Undercover work leads to 45 separate charges

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Thirteen people were arrested on drug charges by 8 p.m. Friday, after officers with the Permian Basin Drug Task Force and the Midland County Sheriff's Department began sweeping the city at 3 p.m.

After six months of undercover work by task force officers, 45 separate charges had been filed on 33 Midlanders, said Tom Finley, commander of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

The charges include 16 marijuana cases, including selling marijuana to an undercover agent, four counts involving methamphetamine and 25 cases of distributing cocaine.

Most — 37 — of the charges are for felony offenses and another eight are misdemeanor charges. Only one of those being sought is a juvenile, according to Finley.

This kind of roundup operation is standard procedure with the task force, he said.

Undercover narcotics officers had been purchasing drugs and building cases against the 33 Midlanders on the list, Finley explained. When undercover operations have produced a significant number of suspects, task force officers join forces with fellow law-enforcement agencies and attempt to arrest them.

"Some of these charges are six months old, some are just a month old," Finley said.

For some of those with arrest warrants sworn out in the drug sweep, officers did not have to look very far.

Five of those being sought already were being detained at the Midland County Central Detention facility in connection with other crimes, Finley said.

They are Leroy Aldrige, David Glover, Linda Posey,

Contributions

WASHINGTON — An internal Democratic National Committee audit has discovered additional contributions that will have to be returned because they came from improper or unverifiable sources, the new party chairman said Friday. In an interview with The Associated Press, Colorado Gov. Roy Romer also said the party "may not have been fair" in its recent decision to reject contributions from noncitizens who are legally in the United States and from U.S.-based subsidiaries of foreign corporations.

Bivins: Property tax reform to be most important legislative issue

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Property tax relief is expected to dominate the current session of the Texas Legislature, according to State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo.

"Property tax reform will be the most important issue going into the 21st century," he told members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at their monthly meeting Friday. He added that the Legislature is attempting to bring a 19th century tax system into the 21st century.

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, spoke at the monthly meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Texas property tax rates "have been escalating at a skyrocketing rate" creating strong disincentives for capital formation, which creates jobs and is the prime mover of the state's economy, he said.

At the end of the 1995 legislative session, Gov. George W. Bush announced that he would make property tax reform the focus of the next session.

The problem is that the state's school districts depend heavily on property tax revenues to fund schools, said Bivins, noting that 63 percent of the state's budget goes to education.

"You cannot separate tax relief from education funding. If you reduce the property tax, you have to replace that money with state funds in a way that's fair and constitutional."

The governor's plans call for reducing property taxes by $3 billion and replacing those funds with state revenues. Plans also call for increasing the homestead exemption to $25,000 from the current $5,000; repealing school property taxes on business inventory and rolling tax rates back by 20 percent in all school districts across the state.

Lost revenue would be replaced through:

- reducing state spending by $500 million a year through cost containment;
- increasing the sales tax one-half of

Thunderbirds fly in to promote upcoming show

The U.S. Air Force's air demonstration squadron — the Thunderbirds — is coming to town this fall. On Friday, two members of the Thunderbirds flew into Midland International Airport in an F-16 Fighting Falcon to do a site survey and promote the upcoming air show.

"This year we are going to do between 50 and 60 shows," said Capt. Skip Johnson, advance pilot and narrator. "This year's very special for us since it's the 50th anniversary of the Air Force."

The Thunderbirds will perform in Midland Oct. 4-5 at the Confederate Air Force's Airsho '97. The air show also will include the CAF's World War II air power demonstration.

Last year's air show included the maneuvers and acrobatic formations of the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels. When asked how the Thunderbirds rank next to their Navy counterpart, Johnson replied: "We try not to compare. We have a really good rapport with them."

Johnson said the Thunderbirds demonstrate the air power of the Air Force and the teamwork and

Texas case challenges military families as 'phantom voters'

By Kelly Shannon
Associated Press

DEL RIO— Something strange happened on Election Day in this dusty border county: The Hispanic candidates for sheriff and county commissioner who were leading all night ended up losing when absentee ballots came pouring in for two whites, one of them a former Ku Klux Klansman.

A closer look at the 800 mail-in ballots revealed that almost all were cast by military members and their dependents — most of them, whites who were once stationed at Laughlin Air Force Base but hadn't lived in Val Verde County for years. Val Verde County is 70 percent Hispanic.

"We all thought that this was a fraud and that democracy was not being respected," said Jovita Casarez, who filed a federal lawsuit over the election. "When this type of fraud is committed, it's embarrassing for all the nation."

The feud could have far-reaching effects, determining once and for all what military families on the move can list as their legal residence and where they can mark their ballots for local elections.

Military families retain residency in one place for the sake of convenience, so that they don't constantly have to get new driver's licenses and registrations.

Texas, with 18 military bases, is particularly attractive as a place of residency because there is no state income tax and because public college tuition for residents is among the cheapest in the nation. Even George Bush claimed a Houston hotel suite as his official residence while he was president.

The "phantom voters," as some people in Val Verde County call those who reside here on paper only, helped bring about Republican sheriff candidate D'Wayne Jernigan's 267-vote victory over Democratic interim sheriff Oscar Gonzalez Jr., and Republican Murry Kachel's 113-vote win over Democrat Frank Coronado for county commissioner.

CASE: Texas has 'flexible definition' of residency

(From 1A)

A federal judge has barred Jernigan and Kachel from taking office until residency questions are settled in a separate state lawsuit filed by the Democratic losers. That case is set for April 21.

The Republicans' victory would give the GOP its first majority on the commissioners court in the 111-year history of Val Verde County, a place of 42,000 residents, 2,900 of them at the Air Force base.

"I followed the law," insisted Val Verde County Clerk Maria Elena Cardenas, who oversaw the November election.

Texas has a "flexible definition" of residency that largely depends on the voter's intent, said Ann McGeehan, deputy assistant secretary of state for elections.

The Texas Secretary of State's Office says service members can apply for a ballot by supplying a Texas address for a place the voter plans someday to return to. The voter doesn't actually have to have a home at that address.

In fact, one of the phantom voters was a man who spent three days at his grandmother's home in Val Verde County during his honeymoon 25 years ago, according to court papers.

"What happens to your representation when you have phantom voters?" candidate Gonzalez asked. "What happened to the one-man, one-vote principle?"

Texas Rural Legal Aid claimed virtually all of the 800 votes in question were military officers and their dependents and that 95 percent were white and 85 percent were Republican. TRLA questionnaires to the out-of-town voters found that 457 had last resided in Val Verde County more than four years ago.

Meanwhile, Sens. Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison, both Texas Republicans, have complained that Texas Rural Legal Aid is trying to keep military members from voting. They also contend TRLA — which receives most of its budget from the federally funded Legal Services Corp. — should not have involved itself in an election dispute.

TRLA eventually withdrew from the federal lawsuit but denied it did so for political reasons.

Fueling the dispute is Kachel's membership in the KKK while he was in the Air Force in Germany in 1981.

Kachel, who retired from the military last year to run for office, denied under oath in court papers that he had been a member. But he acknowledged to the Del Rio News-Herald — and to The Associated Press on Friday — that he was a KKK member but dropped out and later denied his involvement because he was embarrassed.

"I admit and regret that I fell in with a crowd whose mystery, secrecy and security seemed real 'cool' at the time," Kachel told the newspaper. "During the two years I was a member of that group, I knew deep in my heart that I didn't possess the same ideas or ideals they did."

Records show more military-civilian close calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The collision alarm sounds, and the passenger jet begins a steep climb to avoid a fighter plane. One passenger is injured. Federal authorities investigate.

No, it's not the recent case of a Nations Air plane avoiding a National Guard F-16 off the coast of New Jersey. This incident occurred off the coast of Texas in 1993 — one of 77 close calls between civilian and military planes since 1988 that were uncovered in a search of federal records.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration records include 9,157 cases since 1988 of two aircraft coming closer than the legal separation zone, but only 77 cases included both military and civilian planes, said NASA's Vincent J. Mellone.

Such military-civilian encounters moved into the public conscience two weeks ago, after the New Jersey incident and three other reported close calls. The Air Force halted pilot training in parts of the country and instituted reviews for aviators aimed at preventing the conflicts.

But the NASA records show such cases are only a tiny part of the overall total of close calls, accounting on average for about nine of the 1,000 to 1,200 incidents reported each year.

These encounters don't necessarily indicate a major danger, Federal Aviation Administration officials have stressed. A report is filed whenever two planes get within five miles apart horizontally and 1,000 to 2,000 feet apart vertically, depending on altitude.

In the 1993 case a large airliner was flying at 35,000 feet when a fighter approached it head-on, climbing from 34,000 feet. The collision alert on the airliner sounded, causing the pilot to pull up rapidly and turn. A passenger suffered a broken ankle.

Air traffic controllers had told the fighter pilot to climb to 37,000 feet to pass above the airliner, but he wasn't able to do so quickly enough. They then directed him to remain at 34,000 feet, but he was already above that, bringing him too close to the airliner.

The NASA records do not disclose the names of pilots or airlines involved in such incidents and usually describe the aircraft in general terms, such as fighter, wide-body airliner or large airliner.

In the Feb. 5 New Jersey case, questions were raised about what the fighter pilot was told before the encounter. Communication problems were common in many of the other cases, too, according to the records.

In April 1991, for instance, severe weather and failure to communicate produced a close call between two fighters and a medium-to-large transport over Utah.

The fighters, flying southwest, decided to turn to the west to avoid a thunderstorm, but failed to inform air traffic control of the turn. They then asked for clearance to fly over the storm, but it was denied and they were told to turn left because of traffic in the area.

"I informed them we could not do this due to (weather)" the lead pilot reported. The fighters did not turn left until they had passed the storm.

When they returned to their base, the fighter pilots were told they had come too close to a transport that was flying in an emergency with an engine out.

"None of this was passed to me in the air," the lead pilot said. "I will not fly directly into a thunderstorm intentionally."

POLICE REPORTS

Arrests

Two young men were arrested early Friday after allegedly breaking into a storage building at 707 McDonald St.

The homeowner reported the break-in as it was allegedly occurring and when police arrived, two suspects fled on foot.

A chase ensued and 17-year-old Eric Mendoza and a 14-year-old male were arrested.

Mendoza has been charged with burglary of a habitation; the juvenile has been charged with unlawful use of a criminal instrument (tools to help break into the building) and evading arrest.

Mendoza is being detained at Midland County Detention Center.

No other information is available.

Alton R. Simpson and Terrence T. Belcher.

Simpson, 20, and Belcher, 19, are being detained on charges stemming from a Feb. 1 shooting incident that left a Midland infant dead. They were arrested following the death of a 2-month-old girl during an argument at an apartment complex at 4405 N. Garfield St.

Belcher has one drug charge against him stemming from the six-month undercover investigation and Simpson has five separate charges filed against him, Finley said.

Eight others suspected of drug-related crimes were brought in during Friday's sweep.

These include Joseph Almaras, Rosie Brodnix, Freddie Jones, Levi Taylor, Regina Watson, Martin Rodriguez, Patrick Whitlow and Jerry Laureless. These individuals remain incarcerated awaiting bond hearings.

By 8 p.m., 20 suspects remained unlocated in the sweep, but area law-enforcement officers will continue attempting to locate these individuals over the next several days.

SPEAK: Bivins discusses property tax reform

(From 1A)

1 percent; and

■ repealing the franchise tax and replacing it with a business activity tax.

The tax system, Bivins said, depends too heavily on property taxes and retail sales. A business activity tax would bring the fast-growing service industry, such as lawyers, accountants, doctors and computer programmers, into the tax base.

The activity tax would apply to all businesses from sole proprietorships to partnerships, limited partnerships, limited liability corporations to corporations. The exception would be personal investments such as savings, retirement savings and personal portfolios.

By replacing the current franchise tax with a business activity tax, Bivins said the state would gain a much broader tax base that would allow Texas to keep the rate as close as possible to the proposed 1 1/4 percent.

Another benefit of reducing reliance on property taxes would be to eliminate the vast funding disparity among the state's 1,050 school districts and do away with the current "Robin Hood" aspect of school finance that is so unpopular statewide.

"This is a very ambitious plan; it's a complex plan; it's a bold plan," Bivins stated. "And it may not happen."

Any of a host of issues — from opposition by businesses to being included in the business activity tax to questions about how, and how much the tax rate will be — could cause the effort to fall apart.

Still, he said, given the chemistry between Bush, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney, "there is a good opportunity to achieve tax reform. Legislators have shown a strong commitment to achieving tax reform."

Despite the focus on tax reform, Bivins said he hopes some other issues also will be addressed, including a continuation of tort reform begun in the last legislative session and assistance to the oil and gas industry in the form of tax credits for wells that are reactivated after two years of inactivity and for enhanced oil recovery projects.

dedication of its pilots. He described the show of "kind of a ballet in the air."

The Thunderbirds consist of six F-16 Flying Falcons that perform formation flying — to demonstrate the training and precision of the pilots — and solo routines to show off maximum capabilities of the high-performance aircraft.

The squadron was first activated in 1953 and the unit's first aircraft was the straight-winged F-84G Thunderjet. Since then, the squadron has used the F-100 Super Sabre, the world's first supersonic fighter; the F-4E Phantom II and the T-38A Talon before flying F-16s.

Last year, more than 4.2 million people in 11 countries and 26 states watched the Thunderbirds perform. In June 1990, about 35,000 people watched the Thunderbirds perform at a Midland air show.

The purpose of the squadron, according to an Air Force fact sheet, is: To support Air Force recruiting and retention programs; reinforce public confidence and demonstrate competence in the Air Force and its personnel; strengthen morale of those in the Air Force; support community relations; and represent the United States and its military forces to other nations and promote international goodwill.

Albright finds Yeltsin 'at the top of his game' on arrival in Moscow

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Secretary of State Madeleine Albright found Russian President Boris Yeltsin "at the top of his game" Friday during a visit that eased concern about his health but fell short of softening Russian opposition to NATO expansion.

One of the few outsiders to see Yeltsin during his slow recovery from heart surgery, Albright refused to characterize his physical appearance during their 50-minute meeting.

But mentally, she said, "he was totally engaged. He was very sharp, knowing exactly what he wanted to achieve."

Without giving up their opposition to an enlarged military alliance, Russian leaders suggested they would settle for a "voice, not a veto," in NATO affairs, Albright said.

Yeltsin's spokesman, Sergei Yastrzhembsky, said, "It would be premature to say that a breakthrough was achieved at Russia-U.S. talks on the question of NATO enlargement. One can only express cautious optimism."

He said Yeltsin and Albright discussed European security matters, weapons systems and economic cooperation. Yeltsin told Albright the success of his summit next month with President Clinton will largely depend upon progress in these issues, the spokesman said.

"It is no longer 'us vs. you' or 'you vs. us.'
— U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright

Part of Albright's mission to Moscow in her first visit as secretary of state was to lay groundwork for Clinton's March 20-21 meeting with Yeltsin in Helsinki, Finland. That meant taking note of the Russian leader's health.

Yeltsin has been virtually absent from public view since heart surgery in November and pneumonia last month. He looked thin but walked briskly and exchanged hearty pleasantries with the multilingual Albright.

When an interpreter tried to translate his comments into English, Yeltsin waved him off with a grin and said, "She understands Russian. She doesn't need translation."

Indeed, Albright did not use translation for 20 minutes of their meeting.

In their different ways, the spectacle of a Russian-speaking high U.S. official and the businesslike tone of the dialogue over NATO's growth were fresh evidence of distances narrowed between the Cold War enemies.

"It is no longer 'us vs. you' or 'you vs. us,'" Albright said at a news conference with Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov. "We are on the same side."

But there were also reminders that distrust is not limited to the margins. Visiting Washington, Russian Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov dismissed U.S. efforts to ease Russian fears over NATO.

Zyuganov, a member of the Russian parliament, said if NATO expands, "it will completely undermine all previous disarmament treaties." Zyuganov, who finished second in last year's presidential elections, has been telling government and business officials on his U.S. tour that Russia could be destabilized and the investment climate imperiled by an enlarged NATO.

Albright flew on to Asia for talks in South Korea, Japan and China as part of a nine-country, 11-day trip around the world.

Realistically, the Russians know they cannot stop NATO from taking in Eastern European countries as members.

"We are still negatively disposed," Primakov said guardedly after meeting with Albright. Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic are among ex-Soviet allies expected to be given formal invitations to NATO membership in July.

To try to placate the Russians, Americans are offering a charter linking Russia with NATO, unilateral cuts in NATO tanks and a proposal for a joint NATO-Russian military brigade for peacekeeping.

"No longer does NATO have an enemy in the East," Albright said. NATO, she said, has reduced its arsenal by 90 percent and cut the number of U.S. soldiers in Europe to 100,000 from 300,000 in 1989.

Primakov said Russia was not trying to participate in NATO decisions on defending its members against attack. But he said the alliance should be transformed into a primarily peacekeeping organization.

He also insisted any Russia-NATO charter should be ratified by the U.S. Congress and the Russian parliament, and be binding on both sides. Albright thought it would be possible to give one such a legal foundation.

She also saw it as a significant concession that Russia was not demanding a veto in NATO decisions.

Albright delivered a letter from Clinton asserting his hopes for a successful summit and gave the Russian leader a copy of Clinton's book, "Hope and History."

She also invited Primakov to Washington and promised the same warm reception accorded to her. For his part, Primakov called his U.S. counterpart "not just an iron lady, but a very constructive lady."

China's leader calls on nation to 'turn grief into strength'

BEIJING (AP) — Deng Xiaoping's handpicked successor pledged Friday to uphold "unswervingly" the economic revolution his mentor unleashed, and called on China "to turn grief into strength."

In his first public comments since Deng died Wednesday at age 92, Jiang Zemin, the Chinese president and Communist Party secretary, mourned the nation's "inestimable loss" and vowed to work harder for world peace and China's progress.

Jiang and the leadership he heads long have promised to follow Deng's policies — a mixture of capitalist economics and severe limits on dissent — for "100 years.".

The Chinese people "are determined to turn grief into strength ... and continue the great cause of socialist reforms and opening up and the modernization drive initiated by Comrade Deng Xiaoping unswervingly and confidently," the state-run Xinhua News Agency quoted Jiang as saying in meetings with the president of Kazakstan and a Vietnamese official.

Jiang and the leadership he heads long have promised to follow Deng's policies — a mixture of capitalist economics and severe limits on dissent — for "100 years." Most Chinese expect them to do so. Still, Jiang's remarks likely would have a settling effect and reassure foreign investors.

Deng chose Jiang to lead a divided Communist Party after the bloody military assault on unarmed pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square in 1989.

Since Deng's death, Jiang quickly has laid claim to his mantle. He heads the 459-member committee planning Deng's funeral and has collected new pledges of loyalty from the military and other influential constituencies.

The committee has ordered an official six-day mourning period, which ends Tuesday with a memorial to which 10,000 people have been invited. No foreigners are among them because Deng, who retired his last post in 1990, officially was a private citizen.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright — who originally was supposed to be in Beijing on Monday and Tuesday — said she would compress her talks into one day and leave for home early Tuesday.

Despite the mourning period, the government has not come to a halt: The Standing Committee of China's legislature met Friday, as did members of a government advisory body, who first stood in silence for three minutes.

To guard against the chance that demonstrations of grief might turn into political protests — as they did in Tiananmen Square after the death of ousted Communist Party leader Hu Yaobang — Chinese leaders ordered security tightened.

Plainclothes police confiscated flowers from people headed toward a memorial for revolutionary martyrs in the center of the vast square, where flags flew at half-staff.

On one of Beijing's main shopping streets, uniformed police shooed away a crowd that formed to talk about Deng with a foreign journalist.

Belgrade's first non-communist mayor in 52 years takes office

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — After protesting in the streets for three months, members of Serbia's opposition moved Friday into City Hall, electing their leader as Belgrade's first non-Communist mayor in 52 years.

They headed back to the streets once more Friday night for a huge, all-night party to celebrate their success at wearing down President Slobodan Milosevic, who had tried to prevent them from taking power.

The opposition won local elections Nov. 17 in Belgrade and 13 other cities and towns, but Milosevic-controlled courts annulled the results. After weeks of daily protests and international pressure, Milosevic conceded he had lost the towns.

In its first meeting Friday, the new Belgrade local assembly elected Zoran Djindjic, one of the opposition's three leaders, as mayor. Belgrade is the capital of Serbia, which with tiny Montenegro makes up Yugoslavia.

Djindjic (pronounced JIN'-jitch) said his movement had more challenges ahead — an empty treasury and obstruction by the central government. But the 44-year-old German-educated scholar said he would prevail.

"Democracy is sometimes painful, but with patience and tolerance, the will of the majority is bound to win," he said.

In a sign of the troubles likely will face, the inaugural session of the assembly repeatedly was disrupted by ultranationalist deputies who questioned procedures and made speeches insulting Djindjic.

Djindjic prevailed by a vote of 68-24, with 16 abstentions, one spoiled ballot and one absence. The breakdown roughly reflected the distribution of assembly seats between the opposition coalition, Milosevic's Socialist Party and ultranationalists.

The United States praised the vote, but warned it was only the first step in Serbia's transition toward democracy. "We welcome it as an important move in the right direction," said State Department spokesman Glyn Davies.

During the debate, the Socialists tried to adapt to their new role as a minority in city government and sat quietly through the disruptions. Socialist deputy Zivko Aleksic said that "the people have expressed their electoral will, but we'll see how long (the opposition-led government) will last. They'll have a lot of problems."

The capital's funds have been depleted and most tax revenues go to Milosevic's central Serbian government.

Djindjic charged that the Serbian government, "in which democratic forces are not in the majority ... is doing everything to punish Belgraders for the way they voted and to make life difficult for the city."

Tens of thousands of people filled the streets for the celebration Friday night, which began with rock-climbers scaling City Hall to remove the Communist star on top.

"I'm so excited, I can barely speak," said Svetlana Putnikovic, 42. "This symbol never belonged to our city. We should replace it once and for all."

The next struggle will be for control of the media, which the Serbian president uses to prop up his power. Milosevic's Socialists made a last-minute effort Thursday to ensure influence in Studio B radio and TV, which are to fall under control of the new administration. They signed a permanent contract with 13 employees, making it difficult to fire them.

Djindjic announced Friday that his government had appointed a board of directors for Studio B television, headed by a top aide to another opposition leader, Vuk Draskovic.

DNC chairman says more money to be returned

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal Democratic National Committee audit has discovered additional contributions that will have to be returned because they came from improper or unverifiable sources, the new party chairman said Friday.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Colorado Gov. Roy Romer also said the party "may not have been fair" in its recent decision to reject contributions from noncitizens who are legally in the United States and from U.S.-based subsidiaries of foreign corporations.

Since coming under scrutiny last year, the DNC has returned $1.6 million in contributions because it was unable to verify that the money came from legal sources. In several cases, the contributors who gave the money were of modest financial means and there have been allegations that party fund-raiser John Huang and other supporters of President Clinton tried to launder illegal contributions from foreign sources.

An exhaustive audit and internal review of DNC fund-raising is due to be completed by next week. A White House official familiar with the review said the party would soon return more than $1 million in additional contributions because they came from questionable sources.

"Sure, they are going to find some things that we haven't yet found," Romer said, but he declined to be specific about the amount until the entire report is completed.

Clinton announced the DNC's voluntary restrictions on fund-raising a month ago in conjunction with naming Romer to the party post. "My day job is a little easier than my night job," the Colorado governor joked about his grueling first month in the party post.

"I think the rules under which we work are very bad," said Romer, whose party, $12 million in debt, hopes to raise $50 million this year. He urged Congress to outlaw soft money and limit congressional campaign spending in exchange for discounted television time and mailings. "I think campaign finance needs substantial reform."

Romer said he has faced considerable criticism about the restrictions from Asian and Hispanic organizations with members who are legally in the United States but not yet citizens, and from representatives of companies that are giant employers of American workers but are controlled by foreign corporations.

He said it was unfair, for example, that the party could accept money from global telecommunications giant AT&T because its corporate headquarters was in the United States while refusing to accept money from rival MCI, which is in the process of being acquired by British Telcom.

"We may have to change some aspect of that," Romer said. But he quickly added that the spotlight on the party because of its questionable 1996 fund-raising practices likely would make it politically impossible to back away from the new restrictions, regardless of whether they are fair. "We've got to get some confidence back in the system."

Romer, who took over as general chairman of the DNC one month ago, chose his words carefully when asked whether Clinton should accept greater blame for the party's fund-raising practices.

But he said that in hindsight, perhaps Clinton's coffee receptions with prospective Democratic donors should not have been held in the White House, though he noted that taxpayers would have been forced to pay higher security costs had the president held them elsewhere.

And he was critical of Harold Ickes, then White House deputy chief of staff, for personally telling a prospective donor where his contributions would be most helpful. Romer said Ickes, who has since left government, should have handed off such matters to campaign workers.

On other related issues, Romer:

—Urged former DNC fund-raiser Huang to cooperate with congressional investigators. Huang, the central figure in raising questionable contributions from Asian sources, has cited his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination in refusing to surrender documents subpoenaed by a House committee.

—Said he wished the Democratic congressional campaign committees would adopt the same voluntary restrictions as the DNC. But he said he would not exercise his legal authority to force them to do so.

—Said, "I leave that to (Attorney General) Janet Reno," when asked if the Justice Department should name an independent counsel to investigate the campaign finance controversy. Reno has resisted Republican calls that she do so.

—Defended the DNC for continuing to raise the large, unregulated soft-money contributions at the root of last year's problems. Romer said the party was preparing a 22-page handbook as part of its efforts to make sure all such donations are legal. But he said that as long as such contributions are legal, and the Republicans continue to accept them, "I have a responsibility to be sure that this party stays on the field competitively."

OBITUARIES

Clara Louise Greer

Clara Louise Greer was born April 7, 1906, to Tom and Fannie McCain in Milford, Texas, where she was reared and educated. After graduating from high school, she attended Trinity University for two years. She married Opie R. Greer on December 16, 1925, in Milford. She and her husband lived in several places in Texas while Mr. Greer worked in the petroleum industry. Mrs. Greer had lived many years in Sweetwater, Texas. She later moved to Midland to be close to family. She was a member of First Baptist Church of Midland. Mrs. Greer was preceded in death by her husband in 1987, and by a son, Don R. Greer.

She is survived by three daughters, Dorothy Foster of Midland, Mary Clack of Midland, and Nancy Greer of Dimmitt, Texas; a brother, T.C. McCain of Shreveport, Louisiana; a sister, Catherine Beasley of Waxahachie, Texas; two grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Greer died Thursday morning at her Midland residence.

Graveside services have been set for Saturday, February 22, 1997, at 11 a.m. at Garden of Memories in Sweetwater, with Dr. Travis Monday of Trinity Baptist Church, officiating.

Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Obituary & Death Notice policy

There is no charge for death notices of residents or former residents of Midland or for those who have Midland relatives. We also publish death notices for residents of the surrounding West Texas area.

Free death notices include date and place of death, service and burial information, funeral home handling arrangements, date and place of birth, brief biography, survivors and memorials. A longer, more detailed obituary is available for a charge. It may include tributes, expanded biography, organizational associations, notes of appreciation, pallbearers, honorary pallbearers and a photo.

Deadline for both free death notices and paid obituaries is 4:30 p.m. and information must be either received from or verified by a funeral home.

Political role of tax-exempt groups questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Arizona, turning on the radio this week brings a campaign 1996 flashback: "The flat tax is simple, honest and its time has come. ... I'm Steve Forbes." Campaign 2000 already?

Not exactly.

While Forbes tells associates he is inclined to seek the GOP nomination again in three years, these ads were not paid for by a political fund. Instead, the money came from Americans for Hope, Growth and Opportunity, a Forbes-led group that, in Internal Revenue Service parlance, is classified as a 501(c)(4) tax-exempt organization.

The intertwining of such organizations and partisan politics was a major focus of the ethics case against House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who was criticized for using tax-exempt charitable groups to advance his personal political agenda. The IRS, long criticized for not policing the political activities of such groups, is stepping up its investigative activity.

And the role of tax-exempt organizations in political campaigns could become a significant focus of the Senate Government Operations Committee's investigation of 1996 campaign financing. While Republicans want to focus the investigation on Democrats and President Clinton, Democrats in turn are demanding that the review also look at the help tax-exempt groups like the Christian Coalition and Americans for Tax Reform provided Republican candidates.

This spotlight has made some politicians skittish about using tax-exempt groups to raise or maintain their political profile.

Former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, for example, used a 501(c)(4) organization called the Republican Exchange Satellite Network to travel the country in 1994 and build a political organization that became the foundation for his 1996 GOP presidential campaign.

Like Forbes, Alexander is busy making contacts for a likely run three years from now. But this time around, Alexander decided to pay for his travels with a run-of-the-mill political action committee, Republican Fund for the '90s. Unlike tax-exempt organizations, there are limits on contributions to PACs — and the names of all major donors are public record.

Likewise, Jack Kemp, Bob Dole's vice presidential nominee, considered using his post at Empower America, a tax-exempt conservative group, as the base for his political travels until the time comes to establish a 2000 campaign operation. But Kemp, too, chose to form a conventional PAC instead. An associate said Kemp's legal and political advisers talked at length about how the current media and congressional focus on campaign finance issues made it imperative that Kemp take a safe course.

In an interview, Forbes said he welcomed scrutiny of his organization. He will not, however, open its books and disclose information about contributors.

As for the Gingrich case, Forbes noted that the biggest offense involving a tax-exempt organization centered on a group called the Abraham Lincoln Opportunity Foundation, which was classified under the IRS code as a 501(c)(3) charity — meaning contributions were tax-deductible. IRS rules give these entities less leeway to get involved in politics than 501(c)(4) organizations like Americans for Hope Growth and Opportunity, the Christian Coalition or Empower America.

Forbes isn't the only 2000 Republican prospect with a tax-exempt organization. Pat Buchanan is head of American Cause, a 501(c)(3) group he established as a charitable education foundation after his first run for the presidency in 1992. The organization's plans for 1997 are uncertain, but Buchanan's campaign treasurer recently returned to the American Cause payroll and his Ohio campaign coordinator is taking over as its executive director.

Forbes is on the road constantly promoting his new group, and the ads promoting the flat tax are soon to be followed with spots promoting school choice, medical savings accounts and Forbes' ideas for shoring up the Social Security System.

These were central themes of his presidential campaign, but several legal experts said Forbes was within the law governing tax-exempt organizations as long as he promoted issues without advocating any candidates for office, including himself.

"It think truly it is too early to tell what is going to happen in 2000," Forbes said when asked about his political plans. "In the meantime, we can certainly set the foundation for a very positive pro-growth conservative agenda."

In doing so, Forbes is taking full advantage of what many critics see as shortcomings in the laws and regulations designed to put a wall between tax-exempt organizations and partisan politics.

Among items available to visitors to the flashy Americans for Hope, Growth and Opportunity Internet homepage (www.AHGO.org) is a detailed biography that chronicles Forbes' unsuccessful 1996 presidential campaign.

Americans for Hope, Growth and Opportunity took over the Bedminster, N.J., offices that housed the Forbes campaign. Campaign manager Bill Dal Col now runs the new organization, which plans its first fund-raiser March 6 in New York and is preparing a direct mail fund-raising appeal to Forbes supporters. Even the phone number is unchanged from the Forbes campaign.

"Such a heavy overlap with the campaign certainly brings into question what the motives are," said Kent Cooper of the Center for Responsive Politics, a watchdog group.

Starr reverses himself in Whitewater decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under a hail of criticism, Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr reversed his decision to resign this summer, saying Friday that he'll stay until the investigative work and prosecutions are "substantially completed."

His statement capped a dramatic week begun by his unexpected announcement Monday that he was leaving by Aug. 1 for a law school dean's job. Starr apologized for that personal move, which caused critics including fellow Republicans to question his commitment to the three-year probe that began with questions about the Clintons' investments back in Arkansas.

"It has become clear that for the sake of continued public confidence in this investigation, it would be inappropriate to set any arbitrary date upon which to terminate my role as independent counsel," Starr said in a statement issued by his office.

"I deeply regret any action on my part that may have called that commitment into question."

Starr, 50, had said Monday that he would leave to become dean of the Pepperdine University law school in Malibu, Calif. He expressed confidence that the career staff of prosecutors he had assembled could handle any remaining duties.

That earlier announcement stunned many because it came at a sensitive time. His office is preparing to review a lengthy memo prepared by his staff that lays out evidence involving President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton. The memo was prepared to determine whether any indictments were warranted.

Starr's statement Friday said he has informed the school that he "will assume no duties or responsibilities as dean at Pepperdine until the investigation and any resulting prosecutions ... have been substantially completed."

Starr had said this week that there was plenty of time left before his planned departure to make key decisions. His statement Friday avoided predicting when such work could be completed.

He said he was committed to the successful completion of the investigation, which has expanded from questions about the Clintons' investments in Arkansas to include the White House travel office firings and FBI files search.

Sheriff's office on defensive over rapist's arrest

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Eighteen days before he allegedly stabbed and strangled a woman on his living room sofa, Lawrence Singleton wrote a note saying he hoped to find peace, then ran a dryer hose from his van's exhaust pipe into the vehicle window.

Neighbors pulled him out, thwarting his suicide, and the attempt landed him in a psychiatric hospital, where his family hoped he would be committed. Instead, the 69-year-old Singleton was released.

Nine days later, Roxanne Hayes, 31, was killed in his home.

Singleton, who had been paroled in 1987 in California after serving 8 1/2 years for raping a teen-age hitchhiker and chopping off her forearms, was under no police watch in Florida, and the neighbors who saved his life were never officially warned of his past.

"When I found out, the first thing I thought was, 'Should I have left that man in there?'" neighbor David Sales said after Singleton's arrest Wednesday. "If I had known, I probably would have at least given it a second thought."

As Singleton appeared in court Friday on charges of murder, the sheriff's department scheduled a news conference to answer why Singleton wasn't monitored and why it took 32 minutes for a deputy to arrive at his house the night of Hayes' slaying after a house painter saw Singleton struggling with the woman.

Residents of Singleton's blue-collar neighborhood on the eastern edge of Hillsborough County weren't notified of his violent criminal past because he wasn't subject to Florida's Sexual Predator Law, which applies to crimes that took place after the law went into effect in 1995.

There are about 250 men and women registered as sexual predators on a list maintained by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Law enforcement agencies are required to notify the public about the predators living in their midst.

Singleton had registered in Florida as a known felon when he moved back to his home state in 1988, after his parole was up in California and frightened residents in several towns ran him out of their communities.

But Hillsborough Sheriff's Lt. David Gee said it would have been "a difficult task" to monitor him.

"He has a lot of notoriety because of his crimes," Gee said. "But in a community this size, there are a lot of criminals. It would be difficult to monitor someone, long-term, 24 hours a day."

Singleton was no stranger to Tampa's criminal justice system. He was arrested for stealing a $10 camera from a drugstore in 1990 and sentenced to 60 days in jail. Months later, he was arrested again, this time for stealing a $3 hat from a Wal-Mart. He received a two-year jail sentence.

This month, he was charged with stealing an $87 electric drill. Later that same day, neighbors saw him hook the hose to his exhaust pipe, drape a tarp over the pipe and climb inside the van.

Judge says modern tests on rifle may shed light on King murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Modern technology exists that might prove once and for all if James Earl Ray's rifle killed Martin Luther King Jr., a judge said Thursday in a decision that keeps alive Ray's quest for a new trial.

The decision by Judge Joe Brown must now be reviewed by a state appeals court before he can rule on whether to allow the tests on the rifle and the bullet taken from King's body.

Ray, who pleaded guilty to King's 1968 slaying, reversed himself almost immediately and has been requesting a trial ever since. He asked for the rifle tests in an attempt to take back his guilty plea and go to trial — a move supported in court by the widow of the slain civil rights leader.

"Even if no new light is shed on the facts concerning my husband's assassination, at least we and the nation can have the satisfaction of knowing that justice has run its course in this tragedy," Coretta Scott King told the judge.

Ray, who is serving a 99-year prison sentence, is now 68 and suffering from serious liver disease, which his lawyers describe as terminal.

Mrs. King said her family has declined over the years to get involved in efforts to get a trial for Ray but his failing health requires that now.

"If Mr. Ray is denied a trial," she said, "our family and indeed the entire nation will also be denied the due process of law that is the birthright of every citizen."

Ray contends that his rifle, identified for almost 30 years as the murder weapon, was not the one that killed King.

To rule on Ray's request, Brown had to first decide if today's technology for such tests is better than it was in the late 1960s and 1970s when the rifle was last examined.

"All I'm trying to say is there appears to be scientific methodology that has a reasonable likelihood or is capable, let's put it that way, of resolving this issue," Brown said.

Brown approved Ray's request for new tests on the rifle in 1994 but was overturned by the appeals court. Because of that, any decisions he makes on Ray's petition must be looked at by the higher court. Brown did not know when the appeals court would review his decision.

Conspiracy theorists have argued for years that Ray, a bungling, petty criminal, could not have pulled off the assassination alone. And their theories, some of which include allegations of government wrongdoing, often note that authorities have never proven that Ray's gun was the murder weapon.

Ray contends the .30-06 Remington rifle found at the murder scene with his fingerprints on it was put there by murder conspirators trying to frame him.

Ray said he bought the rifle in Alabama and brought it to Memphis on instructions from a shadowy gun runner he knew only as Raoul.

White House pushes Herman confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House stepped up efforts Friday for the stalled nomination of Alexis Herman to head the Labor Department, orchestrating a show of support by officials of labor, women's and civil rights groups.

"No one can understand why this process has been delayed so long and why it can't move forward," said Peggy Taylor of the AFL-CIO. "Unions understand the kind of subtle undercutting of a person so they can't do their job. And they're becoming outraged by the process as well as wanting the Labor Department to function."

Herman and President Clinton's chief of staff, Erskine Bowles, met at the White House with her supporters, who then went outside before television cameras to demand a confirmation hearing on her nomination.

Herman's nomination has been on hold while Senate Republicans investigate whether she improperly mixed politics with her duties as director of the White House Office of Public Liaison. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee has yet to schedule a hearing.

Sen. James Jeffords, R-Vt., the committee chairman has not set a date, although he was quoted by a White House official as telling Bowles that he had a few more questions about the nomination and would set a date soon.

A spokesman for the senator, Joe Karpinski, said, "The staff work (on the nomination) is continuing and I do not expect us to set a date until the staff work is completed." He said he did not know when that would be.

Clinton, during an appearance in the Oval Office on Thursday, called on the Senate to schedule a confirmation hearing. "She's clearly well qualified," the president said. "She deserves a hearing and if she gets a hearing, she's going to be confirmed."

In reply, Jeffords issued a statement late Thursday saying that the White House "knows there has been no desire on the part of the committee to unnecessarily delay a hearing. Unfortunately, the timing has been affected by continuing revelations of activities of the White House itself that may have a bearing on the nomination."

Goodwin advances

AUSTIN — Midland Lee junior Amber Goodwin qualified for today's finals in both of her events Friday at the UIL Swimming and Diving Championships.

Goodwin qualified in the 100-yard backstroke with a second-best time of 57.44, which bettered her regional qualifying time of 58.01. She finished second in the state meet in that event last year.

In the 50 freestyle, Goodwin qualified with a 24.08, the fourth-fastest time of the day. That was slightly behind her 23.98 which won the Region I meet two weeks ago and was her personal best.

Baylor hires Smith

WACO — Ty Smith, Purdue's defensive coordinator for the last 18 months, has been hired as defensive ends coach at Baylor, the Bears announced Friday.

Before Smith arrived at Purdue, the defense ranked next-to-last nationally. Under him, the Boilermakers rose to rank in the top 40 nationally.

Smith, 40, oversaw a similar turnaround at Louisville, where he coached linebackers and defensive ends from 1988-94 and was defensive coordinator his last four seasons.

MHS rolls as Franklin can't stop Lemons

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

ALPINE — When Kirby Lemons makes noise in the Class 5A state basketball playoffs, you can be sure people are going to pay attention one way or the other.

A physical, basket-charging Lemons attacked the El Paso Franklin middle at the Sul Ross gym Friday night, sinking 36 points as the Bulldogs moved on to the regional quarterfinals with an 84-63 win over the Cougars.

And Lemons could have busted the 40-point barrier easily had it not been for the fact that he missed seven free throws. Franklin just had no answer for the 6-foot, 5-inch junior, and the wear and tear finally caught up with Cougar coach Carl Bailey.

"Lemons is the dirtiest, most all-mouthed player I've ever seen," Bailey said. "He has a lot of talent, no mistaking that, but it's a shame that a guy with that kind of talent has that kind of attitude and trash talks on the floor. And the worst part of it, he's allowed to get away with it."

Lemons admitted that the game produced some talk between the players on the floor, but said it wasn't anything more than usual.

"Players are going to talk to opponents when they are in a game," Lemons said, "but when there is trouble is when the coaches gets involved. And when the coach gets involved how does that make the player look? Opponents are always talking to each other and sometimes it is trash talk."

But the bottom line, Lemons had no defensive match in this one as he did pretty much as he willed while the Bulldogs climbed to 29-3, moving now against El Paso Eastwood, a team that defeated Midland Lee by 14 points Friday night in Pecos.

That means that the potential first-ever playoff meeting between Midland High and Lee will not take place. The site of the MHS-Eastwood game had not been set Friday night.

MHS players took the news of Lee dropping from the playoffs lightly.

Eastwood stops Rebs' playoff run

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

PECOS — Maybe they were looking ahead to next week's potential showdown with crosstown rival Midland High. Maybe they couldn't quite gear up mentally for a team they had already beaten once this season. Maybe it was the accumulation of almost every game over the past month being a must-win situation.

Or maybe it was the full moon. Whatever the case, it appears destined that the Midland Lee Rebels weren't going to make it past the area round of the Region I boys basketball playoffs.

Lee exited the playoffs Friday evening at the Pecos High gym with a 77-63 loss to El Paso Eastwood, a team which it had beaten by seven points earlier in the season. It was a result which could have left a lot of head-scratching since El Paso schools aren't traditionally supposed to make it to the quarterfinal round of the playoffs, which Eastwood will do next Tuesday against Midland High.

But perhaps the most logical explanation for the loss came from the Rebels' performance at the free throw line, which was downright foul. Lee made only 16 of 37 free throws, numbers which rarely win playoff games regardless of the opponent.

"We executed what we wanted to do," Lee coach Jon House said. "We got the ball inside and got them in foul trouble but we didn't hit our free throws. I hate to lose that way."

While the final score might be indicative of a rout, Lee only trailed by three points entering the fourth quarter and actually led briefly by a point 30 seconds into the period. But a technical foul on senior point guard Amron Washington for disputing an official's call set off a nightmarish ending for the Rebels, who finished the season 24-12.

If you need to see the biggest difference between the two teams' fortunes, a look at the fourth quarter free throw numbers tells the story. The Rebels made only seven of 18 from the stripe while Eastwood sank 12 of 15 in the final quarter.

What was particularly baffling about Lee's failures at the line was that the Rebels seemed comfortable there in their two previous wins. In their playoff win over Lubbock Monterey and in last week's must-win game against Odessa Permian to reach the playoffs, the Rebels made 33 of 43 free throws.

"We'd been doing pretty well (from the line) down the

Clint comes back vs. Greenwood

Staff report

ALPINE — The Greenwood High boys basketball team stormed out quickly Friday night, but came stumbling home in falling to Clint 63-56 in a Class 3A Region I area playoff game.

Things started promisingly for the Rangers, who finished the season 19-13. Andrew Wootan and Neil Boecking both had big first quarters, scoring six points apiece to boost Greenwood to a 21-8 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Rangers continued to hold a 10-point lead through halftime, but the second half proved their undoing.

Clint (21-8) chipped away and eventually tied the game 41-41 at the end of the third quarter. Then when the game was literally on the line, Clint asserted its authority. Maybe the most surprising of the Greenwood scorers was David Upton whop scored just nine points. The sophomore post had been averaging 20-plus going into the playoffs.

In the fourth quarter, Clint, the second seed of District 3-3A, made all 12 of its free throws and for the game made 21 of 27. The Rangers, meanwhile, hit four three-point shots in the fourth quarter, but could only add three

Midland teams get games in despite weather

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

Though mother nature was not very kind to the second annual West Texas Classic, games were played and thankfully so for the Midland softball teams.

The focal point of this tournament for the Tall City teams was to get in games, and as of late Saturday night, both Midland High and Midland Lee got in three each.

Both teams erupted offensively in the early going. In weather more ideal for hockey, Midland High warmed up for a 10-1 win over Andrews High. Then, Lady Bulldogs followed that up with a 12-4 win over El Paso Socorro.

Despite a late 9-4 loss to Odessa Permian in the nightcap, MHS coach Rich Wieligman's crew showed many good signs offensively. In the first game, MHS blew open the game with Class 4A Andrews with an eight-run fourth inning. Leading the way was a three-run triple by Kim Paschall.

In the second game, MHS (now 3-1) used the big inning effectively with an eight-run first. Jessica Moss provided a key blow with a two RBI shot. Paschall scored three runs while Francesca Salcido hammered a two-run double.

Lee's bats and pitching proved to be the perfect compliment for each other in its first two games of the tournament.

For the first two games Lee's pitching allowed zero hits. The first no-hitter was a combined effort from Chrystal Smith and Andrea Rodriguez over Fort Stockton. In the second game, Smith shut down El Paso Franklin as Lee won 8-0. Smith led Lee (3-1 for the season) with 12 strikeouts.

At the plate, the duo of Marcie Villa and Jennifer Aman was all that the Lady Rebs needed.

In the 12-0 win over Fort Stockton, Villa went 3-for-4 with five RBI, including a three-run homer that was mashed into a stiff breeze. Aman spread her wealth through both games. The junior had nine RBI in the two games.

"We are starting to relax and starting to hit the ball better," Lee coach Perry Young said. "Franklin has a good pitcher and we hit her well. This will be tough (referring to his late Friday night game with Richland and Saturday's play). But it will help us to get the repetitions we need."

In the quarterfinal Lee fell 5-2 to Richland. After six complete innings, the game was tied 1-1 forced the international tie-breaker, and Richland scored

TALL CITY INVITATIONAL

Cold doesn't bother Amarillo High

■ Midland Lee stands fourth in Tall City tourney, six strokes behind AHS.

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

It's always tough for a high school golf team to break 320 at Midland Country Club. And it's even tougher to break it when the cold wind is blowing and the hands are going numb.

Being a team from the usually cold Panhandle, the Amarillo Sandies didn't mind the cold chill as they shot a 319 in the first day of the two-day Tall City Invitational.

Behind Zack Norrell's 76, the Sandies barely blew past Lubbock Coronado, who shot 320 for second place. San Angelo Central stayed close behind with a 321 total, and Midland Lee kept within striking distance in fourth place with a 325 total. Midland High's young team struggled against the tough competition to shoot a 365 for 19th place.

Amarillo High coach Wade Walker cited a good team balance for the first day's performance.

"My senior Zack Norrell shot a 76 and just from top to bottom I had guys that kept their heads in it despite the weather. We knew from last year that if they can get in under 80 they'll be in the tournament," Walker said.

"The weather does have an effect but you just have to keep in mind that everybody is going to play worse than you normally think. Last year at this time, a 321 was leading after the first day."

The Sandies last won the Tall City Invitational in 1995, and they know it's going to be tough to keep up the good scores.

"We hope so. But you just can't ever tell," Walker said.

The Lee Rebels were led by Chris Mertz, who shot a 78 to land in a six-way tie for third place in the individual medalists standings. Chris Stoltz led the Bulldogs with an 82. But the biggest individual performance belonged to Abilene Cooper's Paul Helms who shot a 73 and help his team to a 333 total and sixth place after Friday's round.

"I just kept hitting the greens. I didn't really hit my drive that straight but when I got into trouble I got out of it fast," Helms said. "I putted better than I have been. I sank two 15-footers for birdies (at the No. 7 and No. 8 hole).

"It was pretty tough out there trying to keep my concentration and not worry about the cold

Martin captures two poles in one day

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Mark Martin took out two weeks of stress Friday on North Carolina Motor Speedway's 1.017-mile oval.

"An awful lot of bottled up frustration was unleashed today for me," Martin said after sweeping the pole for both Saturday's Goodwrench 200 Busch Grand National race and Sunday's featured Goodwrench 400 Winston Cup event.

"I took a lot of whoopins in the races leading up to the (Daytona) 500," he explained. "Our Winston Cup car had a speed deficit until the big race when we found the right combination in the draft."

Martin's frustration began to dissipate during Sunday's Daytona 500, when he led 30 laps and finished seventh despite a loose lug nut problem on his last scheduled pit visit that forced him to make an extra stop.

It disappeared entirely Friday as he grabbed the Busch pole with a lap of 151.264 mph and, less than two hours later, took the Winston Cup pole with a record-smashing lap of 157.885 that even Martin admitted was exciting.

"The Busch pole was normal," Martin said. "The Winston Cup deal was something that felt spectacular.

"I'll tell you about the lap," he added. "I drove it in deeper than I should've, and it stuck and I slammed (the accelerator) to the floor. The car came off turn two running what felt like 250 miles per hour. I knew that if I didn't wreck, I would sit on the pole because it didn't matter what I did in (turns) three and four at that point.

"I didn't drive as hard in three and four and take as many chances. I could have cruised quite a bit more and still been OK. My knees were a little shaky when I got out of the car, but I had a smile on my face."

The lap broke the track record of 157.620, set in 1995 by Jeff Gordon on what was then a newly repaved oval.

This was the 33rd pole of Martin's Winston Cup career and his third at Rockingham.

Duncanville, Marcus advance to finals

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

The Girls Region I Class 5A final will be an all-Metroplex affair after both Flower Mound Marcus and Duncanville took care of their West Texas counterparts Friday night at Chaparral Center.

Behind a 34-point performance from Tamika Catchings, Duncanville held off the stubborn Lady Mustangs of Lubbock Coronado 75-54, and Flower Mound used a balanced scoring attack to upset Amarillo 64-56.

Today's 1 p.m. final will be the third meeting between the Pantherettes (37-0) and the Lady Marauders (30-6) this season. Duncanville beat Flower Mound in both of those games.

■ Region I-5A Girls

Marauders head coach Kit Kyle is excited about getting another chance to play Duncanville a third time. But she doesn't believe that playing them a third time will be a charm.

"I don't buy into that theory," said Kyle. "We played Arlington Lamar three times this year and we won all three. We just play them one at a time."

Duncanville coach Sara Hackerott echoed similar thoughts.

"Every game is a new game," Hackerott said. "We'll just go out there ready to play."

Another team that came prepared to play the Pantherettes was their opponent, the Lady Mustangs of Lubbock Coronado, (34-5) who were led in scoring by Erika Valek with 19 points.

Duncanville needed all of Catchings' 34 points against a scrappy team in Coronado.

The Lady Mustangs trailed by only five at the end of the first quarter. Duncanville at one point in the second quarter led by nine only to see the youthful Lady Stangs trim the lead to 35-30 at the half.

In the second half, Duncanville used a better shot selection and began pulling away from the gutsy Lady Mustangs. The Pantherettes used a 15-6 run to finally gain some breathing room.

"I believe that was a key for us in the game. Every kid out there made a good shot and Tamika was there with them," Hackerott said.

Duncanville's opponent in the today's final, the Lady Marauders, neutralized the offense of Amarillo. It didn't help matters either that the Lady Sandies picked a wrong time to play one of their worst games of the season. They committed 15 turnovers for the contest.

"We had them scouted out pretty good," said Kyle.

Amarillo (30-4) played out of synch for most of the game and never got closer than six points in the second half.

Amarillo was led in scoring by Jenny Blades 18 and Marcus' top scorer was Kim Kip who pumped in 16.

Herrera's 24 leads Spurs over Bucks; Rockets lose

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Carl Herrera proved to be a cure for the injury-depleted San Antonio Spurs.

Herrera scored a career-high 24 points to lead the Spurs to a 98-93 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

"His points were great, but his presence was unbelievable," San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich said. "He hit the boards on both ends and did a great job of being physical."

San Antonio, which broke a five-game losing streak, suited up only eight players as David Robinson, Chuck Person, Sean Elliott, Charles Smith, Vernon Maxwell and Monty Williams all watched the game from the bench in street clothes.

"Part of the problem is we have a different team every night, but as long as we shoot well, even though we are depleted, we're in the game every time," said Popovich, who saw his team connect on 55.4 percent of its field goal attempts.

Four San Antonio players scored in double figures as Herrera was joined by Avery Johnson with 20 points and Dominique Wilkins and Vinny Del Negro scored 18 apiece.

Milwaukee was led by Vin Baker with 27 points, while Glenn Robinson added 21, Ray Allen 17 and Sherman Douglas 13.

After trailing by as many as 21 points, Milwaukee rallied in the fourth quarter to cut San Antonio's lead to 88-87 on a dunk by Allen with 1:36 to play.

Herrera responded with back-to-back baskets as San Antonio regained the momentum and led 92-88 with 46.2 seconds to play.

"I was trying to stay active on the inside and rebound well," Herrera said. "Every night we just have to come out and play our hardest and try to give the fans a great game."

Johnson, who tied a season-high with 14 assists, connected on six straight free throws down the stretch as San Antonio held on for its 13th victory of the season.

"Our energy level has not been as high this season as it was tonight," Johnson said. "Normally in the situation we were in tonight, we would have said 'Here we go again,' but Carl was the difference when we needed it."

After leading 47-36 at halftime, San Antonio was able to stretch its lead to as many as 21 points, 66-45, on two free throws by Herrera with 3:57 remaining in the third quarter.

Hawks 76, Rockets 74

ATLANTA — It was sweet revenge for the Atlanta Hawks after being embarrassed only four nights earlier in Houston.

Mookie Blaylock hit a 15-foot jumper with one-tenth of a second remaining Friday night, lifting the Hawks over Houston 76-74 and avenging a 29-point loss to the Rockets on Monday night.

"We were upset about the loss in Houston, but we basically just wanted to tell them that we were better than the way we played in Houston," said Atlanta's Steve Smith. "And Mookie hit the shot. We're happy."

MHS sophs down Levelland JV

DENVER CITY — Ryan Heth pitched seven innings and gave up one run on six hits to lead the Midland High sophomore baseball team to a 14-1 win over the Levelland junior varsity in the opening game of the Denver City tournament.

Sean Clark had a double for MHS (2-0) and Jeff Brock had three RBIs.

Wagner, Newman net first places

Midland gymnasts Amanda Wagner and Laura Newman took first place in respective all-arounds at the Odessa College Invitational this past weekend.

Wagner, competing in the Level 8, 9-under division, took first on all four apparati en route to her title while Newman, a level 8, 10-11 year-old competitor, won first on the bars and beam.

At the Lone Star Invitational, Tami John won first on the floor, second on the beam and took third in the all-around. John competed in the Level 10, 13-14 division.

Results from the Lone Star Invitational in Fort Worth:

Level 10 (Age 13-14): Tami John - Vault, 8.65; Bars 8.40; Beam 9.15, 2nd; Floor 9.45, 1st; All-around 35.65, 3rd. Jana Duncan - vault 8.15; Bars 8.20; Beam 8.30; Floor 7.95. All-around, 32.60.

Results from the Odessa College Invitational:

Level 8 (Age 9-under): Amanda Wagner - Vault - 7.75, 1st; Bars 6.85, 1st; Beam 8.65, 1st; Floor, 8.25, 1st. All-Around 32.50.
Level 8 (Age 10-11): Laura Newman - Vault 7.60, 2nd; Bars 8.55, 1st; Beam 8.20, 1st; Floor 8.90. All-Around 33.25, 1st.

LOCAL SOCCER TODAY

GIRLS

San Angelo Central at Midland High

When: 2 p.m.
Where: MHS Soccer Field
Records: Midland High is 12-2-1 overall and 9-0 in District 7. Central is 5-5-1 and 5-3.
Coaches: Midland High — Scott Hodkinson; Central — Walter Gilleland.
Opponent: The Lady Bobcats are coming off a 3-2 win over Permian Tuesday in San Angelo. The Lady Bobcats are holding down the third place spot in the district by a half game over Midland. MHS defeated Central 2-0 in the teams' last meeting.
Injuries: MHS — Tiffani Barden is probable (mononucleosis); Kathy Cornelius is doubtful (dehydration).
Last action: MHS had to go to a shootout to defeat 1-8 Abilene High. Jamie Nicholson scored the game's first goal for MHS, who needed a shootout conversion from Jamie Self to win the extra period 2-1.
Notes, quotes: The Lady Bulldogs can extend their district home winning streak to 12 — the longest in the district... A win today will not only seal a playoff spot but at least the second seed. It is also the last game before the rematch with Abilene Cooper, one of the other tri-champions in 1996. Cooper is also the last team to go through a regular season undefeated... Hodkinson says the team, however, is ready to play Central and will wait for Cooper... "We can't look past this," Hodkinson said. "We will be wary of them since they tied us before district. (The Lady Bulldogs) have to be ready."
Next Game: MHS will host three-time district champion Abilene Cooper Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

MHS at San Angelo Central

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Old Bobcat Stadium in San Angelo.
Records: Midland High is 9-6 overall and 5-4 in District 7. San Angelo Central is 13-3 and 6-2.
Coaches: Midland High — Tom Esikhati; San Angelo Central — David Kulik.
Opponent: Central is coming off a 2-1 shootout loss to Odessa Permian on Tuesday. The Bobcats are still in first by a half-game. The previous district loss came at the hands of the Bulldogs.
Last action: MHS had everything going its way with a 2-0 halftime lead but self-destructed in a 5-3 loss to Abilene High. Jason Peredes had two goals for MHS while Scott Kamis had two assists.
Notes, quotes: The Bulldogs will take the pitch (field) without three top players. Jeremie Piette will miss the game due to a red card in Tuesday's game. Sweeper Matt Lackey and keeper Bryan Alley are also expected to miss the game... The Bulldogs are still in a great position to make the upcoming playoffs. Even with a loss today, the Bulldogs could finish the district with five losses, which should be the number needed for a top three spot. Lee and Abilene High should be the next two contenders for the third-place slot. Lee still has games with Central, Permian and Abilene High. Abilene High also must face Permian... Right now, MHS is focusing on sweeping Central. "We are looking forward to a good game and a tough game," MHS coach Tom Esikhati said. "We will be prepared even short (on players). They will have to step up to fill in empty areas. We have been in this situation before."... "We are trying to make the playoffs," defender Cody Brown said. "I hope we can beat them not having three starters. They are a good team and it will be a good game... With two goals on Tuesday, Jason Peredes has taken over the team's lead in goals (6).... MHS' three goals versus Central in the teams' first game is the most scored against the Bobcats this season.
Next game: MHS will travel to Abilene Thursday for its battle with Cooper.

free throws to that.

Ironically, the Rangers had come back on Clint in a 1995 Class 3A bi-district game which was also played in Alpine.

Boecking led Greenwood with 17 points while Wootan added 15. Greenwood entered the playoffs as the top seed from District 4-3A, a distinction it earned by defeating Sonora last Saturday in the 4-3A playoff. Greenwood won its second title in three years under Justin Morett.

Alex Chairez led Clint with 21 points while Cesar Morrales added 14.

four runs in the top of the seventh. Lee got one run in the bottom of the inning on Aman's second RBI of the game.

"We played well, got to the international tie-breaker, and they just had more runs than us," Young said.

For another Midland school, the tournament provided an up-and-down start to its first appearance in Division I. Midland Christian fell in the opening game to Permian, 3-0, but rebounded to knock off Franklin, 6-0. The key in both games was the hitting.

"We finally started hitting the ball (against Franklin)," Midland Christian coach Byron Myers said. "(In the game against Permian), we didn't make the wrong plays defensively, we just were a step behind. But really it came down to hitting."

In the win over Franklin, sophomore pitcher Mindi Sheppard struck out 11 en route to throwing a one-hitter. Paula Brininstool had two RBI and Amanda Urquidez had an RBI double in the win.

MHS: Bulldogs stomp Franklin, 84-63

(From 1B)

"I thought it would be good for Midland if we could have played Lee again, but this is the playoffs and we'll be ready for whoever shows up," said MHS sophomore Jay Christian.

Christian scored 15 points while sophomore Charles Tatum added 18 in the three-pronged Bulldog attack. Ironically, all three of those players will be back with MHS next season. Christian and Tatum were making their first playoff appearance.

"I was a little nervous before the game," Christian said, "but after we got into the flow of the game, it just seemed like any other game. I did notice that the officials let you play more, and if we are allowed to run up and down the floor, I think we can beat just about anyone who comes along."

Midland High coach Jack Stephenson wasn't overly thrilled with the whole results, but he liked the win.

"I'm happy with the win when you're in the playoffs," Stephenson said. "However, we missed a bunch of free throws (21) and made some stupid mistakes. You could see that this was the first round of the playoffs. It will get better."

In the first half, it was appropriate that this game was played in Alpine. It had that wild Western look. Franklin likes to play the type of basketball they played in the old West. You know, tie a peach basket to a tree get five guys and pass the ball 14 times before you shoot. It sure wasn't the MHS style. It seemed that the Cougars were close enough to do some damage early on, but the Bulldogs, little by little, step by step, took away the territory and eventually built a 12-point lead at 31-19 with 2:18 left in the first half.

But the total secret to a recipe win was to feed Lemons inside where Franklin had to foul him because he couldn't be kept off the glass with a decidedly undersized team.

So, Lemons slowly put in 17 first half points while Tatum added 11. It still seemed like a slow pace, but one Franklin couldn't keep up with. Christian scored nine of his 15 points in the third quarter. Lemons added eight as it was becoming e vident this was a Bulldog night.

Bailey became more and more upset as the fourth quarter progressed with his attention mostly on Lemons, who Bailey felt was talking too much on the floor. Franklin's Erick Estrada had 23 points but no other Cougar had double figures.

The best team won this match but some at Franklin just wish is had been a little quieter.

REBELS: Free throws doom Lee

stretch, especially in big games," House said.

The odds appeared stacked slightly against the Rebels entering the game, since they were playing their fifth game in 11 days and had to do without senior Dreyfus Andrews, a key reserve who had been declared academically ineligible prior to the game. They were unable to get untracked early, falling behind by as many as 12 points in the first quarter and spent the rest of the first half trying to get caught up. The closest Lee got was shortly before halftime when Matt Meyer scored on a layup to cut it to 32-30.

Charncy Ephriam, who scored a game-high 23 points for Lee, put back an offensive rebound to start the second half and tie the game. The Rebels finally went ahead at 44-43 when Washington hit a three-pointer late in the third period. It stayed tight until the fourth quarter when Eastwood (25-5) twice went on 6-0 runs to go up 64-53. Lee got no closer than seven points the rest of the way.

"I thought we'd have to do a better job of running the halfcourt offense and playing halfcourt defense than last time," said Eastwood coach Gary Pippen, whose team lost to Lee 82-75 in December in the Tall City Oilman's Classic at Chaparral Center. "I didn't have the depth early on when we played them but we have it now."

Lee didn't have the depth Friday that it had the first time it played Eastwood because of what the team has had to go through for the last two months. Prior to Christmas, the Rebels had the services of John Norman and Antwan Alexander, two players who arrived late from the football team and appeared to give Lee the shot in the arm it needed to contend for a District 4-5A title. However, Alexander and Norman both left the team because of conflicts with football recruiting visits, leaving Rebel supporters to ponder what might have been.

Making the playoffs alone was an accomplishment since the Rebels were 2-5 in district at one point and won their final five games and a play-in just to reach the playoffs.

"It's been a long hard road but it's been the same for everybody at this point," House said. "I'm proud to be a part of it with these guys because they showed a lot of heart. They've been through the ringer."

Meyer had 14 points and seven rebounds for the Rebels. Ben Karam and Jerry DeLaPena each had 18 points for Eastwood while Joe Griffith added 13.

First Reformed Presbyterian Church of Midland

May we introduce ourselves to you? We are a Bible believing Presbyterian Church. In this day and age, this is a major issue for any church, especially a Presbyterian church.

This means that we believe that the Bible is truly the inspired Word of God. It is inspired by God, from beginning to end, from Genesis to Revelation. It is inerrant (without errors) and fully authoritative. We are to study it, come to understand it, and follow it as our guide to life. While we may have creeds, confessions, or statements of faith, these all must conform to the Word of God if they are to be of any real importance.

Do you long for a church that will be true to the Word of God in its fullness? Do you want to experience the truth of God in all of your life and worship? Come and study with us that we may glorify God together.

Jones loves Arizona, leads Tucson Classic

By Mel Reisner
AP Sports Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. — Steve Jones won once this year in Arizona by overpowering the field, and he's halfway to doing it again.

"Anybody that leads a tournament, if you are going to lose it you want to lose it being aggressive," Jones said after reviving memories of his dominance at the Phoenix Open with a 4-under-par 68 Friday that gave him a three-shot lead at the midpoint of the Tucson Chrysler Classic.

The defending U.S. Open champion's four-birdie, no-bogey performance in the second round dropped him to 10-under 134. But he said no one should confuse this event with Phoenix.

"I was 9-under after the first day there, 16-under after two," Jones said. "So 10 after two is six back of that tournament, but if I had putted well, I would have been right up there."

Paul Stankowski shot the best score yet (65), and pulled into contention at 137 along with Kirk Triplett and Brad Bryant. Jeff Maggert, the first-round co-leader with Jones, shot 72 and dropped four shots back.

Stankowski, a first-time winner last week in Hawaii when he beat Jim Furyk and Mike Reid in a playoff, said his come-from-behind victory shows he has toughened up.

"I've been working on my putting," Stankowski said. "I knew it would turn around, and I figured if I hit the ball pretty good, I would shoot some low numbers. So it's not as low as Steve Jones, but I'm getting there."

Justin Leonard, Mike Reid, Clarence Rose and Tom Kite were bunched at 139, with Jerry Kelly, Russ Cochran, Don Pooley, Jim McGovern, Scott Dunlap and Mark Wiebe at 140.

Among 75 players who made the cut at 145 were Phil Mickelson, whose pair of 71s barely qualified him for weekend play in the tournament he won in 1991, 1995 and 1996, and past Tucson champions Andrew Magee (142), Lee Janzen (143) and Robert Gamez (144). Magee had a 72 Friday, Janzen a 71 and Gamez 74.

Long-hitting John Daly's 145 got him into the weekend field, but Curtis Strange, who had the lowest earnings of his 20-year career last year, continued his slide with rounds of 74 and 73.

Last month in Phoenix, Jones set all four daily scoring records, came within one stroke of Mike Souchak's 42-year-old PGA Tour record of 27-under for 72 holes, and beat Jesper Parnevik by 11 shots — the widest victory margin in seven years.

His tie with Maggert on Thursday was as close as he has come this year to giving up the lead in an Arizona tournament.

Minnesota dumps 40-year-old Moon

By Ron Lesko
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Warren Moon came to the Minnesota Vikings in 1994 hoping to win a Super Bowl. He didn't come close, and left Friday simply hoping to find another team willing to give him a chance.

The Vikings released Moon as expected when the 40-year-old quarterback turned down a $500,000 offer to back up Brad Johnson next season. Moon's agent, Leigh Steinberg, said it was an amicable parting, and he expected Moon to sign elsewhere in the next couple of weeks.

"We're pleased that they went ahead and did this now instead of waiting, because now we'll have a much better chance to find a new home," Steinberg said.

Moon had been scheduled to earn $4.3 million in 1997 in the second year of a $15 million, three-year contract. When he refused the $3.8 million pay cut, the Vikings let him go. Moon flew to Minnesota for a physical Friday — he passed, Steinberg said — and then returned to his suburban Houston home.

Houston, where Moon spent his first 10 NFL seasons, is among several teams believed to be interested. Seattle, Tampa Bay and St. Louis also might have interest in Moon.

"Our first priority will be to look for a potential starting job," Steinberg said. "There are not many that are obvious, so our second goal would be to find a job where he could compete. If not even that is available, then we would next look at situations where he could play a backup role."

After Moon failed to get the Oilers into an AFC championship game during his 10 seasons there, he was traded to Minnesota for two mid-round draft picks in what amounted to a money-saving move for the Oilers.

The Vikings hailed Moon's arrival as the piece that would give them a chance to get back to the Super Bowl for the first time since 1976, and they started 7-2 in his first season.

The Vikings lost four of their next seven games, although they clinched the NFC Central title on the final day of the season when backup Sean Salisbury, filling in for an injured Moon, beat San Francisco. Moon returned for the playoffs the following weekend, but he was ineffective and the Chicago Bears shocked the Vikings 35-18 at the Metrodome.

The 1995 season was preceded by a widely publicized fight between Moon and his wife, in which she accused him of beating her near the point of unconsciousness. Moon's domestic troubles lingered over a disappointing 8-8 season, although he still set team records with 33 touchdowns and 4,228 passing yards and played in his eighth consecutive Pro Bowl.

With his wife testifying on his behalf, Moon was acquitted of a misdemeanor assault charge in February 1996. He signed his lucrative contract extension four months later.

But he was injured during the first half of the 1996 season opener, and eventually was replaced by Johnson at midseason as the injury persisted. Moon was healthy enough to play in the final month, but Johnson remained productive and kept Moon on the sidelines.

When Johnson signed a $15.5 million, four-year contract extension during the final week of the regular season, it became clear that Moon's future as the starter in Minnesota was over. Although he was frustrated by the situation, Moon kept his feelings largely to himself rather than stir up a quar-

Sorenstam holds 4-stroke cushion at Hawaiian Open

By Gordon Sakamoto

HONOLULU — Annika Sorenstam took advantage of near-perfect conditions to shoot a 6-under-par 66 and take a four-stroke lead after two rounds of the 54-hole Hawaiian Ladies Open.

At the 36-hole mark, Sorenstam was at 11-under 133 with defending champion Meg Mallon chasing after a 68 put her at 137.

Cathy Johnston-Forbes capped a bogey-free round with a hole-in-one that helped her finish with the day's best score, 66. That put her at 138 with first-round leader Natsuko Noro (73) of Japan and Tracy Kerdyk, who had a 71.

Betsy King and Kelly Robbins, who started the day sharing second place with Sorenstam and Kerdyk, shot 72s and were grouped at 139 with the 1995 tournament winner Barb Whitehead, Pat Hurst (70) and Gail Graham (68).

Another stroke back were LPGA Player of the Year Laura Davies and Cindy Rarick, winner of the tournament 10 years ago, both at 70.

With barely a trace of wind blowing in the morning at the Kapolei Golf Course, Sorenstam, who has already posted one victory on the LPGA Tour this year, started the day two strokes behind Noro.

By the turn at the 6,056-yard course, Sorenstam was in control and then proceeded to run away from the field with four birdies on the back nine.

In her two rounds, she has 12 birdies and only one bogey.

Robbins and Rarick made major runs at Sorenstam on their first nine holes, but ran into bogey problems on the return trip to fall back into the pack. An opening 72 hampered Johnston-Forbes' effort to get closer to Sorenstam.

Nancy Ramsbottom birdied four of the first seven holes to put her at 6-under at one point, but a brace of bogeys on the back nine took her off the leader board.

Woods' father has heart surgery

Bloomberg News

LOS ANGELES — Golfer Tiger Woods's father's condition improved enough following heart bypass surgery Wednesday to allow Woods to play in next week's PGA Tour event in Los Angeles, tour officials said.

Earl Woods, 64, will remain hospitalized until late next week while recovering from the procedure at the UCLA Medical Center.

"He is doing fine and should be transferred out of intensive care later today," said hospital spokeswoman Roxanne Moster.

Tiger Woods, who has won three times in 11 events on the PGA Tour, had until 5 p.m. New York time to commit to the Nissan Open in Los Angeles.

Colbert, 3 others share lead at American Express tourney

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Jim Colbert, the Senior PGA Tour's player of the year the last two seasons, shot a 4-under-par 68 on 68 Friday to join Simon Hobday, Butch Baird and Buddy Allin atop the leaderboard after one round of the American Express Invitational.

One shot back were Jim Albus, Bob Dickson and Hubert Green.

Colbert said it has been tough living up to expectations.

"It's still early, but I think I've been trying to do too much," Colbert said. "I think I'm trying to hit some shots better than I need to."

In four tournaments this year, he has finishes of fourth, seventh, 18th and 19th. For a player who every week charts his standing on the money list, it's far from what he expects from himself.

"I've played pretty good, but I just haven't made any putts," Colbert said.

He made one Friday — from 80 feet — that helped produce a five-birdie, one-bogey round.

"It's hard to make one much longer than that and still be on a green."

Hobday, the 1994 U.S. Senior Open champion, made five birdies and an eagle but also made three bogeys in his round. Hobday had sole position of the lead at 5-under after 16 holes before taking his final bogey on the 17th.

Allin didn't even know he would be in the field. He was preparing to head for the airport as Tuesday's 5 p.m. deadline for non-exempt alternate players neared. Five minutes before the deadline, Allin learned that a player had withdrawn and he was in the field.

"The hardest part is just waiting around," Allin said. "I'm happy with the score. I didn't play that well on the front, but the back was a lot better."

Course record falls in Dunhill tourney

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Retief Goosen of South Africa fired a six-under 66 on Friday to take a one-shot lead after two rounds of the Alfred Dunhill South African PGA golf tournament.

Goosen led a flood of low scorers with veterans such as Nick Price of Zimbabwe and record-setters David Frost of South Africa and Thomas Gogele of Germany right behind.

weather. The cold bothered me at first because it was raining and my hands got numb, but after that I got used to it."

Helms is not new to the Tall City Invitational as he is making his third trip to Midland.

"The greens are always in good condition. This is one of the better tournaments of the year," he said.

In the Maroon Division, San Angelo Lake View leads with a 327 total, followed by Andrews II with 331, Amarillo High II with 340, and El Paso Burges with 340. Midland Lee II finished in a tie for 10th with a 355 score, Midland High II is 14th with 367, and Midland Christian in 19th with 408.

The tournament continues today with the Purple (varsity) Division teeing off at Greentree Country Club and the Maroon (junior varsity and smaller schools) Division at Hogan Park.

Bowe quits Marines after three days of boot camp

By Jeff Shain
Associated Press Writer

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. — Riddick Bowe signed up for three months of boot camp to fulfill his dream of becoming a Marine. He lasted three days.

The man trained to take punches from the toughest fighters in the world couldn't take the regimented lifestyle of boot camp, and left Friday.

"It has to do with a guy who's 29, who's a multimillionaire, who's had control over his life ... coming and going whenever he pleased, losing control," said his manager, Rock Newman. "That was a big culture shock — something very hard for Riddick to deal with."

Bowe reported to Parris Island on Feb. 10, but the first few days of basic training involve mostly paperwork and orientation, said Master Sgt. Chuck Demar. The heavy physical training and marching began three days ago, he said.

"He may have heard the bugles blowing and said, 'Hey — I'm a Marine.' But it's tougher than you think," said Angelo Dundee, who trained Muhammad Ali and Sugar Ray Leonard.

"In sports, there's no harder training athlete than a fighter. In the service, the Marines are considered the best-conditioned guys out there," said Dundee, who was in the Army Air Corps. "But it's a different type of training, a different type of approach. There's no comparison at all."

Bowe won the undisputed heavyweight championship over Evander Holyfield in November 1992. Holyfield won it back a year later. That was Bowe's only defeat against 39 wins, 32 by knockout.

He also won his last two fights, both against Andrew Golota. Bowe was behind on all official score cards, but won after Golota was disqualified for low blows.

Officials at Parris Island tried without success to get Bowe to stay. A recruit can ask to be dismissed at any time, and Demar said Bowe told his drill instructor and battalion commander "he couldn't handle the regimented training lifestyle."

"Riddick said that because of his experiences as heavyweight champion and having everything he wanted, it was a difficult transition to make," said Maj. Rick Long, a base spokesman.

"He spoke to Judy (his wife) late last night," Newman said. "Evidently the decision was made last night."

Bowe, who was picked up by a family member, was neither disappointed nor depressed when he left, Long said. "But he said he has a lot of respect for what recruits go through to become Marines," the officer said.

Bowe announced Jan. 30 he would become part of the Marine Reserves, and was granted age, weight and dependent waivers so he could enlist, the Marine Corps said.

"It's something I always wanted to do before I got too old," he said at the time.

He was trying to do what other boxing stars had done, only in reverse: Gene Tunney, Leon Spinks, Ken Norton and Mike Weaver were Marines before winning the heavyweight championship.

Bowe was to have stayed for three months of basic training, a month of combat training and two months of specialty training in supply; then he would complete three years in the active reserves and five years in the inactive reserves.

At a news conference in Washington, Newman dismissed suggestions the boxer couldn't handle the physical intensity of basic training.

"What I am getting is that this was not the rigors of the physical part of the program," said Newman, who has not talked with Bowe but did speak with Marine Corps officials since the boxer decided on Thursday to leave.

"In the past, the very hard part for Riddick Bowe was not his ring work and training — it was the training that separated him from his wife and kids. That nagged him and pained him a great deal," Newman said.

Long said the other Marines didn't look down on Bowe for quitting.

"The overall sentiment was one of respect for trying," Long said. "From the Marines I talked to, they said he at least gave it a shot. That's more than you can say for some."

Others who have been through Parris Island's punishing boot camp weren't too surprised at Bowe's quick departure.

"When you're a boxer, if someone hits you, you can hit them back," said former Marine Kay Patterson, 66, a South Carolina state senator, who couldn't stop laughing for nearly a minute after hearing the news.

"Down at Parris Island," Patterson said, "you ain't hitting anybody back."

Bjorkman reaches St. Jude semifinal

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jonas Bjorkman finally got tired of playing well and losing, and his change in attitude has paid off.

The 24-year-old Swede, ranked 42nd in the world, beat No. 26 Paul Haarhuis 6-3, 6-4 Friday to reach the semifinals of the St. Jude Classic. He is 13-2 in matches this year.

"I'm mentally strong for the moment," said Bjorkman, who won his only title last month at Auckland, New Zealand.

Against Todd Woodbridge of Australia on Saturday, Bjorkman will play his fourth semifinal match since turning pro in 1991. Woodbridge, seeded eighth, beat unseeded Jeff Tarango 6-3, 6-1 to advance.

Top-seeded Michael Chang played Richey Reneberg on Friday night with the winner meeting No. 4 seed Todd Martin, who beat unseeded Brett Steven 6-4, 7-6 (7-3).

Until this year, Bjorkman had more success in doubles than singles on the ATP Tour. His biggest lessons came in 1996 when his ranking fell to 69th as he struggled through too many close matches without winning.

A sore right knee also slowed him at the end of the year, and he took some time off and received a cortizone shot in the knee. While swimming and staying off the practice court, Bjorkman decided he had had enough.

"I'm not afraid of losing the matches now. I'd rather go for it and give it a chance rather than losing and hoping they make mistakes," he said.

He skipped Sweden's first Davis Cup match and beat Kenneth Carlsen at Auckland last month. He then reached the fourth round of the Australian Open before losing to eventual finalist Carlos Moya in five sets.

The 13th-seeded Bjorkman started quickly against Haarhuis, seeded fifth. He broke Haarhuis in the second game and didn't need his serve-and-volley attack much as he wrapped up the set in 31 minutes.

"He started to play a little bit better in the second set and had a few break points," Bjorkman said. "As soon as I got on top of him with the break, I felt strong and felt like I could win the match."

Haarhuis had a chance to break Bjorkman seven times, but each time Bjorkman responded with a big serve. He broke Haarhuis again to go up 3-2 and wasn't threatened again.

Sex-abuse suspect in Toronto gives up

TORONTO (AP) — A part-time usher at Maple Leaf Gardens surrendered to police Friday, the second suspect in custody in a scandal involving arena employees who allegedly lured boys into sex with free tickets and other enticements.

Police said John Roby, 54, who has worked at the Gardens for 25 years, turned himself in after officers failed to find him at his home. He was charged with sexual assault.

Toronto Maple Leafs president Cliff Fletcher said all employees at the arena will be questioned to determine if they had any further information about alleged abuse that occurred in the 1970s and '80s.

Fletcher spoke after meeting with detectives investigating the scandal, which surfaced Tuesday when police filed sex-abuse charges against former Gardens employee Gordon Stuckless.

An alleged victim, Martin Kruze, 34, went to police last month and said he was sexually abused by Stuckless and other Gardens staff between 1975 and 1982. Several boys were enticed into performing sexual favors in exchange for tickets, sticks and players' autographs, he said.

Texas Rangers' outfielder Rusty Greer practices his bunting during spring training workouts Thursday at the team's facility in Port Charlotte, Fla.

Rangers sign Patterson, Tatis to one-year deals

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — The Texas Rangers signed right-handed pitcher Danny Patterson and infielder Fernando Tatis to one-year contracts Friday.

Patterson, expected to be a set-up man for new closer John Wetteland, was 6-2 with a 1.68 ERA and 10 saves in 44 games at Class AAA Oklahoma City last season. With Texas, he pitched 8 2/3 innings over seven games without an earned run.

Tatis hit .286 with 12 homers and 53 RBIs in 85 games at Class A Charlotte and .500 in two games at Oklahoma City.

Texas now has contracts with 31 of the 39 players on its major-league roster.

Notes: Twelve pitchers each threw 12 minutes of batting practice during the second full workout. ... Rookie outfielder Andrew Vessel fouled a ball off his left foot during the workout. X-rays showed no damage. ... Rookie second baseman Edwin Diaz, who has been in Puerto Rico for the birth of his daughter, is expected to work out for the first time Saturday.

Astros' manager goes on-line

Bloomberg News

After 18 years of telling fans about the Houston Astros as a broadcaster, Larry Dierker is doing the same as manager. Dierker, who was hired in October to manage the team out of the broadcast booth, is sending periodic E-mail to fans who request it through the team's site on the World Wide Web portion of the Internet. About 3,000 people in all 50 states and 20 foreign countries are getting Dierker's notes.

"One of the reasons it's been so popular is that he hasn't held anything back," said Mark Sanders, vice president for creative services for TwinSpin Design, the Houston-based company that administers the Astros' Web site. "He's talked about certain players and what he thinks."

Among those mentioned were Brian Hunter, the outfielder that Houston traded to Detroit after the season. "It was our opinion that Brian was below average in center field and only average as a hitter," Dierker wrote.

He also wrote that the team had been interested in acquiring infielder David Howard and outfielder Michael Tucker of the Kansas City Royals. Instead, the Astros re-signed infielders Bill Spiers and Luis Gonzalez, he wrote.

Dierker also raves about catcher Brad Ausmus, whom the Astros got from Detroit in the Hunter trade.

Leyland demands excellence from Marlins

Associated Press

Although his Florida Marlins are considered a top-notch contender, Jim Leyland wants his players to know that's not good enough.

"We have a lot of good players," he said Friday after telling them what he expected. "The question is, do we have a good team?"

On paper, it would certainly appear that they do. No one knows that better than Leyland, who left Pittsburgh after 11 seasons when his early successes gave way to an austerity program that made the Pirates non-contenders the last several years.

"I'm not a rocket scientist, but I know what the expectations are in South Florida," Leyland said. "I expect us to have a real good year. That's why I came here."

Among the other new faces are hard-hitting free agents Bobby Bonilla and Moises Alou, and pitcher Alex Fernandez.

The Marlins already had some outstanding players in Gary Sheffield, Charles Johnson and Edgar Renteria, and an outstanding 1-2 punch on the mound with Kevin Brown and Al Leiter.

Leyland broke his players into four groups at Melbourne, Fla., hoping his message would be more easily understood by smaller audiences.

"What I say is the most important thing I will say all year," Leyland explained.

John Cangelosi, who spent four years with Leyland in Pittsburgh, said the speech was familiar in one aspect — Leyland didn't mince words.

"The thing with Jimmy is he's straightforward," Cangelosi said.

White Sox

Albert Belle had the distinction of being baseball's highest-paid player for only three months. Although he fell to No. 2 when Barry Bonds got a two-year, $22.9 million extension from the San Francisco Giants, Belle doesn't mind.

The extension gave Bonds an average annual salary of $11.45 million. Belle's five-year, $55 million contract signed last November with Chicago averages $11 million.

"I'm happy for Barry," Belle said. "You look at his situation. He really didn't have the kind of people you wanted behind him to protect him in the lineup. He still put up the big numbers."

Phillies

Second baseman Mickey Morandini became the Philadelphia's first spring training casualty when a ball broke his nose.

AP Laserphoto

New Florida Marlins' manager Jim Leyland hits fungoes at the Marlins spring practice facility in Melbourne, Fla.

Morandini was leaning on the aluminum framing of a batting cage watching when a foul tip off Mike Lieberthal's bat went straight back into the mesh at the back of the cage.

"It's a shame, but now they'll fix the screen," manager Terry Francona joked. "I know Mickey's not going to be happy tonight, but he'll be OK."

Cardinals

The most talked-about shoulder in the St. Louis camp doesn't belong to a pitcher.

Center fielder Ray Lankford is shagging flies and participating in drills, but gently tossing the ball underhand.

"I'm going to play it careful," Lankford said. "I'm just going to work hard on my conditioning to make sure I'm in good shape by the time I leave camp and let the arm work gradually into place."

Lankford will stay behind for extended spring training when the Cardinals go north for the season opener April 1, and is on schedule to be activated by May 1.

Lankford injured his shoulder diving for a ball during the last weekend of last season.

Yankees

Pitcher David Wells worked out after missing four days because of gout. The left-hander threw on a bullpen mound for about 10 minutes.

"I was very pleased with that I saw," Yankees pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre said. "He threw the ball well and had no signs of anything bothering him. He didn't favor the foot at all."

"My arm feels good," Wells said. "It felt good throwing."

Gout is an inflammation of the joints, caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood.

Wells, 11-14 with a 5.14 ERA last year with Baltimore, joined the Yankees after signing a $13.5 million, three-year contract.

Mets

Bill Pulsipher might be the only one at the Mets camp who thinks he'll be ready to pitch by opening day.

Pulsipher, who tore an elbow ligament during a spring training game against Montreal last year, threw to hitters for the first time this spring.

At times wild, he buzzed one pitch near Lance Johnson's chin.

"I threw a fastball for a strike and felt something throbbing and pulsating — pardon the pun," Pulsipher said. "I threw a fastball for strike two and a breaking ball for strike three — probably the best curve I threw all spring."

Pulsipher was placed on the disabled list last March 26 and had surgery April 17.

Cubs

Sammy Sosa was happy and healthy after the first serious workout since breaking his hand last August.

But Sosa, who in the past has talked of a 40-40 or 50-50 season, dismissed the numbers and said his only goals are to play all season and win a title.

"If I play all year the numbers will take care of themselves," he said. "I don't want to get into all that numbers stuff anymore. It gets you in trouble."

Royals

Mitch Williams threw eight minutes of batting practice for the Kansas City Royals on Friday and, contrary to his reputation, showed good control.

Williams, known as "Wild Thing" for his tendency to pitch into trouble while starring for the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies, is one of six non-roster left-handers vying for a job in the Royals bullpen.

"He looked real smooth and easy," said manager Bob Boone. "He was putting the ball where he wanted to."

Phillips doesn't mind switching to right field

By Rick Gano
AP Sports Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. — Tony Phillips is taking his glove and crossing the outfield. He's moving from left to right so Albert Belle can play a familiar position for the Chicago White Sox.

"On face value, I knew when they signed Albert he'd play left field," said Phillips, who led the AL with 125 walks last season and also scored 119 runs.

Phillips, who turns 38 in April, has played every infield and outfield position during his career and established himself as one baseball's most capable leadoff hitters.

But playing right field on a daily basis will be a challenge, especially with the angles and the long throws required to third base.

"It doesn't matter," Phillips said. "A fly ball is a fly ball. You have a different angle. You got to go to the line and pivot a different way. It's not a big deal, not to me. It will take a little adjustment. I've become successful because I've been able to play different positions and get the job done."

Some speculate Phillips may not be around when the White Sox break camp because the team has a glut of outfielders.

Veteran Dave Martinez, who also can play all three outfield spots and first, is back. And young players such as Lyle Mouton and Mike Cameron need playing time. There's also Darren Lewis, one of the game's top defensive center fielders but struggling at the plate.

"That's something I don't really think about right now," Phillips said. "I'm in spring training and as far as I'm concerned I'm going to be here."

Manager Terry Bevington agrees.

"Tony Phillips is our right fielder," Bevington said. "I firmly believe Tony will play well in right. I think he will do anywhere from an above average to good job. I don't think we can just measure that in spring training. As well as he played during the season, he didn't have a good spring in left last year; so we have to look a little deeper than spring training."

Dr. Burzynski skirted law to make millions, prosecutors tell jurors

HOUSTON (AP) — Driven by greed and empowered by loopholes of his own making, Dr. Stanislaw Burzynski dodged scientific scrutiny for years so he could continue to profit from terminally ill cancer patients, federal prosecutors said Friday.

"Dr. Burzynski has made it clear he's not going to submit to clinical trials ... that will prove or debunk antineoplastons," assistant U.S. attorney Amy Lecocq told jurors in closing arguments. "He prefers to wholesale use his unapproved treatment for money."

Lawyers for the 54-year-old physician countered that no laws were broken in his work to bring the unapproved treatment to those who say they wouldn't be alive without it.

"Look around," bellowed defense attorney Dan Cogdell, pointing at about 35 patients in the courtroom as spectators. "Does that look like a lynching mob to you? Does that look like people who have been victimized?"

The six-week trial of Burzynski on 75 counts of contempt, mail fraud and violating Food and Drug Administration regulations culminates a battle between federal officials and the Polish-born physician that began as soon as he set up shop in 1977.

Jurors, who were to begin deliberations Friday, must determine if Burzynski's business practices violated two federal court orders, whether he illegally dispensed an unapproved treatment to patients nationwide and if he deliberately bilked insurance carriers by submitting claims for treatment he did not do.

If convicted, Burzynski faces up to 290 years in prison.

Defense attorneys paint the trial as a decision over whether patients have the right to choose their own medical treatment.

"You're going to decide how far the government gets to go," said Rick Jaffe, who defends Burzynski Research Institute, the doctor's Houston-area clinic. "It basically affects your rights just as much."

The doctor, who claims no specialty in cancer, contends antineoplastons, a compound found in human urine, serve as biochemical switches that "turn off" cancer genes by interrupting signals for cells to multiply.

Federal prosecutors say the doctor made more than $40 million between 1988 and 1994. They reminded jurors that Burzynski ignored two court orders — in 1983 and 1984 — which expressly forbade him from introducing his unconventional treatment into interstate commerce.

"This is the law when Dr. Burzynski started this in the 1970s," assistant U.S. attorney George Tallichet said. "For Dr. Burzynski to contend otherwise, I will submit, is an act of willful blindness."

Burzynski carefully skirted the orders, prosecutors said, by having dying patients from across the country come pick up the treatment — available in capsules or intravenous drip — at his Stafford, Texas clinic, just south of Houston.

He's accused of bilking insurance companies by claiming to perform services that the patients did themselves after taking home the treatment.

"He knew he wasn't providing the services listed on the form," Lecocq said. "It's phony baloney."

She recapped testimony by Burzynksi's staff and patients that she said showed it was nothing more than a chemical factory, not a medical clinic. Insurance claims were submitted with the wrong codes, she said, in an attempt to receive money for services not provided to the patients.

"They stayed only long enough to get the antineoplastons and to go home," she said. "Dr. Burzynski himself had very little contact with the patients."

But Cogdell thrashed prosecutors' contentions.

"This has been a billing dispute," Cogdell sneered. "About whether we have used the right darn codes."

Jaffe said the law is murky when it came to what Burzynski could and could not do.

"What we have here, to put it mildly, is some sort of confusion," he said.

MARY WORTH

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1997

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Innovative methods will produce the best results. If revising your professional goals, be daring. Family life will take on new significance this coming June. Rejuvenating a marriage should be a top priority. An exciting business trend develops in late summer. Be decisive when others vacillate. Tough negotiations lead to a lucrative contract. Go that extra mile to establish a reputation for reliability. Potential customers want someone they can depend on at all times.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: President George Washington, actress Drew Barrymore, basketball great Julius "Dr. J" Erving, golfer Amy Alcott.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Let your emotions get the better of you and you could say something you will regret later. Encouraging others to speak their mind has certain advantages.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It is sometimes unwise to shield people from disappointment. Let your loved ones take care of their own affairs while you concentrate on developing your special talents.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your decision to break with tradition may upset someone. You do not need to explain yourself if you have not done anything wrong. In time, others will come to see the wisdom of your choice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A problem shared is a problem halved. A sympathetic listener will give you a completely different perspective. Friends urge you not to repeat an earlier mistake.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may feel torn between staying home and going to a party. An attractive stranger adds glamour to the social scene. You will be at your charismatic best this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Recent worries subside. A self-disciplined approach will help you handle a temporary setback. Seek the company of longtime pals. A spur-of-the-moment date could be a fantastic success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Guard against letting money slip through your fingers. Down-to-earth advice helps you stay within your budget. You obtain the information you need to launch a promising venture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A fun day lies ahead. Let the child in you come out and play! Friends applaud your efforts to help someone in need. Avoid lending money you really cannot afford to lose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A meaningful talk will help you bridge a generation gap. Offer advice only if asked. You and a neighbor could decide to start a business. Keep things simple.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your know-how wins you new respect today. Proceed with your long-range plans for romance. A loved one's silence may have you puzzled. Ask questions only if you want to hear the truth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Neither love nor creativity can be rushed. Socializing with VIPs may help your goals, but only if you are subtle. Trust your strong inner voice where finances are concerned.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The rumors you hear about a person or business could be untrue. Instead of taking unnecessary risks, stick with a sure thing. Romance receives a welcome boost.

PEOPLE

Film group honors Martin Scorsese with lifetime achievement award

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Martin Scorsese, who gave up his aspirations for the priesthood to make movies, was honored by the American Film Institute with a lifetime achievement award.

"I have the best job in the world; it's not really work," the director of such films as "Raging Bull," "Goodfellas," "Taxi Driver," and "Mean Streets" said in his acceptance speech Thursday.

"Those who know him know that he instead is the high priest of film," Robert De Niro, one of Scorsese's most-used actors, said during the ceremony.

Joe Pesci, who won a supporting actor Oscar for "Goodfellas," told of cracking his ribs in violent scenes in "Raging Bull" and "Casino." He added, "I'd break a rib for him any time."

CRANFORD, N.J. — Lawrence Taylor knew what it was like to be in control on the football field. Drugs made him lose that leverage off the field.

"My name is Lawrence Taylor and I am an addict," the retired New York Giants linebacker told nearly 900 students and faculty at Cranford High School on Thursday.

Lawrence Taylor speaks to students about his drug problem.

Taylor's appearance was part of an agreement he made with prosecutors after his arrest last May in Myrtle Beach, S.C., for trying to buy crack cocaine from an undercover police officer. He enrolled in a pretrial intervention program that requires him to perform 60 hours of community service, undergo drug counseling and submit to random drug testing.

Taylor, 38, who led the Giants to two Super Bowl titles, said he turned to drugs after he started playing pro ball and soon, drugs were making his decisions for him.

"It's a painful thing to go through," he said. "I wouldn't wish it on my enemies. It's very difficult to get involved in drugs and have no negative consequences."

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Bill Cosby will make his first visit to South Africa next month to help raise money for destitute former political prisoners.

The entertainer, a vocal opponent of apartheid, will also raise money for a planned museum at Robben Island prison, President Nelson Mandela's office announced Friday. Mandela spent 18 of his 27 years at Robben Island as a prisoner of the former white regime.

One of the fund-raising events will be held on the island, which recently reopened as a national monument.

In Ohio for the Dayton Urban League's 50th birthday celebration Thursday, Cosby thanked those who have offered comfort to his family since his son, Ennis, was shot to death last month in Los Angeles. There have been no arrests.

"The Cosby family is fine. The Cosbys pray every day," he said.

LOS ANGELES — So what if Oscar didn't like her in "Evita"? Madonna thinks political activism fits her quite nicely.

Madonna to be in upcoming film about Tina Modotti.

She signed with Mick Jagger's Jagged Films to star opposite Gabriel Byrne in an upcoming film about Tina Modotti, who gained some measure of fame for her photography and activism in the 1930s.

"I've always been intrigued by the life of Tina Modotti. She was an incredible woman and as an actress, it is a great role for me to play," Madonna said in a statement Thursday.

The Italian-born Modotti came to the United States in 1913 and later had a brief career as an actress in Hollywood silent films. She died mysteriously in 1942 at age 45.

LOS ANGELES — Ken Wahl has a date in court to answer charges that he roughed up a countertop at the Beverly Hills Plaza Hotel when a bartender refused to serve him alcohol.

Wahl, best known for his starring role in the television series "Wiseguy," had his attorney enter a plea of innocent Thursday.

Trial was set for March 28 on misdemeanor charges of making terrorist threats, assault with a deadly weapon, brandishing a knife and vandalism. The 40-year-old actor was accused by police of repeatedly stabbing the countertop with a 6-inch hunting knife in December.

Wahl has a history of alcohol-related encounters with the law, including a drunken driving charge last May. He recently said he drinks to kill the pain caused by a 1992 motorcycle crash.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Series continues

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave., will be focusing on "The Lutheran Connection" during its series of Lenten Soup Suppers.

Featured speaker for the Wednesday event will be the Rev. Canon David Veal, administrative assistant to Bishop Sam Hulsey of the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

According to the Rev. Jon Stasney, the topic was selected because the Episcopal Church and Evangelical Lutheran Church in America are moving toward a historic decision on full communion this year. The Episcopal General Convention and the Lutheran general Assembly will consider the "Concordat of Agreement" this summer.

The concordat will lead to full communion, including the recognition, reconciliation and the interchangeability of each other's ordained ministers, said Stasney.

For the remaining Lenten season, speakers will be John Caldwell, a San Angelo attorney and member of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, March 5; and Skip Hedgpeth, a Lutheran counselor in Midland and a teacher with Community Bible Study, March 12.

A soup supper will be served from 6 to 6:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall. The speaker is scheduled from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. A nursery will be provided for young children, and room will be available for homework by older children.

The final speaker will be the Lutheran Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Mark Herbener. His talk will be at a joint worship service at 7 p.m. at Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave. Congregations will be coming from St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, The Episcopal Church of the Holy trinity, Midland Lutheran Church and Hope Lutheran Church. A catered meal will precede the talk at 6 p.m. There will be a small charge.

The public is invited to these Lenten observances. For more information call the church office, 694-8856.

Also, the church's women's group is sponsoring a "Recycled Treasures Sale" from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 1.

Church members have cleaned their closets and are recycling their old treasures. Included in the sale is furniture, household items, dishes, clothes, suitcases, bicycles, serving cart, jewelry and linens.

In addition, the sale will feature fresh baked goods in the Parish Hall.

Proceeds raised by the sale will go to fund ECW outreach projects, such as Dress A Live Doll and Community Children's Clinic.

For more information call Renee Rogers, ECW president, 699-5857.

Book fair set

In conjunction with National Lutheran Schools Week, scheduled for March 2-9, Grace Lutheran Church's Early Childhood Program will be holding a Christian book fair.

The fair is a division of Concordia Publishing House in St. Louis and includes titles for all ages. The books can be viewed Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the church library, 3000 W. Golf Course Road.

For more information call 694-3063.

Missionaries return

Glen Thomas Hoelscher, the 21-year-old son of David and Doris Hoelscher of St. Lawrence, recently returned to the area from Tacoma, Wash., after completing a two-year voluntary mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Hoelscher was a 1993 graduate of Garden City High School. Before his mission, he attended an auto diesel trade school in Phoenix, Ariz., for a year. He will return to family farming activities in St. Lawrence before deciding on his future plans.

Family and friends are invited to attend the 9 a.m. services Sunday at the church, 2101 Tarleton, Midland. Hoelscher will report on his two years of service in the Tacoma Washington Mission.

Prayer day set

The 110th annual World Day of Prayer, an international, ecumenical worship service, will be celebrated March 7.

Millions of people around the world will join together on this day for "informed prayer and prayerful action."

The local observance will be held at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, at 10:30 a.m. March 7. An executive board meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. and a covered-dish dinner will follow the service.

World Day of Prayer was established in Korea in 1922.

Additional resource materials and background information on the 1997 World Day of Prayer may be obtained from Church Women United, 475 Riverside Drive, Room 812, New York, NY 10115, or by calling 1-800-CWU-5551.

Concerts underway

The annual Lenten Luncheon Concert Series of First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., is underway.

The series consists of six weekly half-hour concerts scheduled from 12:05 to 12:35 p.m. Wednesdays. Lunch is available in Lynn Hall for $4 per person a half hour before and after each concert. The concerts are free and open to the public. Child care is available with advance reservation.

The next concert will be given Wednesday by "Legend," the choral ensemble from Midland High School. This group is directed by Kevin Lane, head of the Choral Department at Midland High.

Future performers include Lee High School String Ensemble, March 5; Sharon Hickox, percussion, and Reba McHaney, harp, March 12; Shari Santorelli, piano, and Michael Santorelli, trumpet, March 19; and Lee High School Chamber Ensemble, March 26.

For more information call the church office, 684-7821.

Missionaries to serve

RICHMOND, VA. — The Rev. William E "Bill" Johnson and Julie A. Gallagher Johnson, a former Midlander, have joined the nearly 4,200 Southern Baptist Foreign Mission board workers in 126 countries.

Mrs. Johnson was born in Monahans and raised in Midland. Her home church is Midland's Crestview Baptist Church. She received her bachelor of science degree from Baylor University, and served in Zimbabwe through the Foreign Mission Board's journeyman option, a two-year program for college students.

Born and reared in Tulsa, Okla., Johnson received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Oklahoma, Norman; and his Master of Divinity degree from Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Mill Valley, Calif. He also attended Tulsa Junior College.

The Johnsons and their daughter, Karis Melody, will go to the Foreign Mission Board's training center in Rockville, Va., in April for an eight-week orientation. The Johnsons will live in Mali, where they recently served the Foreign Mission Board's ernational Service Corps.

Prayer day held

St. Ann's Annual Day of Prayer sponsored by St. Ann's Altar Society will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday.

Registration begins at 8:45 a.m. in the church parlor. The Rev. John Collet, OMI, director of Spiritual Formation at Holy Trinity Seminary in Irving, will be the presenter. His talk is entitled "Jesus Christ, the Incarnate Word of God."

Those attending are asked to bring a sack lunch. Drinks will be served. The nursery will be available by appointment only.

Sermons planned

The Rev. Steve Holsten is preaching a series of sermons entitled "Crossroads" at St. Mark's United Methodist Church.

This series highlights the interaction of individuals whose paths have crossed Christ's. The sermons will be delivered in the first person as if these individuals had a chance to speak directly to the congregation. The series features Barabbas on Sunday, the Centurion on March 2, the Thief on March 9, Thomas on March 16 and Judas on March 23.

Also, Wednesday St. Mark's UMC will enjoy the second of weekly suppers to be held in the Fellowship Hall. These dinners will be a time of fellowship beginning at 6 p.m. Cost is $2 per person and $5 per family. The United Methodist Women is catering the first month's meals. Choir and handbell members will be served first to ensure their reaching practice on time.

Services planned

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., will continue its Lenten observance with services at 7 p.m. Wednesdays.

Before the service, a meal will be served beginning at 6 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall. "With Many Crowns" is the theme for the Lenten series this year.

The crowns of Jesus and the crowns of those who sought to thwart him will be the focus for the journey that began on Ash Wednesday and leads to Easter.

Lenten services

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., will continue Lenten services Wednesdays through Good Friday, March 28.

The services will run from 7 to 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. David Herman leading the service. The theme for the services emphasizes how Christ gave himself to save humanity from sin and to offer everlasting life.

The church's interim pastor, the Rev. E.D. Rowley, invites the public to attend. Sunday services are at 9:20 a.m. for Sunday School and 10:30 a.m. for worship.

Study group set

ODESSA — Unity Church of West Texas is presenting a six-month study group on Sundays.

The group, being taught by Pamela Davis, is entitled "Introduction to Unity" and is a synoptic study of the teachings of Unity. Its objective is "To learn to apply the teachings of Jesus as practical rules for living effectively in the light of modern day experience."

The Study Group meets from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. each Sunday, followed by church service at 11 a.m. Unity is a non-denominational religious movement.

For more information call the church, 1-915-337-7851.

Bring a friend

ODESSA — Sunday is "Bring a Friend Day" at Redeemer Lutheran Church of Joy, 824 E. 18th St.

The Rev. Dean Kelm, pastor, will present the message, "Gone Fishing Lately?" in the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services. Special music and singing presentations by "Fortress" and "determined" are planned.

Members and guests will be recognized with "appropriate gifts" during the worship hour, said a release from the church.

Click & Clack Talk Cars

BY TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI "COOLANT, MAN"

Dear Tom and Ray:

A milk man I had a talk with claims that with these late-model cars, the antifreeze has to be changed every two years. I have a '94 Buick Century. A mechanic at the GM plant I retired from says the only thing that goes in these antifreezes is the rust inhibitor. Who's right, and how often should I change my coolant?— Joe

TOM: They're both right, Joe. The "anti-freezing" and "anti-boiling" properties of the coolant should last forever. But there are two reasons to change the stuff more often than that.

RAY: One is that the rust inhibitors do break down. Some people just add some inhibitor to the radiator every couple of years and consider the matter forgotten, but they're missing the second reason why it's important to change the coolant.

TOM: There's junk that collects in the cooling system. There are pieces of crud and little flakes of rust that float around and can eventually clog up the tiny passages in the radiator, heater core and cylinder head. And fixing those things is very expensive compared to changing the coolant.

RAY: So if you really wanted to be economical, you could drain out the coolant, filter it (we found that running it through a loaf of Wonder Bread works best), and add some new rust inhibitor. Then, theoretically, you could then put it back in the engine.

TOM: And if you own an 18wheeler that uses 100 gallons of coolant, or you're doing this on a large scale and selling the stuff (as some companies do), that might make economic sense. But for an individual car that uses only a couple of gallons of coolant, it's hardly worth the trouble.

RAY: So our advice is to drain the coolant every two years or so. And if you happen to have a can of rust inhibitor and an extra loaf of Wonder Bread lying around, you can go ahead and reconstitute the stuff yourself. But most people find it easier to just add new coolant.

Dear Tom and Ray:

I have a 1986 Subaru GL station wagon with 135,000 miles. There is not a dealer around and local mechanics can't answer this question: After about 15 minutes of operation, the ECS light comes on. I assume this indicates a scheduled adjustment or part replacement. The car runs fine, but the light drives me nuts. Can you help?— Paul

RAY: ECS ... Iet's see. I think that means "Engine to Conk-out Soon," Paul.

TOM: Actually, ECS is Subaru's "Check Engine" light. It means the car's computer has stored a trouble code.

RAY: Underneath the dashboard, right above your knees, is the computer. If you remove the plastic panel and turn the key on, you'll see the light on the computer flashing the code. For instance, you may see three long flashes followed by four short flashes, which would be code 34. Then you can call a Subaru dealer and ask them what that code is for.

TOM: And they'll probably tell you it's the EGR solenoid, which is what it is on 98.576 percent of all Subarus we work on.

RAY: You can confirm this diagnosis by asking the dealer is he has any EGR solenoids in stock. And when he tells you he has 800 of them, you'll know its a common problem.

1997 BUICK RIVIERA enters year with new standard equipment

FLINT, Mich. — The distinctively styled Riviera, Buick's personal luxury coupe,enters the 1997 model year with new standard equipment and improvements in its ride and handling, safety features, comfort and convenience, and transmission.

Riviera appeals to customers "seeking expressive design and confident performance, as well as tasteful luxury," said Riviera Brand Manager Michael G. Wright. "It's an American design masterpiece and also a complete driving experience."

Known for its structural strength in addition to its styling, Riviera is powered by the 205-horsepower 3800 Series II V-6. Optional is the 240-hp supercharged 3800 Series II V-6.

Both 3.8-liter powerplants were rated among the "Ten Best Engines of 1996" by Ward's Auto World magazine. Both are linked to new electronically controlled four speed automatic transmissions.

The new standard transmission for Riviera, packaged with the naturally aspirated 3800 Series II, is the 4T65E, with the new electronically controlled converter clutch, resulting in even smoother shifting than the previous transmission, and improved durability.

The supercharged Series II is linked to the 4T65E HD (for heavy duty) automatic transmission, also with new electronic controls. It provides a heavy duty gear set and larger shafts and pinions to accommodate the higher torque of the supercharged engine.

Projected fuel economy is 19 miles per gallon city and 28 mpg highway for the naturally aspirated 3800 Series II and 18/27 for the supercharged engine.

Riviera's fully independent suspension is re-tuned for a tighter, smoother and more responsive ride. It features revalved MacPherson struts in front. In the rear, the semi trailing-arm suspension and its struts have tuning refinements for improved ride character and reduced body roll. Automatic air shocks are utilized for standard-equipment load leveling

STRUCTURE AND SAFETY

Riviera was praised in '95 when its all-new design was introduced. The coupe's strong body structure contributes to comfort as well as safety. The rigid design minimizes road-induced vibrations transmitted to passengers, so the car always feels quiet, solid and secure. Crush zones are engineered to progressively absorb impacts and dissipate the energy.

Riviera features driver and front passenger air bags, and dual automatic front and single-point rear-seat ComforTemp air conditioning are standard equipment. Programmable automatic door locks are now standard on all Rivieras. Improved door systems and door trim revisions meet dynamic side impact requirements.

RIDE AND HANDLING

Riviera's fully independent suspension is re-tuned for a tighter, smoother and more responsive ride. It features revalved MacPherson struts in front. In the rear, the semi trailing-arm suspension and its struts have tuning refinements for improved ride character and reduced body roll. Automatic air shocks are utilized for standard-equipment load leveling

Control arms, knuckles and related hardware are now all aluminum, resulting in a slight reduction in unsprung mass.

Riviera's magnetic variable-assist power steering may be set by a dealer for the degree of effort the customer wants. The system is designed to provide greater power assist at lower speeds for easier maneuverability and less assist at high speeds for more precise control. The system has been retuned for 1997 to have a slightly higher assist at highway speeds and improved on-center feel.

Ride and handling are enhanced by the rigid design, which permits more sophisticated suspension tuning. And with less body flex, squeaks and rattles are eliminated.

FEATURES

Personal Choice, a popular package of programmable features, is enhanced for '97 with standard memory door locks. Personal Choice allows the owner to program each of two remote keyless entry fobs with different personal settings, including which doors unlock remotely and when, the nature of security feedback with engaging remote locking (horn chirp, lights flashing, both or neither), and perimeter lighting.

The optional Personal Choice feature available for '97 is memory power seats. When it's specified, it includes automatic parallel parking assistance via the passenger-side outside rear-view mirror, which pivots down for a view of the car's proximity to the curb when the car is in Reverse. Each programmable keyless entry fob can remember seat and mirror settings when that feature is installed.

Another package of electronic features is called Convenience Plus. Among new features in this package for '97 are a flash-to-pass function in the indicator stalk, PASS-Key II passive theft-deterrent system, daytime running lamps, retained accessory power and an auxiliary power outlet.

Other Convenience Plus features are electronic reminder tones for key-in-ignition and headlamps, turn-signal and parking brake on; delayed entry and exit lighting with gradual "theater dimming," battery rundown protection, lockout protection and delayed locking.

Riviera's available Prestige Package includes these popular features: cornering lamps, electrochromic auto-dimming inside and driver outside rear-view mirrors, lighted driver vanity mirror, driver's seat power lumbar adjustment, remote radio and temperature controls for the standard leather-covered steering wheel, accent striping, theft-deterrent system, fullrange traction control, and a three-function universal transmitter programmable for garage door openers and other remotely triggered devices.

For additional safety and assured, unobstructed rear view at all times, the standard rear defogger grid now operates continuously or until shut off when the vehicle is moving faster than 30 mph. The defog function continues to time-out after 10 minutes when the vehicle is traveling below 30 mph.

Included on a long list of standard equipment are composite tungsten-halogen headlamps featuring a new flash-to-pass function, PASS-Key II passive theft deterrent, daytime running lights, retained accessory power and an auxiliary power outlet.

EXTERIOR

"Expressive styling is a given on Riviera, but we have taken care of the details too," said Wright. A new design for Riviera's door handles improves their operation without changing their appearance. The "lift bar" handle has been recontoured underneath for a better grip of the handle.

Protective body-color side moldings and body-color outside rear-view mirrors are standard equipment. The slide-in license plate holder is convenient to use and requires no tools. Solar-Ray glass reduces interior heat build-up from solar load, and because it's flushmounted, contributes to lower wind noise.

Standard blackwall P225/60R16 tires are mounted to 16-inch aluminum wheels. A ch. ome-plated 16-inch wheel in a specific design is available. Supercharged Rivieras are equipped with their own specific 16-inch aluminum wheels.

INTERIOR

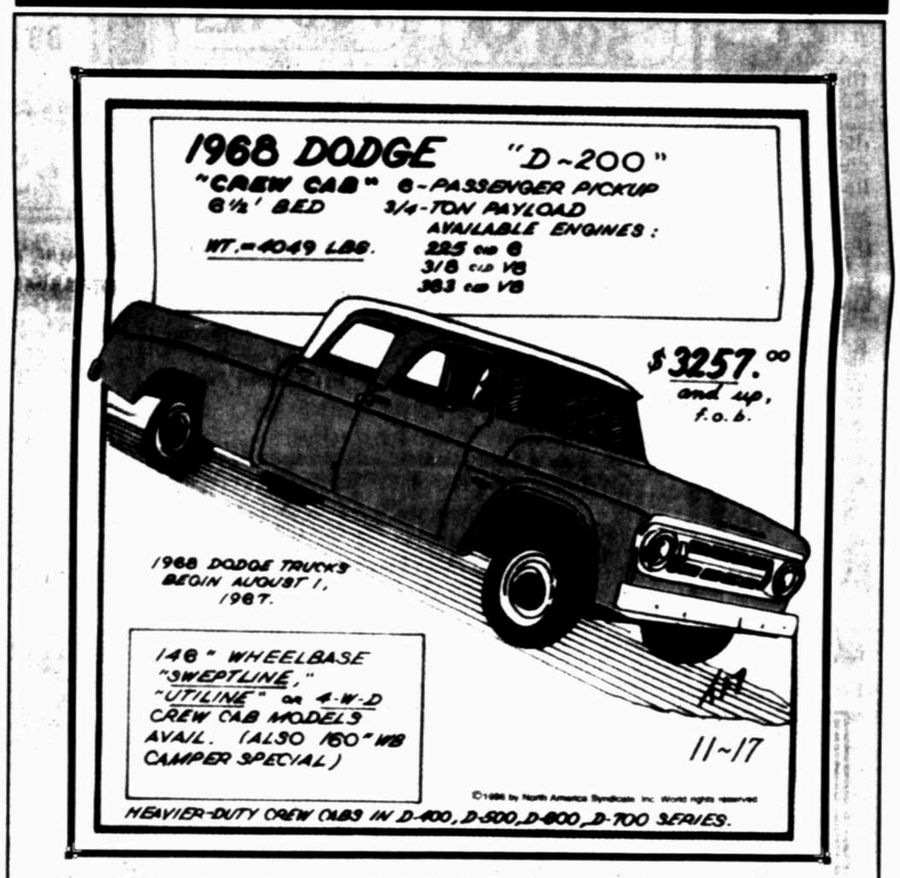
A standard complement of instruments includes tachometer, speedometer, fuel and engine temperature gauges. Indicators are provided to warn of low oil pressure, low voltage, and low levels of fuel, oil, coolant and even washer fluid. Genuine wood accents adorn the instrument panel and console.

Ergonomics are improved through a redesigned end-release seat belt buckle. The release button is relocated from the face of the buckle to the top for easier use.

Riviera's standard dual-playback CD/cassette/AM/FM radio head is now equipped with a larger microprocessor, doubling available memory from 16K to 32K. This additional computing capacity permits the addition of a new dealer-installed option for a 12-disc compact disc changer in the trunk. Buick's 6-speaker Concert Sound III system and a power antenna are standard.

Riviera's use of Wyndham Cloth for a new headliner and garnish trim application provides a warmer ambiance to the comfortable interior. Standard three-across front seating is provided by an attractive cloth reclining 55/45 split bench with 6-way power adjuster for driver and passenger. Leather is available for these seats. The most popular seat options provide two heated, leather-covered bucket seats with 6-way power controls, power recliners and operating console.

Included on a long list of standard equipment are composite tungsten-halogen headlamps featuring a new flash-to-pass function, PASS-Key II passive theft deterrent, daytime running lights, retained accessory power and an auxiliary power outlet.



1968 DODGE "CREW CAB"

ROOM FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Dodge's highly practical four-door "Crew Cab" pickup was introduced during 1962 and was ideal not only for hauling work crews, but also for families who needed space to safely haul their kids inside their pickup truck.

Prior to the Dodge Crew Cab, Volkswagen offered a "Kombi" and International a "Travelette" fourdoor pickup. Why so few had offered pickups with back seats years before is a mystery because even "sleeper cabs" (with bunk space in back) were available, though rare, in the late 1920s.

But other truck manufacturers soon picked up on the crew cab idea, and if not with four-door pickups, at least with pickup cabs including a back seat. Pickup bed (load) space did not need to be sacrificed if the wheelbase was extended.

In 1968, Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge truck division featured a wide variety of pickups, trucks and vans, and the sales catalog proclaimed, "From compacts to diesel power, Dodge gives you more truck per buck." There were the A-100 compact pickups and vans; the longer A-108 (108-inch wheelbase) van; the Sportsman passenger van; standard pickup; "Adventurer" sports pickup, and an impressively wide array of both gasoline and diesel-powered medium and heavy-duty trucks and trailerpulling truck tractors.

Dodge even supplied units for camper conversions and motor homes as they grew in popularity during the '60s.

For many years in Canada, Dodge trucks were sold under the "Fargo" name, and any Fargo truck is now a "find" for collectors, especially south of the Canadian border!

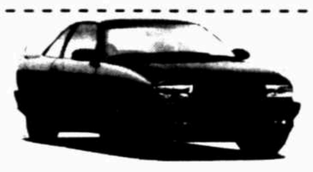
All Wheel Drive

$1,000 Cash Back

SmartTrak's major components are full-time all-wheel drive, a locking rear differential and 4-wheel anti-lock disc brakes (ABS). Under normal driving conditions, SmartTrak delivers engine power to all four wheels - 35 percent to the front wheels and 65 percent to the rear. But if the front or rear tires begin to slip, the viscous clutch automatically "senses" the slippage and redirects more power to the wheels with the most grip, giving you optimum traction in all kinds of conditions.



'97 OLDS ACHIEVA 2-DR.

All New

'97 OLDS CUTLASS 4-DR.

V-6 is standard equipment. There are so many new features such as: the engine coolant is good for up to 5 years or 150,000 miles, after 20 minutes courtesy lights automatically turn off. All new exterior & interior and the best part - IT'S AFFORDABLE.

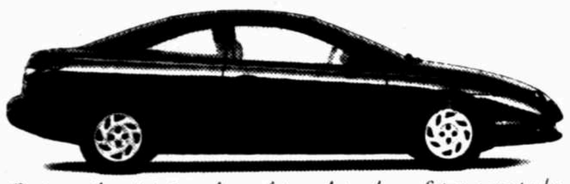
"I talked a friend into buying one and he's still a friend."

When you can count among your best salespeople, people who don't even work for you, then you know you've got a pretty special thing going. Such is the case with Saturn. There are countless stories out there of Saturn owners recommending cars to friends, neighbors and family members; of customers who volunteer to talk at auto shows and civic groups. Are these people nuts? No, they're all just very, very satisfied, that's all. Hope to see you soon.



Great gas mileage is just one of many features that make any Saturn a smart value. EPA-estimated mpg for this new 1997 Saturn SC1 with manual transmission is 28 for the city and 40 for the highway. Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price includes retailer preparation and transportation. Tax, license, options and state-required equipment additional. Each retail facility is responsible for setting its own selling price, which may differ from the price suggested above. ©1996 Saturn Corporation.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Permian Basin Planning Commission will host the Organizational Meeting for the 1997 Texas Community Development Program (TDCP). The meeting will be held on Wednesday, February, 1997 at 9:30 a.m., in the conference room of the Planning Commission offices located at 2910 LaForce Boulevard, Midland International Airport, Midland, Texas. The purpose of this meeting is to develop the review procedures and scoring criteria for the 1997 and the 1998 Texas Community Development Program, Community Development Fund. All seventeen Permian Basin counties and all non-metropolitan cities are eligible applicants for this program that has provided over $20,000,000 to Permian Basin cities and counties since 1983. Water system improvements, waste water system improvements, housing rehabilitation and drainage improvements are the types of projects that have been fund in the past. The Regional Review Committee must determine regional priorities for the 1997 and 1998 programs and local participation in this process is encouraged. There will not be an organizational meeting or an application process in 1998 for the Community Development Fund.

Interested persons should contact Jerry Tschauner at (915)563-1061 for additional information.

Words Can Hurt

At times , we all may say thing we probably shouldn't; as the saying goes, "our mouth is moving before our mind is in gear". Sometimes we may say hurtful things to others realizing it, either because w thinking or because we are unaware that what we say may hurt someone. Some people believe it's perfectly all right to tell someone that they are getting fat, or that they are going bald. They may even believe that they are doing the persor a favor; as if one doesn't realize when they have gained weight or when they are starting to lose their hair. A friend of mine used to have plaque on his desk that offered this advice: ""Before I speak, its it true, is it kind, is it necessary?" The little rhyme that well all knew as children, "sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never harm me," is just not true. Words can be hurtful, and the Bible tells us that we will be held accountable for every careless word we speak.

Kind words bring life, but cruel words crush your spirit.
Good News Bible Proverbs 15:4

I tell you, on the day of judgement men will render account for every careless word they utter; for by your words you will be condemned.

Airfares at unheard of prices — and at your fingertips

AP/Tonia Cowan

By Karen Schwartz
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Thanks to the Internet, Jim Fairburn keeps a home in Minneapolis and an office in Chicago.

He's not telecommuting. Instead, the deep airline discounts he gets online allow him to work in one city and fly home for weekends in another.

"I would not have been able to afford a $600 commute every weekend," he said, explaining that he makes the trip about three times each month using the special fares, which lower the cost to about $70 for the round trip.

Most of the major airlines offer special Internet discounts, with savings of up to 90 percent. With the belief that some cash is better than no cash, the carriers use the offers as a last-minute way to fill planes that would otherwise fly with empty seats. And since they promote the offers over the Internet, they have virtually no advertising costs.

"We believe it is business that we would not otherwise have gotten in any other form," said Steve Cossette, senior director of distribution planning for Continental Airlines, which offers its Continental On Line Travel Specials, or COOL, to more than 70,000 subscribers each Wednesday via e-mail.

American, which pioneered the concept when it launched its NetSAAver program nearly a year ago, made more than $1 million from the incremental fares in its first eight months and sends its weekly list to more than 250,000 people.

USAir, TWA and Carnival Air Lines also send their weekly Internet promotions for free to subscribers via e-mail. Northwest and American Trans Air post their fares on their Web sites. And Delta expects to offer specials at its Web site by yearend.

A recent Northwest CyberSaver offered a round-trip Detroit-to-Seattle fare for $179, a savings of 69 percent off the 21-day advance purchase fare of $572, and 88 percent off the full fare of $1,496.

There are variations from airline to airline, but in general, the offers are posted Wednesday for flights departing the following Saturday and returning that Monday or Tuesday. And despite the low fare, a passenger can still collect frequent flier points on the flight.

"It works out great if you want a long weekend," said Jerry Brown, president of

Following basic steps to building own web site can save time

By Jean Nash Johnson
Associated Press

DALLAS — Just two years ago, it would have been inconceivable for home computer users to design their own Web pages. With the increased popularity of the World Wide Web, the proliferation of Web page software and the "decoding" of HTML, the Web's programming language, the task is faster and getting foolproof.

For those ready to dabble in Web page making, here are some basic steps to get you going:

■ Form a plan: Decide what you want the page to do and how it will look. This will depend on the service the page will provide. Will you need one main screen (your home page) with only one or two click-able links to other sites or lots of links that need you to organize them?

■ Choose your software: You may have the capability already on hand. If you have programs such as Notepad and Microsoft's Publisher, they can accommodate Web authoring. You may want to download programs from the Web. (Sometimes these downloads are free and can be found by using a search engine such as the one at http: //www. yahoo.com.) Or you may choose a professional Web page maker. The latter is the most expensive. Your choice will depend on how often you create pages. Talk to Webmasters for recommendations. If you don't know any, next time you find a Web page you like, e-

Checking out cities and states online

By Sreenath Sreenivisan
N.Y. Times News Service

Cities and states are using the Internet to escalate their competition for new businesses and investment.

More and more economic development agencies are now boasting online about their incentive packages to attract companies to relocate to their areas. The World Wide Web's interactive nature allows companies and individuals looking for facts about different regions to get information that only used to be available, if at all, through the mail and in-person visits.

"For an economic development agency to not have a Web site nowadays is the equivalent of not having a fax machine," said Leonard Fuld, a co-author of "Regional Web Wars," a study of economic development Web sites.

His consulting firm, Fuld & Co., of Cambridge, Mass., awards Web Warrior awards to economic development agencies with sites that provide information efficiently and effectively. Current winners include the sites of South Carolina, Delaware, Ohio and Arizona. Each of these sites offers facts about its state's

Email is newest conduit for racist, hate messages

N.Y. Times News Service

The first sign of trouble came in a nighttime phone call. Joon Park, a junior at Indiana University in Bloomington, listened as a frantic student told him on Jan. 31 that a hate message had been sent via electronic mail to 700 members of the Asian Students Association, the group of which Park is president.

The obscenity-laden statement included racial epithets and ordered the students to leave the country, Park said. Less than a week later, a similar message was sent to the association's office in Bloomington.

"I was furious," Park said. "There's a lot of resentment toward Asians on this campus, and these messages are a way to express feelings to a large number of people and easily cover your tracks."

The use of e-mail to send hate messages is a growing concern on many college campuses.

Although it is difficult to know how prevalent such messages are, the American Council on Education says, they seem to be increasing.

"We've seen a lot of reports of hate e-mail in recent months," said David Merkowitz, a spokesman for the council, which is based in Washington and represents 1,700 colleges. "It's hard to tell if it's a trend or if we're just more attuned to what's happening on the Internet."

TV fans & the Web

Seconds after the last puzzling plot contortion, even as the credits roll over the final shot of wide-eyed and bemused FBI agents on Sunday nights, the plugged-in legion of "X-Files" fans pick up the action on the 'Net.

At 10 p.m., fans switch screens and change from watchers to chatters. Thousands vent on Internet Relay Chat, prattle for hours in America Online chat rooms, and expound on story lines on the show's official site, www.thex-files.com.

The IRC channel, (NU)x-files, begins churning with users during the last commercials, but the website is a 24-day, seven-day-a-week proposition where fans can swap comments on a variety of topics. The website is among the best and busiest sites dedicated to a current television show. It's fairly low frills, which flows contrary to the tide of plug in-loaded sites.

It has the usual plot summaries and character profiles, but the site is driven by its message boards. Feel like discussing David Duchovny's flat-as-Florida-farmland vocal delivery? There's a spot for you. There's a dark corner for folks compelled to analyze Agent Scully's Wurm Orouboros tattoo, the mind-altering new body modification she acquired during a wild night on the townearlier this month. (For purists out there, it's the "Never Again" episode, No. 4X13.)

There are similar sites, both official and fan-maintained, for other popular shows, including "Melrose Place," "The Nanny," "Frazier," and all of the daytime dramas. Show producers see the web as an extension of the casual back-fence chat that people used to hold in less-busy times. There's a sense of community on these sites.

CD pun

There's something redeeming about wanton silliness, of which there's no shortage on the "Discworld II" CD-ROM adventure game. It's the followup to 1995's "Discworld" game (which, considering its "II" suffix, makes sense) and, like the first game, was based on the comic novels of Terry Pratchett.

This new game is a large — two disc — dose of raucous British humor at its pun-heavy, semi-scatological best, or worst, depending on one's perspective. There's a strong Monty Python connection, as Eric Idle is the voice of Rincewind, a washed-up wizard with questionable conjuring powers. It's Rincewind's job to convince Death (the grisly specter, not the state of unbeing) to return to his duties as the Grim Reaper.

Silly? Definitely. Fun? Absolutely, especially for teens and adults. Most of the verbal puns and animated sight gags would be lost on anyone under 13.

Meteor minded

"Bill Nye the Science Guy" is the latest child-focused program to leap from television to monitor, with a CD-ROM learning adventure subtitled "Stop the Rock!" It's a well-done project that merges the show's machine-gun pace with a storyline built around a fictional meteor flying toward Earth.

Nye's manic character guides players through several dozen core science concepts (gravity, inertia, mass and the like). It's designed for children 9 and older, but parents and teachers with pre-teens might want to help new users explore several parts of the disc before proceeding. Another minor quibble: Some of the concepts, like the show, might be yawn-inducing for science-savvy high-schoolers.

YOUR QUICKEST SHOT TO THE COOLEST SPOTS ON THE WORLD WIDE WEB

Tell Your Story—Weave Your Web

Everyone loves to be creative. You can express yourself while developing your skills as a writer, a computer animator or a future Webmaster. At Interactive Adventures http://www.execpc.com/adventure/ you can learn to write by making up your own story. When you enroll in the Writer's Workshop you can get help creating characters or weaving a story line.

Speaking of weaving, how about weaving your own Web site? Now's the time to jump in and get your feet wet learning html code the easy way. Since your feet are wet, you may want a cup of something hot—like Cocoa! It's cool. This is the place to download a free copy of Cocoa and start learning a new programming language. Create some crazy animated characters; then teach your computer what you want them to do. When you use your mind, it's a real adventure.

Ebony and Ivory Really Jams

The piano is one of our most fascinating and beautiful musical instruments. From the composers of centuries gone by to the pianists of today, the piano continues to dazzle and mesmerize its listeners. At http://www.unm.edu/~loritaf/pnoedmn.html you can learn everything you need to know about this musical form. The Piano Education Page has more than 200 pages of information. You'll find lessons, piano software, learning tools and links to other great music sites. If you're a budding Chopin, you'll love reading the "interviews" of famous pianists or checking out the latest competition updates. For those who are just starting to tickle the ivories, there are tips on buying a piano and finding the teacher that's right for you. And with a special section just for kids, the Piano Education Page will definitely be music to your ears.

The Magic of Energy

Did you know that the dinosaurs and other living things left a legacy long after their extinction? They left what we know of today as "fossil fuels," our primary source of gasoline. From deep within the earth to the sun's rays, from the wind to the nucleus of the atom, energy takes many forms. Learn how great scientific minds of our time like Albert Einstein, Marie Curie and Thomas Edison made discoveries about our earth and its energy sources. Are you an aspiring scientist? If so, go straight to Energy Quest at http://www.energy.ca.gov/education/ and practice your skills with the cool science projects. After you've explored the energy section, you're ready to test your knowledge with the super-fun game show "Watt's That?!" Remember, don't waste energy!

AskAmy@4Kids.org

Dear Amy: What is the difference between the Internet search engines like Magellan, Infoseek, WebCrawler and Yahoo? They never seem to give me the same answers. Hannah, Champlin, MN

Dear Hannah: Search engines are software that let you search their database of information about Web sites. Each of the search engines gathers its data in a different way. They also organize their information differently. So, you might get different answers from various search engines even though you used the same words in your search. The search engines might contain Web sites that your parents may not want you to see. So ask for permission before you use a search engine.

Dear Amy: What is an Internet cookie? I see it a lot, and I never know what it is. Brian, El Toro, CA

Dear Brian: An Internet "cookie" is a preference file that is saved on your computer along with your browser software. A cookie file is created when you register at a Web site, but not all Web sites do it. Cookies go to work each time you return to the same site on the World Wide Web. So when you're there, it's like the Web site remembers what you are interested in and tells you about new stuff that relates to the last time you were there.

AIR: Deals not for everyone; cities and fares vary from week to week

(From 1F)

C/A Communications in Dallas. While Brown claims he's not an Internet expert, he's been able to find fares to Florida, Los Angeles, and even Calgary in the Canadian province of Alberta.

The deals are not for everyone. In addition to the restrictions on travel dates, the cities and fares vary from week to week, and while some major cities appear, so do a lot of out-of-the-way places.

And one naysayer, Florida lawyer Donald Pevsner, contends the fares just aren't fair. In a petition to the Department of Transportation, he argues that consumers are being deceived because, if they call the airline and ask for the lowest fare available, they often won't be quoted the Internet fare. The traveler, or travel agent, needs to know to ask for it.

The airlines say there's nothing that requires them to offer all discounts to all passengers. For instance, airlines offer special rates to government employees and senior citizens.

And, Continental's Cossette said, a traveler would be quoted the Internet fare on his airline if they happened to be departing and returning on the dates when the fares were available.

"It's sort of like a lottery," he said.

There's more than money at stake for the airlines. They're excited about the Internet fares because they are attracting a new type of flier — young Web surfers who don't yet have a loyalty to a particular airline or frequent flier program.

"The Wall Street Journal went online and found that 60 percent of the online subscribers were not (news)paper subscribers." Cossette said. "We're seeing a similar phenomenon — a significant group of these people are new customers. This, frankly, was a pleasant surprise for us."

Who's online

Carriers that service Midland-Odessa that have online fare offers or home pages include:

American Airlines

NetSAAvers are sent via e-mail to subscribers at no charge. International lists are sent Monday for departures on Thursday that return on Monday or Tuesday. Domestic lists are sent Wednesday for departure Friday night or Saturday, and return Monday or Tuesday. It also offers some first class fares, as well as special offers from Hilton Hotels and Avis Rent a Car. Subscribe to the mailing list at: http:// www.americanair.com

Continental

COOL (Continental On Line) fares are e-mailed free to subscribers on Wednesday. Some international destinations are included, as are some discounts on car rentals from National. Software ideas for web page authors at home

By Jean Nash Johnson
Associated Press

DALLAS — For those Web page authors who neither have the time nor the inclination for the teach-yourself approach, here are two titles that make the job almost trouble-free.

WEB ROUSER FrontPage '97 (Microsoft Inc.)

Whether you're using it for the first time or you're upgrading from an earlier version, off the bat you'll discover pertinent new features that make a good program better.

After you install FrontPage '97, you will have the three most commonly needed ingredients: a Web site manager, a Web page authoring tool and the bonus pack, which includes its image composer and the newest version of Internet Explorer, Microsoft's browser.

Once the program is installed, find an assortment of templates to build your pages on and wizards to show you how. The program also lets you import existing Web files and coding easily.

Here are a few other highlights of the new version: More wizards create styles from strict corporate looks to something more personal; the program's editor function works like a word processor; and there's also a way to add custom templates if the included templates aren't suitable.

The program also adds ease to page designing with wizards that make it almost foolproof to draw tables and boxes.

The new HTML source code editing feature is worth mentioning. Users of the earlier version will note that now they can edit a page's code within the program, instead of having to do it in Notepad.

For the designer in you, the clip art gallery is substantially bigger and the font selection greater.

FrontPage is a very intense and involved program. There are more economical routes to take in building a Web page, but if efficiency is critical, and you are more than a seasonal Web page builder, FrontPage is worth the investment.

System requirements: IBM-compatible PC with CD-ROM drive, 8 MB RAM recommended. Price: about $150; $55 for the upgrade. Information: http://www.microsoft.com.

AT HOME

Claris targets schools and small businesses in particular with its remake of its Web authoring product. However, there are some unique features that make this redo an ideal program for all users, including the at-home builder.

To start, Claris Home Page makes it easy to drag and drop the coding you need onto your page. The coding is color-coded, so it's easy to see the programming code from the text.

Its selections of graphic images, buttons and backgrounds number 500. And in the building process, the program works very similar to design programs. Frames can be moved and resized by dragging on the edges with the mouse.

For text purposes, Web authors can write with confidence, as a built-in spell-checking feature takes away some of the pressure.

Like its competitor FrontPage, Home Page has wizards that make it easy to create frame layouts that can produce separate little sections for your page. Just work in those frames and move them in chunks to complete your overall designing.

The two programs stack up almost evenly — Claris having a slight edge with its economical price tag and dual-platform CD for Windows and Macintosh.

System requirements: IBM-compatible PC or Macintosh with CD-ROM drive, 8 MB RAM recommended. Price: about $99; $19 for the upgrade. Information: http://www.claris.com

PAGE: It pays to manage your site

mail the site's owner.

■ Prepare the code: You can do this manually if you've learned HTML, or you can copy an existing Web page and sub in your own words and pictures. If you have a complex site, such as one that lists many different interests and links, you'll need Web-making software.

■ Edit your page: Once you've created the page, take a good look at it, to see if it's easy to read, downloads fast and serves your needs. At this point, you can rewrite or resize text, substitute pictures and graphics and add more links.

■ Gain access to a server: Once you've finalized your page, it's time to appear on the Web. There are several places to house personal home pages, as well as business sites.

■ Manage your site: It pays to take a look at your page once it's up to make sure it looks the way you intended. If you want your page to get lots of return visitors, you'll need to update it frequently, with new links, better graphics and new information. For instance, a small-business person may change the items displayed for sale on the page, or a parent may want to add a fresh picture of a child.

STATES: Many have not yet discovered practicality of Web

economic development strategy in a clear and easy-to-understand manner.

States are not alone in their hunt for new business. Cities of various sizes have gone online, announcing their wares. New York City, for example, has an in-depth business resource guide on its site, complete with details on tax abatements, international assistance programs, and a sales tax suspension effort.

The Interactive Economic Development Network is a logical place to hunt for useful information. Its comprehensive site is filled with resources about economic development links, wired communities, financing sources and technology transfers.

Some foreign economic regions are also keen players in the game of attracting business and investment. Fuld gave the top award in its overseas category to the Cote d'Azur. This French region of the Riviera has focused considerable energy on business development and its site reflects that, making good use of maps and lists. But most overseas economic development sites are less sophisticated than the top American sites.

Not surprisingly, even a building in Silicon Alley in New York City has gotten into the act of attracting tenants through the Internet. The New York Information Technology Center at 55 Broad Street (www.55broad.com) advertises itself as a "wired" building that pushes the technology envelope. Its site has a virtual reality tour of the building and a list of financial incentives offered to tenants.

Some of the leading publications in the corporate relocation business have made their way onto the Web and offer executives another source of information. Area Development, a magazine that deals with planning company relocations, has a site with reprints of its articles as well as state-by-state economic profiles and a listing of state tax incentives. Site Net, a venture of Site Selections magazine, has a comprehensive site that allows corporate relocation planners to learn more about regions. The site also features a useful "tool kit" that provides a checklist for picking an optimum site, along with in-depth lease information.

Companies interested in learning more about the demographics of American counties and cities may find the University of Virginia Social Sciences Data Center's site useful. It offers extensive marketplace information that can be searched by more than 200 variables, including age groups, household incomes, and even the votes cast for Ross Perot in the 1992 presidential election.

Acknowledging that businesses base their relocation decisions on standard of living factors as well as fiscal concerns, some of the sites highlight favorable human factors. The site of the Roanoke Valley of Virginia, for instance, has a page dedicated to its "low crime." There are selective lists of crime statistics that, naturally, favorably compare Roanoke to 20 other cities in Virginia and across the country. It does not ignore financial concerns: a similar selective list of comparative electricity rates is available.

Since moving a business or a factory to a new location involves changes for employees, two sites provide features that can show employees and management what it is like to live in different cities.

Money magazine's site offers plenty of information about its annual list of "best cities" to live in the United States. Most useful perhaps is its interactive "Find your best places" feature, that allows users to provide preferences about different factors and get back a list of suggestions for places that match their criteria.

The Homebuyer's Fair international salary calculator provides an interactive peek at the salary levels needed to provide a given living standard in different cities. Want to move from, say, a $50,000 salary in New York City to Geneva, Switzerland? The site will tell you that you need to earn $68,875 just to keep pace. On the other hand, you'll need only $17,851 to live comparably in Kiev, Ukraine.

Commercial Real Estate Network, a GE Capital Services company, has a free search function for anyone looking to rent or buy office space and links to various commercial real estate sites.

Unfortunately, many states and cities have not made good use of the interactive nature of the Web and have basically published their brochures on the Internet. As more and more businesses use this medium for their initial scouting, sites that are not current or well designed will lose traffic and business.

HATE: Study finds no more hate email than hate by phone

(From 1F)

At Indiana University, where campus police are investigating the mail sent to Asian students, students and police say the names attached to the messages are not likely to be those of the real senders. Those who are proficient with computers, they note, are often able to use other people's addresses or mask their own, making anonymous hate communications, or "flame mail," fairly simple to produce.

Most universities have strict policies against hate and harassing e-mail, but both students and administrators say that because of free speech considerations, they are reluctant to see people punished for sending such messages.

Robert Ulrich, assistant general counsel for the university and community college system in Nevada, said "hate mail coupled with threats of violence" was clearly grounds for criminal charges.

At the University of California at Irvine, 10 federal hate-crime charges have been brought against a former student, Richard Machado, 19, who is accused of threatening 58 students last fall, most of them Asian-Americans.

The case is the first time the federal government has prosecuted a hate crime committed on the Internet, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California.

Machado failed to show up for his November court hearing. He was arrested on Feb. 6 as he was crossing the border from Arizona to Mexico.

On a campus where the Asian-American population is about 50 percent, the note warned Asian-American students that if they did not leave the campus, "I personally will make it my life career to find and kill everyone of you personally."

One of the 10 Asian-American students who filed criminal charges, Clarisse Que, a 19-year-old sophomore, said that many people were "very distressed and angry."

The Prejudice Institute in Baltimore that studies racial and ethnic hate crimes, has begun to examine e-mail harassment on campus.

The early findings, based on a survey of a large mid-Atlantic university, showed that e-mail has become the most popular communication tool on campus but that there is no more harassment by e-mail than by phone or mail.

Howard Ehrlich, director of the institute, said the survey's most notable finding was that sexual harassment of women by e-mail was four to five times as likely as racial or ethnic harassment. Ten percent of the women answering the survey reported receiving threatening e-mail, while 3 percent of respondents reported receiving racial or ethnic hate mail.
