Dedication Tomorrow For The Canadian River Dam

A busload of Pampa city and chamber of commerce officials and citizens will leave City Hall at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow to attend ground-breaking ceremonies for the Canadian River Dam at Sanford, nine miles northwest of Borger.

The dedicatory ceremonies, starting at 10 a.m., will be highlighted by the appearance of Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, who will personally turn the first shovelful of earth for the $93 million dam and aqueduct system that eventually will serve 11 Panhandle and Plains cities with water.

Udall, who is expected to arrive in Amarillo about 5 p.m. today, will be accompanied by a number of Washington dignitaries including seven congressmen whose names previously had not been in the list of those expected to attend.

Among the congressmen will be Rep. Walter Rogers of Pampa, Rep. Wayne Aspinall of Colorado, chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. Other committee members, in addition to Representative Rogers, will include Rep. John Saylor of Pennsylvania, Rep. Tom Morris of Tucumcari, N.M.; Rep. Edgar Chenoweth of Trinidad, Colo., and Rep. Hjalmar Nygaard of North Dakota, and Rep. Ed Edmondson of Oklahoma.

Also expected to attend the dedicatory program tomorrow is Gene Worley of Shamrock, presently chief justice of the Court of Patents and Customs Appeals in Washington. Worley formerly was congressman from the 15th congressional district, the post now held by Pampa's Walter Rogers.

Worley played an important role in underwriting the Canadian River Dam which first was authorized by Congress in 1950.

Also expected to arrive in Amarillo this afternoon from California is Rep. Michael Kirwan of Ohio.

Secretary Udall will be accompanied by Under-Secretary of the Interior J. K. Carr.

Bureau of Reclamation officials from Washington and Texas, along with many state and local dignitaries, will be on hand for the official ground breaking. They will be headed by Bureau Commissioner Floyd Dominy of Denver and his first assistant, Grant Bloodgood.

Reservations for the round trip bus trip from Pampa to the dam site will be taken at the Chamber of Commerce office here up until 5 p.m. The round trip fare is $1.50.

Among those planning to attend are Mayor E. C. Sidwell, City Manager Harold Schmitzer, City Engineer Monroe Moore, Public Works Director R. B. Cooke, Clinton Evans and Fred Thompson, Pampa's directors on the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, Chamber of Commerce Manager E. O. Wedgeworth and other chamber of commerce and civic officials.

The ceremony tomorrow is being sponsored by the directors of (See WASHINGTON, Page 3)

Efforts To Return Convicted Spy From Israel Have Run Into Snag

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—American efforts to obtain the immediate return of convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen ran into a snag today.

The Israeli government announced that Soblen would not be expelled today for entering this country on a forged Canadian passport after fleeing the United States.

Earlier, informed sources had said Soblen's departure today was "likely" and might be only "a matter of hours away." However, a single direct Israeli El Al Airlines flight direct to New York left without Soblen.

Three highly-placed official sources said previously that Israel was trying to expel Soblen by executive action to prevent a long court fight. In fact, one source had said, "nothing but a miracle will delay Soblen's departure today."

Landon gave no indication if the government now planned to expel Soblen, or when.

Interior Minister Moshe Shapiro has submitted the expulsion question to the entire Israeli cabinet for a decision. Informed sources said this was a diversionary move to prevent delaying legal tactics on Soblen's behalf.

But Soblen's Israeli attorney, Ari Ankorian, moved fast to block an expulsion. He petitioned the government this morning to let the Interior Ministry send Soblen out of the country before the law takes its course.

Shapiro has authority to expel Soblen if he so chooses although there is no extradition treaty between Israel and the United States.

'Miss Pampa' To Be Selected In August Judging

A contest was launched today to select a "Miss Pampa" to represent the city in the 1963 Miss Texas competition.

The contest will be sponsored by the junior and senior chambers of commerce and Pampa businessmen, according to an announcement this forenoon by J. Carubbi, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Potential beauties who wish to enter the contest may do so by having their names filed with Jerry Don Hopkins, chairman of the Jaycee committee in charge of the beauty pageant, or at the Chamber of Commerce office in City Hall.

Entrants must be single, between the ages of 18 and 21, have talent, beauty, poise and personality. They will be judged on all of these points.

Engineer Asks Motorists To Go Easy On Repaired Streets

An appeal was issued to Pampa motorists today by City Engineer Monroe Moore to "go easy" on the city's freshly seal-coated streets.

The city engineer said the approximately $24,000 seal-coating job on some 114 city blocks was completed yesterday.

"But," he said, "we are having trouble. Too many motorists are driving in speeding up on the newly-sealed streets and then sliding to a stop."

Much of the new topping is being thrown to the side of the streets and the center is being worn down to the original asphalt or concrete as a result.

City workmen already were busy today sweeping the coating back into the middle of the streets where thoughtless motorists have scattered it, Monroe stated.

"Ask them to please drive slowly on these streets for a few days," he added.

The city engineer said each year the city alternates streets on which the seal coating is placed until all paved streets in town are covered at least once every three years.

Officials in Milwaukee, Wis., were the first to discover the real culprit in the sudden increase of trouble at the sewage disposal plant. They suspected what the trouble was and brought in samples of three new tissues, two old type tissues and toilet paper.

Quantities of each of the papers then were placed into a laboratory shaker.

The regular facial tissues and toilet paper began to disintegrate almost immediately, and were reduced to pulp within half an hour.

But the new facial tissues stood up under four hours of shaking in water and nearly eight hours in shaking of screened sewage. The test showed that the new tissues would act like rags in the sewer lines and pumping stations.

Director Cooke warned that septic tanks will fill faster if the tissues get into them.

In this event, he stated, septic tanks might overflow and the tissues could plug feeder lines.

"People could prevent a lot of their sanitary sewer trouble if they would throw facial tissues into the waste basket instead of the toilet," Cooke added.

Kennedy In Mexico; Asks For Peaceful Revolution

House Approves Bill On Tariffs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy was over the big hurdle today in his drive to wrest from Congress more tariff-cutting powers than any Chief Executive ever has held.

Administration forces pushed Kennedy's trade expansion bill through the House without having to make any 11th hour concessions. The President won on the crucial vote by a surprisingly comfortable margin of 82 votes.

Kennedy hailed the House approval and called for "early and successful" Senate action. He said the bill "serves the great interest of our country," and the House vote reflected "the national character of this legislation as well as its importance."

It was the biggest legislative victory Kennedy has scored since he entered the White House. It just about clinched enactment of a law giving him powers he insists he must have to negotiate bigger foreign markets for American products.

Unless tariff barriers are lowered on both sides of the Atlantic there is danger that the Common Market will mean reduced shipments of U.S. industrial and farm products to Western Europe.

Senate hearings on the House-passed bill will start week after next. Administration officials said they did not expect the Senate to adopt any crippling amendments, but in any case they were confident that an acceptable final bill would be drafted by Senate-House conferees.

The House-passed measure contains all of the cash subsidies Kennedy proposed for workers who lose their jobs as a result of increased imports. It also provides federal aid to help import-sensitive business firms adjust to expanded trade. The subsidies for jobless workers could range as high as $61 a week and run for 52 weeks and in certain cases as long as 78 weeks.

Needed Little Help
By amassing the greatest outpouring of Democratic votes for freer trade in many years, the administration needed little help from Republicans to get the bill approved.

The crucial vote came on a proposed GOP substitute for Kennedy's bill. The substitute would merely have extended for one year the negligible tariff-cutting power the President now has.

The Republican proposal was rejected 253 to 171. The anti-climatic vote on final passage was 258 to 125.

Condition Of Youth Hit By Auto Critical

Timmy Neal Dunn, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dunn, 1417 E. Francis, is still in critical condition this morning in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

The youth has been unconscious since he ran into the street in front of his home at 7:43 p.m. yesterday and was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Gladys Fillman, 1425 E. Francis.

Mrs. Fillman told police officers she was driving home and didn't see the child until she hit him. They absolved her of any blame.

Gray County's first baby born in 1960, Timmy was first taken to Worley Hospital in a Dukenel-Carmichael ambulance and then rushed to St. Anthony's. He arrived there at 10:15 p.m. yesterday.

St. Anthony's records report critical head injuries.

Churchill Is Down But Still Not Out

LONDON (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill, flat on his back with a broken thigh bone, jauntily raised his fingers in his famous V for victory sign today on his arrival in a stretcher by hospital plane from the French Riviera.

If he felt any pain, the 87-year-old warrior did not show it as RAF medics tenderly moved him from the hospital plane to a fork-lift that lowered him to a waiting ambulance.

Twenty-one motorcycle outriders escorted the cream-colored vehicle to Middlesex Hospital in central London where doctors were preparing for a possible operation on the damaged left limb.

"There is a possibility that another operation will be necessary after Sir Winston has arrived," Brig. G. P. Hardy-Roberts said at the hospital. He is the secretary superintendent there.

Holiday Accident
Churchill, who broke his leg in a fall at his holiday hotel in Monte Carlo Thursday, bore up well during the two-hour and 18-minute flight.

First to board the plane at the airport here were his 77-year-old wife, Lady Churchill, and Lord Moran, the family physician.

Churchill's virtually motionless figure was taken from the plane by a fork lift usually used to remove cargo and taken to the waiting ambulance. He was bare-headed.

Flat on his back, the indomitable Churchill gave his famous two-fingered victory sign. He grinned.

A spokesman at Princess Grace Hospital in Monte Carlo said that Churchill had spent "a very good night and slept normally without the use of sedatives."

He was reported to have dined on cold chicken and cognac Thursday night.

48-Hour State Visit With Mateos Starts

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Kennedy crossed the 2,000 miles of unarmored frontier between Mexico and the United States today with a call for "peaceful revolution" in the western hemisphere.

Arriving here for a 48-hour state visit with President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, Kennedy emphasized in his prepared greeting the revolutionary origin of his country and the neighbor to the South.

Through his "Alliance for Progress" program of hemispheric development, Kennedy said he thought there is opportunity for healthy continuance of the revolutionary tradition.

Speaks at Airport
To the ceremonial audience at Mexico City's airport, Kennedy said:

"To the American leaders of today is given the opportunity to mold a new revolution no less profound than that which gave us birth; not a revolution of force or fear, not the impositions of new tyrannies or new bloodshed but a peaceful revolution which will demonstrate the creative capacity of democratic government to maintain a society where social justice and economic progress are servants of the dignity of man."

The emphasis on desirability of social and economic change without tyranny or bloodshed apparently was intended by the visiting President to counter some of the anti-U.S. sentiment in Mexico over the Kennedy government's attitude toward Fidel Castro's Cuba.

Views Differ
Kennedy and his host have been at some diplomatic distance over the proper hemispheric approach to Castro. Lopez Mateos does not share the U.S. view that Cuba is Communist-dominated, nor does he share the belief that Cuba should be sealed off from the hemispheric family until it breaks its ties with communism.

Kennedy arrived here with his wife after a jet flight from Washington and first item on their agenda was a colorful airport welcome by Lopez Mateos and leaders of the Mexican government.

Kennedy came bearing messages of friendship, pointing out that the two nations long have shared not only a long, peaceful border, but common history and faith in democracy.

Mutual Respect
"This warm partnership," Kennedy said, "has been possible in the past—and will continue to be possible—because we both adhere firmly to mutual respect for the absolute sovereignty and equality of our two nations."

To make the Alliance for Progress yield hemisphere-wide benefits, he pointed out, would require "discipline and sacrifice to generate the internal capital needed for development" plus contributions by the industrialized American states to those seeking their own development.

"It will require basic social reforms designed to give all an equal opportunity to share the fruits of progress," he said. "It will require international cooperation to expand trade and assure stable prices for the commodities on which the economy of much of Latin America depends. And (See PRESIDENT, Page 3)

Jackie Expected To Outshine Her Famous Husband

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Jacqueline Kennedy had Mexico City in the palm of her hand today even before she arrived. Socially, it seemed certain she would overshadow her husband as she did on their visit to Paris.

Even leftists protesting against the visit of President Kennedy took pains to stress they had nothing against the First Lady.

"Gringos no, Jackie si!" said one sign in the city.

Radio stations and nightclub orchestras blared the strains of two new songs, "Lovely Jacqueline," a Mexican folk-type song, and "Jacqueline," described as a "slow rock 'n' roll inspired by an Italian tune."

A third song about the visiting Jackie was being recorded and more were sure to come.

Word spread well in advance among fashion-conscious Mexican women that Mrs. Kennedy's Oleg Cassini wardrobe would dazzle them.

The American First Lady chose vivid hues as the Mexicans like them — yellow, flamingo pink, greens, blues and whites.

Daytime ensembles were mostly of silk, either sheath with matching coats or two-piece outfits.

For evening the Kennedy trunks were packed with long gowns of silk, chiffon, and straw lace, in mauve, flame red and white embroidered with silver.

Mrs. Kennedy's hostess, Dona Eva Samano de Lopez Mateos, wife of Mexico's president, shares with her a love of literature and the arts. And her gowns were expected to reflect her Patricia features.

Travel Separately
As usual in state visits, the two wives will travel on their own missions while their husbands confer. Mrs. Kennedy will be taken Saturday by Mrs. Lopez Mateos to the National Archeological Museum.

Pictures of the American First Lady abounded in publications. One magazine bought $125 worth of pictures of her from a photo service, not one of her husband.

Mexicans recalled that during the presidential tour of Paris in 1961, the crowds cheered so much for Mrs. Kennedy that the President wryly introduced himself at one point simply as her husband.

Highlight of the social side of the 48-hour visit will be a Foreign Office reception Saturday night for 2000 people.

Stocks Continue Thursday's Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks met stubborn resistance from sellers but managed a moderate continuation of Thursday's rally in heavy early trading today.

Few blue chips including the leading steels, autos and oils managed more than nominal gains—but there were exceptions, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Texaco, Alcoa and Procter & Gamble were up around a point each. Rails and utilities were steady.

The Peace Corps..A Year Later

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago this month the Peace Corps launched its program of sending Americans to underdeveloped countries. In the 12 months that have passed, the corps has grown both in size and prestige. The following dispatch traces the corps' development and explains how the volunteers are being selected.)

By EDWARD COWAN

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) — This remarkable year later, is the Peace Corps.

—Road builders in Tanganyika want ads for basketball coaches and midwives.

—A marriage in Ghana and two tragic deaths in Colombia. Margery Michelson and Mrs. Janie Fletcher. And the ultimate accolade from the Communist world — a denunciation by Nikita Khrushchev.

—Volunteers in 14 countries; some 1,100 corpsmen now working or in training. An additional 4,000 going into training this summer.

It was just a year ago this month that the corps, an experiment in grass roots, people-to-people assistance, accepted its first volunteers. These were 25 young men who now are on duty in the newly independent African nation of Tanganyika.

In the 12 months that have passed since that milestone, the corps has grown both in size and prestige. Overcoming initial skepticism, it has now reached the point where Khrushchev has denounced it as an "imperialist" organization.

The corps' African contingent survived the uproar caused by Margery Michelson's "lost" postcard. And its Washington contingent avoided getting in a tangle with Congress over the case of Mrs. Janie Fletcher of Panhandle, Tex.

It was Mrs. Fletcher who complained that — as a 65-year-old — she was dropped as a corps recruit because she refused to run a mile before breakfast, swim fully clothed with her feet tied, or cover the full obstacle course.

Throughout the world men and women — some old, some young — have been exposed to primitive living conditions and awkward environments.

Two have died — Lawrence M. Radley, 22, of Chicago, and David L. Cronier, 23, of West Plains, Mo. They were killed in a plane crash in the Colombian mountains while en route back to their assignments in small villages.

There has been the first marriage in the corps' young history — that of Roger Hamilton, a 21-year-old from Arlington, Va., and Carol Armstrong, 24, of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa. Having first met while training for their assignment, they became man and wife in Ghana, where both are teachers.

A list of countries to which the corps is sending volunteers reads like a catalogue of exotic places. Volunteers already are at work in Ghana, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Tanganyika, Colombia, Chile, St. Lucia, the Philippines, India, Pakistan, Thailand, Brazil, El Salvador, Venezuela, Jamaica and Malaya.

Volunteers are soon to be dispatched to Iran, Ecuador, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Bolivia, Ceylon, Tunisia, Somalia, Afghanistan, British Honduras, Cyprus, Ethiopia, Nepal, Niger, Senegal, Togo, Turkey, the Camerouns, and the Ivory Coast.

Since its inception the corps has been run by R. Sargent Shriver, President Kennedy's brother-in-law. In an interview, he said the corps is getting better men and women than he dared hope when he first set to work early in 1961 after Kennedy's inaugural.

By next September, Shriver said, the corps hopes to have 5,000 volunteers in training or on the job overseas. By one year later the total should be about 10,000.

According to corps officials, the biggest problem is getting enough volunteers with the right kinds of skills. Needed are 350 combinations of the right skills for the right country. Examples: mechanics and metal workers for Peru; gym teachers for Thailand; a cost accountant for Malaya, and architects for Peru.

The corps' personnel selection specialists must take into account such diverse considerations as when the volunteer will be available, his age, his specific skills, his foreign language ability, the country or continent he prefers, and other projects for which he qualifies.

Now on hand are 10,000 applications. Manual sifting of these would be an endless, uncertain task. To cull the volunteers rapidly and effectively, the corps has turned to modern electronics to help it find someone who might end up working in conditions as primitive as the ages.

To do this, the corps is using a high-speed computer which reads a "language" called Fortran — a computer jargon understood by the whirling computer brain and a few experts who instruct it and study the lines and columns of data it prints.

Racing through thousands of yes-no questions and answers, the computer stacks each application up against the particular combination of skill vs. country that the corps is trying to fill. Each applicant gets a numerical score for each job.

These scores are printed on a large matrix, a sheet of paper which is about a yard wide. Each vertical column is a job; each horizontal line an applicant.

Reading across, a technician such as petite Gail Switzer can see those jobs for which an applicant is well qualified, those for which his qualifications are so-so, and those for which he won't do at all.

The computer can score the applicants because it has been told some 300 items of information about each. This data has been translated into Fortran for the computer by a group of experts headed by Charles Consolvo, a 23-year-old airman on loan to the Peace Corps from the Air Force.

Consolvo and Miss Switzer work for Dr. E. Lowell Kelly, chief of the corps' selection division. A 36-year-old expert on selection procedures, Kelly is on leave from his post as chairman of the Psychology Department at the University of Michigan.

Although proud of the modern, high-speed techniques that his staff uses, Kelly took pains in an interview to emphasize that the final selection is far from a straight mechanical process. As he said, "Who is suitable to be a Peace Corps volunteer is a judgment made by human beings who are professional qualified people."

Kelly keeps a special eye out for applicants with a rural background and farm skills. A boy who knows Spanish and crop rotation would be more valuable to the corps than a triple threat halfback would be to a football team. In Shriver's words, "Even if it is called 'non-functional' anything done in rural America needs to be done in rural America."

In searching for people with skills specified by the country asking for corpsmen, Kelly's staff must keep a sharp out for other considerations which might disqualify a volunteer regardless of his talents. A few applications have come in from people "trying to get away" from creditors, a nagging wife, some other personal problem.

Kelly keeps a special eye out for applicants with a rural background and farm skills. A boy who knows Spanish and crop rotation would be more valuable to the corps than a triple threat halfback would be to a football team. In Shriver's words, "Even if it is called 'non-functional' anything done in rural America needs to be done in rural America."

Each applicant is required to submit at least six character references. These references are sent a confidential questionnaire which asks about the applicant's job competence, emotional maturity, ability to work with others, special skills and character.

In an introductory message on the questionnaire, Shriver appeals for "a candid expression of opinion" and offers this assurance: "No candidate will be eliminated on the basis of a single negative rating."

Kelly, as selection director, has found that "people do a surprisingly thorough job. Applicants usually give the names of people they think will give them a good reference. But one young man, who was under 21 and needed parental consent, was crossed up by his own father. The father, who apparently didn't disapprove of his son nearly so much as he did of his joining the Peace Corps, wrote that his boy was a "lazy, no good." It worked.

it will require a profound commitment to the processes of liberty and democracy."

On this hopeful note the President began a good neighbor summit meeting designed to produce greater unity between the two nations, but a visit which will be far more devoted to ceremony than substantive conferences.

A heavy detail of U.S. security agents preceded Kennedy to consult with Mexican officials on the possibility that demonstrations could turn into something more serious. But advance word was that leftist demonstrations had fizzled out and Mexico City was in a fiesta mood.

Thousands began lining the motorcade route near the airport several hours before the President's plane was due to land.

Street cleaners were out early to make sure the broad four-lane boulevard from the airport to the Mexican presidential palace was spic and span.

Mexican army detachments and battalions of cadets took places at the airport while the Kennedy plane was still halfway between Washington and Mexico City.

There was a haze over part of the city and some clouds, but the sun was trying hard to shine through, and the city was bright. Before leaving, the President conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, just returned from a 10-day tour of European capitals. The secretary went to the White House shortly before 8 a.m. and accompanied the Kennedys to Andrews in a helicopter.

Accompanying the Kennedys on their trip to Mexico were Senate Leader and Mrs. Mike Mansfield as well as Kennedy's cousin, Miss Ann Gargan of Boston.

the 11 cities participating in the huge dam and aqueduct project. These cities include Pampa, Borger, Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Brownfield, and Levelland.

C. T. Johnson, president of the CRMWA, will preside and Wesley Lizard of Amarillo will serve as master of ceremonies.

The invocation will be given by the Rev. James G. Glenn of Borger's First Presbyterian Church. Music will be by the Amarillo Tascosa High School Band. Recognition also will be given to the CRMWA directors, mayors and city officials from all of the 11 cities. Also to be introduced will be many other special guests who have been invited.

Following the formal program a free barbecue will be served at noon in Fritch. Some 12,000 to 15,000 persons are expected to attend tomorrow's ceremonies.

The Canadian River Dam and reservoir will be built at an estimated cost of some $31-million. Completion will take nearly three years. The aqueduct pipeline to the participating cities will run into an estimated $65 - million. Completion of the entire project is expected to take six years. The Canadian River project will provide municipal and industrial water to the 11 participating cities.

The 199-foot high, 6,300-foot long dam will be of rolled earthfill construction and will form a lake having a capacity of 1,331,500 acre-feet. The lake area will be formed into a resort section for fishermen and campers. The aqueduct system will be approximately 322 miles long with pipe sizes varying from 78 inches to 15 inches.

The dam will be 40 feet wide and will have a spillway capacity of 71,800 cubic feet per second. When the lake area is opened to the public upon completion of the dam, the original plans call for some $700,000 in public-use facilities.

Three years, the engineers estimate, will be required to build the dam and start impounding water. The aqueduct system will require 5 years to build and work on that should be started within a year after the dam is started. On that basis, water should be available to all the project cities in 1968 or early 1969.

Soft, Natural Make-Up For Beautiful Eyes

ALICIA HART

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Eye make-up, once taboo for daytime use, is now happily accepted — if it is skillfully applied. And it can be a girl's best friend. When it is used naturally, eyes will sparkle. But applied with a heavy hand, it will detract from their beauty. It's easy to plaster on artificial color, but it takes just a bit more effort to become a radiant, natural-looking beauty. Don't make the mistake of thinking you can't wear eye makeup if you wear glasses. In fact, your shadow should be higher and stronger, and your mascara slightly heavier to effectively bring out the color of your eyes behind the specs.

Choose your eye shadow to match your eyes, your costume, or, if you wear glasses, to match the frames. Blend it upward and outward into a softening haze at the outer corner of the eye. To mute the effect, you can use either a touch of brown shadow over the color or a touch of powder. For evening wear, add a dash of silver for a subtle iridescent glow.

Eye liner is difficult for a beginner to use. In order for it to accent your eyes as it should, the fine line must be as close as possible to the lashes. If you have trouble drawing the line, practice at home until you can manage expertly before you wear liner in public.

Smooth the lid by holding it firmly at the outer corner. Then with a well-sharpened soft eye pencil, draw a fine line of color as close to the lash as possible. You can, if you choose, tilt the line slightly upward at the outer corner. Your eye liner should match either your mascara or your shadow.

Cut eye make-up experts advise that the color of your brows should never be exaggerated. To emphasize them, use a matching or slightly darker shade of pencil. First brush your eyebrows with a clean, dry cake mascara brush. Then apply the pencil in brisk, feathery strokes to the hairs, just touching the skin to fill in or reshape.

Whether you use cake or automatic mascara, it should be applied with upward strokes from the base to the tips of the lashes. For thicker looking lashes, add a second coat. When it's dry, remove any excess and separate the lashes with a dry brush.

Eye make-up, applied with a light touch, can bring out all the sparkle and beauty of the eyes. Heavy coats will detract from the color within. This brows using light, feathery strokes (center) she brushes them with a stiff, dry brush. She smooths her lid firmly at the outer corner, tilts her head downward (left) and with a well-sharpened eye pencil, the base to the tips (right). She removes excess with a dry brush.

It may take a lot of practice before you can apply eye make-up so that it looks soft and natural, but the sparkle and beauty it can bring forth will make the effort worth while.

Personality 'N Looks Prime Social Assets

ALICIA HART

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Have you ever wondered why a friend who is not as pretty as you are seems always to attract people at any social gathering?

You'll probably learn that it's because she reads a lot, has cultivated some interests and is, as a result, an engaging conversationalist.

No man at a party wants to hear endless discussions of the new darderies, the kids' latest capers and the recipe for a fabulous salad dressing. He can stay at home and listen to the same subjects.

Your good looks will, of course, make a fine first impression, and

I'm not suggesting that you consider them a minor asset. But they won't make you a woman who is sought after at every social event.

Only a pleasing personality, the ability to speak with knowledge and enjoyment on a variety of topics, and genuine warmth toward others will keep your name at the top of every invitation list.

If you combine those qualities with good looks, too, you can't miss.

Teen-agers who have complexion troubles can be helped far more today than they could even a few years ago.

The cosmetics industry has made available lotions to be used during the day that blot up oil and prevent infection and medicated creams that do their work at night.

A thoroughly clean skin is your best ally, so a scrupulous washing several times a day with medicated soap is imperative.

Diet should be balanced. You'll have to ask yourself point-blank whether chocolate and whipped cream every day are worth the blemishes and blackheads they cause.

Cleanliness, medicated cosmetics, and proper eating habits and rest will clear up most youthful skin problems. But if the condition is acne, a doctor should be consulted. Don't let an obvious acne condition get out of hand by trying home remedies. It can result in physical and emotional scars.

One way to feel fresh even when the temperature climbs, is to move more slowly, wear white gloves, an uncluttered look and don't comment on the weather. A new summer cologne will help, too.

One that's not a liquid or a stick, but "liquid ice" packaged in a tube for toting anywhere.

comes in four different scents. It can't spill, so you can carry it in your bag and reap its flower-cool freshness at any time.

Dear Abby... Only Matter Of Time 'Until Number's Up!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is retired. At first there was a lot to do, but after a couple of years boredom set in. Then he took up a hobby, painting by numbers. At first I was relieved because he was no longer underfoot, nagging me. Now his painting has gotten out of hand. He has cluttered up my whole home with his terrible art. He has even taken carefully selected paintings out of their frames and put HIS number paintings in! I love nature and scenery, but he likes buildings, monuments and bridges. Our friends encourage him, yet none of them will put his junk in THEIR homes. Tell me what to do.

DEAR ABBY: People who can't sleep in the same room with someone who snores must be nuts. I've been married to a snorer for 36 years and now it's gotten so that I can't fall asleep until he starts snoring.

CONDITIONED

Now's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3363, Beverly Hills, Calif.

IN DESPAIR

DEAR IN DESPAIR: Believes me, there are worse hobbies. Let him cover the walls with his number paintings. It's only a matter of time before all our numbers come up.

DEAR ABBY: There is a real doll in our town who just came home from college. He bought himself a second-hand HEARSE and is driving it all over town. He attracts a lot of attention with his funeral wagon and everyone thinks it's a real cool idea. My father thinks I'm stupid to go out with him when he drives this car, but I don't see anything wrong with it. I'd like your advice, Abby.

PRISSY

DEAR PRISSY: Your college friend must think the girls are dying to ride with him. Wheels are wheels and as long as the driver is sane and sober, what's the harm?

DEAR ABBY: If a woman ever writes in and asks if she should remarry a man she once divorced, please tell her NOT TO!

Once a man has treated a woman like a dog, he'll never treat her like a human being again. I know. I took my husband back after we had been legally divorced because my minister, his family, my family and all our friends told me it would be better for the children. Believe me, they don't have to live with him.

The hour for Summer Worship is 8:30 a.m. Laymen of the Sanctuary Choir will sing Lamotte's "Lord's Prayer" for the morning solo and the Rev. Donald Hauck will use portions of the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew for the communion meditation.

"The Beloved Community," at 9:45 a.m. the regular church school class will meet, as will the final session of the pastor's Inquirer's Class for new members. The Session of the church will then meet at 10:45 to receive the members who are completing this class.

Training In Discipleship, a series of discussions on "The Book of the Acts of God" continues at 6:30 each Sunday evening in Fellowship Hall followed by evening prayer at 7:45. The Senior High Point Young People meet at 8:30 for discussion, and following evening prayer, have recreation in Fellowship Hall.

Dr. Carver Gives Topics For Sunday

Dr. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be in the pulpit for both worship services Sunday.

His subject for the 11 a.m. worship is "Does Our Nation Still Believe 'In God We Trust'?"

Joe Whitten will present the Church Choir in singing, "O Divine Redeemer," and Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "I Call To Thee, Lord Jesus Christ" by J. S. Bach.

The pastor has chosen "Down In The Dumps" for the sermon topic at the 7:30 p.m. worship. The church choir will sing a hymn and Miss Lane will play "Adagio" by Liszt for the organ offertory.

Because of the holiday, July 4, the regular Mid-Week service and Wednesday night activities have been called off.

The Training Union is sponsoring "Back Yard Study Courses" beginning in the unions this Sunday night at 6:30 and continuing for two more Sunday and Monday evenings.

WOMEN In The CHURCH

Miss Dorothy J. Marple, former dean of women and foreign student advisor at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa., has been unanimously chosen to be executive secretary of Lutheran Church Women, the women's auxiliary of the new Lutheran Church in America. The LCA will be constituted this month in Detroit by the merging of four separate Lutheran denominations.

A book on Christian beliefs, transcribed into Braille by a Jewish woman, has been presented to the Women's Division of Christian Service for the use of blind readers. The Braille version resulted from the wish of Mrs. Emil Clearbush to participate in a Toledo, Ohio, Methodist Women's Society group studying the book, "Basic Christian Beliefs" by Dr. Frederick C. Grant. Because of her blindness, Mrs. Clearbush appealed to the Toledo Society of the Blind, which referred her to Mrs. M. N. Levey, of the Braille committee of Collingwood Avenue Temple Sisterhood in Toledo. This group is one of many sisterhoods in the U. S. transcribing Braille and affiliated with the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods serving Jewish and humanitarian causes.

Admission of women to the full ministry (as in some other Scandinavian Lutheran lands) is not likely to be approved at the next church assembly of the Finnish Lutheran Church despite strong support for the move from several quarters. It is the opinion of a leading Finnish expert in Helsinki, Prof. Aimo T. Nikkila, chairman of the special committee to study the question, voices doubt that the committee's favorable recommendation would require the three-fourths vote required for acceptance when the assembly meets in 1963.

Miss Doris V. Wilson, executive director of the Y.W.C.A. at the University of California, Los Angeles, has been selected as the first recipient of the Grace H. Dodge merit fellowship awarded by the Girls' Friendly Society and in the office of dependency benefits of the War Department, receives $3,000 a year toward an advance degree in the field of social work at Western Reserve University.

Rev. Upshaw Gives Topic For Sermon

"Filled Again and Again" is the sermon topic selected by Rev. T. O. Upshaw, pastor of Central Baptist Church, for the morning worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the evening service.

Sunday school for all age groups will begin at 9:45 a.m. and training union will be at 6:30 p.m. The evening worship service will begin at 7:30.

The weekly meeting of the YWA's, GA's, Sunbeams, RA's, and the Sunday school officers and teachers will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Mid-week prayer service will meet at 8.

Training-union-sponsored backyard study courses will be held Thursday evenings during July. The first meeting will be July 5.

Court Ruling Renews Interest In 'Shared Time' School Instruction

Church Ends Its Annual Meeting

By RUSSELL G. WEST

OCEAN GROVE, N.J. — The Church of the Brethren closed its annual conference here this week, her members rededicating themselves to the task of "healing the broken."

A dominant note of the six-day world assembly, involving a peak attendance of 10,000, was the urgency of the church to fulfill her purpose not by seeking to build up its own life and organization but through witness and service to mankind. Members of the church were urged to "bind up the brokenness" that separates men from God and from one another.

At a testimonial dinner attended by 800 persons, Moderator Nevins H. Zuck, Elizabethtown, Pa., paid tribute to the church's most distinguished international civil servant, Dr. Andrew W. Cordier. A Brethren minister, he has been the assistant secretary general of the United Nations for 16 years. On July 1 he will become dean of the School of International Affairs at Columbia University. The citation commended him for "creative and heroic Christian leadership in the search for world peace."

To follow up its resolves regarding reconciliation, the church undertook support of a series of global projects aimed at reducing tension and creating conditions for peace.

One of the projects was the scheduling of a peace march in Washington, D. C., on June 25, coupled with visits to legislators, study sessions, and a day-long prayer vigil. Some 450 persons were expected to participate. Through the visit the Brethren sought to give support to "decisive steps" toward peace.

On other matters, the delegate body of nearly 1,200 local church and district representatives voted to send an observer to the Consultation on Church Unity at Oberlin, O., next year, supported a recommendation in a report on mass media that Brethren support good films and protest "unwholesome, low-grade productions," and discussed a study of 2,600 Brethren as to the factors in their entering or leaving the ministry.

Several concerns on family life, including remarriage of divorced persons, family planning, and premarital counseling, were referred for study next year.

Elected as moderator of next year's annual conference, to occur at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, was the Rev. Dr. Harry K. Zeller, Jr., pastor, La Verne, Calif. The associate moderator is the Rev. Dr. DeWitt L. Miller, pastor, Hagerstown, Md.

In a reorganization of the General Brotherhood Board, the administrative body of the church, Dr. Harold D. Fasnacht, president of La Verne College in California, was named chairman and Dr. Calvert N. Ellis, president of Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., vice chairman.

Newly elected to the board were Sim Togasaki, importer, Oakland, Calif.; Dan West, retired peace education director for the board, Gothen, Ind.; Rev. Dr. Edward K. Ziegler, pastor, Oakton, Va.; Rev. Dr. Charles E. Zunkel, pastor, Port Republic, Va.; and Ray Emmert, attorney, Des Moines, Ia.

The conference voted to return to Ocean Grove in June, 1963.

The Official Board will meet Wednesday, July 11th, at 8 p.m. with all Commissions meeting at 7 p.m.

United Press International

By ruling prayer out of public schools, the Supreme Court this week spurred Protestants to take a fresh interest in the "shared time" approach to education.

The "shared time" idea was put forward by Dr. Harry L. Stearns, superintendent of public schools at Englewood, N. J. He proposed that children be allowed to take some courses in public schools and others in the church-related schools.

The plan has been widely discussed during the past year by religious leaders.

Until now, however, primary emphasis has been placed on what "shared time" would mean to Catholics. It has been pointed out that parochial school students could attend public schools for instruction in such "neutral" subjects as math, foreign languages, home economics, shop and physical education. This would relieve the financial pressure on parochial schools, and give tax-paying Catholic parents the satisfaction of getting some use out of the public schools they help to support.

Interests Some

Some Protestant leaders have found "shared time" attractive as a way of heading off Catholic demands for direct public aid to parochial schools, which they regard as unconstitutional.

But there has been relatively little discussion of the opportunities which "shared time" would open for Protestant parents who want their children to receive an adequate religious education.

Dr. Stearns had hoped, when he first advanced his idea, that many Protestants would welcome the chance to put their children into religious schools for several hours each day, without going all the way into a system of Protestant parochial schools.

If Protestants haven't shown much interest in this possibility in the past, one reason is that many of them have been clinging to the belief that children could be given at least a measure of religious orientation in public schools.

Belief Dies

The Supreme Court blasted that belief last Monday when it ruled, 6-1 that it is unconstitutional for any state to prescribe religious exercises in its public schools.

The elimination of these widely prevalent "opening exercises" may not be any great loss to religious education. It is hard to believe that a child learns much about God from the rote recital of a required prayer or from hearing a fellow student mumble through the reading of a few verses from a psalm.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christian Science" will contain this verse from Jeremiah (17): "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise."

A correlative citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 142): "Truth is God's remedy for error of every kind, and Truth destroys only what is untrue. Hence the fact that, to-day, as yesterday, Christ casts out evils and heals the sick."

But prayer and Bible reading in public schools have had a tremendous symbolic value for many Protestant parents. They have made it possible for parents to persuade themselves that the modest amount of religious training which their children received at home and at Sunday School was somehow being "reinforced" by the public school program.

Must Face Reality

The Supreme Court ruling means that Protestant parents must now face up to reality. And the reality is that the average Protestant child is not receiving much religious education. Even if he attends Sunday School faithfully he gets only about 25 hours of solid instruction a year.

Some Protestants have reacted to the ruling by denouncing the Supreme Court and talking about a Constitutional amendment to permit the public school religious exercises which parents have found so comforting.

Others, however, are already looking beyond this kind of emotional response to see what constructive steps the Protestant churches can take to provide children with the kind of religiously oriented educational experience which is now quite obviously ruled out of the public schools.

Two Solutions

One solution is to start building a lot of full-time Protestant parochial schools. There was a strong trend in this direction even before the court's ruling and it will doubtless be accelerated now.

Another solution is "shared time." Since most Protestant churches already have extensive classroom facilities which are idle six days a week, they would need only to hire a staff of professional teachers. A curriculum might include English, history and other courses with a high "value" content, as well as explicitly religious courses, such as Bible study.

Will Protestants adopt this option on a large scale? Protestant leaders to whom this question was put said they can't tell yet what the ultimate answer will be. But there was general agreement that Protestants now have a new and compelling motive for examining the pros and cons of "shared time."

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

OUR IMMORTAL HOPE!

By JACK RILEY

Pastor, St. Paul's Methodist Church

When the Greek empire was the center of learning, drama was a great means of entertaining. However, the characters in the drama would often get their lives in such emotional conflict that they seemed hopeless. Then the stage-manager would send one of his "gods" to unravel the conflict.

Jesus Christ came into such a world drama. He came to a government needing a Ruler; society needing a Redeemer; and man needing a Savior. Jesus Christ came to unravel the drama of life.

The reason for the emotional conflict was that the people had leaned heavily on the LAW as the way to righteousness and God. Jesus came to reveal the Fatherliness of God. A God of Love and Mercy, not a God of wrath and punishment. In "Green Pastures", the Lord visited His creation one more time as the temple was being attacked. He asked the soldier on duty guarding the temple, "Who are you fighting for?" The soldier replied, "The God of Hosea". The Lord commented, "Is He not the God of Moses, too?" "No, He's not a God of wrath," said the soldier. "He is a God of Mercy!" The Lord replied, "How do you know He is a God of Mercy?" "Because He has suffered," Replied the soldier. The "God in Christ" is a God of Mercy. The cross killed His body. The tomb kept it... but not all of it... His spirit is immortal!

Our immortal hope: "... because I live ye shall live also." John 14:19. In the experience of "being born from above" (regeneration) real resurrection takes place. Paul supports this in Gal. 2:20: "It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me. And I know the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God."

He shows that Eternal Life is not merely an extension of life (that is what most of us may get), but a Transformation of life; ("be not conformed to this world... Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mold, but let God remold your minds from within, so that you may prove in practice that the plan of God for you is good, meets all His demands and moves toward the goal of true maturity." Rom. 12:2, J. B. Phillips), not the projection of conditions on earth into an endless future, BUT A NEW WORLD OF BEING: not quantity of time, but QUALITY of Spirit... "This mortal nature must put on immortality." I Cor. 15:53.

Edgar Lee Master in his Spoon River Anthology has his character, Samuel Gardner say, "Now I, an under tenant of the earth, can see that the branches of a tree spread no wider than its roots. AND HOW SHALL THE SOUL OF MAN BE LARGER THAN THE LIFE HE HAS LIVED?"

Because Christ lives I shall live also is our immortal hope!

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and urge others to see its blessings. How Portia Faces Life

Life is a time of paradoxes, and some observers of the American scene are pondering possible effects on society of increased leisure promised by automation, 3.7 million unemployed already face the problem. Yet, millions of others are seeking leisure to take on a second job.

On the distasteful side, each year more and more wives are going to work to earn the money to pay homes, cars, appliances, gadgets and other luxuries that are not considered necessities.

There is a paradox here, also. More and more young women are entering the labor force at an earlier age, but more are marrying younger and having more children faster.

For others who may go on to college (and there are more of them, too), increasingly they are leaving their career potentials for graduation for the role of wife and mother.

Unfortunately, the financial demands and other responsibilities of home-building often handicap their young husbands well, by bogging them down in deadweight prior before they have a chance to find themselves, experiment with life and are intellectually.

Dr. Millicent McIntosh, retired president of Barnard College, recently remarked on what she called "the drive toward the kitchen woman" doesn't need to be. "A woman doesn't need to be a 24 hours a day in the kitchen," she said. "She cannot have an ideal life as a mother and wife if bounded completely in the home."

She calls on the colleges to do more to prepare their women students to fulfill themselves as people, not just as women.

How does this square with the statistics showing that more women are working? The fact is that their jobs are mostly clerical, semi-skilled. The percentage of women in higher ranks of business and professional life is declining, according to Mrs. McIntosh. "A very strange thing — an utter phenomenon."

The challenge, she says, is to "get talented and superior women back to work."

The phenomenon is reflected in women's participation in politics, also. Nearly 22 years after getting the vote, there are but two women senators out of 100 in Congress and only 17 representatives out of 437. The Parliament of India has a better feminine ratio than that.

The causes for this seeming rush back to the "Kinder, Küche und Kirche" of another day, if that is what it is, are something for the already overworked sociologists to study.

Lingering male resistance to female intrusion in the important positions in business, the professions and politics may explain part of it. Yet, from the available evidence, it seems that the definition of success for young women today is somewhat different from what it was for those doughty pioneers who first broke the social barriers against their sex.

Case Of Operations

The businessman or salesman who covers his chair instead of his glory will always be on the bottom.

Halter Broken

There is something to think of. It didn't happen in Russia, happened right here in the U.S. Commenting editorially, Portland, Oregonians say: "We don't realize how regulated American farmers have been until a Stanley Yankus or a Weir (ex-Pampan) pops up the news."

Mr. Yankus, who was the Michigan farmer who sold out and moved to Australia after the federal government had fined him more than $5,000 for growing too much wheat. Mr. Yankus did not sell the wheat for sale but to his several thousand chickens, but that made no difference. He planted more than his allotment of wheat acreage and a Sam put the screws on him.

More and more industries, and individuals other than farmers, are finding themselves with Washington rings in their noses for regulatory lead ropes.

Ceylon Oil Nationalization Bitter Tea For Companies

You may as well know the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture by experiment has discovered that mosquitoes have a 6 to 1 preference for biting horses and cattle to human beings. They'd rather stick their stingers into a dog or a pig ahead of a person, too. So maybe you can solve your summer mosquito problem by taking a horse, cow or dog to bed with you.

The sales of separate collars for men reached its peak in 1952 when 15,599,662 dozen were sold. The sale today is only 1500 dozen annually, but this does not include the stock collar worn by clergymen.

Charity items in the Pueblo (Col.) Chieftain: "The tinkle of dollars into the coffers of funds for the aid of crippled children swelled into a pagan of joy and service."

Some sportsmen now use an electronic device to train hunting dogs. The electric dog trainer has a special collar for the dog and a portable pushbutton panel for the trainer. When the dog refuses to obey a command, the trainer presses a button and the doggie gets a slight but noticeable jolt of 1 1/2 volts.

Today's favorite gag FARMER — "I miss the old cupid since it's gone." WIFE — "Yes, and you missed it a lot before it was gone." A survey by a top women's magazine as to the fair sex' viewpoints on automobiles finds they prefer solid - color cars, with all - white and all - black cars up at the top. "Persons on a diet should weigh themselves at least twice a week, and under the same conditions — i.e., on the same scales, at the same time of day, and with the same amount of clothing."

Flashback: Even before newspapers were invented, the ancient Greek poet, Pindar (522-443 B.C.), was the first sports writer. He wrote odes and lyrical praise for victors in the early Olympic games. But of all his great writings only his "Epinicia," the odes commemorating great victories in the public games, have come down to us.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Has any major league baseball team ever thought of having pink in the color scheme of its uniforms? It's a pretty shade, and there are thousands of feminine baseball fans today. It might be worth a try. 2. Come to think of it, has any college, even a girls' college, pink for a color as a part of a color combination? We know of none, yet what could be fairer, especially for a girls' college? 3. An official still elected in some New England towns is called a "fence viewer." It was an office created in olden days, and the fence viewer's function was to decide boundary disputes between neighbors, which were usually induced by the location of a fence or stone wall. In the towns that still choose a fence viewer these days, the duties are not arduous. In fact, the viewer's judgment has no legal status. If a boundary dispute really becomes serious, a court must settle it. 4. "Your favorite barber has retired, and the island's present requirements of 8 million barrels a year. Ceylon claims that the Russian price is from 20 to 25 per cent under charges by the three companies, using supply from the Persian Gulf area.

From the Ceylon government's point of view the most favorable aspect of its new deal is that it will be able to pay for some of its oil with low - grade tea, sheet rubber and other tropical exports not marketable elsewhere.

The law under which Ceylon confiscated the oil properties provides for establishment of a Compensation Tribunal of 10 persons. It has not yet been named and no basis of compensation has been set.

There has been speculation that it will be original cost less depreciation, with no allowance for taking over a long - established business. Method of payment — whether in dollars, pounds sterling, Ceylon rupees (worth 4.75 to the dollar), or long - term bonds — is not provided by law.

British interests will be hardest hit by Ceylon's nationalization program, since most of its trade has been with Commonwealth countries, and Britain developed the island.

United States trade with Ceylon in 1960 was $14 million in exports, $38 million in imports. In addition, the United States has given Ceylon $74 million in aid since the end of the war — $50 million in grants, mostly surplus foods.

In spite of this, Ceylon's economy is in bad shape. On a $100 million budget, it has a $50 million deficit, most of which has gone for food subsidies. The government turned to confiscation of oil properties and barter as one way out.

Ceylon followed the example of India in setting up a nationalized oil company, but more ruthlessly. Shell's total investment in Ceylon is put at $9.8 million and its volume of Ceylonese business over five million barrels of petroleum products a year, 60 per cent of the total. Cal-Tex, with a total investment of over $3 million and Esso with an investment of over $4 million, have each marketed over 1.5 million barrels of products a year, or 20 per cent of the total. Ceylon's total oil business is estimated at about $100 million a year gross.

Properties taken over by the nationalized Ceylon Petroleum Corp. under a law passed a year ago include 180 of the best filling station locations out of a total of 750 on the island, 60 kerosene stations, tankage and bunkering facilities. The three companies have been left with only their lowest volume and least profitable distribution centers in rural areas.

Furthermore, Ceylon Petroleum Corp. has cut its prices a fraction of a cent a gallon below the private company prices. This makes continued profitable operation difficult. Cal - tex says it may be forced to liquidate its Ceylon holding.

The Ceylon government takeover constitutes a doubled free world economic threat in that it has turned to Russia, Rumania and United Arab Republic for new sources of petroleum products supply.

Total Soviet oil exports now amount to only 3 per cent of world trade. But Communist countries are pushing their sales hard at cut prices, making their competition hard to beat.

Last December, Ceylon signed a five - year contract with the Russians to supply 10 million barrels of products over five years. This is nearly a fourth of he's pretty well fixed," the boss barber explained to us. But even with haircuts at $1.50 and $2, how can a barber retire these days and be pretty well fixed? He must have discovered oil or gold in his backyard.

Country editor speaking: "You're an old timer if you remember when Uncle Sam thought he was doing pretty well by the people of other nations to let them come over here and earn a better living, instead of sending it over to them for free."

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Ceylon's seizure of nearly a third of the petroleum products distribution facilities owned by two American and one British oil companies constitutes the most serious threat to foreign investment by private enterprise that has arisen yet. The confiscated properties represent an estimated investment of over $5 million.

The three companies involved are the British Shell International Petroleum, California-Texas Ceylon Ltd. and Esso Standard Eastern. All have been doing business on the island south of India for over 40 years.

Christian Economics

THE "BLOATED STOCKHOLDER" FALLACY (Christian Economics) FRED G. CLARK and R. S. RIMANOCZY, American Economic Foundation New York

Recently, we published an editorial demonstrating that in most years the employees of American manufacturing corporations receive about 85 per cent of the company income distributable as payroll and profits.

The point was that all of the people who make their living using the tools, receive more than five times as much as all of the people who supply the tools, even though the tools account for more than 95 per cent of the work done.

Several readers have written us asking almost identical questions which illustrate a common error in economic thinking.

Here is how one writer put it: "While I do not question the fact that the people who use the tools receive some 85 per cent of the income, the point is that there are so very many more tool users than there are tool owners. If we divide the 85 per cent among all the users and the 15 per cent among the much smaller body of owners, what kind of comparison do we get?"

The error is found in the words "much smaller body of owners."

It is safe to assume from New York Stock Exchange estimates that about 15 million people directly own stocks in manufacturing corporations. This figure is too small because of the additional people who are indirect owners of stocks through their savings and insurance.

It is estimated by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics that there are slightly more than 15 million employees in American manufacturing. This figure is too large for our use because many manufacturing employees work for companies that have never issued stock.

But, for convenience, let's assume that the 15 million figure is correct for both groups.

This assumption will make the stockholders' share bigger than it is and the employees' share smaller than it is, but we are not trying to be exact in this calculation; we are only approximating the figures.

In 1960, manufacturing profits amounted to $11.9 billion, while wages and salaries totaled $94.4 billion.

Assuming that these amounts were divided between the two groups of 15 million each, the average stockholder got $793 while the average employee got $6,306.

So, on the national 1960 average, employees got 80 per cent of divisible income.

Now let's check it against a precise figure: that of the United States Steel Corporation (which, honest and truly, was picked at random).

In 1960, U.S. Steel stockholders, numbering 221,534, shared a profit of $36.4 million or an average of $945.

In that same year the employees, numbering 225,981, shared an income of $1.7 billion, an average of $7,516.

In this case the employees also got 80 per cent of the divisible income even though both figures were above the national average.

We hope that this little essay will help lay the ghost of the "bloated stockholder."

BIGGEST FIFTH COLUMN IN THE WORLD (Christian Economics) MON. JAMES R. UTT, Member of Congress

Our Constitution provides: "This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land."

Hence, any law enacted by Congress pursuant to a treaty becomes the supreme law of the land even though it would otherwise be unconstitutional.

The supremacy of laws under a treaty was clearly set forth in the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1920 in the Missouri v. Holland case wherein a Federal law, otherwise unconstitutional, was held valid because of a treaty between Canada and the United States. This decision clearly held that where there was a conflict between the provisions of our Constitution and the provisions of a treaty, this conflict must be resolved in favor of the treaty. This same doctrine has been extended to include executive agreements.

The result of this situation has been to destroy our limited form of republican government and has denied to each State a republican form of government (as guaranteed by the Constitution) and has supplanted it with a government of unlimited powers which destroys the historical separation of executive, judicial, and legislative branches of our Government. This was certainly never envisioned by the framers of the Constitution.

When the United Nations Charter was submitted to the Senate for ratification, great stress was laid upon Article 2, Subparagraph 7, which states:

"Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter."

I do not believe that the U.S. Senate would have ratified this treaty without relying on the above - quoted paragraph. However, this paragraph has been completely and constantly ignored ever the past 16 years; and every organization, commission, and executive flowing out of the United Nations Charter has been for the sole purpose of intervening in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the member states as well as the several States of our own Union, completely destroying the sovereignty of each State to legislate in contravention of the treaty provisions.

Mr. Moses Moskowitz, a noted internationalist, made the following statement in the American Bar Association Journal of April, 1949 (35 B.A.J. 283, 285):

"Once a matter has become, in one way or another, the subject of regulation by the United Nations, be it by resolution of the General Assembly or by convention between member states at the instance of the United Nations, that subject ceases to be a matter being essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the member states. As a matter of fact, such a position represents the official law of the United Nations, as well as of the member states that have voted in favor of the universal declaration of human rights. Hence, neither the declaration nor the projected covenant, nor any agreement that may be reached in the future on the machinery of implementation of human rights in any way be considered a violation of the letter or spirit of Article 2 of the charter."

Following the the Acheson State Department made this official declaration:

"There is now no longer any real difference between domestic and foreign affairs."

These statements fairly render Article 2, Subparagraph 7, of the charter meaningless.

John Foster Dulles, former Secretary of State, in a speech before the American Bar Association in Louisville, Ky. April 12, 1952, said:

"Treaty law can override the Constitution. . . They (treaties) can cut across the rights given the people by the constitutional Bill of Rights."

This conversion of our limited republic to an unlimited democracy is a death blow to this Nation.

The realization of this tragedy was the reason for the proposal of the Bricker amendment nearly a decade ago. The Bricker amendment simply provided that when there was a conflict between the Constitution of the United States and a treaty, that conflict must be resolved in favor of the Constitution, and yet the Bricker amendment was defeated by a narrow margin under strong propaganda pressure from the Council on Foreign Relations and politicians who gloried in the unlimited power conveyed upon them by the United Nations Charter. There were just too many politicians and too many statesmen.

Now let us look at the record. Trygve Lie, longtime Secretary General of the United Nations, stated flatly that there was a secret agreement between Alger Hiss and Molotov to the effect that the head of the United Nations military staff should always be a Communist. That agreement has never been broken; and we have had a succession of Communists filling that post, the present one being Mr. Arkadov. As a first consequence of this treasonous agreement, this country lost its first military engagement in Korea at a cost . . . of more than $20 billion and 145,000 American casualties, to say nothing of the honor and prestige of this Nation.

This was the first war in which we engaged, not as the United States military force, but as a United Nations force, although we contributed 90 per cent of the men and the money.

How convenient this was to the Communists to have one of their own men as head of the United Nations military staff, who reviewed all orders going from the Pentagon to General MacArthur and gave them to our enemy before General MacArthur received them!

The enemy, which consisted of the Red Communist army and Russian equipment and fliers, was driven back to the Yalu River and given sanctuary on the other side. General MacArthur could have destroyed the enemy in short order had he been permitted to pursue them across the river from whence they came. Because General MacArthur could not in good conscience follow these orders, he was recalled and the Korean war ended in dismal defeat.

We were sold the U.N. on a promise of peace, but we failed to realize that this peace was to be on Communist terms; in fact, it was to be a total victory for the international Communist conspiracy.

The United Nations has not as yet passed a resolution of censorship against Russia for its Hungarian blood bath but rather stood idly by and helped to betray the Hungarian freedom fighters into the hands of Russia. It could not even get a censorship resolution against India for its military invasion of Portuguese enclaves.

In fact, it (the U.N.) has passed no resolutions of condemnation against Russia or any of its satellites or against the so-called neutral countries, but busied itself with resolutions of condemnation against our allies, such as Portugal, Holland, and France.

The power, the honor, and the prestige of America have fallen from their high point in 1945 to an absolute zero today.

The action in Katanga is nothing short of lunacy. The United Nations . . . sent troops into the Congo to prevent self-determination of a civilized and Christian province which did not want to be a part of a Communist - controlled Congo.

Our defeat in the abortive Cuban invasion can be laid on the doorstep of the United Nations, as the United Nations treaty prohibits us from engaging in any military operations without the consent of the United Nations Security Council in which Russia holds the veto power.

If we continue our membership in this organization (the U.N.), you can look to see the Nation condemned for having its naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

You can also look to see us condemned for owning the Panama Canal; and the same 80 votes which threw France out of the legal position in Bizerte can vote us out of Guantanamo and out of Panama. . . . You say this is fantastic? You would have said that the present situation in Cuba was . . . fantastic . . . 16 years ago.

You can expect to see a one-world government, Communist controlled, under the United Nations. You will see the United Nations run up astronomical debts which we, under the terms of the treaty, are bound to pay.

William Z. Foster, former head of the Communist Party, U.S.A., . . . (in his book) Toward a Soviet America . . . gives a complete blueprint of the conquest of America by the international Communist conspiracy. Following are some of the things you may look for under the controlled Communist America as stated by William Z. Foster:

"The final aim of the Communist international is to overthrow world capitalism and replace it by world communism. . . . The Communist Party of the United States . . . is the American section of the Communist international. The Communist international carries out a united revolutionary program on a world scale."

"The American Soviet government will be organized along the broad lines of the Russian Soviets. . . . Under the dictatorship, all the capitalist parties — Republican, Democratic, Progressive, Socialist, etc. — will be liquidated. . . . Likewise, will be dissolved all other organizations — including chambers of commerce, employers' associations, Rotary Club, American Legion, YMCA, and such fraternal orders as the Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, Knights of Columbus, etc. Lawyers will be abolished."

"The press, the motion pictures, the radio, the theater, will be taken over by the Government. . . ."

"Studies will be revolutionized, being cleansed of religious, patriotic, and other features of the bourgeois ideology. . . ."

Lord Beaverbrook noted British publisher said:

"Here in New York City, you Americans have the biggest fifth column in the world — the United Nations."

Excerpt from speech in Congress, Jan. 15, 1962

Your Laundry Posts Northern Loop Win

Your Laundry won over B & B Pharmacy, 11-4 in a Northern little league game Monday night at the Optimist park.

Randy Harris was the winning pitcher with Lannie Roberts in relief. Mike Hughes was the losing pitcher.

Your Laundry had 11 hits while B & B picked up 5.

Cabot downed Sealtest, 11-3 in an Eastern league contest Wednesday night at the Optimist park.

Joe Fritz was the winning pitcher, striking out seven and walking four. Nail was the losing pitcher.

Bobby Chase lead the winners with the timber with a single and a double while Henning paced the losers at bat with a pair of singles.

In another Eastern little league game, Windsor won over Dixie Parts, 12-6.

Stone was the winning pitcher, striking out 11 and walking 7. Carlton was the losing pitcher, striking out 5 and walking 9.

Roach and Stone each tripled with the bases loaded to lead the winners with the timber.

In a pair of Western little league games, Hardin Roth won over Rotary, 7-2, and Mohawk Signs downed C. R. Hoover, 11-5.

George Bailey was the winning pitcher for Hardin Roth with six strikeouts.

Glen Been and Alvin A. Chord lead the winners with the timber. Hardin and Roth is now in first place in the Western loop with a 5-3 record.

West Given Nod In Grid Contest

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The college stars of 1961 who hope to crash the pro ranks this fall meet tonight in the second annual All-American football game with the West, bulwarked by a big strong line, a slight favorite over the offensive-minded East.

"We'll win," Woody Hayes of Ohio State, coach of the underdog East team, predicted. He plans to feature the pro type of ball by using defensive and offensive platoons.

"We'll need them to give us the edge," said Hayes, "because they are bigger than we are and probably tougher. We've looked dull in practice the last few days, but I still think we will win."

Murray Warmath of Minnesota, coach of the West squad, would not predict victory.

"I'm looking for a wide open game," he said. "We're ready, willing and I hope we're able."

He will play, too, but only in the backfield.

Under the rules for this first pre-season gridiron classic, each coach can substitute entire teams twice during a quarter and can "wild card" two men after each play.

"But I'm only going with offensive and defensive backfields," Warmath said. "I'll substitute in the line individually when we switch from offense and defense but not an entire unit."

The West, winner of the first game last year, 30-20, was favored because its front wall will average 240 pounds against 220 for the East.

But I think that West line will give when our big backs hit it," Hayes predicted.

Hayes will start a backfield of Roman Gabriel of North Carolina (228 pounds) at quarter, Ernie Davis of Syracuse (212) and Angelo Dabiero of Notre Dame, a lightweight at 165, at the half-back spots, and Bob Ferguson of Ohio State (224) at fullback.

Warmath will counter with Sandy Stephens of Minnesota at quarter, Bobby Lee Thompson of Arizona and Jim Saxton of Texas at halfback, and Art Perkins of North Texas State at fullback.

On defense Warmath will go with a backfield of Hank Rivers of Oregon State, James Dillard of Oklahoma State, Phil Loyman of Oklahoma and Mack Burton of San Jose State.

Of the 60 players on the two squads, 58 will be trying for berths with pro teams this fall. Twenty-eight of them have signed with National League clubs, 18 with American League teams and 12 with Canadian pro leagues. Only two service academy players, Greg Mather of Navy and Al Roshatz of Army, will not go into the pro field.

David Schaub was the winning pitcher for Mohawk, striking out 8 and allowing but three hits. Don Whitney was the losing pitcher, allowing six hits while striking out nine. The win for Schaub was his fourth against two setbacks.

Schaub lead the winners with two singles while Larry Hasten had a triple to share swat honors. Whitney had a single and a triple to lead the losers at bat.

Mohawk now has an 8-4 record in the Western loop.

Jessen Is Leader In Golf Meet

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (UPI) — Ruth Jessen, a blonde who says she "will never get too old to learn," held a three-stroke lead today going into the second round of the U.S. Women's Open thanks to a golf lesson.

The Seattle, Wash., swinger came off the man-killing Dunes club course Thursday with a par 72 and a new women's competitive record for the lush, 18-hole layout.

But three strokes off the pace lurked long-hitting Mickey Wright — the Arnold Palmer of women's golf.

Mrs. Jacqueline Pung, former U.S. Amateur champion Barbara Romack, and Mrs. Marlene Hagge stalked the leader from 78, four strokes behind.

Miss Jessen had three birdies and three bogies during her round and she credited her sharp shooting to retired professional Harry Preston of California, who travels the tour with the women golfers seven weeks each year.

Miss Jessen and Preston spent several hours on the practice tee earlier in the week and the opening round leader said she planned to return after Thursday's round to "get that swing down pat. I don't want to lose that one."

Mickey is trying for her fourth victory in this seventh open. It would give her a tie with Betsy Rawls, who slipped in the opening round to 86, for the most open championships.

The Wright-Rawls tug-of-war has dominated open play since 1957 with Mickey winning three and Betsy two. But Miss Rawls, from Spartanburg, S.C., has two previous victories.

U.S. Netters Are Greatly Reduced

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — The United States contingent in the singles divisions of the Wimbledon tennis championships today was reduced to five players after only four days of competition.

Frank Froehling, a skinny college student from Coral Gables, Fla., was the lone Yank survivor in the men's singles. Billie Jean Moffitt, Darlene Hard, Karen Hanke Susman and Vicky Palmer were the U.S. representatives in the women's singles.

They were all that remained of the 31 Americans—16 men and 15 women—who started singles play Monday in this ancient tournament, which is recognized as the "World Series" of amateur tennis.

Chuck McKinley of St. Ann Mo., who reached the final of last year's men's singles, bowed out in Wednesday's second round. This calamity was followed Thursday by the elimination of Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., America's No. 1 player, and Davis Cupper Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif.

Rod Laver of Australia, who beat McKinley in last year's final, needed only an hour to outclass Reed, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4. Marty Mulligan, another member of the powerful Aussie team, fought off three match points in outlasting Ralston, 3-7, 9-7, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Casey Stengel and Walt Alton went to the mat — and Casey won — but the Los Angeles Dodgers took over first place in the National League anyway.

If it sounds confusing, it was. The managerial tug-of-war delighted 19,000 fans at Chavez Ravine, who sat for four hours and nine minutes Thursday night before big Frank Howard finally doubled home Jim Gilliam in the 13th inning to give the Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Casey went to work in the eighth inning with the Mets trailing 3-1. Pulling out all the stops, Stengel employed four different pinch hitters and a pinch runner to score three runs and go ahead, 4-3.

The last of Casey's pinch hitters — and his personal favorite — Rod Kanehl, singled home the two runs that put the last-place Mets in front.

Alton wasn't sleeping all this time, either. During that feverish eighth, he relieved starter John Podres with Larry Sherry. When Sherry failed to throttle the rally, Alton brought in Ron Perranoski, and when Perranoski gave up a hit and a walk, Alton again called time and summoned Ed Roebuck from the bullpen. Roebuck proved to be the right choice.

The veteran 30-year-old right-hander blanked the Mets on two hits and struck out six over the last 5 1-3 innings to record his fifth straight triumph without a loss.

Even though the Dodgers tied the score in the bottom of the eighth on Maury Wills' triple and Gilliam's single, Casey had his day in the sun. Wills also stole his 41st base of the season during the contest.

Ken MacKenzie, who relieved Al Jackson in the eighth, was the loser.

Only two other National League games were scheduled, both winding up in the same score and both being marked by the end of five-game winning streaks.

The Philadelphia Phillies knocked the San Francisco Giants out of first place and snapped their five-game winning streak, 7-2, and the Chicago Cubs handed the St. Louis Cardinals their first loss in six games, 7-2.

In the American League, the New York Yankees took over second place and moved within 1 1/2 games of the idle first-place Cleveland Indians with a 4-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Chicago White Sox, 6-0, the Los Angeles Angels hopped all over the Boston Red Sox, 19-7, and the Kansas City A's walloped the Washington Senators, 10-7.

Don Demeter drove in three runs with a pair of homers for the Phillies in their victory over the Giants. After hitting a bases-empty homer in the second inning, Demeter broke a 2-all tie in the seventh when he cracked his 13th homer with Roy Sievers on base.

Both homers came off loser Juan Marichal, now 11-5. Bob Wine and Clayton Dalrymple also homered for the Phils. Southpaw Bill Smith held the Giants scoreless in 7 2-3 innings of relief to gain his first victory.

Ernie Banks drove in three runs for the Cubs with a pair of doubles and Ron Santo added a two-run homer to sink the Cardinals. Rookie Cal Koonce brought his record to 6-2 although he was tapped for 10 hits, including Ken Boyer's 11th homer.

Hawkins Is Leading Western Open Play

CHICAGO (UPI)—Fred Hawkins, the slender Texan looking for his first tournament victory since 1956, led the field into today's second round play of the $5,000 Western Open golf championship.

By his own reckoning, Hawkins owned his pace setting 68 to arrow-true drives on Medina Country Club's pencil thin fairways. He didn't mention his putting which included eight one-stroke greens and carried him to four birdies on the par 71 layout.

"My drives had been getting into the most trouble lately," Hawkins said. "I practiced tee shots all last week and it looks as if it's paying off."

He has been in 18 tournaments this year and his best effort was a second place tie with Bob Goaly in the Los Angeles Open. This was worth $3,325 toward the $9,555 Hawkins has earned since January 1. Hawkins played the type of steady golf required on the heavily wooded course.

An estimated gallery of 5,000 followed Nicklaus and Palmer who were paired in the same threesome along with John Barnum of Belmont, Mich. Nicklaus, who defeated Palmer in the National Open playoff, again outshot his foe, scoring a one under par 70 compared to Palmer's 73.

Only five of the field joined

The M and M boys (remember them?) got back in business in the Yankees' victory over the Twins.

Roger Maris slugged his 14th homer in the fourth inning and Mickey Mantle connected for his 16th in the same frame off loser Jack Kralick, but Elston Howard's double and an error by reliever Lee Stange gave the Yanks what proved to be the winning run in the seventh. Bill Stafford won his seventh with an assist from Marshall Bridges in the eighth.

Steve Barber held the White Sox to eight hits and struck out seven in winning his sixth game for the Orioles. Brooks Robinson hit his 12th homer off loser Dom Zanni in the first inning and then kayoed him with a run-producing single in the third.

Billy Moran helped himself to four hits and Leon Wagner and Bob Rodgers three apiece in the Kansas City A's walloped the Washington Senators, 10-7.

Don Demeter drove in three runs with a pair of homers for the Phillies in their victory over the Giants. After hitting a bases-empty homer in the second inning, Demeter broke a 2-all tie in the seventh when he cracked his 13th homer with Roy Sievers on base.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
On his 1961 visit to Venezuela, President Kennedy said of Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt:

"He has reestablished democratic government after a decade of dictatorship—and he has carried forward a solid and responsible program of economic progress after a decade of false show, waste and indifference to the needs of the people."

Earlier, this correspondent sat in a classroom of skyscraper Caracas University and listened as government officials outlined a program of social and economic reform which was both idealistic and ambitious.

In succeeding months substantial progress has been made, although some of the earlier idealism has been forced to give way to hard reality.

President on Spot
Why, then, is Betancourt forced at all times, whether in his office or dedicating a new public works project, to protect himself against assassination attempts?

Why the noisy street demonstrations by university students and others seeking his overthrow?

They are apt illustration of the problem facing a regime attempting to maintain a democratic government while at the same time battling to correct a chronic Latin American ailment—a lopsided economy with entrenched privileges on the one hand and ignorance and poverty on the other.

On the extreme right are those who regard Betancourt as a secret Communist and who oppose his reforms.

On the extreme left are the Communist and Castro supporters who oppose his policy of peaceful evolution just as much as do the others, but for different reasons.

Dynamite Plot
The rightwing plotted to blow him up with dynamite in 1960 and has participated in at least two other attempts at his overthrow. Similar leftwing attempts have been numerous.

Fortunately for Betancourt, the bulk of the armed forces have remained on his side.

So have the peasants who have taken up machetes to help the government put down recent revolts. So is the bulk of organized labor.

Despite all difficulties and despite the continued activity of rural Communist guerrilla bands, progress continues to be made.

Fifty thousand farm families have been settled on their own land; some 25,000 new housing units at least have made a dent in an appalling housing shortage; the number of schools has been doubled.

Two years ago the government refused to believe that Communist school teachers presented a threat. The appearance of young Communists coming direct from school rooms to riot in the streets has changed the government mind. Now Communist teachers are being weeded out.

Photographer Says Marilyn's Style Now 'Out'

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International
LONDON (UPI) — Whether or not Marilyn Monroe resumes her film career, the vogue for her kind of figure is over — and the man who said so today ought to know.

Like millions of persons, Harrison Marks, one of the world's leading figure photographers, has been studying nude stills of Marilyn taken before she quit her most recent Hollywood film.

Speaking as a man whose own figure studies appear in magazines all over the world and who keeps in close touch with changing tastes and trends, he said: "Marilyn, and for that matter Jayne Mansfield, are what you might call 'one-feature' girls. As long as the photographer was clever enough to concentrate attention on their best feature, the bust, the onlooker didn't worry too much about the rest of the figure."

"But the bust doesn't have the old allure any more. This means the attention of the onlooker is apt to wander these days to hips, paunch, knees or ankles. And in Marilyn's case as these nudes prove, this is definitely not to her advantage."

Marks said pinup photography was like everything else.

"You can fool most of the people most of the time with camera angles and clever lighting, but eventually the day of wisdom arrives. You give them a photograph of a busty beauty—the kind that used to draw open admiration a year or two ago and now they say, 'Hasn't she got thick ankles!'"

"The point is they never used to notice the ankles."

Marks says the Monroe shape has been replaced by "the general figure."

"This is the girl who has everything right or rather in good proportion," he explained. "The ankle bone is just right for the calf bone and the calf bone for the thigh bone and so on. She isn't top heavy or bottom heavy."
