

U.N. OPENS DEBATE ON CRISIS

Russia Fights to Kill Discussion

PARIS (AP)—Russia told the United Nations Security Council today it has no right to consider Western charges that the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a menace to world peace.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky led off his fight to keep the Berlin issue out of the council's hands. He declared the Western demand for U.N. consideration of the dispute "Does not fall within the scope of the Security Council."

The issue, he said, should be sent to the Big Four council of foreign ministers, as a formal note from Moscow proposed earlier today.

Vishinsky declared the U.N. Charter forbids the council to discuss anything concerning Germany until the four occupying powers have written a peace treaty for the beaten countries.

Taking the argument to the foreign ministers' council, he said, offers the only legal way to settle the problems of Germany, including Berlin which has been under a Soviet land blockade since last June 23.

He said the Berlin problem is linked to the whole German problem and charged that the currency reform in Western Germany last June was an "act of aggression" against the Russian occupation and had forced the Russians to take "defensive measures."

Vishinsky denied there was a blockade of Berlin. A number of the delegates smiled.

U.S. Delegate Warren R. Austin stepped down from the council presidency immediately after opening the session in favor of Argentina.

The great hall in the basement of the Palais de Chaillot was packed with the biggest crowd ever to attend a meeting of the Security Council.

Immediately after opening the session as chairman for October, Austin said he did not "deem it in accordance with the proper fulfillment of the task of the presidency" (of the council) for the United States delegate to occupy the chair, since the United States is a party to the dispute.

He said the chair would pass, by customary alphabetical rotation, to Argentina.

Secretary of State Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin conferred this morning with their top advisers on Germany. They planned to meet with Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France this afternoon, while the Security Council is in session.

Other Western powers officials expressed the view privately that the Russian note was mainly important as a propaganda maneuver.

What the Russians apparently want, these officials said, is to impress members of the Security Council that the Soviet Union is still willing to settle things on a friendly basis.

The Russians cracked back hard. (See MAIN EVENTS, Page 16)

'Big Mistake' Ends in Fine

It was a case of wrong identity on misinformation, but the mistake cost A. W. Downard, Pampa, $22.15 in Justice of the Peace Court yesterday morning.

Downard, the Sheriff's Department said, cornered three teenage boys near "Behman's" Saturday night and struck two of them about the face, blaming them for something the boys didn't know "the first thing about."

Chief Deputy Rufe Jordan said that several small boys had let the air out of Downard's car, but then blamed the three high school boys. Downard found the youths parked in their car near Behman's and approached them on it.

"The boys he struck, Joe Glaxner and Hal McCrae, were not only entirely innocent of tampering with Downard's car, but didn't even know what he was talking about," Jordan added. A large crowd gathered and the sheriff's office called.

Downard was arrested by Sheriff G. H. "Skinner" Kyle and Jordan and held overnight.

The boys who actually let out the air in the tires are to be brought before juvenile authorities this afternoon.

Allen Bonds Listeners Against Loss of Prizes

NEW YORK (AP)—Fred Allen has started a one-man radio campaign against the "give-away" programs that have won millions of listeners.

The four radio comedians have agreed "in self defense" to bond his listeners up to $5,000 against the loss of any prize they might win by listening to some other program.

Allen says "give-away" programs "are ruining incentive for individual talent in radio."

Almost at the same time that Allen was starting his campaign last night, Kenneth Crosbie, a Bluffton, Ind., beer salesman, was winning $30,000 in prizes from another show—ABC's "Stop the Music." Crosbie was sitting at home listening to the program when his telephone rang. He correctly identified a "mystery tune" as "Turkey in the Treetops" and was told he had hit the jackpot.

To start the public laughing, Allen announced the award of these mythical prizes on his NBC program:

A genuine television set, and a saloon and bartender to go with it; 4,000 yards of dental floss, practically new; the gangplank of the liner Queen Mary; 800 pounds of putty for every member of the family; two floors of the Empire State Building; and 12 miles of railroad track and a roundhouse completely furnished.

Allen, who said there are so many programs "giving away things" that many people have stopped tuning in comedians, announced that the National Surety Corporation will guarantee his promise to reimburse his listeners.

After he had lampooned "give-away" programs by a takeoff of a quiz-master telephoning lucky listeners, Allen told a few men that "these give-away programs are not entertainment—just cheap lottery."

"I'm out to do something about them," he declared.

Conceding that he expects to lose something through the bonding, Allen remarked that "the risk has been established to everyone's satisfaction, and where there's a risk, someone will lose."

By late last night, government infantrymen, supported by tanks and fighter planes, had routed the rebels out of their fortified strongholds and apparently had captured them all.

There was no official indication of the number of casualties of the revolt. All accounts indicated, however, that the number of dead and wounded was large.

An army authority said there were so many casualties that it was probably not used to augment ambulances in carrying them away.

The government of President Jose Luis Bustamante Rivero said in a communique it had confirmed that the opposition Aprista Party had "inspired and directed" the revolt. The communique said many of the civilians affiliated with Aprista were arrested.

"Comdr. Enrique Aguilera Pardo, who is well known because of his Aprista leanings, headed the rebellion aboard some warships," the communique said.

The rebels' first strike occurred about 3 a. m. Police Col. Felix Pielago Stagnaro said, when about 40 civilians, well equipped with navy arms, attacked a Callao police station. A police squad routed them, Pielago said.

In rapid order, sailors and civilians seized the Naval Academy, naval armory, Fort Royal Phillip and the national slaughterhouse.

The government declared a stage of siege and sent large troop contingents to Callao to bolster the army garrison there.

The number of casualties aboard the rebel-seized warships was believed also to be high because they were strafed throughout the afternoon by army planes.

The ships countered with anti-aircraft fire.

By early evening government forces had crushed the rebels at Fort Royal Phillip and the Naval Academy, while the remnants of the insurgents ashore still were holding out in the armory and slaughterhouse.

Airliner With 21 Aboard 'Presumed Down at Sea'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A twin-engine charter airliner with 21 persons aboard was "presumed down at sea" today after it rounded distress calls somewhere between Charleston, S.C., and Nassau, Bahamas.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration official listed the plane as owned by the New England Air Express Company of Teterboro, N.J., and said "an accident is presumed to have occurred."

The plane's gasoline supply was exhausted at 4:45 a. m. (EST). It was last heard from, calling the international distress signal "Mayday" at 1:44 a. m.

"We can only presume the plane is down somewhere between Charleston and the Bahamas," the CAA said. "Its gasoline is gone and we haven't heard from it for several hours."

The charter airliner, a DC-3, was enroute from Teterboro to San Juan, Puerto Rico. It departed Teterboro at 6:30 p. m. yesterday.

The CAA said the plane carried 17 passengers and four crewmen. Only person identified was the pilot, Richard Roy Oliveira, of Port Chester, N.Y., president and general manager of the airline. Others aboard are co-pilot, stewardess, extra pilot and 17 passengers.

More than a dozen aircraft already were on the search.

The Coast Guard said the area to be searched is dotted with small islands and shoals and visibility is "pretty fair."

The ceiling was estimated at about 2,500 feet.

Coast guardsmen laid out a search area from Charleston, S.C., to Nassau.

Foreign Ministers Study Moscow Note

PARIS (AP)—United States, British and French foreign ministers met today to discuss Russia's call for resumption of Big Four talks on Berlin and Germany. They met while the United Nations Security Council was opening debate on the Berlin crisis.

U.S. Secretary of State Marshall, Britain's Ernest Bevin and their advisers on German affairs met with French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman in Schuman's office, a French spokesman reported.

They had fully translated texts of a Russian note, received early this morning, which replied to their notice to the Kremlin last week that they considered direct East-West negotiations for a Berlin settlement a failure.

American and British officials said that the Russian note had not changed the essential circumstances of the East-West dispute over Berlin.

They stressed that Russia's call for a foreign ministers' meeting to discuss Berlin and other German problems "ducked the issue" because it ignored the basic Western demand that the Russians lift their Berlin blockade.

The note declared: "The United States government's declaration that a situation has arisen which allegedly threatens international peace and security does not correspond with the real state of affairs and constitutes nothing more than a means of pressure and an attempt to use the United Nations for the achievement of its aggressive aims."

The Russians proposed that the directive to the four military commanders in Germany, drawn up after a long series of four-power talks in the Kremlin, should be used as a basis for settling the Berlin situation.

The note said "Premier Stalin expressed the incident with that the governments of the U. S., A., Great Britain and France should postpone fulfillment of the London decisions regarding the establishment of a government of the Western part of Germany until representatives of the U. S., A., the U. S., A., Great Britain and France could meet together to discuss the question of Germany as a whole."

The Russians listed a long series of grievances against the Western powers, including the establishment of the British-American blocs; separated currency reform in the Western occupation zones; and the plan for setting up a Western German government.

By late last night, government infantrymen, supported by tanks and fighter planes, had routed the rebels out of their fortified strongholds and apparently had captured them all.

Such conductors treasure their punches. Frequently, when they retire, they request their punches as souvenirs. Often, punches are handed down from father to son.

Daughters of Confederacy Want Park Named After Jefferson Davis

FORT WORTH —(AP)— A movement to rename the Big Bend National Park the Jefferson Davis National Park has been started by the Fort Worth chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

A resolution suggesting the change will be presented to the state convention of the UDC, to be held at San Antonio Oct. 18-21. A committee from the Julia Jackson chapter here has been appointed to draft the resolution.

The resolution also would suggest that in the future the Davis Mountains in Southwest Texas be called their full name—Jefferson Davis Mountains.

"The Davis Mountains were named for Fort Davis which, of course, received its name from the brilliant Southern soldier, Jefferson Davis," said Mrs. Katie Blalock, a chapter member.

Renaming the park, she said, "with the Jefferson Davis Highway extending from coast to coast through our Southland, would be an expression of our high esteem for one of our own men who won fame and glory by his magnificent military achievements."

Notes on a Very Important Subject

We feel that Benjamin Franklin delineated the purpose of publishing a good newspaper when he revealed his inner feelings in a Page One editorial with the publication of his first issue, "The Pennsylvania Gazette, October 2, 1727."

Franklin, father of newspapering in the Keystone State, wrote: "There are many who have long desired to see a good Newspaper in Pennsylvania. We are fully sensible, that to publish a good Newspaper is to do a good service. Undertaking as many People imagine it to be."

"Upon the Whole, we may assure the Publick, that as far as the Encouragement we meet with will enable us, we are endeavoring to provide the best possible newspaper for our readers, despite the fact that it is not so easy an undertaking. We omit no care or pains in providing an honest, unbiased news report, entertaining features, thoughtful editorials and endeavor to support all things beneficial to the communities we serve."

Just as in Colonial days it was essential to have a good newspaper, we feel that "you have a right to know—because it is the keystone to all your liberties."

When that staunch band of Pilgrims, more than three centuries ago, blazed the trail to this New World, and were followed by countless peoples of all races and creeds to enjoy the fruits of liberty, little did they realize... that they were founding a bulwark of freedom for the individual!

Today, we are confronted with the same old, same old problem. A large part, has lost its freedom of choice, freedom of economy and freedom of expression, in fact, lost the very key to all liberties.

In America alone can we sincerely know that everyone enjoys spiritual and mental freedom, and economic freedom, which must be guarded and developed here at the World is going to pay its way back to sanity when it finally decides to quit chasing after the false gods of planned economy and guided thought.

Your local newspaper is the constant and ever-present source of knowledge of the American way and the contrasting and competing forms of World order. Through your newspaper, you can keep informed, better informed, without censorship or biased information, than the peoples of any other land.

Your Newspaper assures you the information you need to keep America free and to continue this land a citadel of freedom for the individual.

I am Your Newspaperboy! I'm the lad with the bag of newspapers slung over my shoulder. I'm a success story in the making.

My job teaches me how to meet people, how to handle money, make collections and keep accurate books of ally my transaction. Through my newspaper route I am actually in business because I buy my papers from the publisher at one price and sell them at a higher price. If all my clients pay me promptly I obtain a profit for the time and effort I devote to my business. I receive instances when someone doesn't pay me, then I'm out of pocket and suffer a loss.

I'm going to be a businessman when I grow up... and I'll have a head start on other boys who have not had the advantages that a newspaper route provides in business training.

INROADS ON EDUCATION by Upton Close

It will take more than the election of a Republican ticket in November to stop socialism in America.

A recent (Jan., 1948) survey by Dr. Henry C. Link, sampling 5,000 Americans, showed "43 percent of the general public believed they would get as much or more under government ownership and management of industry as at present. Only 38 percent believed they would get less."

One may doubt that the 5,000 people tested by Dr. Link represented a cross section of Americans. But if they are truly representative, then what is to prevent the country from going socialist as fast as the legislation can be enacted and the machinery of government set up?

A still more sobering figure reveals that Dr. Link's tests among college students, 81.2 percent of them favored government ownership; only 23 percent held by free enterprise.

Why shouldn't the country move toward socialism or communism when so many universities and time-thriving funds are being run by the all-time-high channels of free enterprise are in the hands of Marxists and "liberals?"

Fair Enough - - by Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK — Governor Dewey's method of handling the domestic Communists has the splendid merit of having proposed a long time ago in these letters. Therefore my endorsement is freely given.

Mr. Dewey shows a fine grasp of the situation and all that he left me to wish was that he had taken occasion to hear those depressed American citizens in Hollywood who stuck their heads up and got them knocked off. The mere fact that the moving picture industry is rich does not make it immune from the forces of holding it up to notoriety as a sly conniver with the enemy. However, I realize that, as he is said to have said, the first thing in politics is to get elected and that if he had not fly by at that point he might have wiggled an election which is as good as won.

Nevertheless, he must see to it that, when he cleans the Muscovites out of our society, politics and culture, the good Americans who have been fighting for the American way in Hollywood are remembered and repaired. Some of them took their chances twice in hearings, first by the old Dies committee and later by the Thomas committee. These committees assured them that they would have nothing to fear if they should tell the country what the Bolshevik had been up to. Having no more knowledge of the actual workings of Congress than the producers of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "State of the Union," the patriots came out of the cellars and told. Like the underground martyrs of Warsaw who were betrayed by the Red Army into rising up to protect its witnesses, these American writers, actors, advertising men and producers were abandoned but for no reason except rattle-brained confusion. The Dies committee ran off chasing some Red rectifier or furrier and forgot its promises.

After a great uproar in Washington last winter, the Thomas committee started some absent-minded prosecutions of a few inferior Hollywood Bolsheviks but forgot to protect its witnesses. Within a few weeks one of the suspects was declaring openly in meeting that the heat would soon be off and that the treason, euphemistically called art, could be resumed. He was so right that he was right here Sunday. The romance began with an ad in an old-age pension magazine. Mrs. Williams of Oakland placed the ad—"Looking for a good Christian gentleman companion. Am no fortune hunter." Sears answered: "I am an old man but a good one."

Now Governor Dewey proposes that if they break our laws against treason they'll be "against treason" and that "if our laws aren't adequate we'll get one (ouch!) which are."

That means that anyone who joins the Communist Party declares his alliance with an alien organization devoted to the overthrow of our government by "force and violence." In time of war with Soviet Russia that would be treason and the only appropriate penalty for treason is death. In other words, we would punish Communists without regard for their personal status as Eleanor the Great or anyone else.

Our present laws aren't "adequate" because they do not deal with treason done in a "cold" war. President Truman himself announced the Russian campaign against our country as a "cold" war about a year ago and it has steadily grown worse. Meanwhile, thousands of traitors are protected only because our laws were written long before cold war was invented. The new law would give us a legal defense. That should be simple, but, simple or not, it has got to be done. If the Constitution is so brittle that we can't bend it to our vital necessities, we won't be able to defend it. It will protect our enemies and frustrate us.

Then Mr. Dewey said, "If they (Communists) engage in sabotage or break any other laws, we'll jail them."

Here he said that he said we would get adequate laws but moved that phrase up against the treason proposition to emphasize his intent that we put Communists to the firing squad.

Of course, there have been common sabotage, vandalism, sedition and espionage and treason. We hardly know what our laws can do to them with juries properly aware of their duties and powers and of the meaning of these crimes, because Roosevelt protected Communists in all such dirty works. The long Alibi-Chalmers strike, which undoubtedly

Commissioner Praises Volunteer Firemen

AUSTIN — (AP) — Volunteer firemen, who this month are to be honored by a commemorative issue of a three-cent postage stamp, were given an additional pat on the back by State Fire Insurance Commissioner Marvin Hall.

"I have long observed the good job the volunteers of Texas have done without regard to personal danger, discomfort or inconvenience for reward of any kind. It is a proud feeling to know that material recognition is being given to men so seldom praised," Hall said.

A recent survey, he said, shows 516 fire departments in Texas, 478 of them listed as volunteer. The largest volunteer company is the 200 men in Victoria and the smallest is in Streetman where there are five firemen.

MONTEREY PARK, Calif. — (AP) — George W. Sears, 31, and Mrs. Martha Williams, 72, were married here Sunday. The romance began with an ad in an old-age pension magazine. Mrs. Williams of Oakland placed the ad—"Looking for a good Christian gentleman companion. Am no fortune hunter." Sears answered: "I am an old man but a good one."

Common Ground

One of the causes of our confusion and trouble is that those people who are successful in business seem to think that they can be successful leaders on social and political questions without giving the subject the same study they give their own individual projects. The leaders of the National Association of Manufacturers and also the United States Chamber of Commerce have been woefully weak. They have been confusing and confounding the public.

The magazine, "The Individualist," quotes the statements made by Morris Sayre, President of the National Association of Manufacturers and also President of Corn Products Refining Company. The magazine says:

"With a pair of jobs like those, you'd expect him (Mr. Sayre) to be leading an attack not a retreat. The title of this talk was, 'I've Got to Make Business Human.' A better title would have been 'Apologia,' for by inference he pleads guilty to practically everything that has been charged or implied against business and industry organized labor and all the Red, Pink, New Dealers and other crackpots of collectivist persuasion, and he concludes by warning his fellow-tycoons that hereafter they'll have to do better."

Then The Individualist quotes David O. Green of Jasper, Mo., who was asked when he read the things quoted from the speech of Sayre and he took his typewriter and wrote:

"Did you notice that speech of Morris Sayre, of Corn Products and NAM, in the August Reader's Digest? I thought you might like to give it a little try, in your imitable style."

Then Mr. Steel, editor of The Individualist, makes these comments:

"Now Mr. Green, you should know it is a statement of fact and a farmer who knows his onions in more ways than one, though you won't if you'd avoid hostilities, call him a gentlemen farmer. (He's a writer, too, but even he can't help it). But not even blame for such a sentence, though we love the stuff, can make us violate our cardinal rule never to do anything we can get somebody else to do. That rule, incidentally, is a sort of corollary to our pet formula: never put off until tomorrow what you can put off until the next day. So-o-o, since Mr. Green left himself wide open, he is taking over, and from now on you will be largely in the hands of D. O. G., as he often signs himself, though later we will arrange the details for consummation of the preliminary and general agreement at the Kremlin."

HOPE — The Allies recently published White Paper reported that Stalin agreed to readjustment of the Berlin situation in a conference at the Kremlin on August 28. He promised a lifting of the blockade, four-power control of a Russian currency in Berlin and four-power supervision of trade.

The dictator said that he would notify Marshal Sokolovsky to sit down with the three other military commanders in Berlin, and arrange the details for consummation of the preliminary and general agreement at the Kremlin.

It was about this time that earlier pessimism over prospects of a settlement disappeared around 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

President Truman dared to hope that he could present the settlement as a fait accompli to the American people, thereby justifying his policy of "patience with firmness" and winning votes through his success.

HARASS — President Truman and Secretary Marshall, however, were stunned when matters immediately took a turn for the worse at Berlin. If Sokolovsky had received any orders from the Kremlin to exhibit a more friendly and conciliatory attitude in the prolonged dispute, he showed no signs of it.

He began to harass the Anglo-American effort after he failed to impose conditions that would place his operations under his control. Red troops invaded American and British sectors, arresting and molesting Western guards. The "Commiss" stormed Berlin City Hall, which lies in the Russian zone, and tried to take over the municipal government.

Western authorities were inclined to blame these excesses, violations and uprisings on a misunderstanding on the part of Sokolovsky and his administrative staff. Showing incredible naivete, they figured that he might be displaying the Kremlin's usages. They still had faith in Stalin.

TOOL — It was then that somebody with a long memory recalled the earlier happening.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — A quaint and comic episode involving jovial and likable Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, military commander of the Russian sector in Berlin and the opposite of General Lucius D. Clay, convulses both the White House and the State Department. That Stalin is giving the Western powers a run-around in the current clash over control of Germany and the Reich Capital.

Although the incident happened some time ago, General Clay was a participant as deputy commander under his predecessor, General Joseph T. McNarney. Moreover, a full report on the affair was made to Washington and to London.

The role of Sokolovsky becomes pertinent now because of the insight the almost forgotten episode casts on the Kremlin's operations. It should prove conclusively to the too-wonderful-thinking diplomat who has complained of General Clay's more hard-boiled and realistic attitude toward the Russians, that Stalin and his Politburo colleagues are the real villains of the Wagnerian drama of the stage of Western Europe, and that they do not want any peaceful settlement.

Only toward the end of his speech did the old fellow's face soften.

ORDERS — Amidst a shocked silence the Russian interpreter translated Sokolovsky's fiery speech into English for the benefit of General McNarney, General Clay and their aides. They were about to leave the chamber in a state of fury and consternation when the American interpreter, a Russian born in the U. S., whispered to McNarney:

"He didn't translate everything."

"What did he leave out?" asked the American commander, who is now stationed at Wright Field, Dayton, O.

"When the marshal's face became more pleasant at the end, and he threw his written speech on the table, he added: 'I am obliged to make this speech by orders from the Great White Father in the Kremlin.'"

Despite Stalin's pleasantness and agreements at Moscow, which raised the expectations of a settlement, it is obvious that Sokolovsky's more recent violations and defiance of the West are inspired by "orders from the Great White Father in the Kremlin."

AIMS — How explain this contrast between Stalin's words and actions? It is not enough, according to those who have met and studied him, to attribute it entirely to the Communist strategy of reservation and duplicity, preparation and treachery to gain their immediate or long-range ends, although that basic factor may be partially responsible.

It also derives from Stalin's own personality. In his own way, he likes people to enjoy their own freedom and allow himself to melt in face-to-face talks, as he has done with so many American visitors. Under this spell he frequently says what he does not intend to do, as so many politicians at home.

But alone with himself or in a huddle with his associates, he regrets and realizes that he has permitted his human reaction to threaten to thwart fundamental Communist aims.

That, of course, is the interpretation of his inconsistencies and idiosyncrasies.

RAILROADS NEED NEW CAPITAL FOR PLANT IMPROVEMENTS

(Railway Age)

"The public and a good many railroad people and railroad patrons too—have plainly been deluded by the relative adequacy of railroad service during the recent war into the belief that the adverse political treatment of which the railroads have occasionally complained is merely an annoyance—not a genuine injury. Railroad men who know better are reluctant to disturb this comforting delusion."

Since hundreds of millions of pre-war appropriations for the extension of socialized transportation facilities (waterways, superhighways, airports) were insufficient to put the railroads out of business, superlative speculators of transportation developments have apparently concluded that indefinite continuance and increase of such appropriations will not do any harm either. However, the suppliers of investment capital are not being fooled. Railroad stocks have been selling below par—usually far below par—since the early 1930's; and, also since the early 1930's, no "new money" from investors has come into the railroad industry, except for the financing of locomotives and cars.

Investors are willing to supply funds to provide the railroads with rolling stock, where the capital outlay will be refunded to them in ten or fifteen years, when they retain title to assets of a kind which can easily be "repossessed." They are not willing, and have not been willing for more than a decade and a half, to put their money into improvements in roadway and structures where "repossession" is not possible and where, consequently, rapid repayment of investment cannot be enforced.

Private enterprise in transportation worked a near-miracle in providing reasonably adequate railroad service for the heavy load of the recent war, despite a decade of starvation in new capital for plant additions and improvements. To assume that such a feat could be duplicated after an over-protracted period of capital starvation like that of the 1930's would constitute the essence of "tempting Providence."

The development of other phases of transportation has deprived the railroads of none of their technological preeminence—especially in freight movement—so there is nothing whatever except political discrimination against the railroads which would cause investors so much less willing to entrust their funds to the railroads than to other industry. The "discrimination" is

Ida Louise Knoll is one of 14 outstanding 4-H Club girls who will receive Honor Award medals from the State Fair of Texas at a special luncheon on Oct. 16, James W. Aston, chairman of the Rural Youth Committee, has announced.

Ida Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knoll who reside south of Shamrock in Collingsworth County.

These girls have been chosen because of their outstanding records in homemaking, leadership and other activities. One girl was selected from each of the Extension districts in the state. They are top notch young women as they were chosen by hundreds of other 4-H Club girls from all over Texas. Aston said.

Wheeler County will be benefited still more with an additional $2,000,000 the local ACA committee is to be used in carrying out agricultural conservation practices. Bill Rushing, secretary of the County ACA, said.

This brings the county allocation up to $47,500 for this year. The money is earned by farmers carrying out conservation practices in accordance with rules and regulations set up by the federal government.

A survey made Wednesday afternoon revealed that 880 bales of cotton from the 1948 crop had been shipped to the market at Shamrock, Wheeler and Twitty up to that time.

The call letters KEVA have been assigned East Panhandle's radio broadcasting station to be erected on Highway 82, one-half mile north of Shamrock. John Kennedy, manager, has announced.

that Atwater Kent is serving caviar hash at his parties.

Anne "Mom" Lehr is calling on friends in the film industry to save her famous Hollywood Guild Lease on the building is running out and no other structure has been found to continue the program of help to needy vets and recreation for the wounded.

Aside to Miss Turner and Garbo: Canning companies are glamorizing their products with movie star name labels. A new sliced pineapple is on the market under the label of "Lana," and a fancy new dog food is being sold under the name of "Greta."

Eddie Green's 15-month-old daughter will be seen tested at M-G-M. He's the waiter on Duffy's Tavern. Richard Crane's daughter, Susan, will make her film debut in the Barbara Stanwyck picture, "G. M. B. Lady." Mrs. Crane is Kay Morley, the actress.

PAAR FOR BAKER

Jack Paar will be the new quiz master of "Everybody Wins." He replaces Phil Baker. Film industry dividends for the first eight months of 1948 are off nearly 20 percent from last year's peak. The reason why such a big film as "The Fountainhead" at Warner Brothers was rushed through $200,000 under its budget.

Gregory Peck is growing a full beard for his new M-G-M picture, "The Great Sinner." Melvyn Douglas and Agnes Moorehead get big roles in the film.

Seven stars have been set for tours of veteran hospitals. The first tour, which runs through Nov. 20, will be headlined by Linda Darnell, William Holden, Peter Lorre, Wayne Morris, George O'Brien, Mark Stevens and Alan Young.

This is why the importance of the work being undertaken by the Committee on Un-American Activities should not be under-estimated in this country. That its methods are often childishly flamboyant, instead of alluring British sympathy should serve as a reminder that the Americans are a very different people from the British, so that we do not take for granted American imperviousness to the Communist distemper.

In 1925, the annual new growth in American forests was estimated at 8,900 million cubic feet; in 1944, at 13,000 million cubic feet a year.

Arkansas, After Licking TCU, Meets Baylor Bears This Week

By the Associated Press
Five Southwest Conference teams tackle tough intercollegiate football this week, but the top attraction may be that which could change the color of two dark-horse entries.

Arkansas and Baylor, match speed and trickery at Fayetteville, Ark., in a tilt that could mean a lot in the final standings. The five intercollegiate games include the annual Texas-Oklahoma classic at Dallas; Texas A & M-Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge, La.; Rice-Southern California at Los Angeles; Southern Methodist-Missouri at Columbia, Mo., and Texas Christian-Indiana at Bloomington, Ind.

Arkansas' Razorbacks took a game advantage in the conference race last week by routing Texas Christian under, 27-14. Baylor was impressive in drawing with Mississippi State, 7-7. Should Arkansas win, it would be in a strategic position in the title chase. With two victories, the Razorbacks could point for the toughest—Southern Methodist and Texas—and let matters attend to themselves against Rice and Texas A & M.

A win for Baylor would send the Bears' stock soaring as a menace. Southern Methodist ran its victory string to fourteen straight with a fast finish that buried Texas Tech, 41-6, Saturday. Texas gave its reserves a good workout in smothering little New Mexico, 47-0.

Louisiana State sprang a 26-13 upset at Rice while Oklahoma beat Texas A & M easily, 42-14.

Clyde Scott of Arkansas and Dock Walker of SMU paced individual performances. Scott scored three of the Razorbacks' touchdowns, and gained 140 yards on the ground; Walker scored one touchdown, passed for another and averaged eight and three-fourths yards on six carries. He also had a two-of-three passing average for 33 yards and took scoring leadership with 23 points in two games.

This week's schedule is expected to be a critical test for conference teams.

Missouri should be a good measuring rod for the strength of Southern Methodist; Oklahoma could be a stumbling block in Texas' comeback plans, and Southern California and Indiana should cause Rice and Texas Christian's rebound formulas. Louisiana State is a one-sided favorite over the luckless Texas Aggies.

In intercollegiate competition this year conference teams have won six, lost four, and tied one.

"Sudden death" confronts the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox today.

The Indians and Red Sox are scheduled to clash in Boston in a one-game, do-or-die playoff for the championship of the American League.

This unprecedented American League event came about yesterday when the Indians and Red Sox finished the regular season in a tie for the pennant.

The Indians began the day's activities a game ahead of the Sox but dropped a 7-1 decision to the Detroit Tigers while the Red Sox mauled the defending world champion New York Yankees, 10-5.

Both Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland and Joe McCarthy of Boston declined to name their starting pitchers for today's deciding game slated to begin at 12:30 p.m. CST.

This is the first time in its history that the American League has had to stage a playoff to decide a pennant. The National League established the precedent in 1914 when the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers finished the campaign tied for the lead. The Cards won the best-of-two-out-of-three playoff by winning two straight games.

No matter which team wins today the World Series will open in Boston Wednesday with the National League's champion Braves entertaining the American League winner.

Bob Feller was entrusted with the job yesterday of nailing down Cleveland's first pennant since 1920 but the big right-hander just didn't have it.

Feller, striving for his 20th win and seventh straight, was pounded from the hill in the third inning when the Tigers scored four runs to sew it up.

The four runs were more than enough for Prince Hal Newhouse, crack Detroit left-hander. Newhouse stopped the Indians on five hits in winning his 21st game of the season.

Detroit pounded Feller and five relief pitchers for 15 hits with Johnny Ligon, Vic Wertz and Dick Wakefield leading the attack. A big third-inning rally also highlighted the Red Sox victory before 31,204 at Boston.

The Yanks nicked starter Joe Dobson for single runs in each of the first two innings but rookie Bob Porterfield couldn't hold the lead.

Dom DiMaggio started Porterfield on his way to the showers in the third with a single, Johnny Pesky flied out but Ted Williams doubled to left to score Dom. Vern Stephens beat out a hit and Bobby Doerr followed with a two-run double to put the Sox in the lead, 3-2. Stan Spence walked and Billy Goodman singled to rout Porterfield. Vic Raschi came on and another run scored as Birdie Tebbetts grounded into a force out before Raschi could retire the side.

The Yanks drove Dobson out with a two-run rally in the fifth to make it a 5-4 game in favor of the Sox. However, Raschi folded in the sixth, yielding four runs on five hits.

In the other American League games the Washington Senators downed the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-2, and the Chicago White Sox beat the St. Louis Browns, 10-5, in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was called at the end of eight innings because of darkness, with the score tied, 2-2.

The Braves tuned up for the World Series by trouncing the New York Giants, 11-1. Although beaten 4-3 by the Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Cardinals clinched second place as the Brooklyn Dodgers also lost, 4-2, to the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Dodgers, defending National League champions, clinched a game behind the Red Birds.

The Cincinnati Reds, behind the two hit pitching of Johnny Vander Meer, shaded the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1-0. The win enabled the Reds to wind up in seventh place, a half game in front of the Cubs.

Sailor Parker Wins; Former Mask Beaten

Sailor Parker, returning to the local arena after an absence of almost a year, defeated Borger's Rex Mobley at the Sportatorium Saturday night with two straight falls.

In the main event, Billy Weidner, southwest junior heavy-weight champion, won over Jack Steele, former "Masked Marvel."

Parker, who can look as innocent as a babe while using the dirtiest tricks in the book, repeatedly punched, kicked, choked and gouged Mobley, but he did it so adroitly that Referee Danny Morgan could not catch it.

The bearded referee nearly lost his facial foliage when he got caught between Mobley and the sailor and was sent spinning from one of Parker's hair holds.

Parker, before he took the second and deciding fall with a Boston crab, tied Mobley's head in the ropes. The Borgan was gasping and choking before the referee got him loose, but then he promptly twisted Parker into a pretzel around the ropes. The sailor got out of that one to take the match.

Jack Steele, who fought here for several months as the "Masked Marvel," was beaten and unmasked in Amarillo last Thursday night. He is a former champion in the 190-pound division.

Weidner won the championship of the southwestern states from Tulsa's Wayne Martin about three weeks ago with his successful and punishing full nelson. Saturday's match was a non-title bout.

Steele took the first fall with a body pin after falling several times with his leg across Billy's neck. The Boston powerhouse came back to take the second fall with his full nelson that left the former "Marvel" weaving and groggy.

Steele was disqualified in the third fall, which gave the fall and the match to Weidner, when he backed the champion against the ropes and slugged the former "Mask" was so disgusted with the decision that he tried to kick the sides out of the dressing room until stopped by the referee with threats of permanent disqualification.

21-7, last week. Southwest Texas State fell from the undefeated ranks under a 13-2 licking from Texas A & M. North Texas State was impressive with a 20-7 win over West Texas State and East Texas State was downed, 13-6, by Howard Payne.

of the state should be established beyond contention.

Five games of great import are scheduled, the feature bringing together mighty Port Arthur of Class AA and Brackenridge (San Antonio), the ranking power of the City Conference.

These two got together at San Antonio Friday night, one of three clashes matching unbeaten, untied teams.

The other contests in which clubs with perfect records will perform send Highland Park (Dallas) to Waco and Austin (Houston) against John Reagan (Houston), the latter a City Conference title game in District 3.

Odessa ambles into Amarillo Friday night in the top battle of the West while Marshall journeys to Kilgore in the headliner of the East. Amarillo and Kilgore are unbeaten and untied, Odessa and Marshall are undefeated but have been tied. Arlington Heights of Fort Worth, another power of Class AA, will go to San Angelo.

TAKE A LOOK AT YOUR INSIDES

Study the above drawing for a few minutes. Notice particularly how the bile flows from the liver into and out of the gall-bladder and thence into the small intestine where it mixes with the partly digested food just below the stomach. Bile is a necessary adjunct to proper digestion. Its absence from the intestines inevitably causes putrefaction and fermentation.

NATURE'S DANGER SIGNALS
When your stomach, liver, and gall bladder have been upset by improper eating or drinking, or when they are not working well because retained and putrefying food matter in your intestines is poisoning your entire body, you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:
Your breath may become unpleasant (halitosis), your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your coffee (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you, you may have heartburn, gas and distal spells, you may be troubled with belching; at night the gas in your bowels may press upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep.

In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is impaired.
Your complexion may become sallow or bilious; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may feel lazy, dull and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds (catarrh) or dull head-ache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning ("intestinal toxemia" or "acute gastritis" as many doctors call it).

HOW TO GET RELIEF
You can relieve this condition, usually overnight, by taking Calotabs at bedtime and drinking water freely next day.

The beneficial effects of Calotabs lie in the fact that they are (1) laxative, (2) antiseptic to the intestines, (3) diuretic to the kidneys, (4) effective in relieving symptoms of biliousness and acute gastritis due to constipation or faulty digestion.
Calotabs are pleasant to take (sugar coated), prompt and effective. Try them and see. Follow label directions. At your druggists.

Loyalty Pledges Pour Into State Demo Committee

AUSTIN —(P)— Loyalty pledges and some protests from party officials are pouring in to State Democratic Committee headquarters.

Vann M. Kennedy, secretary of the State Executive Committee, said he had received "an outpouring" of responses, but he has not had time to look them over or to count them.

They included several protests from party leaders who took the pledge as loyal Democrats, but who said they resented the action of the Sept. 14 state convention in demanding such pledges.

At Corsicana, John C. Calhoun, chairman of the Executive Committee said he had received a number of signed pledges, and no refusals.

Calhoun said no date had been set for a committee meeting to decide what would be done about any party leader who refused to take the pledge.

The convention by resolution gave the Executive Committee the duty of replacing any of its own members or other party officials who refused to take a party loyalty pledge.

Kennedy mailed copies of this resolution to all county Democratic chairmen.

Big Ears Mean Much Work

Farmer Francis L. Gorman, of Moness, Ill., contemplates with pride—and a little awe—two of the giant ears of corn he grew. Gorman's farm helps to make up the record corn crop, which means a record job of harvesting and husking. Upwards of $300,000,000 bushels are expected.

Science Gets Setback From Conservatism

LONDON, Ont. —(P)— Science received a setback when a machine built by ingenious medical school students to measure the intensity of kisses was banned by school authorities before its first public appearance.

It had been planned to try it out at a frolic dance in Port Stanley but students said Dean J. B. Collip turned thumbs down on the proposal.

"The machine is to test the strength of the pediculator's oris muscles" (lips to laymen) explained a student.

"An electrode is placed between the lips of the couple and the tension during osculation is measured in alpha waves a second."

He said that if any "specialized" type of kissing was indulged in, the machine hoisted a red flag and a sign saying "tilt."

Jester Names Eight To Plan Celebration

AUSTIN —(P)— Eight state officials to plan Texas' part in the national capital's sesquicentennial in 1950 were named by Gov. Beauford H. Jester.

Named to the commission were: Allan Shivers, lieutenant governor; W. O. Reed, speaker of the House of Representatives; Price Daniel, attorney general; L. W. Kemp of Houston, chairman of the Library and Historical Commission; D. C. Greer, state highway engineer; Francis Henshaw, state librarian; Hall H. Indian Girl Forced to Ride 'Jim Crow' Section of Bus

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. —(P)— Florence Iva Begay, 17, a Navajo Indian, said yesterday she will make another attempt to reach New York and Sarah Lawrence College where she has a $2,000 scholarship.

But this time she will go "way around Texas," she said.
Miss Begay, who is planning to become a doctor, said she may work among her people, returned to her home here after she said she was ordered into the "Jim Crow" section of a bus.

When her eastbound bus reached Amarillo, Miss Begay said, she was ordered to sit in the rear section, reserved for Negroes. Rather than make a fuss, she complied with the order. When the bus reached Oklahoma City, however, the girl recalled:

"I felt so discouraged I didn't feel like going any further."
So she left the bus there and returned on another to her home and parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Begay.

Miss Begay has registered for the first semester of a pre-medical course at Arizona State College at Flagstaff. She plans to go to New York to enroll in the second semester at Sarah Lawrence College.

Miss Begay graduated from Flagstaff High School last spring as valedictorian of her class. She is one of three students in the history of the school who completed the four-year course with a perfect scholastic record.

Because of her abilities, she won last year scholarship awards from the Flagstaff Elks Lodge, the Arizona and National organizations of the Elks, in addition to the $2,000 scholarship at Sarah Lawrence College.

At Amarillo, officials of two bus companies disclaimed any knowledge of the incident. Ray Parr, editor of the Amarillo Globe, said the story "sounds cockeyed to me." He noted that racial segregation has been outlawed in interstate transportation, and that within Texas only Negroes are separated from other passengers.

"Even if the driver ordered the girl to the rear of the bus, she didn't have to go," Parr said.

In New York, Oliver La Farge, chairman of the American Indian Fund of the Association on American Indian Affairs, said "I earnestly hope she will accept the scholarship."

La Farge disclosed the incident earlier in an announcement in New York. He said he would see Miss Begay next week in Flagstaff.

Miss Begay was chosen for the Employment May Reach All-Time High in October

AUSTIN —(P)— An all-time high for non-agricultural employment by mid-October was predicted by the Texas Employment Commission.

Such employment passed the 2,279,000 mark in August and a mid-October total of 2,313,000 workers gainfully employed was foreseen.

TEC based its forecast on non-agricultural employment upon employers' statements that 33,700 additional workers will be added to Texas' already bulging labor market. Seven thousand two hundred of these new workers will be added by factories.

Retail trade enjoyed the greatest gain in August with the addition of 2,300 employees. Gains were scattered but showed up more consistently in the northern and western parts of the state.

Wholesale trade employment advanced sporadically, but a net loss was attributed chiefly to seasonal slowdown in food processing. Governmental establishments picked up 2,000 workers with San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Texas, Arkansas, Wichita Falls and Houston showing most substantial gains.

Geographically the biggest gain was reported in the Houston-Baytown area where a jump of 2,800 occurred. Other areas reporting substantial additions to payrolls were Dallas, 1,300; Corpus Christi, 800; Fort Worth, 700; San Antonio, 600; Lubbock, 600; and Amarillo 300. Decreases in employment appeared in the Harlingen-Brownsville area; Beaumont-Fort Arthur; Galveston-Texas City and minor losses were noted in the Texarkana and San Angelo areas.

Epsom Salt originally was obtained from spring waters in Epsom, England, but now is generally prepared from mineral kieserite.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — (P)—The latest Red bloc here is unlikely to get much attention from congressmen investigating un-American activities.

I refer to the campaign by Chief Rising Cloud, an Indian child psychologist, to get back a block of midtown New York real estate on which to build a ten-story museum of the red man. It is unlikely that the red bloc will get its block. Rising Cloud only wants to pay $24 for it—the same price the Indians and all Manhattan for back in 1624. He and a number of other Indians, noting a gradual increase in business here over the last three centuries, have begun to suspect their ancestors were blighted. There is some justification for this suspicion, as the island of Manhattan is currently assessed at $7,764,601,700.

And its population has grown from 200 to 1,908,579. The population of the whole city is 7,887,748. But there are even more Indians here now than when the white man first came—if you count the members of the strange tribe of Tammany.

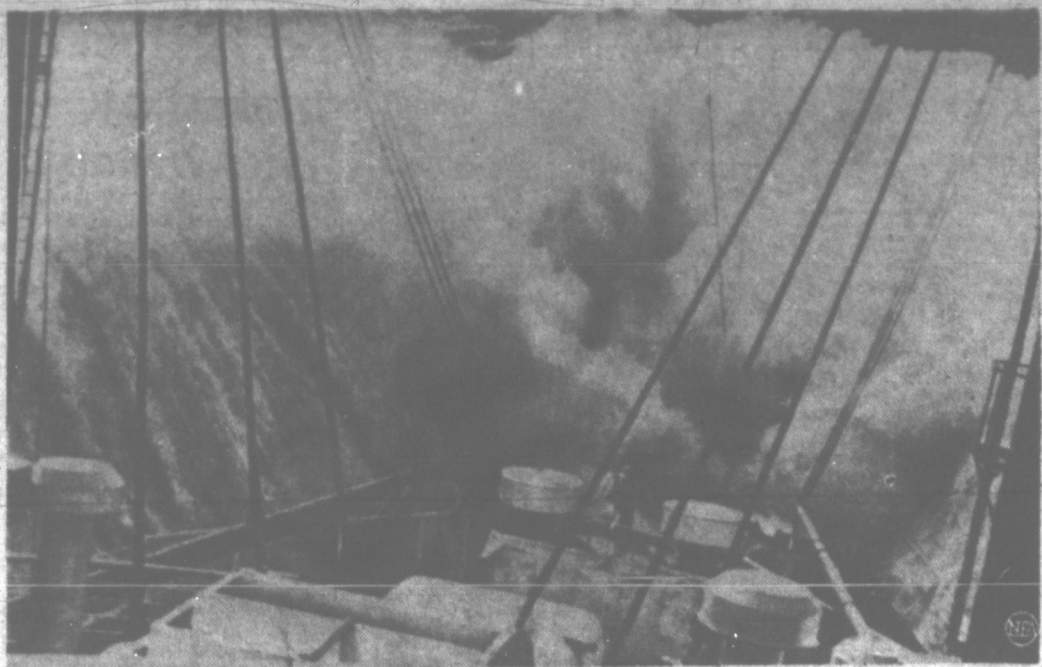

Getting back to Chief Rising Cloud—he'll have to unravel a lot of history if he ever is to obtain a block to erect his memorial to the vanishing redskin.

The generally accepted story is that Peter Minuit, director general of the New Netherlands, took title to Manhattan—"the little island"—from the Manhattoes for $24 worth of beads, buttons and trinkets.

At that time panthers and wolves prowled just north of island—from the Manhattoes for $24 worth of beads, buttons and trinkets.

At that time panthers and wolves prowled just north of Wall Street, where bulls and bears gore and paw each other today. Cows browsed on Broadway, and the only minks on Park Avenue were still wearing their own fur.

There is no record that the

Truman to See Ickes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Truman set aside time today to talk with former secretary of interior, Harold L. Ickes, who quit the cabinet in a huff two and a half years ago.

There was no advance word on the purpose of the mid-day meeting. Ickes requested the appointment.

The veteran New Dealer broke with Mr. Truman in February, 1946, after a fuss over the president's selection of Edwin W. Pauley to be under-secretary of Navy.

Ickes testified against Pauley, a California oil man and former official of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Truman told a news conference later that Ickes could have been wrong.

Ickes promptly resigned. Mr. Truman accepted the resignation without any of the usual words of praise for a retiring cabinet officer.

Pauley's nomination for the Navy post was eventually withdrawn.

It is not recorded how the trainer explained that he was looking at the temperature column and not the workout figure.

Red Protest Ignored by U.S. Airmen

BERLIN —(AP)— U.S. air authorities said today they regarded as "just another harassing attempt" a Russian protest alleging hundreds of violations of flying regulations by U.S. and British planes of the Berlin air lift.

They said "some sort of an answer" would be sent to Lieut. Gen. M. I. Dratvin, Soviet deputy military governor, who made the protest. In this newest of a long series of allegations since the air lift began more than three months ago, Dratvin claimed 656 violations by the RAF and 86 by American planes in the air corridors leading to Berlin in the period from Aug. 20 to Oct. 1.

Most of the violations, the Russian claimed, were low altitude flying which "imperiled safety." In the past, most of Dratvin's periodic protests have been rejected by the Western Allies as baseless and unwarranted.

American authorities said the Russians still had not acknowledged vigorous protests made by the U.S. last week against the busting of two American supply planes by nine Soviet Yak fighters in the Berlin-Hamburg air corridor.

Meanwhile, the British-licensed German press service reported Communist headquarters had ordered German workers engaged at airlift airports who belong to Communist-controlled trade unions to "deliver detailed information on air lift cargoes."

Final Plans Being Made For Concert

The American Legion is making final plans for the Navy Band concert, which are to be held at Oliver Park a week from Saturday, J. B. Maguire, second vice commander, said today.

Tickets are on sale at the First National Bank, Berry's Pharmacy, Tarpley Music Store and Citizens Bank and Trust Company, he said.

Mail orders will be accepted from residents of Pampa and surrounding towns. They may be sent to the American Legion, Post-office Box 467.

The afternoon concert will be primarily for children of the Panhandle. Adults also may attend the afternoon performance, but at the regular evening price of admission.

The U. S. Navy Band is primarily a military band, capable of doing justice to every type of music. The 80 musicians, who make up the group, are men of such musical versatility that the band may, on a moment's notice, furnish a great symphony orchestra, a feathered dance band or a string ensemble.

The band's library of band music is one of the largest in the world, Maguire said.

Lt. Commander Charles Brendler, conductor of the band, collects musical scores as a hobby for himself. For the band, he collects music of all ages. Because of its official status, the band receives many scores in the composer's own handwriting.

Soloists appearing with the band will include: Jesse James Tryon, violin; Harold Brach, euphonium; Carl Grove, saxophone; Homer E. Phillips, trombone; Arlington Zetty, piccolo; Richard Groves, baritone vocalist; Joseph Reines, bassoon and contra-bassoon; William Cameron, harp; William Murray, trumpet; Anthony Mitchell, clarinet; and Gordon Finlay, cornet.

Texas Fair, Warming Up

While frost bit at a large share of the nation today, Texas was generally fair and warming up, the Associated Press reported.

Cadillac, Mich., reported 25, the lowest early morning temperature. It was 27 at Land O' Lakes, Wis., 28 at Albany, N.Y., 29 at Brookville, Pa., and 30 at Erie.

The cool air extended up through the New England states, also.

In Texas, the Weather Bureau explained that the air was thinning and would let the sun beam down better, but temperatures would not rise very much. No rain had been reported in the state in the 24-hour period up to 6 a.m. today. Laredo was the hottest spot in the state yesterday with a high of 92.

Lufkin, in East Texas, and Spur, in West Texas, were the coolest early today with lows of 45. Pampa, with a minimum of 52, rode somewhere in the middle.

Ranch Enters American Royal

Combe-Worley Ranch of Gray County has entered 11 Herefords in the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show at Kansas City. It was announced today.

The show will start Oct. 16, and run through Oct. 23. Approximately 45,000 is being offered in the breeding and fat classes for the show, which is claimed to be the largest Hereford show ever staged in America.

More than 900 Herefords have been entered by 136 exhibitors from twenty-six states, it was said.

Today's session was scheduled to be devoted, chiefly to opening formalities. During the week the justices will hold closed conferences to consider petitions filed during the summer recess.

Analyst Recalls League's Failure Sixteen Years Ago

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
Saturday was the sixteenth anniversary of a memorable day which inaugurated developments that contributed greatly to the downfall of the League of Nations and inspired aggressions culminating in World War II. It was on Oct. 2, 1932, that the League of Nations commission, headed by Britain's Lord Lytton, presented its explosive report on Japanese aggression in Manchuria. Failure to act promptly and adequately on that report sent history off on an unhappy tangent. The way of it was this: The Japs on Sept. 18, 1931, had begun military action in Southern Manchuria, claiming that a state of chaos existed and that it was necessary for them to restore peace owing to Chinese inability. China appealed to the League and negotiations resulted in an agreement on Dec. 16 that hostilities should cease forthwith and that Japan should withdraw from Manchuria as soon as possible. The Lytton commission was set up to investigate and report on circumstances. However, Japan didn't withdraw from Manchuria. On Feb. 18, 1932, Manchuria as proclaimed an independent nation (Manchukuo), under the rule of the former boy-emperor Henry Pu Yi. Nippon promptly recognized this new state, which was in fact a puppet state with Pu Yi completely controlled by Tokyo. Thus the situation dragged on until the Lytton report was tendered in October. The report was two-folded. It called the turn on Jap aggression, and bluntly labeled Manchukuo as a puppet state. The noble palace on the shore of Lake Geneva fairly rocked with the impact of this castigation of a great power. The capitals of the world watched tensely to see how the League would handle the situation. Would sanctions be applied in this first flagrant case of aggression? There was much talk in Geneva but no clear-cut answer. Japan stuck to her guns—literally—and finally withdrew formally from the League. She did it with indignation on her tongue but with guile in her heart. She was bent on still further aggression to make herself ruler of a greater East Asia. Paralysis began to settle on the League of Nations. An ambitious Mussolini noted the trend. If Japan could get away with aggression, so could he. Accordingly, the dictator selected little Ethiopia as his first victim. He invaded it in 1935 without declaring war, and started his slaughter with modern weapons and gas. Emperor Haile Selassie resisted as well as he could with his primitive forces and outmoded equipment, but naturally was forced to quit. He himself left for Europe to appeal to the League. So that was that! Then it came, having waited a while to let things cool off, stuck out that bulldozer jaw of his and seized tiny Albania. Same result. Meantime Hitler soaked up all this and came to the conclusion that the League of Nations was impotent, and that aggression was safe so long as you picked your victims with discretion. If Japan and Mussolini could get away with it, why not mighty Germany? So the Nazi dictator pursued his hunch until it finally resulted in a world war. The League of Nations' failure to cope with the Japanese aggression was in no small degree responsible for its death. Now we

HOT DUSTY EAGLE PASS SCENE OF TEXAS NOVEL

By MARTHA COLE
Martha Cheavens, a doped Texas, laid the scene of her first full-length novel, "Crosswinds," in Eagle Pass, Tex., down on the Rio Grande.

The time is the early twenties—a bewildered and wrecked period, she called it. But the book is not a study of the times, of the conflict of races or the impact of the environment.

Rather it is a simple and refreshing story of a preacher who wasn't quite sure he wanted to give up the ministry and teach in a boy's school. He went to Eagle Pass—Dunde in the story—from Connecticut and found out through helping others he had helped himself settle the crosswinds in his own life. He decided to remain a pastor.

The characters and the plot could be found anywhere, but there is no doubt that the locale is a Texas border town.

The Rev. James Calvert Bronson arrived in Dunde in late August with three sons, household goods, a cow, a dog and eight puppies aboard a boxcar.

The leaves of the pomegranate trees, the cottonwoods and the oleander bushes hung motionless in the copper-colored air. They were grizzled with dust. In homes, offices and shops, people moved about, if they moved at all, like sleepwalkers, their senses dulled by the languor of the heat.

That's Eagle Pass late in August.

Miss Cheavens knows of what she writes. She was born in Missouri but when she was four months old her family moved to Mexico, where her father was a missionary. She was a student at Baylor and the University of Missouri. Her brother, Dave Cheavens, is Associated Press correspondent. Discrimination against Mexicans is incidental as it affects the life of the Rev. Bronson.

Panfilio Garcia was sentenced to die because he had killed the sheriff, the jury said. The Rev. Bronson found out Panfilio was trying to steal three buns when the sheriff saw him in the bakery. In the struggle that followed the sheriff was killed by his own gun.

In another incident an adobe wall in the Vecindad, Mexican tenement section in Dunde, collapsed, killing one Mexican child and injuring many others. The Dunde Eagle denounced it—"a building condemned over a year ago," the paper said. "The Mexicans are too poor to build a safe place for their families to live. They are too greedy, too indifferent to care."

The characters in the book besides the Bronson family are almost standard—the laggard old Mexican prostitute who became the Bronson's cook, the town's one Jewish storekeeper who became their friend, the disillusioned and drunken newspaper editor, the lonely little American orphaned girl. How James Bronson helped them and thus helped himself is the story of the book.

414 Cases Flu Are Reported In Past Week

AUSTIN — The 414 cases of influenza reported in Texas last week, bring the incidence of this disease up to forty percent more than the seven year median, as shown from the figures submitted by the 181 counties sending in reports to the State Health Department.

Influenza without complications may be a fairly mild ailment, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, but, he pointed out, complications can turn this disease into a dangerous condition very quickly.

"Many cases of influenza are mild," Dr. Cox said. "Often they lend themselves to treatment readily. However, two important factors enter into the treatment of influenza, and they are, calling the family physician as soon as the first symptoms appear, and taking life very easy for a reasonable length of time after the acute stage has subsided."

Dr. Cox declared the influenza is not mass-controllable. He emphasized that maintaining the highest possible health level at all times affords an individual the best protection from contracting this disease.

"Getting plenty of sleep and rest, daily exercise in the open, nourishing foods, and strict personal hygiene are our best known defenses against influenza," Dr. Cox said. "This applies to all respiratory diseases. A person who avoids all habits and practices detrimental to a maximum well-being and thus builds up a strong resistance to disease, is much less likely to contract influenza than is the individual who does not guard his health in this manner."

HE bent over her with mingled thankfulness and anxiety, and her troubled face relaxed. She stirred a little, and settled more comfortably into the pillow. Very cautiously he straightened the covers and drew them over her. Then he retreated to a rather uncomfortable-looking chair by the window, rested his crossed feet on the bureau, and took up his vigil.

He had found her, and she was safe, but what came next? An alarming sense of his own helplessness was growing on him tonight. Whatever happened, he could only stand by and watch. But from now on, he dared not let her out of his sight. Suppose he lost her. It came as rather a shock to him that he had not, apparently, developed any sort of second sight which would guide him to her again, across the world. It once he lost touch with her, or at least with the family, it might be years before he saw her again.

But she needed him. He was so sure of that. She belonged to him. It was his job to look after her. But how?

Someone was ringing the night bell, and banging on the street door. There was a stir downstairs. Sabrina slept through it, smiling.

Sabrina turned a faintly hopeful face towards her aunt. "Do you mean that, Aunt?"

"Of course I do! If I'd any idea you felt as strongly as all this about not going—well, we just won't say anything more about it, shall we? No more school—no more running away!"

"That's not good enough, Sabrina," Hilary warned her. "Make her promise you won't have to leave Nuns Farthing."

"But, Sabrina, heavy with exhaustion, and being naturally a trusting soul, saw only that her lifelong dread of school could be forever dispelled.

"I promise," she said.

"And I promise," said Aunt Effie brightly. "Now, your father and I have taken rooms here for the rest of the night and we'll all drive home together in the morning. There are two lovely beds in my room, Sabrina, wouldn't you like to come in there and be cozy?"

"No, thank you, Aunt Effie. I'm unpacked here."

"Well, remember, now, you've promised."

"Yes, Auntie. Good night."

"Good night, dear. Shall I put out the light?"

"Yes, please."

Aunt Effie kissed her affectionately, and snapped out the light, and went away. Sabrina got up to lock the door behind her, and crawled back into bed and pulled the covers well up over her head.

Hilary restored his feet to the bureau and settled back to think. He knew as well as anything that Aunt Effie's crafty bargain still left the way open for her to take Sabrina away from Nuns Farthing as soon as she chose, and he was sure that she would lose no time about it now, unless—

He contemplated the only answer in the world. If Aunt Effie could somehow be convinced that he was no longer in the house—

But merely for him to keep still and not upset Bella was not enough. If he could somehow persuade himself publicly from Nuns Farthing, Sabrina might be allowed to stay on there in peace.

Drivers Warned of Winter Hazards

AUSTIN —(P)—The hazards of winter driving brought a warning from Public Safety Director Homer Garrison.

He sent a letter to all Texas highway patrolmen, urging redoubled efforts to cut the toll of life and property during the cold months when driving hazards are increased by bad weather.

"Darkness, fog, rain, snow, ice, drowsiness, drinking—these are the hazards that confront us during the remainder of the year, three deadly months of bad weather and increasing accidents," Garrison told the patrolmen.

Many Homes Are Under Insurance

Approximately one-half of the home-owners in America do not carry enough insurance to replace or repair their property if it is damaged or destroyed by fire, it is stated by a leading fire insurance company.

The building industry finds that the house which cost $5,000 to build in 1939 now costs $10,450, but countless insurance policies are still being carried on the $5,000 valuation.

In view of this, insurance firms and mortgage lenders are urging property owners to survey their insurance protection and to increase the coverage if policies will not replace the structure at present costs.

It is further pointed out that even if a policy should pay 100 percent of the replacement cost, the home owner would still lose. Because of the acute housing shortage it is difficult to find a place to live during replacement of a fire-damaged dwelling, and no insurance policy can pay for the destruction of irreplaceable heirlooms, documents and other articles.

This is why it is so important that fire be prevented and that homes be built so flames are confined to the area where they start. Architects say this is best accomplished by placing fire-barriers in walls and ceilings, equipping the home with solid doors and using fire-resistant materials everywhere possible.

AUSTIN —(AP)— Texas construction, spurred by non-residential awards, tipped over the 12-million dollar mark last week.

The Texas Contractor, trade publication, reported the week's non-residential awards at $7,418,427, residential awards at $3,542,890, and engineering awards at $1,239,889 for an overall total of $12,201,206.

Oilman Dies of Burns

Rats Called New Public Enemy No. 1

A gun-toting human being will never fully deserve the title of this nation's number one public enemy. At least, that is the opinion of public health officials. Their choice is a four-legged animal—the rat.

This country is known to have somewhere between 123 and 145 million rats. Spreading diseases and wantonly destroying food and property, this army of rats causes damage which is estimated at 2 billion dollars each year.

The only way to reduce the annual rat bill, health officials point out, is through comprehensive rat eradication drives. They say such drives are most effective when conducted in four steps.

These consist of removing rat shelters, rat-proofing buildings, eliminating rat sources of food and killing them with poisons and traps.

Rats are known to seek shelter among dirt and disorder. Thus, the first step means tidying up such places as basements, attics, and garages. Materials stored in such areas should be arranged neatly so as to eliminate crevices for rats to inhabit. For example, ashes kept in basements should be stored in galvanized steel ash cans until they can be disposed of permanently. Galvanized steel ash cans have close-fitting covers which keep rats out. This same rule applies to areas surrounding homes, too.

The second step, rat-proofing buildings, calls for blocking off all places through which rats might enter. Buildings may be sealed tight with such materials as concrete, asbestos cement board, sheet metal and hardware cloth. Health officials say that all openings one half inch or larger should be closed.

Eliminating rats' sources of food, the third step, means keeping all edible material away from rats. It means that family refuse disposal areas should be equipped with covered galvanized steel garbage cans. And it means that all food stored in the home must be kept in places which are inaccessible to rats. One of the best ways to do this, health officials say, is to keep food in glass or metal containers. Food stored in cloth or paper sacks should be stored at least eighteen inches above floor level.

Poisons and traps are the tools with which the final step is conducted. They are recommended by health officials for killing all rats not driven away by the first two measures. Traps and poisons are most effective when placed, in quantity, in places where rats travel. Generally, such places are found next to walls or in dark passageways. Poisons, of course, must be handled with extreme caution.

Forced Firing Labeled as Dangerous

Although careless use of matches and smoking materials causes 30 percent of all fires, overheated or faulty heating equipment is the second greatest hazard, being responsible for 24 percent of the nation's 600,000 fires each year, according to the Construction Research Bureau of New York.

The reason is that stoves and furnaces are forced beyond their capacity in order to maintain comfortable temperatures. With intense, heavy firing, equipment breaks down, chimneys get too hot and crack.

This can be avoided, say fire-prevention experts, if the home is properly insulated. Exhaustive laboratory and field tests show that an adequately insulated structure can be comfortably heated without forcing stove or furnace to dangerous levels. If installed full-thick as recommended by heating engineers, insulation brings walls and ceilings to within two degrees of the indoor air temperature. This makes the home much more comfortable and eliminates the need of heavy firing, thereby minimizing this fire hazard.

Flying Lab to Test 'Flying Wings'

One of the smallest planes built for the USAF in recent years is the new Northrop X-4, a twin engine jet research plane now being tested at Hawthorne, Calif. Expansion of Natural Gas Network Blocked by Shortage

By FRED J. ZUSY

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The natural gas industry, with a quarter-million miles of pipeline, is in the midst of its greatest expansion. A shortage of steel pipe—about 24 to 30 inches across—is the chief obstacle to linking even more scores of cities, some a thousand or more miles away, with the fields in the southwest that supply most of the gas.

Natural gas is not only a valued fuel, it is a chemical raw material out of which plastic, ammonia alcohol and other items can be made—including the carbon black which makes the ink on this page.

It was not until a quarter of a century ago that developments in pipe making made it practical to carry the gas in metal tubes two feet wide to cities up to 1,800 miles away.

In the 12 months ending last June 30 the Federal Power Commission authorized construction of mated cost of $519,000,000.

One of the largest was a 1,840-mile line from Texas to 132nd Street in New York City through which the Trans-Continental Gas Pipe Line Co., Inc., proposes to supply 340,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to utilities in N.Y., York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The year before the commission authorized 5,389 miles. James V. O'Connor, chief of the division of gas certificates, says he sees no stopping the expansion trend in the immediate future.

The commission now rules over some 63,000 miles of pipeline used to carry gas in Interstate Commerce.

How much natural gas is there in the country? The American Petroleum Institute estimated that as of the first of the year there were 166 trillion cubic feet.

If last year's rate of consumption—5.6 trillion cubic feet—continues, that would be enough for nearly 30 years.

Of course the use of natural gas has been increasing, but new sources are being located too. Last year 11 trillion cubic feet were added to our reserves.

Most of the gas is found in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and California.

Between 1928 and 1930 pipelines fingered out to Wichita, Denver, Chicago, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Detroit. Some went west to California.

The depression stopped the expansion. By 1937 it was on again. War interfered. The end of the war saw the start of today's boom.

But many Eastern seaboard cities like New York, Philadelphia, and few parts of the South have natural gas.

Why do so many people want natural gas? For one thing it's not only cheaper than coal or oil now in most places, but it's good deal cheaper than manufactured gas.

In spite of all the publicity given natural gas and oil, they comprise only about one percent of heating fuels in the country. Ninety-nine percent of our reserves is in the form of coal.

One factor that may in time hinder the expansion of natural gas is the increasing price in the southwest fields.

Big 3 Remain For 200 Years

The Big Three of traditional furniture designers are Chippendale, Hepplewhite, and Sheraton. Although all three men lived and worked at the end of the Eighteenth Century, their beautiful chairs and tables, divans and cabinets remain masterpieces of delicate design and workmanship.

Thomas Chippendale was the first and most famous of the noted trio. Descended from a long line of cabinet-makers, he brought to this craft a grace and fine proportion hitherto unknown. Sturdy without being heavy, his furniture is characterized by exquisite ornamentation and intricate carving. A Chippendale "trade mark": the ball-and-claw foot.

Lighter, more feminine in feeling is the furniture designed by George Hepplewhite. Living in an age of elegance, he created chairs and secretaries which reflected the period in their grace and delicacy of line. His chairs have slender, tapering legs and backs in the shape of either a heart, a shield or a hoop. The three feathers for the Prince of Wales' coat-of-arms is a favorite Hepplewhite design. Most characteristic line: a cupid's bow curve.

The last of the three, Thomas Sheraton, was a master of the straight line. His work, too, is characterized by its delicacy and grace, but balanced by a feeling of classical stability. Garlands, urns and wreaths are typical motifs. Fluting or reeds are used extensively. The antecedents of functional contemporary double-duty furniture appear in such unique Sheraton creations as an ottoman with a concealed step-ladder and headboard.

The charm and grace of the Big Three have never faded. Original creations by the masters are priceless antiques; but copies, adaptations, and re-scaled models in their style are now available at prices well within the average budget.

Rust, Fire, Rats Foiled by Asbestos

Among the "miracles" of modern building materials are asbestos cement products, which will neither burn, rot, rust nor decay and which resist the ravages of rodents and termites. The permanence of these products is due to the fact that they are composed of two inorganic substances which are virtually indestructible— asbestos fibers and Portland cement. Asbestos cement is available in the forms of siding, roofing, general purpose board and corrugated sheets.

Modern Sets In Furniture Preferred

American homes are going modern.

At least that's what the current furniture trends seem to prove. A recent survey by the National Retail Furniture Association shows that more modern type furniture is being purchased for American homes than any other single furniture style. No less than fifty percent of all living room suites bought by American families last year were of modern design.

The modern furniture of today, however, is a far cry from the "box" models of yesterday. With a few exceptions, furniture is no longer designed just for its sensation or shock effect; instead, the current designers of modern furniture are concentrating on creating pieces which are truly functional, which meet the needs of contemporary living. The result has been a happy blending of styles, so that much of the so-called "modern" furniture of today has incorporated the best features of the traditional or provincial styles.

The smooth, blonde beauty of walnut has made it the most popular wood for the modern style of furniture, while mahogany is still the favorite in dining room suites. In the living room, Eighteenth Century furniture still reigns supreme among America's families.

The preference for modern furniture is regional in nature, a comparison between California and New England sales seems to indicate. In California a whopping 75 percent of all bedroom suites sold were of modern design, while in New England modern accounted for only 26 percent of all furniture sold.

Tired House Given Pep By Siding

Faced with present day construction costs, thousands of persons who otherwise would build new homes are remodeling old ones and adding many years of life to the dwellings. Building experts point out that old houses that are structurally sound often can be modernized and made attractive with a moderate amount of interior remodeling and such exterior treatment as application of new siding.

A re-siding job in particular can dress up a drab old frame residence so that it will appear practically new from the outside. Additionally, of course, it provides increased weather protection and raises the value of the home considerably.

A type of siding being used on an increasingly large scale nowadays is asbestos cement, which comes in the form of large shingles. They can be applied easily and quickly over old wood or stucco. Fireproof, they also are resistant to rot, decay and termites. Ordinarily they last the life of a building and require no initial painting or subsequent preservative care.

Asbestos cement siding may be obtained in several attractive colors and styles. It is available with the exposed surface either smooth or textured in wood grain or pleasing tapered line designs. It also can be obtained with either straight or wavy edges. The textured style also is made with staggered edges which reproduce the effect of shingles applied in the traditional thatch method.

Rug Cleaning Is Made Easy

Want to ease your cleaning chores? If so, here are a few tips that will make lighter work of vacuuming.

First, clean your rugs and carpets daily. A once-over job each day will save you work in the long run and will keep your floor-coverings looking bright and fresh.

Second, be sure that the nozzle height of your vacuum cleaner is properly adjusted. For the common suction machine, the nozzle should be one-sixteenth inch above the carpet, while for the motor driven brush type cleaner, one-eighth inch is said to be the best height. If yours is the tank-type cleaner, hold its nozzle right down against the floor for best results.

Finally, don't run the cleaner too fast. In the long run, working too fast will mean time lost, not gained, because your vacuum cleaner will not operate at top efficiency at superspeeds. Run the cleaner slowly giving each section of the carpet your attention. Result: cleaner, longer-lasting floorcovering.

West Hatches Tough Teams; May 'Rub Out' Each Other

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Middle West, long an incubator for stout college football machines, has hatched another bunch of toughies—but they threaten to rub each other out before one can make a bid for national honors.

They're loaded in the midlands this year, with teams like Notre Dame, Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota and Ohio State all acting up in early games. But strength appears evenly distributed.

This week Northwestern, the Big Nine's newest wonder team after that 21-0 shellacking of Purdue, plays unbeaten Minnesota. Purdue, which earlier tossed a scare into Notre Dame, takes on Michigan.

Notre Dame and Michigan shared the unofficial national championship last year on the basis of two Associated Press polls.

Elsewhere around the country these teams stepped to the fore as the young season swung hotly into October:

East—Army, Pennsylvania, Penn State, North Carolina and Georgia Tech.

Southwest—Southern Methodist University and Arkansas.

Far West—Nevada and California.

Last Saturday's major surprise was Northwestern's triumph over Purdue. The seasoned Boilermakers the week before had held Notre Dame to a 28-27 squeak and had been labeled as the Western Conference "team to beat."

Ohio State and Michigan, meanwhile, added to Western Conference prestige by continuing the Indian sign over Pacific Coast rivals.

Ohio State humbled Southern California, 20-0, and Michigan toppled Oregon, a West Coast favorite, 14-0. Notre Dame breezed to a 40-0 triumph over Pittsburgh. Minnesota showed a lot of power in topping Nebraska, 39-13.

In the East, Army continued to ride high, although its second game opposition wasn't too rugged. The Cadets ran over Lafayette, 64-7.

Pennsylvania and Penn State, two of the 1947 unbeaten, made successful debuts. Penn trounced Dartmouth, 28-13. Penn State, the East's defending titlist, lashed Bucknell, 35-0.

In three upsets, Cornell stunned Navy, 13-7; Harvard defeated Columbia, 33-24, and Brown tripped

Hawks Beat Irishmen in Close Game

The fabulous "luck of the Irish" failed when it was needed Saturday night in Phillips when the powerful Phillips Blackhawk tumbled the highly regarded Shamrock Irishmen, 7-6, in an important Class A grid battle.

The Irishmen, rated tops in state competition and regarded as slight favorites over the Blackhawks, were taken by surprise by the underdog power of the Blackhawks.

The two clubs fought an even tussle throughout the entire first half, neither being able to shove across a tally.

In the third quarter, after Shamrock Left Half Donald Lea punted to Hawk Halfback Melvin Eldridge on the Phillips 48, Eldridge eluded the Irish secondary on the third play from scrimmage and sped to the Shamrock 12-yard stripe. After a series of short gains, Eldridge then plowed across for the tally. Center Jimmy Williams kicked the extra point which proved the deciding factor.

The Irishmen got their counter in the final period after an exchange of punts had placed the ball on the mid-field stripe. Two Shamrock first downs put the ball on the Hawk 24, where Quarterback Jimmy Green hit Right End Wayne Martin with a nine-yard pass to the 15, and Martin raced across for the counter. The Shamrock attempted conversion failed and all scoring was completed.

Princeton, 23-20.

North Carolina, with Charlie (Choo) Choo Justice at the throttle, kept its championship hopes alive by whipping Georgia, 21-14. The Southeastern Conference favorite, Georgia Tech, edged past Tulane, 13-7.

All-America Doak Walker paced Southern Methodist's Southwest champions to a 41-6 victory over Texas Tech while Arkansas moved into contention by tripping Texas Christian, 27-14.

California, which opened with a conquest of Navy, added St. Mary's to its string, 20-0. Nevada, rated by many as the best team in the Far West, scored over San Francisco Sunday for its second success, 26-7.

Southwestern Meets ACC in Texas Loop

By the Associated Press

Four Texas conference teams open the 1948 championship football race this week.

Southwestern, undefeated and unscathed after two games take on Abilene Christian College at Abilene Saturday risking the loop's only perfect record.

Another conference game matches McMurry against Hardin at Wichita Falls.

Southwest Texas State tries Howard Payne at Brownwood and Austin faces the University of Corpus Christi at Sherman in non-conference games.

Southwestern ran over Daniel Baker 34-0 last week to keep a perfect slate.

In other games Howard Payne blanked East Texas State 13-0; Abilene Christian downed Pensacola Naval Base 21-0; and McMurry blasted Corpus Christi 39-12. Austin bowed to Mississippi Southern 41-0; and Hardin lost to Oklahoma City University 21-13.

Frank White and Bill Monroe of Southwestern pace scoring with 28 and 24 points, respectively.

JUNIOR COLLEGE CONFERENCE MOVES INTO MIDDLE OF RACE

By the Associated Press

The Southwestern Junior College Conference moves into the middle of the championship race this week, all eight teams playing conference games.

Paris goes to Tyler Thursday night in a tilt matching two of the teams unbeaten in title competition.

Kilgore plays its first conference game, clashing with John Tarleton at Stephenville Friday night.

Saturday night San Angelo takes on Schreiner Institute at San Angelo, and Lamar (Beaumont) journeys to Arlington to tangle with North Texas Agricultural College.

Paris opened the race last week with a 7-0 victory over Schreiner while San Angelo made its start by beating Lamar, 10-4.

Tyler won its second conference game in trimming the North Texas Aggies, 7-0.

Kilgore played outside the conference, facing Louisiana State Northeast Center, 27-0, while John Tarleton fell before the Texas A & M Freshmen, 13-6.

The only unbeaten teams over the season route are Paris and Kilgore, each having taken three games. Kilgore has rolled up 114 points while giving the opposition only 14.

Coach Beattie Feathers of North Carolina State, had 15 years of actual playing experience on high school, college or pro football squads.

High School Grid Stars Are Named

DALLAS—(AP)—Waco's Claude Kincannon and Longview's Fox Cashell paced the schoolboy grid stars last week.

Cashell booted the extra point that gave Longview a 20-20 tie with Cleburne, scored once on a 70-yard run and set up another tally.

Kincannon paced for two touchdowns and scored one in Waco's 34-9 victory over Tyler.

Others in the star roundup of the Dallas News included:

Bob McCarley, McKinney center, turned in a fine performance as a defensive linebacker in McKinney's victory over Gainesville despite playing with a broken hand.

Jerry Norton, Texarkana, scored three times and kicked three extra points as Texarkana beat Nogdoches.

Jimmy Rondmus, Sweetwater, led the West Texas eleven to an easy win over Amon Carter-Hillside (Fort Worth) with a 75-yard touchdown run.
