With a large crowd in attendance the Abilene District Assembly for the Church of the Nazarene opened officially here Wednesday morning with the Wellington Church as host for the first time in the past four years. The meeting will continue through Sunday. The official opening of the district assembly was preceded, however, with Missionary Society rallies and Young People's gatherings on Monday and Tuesday.

Rev. S. L. Wood, local pastor, started the district gathering off Wednesday morning and introduced Mayor Deskins Wells, who made the welcome address on behalf of the city of Wellington. His talk was followed by an excellent talk on the part of Rev. T. M. Johnston, First Methodist Church pastor, who welcomed the guests.

Mrs. H. Melton Buried Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. Matie Jane Melton, 71, wife of H. Melton of Quail, were held Monday, November 5, from the Marella church at 2 o'clock conducted by Rev. C. D. Dameron and Rev. C. Carmack.

Mrs. Melton passed away at the Melton home, Quail, Sunday, at 8 o'clock, and her death is grieved by the many friends she is made through her 27 years of residence in this county.

Mrs. Melton was born in Denton county, Tennessee, on September 1, 1863, and was exactly 71 years, one month and 18 days of age at the time of her death.

On January 7, 1933, Mr. and Mrs. Melton celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary and the event was attended by 70 kinsmen, including their 10 living children. Mr. and Mrs. Melton were married January 7, 1893 in Big Spring, Texas by J. H. Farmer. The Quail community in which Mr. Melton lived was an entirely different place from that which is now known as one of the most progressive little communities in the county.

House Gin Is Completely Destroyed By Flames Early Saturday Morning

House Gin was last Saturday morning, completely destroyed by fire which broke out at 1 o'clock.

A terrific wind, blowing from the northwest, also endangered the gin which was ignited by a spark from the engine. The gin was completely destroyed, and the possibility of complete destruction of the city was seen should the wind have changed and the fire have gotten out of control. The fire was attended by a large force of men, including more than 40 cars gathered as the alarm

This Little Ad Got Results For Past Five Weeks

No, sir, John Jackson does not want to sell a piano. About five weeks ago Mr. Jackson inserted a small want ad in the Leader stating that he had a piano for sale. "I sold the piano the next day after the ad was placed," Mr. Jackson said, "and since that time I have had 14 additional chances to sell the piano. Either you have got to tell the people that I have sold it or I will have to go into the piano business."

Skyrockets Out For Revenge In Shamrock Game

Avenge Of Cyclone Defeat Uppermost In Minds Of Skyrockets

Renews Rivalry

Irish Tilt Presents Reverse Of Situation Faced Here Last Week

Planning to avenge their defeat at the hands of the strong Memphis Cyclone here last Friday night, the Wellington Skyrockets have, during the past week, gone through a series of stiff drills in preparation for Shamrock's battling Irishmen on the Wellington field Friday night.

Rumors have it that the Irishmen may not "shoot the works" against the "Rockets in view of the district title game which is to follow the contest in Wellington on the succeeding Friday, but rumors are merely rumors as the Memphis game disclosed when the Cyclone turned to ground plays and abandoned their highly touted aerial attack.

To say the least, the game with the Irishmen will renew a sectional rivalry which has existed since the founding of the Wellington squad, and a likelihood of both teams putting everything they have into the game is anticipated by fans. Reversing the situation from last week, the Irish are considered the slight favorites in the game—but the Wellington boys will also be out to reverse the final score and are expected to present their best performance of the entire season, not expecting their victory over the Amarillo Yarnigans, which to date is considered the strangest game the Wellington boys have played.

Hankins Resigns As Pastor Here

The resignation of Rev. W. Clyde Hankins as pastor of the First Baptist Church here was announced by Rev. Hankins at the church services Sunday night, previous to which time Rev. Hankins had placed his resignation in the hands of the deacons at a meeting during the afternoon.

Red Cross Drive Will Open Here Monday Morning

Committees Will Canvass Business And Residential Sections Of City

Quota At 600

Assistance Given In County Is Expected To Increase Drive Response

Expressing hopes of the most successful Red Cross Roll Call drive to ever be held in Collingsworth County, Mrs. Deskins Wells, roll call chairman, today stated that the annual drive would open in this county on Monday morning, November 12.

The Collingsworth quota has been set for 600 members this year and it is believed by local leaders that the response will be good in view of the vast amount of relief work offered here during the past three years.

An added incentive for donations will be the fact that 50 cents out of every dollar donated will remain in the local chapter funds for the purpose of securing a Red Cross Nurse to serve the entire county. On donations amounting to more than one dollar, the local chapter will send in 50 cents and retain all above that figure.

The committees have also stated that they expect to complete the entire drive on Monday, the day which it is opened.

Solicitations for membership in the business section will be conducted by members of the American Legion and Kiwanis Club, with Dewey Ellis as chairman.

Calls for membership in the residential section will be conducted by four clubs, including the 1924 Study Club and Belle's Lettres Club. Mrs. J. Frank Johnson will be chairman of this division.

"With the knowledge the local citizenship has gained of the Red Cross in recent years," Mrs. Wells said, "anything but a swift, successful campaign is inconceivable. Because so many more of us have seen it in action during the depression period, there are few who do not recognize that the organization has become a vital part of our community life. Its works must go on—and will, with the individual support of local citizens."

Taos Indians To Appear On Ritz Stage

Cooking School Slated For This Week In City

Miss Ilah Manchester To Conduct Electric Cooking School Nov. 8 & 9

Miss Ilah Manchester, who will conduct the West Texas Utilities free electric cooking school here on November 8 and 9, at the First Methodist church, has been in charge of similar schools in all sections of the United States. She has a national reputation as an authority on electric cookery and she has spoken before thousands upon the subject of better food preparation.

A graduate of Home Economics, Syracuse University, and a member of the Home Economists' Bureau of Edison General Electric Appliance Company, Inc., makers of Hotpoint ranges, Miss Manchester has directed electric cookery classes in many leading universities and colleges. In addition, she has had charge of electric cooking schools in such cities as Albany, Auburn and Buffalo, New York; Trenton and Newark, New Jersey; Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa.; Hagerstown and Baltimore, Maryland; and Milwaukee and Madison, Wisconsin.

In anticipation of her visit here, Miss Manchester has been working for some time on a series of exceptional demonstrations in Electric Cookery and she will have a number of excellent and novel recipes. In keeping with present conditions and the trend toward economical meals, she has built her school program upon a strictly economical basis. At the same time, each dish will be well balanced and nourishing, appetizing and attractive. As a result of her extensive training and experience in the field of electric cookery, she will be able to offer housewives numerous up-to-date ideas in modern homemaking. Miss Manchester was brought here by the West Texas Utilities Company, distributors of Hotpoint ranges in this territory.

"We expect to bring homemakers of Wellington a program which will interest every housewife," Miss Manchester says. "We will present in dramatized fashion, new ideas in cooking and homemaking. We will show women how they may economize, how they may prepare inexpensive meals, how they may obtain more leisure for themselves, and how they may eliminate kitchen drudgery."

The program will be varied daily and plans are now being made for an entertainment program, in addition to the demonstrations of electric cookery.

'Bullet' Spans U. S. in Record Time

All the way from Los Angeles to New York, people gathered along the railroad to watch the new Union Pacific streamlined train streak across the United States to set a new transcontinental rail speed record of 56 hours and 55 minutes. The former mark, established in 1901, was 71 hours and 27 minutes. In a two-mile stretch in Wyoming, the "bullet train" was clocked at 120 miles an hour for two miles, breaking the former record of 115 miles an hour set in 1904 by a Philadelphia and Reading train. Chicagoans are shown above watching the train pull out on the last lap of its coast-to-coast run.

Let's Talk About Clothes

By a "YOUNG MODERN"
DENTON, Nov. 7—Gay autumn frolics are in session now and with cool days loudly proclaiming sporting adventures of all kinds, the clothes question comes up again with even greater significance. Maybe it just isn't the thing for boys to spend much time wondering what shoes are correct to wear with gold knickers, or a tuxedo, but to girls, the problem is ever present.

The outdoor girl at Texas State College for Women (CIA) pronounces gay plaid skirts in soft wools, jerseys or corduroys for sporting adventures. Knitted sweaters or over-blouses in contrasting wool are worn with the skirts and make fitting costumes for the sports girl. With brilliant berets topped by gay pom-poms, and chic sport oxfords fitted high on the feet by a zipper, your costume is sure to have just the "send-off" necessary for a joyous occasion.

A pig-skin three-quarter length coat with a beret and scarf to match is quite successfully combined with a ravishing little wrap-around skirt buttoned down the front with gay wooden buttons in contrasting colors. Add your soft pig-skin shoes in matching tones, and you are sure to make a hit with the boy friend.

A good sport is always appropriately dressed. Go over your fall sports wardrobe, and buy each new outfit with a definite adventure in mind. You'll "go over" if you do!

HUNTSVILLE.—Mrs. S. Parish of the Moore's Grove community in Walker county believes what the Bible says about using what you have in your own hands, according to Miss Frances Punchard, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Parish uses elm bark instead of cane for chair bottoms. She takes the elm bark just as it is stripped from the tree and cuts it in 1/2 to 3/4 inch strips while it is damp either from tree moisture or from soaking. Then she plaits or weaves it directly upon the chair. Several of the chairs which Mrs. Parish has covered are in the Moore's Grove cannery. The work is extremely smooth and even, and the bottom is firm and more substantial than cane, according to Miss Punchard.

Lost Certificates Must Be Reported

Cotton tax exemption certificates which in one way or another come into the possession of someone other than the rightful owner should be reported immediately to the office of the county agent, John O. Stovall, insists. The appeal is being broadcast to help avert the loss to cotton farmers of certificates which would have no value to other parties.

In adjoining counties certificates have been lost. If found they cannot be used by the finder unless they are properly transferred. A penalty is provided for use of them by parties who do not rightfully own them.

Notification has been received that several have been lost in Wheeler county and three in Hall county. The owners are anxious to obtain them before the pool closes November 10.

Since its introduction on April first, 1934, compared with the same period last year, the sale of New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil increased 66.1%.

BEFORE New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil was offered to you it was road-tested for 963,000 miles. It was then tested against five nationally-known oils in a Destruction Test on Indianapolis Speedway. One fill of this new oil carried a car 4,729 miles—1,410.2 miles farther than the next best oil!

The original Germ Processed Oil was giving satisfaction in cars in 40 states. Motorists said no other oil could touch it.

But Continental scientists discovered, after years of research, that a better oil could be made—better than any mineral oil ever manufactured. And they made it!

Increase of 66.1% tells how motorists took to this new oil. They tell us it has a lower rate of consumption than any oil they ever used.

If you want an oil you can trust unconditionally, drive in at the Conoco Red Triangle and fill with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil.

Colorful Banquet Given For Excelsior Members

An Indian banquet depicting the Indian summer which is now in full swing was held last Thursday evening for the members of the Excelsior Club. All appointments, the menu and program carried out the Indian motif.

The decoration committee, Miss Opal Bratton, Mrs. Fred LeDerer and Miss Hattie D. Wells were responsible for the hand made place cards and menus. The banquet was given in the Pullman banquet hall which was decorated with a profusion of richly colored autumn leaves. Miniature paper wigs on each plate revealed the menu and program for the evening.

Miss Lota Price, Mrs. J. V. Clark and Miss Leah Smith arranged the Indian program which consisted of musical numbers, dances, stunts and talks. The toastmistress, Miss Hulsey, was titled "Big Chief" and presented the other members of the program who were given similar titles. Miss Leah Smith declined to smoke the peace pipe with the big chief but offered a welcome to the neighboring tribes, which was represented by Mrs. Lee O'Neil who very graciously responded. Indian music by Mrs. Richard Cooke, Mrs. Pauline Chaudoin and Mrs. Aubrey Dobbs was supplemented between the various numbers. Miss Hattie D. Wells, Mrs. J. V. Clark and Miss Mae Wes Bell added to the fun with stunts and "takeoffs" on the guests. Miss Billie Voca Brickey gave an interpretative dance which completed the unusual program.

Billie Gus and lawyer Tisdale were suing for the custody of the fruit. Attorney A. V. Hickman represented Elbert Sledge in the case, with D. A. Weaver as the judge. Several readings were also given by the future farmer boys.

Scientific Group To Hold Research In Okla. History

Indian Lore Is Topic Of Consideration In Oklahoma Panhandle

GOODWELL, Okla. — Representatives of the University of Oklahoma, No-Mans-Land Historical Society and Panhandle A. & M. College met in the office of Byron Dacus, president of the college, here recently and planned for future scientific research in fossil and Indian history in the Panhandle.

Dr. J. Villis Stovall, Oklahoma University paleontologist and geologist, urged the society to take advantage of the services offered by the university to have scientific study made of all deposits of archaeological and paleontological significance in the Panhandle. He assured the group that the university is glad to assist in building up a museum at Goodwell.

Plans were made to lease, through the society, all lands in the Panhandle which are rich in archeological and paleontological deposits suitable for scientific study. These leases, it was said, would be only for such scientific purposes and would not interfere with oil and mineral rights on the land.

The society was given the privilege of naming at least one man on each local FERA project to aid in excavation purposes.

Landowners in this region will be urged to preserve all fossil and Indian sites on their lands for scientific study. Further details are now being worked out and will be ready for announcement soon, it was said.

Attending the meeting were: President Dacus, Dr. Claude L. Fly, Boss Neff, Bill Baker, Fred C. Tracy, Fred Carder, O'Reilly Sandoz, M. F. Foote and Dr. Stovall.

ON TEXAS FARMS

An attractive flagstone walk has been made by Mrs. George Williams of Schleicher county with rock secured from an old fireplace which was torn down. Wide and narrow rocks were used alternately and laid even with the surface of the lawn. Mrs. Williams plans to cultivate the native grass in her yard and allow it to grow in between the rocks. She is yard demonstrator for the Eldorado Home Demonstration Club.

The value of conserved moisture was proven again by Elmer Hitt in Garza county when he outwitted the drouth by planting a cotton crop in the basin of what in ordinary years is a lake. Five acres of his are giving Mr. Hitt between three and four bales of cotton which he estimates is as much as the entire 32 other acres he planted will yield. With the help of the county agent he drained the excess water out of another portion of his farm and this caught by colored rows was utilized to make a fairly good crop of maize.

By Minnie Fisher Cunningham, Extension Service Editor
Planting cowpeas, terracing, and crop rotation enabled Byron Scott, Rains county farmer, to produce eight 600 pound bales of cotton on 12 acres even in a drouth year, according to Roy King, farm demonstration agent, under whose guidance Mr. Scott carries on his soil rebuilding, moisture and conservation program.

Drouth may have affected some peoples food supplies but the members of the Greenville, Prairie Hill, and Latium home demonstration clubs in Washington county reported 9,165 containers of fruits and fruit juices, vegetables, meats, pickles, jams, jellies and preserves on their pantry shelves and fall vegetables yet to can.

J. L. Gore of Bellefonte community in Wood county says that cutting the weeds in his pasture proved to be as profitable work as he did on his farm this year. Mr. Gore has a subirrigated area of one acre where he has a stand of carpet grass which has furnished grazing for three horses and two cows in spite of the drouth.

Juanita Billingsley, first year Tarrant county 4-H club girl, put up 114 quarts of food this year in her club work. She declares it makes her feel good to have made such a substantial contribution to the family food supply.

The Great American Home

Collected Poems Of William Russell Clark Represent Author's Best Work; 1914-34

"A Stained Glass Window and Other Poems," By William Russell Clark; The Memphis Publishing Co., Memphis, Texas, $1.50.

Poetry lovers of the Panhandle will find fresh beauty in "A Stained Glass Window and Other Poems," by William Russell Clark. The book, which takes its title from the initial poem, is a collection of what the author considers his best poems over a period of twenty years, 1914-1934.

In these two decades the changing affairs of men have taken the author from East Texas to New York and from there to West Texas. William Russell Clark first came to Wellington in 1926 and after a few months moved to Memphis. This section is richer for that occurrence. Clark found something in the virile strength and the raw culture of this new setting which fascinated him. Astonished at first, he learned to love it and claimed it as his home. As a result the Panhandle influence predominates in this new book of poems, although some were written obviously in the land of the rose and the pine tree and others bear the stamp of the metropolis.

There is variety in this book—variety of form, setting and emotion. The sonnets, of which Clark is an acknowledged master, give the collection its major theme, but the lyrics, light verse and Old French Forms are not to be overlooked. There is some free verse, but it is important only as it shows that Clark can handle adequately and as an incident a newer mode which is the sole means of expression of some of our most prolific poets. After all poetry is not a matter of form, but a thing of music, beauty and truth. "A Stained Glass Window and Other Poems" demonstrates this fact clearly and definitely.

The variety in emotion is even more appealing than the variety of form. Here is one who sings of the lusty joy everyone has felt at some time or another at the gaudy sight of a circus parade. In "Show Horses" he paints the picture with a laugh and a lavish use of color. Marked in contrast is the wail of this same singer of sweet songs in "Waiting"—a poem of simple beauty and tragic frustration. In it you come close to the soul of a man shivering like a lonely light on a high hill.

In between this frank rejoicing of the flesh and the cry of a spirit denied its fulfillment will be found the notes and overtones of a genuine artist as he runs the gamut of the human heart. In "Juniors Christmas Tree" he, who has never known actually the joys of parenthood, etches a scene known and loved by every father and mother. In the same way, he, who has never been a father, calls on a father's love to look backward and forward in "When You Leave Grown to Man's Estate." But more beautiful than this and more expressive of his ability to unwrap old heart-thoughts is his display of time nostalgia in "An Old Time Valentine."

Through necessity a review cannot mention every worthy thing in a book, but surely some mention ought to be given to the most famous poems in the collection—neither of which has been mentioned. These are "A Stained Glass Window" and the sonnet sequence "In Commemoration of Autumn." The latter, as the publishers relate, has been acclaimed as fine a work as has been produced by any American writer since the turn of a century. In this writer's opinion, neither this nor the first poem can compare in sheer beauty with "There Is a Glory In Departing Things," but this is no reflection on the better known poems for preference in poetry is a matter of individual taste.

For the same reason, Panhandle people may like "Sonnets of the Plains Country," "Amarillo," and "Drouth" better than they do some of the others, which have a more universal appeal. These are nearer home and closer to the heart. So true are they as word pictures that it is difficult to realize that they are also poetry. In them as in "Farmhouses" Clark sets forth, once again, his love of the soil and the simple life as he did in his first published work, "Dogwood and Wild Laurel."

All of the poems do not have the weight nor merit of those previously mentioned. Typical of these lesser poems are "Ballad of Dead Man's Gulch" and "Twice In A Blue Moon." The first demonstrates the author's ability to handle the ballad form and tell a tale—nothing more. The second is included, undoubtedly for the same reason it was written, merely to make a glad noise. It has lilting music, but the tune is its most important part. It seems to me that somewhere at sometime the author read to me or let me read a poem, which might well have been called "Winter Night." It was a lyric of Christmas stars and Panhandle skies. The "Ballad of Dead Man's Gulch" might have been left out for such a poem.

Humor and Tragedy Combined In Queerest Accidents of The Times

Every day, all over the world, strange, almost unbelievable accidents occur. Many bring direct tragedy in their wake; others fortunately escape the grief, and are remembered for their humor and oddity.

One of these near-tragedies which turned out happily came about recently in Brooklyn, N. Y. A 3-year-old tot cried out, "Here I come, mama!" and dropped from a third-floor window to a concrete pavement. Unhurt, he cried, "Wait till daddy hears how I jump!"

In Gary, Ind., recently, a woman, getting out of her bath, stepped on a cake of wet soap, skidded across her bathroom, shot out an open window, dropped three stories, and landed, unhurt, in a sandpile.

In another recent freak happening a young Ottawa, Canada, amateur golfer took a lusty swing at a golf ball, and nearly strangled before help arrived. His club had snapped in two, and the broken head and tape lashed around his neck.

When a man bites a dog, it's news; and so it is, too, when a deer kills a hunter, or a fish slays a fisherman. In Pennsylvania, some time ago, the day before deer hunting season opened, one of the creatures bounded out of a woods and crashed into a car carrying three men to the hunting grounds. All were killed.

And a French-Canadian trapper of the Pas, Manitoba, was shot dead when the tail of a large pike, thrashing about in the bottom his canoe, touched the trigger of a rifle.

A Detroit woman wished her husband plenty of trouble. She told him, "I wish you'd go out and have an accident." He was run over, lost part of a foot. Then she said, "I wish you'd lose the other foot." He did. Fed up by this time, he sued for a divorce.

Coincidence featured two unusual tragedies. In May, 1931, an Indiana man and his wife were injured when a train struck their auto at a grade crossing. In May, 1932, while riding in the same car they were struck by the same train at the same crossing. The woman was killed, the man seriously injured.

Back in 1927 the three children in the family of Uriah Richards were killed in a train-auto crash near Oring, Wash. Several years later the father was killed by an auto, leaving four survivors. A year ago June these four were killed in one accident when a train hit their truck.

which persons hit by street car or locomotive or involved in a plane crash, have escaped unhurt. And just as frequent have been strange occurrences of an opposite nature.

A Chicago acrobat, for instance, broke his neck when he tripped and fell on a smooth, sandy bathing beach. A star Iowa football player had his shoulder dislocated when his younger brother kicked him in his sleep. And a prominent Chicago surgeon died from infection after he had pricked his finger with a safety pin.

Carelessness has been responsible for other accidents. To surprise his wife, a Kansas City, Mo., man got up first one morning and baked biscuits. At the hospital to which both were taken, it was learned that he had used insect powder instead of baking powder.

An Illinois man's false teeth bothered him so that, when not in use, he kept them in his back pocket. His auto hit a bump in the road, and he had to have stitches taken where he had "bitten himself."

Here have been described only a few of the more spectacular accidents, yet similar mishaps occur daily. The lesson seems to be that no one knows how, where, or when an accident will happen.

Stage Show Is Booked For Ritz

In a last minute effort to reach the readers of this paper manager Bonner of the Ritz Theatre placed a special ad announcing the appearance of Juanito Lujan and his Taos Indians, a troupe of full blood Pueblo Indians now playing the better class theatres of the United States. Confirmation of this engagement came so late that Mr. Bonner could not include it in his regular newspaper advertisements, but due to the extraordinary features of this stage show the management is doing everything in their power to get it before the performances.

This spectacular Indian stage production is scheduled for two performances at the Ritz today (Thursday), one at 4:30 in the afternoon, especially arranged for student body of the Wellington schools, and another at 8:45 on Thursday night. Manager Bonner was only able to secure this attraction to break a jump out of Pampa into the larger cities of Oklahoma, so he states, and even though there is but little time to notify the local citizenship, he is eager to interest them in this unusual stage attraction. The show is presented in gorgeous Indian costume and is said to be historically authentic in every detail. It will undoubtedly be a genuine treat for the people of this community, and we hope that Manager Bonner's efforts will be repaid with excellent attendance.

When the couple first came to this section Quail was only the smallest of villages with a very few stores and fewer modern conveniences. Instead of the brick schoolhouse which now stands in the community a small school which had been erected in 1902 served the community. Nor were the churches greatly developed at that time. A Baptist church had been built at Quail five years before they moved here. Mrs. Melton was a member and worker in the Methodist church and was instrumental in organizing the first Methodist church there in 1909.

Mrs. Melton is survived by her husband, and ten children: O. C. Melton, Pueblo, Colo.; Mrs. Ida B. Cherry, Shamrock; Mrs. Luna Pierce, Quail; Edgar Melton, Pueblo; Howard H. Melton, Pueblo; Freeman Melton, Wellington; Mrs. Hazel Adcock, Quail; Mrs. Ethel Weaver, Big Springs; Otis Melton, Quail; Wayne Melton, Quail. Also 35 grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren. A brother, H. H. Pierce of San Antonio; two sisters, Miss Rachael Pierce and Mrs. Roma Cockrell.

Hymns sung were, "I Will Trade the Old Cross for a Crown," "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," "After You Reach Home," "Mother, How I Miss You."

Pall bearers were: John Cherry, Tom Cherry, Noel Pierce, Guy Bell, Gene Farmer and Ed Cherry. Flower girls: Mozelle Melton, Willie Marie Melton, Claudine Melton, Helen Weaver, Pauline Cherry, Nine Melton, Ethel Cherry and Thula Damron.

Interment was made in the Quail Cemetery by Goodson Funeral Home.

in behalf of the other churches of this city. Rev. V. B. Atteberry gave the response in an interesting discussion.

Rev. J. B. Chapman, general superintendent, then took charge of the meeting and started off with the Doxology; he closed with an inspirational prayer, considered as one of the most touching and sincere presentations of the entire gathering.

The district meeting then swung into regular business matters.

A sermon by Rev. Bud Robinson, fondly known throughout the church as "Uncle Buddy," will be an outstanding feature of the entire assembly and will be given Wednesday night, November 7, according to announcements. He has just completed a journey through the Holy Lands. Among hundreds of other distinguished guests convened here for the assembly are Rev. E. Homer Land and Rev. D. W. Simpson, both former pastors of the Church of the Nazarene in Wellington.

The Missionary rally began Monday, at 7:30 p. m., and included most interesting persons such as Mrs. J. H. Hart, second vice president of the district W. M. S., Wichita Falls; Mrs. S. N. Fitkin, general W. M. S. president from Allenhurst, New Jersey. Both ladies brought inspirational and interesting discussions for the group. The business meeting of the W. M. S. opened Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

SEC. XI. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. XII. Whereas there are now no laws in the City of Wellington, Texas, regulating the installation and use of the water works system, creates a public necessity, requiring that the rules providing that ordinances shall be read at more than one meeting, or more than one time, be suspended, and requiring that this ordinance be passed as an emergency measure, and such rules are accordingly suspended and this ordinance is passed as an emergency measure and shall be in full force and effect immediately from and after its passage, approval and legal publication.

FEEDING THE WORLD

As nearly as can be estimated the population of the world reached 850 million in 1880 and in the century between that and 1900 it practically doubled. It is now about 1,750 million.

When it is considered that it took the human race possibly half a million years to reach 850 million and only 100 years to double that number the fact is significant. Looking into the future, it must be remembered that human life is being lengthened and preserved through better observance of the laws of health and the advancement of science; also that if in the future wars can be reduced, still greater increases may be expected.

The question naturally arises, for how many people can the earth supply the necessary food? When, if ever, will famine become general, instead of occasional and local, as in the past and present?

So far, there is ample food in the world, if it could be distributed where it is needed. But right now hundreds of thousands in the Near East, in Russia, in India, in China, and in many other parts of the world are dying from lack of food.

In the past hundred years vast new areas of fertile land have been opened to cultivation, but famine still exists, partly through congestion of populations and partly through lack of transportation.

While this problem may not seriously affect America for several generations, at the present rate of increase in population it will only be a question of time until the food situation will be a grave one for the entire world, unless improved chemical means for sustaining life can be practically developed.

Probably the civic clubs of the distant future will be trying to get rid of people, instead of boosting for bigger towns.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

To one of human instincts it is distressing to witness the utter disregard of animal suffering which is shown by thoughtless or vicious persons.

Acts of unnecessary cruelty to dumb animals are an indication of either a lack of education or serious moral defect on the part of those who practice them. Children should be taught very early to treat animals with kindness. Without such teaching a child is very likely to develop cruel tendencies, particularly when the example of unfeeling indifference is set by older persons.

As a prominent educator recently said, any system of education which neglects training in the humane treatment of animals is failing in its duty.

We have noticed another thing: Any person who is cruel to animals will bear watching in all his other relations of life.

Reform, like charity, should begin at home.

THE FIRST PRESIDENT

There has never been any question of the fact that Washington was the first president of the United States under our present Constitution, but from time to time it is asserted that John Hanson was really our first president.

The latest to take up the cudgels for Hanson's claim to this mighty honor is Prof. J. L. Highsaw of Memphis, a prominent educator and historian, who says:

"We have had two Constitutions. The first was the Articles of Confederation. These Articles named John Hanson president and he served as president from 1781 to 1789. I have a copy of a document which shows that General Washington addressed Hanson as 'Your excellency, the president of the United States.' There is a statute in Maryland and engraved on it is 'John Hanson, First President of the United States.' The neglect of our President Hanson is shameful. He is truly the forgotten man."

Whatever Mr. Hanson's proper title may have been, it is certain that he exercised little, if any, executive authority, as under the Confederation the government consisted only of the Congress, and even its powers were very limited. Hanson was merely president of the Congress, and if the title President of the United States was sometimes used with respect to him, it must have been in a complimentary sense.

In the absence of more convincing argument than Prof. Highsaw has presented, we shall have to stick to our belief that George Washington was our first president.

AMERICAN HOMES BEST

The advantages enjoyed by the average American citizen are more impressive to B. C. Forbes, the well-known American writer on business subjects, whenever he visits Europe. He was born in Scotland and he knows his way about in Europe. He has just returned from abroad with some interesting conclusions directly in favor of our home conditions.

Telephones are rare, and newspapers do not have the wide circulation they have here, where they are regarded as a necessity in the average home. In a typical English boarding house he visited he found only one ordinary workman wearing a spotless shirt, collar and tie, and that workman was an American.

Furthermore Mr. Forbes reports that he found virtually no washing machines, another American device which has become so widely adopted in this country that its absence in the average home is likely to be a matter of comment by any visitor.

The living standards of the average European family are so much lower than the average American family that the contrast is remarkable. Mr. Forbes points out that anyone who goes into the home of the average European and observes its great lack of such equipment, as is common in America to ease the burden of the housewife and to make living simpler and more economical, becomes thankful that he lives in the United States instead of in Europe.

A sorry tune can easily get by if it is called a theme song.

We wonder how a fool gets the money from which he is so soon parted.

Correct this sentence: "I really made a hole in one, but it was merely luck."

The Story Of The Bible Told In Pictures

SOLOMON'S JUDGMENT BETWEEN THE TWO MOTHERS.—In I Kings 1 are recorded the incidents surrounding the death of David, who promised Bath-sheba that his son by her, Solomon, should have the throne. After charging Solomon in regard to his duties, David died. At Gibeon the Lord appeared in a dream to Solomon, asking what he wished as a gift. Solomon chose wisdom, and in I Kings 3 is recorded the first instance of the judgment for which he became so famous. Two women came before him, claiming the same child, each declaring that the other's child had died during the night and the surviving child was her own. Solomon asked for a sword and ordered the living child divided into two parts, one part to be given to each woman. At this command the real mother offered to relinquish her claim if the child's life were spared, but the false mother expressed herself as willing to take half the living child. So Solomon ordered the child given to the first mother, declaring that the child, whose welfare was her first thought, was hers. This illustration by Merian was engraved in 1625.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

The buffalo furnished almost the exclusive food for the prairie Indians. One man writing stated that the flesh of the buffalo was as fine as any meat he had ever tasted.

The old hunters will not admit that there is anything equal to it. Much of its apparent good taste was perhaps caused by the pioneer's "Prairie Appetite," they having been upon salt provisions awhile before obtaining it.

The flesh is of a coarse texture than beef, more juicy, and the fat and lean better distributed. This meat was also very easy of digestion, possessing even aperient qualities.

It has often been remarked by travellers, that however much buffalo meat one may eat, no inconvenience was ever suffered from it.

The circumstances that bulls of all ages, if fat, made good beef is a further proof of the superiority of buffalo meat. These were generally selected for consumption in the winter and early spring, when the cows, unless barren, were apt to be poor; but during most of the year the latter were fattest and tenderest meat.

The tongue was held as a delicacy that western prairies did not furnish anything similar to it in taste, and all buffalo tongues were saved regardless of the condition under which the animal was killed.

Next to this was the marrow-bones, the tender loins, and the hump ribs. Instead of a gristly substance, as sometimes stated, the hump is produced by a convex tier of vertical ribs which project from the spine, forming a gradual curve over the shoulders; those of the middle being sometimes nearly two feet in length.

An old menu in a hotel in Denver, Colorado, in 1861 had listed buffalo tongue and wine-jelly.

The veal was rarely good, being generally poor, owing to the scanty supply of milk which their mothers afforded, caused by running so much from hunters and wolves.

William (Buffalo Bill) Cody was employed by the construction firm of Goddard Brothers, to supply their commissary with twelve buffaloes daily.

This was to be used in feeding the 1200 men that this company had in their employment, building the Kansas Pacific railroad.

For this work, Cody was to receive $500 per month. During the year and one-half that Buffalo Bill worked for this company he killed 4280 buffaloes.

The buffalo business in Texas at one time was much larger than that of the cattle industry. The buffalo hide business for several years was considered a very profitable livelihood. According to Edgar Rye, a newspaper editor of Fort Griffin and Albany, Texas, whose book "The Quirt and The Spur," stated that the traffic in buffalo hides at that place between 1875 and 1879 was far greater than the business with ranchers and cattle train outfits.

Development of a Christian

Text: Galatians 5:13-26
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 11.

This lesson falls on Armistice Day, anniversary of the great day on which the World War ended; and it is only fitting that this lesson should take up the most difficult problem which the Christian citizen must face—that of ridding the world of war.

The topic in its wording stresses very accurately the nature of this problem. The topic is, "Thinking Peace Instead of War."

That puts the emphasis in the right place, for we can never abolish war and strife until people everywhere are thinking peace. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

If a man's thoughts are of war and strife, or of the profit that he can make from war materials or war situations, his influence and example as going to be for war instead of peace; and when he is representative of thousands, or even millions of citizens like himself, a nation's thinking and attitude provide a constant menace to peace.

The trouble with the world today is that in every country there are too many citizens of that sort. And a further trouble is that the professing Christian citizen is sometimes indistinguishable in these matters from the sheerest pagan.

If we are going to establish a world of peace and destroy this demon of war, we must get at the springs of thought and action. It is not merely a statesman's problem; it is a problem for the Christian and for the Christian church. The lesson has been wisely chosen to emphasize these things. What the lesson says concerning individuals and their relationships is true of nations.

"If ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another." It not that precisely what has happened in history among warring nations and people? War has again and again proved as destructive of the victor as of the vanquished.

Equally applicable is the teaching of the lesson concerning the elemental sins and vices and the elemental virtues. Hate, sedition, moral uncleanness, drunkenness, all these have been the accompaniments of war and strife.

On the contrary, peace is associated with all the highest virtues. It has its true and abiding basis in love.

In a world where there is so much incentive to strife, peace is inevitably associated with long-suffering and patience. There can be no peace where there is not high culture and gentleness of spirit.

The task of destroying war and upbuilding peace is the task of destroying evil and upbuilding goodness. How much of the world's burden and tragedy of war would have been avoided, if the nations had taken as their precept and followed it, "Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another."

We study this lesson in a world strangely torn with conflicting passions and ambitions. The world internationally is like a seething cauldron which any moment may boil over with its poisonous mess.

But there is hope. More people are studying peace and thinking peace than ever before. Let us have faith and let us attack with faith the powers of darkness and violence.

It is beginning to look as if the federal authorities meant business when they started rounding up the "big shot" gangsters. The movement is taking its toll, too.

Crime Never Pays

Out went the Barrows, then Dillinger, now they think for almost certain they have the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, next they rubbed out Pretty Boy Floyd. Yes, Sir, the day may come when it will be safe to reckon without considering the Blank Hand of the lawless "racketeers." Our government is certainly to be congratulated, too. Fearless officers are doing more for our country than most persons realize.

And furthermore, the youth of our country is coming to realize that crime does not pay. When a youth is brought up with the cold results of criminal life staring him in the face we will just naturally have fewer criminals. Some people said that the newspapers published so much about criminals that they were influencing the young people. Now, anyhow, the papers are doing their part to definitely stamp the horrible results of crime upon the minds of the youth of today.

You cannot tell if a railroad train has passed merely because you can see its tracks.

Attend The Union Service

I suppose that most everyone who can do so is planning to attend the big Union Church services sponsored here on Armistice Day by the American Legion post. There certainly should be a large crowd of people there to pay tribute to the signing of the Armistice on November 11, 1918 and the close of the World War. The Legion, the Church and the Laymen are all working to make the service one of the most impressive in the history of Wellington. Announcement of the Union Service has been made early this year so everyone can plan to attend. Such cooperation between our civic and clerical institutions is indeed worthy of our commendation and certainly of our wholehearted support.

Let's all turn out Sunday fill the church full. Remember the place is the Methodist Church and the time is eleven o'clock Sunday morning, November 11.

Good Old Mother Earth

I was reading the other day about the earth being 1,850,000,000 years old, which is rather mature. By the time we use up all of the resources such as lumber, coal, etc., I figure that the earth will be considerably older than it is now. The old earth sure has stood by the race of mankind and I guess there were times when the earth was rather disgusted with the men who exploited its rich offerings of contentment and happiness, turning them into harmful practices. Then again, there were times when the earth could be right proud of its inhabitants as they used the raw materials to advance their civilization. Yes, Sir, the old earth has seen lots of things, but I guess after a few thousand years most of the happenings were repetition.

The duck hunting season is open, but I haven't heard about any one killing very many ducks. Maybe the new $1 hunting fee had something to do with the reports.

Community Sketches

Have you been reading these community historical sketches by the Wellington Leader correspondents? There certainly have been some good ones and there are still some good ones to come. I declare but I was surprised when they first started coming into the office. They are really good accounts. I didn't know that the Leader had such good correspondents; they are dependable, too, and I want to say right now that the work of our correspondents in covering their communities has sure helped the Leader in winning its state and national prizes. To mention all of our correspondents would take too much space, but we are real proud of them.

Memphis Victory Gives Cyclones Title Chances

Well Balanced Game Is Skyrocket's First Loss During 1934 Season

Taking a 12 to 0 victory over the Wellington Skyrockets, the Memphis Cyclone Friday night virtually won the championship of Section 1, District 4, before the eyes of 2,000 fans.

During the first quarter the game was anybody's, with Wellington the slight favorite after Glenn kicked once to the Cyclone 5-yard line with Riley killing the ball on the spot and again when Glenn got off a nice boot with Wellington making the tackle deep in Memphis territory.

The second period was a different story, however, as Deason, Cyclone fullback, broke through on a fake reverse and raced 69 yards for a touchdown. The pass for extra point, Norman to Baskerville, was incomplete. During the short remainder of the period the game continued without either team making a serious threat to count.

As the half closed, fans were enthusiastic over the struggle which was well balanced for despite the Cyclone touchdown Wellington had managed to chalk up six first downs while the Memphis boys were recorded with only five.

In the third quarter the ball was se-saved in mid-field through the first 11 minutes of play and then Memphis again threatened as Norman went off right tackle and Deason carried. Wellington's defense picked up, however, and the Cyclone was held merely to a penetration of the Rocket 20-yard line, after the ball was advanced to the Wellington 8-yard marker. Potet recovered a fumble to save the possible counter.

The final period of the game again took a Cyclone glow as the Memphians kept the ball well in the Wellington territory with Captain Gene Glenn, Riley, T. Williams and the line fighting a strong defensive game.

It was also about the middle of the last quarter that Deason again broke loose on a fake reverse and carried on a spinner through left tackle for 27 yards and what appeared to be a touchdown, but Bill Parker playing safety, forced Deason out of bounds on the Wellington 1-2 yard line. From this point Norman carried the ball over on a line play for the second touchdown, giving Memphis their final score of 12 to 0.

Despite the highly touted Cyclone aerial plays most of the yardage for both teams was made on ground plays and for the first time this season the Skyrocket line was ripped open. Memphis completed only one pass out of six attempts and made nine yards. Wellington attempted nine passes and completed two for 21 yards. A large part of the game was played on Skyrocket territory. The game ended a drive toward a Wellington score with Glenn and Wood heaving passes for substantial gains.

Each Slow Start

May cost you 2 MILES OF GASOLINE

HAVE you ever figured the high cost of starting with low test gasoline?

Even in warm weather, each start of the average car takes as much gasoline as driving it for two-fifths of a mile. On cold days, slow starts can easily consume two miles of gasoline!

This waste of mileage is a waste of your money. And the waste is worst in Winter. The starter whirrs. The battery weakens. Up go your temper, temperature, and upkeep.

What a difference with high test Phillips 66! Your motor starts with split-second speed. Warms up fast. Gets going without bucking. You get maximum power on a minimum amount of motor fuel. Zip-pier pick-up. And the silent action and anti-knock of genuine Lead Tetraethyl.

Why not check up today? See if you aren't missing extra miles on every gallon, extra pleasure in motoring! One trial tankful of gas, at any Orange and Black 66 Shield, is Phillips finest advertisement.

Texas CCC Camps Showing Progress

Forest Service and Soil Conservation Are Important Projects

COLLEGE STATION—A total of 7,483 check dams 2,694 of which are of concrete and 4,789 of rock masonry, have been constructed by the ten CCC camps in Texas, according to a summary compiled at the end of the third six-months' period of the work by M. R. Bentley, extension agricultural engineer and director of the soil erosion control work in Texas. In making the dams 121,900 sacks of cement have been used; 34,700 tons of rock have been placed; and 28,400 cubic yards of dirt were moved by hand, with much larger amounts moved by landowners with teams.

The camps, each working a radius of about 12 miles, are located at Farmersville, Collin county; Cleburne, Johnson county; Dublin, Erath county; Bowie, Montague county; Belton, Bell county; Taylor, Williamson county; Graham, Young county; Boyd, Wise county; Weatherford, Parker county; and Coolidge, Limestone county. The camp now located at Cleburne will be moved to Hillsboro, Hill county, about October 15, and the Dublin camp will be located at Brenham, Washington county, after that date.

Seven camps were organized in 1933 and assigned to the Forest Service for the purpose of carrying on soil erosion work. They are financed by Emergency Conservation Work funds. Upon request the Extension Service added to an established program of erosion control and soil conservation the technical supervision of erosion control methods in this new work. The CCC workers survey for terraces, but do not build terrace ridges. Their work is limited to the construction of check dams at terrace outlets and outlet ditches for terrace systems.

Four county graders are at work throwing up terraces in the territory of the Taylor camp and approximately 2100 acres have been approved for new terraces. These cover 20 different projects. Seven large grading outfits are engaged in terrace construction in the Farmersville territory, while the Bowie camp reports that it has had many projects lined up and terraced with the county equipment. The adjoining counties in a radius of 25 miles of the camp have also given cooperation with their equipment.

Fort Griffin Was Redskin Poison

General Robert E. Lee selected the site of Fort Griffin long before the Civil War, a high hill overlooking the Clear Fork of the Brazos River. There it was built in Shackelford county, 15 miles north of Albany, in 1867. The rollicking, six-gun town of the same name, soon rose in the valley below. This was one of a line of forts that formed Texas' frontier against Comanches. Most notable of Indian expeditions by troops of Fort Griffin was the famous McKenzie Drive, which terminated when the Federals shot to death 1,000 Comanche horses in Tule Canyon in the Panhandle, so the Comanches couldn't travel to battle. Their bleached bones may still be seen. The upper picture above is the old quarters for officers at Fort Griffin as it is today, while below is the old bakery, with ovens still preserved. Fort Griffin was abandoned in 1881. Citizens of Shackelford county hope to make the site a state park.

Work at the Boyd camp has just started on their largest project to date. This includes approximately 43 miles of terraces, 8 miles of controlled ditches, 1002 acres, and 50 structures. All of this is to be planned and controlled as a unit.

Twenty-one members of the engineering detail of the Belton camp are enrolled in a class in engineering, covering such subjects as terracing, topography, level work, and mapping. The class is taught by Carlton Crownover, A. N. Gibson, and C. M. Evans, engineering foremen at the camp. The class meets once a week for two hours and is supplemented by group meetings from time to time, taking up work that has been covered or will be covered by the regular class.

Hazards of clearing high-voltage insulators by hand are reduced greatly by a truck equipped with a telescopic pole, on top of which is mounted a small platform for the workman.

You Need Refrigeration Every Day of the Year

There are only a few days each year that the temperature is low enough for the proper refrigeration of foods. Although foods may not spoil during cold Fall weather, the temperature is not low enough to prevent the growth of bacteria, the real danger of poor refrigeration.

The electrical refrigerator's economy and dependability of operation has been proven. The saving on foods alone makes the investment of your money amply repay you.

To protect your family's health, proper refrigeration is a necessity every day of the year. The cost is no greater than obsolete methods of refrigeration.

Low incentive rates make it possible for you to secure the maximum of benefit at the minimum of expense. Buy safe—buy dependable electrical refrigeration.

Ledwig To Give Religious Series Of Lectures Here

Noted Chaplain Has Given Lectures In Every State In Union

The Rev. Francis J. Ledwig, a nationally known speaker will give a series of lectures here in Wellington in the Catholic Church, during the coming week. Father Ledwig was a lieutenant of the Chaplain's Corp., U. S. Navy, during the World War. He was very active in the organization of the American Legion in the state of Texas. He was state historian and state chairman of the Americanization committee of that organization. He was formerly professor of sociology and psychology as well as of education at Duquesne University, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

For twenty-three years, Father Ledwig has been lecturing in the schools, meeting halls and on the street corners in the open air. His lecture tours have taken him, not only throughout the state of Texas, but in every state in the union from coast to coast.

Much has been said and written about the Catholic Church. Here is an opportunity to get, first hand information about the Catholic Church from a native born Texan who is a renowned and competent lecturer. POPEYE LENDS—PI—
Those visitors fortunate enough to see the Home Products on exhibit at the courthouse Friday and Saturday, were greeted by Popeye, in the Fresno booth.

This comic strip character was fashioned entirely of garden products and striking likeness to the well known funny page gentleman was noted. Even the tilt of his cap, and slant of his eyes were as truly realistic as the figure and cob-pipe.

Carrots, radishes, peppers and other common garden products were used to fashion this interesting gentleman, and we understand Mrs. Lewis Reynolds, of the Fresno community was the artistic designer.

Thirteen members of the senior class have been placed in the cast of the three-act comedy and are unusually well balanced.

Helen Hudson has the role as hostess at a house party and along with Virginia Fortenberry and Mildred Slough represents modern, spirited young women.

Margaret Wood, as Jane, is childish and hysterical. Kathleen Liggitt, as Ann, represents a sweet, quiet and appealing young lady, especially with the men.

Up-to-date young men included in the cast are: Oscar Elliott, Joe Alley, John Russell, C. C. Williams and J. A. Muncie.

Gene Glenn is a doctor of philosophy and hands out jaw-breaking words by the dozen.

The play is being coached by Mrs. W. F. Decker, who has a reputation dear to all lovers of home talent productions. The cast is practicing and rehearsing the parts at the present time. The play will begin at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, November 15, while members of the senior class are urging everyone in the county to attend.

head, and to draft an ordinance that would give him the authority to act without consulting the various officials.

In addition to prescribing the rules and regulations concerning the sale of water, the ordinance also sets forth the various rates for domestic, commercial and industrial use, which are the same as have been charged. The irrigation rate used only in the summer months has been made a permanent part of the rate structure for domestic consumers and will be available during the entire year. Additional provisions also cover special rates granted churches, schools etc.
