Italian minister resigns in hijacking scandal

ROME (AP) — Prime Minister Bettino Craxi resigned today after his 26-month-old coalition government collapsed under criticism of his handling of the Italian cruise ship hijacking, presidential aides announced.

His resignation, handed to President Francesco Cossiga, was made after a speech to Parliament in which he expressed bitterness toward the United States for its criticism of Italy's release of a PLO official.

The president asked Craxi to stay on as caretaker prime minister, the aides said. Craxi is Italy's first Socialist prime minister since World War II.

Three Republican Party ministers, led by Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini, quit the five-party coalition government Wednesday to protest the release of Mohammed Abbas, a PLO official accused by the Reagan administration of masterminding the Oct 7. hijacking of the Achille Lauro.

During the hijacking, an American passenger, 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer of New York City, was killed.

■ Klinghoffer's killer identified; Related stories — Pages 2A, 3A and 5B

Craxi told Parliament that Italy released Abbas and an aide because they carried diplomatic passports.

He also claimed the United States violated Italian air space by having U.S. military planes follow an Egyptian jet carrying the PLO officials from Sicily to Rome.

Craxi, expressing Italy's "bitterness" toward its NATO ally, also criticized the United States for its lack of understanding of the Italian legal system.

He called the outcome of the Achille Lauro affair "a great result" and "a great success" marred by the murder of an American citizen aboard the cruise ship. "No free government in the world.... Has achieved such results against terrorism as Italy," Craxi told a packed Chamber of Deputies with his outgoing cabinet at his side.

Spadolini, a former prime minister, had said he expected his party's withdrawal would cause the collapse of the government, Italy's 44th since World War II.

Craxi, who strongly defended the government's decision to let Abbas leave, originally said he wanted a vote of confidence in Parliament on the issue.

But he reportedly agreed not to call for a vote of confidence at the request of the Christian Democrats, a member of the governing coalition and Italy's largest party.

The Christian Democrats had sought to avoid finding themselves in a position of voting on the same side of the Communist Party, which has backed the government's handling of the hijacking affair.

Ghoulish masks make their annual appearance locally as stores gear up for the Halloween party season.

Merchants plan for all seasons

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

'Tis the season to be spooky ...and thankful...and merry.

With only two weeks to Halloween, 40 days to Thanksgiving and Christmas shortly thereafter, Midland's merchants are gearing up for the holiday season.

A visit to the local mega-grocery/variety store assaults the senses and sensibilities of shoppers still looking for bargains on fall clothing. The holiday extravaganzas have begun.

For the store managers and owners, however, the holidays start much earlier.

"We get the Halloween merchandise in two months before Halloween and we're generally 100 percent set for Christmas by the middle of September," said Ron Cheyne, assistant manager at Wal-Mart Discount City.

A customer strolling through the middle aisles of Wal-Mart is greeted by flashy display advertising — the orange and black of All Saints' Day clashing with the red and green of Christmas yet to come. An overflowing bin of extension cords is positioned between the two sections. If you don't need one for your giant pumpkin lantern, then of course you'll need it for your electric Noel candle yard lantern.

Cheyne admits it's all a bit much.

"It seems like it gets earlier every year to me," he said. "The Christmas toys got in even earlier this year."

Other stores also are filled with the strange assortment of inventory.

In Coach House Cards and Gifts in Midland Park Mall, red glitter devil's tails and home-spun witch's brooms greet the customer, as do the six-eyed monster masks, shelves full of pig noses, fangs and ghoulish facial makeup. And the next aisle over? Christmas cards.

Cold front sends rain into Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

The onslaught of a cold front moved through the Permian Basin early this morning bringing with it more than a half inch of rain, a spokesman with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported.

The rainfall was triggered by an upper level low pressure system approaching the state from the west, according to wire reports.

A NWS spokesman reported more than a half inch of rain fell in Midland by early morning; although steady rains continued as he spoke.

He predicted the rains would continue through most of the day as the forecast called for a 30 percent chance of showers. Evening temperatures will be cool with a low in the low 50s. Winds will be southwest at 5 to 10 mph. The high Friday will be in the mid 70s.

Midland County farmers and ranchers also reported steady rainfall across much of their already damp fields and pastures.

"It's been raining since early this morning," said Midland farmer Norman Koonce.

The moisture is "good for some of the small grains, but we don't need it on the cotton," he said.

Koonce is preparing his crop for stripping.

He said between a half and three-quarters of an inch fell on his farm northwest of Midland during the past 12 hours.

In the Greenwood area, "we had a half inch of rain in the gauge when we got up this morning and it's still raining," Sharon Graham, wife of farmer Roy Graham.

At the Midland Farmers Cooperative, Hoot Leonard reported more than an inch of rain fell during the past 24 hours.

"It's sure not too good for the cotton. It's hurting the grade some," he said.

Suspect in bus hijacking 'no problem' at shelter

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man accused of hijacking a city bus and taking it on a wild and deadly chase through city streets with police was nervous and irritable but caused no problems during his brief stay at a Salvation Army shelter for the destitute, the center's director says.

Ronald Ennis, 33, was taken into custody after a man stole the unoccupied bus, then careened through four traffic accidents Wednesday, one of them killing a 3-year-old girl.

Ennis was in the Bexar County jail Wednesday night in lieu of $150,000 bond on charges of murder and attempt to commit capital murder, jail Sgt. R. Ramirez said.

Irma Escamilla, director of the Salvation Army in San Antonio, said Ennis stayed at the center six times in the last six months. He spent three nights at the center this month.

"He never caused us any problems," said Ms. Escamilla, who added Ennis stayed at the center for the last time Sunday night.

Donald Frazier, who said he had known Ennis for about four months, said he saw him Tuesday night near the Salvation Army Center.

"When I saw him last he was feeling pretty tipsy then," Frazier said.

"He never was violent to me, but he was to other people. He liked to fight. I saw him in a few fights," Frazier said.

Frazier said Ennis never talked about his past.

"I knew he was off balanced, but I didn't know he was out-to-lunch," he said.

Firm will probe fatal drilling barge accident

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK

GALVESTON (AP) — Officials of an offshore construction company said an investigation was necessary to determine if a barge accident in which two workers were killed and nine injured was the result of mechanical or human error.

A barge known as the DMC-1 rolled over in about 45 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday some 12 miles southeast of Galveston as it neared a worksite about two miles away in the Gulf, officials of Houston-based Drynorth USA Inc. said.

Divers found the two bodies in the water-filled galley of the barge. The exact cause of the deaths was unknown. The company hoped to begin its investigation today.

Names of the victims were not immediately released because family members could not be reached, Drynorth spokeswoman Pat Plant said.

Of the survivors, two were held overnight for treatment at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

Both Albert Taylor, 41, of Arnaudville, La., and Michael Champs, 32, of Houston, were listed in satisfactory condition. Six were released following treatment for various lacerations, minor fractures or strains. One man was treated for burns.

None of the survivors would speak with reporters.

"All I want to do is go home," hospital spokeswoman Linda Macdonald quoted one crewman as saying.

"He's fine," his wife, Angie, said as she hustled her husband into their car.

One of the men walked into the emergency room carrying an oar. Another clutched a life ring.

"They said they wanted to keep their souvenirs," said Dr. Joseph Stothert, director of the emergency room.

Ms. Plant said the cause of the accident "is still really undetermined at this point." She described any efforts to right the barge as "a major thing."

Because the overturned vessel posed no hazard to shipping, the Coast Guard planned to leave any salvage efforts to Drynorth, Coast Guard spokesman Mark Kennedy said.

David Brandon, port captain for Drynorth, described the self-propelled vessel as 80 feet long, 60 feet wide and with three 118-foot legs.

Muse to resume service from Midland airport

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

One more airline will begin flying in and out of the petroplex area beginning Oct. 27 when Muse Air Corporation resumes service to the Midland Regional Airport, airline officials announced today.

MuseAir cancelled service in the Midland-Odessa area in April to compete with it's now parent-corporation Southwest Airlines in Oklahoma, said Ron Thornton, vice president of MuseAir sales.

"We made a mistake...," said Thornton of the former management's decision to discontinue service in the area. Southwest Airlines bought MuseAir, its former competitor, in June.

"We're happy to be back. Sorry we left," Thornton said.

"We will not compete with Southwest's services. We will complement them," Thornton said. He said the airline is resuming service to the Petroplex area because, "It made economic sense."

MuseAir will offer four flights a day to the Dallas/Ft. Worth Love Field beginning Oct. 27 at an introductory $29 one-way fare until Nov. 18. The service will also fly into Houston from Dallas/Ft. Worth. After Nov. 18, coach fares one way to Dallas/Ft. Worth will be $39 for off peak times and $54 for peak times. Business class fares will be $54 for off peak times and $64 for peak times.

MuseAir also cancelled its non-smoking policy on the planes. The corporation, which used to be the only smokefree airline, began to allow smoking passengers in restricted areas on Sept. 3.

"We decided to let the customers decide if they want to smoke or not smoke, and not have us decide for the customers," Thornton said.

Thornton also said customers are more concerned about lower rates and frequent schedules, than they are about an airline's smoking policy.

With MuseAir services to the Petroplex area, five airlines are now available for Midlanders to choose from, said Jim Ingram, chairman of Midland's Chamber of Commerce's Commercial Air Service Task Force.

Ship hijacking having widespread repercussions

Associated Press

Israel's military intelligence chief and an Italian prosecutor both say they know who killed an American passenger on a hijacked Italian cruise ship. Neither identified the killer, but the Israeli said it was the youngest of four Palestinian pirates.

In Rome, Prime Minister Bettino Craxi resigned today after his coalition government fell apart because of criticism of his handling of the Achille Lauro hijacking, presidential aides announced.

Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini and two other Cabinet members from the Republican Party — one of five parties in the 26-month-old coalition government — withdrew Wednesday to protest Italy's decision to release a Palestinian accused by the United States of planning the hijacking.

Prosecutors in Genoa also said Wednesday that all seven Palestinians detained in connection with the hijacking of the cruise ship Achille Lauro had been charged with murder and kidnapping in connection with the death of 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer.

The seven include the four hijackers, two unidentified fugitives and a Palestinian arrested in Genoa before the cruise began Oct. 3.

Klinghoffer's badly decomposed body was identified in Damascus, Syria, on Wednesday and flown to Rome for an autopsy. Officials said the body had two bullet wounds.

Maj. Gen. Ehud Barak, chief of Israeli military intelligence, said Klinghoffer "was chosen by the Jewish sound of his name and dragged against his will to the edge of the ship's deck. The youngest of the terrorists shot him in the head once or twice."

He said Israel's information about the death was "determined conclusively by the evidence taken from the people on the ship." He did not identify by name the hijacker who allegedly shot the partially paralyzed Klinghoffer.

Barak said a Portuguese cleaning worker and the ship's hairdresser were forced at gunpoint to push Klinghoffer's body over the side of the Achille Lauro, and then to "clean the blood stains off the ship."

Prosecutor Dolcino Favi told a news conference in Genoa early today after the Achille Lauro returned to its home port: "We have reconstructed the killing of the American in all the details."

He said prosecutors were certain who shot Klinghoffer, why he was killed, and who threw the body overboard. However, he declined to provide details.

The Italian news agency ANSA reported that Favi flew to Rome today with two crew members of the Achille Lauro, probably to "contribute to the identification" of Klinghoffer's body.

Crying for help after the car she was driving was broadsided by a hijacked city bus Wednesday is San Antonio resident Gwenn Saunders, 21. She is in satisfactory condition in a local hospital. Her 3-year-old niece was killed and her husband critically injured in the collision.

Manuel C. Sanchez met Ennis at the center Sunday night.

"He seemed like he was kind of nervous. He kept on asking me for cigarettes. He got mad once and he started cussing," Sanchez said.

"Right around midnight, he was just walking around, I could see him. He was just pacing and pacing all over," Sanchez said. "When I woke up, I didn't see him."

Officials say they are baffled as to why a man overtook the city bus.

"It's a mystery to us," said VIA Metropolitan Transit spokesman Ray Dudley. Ennis wouldn't give any reasons to police either.

"He wouldn't talk to us," said homicide detective Billy Wolfe of the San Antonio Police Department.

The bus was involved in four accidents, the fourth killing a 3-year-old girl and injuring two others.

Another man and woman were treated and released from a local hospital after the third accident. There were no injuries in the first and second mishaps, authorities said.

The child was identified as Shaunte Green. She was dead on arrival at Brooke Army Medical Center, said spokesman Jerry DuBois.

The child's aunt Gwenn Saunders, 21, was in satisfactory condition at BAMC. Mrs. Saunders' husband Russell, 21, was in critical condition, DuBois said.

The bus was chased by officers from suburban Balcones Heights. One patrol unit was rammed off the street by the bus, said Police Chief Kenneth Menn.

Once the bus came to a final halt, Menn said an officer had to climb through a bus window to subdue Ennis.

CRAXI

Oscar Luigi Scalfaro, the Christian Democrat interior minister, said Wednesday he hoped the same five parties could form a new coalition after Craxi resigned.

A statement unanimously adopted by the Republican Party's executive committee accused Craxi's government of failing to consult coalition partners on "major subjects of the fight against terrorism and fundamental political interests" involving foreign policy.

Although polling only about 4 percent of the vote nationwide, the pro-NATO, pro-Israel Republicans held two key ministries, defense and finance, in one of Italy's longest-lived governments since the end of World War II.

Spadolini noted that it has been a standard practice for a coalition government to resign when a partner pulls out.

Besides the Christian Democrats and the Republicans, the coalition government includes Craxi's Socialists; the Social Democrats, and the Liberals.

Without the Republicans, Craxi's coalition could still muster a majority in Parliament.

The Socialists, Christian Democrats and Communists all supported the government's turning to the Palestine Liberation Organization to negotiate an end to the two-day hijacking. The Republicans opposed the appeal to the PLO, which denied it played any part in the piracy.

Craxi met on Wednesday with the secretary of the Christian Democrats, Ciriaco De Mita, and with Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, also a Christian Democrat.

He also met with Spadolini for two hours over the Republican position.

The Italian news agency AGI said De Mita also tried to persuade Spadolini to take back his resignation.

Following the Republican resignations, the Social Democrats expressed "satisfaction for the humanitarian results that were the consequences of the government action."

The Reagan administration has accused Abbas, leader of the Palestine Liberation Front, a branch of the PLO to which the hijackers claimed to belong, of directing the hijacking of the Italian liner. A U.S. arrest warrant charges Abbas with piracy and hostage-taking.

Abbas was brought to Italy along with four Palestinians now charged with the hijacking on an Egyptian plane intercepted by U.S. jet fighters last Friday. He flew from Italy to Yugoslavia the next day, and his current whereabouts are unknown.

Fall of Athens linked to toxic shock epidemic

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — An epidemic in Athens that killed tens of thousands of people 2,400 years ago, leaving the city-state ripe for conquest, may have been a virulent combination of toxic shock syndrome and influenza, a researcher says.

Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir's theory, outlined in today's New England Journal of Medicine, offers one explanation for the plague that raged from 430 to 427 B.C. and fueled centuries of speculation about its cause.

"It fits all the criteria, epidemiologically and clinically, for influenza complicated by toxic shock syndrome," said Langmuir, former U.S. Centers for Disease Control chief epidemiologist who is now retired in Chilmark, Mass.

Over the years, scholars have suggested the epidemic was caused by smallpox, bubonic plague, scarlet fever, measles and typhus, among other ills. Some proposed that the disease is now extinct or has changed so much that it cannot be recognized.

"No one in the past has ever come forward with an explanation of what the disease was that made any sense to others," Langmuir said in an interview.

He and colleagues from the University of Arizona named the illness the Thucydides syndrome after the Greek historian who fell ill in the outbreak but lived to describe it. Within three decades of the outbreak, Athens fell to Sparta in the Peloponnesian War and never regained its stature.

"The beginning of her downfall can be directly connected to the outbreak of the epidemic, which killed tens of thousands of her 300,000 inhabitants and thereby created numerous military disadvantages, chief among which was the death of the great Athenian leader, Pericles," the researchers wrote.

They based their conclusions on Thucydides' detailed description of the symptoms of the disease: fever, cough, vomiting, blisters, thirst, diarrhea, gangrene and amnesia.

Langmuir said a key clue was the gangrene, which caused victims to lose fingers, toes and other body parts. "When I read about gangrene, I said, 'My God, here's toxic shock syndrome.'"

Toxic shock is caused by a poison produced by a form of the staphlyococcus bacterium. Victims suffer fever, low blood pressure, a rash and occasionally gangrene. This syndrome was recognized in 1978, shortly before an outbreak in the United States linked with the use of highly absorbent tampons.

Langmuir said outbreaks of influenza and staphlyococcus have often occurred together, such as in the 1918 pandemic. But usually the staphlycoccus causes pneumonia.

In the Athenian outbreak, however, the researchers suggest that the flu was accompanied by a form of staphlycoccus that caused an illness similar, but not identical, to modern toxic shock syndrome.

The researchers also raised the possibility that the Thucydides syndrome may not be extinct. Instead, they wrote, "it may have occurred in the past and may be present now at such a low frequency that no one has yet identified a sufficient number of cases to make a convincing series worthy of publication."

Langmuir said that now that doctors are aware of the ancient epidemic, they may spot a living case of Thucydides syndrome.

"If we recognize this as a syndrome, medical professionals will be miles further along if this ever occurs again or if, by some remote possibility, there were an epidemic like the plague of Athens," he said. "We will be better prepared for it now."

Although Langmuir's theory holds water, it may never be proved, says another researcher.

"Historical analysis of this sort always makes sense, but there's no way to find out whether it will ever hold up."

For lovers of furry things, Shetland Hallmark, across the mall from Coach House, has two giant stuffed items in its window display — a Great Pumpkin and Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

Not all shoppers are eager to shell out the green stuff so soon, concedes one shop owner.

"Oh, people start looking a few weeks before Halloween," said Charlie Dodson, owner of Dodson's Fun 'N Party Shop. "But that's all they're doing, just looking."

People stop looking and start buying, however, the day before Halloween, said Dodson, whose shop specializes in party items, weird masks and various holiday merchandise.

"It's just like they're in a panic when they come in then," he said of the party-goers.

The party season, according to those in the know, will be an active one this year.

"It certainly looks like they'll have a few parties this year," said Nell York, owner of Parties Etcetera Inc. The store sells mostly paper goods, traditional party masks and door pieces, said Ms. York.

For party people who want something a bit unusual, I.D. Clare in North Park Mall, has a limited but...well...unusual supply of Halloween gear.

"It's really off the wall," admits owner Mike Pepe of his inventory which includes Woody Allen, Bob Hope and Albert Einstein masks, duck bill and pig snout appendages. Pepe, however, doesn't take much stock in Halloween.

"We cater to an older crowd," he said. "Halloween is for the younger set."

While most store owners already have their holiday merchandise, there is at least one business that is waiting.

"We don't get any of our Christmas stuff in until after Thanksgiving," said a Safeway assistant manager. "And we won't even be getting our turkeys for Thanksgiving until next week."

However, the spokesman admitted that Safeway does not have a big selection of toys or they would have probably already been here.

"But we ordered the Thanksgiving and Christmas items a year ago," he said.

PDAP suing Houston office

HOUSTON (AP) — The national office of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program is suing its Houston office, which originated the counseling service, claiming the local group is no longer a Palmer affiliate because it failed to pay dues.

The suit filed in state district court Wednesday by Palmer's Midland headquarters asks that the Houston office of the drug abuse counseling program be barred from using the Palmer Drug Abuse Program name and slogan.

Palmer's national office terminated the Houston chapter's affiliation in February 1984 because it failed to pay overdue dues, according to the suit.

An injunction hearing in the case is scheduled for Oct. 31.

He said the Chamber hopes to entice one more large airline, like Delta to the Midland Regional airport. But he added, "We have not set down and specifically identified who we're going to court."

Ingram said it's hard to get airlines to come to the Midland-Odessa area because many are worried about the oil field market's low economic period.

Italian prosecutor says details of killing known

GENOA, Italy (AP) — A prosecutor said today that interviews with passengers and crew remaining on an Italian cruise ship as it returned home had turned up about 10 witnesses to the killing of an American passenger while the ship was controlled by Palestinian hijackers.

Dolcino Favi, a deputy prosecutor from Siracusa, Sicily, told a news conference early today that officials who boarded the ship as it sailed home had "cleared up everything."

Favi said, "We have reconstructed the killing of the American and all the details."

Hundreds of people gave a joyous welcome to the Achille Lauro as it returned home late Wednesday. Many of the 313 crew members and the remaining 19 passengers waved Italian flags and tossed colored streamers off the side of the sleek blue and white liner as it arrived in Genoa late Wednesday.

Their faces, peering over the ship railing at the waiting, cheering crowds below, reflected a mixture of relief, joy and fatigue.

Hundreds of friends and relatives of those on board sang and wept tears of joy.

Favi and three other Italian prosecutors had been questioning people aboard the cruise ship since Tuesday, and Favi said that they had found "around 10" witnesses to the killing of 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer of New York.

The Achille Lauro was seized by four gunmen on Oct. 7 off Egypt, and more than 500 passengers and crew held hostage aboard for two days. Klinghoffer's body was recovered Monday after it floated ashore in Syria.

Without providing specifics, Favi said investigators were certain they knew who killed Klinghoffer, who was partially paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair.

Favi said they also believed they know why Klinghoffer was killed and who threw his body overboard.

The four gunmen who seized the ship were being held in a prison in Spoleto on hijacking and murder charges. They had seized the ship to demand Israel free 50 jailed Palestinians, and were taken into custody by Italian police after a plane carrying them out of Egypt was forced down in Sicily by U.S. warplanes.

Three alleged accomplices, two of them fugitives, have been charged with the same crimes although they were not aboard the Achille Lauro when it was hijacked.

Asked if the gunmen seized the ship because they were spotted by a waiter as they cleaned their weapons, Favi laughed and shook his head.

Legal sources had told The Associated Press that the four hijackers told investigators they did not plan to hijack the Achille Lauro, but had wanted to use it to launch an assault when the ship stopped at its next port of call in Ashdod, Israel.

The sources also have quoted the hijackers as denying that they killed Klinghoffer.

The ship's captain, Gerardo De Rosa, told the news conference he never was sure the hijackers had killed Klinghoffer while they were still aboard, but later became convinced they had carried out the slaying.

When De Rosa discovered there had been a killing and notified authorities is considered crucial because Egypt maintains it did not know Klinghoffer had been killed when it released the pirates into the custody of Palestine Liberation Organization officials and allowed them to leave Egypt.

De Rosa said the hijackers had told him they had killed someone, and handed him Klinghoffer's passport.

"I didn't hear shots, nor did I see anything," De Rosa said.

French novelist wins 1985 Nobel Prize for literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Novelist Claude Simon, a pioneer of the French "nouveau roman" in the 1950s, won the 1985 Nobel Prize for literature today.

Simon, a 72-year-old wine grower in the Pyrenees who has produced few major works in the last decade, became France's 12th literature laureate since the prize began in 1901.

The awarding Swedish Academy described Simon as combining "the poet's and the painter's creativeness with a deepened awareness of time in the depiction of the human condition."

Simon was born in 1913 in Tananarive in the island of Madagascar off East Africa of French parents. He is descended from a long line of Southern French wine growers and officers, which is reflected in his works.

He received his major literary breakthrough as exponent of the French "nouveau roman" or new novel style in 1960 with "La Route Des Flandres" (The Road to Flanders), which was set against a dark backdrop of World War II.

El Salvador, rebels said to agree on release of Duarte's daughter

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government and leftist rebels have reached an agreement on the release of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's kidnapped daughter, and her release may be imminent, San Salvador's auxiliary archbishop said.

Monsignor Gregorio Rosa Chavez said Wednesday that the agreement had been worked out by Archbishop Arturo Rivera Damas in three meetings with rebels, the last of which was held Tuesday.

Inez Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, and a companion, 23-year-old Ana Cecilia Villeda were abducted by gunmen on Sept. 10 as they arrived at a San Salvador university for a class. The kidnappers killed one bodyguard and seriously wounded another.

The auxiliary bishop said "only the mechanics" of their release remained to be worked out. Government officials made no comment on the church officials' report.

Rebels had offered to exchange the women for 34 guerrillas they claimed were in government hands. However, the government said it only could account for 22 of the 34. It released three of them in what it said was a good will gesture.

Rosa Chavez said the government had dropped a demand that rebels release 23 mayors and three municipal secretaries who have been kidnapped. In turn, the rebels agreed to accept an investigation by a government commission into the fate of the guerrillas the government says it cannot find, he said.

Suicide bombers, two others die in attack on station

METULLA, Israel (AP) — Suicide bombers with explosives strapped to their bodies attacked a radio station run by Christian missionaries in southern Lebanon early today, sources said. Three guerrillas, a Lebanese militiaman and a radio station worker were reported killed.

Guerrillas attacked the American-owned Voice of Hope radio, 2½ miles north of the Israeli border town of Metulla, at about 1:15 a.m., the sources said.

A guard of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army fired at the attackers, setting off an explosion that killed the three guerrillas, a guard and a radio station worker, according to an Israeli army spokesman who quoted sources in the mainly Christian militia.

Sources said they regarded the attackers as suicide bombers because they were wearing the explosives in such a way that if they were shot, the explosives would ignite.

After the explosion, house-to-house searches were ordered in the nearby Shiite village of Al Khiam. Israel radio said Israeli soldiers and Lebanese militiamen searched the area for hidden weapons and explosives. The sources said a fourth guerrilla was being sought in the attack.

The Voice of Hope is operated by High Adventure, a missionary broadcast service with stations around the world.

The southern Lebanon station is operated by Lebanese and owned by George Otis, a missionary from Van Nuys, Calif., the sources said.

It supports the Christian-dominated South Lebanon Army militia which is trained and supported by Israel to protect the sensitive border region. It broadcasts a mixture of country and western music and Bible readings in both English and Arabic.

Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982 to flush out the Palestine Liberation Organization under Yasser Arafat. It withdrew the bulk of its force in June, but established a buffer zone patrolled by the South Lebanon Army.

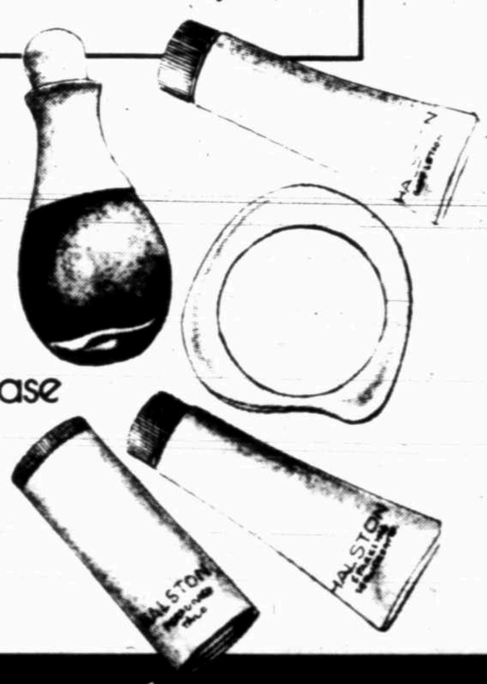

The sources did not indicate whether the guerrillas were from Palestinian or Shiite Moslem groups opposed to Israel's continuing influence in south Lebanon.

Consumer alert

Here's a worthwhile contradiction for readers: Americans were rightfully incensed by the refusal of cooperation from Italian and Yugoslavian officials recently in capturing the hijackers of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro and the senseless murder of Leon Klinghoffer, a crippled American passenger.

Of course, American fighter planes still forced the Egyptian airliner carrying the hijackers to land in Sicily, where they were taken into custody and now will face prosecution for their brutal act.

Yet another newspaper article indicates Americans may be overlooking a good tool in combatting terrorism. It noted that a second shipment of "Yugos — 1,058 vehicles — has arrived at the Port of Baltimore from Yugoslavia to join the 500 that arrived in August."

The article went on to note that American retail orders for the vehicle, which costs only $3,990, have topped 7,500.

How can it be that Americans can be outraged on the one hand by the open hostility of some foreign governments, yet turn around and support the same governments with their hard-earned dollars by purchasing imported products? Doesn't that send the message to those foreign governments that Americans truly don't know how they feel about those countries?

Yes, it's probably true that the Yugos were ordered long before the Achille Lauro was hijacked and passenger Klinghoffer was murdered, but the point remains, nonetheless, that Americans can speak loudly against terrorism through their purchases of foreign goods.

There are those who undoubtedly will argue that U.S. trade policy is not directly linked to relations with a foreign government, but that's pure baloney. Dollars speak louder than words and where the battle against world terrorism is concerned it's reasonable to fear that the dollars send to nations such as Iran, Libya, Yugoslavia and others will find their way into the hands of terrorists. That's translates into a virtual underwriting of the terrorism war being waged against innocent Americans throughout the world.

Even if the U.S. government's efforts to thwart terrorism are falling short, American consumers can do their part by simply watching what they buy.

Make competition fair

In any kind of competition there are always winners and losers. It would be wonderful if everyone could be a winner, but it just cannot be that way.

Again in January 1986, the FFA will be showing their livestock, but you can be sure the judges will be judging the owners, not the livestock. And as usual for the poor kids who work the hardest, their animals won't even get mentioned.

If the judges were fair they would judge the animals by numbering the animals while they are in the pen and then put the numbers in a sealed envelope. I don't think the judges should know who owns the animals until the winners have been announced.

One of my older sons had a show pig for a couple of years and at the time we didn't have very much money, but we bought a show pig along with the feed. A few weeks after buying the pig and feeding him, we went out to feed and found something wrong with his leg. We called a veterinarian and the teacher only to find out that one of the students had gotten on the pig and tried to ride him, thus breaking his leg. We again had to buy another show pig. All of this cost was on us, since no one would admit to breaking the pig's leg.

At 14, most kids cannot drive so that leaves the parents to drive them wherever they go, which, in our case, gives us time to visit with our child on the way to feed the pig and back home. And we are also doing things together.

One of his classmates is a girl who was also showing three of her animals. Don't misunderstand, I, too, am female and feel most females can do anything a male can do. Most of the time this particular girl's father did the feeding and taking care of her animals but you guessed it when time came for the judging. Who do you think won all of the ribbons? Well, it certainly wasn't my son.

Most of the FFA children, whether it be a girl or a boy, work very hard to show their animals and I realize everyone cannot be a winner. But how about being fair to all of those kids? Yes, I sound like one of those parents who want their son or daughter to win, but really don't we all? All I am asking is for the judge to be fair to all of the FFA members.

Of course I would like for my son or daughter to win. What parent wouldn't? But I had rather see my child lose fair and square. It is hard for a parent to see their child work hard and lose, only to see one win who let their parents do all the work and then they get the credit for it.

How about it, judges, will you be fair?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, October 17th, the 290th day of 1985. There are 75 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On October 17, 1777, British forces under General John Burgoyne surrendered to American troops in Saratoga, New York, in what was a turning point of the Revolutionary War.

On this date:

In 1919, the Radio Corporation of America was created.

In 1931, mobster Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to 11 years in prison. He was released in 1939.

In 1933, Albert Einstein arrived in the United States as a refugee from Nazi Germany.

In 1941, the U.S. destroyer Kearney was torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Iceland. Eleven people died.

In 1945, Colonel Juan Peron staged a coup in Buenos Aires, becoming absolute dictator of Argentina.

In 1957, Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip paid a visit to the White House.

Ten years ago: New York City escaped default by hours when the teachers' union agreed to furnish $150 million from its pension system for the city's immediate borrowing needs.

Five years ago: In a speech to the U.N. Security Council, Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai accused the United States of aiding Iraq in its war with Iran.

One year ago: New York Congressman Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., called for a congressional probe following an Associated Press report that the CIA had provided a manual to Nicaraguan rebels that spoke of the "selective use of violence."

Today's birthdays: Actress Jean Arthur is 77. Playwright Arthur Miller is 70. Actress Rita Hayworth is 67. Actor Tom Poston is 58. Newspaper columnist Jimmy Breslin is 55. Daredevil Evel Knievel is 47. Actress Margot Kidder is 37.

Thought for today: "The world will never starve for wonders; but only for want of wonder." — G.K. Chesterton, English author (1874-1936).

Security questioned at Sudan embassy

WASHINGTON — The frightening increase in terrorist actions against Americans overseas in recent years doesn't seem to have jarred the State Department out of its bureaucratic lethargy.

Jack Anderson

Four months ago, we reported the department's inexplicable indifference to the Beirut embassy's plea for a modest $130,000 to beef up protection for beleaguered U.S. personnel there. The bureaucrats' response was a stern lecture on budget restraint, a piteous complaint about the problems in Washington, and an admonition to go through the proper paperwork process when asking for security money.

Now we've learned that the Beirut embassy is not alone in its security problems. Foreign Service duty in Khartoum, the capital of Sudan, is every bit as nerve-racking — and apparently is evoking just as little sympathy from Washington.

Sudan, we might note, is close to the top of the list of lousy assignments for our diplomats abroad. The climate is grim in the best of times, and recent years have hardly been the best. Drought, famine, economic collapse, refugees from neighboring nations — all this would be bad enough. But Sudanese politics has been chaotic for nearly two decades, culminating in a coup last April. The adoption of a strict Islamic code two years ago made life even grimmer for Americans stationed in Khartoum.

Under the circumstances, you might think the State Department would take diligent care of the security of Americans based there. But an expert hired by a U.S. government contractor told our associate Donald Goldberg that the security arrangements in Khartoum are outrageous. We've confirmed the details of his story through State Department sources.

As in other embassies, the main job of protecting the compound is entrusted to U.S. Marines. There are nine on duty in Khartoum.

To make up for the lack of Marines, the State Department has hired Service and Supply International, a small firm with headquarters in Athens. For roughly $1.4 million, some 700 Sudanese guards were hired as "watchmen" to protect the embassy and American personnel's private residences.

The expert discovered that the guards were untrained in security operations. But some of them had received other training — at a terrorist camp in Libya. At least one of these terrorism-school graduates was on duty at the embassy itself.

State Department officials pointed out that the Sudanese guards carry no weapons — which was evidently supposed to be reassuring. An official of the security service told us, "I think we are doing an excellent job."

But the expert is still concerned about security in Khartoum. While he was there, he learned that several individuals known to be Libyan soldiers arrived at the Khartoum airport carrying Soviet-made AK-47 automatic rifles and ammunition. The weapons and ammo were confiscated by Sudanese officials, but the Libyans were allowed to enter.

The security expert learned also that unidentified individuals had stopped to chat with the hired guards at various locations in Khartoum, asking suspicious questions.

The expert reported his misgivings to Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. The senator is looking into the situation.

WATCH ON WASTE: A-workin' on the levee along the Mississippi, Army Engineers might get the idea they're toiling on the ole plantation. The Corps of Engineers just bought an elegant river-front home for its Lower Mississippi Valley Division commander. A corps spokesman would not describe the home as a mansion, but he acknowledged that "in some opinions, it might be." The $200,000 spread covers 4 acres on the Mississippi side of the great river (guaranteeing spectacular sunsets), and the first floor alone contains 3,300 square feet. The purchase required a special amendment waiving military housing rules.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The Justice and Energy departments are conducting a quiet investigation that could embarrass some members of Congress. Energy's auditors discovered that some government contractors may be using federal funds to pay members of Congress "honoraria" — the fancy word for lecture fees. One recipient, according to an internal memo we've seen, was Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., who got $1,000 from a contractor for making a speech. An aide to Alexander said the congressman was unaware that anything may have been improper about the payment. Energy's inspector general has asked Justice to determine whether laws were broken.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., seems to think that his narrow victory in North Carolina's senatorial election last year gave him a national mandate to dictate who should represent other states in that august body. He has launched a nationwide fund-raising drive to rid the Senate of several "liberals" who have the temerity to disagree with him on occasion. Among his targets is Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. As far as we're concerned, Helms is going too far with this one. Alan Cranston is an honorable man and a fine senator. In any case, it's for the people of California to decide — without interference from Jesse Helms.

BIBLE VERSE

But the path of the righteous is as the dawning light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. Prov. 4:18

GEORGE F. WILL

U.S. restraint crippling war on terrorism

WASHINGTON — Anger is indeed valor's whetstone and the valor of the Americans, from the President to the pilots, is clear. But so is this: The interception of the terrorists underscores the limits of U.S. anti-terrorism policy, and the aftermath of the episode has enhanced the PLO.

George F. Will

The United States finally acted against terrorists because it had a highly unusual and unlikely-to-be-repeated opportunity for nonviolent action. It was an act compatible with the administration's "Miranda Rule" approach — fastidious about procedure — to anti-terrorism.

In the aftermath, three nations — one a member of NATO, another counted an ally, the third considered an example of "civilized communism" — showed that they value good relations with the PLO more than with the United States. Or perhaps the point should be put this way: The three nations' fear of PLO anger is palpable, their fear of U.S. anger is negligible.

A Third World ethicist, identified by the New York Times as a "senior Egyptian official" explained to the Times: "A lie here is simply not the same as a lie in your country." He got that right. The President of Egypt lied repeatedly, extravagantly, transparently as he collaborated with the masterminds of the terror, trying to spirit to safety the killers of an American. Four days later this was a Washington Post headline: "U.S. Seeks to Soothe Egypt."

Who seeks to soothe whom? In the Third World, pride often is inversely proportional to the justification of it. The U.S. ambassador in Cairo says Egyptians are proud people. One yearns for the year when their overflowing pride will manifest itself in refusal to pocket billions of dollars from U.S. taxpayers.

Italy's government violated an extradition treaty with the United States and almost certainly facilitated the stealthy flight of a particularly odious terrorist to Eastern Europe. The Reagan administration called this Italian action "inexplicable," a polite description of an act completely comprehensible as appeasement of terrorists.

Then Yugoslavia, from which nothing better could be expected, violated an extradition treaty with the United States, and compounded the offense with an offensive explanation, saying the terrorist has diplomatic immunity. The PLO, a terrorist organization, has an "embassy" in Zagreb.

There is a similarity between the context of the terrorist interception and the context of the Grenada operation. Grenada came shortly after a stunning military defeat — the truck bomb against the Marines that did so much to drive U.S. forces from Lebanon. Considered in the context of the debacle in Lebanon, Grenada suggested that the United States is tempermentally prepared to use military power only in its region and only when the use can be completed quickly, before Sam Donaldson (meaning television) arrives.

The interception of the terrorists came a week after, and in the context of, U.S. acquiescence in the U.N. condemnation of Israel for attacking the PLO's headquarters in Tunisia. Israel's sin was that it practiced what the United States preaches: "No sanctuary for terrorists."

Considered in the context of the U.S. refusal to veto the U.N. condemnation of Israel, the U.S. interception of the terrorists emphasizes the administration's highly restrictive criteria for anti-terrorism. It will censure actions taken even against obvious sources of terrorism, such as PLO headquarters in Tunisia. It will act only against particular terrorists specifically identified with isolated deeds, and only when it can act without jeopardizing bystanders. The administration says "if an opportunity presents itself we will do exactly the same thing again." "Exactly?" Exactly, no more.

The message of the interception was supposed to be "you can run but you can't hide." But terrorists routinely do both. They use civilians, first as fodder and then to hide behind. Low-level terrorists with blood on their hands have little to fear, and their leaders have nothing to fear, from a U.S. government that brings to anti-terrorism a self-defeating desire to assign direct, individual culpability for particular acts of violence sponsored by organizations. This is a policy of striking only at the fingers rather than the brain of terrorism. We are bringing to the war against terrorism the same war-losing restraint that, 15 years ago, had U.S. fighter planes chasing individual trucks on the Ho Chi Minh Trail, while North Vietnam's dikes were spared.

Soon the U.S. government will utter the usual lubricating pleasantries and Egypt's president and other fellow-travelers of terrorism will grudgingly, and for a profit, forgive us for the injuries they have done to us. The United States has won a battle but has lost the aftermath.

ART BUCHWALD

Atomic waste disposal no match for TV!

Atomic waste is not the only thing you can't dispose of in America.

"I would like to purchase a 25-inch TV set."

Art Buchwald

"You came to the right place. Simple Simon has the best video bargains in the city."

"What do I do with my used one?"

"Anything you like. We never tell a customer what to do with his TV set."

"Will you give me a trade-in?"

"You're kidding. Do you know how many TV sets in the U.S. are thrown out every day?"

"Would you haul it away if I buy the new one?"

"I may be simple, but I'm not crazy. Thousands and thousands of people are stuck with aging TV sets. They can't sell them, they can't give them away, and they can't throw them out. Garbage men don't even want them."

"So what does one do with the old set?"

"The same thing you do with nuclear waste. Find a deep hole in South Carolina and bury it."

"I can't even lift my TV."

"Then soak it with gasoline and set a match to it."

"In the living room?"

"If it will make you feel better, do it in the kitchen. Look mister, there is something you have to understand. The greatest thing about America is that you can buy the newest appliances known to man. The worst thing about it is that you can't get rid of the old ones. Once you own a fridge, a washing machine or a TV set you're stuck with it for the rest of your life. That's why you see so many of them on people's back porches."

"I have a mind to keep my old TV and have it fixed. How much would it cost?"

"Five hundred and fifty dollars."

"You haven't even seen it yet."

"Every TV set costs five hundred and fifty dollars to fix."

"For that kind of money I could buy a new one."

"I know. That's why we charge five hundred and fifty dollars to repair the old one."

"Perhaps I could donate my TV set to a senior citizens home or an orphanage."

"I wouldn't try it. They've been stung with too many second-hand sets, and they're not about to accept a used one. Why don't you just put yours in the attic and forget about it like everybody else does."

"We don't have any room. Our old stove is in the attic and, come to think of it, so is the sink that came with the house."

"Listen, I'm busy. Do you want the TV or don't you?"

"Yes, I do if you could just give me some idea how we can move the other one out."

"If I could tell you that I'd be able to sell twice as many new TV sets."

"What if I told you I'd be willing to pay to get rid of the old set. How much would you charge?"

"Where do you live?"

"Wesley Heights, off New Mexico and Cathedral."

"It will cost exactly five hundred and fifty dollars."

"But that's as much as you'll charge me to fix it!"

"Mister, we don't make any money hauling away sets. We just do it to beautify America."

Mexican panel: Homeless, jobless to receive training

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two thousand family breadwinners left homeless and jobless by September's earthquakes will begin training today for new jobs, while others will be put to work rebuilding Mexico City, an emergency employment commission announced.

An additional 3,000 workers will be notified this week of vacancies in civil service jobs around the country, under a 6-point employment program published Wednesday in the government newspaper El Nacional.

Meanwhile, the head of the 4-million-member Confederation of Mexican Workers said the rank and file would donate two days' salary a year for as long as necessary to repair damage in the capital.

Union chief Fidel Velazquez also called on the federal government, with which his organization is closely affiliated, to reduce the legal work week to 40 hours from the current 48 hours over six days. The shorter work week would spread employment among more Mexicans, he said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.N. head, legislator ask South Africa to spare black

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The U.N. secretary-general and a prominent anti-apartheid legislator added to the pressure on the government to commute the sentence of a black man scheduled to be hanged Friday for killing a policeman.

The convicted black man, 30-year-old Benjamin Moloise, is scheduled to be hanged at 7 a.m. Friday. An upholsterer by trade, Moloise was convicted for the 1982 assassination of a black security officer.

His mother, Mamike Moloise, 53, told The Associated Press after visiting her son Wednesday that both she and her son were in "good spirits."

"He is innocent and he knows it," she said after seeing her son for 30 minutes at Pretoria Central Prison. The two have another 30-minute session scheduled for today. "He will die like Jesus, for his people," his mother said.

The U.N. secretary-general, Jaiver Perez de Cuellar and Jaime de Pinles, president of the General Assembly, asked the South African government to commute the death sentence. The Security Council has twice made that request in the two years since Moloise was sentenced.

"An act of clemency in the case of Benjamin Moloise would do South Africa a great deal of good, both with regard to the black community at home and internationally," said legislator Helen Suzman, a member of the opposition Progressive Federal Party, which opposes apartheid, the government's official policy of racial separation.

India demands sanctions

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — India demanded mandatory economic sanctions against South Africa and Malaysia made an indirect attack on Britain at the beginning Wednesday of what could be a a stormy Commonwealth summit meeting.

"Restrictions on imports from poor countries are all right. But not sanctions against South Africa," said Prime Minister Mohammad Mahathir of Malaysia.

He spoke at the formal opening session of the summit of the 49-nation Commonwealth, the association of Britain and its former colonies, held every two years.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain sat impassively as Mahathir, without mentioning Britain by name, sneered at her longtime argument that sanctions will hurt South Africa's black majority more than the ruling white minority government or business community.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi of India upped the stakes by demanding mandatory sanctions.

BBC airs controversial show

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. aired a documentary Wednesday night about strife in Northern Ireland that it had earlier canceled after the home secretary criticized it as giving publicity and support to terrorists.

The BBC's ban had led to a one-day journalists' strike in August and to charges that the state-owned broadcasting company was yielding to government censorship.

The program, titled "At the Edge of the Union," centered on Martin McGuinness, alleged chief of staff of the Irish Republican Army, and Gregory Campbell, a hard-line Protestant.

Campbell said active members of the IRA should be shot on sight by police to deplete IRA manpower and discourage young people from entering the IRA. He said if Britain pulled out of Northern Ireland, he would take up arms in the civil war he thought would result.

McGuinness said he had been involved in active resistance to Britain but refused to elaborate to avoid giving information to police. He denied being IRA chief of staff, but said he took the allegation as a compliment and still believed that only the IRA's guns would drive out the British.

Ortega still needs visa

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist government accused the United States of dragging its feet in issuing a visa to allow President Daniel Ortega to go to the United Nations, and called the purported delay "another trampling of the dignity of our country."

Ortega planned to leave today to take part in the 40th anniversary celebrations at the U.N. next Monday. A Foreign Ministry source said he also has invitations to visit 10 states.

"We are barely 40 hours from the (time) indicated for the departure of President Ortega and his party and still your government has not issued the visa requested several days ago," Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said in a protest note to Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

There was no immediate U.S. comment to the Nicaraguan accusation, made public late Wednesday.

On Tuesday, Ortega ordered a suspension of civil rights, blaming "the brutal North American aggression and (that) of its internal allies" for creating a "truly extraordinary situation."

The decree suspends free expression, public assembly, the right to strike and the right of habeas corpus. It tightens press censorship and allows inspection of mail and homes without warrant.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight chance of showers decreasing to 30 percent. Cooler with lows near 50. Wind southwest 5 to 10 mph. Friday partly cloudy with highs mid 70s. Wind southwest 10 to 20 mph.

RAIN

Leonard said most farmers don't need the rain now, since they are preparing to strip their cotton or some already have started.

"It'll take about a week for the fields to dry out and the cotton to dry out before we can get out to strip," he said. "It's going to make a late harvest this year.

Elsewhere, the rainfall left most Midlanders unaffected although construction and roadwork was temporarily suspended.

Tommy Jones, assistant director of aviation at Midland Regional Air Terminal, said construction projects at the airport were delayed while workers pumped water from several sites.

However, flights were operating on a normal schedule, he said.

A spokesman for the City of Midland said many road construction projects virtually "ceased" or were "delayed" due to the rainfall.

Becky Ferguson, coordinator of communications with the Midland Independent School District, reported she had not heard of any problems at the schools so far.

The Texas Department of Public Safety reported no weather-related traffic accidents.

Midland police reported, however, that no one was injured following an early morning collision between a car and an MISD school bus. The accident occurred about 8 a.m. at Big Spring Street and Loop 250.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas through Friday, forecasters say.

The rainfall was being triggered by an upper level low pressure system approaching the state from the west.

Forecasts called for showers and thunderstorms to become more numerous over North Texas and South Texas and to diminish somewhat over West Texas tonight and Friday.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 50s and 60s. Highs Friday will be mostly in the 70s, ranging from the 60s in Northwest Texas to the 80s in South Texas.

Heavy rain was reported in portions of West Texas early today.

El paso got almost an inch of rain in a two-hour period during the night.

NATION

Rain spread across parts of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, Rockies and Plains today while the Northeast and Great Lakes region were clear and chilly.

An upper level disturbance pushed showers and thunderstorms across the southern Rockies and the southern High Plains.

Bulldogs have little room for error against Bobcats

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO — If the Midland High Bulldogs play like they did against Odessa High in a 42-21 losing effort, Friday night could seem like an eternity here against San Angelo, the team that beat the Bronchos 42-0.

Bulldog head coach Doug McCutchen is leery of the Bobcats, the team he says "right now is playing the best of anybody in the district. They make very few mistakes on defense. They've only given up 12 points in district ball games (in a 12-7 loss to Midland Lee) and only 37 all year. They're playing exceptional football right now."

And, the Bobcats aren't just a one-sided team. They've also got an offense to backup the defensive efforts.

"They've got two of the best backs in the district in C.L. Bowman at fullback and Don Hall at tailback. They're not very big backs but they've both got good speed. Hall finished third in the district 100 meters last year. Charlie Good is also a good running back but he's overshadowed by the other two."

Bowman is the district's leading rusher with 632 yards in 113 carries (5.6 average) and is the leading scorer with eight touchdowns. Hall is second best at 89-584 (6.6).

Though the Bobcats aren't considered a passing team, with only 271 yards, quarterback Mario Martinez has been effective, completing 16-of-34 for two TDs.

Add multiple formations to that attack and it's even more trouble for the Bulldogs.

"They give you a lot of different formations," said McCutchen. "We counted 27 the other day so that gives us a lot to work on this week in practice."

WHILE THE Bobcats are coming off back-to-back weeks of strong play, beating Abilene High 17-0 Friday night, the Bulldogs have struggled since the district opener against Big Spring, losing to Abilene High, 17-3, and to OHS.

The Bulldogs have been plagued by turnovers all season, giving up eight fumbles and 11 interceptions. However, it's an offense that can't be counted out because of its' long-range passing threats.

Bulldog quarterback Matt Marcum is the league's overall leader with 876 yards, hitting 56 of 129 passes and four TDs. Marcum's favorite receiver has been flanker Kenny De La Garza, third in the league with 257 yards on 20 receptions (ranked second) for three TDs.

The Bulldogs also have tight end Bobby Williams, fifth ranked at 215 yards on 11 catches.

On the ground, Anthony Adkinson leads the team in rushing with 302 yards followed by Mark Johnson at 264. Johnson is the team's leading scorer and third in the district with seven TDs and a two-pointer for 44 points.

Overall, the offensive edge goes to San Angelo by a good margin, 2,010-1,788 while the defensive stats are a bit closer but still in San Angelo's favor, 1,408-1,696.

"The big challenge were facing this week is coming back after playing very poorly against Odessa," said McCutchen. "If we come back with some enthusiasm and emotion, we'll be in the ball game. If not, it could get extremely tough."

Since the Bulldogs have developed a reputation for passing the football, McCutchen is expecting the Bobcats to play his team for the pass, an area where the Bobcats are ranked seventh in 4-5A. In fact, San Angelo's only loss this season came against non-passing Midland Lee on two fleaflickers in the fourth quarter in the 4-5A opener which erased a 7-0 Bobcat lead.

"They'll be playing the pass against us because they know we like to throw," said McCutchen. "They'll be ready for us."

The Bulldogs, on the other hand, can't key on any particular area. Since San Angelo is a well-balanced team, the Bulldogs will have to take their chances on a play-by-play basis.

"Offensively, they've got the threat to break the big play from any part of the field and they've done a very good job of driving the ball down field."

Gomez stuns No. 3 seed

When the winner of the United States Tennis Association's Masters tournament is named Saturday at Midland's Racquet Club, he will earn $1,300. That, however, is the last thing on any of the 32 minds who are fortunate enough to be here this week.

It is at the Racquet Club where ATP computer points can be earned and these players would kick the dog out of the house for ATP points.

A player can't enter a major tournament without computer rankings and those rankings come from ATP points.

Brett Buffington of LaHoya, Calif., explains, "This is kind of like being in AAA baseball. We're just trying to get our foot in the door where you can play for money every week.

"We've played four USTA tournaments in Corpus Christi, Waco, Ft. Worth and Tyler to earn circuit points. When those tournaments are over, they add up the points, the top 32 earn a chance to play here in Midland where ATP points can be earned."

Saturday's singles winner will earn 30 ATP points while doubles winners can earn 23. Points are also awarded on down the line for the place a player finishes.

"I would say if you have 15 or more ATP points, you could enter any tournament in the world. So you can see just how important this is," said Buffington, who is only in the doubles event this week.

THE MASTERS event completed first round action Wednesday and will move into the round of 16 at 11 a.m. today at the Racquet Club. All players who qualified for the Midland stop gained one ATP point. First round winners are insured of four points and gaining the round of eight would be worth eight points.

One of the big winners in the points race Wednesday was Cloumbia's unseeded Carlos Gomez, who defeated No. 3 seed Craig Kardon by a 2-6, 7-6, 6-3 margin.

Gomez was not listed as one of the top 16 seeds, but he has gained four ATP points with his stunning upset. Kardon won an easy 6-2 decision in the first set, but Gomez won on a tie-breaker, 7-6, in the second set and put Kardon away with the 6-3 finale.

From there things rolled along to tournament bracket form as No. 1 seed Val Wilder took a 6-3, 7-6 win over Texas' Mark Witsken, another unseeded player.

Henry DeWet, South Africa, returns serve in United States Tennis Association tennis play at the Midland Racquet Club. Play will continue through Saturday.

No. 2 seed Tomm Warneke of Lakeland, Fla., took a 6-4, 7-5 win over Mark Groetsch, who was unseeded and from Pennsylvania. Both Wilder and Warneke had tough second set assignments, but both won in straight sets.

No. 4 seed Todd Witsken of Indiana dug a hole for himself against Kentucky's unseeded Greg Hill by losing the first set 4-6. However, Witsken recoverd nicely with a 6-0, 6-1 finish to move into the round of 16.

Florida's Joey Rive, the No. 9 seed, took a 7-6, 6-2 win over Canada's Grant Connell.

In a minor upset, unseeded Chris Kennedy of North Carolina pulled off a 6-4, 6-1 win over No. 15 seeded Paul Lobban of South Africa. All other first round matches were completed Tuesday.

Doubles action started Wednesday. In early games completed, the No. 7 seeded team of Caluo-Sznajder defeated Davis-Raglmo, 6-4, 6-3 while Carroll-Lobban defeated the No. 3 seeded team of Belcher-Harmon, 6-3, 6-4.

Royals upset Jays, win AL LCS title

TORONTO (AP) — George Brett likes the role of underdog. He and his Kansas City teammates wear it like a comfortable old sweater — they can push up their sleeves and do a lot of work in it.

The Royals, claiming they were the underdog from the very beginning, climaxed a stirring comeback Wednesday night when they defeated the Toronto Blue Jays for the third successive time, 6-2, in the seventh and deciding game of the American League playoffs.

The Royals open the World Series in their own park Saturday night against the St. Louis Cardinals and, again, they're picked to lose.

"We had nothing to lose," Brett said, noting that Kansas City was down 3-1 after four games against the Blue Jays. "We were loose. When we won that third game we came back relaxed (Sunday), and even though we lost, I said the pressure was on Toronto. I don't know why I said it, but I think I was right, the pressure was on them."

As a result, the Royals — who won the AL West with a 91-71 record — never felt any pressure to win.

"No one expected us to win, just like during the year," Brett said.

It marked only the fifth time in major-league history that a team has bounced back to win after losing three of the first four games in a best-of-seven series. The other instances have all been in World Series play since the playoffs were a best-of-five affair until this year.

"Toronto didn't choke," Brett said, tempering remarks he made over the weekend. "They didn't give anything away. We won."

THE FACT is, however, that the Blue Jays, who won the AL East with a 99-62 record, had been struggling for two weeks. They lost five of their last six regular-season games — winning only the division-clincher against the New York Yankees — and lost four of the last five playoff games.

"It's over with," Toronto third baseman Rance Mulliniks said. "We can't change anything. This is a young ballclub and I'm sure someday soon there will be a World Series here.

"They won it. They executed and their pitching was great the last four games. We didn't give anything away. They earned it."

The loss was a bitter pill for flag-waving Toronto fans, for whom the playoffs were a morality play. Canadian media had made the Blue Jays efforts to bring the World Series north of the border for the first time a struggle between good and evil as well as between "us and them."

Despite such loyalty, however, only 32,084 showed up at Exhibition Stadium for the final game, and none of the four games in Toronto came even close to a sellout.

It was suggested that perhaps the pressure of knowing the eyes of all Canada were focused on them hurt the Blue Jays.

"Believe me, we wanted to win bad," Toronto catcher Ernie Whitt said. "But I think that's a lot of bull about pressure."

Toronto first baseman Willie Upshaw said: "It's their ballclub. It's their country. They're bound to feel that way.

"We were just playing for the Toronto Blue Jays. If we'd won, we'd have won for the country, but you just can't think about that when you go out there."

Royals right fielder Pat Sheridan and catcher Jim Sundberg were the surprise hitting heroes in the final game. Sheridan belted his second homer of the series and Sundberg tripled off the top of the right-field fence to drive in three runs.

"It seems unknown guys always come through in playoff games, but that's baseball," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said. "I can't explain why."

Cards complete rally with Clark's homer in ninth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have been springing surprises all year long. Suddenly, they're one surprise away from winning it all.

"We've still got another team to beat," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said Wednesday after Jack Clark's three-run homer in the top of the ninth gave St. Louis a 7-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and the National League pennant.

St. Louis, picked by most observers to finish no better than fourth in the NL East coming out of spring training, faces the American League champion Kansas City Royals in the World Series beginning Saturday night in Kansas City.

The Cardinals bounced back from losses in the first two games of the NL playoffs to stun the Dodgers with a four-game sweep in the best-of-seven series.

"It's a heck of a compliment to our team to have won this series," a smiling Herzog said after the dramatic sixth-game victory over the Dodgers. "Having to beat a club like the Mets (the NL East runners-up) who played so well all year ... then getting down 2-0 to the Dodgers with the pitching they've got ..."

The Cardinals have a reputation for their lightning on the basepaths, but they won the series against the Dodgers with thunder.

In Monday's fifth game in St. Louis, switch-hitting Ozzie Smith hit his first left-handed homer ever in the majors — with one out in the bottom of the ninth — to give the Cardinals a 3-2 victory and a 3-2 lead in the series.

Wednesday at Dodger Stadium, it was Jack Clark's first home run in nearly a month that decided the contest after Mike Marshall's solo homer gave Los Angeles a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the eighth.

Dodgers reliever Tom Niedenfuer, their bullpen ace during the regular season, was the victim of both game-winning homers.

Smith, who went 10-for-23 in the playoffs and was selected the most valuable player, and Clark were quick to shrug off individual credit.

"This is not for me, it's for the whole ballclub," Smith said upon accepting the MVP award. "This was a group of young guys that coming out of spring training weren't given a chance. It's an example of what you can do if you believe in yourself."

"I'm not the hero," said Clark, who realized immediately when he hit a Niedenfuer fastball that it was a homer and looked over at the Cardinals' dugout before running around the bases.

"I'm not the guy; it's a bunch of guys. It's been the whole team all the way," Clark said. "Our manager, Whitey Herzog, and our bullpen, Joaquin Andujar and John Tudor. They've kept us in ballgames, they kept us out of losing streaks.

"When I looked over at the dugout, I was thinking this is for the team and the Cardinal fans. It was good timing for my biggest, farthest and best home run ever."

The way the sixth game was decided provided great ammunition for second-guessers. With St. Louis runners at second and third and two away, Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda decided to pitch to Clark rather than walk him and have Niedenfuer face Andy Van Slyke.

It was Tony's day, defense too

It was Tony Dorsett's day. The radio men with their mikes and tape recorders, the TV cameras and bright lights, and reporters poised at ready with their note pads waited impatiently for the man of the hour to emerge from the locker room across the hall.

A guy doesn't surpass 10,000-career yards every day. As a matter of fact, when Dorsett did it with 113 yards Sunday, he became only the sixth to achieve the plateau in the NFL.

And what a way to do it. After a demoralizing first half in which he gained only three yards in nine carries against a Steeler defense that played the run like something from the dynasty days of Greenwood, Smith, Lambert, Ham... he got the 31 yards he needed and a lot more thanks to Danny White's "quick outs", scattering the line backers.

And while they waited, another crowd gathered around Ernie Stautner, the defensive coordinator and line coach. His defense had shared part of the day's glory with Dorsett and perhaps raised a few eyebrows with the aggrresive daring that one doesn't expect to see from the team that made the Flex a TV booth word.

THEY TALK about the Iron Curtain defense of the Steelers, but Stautner is a throwback to an even more rugged era when Pittsburgh never really beat you, but they beat you up.

He played tackle at Pittsburgh for 14 years and made Pro Bowl nine times. The steel workers and coal miners of the day could really take the old Steelers to bosom. None of this fancy stuff. The Steelers' rugged individuality was epitomized by the single wing. They were still using it when every body else had gone to the sissy T and the scores were escalating the easy way, with the forward pass.

The Steelers still ground it out, unbalanced line, slashing off tackle runs and maybe a sweep, the tailback swinging wide behind a fullback, blocking back, maybe a pulling guard or two with crack back blocks from the wingback.

BUT ERNIE changed with the times. With his background in Pittsburgh, it wasn't difficult to embrace the Flex. It's primary task was to stop the run.

But what Dallas fans saw Sunday was the kind of gambling defense that their fans used to associate with the futile desperation of Cowboy opponents back in the glory days.

"I think it's kind of exciting," says Stautner. "But it's also kind of dangerous. Every time we blitz, we gamble and sometimes things are going to come down."

STAUTNER assures that the Flex is still Dallas' primary defense. "We use it against the run to force the pass. Today Pittsburgh came out passing, so we stayed out of the flex."

The aggressiveness has paid off in 25 sacks and 18 interceptions in six games and has done wonders for the Cowboys' "take away" statistics this year.

Still, Ernie isn't completely satisfied. Twice the Cowboys were burned on long passes. "We got the job done, but we can improve. We are still letting the big play get away from us because we didn't get the rush we wanted on those two plays."

Although the Cowboys beat the Giants the week before, Stautner nevertheless credited the defense's intensity against Pittsburgh to a unit "that had something to prove to themselves. They wanted to show the Giants game was a mistake."

How does the Cowboys' defense rank with the famed Doomsday Defense of yore?

"It's not at the stage of our defense of the early 1970s," he said referring to those Bob Lilly, George Andrie, Harvey Martin, Lee Roy Jordan and Chuck Howley teams.

"But," he quickly adds, "Perhaps it's not fair to compare them. The game has changed in favor of the offense."

And the Cowboys are changing their defense style to keep up with the times.

Rangers, Buffaloes: Battle of unbeatens

From Staff Reports

The Greenwood Rangers and the Stanton Buffaloes square off Friday in a battle of District 8-2A unbeatens, and to the winner, one more week of breathing easy in a fierce district race. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. in Stanton.

Greenwood, 5-1 and 1-0, is the favorite going into the game, but Stanton, 3-3, 1-0, coach Dale Ruth and Greenwood's Joe Longley know past records mean little when these two teams meet.

"You can throw that stuff right out the window," Longley said.

Elsewhere in District 8-2A, co-leader McCamey, 5-1, 1-0, is at Wall, 0-1, 0-6, and Eldorado, 0-1, 2-4, visits Reagan County, 0-1, 3-3. All District 8-2A games begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Rangers breezed through their first four games of pre-district play, rolling up lopsided margins of 28-0, 34-0, 55-6 and 45-0 before running into a dead end against Rankin. The Red Devils took advantage of Greenwood errors to mark a 19-14 win. The Rangers came back strong in the district opener, however, and a 98-yard drive in the closing minutes clinched a win over Wall.

Stanton has had an up-and-down season thus far, but has squeezed out wins in two of its last three games. The return of quarterback Kevin Glaspie and receiver mark Gonzalez from injuries sparked the Buffalo offense last week and carried them to a 14-6 win over Eldorado, last year's district champion.

Tonight's collision will leave the winner 2-0 and with an inside track on one of two available playoff spots. The following week has Greenwood traveling to McCamey and Stanton hosting Reagan County.

Other area games Friday include Rankin at Iraan; Crane at Coahoma; Andrews at Sweetwater; Snyder at Lamesa; Monahans at Pecos; Lake View at Fort Stockton; Ballinger at Sonora; Colorado City at Ozona; Wink at Grandfalls and Kermit (all games begin at 8 p.m.).

DALLAS (AP) — Here are the highlights of this weekend's Southwest Conference football games:

RICE (2-3, 1-1 in SWC) at TEXAS TECH (3-3, 0-3 in SWC), 12:04 p.m. CDT (Raycom TV) — Rice and Tech lead SWC and 3rd in NCAA pass offense and pass defense, respectively. Rice averages 21 completions, 270 yards, 1.6 TDs passing per game, Tech yields 45.5 per cent completions, 106.5 yards a game. Owls have improved average rushing gain more than 100 yards per game in last three starts to 129.8, while Raiders are eighth in SWC rushing defense (228.3 yards a game). Owls' Antonio Brinkley ranks sixth in SWC rushing (76.2 yards per game), Todd Jones has 153 yards in 13 runs over last two games. Owls have won two of last three, best consistency since winning three straight in '81. After 3-0 start, Tech has dropped three SWC games with offensive problems vs. Baylor (31-0) and Arkansas (30-7). Three Owls among SWC's top eight receivers--Darrick Wells second (4.4 catches a game), Eddie Burgoyne seventh (2.8). Ken Major tied for eighth (2.2). Owls' Steve Kidd nation's No. 2 punter with 47.4 average, Owls' opponents punting at SWC record pace 47.0 average, Tech nation's No. 2 kickoff return team with 27.5-yard average, Rice's Quentis Roper second in SWC with 24.2 kickoff-return average, Tech's 5-2-and-a-tad Tyrone Thurman second in SWC punt returns with 11.3 average. Tech last in SWC offense at 278.3 per game, but has rushed for 11 TDs (fourth best in SWC) out of Wishbone. Tech has 18-16-1 series lead, dominates SWC meetings at 17-7-1 and is 8-5 in Lubbock, winning five of last six there.

NORTH TEXAS STATE (2-4) at TCU (2-3), 2 p.m. CDT — Both teams look to snap losing streaks--TCU has lost three straight, North Texas has dropped last two. Frogs hold decided series advantage over Eagles at 11-1...last North Texas victory in 1919 when Eagles posted 14-6 decision. Frogs scored 34-3 victory over NTSU last season in first meeting between the two schools since 1935, TCU winning that one 28-11 in Fort Worth. SWC teams hold 57-2-1 lead vs. NTSU, Eagles beating SMU in '33 and '77, playing scoreless tie with Mustangs in '32. TCU had tenth-best offensive day in school history (526 yards) last week at Rice, but lost in final seconds when 74-yard drive ended at Rice four-yard line. Both have common opponent this season, TCU and North Texas defeating Kansas State for last victory. Frogs will start six freshmen and one sophomore on defense, three freshmen and three sophomores on offense vs. NTSU. TCU features offensive balance, rushing for a 203.6 aver- age and passing for 130.6, but far off '84 SWC total-offense record pace of 463.9 yards per game. Eagle offense averaging 149.7 rushing and 87.3 passing. TCU QB David Rascoe leads SWC in NCAA passing-efficiency ratings at 150.5 points.

TEXAS (3-1, 1-0 in SWC) at ARKANSAS (5-0, 2-0 in SWC), 2:30 p.m. CDT (ABC-TV) — Game marks 17th time both enter series undefeated in SWC play. Texas holds 12-4 lead in games when both had perfect SWC records. Texas also has all-time series advantage at 50-16, 13-3 lead in Fayetteville and 21-9 in all games played in Arkansas. Texas among nation's top offensive teams prior to gaining only 70 yards in 50 plays in 14-7 loss to Oklahoma last week. Longhorns have scored six TDs of more than 40 yards, eight of more than 25, Todd Dodge hitting TD passes of 96, 80 and 40 yards vs. Rice two weeks ago, averages 11.4 yards gained per attempt. Arkansas offense leads SWC and seventh in nation in rushing (288.4 yards a game), fourth nationally total defense (387.0). Texas sixth in SWC in offense (371.0), sixth in rushing (201.7), fifth in passing (169.2). Arkansas third nationally in both total defense (218.8 yards a game) and scoring defense (7.8 points per game), leads SWC in scoring margin (25 points a game) and scoring average (32.8). Razorback defense to miss DE Ravin Caldwell and CB Kevin Anderson, both out for year after being injured vs. Tech last week. Razorback QB Greg Thomas attempting only nine passes per game, hitting 54.4 per cent and hasn't been intercepted after 46 attempts. Texas claims leading returners in SWC--Eric Metcalf fifth in national punt returns (15.8 average), Norman Nunn No. 6 kickoff returner (25.8).

TEXAS A&M (4-1, 2-0 in SWC) at BAYLOR (5-1, 3-0 in SWC), 7 p.m. CDT — Best combined record (9-2) going into game in 62 seasons. Best combined winning percentage (.818) in 30 years. Each has won four straight since early-season road losses, Baylor 14th in national rankings. Aggies among nation's highest-scoring teams since opening loss, averaging 36.8 points in four straight victories. Aggies have edge in statistics, but teams similar. A&M No. 1 SWC total offense (456.4 yards a game) and Baylor seventh (382), Aggies second in defense (289.2), Baylor third (301.3). Aggies have yielded nine TDs in five games, Baylor ten in six. Best balanced offenses in SWC, Aggies gaining 222 rushing and 234.4 passing, Baylor 186.5 and 175.5. Both also split QB chores, though Aggies' Kevin Murray and Baylor's Tom Muecke have had hotter hands lately-- Murray hitting 62.4 per cent of passes for four TDs, Muecke 53.3 for six. Two Aggies among top five SWC rushers, No. 2 Roger Vick (86.6 a game) and No. 5 Anthony Toney (79.2). A&M's Jeff Nelson top SWC receiver with 23 catches for 313 yards, Keith Woodside No. 6 with 16 for 131. Six Bears have rushed for more than 100 yards. A&M offensive line outweighs BU defense by eight pounds, Baylor offensive line tops A&M line by seven, all four groups at 250 to 266...BU has won five of last seven as A&M leads series, 45-28-8.

SMU (2-2, 1-1 in SWC) at HOUSTON (1-4, 0-2 in SWC), 7:05 p.m. CDT — SWC co-champs last year, both lost close, similar games to Baylor in last two weeks--Houston by 24-21, SMU by 21-14 after both staged second half rallies...teams have won or shared six of last eight SWC championships, with three second-place finishes between them. SMU has lost two straight for only third time in '80s, UH has lost four of five for only second time in '80s. SMU No. 2 in SWC total offense (445.5 yards a game), No. 2 in rushing (285.5), No. 3 in passing (175.5), UH No. 3 in rushing (234.6) and gaining 374.2 yards per game. Three of SWC's top four rushers spark attacks: SMU's Reggie Dupard leads SWC (third in nation) at 123.5 yards a game, Jeff Atkins fourth (82.0), Houston's Michael Simmons third (86.0). Dupard also tied for third in national scoring with A&M's Anthony Toney at seven TDs for 10.5 game average. Cougars' Mat Pierson, SWC's No. 8 rusher, injured in A&M game last week. UH's Gerald Landry hitting a TD pass every 18 attempts (six TDs in 108 attempts). SMU QB Don King hitting 56.1 per cent with only two interceptions in 82 attempts. Game also has three of SWC's top five receivers--No. 3 Marquis Pleasant of SMU (3.7 per game, 251 yards), No. 4 Carl Hilton of UH (3.6-230), No. 5 Ron Morris of SMU (3.2-163)...UH has yielded 999 rushing yards, 1,000 passing to rank seventh in SWC defense ...SMU yielding 332.5 yards a game. One of most unusual series in SWC-- it's 5-5, SMU 3-1 at Houston, Cougars 4-1 at SMU, Mustangs 1-0 in Tokyo (teams played there in '83).

No play sidelines 15 percent of varsity teams

AUSTIN (AP) — Used for the first time during football season, the no-pass, no-play rule has sidelined about 15 percent of high school varsity football players, with losses running heavier in junior varsity and freshman ranks, coaches say.

Some junior varsity schedules face cancellation and schools reported losing marching band members, prompting one official to say Wednesday, "There's not going to be much to rally around at those places."

The no-pass, no-play rule — a critical element of public school reforms enacted by the Legislature last year — prohibits students from participating in extracurricular activities if failing any course.

Grades for the first six-week period came out this week, and the rule takes effect Friday. Those who failed can't play again for at least six weeks.

"It doesn't look very good," said Eddie Joseph of the Texas High School Coaches Association.

"Statewide, somewhere in the neighborhood of 15 percent of varsity athletes are going to become ineligible after this Thursday. For the subvarsity, the percentage is close to 35-to-50 percent in places," Joseph said.

He said the association has no reports yet of schools being forced to quit football, although some of the smallest teams will be cut to just 14 players.

"A lot of junior varsity schedules are going to have cancellations. And I've heard of some bands that are not going to be able to participate," he said.

Joseph said officials anticipated the higher failure rate among younger players.

Besides the traditionally tough time they have adjusting to high school, he said, younger players who didn't make the varsity may not have received special tutoring and weekly grade monitoring coaches provided for the top squads.

Davis decides against taking NFL to court

FORT WORTH (AP) — Former Texas Christain University running back Kenneth Davis has reversed his decision to sue the National Football League for damages because the NFL will not let Davis play in the league this year.

Davis, who had accused the NFL of unfairly preventing him from earning a living, filed the suit in California that sought $13 from the NFL.

The standout running back wanted to play in the NFL this season after he was suspended by TCU for accepting money from boosters. But a longtime rule preventing athletes from playing for both a college team and the NFL in the same season barred Davis from the league.

"I am not suing the NFL and that's what it all boils down to. We knew from the beginning that we only had a 50-50 chance (for a supplemental draft)," Davis said Wednesday. "I've accepted their decision. So why would I go out and sue the NFL? All I want to do is go ahead and graduate and play football."

Michael Trope, Davis' agent, said the suit should not have been filed in the first place.

"I don't want to look like an idiot, but the story is it's being withdrawn," Trope said from Los Angeles. "It's a dead issue, there will be no court case. We had been prepared to sue two weeks ago. But we changed our minds last week. I couldn't get in touch with my lawyer to tell him not to file. It was my fault. I blundered."

Davis said he thought that the California suit had been withdrawn last week with a similar action in Texas state court in Fort Worth challenging the legality of the NFL by-law.

An apparent communications breakdown between Trope and Trope's attorney, Steven Knowles, seems to be the cause of the misunderstanding, Davis said.

Davis filed a lawsuit in Superior Court Tuesday, alleging that the NFL "is improperly restricting Mr. Davis' ability to contract with an NFL team, and preventing him from becoming employed, resulting in a loss of earnings," Knowles had said in a telephone interview.

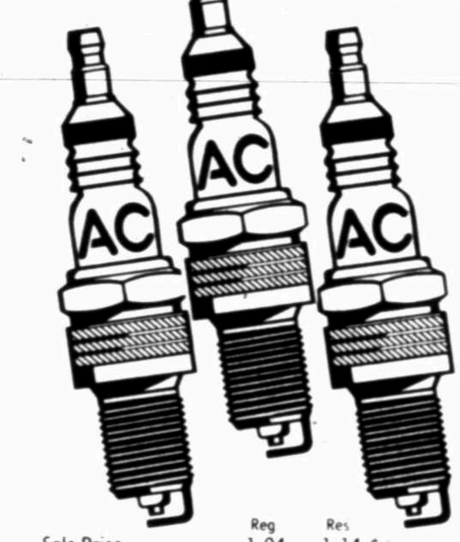

The suit asked for $3 million in general damages and $10 million in punitive damages.

NFL spokesman Joe Browne noted Wednesday in New York that the league filed suit last week in Fort Worth, Texas, seeking a declaratory judgment which would uphold its "Red Grange Rule" and support its decision not to allow Davis to play this year.

The 60-year-old Grange rule bars athletes from playing for both a college team and the NFL in the same season.

NFL says not to use of instant replay in games

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League rejected a move to oversee its officials with technology Wednesday when it narrowly defeated a move to institute instant replay in this year's playoffs.

In one of the rare instances when a unanimous recommendation by the NFL Competition Committee was turned down, the instant replay managed just 16 votes of the 25 teams attending the league's fall meetings and fell three short of the three-fourths majority needed to institute a rules change. It is likely to come up again next March at the league's winter meetings.

"I think we made a mistake," said Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the rules-making Competition Committee. "I think if instant replay saves just one mistake by an official it's worth it. I've been around long enough to see enough of those mistakes."

The owners did, however, make several procedural changes on the second day of their meetings. In one, they changed the way draft order is determined in supplemental drafts to avert the kind of controversy that arose this year when Cleveland maneuvered the draft to select quarterback Bernie Kosar.

The instant replay proposal was designed to allow an official in a television booth to overrule the officials only on obvious mis-calls involving possession or out-of-bounds calls, not penalties.

During a preseason experiment, only one of 28 questioned calls was overturned — that one involving a reception and drop by San Francisco's Jerry Rice that was first ruled a fumble, then an incomplete pass.

But Commissioner Pete Rozelle said some teams feared there would be inequities if instant replays are carried over to the regular season because certain games are covered by more cameras than other. He also mentioned an objection raised often in past discussions of instant replays, that officials reviewing the play would see a penalty that hadn't been called.

"Suppose they were ruling on a fumble and they noticed on the replay that it had been caused by a face-mask penalty?" Rozelle asked.

But Bobby Beathard, general manager of the Washington Redskins and a proponent of the change, said it was impossible to cover all the hypothetical situations.

"I thought it was clear-cut," Beathard said. "It was only to correct the most obvious mistakes. I think people just got to talking about the negatives and kept talking about them until they got enough votes to beat it."

COM takes first place in Fall Invitational

Eight City of Midland swimmers earned Outstanding swimmer honors in their age groups in the season's opening meet at COM pool. The short course was primarily for younger and less experienced, B and C, swimmers, still Midland took first place in the Fall Invitational with 101 points.

Odessa Aquatic Club was second with 36 points, followed by Fort Stockton, 20, and San Angelo, 13.

Individual high point winners were: Kelly Evans, Odessa, girls, and Jacob Anderson, COM, boys, eight-and-under; Kathryn Krall, COM, girls, and Todd Owens, Fort Stockton, boys, 10-under; Ginger Brinningstool, COM, girls, and Matt Walsh, COM, boys, 11-12; Stephanie Reed, COM, girls and Matt Seay, COM, boys 13-14; Jane Marker, COM, girls and Bryan Roan, COM, boys, 15-18.

The COM has 185 swimmers on the team and has room for a few more this season. Anyone interested can call the COM (684 7755).

Coach Brad Swendig appraised, "We have a bunch of good swimmers coming up and are looking forward to a good competitive season. And we hope to make a good showing at the state (TAGS) meet in the spring.

CARDS

IN THE seventh, Lasorda had instructed Niedenfuer to intentionally walk Tommy Herr with runners on second and third and pitch to Clark. That time, Niedenfuer struck out Clark, and then Van Slyke to end an inning in which the Cardinals got three runs to tie the contest 4-4.

Even Van Slyke said he expected Clark to get an intentional walk.

"I was looking into the dugout waiting for (Los Angeles Manager) Tommy (Lasorda) to put up four fingers," he said. "I have to think they were going to walk him and pitch to me.

"I think Jack lit up inside when he knew they were going to pitch to him. What can you say? He stole the show."

And the game. It was the first time since mid-April that the Dodgers had lost after leading entering the ninth. They were 85-1 entering Wednesday's game.

Lasorda said he decided to pitch to Clark because Niedenfuer had struck him out in the seventh.

"If he had hit a long fly ball for the final out, nobody would be talking about it," said a crestfallen Lasorda. "After he hit the home run, everybody in the world knows who should have walked him.

"If you second-guess anybody, second-guess me. I'm the guy who made the decision."

Clark, who'd been sidelined with strained muscles in his side for almost a month late in the season, said it was "kind of a slap in the face" when the Dodgers walked Herr to pitch to him in the seventh.

"And then you really get upset when you don't even put the ball in play," he said.

"I made a slight adjustment in my stance, moved about a half-step back from the plate and squared away more," Clark said of his ninth-inning plate appearance. "I was just trying to get a base hit and tie the score.

"It not only had been a while since I hit a home run, but since I had an extra-base hit," said Clark, who nevertheless led the Cardinals with 22 homers during the regular season. "I was beginning to wonder if I was ever going to hit one again."

ALTHOUGH CLARK'S homer decided the game, Smith again played a key offensive role in the victory. He tripled home the tying run in the seventh, just after Niedenfuer had replaced Los Angeles starter Orel Hershiser.

"The triple Ozzie hit may have been the key," Herzog said. "That really got us back into the ballgame."

The Dodgers took a 4-1 lead in the fifth inning, getting one run against St. Louis starter Joaquin Andujar on Pedro Guerrero's sacrifice fly and another on Bill Madlock's third homer of the playoffs.

The Cardinals knotted the game with the seventh-inning outburst. Willie McGee's single drove in two runs before Smith's triple made it 4-4.

Marshall then led off the Dodgers' eighth with his homer off St. Louis reliever Todd Worrell.

Los Angeles took an early 2-0 lead with single runs in the first and second innings, the first coming on Madlock's run-producing single and the second on a single by Mariano Duncan, who also had a double and a triple and scored twice.

The Cardinals cut the lead in half in the third when Andujar led off with a double to left, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Herr's single.

Niedenfuer got the loss, his second in a row in the series. Worrell, who worked the seventh and eighth innings, notched the win in his first playoff decision. Ken Dayley, who set the Dodgers down in order in the ninth, notched his second save.

ROYALS

SUNDBERG, WHO was rescued by the Royals from the Texas Rangers, called it his greatest baseball experience.

"The whole game I wanted to jump up and down," Sundberg said. "It's a great feeling."

Almost unnoticed in the offensive fireworks was the splendid 5 1-3 innings of relief by Royals left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, who got credit for the victory.

"Pitching was our strength all year and in this series," said Howser, who finally broke into the winner's circle on his third try as manager in post-season play. "This business is always a struggle. It's never easy. We proved this year we could play in the East. Toronto is an excellent club and we beat the best in the East."

The Royals took a 1-0 lead in the second. Sheridan reached on a one-out bunt single past Toronto starter and loser Dave Stieb, went to second on Steve Balboni's groundout and scored on a looping single to right by Sundberg.

With two outs in the fourth, Sheridan belted the first pitch from Stieb over the right-field wall, giving the Royals a 2-0 lead.

Leibrandt, the loser in both Game 1 and Game 4, took over for Kansas City to start the Toronto fourth because starter Bret Saberhagen had a bruise on the palm of his right hand at the base of the thumb.

The Blue Jays broke through for a run in the fifth. Damaso Garcia stroked a leadoff single, went to second on Lloyd Moseby's grounder and scored on Upshaw's double into the right-field corner.

"I feel we're a great club, but we didn't win," Upshaw said. "It's a matter of opinion, but in my mind we're still the best team.

"I hope this makes us want to come back again. I don't think it will have an adverse affect."

Kansas City broke it open with four runs in the sixth. With one out, Brett walked on four pitches and Hal McRae was hit by a pitch. Sheridan hit a checked-swing grounder into the hole, but shortstop Tony Fernandez made a splendid backhand stop and flipped to Iorg, forcing Brett at third. Balboni then walked on a full-count pitch to load the bases for Sundberg, who followed with his triple off the top of the fence in right, scoring McRae, Sheridan and Balboni for a 5-1 Royals lead.

Jim Acker took over for Stieb and gave up a single to short center by White that drove in Sundberg.

The Blue Jays final run came in the ninth when Jesse Barfield singled, went to third on a single by Fernandez and scored on a grounder by Garcia.

"The media's always talking about a Subway Series, so there's nothing wrong with an I-70 Series," Brett said. "I'm excited for the state of Missouri, for the Cardinals and especially for our organization and owners."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, October 18, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Replace the weak links in a financial or delivery system and success will come more quickly. You set the standard. Produce work of such excellent quality that your competitors will have difficulty matching it. Keep your plans under wraps until ready to announce them publicly. A younger person learns from your example. Remain true to your high ideals. There are some things you should not keep quiet about. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: tennis great Martina Navratilova, actress Pam Dawber, former Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Senator Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), Greek actress-politician Melina Mercouri, actor George C. Scott, the San Diego Padres' Jerry Royster.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be careful not to get caught in the middle of a quarrel. Certain tactics work better than others. Find out why and set new standards for yourself. Treat others with respect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Start a new venture with an open mind. One opportunity stands out from all the others. Concentrate on improving your communication skills. A student or business trainee makes great progress.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Behind-the-scenes activities can affect your future. Get involved. Avoid arguing with a skeptic. Use your considerable powers of persuasion to win him/her over. Travel brings romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look at an alternative plan before making up your mind on a financial matter. A decisive victory is possible at school or work. Be careful not to gloat. Seek a reconciliation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take some time for yourself today. You have earned a break. God has a special plan for you. Just one glance and you will know the right road to travel.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Something you have wanted for a long time is now available at a down-to-earth price. Numerous assists put you in good with the boss. Overdue financial gains are on the way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is time to give serious thought to the future. A change in employment or lifestyle could hold some of the answers you are looking for. Check your credit before making a major purchase.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Protect your valuables when moving around. A protest is meaningless unless you can present an alternative. Talk with mate or partner about what is going on in your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can take a big step toward providing for your retirement today. Make a meeting with a friend or employer more than a casual lunch. Romance takes a temporary back seat to business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A phone call you receive gives you a good feeling. Loyal friends and a large cash payment have you walking on air! Lend a helping hand to a youngster.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inspiration comes from an unexpected source. Although you dislike wheeling and dealing, it is important to your future that you get together with decision-makers. Act confident and others follow your lead.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Postpone making a decision and you could end up getting everything you want. Even a timid person can speak with a big voice when right is on his or her side. Stand tall.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Even apparently easy contracts often require careful play. Declarer was in such a hurry to get on to the next hand that he forgot to take the precautions necessary to secure his contract.

South had no intention of playing the hand at no trump. Once North showed slam interest with his four spade cue-bid, South jumped to six clubs, leaving it up to his partner to choose between the minor-suit slams.

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy, discarding a diamond from hand. He drew trumps in three rounds and led a diamond to the jack and ace. Declarer ruffed the spade return and wasted no time in leading a diamond to the queen. When East showed out, declarer's predicament dawned on him. He could get back to his hand only once, so there was no way for him to set up and enjoy his diamonds. He had to fall back on the heart finesse — down one.

Up to the point where he had drawn all the outstanding trumps, we cannot fault declarer's play. But if declarer had spent some time in planning the hand, he surely would have found the way to neutralize the 4-1 diamond break if West has the long diamonds.

When East returns a spade after winning the ace of diamonds, declarer should ruff and then cross to dummy with the king of hearts. Only then does he lead the queen to diamonds from the table. If East follows suit, declarer plays low and he is home if the suit splits 3-2. If West shows out on the second diamond, declarer must fall back on the heart finesse.

Where declarer gains is when East shows out on the second diamond. Now declarer overtakes with the king of diamonds and leads the nine for the marked ruffing finesse of West's ten. Whether or not West covers, the slam is home.

Leave them something to REMEMBER.

Gibson leads LPGA Qualifying tourney

SUGAR LAND (AP) — Janice Gibson of Stillwater, Okla., carded a second round of 2-over-par 74 Wednesday to temporarily take the lead at the annual LPGA Qualifying tournament.

Gibson stool alone at the top of the field with a 36-hole total of 146, 2-over-par.

Gibson, like the rest of the field of 90 was forced to play the first 36 holes of the 72-hole event in one day due to a rainout of first-round play Tuesday. But 39 players were unable to complete their second round when darkness blanketed the Sweetwater Country Club course. Officials halted the day's play at 6:45 p.m. CDT and decided to complete the second round at 8 a.m.

Gibson had shared the lead after her morning 36 holes with Carole Charbonnier of Switzerland and Heather Farr of Phoenix, Ariz. All three players began tournament play by matching even-par 72's. Charbonnier soared to a 78 in the afternoon while Farr was still on the course when the siren sounded to end play.

Bomb explodes in car, injures Mormon linked to deaths

AP Laserphoto

Police probe wreckage of a bombed car in downtown Salt Lake City Wednesday afternoon that critically injured one man.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Mormon researcher critically injured when a bomb accidentally went off in his car was responsible for two fatal explosions linked to the "Salamander Letter," a disputed account of the church's origins, authorities say.

Police said Mark W. Hofmann would be charged today with Tuesday's bombing deaths of a Mormon bishop and the wife of another church history buff.

In 1984, Hofmann reportedly sold the bishop, Steven F. Christensen, 31, a document called the "Salamander Letter," which challenges official accounts of the church's founding.

Hofmann was blown from his parked car downtown Wednesday afternoon. He was listed in critical but stable condition in the intensive care ward of LDS Hospital, where he had been in surgery most of the night, a nursing supervisor said.

"We're looking at a revenge motive right now," Jerry Miller, agent in charge of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said late Wednesday, although he declined to elaborate.

"I think the community is safe at this time," Miller said. "I think we have the people responsible off the street."

"Tomorrow morning we will present information to the U.S. Attorney charging Mark Hofmann with violation of federal firearm laws and explosives laws," Miller said.

Searches of Hofmann's bombed-out car and suburban home found evidence linking him to Tuesday's bombings, police said.

Hofmann is a former Mormon missionary and dealer in historical documents.

Police held out the possibility that others may have been involved in the bombings which killed Christensen and Kathy Sheets, 50, the wife of J. Gary Sheets, a former business associate of Christensen's who helped fund a $20,000 study to determine the authenticity of the "Salamander Letter."

"We are not saying the investigation is concluded, but we feel we know who the players are now, and we're pursuing those," Police Chief Bud Willoughby said. "And if we develop that, I would anticipate other charges would be filed involving other than Mr. Hofmann."

The "Salamander Letter," which Hofmann reportedly sold to Christensen for $40,000, questions official accounts of how founder Joseph Smith acquired gold plates he claimed to have translated into the "Book of Mormon," the faith's most treasured scripture.

Christensen turned the letter over to leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in early 1984. Its authenticity is a matter of debate among historians.

In the wake of Tuesday's explosions, police had said they were focusing their attention on financially troubled CFS Financial Corp., a financial counseling and real estate investment company founded 12 years ago by Sheets. Christensen had been an officer of the company until this summer.

But authorities also began looking at the "Salamander Letter" connection and said they were searching for Hofmann as a suspect when the apparently accidental explosion occurred Wednesday afternoon.

"We were out looking for him just before this happened," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward. Hofmann matched the description of a man seen delivering a package to Christensen's downtown office shortly before the stockbroker was killed by the first explosion, Hayward said.

Three hours later, Mrs. Sheets bent down to pick up a newspaper on top of a parcel bearing her husband's name, touching off the second blast.

On Wednesday, a man matching Hofmann's description was seen entering a downtown building housing the offices of Christensen's attorney, Willoughby said. The same building was searched after the first two bombings.

Another witness then saw Hofmann carrying "either a box or a briefcase in his hand" when he opened the door to his nearby car, the chief said. "When he started into the car he was blown away from the car."

Senators ask $500,000 for tip on outlaw Abbas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six senators want Secretary of State George P. Shultz to put a $500,000 bounty on the head of Palestinian guerrilla leader Mohammed Abbas, the man the United States says planned the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship.

The lawmakers, members of the Senate Anti-Terrorism Caucus, told Shultz in a letter Wednesday he should pay for information leading to the arrest of Abbas under a 1984 law known as the Act to Combat International Terrorism.

"The reward will increase the likelihood of Mr. Abbas being brought to justice," the senators wrote. "We hope you will agree with us that all possible methods of achieving this goal must be used."

State Department officials had no comment on the letter, which was released at a Capitol Hill news conference before it was sent to Shultz. It was signed by Sens. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., Larry Pressler, R-S.D., Warren Rudman, R-N.H., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Alan Dixon, D-Ill.

"Prosecution of Mr. Abbas in the United States should be a condition of payment of the reward," D'Amato, chairman of the caucus, said at the news conference. "I'm also calling on the attorney general to add a charge of murder to the existing warrant."

Last Friday, the U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia issued a warrant for the arrest of Abbas on charges of hostage-taking, piracy, and conspiracy to commit both crimes.

Justice Department officials have had no comment on reports that Abbas, who has traveled with an Iraqi diplomatic passport, is in South Yemen, a communist nation with which the United States has no extradition treaty. Abbas flew to Yugoslavia after authorities in Italy allowed him to leave despite U.S. extradition requests.

Abbas has said in an interview broadcast in Italy that he had nothing to do with last week's hijacking of the Italian ocean liner.

Judicial sources in Italy say the four hijackers in custody have denied killing Leon Klinghoffer, a 69-year-old American tourist aboard the cruise ship whose body was thrown overboard but washed ashore in Syria.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Damascus said there appeared to be two gunshot wounds in Klinghoffer's body, which was flown to Rome on Wednesday.

PLO should be 'written off' of peace talks, Peres says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres is exploring with President Reagan and other U.S. officials prospects for opening peace talks on the Middle East, where violence is on the rise.

The Israeli leader, describing himself as "a friend who comes to visit friends," said he would survey opportunities for peace talks in his meetings here with Reagan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and members of Congress.

But U.S. officials acknowledged hopes had been dimmed by the seizure of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro by Palestinian gunmen last week, apparently in a plot for an attack in the Israeli city of Ashdod.

Peres said on the top of his agenda for the three-day visit starting today was finding "ways and means to remove the threat of terrorism from innocent people and from the momentum" to the bargaining table.

A senior U.S. official told reporters, meanwhile, the violence in the area "distracts" from the effort and that he did not expect Peres' talks to produce "any dramatic developments."

"I pray wholeheartedly that we shall find the opening needed to secure a better future for all of us," Peres said on his arrival Wednesday.

He immediately ruled out a Soviet role in negotiations so long as Moscow did not restore diplomatic ties with Israel. The plan sponsored by King Hussein of Jordan and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, calls for an international conference including the Soviet Union.

"As long as the Soviets do not have relations with Israel," Peres said, "I don't see any reason to have them participate in any possible role in making peace in the Middle East."

Peres intends to point to the hijacking of the Achille Lauro to support his claim that "the PLO should be written off" and "that the PLO has no place or room in any negotiations," Israeli officials said earlier in the week.

A senior U.S. official confirmed Wednesday that Israeli intelligence had provided transcripts of intercepted ship-to-shore conversations between the Palestinian hijackers and Palestine Liberation Front leader Mohammed Abbas.

The transcripts were offered as evidence by the Justice Department to a U.S. court here to back its claim that Abbas, a member of the PLO executive council and an associate of chairman Arafat, was the "mastermind" of the ship seizure.

Abbas disappeared after being freed by Italian and then Yugoslavian authorities, but Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Wednesday the United States is making headway in pursuing the elusive Palestinian leader.

"I would not want to preclude" any means of apprehending Abbas, Meese said, refusing to provide details.

On Capitol Hill, six senators who serve on the Senate Anti-Terrorism Caucus wrote Shultz asking him to put a $500,000 bounty on Abbas' head. "The reward...will increase the likelihood of Mr. Abbas being brought to justice," the six contended.

Klinghoffer's family relieved that body will be laid to rest

NEW YORK (AP) — Relatives of Leon Klinghoffer, the American killed during the hijacking of the Achille Lauro, say they are relieved that his body has been recovered and will be laid to rest in the United States.

They also said Wednesday they have received condolences from scores of friends and strangers over the death of Klinghoffer, 69, who was allegedly shot twice and dumped over the rail of the Italian cruise ship along with his wheelchair off the coast of Syria.

"The family is pleased that their father and husband will be coming home to them to rest in the United States," said spokeswoman Letty Simon.

The State Department notified the family at 1 a.m. Wednesday that a body found on a Syrian beach was that of Klinghoffer, said Paul Dworin, the fiance of Klinghoffer's daughter, Ilsa.

"I would say more than anything else, it was just relief because it's a punctuation mark to close. They don't have to worry about where their father is now," Dworin told a news conference.

U.S. diplomats in Syria said the identity of Klinghoffer, who had been confined to a wheelchair after two crippling strokes, was confirmed by dental records and fingerprints.

The body was flown to Rome for an autopsy by Italian and American doctors.

Italian officials have lodged murder charges against four men who hijacked the Achille Lauro on Oct. 7. The hijackers, who are in Italian custody, deny killing Klinghoffer, according to judicial sources.

Dworin reiterated Mrs. Klinghoffer's resolve to go to Italy and testify against the accused terrorists if necessary.

Asked how the family reacted to a statement by the Palestine Liberation Organization that Klinghoffer may have died of a heart attack, a somber Dworin said, "I think you could characterize it as anger."

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — Market intervention by the central banks of Japan and West Germany helped push the U.S. dollar lower in early trading today. Gold bullion edged higher.

A few hours after European markets opened, the dollar was being quoted at lower levels against all other major currencies.

Investors have been watching closely for central bank intervention since Sept. 22, when the United States, Britain, France, Japan and West Germany agreed to cooperate in lowering the dollar.

The dollar rose for a third consecutive session on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, closing at 217.25 yen, up from 216.20 yen Wednesday. Later in London, the dollar was quoted at 216.475 yen.

The value of the British pound rose to $1.4165 from $1.4108.

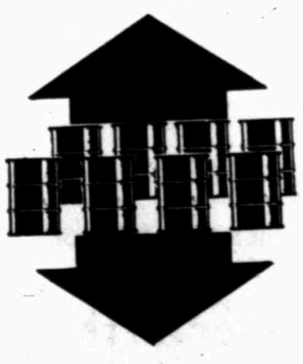

Gold bullion prices advanced in thin European trading after dipping in Hong Kong.

London's five main bullion houses fixed a recommended gold price of $324.60 a troy ounce, up from $323.25 late Wednesday.

In Zurich, gold was bid at $324.50, up from $323.90.

Earlier in Hong Kong, the metal closed at a bid of $325.03, down from $326.37.

Strike progress reported by Chrysler, UAW

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers say they're making progress toward an end to U.S. and Canadian strikes that already have cost the company more than $15 million and the U.S. economy $65 million.

The first crippling day of walkouts Wednesday by 70,000 workers in this country and 10,000 in Canada failed to produce a settlement, and both unions said that bargaining would resume today. U.S. Chrysler officials had no comment.

"There are a number of major issues that are not totally resolved but that we've come much closer to reaching a final resolve on," UAW President Owen Bieber said Wednesday during a break in the talks.

Bieber, his bargainers and their counterparts at Chrysler left company headquarters late Wednesday night and refused to say what issues were causing the hangups.

Wages were the major issue in the Canadian strike. U.S. workers wanted curbs on Chrysler's subcontracting of work to other companies, job security guarantees and wage and benefit parity with workers at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

The strikes have virtually stopped Chrysler's manufacturing operations.

Negotiators in Toronto said they would return today to resume negotiations covering 10,000 striking Canadian workers.

William Fisher, chief bargainer for the subsidiary Chrysler Canada Ltd., said, "We're pushing for a settlement. It has to be settled some time and the sooner the better."

Robert White, leader of the newly formed United Auto Workers of Canada, said he wants to get a settlement to bring to membership meetings scheduled for Sunday. "Everybody knows this weekend is critical," White said. "If we don't have a settlement Sunday, you're talking about taking a considerable amount of (production) time out of the system."

The UAW has scheduled a meeting Saturday of its 300-member Chrysler Council in Huntsville, Ala., where Bieber said he would like to present a tentative contract for review.

"Am I planning to go to Huntsville this Saturday? Well, nobody's canceled my reservation yet, as far as I know," Bieber said Wednesday evening.

White's aides say the two unions have exchanged information, but White said he hasn't spoken to Bieber in two weeks.

Dow Jones hits record high

Revival signs invigorate Wall Street

By The Associated Press

Hopes for new signs of an improving economy have invigorated Wall Street, sending one well-known market indicator to a record high.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 17.69 points on Wednesday to 1,368.50, surpassing the closing high of 1,359.54 on July 19.

Analysts said traders seemed to shrug off a government report earlier in the day that industrial production dropped 0.1 percent in September.

In Washington, President Reagan stepped up his battle against unfair trade practices, accusing the Common Market of depressing world grain prices and hurting U.S. crop sales overseas by subsidizing European wheat exports.

Reagan ordered his trade representative, Clayton Yeutter, to request international negotiations on the Common Market subsidies.

The president also accused South Korea of inflicting heavy financial losses on American authors and certain industries by excluding U.S. books, foods and drugs from the protection of patent laws.

He directed that Yeutter consult with the government in Seoul and then submit recommendations for action if the matter cannot be settled.

The president's action was the latest step in his campaign to help ease a U.S. trade deficit climbing toward $150 billion and to cool the protectionist fever in Congress.

In another development, White House spokesman Larry Speakes announced the United States had reached agreement with Taiwan for the elimination of its barriers against the sale of U.S. cigarettes, wine and beer.

The September decline in industrial production was the second in three months. Production had risen 0.6 percent in August but fell 0.2 percent in July.

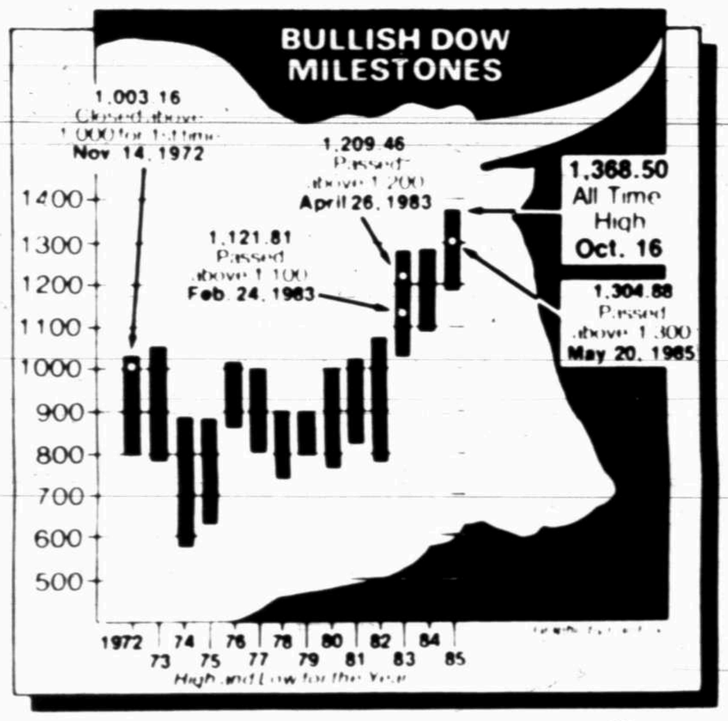

"All is not well in goods-producing America," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of Shearson Lehman Brothers. "The disappointing drop in industrial production is a clear indication that the industrial sector has not yet turned the corner."

The strong dollar is blamed for holding back U.S. exports while allowing a flood of cheaper imports into the country, robbing sales from American producers.

Overall growth registered an anemic 1.1 percent in the first six months. While the Reagan administration is predicting a five-fold increase in this growth rate in the second half of the year, private economists are not so optimistic.

Much of the strength in August had come from a 5.7 percent jump in production at auto factories. But production fell 2.1 percent in September, contributing in large part to the overall decline.

In September, autos were assembled at an annual rate of 8.1 million units, compared to 8.3 million units in August.

The Dow Jones Average of 30 industrials jumped 17.69 points to 1,368.50 Wednesday. That figure topped the closing high of 1,359.54 reached on July 19.

The revival: How long?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy is showing signs of renewed life, but private economists still have doubts about just how lasting a rebound the country will enjoy.

The Reagan administration, however, is predicting confidently that the country is in the midst of a strong upturn with no sign of a recession in sight.

More will be known today when the Commerce Department revises its estimate for growth during the July-September quarter as measured by the gross national product, the broadest measure of the nation's economic health.

An initial estimate released last month before the quarter had ended put the growth rate at 2.8 percent.

While this was substantially better than the anemic 1.1 percent pace turned in during the first six months of the year, it was still far below the 5 percent rate being predicted by the Reagan administration for the second half of the year.

Many analysts believe the "flash" estimate for growth will be revised upward, reflecting a variety of economic statistics that have shown strength in recent weeks.

David Wyss, senior economist at Data Resources Inc., predicted a revision to 3.5 percent for the third quarter. But he said growth would weaken somewhat in the final three months of the year to a rate of 2.75 percent.

Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers, also predicted an upward revision, perhaps as high as 4 percent. But like Wyss, Sinai was more pessimistic about the future.

"The industrial side of the economy will remain chronically weak until interest rates and the dollar drop enough to turn activity around significantly," he said.

Hanson to address WTGS

The West Texas Geological Society will hold a luncheon meeting on Tuesday, October 22 at the Midland Center, 105 N. Main, Midland.

Bernold M. Hanson will speak at the meeting. His talk is entitled "Truncated Devonian and Fusselman Fields and Their Relationship to the Permian Basin Reserves."

Hanson is currently the president of Hanson Corp., an independent oil operator and is a consulting geologist. He holds a BS degree in engineering geology from the University of North Dakota and a MS degree in geology from the University of Wyoming. He is active in the AAPG and the Society of Professional Engineers.

The meeting will begin at 11:30 am. at a cost of $7.00. Reservations can be made by calling the Society at 683-1573 before 4:00 pm. Friday, October 18.

Tesoro subsidiary pays dividend

From Staff Reports

Tesoro Petroleum announced yesterday that its 49.9 percent subsidary, Trinidad Tesoro Petroleum Co. Ltd., had made the announcement that for the period of 1981-1985, Trinidad Tesora had not paid dividends to its shareholders, instead preserving annual earnings in those years for reinvestment.

This, however, led to a disagreement as a result of which one shareholder referred the matter of dividend payment to the International Center for the Settlement of Investment Disputes.

Following consoliation proceedings, and in the light of the recommendation of the consilliator Lord Wilberforce. It was agreed by way of final settlement to pay dividends to the A&B shareholders (The government of Trinidad and Tesoro), amounting to U.S. dollars of $143 million, payable in cash and petroleum products to cover all outstanding dividends up to and including 1985.

Tesoro receives 49.9 percent of the $143 million in cash and petroleum products, which will equal $50 million in cash and $21 million in products.

Steelworkers meet to discuss settlement

New York Times News Service

PITTSBURGH — Hundreds of delegates representing 8,200 members of the United Steelworkers of America who are striking the Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. met here Wednesday to discuss a tentative settlement.

The plan is intended to end the steel industry's first major strike since 1959 and help pull the nation's seventh-largest steel maker out of bankruptcy by cutting costs.

The new contract needs ratification by a membership vote and approval by a bankruptcy judge to go into effect. It would cut the company's labor costs 16 percent and the workers' wages and benefits to $18 an hour from $21.40 an hour.

Letters, summaries and copies of the proposed contract will be mailed out Thursday to the union's voting members. Those ballots will be counted on Oct. 26. If the contract is ratified, it will be presented to the bankruptcy judge Oct. 28.

The agreement would give the workers a greater role in the company's financial management by putting one union member on the company's board, as well as one observer, and by establishing other panels in the company's nine plants to to evaluate the company's management of its assets.

It would also link wages to the price of steel. For each 1 percent rise in the company's steel price, the agreement would give workers 20 cents more an hour, up to a total of $1 an hour.

"This is a survival agreement," said Paul D. Rusen, chief negotiator for the union. "We did take a pretty big haircut, but this is an agreement that will allow Wheeling-Pittsburgh to reorganize and come out of bankruptcy."

The spokesman for Wheeling-Pittsburgh, Ray Johnson, said the agreement would allow the company to begin paying back a debt of $527 million that resulted from borrowing to modernize its plant. It filed for bankruptcy in April, but Johnson said the new contract would allow it to come out of bankruptcy by Dec. 31,1987.

"We feel the $18 can do it," Johnson said.

The company originally told the steelworkers it had to cut the hourly rate to $15.50; the average rate for the steel industry is $22 to $24 a hour. Of the new $18 package, $11.15 would be in wages and the rest in benefits.

Equally important, Johnson said, is a provision to terminate the company's pension plan.

Wheeling-Pittsburgh chief executive George A. Ferris, right, and United Steelworkers negotiator Paul D. Rusen, left, announce a tentative contract settlement to reporters in Pittsburgh that could soon resolve the largest steel shutdown in the nation in more than a quarter-century.

Soviets resume oil exports

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet Union, which mysteriously cut off most of its oil exports three weeks ago, has started to rebuild its petroleum shipments to the West, analysts and oil industry sources say.

But the analysts also said Soviet oil exports are not expected to return to normal levels soon.

In the meantime, they said, the decline in Soviet oil exports and the reduction in shipments from Iran's battle-scarred Kharg Island oil terminal in the Persian Gulf should help prop up oil prices through the winter.

"It's good news for OPEC," said Daniel Yergin, president of Cambridge Energy Research Associates, a private consulting firm.

The problems for the two major exporters come at a time when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is besieged by unauthorized discounts from its official prices and widespread overproduction by many members.

Saudi Arabia, which is believed to have doubled its production from the 20-year lows of the summer, is selling some of its oil at market-related prices that are below OPEC's standards. Iraq is believed to have increased production by at least 50 percent.

The curtailment of shipments from the Soviet Union, which is not an OPEC member, and Iran, which is part of the 13-nation producers' group, has enabled oil markets to absorb the added supplies from other sources without sending prices tumbling.

However, most analysts are predicting that by early 1986, when the winter heating season ends in the Northern Hemisphere, price-cutting pressures will begin to build again in world oil markets because oil supplies will far exceed projected demand.

House, Senate face off as financial crunch looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators, with just two weeks left before a new threatened financial crunch at the Treasury, have squared off on a proposal to stop deficits by 1991.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., has endorsed the plan's main feature — mandatory limits on red ink, as passed by the Senate. But House Democrats are ready to fight details of a package they see as designed to help the Republicans retain control of the Senate in next year's elections.

A House-Senate conference to iron out differences met for the first time Wednesday.

The balanced budget plan would gradually cut deficits, now at about $200 billion a year, each year until they reach zero in fiscal 1991. The deficit targets would be enforced with automatic cutbacks if Congress and the president failed to meet the goals.

However, there would be few cuts this year or next, giving the GOP an advantage next year, when Republican incumbents will try to hold onto 22 of 34 Senate seats being contested. Candidates could say the plan had solved the deficit problem — yet their constitutents would feel little effect, Democrats say.

"Why not take the medicine now," said Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., said Wednesday.

O'Neill told reporters the timing of the cuts was "gimmickry" that was delaying other important congressional work — including President Reagan's tax reform plan.

TXP begins production

HOUSTON (SWN) — Transco Exploration Partners, Ltd. has begun producing natural gas and condensate from West Cameron Block 556, about 95 miles offshore Cameron, Louisiana. Additionally, TXP announced that a voluntary pooling agreement has been reached between TXP and the co-owners of West Cameron Block 556 and the owners of the adjacent East Cameron Block 299. TXP and its co-owners each hold a 12.5 percent interest in the unit.

TXP is currently producing from two wells on an eight-pile, 18-slot platform and two wells on a four-pile, six-slot platform on West Cameron Block 556 at a rate of 100 million cubic feet of natural gas per day (MMcf/d) and 1,100 barrels of condensate per day (B/d). These four wells are capable of producing 150 MMcf/d and 1,700 B/d.

Facility capacity is anticipated to be 300 MMcf/d by mid-1986. The natural gas is transported to shore through Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation pipeline system, where the majority of the gas is purchased by Texas Eastern and other volumes are available for spot sales.

West Cameron Block 556 was developed and brought onstream in just over two years. It is the first lease placed on production of the leases purchased by the joint bidding group formed in 1983 between TXP, Marathon Oil Company, a unit of U.S. Steel Corporation, Phillips Petroleum Company and Amerada Hess Corporation. Each owner holds a 25 percent interest in West Cameron Block 556 which was purchased in May 1983 for $8.3 million.

Jackie Hamilton, City Council Parent-Teacher Association Youth Protection chairman, discusses shoplifting with Zack Burnes and other second-grade students at South Elementary School.

Dog McGruff talks to students about shoplifting

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

McGruff the Crime Dog is back in Midland public schools this year, urging children to "Take a Bite Out of Crime."

The trench-coat clad McGruff, famous for his television appearances and public service announcements, recently completed his 40th program for elementary school children in Midland as he advised students on the dangers of shoplifting.

"Shoplifting it is stealing, shoplifting it's revealing. Cuz, stealing things from a store is such a crime," he told second-grade pupils from South, Burnet and Fannin Elementary schools.

McGruff was introduced to the Midland public schools in 1984 by the Midland Police Department Crime Prevention coordinator Sgt. Lalo Camarillo, and his partner, Officer Ron Benton. The men periodically visited elementary schools to give presentations on what children should avoid and what to do in certain situations.

Since then, the Midland Independent School District City Council Parent-Teacher Association purchased a McGruff puppet and often use it to reinforce advice to children throughout the district.

Midland police also have a full-sized McGruff costume that is donned for the same purpose during Story Hour at Midland County Library.

McGruff and the accompanying cassette tapes offer varying themes to school children, said Jackie Hamilton, chairman of the PTA's Youth Protection Program.

The shoplifting theme, she said, "is real important at these schools (South, Burnet and Fannin) because it's such a problem."

Other things McGruff tells children are:

- Some people you should trust and some people you shouldn't. Parents, teachers, policemen and neighbors can help children who are in trouble. About 1,000 residents last year participated in the PTA's Helping Hands program. A sign with a green, florescent hand in the window means that house is a place to go if children are hurt, scared or lost.
- Don't talk to strangers. If someone you don't know offers you candy or toys, run home or to school or to a Helping Hand house and tell someone immediately.
- Don't accept rides or ask for rides from people you don't know or only know slightly.

Geologist: Wastes may not be trapped

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A prominent Midlander, who has been a geologist since 1949, Wednesday echoed concern expressed Friday by Odessa pathologist Dr. Robert Bright that hazardous wastes injected into the San Andres formation may not be safely trapped.

Ed Vogler, testifying for close to three hours during the fourth day of a Texas Water Commission public hearing on renewal of the CECOS International waste disposal permit, said the number of oil and water wells in proximity to the CECOS injection well "creates tremendous potential for many, many problems."

Called as an expert witness by opponents of TWC renewal of the CECOS permit, Vogler said it was possible the more than 85 wells within a 2½-mile radius of the waste disposal injection "could start producing hazardous wastes," and that there is no way to control the migration of liquids injected into underground formations.

Vogler, responding to a question from Ector County Judge Jan Fisher, said no responsible oilman would state that the injection process posed no threat.

In testimony last Thursday, Larry Heinline, a geologist employed by Houston-based Ken E. Davis & Associates, a company that services the CECOS well, stated that, geologically speaking, chemicals injected by CECOS couldn't migrate because of the nature of the rock formations between the chemicals and underground water.

Bright, in testimony Friday, admitted he was not a geologist but said, "The nature of geologic formations is such that we must assume it is not intact and, given the durability of substances, it is reasonable to assume these chemicals could find their way into our ecosystem."

Bright's concerns were reinforced by Vogler, who said it is impossible to make a blanket statement as to whether a specific formation may be tight or porous. Stating he has had considerable experience with water injection oil recovery projects, Vogler said he has known injected water to move as much as four or five miles and even surface around well casings.

Vogler also expressed concern that fluids injected under pressure can fracture formations and allow migration of injected fluids. The consulting geologist questioned the integrity of wells in proximity to the CECOS well. He noted that well-plugging procedures were not exact in the "old days," that it was not uncommon to cut down a tree, saw off a portion, jam it down a well casing, then pour concrete in the casing to seal it off. He also noted fluids under pressure travel up bore holes, outside casing pipe, if cementing jobs are not properly done.

CECOS injects hundred of chemicals into the San Andres limestone formation at depths of 4,900 to 5,750. Injection pressures range from 530 psig for fluids with a density "less than or equal to" 13 pounds per gallon to 2,210 psig for fluids with a density "less than or equal to" seven pounds per gallon.

By way of explaining unknowns that prevail in the oil industry, Vogler said the introduction of stainless steel pipe was expected to end many of the oil industry's problems involving corrosive deterioration of pipe, only to find that some minerals attacked the nickel in stainless steel pipe and caused it to deteriorate.

Ms. Fisher questioned Vogler about why he agreed to come to Odessa and testify. Vogler said he wanted it understood that he is not opposed to the oil industry, that he has made a "very successful living" from it. He came, he said, because he is concerned and understood some geologists had declined to testify for various business and political reasons. "But I'm not politically involved," Vogler said.

Randall Brown, an assistant foreman for Equipment Renewal Co., which services some of CECOS' injection equipment, testified Wednesday that a "Christmas tree" valve assembly brought in for repair contained "some pretty rank stuff," and that workers could only remain close to the equipment for a few minutes at a time because "it gave us all headaches."

One of the witnesses yet to testify during the hearing is Sam Poe, who is with the TWC enforcement and permitting division of the agency, said his testimony could take "two or three days."

Council will hold public hearing on plan for Midland's growth

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Midlanders living in the city's central area will be able to give their comments at 7 p.m. today on the city's plans for growth during a hearing on a proposed comprehensive plan.

The hearing at the San Jacinto Junior High School auditorium, is the second of five meetings, that allow the public to review a plan developed by the planning and development department. The master plan provides a guide to the city council in zoning and development decisions. Areas 2, 6 and 8 will be discussed.

Community Area 2 - This 4.5 square mile area is bordered by Wadley Avenue on the north, Big Spring Street on the east, Illionis Avenue and Andrews Highway on the south and Midkiff Road on the west.

Area 2 has an average household size of 2.6 persons and a population of 12,800. The area consists of mainly single family homes constructed before 1970. After homes are built on platted lots (land divided into home sites), 3 to 4 percent of the area will be vacant.

The area is served by three elementary schools, Sam Houston, Bowie and Fannin, one junior high and Midland High School. The plan says the public facilities are adequate for the area. Eventually consolidation of two or more schools may be needed if family household sizes decrease.

The area between "A" and Big Spring streets should be redeveloped with new zoning allowing for townhouses and apartments, the plan says.

Overall, single family homes should remain the dominate type of land use, the plan says. The city council should resist any attempts to rezone areas for other uses as the neighborhood grows older.

Community Area 6 - This 1.9 square mile community is surrounded by U.S. Highway 80 on the south, Midkiff Road on the west, Andrews Highway and Wall Avenue on the north and the Central Business Area on the east.

Neighborhood improvement programs and some rehabilitation will be needed in the future to prevent deterioration of the many pre-1960 homes, the plan says.

The city needs to replace inadequate water and sewer lines and pave dirt streets when city or Community Development Block Grant funds are available. The plan says larger water lines need to replace older smaller lines that create service problems.

No more schools are needed in this area, unless rezoning for duplexes and apartments increases the neighborhood's population. No more public buildings are needed, but the existing ones may need expansion in the future, the plan says.

Residential street closures are recommended for houses next to Midkiff Drive. "The construction of culde-sacs at alternating street intersections can create quieter and more secluded residential streets," the plan says.

Community Area 3 - The two mile area encompasses the airpark, which is bounded by Loop 250 on the north, Lamesa Road on the east, Wadley Avenue on the south and Garfield Street on the west.

When the airpark is relocated within three years, the vacant area should be used mainly for single family homes. However, public or semi-public uses might also be rec-

State running out of funds to pay its utility bills

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — With storm clouds brewing on the horizon, several state officials are warning that Texas may have already spent too much of the money it stashed away for a rainy day.

Just like homeowners and businessmen, the state has utility bills to pay. Comptroller Bob Bullock reports that in 1984, state agencies spent $207.5 million in taxpayers' money for gas and electric bills.

When a utility company proposes a rate increase, the state — like homeowners and businessmen — must pay more to keep the lights on and the air conditioner running. State utility costs have almost doubled since 1981, the Public Utility Commission reports.

Expecting more rate hikes over the next two years, state budget writers originally included a $30 million emergency utility fund in the governor's office budget to cover the increases the agencies could not meet with their own appropriations. But as the 1985 legislative session drew to a close, Gov. Mark White and other state leaders convinced lawmakers to transfer $20.01 million of the $30 million to a new health care program for the poor.

Since then, four major utilities have announced or requested rate increases.

— Gulf States Utilities Co. has asked for a $200.6 million rate increase over the next two years. The 18 state agencies that Gulf States serves paid GSU $8.3 million for electricity in fiscal 1985. Those agencies' rates would increase by 23.42 to 35.75 percent over the next two years. Attorney General Jim Mattox has asked to intervene in the case, saying higher electric rates could force a tax increase.

— El Paso Electric Co., which serves the University of Texas at El Paso and various state agencies' West Texas regional offices, has asked the PUC to approve a rate hike of $61.2 million to $67.4 million.

— The City of Austin has announced a 12-percent electric rate increase, which Bullock says will cost Austin-based state agencies $1.8 million extra per year starting in November. Without "a drastic reduction of usage," Bullock said, "agencies will be scrambling to meet the higher costs."

— Central Power & Light Co., which serves state universities and agencies across South Texas, has requested a $122 million rate hike.

For fiscal years 1984 and 1985, the Legislature set aside a $23.3 million utility emergency fund for institutions of higher education only. A finance officer with the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board, which administered the fund, estimates colleges and universities will have used $10 million of the reserve by the time all the bills roll in.

State Rep. Mark Stiles of Beaumont chaired the House subcommittee that approved including the $30 million emergency fund in Gov. Mark White's budget. "None of us believed there were not going to be some utility increases," he said.

Stiles opposed the transfer of the $20 million from that fund to finance the new indigent health care program. He said White may have to call a special legislative session to help the state pay its utility bills.

"The members of the Legislature knew what they were doing when they put that contingency money in there," he said. "I don't know where that money's going to come from now."

Legislative Budget Board Director Jim Oliver told a blue-ribbon higher education study committee Monday that the Legislature reduced utility appropriations to the state's senior colleges and universities by more than $1 million per year for the 1986-87 budget period. Commenting on the fund transfer, Oliver said, "There is a very valid question in some people's minds whether the $10 million contingency fund will be sufficient."

But Bill Hamilton, director of White's budget office, says budget writers included the $30 million utility emergency fund at a time when they were considering an overall 26-percent appropriations cut for higher education. They eventually pared that back to a 3.8-percent cut and more importantly, Hamilton said, they gave the colleges and universities almost unlimited authority to transfer money from one budget category to another.

Although those changes "mitigated some of the need for the $30 million," Hamilton said lawmakers may have to find some extra money for utility bills when they return for the January 1987 regular session.

"We tried to do it in a way that we've got plenty to get us certainly through the first fiscal year (of the 1986-87 budget period) and at least into January of the second year," he said. "The idea being to avoid a special session."

Bullock and the PUC point to another possibility: conservation.

A May PUC-sponsored audit of 22 percent of state buildings projected that the state could save $51 million per year by spending $86 million for conservation projects. The projects would pay for themselves in 1.7 years and save the state $616 million over the next 10-year period.

"Buildings owned by the state of Texas are designed and operated in ways that use far more energy than comparable privately owned buildings," a Bullock aide wrote in the October issue of Fiscal Notes. "This excessive energy use leaves Texas taxpayers with state energy bills millions of tax dollars higher than they could be."

Trail rides to celebrate Texas, Australia birthdays

MARSHALL (AP) — Despite a stomach virus, bladder infection and freezing temperatures that at times made sleep impossible, Vickie Ives Speir still was able to smile about her 600-mile horseback ride across South Australia.

Ms. Speir, a Marshall esquestrian, accompanied South Australians Peter Knudsen and Mickey McKeown on a 600-mile journey across the deserts of South Australia. They completed their trip Oct. 1. This week in San Antonio they started a similar journey across West Texas, accompanied by Leana Rideout of Marshall.

The two trips were planned to celebrate the 150th birthdays of South Australia and Texas, states which Ms. Speir says share a common heritage "of hoof and horn."

Ms. Speir missed a day and a half in the saddle because of her illnesses. She contracted the stomach virus after the trio had ridden some 200 miles. Later, after 400 miles had been completed, she missed another half-day due to the bladder infection.

"The whole trip, we could not have been treated with more kindness," she said. "The highlight of the trip was meeting the people at different stations (ranches). When we got anywhere near a station, people had barbecues for us. The people over there absolutely love Texas. The people surpassed anything I could have imagined."

There were physical hardships on both man and horse, said Ms. Speir.

"The first two nights, we nearly froze," she said. "We spent the second night in a sheep shed with three sides, with the wind coming through the unprotected side. We built a campfire to keep warm, but that didn't work. I must have gotten about two hours' sleep that night.

"The gibber (rock) plain of Australia is a field of small, jagged rocks, with maybe an occasional small bush. The horses have to have feet like iron over there. We had to take a day off to shoe the horses."

When things got tough, she said, the riders thought how things must have been for pioneers and missionaries. One such reminder, she said, was a moving church service the three witnessed that was a tribute to the Bethesda Lutheran Missions of the 1800s and early 1900s.

"They unveiled a number of plaques and dedicated them to the missionaries," said Ms. Speir. "I've never been to a more moving church service."

Two other highlights, she said, included the chance to see an emu, also known as an Australian ostrich, and a kangeroo.

"I chased the kangeroo on horseback with my camera," she said. "They can move very fast. We must have been going at least 30 miles per hour. I remember when I first saw him. I thought to myself, 'There he is, now what is he going to do.' We saw a group of emus at Wilpurina Station, at a watering hole. They are beautiful animals, with beautiful eyes."

After the Texas ride, Ms. Speir and Knudsen will team up to write a book about their experiences.

"Putting the Australian trip into perspective, I would say I had a chance to ride into the heart of the Australian land and people," said Ms. Speir. "I experienced things that in no way could you imagine by reading extensively about Australia. The problem with writing the book will not be with the amount of copy. It will be with editing. I have so many good stories that I could sit here all night telling.

"There are people in Australia who I will remember all my life. For a one-time visit, that's something."

The group still needs money to transport horses back from Presidio after the Texas ride. Ms. Speir remains optimistic that funding sources will be found.

"I am proud we made it (through Australia)," she said. "I admit to a little concern, because we would like to have those horses home from Presidio. But I don't believe the state of Texas is going to leave us out there."

"Our original plan was to change horses at Langtry, but now it looks like we won't be able to do that. We may have to risk going on with two horses each.

"South Australia has only one-fifteenth the population of Texas, and they got support from everywhere," she continued. "I don't believe Texas will let us down. I think the people of Texas will make it good."

Texas tour plans include stops at the YO Ranch near Mountain Home, the Judge Roy Bean visitor center in Langtry, Big Bend National Park and the Old Terlingua Ranch. Closing ceremonies will be in Presidio, population 1,000. It is an isolated village on the Rio Grande, which grew from an early Spanish settlement.

Australian Peter Knudsen, left, Leana Rideout and Vickey Ives Speir, both of Marshall, Texas, and Australian Micky McKoewn, plan to ride some 600 miles in Texas. Knudsen, McKeown and Ms. Speir recently completed a similar 600-mile journey in Australia. The trail rides are part of the Sesquicentennial celebrations of Texas and South Australia.

DEATHS

Mildred Opal Black

Black

Services for Mildred Opal Black, 77, of Abilene were held last week at First Central Presbyterian Church of Abilene. She died last Wednesday.

Mrs. Black was the mother of Mrs. Ralph (Barbara) Way of Midland.

She was born Jan. 30, 1908 in Sagerton and moved to Abilene in 1923. She was graduated from Abilene High School in 1925 and Hardin-Simmons University in 1928, where she was one of the Cowgirls.

She married Taylor F. Black June 14, 1928 in Abilene..

Other survivors include her husband; three sons, Taylor Black Jr., of Abilene, Bob Black of Darien, Conn., and Don Black of Lubbock; a sister, Earl Hodges of Abilene; 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The requests memorials be made to Hospice of Abilene, P.O. 1922, Abilene, 79604, the Abilene State School or the building fund of First Central Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services for Edwin J. White Jr. are pending with Ellis Funeral Home. He died Wednesday at a local hospital.

TEC business seminar booked

From Staff Reports

Texas Employment Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers has announced that Friday's seminar on helping employers cut the cost of doing business in Texas has been booked to capacity.

The half-day seminars, being held around the state, were announced last month by Gov. Mark White and Ms. Nabers.

Invitations to the seminars were sent out to the Midland-Odessa area three weeks ago and, as of last Friday, the full pre-registration capacity of 360 had been reached. Reservation applications received after that date will be returned and no registration will be held at the door.

Ms. Nabers, the employer representative at TEC, said, "We are gratified by the overwhelming response from Midland-Odessa employers and regret that we cannot accommodate more people." She added that if response warrants it, every effort will be made to conduct another meeting as soon as possible. Employers interested in future seminars should contact the local TEC office.

Hispanic Chamber to host reception

From Staff Reports

The Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce will host a "welcoming reception" Friday for out-of-town delegates who will be in Midland for Saturday's Texas Association of Mexican American Chambers of Commerce quarterly board meeting.

Friday's reception will begin at 6 p.m. at Greentree Country Club.

The board meeting will begin at 8:45 a.m. at the Hilton Hotel. The meeting is scheduled to conclude by 2 p.m.

Two highlights will be special guest presentations. They are:

— "Telecommunications — Changes and Choices," by Phil Barr, AT&T Communications; and — "Status Report on Minority Purchasing," by Tommy Crowe, senior buyer with the State Purchasing and General Services Commission.

The agenda also includes a report on new local Hispanic Chambers organizing statewide and 1986 goals for the TAMACC.

Convenience store clerk says he was robbed at knifepoint

From Staff Reports

A convenience-store clerk told police he was robbed at knifepoint Wednesday by two teen-age boys who fled with a 12-pack of beer, according to reports.

The robbery occurred about 10:15 p.m. at the Kent store at 2910 N. Big Spring, and the boys, described as Hispanic juveniles, escaped with beer valued at $6.79 after threatening the clerk with a knife, reports said.

In other reports, a 28-year-old El Paso man was listed in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital this morning after a Wednesday motorcycle accident, according to police and hospital reports.

John Baker was injured in the 1000 block of South Midkiff Street about 3:05 p.m. after a car pulled out in front of his 1984 Kawasaki, he told police.

Julie Bollinger, 25, Route 10, Box 10178, has been released from MMH, but her 3-year-old daughter Kimberly remains in critical condition, according to a hospital spokeswoman. The two were injured Monday when Ms. Bollinger's car collided with a truck in the intersection of Loop 250 and County Road 1140 east of Midland, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Amber Sawyers, a 21-year-old Midland woman injured Oct. 10 in an accident near the intersection of Midland Drive and Cuthbert Avenue, remained listed in critical condition this morning, the hospital spokeswoman said.

Ms. Sawyers, 4410 Lanham, was injured when a car she was a passenger in struck a utility pole about 2:30 a.m. The 24-year-old driver, Terry Weddle, 4622 Leisure, told police he had swerved to avoid a car which ran a red light.

Boy Scouts to mark Diamond Jubilee with camporee

From Staff Reports

As many as 1,000 Boy Scouts and 400 adults will converge on an Andrews County ranch this weekend for a Buffalo Trail Council camporee celebrating the Boy Scouts of America Diamond Jubilee.

"It's the 75th anniversary of scouting," said Stephen N. Castle, publicity coordinator for the council. "It's going to be a pretty big event."

Rain or shine, the scouts will be meeting at Eastman Ranch, near Andrews, for cooking, camping, hiking, fire-building and other scouting activities. The camporee runs from Friday through Sunday, Castle said.

Events are to include:

— Fire by friction, a timed contest for starting fires with an Indian bow.
— Fire by flint and stone.
— Knot tying, including bowline, square knot, sheet bend, clove hitch, taut-line hitch, two half hitch, timber hitch and slip knot.
— Stretcher relay, in which two scouts carry a third on a stretcher.
— Life line.
— Judging height and distance.
— Patrol standing jump relay.
— Water carry, in which patrol teams carry a gallon of water between two points 50 feet apart.

A log-walking race is also planned, and veteran scouts of all ages are invited for a reunion Saturday afternoon between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m., according to Castle.

The Boy Scouts of America were founded in 1910, and the Buffalo Trail Council started in 1923, Castle said. With 10 West Texas counties, the Buffalo Trail Council "is one of the largest councils in the United States" in terms of area, he said.

Toting his own drum

EDUCATION

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — There were bigger bands in the parade, and students who had traveled greater distances. But no group of musicians had come quite as far as the 14 members of the West Virginia School for the Blind marching band.

For the 10 players, two "sighted" guides and two banner carriers, participating in the recent Mountain State Forest Festival parade was nothing special. Applause from thousands of spectators indicated otherwise.

The band, marching to a cadence pounded out by its three drummers and to songs like "This Is My Country," stayed in step and in line as it moved down the street.

"I know where to go," snare drummer Jason Jobe said. "I just keep time and stay in line."

Several of the members have some vision, although none can see normally. Those who can see a little help those who can't.

Band director Betty Sue Kitchen says parade organizers often do not believe her when she schedules an appearance.

"They ask how we keep them in line," she said at the festival earlier this month. "The standard joke is, 'I tie them together.' Then I quickly explain."

The band marches three abreast, with one guide in the front row between the two flute players and the other in the second row between the saxophonist and the sousaphone player. The three drummers make up the third row, with the back row consisting of three clarinetists.

The marchers stay so close that their arms touch, helping them stay in line.

Ms. Kitchen joined the School for the Blind faculty as a choral director seven years ago at the suggestion of a friend, who was band director. Two years later she took over the band, a job she said pays more than just money.

"It gives me a good feeling," she said. "I can help them find a talent or a capability they weren't aware of and help them develop it.

"...They can be in the swimming program or the wrestling program. If they aren't athletically inclined, there still is something for them to be involved in extracurricularly."

Teaching blind students music is the toughest job, Ms. Kitchen said. Some read Braille music and must use one hand to feel the notes, and it takes two hands to play flute, saxophone or clarinet.

Others, who who can see large printed notes, must hold their faces within inches of the sheet, leaving no room for the instrument. Either way, they can't read music and play at the same time.

"I'm always playing their part with them on piano, so they know what it's supposed to sound like," Ms. Kitchen said. "They learn a few measures at a time. That way when they get to the end of the song, they have it memorized."

With no football team at the school, the band does not prepare a half-time show. But it participates in parades throughout West Virginia and Maryland, Ms. Kitchen said.

Last year, there was no marching band for lack of a drummer, but this year, Timmy Reid switched from trumpet to bass drum for marching season, she said.

Mattox calls on student teachers to join battle against child abuse

BELTON (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox encouraged student teachers Wednesday to join the battle against child abuse in Texas.

Mattox, who was visiting Mary Hardin-Baylor University, said the number of abused children in Texas is increasing by 12 percent a year.

"As a teacher, you will have more contact with children outside the home than any other person or group. You will be able to make a difference. You will be able to save a child," he said.

"Those of you who pursue teaching careers in Texas can be in the forefront of making sure that youngsters who follow you will get the best, quality education possible," he said. "Help us make Texas a national leader in the education field. Teach our children well."

MAKING THE GRADE

AUSTIN — The University of Texas at Austin awarded 10 bachelor of social work degrees at the conclusion of the 1985 summer session. The list of graduates includes Jana Marie Jones, 1508 Douglas.

Unacceptable redistricting plan may cancel mayoral election

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says she may cancel the Nov. 5 mayoral election if the U.S. Justice Department fails to approve a redistricting plan soon.

U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald said in an order that the proposed realignment of city council districts could be illegal, forcing absentee voting to be put on hold Wednesday.

Ms. McDonald's order, issued Tuesday, was prompted by a lawsuit from the National Assocation for the Advancement of Colored People, which claimed the redistricting plan approved Sept. 24 by the Houston City Council is an "illogical crazy quilt" that threatens minority voting rights.

According to the lawsuit, the redistricting plan creates racial imbalances in voting in some districts and weakens the voting strength of blacks and Hispanics.

The plan was mailed to the Justice Department on Sept. 26. Under the federal Voting Rights Act of 1965, the department has 60 days to approve or reject the proposal.

Starting absentee balloting Wednesday for city races would violate the federal act because only 39 days had passed since the city approved the plan, Ms. McDonald said.

"The choice is clear," the judge said. "And that is — in principle — it is a violation in black and white."

State law requires absentee voting for 20 days before election day, and the judge's order appeared to wipe out chances to hold the Nov. 5 vote for the city's mayoral and city council races.

"It'll be up to the judge to decide how to handle it," City Attorney Jerry Smith said, adding that he expected the Justice Department to approve the new boundaries.

The judge's order did not apply to absentee voting scheduled to start Wednesday on 14 proposed amendments to the Texas constitution and five positions for the Houston Independent School District board.

Attorney L.A. "Al" Greene Jr., who filed the NAACP suit, urged city officials to use the old council district boundaries for the Nov. 5 election since Justice Department approval was pending.

But Assistant City Attorney John Fisher said the old boundaries did not exist once City Council approved the new ones.

Councilman Ben Reyes, who opposed the new districting plan, proposed in Wednesday's City Council meeting that the district re-adopt the old boundaries. But Mayor Kathy Whitmire said returning to the old boundaries would not alleviate the problems cited by the NAACP.

The council delayed action on the proposal until next week.

Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver said her office was removing the city offices from absentee ballots but that voting on the school district races and constitutional amendments would not be interrupted.

Ms. Rodeheaver said she had "no idea of the cost, let alone the time and effort" needed to comply with the judge's order.

Plane crashes into side of mountain

EL PASO (AP) — A twin-engine Mitsubishi turboprop airplane crashed and burned on the side of a mountain in the Franklin Mountains early early today, officials say.

The crash occurred about 12:05 p.m. (CDT), according to Frank Boone, manager of the Federal Aviation Administration control tower at El Paso International Airport.

It was not clear how many people were aboard the airplane, but El Paso police said they had information that only a pilot was abord. It was not known if anyone survived.

The plane crashed near the top of the mountain above a subdivision in an area above the homes.

The plane still was burning more than an hour after the crash.

Boone said the pilot called the tower about 30 seconds before the crash and reported he could see downtown El Paso.

The pilot indicated no trouble with either the plane or the weather, Boone said.

Rescue workers could not reach the crash site because of rain, wind and dense cloud cover high on the mountains, according to police Sgt. Steve Kozak.

Kozak, commander of the police mountain rescue team, said that two officers would take the El Paso Aerial Tramway to the mountaintop from the east side and attempt a rescue if they saw signs of life.

Otherwise, no rescue attempt was expected before daybreak, he said.

It would take at least two hours to climb to the crash site from a police command post established in the subdivision, police said.

Boone said he did not know where the plane was coming from or who owned it. He said it was traveling from west to east and had been "handed off" to the El Paso tower from air traffic controllers at Albuquerque.

He described the plane, known as an MU-2, as an "air taxi" that can carry either cargo or passengers. He said he did not know how many people the plane was capable of carrying.

There was heavy rain and lightning at El Paso at the time of the crash, Boone said.

Charles Veale, a licensed pilot who lives below the crash site, said he was in his back yard checking for wind damage when he heard the plane flying overhead.

Veale said he knew the plane was too low for the terrain.

"It disappeared into a low-lying layer of clouds," he said, and a short time later saw an orange fireball.

Grand jury: Civil rights not violated

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury ruled Wednesday that the city of city of Texarkana, Texas, and a former police officers did not violate the civil rights of a Malvern, Ark., man injured in a 1982 automobile accident.

The three-man, three-woman jury ruled in favor of former police officer Terry Duncan and the city in the $30 million lawsuit brought by James W. Crutchfield.

Duncan, who is now a government and economics high school teacher, placed his head in his hands when the verdict was announced. Crutchfield, a former Texarkana, Ark., resident, showed no emotion.

The former police officer arrested Crutchfield Jan. 6, 1982, for driving while intoxicated after Crutchfield was involved in an automobile accident.

Crutchfield was first taken to jail and then to Wadley Regional Medical Center, where he was hospitalized until Nov. 18, 1982. He was in a coma most of that time.

In the lawsuit, Crutchfield charged the delay in treatment worsened injuries he received in the accident.

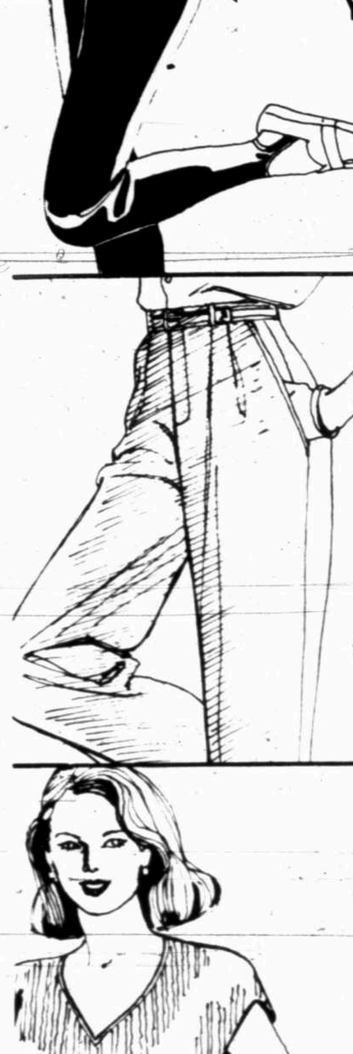

Duncan's attorney, Bob Weber, said the verdict was just.

"I think (the verdict) was (a result of) all the evidence," he said. "I don't think that there was one specific bit of evidence that they considered more than others, but it was the total picture."

Testimony in the four-day trial ended Tuesday afternoon.

In closing statements Wednesday, Crutchfield's attorney, Jim Osborne, said Duncan and the city were responsible for his client's condition. He claimed that Duncan intentionally did not investigate the accident scene because Duncan was more interested in making a DWI arrest than the victim's health.

A Lockheed Jetstar owned by JMC Air Minneapolis crashed into the Sandpiper Inn at the Meacham Aero complex at Fort Worth Meacham Field when it lost hydraulic pressure and taxied into the motel's offices.

Small jet smashes into hotel window

FORT WORTH (AP) — Irwin Jacobs, a Minnesota businessman with a reputation as a corporate raider, was on the executive jet that smashed into a window at an airport hotel after its brakes failed taxiing down a runway.

Jacobs said Wednesday he was in Fort Worth to visit one of his companies, the Ben Hogan Golf Club Co.

"The pilot was obviously doing everything he could to stop the aircraft by reversing the engines and so forth. It was just kind of a crawling speed, but who could hold back a four-engine jet?

"I was the only passenger. There was the whole crew — captain, first officer and the stewardess. No one was injured," Jacobs told The Associated Press.

A secretary at the Sandpiper Inn at Meacham Field was sprayed with glass and suffered a minor cut on one finger, said hotel manager Don Hansen.

About two feet of the jet's nose entered the lobby through a window before the four-engine craft came to a stop, Hansen said.

Officials said the plane suffered hydraulic failure before takeoff, traveling about 10 mph shortly after 7 a.m. Wednesday.

Jacobs, of the Minneapolis suburb of Wayzata, in the past 10 years has taken major investment positions in at least 30 companies, some with the stated intention of taking them over. In other cases he said he was only making an investment.

He is chairman of Minstar, Inc., the flagship of his many holdings. Minstar manufactures and markets outdoor recreational products, primarily boats. The Bekins moving company is a subsidiary and Minstar recently acquired AMF, Inc. Jacobs also oversees Jacobs Industries, Inc. His Jacobs Management Corp. includes JMC Air.

This week it was announced that Max Winter is selling his share of the Minnesota Vikings — 48 percent of the stock and one-third of the voting stock — to Jacobs, banker Carl Pohlad (who owns the Minnesota Twins) and former Minnesota Vikings quarter Fran Tarkenton.

In 1984, Jacobs and three associates bought 7.7 percent of the stock of Walt Disney Productions. Three months later, they sold their stock to the Bass Brothers of Texas for a $28 million profit.

He also has interests in Pioneer Corp., an Amarillo, Texas, oil and gas company.

Teen jailed in baby's death

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen-ager has been accused of murder in the death of a 4-month-old child he was watching while the mother was at work, authorities said Wednesday.

Paul Andrew Washburn, 19, of Houston, was jailed under $10,000 bond after Kenneth Aldrich died Tuesday at Hermann Hospital.

Washburn was caring for the child Monday while the infant's mother, Theresa Aldrich, was at work, detectives said.

He told police that he called for an ambulance after discovering the baby was unconscious, Detective E.T. Yanchak said.

Paramedics found the infant was suffering from multiple bruises, fractured ribs and a recently broken leg, police said. Officers also said there was evidence the baby may have been sexually abused.

Alleged rapists sought

DALLAS (AP) — Police were continuing their search Wednesday night for two men wanted in connection with the rape and robbery of two teen-age girls, who were attacked after leaving the State Fair of Texas.

The two girls, ages 13 and 14, were with a man when they were approached by two other men at a parking lot outside the fair grounds Tuesday night about 11 p.m., Dallas police investigator Carolyn Bowling said. The girls and the man are from Arlington.

One of the men was armed with a sawed-off shotgun, Ms. Bowling said. The two men forced the three inside a van belonging to one of the girl's fathers after taking about $30 from them, she said.

The van was driven to an unknown location in Dallas where the two girls were sexually assaulted, Ms. Bowling said. The two attackers then fled the van.

The victims drove to Parkland Memorial Hospital about 5 a.m., where the police were called, she said.

Lawyer violates code

BEAUMONT (AP) — A Beaumont house owned by Houston lawyer Percy Foreman may be demolished for not meeting the city building code.

Foreman's house is among 15 the city council is considering for demolition or extensions to allow owners to upgrade.

The nationally known criminal defense attorney has already failed to appear in municipal court regarding his house, which apparently is used for storage.

The city's code enforcment division has reported to council that Foreman's house is in violation of 16 codes.

Because neither Foreman, 83, nor a representative appeared to seek an extension, the city has the authority to demolish the structure and charge the cost of demolition to Foreman.

Prison inmate stabbed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A Texas prison inmate stabbed with a piece of fencing was reported in fair condition at a Galveston hospital, according to officials.

Israel Ramirez, 23, serving seven years for a Hidalgo County attempted murder conviction, was stabbed Wednesday morning as he was being escorted from the shower at the Texas Department of Corrections Darrington Unit near Rosharon, prison spokesman Charles Brown said.

Another inmate, wielding a piece of cyclone fencing, reached through the bars of his cell and stabbed Ramirez once in the upper chest, prison officials said.

The suspect, a 26-year-old inmate serving 30 years for burglary of a habitation, was being questioned in the incident, Brown said.

The stabbing brings to 192 the number of inmates attacked in TDC facilties so far this year, Brown said.

Census: Investment in college education reaps salary pay-off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Census Bureau study finds a sharp rise in recent years in the gap in incomes between those who earned a college sheepskin and those who have only a high school diploma.

The earnings differential had narrowed in the late 1960s and the 1970s, leading some to warn of a "glut" of college graduates and to question the value of that investment.

But the new report released Wednesday found that the "return" on college education is growing again.

"Contrary to most current opinion, the market for college graduates may be reviving," Census analysts Dave M. O'Neill and Peter Sepielli said in a report titled, "Education in the United States: 1940-1983."

Looking at median incomes for men ages 25 to 34 over the past quarter century, they found, "The ratio of college-high school graduate incomes dropped after 1969 and stayed at the somewhat lower level until 1979. Since 1979, there has been a rather sharp rise in the income ratio."

One possible explanation, the analysts said, is that the flood of baby boomers — the out-sized generation born from 1946 to 1964 — depressed entry-level earnings in the job market for years, but now that "the baby-boom flood (has) started to recede," college graduates are commanding higher pay.

In 1958, the median income of the young college graduate was $5,970, compared with $4,688 for those who just went to high school. The college graduates were earning 1.27 times more.

That ratio fell as low as 1.21 in 1979, but since then it has climbed to 1.39. College graduates earned $21,988 on the average in 1983, compared with $15,789 for the high school graduates.

That ratio usually gets steeper as the workers age. In 1983, for instance, the ratio was 1.53 for men ages 35 to 39, and it was 1.74 for men 50 to 54.

The analysts said major strides in the educational achievements of Americans since 1940 have made them "the most educated (people) in the world." But the report also pointed to Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and other evidence that it said showed the quality of U.S. schools sagged in the 1970s.

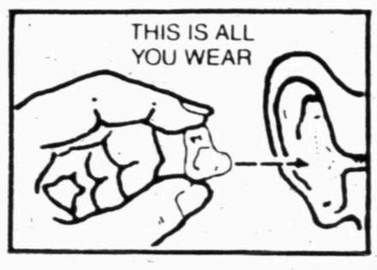

"Less than 45 years ago...a solid majority of young adults were either high school dropouts or had never gone beyond elementary school," the report said.

In 1940, only 38 percent of those ages 25 to 29 had attained a high school diploma, and a mere 6 percent had college degrees. Now, the report said, 86 percent of those surveyed by the Census Bureau said they have high school diplomas and 22 percent possess college degrees.

Military says 'common sense ' reduces terrorism threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — From covering their service tattoos to varying their off-duty gathering places, members of the armed forces are being advised on ways to reduce their chances of falling victim to terrorism abroad.

What officers describe as a renewed emphasis on personal and base security comes after a summer in which four Marine embassy guards were gunned down at a sidewalk cafe in El Salvador, Navy diver Robert Stethem was singled out for killing by the hijackers of TWA jetliner in Beirut and two people died in a car-bombing at the Rhein-Main Air Base in West Germany.

Elaine Henrion, an Army spokeswoman, said soldiers about to be posted aboard in terrorism-prone areas "are counseled a little bit" about making themselves less conspicuous in their appearance and behavior.

Army Lt. Col. Arnold Williams, a public affairs specialist on terrorism for the Defense Department, said this involves such cautions as avoiding wearing "cowboy hats with feathers in the band and belt buckles the size of pie plates" while off-duty and not congregating "in a particular place habitually."

Capt. Jim O'Brien said Air Force personnel are given a "local threat briefing" upon arriving at an overseas base. The service members then are expected to instruct their dependents on these precautions, he said.

The moves followed immediate steps taken by some field commanders after terrorist incidents.

Adm. Lee Baggett, commander of U.S. naval forces in Europe, ordered sailors and Marines in his region to obtain civilian passports following Stethem's murder.

Reagan ponders unfair trade complaints against nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is considering up to a dozen additional unfair trading complaints against foreign nations as he seeks to put teeth into his new, more aggressive international trade policy, according to spokesman Larry Speakes.

The president on Wednesday announced two new major trade actions. One accused the European Economic Community, also called the Common Market, of depressing world grain prices. The other accused South Korea of ignoring U.S. patents and copyrights.

The cases were added to five other unfair trading complaints the president announced in late summer — protesting barriers against U.S. tobacco and leather products in Japan, insurance in South Korea, telephone equipment in Brazil and canned fruit in Europe.

The president announced in a major trade speech Sept. 23 that his administration would focus on opening more foreign markets to U.S. goods rather than on imposing quotas and tariffs to limit imports into this country.

Speakes, hinting at further moves, told reporters on Wednesday: "We are considering up to a dozen or more" actions against other countries. He declined to elaborate.

Reagan accused the Common Market of depressing world grain prices and hurting American crop sales overseas by subsidizing European wheat exports — resulting in what the adminstration estimated was a loss to U.S. farmers of $2 billion annually.

The president ordered his trade representative, Clayton K. Yeutter, to request international negotiations on the Common Market subsidies.

In the other new complaint, Reagan accused South Korea of inflicting heavy financial losses on American authors and certain industries by excluding U.S. books, foods and drugs from the protection of patent laws.

He directed Yeutter to consult with the government in Seoul and then submit recommendations for action if the matter cannot be settled.

Speakes said the dual action "puts teeth in the president's remarks and speeches and puts action where his words were."

The president's spokesman also announced the United States had reached agreement with Taiwan for the elimination of its barriers against the sale of U.S. cigarettes, wine and beer.

As a result, the American products will be available for sale in 70,000 retail outlets in Taiwan without price markups, import duties or taxes, the White House said. U.S. cigarette exports had accounted for less than 1 percent of Taiwan's $840 million market.

NATION in brief

Nobel-winner learns news during flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientist Jerome Karle was seated on a trans-Atlantic flight from London when he heard the pilot announce the "shocking" news that he was co-winner of the 1985 Nobel Prize for chemistry.

"I think the people on the plane were as shocked as I was," Karle, stunned and weary from his journey, told reporters at Dulles International Airport.

Karle said the award for work he and Herbert Hauptman did on the structure of molecules in the 1950s was "personally gratifying."

The prize was awarded for the development of techniques to calculate the location of atoms within molecules by studying the defraction patterns of X-ray beams bounced off crystals.

"It affects a very large number of fields of science because it provides the conceptual basis for which other fields of science can develop," he said. "It has implications for metallurgy, for medicine, for minerology and for designing drugs."

Whale wanders inland

RIO VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Startled passengers on a private boat sighted a 45-ton humpback whale in the Sacramento River on Wednesday, as the confused mammal continued its salmon-like sojourn up the freshwater river.

The 40-foot-long whale, dubbed "E.T." by some and "Humphrey" by others, has spent five days in inland California waters, and was spotted at 11:10 a.m. near the southern end of the Sacramento River Deep Water Channel, about 25 miles south of Sacramento.

Its journey has brought it as far as 70 miles inland from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Ken Norris, deputy director of the Long Marine Laboratory at the University of California at Santa Cruz said the whale might survive for up to two weeks in freshwater, but could have problems with the water penetrating and damaging its skin.

Mark Ferrari of the Marine Mammal Center in Marin County said the fresh water could also damage the whale's eyes.

"There's not much we can do," Ferrari said. "We're seeing an animal that's apparently confused and swimming along. He looks very healthy, but he's confused. He's the one who's got to save himself."

Nancy's health checks out

WASHINGTON (LAT) — First lady Nancy Reagan underwent a colon examination Wednesday at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, but doctors found no irregularities, a White House spokesman said.

Elaine Crispen, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, said that the colonoscopy was the final phase of a routine physical checkup. "Everything is fine," Crispen told reporters.

"She's home, and she has been given a clean bill of health," she said of the First Lady. She added that Mrs. Reagan, 64, had no specific colon complaint and has been in good health.

President Reagan underwent surgery at the naval hospital July 13 to remove a cancerous polyp from his colon. Since then, the president has had two cancerous growths removed from his nose.

Nov. 24 'day of fasting'

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Senate Wednesday approved a measure setting a "national day of fasting" next month to raise money to fight worldwide hunger.

A resolution asks President Reagan to urge all Americans to give up at least one meal on Nov. 24, the Sunday before Thanksgiving, and to contribute the money saved to a hunger-relief organization. It was approved by unanimous voice vote.

The resolution, originally proposed by Rep. Ron Packard, R-Calif., was approved in the House last week. In the Senate, it was carried by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

The resolution asks Mr. Reagan to use his weekly radio address to encourage Americans to participate in the fast and to contribute the money either to a favorite charity dealing with hunger or to an agency called InterAction, an umbrella organization for more than 100 private famine-relief groups.

Man makes them MADD

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A man whose drunken driving in 1980 killed a teen-age girl and inspired formation of Mothers Against Drunk Driving still presents a danger to the community, said a judge who sentenced him to four years in a new drunken driving case.

Superior Court Judge William Lally imposed the maximum three years for drunken driving and one for having prior convictions Tuesday on Clarence Busch, 52, convicted in the injury last month of a 19-year-old woman.

BETTER BUSINESS

Office supplies hustled

By LINDA TRUITT

Linda Truitt

Over the years the Better Business Bureau has told businesses to guard against office supply hustlers. The Postal Service estimates the public loses more than $100 million each year from office supply fraud. The exact number of office supply "boiler rooms" is uncertain, due to their short life and transient nature, but it is estimated that 50 to 100 such operations may be located in Southern California alone.

The Postal Service has appointed a boiler room task force to investigate deceptive office supplies sales. As a result of this investigation, nine managers of Park Distributing, a Los Angeles-based office supply telemarketing company, have been charged with 50 counts of mail fraud for their roles in a nationwide office supply "boiler room" scheme.

The indictment alleges the managers trained sales personnel to phone businesses at random throughout the United States and use a deceptive sales pitch to give the false impression that Park Distributing was affiliated with the businesses' regular supplier of photocopier products.

The victim businesses were allegedly told that they had been overlooked when notification of a recent price increase went out and therefore, as a "courtesy," supplies had been processed at the "old price" to cover the business "one last time."

Numerous businesses placed orders. According to the indictment, only later did they discover, often after paying, that Park Distributing was not affiliated with their regular supplier, that price increases had not occurred, that the supplies eventually shipped were not the brand or quantity expected, that the price was not a discount and that invoices were further inflated with charges.

Last year more than 100 Postal Inspectors, aided by local and state law enforcement officers, simultaneously executed seven search warrants in three states, seizing records and evidence from various Park Distribution offices. The company has operated under about 30 different names, including Data Supply, General Data, National Supply Center, and Copy Distribution Center.

The following steps may help prevent your company from being victimized:

- Do not buy from a new supplier until you have verified his existence and reliability, particularly if you are contacted by phone.
- Do not accept C.O.D. shipments. Insist on open account billing; that way, if there is a problem you've got some leverage.
- Do business by phone only with a firm whose address and phone number you verify. Insist on sending written purchase orders in all other cases.

Linda Truitt is president of Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin Inc.

EXTENSION EXTRAS

Servings 'standard' size

By MARIAN FARR

Marian Farr

What's a "standard" serving? Many dieters don't know, even though they're following meal plans based on serving sizes. People tend to overestimate the serving size of some foods and underestimate others.

They also seem to be influenced by the size of food containers, especially those that are supposed to contain single servings, and the serving size printed on the food label. Recent research reported by the American Dietetic Association shows just how far off the mark our estimates of serving sizes can be.

A standard serving of fruit and vegetables is one piece of fresh fruit, ½ cantaloupe or grapefruit, ½-cup juice, one medium-size potato or ½-cup cooked or raw vegetables.

Most people consider a single piece of fresh fruit as a single serving. But when it comes to fruit juices they consume ¾-cup or more as one serving.

With dairy products, people younger than age 34 typically consume the recommended one-cup serving, but older adults consume ½- to ¾-cup servings. The serving size for cheese and other dairy products was typically correct.

The standard recommended serving size for meat, poultry and fish is two to three ounces. Men generally exceed this amount per serving. There was also some variation in serving size according to the product, with the average serving size for beef at about four ounces and two ounces for pork.

For breads and cereals, one slice of bread, one ounce of cereal or ½-cup of pasta or rice equals one standard serving. Yet people typically eat two slices of bread and one cup of rice or pasta per serving. They also tend to eat one-cup servings of cereals, when the recommended serving size of one ounce may be more or less than a cup, depending on the density of the cereal.

Unless you are willing to weigh and measure your food, it can be difficult to follow food guidance programs based on standard servings. To make it work, you may need to consider the total recommended amount of foods from any one group for the day and then keep track of what you eat in terms of the serving sizes you ordinarily use.

For example, you might eat one ounce of bacon at breakfast and then a four- or five-ounce serving of beef at dinner. That would be less than the standard serving at breakfast and more at dinner, but the total would add up to five or six ounces, which is the same as the two recommended two- to three-ounce standard servings of protein foods for the day.

Marian Farr is Midland County Extension Agent, Home Economics.

Dish antennas popular

Associated Press

Dish antennas that pick up satellite transmissions of television programs today are four to 12 feet in diameter, but by the end of the decade they may be as small as two feet across.

More than 1 million American homeowners, mainly in rural areas, currently receive TV signals with dish antennas, according to an article in the October issue of Popular Mechanics, but that number is likely to grow as technology advances and prices drop.

The TV signals are transmitted by a series of satellites or "birds" that hover some 22,300 miles above North America. They relay raw news, network programming, cable and paycable and other transmissions, aiming in almost all cases for the center of the continental United States.

In general, home satellite systems located in the Midwest receive the strongest signal; systems on either coast receive the weakest. A household in Kansas might get by with a four-foot dish, while a Maine family might need a 12-footer. Prices can range from $895 to $4,995.

Local satellite dealers know the peculiarities of their area. Terrestrial interference (TI), mainly telephone transmissions, can show up as grainy sparkles on the TV picture. TI is heaviest in the Western and Mountain states.

Most dealers do a survey for TI before selling you a system, then deduct the cost of the survey from your bill. If you buy your equipment elsewhere, the survey charge will be about $100.

Dishes vary in size, range in materials from fiberglass to stainless stel, and may be solid or see-through mesh. Solid dishes last better, while mesh blends in better with the environment. Most dishes are shaped like a salad bowl, but others are rectangular or spoon-shaped.

For best results, dishes should be located as close as possible to the house.

Zoning laws on size and siting of dishes vary and should be checked before buying.

The industry currently is developing do-it-yourself packaged installations that someday may make them as easy to assemble as a home hi-fi system.

Company undertakes stovetop repair program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Tappan Company is undertaking a repair program to fix a potential fire hazard on some gas surface cooktops it produced over the last several years, the Consumer Product Safety Commission reports.

The cooktops were manufactured between 1971 and 1982 and sold under the Tappan, O'Keefe & Merritt and Montgomery Ward "signature" brands.

Those affected can be identified by serial numbers printed on a label at the left rear corner of the burner box, which can be seen by lifting the cooktop.

The Tappan and O'Keefe & Merritt brands carry the numbers Z-14-3621; 14-3621; Z-14-6311; 14-6311 or 14-3671. The Montgomery Ward Signature models have the numbers KTM-3966; KTM-3963 or KTM-3960. Only about 3,500 of the cooktops were sold under the Montgomery Ward brand.

Consumers who own the cooktops should call Tappan to arrange for free inspection and repair. The number is 1-800-624-2209. Residents of California should call 1-800-841-6243.

Protect Your Child!

Have Your Child Videoprinted™ at National Video During Operation Safe Child℠ Week Tues., Oct. 22 - Thurs., Oct. 24

OPERATION SAFE CHILD℠

Videoprinting. An Invaluable Free Identification Aid

On October 22nd, 23rd and 24th, participating National Video stores will be offering to videotape your child. This special filming is called videoprinting. Videoprinting is more effective than a one dimensional photograph because it conveys a sense of the whole child, something a photograph can never do. For instance, it shows that funny little mannerism that makes your child unique, that certain walk . . . or the way he or she talks.

So, if it ever becomes necessary, you'll have an accurate identification tool of your child, which can immediately be aired on television for public viewing. Videoprinting your child each year and again on special occasions also provides lasting memories of your child's "growing years" that you will treasure forever.

Just visit a National Video store during Operation Safe Child Week, and bring in a VHS ½" blank tape, or purchase one at the store, and you can have your child videoprinted for FREE.

Valuable Free Literature

In addition to videoprinting, free literature will be available, filled with helpful safety tips on how to protect your child against abuse and abduction.

Free Rental of The Video Program No Family Can Afford To Be Without

As part of Operation Safe Child Week, National Video will also offer the free overnight rental of a one-of-a-kind program, Strong Kids, Safe Kids, hosted by Henry Winkler, "The Fonz." It's a special program that helps teach your child the prevention of child abduction, presented in an entertaining and easy-to-understand way. National Video's Operation Safe Child Week is a community service program you won't want to miss!

*If you reserve a copy for future viewing this week, we'll rent it to you for one night free. Strong Kids, Safe Kids can also be purchased at a special low price.

New snack food tested tasteless

By LINDA ANDERSON

Anderson

Trying an exotic, new food can be a mini-adventure — as long as the food is not too unusual. I draw the line at seaweed or any kind of insect, ~~chocolate-coated~~ or not.

But sampling a new version of an old favorite dish can be nice.

That's what Senor Freto's chicken "fretos" seem to be. This frozen item looks like a small burrito, but is filled with chicken and Cheddar cheese instead of meat or beans.

Because the taste-testers could live on nothing but burritos, the fretos seemed perfect for satisfying their palates. So, of course, we couldn't resist checking out the dish for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

A 10-ounce box of frozen Senor Freto's chicken freto's (beef fretos are also available) costs $2.59 (I found mine on sale for $2.39), which translates to about 43 cents each. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Label advertising claims fretos are "seasoned chicken with Cheddar cheese tucked in a flour tortilla"and "a spicy, not-too-hot Mexican finger food" with "absolutely no fillers added!" The label further claims they can be served as "after-school or any-time snack. As an appetizer ... As an entree ... as a tasty quickie" with sauces such as picante, green salsa, guacamole, chili con queso, sour cream, barbecue sauce, hot mustard and honey, sweet and sour sauce or ketchup.

In fact, the box's label is just packed with "helpful" suggestions. I suppose that's natural for something touted as "America's taste of Old Mexico," as if no other Mexican food existed.

The ingredient listing was short and sweet: Chicken, flour tortilla (which is confessed to contain "sodium propionate added to retard spoilage"), Cheddar cheese and spices.

However, in the taste test, the testers found themselves wondering about truth in labeling. About the only advertising claim we agreed with was that the item was "tucked in a flour tortilla." The spices seemed to be nonexistent — the fretos were not only "not-too-hot," it was not-too-anything. It had no flavor at all. The cheese could be seen, but not tasted, and the chicken was totally unidentifiable as chicken — looked like beans and tasted like cardboard.

The small children testers would not touch the dish, which was probably the wiser course of action, because none of the tasters who sampled the dish even came close to finishing a freto. We gave most of the food to the dogs, who seemed to enjoy it.

Five companies ordered to stop making false claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five companies have been ordered by the U.S. Postal Service to stop making claims that creams they market will enlarge a woman's breasts.

In addition, judicial officer Randolph D. Mason has ordered postmasters in Chicago, Houston, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. and Westport, Conn. to hold any mail sent in connection with the products Macrocell-D58, Mamralin-BX2 and Breast Formula XP-39.

The Postal Service order, dated Sept. 30, said the products were advertised in a number of national magazines and specifically mentioned the June 1984 issue of Cosmopolitan.

Three doctors analyzed their contents, and on the basis of their testimony a Postal Service judge concluded "no topically applied cream or lotion will cause a woman's breasts to become noticeably larger."

Directions enclosed with the creams said to place a hot towel on the chest after applying the substance. The judge said any appearance of breast enlargement "would be due to the effects of the hot towel, simple changes in posture, or flexing of the pectoral muscles ... (and) exposure to heat and rubbing."

He said one of the ingredients, comfrey, is a potential carcinogen, and added that the products could cause skin irritation.

The officers of the companies did not attend hearings on the case in Washington, according to the decision. The Postal Service said they "were deemed to have waived their right to cross-examine" witnesses.

DEAR ABBY

Dad can't hear

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my dad, who is 65. He's not ashamed to wear bifocals, but he refuses to admit he can't hear.

Yesterday, the telephone rang and it was only 10 feet away, and he didn't even hear it! Worse yet, he drives a car and can't hear the siren of an ambulance or fire engine until it's practically on top of him.

When my brothers and I try to talk to him about this, he gets belligerent and insists there is nothing wrong with his hearing and we should mind our own business! Our mother has given up. She just repeats everything two and three times and yells at him.

If older people aren't ashamed to wear glasses, why are they ashamed to wear a hearing aid? — A LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: That's a good question, especially since some of the newer-model hearing aids are practically invisible.

Nagging will only make your father more defensive and irritable, but don't give up trying to help him. Ask his physician to insist on a hearing test as part of his next physical. My mail tells me that a surprising number of people who suffer a hearing loss turn a deaf ear to those who try to help them. Vanity? Insanity!

DEAR ABBY: I have been in love with this man for five years. I'm 40 and he's 42. Three years ago he moved in with me. I've always been a good Christian, and it bothers me to know that I am living in sin. He's divorced. His wife left him for another man, which really tore him up. I was a 35-year-old virgin when we met. I never knew what love was until he came along.

He is a good and faithful man, but he refuses to marry me until he is sure he loves me. Abby, I am not dumb. I realize he may not be sure for another five years and I should send him packing, but I keep hoping he will marry me. He has a good job and no responsibilities, so I can't understand why he won't marry me now.

It was his idea for me to write to you about this problem. What do you say? — HAD ENOUGH IN INDIANA

DEAR HAD ENOUGH: I say you've had more than enough. Give him three months to make up his mind, and if he still isn't sure, send him packing and get on with your life.

DEAR ABBY: Help! When can a person mow his lawn — timewise? I waited until 8 a.m. on Saturday to mow my lawn. First I called the police to find out if it was OK because I didn't want to do anything illegal. I was told that anytime after 8 a.m. on any day was OK. I asked, "How about weekends and holidays?" His reply was, "Today is Saturday and I'm working!" I suppose he meant that unless your neighbors tell you which days they work and which days they want to sleep, 8 a.m. is OK.

Well, my neighbor saw me in the grocery store that afternoon and she said she could have killed me, as she had Saturday off and wanted to sleep, but my lawn mower woke her up.

So what is a person supposed to do? I'm retired and like to get my lawn mowed early in the morning before it gets too hot. — B.B. IN DULUTH

DEAR B.B.: If you plan to mow your lawn at 8 a.m., check with your neighbors the night before. Thanks for asking. That's more than most people do.

DEAR ABBY: About readers who hate your puns and those who love them: So far the score is 10,000,001-to-4 in your favor.

I don't believe a pun is the lowest form of humor. It could be verse. — J. DAVIS, A PUN GENT, LEE'S SUMMIT, MO.

Collecting coins 'for fun and profit' rising in popularity

Associated Press

About 2 million people in the United States collect coins for fun and-or profit and the number is rising.

American coin-collecting got a big boost from 1975 to 1980, according to an article in a recent issue of Connoisseur, when U.S. coins rose in value by 140 percent, further boosted in 1980 by the soaring silver and gold bullion markets.

Prices dropped for the next few years, but recovery began in 1984 and the market is nearly back to its 1980 value.

American interest in coin collecting took off in the 1850s when dealers began holding coin auctions. By 1866, when the American Journal of Numismatics was launched, there were 3,000 collectors.

Even then, it was a jungle. The first issue of the Journal reported: "Prices have risen a hundredfold and in some cases almost incalculably and unreasonably. Speculation has been rife. In many instances, we regret to say, dishonesty has exhibited itself in its most glaring and disgusting form."

Some dealers had secret ties with the Philadelphia Mint — that continued well into the 20th century — to get restrikes, proofs and issues with hitherto unknown dates. Other dealers, by mistake or deliberately, catalogued counterfeit coins as genuine.

High prices were not paid for an uncirculated piece unless it was of a very early issue.

Coins of certain dates were known to be rare, as were coins in the finest condition. With the publication of Augustus G. Heaton's "Treatise on the Coinage of the United Staes Branch Mints" in the 1890s, the small numbers of coins struck in certain mints became known and premiums were paid for rare mintmarks.

Today, the 1891 Double Eagle with the mintmark "S" for San Francisco is worth $700 in Mint State. One with a "CC" mintmark for Carson City is worth $5,500 because only 5,000 were struck.

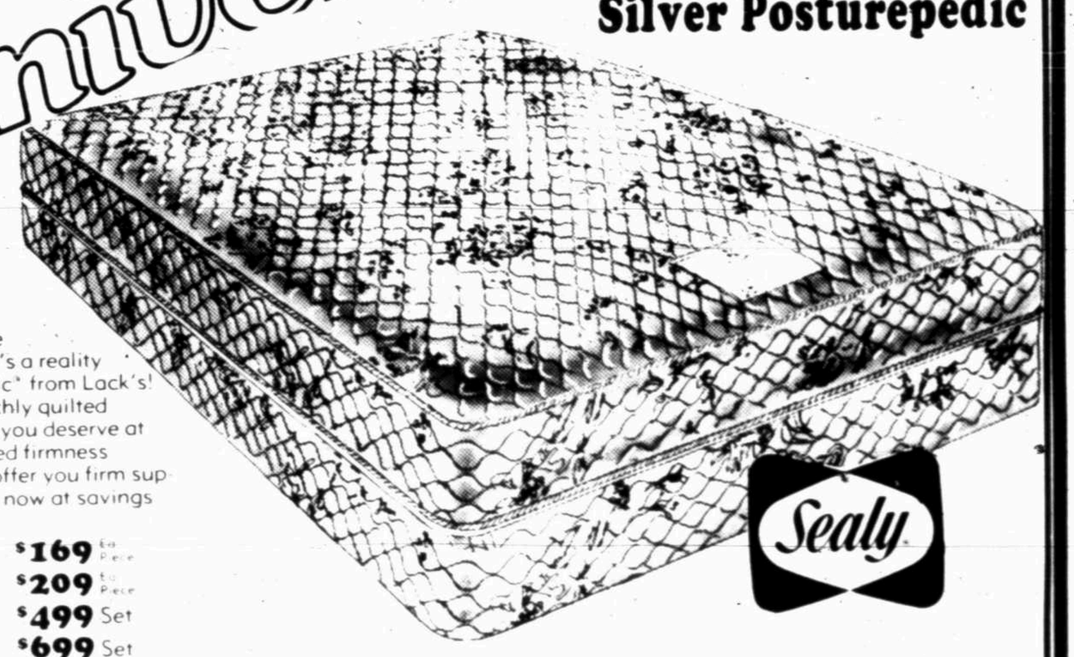

It took an immigrant dealer named B. Max Mehl at the turn of the century to bring coin collecting to the millions.

He published the "Star Rare Coin Encyclopedia" and at the peak of his business was handling a million pieces of mail a year. He offered such high prices for the 1913 Indian Head Nickel that people complained streetcars were delayed while conductors searched through their change.

Amateurs should be warned that unscrupulous dealers still exist and, Robin Duthy warned in Connoisseur, the difference between "MS" (mint state) ratings are barely perceptible to the naked eye.

Booklets offer help with school work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The children are well settled in school by now, with those doing well liking it and those who like school usually doing well. But that doesn't include everybody — and parents can help children not coping with the classroom.

To do well in school children must be interested in their work, and parents can be a major factor in helping them develop the correct attitude.

To help parents, the U.S. Department of Education has put together a series of informative booklets addressing various aspects of children's problems in school.

The booklets cost 50 cents apiece and suggest ways parents can help children in school and even in preparing before they are old enough to start classes. All can be purchased from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. RW, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Available are:

- "Help Your Child Become a Good Reader," item number 454N.
- "Help Your Child Do Better in School," item number 455N.
- "Help Your Child Improve in Test-Taking," item number 456N.
- "Help Your Child Learn Math," item number 457N.
- "Help Your Child Learn to Write Well," item number 458N.

Improving reading, writing, math and test-taking skills will help children do better in school all-around, educators stress.

Fear of school can be treated

Copley News Service

School can be a happy, exciting time for some young children, but for others it brings panic and fear.

When a child regularly feels sick from tension, "plays sick" or wishes to stay home from school, parents have cause for concern. Often a child 5 to 10 years old who behaves this way is suffering from a fear of leaving home and parents.

A pamphlet issued by the American Academy of Child Psychiatry says:

"The child's panic is very difficult for parents to cope with, but these fears can be treated successfully with professional help. Unreasonable fear of school happens typically in nursery school, kindergarten or first grade, and it peaks in the second grade. ...

"The parents and child can benefit from seeing a child psychiatrist ... who will work with parents and child in an effort to return the child to school and other daily activities at once."

Music hath charms to give preschoolers 'enriching experiences'

MACOMB, Ill. (AP) — Music and preschool children are a natural combination, according to a Western Illinois University music educator.

"If your child is approaching the age of 4 and you're looking for constructive, enriching experiences in which to channel that boundless curiosity and energy, then your preschooler may be ready to begin piano study," says associate professor Ann Collins.

The pamphlet, "Piano and Your Preschooler," is available at no cost by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Piano Foundation, 15080 Beltwood Parkway East, Suite 108, Dallas, TX 75381.

BUYERS GUIDE

IMPORTANT: Spoken promises are difficult to enforce. Ask the dealer to put all promises in writing. Keep this form.

VEHICLE MAKE ____ MODEL ____ YEAR ____ VIN NUMBER ____

DEALER STOCK NUMBER (Optional) ____

WARRANTIES FOR THIS VEHICLE:

☐ AS IS—NO WARRANTY

YOU WILL PAY ALL COSTS FOR ANY REPAIRS. The dealer assumes no responsibility for any repairs regardless of any oral statements about the vehicle.

☒ WARRANTY

☐ FULL ☒ LIMITED WARRANTY. The dealer will pay 100 % of the labor and 100 % of the parts for the covered systems that fail during the warranty period. Ask the dealer for a copy of the warranty document for a full explanation of warranty coverage, exclusions, and the dealer's repair obligations. Under state law, "implied warranties" may give you even more rights.

SYSTEMS COVERED: Engine: Cylinder Block and All Internal Parts; Cylinder Head Assemblies; Timing Case, Chain, Gears, Belt and Sprockets; Harmonic Balancer; Oil Pump; Water Pump; Transmission Case and all Internal Parts; Torque Converter; Drive Plate; Flex Plate; Fly Wheel; Bell Housing; Transaxle Case; or Rear Axle Housing and all Internal Parts; Drive Shaft and Axle Shaft Assemblies and their Housing; Wheel Bearings; Drive Shaft Center Bearings; Constant Velocity Joints; Universal Joints and Yokes

DURATION: All listed components are covered for 6 Months from the vehicle sale date or 5,000 miles from the vehicle's odometer reading at the time of vehicle sale, whichever comes first, after payment by the customer of the first $50 of covered repair costs for each repair visit.

☒ SERVICE CONTRACT. A service contract is available at an extra charge on this vehicle. Ask for details as to coverage, deductible, price, and exclusions. If you buy a service contract within 90 days of the time of sale, state law "implied warranties" may give you additional rights.

PRE PURCHASE INSPECTION. ASK THE DEALER IF YOU MAY HAVE THIS VEHICLE INSPECTED BY YOUR MECHANIC EITHER ON OR OFF THE LOT.

SEE THE BACK OF THIS FORM for important additional information, including a list of some major defects that may occur in used motor vehicles.

1986 CENTURY CUSTOM WAGON

1986 CENTURY ESTATE WAGON

BEST SELLER, BUICK CENTURY.

Buick's best seller, Century, has been the choice of a great many people over the years. And this year, it will be high on the best-seller list again. Century is a beautiful, dependable, technically sophisticated mid-size car. 1986 brings new, aggressive, European front-end styling to Century. Combine its aerodynamic design with the 3.8-litre V-6 with sequential-port fuel injection, and you have a car that's ready to meet the road. We would love to arrange a test drive for you. It will put Buick Century at the top of your list.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?
