Government Figures List County With Total Of 10,040 Bales Cotton For 1934

Government reports today listed Collingsworth County with 10,040 bales of cotton in their final report for the 1934 season.

The report gave the county a substantial decrease under the 1933 season, in which report the county was listed with a total of 41,394 bales—a decrease of 31,354 bales.

The decreased production, however, has resulted in more income from the sale of surplus Bankhead certificates through the national pool.

Short crops for the past season were attributed primarily to the extensive drouth suffered in this county during the summer months, and producers are looking forward to a bumper year in 1935.

City Sets Week Clean-Up Drive For Wellington

Mayor Issues Proclamation Regarding Clean-Up Fire Prevention

The week of March 30 to April 6, inclusive, has been designated as Spring Fire Prevention Clean-Up Week, according to the announcement of Deskins Wells, mayor, who sums up the situation with the following proclamation:

There are many reasons why the Spring Clean-Up Campaign this year should receive the enthusiastic support of every man, woman and child. First, because the Fire Prevention Clean-Up Campaign this year is of particular importance, as it can be combined with general welfare work and be of particular benefit to the unemployed. Second, because every dollar in property destroyed by fire, which so frequently is the result of "careless" housekeeping in the home and in the average place of business, is a serious drain upon our present economic condition. Third, every citizen should have a wholesome pride in his home city, its streets, playgrounds, parks and buildings. Homes and surroundings freshly painted, with well kept lawns and gardens, increase property values and intensify community interest. Cleanliness creates cheer, courage and confidence. Fourth, because in the past ten years entirely too many of our citizens have lost their lives due to carelessness in their daily use of fire, and the preservation of human life is an important matter.

Now, Therefore, I, Deskins Wells, Mayor of the city of Wellington, do hereby designate the week of March 30th to April 6th, inclusive, as Spring Clean-Up Week and most respectfully call upon all departments of the city, the Chamber of Commerce, Civic Clubs, Patriotic Clubs and our people in general, to take an active part in this Clean-Up campaign.

I further designate the Fire Marshal and Fire Chief as a committee of two to work with the city officials in selecting active committees to carry on this campaign and ask the cooperation of all of our people in this enterprising campaign for a clean city.

In testimony whereof, I hereto ... my name and seal of office, ... 26th day of March, 1935.

Deskins Wells, Mayor
Wellington, Texas.

Special Purpose Life Insurance

By C. F. O'Donnell, President, Southwestern Life Ins. Co.

Since 1928 one hundred billion dollars of life insurance has lapsed or otherwise terminated in the United States. This is the amount of life insurance that was not continued until death or until the maturity of the endowment policies. The lapse figure can be compared with the amount of life insurance which is now in force in the United States which amounts to ninety-eight billion dollars. The comparison suggests the possibility that people might use more care in buying life insurance.

Life insurance companies have a selfish purpose in trying to reduce the high lapsation of life insurance. It is also true that a reduction in the lapses of life insurance would be beneficial for the insurance buying public.

Life insurance companies have found out that insurance which is bought for specific purposes stays in force better than life insurance which is bought without a specific purpose in mind. For that reason the life insurance business has developed plans for special urpose life insurance. Special purpose life insurance may be designed for three principal purposes:

1. To provide an income to a family during the period which is necessary for the rehabilitation of the family following the removal from the family circle of the principal income producer.

2. To provide a monthly life income for a designated person. This designated person may be the widow of the insurance buyer, or the life income may be for the insurance buyer if the insurance buyer lives beyond the working years of life.

3. To provide educational funds for the higher education of children.

The Southwestern Life Insurance Company reports that during the last six years there has been a tenfold increase in the use of life insurance for special purposes.

The argument for special purpose life insurance is not only that it will reduce the lapses of life insurance but also that it will conserve the proceeds of life insurance that have been accumulated from savings resulting from the unselfish sacrifices of many millions of life insurance buyers.

Countless illustrations could be used to indicate the advisability of conserving the proceeds of life insurance. One illustration will be used here. A survey of two hundred people that invested $10,000 in 1928 and 1929 shows that eight and one-half per cent of these people increased the value of their investment, ten and one-half per cent broke even, and 81 per cent suffered an average loss of $5,875. The average annual income to these two hundred people during the last three years has been 2.04 per cent.

Life insurance companies guarantee 3 or 3 1-2 per cent on the proceeds of life insurance policies, and it is customary to increase this average annual return. Beneficiaries are now receiving anywhere from 4 to 5 per cent on the proceeds of life insurance that have been left with life insurance companies for conservation.

J. M. Holland is the Southwestern Life representative in this county. He would like to talk over with any one wishing the service of the company in fixing a trust agreement; so in case of death the funds from the life policies could be left with them to be paid by them over a period of years or guarantee for the life of the beneficiary. These funds have a guarantee of three and one-half per cent interest. If the company is able to keep their present rate of interest, they will be able to pay from four to five per cent on money left with them.

Your Beautiful New Car!

You have resolved to keep it looking like new —now resolve to keep it running like new!

CONOCO

YOUR new car has bearing pressures and crankcase temperatures undreamed of ten years ago! To protect it, you need oil with enough oiliness and film strength to withstand these new conditions.

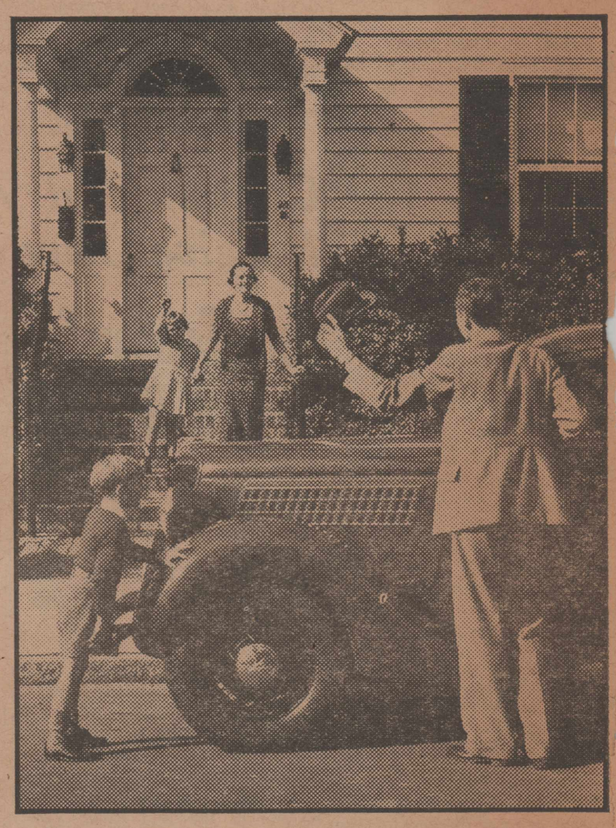

Straight mineral oils have no more oiliness and film strength today than they had ten years ago. Some are so over-refined by new processes to eliminate carbon and sludge that they have been robbed of the oiliness and film strength they must have to give safe lubrication.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil will help you keep your new car new because it is custom-made for it! It offers you these advantages, so vital for full protection of today's high-powered motors—

1. Better protection of closely fitted parts under extreme pressure. Reason: The Germ Process (adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil) gives this oil 2 to 4 times greater film strength than oils not Germ Processed. Proof: Tests on Timken, Almen and other machines that measure film strength.

2. Cuts down starting-period wear that other oils cannot prevent. Reason: Germ Processed Oil penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, forming a "Hidden Quart" that never drains away. Proof: Hundreds of "dry-crankcase runs," in which cars using Germ Processed Oil were driven 15 to 75 miles with the crankcase empty but without damage.

3. Extra long mileage. Reason: Greater oiliness and stability under all conditions. Proof: The Indianapolis Destruction Test, in which a stock car ran 4,729 miles at 50 miles an hour on exactly 5 quarts, none added—1,410 miles farther than the best of five competitors.

4. No carbon or sludge troubles. Reason: New refining processes assure a clean, pure oil. Proof: 963,000 miles of official road tests, followed by millions of trouble-free miles driven by users of Germ Processed Oil.

We believe Conoco Germ Processed Oil is the best lubricant you can put in your new car. We hope you, too, will say, "O.K.—Drain!"

Freed Of Politics, The Rangers, Texas' 'Royal Mounties,' Will Riae Again

After two years, during whch their star seemed an the wane, the Texas Rangers are overcoming the toughest foe they have ever faced—politics. Aided by the present governor of the Lone Star state, the glorious tradition of the "gentlemen in the white hats" may glow on into the future, undimmed.

Women have no place in the harsh world of the Rangers. Nevertheless, it was a woman who threatened to end their colorful saga, woven throughout a century into Texas' very fabric.

Upon her entrance into office in 1933, Governor Miriam Ferguson, as one of her first official acts, all but wiped clean the roster of oldtime Rangers. Then special Ranger commissions were extended generously; so freely, in fact, that some 1600 commissions were held by Texans, in many instances, by dance hall "bouncers," traffic officers, guards at horse and dog tracks, and their ilk.

Brave. perhaps, most of these pseudo Rangers are, but they're still a far cry from the little band of men who swept west Texas clean of marauding Indians, thieving Mexicans and murderous outlaws in the state's early days.

And in canceling these special commissions and confining Ranger personnel to hard-riding, sure-shooting men, Go. James V. Allmoll died at the hands of a formred's adjutant is reviving Texas equivalent of Canada's Royal Mounted Police.

Nearly a century ago a west Texas settler lived precariously. Some years before, the wild Commanche and Kiowa tribes had merged for a war on the intruding whites. Their unchecked raids and massacres set the stage for the organization of the Rangers, at San Felipe de Austin, Texas, in 1835. The men selected were only those "who could ride like Mexicans, trail like Indians and shoot like outlaws."

The lances of the red men proved no match for the rifle of their new enemy. After subduing the tribes, the fearless, straight-shooting Rangers turned their attention to Mexican cattle thieves.

These swarthy rustlers learned quickly that the way of the transgressor was hard, and that it was wise to stay on their own side of the border.

After Mexican interlopers were routed, American outlaws, fugitives from other states, began to infest west Texas. The job of stamping out these unruly hombres has continued until the present day.

It was just recently, remember, that Clyde Barrow and his gun er Ranger captain, doughty Frank Hamer, who clung doggedly to the desperado's track until he got his man.

Texas evildoers for long have held the Rangers in monumental awe. This, perhaps more than anytring else, explains why a band of 50 men was able to maintain law and order over a great, wild and mountainous country.

A story that has become a classic tells of a mayor of a small Texas town, who fearing trouble, sent for the Rangers. Soon afterward, a lone Ranger stepped off the train.

"Where are the others?" cried the frantic mayor.

"You've got only one riot, haven't you?"

An anecdote that explains why the Rangers played such an important part in Texas history; a role which, it seems now, will be continued.

County H. D. Agent

Removes "Dust Catchers"

"It really was a pleasure to see what a difference in appearance I could make in my bedroom by just removing dust catchers," says Mrs. Charlie Graham, bedroom demonstrator of the Lillie Home Demonstration Club. First the paper flowers, floor vases, two or three years old calendars were burned. Even though the accessories now are simple, they express more life and personality and take less care in cleaning. The imitation accessories have been replaced by growing flowers and articles that are used daily.

Closet Costs $2.00

"Without a place for my clothes to be protected during these sandstorms, I immediately made plans for a clothes closet at the cost of $2.00," says Mrs. Georgie Bartlett, wardrobe demonstrator of the Lillie Home Demonstration Club. "A rod for hanging and shelves for storage of underwear, a slanting shelf for shoes and hat racks for my hats, makes the problems of cleaning my home each morning so much easier," says Mrs. Bartlett.

Adds Storage Space

By placing two pieces of heavy cardboard together and covering it with building paper, Mrs. Tom Harwell, member of the Lillie Home Demonstration Club has made her small amount of storage space serve the family needs more adequately without any expense.

An easy way to tack the pasteboard in the drawer is to turn under one inch of cardboard and tack, then turn the cardboard in the opposite direction at the other end.

Notes About Sheets

"I am now convinced that it is not economy to buy short sheets," says Mrs. Jewell Roberts, bed demonstrator of the Houselog Home Demonstration Club.

"All of my old sheets have been pieced out until they are three yards long when they are finished with a three-inch hem at both ends of the sheets," says Mrs. Roberts. By having the hems the same width the ends may be interchanged so that the sheet wears more evenly. The flat fell seam is used in piecing and it is hardly noticable and the sheets are long enough to tuck well under the mattress to furnish protection.

Uses Scrap Lumber

"From a scrap lumber piece around the place, I am now enjoying the use of a sleeve board," says Mrs. Felix Keller, wardrobe demonstrator of the Crossroads Home Demonstration Club.

For the top of the sleeve board Mrs. Keller sawed a piece four and one-half inches at the widest part tapering to one and three-fourth inches at the narrowest end. This piece of lumber was 20 inches in length and rounded at both ends. The base is the same shape but a little larger—five and one-half inches at widest end tapering to two inches at narrowest end with a length of 22 inches.

The two pieces of lumber were joined four and one-half inches from the widest end of the eleeve board by a three and one-half inch block.

To Organize Club

Womens Home Demonstration Club will be organized at Dodsonville April 6 at 2:30 at the school building.

FORD V·8

In A Class By Itself

THERE is no way to compare the Ford V-8 with any other car because there is no other car like it.

The Ford enables you to step up into the fine-car class in performance, beauty, comfort and safety. But there is no stepping up in price. That is kept down by Ford low-profit policies and unique manufacturing methods. These are as different as the car itself.

It takes eight cylinders to give the modern performance you need these days. The Ford is powered by a V-8 — the finest type of eight-cylinder engine. You have to pay more than $2000 for that in any other car.

Local Firm Gets Certificate On Fire Prevention

State Fire Insurance Commissioner Lauds Work Of Wellington Firm

For the second consecutive year Wells and O'Neil, local insurance firm, has been awarded a certificate of distinction for having shown the lowest ratio of fire losses in Wellington.

The announcement of the award was made this week by Raymond S. Mauk, fire insurance commissioner. Wells and O'Neil was presented with a similar certificate last year.

"It is our pleasure to inform you that your office is entitled to this distinctive award for your city," Mr. Mauk wrote, "and we extend our hearty congratulations. We sincerely trust this thih honor will stimulate your every effort for a continuance of your good record."

In regard to the award Mr. Mauk said that the state has been divided into three classes, varying according to the size of the city or town, the amount of premiums collected and a loss ratio of less than 40 per cent.

Last year Wellington saw a 15 per cent fire insurance penalty eliminated, this year it was announced that Wellington was entitled to a 15 per cent credit on fire insurance key rates.

Wells and O'Neil also extended their appreciation to the Fire Prevention board of Wellington for the work done since the appointment of the board in 1933 and stated that educational and preventative work through this board had been important in bringing a lower key rate to the insurance buyers of the city.

The present partnership of the firm, Morris Wells and Lee C. O'Neil, was formed in January of 1935, being successors to the partnership of Wells and Halcomb. During recent years the firm has grown and flourished with the town, and at the present time has reached a point where it is recognized as an outstanding insurance and abstract plant in the state.

Woman, 60, Who Carried Fortune On Train Is Placed In Hospital

A 60-year-old woman who identified herself as Mrs. Isabel McHie of Hammond, Ind., was placed in a hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. last week while police held for safekeeping her casket of jewels and $173,505 in currency which she carried with her in a railroad coach.

Train officials asked that she be taken from the train after they reported she attempted to stuff part of the money into a coach ventilator. The currency, together with the jewels which officers said might be worth as much as $500,000, was being held at night by Police Chief Hugh Gordon for safekeeping. The jewel case contained a number of rings, brooches, necklaces and watches, which Capt. Herbert Block of the railroad's detective force said had not been formally appraised.

Police Chief Gordon said he received a communication from Mrs. Eugene Ahbos of Hammond saying she is Mrs. McHie's daughter and will come here to take charge of her mother.

In papers carried by the woman police found the name of Sidmon McHie. At the office of McHie, publisher of the Hammond Times, it was said he was out of the city, that divorce proceedings between the couple were pending and a property settlement had been effected.

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

During the past week, a lot of people have been asking me if the City is bluffing about its plans of installing a municipal gas system in Wellington. The City council is not bluffing. Its members are advising the people of Wellington not to get their hopes up too high. The reason for this is simple. The Council itself does not know whether or not the plans can be carried out successfully. It all depends upon whether or not satisfactory bids are received. If they are not satisfactory, the Council will drop the present plans and start all over again. But I can tell you this, its members are not bluffing.

The Council was under the impression, last year, that lower rates might be granted the people of Wellington voluntarily. Laboring under this notion, they did nothing for a number of months, and it is possible that their efforts would have come to naught if they had tried. Finally, however, the Council decided that the miracle of voluntary lower rates would never become a reality in Wellington. Because of this they have started to work. The present effort is not expected to amount toward getting lower rates from the present distributing system. It is directed toward the end of installing a municipal gas distribution system with its immediate lower rates to the consumers and its ultimate realization of a tax-free city in the course of years. This writer will have to say, outside of advising the people not to hope too much until the Council gets further along with its program, is all I know besides the usual technical and legal difficulties along the way. While these have been anticipated they are of such a nature that they have to be worked out as they come along. You can depend on this writer. I will let you know when I begin to entertain high hopes myself.

Tom Johnston—my favorite [illegible] since the days of M. E. Tweedy—stopped me the other day and said he wanted two dollars. He had such a determined look on his face that I promptly handed him over the two dollars. Before I had done it, however, I got curious enough to ask what he was going to do with it, so I asked him. He replied that he was going to send it down to pay on a grudge against McMurray College. When he told me that I disagreed with my views. Part of them believe that this state needed only one denominational school of each denomination such as S. M. U. and Baylor, and that the smaller ones ought to be left to work out their own salvation and stand on their own feet. The result of such a course is fairly obvious to everyone—even to me and Tom Johnston. They would not exist very long. When Tom Johnston heard that, you should have seen him come unwound. He launched into a lecture that would have been an hour in length. I didn't wait to hear the end of it, but tore out and left him talking to Joe Hardy.

On April 20 and 21, Wellington will have the opportunity of entertaining representatives of the Eighteenth District of the American Legion. It is an occasion that should be remembered by the people of Wellington. Lee C. Neal, Commander of the Frank Wing Post, has made elaborate plans for a successful meeting. He has enlisted the services of a group of very able men, who will give their best effort toward making the meeting a success. The work of the various committees will be well done. The finishing touch can be added by the people of Wellington.

It is estimated that 800 people will visit Wellington for the Convention. Slightly over half of these are those same boys who laid aside their uniforms seventeen years ago to take up their duties as citizens. Then they were raw youngsters. Many of them bore the scars, some of which were not physical, that were to remain with them as long as they lived. They faced a changed world, and they were forced to adjust themselves to it. How well they accomplished this task is best recorded by the fact that today many of them are the leaders in their communities where they live. From the standpoint of justice, Wellington and Collingsworth County should feel proud to welcome them for the work they did in 1917-18. But there is an immediate selfish angle to be considered and everybody, nowadays seems interested in that sort of thing. These representatives, by the positions they hold in their communities, can exert a tremendous bearing on the impression that the Panhandle and the rest of the state will have about Wellington. And I can tell you that the opinion of other people is important to the welfare of a town and county just as it is to an individual.

For these reasons Wellington and Collingsworth County will have an opportunity to make a name for themselves on April 20 and 21. It is up to us to do our best to make a favorable impression. It can be done by hospitality and friendliness. Although Wellington is out of the way from the standpoint of transportation, the Legionaires were glad to come back due to the work that was done in 1930. Let's resolve now to treat them better in 1935. I know of no better way of helping ourselves and our community.

Knitted Clothing Proves Popular

DENTON, Texas.—With suits playing such an important part in the spring wardrobe and the March days getting just a little hotter, the fashion eye turns to something smart yet comfortable for daytime wear. And as usual just the right thing makes an appearance—knitted suits!

Girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) are parading knitted wear. In boucle, yarn and string, these charming two-piece frocks seem to stand the test of correct attire for any occasion. For the "dress up" affair, the suits are made with rolled collars that have silk velvet bows tied at the neck. Intricate knitting designs make yokes for the top part of the blouse and slightly puffed sleeves and a narrow belt with glass buckles are featured.

Sporty occasions call for a more tailored suit, and brilliant yarns enter the parade as most suitable for frocks of this kind. All sorts of designs can be woven into the pattern of a simple sport dress, and contrasting yarn makes smart trimming for the neck and short sleeves, when used in combination with yarns of several hues. These combinations of yarns can also be used most effectively as streamer belts.

Another new feature in knitted suits is the "string" frock made from twine dyed in brilliant colors. These frocks, too, make ideal costumes for afternoon and semi-sport occasions. They can be effectively trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in dark tones, and are particularly smart when worn with dark accessories.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Dimmitt: One hundred lambs are being fed for the 1935 Easter market by Collin Walton of Castro County whose successful feeding enabled him to win the grand championship with his load of 88 winter lambs at a stock show in Fort Worth last year, according to E. W. Thomas, county agricultural agent.

Because of unusual skill in feeding and the use of Southdown bucks on Dambouillet ewes, Walton's lambs weighted 86 1-2 pounds at the age of five months. The lambs were dropped mostly in October and run on wheat pasture with the ewes until the last 30 days before the snow. They were fed threshed milo, oats and spelt in self-feeders until the latter part of the feeding period when they were fed ground feed twice daily. The lambs had free access to a mixture of equal parts of salt and bone meal and were fed bundle sorghum along with their rams when taken off the wheat.

The 88 lambs consumed 7,200 pounds threshed milo, 1600 pounds oats and spelt, and 748 pounds cotton seed cake which all cost $81.22. Walton sold 50 head weighing 90 pounds at 14 cents making $630.00, and 38 head weighing 82 pounds at 10 cents making $311.60, totaling $940.60 for the lot.

Marlin: From nine rows of plowed-up cotton land planted to black eyed peas and pinto beans in 1934, Mrs. B. L. Powell, of the Lamar Home Demonstration Club in Falls County canned 100 No. 3 containers for her pantry, according to Miss Virginia King, home demonstration agent. To fill her food budget for the year Mrs. Powell also canned 185 containers of leafy vegetables, 100 cans of corn, 59 cans of succulent vegetables, 65 quarts of fruits and fruit juices, 131 cans of tomatoes and tomato juice, 20 cans of meat, 86 quarts of preserves and jelly, 45 jars of pickles and relishes, and made 20 pounds of cheese. Her pantry is valued at $227.49.

McKinney: As part of her yard improvement work, Mrs. Bart Bryant of Collin County had a man and team plow the bed where screen plantings to hide the outbuildings on the farm were to be set, according to Miss Helen Dunlap, home demonstration agent. The plants were cultivated carefully about every 10 days and particularly just after rains. Mrs. Bryant also made a cement tile cutting bed as part of her yard improvement work and she now has 105 cuttings ready for transplanting.

Stolen Articles Secured Tuesday Following Raid

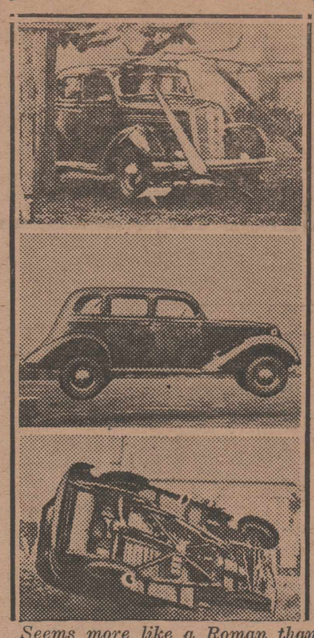

M. C. Pigg Identifies Stolen Goods; McKinney In Childress Raid

Stolen articles belonging to M. C. Pigg, south of here, and to Mr. Hyman of the Lutie Community were recovered Tuesday by Sheriff C. E. McKinney and a group of peace officers of the Panhandle, when they raided a place at Childress and arrested seven men.

Sheriff McKinney reported that articles were identified from Wellington, Vernon, Clarendon, Quanah and other points over this section and said that he believed the men jailed were operating a theft ring.

Among the items identified by Mr. and Mrs. Pigg were a trunk, dresses, quilts, towels, shirts and trousers. Many empty cans and bones also indicated that the men had taken cured and canned meat in their thefts. Mr. Pigg and Mr. Hyman stated that they recognized cans as those stolen from their places, which a Vernon man identified cured meat remnants.

AN OLD-TIME AUCTION

Interesting sidelights on the manners and customs of by-gone days are found in old newspapers and advertisements, one of which was recently reproduced by an exchange, which quotes a public sale announcement published at Versailles, Ky., 86 years ago, as follows:

"Having sold my farm, and as I am leaving for Oregon Territory by oxen team on March 1, 1849, I will sell all my personal property, except two oxen teams (Ben and Buck, and Lon and Jerry), consisting of the following:

"Two milk cows, 1 grey mare and colt, 1 pair oxen, 1 yoke, 1 baby yolk and 2 ox carts, 1 iron plow with wood mold board, 800 feet of weatherboards, 1500 fence rails, 1 60-gallon soap kettle, 85 sugar troughs, 10 gallons maple syrup, 140-gallon copper still, 2 spinning wheels, 30 pounds tallow, 1 large loom, 300 poles, 100 split hoops, 100 empty barrels, 4 sides leather, 12 wooden pitchforks, half interest in tan yard, 1 rifle with bullet molds and powder horn, soft soap, bacon, hams, lard, molasses, 6 head of fox hounds, all soft mouthed but one.

"Also 6 negro slaves, 2 men, 2 boys and 2 mulatto wenches,all together in one party, as I will not separate them.

Sale will begin at 8 a. m. Plenty to eat and drink."

Some may wonder why anyone possessed of large and varied assortment of worldly goods listed should have wanted to leave Kentucky.

ARMY CAMELS

Few persons know that once the United States Army employed camels as a means of transportation in the Southwest. The story if the experiment is interesting.

With a view to overcoming the difficulties of traversing the great American desert before there were any transcontinental railroads or highways, 75 camels were brought from Egypt and Asia Minor in 1856 by the War Department, while Jefferson Davis was Secretary of War.

The camels performed satisfactorily, but the Army "mule kinners" did not like the beasts, besides they frightened the Army horses and mules into a stampede on slight provocation. Before the experiment had progressed very far the Civvil War broke out and the project was abandoned, some of the animals being sold to circuses, while others were turned loose. Some of these, grown wild, were seen in Arizona as late as 1909, and some believe that a herd still exists in the uninhabited wastes of that region.

CHICAGO TUNNELS

Aside from those concerned with their operation and use, few persons perhaps have any idea of Chicago's great tunnel system, whose primary purpose is the handling of freight. It has 62 miles of underground railroad track, over which some 300 electric trains a day transport package freight between commercial houses and the railroad terminals.

Strangely enough, this vast network of tunnels began about 35 years ago with excavations for a telephone conduit, on the site of a saloon, by permission of the city council. Gradually the idea extended to underground transportation, and in 1907 the first system was put into operation.

At its peak in 1929 the tunnels were handling about 650,000 tons of package freight and more than 400,000 tons of coal, cinders and excavated material annually. Traffic is now about one-third less than that.

In 11 places the tunnels dive under the river, 60 feet below the surface. In the business district the tops of the tunnels are 33 feet below the streets.

It is estimated that without these tunnels 5,000 trucks would have to be added to the street traffic. And anyone who has tried to navigate in the Loop district on a busy day can imagine what that would mean.

X-RAY'S DISCOVERER

Ninety years ago on March 27 Wilhelm Konrad Rontgen was born in Prussia, destined to become one of the greatest benefactors of mankind, for it was he who in 1895, at the age of 50, discovered the invaluable X-rays, and gave his discovery to the world.

Even in the comparatively short period of 40 years since X-rays have been known and utilized, the number of lives that have been saved and the amount of human suffering that has been averted are incalculable. The employment of this wonderful phenomenon in medicine and surgery is now so commonplace as to excite little comment, but its importance is universally recognized.

In surgery, X-rays were first used principally to detect the presence of foreign substances, such as bullets, in the body. But developments in their use have led to their successful employment in the diagnosis and treatment of many injuries and diseases, and for other useful purposes.

For his epochal discovery, Prof. Rontgen received the highest scientific honors, including the Rumford medal of the Royal Society of London, the Barnard medal of Columbia University in New York, which was awarded in 1900 for the greatest scientific discovery of the preceding five years, and in 1901 the Nobel prize in physics.

Rontgen died in 1923, but his name will live forever among those of Jenner, Lister, Pasteur and other immortals, whose labors in behalf of suffering humanity entitle them to everlasting gratitude.

A late invention is a "radio traffic cop." Being a machine, it may work.

The Story Of The Bible Told In Pictures

The AGONY AT GETHSEMANE.—"Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, sit ye here, while I go and pray wonder. Then saith He unto them, My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death; tarry ye here, and watch with Me. He went a little further, and fell on His face, and prayed. And He cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and said unto Peter; What, could ye not watch with Me one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O My Father, if this cup may not pass away from Me, except I drink it, Thy will be done. And He came and found them asleep again; for their eyes were heavy. And He left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words. Then cometh He to His disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest; behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. Rise, let us be gone; behold, he is at hand that doth betray Me. And while He yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priest and elders of the people." Matt. 26:30-47. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625-1630.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

Our last week's article gave a considerable discussion on the early foundation of the Texas educational system and provisions made for it by grants of public land.

The oldest school in Texas today of higher education is Baylor University at Waco, but the first college estabilshed in Texas was the Ruttersville College, during the days of the Texas Republic. It was established at Ruttersville in 1838-40 by the Methodists.

It was in the good old days when everyone agreed that the best place for the education of youth was as far away from populous centers as possible as to escape the atmosphere of temptations.

The spot selected in this instance was in the virgin forests of Fayette County, about four miles from the present town of LaGrange, where a community was laid out and a number of old Methodist families moved in and settled.

The place was called Ruttersville, the village and college being named in honor of Dr. Martin Rutter. Rev. Chauncey Richardson, a native of Vermont but lately president of Tuscumbia Female College in Alabama, was chosen president of the college.

The institution opened its doors in February, 1840, with about 25 students in attendance. The Congress of the Republic of Texas granted a charter and gave the school four leagues of land (17,776 acres). Robert Alexander, John W. Kenney and a few others were the prime movers in the founding of this first college.

It thrived for many years, but as other schools opened elsewhere many moved from Ruttersville College and many of the old timers died the institution began to decline. Just prior to the Civil War it passed into private hands and came to be operated as a military school.

The local advantages of Ruttersville as a seat of education were distinguished. It occupied a central portion in the Republic and it was remarkable for the purity of its atmosphere, the healthfulness of its climate, and its picturesque scenery, as for the virtue, intelligence, and enterprise of its society. By a wise regulation, all establishments for the sale of intoxicating drinks, or for gaming of any description were forever excluded from the town.

Ruttersville College boasted a faculty of the Rev. C. Richardson, President, Charles W. Thomas, tutor, and Mrs. M. G. Richardson as preceptress. Vacations were given for one week preceding the first of February and nine weeks preceding the first of September.

Elementary studies, per term, were $13.00 each, and the higher studies were $20.00 without foreign language, and $25.00 with a foreign language. Board was $12.50 per term.

President Lamar's policy of the Texas Republic were carried out in this institution of learning and

Value Of Peter's Life, Letters

Text: I Peter 5:6-11; I Peter 3:14-18

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 31.

The nature of Christian life, with all its weaknesses and failures hopes and aspirations, and emergence to triumph through the power of God, are brought to us in a rich and fruitful study, through the 12 lessons of this quarter which have centered around the life and teachings of Peter.

Our lessons begin with Peter's conversion and call. We must put together various passages of scripture if we would get the full story, and even then we have only glimpses of it.

From one account we might imagine that Jesus came as a complete stranger where Peter was by the Sea of Galilee mending his nets, and that in the very moment of Jesus' call he left his nets and followed Jesus. The story as it is given in the first chapter of John, however, adds a great deal to that and explains it.

There we have the record of Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, meeting Jesus and becoming so impressed with his truth and teaching that he goes and finds Peter and brings him to Jesus. It is probable that Peter may have had a number of such contacts with Jesus before the final call in response to which he left his nets.

Discernment of the greatness of the Master, to whom Peter gave himself, was early acknowledged in his great confession. Jesus was indeed for Peter the Christ, or the Messiah, the Son of God.

Such a recognition and such a relationship might well have enlarged Peter's vision and so strengthened his will that he would have been secure against any temptation. Yet we find him so lacking in the simplicities of love in human relationships that Jesus must give him a lesson in humble service, and we also find him denying his Master in the most fragrant way.

It was well for Peter that there was a love of God that followed him in spite of his weakness, and that restored him to a place in faith and discipleship. With this restoration came a new Peter doing his part in the founding of the Christian church as he preached at Pentecost when many were saved.

Henceforth in the lessons of the quarter, we are face to face with Peter's teaching and example as a faithful servant of Jesus Christ. We listen to him as he laid emphasis upon good citizenship and the disciplines of the Christian life.

We are with him as he healed the lame man at the gate of the temple, and we discern him as he unmasks falsehood and hypocrisy in the early church, dealing with those who profess to give to God what they actually withhold, and with those who would buy the gift of grace.

We see Peter saved from narrow religious and racial prejudices, preaching to the Gentiles. We follow him in his miraculous deliverance from prison, and in the final lesson we listen to the flowering of his teaching concerning practical living as he describes, partly in his own terms and partly in language derived from the Jewish scriptures, the nature and reality of the Christian life.

It has been a quarter's lesson concerning vital truths centered in a remarkable personality—a man of impetuous zeal, crucial weakness and of God-given strength of achievement.

WELLINGTON — People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

By Jimmie Gillentine

Now that we have had a few showers I suppose that it will be reasonably safe to again approach the subject of sand storms.

It Must Have Been A Gale

M. M. Kern is another man who is stumped by the present type of dust storm in this section. He relates that he never before saw anything like our 1935 dust storms. He also tells about a West Texas farmer who tied his horse to a tree limb and while the man was gone a sandstorm blew up. He says that when the man returned, he found the neck of the horse broken because the sand had blown out from under the animal.

Fleet Pruden was telling me about a Dalhart man getting hit on the head by a drop of rain—and he said that the shock proved so great for the man that his neighbors had to give him three buckets of sand to revive him.

Here Is A Rain Expert

That is absolutely all I am going to say about sandstorms this week. On the other hand I want to extend my respects to Pink Sullivan as a rain forecaster. He is about the best I have ever been priviledged to see. It may have been just luck, but he sure has been hitting the nail on the head. Pink not only predicted the time for the rains, but he also predicted them in about their exact amounts which fell in this county. So if you want to know when it is going to rain again just ask Pink.

I want to take off my hat to Leldon Hudson. That boy is really setting a record at Texas Tech.

Student Has Good Record

I guess most of you read last week about how Leldon is making his own way with a little bunch of cows. All of which is fine, but lots of boys make their own way through school. However, Leldon not only makes his way without a thin dime from home but he also manages to do well in his class work and finds time to enter into many of the school activities. He placed high on the Tech judging team—and Alvin Horton tells me that he is also an accomplished wrestler. All of these activities naturally take quite a bit of time and any boy who can do all of these things is certainly due a big hand from the people back in his home town.

The baseball directors have this year advanced a policy which I believe to be indeed a wise one.

A Good Idea About Baseball

The directors said that the younger boys would be encouraged to come out for the team and that a special day would be set aside each week in which the boys might compete, side by side, with the regular team members. Of course, if any of the boys do exceptionally well they will be placed on the regular team—if not, they will receive some good training and experience at the hands of the regular players. I am for this movement because I feel that it is a step in the right direction for the continuation of baseball, the great American game.

I think that the directors are doing something which every team in the nation should do. Besides, you never can tell when a good player will develop from the boys and Collingsworth County has certainly turned out some good ball players in past years.

Historical Exhibits

Have you thought about entering some of your historical relics in the Pre-Centennial display to be held here in April, Miss Annie Mae Donaghey, home demonstration agent, tells me that quite a few articles have already been entered and I am looking forward to seeing some really interesting and unusual displays. They have fixed things so that people will not handle the articles and so that the articles will be safe.

I am especially interested in seeing the exhibits of cattle brands, old guns, dishes, and crockery, and I feel sure that there is an abundance of such items in this county.

By pledging herself not to marry for five years, Miss Leah Gertrude Greenwood of San Francisco qualified for an inheritance of $9,000.

President OK's War Draft Plan To Enlist Rich

Roosevelt Favors Suggestion To Put Millionaires On Front Line

WASHINGTON—Senate Munitions Committee members reported from the White House last week that President Roosevelt appeared to approve their plan to eliminate war profits, including a drastic proposal to draft high salaried industrialists at army pay levels.

The group, headed by Senator Nye (Rep.) of Indiana, informed the President that the drafting of this legislative program, founded on data assembled during the months-old inquiry, will be completed in three weeks.

There were indications this program will follow the outlines of the plan proposed before the committee by John T. Flynn, New York attorney and writer, although his suggestions were not formally adopted. He advocated clapping military regulations on every essential war time industry and its officials, and for taxing earning and salaries until virtually no war profits remained.

Drastic Suggestions

Several of the Committee members heartily indorsed Flynn's plan and Nye said after his visit to the White House, they apparently represented the views of all the group.

The plan included proposals to:

Take in war time 50 percent of the first 6% profits of corporations, and 100 percent on all over that in excess profits.

Limit all individual incomes to $10,000 and to take all over that in income taxes.

Impose income taxes on everyone from $1,000 up in sufficient amount to cover war expenses.

Assess and collect income taxes quarterly out of income as it is made.

Check numerous known methods of defeating income tax levies.

Publicide all salaries immediately on declaration of war.

Institute an industrial management draft—all general officers of corporations to be registered in a draft of management and when deemed necessary inducted into military forces of the United States.

Close all commodity exchanges; forbid speculation in commodities; fix commodity prices at proper parities and allocate to essential processors.

Regulate all new private financing through a war time finance agency.

A war finance corporation to assist in financing of essential war industries.

Commandeering of essential industries and services.

Licensing industries, establishment of priorities in purchasing and when essential, Flynn said: 'We propose that in the higher brackets it will rise swiftly and that above $10,000 a year for the individual the rate will be 100 per cent. No man or woman in the emergency of war can have a reasonable right to complain that he or she is forced to get along upon the income which is paid to a commanding General."

Grace Case Cited

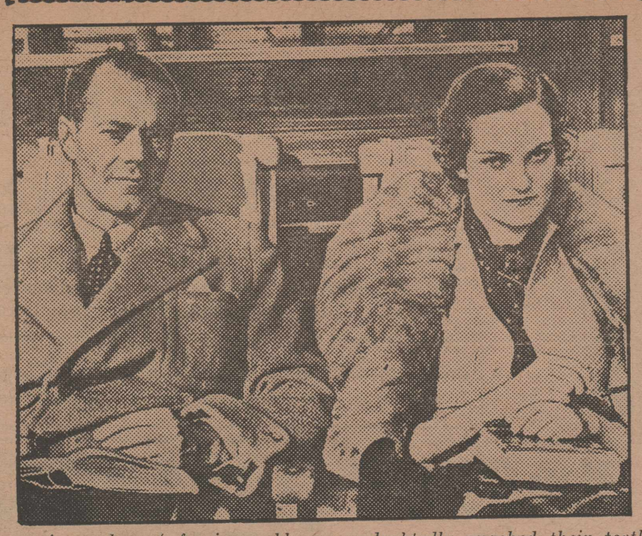

To be developed is a plan dealing with profits in war supplies during peace time in an effort to prevent war.

Flynn brought a ripple of applause from spectators when he cited Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, as an example of an industrialist, who would be subject to draft in war time.

"And he would either make steel or be court martialed," commented Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri.

Grace drew attention when he testified he received $2,800,000 in bonuses during the World War. He opposed committee suggestions that the Government take over industry in case of conflict.

'Richest Girl" On Honeymoon

A number of foreign noblemen undoubtedly gnashed their teeth when a certain American Duke visited their countries. And you can hardly blame them! Poverty And Fear Of Indian Raids Were Major Problems In Early Texas

(Note: The following is one of a series of weekly articles taken from the Bexar Archives at The University of Texas. This collection, considered the greatest single historical treasure on the North American continent, has been catalogued and is now being translated by The University of Texas. It consists of 400,000 pages of original Spanish handwritten documents comprising the official archives of the Mexican government for the Department of Bexar, which covered almost the whole of what is now the State of Texas, for the period from 1731, soon after Texas became a separate province of Mexico, to 1836, to the Battle of San Jacinto. This series of articles will consist principally of quotations from the documents,, many of which have heretofore been unpublished, and will reveal for the first time what actually transformed from a wilderness inhabited only by savage Indian tribes to an independent American republic.)

AUSTIN, Texas—There were two rocks—the Scylla and Charybdes—against which the Spanish ship of State shattered, namely, depression and the savage and unconquerable Indian tribes, it is indicated in the official records of that government for the Department of Texas. These records, known as the Bexar Archives, are in possession of the University of Texas library, and are now being translated for the first time.

Cattle Ate Early Crops

Poverty was ever present, the fear of the Indians ever in the thoughts of the pioneers who formed the little civil settlement at San Antonio de Bexar. When the settlers sought to undertake improvements in their new habitat, depredations were always in the offing. Unfenced corn crops and unherded cattle could not exist at the same time, in the same place. The valleys were broad, the lains boundless—but the settlers by circumstances beyond their control, were denied their use. They were hemmed up within the town and the open spaces in the immediate vicinity of San Antonio by Indian arrow and tomahawk.

The discouraging conditions are stated succinctly and dramatically in a series of documents dated 1737. A new Spanish governor, Don Joseph Antonio Fernandez de Jaurregui Urrutia, has just taken office. He must have been appalled by the discord among the civil and military inhabitants of the settlement. The colonists were complanning that the cattle belonging to the soldiers were eating all the crops; the soldiers in turn complained that the farmers killed their animals, and declared if they wanted their crops protected, they could fence them in.

Governor Aids Farmers

The governor determined to put a stop to such quarrels. He issued an order that the soldiers and other stock owners should keep their animals out of the fields and under guard, and that the citizens should enclose their fields. Any person breaking down the fences was to be penalized. Furthermore, instead of killing any animal found in the fields, the finder was to bring it to the corral and any damage incurred was to be settled for immediately. He urged mutual forbearance, in order to achieve the unity necessary to repel Indian depredations.

Instead of being satisfied and obeying orders, the farmers filed a piteous plea with the governor, claiming that his ultimatum was bringing disaster upon their heads and seeking immediate redress:

"The members of the municipal and other citizens of the Villa of San Fernando, who, by order of His Majesty, came to settle this province, appear before me in the best form known to us and declare that:

Objected To Fences

"In as much as, on the 29th day of the month of September last, 1737, an order was published by the secretary of this said cabildo in the royal presidio of San Antonio de Bexar by order of your Excellency, requiring us to fence our fields, to keep our cattle herded and not to spear stock that are continually causing damage to our crops; and

'Whereas, up to the present time we have not been able to stop this nuisance, to carry the said animals to their owners, to keep them shut up for three or four days in the corrals or to go in person almost every evening to give them notice thereof, no remedy has been found.

"Therefore, since, as we have pointed out, your purpose is to avoid grave damages such as we have been suffering we can not fail to bring to your Excellency's attention the fact that it is impossible for us to fence our fields now because the time for gathering the corn is near and there is a great deal of fence to be built. Your Excellency must remember that the soldiers of this presidio keep their stock in our territory without any herdsman at all, for one would cost them 380 pesos, the price fixed by the King, our Lord. We must live on the scant crops our fields produce. If we still permit them to keep their stock in our territory as we have been doing, then it seems that everything will fall on us. If we have to fence our land, the burden will be greater than we can bear in our poverty. If the soldiers had no stock, then we would be excused from building the fences. As to the orders you issued forbidding us to spear the stock, it is an impossible thing to get them out of the corn without using a goad. That is why we have to keep our spears when in the fields. It has happened that when we have succeeded in getting one out even when armed with a spear we have killed our horses. It is almost impossible to get them out of the corn. We therefore beg that you will be good enough to order the soldiers not to let their stock come to our land because of the damage to our fields they cause. We are really in danger of losing our lands, our irrigating ditches as well as our levees. During the six years we have worked on our farm lands, we have not been able to keep the stock out; for, in spite of the fact that they claim there is nothing for their horses to eat in this vicinity but that they can get something in the fields, we wish to say with all due respect that the settlement that there is nothing to eat but the corn is false. We are therefore impelled to beg you to issue orders forbidding any person save the owners, under any pretext whatsoever, to enter our cornfields either by day or by night, for they rob us, and we assure you that we will try to find means to defend our personal work. We have to live, and when they lay it on the Indians we are so outraged that we almost forget ourselves.

Wanted Pay On Damages

"We likewise beg of you to be good enough to order all the owners of stock to guarantee that they will pay us for the corn fields that their stock has eaten, for up to this time they have eaten more than 400 bushels of corn. This deprives us of food and makes it impossible for us to pay the tithes we owe to the church. We therefore can not be excused from begging you to be good enough to order the soldiers of this residio not to ride the horses we have in the herd, for we assure your Excellency that they do so so often that when we send for one it is useless when we get it, even though it has been left in the herd four or five months. Even now when they bring our horses to us, they are riding them. Therefore, we beg that you will do as we have petitioned you to do. If you do not we will be forced to abandon our corn and even the settlement because we will not be able to live and will perish in this remote region. We beg you to furnish us with a copy of this our petition for such use as we may need make of it. Please disregard the charge made against us that we have killed the stock belonging to the soldiers of the presidio, for we assure your Excellency that when these soldiers say that we have killed any stock, they fail to state the truth, because they cannot prove that during the six years, now almost seven years we have been in the place, we have killed one single head.

"We, therefore, beg and plead with you to be good enough to grant our petition. In so doing you will render justice and kindness. We do take oath that this our petition is in due legal form and is a necessary action. Again, we beg you to accept this our petition on ordinary paper since there is no stamped paper in this province."

Bring Out Facts

Certain discrepancies in the situation as presented by the farmers and as interpreted by the soldiers caused the governor to take steps to ascertain the real truth of the situation. Pinning the colonists down to cold facts, he ascertained that they, contrary to their original story, had killed some of the animals; that the greater portion of the 400 bushels of corn eaten by the stock had been destroyed during the regime of his predecessor, in fact, that only some fifteen or twenty bushels had been destroyed after his pronunciamento had gone into effect; and, finally, that the farmers had not made written protest to the governor for aid prior to the issuing of his initial order. Incensed at their inaccuracies and grieved at their unpatriotic threats to desert the colony should they not obtain relief, he issued a final order reminding them to be less hasty in the future.

"I, the Governor and Captain General have decided that in view of the fact that the illustrous cabildo of the Villa de San Fernando show the inadequate foundation they had for their complaint and that I have issued orders calculated to remedy the trouble it is necessary for me to remind them that, in the future, they must proceed with the care and caution demanded by justice and are not to threaten to leave their homes, crops and this city. They must be sure that what they ask is just, and in order that they may be convinced that I have proceeded with justice and to furnish them with a safeguard against repetition of their mistakes, I do hereby furnish them with the copy of the records in the case.'

Thus, though the land stretched for hundreds of miles around them, the early Texans found that land and grazing rights for their cattle was to be one of the major sources for civil dissention.

...ls Get Rain This Week

Crossroads, Aberdeen, Lutie, Quail And Elm Valley Report Good Rains

Sections in the northern part of this county this week received beneficial rainfall early this week and other parts received light showers Friday and Saturday night.

Lutie was reported with a rain which stood in the furrows and generally did much toward giving the county a good seasoning moisture. Sections from Aberdeen east to the county line were also reported with a good rainfall; the Quail area reported good rain. These sections went without rain in the showers of two weeks ago while the rest of the county got near an inch. It was the first rain in 1935 for some of the communities.

The rains were reported fairly good in the Crossroads section and were said to have extended two miles north of Lutie.

Boy Scout News

Troop 31 met last Monday night with 43 members, two leaders and four visitors present. The meeting was opened with roll call and each Scout answered with some good deed he had done the week before. Three new members, Harold McAnear, Ray Sisk and R. E. Patrick were taken into the troop and given a warm reception.

Chuck Collins made a brief talk on the prevention of accidents and then called on Bert Newman, who discussed the Scout Circus in Pampa and the National Jamboree at Washington, D. C.

Following Mr. Newman's talk, the visitors who were Scout leaders from Childress were called on for short talks. Kenneth Fink, E. B. Richards, L. L. Albertson and A. McFarland responded. The meeting was considered as one of the most interesting of the year.

The following scouts were reported to have gone on the hike last Friday afternoon: Allen Rayle, Silas Henry, A. J. Fires, Bid Scruggs, Eddie Bayouth, Douglas Bevers, Jimmie Cochran. Denzil Bevers, Frank Mitchell, Aaron Hurst, S. A. Combs, Pat Templeton, John Billy Phillips, Boyd Williams, Derrell Thompkins and Richard Goforth. They left town about 5:30 and walked part of the way. They were picked up by Mr. and Mrs. Collins and taken to the Country Club, where they were visited by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hurst. On arriving they cooked their evening meal. A. J. Fires proved to be a first aid expert by administering first aid to burned hands and injured feet.

After the meal it was dark and started raining so the boys went into the club house and sang songs and told ghost stories for about an hour and 30 minutes. Taps were blown.

The boys got up about 6 o'clock (as reported) and ate breakfast. After the meal they went to the sand hills and played "King of the Hills," until noon. After lunch they returned to town.

Plan Big Affair

Mr. O'Neil, as commander, is expecting the convention to be one of the best ever held in this district and the entire post is making elaborate plans to entertain the visitors. The people of Collingsworth County were asked to cooperate in helping the Legionnaires put over the convention, which will not only bring distinction to Wellington, but will also stimulate activities of the Legion program in this section.

Stovall, county agent, who said it is very essential that everyone who has not completed the sign-up to be at this meeting. Mr. Stovall also stated that he would like for each producer to make a special effort to complete the signing of their papers in order that they might all be turned in to the office and typed for submission to the State Board for approval.

A synopsis of the play is: When Adam Dunnigan inherits a million dollars, his wife, Elsie, decides tc move to New York and crash society. Complications set up when they entertain the Van Witherspoons (the most popular social family in New York) in their New York home. Adam and their son, George, are very displeased with New York life. They long for their country home back in dear old Jerkwater.

bringing about a low fire loss record.

"Our records show that this year Wellington is receiving a 15 per cent Good Fire Record Credit which means a saving of approximately $4,760.00 to the insurance buying public of your city. Also, the further fact that your city experienced a low fire loss record during 1934 has meant untold savings of thousands of dollars by reason of the fact that fire not only destroys property but creates unemployment and other additional expenses to the general public.

"We believe that you will be interested to know that during the years 1931 to 1934, inclusive, there were 485 indictments returned in Texas, resulting in 145 convictions. This has been due to the vigorous efforts on the part of city officials, Fire Prevention Boards, fire marshals and fire chiefs and their departments, as well as other law enforcing agencies, together with an improvement on the part of the general public to the fact that it is the people themselves who pay the cost of fire.

"Any time you or your committee feels that we can render you any assistance in the splendid work that you are doing, we shall be glad to have you call upon us."

Members of the local Fire Prevention Board are: E. H. Small, chairman; J. E. Leggitt, B. F. Ford, E. D. Clay, Bura Handley, fire chief; and Paul Hardy, fire marshal.

producers were getting confused about the different croping system they are planting and summarized the situation with the following statement: "A producer cannot divert his cash crops to his rented acres. Some of the producers are planning to divert their feed acres to different cash crops and use their rented acres for home feed production which will be strictly a violation, for instance, some are planning to cut down their feed acres and use the rented acres instead and plant broom corn, sweet potatoes, etc., for cash crops, which also will be a violation. The producer should contact his local committeeman about these things so that when certification time comes, his contract will not be cancelled. The local committeeman will be in position to advise his producers, and it will be much better if the producer see his local committeeman before changing his croping system from other years."
