Trade Deficit Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's trade deficit fell to $1.62 billion in August, an encouraging sign for the nation's economic outlook, the government said today.

The August deficit followed a $2.99-billion trade gap in July and was the second smallest of the year.

The reduced deficit was encouraging to economists who fear that trade problems are contributing to inflation in this country in reducing the value of the dollar overseas.

Dollar Mart Nervous

LONDON (AP) - The dollar was generally weaker in Europe again today but rose slightly in Tokyo as foreign-exchange traders awaited the announcement later in the day of the U.S. trade deficit for August.

One London dealer said the markets were "more nervous than active." By contrast, the gold market was extremely active, with a heavy volume of orders to buy from persons hedging against more declines in the dollar.

Imports Worry Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, worried that the United States is flooded with imported cars, televisions and oil, is mounting a drive to get foreigners to buy products marked "Made in the U.S.A."

The United States bought $26.5 billion more from other countries last year than it sold - a trade deficit that contributed to inflation and the decline of the dollar against foreign currencies.

New Coin By Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans should have the new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin to jangle in their pockets next summer, Treasury officials say. The coin picturing the woman's rights advocate was approved by the House on Tuesday and sent to President Carter, who is certain to sign it.

Rail Strike Ultimatum Issued

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Union pickets across the country ignored court orders today as a crippling rail strike entered its second day.

The Carter administration gave railroad and union bargainers a 24-hour untimatum to settle their dispute or face government intervention.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall announced that officials of a striking rail clerks union and the railroad industry would begin meeting at noon EDT today for a "last-chance" bargaining session to end at noon Wednesday.

"But if this deadline passes without an agreement, both sides can expect with certainty that the administration will take further action," the secretary said.

Thousands of rail passengers had to cope with other means of travel, two major automakers announced layoffs due to parts shortages and, by one estimate, half the country's average daily food shipments by rail were halted.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks threw up pickets at 43 railroads in 40 states Tuesday to intensify pressure for a contract settlement with the Virginia-based Norfolk & Western Railway, where 4,600 clerks have been on strike for 80 days.

Marshall told a news conference that he did not want to "spell out what we plan to do," but he acknowledged that one option would be to declare a national emergency and order striking workers back to work under provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

"We are determined not to allow this strike to cripple our nation's economy."

Fair Opens Tomorrow

The 14th annual Scurry County Fair will be opened to the public at noon Thursday.

Exhibitos were busy setting up their displays today and activity in and around the Scurry County Coliseum was expected to pick up this afternoon and tonight as the rush continued to get the exhibits ready for judging Thursday morning.

Exhibits will be housed in the coliseum and in the adjacent building.

The fair will continue through Saturday night. It will feature exhibits in art, horticulture, textiles, handicrafts, agriculture products, canned goods, baked foods and educational and community booths. In addition there will be a number of commercial exhibits. The commercial exhibits and livestock exhibits, which will be housed in the livestock-agriculture exhibit building, will not be shown for judging. However, one of the fair's most popular features will be in the livestock area. It is a "Kiddie Barn" section, with traditional farm animals presented especially for youngsters. The livestock exhibits are sponsored by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, and Ernest Sears is in charge of the Kiddie Barn.

Most of the competitive exhibits will be judged Thursday morning. An exception is the baked foods division, which will be judged Saturday morning.

There will be special entertainment on the coliseum stage each evening during the fair. The Western Texas College Jazz Ensemble, under direction of Guy Gamble, will play Thursday night. Robert Allen's Country Boys will present country and western music Friday night and the RSVP Kitchen Band and square dance group will perform Saturday night. The entertainment features will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night.

Hermleigh Creates Fire Department

HERMLEIGH--A community meeting last night in Hermleigh resulted in the creation of the Hermleigh Volunteer Fire Department.

The decision to create a volunteer fire department came after a report presented by school superintendent Ray Simmons. Simmons told the 50 people assembled in the high school auditorium that a reconditioned U.S. Forestry Service truck which will serve as the community's fire truck has been ordered and is expected to arrive within the next several months.

The truck, Simmons continued, is expected to be a 1¼-ton four-wheel drive vehicle on which a 320-gallon water tank has been mounted. The truck will cost $7,000, he said, and the state will pay for half of it. It will be up to the community to raise the other half.

The motion to create a volunteer fire department was made by Larry Farr. Included in the motion was a provision nominating Hollis Ward, Tommie Henry, and Lonnie Henry as the new department's directors. The motion was approved.

Special guests at the community meeting were James Aaron and Clyde Smith, both members of the Fluvanna Volunteer Fire Department, who explained the workings and operations of that group to the residents of Hermleigh.

In other activity at the meeting, T.T. Withers donated a bale of cotton to the new fire department to be used to help defray expenses of the fire truck.

Simmons also announced that the Hermleigh Lions Club will hold a barbecue on the Thursday night one week after the last football game of the junior high schools.

The next community meeting in Hermleigh will be held Oct. 24 at the school auditorium. It, like the meeting last night, will include a covered dish supper.

The SDN Column

The past week's rains were important because a good rain any time helps West Texas. Some Snyder residents may not realize the full significance of the runoff into Lake J.B. Thomas, however. The lake was in a precarious situation with less than 10,000 acre feet of water on hand. Everybody and everything except Snyder had been cut off from Lake Thomas supplies several months ago. As the year moved along and the rains failed to appear, there was no guarantee that even Snyder could be supplied from Lake Thomas beyond the spring of 1979. But the catch from a week of rains has extended the projections considerably. Not only is the water sufficient to provide additional supplies, but the lake's watershed is now in excellent shape to capitalize on any more fall and winter rains. A lot of tanks have been filled and the ground has been soaked.

The importance of drawing our water supplies from Lake Thomas rather than other sources available to members of the Colorado River Municipal Water District cannot be over-emphasized. The water district has the capability to get water to us from Lake E.V. Spence at Robert Lee, but the quality of the water from Lake Spence falls considerably short of that from Lake Thomas. In fact, water users in Big Spring, Midland and Odessa are envious of our supply from Lake Thomas. That is, those who are familiar with the situation are.

Lake Spence, although it has considerably more water impounded than Lake Thomas, contains much more minerals than Lake Thomas. Its quality will improve when its supply increases, but during dry times, it has a lot of salt.

Also, the expense of getting water here from Lake Spence would be much more than it costs to get it here from Lake Thomas.

So, as badly as it tasted recently when the lake "turned over," there's plenty to be said in favor of Lake Thomas water. In fact, it is regarded as the best surface water in this part of the country. Now, if we could just get the lake full once again, we could breathe easier. But the recent catch is valuable and thoroughly appreciated.

Cotton Spraying Deadline Advanced

Directors of the Scurry County Producers Association were informed last night that they must have at least 90 per cent of the county's cotton land signed up by 5 p.m. Thursday to qualify for state participation in a boll weevil control spraying program.

This moves the deadline up a full day and the local association has issued a new appeal to area cotton farmers to come in and pay the fee of $2 per acre. This morning some 60,000 acres had been accounted for with around 30,000 acreas outstanding, which is considerably under the 90 per cent minimum requirement by the state.

Texas Department of Agriculture officials will make their final decision on participation in the local program at 9 a.m. Friday. Scurry County is in competition with several other counties for funds, including King, Cottle, Motley, Floyd, Knox and Glasscock Counties.

"If we fail to get enough acreage committed now and have to drop out of the program, it may be difficult to get back in later on," Milton Stephens, president of the local producers association, warned. Stephens said the producers feel that boll wee-

Q--Why are the doors at Central Elementary School locked to the outside during school hours? The only door open is the one by the office. Other elementary schools do not do this.

A--Supt. Bill J. Hood says this is done to control traffic, and all visitors to all elementary schools are asked to go by the office of the school they visit. You likely will find that some doors in other elementary schools also are locked to the outside. However, all doors have "panic bars" inside which open immediately from slight pressure.

WTC Enrollment Equals '77 Total

Fall semester enrollment at Western Texas College reached 1,184, Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services and Registrar, said.

That figure is the same as the 1977 fall semester total. Of the total, 1,131 students are semester credit hour students and 53 are enrolled in clock hour programs (Vocational Nursing, cosmetology, Golf & Grounds Operations and residential construction).

The total number of students enrolled in academic programs is up 2½ per cent, while the total of students in vocational-technical programs is down 10.9 per cent. The number of full-time students is down 5.9 per cent from the 1977 figure.

Better Check Car Tag Stickers Before Oct. 1

If you exercised an option to register your car for less than 12 months last spring when Texas initiated the new registration system, you should take a look at your sticker or registration receipt.

It may expire this month, and if so, you have not and will not receive a notice of expiration from Austin.

The new registration system is designed to have car tag stickers expiring by the month instead of all at one time in the spring. Those who drew less than 12-month stickers last spring had the option of re-registering at the specified time during the year, or paying for an additional 12 months. Thus, a person who had a new sticker last spring calling for re-registration in September could choose to re-register this September or pay for an additional year and put it off until September of 1979.

It was publicized at the time that those opting for less than a year would not receive notices if their new stickers expired in September or earlier since all of the new records could not be assembled in time for the customary notices to be mailed from Austin.

C.L. Minton, Scurry County tax assessor-collector, said several Scurry County vehicle owners have missed the re-registration deadline because they had registered for the short term last spring and had depended upon notices to remind them of expiration dates.

After this month, the notices are due to be mailed from Austin as in the past, and after this year, the entire registration list in the state will be on a month-by-month schedule with notices going out at appropriate times.

some fears subside

The early panic of congressional Democrats over possible voter retaliation for the huge Social Security tax boost approved last year has totally evaporated-along with any serious effort to roll back that increase.

It's not that anyone expects the big bite to hurt less when it takes hold this coming January. Indeed, the Social Security tax hike is so stiff that most Americans will pay more federal taxes next year than they do now even after Congress votes a reduction in income taxes.

But congressmen can count - especially at election time. And they know that older voters, who worry about the solvency of the Social Security system and the safety of their own benefit funds, tend to turn out at the polls far more faithfully than younger wage-earners who will bear the brunt of the tax increase.

House Majority Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., did a computer analysis of those who actually voted in his last congressional contest two years ago and discovered that more than half those casting ballots were at least 55 years old. And the heaviest turnout of all was among voters 65 and older - those already drawing Social Security.

There's nothing unique about the 3rd District of Indiana, which Brademas represents. In fact, pollster Louis Harris assured House Democratic leaders that it is quite typical of the national turnout pattern.

Once edgy House members worked out this political arithmetic, they stopped worrying about a backlash from the tax boost and started boasting that they had saved the Social Security system from bankruptcy.

"It looks like our sportsmanship lessons are going to be delayed — why don't we sneak out for some fun — like 'kick-the-can'?"

hazardous lifestyles

Lifestyle, as defined in practice by most Americans, should be considered a deadly word.

It's not the leading killer diseases themselves that are the nation's primary health problem, according to a Connecticut physician, but the habits of millions of individuals which are responsible for the prevalance of these diseases.

Many cases of the top three killers - heart disease, cancer and cirrhosis - can be traced directly to the victims' lifestyles, notes Dr. Joseph Kristan, spokesman for the Lifestyle Council of Connecticut which is promoting improved health habits during a September "Lifestyle Awareness Month."

Curative medicine has proved "One big flop" in meeting the challenge of the killers, according to Kristan. Instead, the public should be healing itself by altering its lifestyles, which means, naturally, cutting back on consumption of such accessories to the high life as tobacco, liquor, sugar and caffeine and even on such a diet basic as meat.'

In other words, it's a simple case of living, American-style, being hazardous to our health.

Benjamin Franklin said, "Take care of the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves." These wise words apply to everyone today as prices continue to climb. While I grant you the younger generation of today knows nothing about saving, some of us older ones can recall saving from our childhood and should practice it more. Some of the following tidbits might possibly be used to save time and money.

Use colorless nail polish as a glue when the adhesive on an envelope or stamp won't stick. It dries quickly and doesn't leave smudge marks.

Clean dark patent leather shoes and purses with vinegar. Wipe with a cloth or tissue moistened with vinegar and polish with a dry cloth or tissue. If vinegar won't remove the soil from white or light patent leather, use liquid cleaning fluid.

Patch cuts or tears in lace tablecloths or lace curtains with clear nail polish.

Remove chewing gum from clothing by putting the garment in a plastic bag and then in the freezer. When the garment is frozen, flip off the chewing gum with your finger nail.

If you stacked glasses stick together, fill the inner glass in warm water and hold the outer glass in warm water for a moment or two. They'll separate without a hitch.

To avoid smashing a finger when trying to hammer a small nail, insert the nail in a bobby-pin, set the nail in place and then hammer away.

Put a coat of paste wax on the blades of saws and other tools used for cutting wood. This makes the blade cut more easily and also prevents it from rusting.

A thimble on your thumb when grating cheese or vegetables prevents cuts and scratches.

Remove ink stains with hair spray. Spray the stain and let it set for a few seconds and then wash the article in the usual way. If the stain remains, repeat until it disappears. This works on washable fabrics only and not on plastic or leather.

If your steam iron stops steaming, insert vinegar instead of water and plug in your iron to unclog. If it doesn't work the first time, try again.

If these tips help take care of the pennies, maybe the dimes and dollars will take care of themselves.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

Next to the oarsman on a slave ship whose captain wanted to water ski, the most maligned person on the face of this earth is the teenager who has just landed his first full-time job.

No one suffers more and is appreciated less.

Many of these "slaves" have heard stories of men who got up each morning, were fully clothed by 7:00 and on the job by 8:30, but they discarded these as venomous rumors - the kind circulated in Berlin in the 1940's.

My son considers himself a "human sacrifice" on the altar of the Church of the Establishment. He was 15 before we could use the word "employment" in front of him. The word broke his face out and he preferred we spell it. The way he explained it to us on the eve of his marriage to a paycheck, "This is an exercise in group persecution, isn't it? All of you have run the course ad now before I come of age, I have to prove that I can hack the 9-5 number, is that it? Okay, you win. If I have to prove that I'm mature, I'll get the dumb full-time J-O-B...jjjj.... jjooo...jooob!"

Maybe a lot of you know my son - or at least have heard of him.

He's the only employed person who has to work day and then come home and feed himself.

He's the only dedicated teenager in North America to work when the "gang" went tubing down the river one Wednesday afternoon.

He's the first person to ever have half of his paycheck withheld for some service which he has never requested (federal income tax, hospitalization, Social Security, etc.). As he stated, "Someone is going to hear about this!"

He stands alone as the only worker who is dominated by a senile boss (age 35) who engages in office brutality by insisting he arrive on time in the mornings, and after lunch.

He's the only full-time worker in the country who has not gained the respect of family and friends for his contribution to labor.

Last Saturday, I tapped him on the shoulder. "Hey, George Meany, out of the sack. It's the crack of noon."

My son rolled over. "I do not believe this is happening to a working person," he said. "All week long, I work five days a week, eight hours a day, and what do I get for it?"

"You get all your meals served like a sultan, your bedroom cleaned, your clothes washed and ironed and a full-time old family retainer - me!"

Something tells me I'll have the first kid to retire three years before he has anything to retire from.

contradictory report

NEW YORK (AP)-One week ago a foundation attracted considerable media attention, as it intended to do, by issuing what appeared to be a decidedly contrary opinion about the stock market.

Said the fund: "The declining role of individual investors in the nation's stock markets has been greatly exaggerated, according to a new study published today for the Twentieth Century Fund."

The reference apparently cast doubt on what has become accepted as an undisputed statistical fact - that the number of individual investors has shrunk markedly, and that huge institutions now dominate trading.

But on reading the scholarly report by Marshall Blume and Irwin Friend of the Wharton School, prosaically called 'The Changing Role of The Individual Investor,' one realizes there's no dispute at all.

In the second sentence of the first paragraph of their report, for example, the two distinquished Wharton School professors state unequivocally:

"Among the enormous changes that have taken place in the economy of the United States since World War II is the sharp increase in the proportion of stock owned by institutions and the corresponding decrease in ownership by individual investors."

What the Twentieth Century Fund might more accurately have stated is that the consequences of the decline rather than the decline itself might not be as serious as some people claimed them to be.

"It's not quite the way I would have written it," said Blume, disclaiming responsibility for the news release.

The authors don't merely concede there's been a dramatic shift of ownership that can hardly be exaggerated. They declare it, and document it. But they urge care when making interpretations.

For instance, said Blume, despite the growth in institutional trading to 70 percent, individuals still own more than half the shares outstanding. They own more shares but they trade less.

But these and other findings are for the moment lost sight of because of the misimpression that the authors challenge the decline of individuals and the rise of institutions as market forces.

In actual fact, various parties are concerned that transformation of the market - to one in which institutions do most of the trading in large, blue-chip stocks - has had material consequences.

Some capital-hungry companies, for example, maintain the institutions ignore their securities while filling portfolios with shares of a favored 50 or a favored 100 companies, such as AT&T, IBM.

Such behavior over a period of time, it would seem, might deprive small but growing companies of capital, while enhancing the size of already large concerns, simply because they already are large.

And, as Blume and Friend observe, institutions fail to exercise voting power in companies, choosing instead to express displeasure by selling shares, making the affected companies more vulnerable to takeovers.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - One of the nation's major chemical companies and a leading environmental organization are quietly exploring the possibility of conducting an unprecedented joint advertising campaign.

Secret, previously unpublicized negotiations have been underway for almost a year between the Monsanto Co. and the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF), two groups whose relations in the past can only be described as hostile and antagonistic.

EDF, a nationwide environmental group with headquarters in New York, was founded in 1967 and today claims to have more than 46,000 dues-paying members.

It boasts of its leadership in "the struggle to halt the chemical corruption of the American environment" and has bitterly attacked the "vested interests (that) spend fortunes in the media and the courts to delay and obfuscate" efforts to contain toxic and carcinogenic materials.

Monsanto, a St. Louis-based company, is one of the country's largest producers of industrial chemicals. It has been equally strident in its criticism of "self-appointed experts (who) are quick to condemn chemicals."

But in an era of ceaseless confrontation over environmental issues, the two groups have found a small piece of common ground: The recent emergence of "irrational, emotional fear that everything causes cancer, that all chemicals are dangerous, and that nothing can be done."

Monsanto's cause for concern is obvious. Like other firms in the industry, many of its products have faced a barrage of criticism, much of it initiated by EDF and other public interest groups.

EDF is disturbed about a phenomenon its leaders have labeled "chemophobia" - an exaggerated fear of chemicals, stemming from constant allegations about toxic or cancer-causing properties. "The public is becoming fatalistic," says one EDF official who worries that future warnings will be ignored.

Thus far, the only product of the negotiations is a full-page magazine advertisement, jointly drafted and signed by the two groups. Public reaction to the ad is being tested in Los Angeles, Denver, Chicago and several other cities.

The ad acknowledges that "there are chemicals which do present either a long-term or short-term health hazard to man," but also notes: "Of more than 300,000 natural and synthetic chemical compounds in existence, only a tiny fraction are a cancer threat. Most chemicals are safe, when handled properly."

It warns the "chemophobia," if unchecked, "will produce two dangerous trends":

"One will be an irrational demand that all synthetic chemicals be banned in the mistaken belief that this is the best way to protect the public.

"The other will be a belief that everyone is going to get cancer and that any effort to solve the problem will be futile."

After receiving results of a survey of those who read the ad, the two organizations will independently assess their position and decide whether to proceed with additional negotiations.

Both parties are engaged in an incredibly delicate highwire act. "We're both nervous," concedes an official of the chemical firm who characterizes the negotiations as "very difficult."

An EDF official is even more pessimistic: "We came very close to terminating this whole thing a few months ago," he says. "Even now, it's not very likely we'll go forward."

EDF proposed the joint public appeals as a replacement for an expensive, Monsanto-sponsored advertising and public relations program whose theme is "without chemicals, life itself would be impossible."

Monsanto delayed the broadcast of television commercials for four months to facilitate negotiations, but now is in the middle of that advertising campaign.

"Even if the negotiations succeed, it's not necessarily the end of the war," says another EDF official. "But at least we'll have a truce, allowing each side to evacuate its wounded from the battlefield."

Good players know when to double. Great players know when not to double. The diagrammed hand, played during a money rubber bridge game, turned into a nightmare for East-West. The nightmare was caused by East's greed and it cost him dearly.

East can defeat seven hearts. He has no chance whatever against seven notrump. The first double, disastrous but understandable, catapulted North-South into an unbeatable seven notrump. North had bid seven hearts without scientifically exploring for the best contract. He checked for aces with Blackwood and that was all. East's double brought him to his senses.

Why would East double? It could only mean he had at least one trump trick. North bid seven notrump, the contract he should have been in all along. East's second double stemmed from frustration and immaturity.

Common sense is very important in bridge, as it is with everything else. Doubling seven hearts could, at most, gain 100 points. Instead it drove North to seven notrump and cost East-West the 2,930 points North-South won on the redoubled grand slam plus the 100 points they surely would have scored for defeating seven hearts undoubled.

When opponents wind up in an inferior contract, it is silly to chase them out of it with a double.

Arkansas Fair Begins Friday

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - The 1978 Arkansas State Fair will begin at Little Rock Friday.

More than 3,000 livestock exhibits, a one-mile-long midway, various entertainment shows and a five-day rodeo will be featured.

Livestock judging will begin Sunday and continue every day except Oct. 4 and Oct. 8, when the fair concludes.

Winners in the State Fair's Queen and Youth Talent Contests will be named Oct. 7.

When cooling sauce thickened with eggs, cornstarch or flour, prevent a skin from forming by stirring gently and often until sauce no longer steams.

Snyder HD Club Meets

Instructions for making silk flowers were presented to members of the Snyder Home Demonstration Club by Sharon Farmer and Cozetta Moore at the club's meeting September 26. A practice session followed with each member making one of the flowers which could be used either for a decorative object for their home, or as a piece of jewelry. Refreshments were served by Ruby Clark.

A cake decorating demonstration will be the program for the club's next meeting which will be on Oct. 24 in the coliseum annex lobby at 9:30 a.m. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Flower Show Division Open For Entries Today

Mrs. S.L. Terry and Mrs. Bob Dupree, superintendants of the flower show division of the county fair, urge everyone who has one or more speciman to bring them to enter in the fair.

Hanging baskets and container grown plants must be brought in between 1-6 p.m. Wednesday Sept. 27 Other entries need to be in between 8-11 a.m. Thursday.

There will not be an artistic division this year.

Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Dupree remind those entering plants to clean dust and water spots from foliage; use large coke bottles for cut specimen, read fair catalog for any information needed.

Anyone residing in Scurry County is eligible to enter.

Younger persons generally accept sexual equality, says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Persons ages 18-29 are more likely than ages 30-44 to share wage-earning and child care responsibilities, the specialist says.

Slides Of Alaska Viewed By AAUW

American Association of University Women met recently in the home of Laura Holladay. Ms. Holladay presented slides and comentary of her recent trip to Alaska, the 49th state.

Ena Flack and Ruby Butts attended the state AAUW meeting in Belton in June. They gave reports including how to recruit members for the association.

Refreshments were served to members and two guests, Margarette Martine of the Hobbs community, and Genevie Gallegos.

Meeting Dates For Junior, Senior 4-H

Snyder Junior and Senior 4-H Club met together Thursday to make plans for the county fair and for the coming year of 4-H club work.

The group will enter an educational booth at the fair. Many of the girls will have individual exhibits.

Meeting times were announced. The junior high and high school members will meet in the cafeterias the second and fourth Mondays, and the elementary school members will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Members present were Thelma Garza, Becky Leib, Rhonda Proctor, Belia Rocha, Mary Garza, Monica Vecerra, Carmen Rios, Letha Baldwin, Trina Baldwin and Joanna Proctor.

New members are welcome at any meeting.

There are no dues, but there are some expenses occasionally. 4-H clubs are open for youth between 9-19 of every race.

Swelling feet is a symptom

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The other day I went with a friend to the west side of the island to see a friend of his who is a fisherman. He lives in a tent on the beach. While seated and talking with this fisherman, I noticed that both of his feet were swollen. I asked him, "What happened to your feet?" He said that it had been going on for quite some time. There is no pain, the swelling only happens during the day and disappears at night. Now what makes this swelling and the disappearing act?

DEAR READER — Swelling of the feet and ankles is a symptom. It can be caused by many different diseases but, of course, it means the accumulation of fluid.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-6, Swelling: Causes and Management. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will discuss with you the different mechanisms that cause swelling and, in more detail, why the swelling develops during the day and disappears at night.

Briefly, fluid tends to "run downhill." When you have excess fluid in the body, and you are sitting upright, or standing upright, it accumulates in the feet first. The more fluid you have, the more swelling occurs and the higher up the leg it will extend.

When you lie down at night, so that the feet are at the same level of the heart, the fluid runs out of the feet and back into the rest of the circulation.

That is why swelling from most medical causes tends to occur during the day, gets worse as the day progresses and tends to decrease or may even disappear at night when you are lying down. You could also get rid of it during the day if you were lying down the whole time.

The occurrence and disappearance of swelling in this fashion does not establish what causes the swelling. It can be caused by heart disease, liver disease, varicose veins, kidney disease or a number of other medical problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been using nose spray for almost a year now. I can't go without it. It seems that I need it even more when I am in the company of other people. I know of several other people who are just like me. I don't step out of the house without it. I don't want to damage my nose tissue and wonder if I am doing so. I am 24 years old. My father also uses it. Could this be hereditary?

DEAR READER — You have developed a bad habit. Many of the nasal sprays are useful for temporary relief. The medicines in them shrink the swollen membranes in the nasal passage so that one can breathe easier. Unfortunately, when the medicine wears off, these tissues often have rebound swelling, causing the air passages to be blocked again.

If a person uses nasal sprays too often, he will have a constant shrinkage and rebound reaction. This can result in chemical irritation and the person literally becomes hooked on nasal spray. It's not that these are addicting but you just can't get relief from blockage of the nasal passage by always resorting to the nasal spray.

What can you do about the problem if you are hooked on nasal sprays? A good technique is to use the spray in only one side of the nose for several days. During this period of time the untreated side of the nose recovers from chemical irritation. At that point, you should be able to stop using nasal spray altogether.

I doubt that you have inherited the need for nasal spray from your father, although you could both have the same allergy that can cause problems.

Vance, Gromyko Will Negotiate Arms Pact

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko re-open negotiations today that may determine whether a new treaty to limit the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers can be completed by the end of the year.

The two men planned two days of meetings, beginning in the late afternoon at the Soviet Mission to the United Nations and continuing Thursday morning at the U.S. Mission.

U.S. officials said after Vance addresses the General Assembly Friday, the negotiations probably would be shifted to Washington on Saturday with President Carter taking charge.

Last October, speaking in Des Moines, Iowa, an optimistic Carter forecast completion within weeks of a strategic weapons limitations treaty that would be "the pride of the country."

Now, 11 months later, the agreement remains elusive despite three rounds of Vance-Gromyko negotiations since April and Carter's intercession last May.

There are a number of issues in dispute. Chief among them is "modernization," how many new missile systems the two governments will be allowed to build and how many they will be allowed to improve for the duration of the treaty, until 1985.

Paul C. Warnke, the chief U.S. arms negotiator, outlined the latest American bargaining position on a two day visit to Moscow earlier this month.

Gromyko will convey the Kremlin's response to Vance. There has been no tip-off to it, although Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in a speech last week and Gromyko in a speech to the General Assembly Tuesday expressed hopes for completing the accord.

"The distance between the positions of the two sides is not all that great and is quite surmountable, given good will and state wisdom," Brezhnev said.

Gromyko said a new agreement "is equally needed by the Soviet Union, the United States and the world at large." He said he hoped forces favoring a treaty would prevail in the United States.

After speaking for about an hour, the 69-year-old foreign minister became ill and slumped against the speaker's desk. He was helped from the podium but returned 55 minutes later to complete his speech.

U.N. spokesmen said he was treated in an office behind the assembly chamber by both American doctors and his own Soviet physicians. On his return, he spoke in a firm voice and referred to the heat of the television lights.

Sour relations between Washington and Moscow have hampered the weapons negotiations. The Soviet trials of prominent Soviet dissidents and of Francis Jay Crawford, an International Harvester representative accused of currency manipulations, hardened feelings in this country against the Russians.

The Russians have tried to suppress new U.S. weapons systems. The United States has proposed that each government be permitted to introduce one land-based intercontinental ballistic missile and one new sub-marine-launched missile during the treaty's life.

Auto, Cow Are In Collision

Troopers of the Department of Public Safety investigated a car-cow collision Monday night.

The mishap occurred about 8:30 p.m. on Highway 208, approximately two miles south of Snyder.

A 1975 Ford driven by Alvin Pendleton of Colorado City was involved in a minor wreck with a cow, they said. Only minor damages were reported to the car, and the cow was only slightly injured.

Love To Prevail Over Violence

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Love will prevail over violence, says Pope John Paul I.

"Violence can't do anything, but love can," the pontiff told a crowd of 80,000 people gathered in St. Peter's Square Sunday.

MARSHALL CHAPMAN MADE it clear early that she had no intention of becoming a genteel Southern belle. At age 7, she was sent home from school for singing an Elvis Presley tune in the halls. Though reared in a wealthy and proper South Carolina family, Chapman is proving on the concert circuit that she can strut, cuss and play the guitar like the best male rockers.

Ugly Bottles Blamed.... Grapefruit Wine Is Failure

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

PROGRESO (AP) - The Queen is dead.

Queen Citriana - a noble attempt to turn grapefruits into wine - succumbed to a combination of red tape, a spectacularly unsuccessful first batch and a poor market.

"Texans are not wine drinkers. They're beer drinkers," said Billy Drawe, the Rio Grande Valley farmer who made and bottled Queen Citraiana. "They want something that'll give them a little kick."

In 1971, amid a series of crop failures on his farm here, Drawe decided the world was ready for a low alcohol, grapefruit table wine. He bought the equipment and opened the state's second existing winery.

The experiment ended March 11, 1977 - leaving a trail of broken bottles and dead alfalfa.

"We had some pretty good wine in the barrels," Drawe, 55, said of the initial batch of Queen Citriana.

The first inkling of doom came after the wine was aged for a year. Drawe went looking for appropriate bottles and found there was a glass strike.

"We bottled it in an ugly looking bottle and nobody liked the label," he recalled.

And, six months later, nobody liked the Queen.

"It turned rancid. The color and flavor changed," he said.

So Drawe, a proud man who lives by his word, bought the wine back from the stores.

"I bought back $30,000 worth of it trying to hold onto my reputation," he said.

Drawe learned from his mistakes. The second batch of wine, he said, was good.

But he found winedrinkers to be an unforgiving lot.

"We had many unsatisfied customers from the first year," he said. Among the unsatisfied were the distributors. No one would handle the Queen - despite an attractive new bottle and label.

Drawe's problems were further complicated by a bout with cancer.

"I damn near kicked the bucket and I figured why waste all that money I didn't have in the first place," he said.

So, shunned by the supermarkets and unwanted by the distributors, the Queen died.

"We ended up with a good wine. We failed in marketing. Queen Citriana had such a bad reputation," the winemaker lamented.

For awhile he had thoughts of making the winery on his farm here into a tourist attraction. But state law prohibited selling the wine on the premises. Now he is looking for a buyer for the equipment.

"I've had about 10 suspects, a couple of prospects but no buyers," he said over a glass of grapefruit wine.

Drawe remembered that closing the winery was about as hard as opening it.

"To stop the wine permit we had to sell or destroy all the wine," he said, adding that he had 20,524 gallons on hand.

Selling it, he realized, was not a feasible solution.

"It used to be on the shelves next to those 99 cent pop wines. What do you think they're going to drink...those hippies?" he said.

Drawe kept about 100 cases "for posterity." The taxman made sure he paid 34 cents per gallon.

The remainder of the wine wound up in the Mercedes city dump and Drawe's irrigation System.

State and federal witnesses watched as Drawe supervised the city dump operation. A tractor mashed thousands of gallons of bottled wine into the dump.

"The Caterpillar got stuck and the driver nearly got drunk from the fumes," he recalled.

The wine that wasn't carted off to the dump was poured out on the farm here.

"It killed three acres of alfalfa," Drawe whined.

Travis 13 Members To Push Tax Revolt

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - "Do you feel that many elected officials are out to squander the public funds to pay for programs that are unnecessary or unwanted?"

"Do you feel that limiting taxes by law is an effective way to stop the government from picking your pocket every payday?"

Those questions - and more - are being asked of thousands of Texans in Travis County as a nonprofit, non-partisan organization seeks members to spread the tax "rebellion" throughout Texas, and possibly the nation.

Former Attorney General Waggoner Carr announced Tuesday the creation of Texas 13 of Travis County, Inc., to "limit government spending and lower our tax burden."

Carr, also a former House speaker and unsuccessful candidate for governor and U.S. senator, told a news conference Texas 13 started as a result of a conversation he had with a neighbor. Carr, now an Austin lawyer, is president of Texas 13.

He said several of the organization's members are friends of Howard Jarvis, the guiding force behing California's Proposition 13.

Carr said the average taxpayer pays 42 cents out of every $1 to the tax collector and added, "That's too much."

In its statement of principles, Texas 13 says, "We, the people, must in fairness accept the blame for today's mess. We got busy on other things and let the wrong people call the shots. As a consequence, we now find it takes far too much of our time and labor to support the ever expanding bureaucracy.

"The tax collector is taking away our ability to provide for ourselves and our families, raiding our savings, our dreams are becoming unreachable, our plans are becoming impractical, our future deeply troubled."

Carr said because of favorable reaction and because Austin is the capital city, Texas 13 is trying to expand statewide through mailed invitations.

He said the organization would ask the 1979 Legislature to:

-Hold state spending to whatever revenue is available from existing tax sources.

-Reject any attempt to raise taxes over the next two years.

-Approve a proposed constitutional amendment requiring a two-third legislative vote to enact a tax bill.

-Approve constitutional amendments giving Texas and local taxpayers the right of initiative and referendum.

-Create a commission, to be appointed by selected state officials, to ferret out "every instance of waste and excessive bureaucracy in our state government."

"Never have I seen a grass-roots tax rebellion such as we are experiencing in this state," said Carr. Texas 13, he said, would "coordinate all the fires built locally."

Asked if Texas 13 might seek national impact, Carr said, "I think and hope.... that if in time we develop muscle...we could work toward the time we can do that."

"We shall not rest," the organization states, "until our government returns its spending and taxing to a level of sanity and reasonableness."

WCTCOG Units Name Directors

Representatives of agencies in four counties served by the West Central Texas Council of Governments filled three official positions at a luncheon meeting here Tuesday.

County Judge Preston Wilson of Scurry County was named to represent counties of WCTCOG subregion II on the executive board. He succeeds Judge John Edd Killen of Nolan County.

Mayor W.C. Mathis of Roby was elected to represent the sub-region's cities of less than 10,000 on the board. He will succeed Mayor Marion Bassham of Colorado City. Mayor Bedford Cain of Roscoe was re-elected as one of the two small cities directors for the sub-region.

Jim Laurie, superintendent of schools at Roby, was elected to represent the sub-district's member school districts on the board.

Snyder Mayor John Fagin, a director and member of the executive committee, presided at the session in the absence of Sweetwater Mayor Jere Lawrence, the WCTCOG chairman.

Bob Gallagher, executive director of the WCTCOG, presented the agenda and headed a brief discussion of the organization's work program for 1979. It was reported that plans for the manpower program administered by WCTCOG are uncertain, since a bill is still in committee in Congress. However, it was noted that some cuts in funds are expected, with more of the funds going for training people for jobs in the private sector.

It was reported that a bill just out of committee would extend the Older Americans Act, which provides funds for senior citizen programs. There was some discussion on possible methods of improving the organization's service in providing certification of law enforcement officers.

Medical Plan Bill Passed By House

WASHINGTON (AP)-Legislation increasing federal aid to prepaid medical plans has been approved by the House. The measure passed Tuesday will authorize $126 million in grants and loans in the next two years for health-lmaintenance organizations.

Two Trucks For One Mile

BLUE SUMMIT, Mo. (AP) - Between Independence and Kansas City, there is the mile-square unincorporated area of Blue Summit and its 1951 Ford fire truck.

The volunteer firefighters once got a fire call and the truck wouldn't start. So they rolled it down a hill to get the engine running.

And if that hadn't worked?:

They have a back-up unit - a 1947 International fire truck.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Penny-ante goals should be of small interest to you today. Aim high. Do what's necessary to achieve them without calling attention to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) No matter where you are today or who you are with, you have the talent to make the best of any situation by letting events run their course.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Ideas of others can be ingeniously remolded by you today and transformed into something far more worthwhile. Put your skills to work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When dealing with associates today, candor is essential. You can correct a misunderstanding to everyone's benefit if you don't pull any punches.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Whether tasks are large or small today, perform them so that you'll be unashamed to be identified with them. Pride takes precedence over profit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Time should be devoted today to people and activities that you truly enjoy. This can be a real fun day if you give priority to whom and what you like.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Set a good example for family members today, using unselfish desires to help those you love. Your message will be readily received.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The size or scope of projects will not intimidate you today. You excel in situations where the stakes are high.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your luck is focused in material areas today. Possibilities are further enhanced because you'll have the foresight to recognize opportunities and capitalize on them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll see ample evidence of the value of positive thinking today if you so attune your mind. "Can't" mustn't be permitted in your vocabulary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Listen very carefully today to the ideas of one who has your best interests at heart. You may hear of something immensely beneficial.

Dear Abby

She's Stuck With Live-In Freeloader

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: Who should pay for what in a live-in type relationship?

The female is divorced, has two children and is on welfare. The male is well-to-do, with a good steady job. Should the rent and food expenses be divided?

In this case the guy pays no rent and is living in her home.

THE FEMALE

DEAR FEMALE: In any kind of relationship, the assets, liabilities and responsibilities should be shared 50-50. And if you're the female living on welfare, you (and the taxpayers) are supporting the guy who's living with you.

You might consider living with this free-loading, well-to-to creep just long enough to confirm a common law status (under recent court decision), and then sock it to him!

DEAR ABBY: You answer to that 16-year-old who felt that girls expected him to make a pass on the first date fell short. The kid said, "On the first date, I feel no irresistible urge to make out with her or even kiss her," and you said, "Most girls prefer the slow approach."

Why didn't you tell him that the only right time to kiss someone (or to make love) is at the precise time when the urge is irresistible? If it happens on the first date, you're in business. If it hasn't happened by the 15th date—don't kiss her just because you think you ought to. Admit the fact that the chemistry is wrong in the relationship, and then either go on enjoying her company on that basis, or end it on that basis.

If everyone just followed their inclinations—or didn't act when the inclinations weren't there—there would be a lot less stress, guilt and resentment between the sexes.

I am a 45-year-old divorcee, and believe me, most middle-aged men don't seem to understand this any better than 16-year-olds.

W.C.M.

DEAR MS. M: The rules for kissing, dating and making love are vastly different for 45-year-old divorcees and middle-aged men than they are for 16-year-old boys on their first dates!

I still say the slow approach is preferable for kids. They may feel like making out (or making love) on the first date, but they lack the experience and maturity to handle it.

DEAR ABBY: This evening while working in my yard, I noticed the very pretty little neighbor girl—about 6, wandering up and down the street in nothing but her panties.

A few months ago I saw this same little girl and her older brother struggling to get a heavy band instrument from the bus stop (three blocks away) to their home, so I stopped and offered to drive them to their home. They accepted gladly. I assumed they knew me. Once in the car it became apparent that I was a stranger to them!

Abby, please remind parents that it is their duty to instruct their children never, never to get into a car with a stranger.

DEWY, OK., MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Thanks for a timely reminder.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Bill Would Raise Duck Hunting Fee

WASHINGTON (AP)-The federal fee to legally hunt ducks would be increased under a bill approved by the House and sent to the Senate. The measure would raise the price of duck stamps from $5 to $7.50.

Senate Approval Seen On Gas Compromise

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A year ago today, a weary Senate held its first around-the-clock session in more than a decade, battling over the natural gas section of President Carter's energy program.

Now, on the anniversary of that all-night filibuster, a compromise version of that same legislation was finally headed toward expected Senate approval.

This time there was little suspense over the outcome.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd predicted the administration-championed bill, which would lift federal price controls from most natural gas by 1985, would pass the Senate by as many as 20 votes.

And opponents of the measure - a coalition of liberals who call it too costly to consumers and conservatives who say it doesn't deregulate prices quickly enough - conceded in advance the long battle was lost.

Opponents were badly defeated on two trial votes and virtually abandoned the search for votes Tuesday after the Senate rejected, 55-36, their second attempt to scuttle the compromise by returning it to committee for redrafting.

No converts had been gained for either side since a 59-39 rejection of a first recommittal motion last week. Differences between the two recorded votes reflected only the absence of more members the second time around.

"We've been touching bases but all the bases have been empty," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., who had offered the recommittal motion.

The House gets the measure next. A fight is expected there too, but the administration is believed to have the upper hand.

House leaders plan to combine the gas bill with a number of other fragments of Carter's 17-month old energy plan and to pass the whole package at once

Elderly Health Fees To Rise

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's 27 million Medicare recipients will have to pay higher hospital fees from their own pockets next year before the government's insurance program for the elderly steps in to pay the rest.

The standard base payment for Medicare patients entering hospitals will rise from $144 to $160 on Jan. 1, 1979, an increase of 11 percent.

These will be comparable fee increase for patients hospitalized with extended illnesses and those transferred to nursing homes.

The increase in the Medicare insurance program's "deductible" was disclosed Tuesday at a White House meeting hastily convened to seek support for the administration's eleventh-hour campaign for passage of legislation limiting hospital fee increases.

Administration officials said the fee increases in the Medicare program for the elderly are a direct result of unchecked inflation in the health care industry.

Hale Champion, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told more than 200 local officials, consumer representatives and hospital administrators that hospital costs are "the single biggest inflationary problem in this country."

He noted that the amount Medicare patients must pay before the government steps in has risen from $40, 10 years ago to $144 this year with the new $16 increase scheduled to be announced officially this week.

Lake Catches Water As Rains Endure

Rains were expected to subside in this area late today, but a slow drizzle had added more than half an inch to the total this morning.

Also, a small amount of inflow into Lake J.B. Thomas continued. The lake's elevation had increased by around eight inches since Tuesday morning and the catch from rains during the past week had gone beyond 4,500 acre feet.

The .56 inch recorded at the city plant this morning ran the September total to 5.54 inches, making it the second wettest month of the year. The year's total had reached 20.41 inches, a normal total for a full year. However, 8.30 inches of that fell in May, with only a few showers between May and September.

COTTON

vils controls are vital to 1979 crop prospects. They plan to spray cotton fields twice to reduce boll weevil over-wintering. It has been estimated that if weevils destroy a boll every 50 inches that will ruin more than enough cotton than the cost of the program.

Car Burglary Suspect Held

One car burglary suspect was arrested and five traffic accidents were investigated by city police Tuesday afternoon and this morning.

Arrested was an 18-year-old man police were seeking in connection with a Sept. 12 car break-in. Guy Allen, the complainant in the case, said the window to his vehicle was smashed and a money bag taken.

Police said the money, estimated to be $70, had been spent and the money bag burned by the suspect.

A car-pedestrian accident at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave. was among the traffic cases investigated.

Reports show that Ellen Faulkenberry, 64, of 305 32nd St., was crossing the street when struck by a 1963 Chevrolet driven by Christy Jinkins, 17.

Mrs. Faulkenberry reportedly sustained a minor injury to her right hand. She was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle where she was treated and released. The mishap occurred at 2:10 p.m.

At 4:20 p.m. police investigated a one vehicle accident in the 700 block of East Highway.

Involved in it were a 1973 Ford driven by Martha L. Hegedus. Reports show the vehicle she was driving was in collision with a utility pole owned by Texas Electric.

Moderate damages were reported to the car and damage to the pole was set at $200.

Between the two was a minor two-vehicle collision at the parking lot of the Perry's variety store.

It involved a parked 1965 Plymouth owned by Dwayne Seay and a parked 1968 Chrysler owned by May Shaffer. Reports indicate one vehicle slipped out of gear and struck the other. It took place at 2:20 p.m.

Another car-utility pole accident was reported at 5:35 p.m. in the 3600 block of Ave. B. There, a 1974 Mercury driven by Michael Tod Fritz was in collision with a utility pole owned by Texas Electric.

Minor damages were reported to the car and damage to the pole was estimated at $50.

The final mishap investigated by city police was this morning at the Handy Hut on College Ave.

Dispatchers reported that a 1962 Volkswagen driven by Robert Hays struck a newspaper rack and a panel on the building. Minor damages were reported to the car and $30-$70 damage reported to the building.

Two Scurry Cases Upheld At Austin

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals this morning affirmed the convictions of Leslie W. Floyd and Richard Dean West, two Scurry Countians.

Floyd was charged with failure to stop and render aid. The charge stems from an April 2, 1976, incident in which a car driven by Floyd was in collision with a motorcycle driven by Loomis Lane Allen. Floyd was charged with leaving the scene of the accident without giving aid to the injured Allen. Allen reportedly sustained a broken leg.

In the Richard Dean West case, West was charged with escape. He was participating in a work-release program when he failed to report to authorities. The offense occurred July 24, 1975.

Floyd is presently serving a three-year prison term in the Texas Department of Correction and West is now serving a five-year term.

In its affirmation, the court of appeals in effect said there were no reversible errors in either case, and upheld the men's convictions in 132nd District Court here.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 were higher in midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low middling 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 4 points to 60.52 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday afternoon prices were $2.20 to $2.70 a bale higher than the previous close. Oct 63.05, Dec 65.28, and Mar 67.50.

Livestock

FORT WORTH (AP) - Cattle and calves: 100 300 less than estimated; cattle for special sale on Thursday. Not enough any class on offer to test trends.

Hogs: 100; barrows and gilts steady. US 1-2 200-230 lbs. 48.50-49.50; US 2-3 200-250 lbs. 49.50-48.50.

Sows: Steady. US 1-3 300-600 lbs. 42.00-42.50.

Boars: 300-650 lbs. 31.00-32.00; 150-250 lbs. 36.00-37.00.

Lake C-City Up Two Feet

COLORADO CITY - Lake Colorado City has caught two feet or more of water while Lake Champion has risen very little, reports B.B. Hardee of Texas Electric Service Company.

Hardee said Lake Champion has not caught much water because its watershed was so dry that the slow-falling rain soaked into the ground. He said conditions are now right for any additional rain to run off into the lake. Areas to the north and south of Loraine make up the watershed.

More than 4½ inches have fallen on Lake C-City's watershed which extends to Coahoma, east of Big Spring. The lake, shrunk by recent drought conditions, has caught two feet or more and continues to rise.

Large fruit bats live in colonies in the Philippines and are often hunted for their flesh and fur.

Royals Real AL West Pennant...

Alexander Shatters No-Hitter

By The Associated Press

The crowd of 3,662 rose to its feet at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore as left-hander Mike Flanagan faced Cleveland's Gary Alexander for what it hoped would be the final out of the first no-hitter by an Orioles' pitcher since 1969.

Then, almost in unison, they sat down when Alexander launched his 26th home run of the season into the right field bleachers.

"The pitch," Flanagan explained after the 3-1 victory Tuesday night, "was not really where I wanted it."

But it was just where Alexander wanted it.

Flanagan, 19-14, may well do enough second-guessing himself. After Alexander touched home plate, he gave up singles to Ted Cox and Duane Kuiper, then was replaced on the mound by Don Stanhouse, who preserved the triumph for Flanagan and recorded his 23rd save in the process.

Meanwhile, the American League's top East Division teams remained one game apart with five games to play while the Kansas City Royals clinched their third consecutive AL West title.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 1

Bucky Dent and Mickey Rivers cracked RBI doubles in the second inning to carry New York past Toronto and keep the Yankees first-place lead at one game in the East.

Royals 4, Mariners 1

Kansas City permitted itself a mild celebration after Larry Gura's three-hitter carried the Royals to their third straight crown.

But the champagne festival lacked the intensity of the last two.

Gura, 16-4, got offensive help from Amos Otis, who singled twice and drove in two runs to raise his average to .300 and his career-high RBI total to 95.

A's 10, White Sox 3

Rob Picciolo's second homer in two nights capped an eight-run seventh-inning rally and helped Oakland beat Chicago to snap a six-game losing streak.

Twins 6, Rangers 2

Roy Smalley's RBI double and two Texas errors helped Minnesota score five ninth-inning runs and snap a seven-game Rangers winning streak.

Astros 2, Braves 0

Ken Forsch relieved Joe Niekro in the ninth to save Houston's victory. But Phil will pitch in the Braves' season-ending series against Cincinnati in his bid for his third 20-victory season.

Women Invade Yank Clubhouse

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Yankees are being chased by the Boston Red Sox...and a bunch of women.

Not the usual baseball groupies. Rather, they are newswomen who invaded the Yankees' clubhouse Tuesday night following a court ruling ordering baseball's locker room doors opened to all accredited members of the media regardless of sex.

Five women were in the Yankees' dressing - and undressing - quarters. They included four television reporters - one from as far away as upstate Schenectady, N.Y. - and one writer from a New Jersey newspaper.

"It's enough to make me come out of retirement," quipped former catcher Fran Healy, who ended his active career earlier in the season and became a broadcaster.

Some players like Sparky Lyle and Reggie Jackson weren't bashful about disrobing and parading around the clubhouse as if only male members of the media were present.

"It's not a very comfortable situation," said relief pitcher Rich Gossage. "They don't belong here. As athletes, we feel this is a pretty private place for us. It's a place to get away from people and be comfortable. If a woman is able to handle it professionally, I guess it's okay, but if they're gonna stand around and watch you undress...."

"Where are they when you need 'em?" third base coach Dick Howser asked with a smile. "When you need 'em, you can't stir 'em with a stick. Now they're all over the place."

Pitcher Ron Guidry, who rarely gets excited, shrugged it off.

"They've gotten into everything else," he said. "But if I walked into their locker room, they'd probably have an epileptic fit."

Pete Sheeby, who has been in charge of the Yankees' clubhouse for more than 50 years said that a woman in the clubhouse was unheard of in the old days.

"The problem," he grumbled, "is trying to get around them and do your work."

Fems Rolling On; Plaster Coronado

LUBBOCK - Snyder High School varsity volleyball squad extended its perfect season record to 10-0 here last night, drilling Coronado in straight games, 15-2 and 15-8.

In earlier action, Coronado junior varsity handed Snyder its second defeat of the year, 14-13, 7-15, 17-15 in a hard-fought match.

Sherry Neves posted 12 points, and Kathy Harrell added 7 to guide the Tigers over Coronado varsity. Susie Fisher scored 5 points and Cindy Koonsman and Shana Smith garnered 3 each.

"Danna Myers looked real well on defense, as did Cindy and Kathy," commented Coach Joyce Elrod. Kathy and Debbie Myers all had strong hitting games. Sherry Neves played a very good first game, especially in the serving department."

Snyder will not play again until Tuesday, Oct. 3, when they host Seminole.

"We have two strong games next week plus a strong tournament, so I guess it's good we've got some time off," pointed out the coach.

Snyder will play Denver City on Oct. 5 and compete in the Seminole Tournament that weekend.

Tonight, Snyder 9th will be in Monahans at 5, and the Tiger 8th grade teams will bus to Seminole for 5 and 6 p.m. games.

TCU Rookie Has Surgery

FORT WORTH (AP)- Sophomore defensive tackle Willie Williams, who started his first game for Texas Christian against Oregon last Saturday, underwent knee surgery Tuesday and will be out for the rest of the football season, Coach F.A. Dry said.

Williams is being replaced by freshman John McClean of Abilene.

"We hate to lose a guy like Willie," Dry said. "He had really been coming along well in the last couple of weeks, but we have just as much confidence that John can do a good job for us.

Pastorini Walks Out; Phillips Not Worried

HOUSTON (AP) - Disgruntled Houston Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini went AWOL from Tuesday's workout following criticism of his play selection in the 10-6 loss to Los Angeles but Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips expected everything to be ship-shape today.

"I think Dan knows that 44 individuals are more important than one and what is best for the team is for him to come back," Phillips said.

Pastorini's action followed a series of events in which Oiler offensive coordinator Ken Shipp had criticized Pastorini for one play he called and Phillips announced that he would start calling the plays in clutch situations.

Phillips said he met with Pastorini Tuesday morning and Pastorini told him that he would not beat the workout.

The Oilers start putting in their game plans today for Sunday's divisional battle against Cleveland. So far, Phillips said, Pastorini's absence hasn't meant much.

"What we do on Tuesday you can stick in your ear," Phillips said. "We just loosen up and review film."

Phillips said Pastorini, who could not be reached for comment, was just upset at losing the game.

"I know that kid as well as I know anyone and right now his feelings are really hurt," Phillips said. "I've never seen a [illegible] that didn't get [illegible] he lost

"I don't think [illegible] the fact that we're going [illegible] as much as he is [illegible] we lost the game," Phillips said. "I think [illegible] won the ball game, none of this would have come up."

Phillips said the Oilers actually [illegible] making [illegible] their play-calling. It will amount more to a suggestion.

Sideline Glances...

I'm All Right; It's Them!!

By BILL McCLELLAN

I GUESS if Coach Dan Devine and the Irish can't get any help, neither can I. I missed four of 20 predictions last week and it's enough to make a guy give up on the system.

Oh, not that I feel four from 20 is that bad. In fact for me, it's good, but those four were ones I thought were "in the bag." I've been swindled and cheated. And like Devine, maybe I've fallen out of somebody's good graces. But Devine has at least fallen farther than I have.

AH, FAMOUS last words. Don't you just love 'em? Perhaps the greatest ones were uttered by Devine just before the 1978 season when he commented.

"Although we may not be preseason favorites to repeat as National champions, I can assure you that we won't give up the title easily."

NOW, TWO games and two defeats later, the coach is eating those remarks. It's become a full-course meal.

Maybe that's why most coaches make meaningless statements like "We could do real well if we can put it all together this year," or "We'll go out there and do the best we can."

SO IF Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer had said before he trounced Rice 66-7 last week, "They are a vastly underrated team and we'll really have to stay in there with them," I wouldn't have been surprised at all. He got nothing to lose by it, and a lot of pride left afterwards if a disaster should occur no matter how infinite the possibility.

Actually you know, Notre Dame did give up the title rather easily, contrary to Devine's statement. There's no easier way to lose than commit five turnovers - four in the second half - as they did to Michigan.

GETTING TO the point, yes, there is a reason I'm pounding the Irish. It's those darn predictions. Three of the four teams that I wrongly picked to win commited a total of 13 turnovers, plus one allowed a returned kick for a touchdown.

Heck, fire, TCU used a trick play to upset Oregon. How's a guy supposed to do a decent job of prognostications when high-ranked teams make it a point of spotting their opponents by two or three touchdowns? Somebody should have reminded Notre Dame and Alabama who they were playing. Somebody should have reminded me about the recent case of fumblitis going around.

BUT NOBODY, nobody needs to remind Devine anything, not now.

It's History, Contends Cowboy Coach...

Landry Dodges Pardee Critical Remarks

DALLAS (AP)-It was 1972 and the Washington-Dallas rivalry was never any hotter.

And Jack Pardee, the new Washington coach, found himself right in the middle of a controversy as a linebacker for George Allen's team.

Dallas wide receiver Lance Alworth dogged Pardee all day with crackback blocks that finally sent Pardee limping to the sidelines. Later Washington retaliated and a Charley Taylor block put Cowboy linebacker Chuck Howley on the bench for the year.

Pardee has despised the Cowboys since that day. And the topic came up again Monday a full week before the once-beaten World Champions travel to Washington to play the unbeaten Redskins in a critical national Conference Eastern Division game.

"I didn't think it (the crackback) was very good tactic at the time and I still don't," said Pardee in a telephone hookup with Dallas writers. "I'm not all that fond of the Cowboys. However, Dallas is great competition."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry refused to be drawn into a six-year-old controversy. "Oh, Jack just wants to be sure his team is in the right frame of mind when we play them Monday night," said Landry. "We have a great rivalry. When you are in Washington on a Monday night it's an interesting spot to be."

Pressed on the point, Landry said "I'd like to beat them."

Landry said of Pardee "He has a good memory. That crackback thing was back in 1972. That's history."

Landry added "Jack is using the crackback right now. It's legal above the waist and ours was too back when we were using it."

The defending World Champion Cowboys trail the unbeaten Redskins by a full game in the National Conference Eastern Division and Landry said "We've got to beat them if we are going to do any good.

It's too early to call it a must game because the division will be won in the last part of the season. You've got to be within striking distance after eight games. I'm sure they (The Redskins) feel good about the game. They can lose it and still be tied."

Landry said "The Redskins are playing much better than I thought they would be."

He said he thought Pardee was following the old Allen pattern of getting his team psyched.

Landry said "Washington has always been a psychological team. If George could get you thinking about something else it bothers you--you have a problem. Pardee has kept a lot of things he learned around Allen."

The Cowboys will have to juggle their offense because of the loss of tight end Jay Saldi for eight to 10 weeks because of a broken arm.

"We just don't have the flexibility we would like to have," said Landry.

Three Of Four Hold Top Schoolboy Positions

By The Associated Press

Odessa Permian and Highland Park, a pair of playoff-wise Class 4A teams, returned to The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll this week while Grapeland, ranked No. 1 in A last week, won the game but lost its top billing to the Farmersville Farmers.

Temple in 4A, Huntsville in 3A and Mount Vernon in 2A held onto their No. 1 rankings while Grapeland fell into second place with 11 first place votes compared to Farmersville's four.

Grapeland and Farmersville went into last week's games ranked 1-2 in the state with unbeaten records and in weekend games, Grapeland beat Westwood 26-14 and Farmersville knock off Kennedale 34-7.

But when the AP's panel of sports writers and sportscasters cast their weekly ballots, the Farmers had out-pointed the Sandies 184-168 in total points.

Hill To Play For Cleveland

BEREA, Ohio (AP)-"I think I can still play," veteran running back Calvin Hill said after coming out of retirement to sign with the Cleveland Browns Tuesday.

Browns Head Coach Sam Rutigliano concurred. "How much does Cal have left?" Rutigliano pondered the question and replied, "I don't know, but I don't think the tank is empty. He's a bright, classy guy, and I think he'll help."

Hill, who once starred with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, was signed to replace the injured Tom Sullivan. He is expected to see some action in the Houston game Sunday at Municipal Stadium.

Hill, who tried out with the Browns last week, said he hasn't done much "in the way of exercise except for some tennis since leaving the Washington training camp.

"I was there for all the two-a-day drills and feel I'm in pretty good shape for a guy who has played nine pro seasons."

As for learning the Browns' system, "this is my fourth pro team, and they all have pretty much the same offense except the plays have different names and numbers," Hill said. "It's a matter of learning the terminology and getting into football condition."

With Sullivan knocked out by the knee injury against Pittsburgh Sunday and Greg Pruitt also nursing a knee injury, the Browns were down to three backs - Mike Pruitt, Cleo Miller and rookie Larry Collins. And all of them have some ailment.

Solomon Upset In Open Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Bruce Manson of Los Angeles upset seventh-seeded Harold Solomon 6-3, 7-5 in the first round of the $175,000 men's open tennis tournament at the Cow Palace.

In another upset, Mike Cahill eliminated 12th-seeded Stan Smith 6-3, 6-4.

In other matches, 14th-seeded Bob Lutz beat Jean Chantreau of France 7-6, 4-6, 7-6; Tim Gullickson, No. 11, bested Dennis Ralston 6-1, 6-4; No. 10 Dick Stockton defeated defending champion Butch Walts 6-4, 6-4; No. 8 John McEnroe defeated Dave Schneider of South Africa 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 and fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner ousted John Austin 7-5, 6-3.

Rote Jr. Sold To HoustonHurricane

DALLAS (AP)-The Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League announced Tuesday night they have sold their most popular player - Dallas native Kyle Rote Jr. - to the rival Houston Hurricane.

Tornado General Manager Fred Hoster confirmed the sale price was in six figures, but would not disclose the exact figure. Sources said the price was around $120,000.

"Dallas would have been stupid to have refused that much money for me," Rote said after the deal was announced. "The money Houston paid will increase the Tornado's player budget by 60 per cent."

Hoster said, "The money changes our whole financial status on recruiting players. We can do more now. When you get an offer the size of this, you can't refuse it."

In his six seasons with the Tornado, Rote - whose father was an All-America football player at Southern Methodist University - set club records for goals and total points in a career.

Man Charged; Player Dies

IRVING (AP)-A Dallas man has been charged with murder in the stabbing death of Texas Christian University football player James Timothy Roche Jr.

Robert Paul Jenkins, 20, was jailed Monday under $50,000 bond after surrendering to police Sunday. He also is charged with attempted murder in the stabbing of another man during a fight in which Roche was killed.

Roche, 19, of Austin, was a freshman reserve wide receiver.

Grain Of Sand Is Charted

TEMPLE, Ariz. (AP)- It's a strange new planet, with jutting mountain peaks surrounding gouged valleys - a lifeless moon, perhaps, if it were larger than 3 millimeters.

An Arizona State University graduate student has charted the surface of this unknown world - a grain of sand.

William Wellendorf spent 120 hours piecing together 1,100 electron microscope photographs into a 10-foot mosiac, all part of his work toward a master's degree in geology.

Dr. David Krinsley, head of ASU's geology department, says it's the first time for such a detailed portrait of a grain of sand.

"Irregularities on grain surfaces enable scientists to chart the history of a grain of sand more than 200 million years in the past," he said. "We can study very small portions of sand grains and determine, for instance, whether an area has been glaciated or exposed to desert conditions."

He says he's been studying sand for 15 years, and he's never seen anything like Wellendorf's display.

"Viewing an entire grain rather than limited portions gives one a new perspective," he said.

No Injuries In Flooded Pecos

By The Associated Press

Flood water roared through Pecos early today as the rising Pecos River forced about 40 families from their homes.

More rain continued in Southwest Texas, but forecasters said it was light. But Pecos was expected to continue having problems with high water for about four days, forecasters said.

No one has been injured in the flooding, officers said.

The Rio Grande crested at 26 feet below the tops of levees in the Presidio area. The flooding will move downstream along the Rio Grande.

Elsewhere around the state, skies were cloudy except clear skies were reported in northern sections of the Texas Panhandle and in the El Paso area.

Forecasts called for more rain in central and eastern portions of the state. Highs were expected to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 70s in South Texas to the 50s in Northwest Texas. Early morning extremes ranged from 54 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 77 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Some early morning readings included 55 at Amarillo, 66 at Wichita Falls, 67 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 70 at Austin, 67 at Lufkin, 69 at Houston, 74 at Corpus Christi, 67 at Del Rio, 59 at San Angelo, 55 at El Paso and 58 at Lubbock.

Light rain and fog was reported at Abilene, Del Rio, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Angelo. Fog was also reported at Brownsville and McAllen.

Aids Nationals

WASHINGTON (AP)- The House has passed a bill that would greatly increase tax benefits for U.S. nationals working abroad. Similar provisions were trimmed by lawmakers two years ago.

The legislation, which goes to the Senate, would largely restore the old benefits and add more.

Lions Seeking Donations Of Eye Glasses

A booth is being set up at the Scurry County Fair by the Lions Club where people may contribute used eye glasses to the Lions Sight Conservation Program.

Anyone who has eye glasses which they no longer can use is asked to bring them to the Lions booth in the coliseum. The Lions Clubs of District 2T2 are collecting the used eye glasses for distribution to persons who desperately need them. They will be distributed at no cost to the recipient.

Lions Club officials reported that eye glasses are needed now by many people in Mexico and Central America in small villages which do not have optometrists or doctors.

CHOICES
Karen Blaker Ph.D.

Two for one

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — You probably receive many letters from women whose marriages are in trouble because they started careers. Well, my marriage is troubled and my painting is causing the tension.

My husband is president of a large Midwest corporation. For 15 years, I faithfully performed all the expected wifely duties, including frequent entertaining and chairing the Corporate Wives Group. The purpose of the group was — and still is, for all I know — helping wives to be better helpmates to their upward-bound husbands.

Then I decided to do something different. I started taking painting classes to renew my long-dormant wish to become an artist. Everyone was appropriately patient with my "hobby," as they called it.

But last year, I really started to get involved in my new career. That meant I had to refuse some of my usual duties — not because I loved my husband less but because I was beginning to love myself more.

I know he is very upset. He feels betrayed. Even my women friends are shocked by my lack of "loyalty." I need a few words of support.

DEAR READER — I can give you more than a few words. I can offer you my total support. And when you get more involved in your painting career, you will no doubt find other women who understand and admire your move toward personhood.

The inequity of the wife's longstanding role as helpmate received national attention recently when Ann Cox Chambers was appointed ambassador to Belgium. Her husband did not want to — nor was he expected to — take over the usual tasks of an ambassador's wife.

Uncertain about how to handle the matter, the State Department paid one of Mrs. Chambers' female friends $26,022 to handle the same duties that diplomats' wives have traditionally performed free.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, recognizing the unfairness of the system, recommended a major study on the feasibility of compensating spouses for their work.

As you know, this inequity is perpetuated in business as well as government.

Never being one to wait for the results — much less the implementation — of government studies, I suggest that women tackle the problem themselves by refusing en masse the helpmate role.

When more role models like you have forged their own lives with dedication and diplomacy, men may take note and even brag about their "self-actualized" wives. And those who force their wives to remain extensions of themselves will be considered weak and needy.

Impossible? Unlikely? I don't think so. But I have been accused of being an eternal optimist.

P.S. Don't forget to invite me to the opening of your first show of paintings in New York City.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Swiss Shopping Across Border

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) - Christmas is still three months away but many Swiss are on a shopping binge that is worrying businessmen in this city, reputedly the wealthiest in the Western world.

Retailers are concerned because bargain-hunters from Basel and a growing number of other Swiss realize spectacular savings are in store if they spend their francs across the border, in neighboring West Germany or in France.

Switzerland is a small country geographically, and it would be as if most U.S. shoppers realized they were only miles from tremendous savings in some neighboring country.

As both the German mark and the French franc - along with the dollar and all other currencies - are plunging almost daily to ever new lows against Swiss money, the buys were never better for the Swiss, statistically proven to be the thriftiest people on earth.

"I would be crazy if I would not come here," said a middle-aged Swiss housewife as she fed a parkometer in Loerrach, a West German border town of 35,000 about a 10-minute ride from here.

Loerrach, where the flow of Swiss-licensed cars is causing traffic jams almost every weekend, has become a favorite shopping place for Basel citizens. The French town of St. Louis is equally close but the buying there is chiefly for food and wine.

With the average monthly salary of a sales clerk now at 3,753 francs - $2,470 - the Swiss have impressive purchasing power in the two neighboring countries where salaries - and prices - are now roughly about 30 per cent lower.

Often, the bargains are much better than even the average price gap. Three bottle of Scotch cost a Swiss buyer in Germany as much as a single bottle of the same make costs in Switzerland.

Two pounds of steak bought in France - the maximum allowed per border crossing - cost a Swiss about $10.45 across the border and $20.90 at a local butcher.

A German-made hi-fi in Loerrach costs $846, compared with $1,257 for exactly the same model when bought in a Swiss store.

For a German-made washing machine, the difference is even more staggering: $445 in Germany, $913 in Switzerland.

Cheating customs would be silly because even with taxation, the savings are still substantial.

The most tempting bargains are cars. Switzerland, where there is one car for every three inhabitants, has no auto production of its own. Dealers are reluctant to pass up huge profits, thus the potential economy for a "private import" is impressive.

Although prices were high, American consumers bought more real gold and silver accessories in 1977 than in 1976, reports Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist.

The largest jewelry consumption, however, was in gold tone, she points out.

HONORED BY TESCO--D.J. Culp, right, was one of those inducted into Texas Electric Service Company's "Quarter Century Club" Tuesday night at Colorado City. Looking over Culp's Quarter Century watch are W.G. Marquardt, TESCO president, and Mrs. Culp.

Michelangelo was commissioned to make the Pieta in 1498.

Says TESCO President...

Regulations, Inflation Increase Electric Bills

COLORADO CITY–Federal over-regulation and inflation fueled by government spending are responsible for rate increases, Texas Electric President Bill Marquardt said here Tuesday night.

Marquardt, speaking at the company's annual Quarter Century Club banquet, told employees, "Without those two things we wouldn't need this rate increase and wouldn't have needed the last one either."

The banquet at the Colorado City Civic Center was held in honor of eight employees recognized for completing 25 years service with the company.

In his address, Marquardt referred to Big Brown, the company's lignite plant near Fairfield, to illustrate what he termed "run-away inflation."

"We finished building it (the plant) in 1971, just seven years ago. If we started building that very same plant today, it'd cost four times as much by the time we finished it...Now that's ridiculous."

This cost increase has been caused by inflation and "excessive bureaucratic regulations" and these have added unnecessary increases to customers' bills. "Like, for example, those scrubbers we have to put on. We don't even need them, because lignite doesn't have much sulfur in it in the first place."

Marquardt pointed out that over-regulation of that sort doesn't help customers get better electricity or healthier air. "What it does is keep a bunch of papershufflers in Washington employed and force our customer's bills higher."

He then added he would feel "a whole lot better" if the country received the same kind of care that TESCO employees give their customers.

Marquardt praised employees for the excellent job they are doing in a time when it is not easy to work for a utility. He expressed sympathy for the fact that employees must contend with conflicting complaints on matters over which they have no control.

"One group complains because we're burning coal--which is dirtier than gas. Another group turns around and complains because we're burning gas--which is more scarce than coal. And then there are those using scare tactics as we try to build the nuclear plant!"

Marquardt told employees he is aware of their compassion for customers who are having a hard time meeting rising energy costs, and that he, too, shares their concern.

Marquardt commended employees for expressing their concern by showing customers ways to lower their personal electric bills. He singled out the company's new Tighten-Up program as one method designed to do just that.

"Tighten-Up teaches people how to use less electricity--and less gas. It teaches them how they can keep their bills from being so high."

He added that in addition to helping customers learn how to control their electric bills, employees are helping them understand why rates are going up.

"There's a real simple reason," Marquardt concluded. "As you well know, we are trying to build new plants that will use cheaper and more plantiful lignite and nuclear fuels. That's so we can continue to provide good service and keep people's bills as low as possible."

New members of the Quarter Century Club include D.J. Culp of Hermleigh.

Herbal Tonic Helps Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) - An herbal tonic has helped two Soviet cosmonauts become the first men to spend more than 100 days orbiting the Earth.

A Soviet doctor monitoring the condition of Vladimir Kovalenok and Alexander Ivanchenkov said officials were "fully satisfied" with the health of the two men.

Dr. Nikolai Gurovsky said the cosmonauts, who passed the 100-day mark Sunday, seldom use the first-aid kit aboard their Salut 6 space station.

They prefer "eleutherococcus," Gurovsky said, explaining the drink is an herbal tonic that "combines good food and medicinal qualities."

The first steam engine in the American colonies arrived from England in 1753 to serve as a water pump.
