Deaf man gets his freedom after 68-year wrongful confinement

By Estes Thompson
Associated Press

GOLDSBORO, N.C. — Black and deaf, Junius Wilson was 28 when he was jailed, charged with assault with intent to rape. He was declared insane and sent to the state mental hospital for blacks. Then he was castrated.

That was back in 1925. Years later, the charges were dropped, but Wilson remained in a locked ward.

Now 96, Wilson was finally moved Friday into his first real home in 68 years.

"I've got an immense feeling of relief," said John Wasson, Wilson's guardian and an assistant director at the New Hanover County Department of Social Services. "My biggest fear was that he was going to die before getting into that cottage."

Not that there's any particular reason to fear. Wilson's health belies his age. In recent years, while still living in the ward he was given special privileges. He kept in shape by riding his bicycle everywhere, fishing in a near-

Roberta Cooper Ramo is in line to be the first woman president of the American Bar Association.

Lawyer lines up to be 1st female president of ABA in August, '95

By Richard Carelli
Associated Press

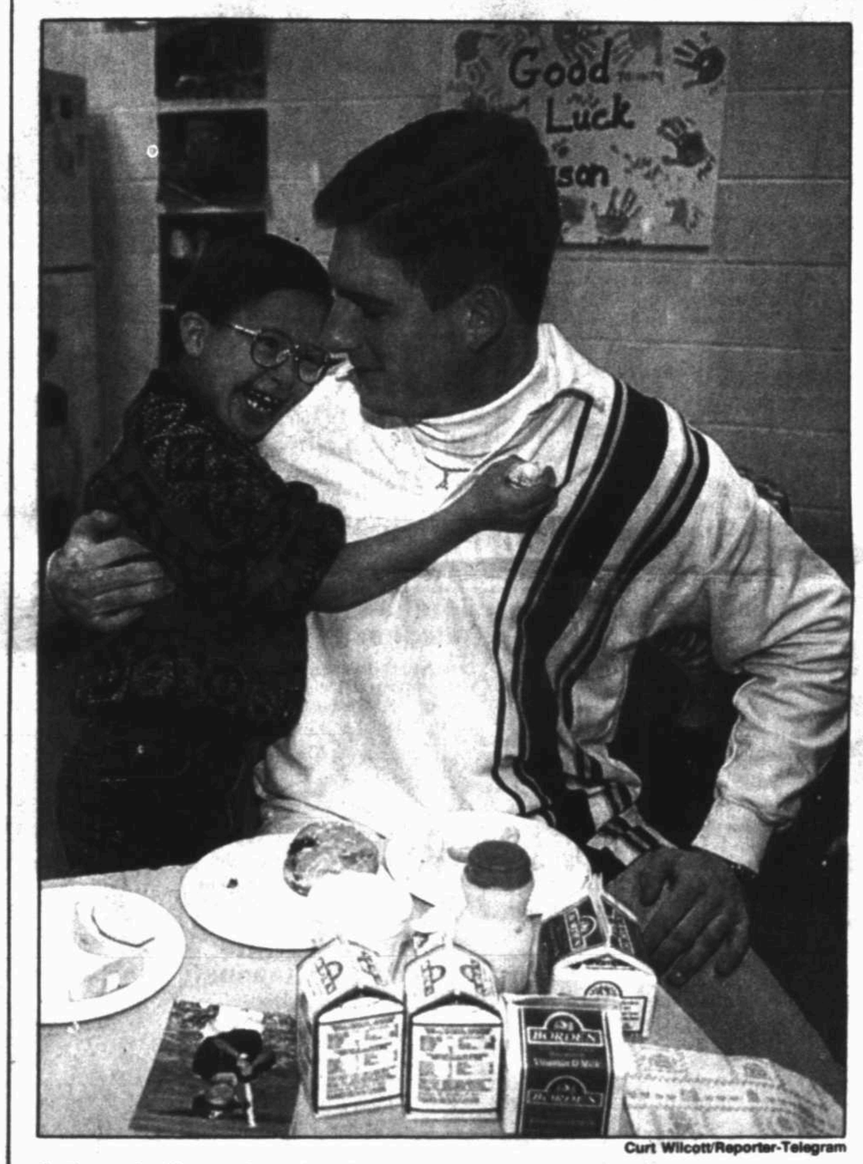

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Roberta Cooper Ramo, who once couldn't find work as an attorney because of her gender, is now on track to become the first female president of the American Bar Association.

"It's no longer fair to say the ABA is a bunch of white guys. The legal profession and this organization have changed," Ramo, an Albuquerque, N.M., lawyer, said in an interview Friday. In fact, about 24 percent of the 375,000 lawyers in ABA are women; minorities make up a considerably smaller share of the membership.

"I hope the message being sent is that women can be credible, professional and creative on the national stage," she said while attending the convention where she will be nominated as the ABA's president-elect.

A far different message confronted Ramo, now 51, when she left the University of Chicago law school 30 years ago. Relocat-

Former Midlander, baseball player makes children's day with his visit

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Ten-year-old Anthony Arellano got his wish Friday when Montreal Expos baseball player Jason Baker visited his school.

Anthony first met Baker last year when the former Midlander was helping out during a Special Olympics tournament.

"It was a fun time — I had a great time," said Baker, who visited Anthony and his class at Scharbauer Elementary School on Friday. Anthony was visibly pleased to renew his acquaintance of a year before.

Baker spoke to the special-education students about baseball and his early successes in the sport and the grueling nature of playing on the road.

Baker's only regret was that his rookie baseball cards were not finished in time for the meeting, but Anthony was happy to settle for a photograph of himself with his favorite baseball player.

Taking advantage of baseball's offseason, Baker returned to Midland to

Interest rate takes slight upward turn

■ Federal Reserve Board boosts rates for first time in five years.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board increased interest rates for the first time in five years Friday in a surprise announcement that triggered a huge sell-off on Wall Street.

Economists predicted the Federal Reserve's action — limited to overnight loans among banks — would translate quickly into small gains in consumer and business interest rates.

The Fed said its move was designed to head off any re-emergence of high inflation and to "sustain and enhance" the economy's prospects for growth, but the initial reaction from investors was violently negative. The Dow Jones industrial average fell by 96.24 points, the biggest one-day drop since Nov. 15, 1991.

The Clinton administration played down any adverse effect the action might have on the economy, sticking by its forecast of moderate growth the rest of this year.

The Fed, which has been under congressional attack for being too secretive, took the unprecedented step of publicly announcing its decision immediately.

In a statement, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said the move represented only a small increase in interest rates and was taken to "sustain and enhance the economic expansion."

The Fed moved its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other on overnight loans, to 3.25 percent, a modest quarter-point higher than it had been since September 1992.

It caught financial markets and many economists by surprise, especially coming on a day when the government had released unemployment figures for January that many viewed as weak. The jobless rate, under a new survey method, was 6.7 percent in January with payroll employment rising by just 62,000, less than half what had been expected.

The administration, which has made low interest rates a centerpiece of its economic policies, insisted that the credit tightening would not derail the economic expansion.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen called the increase "a small amount" that would not change the administration's expectations that the economy will grow at a solid annual rate of 3 percent this year.

"We think inflation is contained," he said. "I would interpret this as a preemptive strike on the part of the Fed."

Analysts said Wall Street was overreacting. They noted that Greenspan had put the country on notice in congressional testimony on Monday that the Fed was preparing to raise rates.

While many economists thought the Jury finds teen guilty in murder of 3 boys, spares dealth penalty

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — A teen-ager who said he watched two of his friends beat, hog-tie and kill three 8-year-old boys was convicted of murder Friday, but spared the death penalty.

Jessie Lloyd Misskelley, 18, was found guilty of one count of first-degree murder and two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of Michael Moore, Steve Branch and Chris Byers. The Clay County Circuit Court jury returned its verdict after 10½ hours of deliberations.

Circuit Judge David Burnett sentenced Misskelley to life in prison plus 40 years. The teen could have been sentenced to death if convicted of capital murder in the three slayings.

Two other teens accused of beating and hog-tying the boys and throwing them in a ditch are to be tried together on capital murder charges later this month.

Misskelley told authorities he watched as Damien Echols, 19, and Charles Jason Baldwin, 16, beat the boys, raped two of them and castrated one boy.

At one point, Misskelley said, he chased down Moore after he tried to escape and brought him back to the murder scene. He

Judge rejects motion to suppress confession; trial to start Monday

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

With Ramsey Harrell's capital-murder trial scheduled to start Monday, 238th District Court Judge John Hyde rejected a defense motion to suppress a taped confession.

Harrell, 18, of Odessa was indicted for the April 14 shooting death of Tommy Edward Musick, 48, of Midland. Scott Thomas, 19, of Midland was also indicted in connection with the death.

Law-enforcement officers testified at a previous pre-trial hearing about reading Harrell his rights — also known as the Miranda warning — at the time of his arrest.

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre played a taped statement made by Harrell following his arrest. On the tape, Harrell confessed to pulling the trigger.

At earlier pre-trial hearings, defense attorneys indicated Harrell might testify regarding suppressing the tape, but Harrell chose not to testify at Friday's hearing.

Hyde told the attorneys and Harrell he believed the defendant was advised of his rights

Italians hail barbarians who sacked Rome centuries ago

ROME (AP) — They came, they ravaged, they conquered. And now they're back, by popular demand.

From the Goths in Milan to the Normans in Rome, old conquerors are the latest passion in Italy.

In Piazza Venezia, the heart of the Italian capital, two 27-foot-high painted wooden statues of William the Conqueror and his wife Matilda beckon the public to "I Normanni" (The Normans), an exhibit in the Palazzo Venezia.

The show celebrates the people from the north who destroyed parts of Rome in the 11th century and went on to rule southern Italy, including Sicily.

Showing off treasures like a 12th-century king's crown and mantle, the exhibit runs through April before moving to Venice's Palazzo Ducale off St. Mark's Square from May 20 through Sept. 18.

Holding sway in Milan's Palazzo Reale through May 8 are the Goths — a display, that is, about the barbarians who sacked Rome in 410 A.D.

The former inhabitants of the Italian peninsula have become a big draw. Three years ago, Venice's Palazzo Grassi said it put on Italy's best-attended show ever, when about 800,000 visitors explored the world of the ancient Celts.

The curator of the Norman show, Mario D'Onofrio, said he felt the public's interest arose from curiosity about ancient races "that you vaguely heard about while sitting in your desk at school."

What you heard was probably all blood and brutality. The Norman and Goth exhibits try to help visitors see these ancient peoples in a new light.

That can be difficult. In the case of the Normans, whose rule in Italy spanned 1030-1200, "we know little or nothing" about their culture, said D'Onofrio, an expert in medieval art.

Although the Normans played a role in building cohesion in southern Italy, d'Onofrio said he found relatively little of their art and monuments, because they fused their culture with the civilizations they conquered.

"In truth, they caused destruction, but they also created a great civilization and that's more important," said Daniella Perozzi, a graphics editor who visited the Norman show.

The exhibit features King Roger II's mantle, embroidered in gold and baby pearls. There's also a tiny pair of 12th-century dice delicately carved from a stag's bones.

Japanese leader scrapes through another crisis

By Elaine Kurtenbach
Associated Press

■ News Analysis

TOKYO — Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa scraped through another crisis Friday when he agreed to shelve a tax plan that had threatened to topple his shaky ruling coalition.

But the tax imbroglio — which followed a near-disaster over political reforms — was an unusually inept move and a major embarrassment for Hosokawa just a week before he heads to Washington for a summit with President Clinton.

It delayed until at least Monday the unveiling of a major economic stimulus package. And U.S. negotiators who had come to Tokyo hoping to hammer out a trade accord prior to the summit headed home all but empty-handed.

This kind of spin, nobody needs — especially not a Japanese leader who is under the gun to mollify U.S. trade officials and is weeks behind on emergency measures to help pull Japan out of recession.

"It's as if Hosokawa were stepping forward and saying, 'Look, my government is unstable,'" said Mamoru Naka, professor at Tokoha Gakuen University.

Hosokawa's stumbling on the tax issue was an unpleasant surprise for American officials, who thought he would be free to focus on the economy after he won passage of a compromise package of anti-corruption bills Jan. 29.

U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor wound up three days of talks intended to revive stalled trade negotiations, but reported no breakthroughs.

Kantor told reporters he still held out hopes of "substantial progress" before the Feb. 11 Hosokawa-Clinton meeting. Negotiations at the sub-Cabinet level were to resume on Monday in Washington.

All week, it had looked as if Hosokawa's government was back on track after months of nursing political reforms through Parliament.

U.S. companies leap into freshly opened Vietnamese market

By George Esper
AP special correspondent

HANOI, Vietnam — Big name American companies zeroed in on what one consultant called the "hottest emerging market in the world" only hours after the United States and Vietnam restored economic ties after nearly 20 years.

Capitalizing on a multibillion-dollar capitalist economy in this split-personality communist country, the giants of industry emerged. At least one, General Motors Corp., kept its interest a secret until President Clinton lifted the U.S. trade embargo Thursday.

GM signed a memorandum of understanding last May with a group of foreign investors and the Vietnamese and is looking into whether there is a large enough market for its cars. It did not disclose the memorandum until after Clinton's announcement.

Chrysler Corp. is doing the same thing.

"Southeast Asia is a booming market, but we are looking at a dozen different countries," said Chrysler spokesman Tony Cervone in Detroit.

Otis Elevator Co., which first began operating in Vietnam more than 40 years ago, is returning to install and service its products. It was forced to leave the country in 1975 when its base of operations in Saigon fell to communist North Vietnam.

Immediately after the embargo was lifted, American Express signed an agreement with the Bank for Foreign Trade of Vietnam to promote use of its card by businesses in Vietnam.

American firms that waste no time include General Motors, Otis Elevator, Pepsi-Cola, American Express, United Airlines.

And Pepsi-Cola International began bottling and distributing its cola in Ho Chi Minh City and said it would be in full production within a week. Coca-Cola Indochina Pte Ltd. of Singapore is investing $45 million in its Vietnam operation during the next five years.

United Airlines said it would begin service between Los Angeles and Ho Chi Minh City as soon as it can get government approval. United acquired the U.S. rights from now-defunct Pan Am in 1986.

A market of more than 70 million consumers and a pool of cheap labor awaits American businesses.

Vietnam is "the hottest emerging market in the world right now," said Eugene Matthews, president of Ashta International Inc., an investment and consulting firm.

Prior to the lifting of the embargo, Vietnam had licensed more than 800 foreign investment projects for mostly European and rich Asian nations with a total approved capital of $7 billion.

American business leaders in Vietnam said the lifting of the trade embargo would finally give them the chance to compete in the massive market.

Deputy Foreign Minister Le Mai told a news conference Friday that no special concessions would be made to U.S. firms who are getting a late start in the marketplace. "They'll be competing under equal conditions," he said.

Up for grabs over the next five years is $8 billion in aviation, telecommunications, heavy equipment, power generation, and highway, airport and hotel construction.

For some Americans, the lifting of the embargo was more than just good for business. It symbolized the end of America's most divisive and painful war.

"I think more important is that this is the beginning of putting the war behind us and moving on to a new era of friendship with Vietnam," said Greig Craft, a Hanoi-based consultant with Motorola Inc. and Occidental.

Thirty-four American companies already had opened offices in Vietnam in anticipation of the embargo being lifted.

Families of those missing in action and veterans groups argued against the end of the embargo, saying the United States would lose its leverage in getting Vietnam to cooperate in accounting for 2,238 Americans still missing.

Shells kill 8, wound dozens in Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Three shells sprayed shrapnel through a crowd waiting for food handouts on a playground Friday, killing eight people and scattering bags of flour and sugar amid pools of blood.

About 24 people were wounded, and hospital officials reported one more dead and 10 injured in other explosions. The death toll was the highest for one day in Sarajevo since 15 people were killed Jan. 3 in the besieged Bosnian capital.

The mortar shells fell after NATO fighter jets thundered over Sarajevo at unusually low levels for an hour, an apparent effort to reinforce Western threats to the Bosnian Serbs who have surrounded the city 22 months. NATO planes, enforcing a no-fly zone over Bosnia, buzz the city from time to time.

Bosnia's Muslim-led government blamed the shelling on the Serbs. A Bosnian Serb leader denied the besieging force had anything to do with it.

"What did I do wrong to them (Serbs)?" asked Sabahudin Ljusan, 10, one of the wounded who was rushed across town, down "Sniper Alley," to Kosevo Hospital.

The boy winced in pain with every breath as he lay on his side in a hospital bed. Shrapnel pierced his chest, just missing his spine, doctors said.

Blood pooled on the floor of the emergency room while doctors treated the wounded, mainly elderly people, women and children.

"We don't have time to count the dead, we have to save the wounded," said Dr. Ognjen Gajic.

Sarajevo radio said five children were among the wounded in Dobrinja, a western suburb where athletes were housed during the 1984 Winter Olympics. Circled on three sides by Serb lines, the neighborhood of high-rise apartments near the airport has taken a heavy pounding during the siege.

Fear of mutant viruses stymies cancer research

LONDON (AP) — Government safety inspectors halted a cancer research project at Birmingham University because of the risk that genetically engineered viruses could escape and possibly infect people.

The Dec. 6 order, made public Friday, was the first issued by the Health and Safety Executive since the government adopted regulations covering genetic engineering in 1992.

Professor Gordon McVie, scientific director of the Cancer Research Campaign, which sponsored the research, said the project aimed at discovering which genes turn normal cells into cancer cells and was "at the leading edge of fundamental research."

McVie said there was no danger people outside the lab could get cancer from the virus, and only a "theoretical risk" restricted to the researchers handling it.

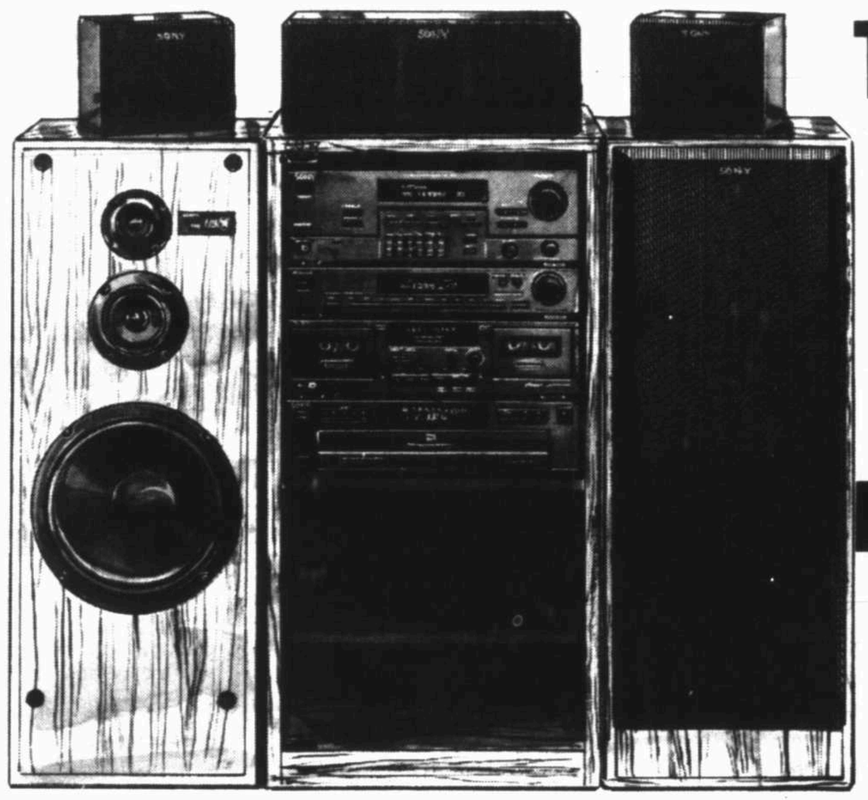

The inspectors objected to the research being conducted in the corner of a larger laboratory in which other people were working, McVie said. The lab is being moved, in consultation with the inspectors, he said.

The government order said the researchers created "uncertainty" about the work's safety by not sufficiently assessing "the risks of this work to human health and the environment."

The university may resume the research if it introduces satisfactory ways of containing the viruses by April 7.

Professor John Beringer, who heads a committee advising the government on the risks of genetic engineering, said the researchers' failure to maintain adequate safety standards was "inexcusable."

rate move might not come until spring, they generally supported the Fed's decision to act now.

"They acted very quickly and much more rapidly than any Fed has ever done before to nip inflation in the bud," said Norman Robertson, an economics professor at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

David Wyss, an economist at DRI-McGraw Hill Inc., said he expected the rate move Friday would be the first of a series of quarter-point increases every two to three months for the rest of the year.

Wyss said banks would probably move to boost the prime lending rate, the benchmark rate for many business and consumer loans, from 6 percent up to 6.5 percent after the next Fed move.

Other analysts said that rates on bank certificates of deposit would move up almost immediately by about a quarter point and would track the funds rate upward for the rest of the year.

The administration is hoping that the Fed's pre-emptive strike will calm inflation fears and keep long-term rates, which have more of an impact on economic growth, from rising.

Private economists, however, were not quite as optimistic, saying it was inevitable that long-term rates would rise slightly as the Fed tightens credit conditions.

Wyss predicted that 30-year mortgage rates, which stood at 6.97 percent this week, would probably be up to 7.5 percent by the end of this year. They had hit a 25-year low of 6.74 percent in October.

The Fed last increased interest rates on Feb. 23, 1989, when it pushed the funds rate up a half-point to 9.75 percent trying to guide the country to a "soft landing" in which inflation would moderate and the longest peacetime recovery in history would continue.

However, that effort failed and the country fell into the 1990-91 recession.

Moving to combat the recession and an extremely weak recovery, the Fed cut the funds rate 23 straight times with the last reduction in September 1992 pushing the rate down to a three-decade low of 3 percent.

Other rates also have fallen to their lowest points in a generation and it was those low rates that have been credited with finally putting the economy onto a sustainable growth path. Interest-sensitive sectors such as auto sales, home sales and business investment boomed last year.

The Fed decision to increase interest rates was approved on a 10-0 vote by the Federal Open Market Committee Friday morning. Two members who are leaving the Fed this month, Wayne Angell and Vice Chairman David Mullins, did not participate in the deliberations.

Greenspan said the central bank decided to immediately announce its decision in order "to avoid any misunderstanding of the committee's purposes, given the fact that this is the first firming of reserve market conditions by the committee since early 1989."

While Fed officials insisted the announcement did not set a precedent, other economists said they believed the decision would be followed by other public announcements of any such decisions.

Congressional critics have been pushing legislation to force the Fed to announce interest-rate actions immediately rather than forcing observers to guess at the Fed's intent by watching the central bank's moves to buy and sell government securities in the financial markets.

LAW: Woman lines up to be first ABA president

(From 1A)

ing in North Carolina with her cardiologist husband, she couldn't find work in any law firm in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area.

"No one would return my calls. No one would talk to me," she said. "Not only was I a woman, but the worse kind — I was a married woman. It made you feel bad about yourself."

'No one would return my calls. No one would talk to me. Not only was I a woman, but the worse kind — I was a married woman. It made you feel bad about yourself.'

—Roberta Cooper Ramo
lawyer

With the help of her law school dean and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, Ramo got a job providing legal services to poor people. She later taught constitutional law to students at Shaw University, a black school in Raleigh.

"The kids I taught were trying to figure out the civil-rights movement. At a time when they believed in little else, those kids believed in the power of lawyers to change things for the good, Ramo said. "It was a powerful lesson for me."

Her first law firm job came in 1970, after she and her family moved to San Antonio. She joined the ABA not long afterwards.

But seeking the group's top job did not occur to Ramo until sometime in the mid-1980s as she sat listening to an ABA speech in which then-Chief Justice Warren E. Burger excoriated the legal profession for various perceived shortcomings.

"There was not, in my view, an appropriately aggressive response," Ramo said. "I had seen lawyers do miracles."

The road to leadership was not always smooth. Ramo lost out in her first bid, in 1991. And her former law firm filed for bankruptcy last year.

She since has joined New Mexico's largest law firm, where her practice includes real estate, health care and probate work.

Ramo, the only nominee for president-elect, will have to wait until August 1995 to begin her year as president. The group's current leader is Atlanta lawyer R. William Ide III, and he will be succeeded in August by George Bushnell of Detroit.

The nation's largest organization of lawyers, the ABA was founded in 1878. But it did not admit its first female member until 1918.

Questioned about the organization's attitude toward women, Ide said Friday a turning point was the work a decade ago of an ABA commission on women in the profession. The commission was chaired by Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"It's long overdue," Ide said of women in the ABA's leadership. "But we're going to sprint to catch up."

Ramo was born in Denver but grew up in Albuquerque, where she went to work at an early age in her father's Western wear store. "Cowboy boots and Levis sent me through law school," she said with an easy laugh. But she also thinks lawyers could learn a lesson from her dad.

"We come across as arrogant to our clients," she said. "More lawyers have to remember that we are in the business of providing service."

by river and keeping dogs in a barn on the hospital's farm.

He was excited about the move to his new three-bedroom cottage, even though it's in the shadow of Cherry Hospital, where Wilson spent all those years, unable to communicate except through ade signs, grunts and gestures.

Wilson's situation came to light in 1991 when Wasson determined from reviewing records that Wilson was deaf, and not mentally ill. It took Wasson and a team of lawyers from Carolina Legal Assistance this long to get him out.

Lawyer Paul Pooley tried to cut through the state's bureaucracy in November with a scathing letter to the attorney general's office.

"He lacks the opportunity to express himself and be understood," Pooley wrote of Wilson. "He deserves better, and he deserves it now."

It took almost three more months, but Wilson now has the most freedom he's had since he was taken from his home in the coastal town of Castle Hayne.

He also has a car and driver.

"If he wants to go uptown and get a hamburger, they get in the car and go there," hospital director Phil Montgomery said. "We have funds he can use. Money isn't an issue."

Wasson didn't want Wilson to be interviewed, even through a sign language interpreter, because it could be traumatic. He was driven the 100 yards or so from his room to the cottage "with little fanfare," Montgomery said.

The charge against Wilson was dropped in the 1970s, but hospital officials decided to keep him because his family couldn't be found, Montgomery said.

Wilson was in touch with his father and a sister until the 1940s or 1950s, but that link has been lost, according to Pooley and records. The hospital tried to send a letter to the sister in 1970, but couldn't locate her.

"We don't think he got lost," Montgomery said. "I feel like he was cared for. We don't know whether he knew whether he could or couldn't leave. He never tried to escape."

Now, Montgomery said, Wilson is a voluntary patient. Wasson has decided the hospital is the best place for him. Aides are assigned to him around the clock, seven days a week, and a nurse will check on him three times a day.

"He wants to go out where there are people around, where he can see things going on," Pooley said.

Wilson does have a friend, an elderly deaf man who visits him and communicates in the old "Raleigh Sign," a form of sign language that once was taught to blacks.

He now is being taught standard American Sign Language. Twice a month, he visits volunteer families nearby. Every day, he works with arts and crafts to maintain his mobility.

Pooley saw the move as a beginning, "an important step, but it's not that big of a step."

"A lot of people seem to see it as an end point," he said. "I see it as a beginning point. He'll be part of the larger community."

GUILTY: Jury convicts teen in murder of 3 boys was convicted of first-degree murder in Moore's death.

The parents of Steve Branch and Michael Moore were composed as the verdicts were read, but Mark and Melissa Byers, whose son was castrated by the killers and bled to death, sobbed openly. The other two boys drowned in the drainage ditch. Misskelley's parents also wept as the verdict was read.

"The only satisfaction would be if one of them could die and my son could come back," Mark Byers said as he left the courthouse.

Misskelley sat expressionless with his eyes glued to the defense table as Burnett announced each verdict. While being sentenced, he stood between his lawyers, with his hands in his pockets and his head cocked slightly to the right.

Asked by Burnett if he understood the sentences, he answered, "Yes sir," in a quiet, high-pitched voice. Asked if he had anything to say, he said, "No sir."

Defense attorneys Dan Stidham and Greg Crow said they would appeal to the state Supreme Court. During the trial, they had alleged that West Memphis police interrogators manipulated Misskelley into confessing to a crime he did not commit.

Prosecutors Brent Davis and John Fogleman complimented the jury but made no further comment, citing the pending trial of Echols and Baldwin, who are to be tried later this month in Jonesboro.

The nude, battered bodies of the three boys were pulled from the drainage ditch less than a mile from their homes on May 6, a day after they disappeared.

and was aware of the consequences of his statement. He denied the motion.

Defense attorneys — Vern Martin and Jim Eubank — asked the judge if they could question potential jurors individually on what they have heard about this case.

Hyde explained that a large panel of potential jurors will be summoned and when they are qualified each will be given a questionnaire regarding the case and their knowledge of it.

He said at that point each person who acknowledged hearing something about the case would be questioned individually in front of the judge, but out of the hearing range of other potential jurors.

Martin again indicated his concern at what the jury panel may know and hold against his client.

"I know you're deeply concerned about a fair trial for your client . . . but my duty is to make sure he gets a fair trial," Hyde told him.

"If it appears there is a large sentiment against this defendant . . . we won't proceed," the judge said.

Jury selection is set to begin Monday morning. The trial is expected to get started Monday afternoon.

Harrell is charged with capital murder, which is when another crime is committed at the same time as the murder, and can carry the death penalty. However, the district attorney said he will not seek the death penalty in this case.

After graduating from Lee High School in the spring of 1993, the 19-year-old Baker landed a job pitching for the Expos in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Anthony enjoys playing all kinds of sports including soccer, basketball and T-ball. When asked what he liked best about baseball, Anthony spread his arms in an umpire's gesture and said, "safe!"

Anthony said his team wins regularly. "I'm good," he said with a grin.

In Special Olympics competition, Anthony plays baseball and runs relays.

Baker said he intends to maintain his association with Special Olympics, which gives disabled children an opportunity to compete with each other in track-and-field events.

China releases 3 political prisoners after U.S. trade warnings

BEIJING (AP) — China has released three political prisoners in what appeared to be a response to pressure from Washington to end serious rights abuses or risk losing its normal trade status with the United States.

A spokeswoman for the Justice Ministry who gave only her surname, Wu, confirmed the releases after they were made public by an American businessman and human rights activist, John Kamm. Kamm said Chinese officials notified him Friday morning of the releases.

"We can't put too much emphasis . . . on any one, two or three releases," Kamm said in a phone call from his Hong Kong office.

"There are still certainly hundreds if not thousands of prisoners of conscience. It's a step in the right direction, but let's not overstate it," he said.

The Clinton administration has said it will not renew China's normal trade status in June without an improvement that goes beyond a few prisoner releases. U.S. officials, while welcoming the releases, have said they are looking for systemic reforms such as greater tolerance for peaceful dissent, fair trials and better prison conditions. International human rights groups note that new political arrests are made regularly.

Amnesty International reported Friday that in Tibet, 11 young Buddhist nuns have been sentenced to prison terms up to seven years, apparently for attempting a protest against Chinese rule. The nuns, who range in age from 18 to 25 years, were arrested on June 14, the London-based rights group said.

Pro-independence sentiment is strong among Tibetan Buddhist monks and nuns because of their strong loyalty to the Dalai Lama, Tibet's exiled god-king, who has sought autonomy for the remote Himalayan region.

The released prisoners included Xiao Bin, a factory office worker who was sentenced to 10 years in prison for telling a U.S. television network of a large number of deaths in the June 1989 military crackdown on the Tiananmen Square democracy movement in Beijing.

The other two were Ding Junze, a philosophy instructor at a university in Shanxi province who took part in local pro-democracy demonstrations in 1989, and Liao Yiwu, a leading poet in Sichuan province who later made an art video that police deemed too sympathetic to the 1989 movement.

Kamm frequently meets with Chinese officials to press quietly for an improvement in human rights and is often among the first to learn about prisoner releases.

He said he was trying to find out if there would be more dissidents leaving jail before next Thursday's Lunar New Year, a time when the government typically makes a few releases.

Xiao Bin, 46, became well known throughout China after state television broadcast an intercepted, unedited video of an interview he gave ABC News in which he said 20,000 were killed in the 1989 military assault and that tanks ran over people.

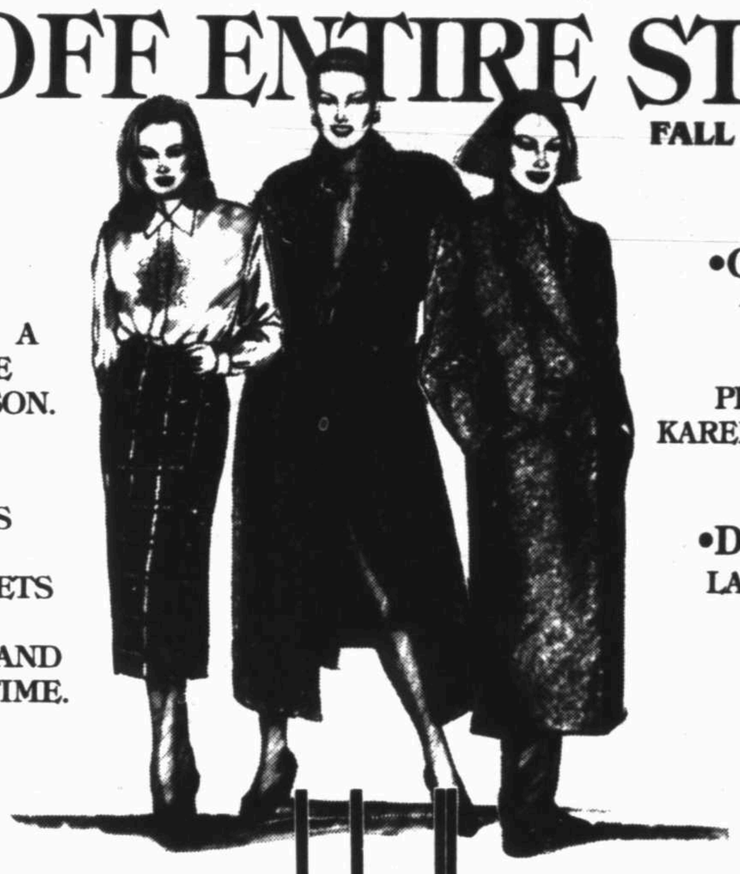

The government has never released complete casualty figures, but most Western observers reject such a high death toll, putting it in the hundreds or at most the low thousands.

Xiao was arrested a week after the assault on charges of anti-government incitement, and sentenced to 10 years. The Justice Ministry's Ms. Wu said he was released Wednesday for good behavior.

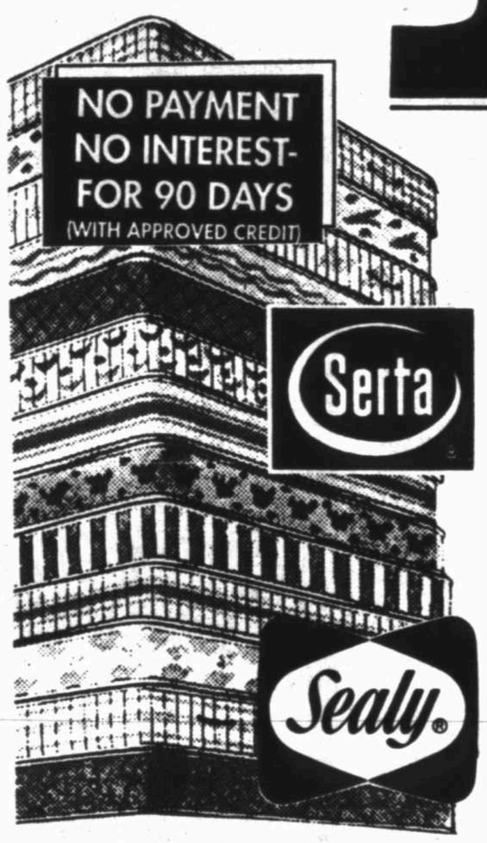

Ding, who was sentenced to 12 years, was granted medical parole Wednesday, Ms. Wu said.

Austin City Council decides to set up smoking restrictions

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council on Friday tentatively approved an ordinance that could force smokers to change their habits.

Under the measure, which requires two more votes to become law, smoking would be prohibited in dining areas until 2 p.m.

After 2 p.m., customers could light up in eating establishments, but only inside enclosed areas separating them from non-smokers.

Also, the clusters of smokers who often are seen smoking outside a smoke-free building would be forced to move away 15 feet.

"Now you can enter a building without walking through a wall of smoke," Council member Ronney Reynolds said.

The ordinance also goes after cigarette vending machines, which Reynolds said are the major source of cigarettes for minors who smoke.

Cigarette vending machines cannot be accessible by minors unless the machine is operated by tokens that must be purchased from an adult.

Some council members wanted an outright ban on smoking.

Perot delivers pep talk to faithful followers

By John King
AP political writer

Ross Perot delivered a defiant pep talk to his followers Friday, urging them to oppose President Clinton's health-care plan and work "day and night" until Congress passes an array of budget and ethics reforms.

"You are now a very effective force in this country and you have created a certain level of trauma by your presence," Perot told 100 leaders of his United We Stand America organization. "Both political parties are dedicated to see you go away. We're not going to get away — we're going to grow."

Perot's 50-minute speech was the only open event as the United We Stand leaders huddled throughout the day to draft a 1994 legislative and election strategy and iron out organizational wrinkles like naming an audit committee to monitor its books.

Perot made only a brief mention of last year's North American Free Trade Agreement fight, a painful defeat for the Texan and the organization that sprung from his 1992 independent presidential campaign.

Since failing to block NAFTA, Perot's personal political standing has tumbled, and many in politics question whether United We Stand can deliver on its promise to become the most powerful grassroots force in American politics.

Many of the United We Stand leaders were still fuming over the NAFTA debate, accusing Clinton of buying votes and promising to vent their anger at incumbents who voted for the trade deal.

But Russ Verney, the national issues coordinator for the group, said other issues would carry heavy weight in United We Stand's scorecards, too, and said "there's no hit list" targeting NAFTA backers.

As they gathered in Dallas for the three-day meeting, United We Stand leaders promised to try to sway local and congressional elections through candidate forums and report cards on major issues. The organization cannot endorse or financially support candidates, restrictions that many outside of United We Stand predict will limit its effectiveness.

The closed planning sessions were led by Perot's national United We Stand staff. Only the 50 state directors handpicked by Perot and 50 state chairman elected by local United We Stand leaders were allowed to attend. Other United We Stand activists who paid their own way to Dallas were allowed to watch Perot's speech but then were ushered out of the meeting room.

Sheriff: Baby that vanished might be dead

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County Sheriff Terry Keel said Friday there is a "strong possibility" that an infant allegedly kidnapped by his babysitter is dead.

Keel said law officers haven't ruled out the "equally compelling possibility and the hope" that 3½-month-old Brandon Baugh is alive.

But he contended that accused kidnapper Cathy Lynn Henderson has remained uncooperative, acting like a "cold-blooded criminal," since being taken into custody.

He said that leads him to believe she may face capital murder charges if the baby who disappeared with her on Jan. 21 is found dead. She already faces a kidnapping charge in state and federal court.

"Her motivation . . . in not cooperating can only come to one conclusion in my mind as a law enforcement officer and as a former prosecutor, which is she doesn't want us to perform an autopsy on that child if it's dead because it will be indicative of criminal activity beyond an accident," Keel said at a news conference with FBI Special Agent Byron Sage and Texas Ranger Ron Stewart.

One lawyer who has represented Mrs. Henderson, Nona Byington, would not comment. Another lawyer appointed to represent her in federal court, Charles Burton, didn't immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Keel also released a memorandum he sent Wednesday to law officers in Bell, Falls and McLennan counties in Central Texas, telling them it's possible that the baby could be dead and buried in a shallow grave in their area.

"The investigation has lead to the strong possibility that Henderson may have been involved in the death of the child on Jan. 21 in Travis County and then left with the child's body in the trunk of her vehicle, passing through your area the same evening," the memo said.

Cult testimony ties Koresh to guns, autos

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Even defense attorneys wrestle with explaining a ministry funded by the sales of high-powered weapons and rebuilt cars.

But on Friday jurors in the federal murder trial of 11 Branch Davidians were provided an image of a man who claimed to foresee an apocalyptic end to the world, stockpiled booming rifles and who could rebuild a Chevrolet Camaro with the best shade-tree mechanic.

Karen Kilpatrick testified Friday that her gun dealership had a long-running business relationship with David Koresh that included exchanging weapons for the doomsday prophet's work on her car.

"I did give him a gun as a down payment for the balance of money I owed on a car he was working on for me," Ms. Kilpatrick said.

"I watched him. He would paint each part of the car before he would assemble it," she said. Koresh was rebuilding a blue 1969 Camaro for her at a cost of $5,000.

Ms. Kilpatrick said she was never able to fully pay Koresh before he and 85 of his religious followers died amidst an inferno at his compound last April 19.

She identified several photos of a garage containing Camaros that Koresh rebuilt.

The garage, located a few miles from the Branch Davidians' sprawling compound near Waco, has been identified by more than two dozen gun dealers in court as the destination for hundreds of sophisticated weapons shipped to Koresh and his followers through mail orders.

On Friday, gun dealers and other merchants of weapons paraphernalia detailed sales to the Davidians.

Texas official: Prison beds must stay empty

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas prisons are operating "very near their legal capacity," and any attempt to transfer inmates from county jails would land the state back in federal court, Secretary of State John Hannah said Friday.

If that happens, the state would lose again, Hannah said.

"It is my opinion that the court would immediately stop any such transfer from the county jails to the prisons . . . and we would eventually lose a costly and time-consuming legal dispute," he said.

Hannah, who's been nominated for a federal judgeship, was ordered by Gov. Ann Richards to get the facts after a report surfaced last week saying comptroller's auditors had found 6,000 empty beds in the 72,000-inmate state prison system.

Prison officials have said there are "empty" beds. However, they also said that those beds can't be filled because of the federal court settlement in which the state agreed not to use them.

Hannah told the governor in a report that the empty beds are the same ones that got the Texas prison system into trouble in the first place. Crowded prisons resulted in the 20-year-long Ruiz inmate rights lawsuit that found the system unconstitutional and led to federal court supervision.

"The prisons in Texas, before the Ruiz case, were vastly overcrowded," Hannah said. "That is why we had federal court intervention and why we were sued by both a Republican and a Democratic (U.S.) Justice Department."

In the negotiated settlement to the Ruiz case, the state agreed to limit the population of some prison units and to increase the population of others only if showers, dining halls, medical and other support facilities were added.

At present, more than 20,000 state convicts crowd county jails awaiting vacancies in the state prison system.

State Comptroller John Sharp said his auditors will start a bed-by-bed count in every prison Feb. 14 to determine whether any extra beds are available to help ease prison overcrowding.

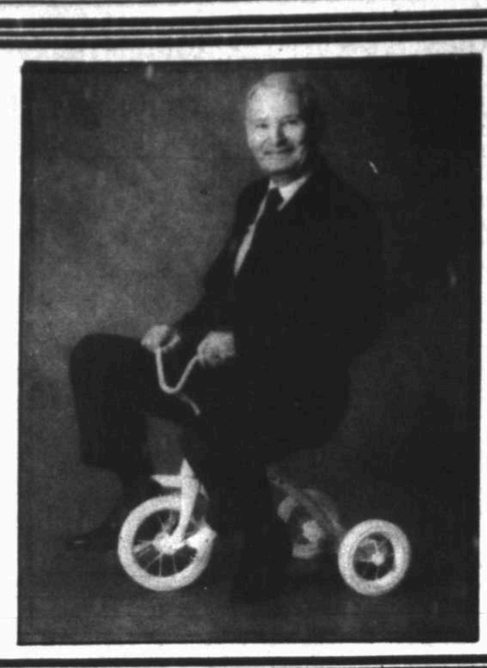

However, Sharp acknowledged Thursday, it appears unlikely that many more beds could be put to immediate use.

Hannah reached the same conclusion.

Juror: Scots' killer needs to be indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand juror says she wanted to indict a homeowner who killed a Scottish businessman he mistook for a burglar.

The grand jury Wednesday, in an 8-4 vote, refused to indict Jeffrey Agee in the Jan. 7 death of Andrew De Vries, 29, who was fatally shot as he banged the back door of Agee's home in the middle of the night.

Fiona and Gelt De Vries, who came to Houston from Scotland, said they were disgusted with the decision because they thought Agee should have been charged in their son's death. Gelt De Vries called the grand jurors "cowards."

"We weren't all cowards," Yolanda Alaniz, one of the four who voted to indict Agee, told the Houston Chronicle. The case was sent to the panel without charges.

Ms. Alaniz said three other grand jurors were not convinced everything possible was done to warn De Vries.

"There was no warning, no nothing," she said. "As they say, 'Shoot first, ask questions later.'"

De Vries and another Scottish businessman had been out on the town all night when they were being driven home by two people they had met. For some reason, De Vries got out of the car.

The other Scotsman went with him and they began banging on doors in an upscale Houston neighborhood around 4 a.m.

De Vries was shot after he first rang Agee's front door bell, hid and then climbed a fence and knocked loudly at the back door, police said.

Grand juror Charles Pratt said the panel decided Agee's actions were justifiable because he was in fear for his safety.

"There were tears," he said. "Agee's testimony was very emotional."

State moves closer to major health reform

DALLAS (AP) — Texas officials inched closer to implementing some major health-care reforms Friday, selecting Blue Cross and Blue Shield to administer the first state-authorized insurance pool for small business.

The company's selection cleared a major hurdle for the Texas Insurance Purchasing Alliance, which is charged with creating the insurance pool.

The alliance, created last year by the Legislature, aims to make health insurance more affordable and accessible for businesses with three to 50 employees. There are more than 340,000 such businesses in Texas employing some 2.5 million people, according to state figures.

By pooling their buying power, small companies will be able to purchase health insurance at cheaper rates, said Cappy McGarr, chairman of the purchasing alliance. The concept will provide insurance to thousands of Texas businesses currently without coverage, he said.

"Its key is to bring the cost of doing business down, to provide cheaper health insurance and to provide health insurance to small business," McGarr said.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Texas won the job over two other finalists: Employers Health Insurance of Green Bay, Wis.; and The Associated Group of Indianapolis. Their bids were not released.

McGarr said Blue Cross was selected because of its bid and the company's associations with some 4,000 insurance brokers across the state.

Bird watchers flock to Rio Grande Valley for glimpse of falcon

By Dave Harmon
Associated Press

MISSION — Like seagulls descending on a cracker, bird watchers across the country are flocking to the Rio Grande Valley for a glimpse of a reclusive falcon never before seen in the United States.

The first confirmed sighting of a collared forest falcon at Bentsen State Park earlier this week had Houstonian Gail Luckner scrambling for her car keys.

A friend tipped her to the sighting on Monday night, and she was on the road headed south by 2 a.m. Tuesday.

"I was practically hyperventilating," said Luckner, a photographer and artist who started birding seven years ago. "Sighting a North American first is one of the most exciting things you can do in birding."

Father Tom Pincelli of La Feria, who runs the Rare Bird Alert phone line, said calls have come in from as far away as Massachusetts and California.

"They're pouring in," Pincelli said. "I've been getting phone calls from all over the ... place."

The object of the hoopla is a black-and-white falcon that typically ranges from southern Tamaulipas, Mexico, to the northern Argentina. Because birders do not consider Mexico part of North America, the sighting is considered a "North American first."

Guided by the falcon's mating cry, Pincelli and a group of about 20 picked through dense brush Tuesday and watched the bird for about 45 minutes.

By Thursday morning, word spread around the country and the park road was jammed with cars from as far away as Wisconsin, Alabama and Virginia.

"This is a unique opportunity," Pincelli said. "If it hangs around, it will be a big economic boom for this area."

Long known as a top hunting destination, the Rio Grande Valley is considered one of North America's best birding spots.

Environmentalists encourage eco-tourism because it brings dollars to the area without degrading the native habitat.

"There is an infusion immediately to hotels, rental cars, restaurants and airlines," said Cindy Chapman, spokeswoman for the Frontera Audubon Society.

The lone falcon has brought ecotourists loaded down with binoculars, hand-held telescopes, cameras and sighting logs.

"I'd say there's about three times as many people here as yesterday," said Floyd Carley, 72, who flew in from San Francisco the day after he got word about the falcon. "I'm going to stay here at least until Sunday."

Like old classmates at a reunion, the 30 or 40 diehards who converged on the park early Thursday chatted in loose groups, catching up on one another's lives and birding achievements as they waited for the falcon's distinct call.

"These are people we've birded with trip after trip all over the country, chasing these birds around," said Galveston birder Martha Micks.

Bill Davidson and his wife Harriet drove five days from Port Huron, Mich. Graham Metson flew from his Auburn, Calif., home to San Antonio, then drove a rented car to the park.

"This becomes a mania, as you can see," said Dave Hanson, a Winter Texan living in Mission.

And that mania keeps birding guide Scott Rea in business.

"These people may live far apart from one another, but they always come together where there's a rare bird," said Rea, a Michigan guide wintering at the park.

For Rea, the bird was a lost opportunity. He was tipped after it was first sighted on private property Jan. 5, but when it moved to the park, word got out to the birding world.

"As long as a bird is not public knowledge, I can make some money," he said. "Once it's public knowledge, I can't. I was looking for it (since the first sighting), then it showed up here and started calling its head off."

But most of the visitors were purists who disdain anyone who tries to profit from their hobby.

"It's a chance to see something in nature that's very rare," said Michigan resident Ron Smith, a master woodcarver and birder wintering in Pharr. "I mean, look at these people, they're dying to see this bird. And this species may never come again."

Visitors had heard the falcon earlier Thursday morning, but by 9 a.m. there was no sign of the bird. Ambling along the park roads, Jane Kittleman played a recording of the bird's call, trying to coax it into revealing its hiding place.

If it remains in the park, local birders expect hundreds of people to arrive this weekend for a chance to get a glimpse.

POLICE REPORTS

Assault

A 36-year-old Midland man who allegedly threatened to kill a Midland police officer with a knife and then struggled to unholster the officer's sidearm was jailed on a charge of aggravated assault on a peace officer and resisting arrest, officials said.

The officer, Shane Steward, who had been dispatched to 407 S. Marshall St. on Midland's south-side about 5 p.m. Friday, reported that he was "flagged down" by a man, who later was identified as Edward Lentner.

Lentner then ran into the house, rushed out with a knife in his hand, "threatened to kill the officer, and then told the officer that he wanted to die," according to the police report.

A woman, later identified as Lentner's girlfriend, began "to struggle with Edward Lentner over the knife," Steward said.

Steward intervened, took control of the knife, and fought with Lentner.

At that time, according to police, Lentner "tried to grab Officer Steward's handgun."

With the aid of his backup officer, Chuck Sims, Steward and Sims were able to control and to arrest Lentner, according to the report.

Burglary

ODESSA — Police said that 36 offenses in Odessa and eight offenses outside the city but in Ector County were cleared and $4,350 in stolen property was recovered when Gary William White, 17, was arrested.

Odessa Police Department investigators — who were checking out a series of burglaries in northwest Odessa in November, December, and early January — charged White with burglarizing buildings following the Jan. 16 break-in of Consolidated Electrical Distributors, according to a report.

White was charged with three counts of felony burglaries, according to Odessa Police Detective Sgt. D.C. Orren.

Possession

ODESSA — A 33-year-old Odessa truck driver was charged with possession of amphetamine on Thursday after investigators of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force stopped James Wayne Smith's tractor-trailer in Odessa, according to a report.

During a "routine investigation," the investigators seized 1.5 grams of amphetamine, according to the report.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The tide of success will send some wonderful business opportunities your way. The greatest financial gains can be made in late spring; promote a daringly innovative idea. Your personal relationships could undergo dramatic change over the summer. Emphasize your need for independence. November could be the high point of the year, bringing you new friends and career triumphs. Plan a cozy Christmas at home.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: all-time home run king Hank Aaron, comedian Red Buttons, singer Bobby Brown, actress Barbara Hershey, financial columnist Jane Bryant Quinn, writer-comedian Christopher Guest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid making any hasty financial moves today. You are likely to change your mind in a big hurry! A new face in the crowd emerges by your side. Romance is worth exploring.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): That which is popular may not necessarily be right for you. Comparison shopping can yield a wonderful bargain. Loved ones admire your good taste and keen eye for quality. Accept compliments gracefully.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be truthful in your statements to young people. Try not to resent being reminded of the promises you have made. Someone who performs special services for you needs more recognition. Show your gratitude.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A happy state of harmony prevails on the home front. Do not rock the boat! Roll up your sleeves and take care of cleanup chores. Enlist family members in helping a neighbor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Actions speak louder than words. Reward someone's loyalty in a tangible way. Lost items surface in unexpected places. Let go of an old grudge. Forgiving someone gives you a new lease on life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A pleasant change of plans may arise today, allowing you to spend time with friendly people. Romance beckons this weekend. Balance your checkbook before making a major purchase. You may have overlooked something.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attending a social function could indirectly help your career or business. Choose your confidants with care. Letting an indiscreet friend know your plans could cause complications later on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People may make promises they cannot keep, or paint an unrealistically rosy picture of a purchase or investment. Be cautious; insist on getting all the facts. A grand evening for a special date!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Encouraging developments put you in a hopeful frame of mind. Creative enterprises and domestic purchases are favored. In family matters, develop a more flexible mind-set.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Others let you know where they stand; reciprocate! A free-ranging discussion leads to viable solutions. Avoid engaging in activities that produce undue fatigue. Do not be the last to leave the party!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can expect to receive something of value this weekend. Act immediately on inside information. Carefully investigate a stock or real estate opportunity. Crystal-clear communication is essential in romance. Voice your love.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A trip could turn up valuable information or helpful people. Surrender some of your privacy and join in family activities. Your career may be at a turning point. Powerful people influence a decision.

Willis, Moore welcome their 3rd child, Tallulah

LOS ANGELES — First there was Rumer, followed by Scout. Enter Tallulah Belle, the third child of Demi Moore and Bruce Willis.

Miss Moore, who starred in "Indecent Proposal" and "Ghost," gave birth Thursday to her third girl.

"Both mother and baby are doing fantastic," said Paul Bloch, a spokesman for Willis, the star of the "Die Hard" movies.

Rumer is 5 and and Scout is 2.

LONDON — The London stage production of "Sunset Boulevard" is getting a new leading lady: "Eight is Enough" stepmom Betty Buckley.

Buckley takes over for Patti LuPone, who drew mixed reviews for her portrayal of aging screen star Norma Desmond.

Buckley, Abby Bradford on the 1977-81 television series "Eight is Enough," is no stranger to Andrew Lloyd Webber's work. She won a 1983 Tony Award for her performance as Grizabella in "Cats" and succeeded Bernadette Peters in the Broadway production of "Song and Dance."

Lloyd Webber said Thursday he wants the British version of "Sunset Boulevard" to rise to the level of the more recent Los Angeles production, where Glenn Close has won raves.

LuPone's contract expires March 12. The show will shut down temporarily to allow Buckley time to rehearse. She takes over when the show reopens April 7.

LOS ANGELES — Oscar-winning composer Maurice Jarre hopes his star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame will spare him some of life's more mundane chores.

"When my wife tries to put me to work cleaning the house I can say, 'Baby, I can't. I've got a star on Hollywood Boulevard,'" the French-born composer said at Thursday's unveiling.

Jarre has won three best film score Oscars, in 1962 for "Lawrence of Arabia," "Doctor Zhivago" in 1965 and "Passage to India" in 1984.

His many other films scores include "Witness," "Dead Poet's Society," "Ghost" and "Gorillas in the Mist."

MINNEAPOLIS — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun has fulfilled a long-held wish: to narrate Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait."

The 85-year-old justice took the stage at the University of Minnesota Thursday night, accompanied by the school's symphony orchestra.

Blackmun's delivery of Abraham Lincoln quotations was "heartfelt but devoid of bombast," Minneapolis Star Tribune reviewer David McKee wrote.

Blackmun declined interviews. The Minnesota native counts classical music, baseball and stamp collecting among his interests off the bench.

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Actor Robert Carradine's lawsuit claiming a state trooper defamed him is still alive.

In a 5-2 ruling Friday, the Minnesota Supreme Court said Carradine deserves a chance to prove an account of a 1987 speeding arrest the officer gave a reporter differed significantly from the arrest report.

But first the actor's lawyers will have to satisfy a judge there is evidence to show the trooper acted maliciously.

The "Revenge of the Nerds" actor was driving to the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport when he was arrested, strip-searched and held for about 10 hours.

Carradine initially was charged with fleeing a police officer and reckless driving. Under a plea bargain, he pleaded guilty to speeding and paid $100.

Carradine claimed Trooper Patrick Chase embellished when he told a reporter the actor led him on a two-mile chase and impersonated a policeman by flashing a badge when he was arrested.

He sued Chase in 1990, alleging defamation, unreasonable search and seizure, assault, battery and false imprisonment. Only the defamation claim hasn't been tossed out of court.

DENVER — A woman who says Michael Jackson swiped her song will have to come up with an original copy if she wants to sue the pop superstar, a judge said.

Crystal Cartier wanted to use a "re-created" version of her 1985 song "Dangerous," claiming she's tried unsuccessfully to track down any of at least 25 demo copies allegedly sent to music companies in 1989.

The Denver songwriter is seeking $40 million.

U.S. District Judge Edward Nottingham on Thursday said he wouldn't allow the reconstructed version unless Cartier's attorneys can prove Monday "adequate attempts" had been made to find an original.

"This is a case where millions of dollars are being sought," Nottingham said. "The efforts I have seen are inadequate."

Jackson says the concept for his song "Dangerous" evolved from 1985 until he recorded it for his "Dangerous" album in September 1990. He has denied ever hearing Cartier's version.

Hillary Clinton blasts insurance industry on health-care reform

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton sought to put the administration's health-care plan back on track Thursday after two days of beatings from big business, naming insurance companies and the status quo as the "real enemy."

In a question-and-answer session moderated by former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, Mrs. Clinton made no mention of a rival plan gaining steam in Congress, focusing instead on failings in the current health-care system and holding out the White House proposal as the cure.

"Today's health-care system is rigged against families and small businesses — the insurance companies are in charge," said Mrs. Clinton, chief architect of the White House plan. "They pick and choose whom they cover at what cost and for how long."

Mrs. Clinton told a generally friendly Civic Center audience of medical professionals, students and civic leaders that insurers and other entrenched interests who prosper under the current health-care system are "raking that money off at everybody else's expense."

"The status quo is our real enemy," she said. "The very large businesses will continue to make their best deals and everybody else will pick up the costs."

Mrs. Clinton spoke at a forum at Children's Hospital that is part of a series of discussions Koop is moderating. The former surgeon general is staying neutral in the health-care debate, but praised the first lady's work on the issue.

Mrs. Clinton's fiery defense of the Clinton plan came at the end of a week in which big business made strong objections to the president's plan and amid increasing interest in a less-sweeping proposal offered by Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn.

Many businesses object to Clinton's intention to require all businesses to pay 80 percent of average insurance premiums for their workers. Cooper would try to make insurance more affordable without requiring employers to pay for it.

Mrs. Clinton made no direct reference to the criticism from business, but urged her audience to "cut through the smoke screens."

Report: Clinton to cut 181,000 Pentagon jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton is proposing to cut the Pentagon's civilian and military workforce by 181,000 for a $4 billion savings in the budget he plans to present Congress next week, according to documents obtained Friday.

Active duty forces would take the biggest hit — 85,000 or a 5.2 percent cut, according to an outline of the president's defense budget plan, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press. The proposal would cut 46,000 from the "selected reserve" forces, those who drill regularly, or a 4.5 percent reduction.

In addition the Clinton plan proposes cutting 50,000 from the Department of Defense civilian work force, a 5.4 percent reduction.

New details of the $1.5 trillion spending plan for all government programs in the 1995 fiscal year emerged just three days before Clinton ships the proposal to Congress.

Administration officials said Clinton will propose killing 115 programs for a savings of $3.25 billion. Terminated programs would include the Air Force's F-16 fighter, public library construction and a shark research center, they said.

They predicted lawmakers would accept the cuts — after a fight.

"There'll probably be a lot of blood on the floor by the time we finish," said Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen.

Cuts in Pentagon manpower are part of a long-term administration plan. As of last fall, active duty strength stood at 1.7 million. By the end of the next fiscal year in the fall of 1995, active forces will total 1.52 million, a cut of 179,400. And eventually the administration projects it will drop to 1.4 million. Overall Defense Department employment over the two-year period would decline by 344,300.

But officials insist all the military cuts can be achieved by attrition or, in the case of some civilian employees, buyouts.

Cuts in uniformed personnel, if agreed to by Congress, would save $2.42 billion, according to the administration. Civilian cuts would save $1.59 billion.

These savings don't appear in the bottom line.

Abortion protester to stand trial in doctor's death

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — An anti-abortion activist will go on trial as scheduled Feb. 21 in the slaying of a doctor during a clinic protest, a judge said Friday.

Circuit Judge John Parnham agreed with three mental-health experts who reported that Michael F. Griffin is mentally competent to stand trial in the fatal shooting of Dr. David Gunn.

Additional psychiatric evaluation of Griffin was requested by his attorney, Robert Kerrigan, who said Griffin was too depressed and troubled to go to trial or help with his defense.

Griffin is accused of shooting Gunn, 47, three times in the back outside a clinic March 10. The Eufaula, Ala., physician was on his way inside to perform abortions at Pensacola Women's Medical Services during an anti-abortion demonstration.

Top spot changes hands

KGEE new No. 1 in market; 'Rush' lifts KMND

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

For the first time in almost five years, KNFM (92.3 FM) has fallen from its No. 1 perch in the local radio market, a spot claimed in the Fall 1993 Arbitron ratings by country rival KGEE (99.9 FM).

KGEE, No. 2 in the Spring 1993 Arbitron ratings book, increased its audience share from 12.6 to 15.3 in the Fall '93 book, conducted from Sept. 23-Dec. 15, 1993. Results of the local radio wars were released this week by The Arbitron Co., New York.

KNFM's total market share dropped a mere half-point in the most recent book, but over the last two ratings periods the country station, now No. 2, has fallen from a 19.4 share to a 14.6.

In a dramatic move upward, KNFM's sister station, KMND (1510 AM) climbed to the No. 3 spot locally and claimed a 10.2 percent share of the local market.

The climb can be attributed to the continued overwhelming popularity of conservative talk-show host Rush Limbaugh, heard daily on the station. KMND was No. 9 in the market in the Spring of '93, and in the Fall '92 ratings period was No. 6.

Rounding out the Top 5 were KCHX (106.7 FM; contemporary hits format), the 4th ranked station with a 9.5 share, and KBAT (93.3 FM; album oriented rock), with a 6.5 share. KODM, No. 5 in the Spring of '93, fell to No. 7 in the fall with a 4.8 market share.

It comes as no surprise that country remains the dominant music format in the Midland-Odessa market. KGEE, KNFM, KCRS (103.3 FM) and KCRS (550-AM), the four stations that devote their entire programming schedules to the format, combined to pull in 34.6 percent of the local market. Add in KCDQ (102.1 FM), which plays a mix of classic rock and new country, and 38 percent of the local radio audience listens to stations that play country at least part of the time.

A share indicates the percentage of households with radios in use.

My father, the stooge

■ Gerard Depardieu's comic turns take on an almost stooge-like quality in his latest film, 'My Father, the Hero.'

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

Might as well go scout out a new Moe Howard and Larry Fine — they're all that's missing from the task of rebuilding Three Stooges around the celebrated French actor Gerard Depardieu.

■ 'My Father, the Hero,' is showing at the UA Cine 4.

So who said anything about any resemblance to Curly Howard? In a swoop completing the arc he started with "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "Green Card," Depardieu has become a Shemp Howard for a new era — befuddled, jowly, bleary, fidgety, and hilarious in the hokiest slapstick way.

All that's missing from his performance in "My Father, the Hero," new from the Disney plant, is the kind of agitated mumbling that Shemp used to pull when confronted with some overwhelming threat.

The winning absurdity here is that Depardieu is overwhelmed by a harmless teenybopper (Katherine Heigl, playing his daughter from a failed marriage). She is a precocious sort, intent upon charming boys with her "maturity" and "worldliness." And she believes the easiest way to fake these qualities is to tell vacationing acquaint-

SMALL-TOWN COMEDY, BIG-TIME LAUGHS

'You watch all those guys on TV and they all sound alike. Mediocre comics — that's been part of the demise of comedy. I've literally had guys open a show for me that were selling shoes in a mall two weeks earlier.'

Kirchenbauer returns to roots

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

Bill Kirchenbauer and David Letterman both emerged on the comedy scene almost simultaneously. It was 1977. Letterman was the awkward kid from Indiana with the gap-tooth grin; Kirchenbauer, a Floridian from St. Petersburg who did the killer typewriter impression on his hairless forehead.

Everyone knows what has become of Letterman. By now he is the King of American comedy. The late night talk show host imitated by professionals and amateurs alike.

But comedy fans have never quite bought in to Kirchenbauer the way they have Letterman. In the late '70s and early '80s, Kirchenbauer was a big draw at comedy clubs everywhere, a career that later would blossom into "Just the Ten of Us," his own sitcom in which he starred as the irascible Coach Lubbock.

It is 1994 now. Letterman's status remains huge; "Just the Ten of Us" has long since been cancelled. Letterman has his nightly Top 10 lists; Kirchenbauer is a cruise ship comic on the Royal Carribean line, with brief stints at venues such as the Midland Hilton. All the while, Kirchenbauer still hopes for an audition that thusfar hasn't come. An audition that would return him to nightly prime time sit-com land.

It is frustrating, Kirchenbauer said recently, to be stuck in the middle of thousands of miles of nothing but water for two and three weeks at a time, unable to be near a phone, a phone that so far hasn't rung with word of the long-awaited audition. One of the highlights of his cruises, Kirchenbauer said, is the six or seven hours that the ship will pass Puerto Rico. It is then that he can pull out his cellular and check in with his agent, or his wife and small son.

Despite a lack of television exposure of late, Bill Kirchenbauer genuinely likes what he's doing. Watching him entertain a crowd at the Hilton last weekend was a throwback to the '70s. Those who remember his act and who were

A look at TV at the half-way point

As we begin our trek into TV's second season, it's time to look back on the Top 10 programs in the just-completed first half. Despite the overabundance of trash on TV (again), there were a few diamonds in the sludge.

Patterson

("NYPD Blue" would be included on most lists, but this one is for programs available for local viewing):

10. "Against the Grain," cancelled. The NBC family drama was never given a snowball's chance, which is a shame. Maybe even a crime. The program was a football-based drama set in Texas that had the intelligence to spare us any beefcake high-school locker room scenes. The dialogue was intelligent, the plotlines believable and, yes, sometimes a bit hokey. But the overall quality of the program made the viewer forgiving of the cornball aspect that was sprinkled throughout the all-too short eight-episode life of the series.

9. "Harts of the West," CBS. Started out with a bang and has since cooled a little, but writing an hour-long humorous western each and every week has to be a difficult chore. Still, it remains a bright spot on the schedule. And it is even brighter when Lloyd Bridges makes one of his recurring appearances.

8. "Star Trek: The Next Generation," Fox. Still the best thing the fledgling network has to offer. Briton Patrick Stewart is one of the genre's top actors — maybe the best now that Michael Moriarty is leaving "Law and Order" — and is almost as strong an authority figure as was James T. Kirk. Can a British version of "T.J. Hooker" and "Rescue 911" be far behind?

7. "Seinfeld," NBC. The media adore it, but no show can be as good as some critics have made this one. Sein-heads embarrassingly fawn over Seinfeld and co-stars Jason Alexander, Michael Alexander and Julia Luis-Dreyfuss. Despite a lack of original storylines this year, it is still a notch above most of the garbage on these days.

6. "L.A. Law," NBC. Now that it's finally back on, enjoy it while you can. Whispers indicate the show's demise may be just around the corner, despite the fact it is again quality viewing.

5. "Frasier," NBC. Remember when everyone tuned in for "Seinfeld," and happened to stick around for "Frasier?" Now it's the other way around, at

Murphy rides tall on cowboy trail

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The competitive streak in Michael Martin Murphy almost got the best of him.

Murphy

He had escaped the system — his "Cowboy Songs" in 1990 not only proved the genre was still commercially viable, it inspired a sequel and a whole record label, Warner Western. Point proven, it was time to head back into the recording studio and make a mainstream country album, get hits on the radio again.

That album was made and turned in to Warner Bros. But don't look for it at the record store; it isn't there. Murphy had a change of heart, and requested that Warner Bros. not issue the record.

"Maybe that's a little bit of cowardice on my part," Murphy said in an interview from his office in Taos, N.M., where he also owns a ranch and a recording studio.

"When I made 'Cowboy Songs' in 1989, there were about 100 artists signed to major labels in Nashville.

"Somebody told me it's up to 300 the other day," he said. "The competition for airplay on the radio now is so fierce that acts are coming and going so quickly that it's almost disposable music, in my opinion.

"To compete with that I would really have to do the same thing and after 22 albums I don't want to do that anymore."

It's not that Murphy doesn't know how to make a commercial record. The ballad "Wildfire" was a No. 3 pop hit in 1975, and "What's Forever For" and "A Long Line of Love" were among his country hits in the 1980s.

For now, Murphy is choosing to let others push their names onto the charts. He says he had more work to do with cowboy music, confronting an aspect of it he had carefully avoided on the first two volumes.

"Cowboy Songs III — Rhymes of the Renegades" includes some of the myths of the Old West, a change from the scholarly correctness of the first two volumes. Like his other cowboy records, it combines old and new material.

"I went into three years of research specifically on the gunfighters, the outlaws, the robbers, the ruffians, the renegades of the West," Murphy said, "because I wanted to find out the truth as much as possible and try to sift out the legend and the myth from the reality.

"I realize now that the myth is a very important statement about where we are as Americans — what we created it into is historically and sociologically as important an issue as what really happened. And they're two separate subjects."

The album tackles both, with renditions of such standards as "Billy the Kid" and "Streets of Laredo," balanced with originals that are more fact-based. Murphy's extensive liner notes sort it all out.

Also included is a rendition of "El Paso," the late Marty Robbins classic, and a duet between Robbins and Murphy on "Big Iron." That was possible because Robbins was one of the first artists to use multitrack recording.

Murphy doesn't just record Western songs: He is an active rancher, and also promotes the culture.

Tommy Lee Jones shuns spotlight

By Patricia Bibby
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — It's halfway through an interview with Tommy Lee Jones and we're standing — make that wobbling — in the middle of his hotel room.

Jones

He's holding up my right leg at the knee. I've got his right leg and we are balanced with our hands on each other's shoulders.

We begin to hop around in a circle, each on one leg, while uttering — make that laughing — the syllables "dahh-doy" over and over and over. It doesn't last very long because he collapses in a fit of giggles.

Ladies and gentlemen, meet Tommy Lee Jones, the deeply intense, piercingly intelligent, prickly, gruff-and-tumble actor ... and little-known master of the Dance of the Idiots.

He's been dubbed "ever-caustic" in Entertainment Weekly and "extraornery" in Time magazine. He's made a career playing slippery smart, twisted, cruel, eccentric and even sweetly sad characters. But in person, there's one more adjective to describe Jones: goofy.

The Dance of the Idiots is just one way his goofiness manifests. He says he performs it back home in San Antonio, Texas, with his 11-year-old son, Austin.

"We do a lot of goofy stuff," Jones says. "In fact, we're just goofy all the time. Everybody's happier."

These days, the 47-year-old Jones has a lot of reason to be happy himself.

After his riveting performance as the driven lawman in "The Fugitive" — which has some many whispering "Academy Award" — he's lava hot.

He plays a tormented Vietnam vet in Oliver Stone's epic, "Heaven and Earth," due out this month. He's an archetypal redneck prison warden in Stone's upcoming "Natural Born Killers," a U.S. attorney in Joel Schumacher's "The Client" and a psychotic bomber in "Blown Away."

"This is Tommy's year," says producer Arnold Kopelson, who worked with Jones on "The Fugitive" and earlier on "Fire Birds." "I think he's being recognized for the first time as a leading actor."

Stone calls him "a bit of a Gable character — big and strong." Others have dubbed him a southwestern Bogart. Those are easy labels, however, for a man who's essentially a 6-foot, 193-pound enigma.

At a recent interview, he shakes hands with a firm grip but in his eyes there's the slightest wince of shyness. He answers questions formally and incisively and sometimes with a pedantic flair, but every now and then his stony, craggy visage cracks into a resounding laugh.

In "Heaven and Earth," Jones plays a character just as complex.

He's Sgt. Steve Butler, who returns from Vietnam after marrying Le Ly (Hiep Thi Le), a woman who has seen her village shredded as a savage battleground. Butler is a man who desperately seems to want to do the right thing but is driven astray by some inexplicable inner force.

"He's a hero in Vietnam and when he gets back to the U.S., he's a nobody," Stone said. "The pressures of the system defeat him."

The film also works as a meditation on the nature of human suffering and why some draw harder lots than others. Did it force Jones to come to any conclusions on why some of us get off easier?

"No, I don't get forced in to doing things like that," Jones says bluntly. "I cannot come to any conclusions on that particular question. ... But I'm not going to beat myself up because I don't know why. If I were supposed to know why, I'd know.

"There are a lot of good questions in the film," he finally adds philosophically. "A lot of healthy questions."

He's equally oblique on the subject of religion and spirituality.

"It's a spiritual film," he says. "If your question is, 'Do I have a spiritual life?' the answer is 'Yes.'"

And what sort of religion does he practice? "Mine."

Katie always does her homework

By Phil Kloer
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Tonight's another school night for Katie Couric.

That's how Couric refers to nights when she must go to bed early for her morning stint as co-anchor of NBC's "Today." And like school nights when she was a kid, she does an hour or two of "homework," preparing for the next day's guest.

"I've got a 21/2-year-old (Elinor) and an understanding husband (Jay Monahan) — sometimes more understanding than others — and once in a while I'd just like to relax at night like normal people," Couric, 37, said while in Atlanta during Super Bowl week to do "Today" from the Georgia Dome and visit friends.

"But I can't come into an interview unprepared. I'm just too terrified. I'm driven by fear."

Actually, she's driven by NBC staff car every morning before dawn to "Today," where she has been anchoring — in more ways than one — since April 1991. She joined Bryant Gumbel in the wake of NBC's mishandling of the Jane Pauley-Deborah Norville transition and quickly won praise, and viewers, for bringing stability to the sinking show (now No. 2, barely behind "Good Morning America") and a willingness to stand her ground against the smart-and-he-knows-it Gumbel.

"He can be intimidating," she says of her co-anchor. "I think people misinterpret confidence and ability sometimes and think he's arrogant. But I'm not intimidated because I'm fairly confident in my abilities as well."

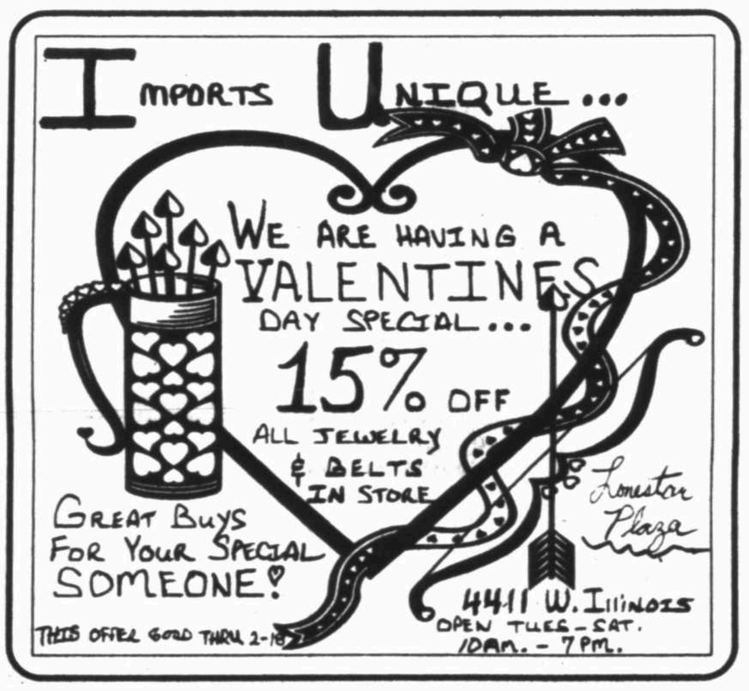

The criticism of Gumbel has gone beyond arrogance. In a 1992 book, a former "Today" show staffer accused Gumbel of abusive language to women and of fostering a "locker-room mentality," and Gumbel calls himself "a guy's guy."

"Yeah, Bryant can, once in a while with the guys, be kind of a pig," Couric said. "But can't every guy?"

The main adjective used — and overused — to describe Couric is "perky," which she said was popularized by "lazy reporters."

N.Y. Times News Service

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: ★★★★ — Don't miss it; ★★★ — worth your while; ★★ — Has it moments; ★ — If you must)

THE AIR UP THERE: Kevin Bacon plays a college basketball coach out to re-energize his failing career by recruiting a star player — from Kenya. But the gifted athlete (played by talented newcomer Charles Gitonga Maina) can't leave because, well, because there'd be no movie if he could. Despite the cliche-ridden and somewhat politically incorrect story line, director Paul M. Glaser delivers a good-natured, energetic outing helped enormously by his two appealing stars. PG. Rating: ★★

BEETHOVEN'S 2ND: Even animals are discovering family values, or so it appears in this sequel to the 1992 hit about a smart, messy Saint Bernard and the suburban family that takes him in. This time, Beethoven finds a mate and sires four adorable purebreds, who are nursed by his young owners after the mother is whisked out of town by her mean, dog-hating custodian (Debi Mazur). Charles Grodin as hapless homeowner George Newton is, as ever, a joy to behold, and with puppies this adorable, who needs hip? PG. Rating: ★★½

BLINK: A gripping thriller with an implausible but intriguing gimmick. Madeleine Stowe is a long-blind Chicago woman whose retinal transplants don't just lead to a new sense of emotional insecurity — they cause images she sees to register in her brain hours and days after they occur. When she eyeballs a neighbor's murderer, this syndrome becomes even more problematic. Aidan Quinn is the detective who falls in love with the unreliable witness. Michael Apted ("Coal Miner's Daughter") directs with loose but steadily increasing suspense, and tosses in a lot of nifty visuals. R. Rating: ★★★

FLESH AND BONE: More successful as a mood piece than anything else, this Southern Gothic screwball romance is mightily concerned with fate. As a child, Arlis Sweeney assisted in the murders of a rural Texas family. As an adult played by Dennis Quaid, he literally drives around in circles, trying to avoid what he fears may be his own violent nature. Taking up with Meg Ryan's runaway wife only shows Arlis that the past never goes away. Nothing here makes a lot of sense, but it sure feels interesting. Written and directed by Steve Kloves of equally quirky "Fabulous Baker Boys" fame. R. Rating: ★★★

GERONIMO: AN AMERICAN LEGEND: Wes Studi plays the legendary Apache war leader, and Gene Hackman, Robert Duvall and Jason Patric are some of the conflicted white guys trying to stop him. Walter Hill directs excellent battle sequences but does not build up any narrative momentum, despite an admirable attempt to avoid judging anyone as a clear-cut hero or villain. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

GRUMPY OLD MEN: Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau play retired neighbors and Ann Margret the widow who heats up their long-simmering feud in this amiable comedy set in a small Minnesota community during icy midwinter. "The Odd Couple" it ain't — it lacks the manic edge — but Lemmon and Matthau are in fine form and, without taking itself too seriously, the film does make the point (often missed in Hollywood) that there is love and sex beyond middle age. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

IRON WILL: A dog sled race movie that really flies when the pooches are mushing, but goes all mush-mouthed whenever anyone tries to talk. Built around a 1917 Winnipeg to St. Paul contest, in which a plucky young American (Mackenzie Astin) competes against more seasoned Canadians and Europeans. Onetime "Hill Street Blues" actor Charles Haid directs the out-door action superbly; he can't overcome the trite, "gotta win" plot and tineared dialogue, though. PG. Rating: ★★½

MRS. DOUBTFIRE: Robin Williams in drag sounds a lot funnier than he turns out to be in "Mrs. Doubtfire," the production debut of Williams and wife Marsha Garces Williams. Overly long and sentimental, the story of an out-of-work San Francisco actor who disguises himself as an elderly British matron so that his ex-wife (Sally Field) will hire him to baby-sit for their three kids never makes much of its opportunities for comedy (although Harvey Fierstein does shine in a teensy role as Williams' cheerful gay brother). Overstated direction by Chris Columbus ("Home Alone") doesn't help any; better rent "Tootsie" if you're looking for a good cross-dressing time. PG-13. Rating: ★½

THE PELICAN BRIEF: A New Orleans law student's theory about who ordered the contract killings of two Supreme Court justices reaches all the right people with deadly results in Alan J. Pakula's solid but uninspiring adaptation of John Grisham's best-selling political thriller. Julia Roberts is lovely as the student and Denzel Washington is well-cast as the investigative reporter she hooks up with, but both characters are sadly underdrawn, and Pakula's practiced thriller riffs are getting a bit frayed around the edges. PG-13. Rating: ★★

PHILADELPHIA: Tom Hanks is excellent as an AIDS-stricken, gay attorney, suing his former firm for wrongful dismissal. Denzel Washington is equally terrific as his lawyer, fighting the case on anti-discrimination grounds and despite his own homophobia. Jonathan Demme directs with an air of cautious confrontation — he wants viewers to transcend their prejudices, but keeps things entertainingly slick and idealized. PG-13. Rating: ★★★

ROBOCOP 3: Thanksgivng comes early this year in the form of this utter turkey of a sequel to the once witty, exciting future cop series. Robert John Burke replaces Peter Weller as the cyborg policeman. This time, he sides with urban guerrillas fighting a conglomerate that's trying to bulldoze their homes. There are Termininjas, too; like everything else about the movie, their potential is totally wasted. PG-13. Rating: 0 stars.

SHADOWLANDS: Anthony Hopkins turns in yet another tour de force performance in Richard Attenborough's poignant account of the late-in-life romance between Oxford don and children's book author C.S. Lewis and New York writer Joy Gresham (Debra Winger). Beautifully photographed and mercifully restrained in its portrayal of a reserved intellectual who after a lifetime of emotional detachment allows himself to experience the rewards and pain of selfless devotion. PG. Rating: ★★★

SISTER ACT 2: BACK IN THE HABIT: In the original, Whoopi Goldberg played a tacky Las Vegas lounge singer who revitalizes the stodgy convent where she is forced to pose as a nun to hide from the mob. This time, she tackles a stodgy inner-city parochial school with song, dance and attitude. Bill Duke navigates the formula smoothly, and the ever feisty Goldberg gets lots of support from a huge cast headed by Maggie Sullivan as Mother Superior, James Coburn as a nasty lay school administrator, and Kathy Najimy as the ever perky Sister Mary Patrick. Converts are unlikely, but the faithful probably won't gripe. PG. Rating: ★★

KIRCHENBAUER: Comic unphased by cartoon

fortunate enough to have attended one of the Hilton shows feel as though they were returned to that simpler comedic time. A time when comedy was a burgeoning, fun industry, unlike today, when almost everyone feels they're funny enough to inflict their humor on others.

"You watch all those guys on TV," Kirchenbauer said, "and they all sound alike. Mediocre comics — that's been part of the demise of comedy. I've literally had guys open a show for me that were selling shoes in a mall two weeks earlier. And clubs wonder why they don't have a lot of business. It's because they're hiring these guys."

Kirchenbauer said it will take "the expulsion of the mediocre comic" for comedy to return to its thriving days again.

As for playing small towns like Midland, it is still appealing for Kirchenbauer, who has also guest starred on sit-coms like "Night Court," "Growing Pains," "Mork & Mindy" and the cult classic, "Fernwood Tonight."

"I enjoy doing stand-up," he said. "This is not a bad gig. I left home Thursday, and I get back on Sunday."

Home is Los Angeles. To be more precise, about 10 miles from Northridge, epicenter of last month's killer earthquake. Kirchenbauer, his wife and son, though, were lucky enough to escape the quake with only a few drinking glasses in the cabinet being broken.

Kirchenbauer left for L.A. in the '70s, when he was still in his early 20s, to pursue a career in comedy. He stayed in Southern California, even through he went through a hard period.

"I followed a girlfriend to L.A.," he recalled. "I was a disc jockey at the time. One day, I knocked on the door of her apartment and she was sitting there with a guy who had his shirt off. It was too far to drive back to Florida, so I stayed in L.A."

Kirchenbauer said that compared to some of the televised comedy shows and movies today, audience members "get more yuck for their buck" at one of his shows. "I don't just eat up 55 minutes of your time," he said. "I get a pretty fair amount of laughs."

Kirchenbauer's humor has held up well over the last 15 years. His physical stature — balding, slightly chubby — as well as the way he dresses — sort of like an insurance salesman who's had a bad day — contribute to the physicality of his routine. His bits, ranging from impressions to stories about the invention of bagpipes, are as funny and even more polished today as they were years ago.

Perhaps the one Kirchenbauer gag that's been repeated more than any others is, "What do you call a boomerang that won't come back? A stick."

He rarely performs topical humor, fearing the jokes he writes will become outdated far too soon for his liking, and says if he comes up with 10 good bits a year he feels a sense of accomplishment.

Kirchenbauer won't say which comics he likes today, and also refuses to get too involved in the "Beavis and Butthead" uproar.

"I have a hard time holding much against a couple of drawings," he said. "It's like the preacher who was saying that Bert and Ernie (of "Sesame Street") are gay. He said they were gay because they're guys and their beds are in the same bedroom. The guy from "Sesame Street" says, 'Come on, they're puppets!'

"But I do think you have to have a certain amount of responsibility not to glamorize putting firecrackers in cats' butts. That's not fun or neat. The sad thing is that Beavis and Butthead represent a lot of real human beings running around."

One comedian Kirchenbauer has a strong dislike for is MTV's Pauly Shore.

"I look at this guy," Kirchenbauer said, "and I just want to vomit. He's unlikeable, he's untalented, he thinks he can improvise. I've had directors tell me he doesn't even know where his (stage) light is half the time.

"But I suppose idiots who have four brain cells left think he's funny."

Kirchenbauer doesn't have much use for hecklers, either. Although he welcomes playful bantering with audience members, there is a line that hecklers — often those who have tipped a few too many during the show — can cross.

"There was a guy in St. Louis," Kirchenbauer recalled. "He was sitting about six feet from me. He came up on stage and took a swing at me and I dropped him like a bull in a bullfight."

Kirchenbauer said the man later threatened legal action against him, but he reminded the heckler that "he took a swing at me in front of 3,200 people, so he can't say I started it."

PATTERSON: Brett Butler's 'Grace' true to life

least in one local household. "Frasier" is steadily developing into one of the most consistent comedy surprises in recent years. Rarely a side-splitter, it is a sit-com that fits more into the "comfortable chuckler" category. One of the season's high points came when Frasier's ex, Lillith (Bebe Neuwirth), paid a surprise visit just two days ago.

4. "Home Improvement," ABC. Tim Allen and Patricia Richardson together are the funniest couple on network television. And Al Borland, the real brains behind "Tool Time" as everyone knows, is TV's top straight man.

3. "Grace Under Fire," ABC. Someone said recently that Brett Butler's Grace is a lot like "Roseanne" — only Grace loves her children. Which sums the show up quite nicely. Both programs depict comedic situations experienced by families largely thoght of today as normal or average. "Grace" is doing a much better job of it than "Roseanne."

2. "Murphy Brown," CBS. After trudging through a below average season last year, "Murphy" is back and better than ever. Storylines about political correctness and the Clinton's cat, Socks, have been the television season's comedic highlights thus far.

1. "Late Show With David Letterman," CBS. A program that rarely misses the mark, it is night in and night out the funniest, most entertaining program on television. Letterman is Ed Sullivan, Johnny Carson and Steve Allen all rolled into one hugely entertaining package for the '90s.

Jimmy Patterson writes about radio, television and music for the Reporter-Telegram.

FATHER: Depardieu plays dad to habitually lying child

ances that her middle-aged traveling companion is her sweetheart.

None of which is made known to Depardieu, who is expecting a jolly family holiday only to find enraged hostility at every turn. The child lies like a rug, piling indignity upon indignity while her poor goof of a father struggles to make sense of the fine mess she has gotten him into.

Adapted by Francois Veber and Charlie Peters from Gerard Lauzier's French "Mon Pere, Ce Heros," the Disney version acknowledges adolescent sexuality far more matter-of-factly than would have been during Walt Disney's lifetime. Yet for all that, the film is essentially bland family fare, enlivened chiefly by Depardieu's self-effacing good humor and fine comic timing.

Midland College narrows women's field

■ Five coaches to be interviewed for first-ever women's coach at Midland College.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland College search committee has selected what appears to be a strong field of five coaches to be interviewed for the new position of women's head basketball coach, according to David Daniel, MC president.

The five finalists in alphabetical order are Dale Blaut, girls basketball coach at Amarillo High; Royce Chadwick, women's basketball coach at Howard College in Big Spring; Ron Jones, women's basketball coach of Western Texas College in Snyder; Charlie Mancil, women's basketball coach at Tyler Junior College; and Jim Raughton, girls basketball coach at Midland High.

"We feel like we have a quality group to choose from and we are looking forward to the interview process," said Daniel Friday.

One of the five will take over Midland College's maiden voyage into the world of women's junior college basketball, which will begin its inaugural season next fall.

"All five will be interviewed by the committee, Delnor Poss (MC athletic director) and me," Daniel said. "We hope to name a new women's basketball coach for Midland College within a week or so."

The five finalist came from a screening process that was done by a seven-member search committee. Midland College's Raymond Yell, assistant to the president, was not on the committee, but served as guardian of the committee.

The seven members of the committee were Ralph Way, MC board member; Bill Williams, MC booster club president; Clara King, division chairman of business studies; Jan Reed, director of student activities; Dale Westfall, business instructor; Claudia Hinds, director of testing; and Suzanne Martin, student body president.

Blaut has an 88-9 (.907) record at AHS over three years and his Lady Sandies won the state championship last March with a 35-1 record. His team is 28-1 this season and ranked No. 1 in the state and No. 9 in the nation by USA Today. In 14 years at Class A Channing, Blaut had a 231-99 (.700) record with nine district championships.

Midland knocks off No. 6 Abilene Cooper 57-52

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

How the mighty have fallen!

Midland High staged the biggest District 4-5A basketball upset of the year at the Midland High gym Friday night, slaying powerful and No. 6 state-ranked Abilene Cooper, 57-52.

It is the second year in a row that Cooper has visited the cozy confines of the MHS gym only to come away with a loss.

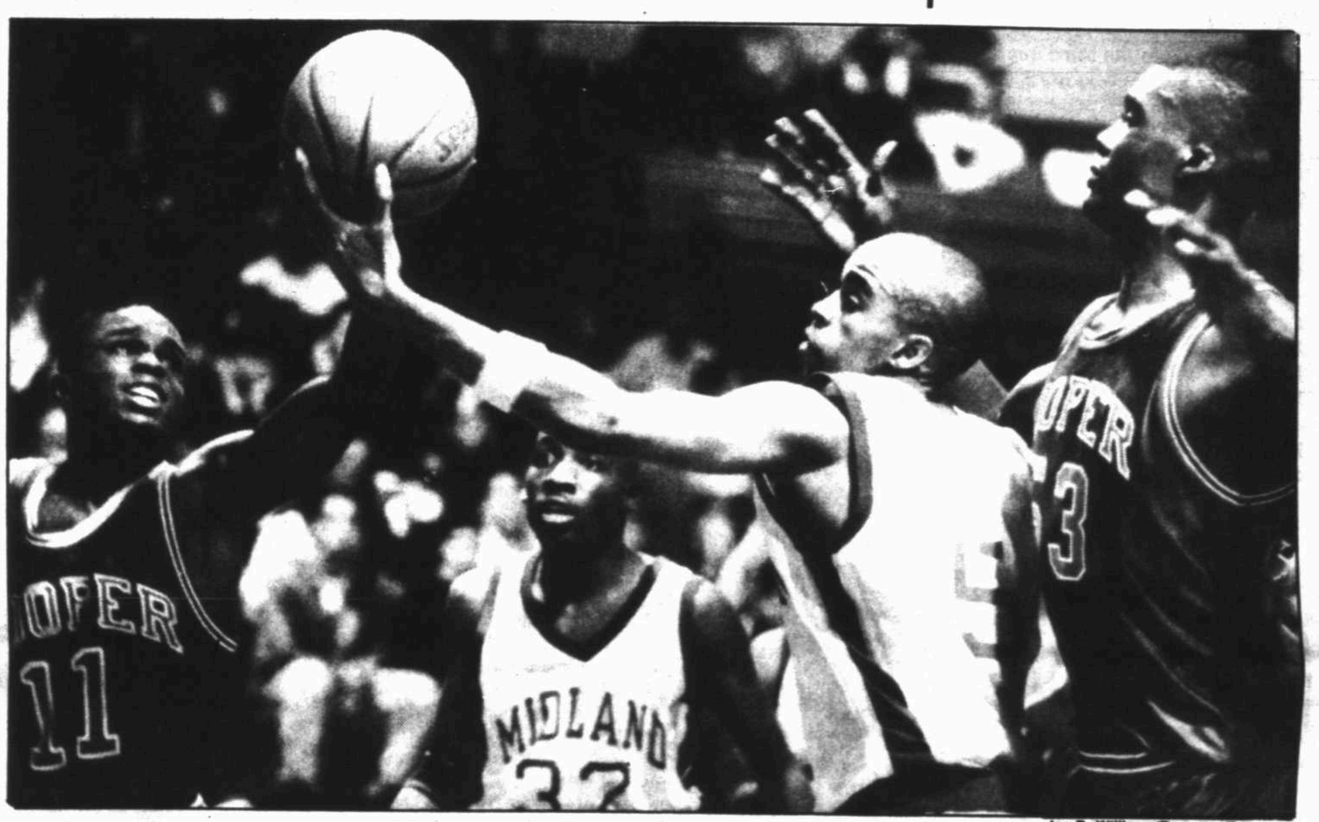

"We beat them because we played here (MHS gym)," MHS coach Jack Stephenson said. "We play at the Permian gym and they say they have the home court advantage. We play at our place and no one says that gives us an advantage. They say we should be playing somewhere else.

"These kids didn't play tonight like they were the fourth place team in the district like they were picked in the paper."

The victory did have a huge impact on the district race since MHS climbed into sole possession of third place with a 6-3 loop record, a meager one-half game behind second place Midland Lee, which defeated 5-4 Abilene High in a key road game, 90-72.

With three teams playoff bound from 4-5A, MHS is now in an excellent position to gain its second consecutive state

Buddy followed

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston linebackers coach Ronnie Jones said Friday he is joining former Oilers defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan in Phoenix.

The Phoenix Cardinals named Ryan their head coach on Thursday.

"Buddy Ryan has been the guy for me since I got into the NFL," Jones told KRIV-TV. "He gave me the opportunity in 1987 to get into the NFL. He has stuck by me, believed in me when I guess a lot of people probably didn't."

Jones spent one year in Houston after one year with the Los Angeles Raiders. He spent 1987-1990 as an assistant to Ryan at the Philadelphia Eagles.

Jones, who will be the Cardinals' defensive coordinator, was interviewed by telephone from Hawaii. He is attending Pro Bowl festivites as a guest of Oilers' defensive end Sean Jones.

UM players out

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Three University of Michigan basketball players were suspended Friday, and will not play Saturday against Michigan State for a "violation of team policy," coach Steve Fisher said.

In a written release, Fisher said he learned of the policy violation by Jimmy King, Ray Jackson and Chris Fields on Wednesday. He said he then informed athletic director Joe Roberson.

Midland Lee drops Lady Eagles

■ Lady Rebels win the third of their last five games and put Abilene High in a must-win situation to make it back to the playoffs.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

The Midland Lee Lady Rebels played the role of the spoilers Friday night, but they would have much rather played the role of the District 4-5A leaders.

"We feel kind of cheated because we're doing good right now," said senior wing Brandy Allen. "We're just starting to play good and the district's almost over."

The Lady Rebels played their best home District 4-5A game in the Lee gym and went on to rout Abilene High 59-42. Lee improved to 10-15 for the season and 3-8 in district play while Abilene (12-13, 5-6) dropped to fourth place and must now defeat third place San Angelo Central Tuesday for the third playoff spot.

Meanwhile, Midland High (27-3, 11-0) easily defeated Abilene Cooper 70-42 to set up a crucial game at Odessa High, which has district championship implications. Odessa (27-4, 10-1) edged host Central 49-48. With their win, the Lady Bulldogs clinched at least a share of the district title.

The reason why this win for the Lady Rebels was so convincing was the lack of mistakes. Lee has shown vast improvement in the second half of district play and has moved from last place to a tie for fifth place with idle Odessa Permian by winning three of its last five league games. But until Friday night, a high number of turnovers has kept the Lady Rebels from looking like the team they thought they could have been when the season started.

Lee coach Elise Kail credited the low number of turnovers (13) to simple teamwork.

"I saw more teamwork tonight than I've ever seen these girls play with," Kail said. "They had a cohesiveness that they haven't had before."

Everyone did it for Lee. Three of the Friday's starting five don't usually start for Lee. Farrah Fisher, Michelle Benson and Caroline Bryant joined regular starters junior post Krissy Woodard and senior post Deborah York and played for the entire first quarter.

With that lineup, Lee turned a 10-4 first-quarter defecit into a 28-21 lead by halftime.

The Lady Eagles fought back to within 38-34 with a barrage of three-

Saturday's objective for Midland High's girls soccer team is easy: get its first-ever win in district competition. But the Lady Bulldogs obstacle — Abilene Cooper — complicates the issue.

Cooper tops District 5-5A with Midland Lee with a 3-0 record, 5-3 overall. It will take a Midland High upset for it to improve its 0-2 league start.

Rangers sign power hitter for gonzo bucks

■ Juan Gonzalez moves into high rent district with seven year, $45.45 million contract.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — Outfielder Juan Gonzalez, who at times complained about his $525,000 salary last season, moved into the top 10 of baseball's money list Friday when he agreed to a $30.7 million, five-year contract.

Gonzalez, 24, agreed to a package that could be worth as much as $45.45 million over seven years if the Rangers exercise options for 1999 and 2000.

"This kid is going to be in the Hall of Fame, and if anybody is worthy of it, he is," Rangers president Tom Schieffer said. "We have our fourth-place hitter for the next seven years. Now, all we have to do is make sure he stays healthy."

Gonzalez, who hit 46 home runs last year, gets a $2 million signing bonus: $500,000 payable when the contract is approved, $500,000 at this year's All-Star break and $1 million on Dec. 31, 1995. He gets salaries of $3 million this year, $5 million in 1995, $6.7 million in 1996 and $7 million in the 1997 and 1998 seasons. The club options call for $7.25 million in 1999 and $7.5 million in 2000.

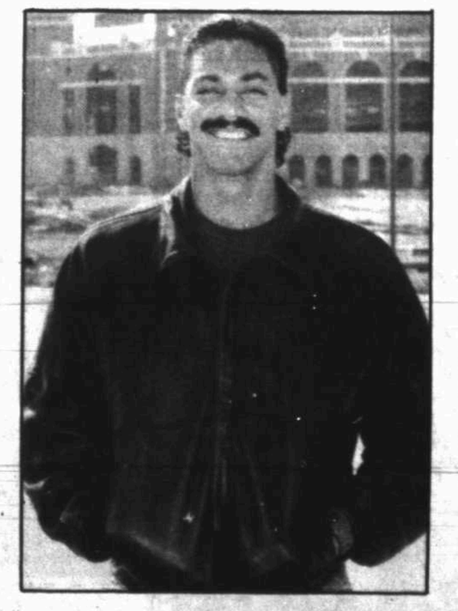

"We think it is really the beginning of a great championship era for the Texas Rangers," Schieffer said.

If the options are exercised, the deal would surpass Barry Bonds' $43.75 million, six-year contract with San Francisco, currently the largest package in baseball.

Gonzalez, a Puerto Rican native who first joined the Rangers' organization in Sarasota at age 17, said the new contract wouldn't give him the big head.

"No change. Juan is Juan and Juan will be Juan," Gonzalez said. "This will make me work even harder. There is a lot of responsibility with a contract like this. Now, we need to bring a division

Elliott becomes Rocket in trade

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Sean Elliott was traded to the Houston Rockets by the Detroit Pistons on Friday for forwards Robert Horry and Matt Bullard and two second-round draft choices.

Rockets spokesman Bill Wickett confirmed the trade had been made.

Elliott

Elliott, 26, and in his fifth NBA season, has averaged 17 points per game. An All-Star last season for the San Antonio Spurs, he was acquired by Detroit in the offseason for Dennis Rodman.

Despite their 32-11 record, the Rockets have had trouble scoring when opponents are able to stifle Hakeem Olajuwon. Houston coaches believe they need another scoring threat to relieve that pressure.

Horry, 23, at 6-foot-10 a small forward, has played an average of 28.3 minutes per game this season, scoring 8.6 points and grabbing 5.3 rebounds.

The 6-10 Bullard is averaging 3.9 points and 1.3 rebounds per game.

SOCCER: Ketter is doubtful for game

From 1C

Hodkinson said. "We got a chance to see them play in Wichita Falls and they are pretty impressive. The girls are going to have to play well Saturday."

In other Midland 5-5A play today, the district-leading Midland High Bulldogs play at Abilene Cooper at noon while Midland Lee's boys host Abilene High at 2 p.m. and its girls play at Abilene High at 2 p.m.

The Lady Bulldogs, playing for the first time in district competition, lost their loop opener to Midland Lee 2-0 and then fell to Odessa Permian 5-2 Tuesday after an open date last Saturday.

"I think we were in both games we played in district," Hodkinson said. "We've had our chances to score and things are going to happen for us in a matter of time."

Sophomore center midfielder Jacque Ketter continues to lead the Lady 'Dawgs in scoring. She had both goals in the loss the Permian for a season total of nine. But her status for Saturday's game is uncertain because of a knee injury suffered against Permian.

One consolation for Midland High is the two 5-5A teams they lost to are first and third in the district and have one league loss between them.

"I told the girls that Lee loss is looking better and better for us," Hodkinson said. "If we had scored that early penalty kick (against Lee) it may have changed things emotionally."

Lee boys coach Eddie Bull calls his team's game with Abilene High (1-1 in district, 8-2 overall) "do or die." The Rebels have played well in losses to Midland High and San Angelo (both 2-0 in district). But a loss Saturday would give them a 1-3 5-5A start.

Midland High's boys and Lee's girls are both tied for first in district. The Bulldogs (2-0, 7-0) can increase their lead over second-place Cooper (2-1, 7-4) and need a win to stay with San Angelo in first. The Lady Rebels opponent, Abilene High, is 1-1 and 4-3.

BULLDOGS: MHS stays in playoff race playoff berth with one road trip to Odessa High and two games, again at the MHS gym, against San Angelo and Abilene High.

From 1C

"The fact we have two of the final three games here, gives us an excellent position," Stephenson said.

MHS got 19 points and five rebounds from Jumon Hailey, including seven points in the deciding fourth period of play. Hailey was coming off a four-point game in an upset loss to Odessa Permian last Tuesday.

"Maybe I was off or Permian played a great game, but I didn't have a good game against Permian," Hailey said. "Coach (Stephenson) talked with me all week about that and I came pumped up for this one. We came out and were strictly business. We can't be beat in this building and that's the way we feel about it."

The Bulldogs also got 13 points from Donald Carter and when those two put it together, other teams pay the price. That was evident Friday.

Still, the biggest game may have come from Camron Stotts off the bench. MHS post Jason Kopp got into foul trouble early and Stotts came in. The two were charged with holding down 6-9, Indiana-bound Andrae Patterson. Patterson had 20 points, low for the 30-point performer and 15 rebounds, but he didn't have his way inside against Kopp and Stotts.

"Camron did an excellent job coming in for me," Kopp said. "That was a big key. Patterson had 20 points, but it felt like we did a good job on him for the most part. He's a great player."

Stephenson added, "I don't give game balls, but if I did, I think it would have to go to Camron. What a player he was tonight. If we get people in foul trouble, we've got the kids who can come in and do the job. This was a good example."

MHS lost to Cooper in the first half on the road when the Cougars hit 10 three-point shots, but Cooper managed only one-of-11 treys against the Bulldogs.

Cooper's Jason Pillion had a strong game for Cooper with 16 points and five rebounds, but there was little help for him and Patterson from the rest of the team. The only major statistic the Cougars led in was in rebounds, 30-18.

The game was tied four times. Cooper held the lead seven different times and MHS led seven times, but was on top at the end when it counted.

MHS took control of the game late in the third period when Hailey's three-point shot with four seconds left gave MHS a 42-37 lead. The Bulldogs climbed from there to a 50-39, 11-point margin with 5:37 left in the game on two free throws by Stotts.

Cooper was able to close the gap to 55-52 with 52 seconds left as Patterson had eight of his 20 points in the final quarter, but the Cougars could never dent the margin below that.

MHS now travels Tuesday to play winless Odessa High, an 89-76 loser to San Angelo Friday and then has San Angelo and Abilene High at the MHS gym to finish the year. With wins over OHS and San Angelo, the Bulldogs could do no worse than a district playoff of some kind over Lee or Abilene High. Right now, Abilene High is the odd man out as MHS again took control of its own destiny.

The loss was the first of the district campaign for Cooper, which fell to 9-1 and 22-5 for the year.

In junior varsity action, Cooper took a 65-50 win with Byron Camp hitting 19 points and Andy Pape 10. MHS got 12 points from Brian Knottek.

LEE: Woodard scores 18 in win

-point goals in the third quarter. But the Lady Rebels hung on to their composure — something they lacked when down in previous games.

While Abilene bombed the Lee defense with three treys in the third and outscored the Lady Rebels 8-2 in the first 2:50 of the second half, the Lee offense came back with a plan of their own. York grabbed a big offensive rebound, made the putback and started a 8-0 run, which included a three-pointer each by senior point guard Dee Kendricks and Bryant.

Kendricks, who finished with 14 points, decided to keep the pace going and opened the fourth with another trey, which sparked another 8-0 run and put the Lady Rebels ahead 47-34.

The fast break was working — as evidenced by Kendricks' layup after Bryant drove the length of the floor for the assist. The inside game was working — Woodard finished with a game-high 18 points including eight points in the final period. The free throws were going in — Lee made 10-of-15 from the line.

It all came together for the Lady Rebels.

"Finally," expressed a group of players after the game.

"We played so much like a team," said senior post Heather Huff, who scored nine points.

Woodard added, "Just imagine what we could have done if we had played like this all year."

Mostly, the Lady Rebels said, they just wanted to show the district that they weren't as bad as many people thought when they opened league play with an 0-7 record.

"They're a group that knows they're better than we were in our losing streak," Kail said.

In a Lee sweep, the junior varsity defeated Abilene 44-22 behind Sarah Kniffen's 13 points while Claire Wright and Sam Sailler each had eight. Shanell Magrew scored 14 points to lead the sophomores to a 38-37 win over Abilene. Sharon Covington gave a good defensive effort for the sophomores.

Ex-Jet Coslet pleads not guilty

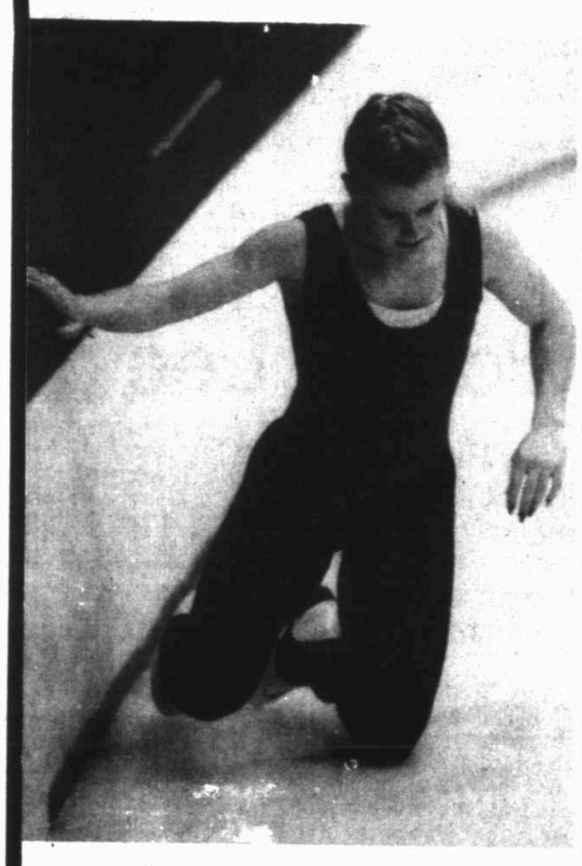

NEW YORK (AP) — Former New York Jets coach Bruce Coslet said he never refused to hire an offensive coordinator, a reason cited by general manager Dick Steinberg for his firing on Jan. 7.

"I welcomed somebody taking the pressure off me," he told the Madison Square Garden Network in taped interviews scheduled to be televised Friday and Sunday nights. "I was all for it."

Coslet said he was surprised Jets president Steve Gutman and general manager Dick Steinberg fired him. He had met with Steinberg several days earlier.

"I was in shock," Coslet said. "And then I listened to that press conference where they introduced Pete (Carroll, the new Jets coach) and when they gave the justification for my firing, I was just floored. Why didn't he tell me this before when I asked him (Steinberg) three days before that to give me a critique and some input? When I asked him face to face, in front of Mr. Gutman, why didn't he say all that stuff?"

Coslet said he talked with Jets owner Leon Hess and "he explained to me how upset he was that this had happened. He explained that the two guys he hired to run the Jets, Dick Steinberg and Steve Gutman, both recommended that I be let go and he had to do it."

Top-seed women advance in ITA

DALLAS (AP) — The top-seeded women advanced Friday to the semifinals at the National Intercollegiate Tennis Championships, the third leg of the ITA Collegiate Grand Slam at Brookhaven Country Club.

But upsets dotted men's play.

Mississippi State's Laurent Orsini, the No. 1 seed, was upset in the quarterfinals by eighth-seeded Brandon Coupe 6-4, 6-3. Orsini, the top-ranked player in the country, captured the first leg of the ITA Grand Slam, the SkyTel National Clay Court Championships in the fall.

Coupe will face unseeded Paul Robinson of Texas Christian in the semi-finals Saturday. Robinson eliminated Stanford's Michael Flanagan, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3 in the second Friday. Flanagan, the third seed, is a native of Dallas.

The top three women's seeds advanced to the semifinals. Top ranked Lucie Ludvigova earned two straight sets wins Friday. The Texas newcomer will face UNLV's Marianne Vallin elminated fourth-seeded Paloma Collantes in the first round and UCLA's Jane Chi, the fifth seed, in the quarterfinals.

The other women's semifinals will pit No. 2 Angela Lettiere of Georgia and Texas' Kelly Pace, the third seed.

Comeback nets Lee boys victory

ABILENE — Shane McCulloch came off the bench to score 15 points here Friday night and help Midland Lee come back from a 26-12 first quarter deficit to beat Abilene High, 90-72, in a key District 4-5A basketball game.

The win gives Lee sole possession of second place with a 7-3 mark, ½-game ahead of Midland High and a full 1½ games over Abilene High, which fell to 5-4.

"We didn't start out the game real well but we chipped away at the lead," said Lee coach Jon House. "We just hung in their and played."

Lee cut the AHS lead to four by halftime. But Sean Low picked up his fourth foul seven seconds before intermission. McCulloch scored all of his points in the second half. He hit three three-pointers.

The Rebels had to overcome the hot shooting of AHS' Dan Wilson. Wilson had 33 points in the game including nine three-pointers. However, Lee's Michael Nunn had a season high 27 points.

"Our bench did a real good job," House said. "This is a tough place to win. They had a packed house."

Lee had 31 third quarter points to take a 73-66 lead and outscored the Eagles in the second half 52-30.

"If we beat Permian Tuesday, the worst thing that can happen to us, if we lose to Cooper, is a playoff for third," House said.

Midland (27-3, 11-0) clinched at least a share of the district title. This sets up Tuesday's district finale in which Midland can win the title outright or the Lady Bronchos can tie up the standings and force a district playoff.

Coveted back Douglas nears Baylor choice

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — It doesn't matter that Texas' all-time Class 5A rushing leader wants to share his immense talents with the Baylor Bears. Jerod Douglas isn't going anywhere until his mom says it's OK.

Converse Judson's Douglas signed a letter of intent with Baylor Wednesday morning. But Douglas' mother, Carol Douglas, refused to sign it, creating a small controversy and a lot of confusion among those tracking national letter of intent day.

"The letter of intent would not be valid," said Fred Jacoby, who has served as the chairman of the National Letter of Intent Committee since 1973. "But the student can still go wherever he wants to go."

Mrs. Douglas had expressed an interest in her son signing with the University of Texas. She called several newspapers around the state Jan. 24 announcing that Jerod would sign with the Longhorns.

Douglas had made official visits to Alabama, Texas, Baylor and Texas A&M. He canceled his last scheduled visit to Oklahoma after he narrowed his choice to either Texas or Baylor.

"He can still be recruited," Jacoby said. "When a student signs a letter, it's only an agreement for one academic year. The letter doesn't mean anything after that anyway."

Mrs. Douglas said late Wednesday that she intends to sign once she has a chance to visit the Waco campus.

'Mavs Davis has surgery, to miss season

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks forward Terry Davis underwent a four-hour operation on his left elbow Friday and will be out for the rest of the season.

Davis shattered the elbow last May 2 in an auto accident in New Boston, Va., but recovered sufficiently to play in 15 games this season, averaging 3.7 points.

But calcium deposits and wires inserted into the elbow to promote healing hindered Davis' effectiveness and he elected to have surgery in order to get a head start on returning next season.

"We removed calcium deposits, scar tissue and some of the wires in order to increase his motion," said team physician Dr. T.O. Souryal.

Xavier McDaniel came off the bench to score 15 points for Boston. Dino Radja had 14, Robert Parish 13 and Rick Fox 10.

Lakers 95, Mavericks 87

DALLAS — Rookie George Lynch scored a season-high 26 points, including four down the stretch to hold off a Dallas rally, and the Los Angeles Lakers went on to snap a five-game road losing streak.

Elden Campbell, who had 19 points and 11 rebounds, hit a 12-footer with 4:59 to play to give the Lakers an 88-85 lead, then Lynch converted an offensive rebound to extend the margin to 90-85.

Jamal Mashburn had 22 points to pace the Mavericks, who won two of their previous three games after a 2-39 start. Dallas (4-41) got 14 points each from Jim Jackson and Doug Smith.

Vlade Divac had 15 points, 19 rebounds and seven assists for the Lakers, who got nine third-quarter points from Campbell to take a 78-70 lead into the final period.

Hawks 114, Knicks 102

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 34 points and Kevin Willis added 25 points and 14 rebounds as Atlanta snapped New York's six-game winning streak.

Atlanta's seventh victory in eight games put the Hawks (32-11) one-half game ahead of the Knicks (32-12) for the best record in the Eastern Conference.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 35 points and 16 rebounds.

A 3-pointer by Craig Ehlo then ignited a 10-2 Atlanta run that included a 3-pointer and tip-in by former Midland College standout Mookie Blaylock in the final minute that wrapped up the victory.

Starks added 20 points for the Knicks, who lost for only the third time in 15 games.

Blaylock finished with 22 points and 13 assists for the Hawks, who have won three in a row and 31 of their last 38.

Heat 124, Hornets 118

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Rony Seikaly scored 10 of his 21 points as Miami outscored Charlotte 30-12 to open the third quarter, then held off a comeback to hand the Hornets their fifth straight loss.

Committee investigates Harding's involvement

■ Skating panel to announce if evidence warrants disciplinary hearing against Harding.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Tonya Harding snubbed a U.S. Figure Skating Association panel Friday, and the International Olympic Committee took a hands-off posture on her status at the Winter Games.

From Lillehammer, Norway, to Portland, Ore., to the home of the USFSA in the snow-draped Rockies, Olympic officials and law enforcement authorities deliberated Harding's involvement in the attack on Nancy Kerrigan.

The five-member USFSA panel, along with a Portland sheriff's deputy, a Portland attorney who has been gathering evidence for the USFSA, and several others, met for 5½ hour to pore over affidavits, FBI reports and additional documents. The panel will announce Saturday whether it believes reasonable grounds exist to warrant a disciplinary hearing against Harding for violating the USFSA code of ethics.

That judgment will be passed along to USFSA president Claire Ferguson, who may take action against Harding or simply inform the U.S. Olympic Committee for separate action.

Foster hurdles Millrose record with win

NEW YORK (AP) — Retirement? What retirement?

Not for Greg Foster.

■ Millrose Games

The 35-year-old Foster, who announced that 1993 would be his final year as a hurdler but decided to come back this year after a disappointing season, signaled his return to competition with an historic victory Friday night.

Skimming over the hurdles with the zest of a much younger man, the bald Foster raced to victory in the 60-meter hurdles at the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

It was his 10th Millrose triumph, the most by any track athlete in the meet's 87-year history. Foster had shared the record with Hall of Famer hurdler Harrison Dillard, his idol.

The meet's all-time record-holder is pole vaulter Bob Richards, with 11.

AP Laserphoto

Jack Pierce (71), Greg Foster (center) and Tony Dees (72) race during the Men's 60-meter hurdle event at the Millrose Games Friday night. Foster won with a time of 7.61 seconds.

"Out of 17 years of running, last year was my worst ever," Foster, the three-time world outdoor champion, said in explaining his reason for running for another season.

Foster didn't appear as if he were ready for retirement Friday night.

Facing a star-studded field, including 1992 Olympic silver medalist Tony Dees and 1992 bronze medalist Jack Pierce, the long-legged Foster bolted from the blocks smartly, took the lead at the second hurdle and held it the rest of the way.

The winning time of 7.61 seconds was .04 seconds faster than Foster had run last year in winning his ninth Millrose title, matching Dillard's record.

"I'm not one to quit when I'm on the bottom," said Foster, winner of his first Millrose title in 1980. "I couldn't deal with that. I felt I needed to prove something, if to no one else but myself."

He proved Friday night that he still is a winner — and not yet ready for retirement.

"I had to come back," Foster said. "My conscience wouldn't let me quit the way my season ended last year. I didn't plan to come back, but the more I ran and the worse I ran, the more I wanted to come back."

No matter how well he performs this season, Foster said this would be his final indoor campaign.

Motorbike crackup to sideline Brave's Gant

By Ronald Blum

■ Baseball Roundup

NEW YORK — Just one week after his big bucks deal, Atlanta outfielder Ron Gant broke his right leg in a motorbike accident and will be sidelined for at least three months.

Gant, 28, underwent 2½ hours of surgery Thursday night at Atlanta's Piedmont Hospital to repair a compound fracture of two bones in his lower right leg. On Jan. 27, he agreed to a $5.5 million, one-year contract that wasn't guaranteed.

"It is highly unlikely he'll miss the entire season," Braves physician Dr. Joe Chandler said. "It is not likely to be a career-threatening injury."

On the contract front, Toronto first baseman John Olerud agreed Thursday to a $17 million, three-year deal.

Three Kansas City Royals in arbitration settled today, including two who had just hours to go before their hearings.

Right-hander Kevin Appier agreed at $3.8 million, a raise of $1.8 million. Outfielder Felix Jose agreed at $1.95 million, a raise of $425,000. Catcher Mike Macfarlene settled at $2.6 million, more than double his $1,175,000 salary in 1993.

In other news Thursday, Norm Charlton, Jody Reed, Henry Cotto and Jeff Innis all found new teams.

Olerud led the AL with a .363 average last season and had 24 homers and 107 RBIs. His deal has a club option for 1997 that, if exercised, would give the first baseman $22.5 million over four years.

The deal's annual average value of $5,666,667 is the 16th highest in the major leagues, but Olerud said he and his wife Kelly were trying to be low key.

"All winter long, we've just been working on our house down here," he said from his home in Phoenix. "We'll have a nice evening at home and I'm sure we'll do something to celebrate. I don't have any big plans for any big purchases."

With the start of spring training just two weeks away, Charlton signed with Philadelphia, Reed signed with Milwaukee and Henry Cotto signed with Baltimore. The Orioles also signed Rene Gonzales and Mark Williamson, and the Minnesota Twins signed Innis.

Charlton, a 31-year-old lefthander, joins a bullpen where he will compete with Doug Jones as closer. The Phillies dealt Mitch Williams to Houston for Jones after Williams gave up the World Series-winning homer to Toronto's Joe Carter.

Charlton was 1-3 with a 2.34 ERA and 18 saves in 34 appearances last season with 48 strikeouts and 17 walks in 34 2-3 innings. He is guaranteed $850,000 this season and has the chance to earn another $1.65 million in bonuses.

Charlton, a former pitcher for Cincinnati and Seattle, has a club option for 1995 that could be worth from $2 million to $2.5 million. The option, which would become guaranteed if Charlton is on the roster and healthy for about half of the 1994 season, would give Charlton the chance to earn up to $3.4 million in 1995.

Reed, 31, hit .276 last season with the Los Angeles Dodgers and led the NL second basemen in fielding with five errors in 698 chances. He was said to have turned down an $8 million, three-year contract offer from the Dodgers and became a free agent.

Cotto, a 33-year-old outfielder, hit .296 with three homers and 14 RBIs for the Florida Marlins last season after hitting just .190 with two homers and seven RBIs in 105 at-bats with the Seattle Mariners.

Gonzales, an infielder who will be 27 next month, hit .251 for California with two homers and 31 RBIs. Williamson, a 34-year-old right-hander, was 7-5 with a 4.91 ERA in 48 games with the Orioles.

Innis, a 31-year-old right-hander, was 2-3 with three saves and a 4.11 ERA in 67 games with the Mets last season.

In arbitration, Cincinnati and catcher Joe Oliver argued before Reginald Alleyne in Los Angeles. Oliver, who made $1.2 million last season, was seeking $2.5 million while the Reds were offering $1.85 million.

Reliever Rich Rodriguez and the Marlins settled before their scheduled hearing at $700,000, more than double his $265,000 salary last year. Pitcher John Burkett and the San Francisco Giants settled late Thursday night at $3.55 million.

Love, Watson breeze to lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif.— Davis Love III and Tom Watson took advantage of relative sedate conditions and light winds to advance to the top of the leaderboard Friday in the second round of the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

While the bulk of the vast gallery — along with hundreds of clicking cameras, autograph seekers, confusion and congestion — flocked to Poppy Hills to watch the celebrity amateurs, Love and Watson played a few miles away at Pebble Beach, one of three Monterey Peninsula courses used in this unique event.

And they made the most of the opportunities provided by what Watson described as "very little wind; pretty easy scoring conditions."

Love, author of a 60 in his last tournament, reeled off a string of four consecutive birdies in a 6-under-par 66 that put him through 36 holes at 135, nine under par.

LPGA-Palm Beach

LAKE WORTH, Fla. — Lisa Walters shot a six-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-shot lead after the opening round of the Palm Beach Classic.

Katie Peterson-Parker and Dawn Coe-Jones tied for second by shooting 67 at the Wycliffe Golf and Country Club. Hall of Famer Pat Bradley was in a four-way tie at 68 with Tracy Kerdyk, Noelle Daghe and Leigh Ann Mills.

Seniors-Caribbean

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — Jay Sigel never played for a paycheck before, and Lee Trevino has been doing it most of his life. The difference meant 11 strokes Friday.

Trevino shot a 5-under-par 66 for a one-shot lead in the Royal Caribbean Classic, the first full-field event of the Senior PGA Tour season.

Sigel, a two-time U.S. Amateur champion making his professional debut, struggled to a 77.

Johnnie Walker Classic

PHUKET, Thailand — Germany's Bernhard Langer, who said he could have played better, shot a 2-under-par 70 Friday to join American Fred Couples in the lead after the second round of the $900,000 Johnnie Walker Classic.

Turner replaced by Rams mentor

Associated Press

■ NFL Roundup

IRVING, Texas — After losing offensive coordinator Norv Turner, the Dallas Cowboys have replaced him with his mentor, who designed the offense Turner used to help win two Super Bowls.

Ernie Zampese, 57, agreed to a three-year contract with Dallas Thursday, the day after Turner was named head coach of the Washington Redskins. Turner was an assistant under Zampese in Los Angeles before taking over the Cowboys offense in 1991.

"Certainly he's the one we wanted for the job, he's a natural — we think he'll fit right in, he obviously knows the offense well," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said by conference call from the Cowboys practice facility. "He knows the importance of the running game in our offense, so he was our guy from the word go."

Zampese has been the Rams' offensive coordinator the past seven seasons. Last year, he coached the league's fifth-best running offense, which featured 1993 rookie of the year Jerome Bettis, who finished second to Emmitt Smith in the NFL rushing race.

Before joining the Rams' staff in 1987, Zampese was in charge of the "Air Coryell" offense of the San Diego Chargers under Don Coryell. He was the Chargers' offensive coordinator from 1983-86, and receivers coach from 1979 to 1982.

He was the Chargers' defensive backs coach in 1976.

Draft Picks

NEW YORK — The NFL announced Friday that 11 teams, including the Houston Oilers and Dallas Cowboys, will receive additional picks in the 1994 NFL draft because they lost more unrestricted free agents last year than they signed.

The Oilers lost Rick Graf, Jerry Gray and Don Maggs and signed none. They will get one extra choice in the third round, one extra choice in the fifth round and one extra choice in the sixth round.

The Cowboys lost unrestricted free agents Steve Beuerlein and Kelvin Martin and didn't sign any. They will receive an extra selection in the second and third rounds.

GONZALEZ: Ranger sign for $45.45 million

From 1C

championship to Arlington."

Gonzalez called his parents in Puerto Rico after signing the deal.

"They were very happy," Gonzalez said. "All of Puerto Rico is glad."

Gonzalez has 116 homers over the last three seasons, the most in the major leagues. He has driven in 329 runs during that period.

"I think this should quiet some of the talk that we can't keep players," general manager Tom Grieve said. "Juan is a young superstar and it's nice to say he's going to be here."

The average annual value of $6.14 million is just behind San Francisco third baseman Matt Williams ($6.15 million) and ahead of Baltimore first baseman Rafael Palmeiro ($6.07 million), who left the Rangers to sign with the Orioles as a free agent.

"Contracts like this don't come around very often, and neither do players like Juan Gonzalez," Grieve said. "From a baseball standpoint, this historic contract is something that we feel great about."

Jim Bronner, Gonzalez's agent, flew in from Chicago, and Gonzalez came from Puerto Rico on Thursday to meet with Schieffer.

"Juan wanted to stay in Texas and with the Rangers," Bronner said. "This is a very good contract for him. It certainly puts him in the upper elite of baseball salaries. Now he can concentrate on baseball and not worry about what is going to happen."

The outfielder, who would have been eligible for free agency after the 1996 season, had been scheduled for an arbitration hearing on Feb. 18. The Rangers had offered $3 million for this season; Gonzalez was seeking $4.9 million.

"This is a lot of money," Gonzalez said. "I'm dedicating my life to my career."

Schieffer said the Rangers will have to sign Gonzalez again when he's 31.

"He has the potential to hit 500 home runs in his career," Schieffer said. "I guess the next time we sign him he'll probably have about 400."

WHAT TO DO IF YOU THINK YOUR CHILD IS ON DRUGS.

The Telltale Signs

Chronic eye redness, sore throat or dry cough.

Chronic lying, especially about whereabouts.

Wholesale changes in friends.

Stealing.

Deteriorating relationships with family members.

Wild mood swings, hostility, or abusive behavior.

Chronic fatigue, withdrawal, carelessness about personal grooming.

Major changes in eating or sleeping patterns.

Loss of interest in favorite activities, hobbies, sports.

School problems - slipping grades, absenteeism.

Take a deep breath.

You're not a failure as a parent. You're not helpless. And you're not alone.

If you think you're a failure, consider this: There are many kids with neglectful parents who never use drugs. There are also children with seemingly model parents who do use drugs.

So the first thing to accept is that drugs, while indeed dangerous, are one more problem for youngsters to handle. And they'll do it better and faster if you're aware, involved, and don't stick your head in the sand.

THE AWARE PARENT IS THE GOOD PARENT.

Part of awareness and a major deterrent to experimentation is to talk to your kids about drugs.

But even with a lot of parental involvement, there are no guarantees. So it's important to know the symptoms of drug use and to take action if you see your youngster displaying them.

THE WARNING SIGNALS.

There are no symptoms that are absolutely reliable. But there are clues (see box).

Most of these symptoms tend to be gradual which is why parental awareness is so important.

But don't jump to conclusions.

Many of the warning signs for drug use are the ame as those for depression or for the ups and downs of being a teenager. There's also the possibility it's a physical or emotional problem.

But whatever the problem, we're talking about a child who needs help. Right now.

START WITHIN THE FAMILY.

Nothing beats the power of love and family support. That has to start with a frank discussion.

Don't make it an attack. And don't try to talk with your child if he or she seems under the influence.

Wait for a calm moment and then explain that you're worried about certain behavior (be specific) and give your child every opportunity to explain. That means really listening, not doing all the talking.

At the same time, it's important to speak frankly about the possibility of drugs. And it's particularly important to talk about your values and why you're dead set against drugs.

If your youngster seems evasive or if his or her explanations are not convincing, you may want to consult your doctor to rule out illness and to ask for advice.

You may also want to have your child visit a mental health professional to see if there are emotional problems.

FURTHER ACTION MAY BE NECESSARY

If your child seems non-responsive or belligerent, and you suspect drugs are involved, immediate action is vital.

First, you'll need an evaluation from a health professional skilled in diagnosing adolescents with alcohol or drug problems.

You may want to get involved with an intervention program to learn techniques that will help convince a drug user to accept help.

For the user, there are self-help, outpatient, day care, residency, and 24-hour hospitalization programs.

The right program depends entirely on the circumstances and the degree of drug involvement. Here, you'll need professional help to make an informed choice.

Another point: If a program is to succeed, the family needs to be part of it. This can mean personal or family counseling. It may also involve participating in a support group where you learn about co-dependency and how not to play into the problems that might prompt further drug use.

If you don't know about drug programs in your area, call your family doctor, local hospital or county mental health society or school counselor for a referral. You can also call the national helpline – 800-662-HELP – for advice and a referral.

WHATEVER YOU DO, DON'T GIVE UP.

That child who upsets you so much is the same little boy or girl who, only yesterday, gave you such joy. They're in way over their heads, and they never needed you quite as much as they need you now.

No matter what they say.

For more information on how to talk with your kids about drugs, ask for a free copy of "A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call 1-800-624-0100.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you do not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekened mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family members, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

An initial $100 refundable deposit is required.

Cottonflat and Rankin Hwy.

As with all newspaper distributorships this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/mothers, senior citizens, college students or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".
