HELP IN DROUTH AREA WAITS AS COMMITTEE STAGES WRANGLE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—A rift in the House Agriculture committee widened today in the consideration of proposals to authorize funds for loans to farmers for seed, fertilizer and feed to rehabilitate the drouth stricken areas.
Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the Federal Drouth Relief committee, testified in favor of the $25,000,000 fund, as proposed in a resolution by Chairman Hugen of the committee.
Representative Aswell of Louisiana, ranking minority member, charged Warburton "controlled Secretary Hyde" on seed and fertilizer loan matters. He said Warburton had arbitrarily placed the relief figure at $25,000,000 when, he said, state drouth committees had estimated $60,000,000 was needed.

Mystery Shrouds Slaying Of Amarilloan

NO CLUES ARE LEFT AFTER SHOOTING

TWO MEN ARE SOUGHT IN STREET KILLING LATE THURSDAY

(By The Associated Press)
AMARILLO, Dec. 4.—Investigation today failed to reveal a motive for the brutal slaying early Thursday night of Harold McCarrick, 45, Amarillo grocer who fell in the street near his home before a spray of bullets directed by one of two unknown assailants, for whom officers are searching, aided only by meager clues from eye witnesses.
Officers believe McCarrick, regarded generally as highly respectable, may have been "put on the spot" for some unknown reason. Aside from that belief based upon accounts given by witnesses and aside from the possibility that the gunmen made a mistake in the identity of their victim, mystery shrouds the killing.

Shots Without Warning
The two men, one short and one tall, who killed McCarrick as he was on his way home from his store, darted diagonally across the street east from Fourth avenue, and meeting McCarrick on Lincoln street one of the men opened fire without warning.

Not a word was spoken, eye-witnesses said, McCarrick was less than five feet away from the two men.
At the first shot, believed to have penetrated the victim's stomach, McCarrick staggered and started to turn around. He fell as another bullet was sent into his body. It is believed the second slug, which came from a .44-caliber gun, tore through the right lung. A third bullet fired after McCarrick fell, entered the head behind the right ear and plowed a gaping wound in the left temple.

Rooms Needed
"Anyone who has a spare room to accommodate one or more boys would be rendering a great service in offering it for use," she declared. "We have places for about 400 out of town boys but this number will not be sufficient." Home owners are asked to call either Mrs. Robertson or the chamber of commerce.

SANTA LANDS AT THE PAS ON WAY HERE

(Special Radiogram To The Journal)
THE PAS, Manitoba, Dec. 4.—Riding with the speed of the wind, a giant tri-motored plane flashed with blinding light out of the north today and came to rest easily on a long snow-covered slope, a jangle of tiny bells announcing its arrival. As the plane settled to earth a searlet clad, plump and smiling old fellow emerged from the cabin, his snowy white whiskers, streaked with the marks of Jack Frost.

No sooner had news of his arrival been broadcast than the entire settlement swarmed with curious spectators to see Santa Claus, who, once each year either passes or stops at this little town in the frozen north.

The traveler landed shortly after noon today and is flying on strict schedule for a destination at Lubbock, Texas, expecting to reach that city by Tuesday, December 9. He expects to take off this afternoon, his next stop being at Superior, Wisconsin.

INDIANA TOWN LEAPS INTO SPOTLIGHT

(By Central Press)
SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Dec. 4.—Yes, there is a Santa Claus! Editor Charles Dana of the old New York Sun, when he wrote his classic reply in the affirmative to the query of little Virginia asking whether there really was such a personage, could have been even more confident in his affirmations, had he known of the existence of this picturesque town in the southern section of Indiana, close to the Ohio river.

Three miles to the east is Lincoln City, the boyhood home of Abraham Lincoln. Spencer county as a whole glows with romance and the picturesque. There is Centerville, also surrounded with Lincoln lore, while a few miles to the northeast of here is St. Meinrad with its academy.

UDC Members Plan New Movement To Continue Memory Of Southern Heroes

AUSTIN, Dec. 4. (AP)—A new movement to perpetuate the memory of the war between the states was before the Texas division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in convention here today.

In her fifth and final presidential address, Miss Katie Daffan of Ennis suggested that every county in Texas named for a hero of that war be enlisted in the movement. In the court houses of each of these counties would be placed a painting of the man for whom the county was named.

Among these, she said, would be Lee, Jefferson, Wood, Tom Green, and many other counties of the state.

Reviewing the year's work, Miss Daffan found words of commendation for virtually every officer and committee of the organization. Special words of praise were voiced for the work of the legislative committee which had obtained a promise from the state board of control that no post-mortem surgery would be performed on the bodies of Confederate veterans.

Reports that this was to be done had been spread widely, the president said. Miss Daffan also praised the committee's work in fighting movements to remove the organization's museum from the old land office building here. The convention pledged itself to oppose all efforts to move the building.

Progress was reported in the educational movement to have the war known as the "war between the states." Today's program principally consisted of a continuation of committee reports.

Thought For Today

I will utterly consume all things from off the land, saith the Lord.
—Zechariah 1:3.

How would you be if life, which is the top of judgment, should but judge you as you are?—Shakespeare.

Not Surprised

"There is a racket," remarks District Attorney Crain of New York.
"In everything from babies' milk to funeral coaches."

Mr. Crain is engaged right now in an investigation into New York's rackets. He has been a prosecutor there for many years and probably he does not easily get shocked, but he admits that what he has been told, thus far, has simply amazed him.

His informants have told him, for example, that a large ton of freight that comes into New York City pays its toll to some enterprising racketeer. They have told him that every musician in the city has to contribute to a racketeering ring, under penalty of having his instrument confiscated. They have told him that every laundry and every dry cleaner in the city has to pay tribute; that small merchants have to subscribe to "night watchmen" services, or have their windows broken; that garage owners are forced into time and that even professional men, such as doctors, have been seized in the racketeer's grip.

All of this, of course, is not especially new; and the fact that these rackets exist is not half so surprising as our complacent acceptance of them.

Americans have known for quite a while that every big city, and many small cities, were infested by racketeers; and Americans have done nothing whatever about it—except, perhaps, pay lots of money in at the box office to see moving pictures in which the adventures of these gentlemen of the racket are set forth. The growth of this illegal and inviolable super-government has contributed new words to our vocabulary, but it has not as far as anyone can see, aroused so very much indignation.

Possibly this is because the ordinary American thinks that these problems concern only the cities directly involved—New York, Chicago, Detroit, and other great metropolitan centers. There could not be a more short-sighted view.

Lincoln remarked that the nation could not exist half free and half slave. We might carry that same observation into the present day; the nation cannot exist half sick and half well. If rottenness grips the big cities, its influence is bound to extend throughout the country.

Unless some way of cleaning up the situation is speedily found, every American will some day be feeling the effects of it.

Cookery

Although America has produced many dishes which rank with the world's culinary masterpieces, it is somehow unable to produce cooks who can prepare the improperly.
This is the complaint of Ralph Ritz, managing director of the New York hotel, who regrets the fact that the nation has to look to Europe for its best chefs.

It is too bad about the cooks; but what interests us is the list of American dishes which Mr. Ritz calls our greatest gastronomic contributions. The list includes pumpkin pie, ice cream, griddle cakes, corn bread, Creole chicken, Boston baked beans, ham and eggs, the modern American hash, and doughnuts.

That is a good list; and it is considerable to reflect that some of its items, at least, are virtually cook-proof. Even a rotten cook can hardly spoil ham and eggs. It takes an unusually bad one to turn out an unpalatable pumpkin pie. And hash is bound to be good if the cook is no worse than mediocre.

Still, the other numbers need skill. Think of the crimes that have been committed by poor cooks in the concoction of leathery griddle cakes, soggy doughnuts and pale, half-cooked corn bread.

Smiley Lewis, who is learning to cook, "thank you" in Swedish, in Swedish, perhaps, that "okay" would be understood perfectly.

THE PLAINSMAN

That Girl on Broadway says if, as they claim, love is a game it certainly is of the parlor variety.

THE PLAINSMAN has run across a poem, a rather well known poem, which he has admitted for a good many years. As readers of this column have probably noticed, The Plainsman is not addicted to what critics call "good poetry" but is more or less fond of homely verse that carries a punch along with it. At any rate, this poem is an everyday sort of a jingle and fits in pretty handily with the times.

A lot of folks are cursing the country, cursing the President and cursing the towns in which they live when they might better improve their time in work.
Anyway, they're cursing, which makes this poem—author unknown to The Plainsman—fit pretty well. Here it is for everybody's benefit, and we hope you like it's swing and text:

"If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a

And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new."

It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town;
It isn't your town, it's you!

"Real towns are not made by men afraid
That somebody else gets ahead; When everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.

And if, while you make your personal stake,
Your neighbors make one, too Your town will be the town you want to see.
It isn't the town, it's you!"

There's some pretty good, everyday philosophy in those lines—some thought many of us will do well to heed. And to further apply the poem to the times one may insert the word "job" for the word "town". After all, these are desperate times—they're just times that call for staunch men who will not be downed by a sudden gust of fate.

That Man on Avenue Q says his wife is so dumb she thinks smoking jackets are bought at fire sales.

THE PLAINSMAN was out with a couple of friends the other night and during the course of the evening the gentlemen neglected to help his spouse into the automobile.

"You are not so gallant," she said, "as you were when I was a girl."

"No, sweetheart," he agreed, "and you are not so buoyant as you were when I was a boy!"

The only good English some people use is that they put on the billiard ball.

TO SOME people the publicity the forthcoming visit of Santa Claus on December 6 has been "nothing less than foolishness. They cannot realize, or else do not realize, what a city-wide Santa Claus day with jolly old Kris Kringle on hand means to the kiddies.

The Plainsman, personally, could get along very well without Santa Claus day. But for the benefit of the youngsters—and some of the oldsters who love crowds and the Christmas spirit in the air—all over the South Plains he doesn't begrudge the newspaper space being used to herald the event.

Four or five years ago Lubbock had a Santa Claus night, sponsored by The Avance-Journal. Santa was on hand and made all the stores on schedule time. Every store was open, its Christmas merchandise displayed, but there was nothing for sale. No business was transacted. Hundreds of youngsters whose only chance to see Santa and Christmas trees and toys, feasted their eyes on the outlay and the time and trouble sacrificed was repaid a thousand times over just in their joy.

IF YOU are one of the people who wonder why The Journal is making such a fuss of Santa Claus coming to Lubbock, be down town on the afternoon of December 6th.
You'll see more people down town than you've ever seen before—even waiting a circus parade. And the sparkle of anticipation in the eyes of the kiddies will make its impression on you, too. You will agree that the fuss over Santa Claus day has been well worth the effort.

Speaking of Santa Claus and Christmas, The Plainsman takes this opportunity to commend Bill Levine for his generosity in lending his store and his facilities to the collecting of winter clothing for the Salvation Army. While Bill and his store will make friends and get some good publicity out of the event, the time and trouble entailed will cost him more than any personal good he'll get from it. Bill's idea is a happy one and he deserves a pat on the back for it.

Lack Of Aggressive Leader And Centralized Warfare For Prohibition Is Causing Dissension Among Dry Supporters

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The organized drys, who have watched the Republican and Democratic parties torn by disagreement about prohibition, also find themselves in a state of dissension and discord. Angry at a lack of able leadership in their movement and the failure to combat the recent wet trend with vigor, prominent drys are coming to the big dry conventions here early in December with their eyes in their fire.

There will be a strong, organized attempt to produce a dry generalissimo comparable in stature to the late Wayne B. Wheeler. The dissatisfied lieutenants in the dry army also hope for a federated agency of their various organizations which will carry on a constant, centralized warfare in defense of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment.

No one has succeeded to Wheeler's mantle. Instead, there is a divided command in the dry movement with various factions paying allegiance to such leaders as General Superintendent P. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon League, Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, young Stanley Hign of the Christian Herald and Ernest H. Cherrington head of the league's educational work and the World League Against Alcoholism.

Cannon Is Broken
It seemed for a while as if Bishop Cannon of Virginia was to become the recognized spokesman and leader of all drys. But now Cannon lies broken in health, prestige and influence. Few men have collapsed so quickly and completely after rising to what seemed to be heights of power.

The malcontents in the dry ranks who now demand genuine leadership and aggressive action include some of the ablest workers for the cause among them certain state superintendents of the league.

Unless drys really unite and fight, they declare, they can consider themselves badly licked. The recent election results, although no cause for despair, they nevertheless believe to have presented problem as serious as any the drys have faced in the past.

Whether or not there are public fireworks Dr. McBride will be severely criticized by some delegates to the various conventions. McBride is recognized as an sincere and earnest, but his critics say that he is the rural clergyman-type not quite fitted to command a militant dry movement. Friends of the late Wheeler say McBride was made general superintendent by Wheeler so that the latter, holding the post of legislative superintendent, could hold complete control of the dry movement while McBride remained in contented obscurity.

After his death, they add, Mc-Bride insisted on taking over both jobs so that no new legislative superintendent might rise to overshadow him. McBride is said in some way to have offended President Hoover during or near the time of the 1928 campaign, so that relations between the White House and the league—once so close—are now scarcely existent.

Recently a movement began to place Congressman Franklin Fort of New Jersey, the dry candidate defeated by Dwight Morrow in the senatorial primary, at the head of a new centralized dry organization.
Fort is said to be agreeable, but the movement probably will fail.

Dr. Wilson is also said to hope to command the whole dry cause, but he also has influential enemies, especially in the league. His

BALANCED DIET MEANS FOOD ELEMENTS THAT ARE PROPERLY PROPORTIONED

The "Balanced Diet" is a phrase which means to most of us a daily diet so proportioned that all the food elements are represented in proper ratio.

But, balancing meals is also a dietician's duty.
You can have a balanced diet from the nutritional standpoint, but a badly balanced meal from the standpoint of digestibility and appetite.

A horrible example, related to me by a woman of my acquaintance, is as follows: "Myrtle never did know how to order a balanced meal." This is what she told me Myrtle had at one meal: Sweet Potato Souffle
Rice
Creamed Peas
Squash
Beaten Eggs and Marshmallows for dessert.

Myrtle may have had something more at that meal, but I really haven't the stomach to put it down for you. No comment is necessary.
I should hope, except the single word—"Don't."

If James Bohannon, president of the Peerless Motor Car Company, is correct, prospect is assured for the American automobile industry for years to come.

When a man speaks of his publicity methods are criticized and some drys object to the "narrow" in respect to cigarette, movies and other evils.

Thus far no one man has been put forward by the rebellious group as one fitted for high command.
But the sentiments of this group may find strong support among the Protestant churches. Church journals, including some of the most influential, have been critical of the lack of able leadership.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Have you a trick monkey for your country home, flat, or place of residence?

It's quite the vogue among the vogueurs. They all go into the nicest little huddles and play a game in which the prize goes to the person suggesting the most apt and wise-cracking name for a dwelling place. Don't it sound silly? Oh, well, this is such a busy city! No one has time for anything after spending three hours at lunch!

Naming summer houses always was something of an indoor sport.
Every beach and hill town has its quota of Bide-a-Wees and Ramblelanes. Alexander Woolcott, the broadcasting critic, was one of the first to make them take this matter seriously. After much discussion and debate he named his dwelling place "Wit's End." Ever since, there has been quite a race to catch up to that one.

A former Jewish character comedian calls his domicile "Honorable Mansion." My own eight-by-four broadcast has been titled "Off-hand Manor." Some of the recent suggestions which have been accepted or discarded by the mon-icker mongers include: "Something Dumb," for a certain cabaret figure; "Journey's End," for a certain comedian; "Tummy Acres," for a certain speaker; and "Tres Pass," if you get it!

Nor have you any idea how column writers perspire in an effort to land an idea for their headline. There have been all sorts and conditions of column captions. A friend who writes for a Manhattan daily actually paid good money for "Wit and Witout." I inquired why he didn't go all the way and call it "Wit and Witout."

For years I tried to peddle an idea to any editor who would listen.
In almost every instance the office boy was instructed to take me out for air. Having had some experience in the way of some columnists, I suggested that the headline read: "Here Lies—"

Alas, it never got to first base.
Several years ago, I was intrigued by a title, which was investigated, I believe, by James W.
Dean, who fathered this particular department. It was "However Common—"

A guest who writes a radio department has long contemplated this one: "The Patent Mice." —you have to say that one fast.

And many an author and playwright has found himself stamped for months on a name which was best suggest a certain character in his creation.

Smiley Lewis once told me that he had spent almost as much time selecting the name "Babbalanza" as he had writing the novel which is related by the novel which is re-

MR. H. R. BARTLETT
"I was in failing health for five years," said Mr. H. R. Bartlett, 4312 San Jacinto street, Houston.
"I felt tired and worn out all the time. I suffered with rheumatism in my hands and fingers. The joints were stiff and sore, and, at my age, I thought there was no medicine to help me for I had tried many."

"Konjola gave me a welcome surprise. I should have taken it much sooner. My strength has returned and I feel much better in every way. Rheumatism in my hands and the stiffness in my fingers had passed. Konjola is the greatest medicine I ever used and I am glad to recommend it to everyone."

Even though Konjola has won many remarkable victories over ailments of the aged, it can just it is free from alcohol or harm-

Konjola is sold in Lubbock, towns throughout this entire sec-

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The old musician thanked the bunch for coins they gave him.
"I've a hunch," said he, "that you would like to hear a story I can tell. If you'll sit down, that's what I'll do. The yarn I have in mind is true." Then Scouty shouted, loudly, "Go ahead! This will be swell!"

And so the Tinymites gathered round and settled down upon the ground.
The old man shortly joined them, squatting down upon his knees.
"I'm going to take my time," said he, "and talk as plain as plain can be. You all will understand me.
Just be quiet, if you please."

"About twenty years ago I took a notion I would be fun to look around the spreading country, just to see what I could see. Of course, I had to earn my way. That's how I started out to play and earn a little money. It was easy as could be."

"I traveled here and traveled there. In fact, I've been most everywhere. I've seen the biggest mountains and the largest lakes there are. Then Scouty broke right in to say 'We, too, have traveled round that way. But we don't walk.
We take a plane, a ship, or motor car.'"

The man then told of thrilling adventures that he had seen. The Tin-ymites all thanked him when his tale was over and soon bid him goodbye. They then went to a place to eat and two small boys they chanced to meet. "They were here," said the Travel Man. "And you'll soon find out why."

The boys walked right up to the bunch and said, "Before you eat ported to have won him the Nobel Prize."

At the moment, young Mr. Benn W. Levy is getting some applause in these parts for names given characters in his plays. Having written of a somewhat fantastic feminine character, it took him four months to name her Mrs.
Moonlight.

All Stirred Up

NEW YORK—Society is stirred by the color scheme of gowns at the latest fashionable wedding. When Miss Jane Porter became Mrs. Barclay Kountze Douglas, she had a gown of ice-blue silk and a pale blue veil. The maid of honor wore turquoise blue velvet, the bridesmaids venetian red velvet. The bride carried artificial gold lilies, the bridesmaids bouquets of artificial gold fruit edged with cold lace.

NEWS BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Brashear and family have moved to Plainview to make their home. Mr. Brashear is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Brashear of that city.

Ralph Eaton, of Amarillo, representing the Western Newspaper Union, was in Lubbock today.

Misses Leta and Laurine Strickel, 1624 10th street, have returned to their home here after visiting a sister who teaches school in Estelino.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Litton, 2120 15th street, and their nephew, Fred C. Barron, Jr., have returned from Wichita Falls where they attended the funeral services for Mr. Barron's mother, Mrs. F. C. Barron, who died there Sunday night. Mrs. Barron was prominent in music, church and club circles in Wichita Falls. Her son is a student of Texas Technological college.

C. V. Knight, of Abilene is a visitor here.

The old-timers who said the world was flat may not have been so much in error at that. Who knows but what there was a depression in those times, too?

By pressing a button in her home the Lady Mayoress of Newcastle, England, recently opened a radio show in Newcastle, N. S. W., 12,000 miles away.

Christmas Party Initiates Series To Be Attended By Various Lubbock Clubs

The first of a series of Christmas parties that will be given during the coming month took place Wednesday evening. Members of the Just Sew club entertained their husbands with a juvenile party in the Stanton Rhea home at 2011 Main street. Gifts were distributed from a Christmas tree during the early evening, stunts and games followed and finally tables were arranged for games of bridge and forty-two.

Those who attended were Messrs. and Mesdames J. E. Hawes, Lloyd Johnson, Robert Lowrey, Walker Jackson, Randolph Ramey, Joe G. Stanton, Huddleston Wright, Ross Woolan and R. W. Whitney.

High scores in forty-two were made by Mrs. Lowrey and Mr. Johnson and high scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Ramey and Mr. Wright.

Discussions Planned By Presbyterians

Plans for work for the coming year were made at a meeting of the Worker's council of the First Presbyterian church Wednesday night. It was decided to use a number of subjects for discussion which are issued with definite programs.

The first of these discussions will be given at the January meeting under the supervision of Mrs. H. A. Davidson and is to be on the subject, "My group—do I really understand it?"

By pressing a button in her home the Lady Mayoress of Newcastle, England, recently opened a radio show in Newcastle, N. S. W., 12,000 miles away.

Ft. Worth Man Is Held By Law Here

Robert Atkins, a baker, was arrested by Lubbock county officers in this city last night charged by warrant from Tarrant county with kidnapping. He will be returned today to Fort Worth.

The man's arrest was made last night at a bakery where he was employed. The baker is accused of kidnapping his four-year-old son, the mother being divorced from the man and remarried.

Local officers stated that the child was not found here.

Amarilloan Fatally Shot By Hijackers

AMARILLO, Dec. 4 (P)—H. A. McCarrick, 45, grocer, was shot four times and fatally wounded by two men last night as he apparently resisted a holdup while en route from his store to his home, several blocks away. He died before reaching a hospital. A bag of money, the day's receipts, was not taken from him. The men who shot him fled on foot.

CHAPTER XXXVI
In praise of Old Nassau, my boys, Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!
Her sons will give while they shall live.

Three cheers for Old Nassau!
With bowed head, Terry stood before the singing crowd, silently brooding over the tragedy that placed in his keeping in that minute of contrition his memory went back to an almost forgotten day when he stood bare-headed and reverent, singing with an ageless Princeton crowd the same words while a blond-headed, half-back walked off the field in the blue swirl of defeat; a blond halfback now sleeping with the honored dead in the fields of France.
Where was the power and glory he pledged to bring Princeton that day? As if trying to inflame pain in himself for failure, he viciously slapped his helmet against his knee.

Then the memory of Margot came. A sudden and blinding flame the memory of the girl he worshipped seared the open wound of his heart. Margot! Margot! In the damp, cold twilight.
"And when these walls in dust are laid."

With reverence and with awe, Another throng shall breathe our song.

In praise of Old Nassau!
Singing voices echoed in the dark. The great crowd, concerned with the things of life again, started for the exits, grumbling about the rain and cold; the better, perhaps, for a glorious interruption.

Margot Blair stood with tear-stained eyes among the crowd, far up in the stands. While her father waved his arm and sang, Margot watched the wretched-looking Terry, shuffling off the field. He appeared so broken, so beaten, that all efforts to control the wave of emotion which engulfed her were fruitless.

She had learned of the sudden death of his mother and, knowing Terry's devotion to her, she had tried to tell him of it. But in the wrong direction, intuition or something told her that the loss of direction was motivated more or less by the heated discussion between Red and Terry, with Terry trying desperately to silence them.
She instinctively knew the quarrel was not directly concerned with football, that she was involved—and not pleasantly.

Stricken with remorse, she recalled the childlike adoration, the tenderness, faith and trust Terry had in her. And she had treated him just rotten! Retribution and sympathy, the mother of love, brought her heart. "Oh—the poor boy—if I could only do something—if I could only help him!" Margot begged at her father's arm. "I've got to go. See you at home—must see someone right now."

Devilized. Mr. Blair looked at her, disappearing in the crowd.
He called to her, but she failed to answer.

Down the ramp, wedding in and out of the departing crowd, hurried Margot. She headed toward the iron gates in front of the stadium. Before her, walking over the cinder path straight for the Field House, were varsity football men. She hurried along, panting, stumbling over a hawk's basket of pennants, but kept right on going.

She spotted Terry.
Running alongside of him, she grabbed his right arm.

"Terry," she gasped. "Just a second, please. I must talk to you.
I wanted to—"

A shudder passed through her.
Terry! Terry! Don't look at me like that!

His face was white; a perfect mask which concealed intense pain like a shield. Gently but firmly he removed her embracing arm and continued his way. The expression of his face was one of contempt. His gait quickened into a trot and he left her behind. Her face smothered in the folds of a fur collar. Around her swarmed the noisy football crowd gushing out the gates. She was caught up in the sweep of humanity and carried along, faltering, crying, up the incline to Prospect Street.

She called a taxicab and ordered the driver to take her home.
Crumpled in the back seat, Margot did not look up until the cab stopped at her house. Automatically she went through her bag for change while the driver stared in amazement at the swollen eyes and haggard expression on a young and very pretty girl.

She flew up the steps and into the house, as if in dread of being pursued by some terrible creature. A maid passed her in the hall, informed her that a boy had called, but Margot heard nothing.
Up the stairs she raced, breathless, sick. She hurried into her room, slammed the door behind her and fell on the bed, covering her white, hot face in a pyramid of pillows.

Margot was still lying there half an hour later when the shrill ring of the telephone brought her back to consciousness. Reaching out, she took up the receiver, hoping somehow, that it might be Terry Malone.

"That you, Margot?" boomed Red Thomas. "Get the good news.
Rumor has it that your truly will be captain of next year's football team. Think of that—"

"Oh, what do I care!" she slammed down the receiver on the book with a bang. Another wave of pity and compassion surged over her.
"Poor Terry! Going to lose the captaincy too. Oh, it was rotten!" She buried her face in pillows.

Terry Malone sat in a corner of the dressing room, his eyes on the floor. On all sides he heard the voices of teammates passing by, coming and going from the showers, then settling down around him in silence. The sound of splashing water, the stir of voices, the smells of liniment and alcohol in the apartment heavy with tired breath and the exhaustion of mussioned players blended into a sickening confusion.

At best, a losing football team is not a very congenial group. But there was in this smelly room an undercurrent of bitterness and strained silence that blanketed the whole atmosphere with tension.
Players grunted in monosyllables.
Silently they slipped off wringing wet stockings, jerseys and pants, grabbed towels and hurried under showers. Their faces had the stunned expression of unexpected defeat which was not quite clear.

Only Sonny and Red and Terry were in on the real reason and their lips were sealed.

The head coach, coming into the room, noted the dejected expression on Terry's drawn face and hurried over to him. Terry was the smartest man on the squad and he did not want him ruined by the mere fact that he had lost his sense of direction—and headed the wrong way. The coach had seen it happen several times.

"Tough break, Terry," said the coach. "All in the game. You did your best. Forget about that run."

I look for you to be the most out-next fall. Remember last year in the Bowl. Forget it, lad. It's all over now. Played a great game." Terry wanted to tell the coach everything but words twisted into a mumbling remark and the coach walked away, satisfied with the spirit of his capable quarter-back.

But players had their doubts.

Men who have struggled and worked and dreamed through the grind of a football season demand a fair deal from each other as well as a sense of loyalty.

Their frowning expressions and whispered comments on the surprising events which culminated in the last few minutes of play directed sympathy away from Terry. Several letter men favored Red Thomas for the captaincy. The head coach was surprised and disappointed. He considered Terry Malone an ideal leader and worthy of the honor. The sudden change among varsity men was a body blow to his plans for the next season.

So Red Thomas would get the captaincy!

ROCKNE FEARS LOSS OF HIS FULLBACK

JOY AND GLOOM FELT IN LOS ANGELES AS USC TRAINS

(By The Associated Press)
TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 4.—The task of filling Fullback Larry Mullins' shoes added to Coach Knute Rockne's worries today as he marshalled out his Notre Dame Rough Riders for their final workouts for the invasion of the University of Southern California.

Rockne yesterday revealed that Mullins would not be able to play against the Trojans because his knee, badly wrenched in the Army game last week, had not responded to treatment. The loss of Mullins, who replaced "Galloping Joe" Savoldi when the latter was dismissed from school for his venture into matrimony, was a sad blow to Notre Dame's hopes of victory.

Two Being Primed
Dan Hanley, who jumped into a certain amount of fame during the Drake game, and Al Howard, a member of the "shock troop" squad, were drilled to replace Mullins. Both substitutes have considerable latent ability but with the big game only three days away, Rockne was worried.

Everybody was afforded a welcome to watch the Rough Riders go through their first drill in the University of Arizona field yesterday but today's practices were secret.

After today's workouts, one in the morning and another in the afternoon, the Notre Dame squad planned to hop aboard its special train for the final journey to Los Angeles, arriving there Friday.

WILCOX TO BE READY FOR OPENING PLAY
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—Olimp and joy continued their battle today as the University of Southern California Trojans went into the final stage of their preparation for Saturday's game with Notre Dame.

Joy, however, had an advantage, though possibly it will be fleeting, for the Trojans star left end, Ralph "Dutch" Wilcox was out in football togs and will start in the all important fray. Gloom still was on the sidelines, in spite of that, for two ex-Trojans, using Notre Dame ploys, scored three touchdowns on the regulars during yesterday's practice.

JOE JUDGE, VETERAN OF MANY YEARS ON DIAMOND, SETS ALL TIME RECORD

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Joe Judge, veteran of 15 consecutive up and down campaigns with the Washington Senators, was officially recognized today as the greatest fielding first baseman of all American league baseball history.

Official fielding averages for the 1930 campaign, released today, clinched his fame by revealing that the veteran Senator had led his league rivals in defense for the eighth season—a new record for any circuit of baseball.

26 Years Old
Although 26 years old, a period of life when most of baseball's stars have passed to the minors or out of the game, Judge accepted 1,117 chances in 117 games and was charged with but two errors, an average of .998. His performance was two percentage points better than his leading record of 1929.

The championship Philadelphia Athletics again topped the league in team fielding, the official statistics disclosed. The Athletics fielded at a .975 clip, the same as in 1929, and made but 145 errors while making 1,648 assists and 4,107 put-outs. The Washington Senators were second with a .974 average, a gain of six points over 1929. Other teams finished as follows: St. Louis .970; Boston .968; Detroit .967; New York .965; Cleveland .962; and Chicago .962.

Class B Elevens Ready For Championship Game

SLATON COACH FEARS
RAIN WILL CUT
ATTENDANCE

(Special To The Journal)
SLATON, Dec. 4.—A driving rain last night and this morning failed to dampen the spirits of Slaton High school football players and fans, though it is causing Coach Paul Wright some anxious moments. Should the rain continue it may interfere with the attendance, and the guarantee offered the Dalhart team to come to Lubbock to play for the Class B bi-district championship is of no slight concern to the Slaton host.

Neither does Coach Wright know just what kind of game his championship Tigers can play on a slick field. So far this season they have been fortunate in having fairly fast fields on which to play. The turf of Tech Field at Lubbock holds well after a fairly hard rain, but the Slaton mentor is a trifle worried. His team is somewhat lighter than the Dalhart aggregation and this brings a ray of hope to the Slaton crew and coach.

Work At Home
The Tigers will work out on their home field this afternoon, regardless of weather conditions, and will not go to Lubbock until tomorrow. The trip will be made by automobile.

Fans of the town are highly enthusiastic over the pending game and will go en masse to Tech field tomorrow for the battle. All of Coach Wright's men are in good condition, save Frank Johnson, regular halfback and Rucker, fullback, but these two are due to start in tomorrow's game.

Harper Holds Crown
In Billiard Match

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 4.—Robert S. Harper of Denver is still national amateur three-cushion billiard champion. He defeated Frank L. Fleming of Champaign last night in the third block of their contest, 63 to 54, requiring 94 innings. Total score for the match was 150 to 149.

Lon Chagnon Added
To Panther Roster

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—Lon Chagnon, right hand pitcher, has been purchased from Wichita of the Western league by the Fort Worth club of the Texas league. After starting the 1930 season with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Chagnon was released to Wichita where he pitched effectively.

Stanton and Dalhart play tomorrow. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on the Tech field, and involves a bi-district championship. It should be a tip snoring battle, and is due to attract much attention by Lubbock and out of town fans. It is the only game of the week to be played in Lubbock, and possibly the last contest of the season on the Tech field. Tickets are on sale at the Hilton and Lubbock hotel drug stores.

The Associated Press in picking an all-Southwest Conference grid team, included four University of Texas men, two Baylor players, two from T. C. U., and one from S. M. U. Rice and A. and M. The selection placed three Texas men, Dexter Shelley, Harrison Stafford, and Ernest Key, in the backfield, and gave them Jake Wilson of Baylor as quarterback. In the line, Louis Long of S. M. U. and Adrian Tracey of A. and M. were selected as ends. Ox Blanton of Texas and Ben Boswell of T. C. U. took the honors at tackle, and Dotche Koch of Baylor and Bill Morgan of Rice were favorites at guard. Noble Atkins of T. C. U. won over Paradox of Baylor for the center position.

That team, in spite of the two 175-pound ends and one 175-pound guard, and Jake Wilson's 145 pounds of football knowledge and ability would tip the scales at 196 pounds to man, with a line averaging 191 pounds. Uncle Jake, popular Dallas scribe, says that team could give Knute Rockne's Ramblers a defeat any day in the week.

IN THE REALM OF SPORTS
With Collier Pariss
Journal Sports Editor

All previous dope was right, and Amarillo will meet Breckenridge Saturday in a bi-district struggle. That dear customers, promises to be a football game with all the trimmings. As the Notre Dame and U. S. C. game is to the Pacific coast, so is the Amarillo-Breckenridge game to West Texas. For the second year in as many seasons, West Texas is due to be recognized as the home of high school football champions.

Amarillo and Breckenridge tangled in a bi-district or quarter final game last year and the Buckaroos took the decision, going on past the Wolves to the state championship. They tied for the state championship. Tradition has it that Oil Belt teams are much stronger than District 1 clubs, and that in the bi-district games, District 1 must always bow to District 2. It has always been that way, but District 1 teams and fans do not see it that way. Bow to District 2. It has all right. Sandies come up against the Breckenridge Buckaroos at Butler Field Saturday afternoon, dope will point to the Breckenridge crew, but who is to say that the Sandies, after passing an undefeated season in their district, is to be denied a victory?

The Bucks downed the Cisco Lobos, 13 to 0, Tuesday to win the Oil Belt championship, and it was a pretty tough game for both sides. Breckenridge has had a tough schedule all along, and its recent games have been with the best teams of the district. The game Saturday will be another hard one, and the Sandies will be in the best shape. With the game on their own field, and with a couple of weeks rest behind them since an important or hard game, the Sandstorm may blow the Bucks off the field, thereby sending a District 1 team to the state semi-finals.

Stanton and Dalhart play tomorrow. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on the Tech field, and involves a bi-district championship. It should be a tip snoring battle, and is due to attract much attention by Lubbock and out of town fans. It is the only game of the week to be played in Lubbock, and possibly the last contest of the season on the Tech field. Tickets are on sale at the Hilton and Lubbock hotel drug stores.

DALHART TEAM STARTS FOR LUBBOCK AFTER FINAL WORKOUT

(Special To The Journal)
DALHART, Dec. 4.—Coach Blake Bolton and 25 Dalhart High school gridsters, representing the cream of the Class B football crop in Northwest Texas, left here this morning for Lubbock where they will meet the Slaton High school Tigers, champions of District 2 in a clash for bi-district honors tomorrow.

The Wolves were accompanied in their special railroad car by less than 50 fans, while considerably more than that number were expected to leave by a later train or make the trip in automobiles.

Practice Is Ended
Yesterday afternoon closed the practice season at home unless the Wolves defeat Slaton. The winner of the game at Lubbock will meet the winner of the Olney-Nocona game for the regional championship. Coach Bolton sent his championship gridsters through a light workout here yesterday, closing a week of rather hard work in anticipation of a tough battle against the pups of Coach Paul Wright.

Tomorrow, on the Tech field, the Dalhart Wolves will make their eighth attempt to gain the bi-district championship. In the past nine years, Coach Bolton has led his crew through seven successful campaigns in District 1, losing twice in the district final. So far this season his team has not been scored against by any team appearing on the schedule. The Wolves won the district championship by defeating Memphis, 26 to 0, last week.

GOLF STARS OFF
IN PEBBLE PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Leading professional and amateur golfers prepared to tee off today in 36-hole qualifying tests to determine the 32 survivors for the San Francisco Open Match Play tournament, which ends next Sunday.

The 72-hole event, worth $7,500 to the pros, with trophies for the winning amateurs, attracted 163 entries. Of this number, 133 were professionals including Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Lee Diegel, Horton Smith, and George Von Elm, former National Amateur title holder now a "business man" golfer.

Outstanding amateurs were H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., two times winner of the national crown; Pay Coleman, Los Angeles; and Jack Neville, Pebble Beach. Entry fees for the pros are $100, with $1,000 for the winners.

More than 97 per cent of the people in England earn less than $2,000 a year.

About a hundred fans, several scribes and a few photographers are accompanying the Mike on their special train, which pulls into Los Angeles Friday afternoon. There are numerous predictions as to the possible outcome of the storming of Troy. The Ramblers have been promised a good looking, and there are men of authority who believe they'll get it.

FIVE SOUTHWEST MEN
URGED TO PLAY ON WEST'S ELEVEN

(By The Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Twenty-one players have been invited to play with the Western team in the Shriner's annual charity East-West football game here Dec. 28. The list follows:

ENDS—Long, Southern Methodist; Wilson, Olympic Club; Edding, St. Mary's; McKallip, Oregon State.

TACKLES—Broadstone, Nebraska; Christensen, Oregon; Bogue, Stanford; Speidel, Olympic Club.

GUARDS—Greenberg, Nebraska; Koch, Baylor; Beckett, California; Colbert, Oregon.

Atkins Invited
CENTERS—Atkins, Texas Christian; Tass, Santa Clara.

BACKS—Wilson, Baylor; Baugh, Kansas; Lange, Baker University; Mills, University of Oklahoma; Shelly, Texas University; Kitzmiller, Oregon; Boyle, St. Mary's.

Bauch, star fullback of the University of Kansas, previously had turned down an invitation but local officials said they received word he had reconsidered and would be on hand. One more backfield man was yet to be invited. It was understood he would be a University of Southern California player, probably Marshall Duffield.

MACALUSO TO PLAY WITH EAST TEAM

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Ten (Iron Legs) Macaluso, Colgate fullback, and Les Hart, Maroon captain and other half of the great backfield team will play with the East against the West in the New Year's Day contest at San Francisco. Andy Kerr, their coach, announced today.

Macaluso leads the nation in scoring with 144 points with the post-season charity contest with New York University at New York Saturday offering further scoring opportunity. Most of the All-American pickers have named Iron Legs' fullback.

Hart is a triple threat whom Colgate followers regard as a stronger all-around player than the famous Eddie Tipton. He is almost as big as Macaluso and is an outstanding blocker and passer. He too has received much attention from the all-star pickers.

Non-Draft Minors Look To Big Show For Battle

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—(P)—The five non-draft leagues, sought to tighten their defenses today in preparation for a long drawn out struggle with the majors on the draft question.

All relations between the two rival groups—the American and National leagues on one hand and the International, Pacific Coast, American association, Western and Three-Eye leagues on the other—were at a standstill, at least temporarily, and there were no indications that their differences could be patched up in the immediate future.

Want Young Stars
The majors insist that they be given the right to select or draft at a fixed price players in these five leagues just as they are in other minor circuits. They already have the right to draft from the AA leagues—International, Pacific Coast and American association—any player previously in the majors but they want to obtain the right to include young stars who never have reached the big leagues.

They backed their demands with a drastic action—complete severance, from December 1, of business relations with the non-draft leagues until they accept the draft.

Settlement Hoped For
The five leagues affected offered to re-open the question with a view to possible settlement provided the majors rescinded this action within fifteen days, but replies from Presidents Heydier and Barnard of the National and American leagues indicated there was no chance of the majors doing this and the war was on in earnest.

Anticipating that there will be no move toward an amicable settlement at the point major league meeting in New York next week, the non-draft minors planned to confer in ways and means of carrying on without the aid of the majors. The most pressing problem was the always troublesome question of where first grade players are to be obtained in sufficient quantities. It was generally regarded that the minors would make no further move toward peace, at least at this time.

Protection Demanded
Another of baseball's sore spots crept out at the first session of the 29th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, Branch, Ricker, vice-president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, largest operators of "chain-store" clubs in the country, told the convention the majors were ready to come to the aid of those minor leagues who may be running into financial difficulties but that no further move in that direction could be made unless some further "protection" was given the minors.

New Jersey now ranks second in density of population, only Rhode Island having more inhabitants per square mile.

16.—Money To Loan

DO YOU NEED M-O-N-E-Y?

At this time of the year people need extra money for Christmas expenses, for new winter clothes, and the other necessities that cannot be stored during the season of the year.

The Plains Insurance Agency's Automobile Loan Department is prepared to advance money on your car, or re-finance it and make your payments smaller, and convenient to pay—paid, aside from that, the LOWEST rate in town.

DO YOU HAVE EMPLOYMENT FOR SOMEONE?

Whether it be only two hours work, or a permanent position. Any kind of odd jobs about your home... perhaps the yard needs cleaning, the roof needs repairing... or the house needs repainting. Give the other fellow a job.

Every dollar that is expended in wages between now and January 1st will not only tend to increase the volume of retail buying but will greatly assist many Lubbock families in the procurement of actual necessities.

During November, the AVALANCHE-JOURNAL WANT-AD DEPARTMENT will strive to obtain 1,000 days of employment for the unemployed. If you have a job for one day or thirty, phone the AVALANCHE-JOURNAL WANT-AD DEPARTMENT 13 or 14

Give details and your ad will be inserted FREE OF CHARGE, in both morning and evening editions, for two days, providing the ad is not over three lines (count six words to line)
