgan had a school-record 97-yard fumble return for one of Mississippi State's three defensive touchdowns as the Bulldogs beat BYU 44-28 on Thursday night.

Wayne Madkin rushed for 104 yards on just seven carries and threw for 150 yards for Mississippi State (2-0).

Dicenzo Miller scored on a 14-yard run on Mississippi State's first possession, and the Bulldogs' Scott Westerfield kicked a 22-yard field after Madkin ran for 54 yards.

BYU's Charlie Peterson threw a 39-yard touchdown pass to Jonathon Pittman on the first play of the second quarter. But Madkin countered for the Bulldogs, scrambling out of the grasp of several defenders and down the field for a 59-yard touchdown run with 13:04 left in the half.

The Bulldogs led 31-7 at the first half, and rolled up 329 yards of total offense in the half after managing just 127 in their season-opening victory at Memphis.

Avalanche 5, Stars 3

DENVER — Milan Hejduk and Ville Nieminen scored third- period goals as the Colorado Avalanche opened the exhibition season with a 5-3 victory over the Dallas Stars on Thursday night.

Hejduk made it 4-3 with a short-handed goal, converting a pass from Joe Sakic at 2:36 of the final period. Nieminen beat goalie Rick Tabaracci off a rebound at 8:33.

Martin Skoula, Joel Prpic and Jared Aulin added goals for the Avalanche, who were eliminated by Dallas in the Western Conference finals last season. David Aebischer made 15 saves.

Jonathan Sim, Blake Sloan and Tyler Bouck scored for the Stars, who were 1-for-11 on the power play.

Leaf won't start against KC

SAN DIEGO — Ryan Leaf, ineffective in San Diego's first two regular-season games after a strong preseason, will not start the Chargers' game Sunday in Kansas City.

Coach Mike Riley said Thursday that Moses Moreno will open at quarterback against the Chiefs.

"I think it's our best chance to win right now," Riley said. "This is obviously something that didn't happen in the last 24 hours. I've thought about it. It's a big move.

"One of our biggest goals was to be a productive team on offense. We haven't been. I think right now our team needs a spark."

In San Diego's opening losses to Oakland and New Orleans, Leaf threw five interceptions and had a 33.4 quarterback rating. He did throw a touchdown pass Sunday against the Saints.

Streak dating to 1972 ends

WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. — A boys' high school tennis team lost for the first time since 1972, ending one of the nation's longest winning streaks in sports.

The team from Cherry Creek High School had a dual-match winning streak of 316. But the run ended Wednesday with a 5-2 defeat to Wheat Ridge.

"The streak was wonderful," Cherry Creek coach Kirk Price said, "but the pressure has been overwhelming."

The streak was the second-longest of any sport in the country, according to the National High School Sports Record Book. First is the wrestling team at Brandon, Fla., which has won 334 consecutive dual meets since 1973, with its streak still alive.

Deja vu permeates Sydney on eve of opening ceremony

By Larry McShane
Associated Press Writer

SYDNEY, Australia — There was a sense of deja vu Down Under: The Olympic opening ceremony was a day away, and buses were missing and lost — much like at the 1996 Summer Games.

Something else was familiar Thursday in Australia: The U.S. women's soccer team was still winning.

The defending gold medal winners came out smoking with a 2-0 victory over Norway — a dominating performance where Tiffeny Milbrett nearly came away with a hat trick.

Milbrett, who scored the first goal for the United States, drilled shots into the left goalpost, the right goalpost and the crossbar later in the game. "That won't happen ever again, I promise," Milbrett said. Mia Hamm scored her world record 126th goal in international competition to finish the scoring.

In the other women's soccer game, Sun Wen scored twice to lead China past Nigeria, 3-1, in the first game for both teams. China, which won the silver medal in Atlanta, faces the United State on Sunday.

A win by the U.S. women in either of their next two games should advance them into the soccer tournament's semifinals.

■ Olympic Roundup

■ MEN'S BASKETBALL: U.S. basketball guard Allan Houston may miss the Americans' first Olympic game after jamming his right wrist during practice. It's the same wrist the New York Knicks star needed surgery on three years ago.

"I'm not as worried or nervous as I was yesterday," Houston said Thursday after sitting out most of the U.S. team's two-hour practice. "It felt like I stretched the scar tissue."

Houston, who was scheduled to have his wrist X-rayed, said he would wait and see whether the wrist would keep him out of Sunday's U.S. team opener against China.

■ MEN'S SOCCER: The second day of men's soccer competition found gold medal contender Spain defeating South Korea, 3-0. Japan, with a late goal, scored a come-from-behind 2-1 victory over South Africa; Brazil defeated Slovakia, 3-1; and Chile beat Morocco, 4-1.

■ THE TORCH: On its last night outside the Olympic Stadium, a retinue of celebrity Aussies put their hands on the Olympic torch as the flame wended its way through Sydney.

Australian sprinter Melinda Gainsford-Taylor brought the torch into the Sydney Opera House grounds; there, singer Olivia Newton-John took over; and finally, tennis star Patrick Rafter carried it on to Town Hall for an overnight stay.

■ TRANSPORTATION: Why did the U.S. volleyball players cross the road?

Because an Olympic bus dropped them off in the wrong place.

A cross-section of U.S. athletes wound up stranded and spurned by the Olympic transportation system in the days before the start of the games, American officials confirmed.

Bus mix-ups left U.S. boxers woozy and water polo players high and dry; the fighters waited for a bus that never showed, while the polo players were brought to the wrong pool. The volleyball team was dropped off on the wrong side of a highway.

Didn't this kind of thing happen in Atlanta?

"It would appear to me that what they are going through is very much the same," said U.S. Olympic Committee vice president Sandy Baldwin in one of the first public complaints about the transportation system.

Sharks may not get Olympic triathletes, but jellyfish might

Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — If the sharks don't get the triathletes, maybe the jellyfish will.

Triathlon makes its Olympic debut and awards the first medals of the Sydney Games when the women dive into frigid Sydney Harbor and then bike and run through the city's business district Saturday (Friday night EDT).

The men follow a day later in a sport blessed with the most spectacular backdrops of these games — the course starts and finishes on the plaza in front of the landmark Sydney Opera House and never wanders far from the harbor.

One story has dominated the buildup to the Olympic triathlon: the possibility of a shark attacking a competitor. There occasionally are sharks in the harbor, and a bite was reported as recently as two years ago.

Six divers equipped with shark-repelling devices will be escorting the triathletes through the harbor. On top of that, it's not shark season and sharks would be unlikely to attack a group of people — they prefer helpless stragglers.

But the triathletes, trying to build interest in a sport that still has only provisional Olympic status, are thrilled with the attention generated by the "Jaws" stories.

"It's like auto racing fans who watch to see a crash," said U.S. triathlete coach Michelle Blessing. "If people watch to see sharks, that's better for us."

A far bigger concern is jellyfish. U.S. triathlete Hunter Kemper was stung on the neck by a jellyfish during a triathlon test run last weekend, though it was so mild he thought it was just his wetsuit chafing his skin.

"I think the jellyfish scared off all the sharks," joked Rob Barel, who at 42 is the oldest competitor in the Olympic triathlon.

And then there's the water temperature. Some triathletes said the shock of hitting the frigid water took their breath away during last weekend's trial.

"The cold water definitely will have some effect on the athletes," said Australian triathlete Loretta Harrop. "A lot of the leaner athletes, a lot of the runners, really are affected by the cold."

Barel, a biologist, is just one of many triathletes with considerable accomplishments outside the sport. Among the other competitors are a doctor, a biochemist, a member of parliament from Luxembourg and a New Zealander who speaks Yiddish and lists bullfighting among his hobbies.

The men's world champion, Frenchman Olivier Marceau, is a policeman. And the French women's team includes identical twins Isabelle and Beatrice Mouthon.

All three Australians are among the favorites in the women's race. Michellie Jones is ranked first in the world, 1999 world champion Harrop is second and Nicole Hackett is the current world champion.

"Look at our climate, it's absolutely fantastic. And most of our population lives near the water," Jones said. "And the Aussie people like giving it a go, and that's what you need in triathlon."

The top-ranked American woman is Jennifer Gutierrez, ranked 13th in the world.

Among the men, who like the women will swim 1,500 meters and then bike 25 miles and run 6 1/4 miles through Sydney's streets and the Royal Botanic Gardens, the favorites are much harder to predict.

Simon Lessing of Britain is a four-time world champion. Dmitriy Gaag of Kazakstan is ranked No. 1 in the world. Hamish Carter of New Zealand is ranked second, and Britain's Andrew Johns is third.

The top-ranked American man is Kemper, who has been running triathlons since the age of 10 and now ranks 32nd in the world.

Boxer to carry flag for East Timor

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Not long ago Victor Ramos was on the run in jungle-swathed hills, hunted by marauding militiamen who had marked him and his family for death.

On Friday, he'll be carrying the Olympic flag and heading the team from East Timor as it marches into the main stadium just ahead of host Australia to begin the Sydney Games.

"We'll definitely be there," said team leader Frank Fowlie on the eve of the opening ceremony.

The four athletes from the devastated former Indonesian province will wear white uniforms free of any national identification, won't carry a national flag and will compete as "Individual Olympic Athletes."

But thanks to a special International Olympic Committee ruling, only the second of its kind in Olympic history, East Timor is in Sydney although it doesn't yet fulfill criteria for formal Olympic recognition.

Ramos, a former Indonesia boxing champion, almost didn't make it. He and his family had to flee their home in the capital of Dili as pro-Jakarta militias embarked on a campaign of killing and arson following East Timor's vote for independence in August 1999.

Ramos was branded a traitor for his pro-independence stance in the balloting. "I was on a list of people to be killed. They told me, 'You wait. Your day is coming,'" he told the regional news magazine Asiaweek.

The 30-year-old lightweight boxer, who won a silver medal at the 1997 Southeast Asian Games, is now a local hero and the standout of the East Timor Olympic squad.

But neither he nor his teammates, including two marathoners and a weightlifter, are expected to get anywhere near the victory podium.

"They won't win any medals, but they'll finish the course," Fowlie said of his two marathoners, Aguida Amaral and Calisto Da Costa. Weightlifter Martinho De Araujo completes the lineup.

NBC opens Olympic coverage with spectacle of ceremonies

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — For openers, NBC plans an Olympic spectacular.

The network of the Sydney Games will be on the air from 7:30 p.m EDT Friday, covering the opening ceremony with all the glamour and glitz that a $705 million rights fee deserves.

And the Sydney organizing committee has made sure there will be plenty to show.

The centerpiece of the ceremony will be the parade of nations, a march of thousands of athletes — from high-profile "Dream Team" basketball stars to obscure team handball players, from track's Marion Jones, poised to try for five gold medals, to Tasha Schwikert, a last-minute replacement on the women's gymnastics team.

Cliff Meidl, who survived a 30,000-volt jolt of electricity in a constfuction accident and became one of America's top sprint kayakers, will be the flagbearer for the 600-member U.S. team. Five-time Olympian Andrew Gaze, who left Australia to play college basketball at Seton Hall and then returned to his native country, will carry the host nation's flag.

There will be a panoply of entertainment climaxed by the dramatic lighting of the Olympic torch that signals the start of the games.

Four years ago, in Atlanta, Dick Ebersol, chairman of NBC Sports, arranged for Muhammad Ali to light the torch. The image of Ali, clad all in white, trembling from the effects of Parkinson's Syndrome as he ignited the flame, will forever serve as the defining memory of those games.

"The lighting of the cauldron is the most inspirational moment in sports," said Ebersol, who insists he does not know who will ignite it on Friday. "A couple of weeks ago, I thought I knew. But now I'm convinced I don't."

There are plenty of candidates. Perhaps Betty Cuthbert, who won four gold medals, the most for any Australian track and field athlete, and now is battling multiple sclerosis. Or Herb Elliott, who won 44 consecutive races at a mile and 1,500 meters.

Maybe Ron Clarke, who ignited the flame for the 1956 Melbourne Games, or John Landy, the world-record holder in the mile from 1954-57 and captain of the 1956 Australian team, who read the Olympic oath for the athletes.

And there is Murray Rose, with six swimming medals, four of them gold, the most successful male Australian Olympian in history.

The selection is top secret, perhaps not to be decided until hours before the opening ceremony begins.

Ebersol, who committed $3.5 billion to broadcast the next five Olympics with another $500 million in production costs, will have a hands-on role in the TV production truck as executive producer, working alongside producer David Neal and director John Gonzalez.

NBC's show begins with a preview of the games followed by a feature on the first commercial flight by Qantas airlines from the United States to Australia in 1956. Qantas no longer flies from San Francisco, and the flight was recreated with a plane flying over the city for several hours in a flight that left some people wondering if the pilot had made a wrong turn and was lost.

Katie Couric and Bob Costas will be hosts of the coverage as NBC uses all of the scenic beauty of Sydney throughout the evening. Al Trautwig will be at the Sydney Opera House and Ahmad Rashad will do a travelogue from Darling Harbor.

Jim Gray will interview athletes as they leave the Olympic Village for the ceremony and Jimmy Roberts and Beth Ruyak will talk to them in the staging area as they prepare to march into the 110,000-seat stadium.

All of this is a warmup for the first flurry of competition on Saturday. NBC's coverage will include swimming finals featuring Australian sensation Ian Thorpe, bidding for his first gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle, and Jenny Thompson in the 400-meter freestyle relay, trying for a sixth career gold medal — the most for any American woman athlete in history.

OLYMPICS: Australians cheer

(From 1C)

tion of "Waltzing Matilda," the unofficial national anthem.

Afterward, downtown erupted into an exuberant festival of happy anticipation. Exuberant fans popped champagne, guzzled beer and sipped wine in the streets in a manner both jubilant and — as befits the Aussie attitude, it seems — mellow.

Bocelli was a surprise guest in the torch ceremony. The tenor was driven in a golf cart to the podium, where Gainsford-Taylor, who will be competing in the Sydney Games, brought him the torch. Newton-John, known best in America for her role in "Grease" and her hit song "Physical," then ran in. The three stood triumphantly, with the torch blazing.

The Olympic torch has been making its way across the world's only island continent since June, carried by a variety of Australians from Aborigines to athletes to a 109-year-old man. Along the way, it has survived a theft attempt and a teen-ager's novel if ill-conceived attempt to douse it with a fire extinguisher.

Australians who turned out to see the harbor spectacle Thursday night said such events can bring people together and help present their country's best face to the world.

"Anything important always happens right here at the opera house," Garton said. "Nighttime, it's like fairyland down here."

Added her husband, Allan: "It helps people to forget all the world's troubles."

The opera house, Sydney's signature landmark, opened in 1973 after 14 years of construction. Its unique three-pronged design has drawn comparisons to everything from palm fronds to sails to a Mayan temple.

The torch, which has consistently drawn large crowds as it makes its way to Olympic Park, was passed from Newton-John to tennis pro Patrick Rafter, who carried it on to Sydney's Town Hall, where it blazed overnight.

Aubrey, Briggs lead Pennsylvania Classic

Associated Press

PAOLI, Pa. — With most of the big names sitting this one out, a pair of relative unknowns topped the leaderboard in the first SEI Pennsylvania Classic.

Emlyn Aubrey and Danny Briggs shot 6-under-par 65s on Thursday to share the first-round lead in the first PGA Tour event in Pennsylvania in 20 years.

"I didn't have a lot of expectation as far as what I was going to shoot," said Briggs, who has never won a PGA Tour event. "I never look at the scoreboard. I never even looked at the guy that was carrying in our group to see how many under I was."

Loren Roberts and Frank Lickliter opened with 67s on the Waynesborough Country Club course, and Mark Calcavecchia topped a nine-player group at 68.

Briggs, who started on No. 10, birdied four of the last five holes. After he made a birdie putt on No. 8, a spectator shouted, "Tiger Who?"

Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson and Ernie Els head the list of no-shows that includes the tour's top seven money-winners. Aubrey is 194th and Briggs 196th on the list.

"There's times that you think, 'You know what man, I've had enough of this, traveling and hotels and airplanes being delayed,"' Briggs said. "I have tried to have a good attitude and confidence. If it goes the other direction, I'll still try to have a good attitude and be confident and continue to do whatever."

Aubrey, who also has never won a PGA Tour event, had six birdies in a bogey-free round. He missed short putts for birdie on the 16th and 17th holes.

"Seems like I've been missing the cuts by one shot lately," said Aubrey, who was born in Reading, Pa.

"Fortunately the last couple weeks I made them. Last two tournaments in Canada (Bell Canadian Open and Air Canada Championship), I made birdies on the last hole Friday to make the cut. Hopefully things are turning around."

Wessels leads Lancome

SAINT-NOM LA-BRETECHE, France — South African Roger Wessels fired an 8-under-par 63 Thursday for the first-round lead in the Lancome Trophy.

Miguel Martin of Spain and Australian Nick O'Hern tied for second at 64.

Another stroke back were Spaniards Jose Maria Olazabal, the winner of the 1990 tournament, and Santiago Luna.

Puga is youngest Mid-Am champion

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Greg Puga, a caddie at an exclusive California country club, became the youngest winner in the 20-year history of the U.S. Mid-Amateur on Thursday with a 3-and-1 victory over a faltering Wayne Raath.

Puga was 2-down after the front nine but caught the 25-year-old South African by making a critical 10-foot par putt on the 10th, a birdie on the 11th and a par putt on No. 12 when Raath drove into a lateral hazard.

Tiger is near $100 million Nike contract

Associated Press

Fresh off his record-breaking summer of golf, Tiger Woods is on the verge of signing a $100 million endorsement contract with Nike believed to be the richest in sports, The Associated Press has learned.

Mark Steinberg, his agent at IMG, declined to discuss specifics of the deal on Thursday, only to say it was an "outstanding contract."

"We are within days of a signature," he said.

"It compensates Tiger not just for what he's done with Nike, but what he has done for golf and sports."

Woods' previous contract with Nike was said to be $40 million over five years. He was used heavily in their advertisements and established his own line of clothing and shoes.

A source close to the negotiations, speaking on condition of anonymity, described it as the "largest contract in sports marketing history," worth about $100 million over five years.

"There are so many different revenue streams," the source said. "It's impossible to calculate what the end result will be."

Nike Golf president Bob Wood described the contract as "pretty creative."

""It's not often you get a chance to work with somebody who's the best in the world at what they do," he said. "Working with and being associated with Tiger Woods has created an incredible amount of positive energy about Nike Golf and Nike."

While Wood also declined to discuss contract details, he did say the amount was partly tied to sales.

Woods has represented Nike since turning professional in 1996. In just four years, he has won all four major championships, becoming, at 24, the youngest player to do so. He set the scoring record in each of them, and he has attracted a record number of TV viewers just about every week.

Bad thoughts vanish when flag waves

Associated Press

LOUDON, N.H. — Joe Nemechek has more reason than most drivers to think about death on the track. And he puts such thoughts from his mind every time he fires up his engine.

It will be no different Sunday when he defends his title in the Dura Lube 300 at New Hampshire International Speedway.

"You've got to concentrate on what you're trying to do," Nemechek said. "Once the race starts, you're out there to win."

So Nemechek won't be thinking about his brother, John, who died in 1997 after a crash in a NASCAR truck series race in Homestead, Fla. And there will be no what-if's concerning his decision to change Winston Cup teams after last season.

That move put Kenny Irwin into Nemechek's former seat, and nine weeks ago he became the second NASCAR driver to be killed in a crash this year at New Hampshire. Eight weeks earlier, the victim was Busch Series driver Adam Petty. Both died after crashing into the third-turn wall during practice.

Like all drivers, Nemechek couldn't avoiding seeing Irwin's dark skid marks and the gouge in the concrete where his multicolored Chevrolet hit just a few feet from the spot where Petty had crashed. That, too, vanished from Nemechek's consciousness when the green flag waved.

"I did look at it before the race started, but then I had a job to do," he said.

He did it well, holding off Tony Stewart for his first victory in the series.

Crude up

NEW YORK (AP) — Refinery problems and tensions between Kuwait and Iraq sent the price of crude oil and products down on the New York Mercantile Exchange Thursday.

Iraq accused Kuwait of digging wells that allow it to steal Iraqi oil and warned that it will take proper measures to stop its neighbor's actions, the official Iraqi News Agency reported Oil Minister Amer Mohammed Rashid as saying.

Crude futures traded at an intraday high of $34.50 a barrel, before easing back to $34.07 for a gain of 25 cents.

The market is still adjusting to Sunday's decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to increase production by 800,000 barrels a day from Oct. 1.

Although the OPEC pact was initially viewed as insufficient, analysts say the group's three production increases so far this year will eventually lower prices.

OPEC President Ali Rodriguez said Thursday that OPEC had 2.9 million barrels a day in spare capacity it could bring to market within two months if necessary.

Crude strength and refinery problems lent support to refined products futures, which ended mixed.

BP said the Seaway refined products pipeline that runs from Houston to Cushing, Okla., shut Wednesday for unplanned maintenance, a company spokesman said Thursday. No restart estimate was available for the 65,000 barrel-a-day line.

Tosco Corp. also shut a catalytic hyrotreater at its Wood River, Ill. oil refinery for maintenance earlier this week, sources said. It is likely to remain shut for another week.

Unleaded gasoline for October delivery rose 58 cents to 93.92 cents a gallon; natural gas continued its climb, finishing the day at $5.195 per 1,000 cubic feet, up $1.40.

Dollar higher

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar was higher in European trading Thursday.

The euro was quoted at 86.08 cents in late European trading, down from 86.43 cents late Wednesday. Later, in midday trading in New York, the euro traded at 86.23 cents.

Other dollar rates in Europe, compared with late Wednesday, included 107.16 Japanese yen, up from 107.13; 1.7735 Swiss francs, up from 1.7670; 1.4884 Canadian dollars, up from 1.4828.

The British pound was quoted at $1.4076, down from $1.4112. In midday trading in New York, the dollar bought 107.16 yen, and the pound was worth $1.4650.

Based on euro rates, the dollar is worth 2.2703 German marks, up from 2.2621; 7.6141 French francs, up from 7.5868; 2.5580 Dutch guilders, up from 2.5494; 2,247.56 Italian lire, up from 2,242.02.

Gold rises

Gold closed in London at $272.80 bid per troy ounce late Thursday, up from $272.40 Wednesday. In Zurich the bid price was $272.05, up from $272.00. Gold closed at $272.50 in Hong Kong, where the market had been closed for a holiday on Wednesday.

Silver closed in London at $4.87 bid per troy ounce, unchanged from $4.87 Wednesday.

August jobless rate best in 3 years

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Unemployment in Midland and Odessa made its best showing since August 1997, according to figures released Thursday by the Texas Workforce Commission.

In August, the unemployment rate in the commission's Odessa-Midland metropolitan statistical area (MSA) dropped to 5.6 percent from 6 percent in July and below the 8.7 percent reported last August.

That is second only to the 5 percent rate reported in August 1997, which was followed by 5.8 percent in August 1998. The city of Midland's rate fell to 4.6 percent from 5 percent in July.

August figures were affected by seasonal trends, said Bob Crawley, labor market analyst with the commission in Austin, explaining that the improvement was due to a drop in the labor force as summer job seekers left the market to return to school.

The labor force dipped to 117,698 from 118,288 in July and is below the 120,928 of last August. The number of employed residents dropped to 111,140 from 111,191 but is above last August's 110,462. The number of unemployed residents dropped to 6,558 from 7,097 in July and from 10,466 a year earlier.

Crawley said that while the month-over-month changes were attributable to seasonal trends, the year-over-year improvement "shows healthy growth. Most industries showed increases, except for service."

The mining industry, primarily oil and gas extraction, in the Odessa-Midland MSA has gained 300 jobs in the last year, though employment in the segment remained unchanged from July to August.

The growth in industries basic to Odessa-Midland — oil and gas extraction, construction and manufacturing — has allowed other industries to expand as well, he said.

Now, he said, Midland and Odessa are seeing job additions that will help improve the unemployment rate whereas in the past, the rate fell largely because unemployed residents left the area.

The fact that the area employment picture is affected by seasonal trends indicates a normal economy, he added.

Statewide, the unemployment rate rose to 4.3 percent from 4.1 percent in July, the first increase in four months.

Before adjusting for seasonal variations in the job market — such as students quitting jobs in August to go back to school — the number of unemployed Texans actually fell 17,0000 to 452,000, the commission said.

However, the number of working Texans fell by 51,400 to about 9.97 million, the commission said.

Economists generally adjust unemployment figures to account for seasonal variations, believing that this gives a more accurate picture of the underlying economy.

Without adjusting for seasonal patterns, Texas unemployment would have fallen from 4.5 percent in July to 4.3 percent in August, the commission said.

E-commerce expert coming to Permian Basin

From Staff Reports

Today is the last day to buy discounted tickets for the September 28 workshop on e-commerce at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification. Tickets will be $25 through today, $34 thereafter and when purchased at the door.

National e-commerce expert Eric Spellmann, the director of training at ARNet, Inc., will be offering guides on setting up shop on the Net in an upcoming workshop. He will speak from 6 to 9 p.m. Sept. 28 at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's Center for Energy and Economic Diversification (CEED), located at 1400 N. Farm-to-Market Road 1788 (intersection of Highway 191 and FM 1788). His visit is being sponsored by the University's Small Business Development Center (SBDC). Reservations are required in advance as seating is limited and be made by calling 552-2455.

According to Spellmann, there's a lot of hype about selling wares on the Internet. Some people say it's the quickest way to make millions.

"It's also the quickest way to lose your shirt if you don't study the competition and follow some guidelines before you set up shop on the Net," according to Spellmann.

SBDC director Art Connor said, "It seems like just about everyone in business, or hoping to start in business in the Permian Basin is talking about E-commerce, and most people really don't know all of the ramifications involved in conducting product and service transactions electronically, mainly over the Internet."

Connor said the SBDC is bringing in Spellmann to "cut through the techno-lingo and use his plain English to give people valuable information."

Wholesale prices fall for first time in four months

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell for the first time in four months and Americans spent more cautiously in August, increasing the odds that the Federal Reserve won't raise interest rates for the rest of the year.

Taken together, Thursday's reports show that the Fed's 15-month string of interest-rate increases is working to ward off inflation and keep the record-breaking economy on an even keel, economists said.

"The economy is putting in a truly Olympic-quality performance. The inflation report is worthy of a gold medal," said economist Ken Mayland of ClearView Economics.

Falling costs for gasoline helped drive down the Producer Price Index, which measures inflation pressures before they reach consumers, by an unexpected 0.2 percent in August, the Labor Department said. Economists expected surging energy prices to push up overall wholesale prices, which were flat in July.

But August's PPI report, based on information from earlier in the month, didn't catch big increases in gasoline and other energy prices late in the month, economists said. As a result, they expect September's report to show sharply higher energy costs.

"Don't rush out to the service station and expect to see lower prices," said First Union economist Mark Vitner. "The recent spike in oil prices to $35 a barrel is pushing gasoline prices higher."

Outside the volatile energy and food categories, the "core" rate of inflation at the wholesale level rose for the second straight month by a tiny 0.1 percent in August, further evidence that inflation is under control, economists said.

On Wall Street, blue-chip stocks initially were lifted by the inflation news. But profit-taking and concerns about the drop in the euro currency caused the Dow Jones industrial average to finish the day down 94.71 points at 11,087.47.

In another report, consumers — the engine driving the robust economy — spent more selectively in August. Retail sales rose by a modest 0.2 percent in August, following a 0.9 percent gain the month before, the Commerce Department said.

August's spending was tempered in part by a drop in sales at gasoline stations, reflecting lower prices at the pump. Americans also ate out less and bought fewer cars, but they snapped up home furnishings and clothes.

In another sign of a moderating economy, a third report said the number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits rose by 13,000 to 324,000 last week, the highest level since January 1999.

The Fed has raised interest rates six times since June 1999 to slow economic growth and stave off inflation.

"Add the relatively soft retail sales numbers to the non-inflationary PPI data and you have a prescription for the Fed on hold for the rest of this year," said economist Joel Naroff of Naroff Economic Advisors.

For the first eight months of this year, wholesale prices have been rising at an annual rate of 3.2 percent, compared with a 3 percent gain for all of 1999. The pickup has come from higher energy costs, a result of production limits by oil-producing nations.

Crude-oil prices have more than tripled since December 1998 and the international outcry over them prompted the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to announce Monday that it would boost output.

In the PPI report, energy costs fell in August by 0.2 percent, led by a 2.8 percent drop in gasoline prices. But costs for heating oil and residential electricity rose 2 percent and 1 percent, respectively.

The report also showed that food prices fell 0.7 percent last month, the best showing since April 1999. Falling prices for fruits, pork and dairy products outweighed rising prices for eggs and vegetables.

Prices for children's clothing declined 2.6 percent, the biggest drop since January 1988. Car prices fell 0.3 percent and light truck prices went down 0.1 percent.

But cigarette prices posted their biggest increase since February, rising 2.6 percent. Cigarette makers raised prices in anticipation of increased lawsuit-settlement payments due next year.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Capital-gains applies to profit from gifted stocks

By Eric Tyson

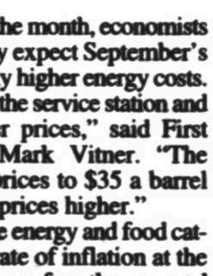
Q: I have a large amount invested in oil stocks and utility stocks, which have increased substantially in value over the past 25 years. Should I gift them to my children now or will them at my death? I am 80 years old.

A: The big problem with gifting these stocks to your children now is that the cost basis for tax purposes (the price you paid for these stocks many years ago) goes along with the stocks. Thus, should the day come when your kids want to sell these stocks, they'll owe capital-gains tax on all that profit (price sold less what you paid).

By contrast, if you hold these stocks until your passing and then your kids inherit the stock, the capital gains in these stocks is effectively wiped out.

Now, there are some potential drawbacks to your holding these stocks until your death. First, you won't be able to enjoy giving your kids the stocks while you're still alive, and your children won't be able to make use of that money until then.

You might also be subject to estate taxes if your estate is too large at your passing. Under current tax law, you can pass up to $675,000 to your heirs without tax (this amount will rise to $1 million by the year 2006).



Tyson

If you seek to move assets from your estate now to reduce possible future estate taxes and to get assets to your children that they can use sooner, perhaps you have other assets you can transfer without such adverse income-tax consequences to your kids. Any money in cash-type accounts such as bank savings accounts, CDs, money funds, etc. would fit the bill. Also, perhaps you hold some securities that have declined in value that you could sell at a tax loss to offset selling others at a profit.

Q: In 1987, my husband opened an annuity with IDS (American Express). He will be 63 years old in September. The agent says that because annuities have such high maintenance costs, my husband should take his money and invest in mutual funds. When I questioned why we were advised to invest in an annuity in the first place if it had such high expenses, we were told it was the right thing to do at the time. Being so close to retirement, does it make sense to close out the annuity and invest in mutual funds, or should we leave it as is?

A: Annuities do generally come with relatively high fees, certainly in comparison to the most-efficiently managed no-load mutual funds. When your husband was sold the annuity 13 years ago (when he was 49 years old), the relative tax advantage of annuities was a little better than today. Thanks to the reduction in the long-term capital gains tax rate, it takes even more years for the tax-deferred compounding in an annuity to make up for its higher costs. That said, I'd need to know more about your situation to agree with the salesperson who said buying an annuity back then was the right thing to do. Agents like selling annuities for the generous commissions.

IDS annuities do have relatively high ongoing fees. However, that does not argue for withdrawing the money from the annuity and buying mutual funds! Your agent is pitching this strategy because of fees he stands to gain from moving you into funds he sells. If you cash in your annuity, you'll get socked with current federal and state income tax on the accumulated earnings in the annuity.

A superior option would be for you to consider transferring your investment balance from your current annuity into a better annuity plan. Take a look at the variable annuities offered by the Vanguard Group, which are no-load, have the lowest management fees and offer many of its best mutual funds as investment options.

Red Sox' Martinez keeps dominating Cleveland

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

CLEVELAND — Pedro Martinez did it to the Cleveland Indians once again.

Unbeaten against Cleveland, he allowed four hits in seven innings night and Carl Everett had three RBIs Thursday night to lead the Boston Red Sox over the Indians 7-4.

Martinez (17-5) improved to 7-0 in seven regular-season starts against the Indians. He's also 2-0 against Cleveland in the postseason, and has been branded Public Enemy No. 1 around Jacobs Field.

Everett went 4-for-5 with a two-run homer and Dante Bichette homered off Charles Nagy (2-5) as the Red Sox moved within two games of the Indians, who lead the AL wild card race.

David Segui hit a two-run homer and an RBI single for the Indians, who play five games at Fenway Park next week, including back-to-back doubleheaders.

Martinez was making his first appearance at Jacobs Field since April 30, when he hit Roberto Alomar with a pitch, earning a five-game suspension. He buzzed a couple of hitters, but baseball's best pitcher zeroed in on the strike zone when he needed to.

Martinez struck out 10, including the side in the third and seventh, when the Indians put two on with none out. Derek Lowe got four outs for his 34th save, his second of the series.

Everett's two-run homer capped Boston's four-run sixth, with the Red Sox scoring all their runs with two outs. The Indians had a chance to get out of the inning, but first baseman Jim Thome couldn't come up with Trot Nixon's hard smash.

The Red Sox scored their other runs in the inning on a wild pitch by reliever Justin Speier and Nomar Garciaparra's RBI double.

Segui's homer in the fifth gave the Indians their first earned runs in 32 1-3 innings against Martinez, who had not allowed Cleveland to score since Sept. 15 last season, a span that includes the playoffs.

Martinez retired the first 13 hitters so easily, it looked like he might be on his way to finally pitching the no-hitter that has somehow eluded him.

Thome became Cleveland's first runner, drawing Martinez's lone walk before Segui hit his sixth homer since coming to the Indians in a July trade.

Segui had been 3-for-24 with 11 strikeouts against Martinez before connecting.

Before the game, Indians manager Charlie Manuel said his scouting reports showed that Martinez hadn't been topping 92 mph on the radar gun recently.

"He may not be able to blow the ball by us like he used to," Manuel said.

Blue Jays 3, Yankees 2, 11 innings

NEW YORK — Jose Cruz Jr. hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the New York Yankees 3-2 Thursday night despite David Wells again failing to become the first 20-game winner in the majors.

In a pitchers' duel full of postseason intensity, Wells and Andy Pettitte matched zeros for seven innings, yet neither was around when the game was decided.

With the score 1-all, Carlos Delgado led off the 11th with a walk against Randy Choate (0-1). Two outs later, Cruz hit a drive into the wind in left field. Luis Polonia backed up to the wall, leaped, but the ball just cleared his glove for Cruz's 30th homer.

Cruz joined Delgado, Tony Batista and Brad Fullmer with 30 homers, making Toronto and this year's Anaheim Angels as the only AL teams with four 30-homer hitters.

Billy Koch (8-3) pitched two innings for the win and Kelvim Escobar pitched the 11th for his second save, allowing a one-out homer to Ryan Thompson. The Blue Jays moved within three games of wild card leader Cleveland.

Rangers 8, Royals 1

ARLINGTON — Rookie Doug Davis allowed three hits in 7 1-3 innings and Rafael Palmeiro hit his 36th homer of the season, leading the Texas Rangers over the Kansas City Royals 8-1 Thursday night.

Palmeiro's homer, which tied the score in the first, was his 397th, moving him past Joe Carter and into 34th on the career list, one behind Dale Murphy.

Texas broke the game open in the eighth on two-run homers by Chad Curtis and Gabe Kapler off reliever Paul Spoljaric. It was Curtis' second career pinch-hit homer.

Davis (7-5) walked four in the first three innings, five in all, but none turned into runs. He retired 12 straight before a one-out walk in the eighth to Johnny Damon, his final hitter. Tim Crabtree pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his second save in eight opportunities.

Truby's sac fly lifts Astros

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

HOUSTON — Chris Truby hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning Thursday night, and the Houston Astros overcame a four-run deficit to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7.

Matt Skrmetta (1-1) walked Richard Hidalgo with one out in the ninth, Moises Alou singled and Brian O'Connor walked Mitch Meluskey, loading the bases. Truby then lofted a sacrifice fly to center, and Meluskey scored easily.

Joe Slusarski (2-6) struck out two in two-thirds of an inning, extending Pittsburgh's losing streak to six and stopping Houston's three-game skid.

Both starters were chased early. Houston's Chris Holt allowed six runs — five earned — and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings, while Bronson Arroyo gave up three runs and five hits in three innings.

Houston built a 3-0 lead on Meluskey's RBI single in the second and Jeff Bagwell's two-run homer in the third. It was Bagwell's 44th of the season, one more than the previous team record he set in 1997.

John Vander Wal's two-run homer and Abraham Nunez's RBI grounder tied the score in the fourth, and the Pirates went ahead 6-3 in the fifth on a three-run homer by Kevin Young, who missed the previous 16 games with a groin injury.

Braves 5, Marlins 3

ATLANTA — Javy Lopez broke out of a 2-for-26 slump with a pair of run-scoring singles and the Atlanta Braves rallied to beat the Florida Marlins.

Andy Ashby (10-12) gave up a two-run single in the first to Mike Lowell, then held Florida scoreless until the eighth inning.

Atlanta, maintained a two-game lead in the NL East over second-place New York, which beat Montreal 10-4.

Mets 10, Expos 4

MONTREAL — Edgardo Alfonzo, Robin Ventura and Jay Payton homered as New York beat Montreal and remained two games behind Atlanta, the NL East leader.

Glendon Rusch (10-10) allowed eight hits in 7 1-3 innings, helping increase the Mets' lead to five games over Arizona in the wild card race.

Alfonzo hit a solo homer in the first off Mike Thurman (4-6) to reach 20 homers for the second straight season.

Brewers 6, Reds 4

CINCINNATI — Geoff Jenkins and Lou Collier homered as Milwaukee beat Cincinnati.

Collier, whose only previous homer this season had been for Double-A Huntsville, hit a solo shot in the fourth inning off Ron Villone (9-10). After Mark Loretta singled, Jenkins followed with a two-run homer, his 27th of the season, to give Milwaukee a 6-2 lead.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 0

ST. LOUIS — Pat Hentgen pitched a three-hitter for his first shutout in more than three years, and St. Louis drew closer to the NL Central title with a victory over Chicago.

Hentgen (15-10) won for the fifth time in six decisions, striking out nine and walking none. He allowed singles by Shane Andrews in the second and seventh innings and a leadoff double by Ricky Gutierrez in the fourth.

Red Raider club picks Holub

LUBBOCK — Former Texas Tech all-American E.J. Holub has been named the associate executive director of the Red Raider Club, according to Steve Uryasz, senior associate athletic director and executive director of the Red Raider Club.

Holub's responsibilities include fundraising in the Permian Basin area.

"E.J. Holub has been a fixture in Texas Tech athletics for the past 40 years and we are excited to have him as part of out staff," Uryasz said. "He will help us develop in-roads not only with longtime Tech supporters, but new fans as well. He is a vital link to Texas Tech's past and future.

Holub was Tech's first all-American, a feat he accomplished in 1959 and 1960. Holub was the No. 1 draft choice of the Dallas Texans, now the Kansas City Chiefs, in 1960. He played 11 seasons as a linebacker and center and was a four-time all-pro selection. Holub is the only player in history to start in different Super Bowl games on opposite sides of the line of scrimmage.

Jacks sign Angelidis

ODESSA — The Odessa Jackalopes have signed rookie forward Jeff Angelidis for the 2000-2001 season.

Angelidis has been extremely productive in Juniors and at the collegiate level. He attended Elmira University and was closing in on the school's all-time scoring record when he was forced to leave school due to financial concerns caused by an illness in his family.

"Jeff is a very skilled, young, hockey player," Odessa Jackalope coach Don McKee said. "He has good hands and is lightning fast. We're hoping his skills will translate to the professional level."

Angelidis, a Toronto native, scored 119 points in New Market (Toronto) in Provincial Junior "A" hockey as a 20-year-old.

The signing of Angelidis brings the number of players currently under contract to 16.

Training Camp opens in late September. The Jacks will play the first of three pre-season games on Oct. 3.

Jacks trio pack for Ohio

ODESSA — Three members of the Jackalopes will open training camp with the Cincinnati Cyclones of the International Hockey League, as part of a working agreement between the Jacks and Cyclones.

The agreement between the two clubs will allow players to attend the Cincinnati camp, and also allow the IHL club to call Jackalope players up during the season.

Jacks head coach and director of hockey operations Don McKee said he's optimistic the Cyclones will return one or two of the players.

The new affiliation is an experimental project for the Jackalopes organization.

"With this working agreement, the Jackalopes management and ownership has taken a huge step in supporting the Western Professional Hockey League's goal of becoming more of a developmental league," McKee said. "We feel the affiliation will benefit the Jackalopes and the WPHL over the long term."
