

Mission Accomplished; Westerners Win It All!!!

By BILL McLELLAN HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Western Texas College, 37-0, put the finishing touches on a perfect season here Saturday night, defeating Jefferson State of Alabama, 85-72, for the NCA National Basketball Championship.

It was WTC's second No. 1 finish in six years, but only the first time a Western team had made it through the season undefeated. Saturday's win was the 101st for Coach Nolan Richardson, who will be leaving WTC to take over the head basketball job at Tulsa University.

Renews Threats...

Shah's Move Maddens Iran

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi arrived in Egypt today from Panama, escaping extradition proceedings and leaving behind a medical wrangle over his ailments. President Anwar Sadat said the deposed Iranian monarch would be staying in Egypt permanently.

Iranian officials reacted with outrage. Tehran Radio accused Sadat of conspiring to "save the Hitler of our age," one official said it would cause "great difficulties" in resolving the crisis over the U.S. Embassy Hostages in Tehran, and another revived Iran's threat to put the hostages on trial as spies.

A spokesman for the young Moslem militants holding the 59 American captives declined to comment. But he said their price for the release of the hostages — the return of the shah and his fortune to Iran — remains unchanged.

Today is the Americans' 142nd day in captivity.

Sadat met the shah at Cairo airport, and the two took a helicopter to Maadi military hospital on the outskirts of Cairo, where the shah is to undergo medical treatment.

There, Sadat was asked whether the shah would be staying in Egypt permanently. "Yes, yes, permanently," Sadat said in his booming voice.

The shah looked thin and very tired after his overnight flight. He declined to answer reporters' questions, saying, "After the operation we shall have ample time to speak with you."

The entire third floor of a Maadi hospital wing overlooking the Nile River was cleared for the shah, who is suffering from lymph cancer that is believed to have spread to the spleen.

Poll Shows Jews For Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration's stumble over Israeli policy does not seem to be turning the tide for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in heavily Jewish New York, with its high-stakes primary Tuesday. When on March 1 the administration voted for a United Nations resolution condemning Israeli settlements on occupied land, it seemed almost a heaven-sent gift to Kennedy's faltering campaign.

The only published poll on the subject suggests that even though most Jews are angry with Carter, the majority will still vote for him.

Swedes Vote For Nukes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Nearly 60 percent of the Swedes voting in a referendum backed completion of the nation's ambitious nuclear energy program despite the Three Mile Island nuclear accident in the United States that prompted the national showdown vote.

For WTC Westerners...

Winning Title Easier Than Returning Home

Getting back to Snyder turned out to be even tougher than winning a national title for the Western Texas College Westerners basketball team.

The junior college champions of the nation, along with a substantial contingent of their fans, were "snowed-in" before they could get out of Kansas. They left Hutchinson, site of the tournament, Sunday, but were forced to pull off the highway and spend the night in Minneapolis, Kan., a crossroads village about 60 miles northeast of Liberal.

More WTC followers, including SDN Sports Editor Bill McClellan, were some 20 miles closer at Meade, Kan., when they had to give up their battle with a snowstorm Sunday.

Still another contingent returning by plane after the final game Saturday night, was forced down at Wichita Falls and finally made it into Snyder at about 10 p.m. Sunday after borrowing an automobile. There was no snow in Wichita Falls, but heavy thunderstorm activity and high winds forced down the plane in which Dr. and Mrs. Gene McClurg, WTC Business Manager Gay Hickman, and Jerry Baird, WTC Community Services director, were traveling at about 4 a.m. Sunday. They spent the remainder of the night and most of Sunday at the Wichita Falls airport.

Plans for a welcome home reception for the National Junior College Champions was postponed indefinitely. Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president, had set in motion plans for giving Coach Nolan Richardson and his players an enthusiastic welcome late Sunday, but it was called off when it was learned that they were stranded in the snowstorm.

Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president who was among a delegation of WTC fans who returned via Oklahoma City and missed the snow, reported this morning that he had been in contact with Richardson and that the team hoped

2 Dead; 5 Missing...

Gulf Offshore Rig Explodes

GALVESTON (AP) — An offshore drilling platform exploded in flames early today in the Gulf of Mexico, killing two persons and injuring at least 29 others, officials said. Five other persons were missing and feared dead.

The injured and others of the crew of 42 aboard the platform were taken by boat to another drilling platform five miles away, where they were met by a medical team flown in by helicopter.

"We have no idea how seriously they are injured. They sent out a medical crew to treat and evaluate them and bring them back in," said Mike Riordan, a spokesman for John Sealy Hospital in Galveston.

The drilling platform was operated by Pennzoil for a group of several owners and was located about 100 miles southeast of Galveston.

Of the 42 persons aboard the drilling platform at the time of the explosion, between midnight and 12:30 a.m., only one was a Pennzoil employee. The others "were contract workers from Pool Offshore Co., headquartered in Harvey, La., Harper said.

Runaway Mexican Well Finally Capped Today

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Engineers today managed to cap Ixtoc 1, the runaway oilwell that spewed more than 3.1 million gallons of crude oil into the Gulf of Mexico and stained Texas beaches since it blew out June 3, said a spokesman for the Pemex, the Mexican-owned petroleum company.

The spokesman for Pemex said a third and final cement plug was successfully introduced into the well about 50 miles offshore, shutting off the flow of crude oil and natural gas.

The first plug consisting of about 200 sacks of cement was inserted at a depth of 2,705 meters Sunday, and a second plug was dropped in a few hours later at a depth of 2,591 meters. The third plug went down to 2,332 meters.

"Thus ended the life of the test well that permitted discovery of one of the richest offshore oil deposits," the spokesman said.

Ixtoc 1 exploded June 3 and went out of control at a depth of 3,267 meters below the 51-meter seabed, uncovering a deposit in the Bay of Campeche that Pemex estimated contains at least 800 million barrels of crude oil.

The flow of crude was reduced to negligible amounts of crude and some gas March 18 by pumping sea water, mud and thickening substances through two directional wells drilled over a period of months.

A drill-bit collar hit a so-called "caren" and dropped several hundred feet, cracking the floor under which lay huge quantities of oil and gas, setting off the pre-dawn explosion followed by fire that wrecked a $22 million drilling platform under rental by Pemex from a Texas company.

The 64 men on board were unharmed and were taken from the offshore platform.

Ixtoc 1 spewed 30,000 barrels of crude a day and billows of natural gas into the Gulf. About half of it was burned off, but the rest spread out, staining beaches in southern Texas.

carter in squeeze

New York City Mayor Ed Koch has put Jimmy Carter in the middle between the president's political advisers and his foreign-policy experts over the U.N. vote on Israel's West Bank settlement policy.

Only two weeks before the crucial New York primary, Koch blasted the administration for what the mayor calls the "flagrant anti-Israel bias" of the president's foreign-policy establishment.

Koch lays the blame on what he calls the "Gang of Five"—Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders, U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry and Andrew Young, McHenry's predecessor.

The New York primary is very important in the eyes of Carter's political people although they are not saying so publicly. They believe they have Edward M. Kennedy on the ropes and are hoping that a one-two punch in the Illinois and New York contests will knock out the Massachusetts senator once and for all.

The 1.9 million Jews living in and around New York City represent the largest voting block in the state. Clearly, they comprise a voting force not to be dealt with cavalierly. The Florida primary results showed that Jewish voters were turning away from Carter, quite possibly because of the bungled U.N. vote. Kennedy ran ahead of the president in heavily Jewish areas, and this has the Carter forces in New York very worried.

Koch is one of Carter's strongest political allies in the state. It might seem strange, therefore, that he would attack the administration so soon before the primary. Close observers, however, say that Koch's attack was carefully calculated.

The Mayor, after all, is one of the shrewdest politicians in the state, these observers point out. Years ago, for example, it was Koch who dared take on Tammany Hall, defeating Carmine DeSapio in the Democratic boss's own district. That began the process by which the old party machine was dismantled.

Koch, while a political ally of Carter, is first of all the mayor of the largest Jewish community in the world. In addition, he is personally a staunch supporter of Israel. He could be expected, therefore, to use his alliance with Carter to help Israel's cause by driving a wedge between the political White House and the foreign-policy establishment. This he has done.

According to administration sources who should know, Vance, Brzezinski and McHenry convinced Carter that the time had come to take a stand against Israel (Carter is said not to have really needed much convincing) and that the Security Council vote was the way.

The president's political advisers, led by campaign chairman Robert Strauss and Vice President Walter Mondale, strongly opposed the move. Vance and McHenry, however, reportedly assured Carter they could get a mild resolution that would not elicit much domestic protest but would send the desired message to Israel.

They miscalculated and a firestorm of protest arose in the Jewish community. Reportedly, Mondale convinced Carter the vote had to be turned around. After two days of briefings defending the vote, the White House changed its story, saying it was all just a communications foul-up.

The Koch attack, however, keeps up the pressure.

Carefully, the Federal Reserve calculates our nation's monetary policy in an effort to control the inflation fever.

Hourly, economists recalculate the prime lending rate and other controllable factors in an effort to maintain the precarious balance between economic uppers and downers.

Yet as meticulously as we try to manage our nation's money supply we are allowing our nation's "people supply" to run wild.

Whereas other nations have learned to control their populations with punitive taxes for large families, we use tax dollars to encourage large families for those who can least afford them.

While other nations are limiting immigration, we are opening our doors wider.

Indeed, such is the avalanche of illegal immigrants now flooding our cities that it appears our nation has no doors at all.

Labor Secretary Marshall calculates that our country's unemployment rate would be reduced to less than four percent except for illegal immigrants already in our country.

What alerted the secretary was the recommendation by a Harvard professor that we should open our doors to all who want to come here; that immigrants take jobs Americans would not accept anyway; that the influx is "good for us."

On the contrary, Secretary Marshall says, they are siphoning off jobs which homegrown American workers need. And worse, he says, the presence of an ever-increasing number of illegal immigrants in the United States "is sowing the seeds of a bitter civil rights struggle."

The limitless influx can become a "Trojan Horse."

Secretary Marshall reminds members that history provides endless examples of "a foreign population becoming an easy focal point for all kinds of social and economic discontent."

We've got to find a solution, says Marshall, "before the problem reaches crisis proportions."

Marshall says, "We have come too far in this century to turn back the clock. Long ago we decided to improve the working conditions and pay for all workers. We enacted standards for employees and we must enforce them."

Immediately, while the problem is studied, Marshall says we should issue noncounterfeitable Social Security credentials to all workers changing jobs—and to all newly hired employees—and penalize any employer who hires undocumented workers.

"Most immigrants come to the United States from Mexico, Turkey, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia, Algeria and Pakistan."

Significantly, those are the countries which have most mismanaged their own economic planning and population policy.

Population pressure is everywhere on the sunset side of the world. Refugees from Afghanistan are fleeing across the border into Pakistan at the rate of a thousand a day in a line 500,000 long!

The United States, for all its melting pot tradition, cannot afford to recover all the world's fumbles without creating chaos in our own country. (c) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Berry's World

"Come out from behind there. C'mon, I dare ya!"

Things are tough all over, right? Battered by inflation, the economy is falling apart. The energy pinch threatens to turn the lights down low, if not completely out.

Abroad, crisis follows crisis in an ominous rush. At home, the post-Watergate morality in national government brought us first Koreagate and now Abscam. And at the local level, staying off collapse rather than public service has become the first order of business for cities—even those, like Chicago, that were supposed to work.

Clearly, the future appears bleak.

Except, as it turns out, to most Americans.

If you look at the up side of the figures just in from an opinion poll conducted by Civic Service, Inc., a St. Louis-based political research organization, there is a lot more buoyancy in the American mood and faith in the American future than might be expected in this time of well-publicized troubles.

Asked, for example, how they foresaw the quality of life for Americans in years to come, almost 45 percent of the interviewees thought it would decline from what we now know. But a shade more than 50 percent thought it would be unchanged or even better.

That question may be regarded as a near stand-off. But from there on, there was a pronounced shift to the positive side in the answers.

An impressive 63 percent believe that present energy problems will be resolved so that the standard of living to which we have become accustomed can not only be maintained but continue to improve.

The general economy receives a vote of confidence from better than 54 percent. They do not expect to be overtaken by Japanese or Europeans and replaced as the most prosperous large nation in the world.

On the world political scene, confidence was even stronger—almost 69 percent believing the United States is capable of meeting challenges on many fronts and remaining a super-power of worldwide influence.

And saving the best for almost last, Americans would appear to be far from as turned off politically as reaction to Washington scandals and the crisis-ridden state of local government in recent years might indicate.

A potent 74 percent believes the system still works—compared with an avowedly pessimistic minority of only 15.7 percent. Faith persists in the capability of American political processes to provide solutions to public problems and to encourage popular involvement in the political process.

By the time the interviewees were hit with the last question of the series, 59 percent were of the opinion that their children would enjoy as good or even better a life as their own. A bit more than 36 percent saw the next generation's situation as worsening.

That is a stronger positive response than to the opening question, which approached essentially the same quality of life point from a different angle. That may suggest that the phrasing of the question in terms of progeny touched hidden reserves of parental protectiveness. Or it might be that the generally upbeat responses to the intervening questions on specifics of the American situation induced a re-evaluation of attitudes on the broader question.

The in-depth interviews were conducted by Civic Service with 1,611 individuals in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Optimistic attitudes were most prevalent at opposite ends of the educational scale—among those with advanced academic degrees and those with only an elementary education. Grouped according to age, those over 45 tended to have more positive outlooks while the most pronouncedly negative were the under-30s.

And a faintly sexist tilt was detectable, with more males than females responding optimistically.

Such fine-slicing of the salami, however, yields returns of rapidly diminishing interest. What stands out above all is a continuing lively commitment among Americans to the American future.

And you know what they say about where there's life.

Alan: "The normal play by East would be the jack. Now South could duck that first spade and make his contract provided that East did not hold both the ace and king of clubs."

Oswald: "Many South players would take the first spade and go after clubs immediately. Then, if West took the first club and spades were continued, East would get to establish three spades while he still retained the club ace, and South would wind up one trick short."

Dear Abby

Not a Prayer Of a Chance

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I would like to clear up a misconception that has appeared in your column from time to time. Animals are not less cruel within their species than people. Almost all animals fight fiercely for mates, territory and food, just like humans.

Ant colonies engage in warfare, often to the death, as do baboon tribes.

How often do we see a dog, unprovoked, viciously attacking another dog for no reason whatsoever?

No, Abby, civilization has brought a degree of civility over animals.

SAN DIEGO BIOLOGIST

DEAR BIOLOGIST: And don't forget the praying mantis. Immediately after mating, the female kills the male! How's that for a lovely thank-you?

DEAR ABBY: TROUBLED MOM wrote that her 8-year-old son will eat anything in sight, including dog food right out of the dog dish, as well as the stale bread thrown out for the birds.

Your advice to get the boy to a physician will help — only if the physician knows that the child is suffering from a little-known, but not-so-rare disease called the "Prader-Willi Syndrome." It was first reported in Germany in 1956, but the first cases in this country were not diagnosed in the U.S. until the 1960s.

Victims of the Prader-Willi Syndrome will eat themselves to death if allowed to. They don't care what they eat, and have been known to gorge on rotten apples, sticks of butter, garbage and entire loaves of bread. They become extremely obese and literally eat themselves into an early grave because of their bizarre eating marathons.

A Prader-Willi child in a mental institution was caught in the kitchen finishing a three-gallon jar of jam. Later, to discourage her, an attendant laced one of the jars with a large amount of salt. The child disregarded the taste, and ate the whole jar anyway, later dying from salt poisoning!

Another was in a cooking class that made a dozen pumpkin pies for Thanksgiving. On the pretext of staying behind to help clean up, the child ate all 12 pies!

Abby, you could save TROUBLED MOM years of frustrated visits to doctors and medical centers if you would alert her to the possibility that her child could be a victim of this disease.

THE MOTHER OF ONE

DEAR MOTHER: I heard from many readers advising me that information about this malady can be obtained by writing to: Prader-Willi Syndrome Association, 1515 Malibu Dr., Edina, Minn. 55436. It is a non-profit organization, so please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: About 16 years ago I asked you to repeat your advice to retired people, suggesting that they write one personal letter a day.

Having been retired for 20 years, I followed your advice, and I must say that it was worth more than I can say.

I am 86 and no longer drive, so the mail is very important to me. What fun it is to get something in the mail every day! And, of course, every letter is answered promptly.

In addition to my regular correspondence, my 140 Christmas cards (with a personal note on each one) brought me 120 replies. (I'll admit to four cards returned marked "Decided," and five, "Address Unknown.")

It takes a little effort to write letters, but the rewards are beyond belief! My love,

GEORGE KELLOGG, ATHENS, GA.

DEAR GEORGE: I'll underwrite that! Where would I be without letters?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Plane's Engine To Be Examined

HOUSTON (AP) Federal investigators plan to dismantle and examine piece by piece the engines of a commuter airliner that crashed Friday at Hobby Airport killing seven persons.

J.O. Johnson, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator, said a thorough examination of the rest of the aircraft turned up no mechanical malfunction.

He said the engines and propellers would be taken today to the Brownwood headquarters of Eagle Aviation, Inc., owner of the plane, for a complete inspection.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said details of the crash — the second at a Houston airport in five weeks — probably would be released next week.

The seven who died included the pilot, Walter J. Mathison, 33, of Goleta, Calif., and his assistant, Judson Roach, 32, of Hico, Texas. Roach originally was identified as the co-pilot, but Johnson said that was not correct.

Witnesses said the twin-engine Piper Navajo lost power during takeoff on a flight to Waco, Dallas and Brownwood, fell to the ground and struck a parked helicopter, a small plane, and four parked cars before smashing into a hangar and bursting into flames.

Johnson said air traffic controllers saw the airplane make a right turn, then heard a radio call saying, "I've lost our right engine." Johnson said that call apparently was made by Mathison, and was followed by one from Roach, saying, "We are declaring an emergency."

Three persons survived the crash when airport workers pulled them from the wreckage before the plane burst into flames.

One of them, Willis Jackson, 31, of Houston, said the plane may have developed engine trouble before takeoff.

"Before we took off, the left engine wouldn't start. Finally they got it started and we took off," Jackson said.

The next thing we knew the plane tilted to the left. He (the pilot) evened it out. It tilted over again. That's all I remember.

Dan McGee, of San Antonio said the pilot and co-pilot had a frantic discussion just before the craft slammed into the ground.

"I remember hearing the pilot say 'What do I do?' said McGee, a 22-year-old Baylor University student. Four passengers died in the crash and fire. They were Rembert H. Woodridge, 56, of Waco; Ronald D. Hancock, 35, of Axtell, Texas; Peter C. Stenback, 24, of Houston; and Stanley M. Glassman, 54, of Hauppauge, N.Y.

Another passenger, Virgil Savoy, 47, of Brownwood, survived the impact but died of injuries two hours later at a Houston hospital. Savoy was a real estate investor and former banking official in San Angelo, Kerrville and Corpus Christi.

Jackson, McGee and Samir Foteh, 25, of Missouri City, remained hospitalized Sunday in fair to satisfactory condition.

On Feb. 14, four Corpus Christi residents died and one was injured when a twin-engine turbo plane crashed in heavy fog short of a runway at Houston's Continental Airport.

Griffith Biggest Challenge To Cinderella Bruins

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—UCLA, the Cinderella surprise of the NCAA basketball tournament, has one All-American hurdle to clear before it can go to the ball: Darrell Griffith.

"Griffith is a super player, one you look to in games like this," said UCLA Coach Larry Brown, who sends his unranked but undaunted Bruins after the school's 11th national championship in tonight's NCAA final against No. 2-rated Louisville.

"Griffith reminds me so much of David Thompson," added Brown, comparing Louisville's 6-foot-4 All-American to the star guard he coached in the pro ranks. "He's gonna score. I don't think anyone can stop him. But I hope he's gonna have to work for his points."

The challenge of an opponent with an All-American in its lineup is nothing new for the Bruins, who have clawed their way from an 8-6 start to within one win of their first NCAA title since 1975, when they won the last of their 10 championships under Coach John Wooden.

They limited Player of the Year Mark Aguirre to 19 points on 8-for-18 shooting in beating top-ranked St. Paul 77-71 in the West Regional, and they field 7-foot-1 center Joe Barry Carroll to 17 points and eight rebounds and forced him into six turnovers in defeating Purdue 67-62 Saturday in the semifinals.

Brown told a news conference Sunday that he was unsure who he'd match against Griffith in UCLA's aggressive man-to-man defense. "I wouldn't be surprised if everyone got a chance to play him," said UCLA's first-year coach.

Griffith was awesome in Louisville's 80-72 semifinal victory over Iowa in Saturday's opener, scoring 31 points on 14-for-21 shooting. He was equally effective inside and out, hitting high-arching jumpers from 20 feet and soaring over taller opponents with his 48-inch vertical jump to score from in close.

"You stop Darrell Griffith by getting two balls and chains and hooking them onto both legs, because I don't think one would be enough," suggested Iowa Coach Lute Olson. "He is one great player."

How would Griffith guard Griffith?

replied the senior and team captain, who has dedicated this tournament to a boyhood friend, Jerry Stringer, who is stricken with cancer. "I guess I'd have to say don't let me get the ball because once I get it, you've got to respect me."

TSTA Members May Seek Right To Strike

FORT WORTH (AP)—Members of the Texas State Teachers Association may soon ask the state legislature for a collective bargaining bill that would include the right to strike.

Delegates told officers to draft the proposed a bill at the conclusion of the TSTA's annual meeting here Saturday night, and left it up to them whether the proposal would include firm language on the right to strike and binding arbitration in contract negotiations.

"We consider the right to strike a last resort, but it is necessary," said Louise Daniel, chairman of the TSTA legislative committee. "We need the right, as a provision for the bargaining."

The proposed bill will be presented to state legislators for consideration when the next regular session begins in January. The teachers also voted on three other "priority" items for the 1981 legislative session—a teacher employment act to protect job security, a state-financed group health insurance plan for school employees, and a pay raise.

"Over 50 percent of our teachers are at the poverty level income," said TSTA President Cecile Russell. "Under the 1979 legislation, a teacher with eight years of experience or less makes so little that children would qualify for a free or reduced price lunch."

Earlier Saturday, White House aide Sarah Weddington, a former Texas state representative, boasted to the teachers that Jimmy Carter was the "most pro-education president since Lyndon Johnson."

By comparison, she said, former President Richard Nixon was an "under-achiever" in the field of education, and called former President Gerald Ford a "downright drop-out."

Under Carter, Ms. Weddington said, federal financing of education has increased 60 percent nationwide, including a whopping 242 percent boost for education of the handicapped.

Ms. Weddington said the new Cabinet-level Department of Education will be inaugurated May 7, a month ahead of schedule in White House ceremonies.

She urged Texas teachers to back Carter in his re-election bid.

"Texas is a critical state for Carter. No Democratic president has been elected without Texas' support," she said.

Bad-breath cure?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My problem is halitosis. I had my tonsils and adenoids taken out by one doctor and have seen dentists galore. And then one doctor took an interest in my problem and put me in the hospital and ran all kinds of tests. In one test they inserted a tube into my nose and down my throat and it revealed that I didn't produce enough gastric acid to digest my food.

He prescribed a liquid eyedropper-type medication. I put two or four drops in a glass of water and took it with meals. It helped immensely but gave me a burning sensation in my throat. I stopped taking it for awhile, and since then my doctor has passed away. The druggist won't give it to me without a prescription.

I was wondering if you know the name of the medication and if I can find it in a health food store since it was some kind of acid. I'm 33 and have lived with this problem all my life. I just can't face all those tests and embarrassment again with another doctor.

DEAR READER: If you've read my previous columns on breath problems, you'll know that this is a symptom. It can be caused by dental problems that require dental treatment so you were wise to see a dentist. It can be caused by sinus infections and that's why people sometimes get relief from the problem with treatments for ear, nose and throat specialists.

Incidentally, it's seldom caused by bad tonsils, although in a very few cases in which there are severely infected tonsils present, it can certainly cause a person to have bad breath. The truth is, an infection anywhere along the respiratory system can cause the bad odor.

Bad breath can come from a chemical imbalance in the body. A lot of the odors that cause bad breath come out of the bloodstream and escape into the air sacs in the lungs. They literally come out with the "breath" from the lungs each time you exhale.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem And What To Do About It. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you more details on the many causes for bad breath.

Your story sounds like the doctor who treated you thought you had achlorhydria. That means the absence of or a decreased amount of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. That can happen, and the only way you can tell it is by analyzing the amount of acid in the digestive juices formed by the stomach. That's what the tube test was all about.

A person's stomach normally forms hydrochloric acid and the drops that he gave you were undoubtedly hydrochloric acid in water. DON'T TRY THIS ON YOUR OWN! Despite your embarrassment, go to a doctor and tell him your story. There are a number of digestive and metabolic disorders that can cause bad breath and all of them require medical treatment. Incidentally, if you do have achlorhydria it can cause other difficulties. So you really shouldn't overlook the problem.

No Volunteers For Sacrifices...

Battle Over Balanced Budget Draws Lobbyists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The growing political battle over balancing the 1981 federal budget is drawing legions of lobbyists to Washington with the same message to Congress: Let someone else sacrifice.

Lobbyists for cities, states and numerous special interests packed into the House Budget Committee room last week in largely unsuccessful efforts to restore money earmarked for elimination.

The lobbyists can also be expected to fill the halls of Congress in the next two weeks, as the full House takes up the budget proposal for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

"They're hitting this town as fast as the airplanes can bring them here," remarked Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the House Budget Committee chairman, as the panel considered the budget Thursday.

Giaimo said one governor, who was elected as a tough fiscal conservative, had already visited him to urge restoration of $1.7 billion for the state portion of revenue sharing. Giaimo did not identify the governor.

Debate over balancing the federal budget for the first time in 12 years was expected to dominate Congress this week, with a Senate vote scheduled on a proposal to limit federal spending to 21 percent of the Gross National Product.

Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., has obtained 44 signatures for his proposal to force federal spending down from its current share of about 22.5 percent of the combined value of the nation's goods and services.

However, last week, Democratic leaders developed an alternative proposal that calls on the Senate Budget Committee to recommend a balanced 1981 budget and report on an amendment containing enough cuts to meet Roth's proposed limit.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the budget committee chairman, has said achieving the $45 billion in spending cuts needed to meet Roth's goal would "throw the country into havoc." The proposed list is presumably to demonstrate that point.

Meanwhile, the 1981 budget recommended by the House Budget Committee is expected to reach the floor Friday for the start of debate. A final vote is not anticipated until next week, however.

The committee-backed budget calls for $611.8 billion in spending and $2 billion surplus. If approved by Congress, it would be the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

The House will also consider a bill to restrict the use of tax-exempt mortgage bonds by cities and states. The Carter administration claims that unrestricted use of the bonds could cost the Treasury $11 billion a year in lost taxes by 1984.

Also on the House calendar is a vote on a compromise banking bill that would phase out restrictions on how much interest a bank can pay on a passbook account.

Man Held In Drug Case

A 25-year-old man was arrested late Sunday night by city police officers on suspicion of drunken driving and possession of a controlled substance.

Found, said officers, was a quantity of pills. It was not immediately known whether the possession charge would be filed as a felony or misdemeanor.

The arrest was made at East Highway and Ave. A about 11:40 p.m.

In other reports of week-end activities, police were also advised of a criminal mischief complaint.

Complainant in the case was Gene Roberson. He told officer Buddy Kinney that some windows to a rent house of his at 2806 1/2 Ave. J were broken out. That complaint was received Sunday afternoon.

Two minor traffic accidents were also reported.

The first was at 11:30 p.m. Saturday in the 4300 block of Denison. It involved a 1963 Chevrolet pickup that struck a post. The pickup was driven by Lupe Morin. The accident was worked by Tony Whittenburg.

At 6:10 p.m. Sunday, a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of 43rd St. and Ave. V was investigated by Kinney.

The accident involved a 1977 AMC driven by Danny Tovar and a 1975 Cadillac driven by Joe Melendrez.

To Decide Right's Case.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a case likely to carry national repercussions, agreed today to judge the validity of a Delaware law used to cut off parental rights.
