The remains of a Big Spring Police Department vehicle can be seen after a Molotov cocktail exploded at the East Side residence of Sgt. Robert Perez. No one was injured in the blast, occurring around 2:15 a.m. Saturday morning.

Police car destoyed by explosion

A quiet East Side neighborhood was jolted awake early Saturday morning by an explosion.

The explosion turned out to be a Molotov cocktail put underneath a marked police car parked on the road.

Big Spring police officers responded around 2:15 a.m. after Sgt. Richard Perez reported his patrol car was on fire. Perez was off-duty at the time and his vehicle was parked in front of his home.

"What alerted us to the call was the tires on the vehicle got hot and exploded. Someone placed a can or glass of gasoline under the car with a rag fuse and set it on fire," said Police Chief Jerry Edwards.

Upon arrival, officers and firefighters found the trunk of the vehicle engulfed in flames. The back axle was destroyed and the rear end of the car was sitting on the road. No one was injured.

Sgt. Roger Sweatt began instructing the officers to canvas the neighborhood and to stop vehicles to question the occupants about the incident.

Identification Technician Art Dehlinger and Fire Marshal Burr Lea Settles were dispatched to the scene as well. Several officers began searching for clues and marking them by spraying paint around items on the road. Dehlinger then took pictures and collected the evidence.

HAUNTING DREAMS, PAIN, PRIDE

Rescuers' lives change as they learn to live with bombing's reminders

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Russell Burkhalter's haunting dream is always the same: a slow walk through a maze of collapsed concrete, a search for signs of life, then disappointment.

No matter where he looks, the weary firefighter never finds anyone alive in the remains of the crumpled federal building. It's only a dream now but, all these months later, it still seems all too real.

One of the first rescuers on the scene after the bombing, Burkhalter clawed, crawled and dug through the rubble, pulling out one lifeless body after another. The only survivor he found, a pregnant woman entombed in debris who clutched his hand, died hours after being freed.

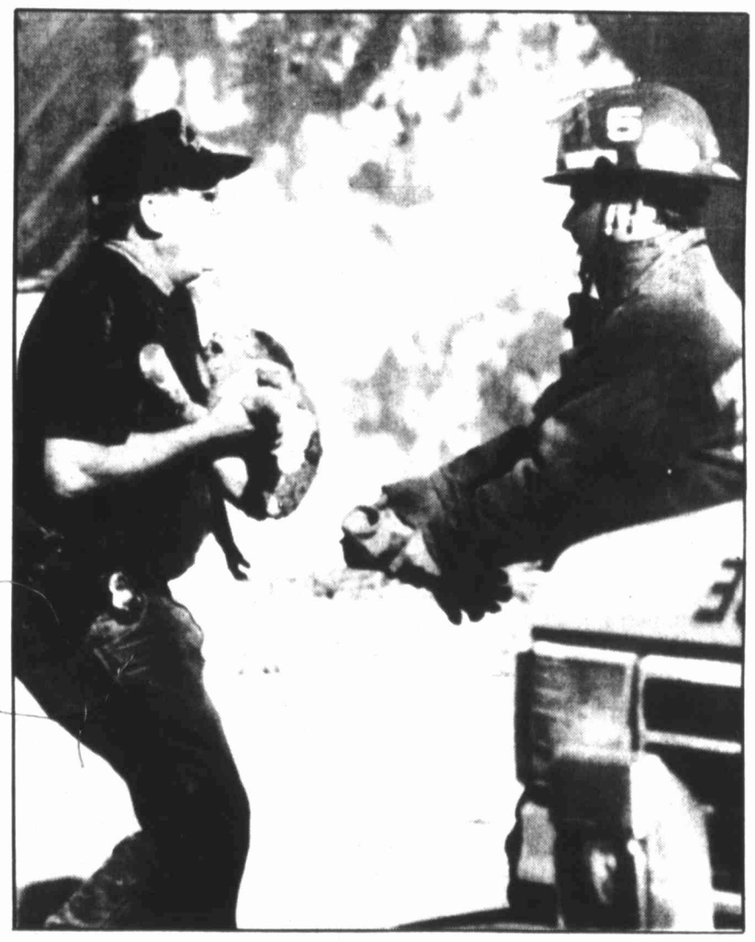

Now, six months later, the building has been leveled, two men have been charged with the bombing and Russell Burkhalter is back answering routine calls from Station No. 5. But that day rarely leaves him.

"Maybe subconsciously, I'm still looking for survivors," he says of his recurring dreams. "I know this will stay with me. It already has."

"You may close the book," he adds, "but you'll always remember the story."

Police Sgt. John Avera passes 1-year-old Baylee Almon to Oklahoma City firefighter Chris Fields on April 19, 1995, after an explosion at the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City. Rescuers are still dealing with haunting dreams, pain and pride in the aftermath of the bombing.

In the months that followed, America mourned the victims, comforted the survivors and honored the rescuers, who were transformed from obscure public safety workers to collective heroes. They gave interviews, made speeches and received letters, gifts and awards for a job well done.

Now, the spotlight has faded and they've rejoined the workaday world. But, for many, the impact of the tragedy lives on. Some have formed bonds with survivors or victims' families. Others have noticed personal changes.

"My wife says I'm a lot more serious," says the wiry, soft-spoken Burkhalter, 34. "I don't cut up as much as I used to."

Certain sights still trigger memories. One firefighter says stepping on broken glass reminds him of the bomb site; another says that for weeks he couldn't sleep in certain positions because it reminded him of bodies he found.

"You'll never forget it," says Jon Hansen, assistant fire chief. "It's something all of us think about from time to time. We talk about things being back to normal. But our normal has changed."

Firefighters had mandatory "defusing" — counseling immediately after they left the scene; later, group debriefings were held with mental health experts.

"We're not having as many problems as we thought we'd products.

Passage of this amendment would allow the use of an existing $200 million to strengthen a business development program already in place - the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority's Loan Guaranty Program.

State Rep. David Counts is also firmly behind the passage of Proposition 3.

"The program would be aimed at providing a funding source for innovative agricultural businesses in Texas," Counts said.

"Arguments for the passage of the amendment include the increased development of the agricultural industry, especially in rural areas, and allowing greater diversity in the use of the funds," Counts added. "Opponents argue that the money should be left for the sole use of providing loans for the purchase of farm and ranch land and that many of the businesses eligible for funding are often high risk and pose too great a default risk for the state to loan money."

The $200 million would be transferred from the state's $500 million Farm and Ranch Program, which helps farmers and ranchers buy land.

Big Spring residents will recognize the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority as TAFA, the state program that worked with Moore Development For Big Spring Inc. for three years on the Wright Fibers project.

"This is an important vote because we're not just talking about agricultural production," Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said. "When we send our raw agricultural products somewhere else for processing, we are also sending away jobs.

"Ninety percent of Texas' agricultural goods along with the jobs created by processing these products are shipped out of state to be made into expensive merchandise somewhere else," he added.

The $1.4 million loan to Wright Fibers in 1992 is just a portion of the $25 million in loans by TAFA, which have helped 47 companies create or retain more than 1,400 jobs.

A total of 4,700 jobs have been created when these 1,400 jobs are combined with the spin-off job impact.

Voters approval of Proposition 3 would be the equivalent of adding more than 37,000 jobs to the Texas economy Perry said.

TAFA was created in 1987 by the Texas Legislature to help businesses that cannot receive conventional bank loans they are starting up operations or because the company's income or collateral does not fit a bank's underwriting criteria.

A business cannot apply for a loan through TAFA until it has a private financial institution willing to participate in the loan, which is where Moore Development came into the picture where Wright fibers was concerned.

Where economic development is concerned, about three jobs created for every one agriculture processing job TAFA helps create.

Chili company sponsoring Tall Tale contest

Wolf Brand Chili is conducting its second annual Texas Tall Tales contest. To celebrate Wolf Brand Chili's 100th anniversary, Texans are invited to submit an original tall tale entry.

Story tellers 18 years and older are encouraged to pick up a September or November issue of Texas Monthly explaining complete contest rules. Contest participants are encouraged to use their own special flair of Texas humor to highlight or exaggerate some aspect of Texas life in a 500-word-or-less story.

All entries must include the words, "100 years" and "Wolf Brand Chili," to commemorate 100 years of Texas' best chili, at least once. Mail entries to: "Wolf Brand Chili Texas Tall Tales Contest," 3131 Turtle Creek Blvd., Suite 500, Dallas, Texas 75219, and make sure it's postmarked no later than Dec. 31, 1995.

This year's grand prize winner will receive a Big Bend River Rafting trip for two and round trip tickets from any Texas city to Midland,provided by Southwest Airlines ($1,100 value).

Martin Co. approves company to conduct drug testing

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

STANTON - Compliance Marketing Inc., has been selected to conduct drug tests for Martin County.

Under Department of Transportation regulations, employers are required to test commercial drivers for alcohol and controlled substances prior to employment and at random intervals throughout the year. Compliance Marketing will serve as a third-party, independent testing facility for Martin County.

In other business, commissioners:

•Accepted the Texas Association of Counties' bid for public official and law enforcement liability insurance.

•Leased a new postage meter for the county from Pitney-Bowes Inc.

•Set the number of election clerks for the November election at the same as during the last election.

•Renewed the county's contract with Charles Elmore for on-site sewerage facility inspection.

•Discussed extending the Martin County Library's hours. No action was taken.

The next regular meeting of the Commissioners' Court will be Nov. 13.

Oklahoma City Police Sgt. John Avera pauses next to the security fence outside the former site of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City. Avera, 47, was among the first rescue workers to reach the scene when the building was bombed April 19.

Memories

have," says Maj. David Bowman, part of the department's stress debriefing team. But he also notes some signs of post-traumatic stress have begun to surface, with workers not getting along with colleagues or having trouble at home.

He cautions, too, that although some rescuers say the experience was "no big deal," there may be fallout later, perhaps when the trial begins.

"People put this stuff in the back of their minds and park it. Later on, something causes it to come out," Bowman says. "I think everybody was touched by this."

In fact, some rescuers still feel guilty they didn't do more. And they insist what they did accomplish was nothing extraordinary.

"There's probably not a person in this fire station," says Cpl. Shane Davidson, "who could honestly look you in the face and say we're heroes."

Chris Fields has been dubbed the poster boy of the bombing.

If the world doesn't remember his name, it probably remembers the page 1 photo of the firefighter cradling the limp, lifeless body of 1-year-old Baylee Almon — a single frame of film that captured the heartbreak and horror of that day.

Since then, Fields has become a symbol and a celebrity. His firehouse buddies jokingly call him Captain Hollywood.

He has been interviewed by reporters from Australia, Germany and Japan — the British Broadcasting Corporation also came calling a few weeks ago — and received hundreds of letters and gifts, including an African ostrich egg with a hand-painted picture of him holding Baylee.

"I'm still in shock," says the affable 31-year-old firefighter. "It's embarrassing. It's hard to imagine having that much impact on people."

But his real solace comes from his friendship with Aren Almon, Baylee's mother, whom he met shortly after cradling her dead child. They now talk once or twice weekly.

"When I heard from her, that eliminated all the counseling I'd ever need," says Fields, father of a 2-year-old son.

As for Baylee, he says: "I think about her every day, bless her heart. I wonder what she'd be doing if she were still alive."

Someday, he says, he'll put together a scrapbook from a roomful of mementos sent by well-wishers, but he won't display the famous photo: He doesn't want to be constantly reminded of it.

"I'll always regret the picture was taken," he adds, noting that people have tried to cash in on it by featuring it on T-shirts and other souvenirs.

Fields also says he's the same easy-going guy he was six months ago — with one exception.

"You stop and smell the roses a little more. I kiss my wife every morning when I leave and tell her I love her. Not that I didn't before," he says with a laugh. "It's almost like it's on a checklist now. I just make a point of it."

After 25 years on the police force, Sgt. John Avera knows about death. But he could never comfort victims' families until he watched the chaplains after the bombing.

"I have always had trouble talking to someone who lost a loved one," he says. "Now, I know what to do. ... You walk up and you don't say anything. You let them do the talking."

Avera, 47, a drug lab worker, was photographed clutching Baylee to his chest, running to hand her to Fields. When he pulled the baby from the wreckage of the building's day care center, he says, he knew she was dead.

For months, he lived with gnawing doubts.

"I felt real guilty," he says. "We left so many people who didn't make it. ... I wasn't sure that I had done all I should have done."

After local counseling, he recently traveled to Massachusetts for additional therapy, where he re-examined his steps that day, inch by inch, second by second. It became clear only then that he had made no mistakes.

"I didn't feel bad anymore," he says. "I'm a lot happier now. That counseling was a turning point. I'm really back to my normal self."

Avera, who also keeps in touch with Baylee's mother, says he still gets unnerved when he sees his photo without warning — such as when a local charity recently showed it in a film.'

"I don't want to look at myself," he says. "I don't want to look at the building. ... I don't want to go back there anymore — not that close."

The two photos — his and Fields' — sit propped against a wall on his living room floor, the images turned inward. Though his son and daughter are proud of their dad and eager to display the pictures, he's not so sure.

"I've had them framed," he says, "but I don't know if they'll ever hang on my wall."

Police Sgt. Jerry Flowers knows terrible memories have no expiration date.

The gang investigator has many: the decapitated child he found in the day care center (he later learned he knew the parents), the pink-socked baby's foot, the bloodied man severed from the waist, eyes open, staring down from the crushed floor above — a shocking scene he still talks about with his brother Dennis, a Highway Patrol worker who also helped dig out bodies.

"I wish I could have rescued somebody and gone to the hospital and said, 'I helped get you out,' " Flowers says. "That would be part of the healing process. ... But today, I look back and I know I did all the Lord gave me the ability to do."

Flowers, 41, attended the funerals of several bombing victims, including his next-door neighbor of 20 years and friends from the Drug Enforcement Administration and Secret Service.

A few weeks ago, he returned with a TV news crew to the "pit" area of the building, where many bodies were buried under a mangled mass of steel and concrete.

"It was strange to be back there," he says. "That place to me is really sacred." He has a piece of rock from the building as a reminder of the day.

Flower says the anxiety he once felt has been replaced by anticipation.

"There is peace knowing the ones who possibly are responsible are in custody. There will be peace when the convictions come down," he says. "I don't think it's something you lay to rest and say it's over and done with. There's a scar on me."

On Sept. 29, Dr. Rick Nelson kept a promise he made to a young woman on the most terrifying night of her life.

As firefighters used hammers and chisels to free Brandy Ligons from the ruins, Nelson, a volunteer rescuer, told her "the best-looking surgeon out there was waiting to take her to dinner."

Brandy was trapped 131/2 hours. She was the last survivor pulled from the wreckage.

Five months later, Nelson treated Brandy, her mother and her two sisters to a 16th birthday feast of calamari, pizza and crab claws at an Italian restaurant, followed by a trip to the carnival at the state fair.

Elderly, children don't deserve to be neglected

There is a saying, "It shouldn't hurt to be a child."

Take the thought one step further - it shouldn't hurt to be elderly, either.

Recently a Big Spring man was arrested for injury to the elderly after police responded to a call Wednesday. The 92-year-old woman had minor scratches and bruises which didn't require medical attention, but signs of neglect in the home where she was living caught the officers' eyes.

So, the city engineer and Adult Protective Services were called in. Ralph Truszkowski, city engineer, said the smell was so strong it could "knock someone over before you ever entered the house. What we found was deplorable. The house was out of compliance with the codes and it was unsafe."

You have to ask yourself, how can someone stand it? A child might not know better, if that's all it is taught, but surely adults should know this is not a good, humane way to live.

The very small and the very old deserve better than we sometimes give them.

Children don't know until we teach them. It is up to us, as their parents, to give them a good, healthy place to grow in.

When it comes to our senior citizens, it seems we need to relearn respect. Most parents have given everything possible to see their children are raised well and have their needs fulfilled.

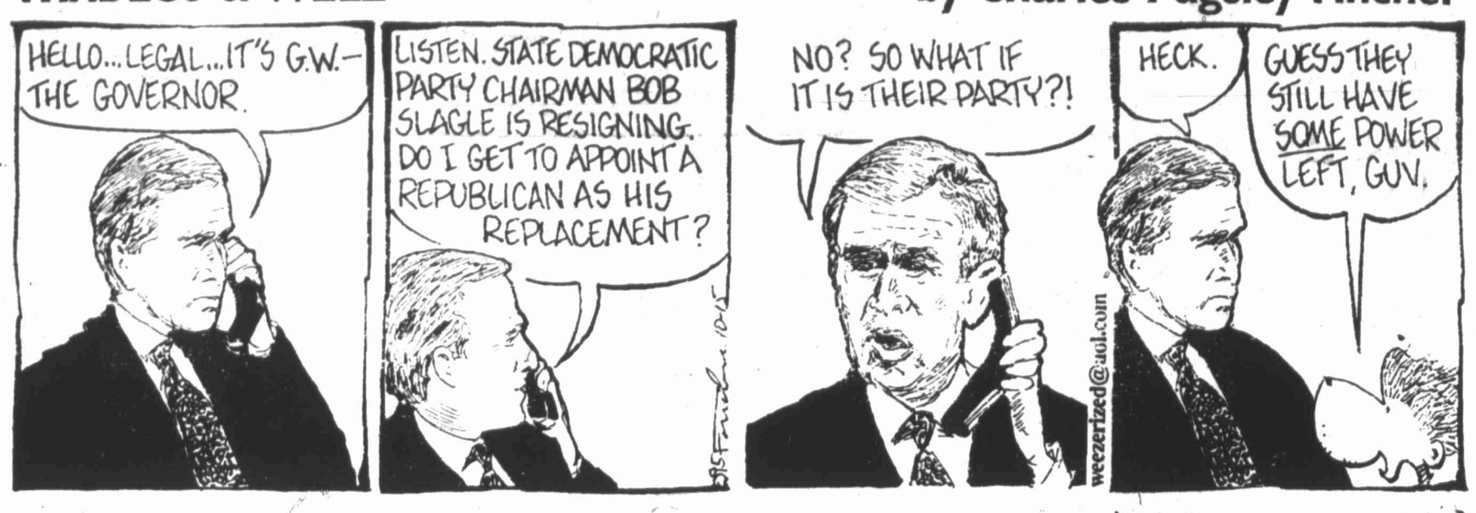

They don't deserve to end up in a home where the conditions are deplorable. They don't deserve to end up ignored because they are older, their needs greater than before.

The younger generation needs to remember these people gave a great deal - not only to their children but to their country.

This arrest is a good omen. It should serve as a warning to others that the elderly, along with our children, are not to be neglected.

WASHINGTON — Dirty tricks, Part II?

Democrats smell a rat after the personal computer of a key Medicare expert was stolen just as the Ways and Means Committee began consideration of the GOP's plan to overhaul Medicare.

House Democratic Caucus Chairman Vic Fazio notes the computer was loaded with Democratic research and strategy, calls the theft "suspicious" and "disturbing."

Members of Congress will be scarce Monday when huge crowds of black men demonstrate on the grounds of the U.S. Capitol.

Both the House and the Senate have adjusted their schedules so that lawmakers can be someplace else during the rally.

No such luck.

Who are the role models?

When looking for a role model, where does one look?

Right now, our kids are looking at athletes, musicians and movie stars. What's out there now isn't worth emulating.

DD Turner
Managing Editor

But where should they be looking?

They should be looking right at home – at Mom and Dad.

Mom and Dad are often the most overlooked role models in a kid's life. These are the people who are there for them, put a roof over their head, clothes on their bodies, and food on the table. This is who instills in the child a sense of values. They usually do this through less glamorous jobs than the athletes, rock stars or actors.

We always talk of family values. Family values start in the home, representing the values of the family. Good family values place an emphasis on doing the right thing, accepting responsibility, getting an education, a work ethic - living, working and playing as a member of a team or family.

Family values can't be dictated by government. Consider the values of most of those in Congress - Republican and Democrat alike - are those the values you want instilled in your child? Do you really want someone else dictating your values?

Most Americans understand good values without the government or some group deciding for them.

So, we can't look to the government for values.

We always can't look to our professional athletes, musicians or actors.

We can admire them for their talent, enjoy the show - but when it comes to role models, good ones are few and far between.

Yes, there are some, even today. Cal Ripkin, Jr., comes to mind, Joe Montana, Roger Staubach. They exhibited the kind of values of sportsmanship you want your child to have.

But what we have is people idolizing O.J. Simpson who beat his wife. Elvis Presley, who abused drugs. Mike Tyson, a convicted rapist and wife beater. Dennis Rodman, a weirdo whose behavior on and off the court should not make him an object of worship.

What we learned growing up, we learned from our parents. What our children will learn, will be taught by us. It will be taught by our actions.

I always wanted to marry someone just like my Dad. As a kid, I never had to worry about where we were going to live, where the food was coming from, was there enough money for the bills. Dad made sure the necessities were taken care of, then what was left was for the spending. I learned that from him.

Dad didn't have a glamour job, far from it. But he was consistent and it seeped into our brains. It wasn't something he preached, it was something he did.

It's hard when you are little to understand how good you have it. Someone else's mom is better because she lets her kid do something yours wouldn't. Somebody else's dad is better because he plays sports or makes more money.

Then you grow up and realize all along who the role model was.

Not all parents are good role models. That's where an outside model comes in. Someone to take an interest in the child and instill the values the parents are incapable of instilling.

Role models come in all shapes and sizes. And, when you sit down and think about it, the best are often closest to home.

Teach children to choose wisely

Editor:

Someone is going to ask who pulled my chain, and I am going to answer.

Whoever is in charge of this book banning committee, that's who!

Just how much more ridiculous and foolish can our American public and government get. How much longer must we as a free American put up with this garbage that is in every day's news?

If sticks and stones or name-calling can break our bones, then all of us are going around with broken backs, arms and legs.

From the beginning of time, every race, creed, color and animal has been insulted and beaten in one form or another. There is someone waiting in the wings at all times just looking for something to cause trouble.

What right does a handful of people have to ban books that were written before they were even born? Because they have racial slurs? If that is the case, why don't they go back and start with the Bible and "Pilgrim's Progress"?

Think people, think! If these book banners want to take books out of school, and off the library shelves, let them start on the school buses, or in their child's lockers, or bedrooms and clean out the Harlequin Romances, the science fiction, the comics, and the bare facts and filth.

Look on their own book shelves and see what they are reading and leaving around for their children to read.

Oh, 'scuse me, that invades your privacy, doesn't it? And what are those movies you checked out? Are they educational, or uplifting, or do you have to send your child to bed so you can watch them? Is the language fit for your child or you to repeat?

Six of my grandchildren are being ostracized by so-called Christian churchgoers in an adjoining state, because they have been taught in the military and at home to not be prejudiced. And in being friendly to children of all nationalities, they have been shunned in school and at church. Is banning a few books going to stop all of this? I think not.

We as a people are being manipulated by a few. We have stopped thinking for ourselves and using our free agency. If there is a book, or a TV program, or a movie that you believe to be distasteful, you have the common sense, I hope, to walk over and turn the TV off, switch channels, or put the book back on the shelf, or not give four dollars to watch that movie.

Put the books back on the shelves and let the people choose for themselves as to what they will read. It was not a choice by my child to read "Catcher in the Rye." It was required reading in the literature and English class. My child said she enjoyed the book. I read it with her and I did not.

Her teacher called her a liar in front of her class and told her if she had really read the book, she would not have like it. I asked that the book be banned because of its foul language, and I was told you can not do away with freedom of the press. So what is this called if you ban the books now?

If the newspapers are allowed to print articles using the language of the public's choice, and the slurs are printed in black and white, maybe the newspapers better be taken off the newsstands.

Whatever you say, or whatever you do, the freedom of choice is up to you.

I say to you, teach your children to choose wisely, their friends. Teach each them courtesy and respect for others, and for others' property. Teach them the love of reading. Teach them to read and comprehend. Teach them to be thankful for the privilege of reading. There are many who are not so fortunate.

Witnesses: Selena named Saldivar

HOUSTON (AP) — As Tejano star Selena was dying from a gunshot wound in a Corpus Christi motel lobby, her accused killer tried driving away from the scene, witnesses say.

Police cars blocked Yolanda Saldivar's departure near the Days Inn motel lobby and she veered her red pickup truck into a parking space.

Several feet away, in the Days Inn lobby, 23-year old Grammy winner Selena Quintanilla Perez was lying in a pool of her blood as paramedics worked feverishly to save the unconscious singer.

With a gun in one hand, Ms. Saldivar lowered her window and calmly told police she had to make to phone call to her hometown of San Antonio.

Corpus Christi officer Bernardo Torres approached the back of Ms. Saldivar's vehicle and asked her to put her hands outside the truck window.

"Are you involved with the shooting?," Torres testified Friday of the March 31 incident that began with Selena's shooting at Ms. Saldivar's motel room.

"She said 'No I am not.' "

Ms. Saldivar, who rose from an zealous fan to manager of Selena's two boutiques, is charged with murder in the slaying of the popular singer. If convicted, she could be sentenced to life in prison.

Upon seeing the gun in Ms. Saldivar's hand, Torres said he drew his own weapon and pointed it at her.

"I got on the radio that she has a gun to her head," Torres said. "At that point she said, 'I want to kill myself.' "

In dramatic trial testimony Friday, motel employees told jurors that while Selena was bleeding profusely from a fatal .38-caliber bullet wound, worried she would be shot again and in her last words identified her killer.

"She said, 'Lock the door! She'll shoot me again!" said Shawna Vela, her voice and body shaking.

Ms. Vela was the front desk clerk March 31 when Selena stumbled through the lobby's front door, clutching her chest and screaming.

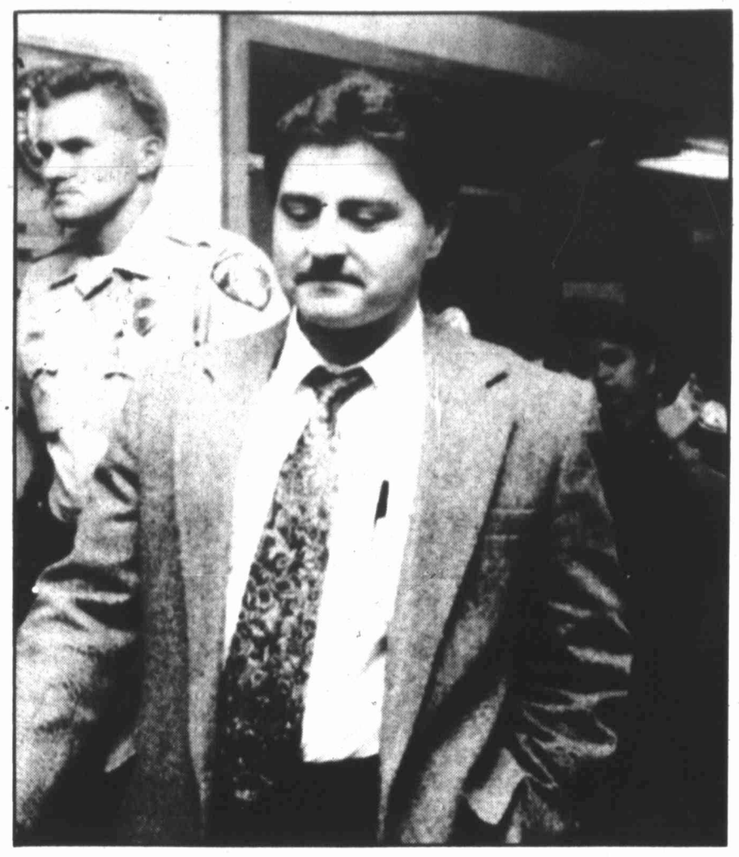

"She was yelling, 'Help me, help me. I've been shot.' She had her hands up on her chest," said Rosalinda Gonzalez, an assistant manager at the motel. "She slowly laid herself down. I saw a puddle of blood form.

"I asked who shot her. She said the lady in Room 158. She moaned. Her eyes rolled up."

"She said 'Yolanda Saldivar in Room 158,'" Ruben Deleon, sales director at the motel, testified.

Defense attorneys contend the shooting was an accident.

A new aspect of the case was Ms. Vela's acknowledgement about Selena's fears about being shot again. Ms. Vela said she initially did not remember to tell police because "I was torn up."

Saldivar's mother says daughter not like she's being portrayed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The woman accused of gunning down Tejano singing star Selena is not like the person being portrayed in court, her mother told the San Antonio Express-News in a copyright story published Friday.

"They try to make my daughter look like a monster," Juanita Saldivar said of the prosecution witnesses who testified during the first two days of Yolanda Saldivar's murder trial.

"But Yolanda is not a monster," the 68-year-old mother said in her first newspaper interview.

Yolanda Saldivar is charged with murder for the March 31 slaying of the 23-year-old singer at a Corpus Christi motel March 31.

"No one has the right to judge another person," Ms. Saldivar said. "Only God can judge us. ... Those who have judged my daughter will have to carry that to their own Judgment Day."

Ms. Saldivar has been in the Houston courtroom daily during the trial, accompanied by her son, Armando, and another relative.

The defendant's father, Frank Saldivar, and a sister have not been in the courtroom because they will be witnesses and are not allowed to hear other testimony until they have finished their own, Armando Saldivar said.

The family arrives unescorted before dawn and leaves with a police escort at day's end.

Headless bodies found in Texas, Illinois

DALLAS (AP) — Two headless bodies found 800 miles apart have Texas and Illinois authorities wondering if the deaths were related.

One body was found Oct. 2 along the banks of the Trinity River south of Dallas.

The other was found Thursday by canoeists in the Fox River in Elgin, Ill., about 35 miles west of Chicago in Kane County.

Both cases have been ruled homicides.

"Our investigators plan to call Kane County and compare notes with them," Jim Ewell, spokesman for the Dallas County Sheriff's Department, said Friday.

The first body was found along a river trail by a man scavenging for aluminum cans. In addition to the head being gone, the body's hands had been severed between the elbow and wrist, apparently to hinder identification of the victim, Ewell said.

> In addition to the head being gone, the body's hands had been severed between the elbow and wrist, apparently to hinder identification of the victim.

"We've put out messages across the country on the law enforcement computer for missing persons and we've gotten no response," he said. "We haven't been able to come up with anything."

The nude body was that of a white male, age 25 to 30, about 5-foot-10 and 165 pounds.

The body had manicured toenails, which were painted with clear nail polish, Ewell said. Searchers were unable to find the head or hands, Ewell said.

He would not say if the autopsy that was performed on the body pinpointed a cause of death. The body had been dead about 36 hours when it was found, he said.

The body found in Illinois was that of 37-year-old Manuel Alejandro Jr. of Elgin. Kane County investigators have no motive in the death and are anxious to talk to Texas officials to see if the murders are related.

"We're not eliminating anything," said Al Swanson, an investigator with the Kane County Sheriff's Department.

Robber fatally stabs teen

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 17-year-old high school senior has been fatally stabbed by a robber who accosted him and his older brother as they walked in their upscale neighborhood, police said.

Paul Rearden died just as paramedics arrived on the porch of a former schoolmate's home where he had staggered for help shortly after the 2 a.m. stabbing.

"He said, 'I'm hit. I'm bleeding,'" said Peter Rearden, 22, who was with his younger brother. "I saw his last breath ... he was fighting to live."

The boy's death came exactly 11 months after his 18-year-old brother, Marc, was killed in a car-train collision near Alvarado.

Three suspects in the slaying were arrested within a few hours, based on Peter Rearden's detailed descriptions of the attackers and their car, police Sgt. Larry Woodward said. The three men, ages 19 and 20, were being held on suspicion of capital murder.

"This was a crime of opportunity. They saw someone who appeared vulnerable walking down the street, saw the backpack that one of them was carrying and decided they would rob them," Woodward said. "This is a ridiculously senseless incident, with the motive being to take their backpack and billfold."

After Marc Rearden died, the two surviving brothers spent more time together, often walking late at night just to talk, Peter Rearden said. He said they had walked to a friend's house to trade some Halloween decorations, which were in his backpack, and were heading back to their parents' house when the killers attacked.

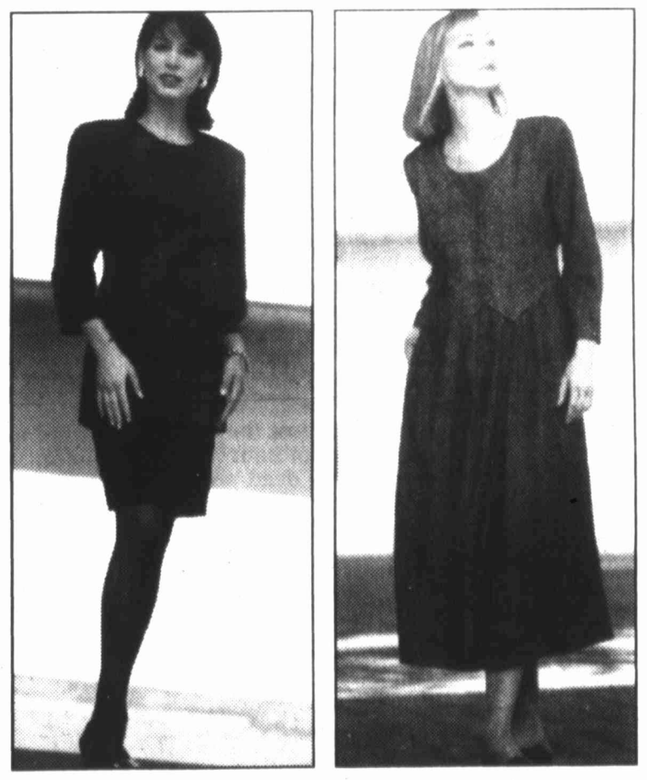

OU-Texas revelry tame

DALLAS (AP) — The traditional revelry the night before the annual Texas-Oklahoma football game, believe it or not, might be evolving into a civil event.

"This was very, very tame," said Dallas police Sgt. Jim Chandler as Friday night's celebration wound down. "It was a good-natured crowd. This year, we saw a lot of people down here with young kids in hand and a lot of older people. They've tried to turn this into more of a family event and I think it's working."

Chandler, who's worked 25 Texas-OU weekends, said 41 arrests were made. The record low of 35 was set in 1994, he said.

Court says historic oak can be cut

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — The Friendship Oak appears doomed.

Little more than a seedling when the first colonists came to Georgia in 1733, the live oak has held out its gnarled branches for 300 years.

It stands in the middle of a busy intersection, causing traffic jams for motorists traveling to and from jobs in Georgia's fifth largest city and blocking a road-widening project.

Now it is likely to be cut down, despite a three-year campaign to save it.

The Georgia Supreme Court on Friday lifted a stay, paving the way for the tree's removal.

Supporters immediately began an around-the-clock vigil at the tree, which is festooned with a U.S. flag and red, yellow and green ribbons.

"If I have to sit in it, they're not getting that tree down," Amelia Apperson said.

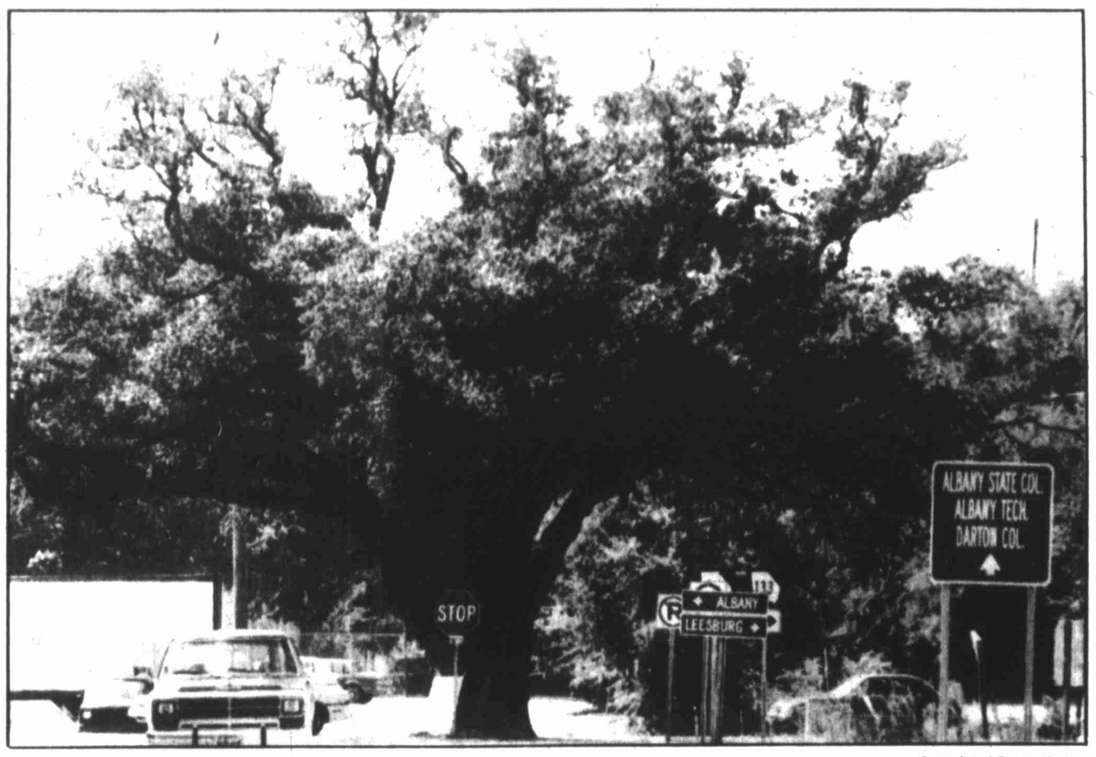

"I had a feeling about today. It's Friday the 13th," said Russell Hassenstab.

The court's action means the tree can be cut at any time.

Deen Hayman, division manager for Reeves Construction Co., which has the contract to widen the road, said it will probably be cut down next week.

The tree is on the state Register of Historical Landmarks. It got the name "Friendship Oak" because it stood in the middle of an Army camp where veterans of the Spanish-American war were discharged almost 100 years ago.

At one corner of the intersection, tree supporters have pitched a tent where they keep watch each day. Signs say "Save our tree."

The "Friendship Oak" in Albany, Ga., found no friends on the Georgia Supreme Court which said the 300-year-old oak could be cut for a road-widening project. The ruling left supporters stunned.

Betty Thomas stares from a window at her home on the Elem Indian Colony in Clearlake Oaks, Calif. The window was shattered by gunfire and rocks as violence erupted between rival factions of the Pomo Indians in a dispute over control of the tribe and its gambling casino.

Violence erupts as tribe splits over casino control

CLEARLAKE OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The small Lake County Pomo Indian tribe is divided by Old West-style gunfire as members fight among themselves over control of the reservation and its casino.

"The cowards are even shooting at little kids," Betty Thomas said Friday, pointing to bullet holes in her home at Elem Indian Colony.

Ten of her neighbors have been wounded in gunfights in the past week. Four people have been arrested on various charges and about half of the 200 tribe members have fled the reservation.

"It's been like the Old West," said Lake County sheriff's Capt. Gary Buchholz. "These are criminals who are fighting over money. Shooting at each other in ambush. This is not an honorable thing."

Both sides agreed to a temporary truce Friday night after a three-hour meeting with outside mediators.

The dispute centers on control of the reservation's casino, Pomo Palace, which opened two years ago on the 52-acre reservation 90 miles north of San Francisco. It has been closed for a week because of the violence.

The feud turned violent in recent months when the tribe's executive council filed suit against its chairman, Thomas Brown.

Last weekend, one faction of the 200-member tribe sought to oust another from its leadership role in a disputed election.

That led to a fistfight Oct. 8, which led to gunfire. Authorities have since counted more than 100 bullet holes in homes.

Suspect in 1982 Tylenol poisonings released

EL RENO, Okla. (AP) — A leading suspect in the 1982 tainted Tylenol killings was freed from federal prison Friday after serving more than 12 years.

Seven people were killed by cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules purchased from drug stores and groceries in the Chicago area in 1982. The killer was never identified.

James W. Lewis, an out-of-work accountant, was a prime suspect but never was charged with the deaths, which prompted dramatic changes in the way almost all food and medical products are packaged.

He was sentenced to 10 years in prison in June 1983 for demanding $1 million from Johnson & Johnson, parent of Tylenol manufacturer McNeil Consumer Products Co., "to stop the killing." He also served more than two years of a 10-year sentence for an unrelated tax-fraud charge.

Lewis arrived at Boston's Logan International Airport on Friday evening, wearing a purple sweatsuit and sporting the same full beard he had when he began his sentence. He was accompanied by his wife and an unidentified woman.

He appeared frail and shaken, but stared straight ahead and remained silent despite a half-dozen TV cameras and a barrage of questions from reporters, then was driven away.

Lewis told The Associated Press in 1992 that he planned to live on the East Coast with his wife, Leanne, once he was released.

Gender pricing for sevices nixed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — To California Gov. Pete Wilson, the issue is cut and dried: Women shouldn't have to dig deeper into their pockets than men to pay for a haircut, dry cleaning or clothing alterations.

Wilson signed into law Friday a bill doing away with gender-based prices.

As of Jan. 1, it will be illegal for businesses to price their services based solely whether the customer is male or female. Violators will pay the consumer at least $1,000, or up to three times the amount of actual damages and attorney's fees.

A different price can be charged if the time, difficulty or cost of the service is not the same for men and women.

Hayride crash kills 1, 19 injured

GLOCESTER, R.I. (AP) — A pickup truck rear-ended a horse-drawn hayride on a straight stretch of lighted highway, killing a woman and injuring 19 other riders.

"There were people all over the street and the side of the road, hay everywhere," police Lt. Jamie Hainsworth said.

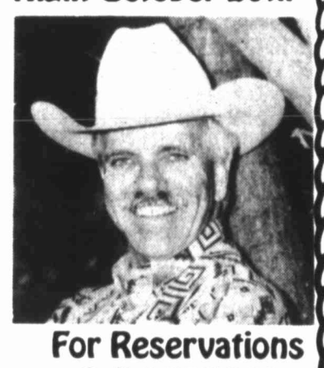

The truck crashed Friday night into a wooden wagon pulled by two horses in the slow lane of the highway, roughly 20 miles west of Providence, Hainsworth said. The hayride was carrying 18 passengers, mostly adults, and a driver.

It was not clear if charges would be filed against the truck driver, who was not injured.

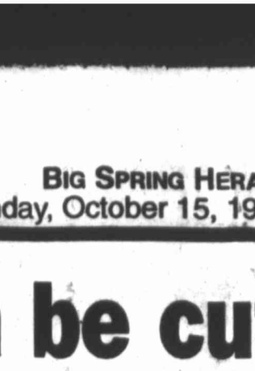

The name of the dead woman was not released.

Three people were airlifted to Massachusetts hospitals.

Offensive on Serb stronghold halted

BANJA LUKA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The Bosnian government claimed it had halted an offensive near this Serb stronghold on Saturday amid reports that Serbia's powerful president had threatened to send in troops.

Battered by territorial losses and struggling to cope with a flood of hopeless refugees, Bosnian Serb leaders debated whether they should stick by or abandon a nationwide truce that began Thursday.

In Sarajevo, the chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, Gen. John Shalikashvili, met with government and military leaders to review NATO plans to send troops, including 25,000 Americans, to police any peace settlement.

The U.S.-brokered truce has quieted fighting throughout Bosnia except in the hotly contested northwest, where the Serbs have suffered substantial losses.

Muslim-led government and allied Croat troops have advanced on the Serbs' most vital city of Banja Luka and the nearby town of Prijedor. The fall of Banja Luka would be tantamount to total defeat for the Bosnian Serbs, and direct attacks on it would almost certainly lead to Yugoslav army intervention.

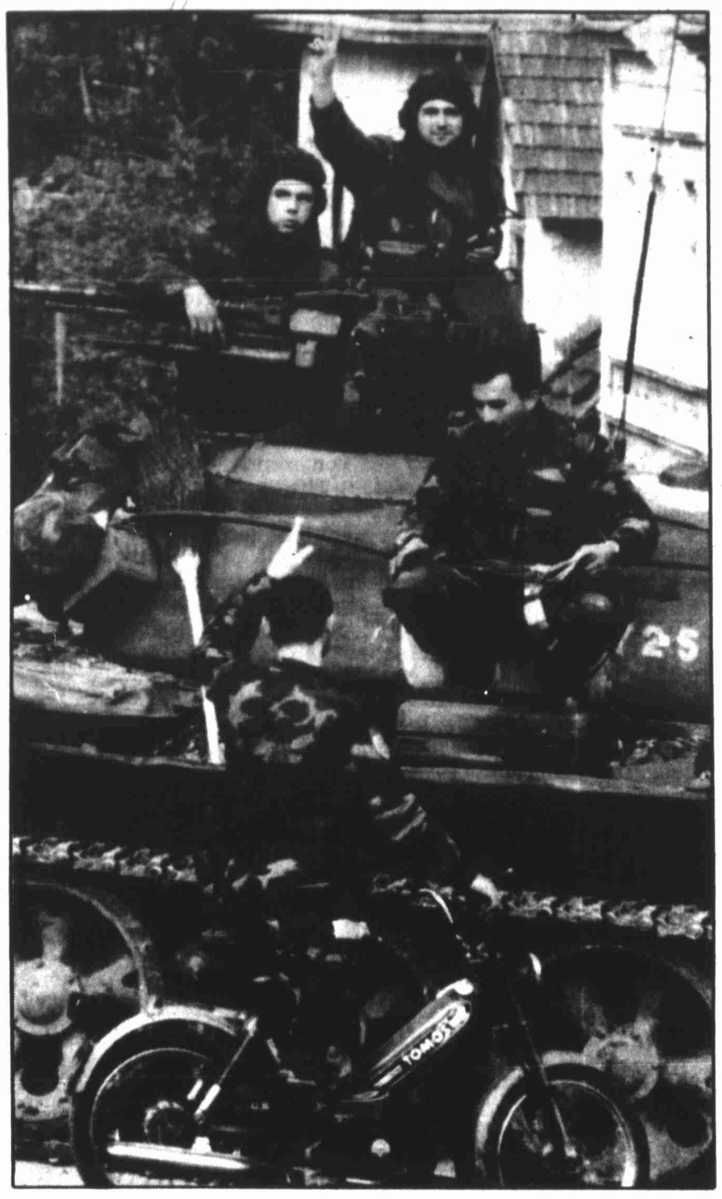

Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic said the fighting subsided Saturday because Serbs "are slowing their attacks down." The Serb military claimed the government was still attacking west of Banja Luka.

U.N. observers arrived on the Serb side of the front line at the invitation of Serb leaders, who demanded the world determine who breached the truce.

U.N. officials have said they could not judge the level of fighting nor who initiated it because they were barred from the area.

U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Chris Vernon warned the government that if it did not allow similar inspections on its side, "people will conclude that you are not adhering to the cease-fire."

In Banja Luka, Serb leaders discussed whether to stick with the U.S.-led peace process.

Balkans to gather in isolation to work on peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Site X. That's where leaders from the Balkans will gather Oct. 31 in splendid isolation and under the thumb of an energetic American diplomat, Richard C. Holbrooke.

The aim is to put Serbs, Muslims and Croats in Bosnia on a track toward peace. Holbrooke, who worked out a delicate cease-fire that made the negotiations possible, intends to keep them there "until we get results."

The site, probably a southern military base, will be announced early next week. Assistant Secretary of State Patrick Kennedy, a logistics whiz who made zig-zagging secretaries of state's planes run on time, was out last week looking for an eastern seaboard location big enough to house large negotiating teams and far enough away from the media.

Holbrooke intends to keep out reporters and cameras. "We want results and daily briefings are not compatible with that goal," he said Thursday. He's even sworn off TV talk shows for the duration.

Violations of the cease-fire won't stop the talks once they are opened.

Veteran politico arrested in assassination plot

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — A veteran politician who helped lead his country's struggle for independence was arrested Saturday in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate his former ally, President Robert Mugabe.

Police said the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole was taken from his Harare home for questioning after prosecutors said an armed group claiming loyalty to his small political party planned to ambush Mugabe's motorcade.

Two men have been charged with conspiracy to commit murder and engage in acts of terrorism and sabotage.

Police spokesman Enock Ngwenya would not give any further information on the circumstances of Sithole's arrest or say whether he would be charged.

Sithole, 75, a fiery, ordained minister, helped found what is now Zimbabwe's governing party in the 1960s and helped lead the struggle for independence in the former British colony of Rhodesia.

He split with Mugabe shortly after independence and the end of white minority rule in 1980. In 1983, Sithole fled to the United States after being accused of plotting an uprising against Mugabe's government.

He asked for asylum on grounds his life as an opposition politician was in danger. He returned in 1992.

Sithole's Zimbabwe African National Union-Ndonga party holds the only two opposition seats in the 150-seat parliament.

Prosecutors said Tuesday that the Chimwenje Freedom Fighters, a little-known dissident group, was plotting to attack Mugabe's motorcade Aug. 18.

They said the plot unraveled after one of the group's members was found with an assault rifle and an anti-personnel mine beside a road Mugabe was scheduled to use on the way to his rural home west of Harare.

Information provided by the man, identified as William Nhamakhona, led to the arrest of the group's leader, Simba Mhlanga, 30. Prosecutors said he led police to other conspirators.

No choice seen but to vote for Hussein

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Like many Iraqis asked about Sunday's presidential referendum, the shop owner looked over both his shoulders before answering in a low voice.

"Sure I will vote 'yes.' There is no other choice," he said with a nervous smile outside his run-down store in the back streets of Baghdad.

But doesn't the ballot allow people to vote "no" and say they don't want President Saddam Hussein to remain in power?

"People will be afraid to vote 'no.' Sometimes, people just can't say what they want to say," he said. "But please don't use my name in your article. I don't want to be arrested."

It is hard to imagine anything that the hard-pressed Iraqis need less than a presidential referendum in a country that Saddam has ruled with an iron fist since 1979.

Nearly five years after Iraq was crushed in the Gulf War, the economic sanctions that the world imposed on this oil-rich nation of 20 million people have left many of them poor and hungry.

U.N. officials say that 4 million Iraqis are completely destitute, compared to last year's 2 million. Medicines as simple as antibiotics are hard to find, even in hospitals.

The Iraqi dinar is worth so little now that people can be seen taking out large wads of money in marketplaces to buy items as small as a bag of fruit or a pack of cigarettes.

While many adults earn about 4,000 to 5,000 dinars (about $2) a month in their jobs, apples in the marketplace sell for about 1,000 dinars a pound and oranges for about 500 dinars a pound.

Products such as Pepsi Cola that are smuggled in from neighboring Jordan sell for as much as 1,700 dinars a can.

Some families have had to pull their children out of school to help earn enough money to buy food. Others sell their furniture in marketplaces. Small children at intersections beg from cars when the light turns red.

Despite all this, Saddam has repeatedly turned down a U.N. Security Council offer that would allow him to sell oil in the international market and use the money to buy food and medicine. Iraq feels the conditions under which the oil would be sold would compromise its sovereignty.

Analysts believe Saddam's victory in the referendum is a foregone conclusion: many Iraqis fear a "no" vote means harsh punishment. They see the vote as a public relations ploy by Saddam after some recent setbacks.

In July Saddam said he would stop cooperating with U.N. inspectors unless the economic sanctions were lifted. The inspections are part of Gulf War cease-fire resolutions that mandate destroying Iraq's most deadly weapons.

But in August two of Saddam's daughters and their husbands, including Lt. Gen. Hussein Kamel al-Majid, Iraq's weapons chief, defected to Jordan. It appeared that the main pillar of Saddam's power — his family — was cracking.

Rebellion against GOP farm bill rewrite started

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Congressman Larry Combest and three other House Republicans who are rebelling against the GOP leadership's rewrite of federal farm policy launched another broadside Friday.

The four circulated a letter to House Republicans, branding as "welfare" the "Freedom to Farm" bill drafted by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

Last month, the rebels — dubbed "The Gang of Four" — refused to back Roberts' bill when it came up for Agriculture Committee consideration, largely because of concerns over how cotton and rice producers would be treated.

Unable to vote the bill out of committee, Roberts instead asked the Republican leadership to fold the measure into a huge budget reconciliation package the House will debate later this month.

Combest, R-Lubbock, and his cohorts — Reps. Richard Baker of Louisiana, Saxby Chambliss of Georgia and Bill Emerson of Missouri — wrote Friday that they would have "great difficulty" supporting the reconciliation bill if it includes "Freedom to Farm."

The reconciliation bill is the blueprint ensuring that government program spending matches budget targets previously enacted by Congress. The reconciliation package will include prized GOP initiatives such as welfare reform, Medicare and Medicaid rewrites and tax cuts — increasing the pressure on Republicans to fall in line and support the overall bill.

Asked Friday if he's planning on voting against the reconciliation bill, which is still being assembled, Combest said: "I don't know what's going to be in the package yet."

Roberts' measure would scrap the current system of crop subsidies in favor of a direct payment to farmers that would decline over seven years, saving $13.4 billion. The payments would no longer be tied to the market prices of crops.

"Radical farm program reform can be achieved without mailing our farmers 'Freedom to Farm' welfare checks," the four wrote, calling the bill's premise "contrary to the underlying principles of our Republican conference."

The letter urges consideration of the Senate Agriculture Committee's farm bill, which would save $13.4 billion over seven years but would leave largely intact the current subsidy system. The Senate bill is similar to an alternative proposed by Combest and Emerson voted down by the House Agriculture Committee.

Roberts has repeatedly defended his bill as the only way to ensure farmers would continue receiving government support while they are gradually weaned from subsidies. As for the welfare argument, Roberts contends that many lawmakers already hold that view about subsidies.

Prior to last month's Agriculture Committee vote, House Speaker Newt Gingrich broached the idea of punishing the four rebels. A GOP leadership aide accidentally forwarded to Democrats a memo detailing possible punishment against the GOP recalcitrants, including stripping Combest of his intelligence committee chairmanship.

"If that's the case, so be it," Combest said about the threat of retribution.

"I feel very committed to this and my strong commitment to this, I don't think, is going to come as any surprise to any — including the leadership," he said.

Men asked to pledge against domestic abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking as "a son who has seen domestic violence firsthand," President Clinton today called on the nation's men to pledge to never lift a hand against a woman.

Clinton, in his weekly radio address, also took aim at the Republican Congress, complaining of cuts voted by the House to reduce by $50 million "our efforts to protect battered women and their children, to preserve families and to punish these crimes."

Clinton, who intervened as a youngster to stop his stepfather from striking his mother, commented in the aftermath of O.J. Simpson's acquittal on charges of murdering his ex-wife and her friend.

In his first extensive interview since his acquittal, Simpson told The New York Times that he had been wrong to "get physical" with his wife in a 1989 attack that led him to plead no contest to abuse.

The president noted his administration's crime bill voted into law last year also included the Violence Against Women Act.

The new law, he said, "combines tough new sanctions against abusers with assistance to police, to prosecutors and to shelters in the fight against domestic violence."

"Just last week we organized grants to organizations in 16 states to assist in their efforts to stop violence and to support the victims," the president said.

Clinton noted that Justice Department statistics show nearly a third of all women murdered in the United States are killed by their husbands, former husbands or boyfriends.

In the Republican response to the president's radio address, Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico took exception to Clinton's criticism of GOP budget cuts.

"America's budget deficit is growing at a rate of $482 million a day but President Clinton won't support the balanced budget plan because he says balancing the budget in seven years is too fast," Domenici said. "It's not too fast for the unemployed, or underemployed, who can't get good work because of the deficit's stifling effect on job creation."

The domestic violence issue has long been a hidden problem, "swept under the rug, treated as a private family matter that was nobody's business but those involved," Clinton said.

That's changing, he said, because the public has seen domestic violence for what it is and denounced it.

"Now everyone knows that it is cowardly, destructive of families, immoral and criminal to abuse women in our families," he said.

The president said that police enforcement and criminal prosecutions cannot by themselves solve the problem of men who beat women.

"So let me close today by speaking directly to the men of America — not just as president or a father or a husband, but also as a son who has seen domestic violence firsthand," Clinton said.

"The real solution to this problem starts with us, with our personal responsibility and a simple pledge that we will never, never lift a hand against a woman for as long as we live," the president said.

"And that will teach our children that violence is never the answer."

Senate Republicans support permanent child tax credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are supporting a permanent $500-per-child tax credit as part of legislation that also expands eligibility for Individual Retirement Accounts and cuts taxes on capital gains.

The decision at a closed meeting Friday of GOP members of the Finance Committee, clears the way for formal committee action next week and by the full Senate the week after.

Although the per-child credit would be permanent, it would not be retroactive as Republican senators had hoped. They had wanted to put the money in voters' pockets before next year's election. But, under the proposal, taxpayers would not reap the benefits until they filed their 1996 returns.

Single taxpayers earning up to $75,000 and couples earning up to $110,000 would be eligible for the full credit. Many others would get a partial credit, depending on how many children they have.

A bill already passed by the House would award a full credit to families earning up to $200,000 and partial credit up to $250,000.

"We've wrapped up, at least from the Republican side, a tax package that keeps our word to the American people," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

However, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., denounced the package as "voodoo economics all over again."

"Every American should be suspicious about the tax deals Republicans are cutting behind closed doors," he said.

The decision to make the credit permanent averts a potentially nasty showdown between Dole and his chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas.

As senators struggled to shrink the $354 billion House tax cut down to the $245 billion permitted in Congress' plan to balance the budget in seven years, Dole had held out as a possible compromise making all or part of the tax package temporary.

But Gramm called a temporary tax cut "phony." After the agreement was reached Friday, he jubilantly told reporters, "We won," and promised to support the package vigorously.

The proposed income limits on the per-child credit are considerably lower than those sought by conservatives, but moderate Republicans wanted to deflect Democratic charges that Republicans were helping the rich at the expense of the poor and middle class.

GONE WITH THE WIND

Lake View overcomes weather, Steers to claim 21-13 win

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO – If the Big Spring Steers take up a collection to send Jay Jordan a graduation present, don't be surprised.

For the second year in a row, Jordan victimized the Steers with big plays, rushing for 168 yards, intercepting a pass and scoring a game-clinching touchdown late in the fourth quarter to lead San Angelo Lake View to a 21-13 victory over Big Spring Friday night.

The loss in Big Spring's District 4-4A opener puts the Steers in a familiar position: To repeat last year's trip to the playoffs, Big Spring must win its four remaining games, starting next Friday at Fort Stockton.

A stiff north wind in excess of 30 mph hampered Lake View's district-leading passing game – limiting the Chiefs to only 89 yards through the air – but it also played a big part in Jordan's winning touchdown.

Leading 14-7 with just over four minutes remaining, the Chiefs faced a fourth-and-one from their own 29. Figuring that a punt into the gale winds would give Big Spring good field position anyway, Lake View head coach Kyle Gandy elected to try for the first down.

He got a lot more.

Jordan took the handoff from quarterback Sterlin Gilbert, evaded a pair of defenders at the line of scrimmage, then took off down the left sideline 71 yards for the touchdown, making the score 21-7.

"We couldn't punt," Gandy said. "We would've given up 20 yards to that wind. We weren't going to gain much yardage punting, so we went for it."

The Steers got one of the scores back on a Bucky Crenshaw pass to Daniel Franks with 2:19 remaining, and had one last chance to score when Jordan lost a fumble with 1:17 left. Big Spring

Longhorns escape with tie as OU kicker misses FG try

DALLAS (AP) — Jeremy Alexander's 42-yard field goal attempt into a swirling wind was wide left with 26 seconds left Saturday and No. 13 Oklahoma, which came back from a 21-point deficit, had to settle for a 24-24 tie with No. 18 Texas.

Oklahoma's Howard Schnellenberger, coaching for the first time in the game, almost pulled off one of the most incredible wins in the 90-year history of the series.

Both teams now have 4-1-1 season records and the Longhorns were denied their 700th collegiate win.

Oklahoma rallied from a 21-0 deficit to tie the game at 24-all in the third period. The

SWC

Sooners scored twice in the period, on an 8-yard touchdown pass from Eric Moore to P.J. Mills and again on Jerald Moore's second scoring run of the day, a 22-yarder.

The tying touchdown came with 6:13 left in the third quarter after Texas' Mike Adams had fumbled a punt and Rod Henderson of Oklahoma recovered on the Texas 22. Moore scored on the next play.

The game was replete with big defensive plays on a wild offensive scoring day.

Oklahoma cornerback Larry Bush tackled Texas' Ricky Williams on fourth-and-1 from the Sooners 11 with 9:17 to go. Oklahoma drove to the Texas 25 where on fourth-and-1 Schnellenberger opted for the field goal try. The snap was high and Alexander hooked the ball.

He had a 52-yarder blocked earlier in the second half. Alexander had been 12-for-12 coming into the game.

Texas struck for three first-quarter touchdowns to rock the Sooners back on their heels.

James Brown hit tight end Pat Fitzgerald on an 8-yard touchdown pass and 2:05 later the Longhorns scored again on a blocked punt. Derek Lewis

Tennis team rebounds from loss to down Pecos

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

There was little joy for the Mighty Caseys of District 4-4A tennis, but they didn't exactly strike out, either.

A few days removed from their upset loss to Andrews, the Big Spring tennis team returned to action Saturday at Figure 7 Tennis Center and responded with a workman-like 16-2 victory over Pecos.

Big Spring's victory was perhaps the quietest in team history. The noise level at the tennis center wouldn't have disturbed any sleeping wildlife.

"They were down ... and they were playing against a team they were expected to win against, so the morale was low, but that's to be expected," BSHS coach Ralph Davis said. "It's been like being at a funeral this week, that kind of atmosphere. But the kids are coming around. This match should help us get ready for the task at hand."

As expected, Big Spring's boys dominated their half of the draw, winning all nine matches. The Steers were so overpowering that they dropped only one set.

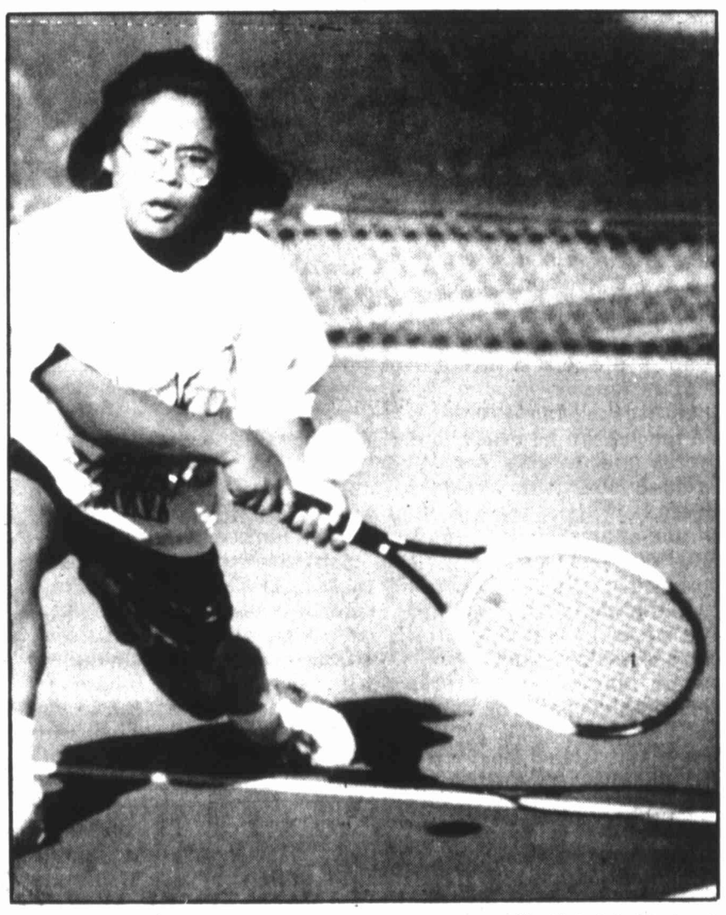

The girls were only slightly less deadly to Pecos. The Lady Steers swept the doubles matches, and only Yuching Li and Christina Vera suffered defeats in singles play.

No. 1 girls seed Monica Villarreal, who won in straight sets in both singles and doubles play, said the team has to put Tuesday's loss to Andrews behind it.

"We lost to Andrews, and that was a tough loss, but we just have to bounce back and play that much harder," Villarreal said. "You try not to dwell too much on the fact you lost."

Davis said the regional tournament, set for Oct. 27-28 in Lubbock, is a more-than-worthy goal for his team.

"We're looking to regionals. Everyone knows it," Davis said. "We've used that as a little bit of a motivational tool for the kids, saying that this is what we're looking to."

Coronado, Lake View win relay

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

Just for fun, a bunch of area teenagers decided to get up early Saturday morning and go running around a portion of the Big Spring countryside.

That may not sound like a ton of laughs to many people, but fun was the main motivation behind Saturday's Big Spring Cross Country Relays, held at the old Webb Air Force Base golf course.

The rules were radically different from regular cross country meets. Instead of boys running three miles and girls running two, teams of four runners each ran one mile. There were no small and big-school divisions, meaning that athletes from Grady and Coahoma rubbed shoulders with entrants from 5A schools like Lubbock

ETSU blasts W. Texas A&M

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Cole Cayce ran for a touchdown and threw for another, and Jason Smith scored twice as East Texas stormed past West Texas A&M 51-7 on Saturday.

The Lions (4-3, 2-1 Lone Star) dominated on both sides of the ball, gaining 536 yards and intercepting five passes.

East Texas, which entered the game as the No. 1 defense in the conference, far outplayed the conference's top passing and yardage offense. The Buffaloes (5-2, 1-2) wound up with only 251 yards passing and 21 more rushing.

West Texas was set back when quarterback Grady Benton broke a finger on his passing hand. He finished 7-of-14 for 99 yards. Backup Arnold Marcha was 12-of-24 152 and he was intercepted four times.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — L.T. Levine scored twice and No. 10 Kansas held Troy Davis 80 yards below his nation-leading rushing average while rolling past Iowa State 34-7 Saturday in the Jayhawks' first action as a Top Ten team in 19 years.

Four players scored touchdowns as the Jayhawks (6-0, 2-0 Big Eight) went to 6-0 for the first time since 1968.

Stanton runs away from Forsan in 6-2A opener

By DARRELL ERICSON
Sportswriter

STANTON – An overpowering ground game led the Stanton Buffalos to their district-opening win over Forsan 41-8.

The victory brings Stanton to a 5-1 record while Forsan dropped to 2-4.

Stanton running back Todd Davis, ran for a 155 yards on 13 carries. Davis first started in the fourth game of the season and has gained over 100 yards in each game. His personal goal is a 1,000-yard season.

"It makes me feel good when I gain over 100 yards in a game, but I am lucky to have our offensive line to run behind. It should make them proud to know they are getting the job done," Davis said.

"The line did a great job opening the holes. It is easy to gain the yardage when they block the way they do. All I have to do is look for the hole," Davis said.

Davis helped the Buffalos gain a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on a 35-yard run. Taylor Looney finished off drive with a 1-yard run for the score. Four minutes later Davis ran 40 yards to score the second touchdown of the game.

Averaging 11-yards per carry, Davis continued to drive the offense into scoring range. In the second quarter Looney completed a 25-yard pass to Nick Hull, making the halftime score 21-0.

Stanton's offense dominated the third quarter as well as it did the first half. Davis accumulated 74 yards off six carries while Stanton moved ahead 35-0.

Chris Carroll scored on a 15-yard run, bringing the score to 28-0. Looney then connected with Leo McCalister for a 15-yard touchdown pass.

Forsan's defense, however, did have some heroes, headed by Jason Brown. Brown assisted with 14 tackles and had two fumble recoveries.

The defense also blocked three passes, had one interception, and three sacks for a loss of 11 yards.

Late in the fourth quarter Forsan scored its first touchdown when Jason Lentz scored on a 2-yard run and followed his own touchdown with a completion to Wes Crow for twoextra points. Rusty Baker provided most of the yardage on the drive, gaining 55 yards of the 67 yards.

"Running the ball was the key to the win. The wind made it hard to pass the ball. The offensive line did a great job with their blocking," Stanton's head coach Mark Cotton said.

Offensive lineman Nathan Cook and Jeremy Louder said the work done was due to last week's loss against Iraan.

"We were coming off a big loss from last week and we decided to put it behind us and come out and win. We had some good practices and it payed off tonight," Louder said.

"It was important to win this game. It was homecoming and, most important, our first district game. We had to win to snap back from last week's loss," Cook said.

Stanton's Todd Davis (45) tries to escape a Forsan defender during the teams' game Friday night in Stanton. Davis had his fourth straight 10-yard-plus game of the season as Stanton won 41-8.

Cotton said, "Forsan was short handed and it showed in tonight's game."

Forsan's head coach Jan East said, "We got beat by a good team. They have only lost one game. We need to get our kids well. It's kind of lonesome on the sidelines with just five players standing beside you.

"I'm proud of the way the team played. They played hard and didn't give up."

Cotton said Stanton definitely needs all the wins it can get.

"The team knows now how important it is to play every game the best you can. You have to play your best to have a chance to win in this district.

"It's probably one of the toughest 6-2A districts around," Cotton said.

Stanton will travel to Jim Ned next Friday for their next district show while Forsan hosts Winters. Game times are set for 7:30 p.m.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Lady Steers fall to Monahans

MONAHANS – It was three games and out again for the Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team.

The Lady Steers, minus star striker Toshia Wilbert, dropped an 11-15, 15-4, 15-8 decision to Monahans Saturday.

BSHS coach Traci Pierce said that Wilbert failed to show for the bus ride to Monahans Saturday. Wilbert's status with the team is undetermined, Pierce added.

Playing in place of Wilbert, sophomore Dee Hill had a fine outing, collecting 11 points, 10 of which came in the first game.

"The lesson we learned is that we can play without (Wilbert)," Pierce said. "Dee Hill did super. She stepped up in Toshia's place and did a wonderful job."

Big Spring won the junior varsity contest by a score of 16-14, 15-5, while the BSHS freshmen won a 16-14, 15-4 decision.

The Lady Steers hold their final home game of the season Tuesday against Andrews. Freshman action begins at 5:30, with the JV and varsity matches to follow.

Coahoma boosters schedule meetings

COAHOMA – The Coahoma Athletic Booster Club will meet each Tuesday at 7 p.m. during football season in the elementary cafeteria.

The previous week's game film will be shown, and head coach Eddie McHugh will discuss the upcoming game that week.

The public is invited to attend.

Coahoma teams need opponents

COAHOMA – Coahoma High School has the following open dates on its 1995-96 basketball schedule:

- Girls' teams are needed for the varsity tournament Nov. 30-Dec. 2.
- JV and varsity girls, Friday, Dec. 8.
- Varsity girls and boys, Monday, Dec. 11.

Interested parties should contact girls' coach David Cox or boys' coach Kim Nichols at 394-4535.

Benefit golf tournament

The Big Spring golf booster club is sponsoring a benefit golf tournament for the Big Spring golf teams.

The proceeds will go for equipment, expenses, and other concerns of the teams.

moved the ball to Lake View's 33 in three plays, but Crenshaw was then hit while passing, and the ball was picked off by Julian Daniels to seal the game for Lake View.

The game figured to be a matchup between Big Spring's running and Lake View's passing. But the wind fairly nullified the Chiefs' air game, and ankle injuries to fullback Donny Hill and tailback Antwoyne Edwards limited the Steers to 140 yards rushing, well below their season average.

Despite injuries at the running back, defensive line and linebacker positions, Big Spring coach Dwight Butler didn't use that as an excuse.

"We're not going to gripe, and we're not going to make excuses," Butler said. "Lake View just played a great game."

After a scoreless first half, a fumble by Crenshaw on the Steers' 13 set the stage for the first score of the night, a 12-yard pass from Gilbert to Morris Smith.

Another Crenshaw mistake, this time on Jordan's interception, led to Lake View's second touchdown. The Chiefs marched 63 yards on 10 plays, the capper being Jordan's three-yard touchdown with 11:18 remaining.

The Steers (1-5, 0-1) play at Fort Stockton next Friday, while Lake View (4-1-1, 1-0) plays at Pecos. Game time for both contests is 7:30.

Coronado.

In the girls' division, Coronado took top honors in a time of 24 minutes, 39.72 seconds, more than a half-minute ahead of runner-up San Angelo Lake View. Lake View's boys won their division in a time of 20:13.70, two seconds ahead of second place Andrews.

Big Spring placed fifth in the girls' competition in a time of 26:32.56, while the BSHS boys were eighth with a time of 21:34.55.

Garden City's girls managed a fourth place finish, while Grady was five spots behind in ninth. Coahoma's girls finished 13th. The only other area school to enter a boys' team, Grady, placed 13th in its division.

BSHS coach Randy Britton said the meet offered a nice change of pace from the usual cross country routine.

"If you're a little shaky, running in this kind of meet can give you some confidence," Britton said. "But the biggest thing ... is it is fun. It gives them a mental break from the normal routine."

The BSHS cross country team returns to action Saturday in Levelland, then hosts the District 4-4A meet Oct. 28.

crashed through to block Brian Lewis' punt and the bounded back to the Sooners 1. Michael Boudoin picked it up and scored the touchdown.

Shon Mitchell raced 69 yards for a touchdown less than four minutes later to give Texas a 21-0 lead over the shocked Sooners.

Senior quarterback Garrick McGee replaced freshman Eric Moore and got the Sooners back into the game with a 98-yard drive capped by Jerald Moore's 24-yard touchdown run.

Jerald Moore rushed for a career-high 174 yards on 21 carries.

The teams traded field goals and Texas led 24-10 at halftime.

It was the last time Texas and Oklahoma met as members of the Southwest and Big Eight Conferences, respectively. The teams will be in the newly formed Big 12 Conference next year.

A sellout crowd of 75,587 watched in the Cotton Bowl.

Texas A&M 20, SMU 17

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Albert Connell made a leaping touchdown catch in the corner of the end zone with eight seconds left as No. 22 Texas A&M snapped a two-game losing streak with a wild 20-17 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday.

SMU (1-5, 0-2 Southwest Conference), which led most of the game, took a 17-13 lead on a 21-yard touchdown pass from freshman Derek Canine to a diving Kevin Thornal with 56 seconds to play. That score, which came on third-and-10, capped an 80-yard drive kept alive by costly penalties on A&M and key third-and-long conversions.

But the Aggies (3-2, 1-1), who played without star running back Leeland McElroy, answered with a five-play, 70-yard scoring drive that included two 17-yard passes from Corey Pullig to Aaron Oliver, a 15-yard pass interference penalty on the Mustangs and the dramatic 25-yard TD lob to Connell, who outleaped SMU's Cornell Parker in the end zone.

For three quarters, SMU dominated A&M by stacking defenders at the line and shutting down the Aggies rushing attack while Pullig struggled with his passing.

The Mustangs led 10-0 going into the fourth quarter, but their defense, which was on the field nearly the entire third quarter, began to tire.

A&M scored its first touchdown with 14:46 left to play on a 56-yard screen pass from Pullig to Sirr Parker, who zigzagged out of the arms of four tacklers while cutting back from the left to the right side of the field.

A fumble by Canine, who was making his first start, was recovered by A&M linebacker Reggie Brown at the Mustangs' 37 with 14:01 to go. The Aggies ran the ball five straight times before D'Andre Hardeman rammed into the end zone from the 2. The extra point attempt failed, giving A&M a 13-10 lead with 11:29 left.

Texas Christian 33, Rice 28

HOUSTON (AP) — Max Knake moved up on the Southwest Conference career passing ladder with two touchdown passes and converted a key fourth down that helped Texas Christian rally to a 33-28 victory over Rice on Saturday.

TCU (4-1, 2-0 SWC) and Rice (1-3-1, 0-2) played for the last time as SWC members. Both move into the Western Athletic Conference next season as the Southwest Conference goes out of business.

Knake completed 18-of-25 for 167 yards and moved up to No. 8 on the SWC career passing yardage list with 6,321. Andre Davis rushed for 144 yards on 34 carries for the Horned Frogs.

Area roundup: Blizzards freeze out Coahoma; Sands routs Wellman

WINTERS – The fourth ranked Winters Blizzards rolled over Coahoma for their first district 6-2A win.

Winters quarterback John Belew threw three touchdown passes which helped the Blizzards remain undefeated at 6-0 and broke the four-game winning streak of the Bulldogs, now 4-2.

Dennis Conner caught TD passes of 11 and 35 yards from Belew. John Biddix caught Belew's third touchdown pass, a 34-yarder in the first quarter. Winters jumped to a quick 14-0 lead.

Both teams moved the ball well, marching up and down the field. Belew, an all-state candidate, completed 12 of 21 passes for 192 yards while Coahoma's quarterback Adam Tindol completed 17 of 35 passes for 230 yards.

The score did not reflect the closeness of the game. Coahoma penetrated Winters' 25-yard line three times, but falling short of the end zone. Coahoma totaled 317 yards while Winters had 362.

Winters' head coach Robin Byrd said, "We threw the ball well and we ran the ball well. It was a real accomplishment for us to score as we did going against the wind. We were able to execute, though Coahoma had a good defensive scheme."

Tim Phillips began the scoring for the Bulldogs early in the third on a 2-yard run. Mike McMillan ran the additional 2 yards for the two extra points.

Matthew Hamilton scored on a 3-yard run for Coahoma's second and final touchdown. Hamilton completed the scoring with a two-point reception from Tindol.

Coahoma's head coach Eddie McHugh said, "We didn't make the big plays when we had the chance. The wind was a big factor in the game, but we just got ourselves in a hole and we couldn't get out."

The Coahoma Bulldogs will travel to Wall next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

CRANE – Jose Garza rushed for 88 yards and a touchdown to lead the Crane Golden Cranes to a 34-15 victory over Colorado City Friday night.

Crane jumped out to a 21-0 halftime lead, but Arian Emmerson helped close the gap for C-City. Rushing for 118 yards, Emmerson scored on a 1-yard run with only 25 seconds left in the third.

Frank Espinoza connected with Lynn Boyd in the end zone for the two-point conversion.

The Wolves other touchdown was a 49-yard pass from Espinoza to Lance Dockery. Chris Ramirez was good on the kick.

Late in the fourth quarter Crane won the game as Chris Rodriquez scored his second touchdown on a 14-yard run and Tim Acosta returned a 36-yard interception.

"We had some mental breakdowns at crucial time in the ballgame which was the main key. Crane has a good ball team. They seem to have been their worst enemy in game past, but they put it together last night," head coach Bill Grissom said.

The Wolves move to a 3-3 overall record, 0-1 in district 8-3A- Crane is 2-4, 1-0.

GREENWOOD – Bucky Smith and Casey Otho each rushed for a pair of touchdowns as Greenwood Ranger defeated the Reagan County Owls 34-8 in both teams' District 8-3A opener.

Smith had 17 carries and rushed for 138 yards. Brandon Honnicutt had 16 carries for 115 yards.

The scoring began in the second quarter with Josh Jones' 9-yard run.

Dominating the third quarter, the Rangers scored 19 unanswered points. Smith scored on runs of 5 and 1 yards and Otho scored on a 6-yard run. The score was 26-0 going into the fourth.

Early in the fourth Otho scored his second touchdown on a 13-yard run and followed with a 2-yard extra-point run.

The Rangers' defense held the Owls scoreless up to the fourth quarter when Noel Ramirez scored the Owls lone touchdown on a 5-yard run. Wes Luxton followed with the 2-yard run for the extra point to finish off the score.

The Rangers upped their overall record 4-1 while the Owls dropped 3-3.

STERLING CITY – Sterling City's Bradon McDaniel crossed the goal line four times and led the Eagles to their first district win.

McDaniel was responsible for 24 points of the 28-16 victory, and Todd Kilpatrick was perfect through the uprights to score the additional four points.

McDaniel ended with 79 yards on 10 carries and began the scoring on a 42-yard breakaway run. He scored three more times, putting Sterling City ahead for good.

The three additional touchdowns were on runs of 15, 9, and 9-yards.

Garden City was hurt by three interceptions, but still managed to post 127 total passing yards.

Garden City's Kelly Langford threw two touchdowns, connecting with Bradley Batla from 9 yards out in the second and again in the fourth from 16 yards out.

Garden City's head coach Dennis Bryant said, "The wind hurt us in the first quarter, we got down by 14 points. We couldn't throw the ball, or punt the ball. When we had the wind we just couldn't get caught up."

Sterling City rose to overall 3-3 record while Garden City fell to 1-5.

Sands 49
Wellman 0

ACKERLY – It was a battle between ranked teams and the No. 7 Sands Mustangs delivered a shutout in their District 5 six man opener against No. 9-ranked Wellman.

Josh Richter rushed for three touchdowns leading the Mustangs to victory.

The Mustangs' offense dominated the game totaling 11 first downs.

Steven Gillespie put the first points on the board scoring on a 8-yard run. The Mustangs totaled 21 points in the second quarter on touchdowns by Richter and Bill Barnes.

Richter scored on runs of 25 and 79 yards while Barnes rushed for a 30-yard score.

The game was called with the 45-point rule in the third quarter after Sands added an additional 20 points to the score.

Gillespie sprinted 63-yards for his second touchdown and Barnes, also his second TD ran for 11-yards. Richter's third touchdown, a 48-yard run, was the deciding factor in the game.

"The win was definitely a confidence builder. The kids played well and we had a good balanced game. Overall the defense played the best game they have had," Sands coach Billy Barnett said.

Sands running back Josh Richter (10) runs for yardage while teammate Dallas Hopper (30) applies a block during the Mustangs' 49-0 win over Wellman Friday night.

Winters were short handed, they lost their fullback to a shop accident and the tight end was sick. The score is not indicative of what that team can do when they are at full string," Barnett added.

The Mustangs will travel to Dawson Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Klondike 67
Grady 18

PATRICIA – Third ranked Klondike remained undefeated in their District 5 six man opener against Grady Friday night.

Tanner Etheredge passed for four touchdowns and ran for two, while Chris Arismendez rushed for three touchdowns and caught a scoring pass.

The win upped the Cougars 6-0 and dropped Grady to 3-3

Etheredge connected with Erik Arismendez on 21 and 50-yard passes, 30 yards to Lon Estes, and 30 yards to Chris Arismendez.

Etheredge rushed for two touchdowns on 28 and 20-yard runs. Arismendez sprinted 42, 4, and 3 yards to the end zone and finished the game with 124 yards rushing. Estes also had a 1-yard touchdown run.

The game was called on the 45-point rule in the fourth quarter after Grady was able to score three touchdowns.

Grady first score came in the second quarter on a 4-yard run by Chris Hewtty. Early in the third quarter Raymond Torres connected with Cody Peugh on a 35-yard pass and again on a 20-yard pass.

Klondike's head coach Jim Kinnear said, "It's nice to be undefeated but it was more important to get that first district win. We were fortunate to get it and now we feel we are on the right track."

Grady's head coach Roger Smith said, "The biggest factor was losing two big players during the week. We lost Aaron Gibson and Joey Rivas to ankle sprains and it's doubtful they can play next week.

"Klondike is too big, too fast, and too strong for our players, who have little experience, to have a shot at. I'm proud of the effort of the team. We didn't give up.

"You have to give credit to Cody Peugh. He stepped in as quarterback and threw for 147 yards. That's pretty good for a player who has never taken a snap."

Grady will take on Loop next Friday at 7:30 while Klondike will look for their second district win against No. 9-ranked Wellman next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

scored on a 61-yard kickoff return and a 78-yard pass interception return.

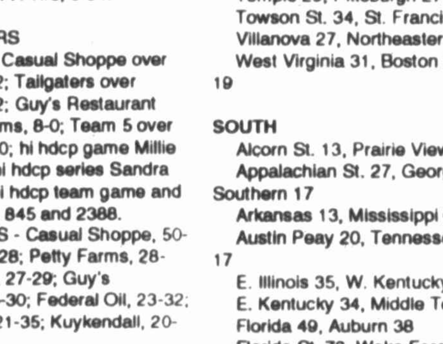

Woodell was also responsible for a 45-yard touchdown pass to Alvin Crawford.

Borden County continued to stay close in the game on the offensive running by Fernando and Oscar Baeza.

Fernando Baeza began the scoring in the game on a 16-yard gain, but the Coyotes quickly fell behind 14-6.

Fernando Baeza scored his second touchdown of the game in the second quarter on a 3-yard run, but Loraine's Woodell continued to pull ahead.

Michael Irvin, right, gives a kiss to Emmitt Smith after Smith scored a touchdown for the Dallas Cowboys last week against Green Bay. Dallas plays San Diego today.

Jones: Why's everybody always picking on me?

Poor Jerry Jones. There's a conspiracy afoot, and it's all aimed at him and his beloved Dallas Cowboys. The enemy is everywhere, and its mission is simple: Destroy anything wearing the silver and blue.

Paranoid? Who, me?

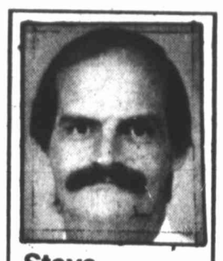

Jones, the owner of the Cowboys, divulged this information at a press conference this week after the National Football League announced that the Cowboys' $35 million contract with Deion Sanders doesn't abide by the league salary cap, and must be renegotiated.

"This is not about Deion," Jones said. "This is about sticking it to the Cowboys."

Wrong. This is not about Deion OR sticking it to the Cowboys.

This is about sticking it to Jerry Jones.

Jones has done his very best to make life miserable for NFL owners the past few months, and now they're returning the favor. Remember all those lucrative deals Jones signed with Pepsi, Nike, et al? The ones that violated league revenue-sharing policies?

Steve Reagan
Sports Editor

It is now payback time. First the league decides to sue the pants off Jones, filing a $300 million suit to halt all his independent deals, then it disallows the Sanders contract.

Make no mistake: This is personal. Jones has become the skunk at the NFL owners' garden party, and they are sending in animal control.

Before you shed any crocodile tears for Jones, however, please keep in mind one simple fact: He had it coming.

Jones has taken great pleasure out of sticking it to his fellow owners the past few months. When he announced the deal with Pepsi, making the cola the official soft drink of Texas Stadium, he said it marked "a direct hit" on the league's marketing plan.

When he made a deal with Nike, his press released trumpeted the news that Jerry had pulled another fast one on his fellow owners.

He has thumbed his nose loud and long at his brethren, practically daring them to do something about it.

Now they have.

And Jones is incensed.

"They are trying to intimidate the Cowboys," he said. "They're trying to be a bully. It's so transparent that the NFL is being selective."

Is the league being selective? Probably. After all, a lot of player contracts are similar to Sanders' pact – containing little in actual salary (which counts against the cap) but millions in bonuses and incentive clauses.

But if anyone is being a bully in this matter, it's Jones. He reminds one of nothing less than the proverbial beach bully who has great fun kicking sand in other people's faces, only to be shocked and outraged when the 98-pound weaklings kick back.

Jones believes the NFL is picking on him.

He's right.

Paybacks are hell, aren't they, Jerry?

Even without Sanders, Cowboys give Chargers lots to worry about

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After two weeks of stumbling, bumbling and fumbling, the San Diego Chargers at least have one small consolation going into Sunday's game against the Dallas Cowboys:

Deion Sanders won't be around to dance in their faces.

The underdog Chargers will be busy enough with Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, Michael Irvin and Charles Haley as they try to avoid their first three-game losing streak since early in the 1993 season.

This could have been one of those "Super Bowl Previews." Maybe it still will be, but only the Cowboys (5-1) have held up their end of the deal. Their only loss was at Washington, when Aikman was knocked out with a strained calf muscle.

The Chargers (3-3) are another story. No NFL team turns the ball over with more frequency than the defending AFC champions, who have a minus-8 ratio. Their pass rush has been off the mark, the offensive line spotty at times, and the wide receivers have become prone to fumbling after the catch or letting balls bounce off their hands for easy pickoffs.

The Chargers rebounded from two critical fumbles at Kansas City on Monday night to take a seemingly safe seven-point lead. But their prevent defense did nothing to prevent Kansas City from forcing overtime, then taking a 29-23 victory on rookie Tamarick Vanover's 86-yard punt return.

Coach Bobby Ross tried to play spin doctor in the wake of road losses to Pittsburgh and Kansas City.

"We're not dead at all," Ross said. "I'm counting on the fact that playing Dallas will get our attention quickly. Because when you play a team like that, you've got to put that one behind you real fast."

But the Chargers likely will be without quarterback Stan Humphries, who has a bruised rotator cuff in his throwing shoulder. Playing against a Chiefs team determined to stop running back Natrone Means, Humphries had one of his best games in his four seasons in San Diego, throwing for 315 yards and one touchdown. He was hurt toward the end of the regulation.

Humphries wasn't able to practice until Friday, when he threw only four passes. He tried some soft tosses during Saturday's walkthrough, then said the decision on playing him would be up to Ross.

"I have a good range of motion, I just don't have the strength," Humphries said. "When I try to reach back and throw it, it just isn't there."

Gale Gilbert is expected to make only his fourth start in 10 seasons, at a critical time. Humphries could be available for emergency duty.

Aikman knows the spot the Chargers are in. After the Cowboys lost 27-23 at Washington, Aikman came back from his injury — imploring his line to play a little harder to keep him in one piece — and threw for 316 yards and two touchdowns in a 34-24 win over Green Bay.

"When you lose a game like that, as frustrating as it is, it puts a new importance on the following game," Aikman said. "That was the situation that we were in a week ago, and that's a situation that they now face."

The Cowboys certainly responded well after the Washington loss. Against the Packers, Aikman was 24-for-31; Smith, the NFL's leading rusher, had 106 yards and two TDs on 31 carries; and Irvin had eight catches for 150 yards.

Having played in the NFC East for a few seasons, defensive tackle Reuben Davis knows how big it is to play Dallas.

"We wanted to go into this game and have it so dramatized that it would bring in so much media attention," Davis said. "Now people have the feeling that we're mediocre and Dallas is going to come in here and sweep us.

"Well, this is an opportunity that we can rise to their level, bring our self-esteem back up, our confidence level. Because I know a lot of guys are down right now and this right here can definitely carry us right over that threshold."

Means, the AFC's leading rusher with 537 yards, may be San Diego's key. He had only 33 yards at Kansas City, but tackle Harry Swayne expects the line to play better at home.

"I don't think we have to play a perfect game," Swayne said. "People have been scoring on them. People have been running the ball well on them. I think (Washington) could have done a lot better than they did, actually. They didn't start off the game too well."

Nonetheless, the Redskins finished with 136 rushing yards against Dallas.

On the other hand, the Chargers' streak of not allowing a 100-yard rusher is in serious danger of being broken Sunday. Smith, who has 744 total yards, missed 100 only once, when he finished with 95 against Washington.

"The biggest key is that we've got to go out and stay together," Davis said. "They're the type of team that they're going to keep pounding and pounding and when you break, that's when they let it all rip."

At least the Chargers won't have to face Sanders, who is scheduled to make his first appearance for Dallas at Atlanta on Oct. 29.

Last year, Sanders punctuated San Francisco's 38-15 regular-season win here by returning an interception 90 yards for a touchdown, then dancing in the end zone. He also had an interception in the 49ers' 49-26 Super Bowl blowout of the Chargers.

Seminoles thrash Wake Forest

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Danny Kanell passed for 323 yards and five touchdowns in the first half Saturday as top-ranked Florida State scored 41 points in less than 15 minutes on the way to a 72-13 victory over Wake Forest.

Although he had two passes intercepted, Kanell teamed with four players on scoring passes as the Seminoles gained 460 yards by halftime and built a 41-13 lead.

Kanell, who has thrown 21 touchdown passes this season, completed 28-of-36 for 342 yards before retiring after the first series of the second half.

Nebraska 57, Missouri 0

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Tommie Frazier ran for three touchdowns and passed for two as No. 2 Nebraska routed Missouri 57-0 Saturday.

Frazier, a senior, improved to 26-1 as a starter in regular-season games as the Cornhuskers (6-0, 2-0 Big Eight) beat the Tigers for the 17th straight time. Frazier also became the school's career leader in touchdowns with 64, breaking Steve Taylor's record of 62 from 1985-88.

It was not a pretty game. There were 12 fumbles, two interceptions and several muffed kick returns. Missouri fell to 2-4, 0-2.

Florida 49, No. 7 Auburn 38

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Danny Wuerffel threw for 380 yards, including three touchdown passes to Chris Doering, and

■TOP 25

No. 3 Florida finally got some turnovers to beat No. 7 Auburn 49-38 Saturday.

Doering's first TD catch was part of a 21-point explosion by the Gators (6-0, 5-0 Southeastern Conference) that turned Florida's 21-20 lead into a 42-20 runaway in less than five minutes.

Auburn (4-2, 3-2) maintained hope nearly until the end, pulling to 49-38 on Stephen Davis' 46-yard touchdown run on fourth-and-2. The Tigers recovered an onside kick on the ensuing kickoff, but Florida took over because the ball didn't go 10 yards.

Ohio State 27, Wisconsin 16

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Eddie George rushed for 141 yards and three touchdowns, including a 51-yard burst with 6:33 remaining that lifted No. 4 Ohio State past No. 21 Wisconsin 27-16 Saturday.

George's big run came just two minutes after his 1-yard TD run erased Wisconsin's 16-13 lead midway through the final period and silenced the rowdy crowd of 79,507, fifth-largest at Camp Randall Stadium.

Ohio State (6-0, 2-0 Big Ten) won for just the third time in eight trips to Madison since 1981.

USC 26, Washington St. 14

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kyle Wachholtz and Brad Otton threw a touchdown pass apiece Saturday as fifth-ranked Southern Cal built a big lead, then held on for a 26-14 victory over Washington State.

USC (6-0, 4-0 Pac-10) went up 26-0 in the third quarter before the Cougars (3-3, 2-1) finally scored.

Kansas State 23, Oklahoma State 17

LEARNING to HELP

Coahoma High School's community service class gives more than a grade; it's an opportunity to assist others

Story by Mary McAteer

If you think the only way to get teen-agers to do something in the community is sentence them to it, think again. At Coahoma High School, students line up to join the community service class - on purpose.

The innovative course, designed four years ago by Home Economics teacher Barbara Justiss and Curriculum Director Sarah Crippen, has grown from four students the first year to three classes with over 20 students each this year.

And don't think this is just an easy grade. Although there are no formal tests, students quickly learn community service takes work and dedication.

Those not willing to pull their share of the load drop out early; the rest are there for the long haul.

Justiss begins the class by teaching "people skills" - communicating with others, getting along, how to follow orders. Then it's time to begin work.

Most volunteers work in the elementary and junior high schools, because going much farther afield during the 45-minute class session is difficult.

Community service students tutor youngsters in math, reading, and writing; grade papers for teachers; help with bulletin board displays and classroom decorations; act as lunchroom and playground monitors; do typing and filing in the offices and discover how important a helper can be.

Tabatha McIntosh said she never realized how much work an elementary teacher has until she started helping grade papers.

Brandie Smithie spends her time in community service as a helper for a wheelchair bound student.

When she first started, she thought it might be a problem, but now, she said, all she thinks about is how much she gets out of it. "Some of us think we have problems," she said, "but they're nothing compared to what he goes through just making it through the day."

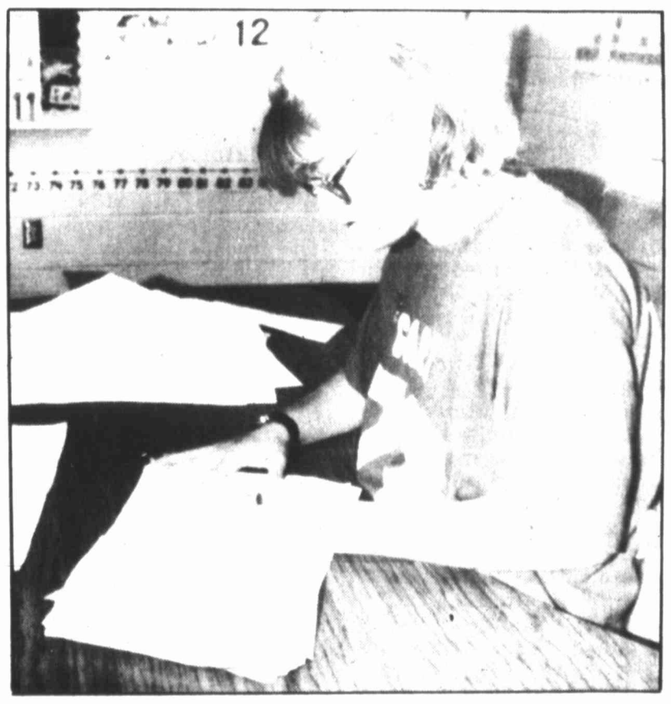

She enjoys helping him with letters and communication skills, and looks forward to the time she spends with him - "I can be depressed, and then I see him and how hard he works and what I was worrying about just doesn't seem important."

She's thinking about pursuing a career in physical therapy as a result of her experience in community service.

'Terrible trio' questions messages sent by Simpson verdict

Barbara Morrison
Columnist

Sitting back and listening to several conversations the terrible trio has been having lately has given me quite an education. And I'm not sure that I wouldn't have been better off this time without the learning experience.

What I am referring to is how the kids have reacted since the O.J. Simpson verdict.

To set the stage, let me tell you how we tried to handle the infamous court case in our family. Hubby and I had our ideas about the whole thing, but decided to let the kids form their own opinions.

These are actual quotations as near as I can remember them:

Daughter: "Gee, Mom, did you know that the person with the most money can buy just about anything? If you're rich enough, it doesn't matter if you're guilty or innocent."

Son number one: "I don't know if he was guilty or not...I wasn't there. I was only able to see and hear what television wanted me to see and hear. I don't think that was fair to the people of this country. Now, we're filled with people mad at other people and it's all based on what TV told us."

Son number two: "O.J. was a football hero. I guess it's okay to beat up your wife, then."

I interrupted and tried to explain to him that anyone who beat up another individual just because he or she could instill fear into another was NOBODY'S subject for worship.

"Well, gee whiz, Mom," he continued, "Then why wasn't that a bigger deal to anyone. The jury even said that just because you're violent with someone isn't a motive for murder." Try explaining that one to an inquisitive 12-year-old.

Maybe I should interject here that I am not condemning the jury or any of the attorneys here. They had a job to do and they did it. What I am complaining about is the simple and mixed messages sent to the children of America.

I find something wrong when just because someone is a football star with enough money, he can still be idolized and all of his sins forgotten regarding domestic abuse. Innocent of murder or not, THE MAN STILL BEAT HIS WIFE. The day we forget that is the day we've become very sad indeed.

A few other comments from the kids regarding the whole trial include (and I don't know exactly which one of the trio to attribute this one to): "Gosh, Mom, you kind of led us down the wrong path. The color a person is DOES matter to people in this country a lot more than you told us it did. There are a lot of people who hate you or treat you differently because your skin is a different color."

Another child added, "Yeah, and you always made it sound like it was only African-Americans or non-whites who were treated badly. There are a lot of non-whites who hate whites out there."

The group finally concluded that racial bias occurs just as equally, although still as wrongly, on ANY side of color.

Perhaps, though, simple a message as it was, my daughter finally hit home. "Gee, why does everyone get mad about race?" she asked. "Haven't we all grown up, yet, about that?"

The kids also came to the conclusion that the judicial system is unfair if there are no monetary limits. One child said, "I don't think it's fair that the rich can buy all these experts and attorneys. Maybe there are innocent people in jail just because they didn't have the money to buy all the people O.J. did..." Hmmmm.

Thanks to television in the courtroom, a LOT of money, immature racial relations and an overlooked impact of domestic violence, my children and many of us adults, received quite an education. Guilty or not, it's a damn shame.

It's a revelation in more ways than one. Helping the junior high school coaches, Mike McMillan found himself telling the students "all the things I never listened to when the coaches told me."

Members of previous classes cleaned abandoned houses and the city park; a group in this year's class is making sure the spirit flags get put up along the main street before games and taken down afterward.

Putting the flags up is no problem, Justiss said, because it can be done during class time. Taking them down is the test; it has to be done Saturday.

Working in the class can help students explore career areas, Justiss said. In some cases, it gives the students the chance to find out they really don't want to do something they might have considered.

Learning responsibility is an important part of the course. Since students are scattered throughout the school and community on their workdays - Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday - they have to rely on themselves to get to where they should be and do their jobs.

SNEAKING A PEEK

Improved polyester invades fashion

By KARI K. RIDGE
St. Petersburg Times

Forget images of John Travolta dancing through the '70s in a white polyester leisure suit.

Move instead to colorful blouses that drape just so — but don't wrinkle — and loose slacks that aren't scratchy.

This is the new generation of polyester, and some people in the fashion industry say it's here to stay.

Polyester microfiber — a softer, more "drapable" polyester blend — made its debut in the late '80s.

The Polyester Council of America, founded by manufacturers in an effort to promote the material, has a new campaign, with signs in women's stores luring a younger crowd to the fabric.

"Polyester has come a long way since your fourth-grade school picture," they say.

Polyester seems to be all the rage in women's clothing stores across the country. National fashion ads are pushing it, and even Bloomingdale's, the upscale fashion emporium, plans to kick off a special campaign at its New York store, promoting fashions made exclusively with polyester from designers such as Anne Klein, Andrea Jovine and Tahari.

Lesley Guanio, 22, and Heather Murphy, 24, were trying on polyester outfits in Tampa Bay recently. The University of South Florida roommates have been on a polyester buying binge since they noticed it on store racks this summer.

"This isn't the stuff from 'The Brady Bunch'," says Guanio. "The first polyester thing I bought was a pair of black pants this summer, and they're so comfortable. I love them. Now I go into stores looking for polyester."

Whether or not we want to admit it, says DuPont's Walsh, consumers have made polyester the nation's second-most popular fabric behind cotton.

One benefit is its durability, says Erin Johnson, manager of Contempo Casuals. "Polyester never dies," she said. "That's why you see it in so many thrift stores."

Polyester microfiber can be machine-washed and machine-dried, never wrinkles and is available in every fashion.

Exchange students offer fun look at other cultures, countries

During the last 10 years we've had people from foreign countries in our home. It started when our oldest son, then in high school, went to France on an exchange through the Rotary Club. Our son's counterpart, Pierre, came to live with us for about six weeks that summer.

Since them we've had folks from Brazil, Argentina, South Africa, Yugoslavia, Belgium, Sweden and other countries spend a few days with us.

Some English friends wrote us after a visit and their letter was a bit perplexing. They had heard a country-western song by an entertainer from Lubbock who sang a song about living in a trailer house in Notrees, sitting on a Naugahyde divan looking at a tumbleweed Christmas tree. They wanted to find out what type of animal a nauga was.

This summer two busloads of high school age youngsters from all parts of the world pulled into our town for an overnight stay. They were treated to a barbecue on a ranch and a rodeo.

One boy from Belgium from Stefan wants to be both an astronaut and a cowboy. He is smitten with the western way of life. On the way to the ranch, he was eager to see cows and cowboys. The place on the ranch where the barbecue took place had a scarcity of both. The ranch owner does not like to have cows around where food is being served.

Tumbleweed Smith
Columnist

After wolfing down a handful of fajitas, Stefan and some others went to the rodeo arena where a junior rodeo was in progress. I took Stefan down to the arena and introduced him to Dane Driver, an outstanding youngster who comes from a rodeo family.

Dane is a calf roper and a good one. He's got the saddles, belt buckles and trophies to prove it. His buddies realize Dane has the makings of a real champion. They chuckle when he misses.

Stefan was taken by Dane's ready smile and willingness to demonstrate for the foreign visitor how to rope a calf. He told Stefan how to take care of a rope, how to hold it and how to swing it around before throwing it at the intended target.

Dane handed the rope to Stefan to hold. Stefan was thrilled beyond words. He took the rope, caresses it and got Dane to show him how the rope is fed through the loop at the end.

Stefan looked like a real cowboy. He wore a western hat he had bought a few days ago and was feeling very much like a Texas cow puncher. The rope added authenticity.

Stefan and Dane visited for half an hour or so. When Stefan handed the rope back to Dane, the Texas cowboy replied, "Why don't you just take it home with you."

Stefan didn't understand. I told him Dane was giving him the rope as a gift. Stefan was flabbergasted. I've never seen any boy more thrilled over anything. He thanked Dane profusely.

Stefan slept with the rope that night. When he left the next morning, he had the rope in a special container. I have a feeling Stefan will learn how to use that rope. Dane will be proud.

How to tell when plants have unwanted 'friends'

Just like you need your fingers to tell you if it's time to water your houseplants, you need your eyes to alert you to a pest invasion.

Be vigilant about inspecting for unwelcome guests, advises Warren Lytle, an ornamental horticulture instructor at Shasta College in Redding, Calif. They're sneaky, and may arrive on the air or hitchhike in on another plant.

•Mealybugs "will produce tufts of white, cottony material on leaf stems and plant stems," says Lytle. They excrete honeydew and kill by sucking plant juices. Some people fight back by dabbing them with a cotton swab dipped in rubbing alcohol.

•Spider mites are tiny arachnids. Foliage that is speckled and turning yellow is a clue to their presence. They form a very fine webbing, especially on the undersides of leaves.

•Whiteflies, as the name suggests, are winged creatures. When disturbed they abandon the plant "like little flecks of white dust," Lytle says, and then "they flutter back down." Relatives of mealybugs, they also kill by sucking.

•Scale insects can be armored or soft, says Lytle. The armored ones have a tough, waxy shell and "look a little bit like pimples." Soft scale is easier to control. They can cause curling and yellowing foliage.

A fairly new pesticide on the market called Margosan, a derivative of the neem tree, is one means of control, Lytle says. Another option is insecticidal soap, often available in a spray bottle.

"Don't just use (dish) detergent," says Lytle. "It might burn the foliage."

Ghosts of steamboats still haunt our speech

By JACK HICKS
Scripps Howard News Service

NEWPORT, Ky. — When the the big steamboats come paddle-wheeling into Cincinnati next month for Tall Stacks '95, you can count on seeing some highfalutin folks among the revelling riffraff.

Take Don Deming of Newport.

Billing himself as a steamboat historian, Deming has impressive credentials among the steamboat buffs.

He has a master's degree in history from Xavier University and knows his way around a research library. But he also has 30 years as career steamboater.

At one point, there were hundreds of steamboats coming and going at the Port of Cincinnati. The chief cargo was cotton.

Although most commercial cargo on the river is carried now by barge, the colorful appeal of the old steamers lives on. Typical is the slang connected to steamboating.

Highfalutin was a term associated with the rich who could afford to travel by steamboat. The boats had high, flute-shaped stacks.

Male passengers often wore stovepipe hats, which poor people identified with the well-to-do. Hence the expression, "don't high-hat me."

Letting off steam stemmed from the boats' source of power. It came to describe the human emotion for getting rid of tension.

The steamboat era also gave us riffraff, outlandish, hillbillies, fiddlin' around and hogwash, according to Deming's research.

Coahoma State Bank undergoes a name change

Coahoma State Bank isn't Coahoma State Bank anymore.

As of today, Coahoma State Bank will officially become First Bank of West Texas, and the new name will be in place when offices open for business Monday morning.

Coahoma State Bank was founded in 1961 by Bill Read. When the bank later expanded to Big Spring, a geographic name still seemed appropriate.

With the acquisition of a branch in Lorraine, customers remarked the name no longer seemed to fit, and plans to change began. "We just outgrew our name," says bank president Willie Lane.

Bank officials have signed a letter of intent to purchase a new branch in Abilene, and the application for approval of the purchase has been submitted to the State Commissioner of Banking.

The bank celebrated the name change with receptions and refreshments at branches in Coahoma, Big Spring, and Lorraine from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday.

The sign sporting the new name was unveiled at the main bank in Coahoma at 3 p.m.

Customers were surveyed and suggested a variety of new names for the bank.

As part of the celebration, everyone who suggested a name for the bank was entered into a drawing. Names were drawn at 2:30 Friday. Prizewinners were Letha M. Lewis, who won $200; Gerald Kinard, $100; and Dennis R. Jones of Colorado City, $50.

Car alarm: High-tech finder

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Auto theft in the number one property crime in the United States, and in Texas, a car is stolen every four minutes.

Imagine your car being stolen in broad daylight.

All you have to do to recover it is call an 800 number and an orbiting satellite will track the vehicle for you - that's the technology behind Satellite Intercept Systems.

When a car equipped with the system is stolen, the owner calls a 1-800 number giving the operator his or her identifying code.

When this is done, a signal is bounced off one of 48 low-lying satellites that cover 95 percent of the United States.

The signal is received and processed by two small black boxes hidden behind the car's dashboard. The two boxes trigger a sequence of events that include:

•First the taillights begin to blink, serving as both a warning to motorists behind the car as well as an indication to authorities something is wrong.

Next the system begins to constrict fuel flow, causing the car's speed to drop to about 5 miles per hour, no matter how hard a would be thief pushes on the accelerator.

•The alarm can also set off two small, extremely shrill sirens hidden beneath the dashboard, which emit 138 decibels of noise.

In Big Spring, one of the three systems can be purchased at George and Mary Lachem's G&M Garage.

George Lachem said the systems are available now and the will be good for the local area.

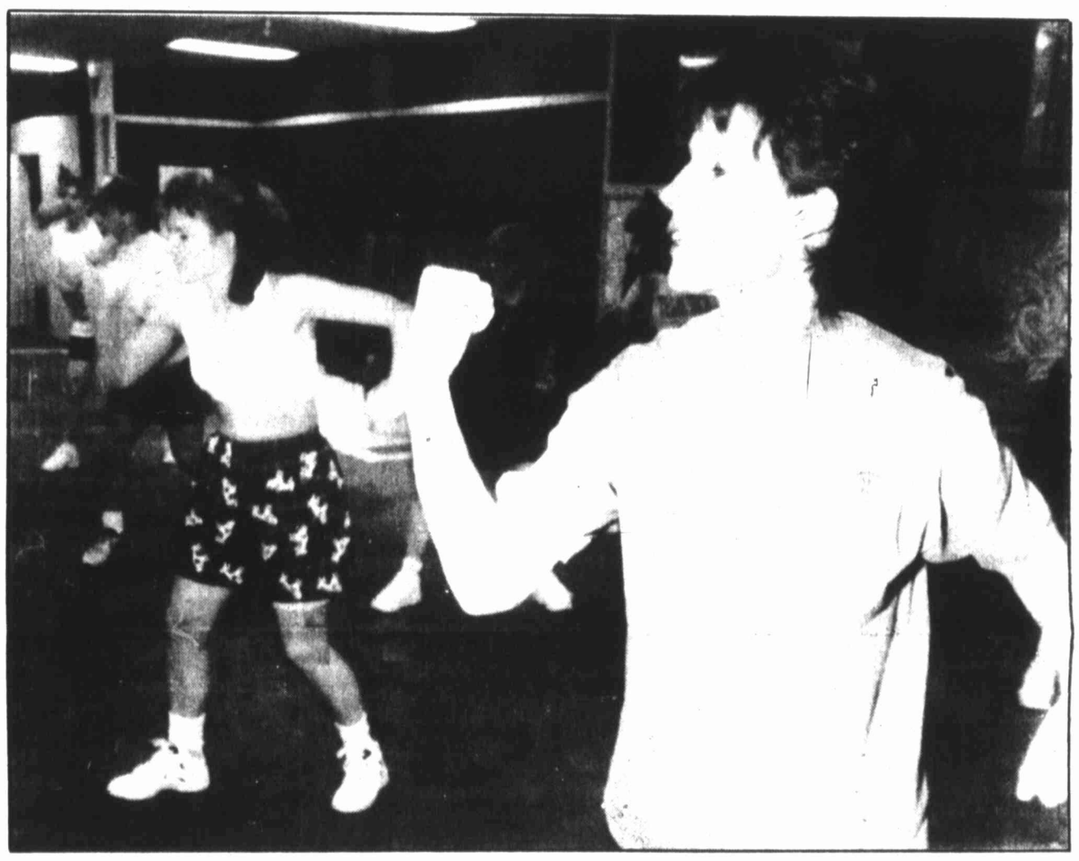

Lachem likes the two systems that provide remote keyless entry and ignition turn off when activated.

Another version of the system allows for keyless entry and remote start.

Jerry Graves owns Advanced Dealer Products in Odessa and is a distributor for Satellite Intercept Systems for several West Texas communities.

Graves said with one of these systems installed people can cut

New aerobics class blends working out with self defense

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Boxing, self-defense moves and an aerobic workout all rolled into one class is now being offered at the Aerobic Connection.

The class, called step defense, is offered on Thursday nights at the Big Spring Mall 5:30-6:30 p.m.

Jaime Sotelo is the instructor and said he hopes because of the self-defense moves taught, more men will be willing to take the course.

"With the aerobic workout, boxing and self-defense moves, it gives you an overall good workout. We teach the self-defense part because you never know when you might need them. It is all floor work for the first 40 minutes and we include Tai Chi in the program," Sotelo said.

He added the last 20 minutes of the class is designated for step aerobics to give members a cardiovascular workout as well.

Owner Maria Barber said, "We offer a variety of classes so people can achieve overall fitness levels. We have the cardiovascular workout as well as basic conditioning classes."

Sotelo said because there is a male instructor for this class and some others being offered, women find it easier to join and stick with the program. "With a female instructor, some women can be more intimidated because they think they don't look as good as her. The point of coming to these classes is to get in shape and to look great," Sotelo continued.

The first few minutes of the class are to allow people a chance to warm up then followed by the boxing portion. Sotelo leads the class in some upper cuts, punches and jabs mixed in with jumping jacks and squats.

The class then picks up some sticks to practice their internal resistance before moving on to the self-defense portion. The step aerobics and a cool down conclude the course.

Another new class being offered is abs-plus and involves no step aerobics. Barber said it is strictly isolation exercises for specific areas such as upper body definition, abdominal

James McComb, manager of the Big Spring Sonic Drive-In, received certification at Sonic Industries Inc. Management Once Training School in Oklahoma City.

McComb will be assigned management duties for the new store in Post. Adam Fox will become the new manager of the Big Spring drive-in.

Mike Abusaab is the principal owner of both locations.

Housing complex planned

Big Spring will soon have another housing subdivision featuring garden-style homes in the range of $80,000 to $150,000 per home.

At a public hearing last week, the Big Spring City Council approved a request by Jade Enterprises owner Stan Partee to rezone a 14.32-acre tract out of Tract 19 for the proposed subdivision.

Partee's request was for the Kennebeck Subdivision, now described as the Silver Ridge Subdivision, to be rezoned from Single Family Dwelling-2 and Retail to Planned Development-12 for a planned residential community. City Engineer Ralph Truszkowski said the development would be on small lots with zero lot lines, meaning there would be no divisions between properties.

Truszkowski said Partee's proposed development is similar to the Lakewood Subdivision in Lubbock and is ideal for people who don't want to deal with large yards and the hassle of having to maintaining a lawn. When the zoning change was approved, no timetable had been given for the start of the development.

Stake in cotton is huge

Don Richardson
County Agent

Our local newspaper has done an outstanding job reporting and keeping up with the action in Washington and its handling of the development of the 1995 Federal Farm Act. Local cotton producers are concerned and they have a reason to be so.

The president of our county's cotton growers association, Rob Haney, or I really should give his wife, Suzanne, the credit, as she was the one that brought my attention to an article in the Lubbock Avalanche Journal concerned with the affects of the new farm bill.

Lubbock has long appreciated the fact that the strength of its economy lay with agriculture and any federal programs affecting it also affects Lubbock.

You may recall a recent article I wrote in this column based on another article from the Lubbock paper and the closing of Reese AFB and the fact that agriculture had a lot more to do with Lubbock's future than the base's closing ever would.

In today's article I am sharing some more information from a Lubbock newspaper article that should concern all of Howard County residents and not just the farming population.

The author of the article is the farm editor of the newspaper and he was reporting on a recent trip to England he had just returned from and his visit to Lancashire County on the northwest coast of England. This area once consumed 5.2 million bales of cotton and employed 710,000 workers. Today it uses only 80,000 bales and employs only 20,000 workers.

The Liverpool Cotton Exchange is now boarded up. Why? Many blame successive governments for failing for decades to help in the industry combat unfair foreign competition. Workers expect their governments to protect them from unfair competition - subsidies, artificial pricing of raw materials, and other secretive devices used by many countries to distort trade to their advantage.

Sound familiar? Our own cotton industry would be in peril if the 1995 federal farm act abandons U.S. producers in the face of widespread international subsidization. The future of the U.S. cotton industry hinges on its ability to compete in a world marketplace replete with such practices and other forms of governmental intrusion.

What happened to the cotton industry in Liverpool there stands as a stark example of what governmental neglect can do.

Today's global economic and regulatory environment and fierce competition make sensible farm programs a continued necessity. Cotton is the nation's number 1 value - added crop. The producer supports the whole infra-structure.

This nation would suffer an enormous loss if farm programs were so severely undermined that farmers were unable to plant cotton and cotton's supporting industries were decimated.

I think we all have a big stake in the future of agriculture in our country, and in particular, West Texas, where dryland cotton is our mainstay. No other crop has been found that does as well on the adverse growing conditions experienced in West Texas as cotton. We need to keep this industry for all our well-being.

areas, back, hips, thighs and buttocks. Some stretching and flexibility exercises are also included.

The class is offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays 6:30-7:15 p.m. The cost is $20 for non-members and free to members.

The membership fee is $35 a month for unlimited classes or you can sign up for 12 classes per month for $30. If you want to just try a class to see if you want to join, the cost is $4 per course.

Starting in November, a new course for children will be offered called Kid's Fitasia. They will consist of motor development activities such as group exercises, obstacle courses, jazz dance, tumbling and stretching.

Barber said these classes will help those who want to eventually become involved in gymnastics and cheerleading in junior high school.

The preschool class for children three to five years of age will be Tuesdays and Thursdays 10:30 a.m.-11:15 a.m. Those who are six to eight can join on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-4:45 p.m. For those six and older who want the tumbling class, it will be from 4:15-5 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The cost is $20 for members and $35 for non-members.

ERA REEDER REALTORS CAN HELP YOU

CELEBRATE THE BENEFITS OF THE ERA SELLERS SECURITY PLAN

Guaranteed Sale and Closing Date

ERA gives you 210 days to shop for an offer higher than the ERA offer.

Should ERA purchase and resell your house for a profit, 100% of the net profit is returned to you!

An Equity Advance

Up to $100,000 of the equity in your house is available to use for down payment and closing costs on your new home.

If you have sufficient equity, ERA will make up to four house payments on your old house.

Greater Ability to Purchase a New Home

The ERA offer eliminates the uncertainty of contingency offers.

You are in a better negotiating position with a sold house and an equity advance.

You have the flexibility to make a move when you want.

Now you can go ahead and buy your new home before closing on your old one, without having to worry about making an endless number of double house payments. The ERA Sellers Security Plan will help make your move a more pleasurable experience.

Questions About The Plan:

Q: What will ERA offer for my house?
A: The amount ERA offers will be the average of two independent appraisals, less an appraisal reserve. The appraisal reserve, determined solely by ERA, is included because of the difficulty in accurately predicting a final sales price. You are always assured of getting market your property and get a better price.
Q: What expenses will I have?
A: The cost of an independent appraisal to determine if ERA can provide a preliminary offer range to you. If ERA chooses not to provide a preliminary offer range, the first appraisal fee is non-refundable. if you accept the preliminary offer range, you will pay for a second independent appraisal. If you accept the final ERA offer, ERA will refund both appraisal fees! If ERA chooses not to make a final offer, ERA will refund the second appraisal fee.

A commitment fee of 2.75% of the ERA offer price, due at closing or cancellation. This fee is due only if you choose to accept the final ERA offer.

The same expenses due in any other sale, including the sales commission and other closing costs customary in your market area.
Q: What else will I need to do?
A: List your home with an ERA Member Broker for 210 days.

Buy another house through a broker designated by ERA.

Agree to purchase an ERA Buyer Protection plan. ERA will also provide similar coverage for you during the time your house is being marketed.
Q: How do I qualify for the plan?
A: To see if you qualify, call your participating ERA Real Estate Specialist. Your house must meet certain requirements, and other conditions may also apply.

Just ask ERA.™
Just the kind of help you'd expct from a friend.™

Simple love poem brings back memory of parents

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

DEAR ABBY: My father was killed in Vietnam in 1974. I was only 4 years old and don't remember much about him, but my mother kept his memory alive through stories and photos. They were childhood sweethearts, and after he died, she never remarried.

Recently I lost my dear mother. As I was putting away her things, I found this poem, written in her hand, among a box of keepsakes:

Remember the day I borrowed your brand-new car,
And I dented it?
I thought you'd kill me,
But you didn't.
And remember the time I dragged you to the beach,
And you said it would rain, and it did?
I thought you'd say, "I told you so,"
But you didn't.
Do you remember the time I flirted with all the guys to make you jealous?
And you were?
I thought you'd leave me,
But you didn't. .
Do you remember the time I spilled strawberry pie all over the rug in your new car?
I thought you'd hit me,
But you didn't. .
And remember the time I forgot to tell you the dance was formal,
And you showed up in jeans?
I thought you'd drop me,
But you didn't. .
Yes, there were lots of things you didn't do,
But you put up with me, and you loved me, and you protected me.
There were lots of things I wanted to make up to you
When you returned from Vietnam,
But you didn't. .
Abby, my mom never wrote anything in her life, but this piece seems to describe my parents so perfectly I'm wondering how it could have come from anyone else.

Can you help me? Have you ever seen it before, and do you know if there is an author? I will treasure it no matter what. -- FASCINATED IN FALLBROOK

DEAR FASCINATED: It is indeed a treasure. It is titled "The Things You Didn't Do," and appears in a book titled "Living, Loving and Learning" by Leo Buscaglia, Ph.D., professor of education at the University of Southern California.

It was written by one of Dr. Buscaglia's female students who wished to remain anonymous.

DEAR ABBY: Recently at a party, I was approached by an acquaintance and my mind went blank. I could not remember his name!

I was with two other friends and was hoping that everyone would introduce themselves, but their silence indicated they were depending on ME to make the introductions.

Finally, not wanting to appear rude any longer, I had to admit that I couldn't remember the man's name. He acted insulted. I was so embarrassed I could have crawled into a hole. Abby, what would you have done in this situation? -- SANTA MONICA READER

DEAR READER: No need for you to have been embarrassed; it's happened to all of us occasionally.

I would have said, "These are my friends, 'Mimi' and 'Rhonda,' and YOU are ... (short pause)?" at which point, he would have provided his name. Try it; it never fails.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable -- and most frequently requested -- poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

HOROSCOPE

FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 15, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Softness goes a long way with a family member. Be responsive when unpredictable news arrives. Be open to positive possibilities with a loved one. Your high energy and drive helps a partner get into action. Tonight: Be out and about. ****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Reach out to someone. Be ready to adapt, because a spontaneous change opens a new door. Your energy is strong, and a partner is energized by your presence. Romance flourishes in this atmosphere of vitality. Tonight: Go to a favorite spot. *****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A partner surprises you with a statement and a show of high energy. You might find sharing a favorite activity to be unusually provocative. Togetherness is likely if you are willing to communicate. Excitement and overindulgence mix well. Tonight: Order in dinner ****.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are personality-plus. Be more considerate of a loved one, if attached. You are in sync with the moment; use your magnetism to make what you want happen. Be more in touch with your desires. If you are single, romance comes to you easily. As you want it. *****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep your own counsel as you deal with your feelings and decide where you would like to focus your energy. A discussion is needed concerning family. You might be in the position to make changes sooner than you think. Look within for answers. Tonight: Take a night off. ***

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus on friendship and the unexpected. Your sense of humor is highlighted as you face a problem. Follow your instincts with a loved one. You can have a great day together talking and sharing. You enjoy yourself. Tonight: Join friends. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can't get away from this: You have a "must" appearance or an important responsibility to take care of. You can enjoy yourself to the max if you accept what is happening. An older relative enjoys your company. Tonight: You are a force. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be ready to take off at a drop of hat. Catch up on other people's news. Reach out to a friend who is at a distance, and make plans to get together. Vacation and partying mix. Go to a movie or explore a museum. Tonight: Go for Chinese food. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek out a special friend to make plans. You might be considering a long-term purchase. Do some price comparison before jumping in with both feet. Important discussions are key to a relationship. Tonight: Be romantic. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Defer to someone, and listen to his opinions. You might have a wonderfully wild day if you let someone else make the plans. A friend clearly wants you around. Go for what he wants for a change, and you'll reap the rewards. There is a wild undertone. Tonight: Just say yes. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a day off for yourself, and get plenty of much-needed R&R. You might get a sudden insight about a family member, follow your instincts on this. Your nurturing side needs to come out as you deal with others. Tonight: ZZZZZ. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your frisky side cannot be subdued. Friends seek you out, and you have a great day. Plan an excursion with another to the country to enjoy yourself. When you are in a different setting, you find it easy to open up. Sharing is highlighted. Tonight: Be naughty and nice. ****

IF OCT. 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your expenses are high this year. Focus on securing finances and building a more secure home base. You might decide to change your home in some significant way. Communications are important in achieving your goals. A career change is instrumental. If you are single, this is a year when you need to greet change with a smile and be open to the new types of people you meet. Juggle your home life and personal life. If attached, the two of you work toward a stronger foundation and enhance your relationship as a result. CANCER pushes you.

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

AVIS LUBE
SIGNING BONUS

How does your current job stack up against AVIS LUBE?

SALARY

Our minimum starting salary is $5/hr. Manager trainees can start at $300 a week or more (depending on experience). We also give you a week's salary as a SIGNING BONUS — PART-TIMERS TOO!

SECURITY

AVIS LUBE offers stable employment year-round. If you aren't getting enough hours (at least 40) with your current job, WE CAN GIVE THEM TO YOU! If you want to work part-time, we can work with you to tailor-make a schedule to fit your needs. Our locations are open from 8 AM - 6 PM Monday through Saturday, and on Sunday from noon to 5. Full-time work a five-day week!

BENEFITS

We offer medical, dental and life insurance to our full-time Team Members. We also have paid vacations, a sick pay plan, college tuition reimbursement, and a profit sharing plan!

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

95% of our managers started at the entry level and received the training necessary to become successful at running a small business. We offer continual classroom education in customer service and personal leadership skills. You can tell the difference high quality training makes when you walk into one of our Avis Lubes or Kent Kwiks!

SO HOW DO WE MEASURE UP?

Where will you be one year from now if you stay with your present company? With Avis, the chances are very high that you could be running one of our locations, making in the mid to upper $20's, plus bonuses! The first step is to take several tests and questionnaires which assist us in determining if you have the customer service attitudes, math skills and work ethics required to be successful in our business. You can come by our location at 1101 E. 8th Monday through Friday from 9 to 4. Relocation to one our other cities of operation may be required. For more information, please call Andy Salcedo at 570-1000.
