Schools Await Total Enrollment Of More Than 7,500 Students

Everything in Readiness for Opening Of Fall Term Monday When Pupils Come Back After Summer Vacation

With a scholastic total of more than 9,000, according to the last official census, it is believed by Dr. J. W. Cantwell and other officials that enrollment in the public schools which open Monday will reach 7,500. Everything is in readiness for the summons of the school bell on that morning; cafeterias have been added to several of the schools and the roll of teachers is now complete.

J. E. Park, principal of the Alamo school, estimates the enrollment there at about 865 students for the first few weeks, due to the number of the Ben Franklin school who will have to attend Alamo for a short time. This number, however, is not as large as the enrollment there last year, the Crockett school having divided the Alama district. Several improvements have been made in the building, a new auditorium and cafeteria having been added and a new Ivers and Pond grand piano have been purchased and will be installed Monday. A formal opening in the form of a reception for parents, teachers and those interested in the school will be given in the new lunchroom the second week of school.

Miss Bess Stewart, principal of the Austin school, will not return from her vacation until today, but it is supposed that Austin school will continue to have one of the largest enrollments in the public schools of the city.

Sam Houston school, according to the principal, Miss Frances E. Bone, will probably enroll about 450 pupils this year. This school as do others, has a well-equipped cafeteria and playground.

The largest enrollment of any in the city is expected by H. A. Glass, principal of the Junior high school. The buildings at Eleventh and Broad and at Thirteenth and Bluff will hardly hold all the seventh and eighth graders expected to attend, which number has been roughly estimated at 1400.

J. T. Rundell, principal of the Carrigan school, is expecting from 400 to 500 students in his district to attend school this year. Here, as elsewhere, there is a modern lunchroom and equipment.

San Jacinto, Bowie, Crockett, Huey and Barwise schools could not be secured for estimates on attendance, but it is supposed that they, too, will find increased attendance Monday, and that the "housing problem" will be as acute there as elsewhere.

According to A. K. Presson, registrar, the high school enrollment will be near the thousand mark, 984 having already signed up for courses. On Saturday, the first enrollment day for Junior college students, there were more than the number that matriculated on the first day of enrollment in 1925, and approximate estimates place the final enrollment at about 250.

Benito Jaurez, the school for Mexicans, will probably have more than the last year's enrollment, which was 85, in the estimate of Mrs. K. Samuels, teacher. The addition of a cafeteria, due to the interest of the D. A. R. organization of the city, has made it possible for many to have more wholesome food and enjoy school life.

Between 750 and 800 are expected at the Washington school, of which A. E. Holland is principal. About 700 were enrolled last year, and a considerable increase is expected.

Gods of Politics are Cruel to Lenroot and Kind to Negro Valet

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Consolidated Press Association

THE Gods of political fortune have been cruel indeed these last few years to Senator Irwin Lenroot of Wisconsin, who has just been defeated for re-nomination in Wisconsin after a life of death struggle with the La-Follette wing of the party.

According to the shuffle of the political cards six years ago, Senator Lenroot should be president of the United States today instead of a prospective "lame duck," out of a job after the fourth of next March. But somehow or rather there was a misdeal at Chicago in 1920. It was a misdeal which threw Lenroot into the discard, so to speak, and which elevated Calvin Coolidge unexpectedly to the seats of the mighty.

It is an old story now but it bears retelling in the face of the latest misfortune to overtake Mr. Lenroot. Everyone who knew anything at the republican convention of 1920 knew that after Warren G. Harding became the presidential nominee it was agreed among the leaders that Senator Lenroot should become his running mate. The word was passed around and there was such general agreement leaders paid no attention to the details of putting the thing over. They left the convention hall and hurried away to the Blackstone hotel where a gala luncheon was awaiting them and where they made merry over the happy outcome of a convention which threatened at first to tear the party asunder as Governor Lowden and General Wood engaged in a struggle which was full of fire and brimstone.

* * *

"NOMINATE Lenroot and do it as speedily as possible," the leaders had instructed their lieutenants. The stage was set. The delegates were restive. The struggle for the presidency had been a hectic one. The delegates had not been in the conferences in the smoke-filled rooms at 2 a. m. but had been glad to carry out the instructions of their mentors. They were ready to vote for Lenroot, too, although most of them had not been taken into confidence on the deal. It was not thought necessary.

* * *

EITHER because of that oversight or because the nominators and seconders of Mr. Lenroot took entirely too long about their task, things went all wrong. At what may truthfully be termed a psychological moment, a headless and heedless final session of the convention, an obscure lawyer from Oregon, Mr. McCamant, jumped on his chair on the convention floor and let out a resounding whoop for Calvin Coolidge. Delegates who had become bored and wearied by the tactics of the Lenroot leaders, began to shout "we want Coolidge." In a few minutes they got him. Mr. Lenroot was left high and dry.

The big party leaders at their luncheon heard the news. They were sorry for Lenroot. They had given their word to him, but if the delegates ran away from the convention, what could they do? They shrugged their shoulders. That shrug marked the advent of Calvin Coolidge into the life of the nation and may yet make of him the first man to serve a third term in the White House.

Bond Validation and An Inquiry Into State Affairs Looms

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS.
Record News Staff.

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—The Texas legislature will meet in special session Monday noon for the first time in 18 months, the first sitting since storm clouds gathered about the Ferguson administration, and for the final meeting while Miriam A. Ferguson is governor.

The session will be called to order by Lieut. Governor Barry Miller of the senate, and Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the house, in haze of uncertainty whether it will be peaceful or stormy; whether bond validation will be the major subject before it, or whether the members will accept the challenge laid down by the woman governor in her call for an investigation of state departments.

Two divergent elements in the legislature are jockeying for position in pre-session activities among the dozens of members who are already gathering here and who will reach Austin Sunday and Monday. The bond validators, seeking to restore the credit of Texas, and make good the defective bonds voted in good faith, are trying to limit the special session to enactment of the necessary one general bill and 500 special statutes, and to adjourn within 10 or 12 days.

Two members, George Furl of Dallas and A. H. King of Throckmorton, have already announced their intention to push investigations of state departments.

Test in Senate.

A test in the senate, on confirmation of Governor Ferguson's recess appointees, including Hal Moseley and John Cage, new members of the highway commissioin, is expected to show early in the session, whether the session is to

HOUSTON COP FIRED

Motorcycle Officer Suspended For Being On Party.

HOUSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Henry Bradshaw, motorcycle officer, attached to the fire department, was suspended by Superintendent of Police Tom C. Goodson Saturday on a charge of conduct unbecoming to an officer.

According to a report made to Chief Goodson, Bradshaw was among a number of persons found by the vice squad when officers raided a Houston residence.

100 FLU VICTIMS

Heavy Casualty List Reported by Incoming Steamer.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Nearly 100 men and women of the Herschel island region and 35 adults at Coronation Gulf, both on the North American coast of the Atrtic ocean had died in an influenza epidemic when the trading schooner Old Maid No. 2 visited there this summer, Captain Carl Klenenburg reported upon his arrival here today.

PERMITS CLIMB

HOUSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Building permits issued in Houston Saturday had reached $21,233,788, more than $3,000,000 in excess of the high mark reached by the end of September, 1925.

Contest Entries Swamp Record News Office To Boost Big T-O Exhibits

"Don't Call Me Baby, I'm a Texas-Oklahoma Fairy."

Thus exhorts L. D. Belden, whose Saturday offering of the above line won the $1 prize being offered daily by the Record News for the best booster ad for the big exposition. If Mr. Belden will call Monday, his $1 bill will be awaiting him.

Letters with entries for the contest poured into the Record News office yesterday in ever-increasing volume. All of them made suggestions of merit, but Mr. Belden's sparkling admonition ranked at the top.

Poetry continued to find favor. For example:

Fog Horn Claney will be there,
With horns and hoofs and hide and hair.
Saddle-Mammas with knees all bare
Throwing the Bull at the T-O fair.

That was submitted by Willie Jones of the Texas Pipe Line company who went on to write "if this wins, take the dollar and go around to Sauls and buy a new pair of unionalls for the little cotton-headed newsboy that wears the yellow ones with the seat mostly missing.

T. A. Bradley, after penning an apologic first verse, went on to say.

But read them all over
And give them the test
Before you shall give them the air
Then chuck in the basket
And forget all the rest
But continue to boast for our fair.

There were scores of others, some from as far away as Childress.

It was announced in Saturday's paper and is announced again that hereafter poetry, unless it is confined to one line, will not be acceptable. What is wanted mainly is a single, well-composed line telling something about or challenging attention to the fair. The prize winner this morning is an excellent example.

Motor Tour To Boom T-O Fair

Huge Torch Will Light Childress as Fair Is Started

CHILDRESS, Sept. 11.—(AP) A great flambeau torch one hundred feet high and burning natural gas from the Wheeler county field will be lighted here Tuesday night to celebrate the opening of the Childress state fair, here.

The natural gas will be brought to Childress through a six-inch pipe line system that has cost more than five million dollars, and when it reaches the distributing system in the city, eighty miles from the well, it will still have a pressure of more than three hundred pounds to the square inch.

The gas will be turned into the distributing mains about Sept. 20, it is reported here.

ELECTRA COPS SEIZE LIQUOR

238 Gallons Confiscated From Roadside Hiding Place

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Sept. 11.—What is believed to be the largest whiskey capture in the history of Wichita county was effected here shortly after noon today By Sid Smith, justice of the peace; and Deputy Constable Patty, when they uncovered a cache containing 238 gallons of liquor eight miles east of Electra. The liquor was hidden in a clump of mesquite bushes about two miles south of the paved road. No arrest were made, the place being apparently deserted when the two officers arrived. The liquor was confiscated and all of it dumped into the sewer at the Electra city hall. A 54-gallon keg was turned over and its contents poured on the ground at the scene of the cache.

According to persons familiar with the "bootleg" traffic in Wichita Falls the confiscated liquor was worth at current wholesale prices. $8.00 a gallon, slightly less than $2,000, and at retail prices of $2.50 a pint, approximately $4,760.

SHEFFIELD MEETS CAL

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Both foreign and domestic questions are understood to have been discussed today with President Coolidge by James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico. While no announcement was made after the visit there were indications that some phases of the Mexican situation were mentioned and that the ambassador could be expected to make some speeches, at least in New York state during the fall congressional campaign.

3-DAY JAUNT PLANNED FOR COMING WEEK

Childress, Wellington and Altus to be Included In Points Visited

A three-day automobile tour to advertise the Texas-Oklahoma fair through Northwest Oklahoma was definitely decided on in a conference between Mayor R. E. Shepherd and officials of the chamber of commerce Saturday afternoon.

Under the plans announced it is hoped that 15 or more automobiles will make the trip, and that as many 50 persons can be included in the party of fair promotors. The motor caravan will leave the city Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and visit the fairs at Childress, Wellington and Frederick, Okla., returning to Wichita Falls late Friday night. In making the trip to these points it is also planned to spend a few minutes in Vernon and Quanah, and other points along the route.

Night in Childress.

The first night will be spent in Childress, arriving there about 4 o'clock. The fair will be taken in and officials visited, after which the party will leave for Wellington where the Collingsworth county fair will be in session. Most of the day will be spent there attending the fair and Thursday night will be spent in Altus, Okla., going from Altus to Frederick, Okla.

"We are anxious that every man in the city who can possibly do so make this trip with us," Mayor Shepherd said Saturday. "We can do the city a great good by such a trip, and more, we will give the Texas-Oklahoma fair an inestimable amount of advertising. Such a trip as this should have been taken long ago. It should be the means of creating a more friendly feeling toward Wichita Falls and toward the fair."

"We expect to complete all the details for the trip Tuesday, and we are anxious that all who can make the trip get in touch with the chamber of commerce not later than Monday afternoon. Let us make this one of the most successful trips of the kind we have ever had. It means much to Wichita Falls.

COLLECTS $1,684,508

Terrell Reports Good Collections For Quarter

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)— For the quarter ending June 30, gross receipts taxes collected by Comptroller S. H. Terrell amounted to $1,684,508, of which $1,338,750 was derived from the two per cent gross production tax on crude oil, the records show. For the previous quarter the gross receipts tax netted $1,632,988 of which $1,132,796 was from the crude oil tax.

In the quarter ending June 30 the sulphur tax amounted to $101,408; telephone companies $94,755; public utilities companies $40,523; street railways, $27,927; Pullman company, $18,239, and telegraph companies paid $17,233.

BUSINESS SUSTAINED

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Volume of business has been well sustained this week. Values continued to strengthen in as much as dealers are steadily refusing to break their asking prices. During the past ten days there has been the most general market experienced since the spurt in early summer. Combing wools has featured the market but lately the market for woolen wools has shown a demand for increased volume.

IDLE CLASSES

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The big cotton crop this year will keep about 3,000 school children out of school in an Antonio until most of the crop is gathered, along in November and early December, according to William J. Knox, assistant superintendent of the city schools.

THE WEATHER

Local weather conditions for the past 24-hour period reported by the Wichita Falls Electric Company bureau: Maximum temperature, 94 degrees; minimum, 71; at 5 p m Saturday 94 degrees; no precipitation; southeast breeze, clear; average wind velocity, five miles per hour; maximum wind velocity, eight miles per hour; barometer, 29.06.

OKLAHOMA: Sunday, showers, colder Monday; generally fair.

EAST TEXAS: Sunday and Monday partly cloudy, showers Sunday night or Monday, cooler in the interior by Monday; light to moderate southerly winds on the coast.

WEST TEXAS: Sunday cloudy, probably showers; somewhat colder; Monday generally fair.

Texas-Oklahoma Fair Entries Fill Rapidly as Big Exposition Nears; Few Prize Money Events are Left

Inquiries to Fair Office Indicate Best and Biggest Array of Exhibits Ever Arranged Here; Farm and Livestock to Head List of Fine Displays

With the Texas-Oklahoma fair less than three weeks away there are hardly any first places left in the list of entries, but a few events on which prize money has been offered are still unchallenged, Manager R. E. Shepherd announced Saturday after looking over the prospects from an entry standpoint.

First place in the county exhibits goes to Randall county, officials from Canyon having had their application in for several weeks. A number of other counties are also signed up for an exhibit, and this item will probably be the best it has been in years.

With $1,600 offered in the horse show events there will be a late scramble for these offerings and in this division some fast work will have to be done to care for the entries. There are plenty of first class animals within shipping radius of Wichita Falls and

Veteran Political Writer Of Dallas News Dies In Hospital

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 11.—(AP)—John Sneed, 53, for 27 years staff correspondent of the Dallas News, died at a hospital here early Saturday evening following an operation, Mr. Sneed had been ill since last spring, having been stricken while on a trip with a party of Dallas business men.

At one time Mr. Sneed was stationed at Mexico iCty as correspondent for the Dallas News and New York Herald. After coming to Dallas on the regular staff of the News, he became one of the widest known political writers in the southwest.

Starting in journalism before the use of typewriters was demanded of the men who "cover" news events, Mr. Sneed developed a speed in longhand reporting seldom seen today. The thoroughness and accuracy of his reporting was phenominal.

CHARGES DISMISSED

Criminal Case Against Negro Dropped After Five Years

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Criminal assault charges filed nearly five years ago against Luther Collins, Houston negro, were dismissed Thursday at Brenham, it became known in Houston Saturday. District attorney Merton Harris dismissed the charges in the criminal district court of Washington county.

The negro was assessed the death penalty a month later but the court of criminal appeals reversed the case and remanded it for another trial. In March 1924, another jury failed to agree and the case was sent to Fort Bend county on change of venue.

Dade Scott, upon Monopoly received a broken hip and fractured leg and is reported to be in a critical condition.

M. P. TO BUILD 84-MILE LINE

Is Expected to Seek Permission From Commission

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Missouri Pacific system will likely ask permission of the interstate commerce commission to build approximately 84 miles of new railroad, which would link Eagle Pass, a port of entry on the Mexican border, to tidewater at Corpus Christi, it was learned at San Antonio Saturday.

F. H. McGuigan, Jr., of Houston engineering assistant with the executive department of the Gulf Coast Lines, who has just completed a preliminary survey of the two gaps it would be necessary to fill on the San Antonio, Uvalde and Gulf Line, recently acquired by the Missouri Pacific in order to connect the border with the gulf, was here Saturday. He was accompanied by J. M. Ball of Houston, assistant general freight agent of the Gulf Coast lines.

TO DEMAND TAX CUT

Half-Billion Dollar Slice Will Be The Demo Plea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A half-billion dollar tax reduction will be demanded by the democrats at the next session of congress, Senator Simmons, North Carolina, ranking democrat on the senate finance committee declared tonight in a statement issued through the democratic national committee.

He charged the republicans with deliberately attempting to hold off another reduction until next year to further the ambitions of republican presidential aspirants and to provide political capital.

Business Panic Within Next Few Years Not An Impossibility--Babson

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept. 11.—(AP)—While most things point to several years of prosperity, "a distinct recession in business and possibly a panic within the next two or three years would not be surprising," Roger W. Babson, head of the Babson Statistical organization, told delegates to the 13th annual national business conference which opened here today.

Such a decline would be merely temporary, he added, but when it comes "it will be a result of the over-extension of the installment business which today is eating into the vitals of business like a cancer."

Readjustment would bring industries to greater heights than ever, he added.

"Business at present is good, considering the country as a whole, of prosperity ahead of us, but most American people are living in a fool's paradise and may be rudely awakened at any time."

The best conditions exist on the Pacific coast and in the Oklahoma section; the poorest in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Florida and the Rocky Mountain states, he said. The Babson chart, "a composite barometer of all lines and all sections now stands at 12 per cent above normal."

"Labor is quiet, money is easy, commodities are stable and most industries are enjoying a good volume of business, but there are three flies in the ointment. First, the foreign situation which is still very bad; second, the installment business, which is eating the vitals out of the American people, and third the fact that the manufacturing capacity of almost all industries exceeds the consuming power."

DUCE, UNHURT, THUNDERS OUT HOT CHARGES

Relations Between Nations More Strained Than Ever Before

ROME, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A bomb flung at Premier Mussolini this morning by an Italian anarchist, who had sneaked back into the country from France to kill him, failed to reach its mark, but has caused relations of fascist Italy and republican France to be more tense than any day since the black shirts entered Italy in October, 1922.

Saved from death by the alertness of the chauffeur who stamped on the gas when he felt the bomb strike the motor car, the supreme chief of fascism this evening faced a mob of a hundred thousand cheering patriots and announced that Italy would demand that plots against her peace fermented on France soil must be stopped at once.

"This must end," shouted Il Duce to an immense gathering in Colonna square tonight. "We must put an end to gentle tolerance of parties culpable in these matters. It would be well for responsible governments to take note of this because otherwise their friendship with the Italian people may be fatally compromised. And we are ready to apply suitable methods for this purpose."

Plainly Meant France.

Premier Mussolini used the words "governments" in the plural and did not refer by name to his neighbor across the Alps, but it was crystally clear he meant France.

The third attempt within this year to murder the facist dictator was a dramatic affair of but a few seconds. As the premier was riding in his closed limousine from his home in Villa Tortolonia to the government office in Chigi Palace, Ermete Giovannini, 26, a marble cutter, stepped from a recess and hurled the bomb. The bomb crashed the glass at Mussolini's side and fell, not in the car, but back on the running board and then rolled to the ground. The chauffeur, scenting danger, increased his speed When the bomb exploded with a terrific detonation the car was twenty yards away and was barely scratched by the flying pieces of the bomb.

Eight Are Injured.

Mussolini escaped without a wound, but eight people in the street lay bleeding from superfluous wounds, Giovannini was captured immediately the police being on hand quickly enough to save him from the vengence of the crowd.

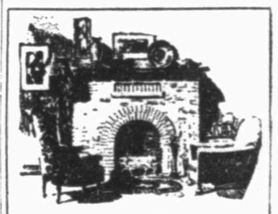

This evening's sequel of the abortive attempt was no less dramatic and vastly more pregnant of meaning not only to Mussolini and Italy, but to all Europe.

"Italy must not be disturbed by a handful of criminals," declared the premier. "As I have abolished strikes as I shall abolish this sort of thing with the restoration of capital punishment. It will be less comfortable to endanger this regime and the tranquility of the Italian people. I am not saying vain words, but am announcing facts."

GALVESTON ISLE RAIDED

Federal Officers Make Big Catch In Saturday Excursion.

GALVESTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents from Houston today raided on Galveston Island and destroyed three stills of a total capacity of 1,100 gallons, 3,800 gallons of mash, 60 gallons of corn whisky and arrested seven men in four raids. Two automobiles were confiscated and at two retail establishments in town the agents destroyed 650 bottles of beer and confiscated about 50 quarts of bonded liquor.

BALKAN CASH KING COMING

Native Georgian Will be Back Home for a Time With the Folks

BL MILLARD FERGUSON,
Special Correspondent of The Record News.

Copyright 1926 by The Consolidated Press Association.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Charley McDaniel, known in southern Europe as "the Hugo Stinnes of the Balkans" and acknowledged to be one of the richest men on the continent, plans to quit his marble palace in Belgrade in a short while for a visit to his parents who live in a little cottage on south Moreland avenue.

Charley McDaniel, now only 35 years old, has had one of the most spectacular careers known to finance. His father, the Rev. Charles B. McDaniel, is a Methodist evangelist, with little more in the way of worldly goods than is the usual lot of preachers. Charley himself was born under simple surroundings, finishing grammar school in Atlanta went to the University of Georgia and was getting started in the business of earning a living when the world war came on.

When the war ruined others, it put him on the road to being a millionaire. He went overseas, with the Second division and served with such distinction that he was cited for bravery. When the armistice was signed, he asked to be mustered out in France and took a post graduate course at one of the schools there. After that he went to Belgrade, the capital of Jugo-Slavia, and started in the automobile business.

It was said that on his arrival in Belgrade, McDaniel's assets consisted chiefly of courage, brains and the clothes he had on—and he lost part of the clothes the first day. He hadn't been in Belgrade 24 hours before his overcoat was stolen, but that didn't lessen his belief that American methods applied to the Balkans would mean big money.

Today, only 7 years later, this up and coming young American owns four immense wholesale import and export establishments, owns three passenger and three freight boats that ply the Danube, owns a street car system and a paper factory, is interested in various power systems and has real estate holdings valued at thousands of dollars.

McDaniel first interested capital in the business possibilities in the Balkans put over every project that he started and finally at 35 has made himself the richest man in Jugo-Slavia and one of the richest in that part of the world. He ha offices in Paris, Brussels, Berlin, London and Liverpool as well as in Belgrade and is well known in Vienna. In fact that entire part of Europ has felt his influence.

Recently McDaniel bid on a contract to pave all the streets of Belgrade. He owns the street car system in the little town of Subotica near the Hungarian border and is said to make something like $10,000 a month from it.

Recently McDaniel has been at work on a new type of river boat known as a glider boat or sea-sled, for use on the Danube. If this boat is successful and everything points that way, the trip from Vienna to Budapest, which now takes 12 hours, can be made in less than three.

One of McDaniels' newest plans is to establish a fast passenger and freight line between one of the foreign ports and New York, he writes home, however, that his greatest desire is to get back to the states for a while and see the town where he was born. His father and mother have visited him twice in Europe, living during the time at a villa he owns in France. He offered to build them a home worth $50,000 near Belgrade so that he can have them close to him, but this was refused by his father who believes his mission is to preach the gospel in Georgia.

Baumes Law Makin the Gun and Blackjack Route A Different One to Tread as Newspapers Open War on Shyster Lawyer Element

By BRADLEY TRENT.
Consolidated Press Assn.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Sing Sing almost spoke its farewell this week to a picturesque old resident—one of the old commuting residents whose travels in and out of the famous prison are made at intervals of one, three or five years or thereabouts. The Baumes law, New York's new weapon which tightens laws grip on the hardened habitual criminal, stopped him.

Well, might William Collins, known to the police as the "Buster Brown burglar," rail and rave at the law. He has been arrested 19 times and convicted ten times, and about half of the fifty years of his life he has spent in prison.

When he was first arrested in 1904, at the age of 12 police say, he wore knee pants and had long curls which earned him the name of the "Buster Brown burglar." The curls have vanished but the name has stuck. After serving three years for grand larceny, Collins or George Brown, as he sometimes prefers to be called, was again arrested this week on the prison threshhold on a charge of attempted burglary in 1923.

Is Losing Lustre.

The watchfulness of officials, spurred by the stringent provisions of the new Baumes law, caught Collins as it is snaring scores of other "old hands" at the game of law-breaking. Crime as a career is beginning to lose a lot of lustre in New York.

It was Baume's law which caused the mad rush of criminals to get into Sing Sing before July 1, when the law took effect. It swept away many old parole privileges forcing a prisoner to serve at least the minimum of his sentence. The law also stiffened the sentences for old offenders and since July 1, many of them have been caught in the net.

The number of major crimes committed in Manhattan alone has been reduced by almost half since July 1, according to the police department. Only 42 cases of armed assault and robbery were recorded for July, as against 87 for the same month last year. Police Commissioner McDaughlin declared the "Baume's law has teeth in it."

"There is no doubt that the new law reaches the habitual criminal with a long known record," the police head said. "He is the type that can not be reformed, who has succeeded in beating the case year after year and becomes broader as he continues his career of crime. The law will be still more effective when it is enforced with regularity and the gunman knows in advance that if he is caught it means life imprisonment or an added sentence for using a gun, without any chance to sway the court with promises of good behavior or to beat a stiff sentence with a plea of guilty."

All Names Checked.

The district attorney's office checks the names of men awaiting trial or sentence who are suspected of having previous records. At present there are about 1,400 names on the trial list and probably a third of these have police records. Under the Baumes law, a criminal convicted on a second felony must be sentenced to a prison term not less than the longest term nor more than twice the longest term prescribed upon the first conviction. For a fourth conviction of a felony, the criminal must be sentenced to life imprisonment.

A mass of police records have been dug up in the drive to weed out the hardened this week. A man arrested this week for burglary turned out to be an old offender who has served four prison terms for burglary since 1910; has been paroled four times and has violated his parole on three occasions. He now faces a life term.

On top of all this active to curb the crime wave, New York newspapers have just opened a concerted attack on the "crook lawyer," who is accused of blocking the path of swift and even justice. They declare the criminal is getting too much special aid and comfort from the bar, and appeal to the bar association's to clean up this situation.

There is consternation in New York's underworld. The gangster and the gunman are finding that the old tricks used in evading the law have lost effectiveness. Many a man in the ranks of crooks do miss "going up the river" never to return.

every president with whom he served admired and respected. Only President Taft knew "Brooks" before he entered the White House. President Wilson, Harding and Coolidge inherited "Brooks" and soon learned to cherish him as a most helpful and indispensible heritage.

With the advent of Major Brooks at the White House, our presidents came to be known as the best dressed man, not only of their own country but of the world. President Taft led the list. He always was immaculate. His clothes were carefully studied and carefully made, also, under the trained eye of "Brooks," who became popularly known as the White House valet but who held a far more responsible position than that. The supervision of the presidential wardrobes was but part of his official duties. He did that part so well however, that every president came to rely upon his judgment so completely that even the first ladies of the land surrendered their feminine perogative of buying neckties for their husbands.

* * *

"BROOKS" made President Wilson the admired sartorial splendor of the European capitals he visited after the war and during the pendency of the conference at Paris. "Brooks" made President Harding, already handsome, one of the most conspicious figures on the streets of Washington. President Coolidge had never given much time or attention to personal appearance or habitments until he entered the White House. "Brooks" very carefully and tactfully began the "education" of Mr. Coolidge in matters of dress. For a time the new president clung to his modest little wardrobe he had boasted as vice-president on 112,000 a year and no extras.

"Brooks" gradually won him into the ways of the fashionable. Today President Coolidge has the proper clothes and knows how to wear them. "Brooks" was not a mere dresser of presidents. So far as an attire was concerned, he was the president of the United States for 17 years.

"RAY" BAKER has been nominated as senator from the sovereign state of Nevada and the democratic senatorial committee is going to make every effort to "put him over at the November election. Not only does the senate need another democratic vote, according to the democrtic view but Washington, the capital of the nation, knows that the senate needs Ray Baker to give the staid old body a little dash of color and spice.

Ray is both colorful and spicy. Ray would give the senate the touch it has missed since the days of the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis, as the famous pink wristlets and the rainbow attire. Ray is younger than "Jim Ham" and although it may be less majestic to say so, is better looking. Also he knows how to wear his clothes to the very best effect. Ray goes in for the purples, the violets, the mauves, and possibly the wood browns but always his every garment is in harmony and the effect is quite grand to behold.

It may seem like an animal for a man to come from the rough and ready town of Reno to set the advance styles in the national capital and in Newport, but that is precisely what "Senator" Baker may do—if elected.

NO DATE SET IN LEAHY CASE

Live Oak Murder Suspect Still Being Held in Custody

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP) The case against Harry J. Leahy, charged in Live Oak county with murder in connection with the death of Dr. Ramsey of Mathis has not been set for trial, James Harley, attorney for Leahy, said here Saturday. District Judge T. M. Cox had announced the case had been tentatively set for next Monday, but the court has not officially set the trial.

Harley said it was not known when Leahy would go to trial. The setting is entirely in hands of the court, as far as the defense is concerned Harley said.

Leahy is in jail in George West, where he was taken from Ilexar county, after Special Judge G. O. Brown of the thirty-seventh court dismissed a writ of habeas corpus issued here.

Leahy has been indicted in Live Oak county by a special grand jury called by Judge Cox.

be a stormy one or a quiet one. Some elements of the legislature are known to want to defer any action on the appointments, and leave confirmation or rejection to the 40th legislature next January.

Mrs. Ferguson's proclamation, calling the extra session was coupled with an announcement she will resign when its work is finished.

From the demands of school people for more money for education, and in view of her recent lowering of the scholastic apportionment from $14 to $11.50 and her campaign utterances it is regarded as certain that Mrs. Ferguson will submit the increase of the gasoline sales tax from 1 cent to perhaps 3 cents—at any rate, an increase in this tax.

This may be submitted by Mrs. Ferguson under the general clause of her proclamation which permitted submission of any subject during the special session.

This meeting will be the first opportunity the legislature has had to review the highway situation and the Moody highway suits and grand jury investigations, the attempted session last December having been thwarted through masterly political maneuvering, when the accusation of a "privately financed" session, took the desire out of the members to meet, and at which time Mrs. Ferguson sacrificed two members of her original highway board, Frank Lanham and Joe Burkett, apparently to help avert the session called "over her head," by the members themselves.

Appointments Coming.

Appointments by Mrs. Ferguson to be submitted for confirmation include Moseley and Cage, highway commission; Roy L. Tennant, Temple, on the board of control; seven members of the textbook commission; S. G. Granberry, member of the prison commission; R. L. Daniel, insurance commissioner; Dallas J. Matthews, adjutant general; the six members of the supreme court commission of appeals; the members of the Eastland court of civil appeals, many board and commission members.

Advocates of a short session will probably move early in the session next week to limit the work to bond validation until that task is completed. Speaker Lee Satterwhite, who is here, indicated the house would be at work within two hours after it is convened. It is probable members will ask Mrs. Ferguson to submit numerous local bills.

Mr. King, in drafting a concurrent resolution which he has already made public here, indicated he will demand an investigation to cover virtually every department of the state government, to "prove or disprove" charges levelled against the Ferguson administration.

Obviously, such an investigation could hardly be started within 30 days and unless Mrs. Ferguson called additional sessions, the effort would die at the expiration of the present term, when the 40th legislature convenes next January 11, and the work would have to be started over again.

Mr. Purl announced that he would not wait for an investigation in the Moody administration but would "do my duty as I see it now."

Motor Boat Race On Gulf Ending

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The San Antonio-Corpus Christi motor boat race was due to finish Saturday night or Sunday morning but no word could be learned here late Saturday concerning the position of the contestants as they near the goal in the final dash across the bay.

One report received was that the "Play Boy," Fred Christilles' entry, and the "Pelone," owned by Porter Loring, were fighting it out neck and neck, but this rumor could not be confirmed. If the report is accurate the "Pelone" must have made a sensational sprint to take the position it is reported to have made coming up from fourth place, where she was reported Friday night. The position of the boats at that time were: "Live Wire," first; "Play Boy," second; "Water Moccasin," third, and "Pelone," fourth.

"Hickman Method" Draws Approval

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—There may be a "local end" to the attempted robbery of a Clarksville bank, District Attorney C. M. Chambers believes. The Bexar county district attorney Saturday telegraphed to the sheriff in Clarksville asking for photographs of the two robbers who were killed and of the three women held in connection with the robbery.

"I commend and endorse the Hickman method of preventing bank robberies," the telegram concluded. The two robbers were killed in a battle with Capt. Hickman of the rangers and other officers.

The three women were taken in custody by officers 15 miles from Clarksville and are said to have had in their possession a plat of the bank.

the prizes are large enough to justify a try from any horse owner in the southwest.

The Gertrudis Jersey farm at Kingsville, Texas which is said to be the largest exclusive Jersey farm in the world, has filed formal application for entr yin the Jersey cattle exhibition, and will get some keen competition from a number of other Jersey farms in the states of Texas and Oklahoma. As several have written their intention of showing at th efair.

George D. Keith, Wichita Falls breeder of prize Herefords, will have some of his finest specimens to compete with the prize herds of northwest Texas. This section of the cattle department will be unusually large this year because of a number of new entries which have never shown before.

Ira Brown, who has charge of the poultry exhibit, stated Saturday that his desk was piled high with letters seeking information on the poultry department. More interest is now manifested than ever before in this department and numerous entires are already filed. There will be some extraordinary competition in the poultry department because of the state and national meets to be held in connection with the fair. Contestants from these various poultry fanciers will come from all sections of the United States.

With the exhibits coming along fine, the style show and pageant taking form, and all amusement features assured, nothing short of dire disaster could keep the Texas-Oklahoma fair from eclipsing everything of its kind in Texas and Oklahoma this year, officials declare.

Famous Diamond Show On Display As New Gem Store Is Opened In City

A diamond that was taken from the eye of a Hindu idol and was once in the possession of Catherine II of Russia, another that is considered the most noted of the English crown jewels, stones cut from the largest and finest brilliant diamond in the world, the famous Cullinan diamond, and a Brazilian diamond that was found by a negress in the river Bagagem are only a few of the many whose crystal imitations are to be found on display in Wichita Falls newest jewelry firm, the Baber-Tschabold Jewelry company.

The largest and finest diamonds in the world, the Sancy, the Cullinan, the Kohinun, the Orloff, the Excelsior, the Shah, the Great Mogul, the Braganza, and the Victoria have all been cleverly imitated in crystal, and these are the reproductions that are being shown in the opening of the new firm.

The proprietors of the new jewelry company are both very well known in this city, both of them having lived here for a number of years. Mr. Baber has been connected with the Burgess Jewelry company since 1918, and Mr. Tschabold has been with the Art Jewelry company and Dave Paul for several years.

The new firm will sell all standard makes of watches, diamonds, precious stones, ring and all sorts of jewelry novelties, but their specialty will be in repair work, as both men are so especially trained and experienced in this

The store has its formal opening here this week at its new location, 712 Eighth street.

SEALE LOSES BALLOT FIGHT

Marshall Declared Winner of Dallas Sheriff Race For Office

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—In the face of a judgment given Saturday morning by Judge Claude McCallum of the 101st district court that Schuyler B. Marshall, Jr., is winner by 60 votes over Allen Seale in the contest for the sheriff's nomination, attorneys for the loser announced that the case would be appealed immediately.

Monday morning we shall file a motion with the court of civil appeals for the fifth supreme judicial district, Arch Allen, attorney for Seale, announced during the afternoon. "We will leave no legal stone unturned to protect our client's interest."

The judgment of the district court, which both Marshall's attorneys and the court itself hold to be final, according to the statutes of the Terrell primary election law, was delivered before a packed court room. It came as the climax of four weeks' recounting and trial of the contest brought by Marshall and the judgment reversed the decision of the democratic county executive committee that Allen Seale was the nominee by a majority of 126 votes.

The judge warned the crowd that he would tolerate no demonstrations and deputy sheriffs were stationed to enforce the order.

HONOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Clifford with a beautifully appointed three-course dinner last Monday evening in honor of the boys and girls who are either college or high school students. The reception suite was decorated in the colors of the various colleges where the honorees are going to school or have been. This made a varied and brilliant color scheme which was duplicated in the dining room with three bowls of flowers and miniature pennants as place cards. Covers for 20 were laid and between the first and second course Mr. R. E. Sherrill made a short talk on "The Characteristics of the Presbyterian church, and between the second and third course Rev. M. L. Baker spoke on "Church Relationship at College."

When the dinner was over each boy and girl was given an opportunity to tell of some outstanding amusing or embarrassing moment at college or to perform some "stunt" incident to college life. This proved very entertaining. On place cards were the following names: Misses Mary Sherrill, Mary Ella Pace, Galen and Ruth Robertson, Edna Solomon, Mary Pearsey, Mary Sue Hester, Alta, Blanch and Willie Bell Frierson and Louis Pearsey, Johnie and Charlie Solomon, Henry Wilson, John W. Pace Jr., Thomas Murchison and Bill Clifford.

FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER ENDORSES PELLAGRA TREATMENT

Dr. W. C. Rountree, Texarkana, Texas:

Oklahoma City, May 15th, 1926.

Dear Doctor:—For the sake of those suffering from that dreadful disease—Pellagra—I feel that I should make a statement of my observations and experiences, both from the standpoint of a physician and Public Health Official. I have been a practicing physician for 29 years, more than 15 years of which I have been connected in some way with the Health Department. It was during my tenure of office as State Health Commissioner for Oklahoma, that I had occasion to observe Pellagra in all of its forms and stages. Seeing that the Sodium Cacodylate or Hypodermic Treatment, used by the average physician was wholly unsatisfactory, I began the study of the different remedies offered for its cure.

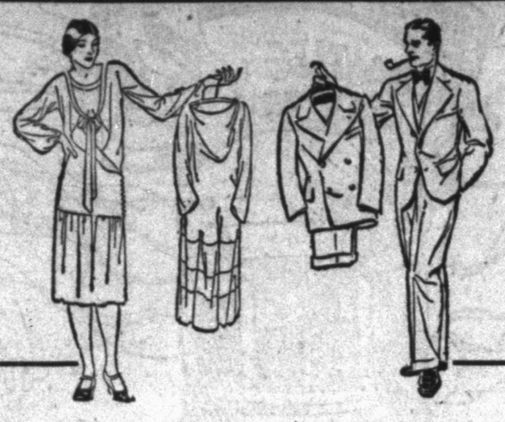

At this time my attention was first called to your work and I saw the worst cases permanently relieved by your treatment. I remember, in one instance, a lady who had lost her mind. She was weak, nervous, emaciated, could not sleep or eat and what she did eat disturbed her digestive organs, she had constipation alternating with diarrhea, skin brown and copper colored, in fact she had all of the symptoms of Pellagra except the rash. She was directly under my observation before and after taking treatment and I know that she was permanently relieved by your medicine.

I have followed up your work closely since then and have never seen a case of Pellagra that your treatment failed to relieve. It is my conclusion that you have the only effective cure, for the disease. I feel that you are entitled to the unqualified endorsement of the medical profession and of the Health Departments for I verily believe that there are hundreds of victims in State Asylums today whose mental trouble could be relieved and the patient restored to the family and loved ones if allowed to take your treatment.

Fraternally,

A. E. DAVENPORT, M. D.

HE WASHED DISHES

GOVERNOR GEORGE W. P. HUNT of Arizona has been re-nominated by the democrats of that state. This is the sixth time that he has been nominated for governor. If elected in November it will be his fifth term in the office of the chief executive of the copper state. He was defeated for governor when he ran for a third term. This was in 1920 when Warren G. Harding was elected president of the United States. It was a rotten year for democrats and they were overwhelmed by republicans and independents from Sandy Hook to the golden gate.

Hunt has ever been the idol of the ranchers and miners of Arizona. He has ever been the champion of union labor. In the year 1920 the copper kings got him. They elected a man named Campbell governor. Hunt bided his time. He rebuilt his fences. When the proper time came he defeated Campbell and the democrats have been in control ever since.

Hunt had a tough time as a young man. He is well educated. He pitched his tent in the proper state. He ran out of money and accepted the position of dishwasher in a restaurant and washed dishes until he found a more delightful job. He saved his money. He embarked in business. He became a successful man. He won the machinery in the democratic party away from the old guard. He ran for governor and was elected.

He must be an able executive. He is going to hold the office until 1928. Then he may run again. Ralph Cameron, republican, was elected to the senate in 1920 when the republican landslide swept over most of the earth. He is up for re-election this year. Carl Hayden has been made by the democrats for the senate. Governor Hunt is backing Hayden and the Hunt forces or followers are backing Hayden. In Arizona the democrats are confident of putting a republican senator out of commission in November.

This story started with a statesman who earned the first money in Arizona washing dishes. Some day another story may be written of a statesman who washed dishes stepping from the office of governor in Arizona to a seat in the senate of the United States. This is certainly a land of romance. This is certainly a land of opportunity. This is a land where democracy is in flower.

It is a long call from a dishwashing room to the executive mansion of an American commonwealth. Hunt made the journey and he may be in the running for years to come.

WHERE WEALTH IS

NEW YORK state has 2,800 millionaires, Pennsylvania has 1,052, Massachusetts 610 and New Jersey 390 says a compendium in the American Bankers Association Journal. Texas has but 96, Oklahoma 33, Arizona 7 and New Mexico 1.

The east and the north still has the wealth. The little state of Rhode Island that could be tucked away in the northeast corner of scores of Texas counties has 83 men rated as worth a million or more. Delaware and Connecticut, two other tiny eastern states that would look like a township tracing on a map of Texas have 263 between them.

It is significant that the so-called business frontiers of the nation—those sections to which population has drifted in but comparative recent years, have not yet produced their crops of men of millions. And conversely, those that have held a place longest in the history of the nation are the natal points of the most wealthy. The eastern sections lead; followed closely by the middle western states—Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota. In the south, southwest, northwest and far west, fabulous fortunes have not become commonplace. California is the only exception to this rule, the figures crediting it with 470 millionaires, most of which are probably adopted sons whose wealth was acquired elsewhere.

It is encouraging, this report, for it can be conceived that there is still money to be made in the new virile sections that have not yet been fully developed. The southwest for example, has yielded up but a fraction of its virgin treasures whereas those of the east and north have been exploited for years.

Men of energy and vision, and men with a will to work still have limitless opportunity in the wide open spaces.

Come to Texas.

SEN. GEORGE OF GEORGIA

SENATOR WALTER F. GEORGE of Georgia was for the league of nations. He was for the world court proposal. He is one of the democrats in the senate who responded to the call of President Coolidge. He voted for the world court proposal and for the United States to be represented in that court.

Georgia was the home of Senator Thomas F. Watson. Senator Watson was a bitter opponent of the league of nations. He said that the pope of Rome was responsible for the league of nations. This is not true. Woodrow Wilson was the creator of the league of nations and the pope of Rome had no more to do with its creation than the man in the moon had.

If Senator Watson had been in the land of the living he would have voted against the world court proposal, but Watson wasn't in the land of the living. It was for Senator Walter F. George to act. He was ordered or advised by certain politicians of Georgia representing certain invisible forces to vote against the world court. He ignored the command or advise.

He offered for re-election. Pitted against him was Chief Justice Richard B. Russell of the supreme court of Georgia who denounced the world court from every stump and appealed to the democrats of Georgia to relegate Senator George to private life.

Well, the primary election took place and when the returns were in and the ballots had been counted Senator George champion of the world court, had overwhelmed the chief justice of the state supreme court of Georgia and his followers. It was a tremendous victory for Senator George and democrats who do their own thinking and their own voting in the old commonwealth.

It was a knockout for the high official of a secret political organization who commanded senators from certain states, all candidates for re-election this year to vote against the world court proposal advocated by President Coolidge and championed by many of the foremost men and women of America representing all political parties and all religious denominations.

WISCONSIN VOTED WET

THERE are two republican parties in Wisconsin and no democratic party worthy of the name. There is a LaFollette republican party and a Lenroot republican party. After the smoke of the primary election had cleared away the LaFollette Republican Party remained in full possession of the field.

Governor John J. Blain had defeated Senator Lenroot. Blain is a LaFollette leader. He is a wet and he is opposed to the league of nations and the world court. Lenroot, who went down in defeat led the fight for the world court and was a Coolidge spokesman.

Lenroot had been a member of congress for 17 years and ranked high as a national lawmaker. He is not a good sportsman. He said that the primary had settled the senatorship but he would not support the winner.

All 10 of the congressmen in Wisconsin are LaFollette republicans. All 10 defeated Lenroot republicans who had aspired to seats in the lower house of congress.

Thus it is that young Bob LaFollette, now a senator, defeated Lenroot, the man who had been made by his father in a political sense and then deserted the elder LaFollette in the great contest which marked the closing years of the life of that brilliant and yet erratic statesman.

There was a time when the democrats had a magnificient party organization in Wisconsin. That organization had thousands of members and the standard of Jefferson never trailed in the dust.

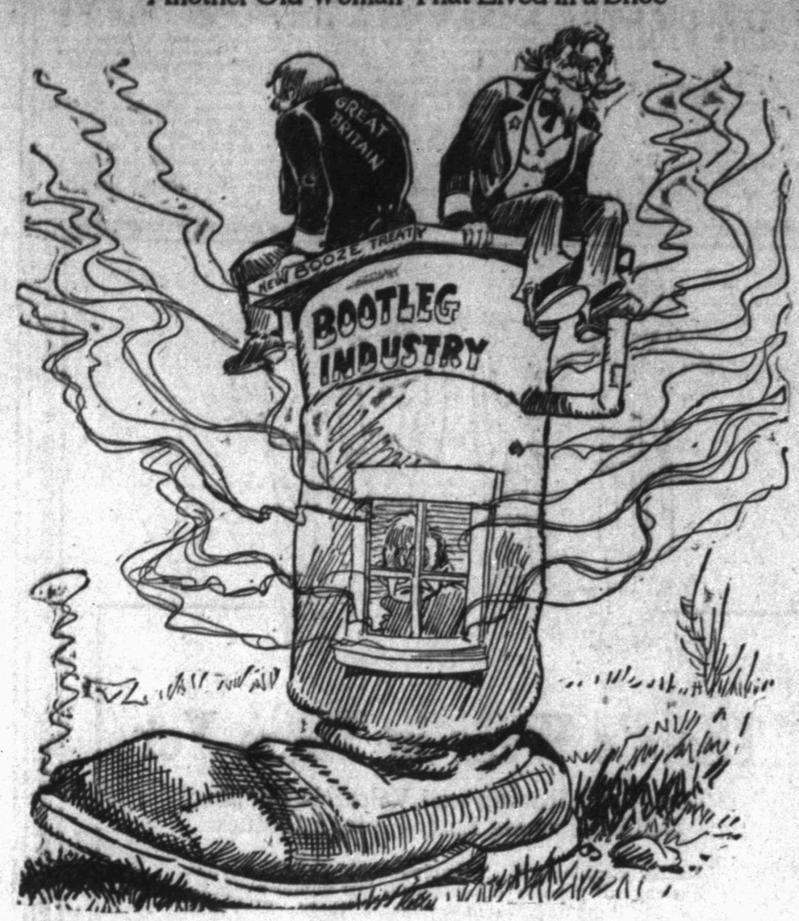

Along came William Jennings Bryan with his political bigaries and the democracy of Wisconsin became a memory. This happened in many of the western states as well as the mountain states.

Wisconsin follows the LaFollette standard. Wisconsin has followed that standard for 30 years. There are two republican parties in Wisconsin; there are two democratic parties in Texas. This is a queer old world and the people are as queer as the world.

A NEW ENGLAND MOSES

NEW ENGLAND has a Moses, a republican Moses. He is George H. Moses. A fighting republican editor and senator who hails from New Hampshire. He is one of the ablest of the American senators. He is a bitter ender. He fought the league of nations and the world court. He has been renominated for another term of six years by a large majority. And Coolidge is from New England.

Another Old Woman That Lived in a Shoe

ED WYNN'S QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN

"THE PERFECT FOOL"

He Knows All — He Sees All

Dear Mr. Wynn:
A friend of mine, who just came from Los Angeles, in an automobile, said he saw part of a railroad track under water when he was coming through Idaho. He said he heard a train whistle and he realized it was up to him to save the train so he waved a "clothes-pin" and when the engineer saw it he stopped the train. Sounds like applesauce to me, don't it to you?
Yours truly,
B. HAYVE.

Answer: I understand your friend thoroughly. The railroad track was under water he waved a "clothespin" means a wash out on the line.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I have an uncle who swears from morning till night. I never heard such language as he uses. Where in the world do you think he learned to swear like that?
Sincerely,
HOLEN DAMM.

Answer: My dear Miss Damm, if your uncle does what you claim for him I assure you he could not have learned it any place, it must have been a gift.

Dear Mr. Wynn
I read, in this morning's paper, where a boy killed his mother and father and the jury acquitted him. How do you account for that?
Truly yours,
POLLY TICKS.

Answer: The jury was probably lenient with him because he was an orphan.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a tailor and am at a loss to know why I am having so many complaints about my clothes. The strange thing is that my customers all say the same thing. They claim that the coats wear out twice as quickly as the rest of the suit. Can you possibly tell me how to make my coats last?
Yours truly,
A Stitchontymo.

Answer: Make your pants and vests first.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I met a boy at a dance last night and I like him very much. During our conversation, though, it seemed to me as if he was bragging a bit. He said that his brother lived in England and that he sits before the king and queen every day and keeps his hat on. Do you believe that?
Sincerely,
ROCCA BIBABY.

Answer: Sure I do. He is their chauffeur.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am the mother of a very bad boy 10 years of age. Yesterday his daddy gave him 10 cents to spend. He went out and bought 10 cents worth of nails. Can you tell me what he bought the nails for?
Yours truly,
VINNIE GAR.

Answer: Yes, for 10 cents.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
We had an argument at our house last night about young men getting married. Some of the folks said that most of the boys who marry when they are very very young, are usually dark haired. Is that true?
Yours truly,
JENNY RATOR.

Answer: It is true. You will find that boys who marry when they are extremely young are generally all light headed.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
One of my neighbors has a son who is now about 22 years of age. For the past 10 years he has been a lazy, shiftless boy. He ran away from home three weeks ago and yesterday his father got a letter from him saying he was in the movies and getting a salary of $2,000 a week. Can you imagine it?
Sincerely
HEEZA BUMM.

Answer: I can imagine it but I don't believe it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I know a man who told me he was going to get married just for the fun of it. He did get married but got a divorce a year and a half later. What was the idea of that?
Truly yours,
Al. E. Monoe.

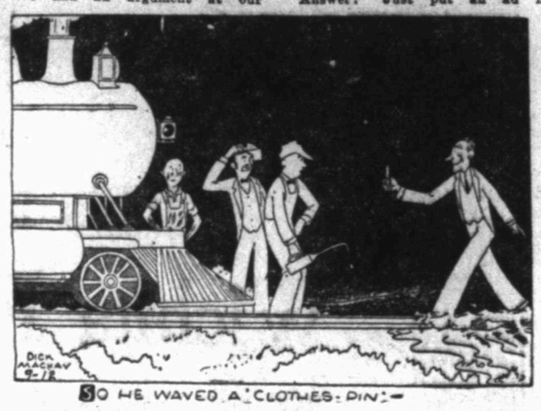

Answer: He told you he got married for the fun of it. He got married and then got a divorce. That's where the fun comes in.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a poor widow and have a hard time making both ends meet. I now find out that I could make some extra money by taking in washing. I don't know any people who send out their wash so please tell me the best way to get in touch with those kind of people, will you?
Yours truly,
I. VORESOPE.

Answer: Just put an ad in the newspapers to read as follows: "A POOR WIDOW NEEDS WASHING." and then give your address.

Dear Mr: Wynn:
I asked a woman I know, where her brother was and she said he was out west mining. I asked her what he was mining and she said: "mining his own business." Don't you think she was fresh?
Yours truly,
BUDA PEST.

Answer next week.

SO HE WAVED A "CLOTHES-PIN"—

IT SEEMED TO ME AS IF HE WAS BRAGGING.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Oh, the most awful thing!" was Helen's excited greeting. "I didn't know you'd asked Kenneth—and I've invited HER!"

"What? Not Doris?" Warren jammed his stick in the hall rack. "Well, side-track one of 'em, quick!"

"I can't—I've tried. They're both on their way."

"Great guns, that's awkward!"

"They'll have to meet some time—with all the same friends," following him into his room. "They might as well get used to it."

"How the sam hill d'you happen to ask her?" ripping off his coat.

"She called up this morning. I could tell she'd been crying—and I thought of her lonely dinner. Then when I got back this afternoon—Nora said you phoned he was coming."

"Why the deuce didn't you get busy?"

"I did. I called his office, but he'd left. I couldn't get him at his hotel—and I couldn't even get you."

"No, I left early. Button off this shirt," tossing it at her. "By George, we're up against it. Well, whoever comes first can beat it if they want to."

"Maybe they won't want to. They might as well get a little practice on how divorced coeples should act. He can carry it off—but I'm not so sure about her. She hasn't seen him since that day in the lawyer's office."

"Well, I wish the people we know would stay married. This divorce epidemic's darn inconvenient. He may think it's a frame up—be as sore as the devil."

"Dear, we'll have to explain it. There's the bell! Oh, I hope it's Doris. No I don't—maybe he'd be easier."

"Hope it's not both! "Well, it's up to you!" slamming into the bathroom.

The next moment Nora ushered in a slender figure in gray.

"Doris! Come in here—quick!" Helen led the way to her room.

"What's happened? Something's wrong."

"Kenneth's coming! I didn't know when I asked you."

"Kenneth! Here? To dinner?"

"Yes, Warren asked him—saw him this afternoon. And I was out when he phoned. Do you want to stay? Oh, you know we'd love to have you, but—"

A pulsing pause. Doris pale, tense. Pulling at her gloves.

"I'll stay. I'll have to meet him some time. He doesn't know?"

"No, of course not—"

"Then don't tell him. I'd like to see his face—when he's not prepared to meet me."

"Doris, you don't— Yes, you DO!" eagerly. "You still care."

"No, not in the way you think, and yet—Oh, I can't explain it."

At the dressing table now. Fixing her hair. Tremulous hands. Then, whirling about.

"He won't think that—I planned this?" her color deepening.

"No, of course not—we'll tell him. There he is now!" at a peremptory peal of the door bell. "Come into the library—quick! Don't you want to? Less awkward than coming in afterwards—"

Out in the hall, Helen signalled Nora not to open the door.

A hasty stage setting. Doris in a big chair—almost hidden.

Then on "all right" nod to the mystified Nora.

A dramatic situation! Helen thrilled. What would be his attitude?

Now shown into the library. Tall. Dark. Gray-flanneled. Greeting Helen with his boyish grin.

"Mighty nice of you to have me. About fed up on hotels. Warren not here yet?"

"Yes, he just got in. He'll be out in a few moments."

"DORIS!"

"A surprise! Pleasant or otherwise?" flippantly, rising from the deep chair.

A perceptible stiffening. Then he shook hands with a formal,

"Very pleasant, of course. I hope you're well?"

"Can't you manage a cleverer line than that? Here's a chance for one of your scintillating remarks."

"Don't feel particularily scintillating just now."

"Is that a reflection on my presence?"

"Here, you two quarelling already?" Warren strode in from his grooming. "Well, fire away, if you enjoy it—but don't blame us for this mix-up."

At a coaching glance from Doris, hastily Helen explained the conflicting invitations.

Fortunately, dinner was promptly announced. No embarrassing wait.

At the table, Doris maintained her flippancy. But Helen could feel the emotional tension beneath.

Before dinner was over, the strain of it told. Doris's excited color ebbed, leaving her betrayingly pale.

How thin and worn she looked! And older—much older.

Conversation lagging now. Plainly forced. A lame finish to the propitious start.

One of them must leave early. A long evening of this constraint— Intolerable!

"While I think of it, Kenneth. Clearing out a trunk yesterday—I found a golf bag of yours. One you bought in Canada. What shall I do with it?"

"Give it away—throw it out Immaterial to me."

"Tried the new links at Greenport?" broke in Warren. "Only fair. Too many short holes. Like 'em more sporty, don't you?"

"Yes," Kenneth unhelpfully brief.

"Oh, I want to ask about our safe deposit box," Doris forked at a mushroom. "Shall I get another or will you?"

"I'll sign that over to you," stiffly. "I'll take my papers out next week."

"You're neglecting Nora's specialty—her soufflie potatoes," Helen relieved the silence that followed.

"Oh, Kenneth, not potatoes!" cautioned Doris. "You know you mustn't—"

"Why not? I'm eating what I want now," caustically.

"Pardon me," crimsoning. "But possibly that's why you're not looking so well."

"Think so? You don't look so robust yourself."

"I broke the bottle opener," flustered Nora swung out. "I can't open that mineral water."

"Bring it here," Warren took out his knife.

"What a curious knife!" admired Doris, when the bottle was opened. "May I see it?"

"Got that in Munich," handing it to her. "Regular tool chest. Corkscrew, file, bottle opener—be careful, that blade's sharp as a razor."

"Why, it has everything! Yet so light and thin."

Helen watching her, saw the color rush to her face. What was it? Why was she keeping the knife? Still playing with it.

"Afraid that's too well done for you," Warren again carved into the roast. "Here's a rarer piece."

Kenneth, "I—I had a late lunch."

A stifled cry from Doris!

Spreading scarlet on the napkin pressed about her hand.

"Oh, you've cut yourself!" Helen started up.

"That confounded knife!" exploded Warren. "Shouldn't have let you have it."

"Come, we'll get some peroxide." Helen flew to the bathroom.

But Doris did not follow.

Rushing back with the bottle and bandage, Helen found Kenneth carrying her to the window.

"She's fainted," gruffly. "Always does at the sight of blood."

Helen's first suspicions quickly dispelled. The faint real. No doubt about that.

And Kenneth as he bent over her! His eyes contradicting his gruffness.

The cut! Hastily Helen bandaged it while they worked over her. A deep, cruel gash. The strong-springed blade had shut on her finger.

Not accidental! Helen felt sure of that. Deliberate—to induce the faint.

And her end attained. Kenneth's face! If she could see it now.

"Doris!" when at last she opened her eyes.

"She's all right now. I'll take these things away," Helen gathered up the basin and bandage.

A tactful retreat, signalling Warren to follow.

"Well, what d'you know about that?" stalking after her into the bathroom. "Believe he's dippy about her yet."

"Of course he is!" exultantly. "I've known that all along. And she's wild about him," rinsing out the crimsoned napkin. "If she weren't, she wouldn't have had the courage to—"

"Eh? What's that?"

"Nothing," spreading the napkin on the towel rack.

"You mean that faint was phony? Don't believe it. She got white as paper. Couldn't fake that."

"No, no, of course not," rolling up the bandage. "But she knew blood always makes her faint—so she—Oh, don't you see? She deliberately cut herself!"

Warren stared. Incredulous.

"Why, that's nothing," returning the peroxide to the medicine chest. "Any woman would. I felt she was going to when she took the knife—but I didn't know it would make her faint. That was really very clever."

"Clever?" he snorted. "Carvin' her finger so she'd pass out? Cheap bid to get him hooked again."

"But dear, it worked!" joyously. "The way he looked at her! No, don't go back yet. Leave them together a little longer. He'll take her home and— Oh, I'm sure they'll fix it up!"

"Huh, tough break for their lawyers!"

"But aren't you glad?" glowingly. "They're both so fine."

"That part's O. K. But I don't like the way she staged it. The whole thing's too serious for a trick. But that kind of a stunt goes over big with you—right along your line."

Then, with a grin, as he started back.

"Well, when we spring our divorce, if you pull any phony faints—what you'll get won't be sympathy. I'll bring you 'round with a bucket of ice water!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Today's planetary aspects are quite benign and are especially suitable for the observances and recreations of a Sunday. They betoken equanimity of temperament, and a sense of self-satisfaction, that can only radiate happiness and contentment to all those around you.

Children born today will be exceptionally strong and healthy and the only danger to be avoided is excessive confidence in their ability to do things which they should not do. In a sense they will be always willing and anxious to bite off, in a physical way, more than can chew. This tendency, unless curbed, is liable to lead to accident, or to the loss of that strength in which these children will find their greatest happiness. Their dispositions will be frank and candid and above board. They will never seek to defend themselves by evasion or deception but will always be ready to accept the consequences, whatever they may be, of anything they may do. They will show a great passion for everything that is connected with the "great out-of-doors," but will not neglect their studies to do this. These children should be allowed to choose their own career, if success is desirable as anything of a sedentary nature will only cramp their energies, and defraud their ambitions.

If today is your birthday, your characteristics are orderly, methodical, thorough and faithful. You are one of those that feel that there is a place for everything and that everything should be in place. You possess a quiet, quaint humor, that often wards off petulance and anger. If, however, you do give way to your temper, everyone around knows it. Your loyalty to your friends, and your interest in their affairs is one of your most charming traits, and has earned for you their gratitude, esteem, and confidence. They look upon you very much in the light of a "father confessor," and unload all their troubles into your willing ears.

You enjoy pleasant surroundings and do your utmost to have them in your home. Your description is a very affectionate one, and you are very demonstrative in your revelation of your love.

NEARLY SUFFOCATE

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—American travelers, unaccustomed to sleeping on feather beds with wedge shaped bolsters beneath their pollows, have described the first night in a German hotel as a struggle to escape suffocation. A Berlin hotel is now supplying guests with cards upon which are described half a dozen ways of making up a bed. If an American wants to sleep in American style, he checks the proper diagram on the card and leaves it to the chambermaid to do the rest.

GEORGE CRASHES IN

BOULOGNE, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Georges Michel is beginning to cash in just like the other channel swimmers. Theatrical engagements will more than repay the 15,000 francs he spent. The receipts of a ball in his honor are to be given him and Mme. Michel is finding business brisk in her bakery.

Sunshine Hill District Furnishes Oil Feature For Past Week

AGING FIELD SHOWING LIFE

Minature Boom Opens Up As Good Wells Are Brought In

Wichita and Cooke counties furnished the greater part of the thrills in the North Texas district during the seven-day period just ended. A good looking wildcat in northeast Cooke along with three producers in proven territory and the "rejuvenated" Sunshine Hill of Wichita county vied for the spotlight of the oil fraternity.

The Sunshine Hill district came near to assuming the aspect of boom days as a result of the excellent completions made there. L. P. Hammond's No. 3 Saunders, south of the discovery well of Clark and Smith, was finished Monday with a daily yield fo 50 barrels. Stidham and Thrasher brought in their No. 2 Ward and Todd the next day, flowing 25 barrels per hour from sand topped at 1855 feet. This well is east and south of the discovery and is an old well which has been deepened from the 600-foot pay. Another good well was added to this section Friday when R. R. Clark's diagonal offset to the discovery well went into the pay at 1880 feet and took 10 feet of sand where it is swabbing around 250 barrels per day.

Many new locations have been determined, a number of derricks are under construction, and several rigs will get under way within the next fe wdays in this rejuvenated area. Acreage as far as a mile from the new producers is said to have a ready sale and Sunshine Hill promises to be one of the busiest fields in North Texas for several weeks to come.

Wildcat in Cooke.

Cooke county scored a good looking wildcat in Lynch, Stahl and Burrell's No. 1 J. Dangelmyer which has a good oil showing and considerable gas in a shallow sand at 796 to 806 feet. This wildcat is in the northwest quarter of block 17 of the George Ivy survey in northeast Cooke county. It is the cause of a lot of excitement in the vicinity and will be watched with much interest when it is drilled in this week.

The proven fields of Cooke county continued to hold a place in the limelight by the completion of three wells for a combined production of approximately 50 barrels. C. C. Lanier's Nos. 2 and 3 Hyman were brought in Thursday, No. 2 being estimated at 75 barrels and No. 3 has the appearance of 125-barrel producer. John Hoosier's No. 3 Dennis in the Moss survey of northwest Cooke county was finished with a flush production of 150 barrels daily.

Archer county pools were not without life last week. The Turbeville pool in the Carson survey is still the scene of a great deal of activity there being several locations reported from that area with a number of rigs spudding and others nearing the pay level. At last reports the Texas company had apparently made another profitable completion, its No. 6 Turbeville having set and cemented casing on the usual sand and looked like it would make a nice well. Texas No. 7 is drilling and location has been made for No. 8. The Simms and Consolidated No. 2 Turbeville is showing up for a small well in sand at 1496 to 1506 feet and will lve thoroughly tested.

Marland in Pay.

The Marland Oil company No. 4-A Thomas drilled into the pay at 1165 feet and is believed to be a 60-barrel well from 27 feet of sand.

Southwest of Iowa Park and in the Day land and Cattle co. survey, the Magnolia Petroleum company No. 2 Fasset and Tuttle topped the sand at 1357 feet and after drilling a short distance the oil came up 250 fee in the hole and the well looks like it will do about 30 barrels daily. This sand is a few feet lower than the level from which Kimmel and Dillard's No. 1 Fasset made a small pumper. Kimmel and Dillard passed up this sand on their No. 2 test and are drilling at 1710 feet.

The other fields were comparatively quiet although scores of rigs are plugging away to reach the golden goal. Dry holes were no more numerous than usual and the fall months bid fair to see many potential areas exploited to the limit.

MAGNOLIA, FASSETT

The Magnolia Petroleum company No. 2 Fassett and Tuttle, located in the Bradford survey southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county has 250 feet of oil in the hole from sand at 1,366 and looks like a 30-barrel well but is to go deeper.

SIMMS ET AL. TURB

The Simms and Consolidated company joint well in block 146 of the Carson survey of Archer county and in the Turbeville pool is making a small showing in sand at 1496 to 1506 feet and will receive further testing.

BURNS BREAKS RECORD

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 11.—(AP)—George Burns, first baseman of the Cleveland Indians, established a new world record for two-base hits in the second game of today's doubleheader with Washington when he drove out his 61st double of the season. He broke the former record of 59 last Sunday when he drove out his 60th.

ELLIS MUST RETURN.

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Lee Ellis, alleged I. W. W. member, convicted in California of "criminal syndicalism" must return to California to complete his sentence, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson Saturday honored the requisition of Gov. F. W. Richordson's of California, for extradition of Ellis.

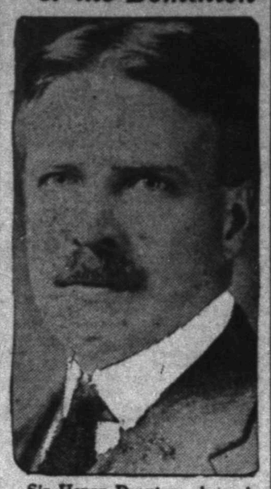

Ellis is in the Texas penitentiary on the Blue Ridge farm, serving a sentence for a felony committed in Texas. He is alleged with having escaped from the San Joaquin county, California jail after he had appealed a conviction of "criminal syndicalism."

TO HOLD HEARING.

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Hearings on the Texas clearance law enacted by the 39th legislature have been set before the Texas railroad commission. Application of the Houston Compress company and the Manchester Terminal and Compress company for exceptions will be heard here Monday, and September 22, applications for deviations filed by several Dallas concerns will be heard in Dallas.

Air Officers Set For S. A. Training

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—With the close of the air races at Philadelphia today the attention of air corps officials will turn next to completion of plans for the proposed pioneering flight of five army planes from Kelly Field around the continent of South America, in the opinion of local fliers.

Ten pilots of the air corps are scheduled to hop off from Kelly Field about December 1, in five Loening Amphibian airplanes on an aerial jaunt that will probably carry them into every country of South America and Central America and Mexico, according to tentative plans announced by the war department.

Pipe Line Runs In Local District Continued Gain 1,275 Bbl. Record Is Set

Daily pipeline runs in the Wichita district continue to soar toward a new peak, the daily average making a jump of 1,225 barrels in the past seven days. The completion of several good wells in the Turbeville pool caused the average of Archer county to register an increase of 1,275 barrels daily which is more than the increase of the entire district, some of the fields showing a decided drop. Montague county made a substantial gain due to exploitation in the Nocona field. The week's total average was 96,955 barrels as compared with 95,730 for the previous week. The new production in Wichita county was reflected in the increases made by the Electra and Iowa Park districts.

Runs of each field follow:

| Field | This Week Bbls. | Previous Week |
|---|---|---|
| Electra | 15,695 | 16,650 |
| Burkburnett | 11,925 | 11,950 |
| Iowa Park | 4,275 | 4,310 |
| Archer | 31,405 | 30,130 |
| Clay | 580 | 585 |
| Wilbarger | 14,430 | 14,420 |
| Montague | 7,280 | 6,945 |
| Young | 8,225 | 8,375 |
| Jack | 240 | 240 |
| Throckmorton | 1,480 | 1,650 |
| Baylor | 150 | 165 |
| Cooke | 270 | 280 |

Celebration For New Port Opening

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 11.—An elaborate celebration is to be held here Sept. 14 and 14 to commemorate the opening of Port Corpus Christi, the gulf's newest water outlet which this city in a position to develop into one of the country's important shipping points.

This new water way will be widely felt not only in commercial and transportation circles but will influence the shipping of oil in the southwest. Oil from the fields around Laredo is to move through Port Corpus Christi. The Humble Refining company has practically completed its line from the Mirando field and the line from Brimin Station to Inglewood is completed.

The federal government spent nearly $5,000,000 on improvements in the new port.

TRIES TO BURN SEVEN

STERLING, Ill. — George V. Husse, believed to be insane, was arrested for setting fire to a neighbor's house while seven persons were asleep.

Drilling Extracts Small Part of Oil

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 11.—The oil remaining in the sands after mining by the usual drilling method varies from three to nine times more than the oil already extracted, says James O. Lewis, late chief of the petroleum division of the United States bureau of Mines, and now with the Dunn-Lewis Oil Rocovery company. In an article in the Compressed Air Magazine, Mr. Lewis says:

Supplies of cheap "flush" oil from new pools can not be counted on to meet all demands for many years to come; other undeveloped sources of supply are incomparably greater than the resources from which oil has been obtained up to this time.

MARLAND, TURB

Marland Oil company is setting casing at 1,500 feet on its No. 1 Turbeville which drilled three feet of sand topped at 1,511 feet. No. 5 is setting casing at 1,400 after going into the sand at 1,487-99 feet. These tests are in block 172 of the Carson survey of Archer county.

Marland's No. 4 A. Thomas, located in block 6 of the Thomas survey is estimated as a 60-barrel producer at 1165-82 feet.

KIMMEL, PARKEY

The No. 1 Parkey test of Kimmel and Dillard has gone to a depth of 1,407 feet without encountering a producing formation. The test, which is located n the southwest corner of the east 80 acres of block 41, Dallas county school land survey in Archer county will be drilled to a depth of 1,500 feet.

Their No. 2 Fassett and Tuttle in the Bradford survey of Wichita county is drilling at 1,710 feet.

CANARY ET AL, DIXON

The wildcat test of S. C. Carney et al on the Dixon land, section 8-4s-18w, Tillman county, Okla., which is being drilled by Harry Hines and J. H. Turner, Wichita Falls contractos, is drilling at a depth of 1,200 feet. This test is attracting much attention as it is on a favorable looking sub-surface and is under the personal supervision of Wm. V. Hoyt, geologist of the Canary interests.

111 NEW WELLS IN OKLAHOMA

Past Week An Active One in Producing Territories Here

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 11.—Twenty of Oklahoma's most active oil counties the past fiscal week reported 111 new "first reports."

Creek county had 20 for first place; Seminole was next with 18 new wells; Okmulgee reported 15; Osage, 14; Carter, eight; Garfield and Payne, six each; Muskogee and Stephens, four each; Kay, three; Grady, Lincoln, Pawnee, Tulsa and Wagoner, two each; Ellis, McClain, Noble, Rogers and Texas counties, one each.

Orlando District.

Tidal Oil company and Gardner Petroleum company at No. 1 Combs, in the southeast corner of the southwest of 12-19-1w, each of Orlando, in western Payne county, found a gas sand from 4,145 to 4,160 fee; that made approximately 2,000,000 feet of wet gas. Drilling on it found sandy lime from 4,160 to 4,170 feet that yielded a five-barrel show.

The Reiter-Foster Oil corporation No. 1 Kinnaman, in the southwest corner of 4-19-1w, that went to 5,004 feet, did not find anything in this formation.

Big Flow from Burgess Sand.

The Skelly Oil company No. 2 Kirk, in the southeast of the northwest of the southeast of 7-21-11e, northwest of Tulsa, in southern Osage county, found the Burgess sand from 2,061 to 2,074 feet, and it made a flow of 96 barrels the first hour, and the next 20 minutes it gauged 24 barrels. The first 20 hours it made 500 barrels, the gravity geing 38.5.

The Skelly company has five quarter sections adjacent to the new producer.

Due north of Osage City, the Skelly company No. 1 Henderson, in the southeast of the southwest of 35-22-8, had the Bartlesville sand at 2,450 feet and with the pay barely scratched, it made 250 barrels the first 24 hours.

Cushing District.

The Cushing district of Payne, Lincoln and western Creek county is to continue unusually active.

East of the town of Tryon, in northern Lincoln county, the Olean Petroleum company No. 1 Morris, in the southeast of the northwest of the northeast of 18-16-4e, cemented the eight-inch pipe at 3,643 feet, and is now fighting caves at 3,673 feet.

VACCINATION COMPULSORY

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Vaccination was made compulsory for pupils of Dallas schools by the city board of education at its Friday night meeting, the board announced today. All teachers and employes of the schools also must be vaccinated, the board ruled. The adoption of the regulation has been advocated for several years.

SIX TESTS AT WELLINGTON

Collingsworth County Assured of Wildcat Holes Aplenty

WELLINGTON, Sept. 11.—Six test wells have been started or will be started within a few days in Collingsworth county and it appears that this county will experience no little excitement in the next few months.

H. L. Harmon and R. B. Dean, Wichita Falls operators have announced that they will start drilling on their 10,000 acre block in this county. Location has been made in the center of the southwest quarter of section 45, block 21, H&GN survey, and the contract calls for a 3,000-foot test. It will be known as the Judw Wilson No. 1.

Burton No. 1 has spudded and W. R. Duke has made a location in section 27, block 22, Collingsworth county. The Gibson Oil corporation No. 1 Potts is drilling, this being the first test started in the county. Morton et al are ready to spud in their test in section 30, block 16, and Bon Allmen has made location for Uo. 1 McDowell in section 107, block 22.

35 CONVICTS ON HOLIDAY

COWES, Eng.—Thirty-five convicts serving life terms were brought here from Maidstone prison for a week to give them a change of environment at Parkhurst prison.

PECAN TREES

How would you like to walk into the finest pecan orchard in the United States and have the privilege of selecting each and every tree for your new orchard, taking only the finest and most vigorous, and leaving the small and mediums or ill shaped trees for others?

I occupy the unusual and exclusive position of being able to render this very valuable service to you. Without it the very highest type of orchard cannot be produced.

I delivered several thousand trees in the valley last season. They speak for themselves and are my best guarantee of future performance.

These trees were universally proclaimed the most vigorous and superb specimens ever shipped here.

You can get average and undersized trees (taking them as they come) from an average nursery much cheaper, and thus become the owner of a much cheapter orchard, but does it pay?

The results of many years of experience in orchards and nurseries, extending from coast to coast, and a vast array of photographs and interesting facts as to production of orchards and trees will be most carefully furnished all interested parties in personal interviews, and entirely without obligation.

Fort Worth Slams Spudders Twice Again, 9 to 7 and 2 to 1

FAST BATTLE ENDS IN WIN FOR INVADER

Final Games of Season Scheduled Today At Spudder Park

The rampant Fort Worth Cats continued their slashing attack on the Spudders Saturday by taking the third straight double header albeit the home boys made it more of struggle by keeping their tallies close up to the lead set by the Cats. The scores were 9 to 7 and 2 to 1. Too Much Lindimore spelled defeat for the Spudders in the first frame, but it was the long stick of Big Ed Konetchy that dealt two death dealing homers for the only counts of the second.

Both frames were jamb up good ball games, giving the cash customers a whole lot for their money by going into extra innings each time, and with plenty of hair raising fielding. Lindimore handled 28 chances in the two games with only one error, making 8 putouts and 19 assists for the Cats, while Kony with three homers and Windle with one circuit clout made the Cats look fast and fancy.

Pete Takes 27.

Pete Turgeon for the Spudders also did some fancy work in and around second base, accepting 27 chances without an error. His game bat showed he killed five in each game and seven assists in the first and five assists in the second. Lindimore's chances were of the flashy sort that brought noise from the fans, but Pete was plodding along setting up a better record.

Howard for the Cats and Hodge for the home boys started the first frame, and the Spudders started good and plenty by chasing three runs across the pan in their half after letting the Cats down one, two, three. LaFayette singled to left and Dorman pounded one out for two bases, scoring Lafayette. Jenkins went to first on a single and surped second while Turgeon was fanning; Benton singled to score Jenks, and Fitzgerald walked. Howard began looking longingly toward the dugout but Jakie showed no inclination to call him in, so he pitched a nice one to Defate who rolled it out to second for a double play. The Spudders chalked again in the second when Query singled, went to second on Hodge's single and to third on Lafayette's out, scoring on Dorman's out second to first.

The Cats got their start in the third when Windle eased one over the left field fence, and got on in earnest in the fourth scoring a run on two doubles by Kony and Smith. They came back again in the fifth to score five runs on successive singles by Howard and Moore, a double by McDonald, a single by Compton and a homer by Konetchy. Hodges gave up the pitching struggle to Williams who retired the side.

Tied in Seventh.

The locals came back to tie the score in the seventh. Lafayette walked, Dorman singled, Jenkins grounded out, second to first, Lafayette scoring; Turgeon flied out to Sears but Benton singled to Eddie Moore to score Dorman, and stole second while Fitzgerald was at bat. Compton robbed Fitzgerald of a three ply blow by taking his long fly off the fence. The game rocked along at even counts until the tenth when the Cats again went wild and put two more over on an error and two singles. Compton walked, and Sears was safe on an attempted sacrifice when Williams threw wild to second. Koney singled scoring Compton and Smith was out on a grounder to Turgeon! Sears was caught between third and home for the second out, but Koney scored on Windle's single.

A Pitcher's Battle.

The second frame was a regular pitching duel between Kiefer and Jimmy Walkup, pride of all Catdom. The Cats touched Kiefer up for nine safeties while the versatile Jimmy was only giving up five, but the hits were all well scattered and only two circuit colnts by Koney brought in any money. Fast fielding and good pitching killed many Cats on bases. The Spudders took their lone count in the first when Lafayette singled to center and went to second as Dorman grounded out, later scoring on Jenkins' single through second. Turgeon forced Jenkins, but Benton grounded out to end the game so far as scoring was concerned.

Koney finished a fine day at bat in the second game by dropping two over the left field fence, one in the fourth and the other in the eighth. The big boy got three runs and three hits in five times at bat in the first game and 2 runs and three hits in four times at bat in the second. Query and Jenkins did the big stick work for the locals, Query getting four hits out of five chances, while Jenkins hit safely out of four times in the second game.

The Cats and Spudders tangle up again this afternoon at 2:30 at Spudder park in their fourth straight double bill here and the fifth straight double bill for the Spudders. Sullivan for the Cats and Estill for the locals will probably open the fireworks in the first frame, while choice of the second honors could not be learned. If Sullivan pitches today for the cats local fans will get a chance to see the performance of one of the star pitchers sold to Detroit along with Jimmie Walkup in a recent deal.

STEERS WIN

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 11.—(AP)—An eleventh inning rally that netted three runs gave Dallas a 4 to 1 victory over the Shreveport Sports. Timely hits and errors in the eleventh resulted in the scoring.

S. M. U. Mustangs Get First Work-Out

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The first thud of shoulder pads against papier mache echoed back and forth over the old football field at S. M. U. Saturday afternoon when Coach Ray Morrison had his squad turn their attention to tackling in the afternoon workout. The humidity of the atmosphere altered Coach Morrison's plans and have light blocking and tackling the afternoon was in consequential.

Coach Morrison had planned to give his squad a hard workout Saturday but the heat changed his plans. He frequently allowed his men to take a drink of water. The first casualty of the season came to light when the squad turned out for their morning workout. Ned Kimbrough, fullback last year who will be shifted to the line this season, failed to show up because of a pair of sore feet.

AGGIES OUT FOR PRACTICE

Bible Puts His Boys Through Two Heavy Practice Days

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Coaches D. X. Bible and Claude Rothged put the A and M team through two days of strenuous exercises Friday and Saturday most of the time being spent in kicking and catching punts. The practice sessions revealed several punters of some ability, among them being Z. W. Bartlett, a towering center from Marlin and Joel Hunt of Teague, sensation of last Thanksgivings game with the Longhorns. Forty-five athletes worked out on Kyle field both morning and afternoon.

J. V. Sikes of Leonard, an end, was the only letter man not within the fold. He is expected here Monday. The letter men in uniform were Capt. L. G. "Ox" Dieterich of Dallas, Joel Hunt of Teague, P. M. Price of Honey Grove, Claude Watts of Austin and W. W. Woodman of Austin.

Coach Bible spent much of his time looking over members of last year's freshman team about whom he admits he knows very little. It is interesting to note that the oldest man on the squad is 22 while many of the athletes are only 18. This is one of the youngest squads in the history of Aggie football.

GOLF KINGS PRIMED FOR BUSY FIGHT

National Amateur Crown To Be at Stake In Baltusrol, N. J.

By RAY M'CARTHY,
Special Correspondent, to the Record News

Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The best as well as one of the largest fields that ever competed for the United States amateur gold championship will tee off in the first qualifying round at Baltusrol, N. J., on Monday. The second qualifying round will be played on Tuesday and the first two rounds of match play will be held the following day.

With 152 entries from all sections o fthe country the scramble this year will be intensely keen. The competition will be unusually brisk, not so much because the field is large but because there are so many youngsters entered who have the golf ability to turn the tournament topsyturvy.

Practically 80 per cent of the 152 entries will be eliminated after the qualifying rounds, which means that about four out of every five contestants will be put out of the running even before the tournament really gets under way. Thus the strain in the qualifying tests will be somewhat heavy, particularly on the inexperienced. A few bad holes and the show will be over for most of the entrants.

Keeping these few statistics in mind, it is exceedingly difficult in glancing over the list of entries to determine who will qualify. The only player who can be definitely counted on to come through the early rounds in Bobby Jones. In medal play the Atlanta wizard is about as sure as any golfer living.

Jones, in fact, will be the chief attraction at Baltusrol. Right now the topic of general discussion is whether Bobby will win this title for the third time in succession. If he does, he will have established another record in golf.

Jones has a great opportunity but he is likely to encounter stronger opposition than he has met in this tournament since he first won the amateur championship two years ago at Merion. For one, the return to the system of qualifying 32 players instead of 16 will mean extra matches. Secondly, the first two matches will be played over 18 holes and the shorter route will give his opponents a better chance for victory than they might have over 36 holes.

Bobby will be the favorite, of course. There are a number of youngsters or dark horses in the field who may upset the dope but if any do turn the trick it is more likely to happen in the first or second rounds of match play than in any of the three remaining rounds.

Others who must be counted on are Francis Ouimet, the most brilliant shot maker in the field with the exception of Jones; George Von Elm, the most aggressive amateur in the country, excepting Jess Sweetser; Watts Gunn, also a great little fighter; Roland McKenzie, Jess Guilford, Freddy Wright, Frank Dolp, Bob Gardner and Chick Evans.

There are others who may upset all hope and precedent. Among those who qualify should be Rudy Knepper, Ensign Conklin, Frank Dyer, Clarke Cochran, Eddie Held, Keefe Carter, Eustace Story of England, Denamore Shute, Dexter Cummings, William Reekie, Al Ulmer, Max Marston, Charlie Paul, Lauren Upson and Jimmy Manion. After that the tournament becomes a question of who can beat Jones.

It is to be regretted that Jess Sweetster, former national champion and the only American born golfer ever to win the British amateur, will be unable to participate in the amateur championship this year. He is, according to Francis Ouimet, the greatest amateur match play golfer in the world.

Not only his friends but his many admirers and all golfers hope he will have recovered his health before another season so that he may compete in the tournaments in which he has won world-wide favor.

TRIBE WINS 2-1

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Cleveland strengthened its hold on second place today when it took two games from Washington 8 to 1 and 3 to 2. The Indians won the first by reason of Uhle's effective pitching and bunching hits off Walter Johnson and two rookie pitchers, Johnson being driven from the box after four innings in which Cleveland got nine hits including a home run by Speaker with one man on. The Indians also inserted a triple play in the first game, Uhle Burns, Joe and Luke Sewell being the participants. The second game was a pitchers battle between Sherrod Smith and Stanley Coveleskie. George Burns made his sixth first double of the season in the second game.

Southwestern To Battle Baylor

WACO, Sept. 11.—(AP)— When Dallas university cancelled its game with Baylor university for September 25, it was a blessing in disguise for the Baylor fans and team, because a game has been scheduled with Southwestern university to fill the vacant date. Southwestern won the TIAA title last year and will have a veteran team this year.

Forty-four candidates reported for the two practices today and Maynard Porter wired he would arrive September 20 and Reed will report Monday. Johnson and Sisco, two brilliant players who have trick knees, are working out daily and as yet have had no trouble with the injured members and if either or both of them come through the training season without injury the Baylor prospects will take on a rosier hue.

CAN'T KNOCK JENKINS OFF

Spudder Sticks Right to Top Of Texas Loop Batters

Jenkins of Wichita Falls continued to hold his lead in the batting of Texas League players in over 100 games with .377 through Wednesday's games and only a phenomenal batting slump with a corresponding spree by his closest opponents in the last four days of the season could prevent him leading the league. An interesting phase of the individual batting is the final figure Hannibal of Beaumont will reach, his average through Wednesday being .405 in 75 games. Turgeon of Wichita Falls with 130 runs has an apparently safe lead in the department over Gross, Dallas, 127. Miller, Dallas, with 29 home runs will probably finish in the lead, although Turgeon, Weeber, and Pratt are within reach. Fleskamp, San Antonio, leads in stolen bases with 37, Feel NaJo, and Turgeon having 31 each.

Beaumont seems assured of leading in club batting, runs, and hits, Wichita Falls in home runs, and San Antonio in stolen bases. Only two clubs are likely to finish with a .300 average. Schuman of Dallas has attained the best winning percentage, .666, largely by default, while Walkup, Fort Worth, Love, Dallas, and Owens, San Antonio, lead in games won, 21. Love's strike-out mark is now 123.

Connolly of Beaumont and Riley of Dallas crossed the .300 mark in hits last week. Club batting, .300 hitters, and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Wednesday follow:

National League Models Secretly Elated As Pirates Skid

BY GEORGE CHADWICK.
Special Correspondent.
Copyright, 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Certain National league club owners are secretly gloating in each other's company because it seems likely that some team other than the Pittsburgh Pirates will play in the coming world series.

It is also true that there are National league men who are rooting their old shoes into the ground hoping that St. Louis comes through and wins because they think the Cardinals are the representative team of the league.

Their feelings isn't altogether due to a violent antipathy to Barney Dreyfuss, the Pittsburgh owner but because they think his team isn't strong enough to stand the gaff of another series. They have a conviction that the Pirates were a lucky lot in 1925.

Also these National league men don't count upon the Cincinnati Reds as they do on St. Louis although they give the Reds a lot of credit for being where they are, and they are a lot more hopeful of the Cincinnati pitchers than of anything that Pittsburgh can produce.

Cards a Smart Bunch.

Outside the pitchers of the St. Louis club, which may not have quite what the Reds possess in the box, the National league men think the Cardinals have a smart, sprightly, quick acting and generally quick thinking bunch of boys who will dance around the May pole in jazz time if the Yanks win the American league pennant.

Whether the Pirates win the pennant or blow it, a great deal will be heard in the National league and outside of it this winter about Barney Dreyfuss being 20 miles away when the insurrection broke out in his camp.

Folks may think the National league is a loyal sort of body, and so it is—but loyalty doesn

Panhandle Loses First, 9-7, To Dallas and Punk Umpiring

COMIC RULING ON 2-BAGGER RUINS LOCALS

Even Dallas Fans Yelp At Unfair Tactics of The Arbiter

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—Victory Wilson, Dallas amateur baseball champs and kings of central Texas by virtue of victory over Waco in title play, presented an unbeatable combination here this afternoon in the workhand slants of Lefty Ewing Howell and the umpiring of one "Slim" Smith, who performed behind the plate.

As a result the Panhandle Refiners, champions of North Texas, were turned back in a 9-7 defeat at the close of the first day's semi-final battle for the Texas Amateur Athletic federation diamond crowns.

Howell was rushed to the rescue during the second round in the midst of a Wichita Falls uprising that before the inning was finished overcame a three-run lead and netted seven in all for the visitors. But Smith was in the game from the start, working for all the world like one of Doak Roberts pet Texas league arbiters, which at the most, is no compliment.

But Three Hits.

Box score statistics show that after the second frame Howell gave up but three hits and no runs. But box statistics do not carry assists, putouts, hits, runs and errors made by an umpire.

Smith's performance, in short, was so poor and unfair to the visiting club that Dallas fans themselves objected vociferously and at one stage a financial backer of the Dallas team made a run for the field with intention of calling for a new umpire, but gave up the idea when he found himself locked out. The contest was a wrangle between umpire and players throughout. In the sixth stanza Graves of Wichita Falls scored on a full bloom double rifted to left by Hargrove, but Graves was called back and Hargrove was ordered to bat again, the umpire ruling the drive had landed on foul territory. Fact of the matter, the indicator hasn't the slightest idea where the ball hit, for at the crack of the bat he flinched, grabbed for his mask and clumisly knocked it down over his eyes. Graves had crossed the plate and Hargrove was perched on second before he got untangled, looked up and yelped "foul."

Fair Ball.

Dallas fans bellowed "fair ball,, we don't want to win a game that way, give 'em a square deal," and the like. But the ruling stood.

Wichita Falls players had been hampered all along by decisions apparently as inefficient, but not of such magnitude. This verdict served as a climax, knocking the spirit out of the Panhandle attack. After the sixth inning Wichita Falls might as well have picked up it's bats and moved out. Jess Winters outfit stood no more chance of winning the game than a blind man has of copping trapshoot honors.

Odell McDuffy started on the hurling eminence for Panhandle, but was wilder than Yaqui Joe after that time Dutch Mantell kicked him in the pants. Two hits, an error and a brace of jungle heaves by O'Dell, coupled with a base on balls gave Dallas three runs in the opening couplet. Four solid smacks along with two sacrifices shunted three more over in the second. With two out, Joel Randolph enherited the chunking chores and promptly whiffed the next batter. Joel bumped disaster in the mug during the fourth. After fanning Carter he hit Taylor with a pitched ball. Beard forced Taylor at second on a neat play by Hinds, but Hooks shot an arching triple to left center that had both Waller and Rawls running their legs off in an effort to retrieve. Beard, of course, tabulated on the wallop. He was followed with a single to center, scoring Hooks. Speer forced Brecht with Hinds making another sprightly play at short. Randolph had heaved good ball, but was a victim of his own miscue in the sixth, when he let Taylor's bounce to the box trickle through. Taylor absconded with second on what Horton eventually thought was Hooks third strike, for he made no effort to get the runner, but turned and started for the dugout. The umps called it ball and play was resumed. Hooks, on the next pitch doubled to center, scoring Taylor. Brecht was thrown out by Hargrove.

Score In Second.

The Wichia Falls' attack was confined to the second inning. Fate kicked a bit of dirt in Panhandle optics in the first when Hinds led off with a single, but was doubled at first on Graves bullet drive to the box. Given a two-foot margin in any other direction and the smash would have gone for a hit. Graves and Hinds, incidently were the only visiting players who punched more than a safety a piece, each pinked a couple of singles.

An error at first base put Rawls on at the start of the second inning. Waller followed with a smoking two-bagger to right center. Roberts hit to short who heaved the sphere into the loam at home plate, Rawls scoring. Hoehen singled to right, scoring Waller. Horton drew a life at first on fielder choice when Short's throw to left plate was too late to get Roberts. McDuffy ripped a double to left and Charley Taylor, Victory-Wilson's starring pitcher, was given the gate. Howel clambered to the hill and straightway walked Hinds. Graves beat a single through short, scoring Horton. Hargrove popped a bingle to right, but it looked like a catch was going to be made so Graves held first. He was doubled at second, Speer taking the ball on first bounce and launching a perfect throw to Carter. McDuffy scored from third on the play and Hinds advanced a base. Hargrove stole second and Rawls struck out. Then Howell walked Waller and Roberts, forcing in a run and struck out Hoehen.

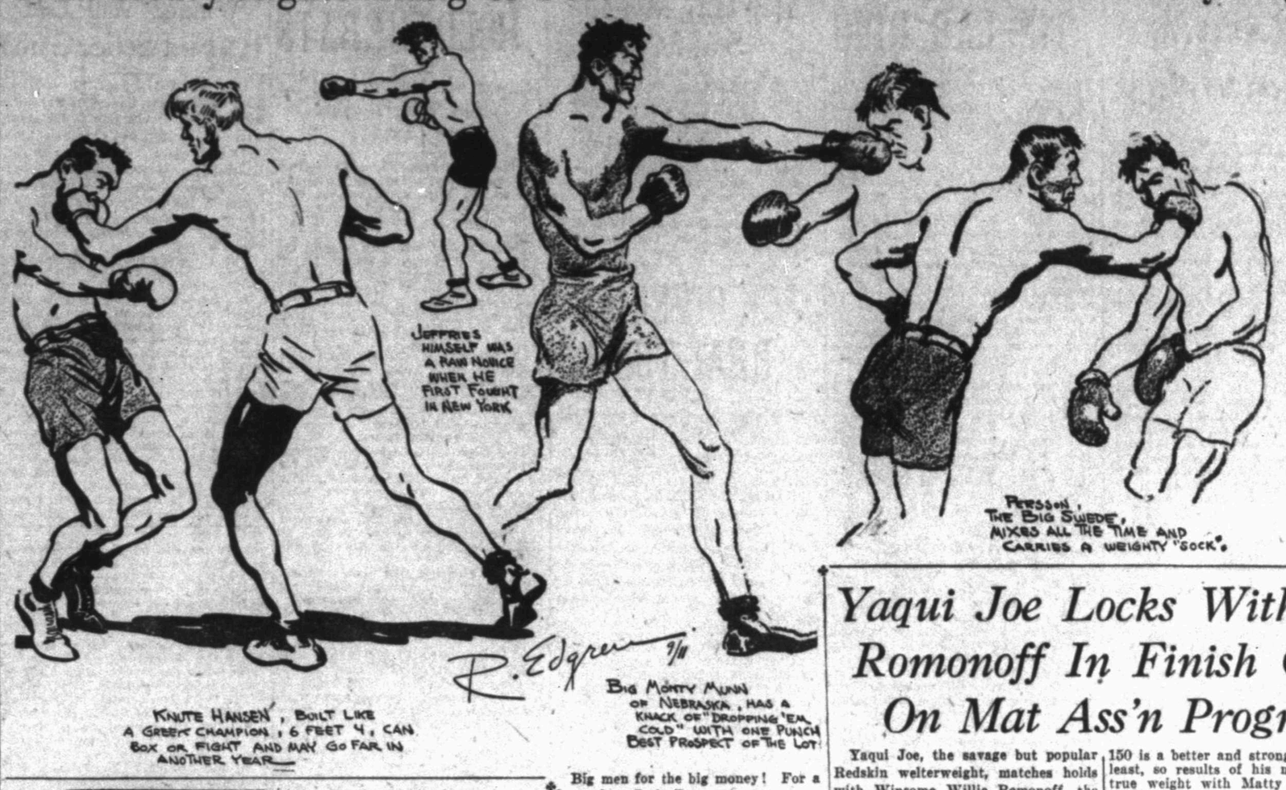

Panhandle has a chance for a comeback Sunday afternoon. A doubleheader is in order, providing Dallas doesn't win the first game. Snipe Connally will pitch the opener, he may repeat his last Monday's performance when Fort Worth had a game advantage over the Refiners and Snipe chunked a double victory on the return.

Giant Heavyweights Thing of Past — By Edgren

Big men for the big money! For a long time Jack Dempsey, not so extraordinary big, has had the big money all to himself, or nearly so. The competition hasn't been very keen. There was Jess Willard, world's champion. He was big enough—the biggest man who ever held the title, perhaps the biggest that ever fought for it since Charles Freeman a hundred years ago. Charles Freeman was seven feet three, and heavier than Willard. He wasonly a circus acrobat, but he went over and knocked out the champion of England and claimed the then unknown title "champion of the world," and came back to little old New York, and his job in the circus. There wasn't much money in fighting in Charles Freeman's day. Plenty of glory, but no more money than a small crowd might toss into a hat, and a more or less generous backer donate from his winnings.

Jess Willard, when champion, stood six feet seven and weighed, at various times, from 243 to 285 pounds within ropes. Dempsey, who according to his trainer, Jimmy DeForest, scaled exactly 185 the day of the fight at Toledo, knocked Willard down seven times in the first round and would have finished him then but for a mixup in the timing. He did finish Willard a couple of rounds later, beating him so badly that he couldn't rise to continue after a minute's rest.

Before he was champion, Dempsey knocked out a couple of giants, Carl Morris and Fred Fulton, in less than fifteen seconds each. As champion, he didn't have any giants to fight, unless you class Big Bill Brennan as a giant. Bill was a 200 pounder, and game. He gave Dempsey a tough fight until he was knocked out in the twelfth.

Dempsey had an easy time beating three small heavyweights. Miske, Carpentier and Tom Gibbons. He fought a big man in Luis Angel Firpo, who was dangerous because he had heart and strength and ambition, but no match at all for Jack in boxing or fighting skill.

But times seem to have changed suddenly. Where there were no big men to fight Dmpsey—except the husky hold-and-hit stevedore, Harry Wills, big men are springing up all over the map as if some Jason had shown the dragon's teeth again. Dempsey is now about to fight Gene Tunney for the championship. Tunney is a very good 185 pound man.

Three Good Heavyweight Prospects

Within two weeks I have seen three fast coming heavyweights, who may give either Dempsey or Tunney a lot of trouble a year from now. They are yet lacking in the experience a boxer needs to play among the champions and challengers. But they show promise.

There is Persson, the Big Swede, champion of Eurcpe, who came here to fight his way to the title and is being trained by Jimmy Forest. Persson is over six feet two and a two hundred pounder. I saw Persson give Johnny Risko a very bad ten round beating. Met DeForest after the fight.

"Persson followed my orders to the letter," said DeForest. "I coached him, taught him what European boxing tricks to discard and what American tricks to pick up, and he learns fast. I'll say that for him. He has more brains than most boxers. The Boxing Commission didn't want to let me go in Persson's corner with an interpreter to give Persson instructions. Mr. Muldoon finally fixed that up, but the interpreter had to sit down outside the ring. I told Persson he had to fight Johnny—to set an aggressive pace and hold it, but not to try to finish him. I didn't want him to take the risk of mixing all the time, because he was fighting his first fight under rules and conditions that were strange to him.

"I saw Persson turning to look at the referee whenever he was struck low," I said. "Apparently he wasn't used to that strange condition. I saw Risko foul him twelve times."

"No," said DeForest, "and I was afraid when he turned his head toward the referee Johnny would sock him. He didn't. I don't think he meant to hit low. Persson was so much taller, and Johnny's best punch is a dangerous left low in the pit of the stomach. He was probably dizzy too, from the punches he took. After the fight I found Persson all skinned and bruised below the belt from blows that went too low, but he's a real fighter. He only fought harder, and he never kicked or wanted to quit."

Another big fellow is Knute Hansen, a Minnesota born Dane. He is a magnificent figure in the ring, six feet four, with tremendous shoulders, long powerful arms and legs, and a small waist. Hansen is what artists call "eight heads high"—an unusual proportion. The average six footer is seven heads high, and most of the smaller boxers are about five heads high. Hansen's head is just above an eighth of his height, which makes him look even taller than he is, and more like a Greek statue in proportion.

Hansen is a very fair boxer. He was a lumberman in the northern woods three or four years ago, a fast growing boy, and he did a little boxing in the camps. Ambitious to become a fighter, he went to sea to develop his strength, sailed around the world and fought in many ports. He is fast, and he can "sock." He had no trouble at all recently in knocking out the Argentine champion in a couple of minutes.

Best of the new lot of heavyweights, judging from his hitting power and his showing in a career limited to half a dozen bouts, is Monty Munn of Nebraska. Munn is six feet four, weighs 213 pounds stripped, is lean and muscular, and has a remarkable knack of snapping home a one-punch knockout. He shows more of the Dempsey knockout stuff than any other heavyweight now in sight. Munn is being coached by Dan Hickey, who developed Berlenbach, and he is a better student than Berlenbach because he has sense enough to know that an experienced old timer like Hickey knows something, and to do as he is told. He is learning quickly and improving in every fight.

Munn graduated from the University of Nebraska, played through his college course on the best football team Nebraska ever turned out, and was one of the fastest and most aggressive big men in football. He has turned his football experience to fighting, and he is no novice in the clash stuff. Munn seems to think that fighting, and he is no novice in the clash eyes each opponent with a grim smile as he steps out at the bell, and never quite loses that smile in the hottest mixup. He can take punches—which his wrestler brother Wayne never could—and he hits with tremendous speed and crushing force. Munn can knock out any man he hits "on the button," and learning how to hit 'em on the button is a mere detail that he should soon pick up with experience and Hickey's coaching.

Beside these three big fellows there are several others with more experience, but the three listed above are going to be in the limelight for a few months, until they are either eliminated or shoved up as challengers for the heavyweight title. Any one of the three looks like a better prospect than Firpo—and Firpo was pretty good.

CARDS SPLIT WITH BRAVES

Win First, Lose Second When Douthitt Loses Hard Hit Ball

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—St. Louis won and lost in Boston today, league leading Cardinals took the first game of a double header 2 to 0, but the Braves won the decision in the second game 6 to 5. It was the second victory for Boston in the present series. In the first game, Jess Haines held his old mastery over boston and won a pitching duel with Bobby Smith. In the second, the Braves used two pitchers, but credit for the outcome went to Cooney. Harold Goldsmith, who started the game, lasted but one inning. St. Louis touching him for three hits and two runs. Boston won the second contest in the eighth when Douthit attempted to play High's drive with one hand. It went for a triple, and Brown then scored High with a sacrifice fly. Boston got a triple in the sixth inning that counted for a run.

CLAIMS ALLOWED

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11.—(AP) Claims allowed hay farmers of Brazoria county by the state livestock sanitary commission Saturday, after a two-day session, aggregated $261,412, according to Chairman Leo Callan. The farmers had asked for damages totalling $583,562, the difference from what they wanted and what they got being $322,150, he said. The claims will be liquidated by the state of Texas and the federal government, on a 50-50 basis.

Tilden Beaten In Single Match By French Net Star

GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11. (AP)—William T. Tilden, American national champion suffered his first single defeat in seven years of Davis cup teams competition today when he lost a sensational four set match to Rene LaCoste of France after suffering a badly twisted knee. The scores were 4-6, 6-4, 8-6, 8-6.

Tilden fell and injured his knee in the thirteenth game of the third set a misfortune that cost him this set and played a big part in his downfall in the final set. He rallied to make a gallant uphill fight and was once within a point of taking the fourth set but found LaCoste's unfailing steadiness too great an obstacle to overcome. The Frenchman scored a placement for the deciding point as Tilden was sprawled on the ground where he slipped trying to make a quick turn.

Tilden's dramatic defeat came in the final match of the challenge round series with France and after William M. Johnson had conquered Jean Borotra in three hard fought sets at 8-6, 6-4, 9-7.

This made the final score four to one in America's favor, her possession of the Davis cup having been settled yesterday when the doubles match was won by R. N. Williams and Vincent Richards.

Yaqui Joe Locks With Romonoff In Finish Go On Mat Ass'n Program

Yaqui Joe, the savage but popular Redskin welterweight, matches holds with Winsome Willie Romonoff, the Russian boy wonder and conqueror of the doughty Dutch Mantell the past week, in a finish match next Thursday at the Eleventh and Ohio arena, so announced Matchmaker A. B. Ross yesterday.

Romonoff has just about beat everything around this neck of the wrestling woods at his weight except the Indian and he never has stepped between the ropes with Joe.

Bill defeated Jackie Gorman. He beat the Dutchman. And not many weeks ago put it on Matty Matsuda at San Angelo. The Jap beat Romonoff at 140 pounds, but Romonoff at his true weight which ranges from 145 to 150 is a better and stronger man. At least, so results of his match at his true weight with Matty would indicate.

That the Indian will have his hands loaded is not doubted by any close follower of the game locally. That he cannot beat Romonoff, however, is an assertion that will find its backers in not more than 50 per cent of the horde that frequents the arena on wrestling nights. For it's figured at just about a 50-50 break who is the better man. Joe possibly is faster. He is cleverer with his legs. He is wirier than Romonoff. But the Russian is an older head at the game and judging from appearances Bill is stronger.

Joe Kopecky, who gained introduction to local fandom last week, takes Kala Pasha in the preliminary.

ERROR BEATS SOX

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Ray Morehart's fumble in the seventh which would have retired the side was followed by some heavy hitting on the part of Philadelphia which gave them a lead which Chicago was unable to overcome winning the game, 11 to 5. Leslie Cox, who had relieved Edwards, held the visitors hitless until after Morehart's fumble. The visitors bunched hits off Edwards in the third for four runs, Chicago overtaking the Athletics by bunching their hits. Score:

Rajah Just Tells 'Em to Play Ball And Follow Him

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby is boss of the Cardinals.

There has never been any doubt of it since the slugging second sacker took over the reins of the team in June, 1925, and that, it is pointed out, is one of the reasons the Red Birds today are setting the pace in the National league race and guiding the eyes of St. Louis fans toward the possibility of their first pennant in 38 years.

Hornsby's method of managing the team is simple. There are no rules except that players deliver winning baseball on the diamond and obey his orders quickly and absolutely. He has changed the system of the clubhouse meetings, has advised the pitcher of the day how to pitch to each batter, has done away with as many signs as possible, does not believe in post mortems of yesterday's game and is open to suggestions from coaches and players.

The reaction of the players on this system is the interesting part of the whole procedure. Ask them and they say he is the "best fellow they ever worked for."

For the first time in seven years Hornsby is not leading the league in batting, but fans are not worrying over that. Boils and a bad back are responsible for the slump they say.

GIANTS DIVIDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Giants divided a double header with Brooklyn today, winning the opener by five to three and dropping the closing contest by 6 to 0. Doc Farrell's home run with two on base in th eeighth decided the issue in the opener. Jess Barnes blanked the Yorkers with five safeties in the second game. It was the final twin bill between the clubs. New York has won 13 of 22 games with Brooklyn this season. The second game saw the New York debut of Jack Cummings, a catcher from the Wheeling club of the Mid-Atlantic League. Score:

Coyotes Tackle Walters Eleven Here Saturday In First Tilt of Season

McCallum Buckles Squad Down to Hard Sledding With Scrimmage Work Receiving Call.

Wichita Falls high school moleskinners clash with the Walters, Okla. eleven on the Junior college field Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Coach Bud McCallum announced yesterday.

It's the first practice game of any kind billed for the Coyotes this fall.

The high school lads have been on the gridiron but a short time, however, are making rapid strides in the two-a-day work sessions.

McCallum sent his charges through their initial scrimmage Friday afternoon and was well pleased by the showing. The squad shaped up nicely on passing with Ray and Allred doing the heaving. Mills pulled some clever work on the receiving end.

The scrimmage was fairly rough, but every man came away in good shape and uninjured.

Squirt Holstein, giant lineman, turned out for practice Friday. Holstein appears to be in pretty good shape, having lost about 30 pounds, and now is down to 235.

McCallum plans to push the squad at a rapid gait this week, since the ice has been broken and the gang is conditioned sufficiently to do the heavier training work.

The game originally billed with Childress at Childress Wednesday has been called off. Bobcat officials, through an oversight, developed a conflicting date.

TUT STILL ON TOP OF HEAP

Jenkins Holds Texas League Leadership With .377 Percentage

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Tom Jenkins of Wichita Falls continued to hold his lead in the batting of Texas league players in over 100 games with .377 through Wednesday's game and only a phenomenal batting slump with a corresponding spree by his closest opponents in the last four days of the season could prevent him leading the league. An interesting phase of the individual batting is the final figure of Hansen of Beaumont will reach, his average through Wednesday being .468 in 78 games.

Turgeon of Wichita Falls, with 130 runs has an apparently safe lead in this department over Gross, Dallas, with 122. Miller, Dallas, with 29 home runs, will probably finish in the lead, although Turgeon, Woeber and Pratt are within reach. Flaskamper, San Antonio, leads in stolen bases with 27, Peel, Najo and Turgeon having 21 each.

Beaumont seems assured of leading in club batting, runs and hits; Wichita Falls in home runs, and San Antonio in stolen bases. Only two clubs are likely to finish with a .300 average. Shuman of Dallas has attained the best winning pitching percentage, while Walkup, Fort Worth; Love, Dallas, and Owens, San Antonio, lead in games won, 21.

Love's strike-out mark is now 215.

Connolly of Beaumont and Riley of Dallas crossed the 200 mark in hits last week. Club batting, .300 hitters and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Wednesday follow: club batting, of games through Wednesday follow:

CUBS EVEN IT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Cubs evened the series with the Phillies by winning the second game today, 10 to 6. A seven-run rally in the seventh allowed the Cubs to overcome a 3 to 0 lead. Pete Scott climaxed the rally by hitting a home run into the bleachers with three men on base.

Football Bosses Preparing For Greatest Year In History

STRONG TEAMS TO TRAVEL TO MANY FIELDS

Colorful Intersectional Battles Promise A Fervid Season

By MARTIN CODELL

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—By all signs and mutterings of the prophets it is apparent that football this autumn will call more American boys "to battle," larger crowds to the stadium, and evoke greater public interest than ever before in its history.

Everything points that way— the trend of the schedules, the overwhelming demand for tickets, the enlargement of many a stadium to meet the cry for more seats, the intense interest in football already manifest on all sides.

The schedule list 2,003 collegiate football games this season. There are 482 teams of college ranking in this country, which means there are 5,302 first string varsity players and probably 20,000 altogether in the gridiron muster. Moreover there are far more teams and players in the high schools and this is also the season when professional football hopes to gain its foothold.

Few Held Saturday

A scattering half dozen football games are to beplayed next Saturday, but the seasno proper swings into full progress two weeks hence. Most of the college elevens begin action September 25.

Football has been conducted as a "sacrifice of youth to make a Roman Holiday," by certain academic groups who see in it a menace to student life and scholastic standards. But if there are to be any restrictions on the immense proportions all phases of the game have attained they await a distinct change in the attitude of the under-graduates themselves and of the alumni and public patrons of football. They are, generally, ardent enthusiasts.

Inter-sectional games between the college elevens are sometimes regarded as the spice of the season. The approaching season promises to bring a new high water mark in inter-sectional football, despite the reluctance of eastern teams to leave their own environs and the disapproval of long distance travel which formerly put many teams on foreign campuses.

"Playing of natural opponents within natural spheres"—on traditional rivals grouped closely geographically—provides the backbone of the season, leads to various championships and furnishes memorable spectacles. Yet a sort of national football relationship is said to be forming.

Since Fielding H. Yost at Michigan propounded his "natural opponents," theory some years ago, the tendency to change has been obvious. "Hurry Up" himself shortly after his pronouncement scheduled a game with the Quantico Marines at Ann Arbor, then two games with the navy, the second of which will be played in Baltimore stadium October 30.

Yost was spokesman for many, but not for the leading college athletic officials. Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago, has often showed a decided prediction for a far-away team early in the season—this year he starts with Florida and Maryland at Chicago, and for a second time plays Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Notre Dame usually does considerable traveling, this year going to New York to play the traditional game with the army, to Pittsburgh to meet Carnegie Tech and to Los Angeles for a contest with Southern California. Harvard, Yale and Princeton each plays an early season game at home with a southern eleven and other leading eastern teams have intersectional games scheduled at home and abroad, as have most of the western conference and many of the southern elevens. Far western teams show the least inclination to travel. They are better equipped, thanks to climate in some cases, to play the host to eams from the east in post-season spectacles.

Indicating the tendency toward intersectionalism in football are the reported negotiations between Harvard and Michigan for a home-and-home series whereby Harvard will go to Ann Arbor, first to dedicate Michigan's new stadium in 1927. It may be stated here on the word of an unimpeachable authority, who cannot be named, that a definite agreement exists between Harvard and Michigan for these games.

Teams of the "big three" have always been loath to leave their own stamping grounds and the negotiations between Harvard and Michigan serve to demonstrate the widening spread of intercollegiate football relations. The 1927 game, in fact, will be Harvard's first in the west, although Michigan and other western teams have been frequent visitors at Cambridge.

Section 4, U. I. L. Works Out Football Details In Meeting Saturday

Preliminary details to the interscholastic football contest in section 4 of the University Interscholastic league were worked out at a meeting of football coaches, pricipals, and superintendents at the court house Saturday afternoon. A preliminary schedule tending by the process of elimination to name a champion class-B football team from the district was arranged and announced. A number of committeemen were appointed to superintend the workings of the league in the district during the fall months.

Section 4 of it is announced includes the following class-B high schools, Alvord, Archer City, Bellevue, Bowie, Bridgeport, Burkburnett, Crowell, Decatur, Graham, Henrietta, Iowa Park, Jacksboro, Masonic home, Nocona, Olney, Paducah, Seymour Strawn, Wichita Falls Junior high, and Grandview. In a preliminary meeting last spring an executive committee composed of the following were named for adminis-trative purposes: B. C. Schulkey, chairman; John W. Lyles, Bowie; McCauley, Masonic home; Sullivan, Henrietta, and W. R. Bradford, Iowa Park.

At Saturday's meeting the resignation of W. R. Bradford of Iowa Park as a member of the eligibility committee was tendered and accepted and W. B. Hogg of Burkburnett was appointed to act in his place with John Lyles of Bowie, B. C. Schulkey of Olney, McCauley of the Masonic home, and Sullivan of Henrietta.

Schools protesting games or the eligibility of players must put enough money in making the protest to pay expenses of the eligibility committee in determining its merit, it was decided, and a fee of $2.50 per school was decided upon to pay the general expenses of the organization.

Those present were: W. R. Bradford, Iowa Park; C. N. Jarrell, Seymour; D. L. Bennett, Henrietta; R. L. Bates, Strawn; Stanley H. Peavy, Graham; J. F. Kemp, Seymour; W. S. Wilson, Archer City; F. B. Levy, Graham; Ray J. Cochran, Masonic home; J. H. Gentry, Decatur; H. B. Hogg, Burkburnett; V. M. Santy, Decatur; O. P. Hern, Olney; Stone of Nocona.

The body also voted to meet in Wichita Falls to decide on such eligibility contests as may be brought up.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

CHICAGO.—Midget Smith, New York, beat Archie Bell, New York, 10 rounds; Cleveland, O., Louis Paluso, Salt Lake City, defeated Billy Wallace, San Francisco, 12 rounds. Pico Ramies, San Francisco, beat Johnny Moore, Pittsburgh, 8 rounds; Hartford, Conn., Johnny Risko, Cleveland, and Pat McCarthy, Boston, fought a draw, 12 rounds. Jack Gagnon, New Bedford, Mass., knocked out Young Petorson, Detroit, 1 round; Fargo, N. D., Billy Petrolle, Fargo, beat Alf Simons, lightweight champion of Great Britain, 10 rounds. Reddy Fry, St. Paul, and Johnny Mack, Minneapolis, drew, 6 rounds.

BLIND HUSBAND ACCUSED

CHICAGO.—Mrs. James Kevill had her husband, who was blind when she married him, arrested for pulling her hair out.

MATTY LEAVES TIN-EAR RING

Popular Wrestler Declares He's Through With Wrestling

Matty Matsuda, world's welterweight wrestling champion and one of the prime favorites of the Wichita Falls wrestling fraternity, has retired from the ring, according to press dispatches quoting him to that effect. Matty, following his recent successful defense of his crown against Billy Romanoff at San Angelo, declared he would quit wrestling and accept an offer made by San Angelo business men for the organization and direction of an athletic club there. As reported in a San Angelo dispatch to the Amarillo News:

"I like kids," says Matty, "and I want to do something for them, I have made good money while I have been champion for seven years and I can take it easy the rest of my days if I want to. I am not slipping, but I want to quit before I do and then I want to give some of the other boys a chance at the money."

The champion did not say whether he was to relinquish his belt or not, but he was positive that he was through. He says he will not be able to wrestle and carry on his course of gymnasium, physical culture and wrestling school as he would like to. He said he wants to do the job of putting on an athletic club in a way comparable to what might be expected of a man who had been a leader in the game for years.

San Angelo is small, he admits, but he says he has been approached by large numbers of business men asking him to do something of the sort and he feels that their co-operation is assured. He has grown tired of traveling and he wants to settle down and he has chosen San Angelo as a good town in which to live.

Matty has made good money and saved it during his life, and the street called Easy is waiting for him. During the seven years he has been champion he has defended his title 30 times and he has averaged wrestling once a week for that time or approximately 364 times. He is now well past 40 and those who saw him in action against Romanoff Monday night saw a great wrestler with the soul of a sportsman in a great exhibition of skill, endurance and speed. A man about 20 might have done no better.

Detailed plans for the club are not known, but they are now in the process of being formed. It is recalled that nearly all great wrestlers and boxers, when they retire, go into some such venture, but it is not often the case that one of them is found with an independent income as the case with Matsuda.

Spudders Sign Bay City Mound Star for Season

HUNTSVILLE, Sept. 11.—(AP)—According to W. F. (Buddie) Foster, head baseball coach at the Sam Houston State Teachers' college, Albert (Lefty) Wood of Bay City, who is a student at the local college, has signed with the Wichita Falls Spudders as a pitcher to report next spring.

Wood was also a star at end on the football team, but baseball was his favorite game.

JACK GIVEN A REAL TUSSLE

Philadelphian Goes Two Fast And Wicked Rounds With Champ

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11. (AP)—Tommy Loughran, 175 pound dynamo from Philadelphia today gave Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion the most aggressive workout Dempsey has experienced since he started training for his title contest against Tunney.

Loughran, boxing Dempsey for the first time, boxed two wicked rounds with the champion. He carried Dempsey along at a terrific pace, forcing him to extend himself to the limit to avoid being shown up. Loughran, a masterful boxer, had no trouble in popping straight lefts into Dempsey's reddened face and shooting over rights to the chin.

Dempsey apparently did not enjoy the spectacle of being on the receiving end. Twice he crowded Loughran into the ropes, cutting loose with a flurry of punches as if he was fighting in earnest. In the second round, after Loughran had rallied Dempsey with a left hook, Jack drove a left to the pit of the stomach that slowed Loughran up. A few seconds later Loughran jerked Dempsey off balance as he was coming in and the champion sprawled into the ropes, nearly falling down. Dempsey, however, got even for this trick by backing Loughran into the ropes and scoring four punches without a return. As the round ended, Dempsey crowded the Philadelphian into a corner and nailed him on the chin with a left hook. It looked af if Loughran was going to crumble but he survived the furious exchange.

NEW LEADERS HOLD THE BATS

Manush and Hargrave At the Top of Their Respective Leagues

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Two new major league batting champions are on the way, with prospect that the crowns will be knocked down for bids considerably below those of last year.

Detroit's best offer to retain the American league title which Harry Heilmann earned with .393 hitting is a .380 average while the National's best current bid for the honors won last year by Hornsby's .403 slugging is the .364 hitting of Hargrave, Reds catcher.

Manush, who hit .393 for the Tygers last season, has forged to the top of the American regulars to join Fothergill in a race for the title which their team-mate's .363 average has slim chance of holding.

Hornsby Drops.

The Cincinnati backstop's present prominence is even more singular, for he wound up the 1925 pennant chase with an even .300 percentage, way down in the list. Engaged in a drive for the flag, the St. Louis manager has permitted his average to drop to .312, something new in Hornsby history.

Hazen Cuyler's 29 stolen bases make him, by averages including Wednesday's games and released today, the leading contender for the majors title his team-mate, Max Carey, brought to Pittsburgh in 1925 with a total of 46. The Pirate is, however, but a jump ahead of Johnny Mostil of Chicago who has passed his 1925 record and leads in the American with 25 but one short of the 26 total which was the league's best last year.

Other new title holders, many of them entirely unexpected contenders when the year opened, loom as the teams press toward the closing two weeks of the pennant chases. And George Burns of Cleveland has assured at least one new all-time record, by passing the previous high total of 59 doubles in any season.

Cincinnati has the three leading hitters in the National, with Hargrave, Bressler and Christensen bunched at the top. Pittsburgh is fighting for the pennant lead with two players among the leading ten, while the Cardinals have but one, in Lester Bell. The Reds also place Eddie Roush, who is hitting ten points below the .314 average that made him champion batter of the National in 1917.

The three clubs fighting for the lead have become similarly bunched in their slugging with the Reds on top. Cincinnati leads with a team average of .292, the Pirates are hitting .287 and the Cardinals are next with .248, an average shared by Chicago and Philadelphia, however.

Kremer at Top.

Among the pitchers, Kremer of Pittsburgh had 17 victories and five defeats for Pittsburgh after Wednesday's games and his team-mate Meadows had an 18-7 slate. Rhem of St. Louis had his nineteenth victory and sixth losing start on record. Sharley Root of Chicago rated strike out king, with 120 to his credit.

Leading individual batters in the National: Hargrave of Cincinnati, .364; Bressler, Cincinnati, .357; Christenson, Cincinnati, .352; Earl Smith, Pittsburgh, .352; Stephenson, Chicago, .340; Grantham, Pittsburgh, .335; Brown, Boston, .332; Roush, Cincinnati, .331; Williams, Philadelphia, .328; L. Bell, of St. Louis .327.

In the American, Babe Ruth, still well below his record in homers, trails Manush and Fothergill at the top of the regular batsman with Heilmann of the Tygers fourth. Ty Cobb again breaks into the first ten to join that other veteran, Eddie Collins of Chicago, although they are slightly separated.

Five clubs are bunched in the hitting. The Yankees lead after Wednesday's games with .294, followed by Washington with .293. Detroit with .292, Chicago with .290 and Cleveand with .289.

George Uhle tops the flingers, Wednesday's games leaving him with 23 victories for Cleveland and nine defeats. Herb Pennock of New York had a 21-10 record, and Shocker of the Yanks one of 19-8.

Leading individual American hitters: Manush, Detroit, .380; Fothergill, Detroit, .380; Ruth, New York, .371; Heilmann, Detroit, .363; Goslin, Washington, .362; Burns, Cleveland, .358; Collins, Chicago, .347; Miller, Philadelphia-St. Louis, .346; Falk, Chicago, .345; Rice, Washington, .330; Cobb, Detroit, .339.

American League Winner Will Get First Series Game

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The world series this year will open on October 2 in the city of the American league pennant winning club, it was decided here today by the Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis and representatives of the leading teams in the American and National leagues. The second game will be played in the American league city also.

The third, fourth and fifth games will be played in the city of the pennant winning National league club.

In the event sixth and seventh games are necessary they will be played in the American league city.

All games of the series will be started at 1:30 p. m., standard time in the city of play.

Should the series be played between New York or Philadhipia in the American league and St. Louis, Cincinnati or Chicago in the National league there would be a day of rest for the contending teams between the second and third games and the fifth and sixth games, to permit the clubs to travel. No day of rest would be included in a series between teams located within easy travel distance.

SPUDDERS OFF TO FAR SPACES

Locals Will Scatter After Closing Game With Cats Today

After today's double header with the Fort Worth Cats, the Spudder nine will scatter to all parts of the United States. Texas, California, Alabama and Missouri will be well represented with the distribution of the locals.

Only one player yesterday said he would remain in Wichita Falls and this is one of the winter colony that was here last year. Wee Pete Turgeon will go back to the First National Bank at once.

Howard Fitzgerald, the slender center field caretaker, will be back once more in Eagle Lake, Texas. Tom Estell will be another of the Texas boys, and will get his mail in Box 83, route 2 at Perdon, Texas. Wray Query will return to his peanut business at Denison, and his mail will be picked up at P. O. Box 142. Carl Williams, manager and pitcher, will be back in Santa Anna. Bill Shores will return to Lawn, Texas. Albert Wood will be at Markham, and Vernon Glass in Bloomberg.

Tony To K. C.

Tony DeFate will leave for Kansas City, Mo. and can be found at 7334 Harrison street. Lyman Lamb has already returned to Joplin, Mo.

Jim Roberts is already in Artisia, Miss. and Tom Jenkins says he will soon be on his way to Camden, Ala. Shovel Hodge will be in Newton, Ala. His mail will be received at Box 113.

Pete Lapan will return to the Twentieth Century Sanitarium at 5055 Novgorod avenue, Los Angeles, Calif. George La Fayette will winter at 1331 67th Street, Berkeley, Calif. Lester White will be at his home, 1430 Obispo street in Long Beach, Calif.

Ross to Kentucky

Chester Ross will be back in Mayfield, Ky. Joe Kiefer will go to his home at 1231 Seymour avenue, Utica, New York. Although he was out of the game most of the year Freddie Dorman has been making himself noticed of late and he says that luck will soon find him back at 16 Concord street, Jersey City, New Jersey. Stanley "Rabbitt" Benton will winter at 3330 Gallia street in Portsmouth, Ohio.

Freddie Fussell ,the slender southpaw slab artist, said Saturday that he would be somewhere in the U. S. A., but where that would be he wouldn't tell.

REPORT FOR DUTY

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Emmett O'Shaughnessey of San Antonio, 1925 halfback, Saturday reported at the football training camp of the St. Edward's University Saints. He is expected to be a valuable member of the '26 eleven.

MORE GIRLS IS CAMP FIRE AIM

Annual Extension Program To Be Started Here On Sept. 15

Beginning September 15, and ending November 15, the annual extension program will be carried out, simultaneously throughout the nation, in order to give more girls the opportunity of joining forces with the other Camp Fire girls in work, health, love. Every member who secures a new member during the two months of the contest, will be awarded a National "New Member Heron," different from those of last year. Every member who secures a new guardian will receive a National "New Guardian Honor." Gold membership pins will be sent to the first three hundred guardian, girls, council members, or members of board of sponsors who secure two new guardians, both of whose applications have been accepted at National headquarters.

Local Camp Fire girls will carry on the extension program throughout the two months, but special Camp Fire week will be held the week beginning September 19 to 25. Speakers will be in each school, and girls invited to join Camp Fire. Dr. Cantwell has expressed his approval of the Camp Fire program, and pledged his co-operation to assist in every way to get the work organized definitely in the different schools. Several groups will be organized in different churches.

In November a joint banquet for all old and new members, parents and friends will be staged.

A fall traning course will be offered for training of new guardians, to begin in October. Any women or older girls who feels they want to learn more about the Camp Fire work, whether or not she can take up active work, is invited to join the class in training. Mothers find a new tie of companionship with their daughters in working with them in Camp Fire. Young married women find new interest in life in working with girls, and learning things they missed themselves.

Marriott Funeral Services Are Held At Home Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. E. W. Marriott who died at noon Friday as a result of injuries received when she was struck by a truck, were held from the residence, 1300 Grant, Saturday afternoon. Dr. Nat F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was in charge of the services. Burial was in Riverside.

Mrs. Marriott was attempting to cross the street near her home when the accident happened. James Thomas, 22, of Sulphur Springs, was driving the Ford truck. He explained that the woman walked in front of his machine from in front of another car. He was released Friday afternoon on $1,000 bond after a charge of negligent homicide had been filed against him.

Miss Jeannette Moore Entertains For House Guest

Complimenting her guest, Miss Alice Abbey of Fort Worth, Miss Jeannette Moore entertained Saturday with a bridge luncheon at her home on Tenth street when guests included friends and classmates of Hockaday school in Dallas. Bridge tables wee arranged on the porch and carried out a scheme of gold and blue. Goldenrod and blue flowers were used in the decorations.

Those enjoying Miss Moore's hospitality were Mrs. Loyd Gaspar, Mrs. Ted Krohne, Judith Sherrod, Ruth Moore, Faye and Thelma Fisher, Adele Jarrell, Francis Ann Saunders, Flora Bruce Greenwood, Dorothy Shamburger, Emily Mitcham, Emma Elizabeth Miller, Alice Aubry and Mary Frank Nickoles, Alice Abbey.

Mrs. O. C. Somers Goes to Omaha Meet

Mrs. O. C. Somers of 2010 Tenth street, district manager for the Supreme Forest Woodmen circle, left Wichita Falls Saturday night to attend a meeting of the society to be held September 13-17 at Omaha, Neb. At Denison last night Mrs. Somers met delegates from all over the state in the charge of Mrs. Henrietta A. Thomas of Fort Worth, past national president and state manager for Texas.

The Texas delegation hopes to convince the national officers that the proper place to locate the home for the aged members and orphan children is in this state, Mrs. Somers said.

Saul's Executives In Eastern Markets

D. B. Loeb, manager, Saul's, R. L. De Shong, merchandise man, and Mrs. S. G. Barton, in charge of the dress goods department of Saul's Department Store, leave Sunday evening for eastern markets, to complete buying of fall and winter merchandise for Saul's store and branch stores at Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park. Saul Lebenson, who has been in New York for several weeks, will meet them in St. Louis. Prospects for big fall and winter business are better than before, in the opinion of all who are keeping in touch with the situation, and it is the intention of Saul's store buyers to buy the most complete and extensive stocks to meet the anticipated demand.

Demonstration Agent Returns

Miss Ethel Louise Webb, home demonstration agent for Wichita county, returned Saturday from Stephenville where she spent her vacation with home folks. Miss Webb stated that she found dozens of inquires and letters concerning the women's departments of the Texas-Oklahoma fair upon her return to work, and now has a big job ahead of her getting exhibits together for the fair.

There will be a fine line of exhibits from the various farm clubs in this section, and many of them are already located in the city ready for arranging at the fair ground.

May Antics In December Bring Divorce Suit For Man's Wife, Mother of 6

"May-time" demeanor in the "December" of life is charged a wife of 18 years and the mother of six children by an irate husband in a divorce petition filed with the district clerk Saturday. The two were married in 1908, the petition states, reciting that the wife had been faithful and circumspect in the performance of her marital obligations up until six months ago, when it alleges she began to go out at nights with other men, refused upon occasion to cook meals for her six children, the oldest of whom was 17 and the youngest 4, and stayed away from the husband's home and premises for long periods of time without letting him know where she was. A "waiver," accepting the divorce suit-and subsequent judgment of the court without protest, was filed by the defendant wife Saturday also.

The petition was one of four filed with the clerk. Cruel and inhumane treatment is assigned by one wife to her husband in asking a divorce, her petition citing as a specific instants that on one night last July her husband kicked her out of bed. Another wife lived with her husband only eight days, a petition as filed states, before leaving him for parts unknown. Infidelity is made the cause of action in the fourth petition.

LAST CONCERT DUE SUNDAY

Municipal Band Will Close A Successful Year's Work

The last of a series of nine concerts given by the Wichita Falls Municipal band will be given Sunday evening, starting at 6:30 o'clock at Bellevue park, according to H. A. Brollier, director. The concert is being given through the courtesy of the Wichita Falls Traction company.

Concerts have been given each Sunday evening at Bellevue park during the summer prior to the opening of the Sunday evening union religious services, and thousands of Wichitans gathered to hear the music, and expressed appreciation for the band.

"This is the last one of the series made possible by a number of liberal, public spirited business institutions of Wichita Falls. We wish to thank those who have borne the expense of the concerts, and it has been a pleasure to the band to present the programs," Mr. Brollier said yesterday. "We will continue our bi-weekly rehearsals and hope to arrange a series of winter concerts," the director announced.

The program for the evening follows:

March, "Royal Bridesmaids" (John W. Casto.)

Southern melodies, "Memories of Stephen Foster" (arranged by Holmes).

A Cullud Toreador, "Bull Trombone" (Fillmore).

Idyll, "The Glow Worm" (Paul Lincke).

"Her Beaus are all Rainbows" (Bryan-Meyer)

Overture, "Poet and Peasant" (Suppe) by request.

"Do You Believe in Dreams?" (Robinson-Britt-Little).

District And County Courts Busy Monday

Three Wichita county courts will get into action after a long summer recess Monday. Criminal cases will occupy the attention of Judge P. A. Martin of the 30th district court, while a number of civil settings have been arranged for the 78th district court. The county court at law will try a number of criminal cases which have been set for the week.

The 30th district court at Graham will be engaged throughout this week in the trial of civil cases before Judge E. G. Thornton, criminal settings having been arranged there for the week of September 20.

MYERS SPEAKS AT WACO.

Speaking at a membership meeting at the chamber of commerce at Waco, Texas, Tuesday night, Raymond Myers, Wichita Falls attorney, gave the citizens of that city some of the insights of the irrigation and water problems which have confronted this section of the country, and also some of the things which had been done here towards solving that problem. The meeting was being held to discuss plans for a bond issue, proceeds of which will be used in building a dam across one fork of the Brazos river. Waco proposes a mammoth irrigation project and the campaign in behalf of the bonds is now under way.

TO HEAR REPORTS

Reports from delegates to the Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis convention will be heard at the Monday meeting of Kiwanis at noon in the Kemp hotel, according to announcement in the bulletin.

It is also announced that "everybody smokes Monday at the expense of Roy Grimes. He will thereby introduce Roy, Jr."

Wellington Asks Wichita to Fair

E. S. Shoaf, secretary of the Wellington Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Collingsworth County fair, has extended an invitation to the people of Wichita Falls to visit the fair in Wellington, which opens Thursday, September 16, for three days. In a letter to the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Shoaf states they are expecting the best fair in the history of the county and assures the people of this city a great time if they will take advantage of this opportunity to visit the city of Wellington.

Costello Funeral Set For Sunday

Funeral services for Eldon Costello, baby son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Costello, who died at 4:20 o'clock Friday afternoon, will be held from the residence, 1414 Harrison street, Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock. Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, will conduct the service.

The child is survived by his parents, two sisters, Bina Costello and Mrs. Kay McWethy of Anadarko, Okla.; five brothers, John, Earl, Tom, Carl and Ray Dean Costello. Mr. Costello's father from Oil City, La., is expected to be here for the funeral.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The Only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

NO AIR MAIL IN SIGHT HERE

But Traffic Increases Steadily, Maricle Declares Here

Rumors of an air mail service for Wichita Falls in the near future are without fact so far as the local postal department is concerned or has knowledge of, it was made plain by Postmaster O. P. Miracle when questioned about it yesterday. However, the postmaster stated that air mail into and out of Wichita Falls has been steadily increasing since the route was established in Texas, and he hazarded the prophesy that it would not be very long before the air mail traffic from this point would justify establishing a route through Wichita Falls.

There is nothing tangible in the way of evidence of such a proposition, but there has been some agitation of a route through Wichita Falls, and the project may bear fruit yet, as it not only effects Wichita Falls but other cities and towns along the proposed route.

If such proposition were established under present plans of the promoters it would provide a night air mail from and into Wichita Falls every 24 hours, and cut the air mail time from Wichita Falls to eastern points almost six hours, as the mail now must go by train to Fort Worth of Dallas before being put aboard the planes.

Nary A Victor

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Lieutenant C. T. Cuddihy of the navy today won the free for all military pursuit ship race, the feature event of the national air race meet held here this week.

In winning the 120 mile race over a 12-mile triangular course, Lieutenant Cuddihy was announced as having established a world's record for standard pursuit ships. His average time was 180.495 miles an hour.

ITCHY PIMPLES ON BABY'S HEAD

Scratching Caused Eruptions. Healed by Cuticura.

"My baby had little pimples break out on his head. They itched and burned and when he scratched it caused eruptions. His hair was lifeless and dry. He was very fretful at night and kept me awake. The trouble lasted a month.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two weeks he was completely healed, after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Elsie Durham, Selman, Oklahoma.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Talcum is unexcelled in purity.

Local Woman Hurt In Train Wreck Near Tupelo, Okla.

Mrs. David Pope of 1008 Polk street of this city who was injured in a train wreck near Tupelo, Okla., late Friday night, is thought to be seriously injured, according to a message from Mr. Pope who reached his wife's bedside Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Pope is internally injured, though to what extent, attending physicians were unable to determine, the message to their daughter, Mrs. Rose Brittain, stated. Mr. and Mrs. Pope expect to reach Wichita Falls late Sunday afternoon.

SCOUTS HAVE PARTY NIGHT

Troop 15 At Highland Church Enjoy a Big Time

"Parent's Night" was observed by Boy Scouts of Troop 15 at the Highland Heights Christian church Friday night when dramatized educational stunt program was a feature of the entertainment. Twenty-seven scouts and their scoutmaster, J. Chester Powell presented the program. The meeting opened with an introductory talk by Mr. Powell who turned the program over to Mike Donegan, senior patrol leader.

The following boys took part in the events: Walter and Eugene Cope, Maurice Patton, Frank Tims, Wade Banowsky, John James, Jr., R. D. Ford, Jr., Billy McMillan, Ed Mulligan, Allan Gough, J. F. Dixon, Frank Hunter.

A boxing match between Jerome Allen and Wade Banowsky was also a part of the entertainment.

Stag Patrol is sponsoring a library which it expects to grow into a troop library. Ed Mulligan is librarian; Mike Donegan, assistant, and Allan Gough has been appointed troop treasurer; Eugene Cope, troop scribe, and Paul Packard and Jerome Allen, troop buglers.

The party closed with the boys and their parents taking allegiance to the flag, and taps and echo by the buglers.

Haines in Childress Predicts Defeat For Demo Leader

CHILDRESS, Texas, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Prediction that he would defeat Dan Moody for governor was made here Saturday by H. H. Haines republican nominee for governor, who is making a canvass of panhandle counties before opening his campaign in south Texas.

Mr. Haines intimated that Ferguson followers would vote the republican ticket in November. He predicted that the republicans at that time would be much greater than that given Mr. Butte two years ago.

"What the democratic party in Texas needs more than anything else is a good powerful republican party," Haines declared.

MEET HERE IN 1928 LIKELY

Claypool Says American Legion May Come to Wichita Falls Then

R. J. Claypool, adjutant of the local post American Legion, announced Saturday that Wichita Falls stood a good chance of getting the 1928 convention of the American Legion. Mr. Claypool extended an invitation to this effect in behalf of Wichita Falls and a number of telegrams from Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and other organizations were also read at the recent convention in Amarillo. Houston had asked for the convention this year and was given the convention for 1927. After that it is open running and Wichita Falls has a good chance to be selected.

The Amarillo convention, Mr. Claypool said, was very successful and the people of Amarillo provided interesting programs for the entertainment of the visitors. More than 400 legionnaires were in attendance, he said.

"Many of the boys want to come here next year," Mr. Claypool said, "and no doubt this city would have been selected had Houston not presented her claims last year."

COLLISION STOPS RACE

Amarillo-Corpus Christi Run Ends In Disaster

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—A collision with an automobile from Ballinger, at Eden, around noon Saturday stopped Leo Rice's Amarillo to Corpus Christi endurance motor run after he had traveled 398 of the 746 miles in 9 1-2 hours, including a 15-minute halt here.

The front of Rice's motor car was wrecked. A Mrs. Smith of Ballinger, occupant of the other car, was cut by flying glass. None others was hurt, reports from Eden indicated. A wrecker was sent from San Angelo for Rice's machine. Eden is 44 miles southeast of San Angelo.

Two Alabama Ladies Tell of Their Successful Use of CARDUI

"TWO years ago, I was in the worst of health," says Mrs. H. S. Spivey, of Goshen, Ala., whose picture is printed above. "I was weak and nervous. I was in bed for several weeks. My family thought I was going into a decline. I had a small baby, but was not able to take care of it myself. My husband helped me all he could. I was dreadfully distressed by my condition.

"My case was very stubborn and would not respond to any treatment. I tried everything that was recommended to me, but nothing helped. My nerves were 'all to pieces'. The least thing sent me into hysterics. My back ached continually. I really suffered terribly.

"My mother said all along the real cause of my illness was womanly weakness. She insisted that I give Cardui a trial, so I began taking it. At the end of that first bottle I was so much better that my husband got me four bottles so I could keep right on with the Home Treatment. I kept it up until I was entirely well. I have been in the best of health for the last year."

"I WAS so weak I couldn't go," says Mrs. W. C. Pace, living near Albany, Ala., whose picture is printed above. "I suffered so with my head and back for two solid years, in bed most of the time. I suffered from weakness and nothing I did seemed to do any good. My family was very uneasy about me. I kept getting weaker. I was very depressed.

"I read in the Ladies Birthday Almanac of a case something like mine and decided to try Cardui, as it seemed to help the case I read of. I took two bottles of Cardui and found it was helping me. I took six bottles and it certainly got me up and around.

"I was so awfully thin when I began taking Cardui. I had fallen off to 115 pounds and after I got better I began gaining. In six months from when I began the use of Cardui, I weighed 142 pounds. I did all my housework and washing and all. Cardui got me up and going 16 years ago and I am strong and healthy to this day and recommend Cardui for the wonderful good it did me."

You are hereby commanded to summon T. C. Davis, W. W. Chorn, Charles Blair, Mrs. Margaret Frank, M. P. Kelley, C. C. Knight, by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 30th district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof in Wichita Falls on the first Monday in October, A. D., 1926 the same being the 4th day of October, A. D. 1926. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 4th day of June A. D., 1926 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 18455-A wherein Oscar Talley, individually and as trustee for R. B. Saxe and S. E. Hatfield, and R. B. Saxe and S. E. Hatfield, individually, are plaintiffs and T. P. Norwood, J. P. Jones, C. C. Knight, Ed Howard, Frank Collier, M. O. McDowell, J. O. McDowell, a feme sole, R. E. Orr, J. E. Frank, E. E. Ray, J. T. Overby, Mrs. Dell Davis, and husband, T. C. Davis, W. J. Bullock, W. W. Chorn, Charles Blair, M. P. Kelly, Mrs. Margaret Frank, a feme sole, and Mrs. Dell Davis and husband, T. G. Davis are defendants, and said petition alleging.

I

That plaintiffs are now and have been for several years the owners in fee simple, of the following described tract of land, situated in Wichita County, Texas, to-wit: The North 40 acres of the west 1-2 of S. A. & M. G. RY. survey No. 1, certificate 21-200, patent 245; described as: Beginning at the northwest corner of said survey, thence east with the north line thereof, 950-vrs to west line of the east 1-2 of said survey, thence south with the east line of the west 1-2 of said survey 237 1-2 vrs for corner; thence west 950-vrs. to west line of said survey; thence north 237 1-2 to place of beginning.

II

That plaintiffs ownership in the above described tract of land is subject to certain outstanding interests owned by defendants, which said interests consist of a right to receive a part of the oil produced and saved from certain wells on the above described tract of land, such interests in said oil produced from said wells being subject to and charged with their proportional part of the cost of operating said wells and producing oil therefrom.

III

That said interests in the oil produced from said wells are owned by said defendants in the respective wells on said land in the following proportions, to-wit:

T. P. Norwood, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1, 2 and 4, respectively.

Frank Collier, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2 respectively.

W. J. Bullock, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2 respectively.

J. P. Jones, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

C. C. Knight, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

M. C. McDowell, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2 respectively.

R. E. Orr, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

E. E. Ray, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2 respectively.

J. E. Frank, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

W. W. Chorn, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from wells Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

J. T. Overby, 7-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 1.

Ed. Howard, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 1.

Mrs. Dell Davis and husband, J. A. Davis, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 2.

Charles Blair, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 1.

M. P. Kelly, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 1.

Mrs. Margaret Frank, 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 2.

Mrs. J. O. McDowell, 1-140 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 1, and 1-70 of 7-8 of all oil produced from well No. 2.

IV

That plaintiffs since the first of July, 1924, have been operating said wells and advancing the cost thereof; that since said first of July, 1924, and up to the present time, the cost of operating said wells Nos. 1, 2, and 4, respectively, has greatly exceeded the value of the oil produced and saved from said respective wells, and that therefore plaintiffs have been operating said wells at a loss that the cost of operating said wells exceeds the value of the oil produced therefrom is due to the fact, in the opinion of plaintiff, that the ownership of the oil produced from said property is divided into so many small parts; that the cost of operating said well No. 1, has exceeded the value of the oil produced and saved therefrom, during the period of time from July 1st, 1924, up to the date of the filing of this petition, in the sum approximately One Hundred ($100.00); and of well No. 2, Three Hundred ($300.00) Dollars; and of well No. 4, Two Hundred and Fifty ($250.00) Dollars, and that said cost of operating said wells Nos. 1, 2 and 4, respectively, at the the present time, exceeds the value of the oil produced and saved therefrom, on the average of Ten ($10.00) Dollars, Thirty ($30.00) Dollas, and Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per month for said respective wells, and that this loss will continue so long as the ownership of the oil produced and saved from such property is divided into the many small interests as it is at the present time; a sum equal to that said loss in the operation of said wells which has been incurred, and which will continue to occur as aforesaid, is due and owing plaintiffs by defendants in the proportion to the ownership of defendants in the oil produced and saved from said property, together with interest thereon from date hereof until paid at the legal rate of 6 per cent per annum.

V

That plaintiffs and defendants now compose and have composed during said period, a mining co-partnership operating said wells, and that therefore plaintiffs have a lien on the interests of said defendants in said land and said respective wells, and the oil to be produced and saved therefrom, to secure them in the payment of said money advanced and to be advanced to cover the cost of the operation of said wells owing by said respective defendants.

VI

Plaintiffs say that in the event they are mistaken that plaintiffs and defendants are a mining co-partnership as aforesaid, that plaintiffs and defendants are to the extent of the interests above mentioned, co-owners in said property, and that therefore plaintiffs have a lien on said land and said respective wells to secure them in the repayment of the sums advanced for the operation of said wells, which are due and owing by defendants as aforesaid.

VII

That the above amounts owing by defendants to plaintiffs are now past due, and unpaid, and that defendants though often requested, have hitherto failed and refused to pay the same or any part thereof, to plaintiffs damage in the sums owing by said respective defendants as aforesaid, amounting to Seven Hundred ($700.00) Dollars.

VIII

That no settlement of accounts between plaintiffs and defendants has ever been made although plaintiffs have frequently demanded that a settlement be made between them and that defendants pay plaintiffs the amount due and owing them.

Wherefore, plaintiffs pray the court that the defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition and that said partnership be dissolved and for an accounting between plaintiffs and defendants, and that after the payment of all debts and the cost and expenses of this action that plaintiffs have judgment against the respective defendants for the amounts due and owing them for said respective defendants and for a foreclosure of their liens on the respective interests of said defendants in and to the above described property, land and interests of defendants in said respective wells, and that the same be decreed to be sold according to law, and that the sheriff or other officer executing said order of sale shall place the purchaser of said property sold under said order of sale, in possession thereof within 30 days after the day of sale, and for such other and further relief, special and general, in law and in equity that they may be justly entitled to.

Herein fail not, but have before said court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 19th day of August A. D. 1926.
(Seal.)

EUNICE JACKSON,
Clerk District Court, Wichita County, Texas.

A Real Home Investment In This 10-Room Two-Story Duplex

The owner of this well constructed Duplex has moved to Amarillo and has instructed us to sell the same at once and has given us a price below the appraisal value of one of the most conservative loan companies in the state.

It is located on an east front paved lot on Harrison street in the new Martin and Hamilton school district and consists of a large living room 14 by 18, dining room, bed room, kitchen and bath on the first floor and a large sleeping room 14 by 18 on the second floor of each apartment, with separate stairways to each apartment. The shades and linoleum go with the place. No. 1 oak floors throughout the first floor of each apartment. We are instructed to offer this place for the secrifice price of $8,000, of which $4,250 is held by a loan company drawing only 6% interest. The balance can be arranged so that your total monthly payments will only amount to $100 per month and either side of this apartment will rent for $60 per month.

If you are interested in a real home and at the same time a real investment, do not overlook this place.

FOREIGN BOND TRADE DRAWS IN PAST WEEK

Higher Prices Mark a Renewal of Active Purchasing

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The week in the investment market has been characterized by a remarkable renewal of interest in foreign bonds, accompanied by rising prices. The result has been that the average quotation for these issues traded in on the New York stock exchange is at a new high point, not only for this year but since dealings in these loans were initiated on any considerable scale.

Interest centered around the obligations of Italy, France and Germany, buying appeared in the dollar bonds of other countries and there were some advances but they were not as conspicuous as in the case of the three mentioned.

Reasons for this mark of confidence in foreign investments are various. In the first place the investor who is willing to take some risk in return for an attractive yield has been forced to turn to the foreign field because the prices of domestic bonds has reached so high a level. This is the broad and sustaining influences for values in foreign dollar bonds.

Then there have been tangible debuyers of foreign bonds. In the first place the Italian deflation measures have been the object of much of the comment. Quotations in the market for Italian lire tell the same story. So it was not surprising that the most spectacular of the operations in foreign bonds this week should have been in connection with the Italian government 7 per cent dollar loan.

For a long time these bonds had been selling below the obligations of France, Belgium and Germany all with the same coupon rate and of approximately the same maturity. They had had an unfortunate history. Offered in December, 1925, they were the last to be marketed of all the four continental European 7 per cent bonds and distribution was not as thorough as in the case of the other three. When the syndicate was dissolved in May, 1926 the market had an abrupt break of about 5 points and until the last ten days little progress toward recovery was made. This week, however, there was a sudden change in sentiment and on Friday under an extremely large turnover the quotation advanced to the best since a free market in the bonds was established.

Along with this improvement in Italian bonds was a further rise in French issues. Two of the direct obligations of the central government made new highs for the year especially al lthe French railway bonds did the same.

Inasmuch as the French government controls the railways, bonds of the latter have always moved more or less with other French securities. Perhaps, too, the report from the other side that a new loan was to be extended to the French railways by a group of bankers, technically British but actually involving American capita,l had something to do with the matter. Under the policy laid down by Washington, the bankers of the United States cannot make loans direct to France or French enterprises until the war debt refunding agreement has been ratified. Still, in indirect ways American funds could be used through London. There has been no progress toward placing French finances on a gold basis, but at least the downward movement of the franc has been arrested, arrested temporary which is another fact that has doubtless proved helpful to the market for French bonds.

Turning to Germany there is more cause for satisfaction than in either Italy or France. Buying of German bonds has not been so conspicuous but they too, have been well taken. It must be remembered that German dollar loans sell on a lower yield basis than those of the other two countries and do not ofefr quite so great a speculative incentive. For that very reason they should be more attractive to the buyer whose main purpose is continuity of income and not appreciation in his principal.

In the domestic market the most interesting development was the heavy over-subscription to the treasury's offering of $350,000,000 certificates of indebtedness on a 3 1-2 per cent basis. The reception accorded this financing on terms so favorable to the government supports the argument that the treasury will be able to borrow at progressively lower rates as time goes on, no matter what the course of the rest of the investment market.

There is however, no sign of any weakening in the demand for prime corporation securities. Prosperous public utilities have again demonstrated their ability to sell first mortgage bonds at prices to net the buyer less than 5 per cent during the week. The market for seasoned issues has been steady. While it has not enjoyed any important advance, on the other hand, it has not been distributed by what hardening of money has occurred.

The weekly statement of the federal reserve banks reveals nothing to weaken the investmnt situation. The reserve ratio is practically the same as in the preceding week and nearly a point above what it was in the same week a year ago. Undoubtedly there has been some selling of bonds by member banks but it has been readily absorbed.

Spain Resigns Its League Post

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Spain has left the league of nations. An official communication announcing Spain's withdrawal was received at Geneva today and circulated immediately among all the members of the league. The communication declared that Spain had taken this step "in obedience to imperial duty."

The resignation is dated San Sebastian, September 8, and is signed by Foreign Minister Yanguas.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Apprehensions of unfavorable weather developments over the week and failed to create much buying power in the cotton market here today, and prices broke severely in the late trading under liquidation and southern selling. December sold off to 17.14, or 41 points net lower and closed at that figure with the general market closing weak at net declines of 33 to 44 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 15 to 18 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and a favorable view of early weather reports from the south. There was considerable southern selling here and further liquidation, but the initial offerings were absorbed at net declines of about 13 to 20 points, and prices rallied slightly on the uncertainty of week end weather conditions.

Fears were expressed that low temperature would work down into the southwest before Monday morning while there was also a possibility, in the opinion of some local traders, that the tropical disturbance reported southeast of Florida might move toward the belt. This storm, however, seemed too remote to cause much anxiety, while it was considered still too early in the season for talk of a cold wave to cause a frost and the market became very weak in the late trading.

The failure of the so-called storm threat to make more buying was a disappointment to interests who had carried long contracts over previous declines. This may have been responsible for some liquidation and the decline caught a good many top orders below the 17.44c level for December. October sold off to 16.95, or 44 points net lower, with most month liquidations prompted by the reported arrival of 10,000 bales of cotton here presumably for delivery next month.

Reports that one of the large New England plants had closed down for an indefinite period contributed to the late weakness. Private cables attributed the weakness in Liverpool to increased hedge selling and liquidation.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The cotton market was very active for a short Saturday session. The price trend was downward and at times during the session the market was decided weak. Liverpool came in much lower than due and this fact, together with early reports of little rain in the belt caused opening prices to show losses of 16 to 20 points.

The market continued to ease off after the start and the decline became more rapid under pressure of hedge selling, liquidation of the stale long interest and a good deal of short selling. The decline was checked.

The decline was checked and a moderate rally brought about during the final hour by the announcement of another storm warning for a tropical disturbance of some intensity in the West IndiesIndies moving northwest. This was probably the same storm reported yesterday. The market eased off again in the final trading, but did not duplicate the lows, the close showing losses for the day of 63 to 67 points.

The market showed losses of 16 to 20 points soon after the start. October trading down to 17.21, December to 17.30 and January 17.33, or 20 to 22 poin stunder the close of yesterday. The declining tendency became more pronounced after the first hour, due largely to heavy hedge selling and during the middle of the noon hour October traded as low as 16.75, December 16.89 and January 16.86, or 67 to 71 points below the previous close. The posting of a storm warning caused a moderate rally of 7 to 14 points, but it was short lived and the market was again easy at the close, although the earlier lows were not again reached. Exports for the day totaled 17,643 bales.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Attempts by eastern shorts to cover coupled with reports of unfavorable weather in the Canadian northwest, offset bearish construction placed on the United States and Canadian government crop reports of yesterday and boosted wheat values after an early downward trend. At the finish wheat showed a net gain of 1⅞ to 2⅛c corn was unchanged to 1¼c up; oats advanced ⅛c to 1¼c and provisions were unchanged to 2½c higher.

Prospects of frost tonight in parts of the northwest with the possibility that the cold might reach some sections of the middle west, led to free buying of corn and a higher level of values. The forecast indicated more rain over the corn belt and in addition offerings were light.

Oats were higher with the government report construed as bullish.

Provisions were easier on scattered selling and in sympathy with weakness in cotton seed oil.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A further downward readjustment of values took place in today's stock market. There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement which appeared to be a correction of the weakened technical position resulting from the recent rapid advance in many issues and their improper distribution. Public participation was on a small scale and operators working for higher prices showed a disposition to restrict commitments until after the third quarterly income tax, dividend and interest payments were out of the way.

Bear traders succeeded i nforcing the liquidation of large blocks of motor shares, basing their selling on the belief that recent price cuts would be reflected in lower earnings, and that increasing competition among the large manufacturers probably spelled disaster for some of the smaller companies. Studebaker was an exception, closing 1¼ points higher at 80½, with buying influenced by reports that a new banking group had become interested in that stock. General Motors lost three points to 212¾, and then rallied slightly and Yellow Truck and Hudson each yielded about a point.

Despite the explanation that the drop in unfilled orders last month was due to increasing shipments rather than to a reduction in demand, United States Steel common was in supply most of the session dropping 1⅛ points to a new low on the current movement at 146¼ and closing just above that figure.

Other steels held fairly steady. Rails received better support than the industrials although losses of a point or more were registered by a dozen issues including Atchison, Chicago and Northwestern, Rock Island, "Nickel Plate," Southern and Union Pacific.

Firmness of the foreign exchanges reflected the splendid impression created in international banking circles by the spirit of amity which surrounded the entrance of Germany into the league of nations. Demand sterling was slightly higher around $4.85¼ and French francs rallied several points to around 3.90 cents.

Tiny Tot Tales

MEDDLESOME MOLLY THE BAD LITTLE DOLLY

BY MARTHA HART

Molly, the [doll] had given all her lunch to the thin old [dog] who had eaten it so fast that she herself hadn't had a single bite. "I feel so much better now!" said the [dog] "I even feel as if I would like to go to the [dog]-ball; won't you go with me?"

Molly, the [doll] wondered how such a thin ragged old [dog] could go to a ball, but as she looked at him he seemed to grow sleek and fat. His [eyes] shown like yellow [stars] and his fur looked thick and shiny.

"Why, yes," she said to herself, "all he needs is a [collar] around his neck! Perhaps my [collar] would do." 9-9

Vendope Sign System,
Vendope Building, 8th and Burnett,
Wichita Falls, Texas.

Dear Mr. Vendope:

May we in this great metropolis of the east pause for a moment to extend congratulations to that great western country and to you wonderful folks OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS and to you good western folks from that mighty state of Texas that are truly creative and especially to you folks in that western section where you do not weep, nor go with those who weep, over lost opportunities for every opportunity lost we know you western folks find ten new ones.

When we were informed by Vendope that the float prepared at the expense of your local druggist, Mr. Claud Hill of the Miller Drug store, had won first prize it made us feel exceedingly proud to think that Annin quality decorations again rang true as they did about a century past, or to be exact, way back in 1847 when Edward J. Annin and Benjamin F. Annin first vizulized the possibility of building the largest flag and decorating house of the world. And why should we not be proud and why should we not boastingly say, of course Annin quality wins first prize, same as Annin quality most always deservingly does.

Not only to the Miller Drug store do we wish to congratulate, but to the Central Trades and Labor Council of the splendid "City That Faith Built," and for the wonderful co-operation displayed by all crafts and by such corporations which, no doubt, established a record for your great western country by having the most wonderful Labor day parade possible, known to your section of the southwest, to the phonograph shop of your city for the courtesy extended by furnishing that wonderful music from the new Brunswick which harmonized splendidly with the beautiful decorations and the flowers to the Chevrolet that conveyed the prize winning float so majestically through the streets of your city—SO SMOOTHLY—and last, but not least, may we say that you folks should be proud to have such a firm as the Vendope Sign System, willing and ready at all times to serve you with the latest and finest in decorations—Annin quality, of course.

Thanking all of you folks of West Texas for the wonderful business given Vendope Sign System and concluding, may we say that even though you find Annin quality decorations a few cents higher, remember, had it not been for quality we possibly would not have survived for practically a century.

Very truly yours,
ANNIN & CO.

Teaching Assignments For School Term Made In City System

Faculty Lists Made Out Here By Officials

More Than 9,000 Students Registered in City As Being of Scholastic Age; 7,500 Expected to Enroll.

The following is the list of teachers for the Wichita Falls public schools which open Monday morning for class work, according to Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of city schools.

More than 9,000 children of scholastic ages have been registered in this city and the question of the number of children entering school Monday will be just how many of that number will be ready for the opening day, Dr. Cantwell said. It is believed that 7,500 boys and girls will be enrolled in the college, high school and elementary schools tomorrow, it was said.

To Decide Long Colorado Fight

DENVER, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A two-year fight for control of the Colorado republican party waged by United States Senator Lawrence G. Phipps and Senator Rice W Means, directing head of the state ku klux klan, against Clarence C. Hamlin, republican national committeeman and leader of the anti-klan faction of the party, will be settled at the state primary election Tuesday.

The campaign, one of the most bitter in the political history of the state, has resolved itself into a campaign of personalities without a national issue.

KILLED BY WIRE

WACO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—E. H. Thornton, 68, was believed to have been instantly killed late today when he came in contact with a pipe containing a high voltage electric wire. His body was found by employes of the Clement Grain company about an hour after he had left that place to step across the street to a store. Thornton was lying face down near the pipe and tips of his fingers on one hand were burned.

WINS DISTANCE RACE

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Otto Peltzer, German distance runner, won the 1,500-meter race today at the track and field meet of the Charlottenburg Sport club. Emile Wid of Sweden, was second and Paavo Nurmi of Finland third.

Peltzer's time was three minutes, 51 seconds, a world's record. The previous record was established by Nurmi in Finland on June 19, 1924, when he ran the distance in three minutes, 52.6 seconds.

PRIDDY TRIAL SET SEPT. 21

Alleged Failure to Render Property to be Tested in Court

Walter Priddy, Wichita Falls business man, under a misdemeanor indictment for failure to render property for taxation will come to trial in the county court at law on Tuesday, September 21, according to a list of settings announced Saturday by Wayne Somerville, county attorney. Mr. Priddy's trial is one of a number of settings arranged for that day.

Mr. Priddy was indicted by the July term of the grand jury, the charge growing out of alleged refusal to see certain deputies of the tax assessors office when they called on him for the purpose of getting renditions on certain oil well property in the Burkburnett field. In a statement issued the day following the indictment Mr. Priddy charged that he had been subjected to ungentlemanly and unseemly conduct on the part of those who had called upon him. In his statement he declared his intention of making a "test" case of what he termed the "arbitrary" power of the tax assessor in making renditions.

Other settings announced by the county attorney's office for the week are:

Contract Let For Fritz Addition

Announcement was made Saturday that the contract had been closed for the addition of a second story to the Fritz Motor company building at Eighth and Austin streets, the additional floor to be occupied by the Vendope Sign System.

The building is to be redecorated with stucco in the Spanish style of architecture and the Vendope company will install one of their latest designs of electric signs which have a concealed lighting system of recent invention.

The Vendope system already has a building of its own at the corner of Eighth and Burnett, and are getting the additional building exclusively for use in the manufacture of electric signs. They have one of the most complete sign establishments in the southwest and have been steadily growing since opening for business here. The new building will be a partner ownership of the Vendope System and the Fritz Motor company.

Seales of Dallas; Francisco Esquibel and Gregoria Barron; G. G. Harris and Robbie Lee Roades.

BUILDING IN CITY SLUMPS

Week Shows Decided Loss Under Figure of Previous Weeks

Fewer building permits were issued in the city of Wichita Falls for the past week than in any other week since the beginning of the year, and the total money involved show a decided loss under that of previous weeks. However this is not to be interpreted as a building slump, but rather as a week in which practically nothing but residence projects were contemplated, it is said.

The total for the past week amounts to only nineteen permits issuednd the total finances involved are $43,225. Building of residences, most of which are for home owners, has slackened but little, but big building projects are slower than at any time during the year. The total, including the past weeks' permits, now amounts to $7,559,796 for the year, a considerable increase over the same period for last year.

Individual permits were as follows:

J. T. Pollard, 2123 Broad, residence and garage; $3,000.

H. G. Helgerson, 1668 Ardath, residence and garage; $4,500.

W. L. D. Fox, 2136 Yale, residence and garage; $2,000.

Mr. Fisher, 561 North Lamar, residence and garage; $2,000.

A. Benson, 2707 Pennsylvania, residence and garage; $1,685.

S. L. Butler, 1421 North Eighth, residence and garage; $2,750.

W. F. Sonnamaker, 1300 Britain, garage; $200.

Johnnie Ryan, 1905 McGregor, residence and garage; $4,000.

Parker and Gentry, 2415 Grant, grocery store; $200.

R. M. Tittle, 1324 Eighth, rindence; $800.

W. E. Wilson, 2121 Yale, residence and garage; $2,000.

Pioneer Wichita County Woman Dies At Electra, Saturday

ELECTRA, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Victoria Virginia Hooks, age 77, died here this afternoon following an extended illness. Mrs. Hooks is a pioneer citizen of Wichita county, having moved here from Alabama in 1888, living at Iowa Park until 1910 when she moved to Electra.

She is survived by three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Nettie Boudaker of Grandfield, Okla.; Mrs. E. A. Dale of Electra, and Mrs. Clarence McDannald, D. E. Hooks, R. T. Hooks, R. T. Hooks of Panola and Lawrence Hooks of Foraker, Okla.

Funeral services will be held at Iowa Park at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the Rev. C. C. Klingman of the First Christian church of that city officiating.

BODY TO MINERAL WELLS

The body of Sam Hazelwood, 45, who died Saturday morning at 12:30 o'clock in a local hospital, was forwarded to his home at Mineral Wells early today by the Hines Mortuary. He is survived by his wife and two children of Mineral Wells.

THRIFT TICKET SALE WILL END

Two Weeks Yet to Purchase Tickets to Fair at Big Saving

Only two weeks remain for Texas-Oklahoma fair fans to purchase the thrift Tickets available and thereby insure a saving of 20 per cent in their gate entrance expenses to the fair.

The Thrift tickets are offered by the fair association in advance of the fair in order to allevviate the financial condition of the association and at the same time offer the people, especially those of large families, a chance to save some money. The tickets are good for fifty cents at the grand stand or at any entry gate and are sold now for 40 cents each. The sale will continue until Saturday the 25th, and those wanting to purchase them should get in touch with the office of the fair association in the Perkins-Snyder building at once.

Last year more than $4,500 worth of these tickets were sold, and all indications are that the sales this year will far exceed that amount.

—The Summer Bride
—European Tours
—The Fall Brides
—About Bobbed Hair
—Our Visitors Here
—School Days Again

DEAR KITTY:

Well, my cherie, the most exciting, delectable and important news for your perusal this week centers about brides, girls and boys going away to school, the return of summer vacationists, and the general "come back" to life of everybody, after several months of rest and recreation. And while many of our travelers are either home or homeward bound, others still linger on, especially the European tourists. Last week Mr. and Mrs. Snider and Helen came in from several months abroad, as did Bernice Martin, and a party including Ray Walker, Elizabeth Brown, Alta Hobbs and Mrs. F. B. Carver. A mestin also returned last week. A message received by Mrs. T. P. Duncan from Margaret who with a group of college friends have been in Europe for several months, stated that she sailed from Havre, France and will arrive at Houston September 30. The party spent a month in Paris and are returning the southern route stopping in Cuba for about three days.

Others who have landed in New York are Mr. and Mrs. Saul Lebenson, and they are expected home soon. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp sailed for Europe later than the other Wichitans who crossed the pond this summer, so their return home will probably not be until next month. The Dudley Goldings are over there, also Mrs. Mark Moore, and will no doubt remain for a short time.

Another tourist heard from recently, who has spent a most interesting summer, is Juanita Kinsey. Traveling overland with her mother, she is returning home after touring 20 southern states.

* * * *

ENTER the fall bride! A June bride, a fall bride, a summer bride, a mid-winter bride. Which would you rather be, Kitty? I don't know. I believe the fall bride can plan the most interesting trousseau don't you think?

The scent of orange blossoms is now in the air, and weddings are the chief topic of conversation over the cards and ice tea glasses these afternoons. One of our most popular and prettiest girls became a bride last week, and two other girls are to announce their engagements in a week or two. Both will be married in October, I hear, but definite dates have not yet been set for the weddings. Aren't you dying to know whom I mean? Well, suspense and curiosity are pleasant states of mind, and I am going to keep you in those states for the time being. Just be patient, old girl.

* * * *

Well, Kitty, have you had your new fall shingle? The latest in the fall bobs, you know is the wind-blown bob which has been worn some all summer but is coming in stronger for the fall. Just go to your favorite barber, let him turn the fan on your head and note carefully the effect and have him cut your hair the way the wind blows it. Of course you must have a wave, a permanent or natural one. It is very fetching.

Speaking of the inevitable coiffeure, have you read in the papers that the new Marguerites will abolish the heavy Teutonic blonde braids for the shingle bob?

Madam Elizabeth Rethberg of the Metropolitan and Ravinia Opera companies started the argument. It is her ambition to try the effect on an audience of her blonde curly bob instead of a heavy blonde wig, as Marguerite, in Gounod's Faust.

"Bobbed hair has been universally recognized," says Madam Rethberg, "so why not let one naturally equipped with the color of hair required for one part appear in a bob instead of a ponderous braided wig?

Back of the desire to appear with her own hair exhibited is the fear all artists are said to feel—that their wigs may some day slip or fall off, and create consternation, confusion and ridicule.

"I would like to some day sing Marguerite without a wig, and I feel sure that no audience would take offense."

Tradition seems to demand that the artists of the opera fulfill the mediaeval mode of the scene to the last detail. Few are endowed by nature with tresses appropriate to the occasion, but one striking exception is Madam Tamaki Miura, the Japanese prima donna, whose Cho-Cho San in Madame Butterfly is absolutely true to life.

In the new opera in English produced here last winter, Madame Miura took the name part of Namiko San, costumed and coiffured as in her girlhood days.

* * * *

AMONG our muchly feted visitors are two attractive San Antonio girls, Lucile Gaines and Kitty West Schriener, guests of Ivy V. Larkin. Many delightful affairs are being given for these popular girls by members of the younger set, and while all the parties are more or less small and informal, they are proving none the less enjoyable.

* * * *

With the beginning of school right on hand, mothers are tearing around frantically getting boys and girls ready for the nine months' grind, and social affairs will for the most part not be much in evidence until this all important task is disposed of. Attention for the present at least, centers around the school set. For a month now, every train almost will carry Wichita Falls' boys and girls to the various schools and colleges, and while the state university is well represented among the schools selected by those going away, various other universities and colleges will get a quota of local students. More Wichita Falls boys and girls are going to eastern schools this year than ever before, and National Park Seminary at Washington, D. C., appears to be a favorite college among local girls. Oklahoma university, as has been for several terms, will probably draw the largest number of home students than any other school besides the state university however more boys than girls here go there. Miss Hockaday's school at Dallas remains a favorite educational institution among the younger girls, running a close race with Lindenwood in Missouri, while Ward-Belmont at Nashville is also popular with them. Several have enrolled in Kidd-Key at Sherman, and some in various convents in Texas and Oklahoma.

* * * *

I don't know how you are going to spend your Saturday afternoon, but for me I think I will don my bathing suit and take probably my last swim before the cold winds of autumn scare the bathers away from the swimming pools which have proven a mecca for stay-at-homes this summer.

Since this is my first epistle to you in several months, and news is not so plentiful just yet, if you find it sufficiently interesting to answer, you will hear again from your old friend—

Peggy Piedmont

Prominent Young People Are Wed in Dallas

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Stella Winters of this city to Harold Smith, formerly of Wichita Falls, now living in San Antonio. The ceremony was read in Dallas Saturday evening in the presence of a group of friends. Miss Winters had started to Austin to enter the State University for the fall and winter term and was met in Dallas by Mr. Smith where the ceremony was read.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Winters and had for several months been connected with the Nunn Electric Company. Mr. Smith is well known here where he was with the Texhoma Oil Company in the geological department for some time afterwards joining the repotorial staff on the Record news in the capacity of Oil editor. Both were popular in local social circles.

After a trip to Mexico City, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home in San Antonio.

Sunday School Class Leaders Hold Meeting

Officers and group leaders of the Alathean class of the First Baptist Sunday school met with Mrs. S. E. Haddox Friday morning when during an interesting business session plans for fall work were made and for bringing back the members on "home coming" day which is Sunday, September 19.

In the social meeting, the program included musical numbers by Mesdames O. G. Stephens, C. C. Jones Jr., R. M. Wilhite and J. B. Flinniken.

A bouffet luncheon was served to Mesdames E. G. Williams, E. C. Hall, Burl Bryant, C. E. Kendall, Fred Schamp, Lee Courtney, J. B. Flinniken, W. A. Lucas, J. E. Ward, Ralph Maricle, Thomas Sessums, T. C. Sisk, O. G. Stephens, E. C. Henry, T. A. Kellem, C. C. Jones Jr., and John Martin.

Lovely cut flowers furnished the decorations.

Camp Fire Girls Fill Bags for Hospitals

Local Camp Fire girls have made cretonne bags and filled them with articles selected from the following list: Pocket knives, handkerchiefs, wash cloths, and soap, memorandum books, diaries, writing pads with envelopes, cigaret cases, pipes, etc., and other useful articles. They will sent through the Red Cross chapter, to the boys in the government hospitals. Each article is wrapped and tied with tissue paper, Christmas seals and ribbon. Each bag contains a Christmas greeting and a return postcard to be sent back to individual or group sending the bag. The girls have enjoyed working together on the bags and thinking of fun the "soldier boys" will get when unwrapping each little package.

Sunday School Class Will be Given Again

"The Pageant of Nations" which was successfully presented at the Carrigan school recently by young people of the Yale Avenue Evangelical church will be repeated during the Sunday school hour under the auspices of the First Presbyterian Sunday school at the Olympic theatre Sunday, September 19.

The play is directed by Harold White and the public is invited.

On Tuesday evening. "The Pageant of Nations" will be given at the kian hall in Scotland park under the auspices of the Scotland Evangelical church when a small admission fee will be charged.

Mrs. Fisher Honoree At Sunrise Shower

Complimenting Mrs. W. O. Fisher who is moving soon to Abilene to make her home, friends of Mrs. W. O. Fisher gave her a lovely surprise linen shower at the home of Mrs. Fred Cone Friday evening.

Mrs. Fisher has been an active member of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church and for some time has been a worker in the Woman's Auxiliary.

There were 20 present.

Manuscript Club Will Begin Fall Meetings

Members of the Manuscript club, (formerly the Penwomen) will meet in its first session at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock in a luncheon and business meeting. All members are urged to be present.

Misses Virginia Prichard of Abilene, and Janice Prichard of Wilmer, Texas, have returned home after a three weeks' visit with Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Prichard.

"I AND GEORGE"—By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

America's Only Woman Humorist

As Old Mother Hubbard, the inventor of the worst-looking housedress in the world, once said, "The school commencement which I enjoy most is the one that comes in the fall."

And the other day, when I and George, that's my husband, got to thinking about how pretty soon school would be opened again and our darling Junior, darn his little hide—I mean bless his little heart—would be finishing his vacation and giving us a little peace around the house, why we certainly agreed with Mother H.

Just before the other commencement, the one which comes in the Spring, I and George both had been simply crazy to have school over so's we would see more of our darling. We got one of them spells which every set of parents undoubtedly gets them, of feeling we wasn't seeing enough of our child. We had the wild idea we wasn't friendly enough with him, that we should try and get more cubby, find out what was really going on in his mind, and guide his tastes more than we had been doing. Up to date about the only taste of Junior's I had been guiding was to say, now, dear, you eat up every one of them boiled turnips this very instant, or I am going to lic'k you, good!

Enforcing Home Rule.

Or else I would say, now Junior, finish up the fat as well, you may not like it but it's good for you, and I want you to learn to like everything. When as a rule Junior would spring one of the awful, childlike comebacks which ca. pretty near knock a parent for a goal, such as, but Ma, you don't eat up the fat, if it's so good why don't you eat it up? Which would leave me with that last defense of any mother and I would say, well, dear, I'n. grown up, that's why. And Junior would look at me sort of as if he greatly doubted it, if I expected him to accept that as a reason.

When it come to culture, why George had taught him a little culture, but it was mostly agriculture, such as hoeing the front path, or how to tell the weeds from the radishes.

Still neither of us felt we had anywheres near done our duty by the boy, we should make more of a companion out of him. And the summer vacation would be the very time.

I tell you, Jennie, says Geo., I'm going to make a regular chum out of Junior this summer, I'm going to make a man out of him. I'm going to teach him to play golf, for one thing, yes, sir, I'm going to have him out on the course every day, and treat him like a regular pal, an equal, make a he-man of him, that's what.

Father-and-Son Stuff.

What is even further, he says, I'm going to have long talks with him, and hikes into the woods, and all like that. By Jove, he won't ever be able to say his father was a stranger to him! I'm going to lay off punishing him and put him on his honor—just a pal, that's what I am from now on —poor kid, why I've hardly seen him except to lick him, all winter.

Why George, dear, I says, that's just lovely. Of course even when he's at school, I see a whole lot more of Junior then you do, on account of his ears, underwear and meals. But I agree with you where the child ought to be more then a mere something to be got after with a vacuum cleaner every so often.

There's the spiritual and artistic side of his nature. Music is what he needs, and books. I personally myself intend reading all the classics aloud to him this summer, you know Dickens and Thackery and Ella Wheeler Wilcox and all them great authors. I'd be mortified to death if he was to grow up in ignorance of them things, I know my family was a very cultured one, we had Shakespere and Mrs. Rovar's Cook Book, and even a copy of Dante's inferno, only that was really a candy box when you opened the cover.

Higher And Finer Things.

Yes, indeed, I do believe that a parent can't begin too young to build up a community of interests with their child, and I certainly want that my son and I should have tastes in common such as classical music and art galleries, and who should give them to the child, only the mother? And Geo. says yes, only where are you going to get all them tastes, Jennie, I never noticed them on you yet. And I says that is because you don't know them when you see them!

But in spite of us exchanging a few little conventional passes such as per see above, I and George certainly was agreed on the main subject, which was to take advantage of having Junior around the house all the time for three months, and see a whole lot of him.

Well, the first day of Junior's vacation, it happened I was kind of busy I had some baking to do and also it was Thursday and I had to attend the regular meeting of our Ladies' Thursday club. So I says to Geo, real generous, now you take Junior today, dear, seeing you are coming home early, I don't want to cramp your style any, go ahead, take him, don't think of me, even, dear, I want the boy to know his father!

Let Father Do It.

Geo, says aw shucks, only he said it in much stronger language, aw shucks, he says, I can't today. I was going to play a foursome with the regular gang. I don't see how I am going to get out of it. And I says well, use a opera-glass, then, and see a little ways ahead. I thought you was going to be with your boy at the very first opportunity, or didn't you mean all you said?

And Geo. says of course I mean it, but for the luvva tripe, where is the hurry, we got all summer ahead of us! And I said yes, dear, but I think we ought to start right in with Junior before he gets a chance to commence running wild. So Geo. give a groan and a call for Junior, and the two of them went off and give me a chance to get a few minutes of peace and quiet and my breath, before starting for the long distance chatting contest which I hoped to win, over to the club.

Well that night when we all got home, I thought I would start my clubby stuff with Junior, and so I says well, dear, did Pa teach you anything about golf today? And Junior says sure, h taught me how to carry a golf bag and let me practice with his. And George says ah, yes, yes, indeed, we had a real good afternoon, didn't we, son? In fact, I believe I will take him out with me every time I play, all summer.

Cultivating Junior By Force.

And I says you will not do anything of the sort, George Jules. I suppose if you took the child horseback riding you'd let him carry the horse! And George says all right, all right, go on, pick on me, since you're going to wise crack about it, suppose I give the boy up to you, tomorrow? And I says you better had, I got a copy of the encyclopedia from a man on the instalment plan but we are not going to read it that way, we are going to commence at the beginning and go right on through, and tomorrow afternoon will be a good time to start.

So the next day I managed to catch Junior before he could run off, and I says to him, come on, dear, Momme's going to read you a nice story, won't that be nice? And Junior says sure, Ma, but it won't take long, will it? I wanter go swimmin'. That wasn't a real encouraging beginning, but I felt it was my duty to give Junior a little culture if we both died of it, and at the end of 1-2 of a hour, we pretty nearly did.

Well, anyways, after I had let the poor child go, I got a sort of feeling of satisfaction out of having read to him, and honest he was very intelligent, the question he asked, all about look up about steam engines, Ma, see is there something about frogs, Ma, does a catfish meow, Ma? See if swordfishes carry scabbards, will ya, Ma?

Guiding The Little Darling.

He kept on like that until he had me nearly crazy the little darling! I do think that boy of mine is terrible smart, especially when telling my friends about what he said. At the time he's saying it, I sometimes wish he was outside, playing instead.

But just the same, the first few days Junior was home, both I and Geo. lived up to our good resolutions quite a lot. We even spoke about it to each other to the effect ain't it a delight to hear his sweet voice, eh? Did'ja notice how cute he looked falling down them cellar steps? And a whole flock of other parent-like remarks. Then about the third or fourth day of vacation Junior come to me one afternoon and he says, Aw, Ma, ain't got nothing to do, read to me, will ya, Ma? Out of the big book you bought? And I give one look at that lazy young one that put him in his place. Why Junior Jules, I says, you know you can read to your own self perfectly well, whatter you mean coming around asking me to read to you? Don't you know Mommer's busy? Run along now dear, and play!

So Junior run along in and bothered Popper, instead. Say, Pop, says Junior, when are you going teach me

Altar Society Will Meet Monday Afternoon

The Altar society of the Sacred Heart church will meet Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. P. Belcher, 1406 Eleventh street. Every member is urged to be present.

Mrs. T. J. Furniss and Miss Dora Gibson are leaving this week for Shreveport, La., where they will visit relatives.

Electra Teachers Enjoy Reception In Church Basement

ELECTRA Sept. 11.—The second reception for the school teachers of Electra was the most elaborate affair of the the week, when about 125, teachers and citizens enjoyed an entertainment in the basement of the First Baptist church Friday.

Upon arriving the guests were greeted by a reception committee of young men, all graduates of the local high school, Messrs. Leo N. Herrin, Jack Geisler, Maurice Tanner, Marshall Richardson, Edgar Walker and Malcolm Kelly, and were ushered to the guest book, which was presided over by Mesdames W. A. Gault and A. F. McCormick, who pinned the name on each. They were then seated in a semicircle near the piano, when the following program was rendered:

Address of Welcome by Rev. E. M. Francis and who introduced Attorney Ben W. Tipton, who welcomed the teachers with an address of "Citizenship." After Mr. Tipton's address, W. P. Slaton sang, "The Big Base Viol," accompanied by Mrs. Bruce Frazier. After an encore Miss Williamson, the new expression teacher, read, "Wild Roses," with an encore. Mrs. Bruce Frazier rendered a delightful vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Leatrice Wofford at the piano.

Mrs. J. C. Delashaw, who taught in the local schools last term took charge of the remainder of the entertainment, which included the guests being asked to answer seventeen well known advertisements, which prize was won by Quincy Wilson. The prize appeared to be a bakery cake but proved to be a cake of soap. In other contests miniature boxes of candy were given as prizes. Refreshments of pink and white ice cream with angel food squares with tiny pink rose buds were served the guests.

Informal speeches were made by Professor B. M. Dinsmore, E. E. Rogers, C. M. Harvey, Mrs. Francis, Mrs. Harrison, and Professor Wilkerson.

Dallas Fair To Make Use of Big Radio Announcer

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—"A public address" system to be the equal of any in the United States and similar to that in use in Lewis' great open air municipal theatre is to be installed at the fair park auditorium in time for use at the 1926 state fair of Texas, announcement has been made.

The system will consist of five highly sensitive microphones, and a central "projectelier," or horn through which the audience hears what is said on the stage. The microphones will be installed on the "apron" of the stage while the "projectoliers" will be suspended from the center of the auditorium ceiling.

WOMEN FARMERS ADMIT HUSBANDS ARE NEEDED

LINGFIELD, Eng.—"No husbands admitted" was the slogan created by the women who established a farm colony near here six years ago. Now the slogan has been discarded and in its place is hoisted, figuratively speaking, a banner saying "Husbands Welcomed." Most of the members have found that they cannot make their holdings productive without men's help. Several husbands are already on the scene and more are coming.

MAN DIES.

BEAUMONT Sept 11.—(AP)—A man identified by papers in his pocket as Edward Byron, died at a local hospital here at 2 o'clock today after having been picked up in an unconscious condition on a downtown street. Byron was about 50 years old and an electrician in the employ of Stone and Webster here for the past five months. He came here from Boston. An inquest is to be held this afternoon.

WOMAN STEALS NOTED ART

MADRID.—The police are hunting a woman who stole noted pictures worth $320,000 from Isidoro Urzaiz.

Junior Business Girls Discuss Class for Uniform

Plans for a uniform for the Junior Business Girls club of the Y. W. C. A. were discussed in the weekly meeting Thursday night at the association rooms when it was decided that at the next meeting each girl would bring samples of material and a suitable pattern as a suggestion. Plans for a candy sale were also perfected at the meeting.

Those present included Hazel Schultz, new member; Thelma Wisdom, who is in charge of next week's program; Hazel Johnson, president, who presided; Evelyn Phillips, Vera Allred, Agnes Patterson, Mrs. B. L. Fain, Mrs. Ive E. Austin and Miss Ivo Wilson.

Golf Association To Play Tournament

Members of the Woman's Golf association will play a flag tournament on the Country club links Thursday beginning at 9 o'clock, with luncheon served at 12. In the evening the weekly putting contest will be held for all the members, when prizes will be given.

Is Charm Vain and Of Worldly Bearing? No, Says Expert On Beauty Work

In the Glow Of The Camp Fire

The Cantawayua Camp Fire Girls met at the home of their guardian, Mrs. Frank Jones, on Harrison with Mary Hyatt, the vice president, presided. The representative from the Girl's Council made a report of the Council meeting and the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved.

A candy sale was decided on for Saturday morning. The girls tied up the articles they have made for the Red Cross bags. One of the members of this group, Mildred Dodds, is to move to Nocona for the school term and intends to be active in the Camp Fire work there.

Those present at the meeting were Mary Hyatt, Estelle McPhail, Lee Ellen Boardman, Mildred Dodds, Winelle Ward, Mildred Johnson, Dorothy Sommerville, Beatrice Short, Bernice Trevathan.

Temskatawa Group

The Temskatawa Camp Fire group met Friday afternoon at the home of Nell and Maxine Duffy, when the girls cooked their supper over a grill in the back yard.

At the business meeting the group decided to meet at headquarters Friday afternoon where they will make blue prints and work on requirements for rank.

Those present were Edith Long, Nadine Loufborrow, Marion Proctor, Nell and Maxine Duffy, Beulah Nell Ray, Eunice Sommerville, Jean Fisk, Marjorie Hines, a visitor, and Mary McIlheran, executive.

Alahi Group

The Alahi Camp Fire group met at the church hall on Ninth street at 3 o'clock. After roll was called, and the minutes were read, and approved, Miss McIlheran, executive, told the girls about the membership campaign which will begin September 15, and end November the 15.

The group made smoke prints from leaf specimens. Those present at the meeting were Dora Jeanette Nix, Frances Hyland, Margaret Ossenbeck, Margaret Davis, Augenia Edgar, Edna Mae Stegall, Vera Shelton, Charlotte Kennedy, Millie and Mary Paustusek, Mrs. J. F. Hyland, assistant guardian, and Mrs. A. W. Ayers, the guardian.

Cantipi Girls

The Cantipi Camp Fire group met Friday afternoon at the home af the guardian, Mrs. W. D. Cook. The girls completed work on the Red Cross bags.

Those present at the meeting were Mattie Cook, Marie Moore, Minnie Mansell, Elizabeth and James, Florine Angell, and the guardian, Mrs. Flora Cook.

One day a woman, apparently very conscious of herself, came to me and asked me in tremulous voice the amazing question: "Is it wrong to be beautiful, or rather to wish that you were?" For an hour I talked to that little woman, a drab and rather mild little person, and I gradually learned her story. She had married a deeply religious man; had lived, and indeed was living, a happy and domestic life of seclusion. Now, in the twilight of the first bloom of her youth she realized that old age had come prematurely upon her.

Her husband and parents had taught her that pretty clothes were a useless vanity, that rouge was immodest, that lip-stick was simply not to be thought of; so I had to tell her my opinion. I pointed out to her that neither sex nor beauty was wrong. I told her of the fruit trees that blossomed brightly to attract the bees, of the feathered plumage of the birds, and of the urge of all nature for charm and attractiveness!

Then I took her in hand; I showed her how to do her hair more becomingly, fluffed out just a little over the temples so it would make her thin little face have the appearance of a little fullness. I suggested a frock of more youthful lines and brighter colors. I commended her to a daily and leisurely taken bath in which she should relax so that her blood would be in good circulation. Further, I advised the use of a good tissue-building cream that would compel old age to retreat from her dried, wrinkled skin; I advocated the use of clay to assist in smoothing out the fine lines that were forming very rapidly. She left me, radiantly alive to the fact that charm, in itself, is no small religion!

There are many women who, from ignorance or laziness, fail to make the use of the scientific preparations that have come, in these past few years, to bless womankind, and you, mankind, too! There are women who refrain from accentuating their charm by the tiniest touch of rouge. There are women who fancy themselves too absorbed, too busy to take the time. They do not know that in later years it will take hours to accomplish the things which today's minutes would do, those necessary minutes in the morning and evening which bring immaculate cleanliness and the confidence to face the world knowing one "looks her best."

Miss Marguerite Whaley of Estelline, who has been the guest of Miss Mildred Johnson at her home on Tenth street, has returned home.

Washington Society Gets Excited Again as Marriages and Returning Bigwigs Start the Winter Whirls

Some of the Most Popular Girls Steal a March on Their Friends and Grab a Husband Abroad and Elsewhere; New Arrivals are Interesting

BY JEAN JARVIS.
Special Correspondent the Record News Association.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—What with Nancy Hoyt getting married over in London and Katherine Hitchcock getting engaged in Washington, and the president and Mrs. Coolidge getting ready to turn again towards the White House and "Mrs." Representative Kahn winning hands down in the California primaries, and Spain naming a new ambassador, everybody finds plenty to talk about these breezy "days of return."

Nancy Hoyt, who a little time ago abruptly broke her engagement to a most attractive Englishman (Lieutenant Frederick Wiseman Clark, Royal Navy), went over to London, so goes the story, heart whole and fancy free early in the summer. Cabled announcement of her wedding, which took place just about the time Washington was eagerly reading the cabled message, was the first inkling anybody had of the situation.

The bridegroom is Gerald Winn Wynne, a son of the late Major and Mrs. Reginald Winn Wynne of London.

A Novelist, Too

Meantime, Mrs. Wynne "that is" has won her spurs as a novelist. Her book "Roundabout," a novel of Washington life, according to the highbrows has 'quality' and displays ability far above the average—which shows that, maybe, after all there is something in heridity.

A daughter of the late Henry M. Hoyt, solicitor general in the Taft administration, her grandfather on the maternal side (McMichael) founded one of Philadelphia's famous dailies, while her paternal grandfather was one of the really distinguished men who have served the Keystone state as governor.

Of course everyone knows that Elinor Hoyt Benet, an elder sister, the wife of William Rose Benet, poet and literary critic, is on her own behalf a poet and a writer of imaginative prose —a woman who has established herself in literary annals.

Constance Hoyt, the second in the trio of remarkable brilliant sisters, married Herr Von Stumm of the German embassy staff, 12 or 15 years ago.

Of the group, the new bride possibly is the most popular. Quaintly pretty she's rather an old fashioned sort of girl—gracious and lovable after the manner of her devoted mother.

Gossip has it that Mr. Gerald Winn Wynne will make their home in London.

Another Surprise

Katherine Hitchcock who is a daughter of Mrs. John N. Speel, rather stole a march on the gossips, too. At least some of her most intimate friends got a bit of surprise when Mrs. Speel sent out the formal announcement of her daughter's engagement to Lieutenant Colonel Dunrap Pearce Penhallow, medical reserve corps U. S. A., one day this week. Right ahead is the wedding date (Oct. 9), the ceremony to take place in Washington where Katherine and her sister Lena have a tremendous vogue.

As for Spain's new envoy—my dears, for the first time in its history as legation or embassy, there's an up and coming family party coming to Washington. Senor Don Alejandro Padillay Bel when he arrives will bring with him Senora De Padilla and their six children. For years and years, the new ambassador and his family occupied the embassy at London, so everybody speaks English.

The two daughters have been presented both at the British and the Spanish courts and a third daughter is described as a likely sub-deb. The elder member of the family, Remon, who is 24, having served as attache at the Spanish legation at Lisbon during his father's regime as minister will serve similarly at the embassy here.

The ambassador designate is wealthy. Great times ahead, at the embassy of Spain—two alluring young daughters, an engaging young son, and "lots of money" for parties and things.

Personals

Miss Ruby Lee Martin who has been studying at the state university this summer, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Naylor and family have returned from Colorado, where they spent the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Mitcham have returned from Georgia where they visited Mr. Mitcham's relatives.

Mrs. E. E. Skalinder who has been seriously ill is reported improving but is not yet well enough to leave her room.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman Baines have returned from San Antonio and Belcher, where they spent a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Culver and daughter, Dorothy June, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McWhirter for several days.

Mrs. Fred Krell of Fairfield, Neb., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dutton, 1400 Harrison street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Schoolfield and daughter, Miss Treda, have returned from a six weeks' visit in Fayeteville, Ark., and the Ozarks.

THE REAL JOB

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Children are really their big job, whatever their accomplishments outside the family circle, two notable mothers agree. Mrs. Corson, notwithstanding lucrative theatrical engagements, intends to continue washing, scrubbing and cooking for her babies. Lady Astor avoids movies, bridge and society in order to be with Jakey and the other kids as much as possible.

Prize Winner In Style Contest Tells How She Profited By The Press

The following letter is the prize winning style contest letter of Mrs. Warner F. Humphrey of Burkburnett. The selection of a fall wardrobe in this letter discloses the solution of the problems that the average married woman has when the smart styles of a new season are displayed and financial difficulties must be solved in harmony with tasteful selections.

Burkburnett, Texas.
September 4, 1926.

Dear Record News Style Editor:

A Paris style expert tells us that the smart clothes worn in the spring and summer at the famous French resorts, Deauville and Biarraitz, reflect the styles to be worn in America the following fall and winter seasons. And, all of us, by following carefully our favorite newspaper can plan our own wardrobes with an eye to the things that are new and smart.

Every young married woman desires to be as smartly dressed as her unmarried sister; she enjoys the dear little compliments her husband pays her when she is looking her best. But, not many young wives, unless they married into wealth can afford the clothes they wish, for there is always the grocery bill, the milk bill or the light bill to pay. Incidentally, she must be very careful with her clothes allowance, and I have found through one year's experience, the best way to shop is through one's newspaper first. The Wichita Falls Record News is certainly a boon to young married women.

Half That Much

Before my marriage I spent on the average of $55 to $600 yearly for clothes; now I spend just about half that much. Of course there are women who spend thousands upon thousands of dollars each year for clothes. Five hundred dollars would hardly buy them a decent evening gown according to their own ideas; but I am speaking of the average young married woman of America.

Sport clothes have come to be the real choice for informal daytime wear. It makes no difference whether you golf, play tennis sit idly on the country club porch or attend a matinee, to be smartly dressed, you must wear a sport costmue.

The Orchid Shop, on Indiana street, is a store where "style meets price." It is a delight for a woman to go to this store, knowing that she can afford to buy one or two pretty stylish dresses at the low cost of $16, and yet have money enough left to buy a coat, hat, shoes, and accessories for her fall wardrobe. In the Thursday, August 26, issue of the Record News, the Orchid Shop announced the arrival of their new fall frocks in the $16 section. Oh, the assortment of beautiful dresses they had; I frankly admit that I wanted them all. But as I went there to select a sport dress only, I set my head to the task and finally selected one. Yes, it is a task to select one dress from a dozen or so of equally lovely ones.

The sport dress I selected was a charming two-piece affair in the new jungle green with just a touch of chanel red. The blouse was of natural kusha in solid jungle green, and the skirt was green and red wool checks. It's not a gaudy dress by any means, for there is just enough color in it to lend it an air of distinction. Of course, there is a monogram on the right side of the blouse, and also there is a high collar band, tied directly in front with a smart little bow. The skirt is box-plaited in the front only and the sleeves are rather full and are cuffed. So one costume for my fall wardrobe was selected and there yet remained my coat, and afternoon dress, two hats, shoes and accessories to buy.

All About Coats.

Miller-Ferguson Co. announced in the Thursday, August 26, issue of The Record News of the arrival of their new fall coats. Really, a woman can buy a beautiful coat for $40 at this store, and judging other young married women by myself, that amount is practically all they can afford to pay for a coat. Then, too, it probably must last two seasons. In Choosing my coat, I chose a durable and always fashionable material bolivia cloth in a rich deep red tint with dyed fox collar. The sleeves are the new Dolman pattern, and the coat has that new and graceful bloused waistline.

I noticed in the Thursday, Septem 2, issue of the Record News, was carried an announcement for the Josa Dickson Millinery shop—"Wear your fall hat now, $3 up to $25." I went to this store, leaving it, an extremely satisfied customer with two new fashionable fall hats in my possession for only $11! Just an example of what good advertising in a popular paper will do. One of my hats is a chic felt with a high dented crown and small brim, and of a so dark green it is almost black; it has several small, wool-embroidered flowers in a deep red and a bright orange on one side. Paris has decreed the high crown shall be the mode this fall and winter. The other hat I selected is of a rich black velvet, medium high crown and a brim that is neither too wide or too narrow—but fashionable. A band of lustrous satin ribbon around the base of the crown and a large rhinestone pin complete this dressy little hat that can be worn for many different occasions. The price of the felt hat was only four dollars and the velvet one $7.

My afternoon dress or dress for more formal occasions, I selected from a beautiful assortment in Perkins-Timberlake's $15 section. The opening of this section was announced in the Record News twice. The idea some women have, that "price makes the clothes" is all wrong. One, this age, can buy a lovely, stylish, durable dress for 15 or $16. The material of my dress is crepe satin, in the ever-popular black, and is the charming new bloused style. Black is never passe, that being the reason why I selected this dress of that color; also, it is easily combined with other materials and made over into a charming dress to begin the next season with. To continue the description of my dress, it has a smart sash of self material to make the blouse part more effective looking, and is tied in a large bow at the back. An appliqued flower almost at the hem of the skirt and a collar of gold cloth complete the costume.

My shoes I selected at the Cinderella Boot Shop. They are black suede pumps with slender high heels, and have a removable cut steel buckle, studded with a few brilliants. I saw the Cinderella's advertisement of new fall slipper arrivals in the September second issue of the Record News. These lovely slippers of mine I wear without the buckle in the mornings and afternoons, attaching it evenings or for more formal occasions. There, you have the thrifty housewife again and I only paid $11 for these shoes.

The Little Things

Of course one must never forget the "little things that count." Hose, lingerie, scarfs, gloves, or a bit of jewelry. I bear only two pairs of of hose at a time, and I selected one pair of beige chiffon, the other moonlight chiffon. I bought them at the P. B. M. store, and also selected a pretty wool and silk scarf there. Seven dollars was the price.

Advertised in the September 2 issue of the Record News was J. W. Ferguson's new arrival of fall fabrics. Every young married woman, who has leisure time, likes to make her own lingerie; for creations of her own have a dainty personal touch that "ready-mades" lack. I bought my lingerie material here, giving $8 for the lot.

My gloves I selected at Kimberlins. They are beige kid, with a smart cuff of leopard skin, and cost $6.

One hundred and fourteen dollars for everything. By careful studying and shopping through my Record News first, I selected my entire wardrobe at this nominal cost. To think of the women who pay one hundred and fourteen dollars for one dress alone. Let me tell you, Style Editor, that the dear Record News has certainly been a boon to me and I only hope that others, in the near future, may come to do as I have done.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Warner F. Humphrey.
616 East Second street Burkburnett, Texas.

to play golf, Pop? Soon, son, soon, says Geo., who was busy tryinging to take a nap.

Making A Man of Him.

Yeh, says Junior, but when, Pop? This afternoon? No, no, son! says Geo. When? says Junior, tomorrow? Well, maybe, says Geo. Then will you make a man out of me, this afternoon? says Junior, jumping up and down, do I get long pants with it? Can I have a watch then? Will I be twenty-one when you get through making me it, Pop? Now, now, son, says Geo., sure, sometime soon, run away and play now, can't you see that Poppa is busy?

And etc. So that is why I am glad to see the commencement of school in sight. I got to admit where getting Junior ready for it is a lot of work. I got to get his clothes mended, find his books, dig up his overshoes and scour out his lunch-box. There is about one hundred things to get fixed before he will be ready. But believe you me, that job is nothing compared to having him home on a vacation!

TO TRY MUTINEERS.

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 11.—(AP) The government proposes a speedy trial for the mutineers who rioted in favor of Pangalos the deposed dictator, on Thursday. The abortive revolt concerned mainly two corps of the republican guards. The latest casulty list was 32 killed and 200 injured.

It is expected the trials will begin on Monday.

Colorful Romance Of Mexico Coming With Mexican Orchestra

All the colorful romance of old Mexico will be brought to Wichita Falls in tuneful harmony Tuesday night when the Imperial Mexican Symphony orchestra under the direction of Roberto S. Rechi appears at the Junior college under the auspices of the local Kiwanis club and the Woman's Federated Missionary society.

Making their first American tour, the trained musicians of the orchestra have had a triumphal series of concerts. Their music, precise and thorough when analyzed from every angle of musical art, includes also a lilting swing and throbbing cadence that few, if any Americanized orchestras provide. Those who have heard the orchestra elsewhere declare it to defy description and to exert an intoxicating thrill that none can resist.

How earnestly Professor Rechi regards his art and how deeply he feels its responsibilities may be gathered from his own words: "Music exerts a great influence upon the minds of mankind and is intended, not only to cheer them, but also to guide and control them." The Mexican orchestra is an assembly of finished musicians, gifted instrumentalists, playing under a master conductor, whose duty, according to Professor Rechi, is to keep in the background as much as possible, since "a conductor is a pilot, not an oarsman."

Everyone who will be fortunate enough to attend the concert will have every artistic sense satisfied and every musical longing fulfilled by the artistry of these musicians. One minute the listener is delighted with the freshness of popular Mexican airs, to be soothed a moment later by the sweetness and solemnity of the classics, and a moment later by grand opera selections, ballads and the most alluring of jazz numbers. There is a temperamental difference between the Mexican musician and the musician of any other country, that redounds to the profit of the listener.

All Wichita Falls is appreciative of this rare opportunity of seeing and hearing the most wonderful Mexican symphony orchestra in the United States as has been evidenced the past 10 days by the fast and furious sale of tickets at Sanderford's Booterie. The evening of September 14 will open the season with this musical event of premier importance in a manner justified only by these artists whose artistic attainments have endeared them to all classes of music loving people.

Reserved seats on sale at Sanderford's Booterie.

Iowa Park Class Enjoys Banquet

IOWA PARK, Sept. 11—The 1925 class of the Iowa Park high school had a class reunion and banquet at the Gateway court Friday evening. The class sponsor and several members were unable to attend, but most of the K. S. were there.

The rooms were decorated in cerise and gray with vases of cerise rose buds. W. R. Bradford, superintendent of Iowa Park public schools, was guest of honor, and gave a very interesting account of his recent trip to Washington, D. C. Miss Gracia Swanson read a class prophecy, and Miss Luella Burnam gave a poem of K. S. spirit and fellowship. Ted Brown, student of T. C. U., and guest of Edwin Hooks, told some interesting incidents of his European tour last summer.

During the evening each K. S. told something about the school he attended last year and his plans for the future. Miss Zellah Thompson boosted Baylor Belton and is going back this year. Miss Thelma Matthews and Miss Dorothy Hand are planning to return to T. W. C. Miss Gladys Van Horn and Edwin Hooks are enthusiastic over T. C. U. and are going back for their second year of work. Miss Luella Burnam, student of Wichita Junior college last year is going to teach at Huff. Joe B. Brubaker, J. Louis Quick and Miss Isla Cothran also attended Junior college last year, and Miss Cothran will continue her study there. Miss Gracia Swanson will enter Junior college this fall. Miss Thelma Dodson and Howard Gay have completed courses at Draughn's business college of Wichita Falls and are working in Iowa Park offices.

2 Held On Poison Charge in Ark.

PIGGOTT, Ark., Sept. 11.—(AP) Cecil Allen, 27, and his mother, Mrs. Minnie White, 52, today awaited action of the grand jury as the result of a coroner's jury verdict yesterday ordering them held for the death by poisoning of Allen's wife, Beluah Belle Allen, 27, August 31.

Chemical analysis of the contents of her stomach showed death to have been caused by poison, it was disclosed at the inquest. The state charges Mrs. White bought and prepared the food in which the poison is believed to have been concealed.

The death of Mrs. Allen was the third in the family in 30 days. Her two children died some weeks before.

CANDIDATE IS SUED

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Walker-White Posting company today sued in circuit court to collect $911.46 from Blodgett Priest, unsuccessful candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator in the recent primary election, and his campaign managers, Hugh K. Wagner and Louis F. Zepp.

The bill is for stamping union labels on 30,473 campaign cards and for distributing 7,500 of them.

STIL LGETS HURT

BIARRITZ, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Although Britain's handsome and most eligible bachelor seems to have given up the dangerous exercise of horse back riding for golf, he continue to get hurt. The Prince of Wales sprained a thumb putting or pitching or driving something. It was in such a condition that a doctor had to massage it.

ROBBER GETS $100 IN ALTUS

Enters Two Homes And Escapes in Hail of Shots

ALTUS, Sept. 11.—Between $75 and $78 in cash, checks amounting to $15 and a pair of trousers were stolen about 4:45 a. m. today from J. B. Cash in his home, 728 East Broadway, and about $8 in cash and a watch valued at approximately $50 were stolen early this morning from W. A. Adams in his home at 505 East Commerce.

No definite trace has been found of the thief.

Five shots were fired at the burglar in the Cash home after Mrs. Cash saw the man. Cash believes that he shot the man one time, since only four of the five bullets left effect in the house. The man entered and left from the back door of the Cash home.

HE COVERS SOME GROUND

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Having at 92 years ridden some 560,000 miles and walked 28,000 in commuting for 61 years, Henry Dayton, dean of New York insurance men, intends to increase those figures. He plans to be on the job daily at 9 a. m. for quite a while yet.

JOBS ALL GONE

SPEEDY CABLE SPANS OCEAN

Western Union Lands 20th Wire Strand to Cross Atlantic Bed

The Western Union Telegraph company recently started operation of "the world's fastest cable" which has been laid across the floor of the Atlantic between North America and Europe.

Today the world's fastest cable, now being laid by the Western Union will afford additional direct communication between New York and London. It will span the Atlantic from Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, to Penzance, England, and with its capacity of 2,500 letters per minute will be eight times as fast as any of the other cables connecting these two points. Its great speed is due to the fact that it is sheathed in permolloy, an alloy of iron and nickel developed in the laboratories of the Western Electric company. A single continuous strip of this alloy is wrapped around the entire length of 2,800 nautical miles of the copper conductor of this cable. The landing of the cable at New York is scheduled for the first week in September.

It is a far cry from this newest link to the first one, over which messages of congratulation were flashed by Queen Victoria in England to President Buchanan in the United States. Then, news of the landing of the cable was the occasion for general rejoicing, huge street celebrations, fireworks and other demonstrative outbursts. Now the new cable is the 20th to be dropped across the ocean bed.

GRAPE GROWING GROWS

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The grape-growing industry at Raymondville is extending and because it will be possible for the products to reach the eastern markets from two to four weeks ahead of the California crop, it will succeed, J. M. Del Ca to, state and federal plant pathologist, said.

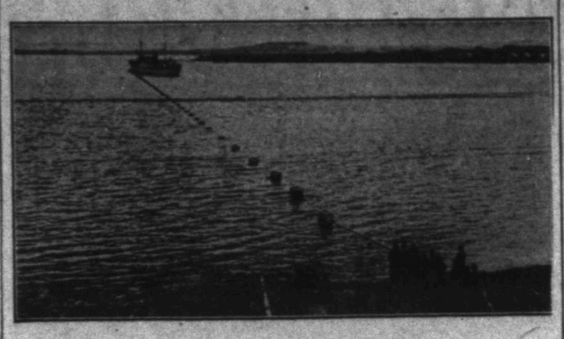

The district is well suited to the cultivation of grapes, and the farmers are showing great interest in the vineyard produce, he said.

A land company was responsible for the introduction of the industry, he explained.

REFLECTED GLORY

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Now that a Danish-American mother has swam the channel, a Dane is here to teach American girls gymnastics. He came back with 33 American school teachers who took a special course at Ollerup this summer in swimming and other athletics. He will instruct at the Y. W. C. A.

HERE'S THE REAL TEST

NORFOLK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Pooh, pooh what's hard about swimming the channel? Reason one: Mr. Keverts, diver. He's going to give people a real thrill by walking seven miles on the bottom of Hampton Roads, the whole width and he challenges all comers.

STILL A RESORT

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Baden-Baden is still the most powerful German health resort for Americans. Eighty per cent of the guests at the two leading hotels in the Black Forest city this summer are Americans. There has been an average of 1,300 Americans a month taking the cure.

FREDERICK ON BOOSTER TOUR

100 Take Auto Trip to Vernon Friday to Boom Fair

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 10.—Their cars bedecked with banners and decorations, advertising the Tillman County Free fair, to be held in Frederick next week, 100 citizens of this city, headed by the Frederick Commercial band, motored to Altus Friday afternoon to attend the Southwestern Oklahoma District fair now being held there.

Owing to rain in Frederick during the morning the crowd attending the Altus fair from here was not as large as had been planned but it made up in spirits what it might have lacked in numbers. In addition to the band the delegation impressed the services of a jazz band from a local tent show to add to the festivities. Hundreds of copies of advertising matter for the Tillman County Free fair were distributed by the Frederick delegation.

The management of the Altus fair has promised a return visit to the Frederick fair.

Man Must Be 26 Before He's Grown

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—When is a man grown up? Not until he is 26, says the London General Omnibus company, which employes several thousand drivers and conductors in covering the London area with its network of speedy bus service.

The company believes that youths normally develop their sense of responsibility to full pitch between the ages of 24 and 26 and it will not accept as drivers men who have not reached the latter age.

"We do not say anything against the young man of 24," says one of the chiefs of the selection staff. "We choose men of that age to fill vacancies as conductors, but we will not take them as drivers until they are 26."

Eating Champ Of England Has Real Capacity for Food

LONDON, Sept. 11. — (AP)—George Leader, the 238-pound eating contest champion of Middlesborough has declined an invitation to visit the United States and take part in a world's championship event. Pressure of business in this line at home is the reason, he says.

"I have two matches on hand," he explained, "and I want to get those ever before I considered any more."

Leader has won all 13 matches in which he has been engaged in the last few years. He will be heavily handicapped in his next match by having to eat a pound of broiled ham and a dozen eggs before his opponent starts. Nevertheless, he is confident of winning.

In easily winning his last match, in which his opponent retired after three pounds of ham and forty eggs had been consumed. Leader gave an exhibition of what a really good eater can do. He dispatched the 19 eggs that were left and completed his feast with steak and kidney pudding and cream cakes.

NEGRO MELODIES USED

LONDON, Sept. 11.—American negro melodies have been introduced into the musical program of the old Southwark cathedral, just across London bridge on the south side of the Thames. Noon day recitals are given there for the benefit of the porters at the hops market and other workers from nearby establishments.

The selections are from the "Negro Spirituals," or plantation hymns and are expected to prove a potent drawing card for luncheon-hour audiences in this busy district.

MAYBE HE COULD

Churches of Wichita Falls Open Fall Programs

Homecoming Day To Be Observed Sunday With Out-of-Towners Back

Churches of Wichita Falls have announced their fall programs and today has been designated as the "Homecoming" for members of both church and Sunday school to return for the season's work. Special sermons and services have been outlined and announced by the pastors as the reader will find on the church page. Invitations have been extended the public by the churches to attend religious services today.

In observance of the homecoming the First Methodist church is making a feature of the music with the following program announced by the choir director, Joel H. MacGregor:

Morning.

Organ prelude, "Andante from Fifth Symphony" (Beethoven).

Anthem, "Word, Hear My Voice" (Petrie)—Messrs. Bohmfalk, Hansen and choir.

Offertory, "Impromptu" (arranged by Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr).

Quartet, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (Koschat)—Messrs. Hansen, MacGregor, Bohmfalk, Gray.

Invitation hymn, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me" (Gould). Also to be sung by the male quartet.

Organ postlude, "Hallelujah Chorus" (Handel).

Evening.

Organ prelude, meditation on hymn, "Come Ye Disconsolate" (Gillette).

Congregational singing led by Mr. MacGregor.

Anthem, "At Eventide" (Wilson)—Mrs. F. M. Hansen and choir.

Offertory, "Calm as the Night" (Gaul).

Duet, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" (Herbert)—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hansen.

Duet, "Whispering Hope" (Hawthorne)—Baldwin Montgomery and Miss Mildred Martin.

Organ postlude, "Cornelius' March" (Mendelssohn).

The pastor, Dr. Walter J. Johnson, will speak on the subject, "Some Serious Mistakes of a Business man" at the morning service, and on "Following a Vision" at the evening hour.

First Christian.

At the First Christian church, the pastor, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, will speak at the morning service on "When Christ Called the Churches to Repentance." The evening service will be turned over to the young people of the church who have announced the following program:

Prelude, "Barcarolle" (Offenbach)—Charlotte Keevil, organ; Georgia B. Leath, piano; Paul Rutledge, violin.

Hymn, "You May Have the Joy Bells."

Prayer.

Piano solo—Miss Katherine Killander.

Scripture.

Hymn, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord."

Reading—Miss Dorothy Reed.

Violin solo—Miss Monterey Lewis.

Two talks—Wilburn Page, Lester Prothro.

Duet—Tom McCarty, Raymond Strong.

Closing message by Fr. F. A. Bash. Sympathetic sermon — "The God of Youth." The sermon is built from the thought "We serve no God whose work is done. Our God has labors just begun."

Hymn, "Let Jesus Come Into Your Heart."

Benediction.

Postlude, violin solo—Miss Monterey Lewis.

Services in the morning for the congregation of the First Presbyterian church will be held at the Olympic theatre with Dr. Nat F. Grafton speaking on "Our Disappointments." Special music will be given by a quartette and by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Underwood. The evening service will be on the church lawn.

First Southern Presbyterian.

Rally day will be observed at the First Southern Presbyterian church with a sermon on "Christian Education" by the pastor, Dr. Gaines B. Hall.

At the Church of the Good Shepherd efforts are being made for having every scholar present, on time, and ready to begin the new term's work. The kindergarten and primary departments will meet in the parish house on Burnett street, and other departments in the church. The morning sermon will be given by the rector, Fred T. Datson who will speak on "The Golden Present."

"The Home, the Church and the School" is the subject on which Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of Grace Methodist church, will speak at the 10:45 o'clock service Sunday. Special music will be featured. In the evening, a stringed orchestra with the organ and piano will furnish the accompaniment for the congregational singing. The pastor's subject will be "A Fulcrum of Power."

Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of Highland Heights Christian will speak on "Leaders in a Great Movement" at the morning sermon and at 8 p. m. on "Where the Roman Catholic Church Came From."

An invitation to start anew church going is extended by the First Church of Christ by the minister, Rev. L. S. White who will speak at the morning hour on "The Plea of the Churches of Christ." For the evening hour, he will speak on "Why Prove Faith?" "Projecting the Program" will be the subject by Rev. W. D. Cook at Yale Avenue Evangelical church Sunday morning. Rev. W. H. Mahler will speak there in the evening.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, announces a morning sermon on the subject, "Substance."

Speaks on Baptism.

Rev. T. J. Furniss, pastor of the South Side Baptist church will speak to his congregation Sunday morning on "Baptism," and in the evening on "God's Will for Man."

"Women's Day" will be observed at the Floral Heights Methodist church when the women of the church will be guests of honor. A musical program has been arranged along with a program which follows:

Mrs. Luella B. Thompson, director. Prelude, "March in F" (Steane)—Mrs. O. E. Nicholls, organist. Anthem, "Jerusalem, O Turn Thee to the Lord" (Gounod)—Mrs. George W. Thorburn and choir. Offertory, "Londonderry Air" (Farewell to Cucillain) arr. by Coleman and offertory solo, "Hold Thou My Hand, Dear Lord" (Briggs)—Mrs. Thompson. Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.: Judge W. B. Chauncey, superintendent. Special effort is being made by every department to get all teachers and pupils actively enlisted in the work of the school, beginning the fall program at once, corresponding with the opening of public schools. At the evening worship service, 7:45 o'clock, the theme will be, "The Women of the Church."

Mrs. P. B. Cox will have charge of the devotional period, and talks will be made by women of the church as follows: (a) "A Resume of the Past Quadrennium"—Mrs. T. R. Boone; (b) "Woman's Part in the Church"—Mrs. S. E. Trevathan. An anthem will be sung by a special women's choir, "At Close of Day" (Verdi-Adams), and the choir directed by Mrs. Thompson and Pierce G. Evans, soloist will sing "Saviour, When Night Involves the Sky" (Shelley). Organ numbers, "Prayer at Evening" (Lacy), and offertory, "The Swan (Saint-Saens)—Mrs. O. E. Nicholls at the organ.

Rev. E. F. McGaughey will speak on the subject, "The Meaning of the Word Communion" at the morning service of Floral Heights Presbyterian church, and at the evening service on "The Wise Builder."

IN THE PAGES OF BOOKS

—BY C. HARTLEY GRATTON—

SUETONIUS in his "History of Twelve Caesars" tells how the Romans managed to eat the huge banquets spread before them in the heyday of their magnificient civilization. After they had thoroughly stuffed themselves they contrived to vomit, and then were able to begin all over again. If I am not mistaken Gustave Flaubert describes the custom in his short story "Hamilcar."

Jean Anthelme Brillat-Savarin, author of the most famous and important book on "man as a feeding animal," correctly remarks that such a procedure is disgusting however much it may extend one's capacity for food. Brillat-Savarin wrote his "Physiology of Taste" about a hundred years ago, but it remains the standard work on gastronomy even today. Several editions of the book are being prepared at the moment to commemorate the one hundreth anniversary of Savarin's death. A neat, well-bound, excellently printed edition is that put out by Boni & Liveright, Inc., for $3.50.

The problem of eating is one that confronts all men, but it is one that few men master. Most of us make desperate efforts to eat well, but few of us really succeed more than one time out of fifty. The rest of the time we manage to stoke up the machine and that is all. Mr. Frank Crowninshield, editor of "Vanity Fair," in his introduction to this edition, is inclined to believe that Americans are entirely lacking in the art of eating. He points out that they have developed the quick lunch to the highest point known. New York City, for example, is littered with them. The latest development is the sandwich shop, about which George Jean Nathan discoursed so eloquently in the "American Mercury" a few months back. Rapidity of eating is incompatible with the practice of gastronomy. One cannot practice any art hurriedly. One must eat, as one must paint or sing, at leisure.

Wine An Essential

Brillat-Savarin discurses eloquently on certain succulent dishes. He points out the best ways to prepare soups and meats. He is eloquent about the virtues of the turkey. He has less to say about pastry. But he writes as a gastronomer and not as a cook, understand. Vegetarians would find the book quite revolting, for Savarin apparently regarded meat as the basis of every human being's diet. Without meat it is not worth while to live. And without wine no meal is complete. One cannot get a complete meal legally in these United States, another cause for complaint with gastronomers.

But since gastronomy is a science as well as an art it is necessary to get at the bases of feeding. So Brillat-Savarin discourses brilliantly on the physiology and chemistry of eating. He ventures into a history of the art. He theorises on the basis of taste, and concludes that smell is a major part of it. That is, what has no smell has no taste, and when we cannot smell because of a cold say, we cannot taste. This raises the interesting point that food should be made so that it smells attractively. Even so there is a wide range of endurable smells. It takes patience to learn to endure certain cheeses.

Gastronomic Anecdotes

As he pursues his way through the ramifications of eating in his systematic and thorough manner, Savarin stops occasionally to decorate the narrative with anecdotes. These anecdotes are completely charming, for they usually give us interesting glimpses of the gastronomer in action.

Unfortunately not everyone can be a devotee of gastronomy. Some of us are not built for the art. It requires highly developed senses. It is practiced only through the assiduous cultivation of the senses. Consequently anyone whose sense of taste is in any way deficient cannot hope to cultivate the art, any more than a blind man can cultivate painting.

This Is Terrible!

According to Mr. Crowninshield it is difficult for anyone to practice the art in America, and he hopes that this reissue of Brillat-Savarin's book will pave the way for a change. We have now not a single first class restaurant. We have eating habits that are the despair of all gastronomers. We, for instance, put ice cream on our apple pie, sugar on our lettuce, and ketchup on everything. This, to put it mildly, is terrible.

Yet we have many dishes unequalled in any other nation of the world. We have, for instance, several varieties of ducks. We have the turkey about which Savarin waxed so eloquent. We have soft-shelled crabs, but more ubiquitously we have Chinks and the Waldorf. Consequently, Brillat-Savarin should fall into the hands of all American eaters who are not vegetarians, Puritans, or on a diet. And may these unfortunates hold their peace.

THERE is a story by Lord Dunsany included in "A Dreamer's Tales" that remain in my mind more clearly than any other he has written. It is called "Poor Old Bill" and tells the story of a man who was the only survivor of a crew for months becalmed. They ran out of provisions and were reduced to cannibalism. Finally but two men remained, and of the two Bill survived by killing and eating his companion. This is horrible of course, but the story is so brilliantly told that it is quite vividly haunting.

From sheer horror Lord Dunsany can swing to sheer absurdity and write "The Lost Silk Hat," a one act play frequently produced by amateurs. In between horror and absurdity there is considerable territory, and Lord Dunsany has invaded most of it. So far as my knowledge goes, however, he has never descended to realism.

"The Charwoman's Shadow" (Putnam) is pure romance, beautiful, arresting, charming. There is love, and magic, and an adventuring young man. The magician covers human shadows, trifling things until you lose your own, and then see what happens! What happens is pathetic and amusing.

How Love Potions Work

To help his sister the adventuring young man learns from the magician how to concoct a love potion. Hilariously enough the potion makes the victim deathly sick, but in the end the object is accomplished. Perhaps that is how love potions work, accomplishing their ends through the loving care their administration necessitates. Even Bernard Shaw, that keen-sighted realist, married the lady who nursed him when he broke his leg by falling from his bicycle before her door.

The adventuring young man sought gold that his sister might win a suitable hand because of her dowry. He desires the magician to teach him how to make gold. But he never learns. He concocts the love potion and the sister wins the hand of a duke. And then the young man gets the shadow of the charwoman away from the magician. The charwoman has grown old, and the shadow has remained young and beautiful. When they are reunited the charwoman is young once again. And so . . . "The Charwoman's Shadow" is charming fantasy.

"DREAD DWELLING" by Richmal Crompton (Boni & Liveright) is quite another matter. To be sure it is not precisely realism, but neither is it pure fantasy. It is an adventure in the psychic. It is a little more than mildly interesting. It is the story of the adverse effect of a house on the fortunes of a hitherto happy and prosperous English family.

The fatal influence of the house is apparent to but one member of the family, and it is he in consequence who bears the brunt of the successive tragedies. Upon him the whole weight of the matter bears. Eventually he inherits the house and burns it.

The only really good story with a psychic bias outside of Ambrose Bierce's books, is "The Turn of the Screw" by Henry James. In that brilliant piece of writing the unreal becomes indistinguishable from the real.

Certainly an important merit of "Dread Dwelling" is that it is reasonably realistic. It is not unskillful. It is simply not very interesting.

Smart for Winter

Briskly my Lady of Fashion steps forth in the crisp winter air. Her trim shoes meet the most exacting standards of comfort and smartness when they are chosen here. There are dozens of styles from which to select, so that practically every costume finds its correct complement, with personally designed footwear creations.

Pictured is a beautiful black patent, side-tie creation with black King Snake heel and throat inlay. It has twenty-one eights heels. This model is also shown in tan kid with brown King Snake heel and throat inlay and in black Moire with black satin heel and throat inlay.

Vogueish to the last sense of the word is this smart model of black patent. It is made distinctive by a treatment of light tan Lizard heel and throat inlay, and beautifully appliqued on vamp and quarter. The same model is shown in brown kid trimmed in a like manner.

HOLLIDAY SET FOR BUSY YEAR

School System to Open Monday With Big Enrollment

HOLLIDAY, Sept. 11.—The Holliday public schools open for the 1926-27 scholastic session Monday, the largest enrollment in the history of the school is expected. The eleventh grade will be offered this year for the first time, and an influx of new residents to the little city fifteen miles north of Wichita Falls will cause an enrollment in the school that will probably tax the seating capacity of the two buildings in the district.

Holliday supports a school that is rapidly gaining recognition by the state department of education. The district was organized as an independent district last year, classification as a standard three-year high school was secured, and seven credits of the high school course of study were affiliated. This year application will be made for classification as a first-class high school and for affiliation in six additional credits.

Good Personnel

The personnel of the school faculty is probably the best in point of professional training and teaching experience of any ever employed by the local school. Arvy F. Ligon, superintendent, is an A. B graduate of the North Texas State Teachers college at Denton, and previous to his work at Holliday last year as principal of the high school, has taught in high schools at Baird, Carbon, and Throckmorton, Texas. In his senior year at college he was a member of the college debating team and president of the Lee Literary Society; he was active in play production, playing leading roles in two dramatic club plays and the past summer, while visiting in Denton, he was initiated into the Alpha Psi Omega fraternity, a national dramatic organization. C. C. Miller, of Covington, Texas, is also a graduate of the Denton college, with the Bachelor of Science degree. Mr. Miller was a member of the college debating team at Denton for two successive years, and established a reputation as a successful public speaker. He is also an athlete, having played both college football and basketball. Mr. Miller will teach Mathematics and Science in the local high school.

Miss Eva Jones of Smithville, Texas returns as teacher of English. Miss Jones is an A. B. graduate of the College of Industrial Arts, with an English major. The past year Miss Jones affiliated two credits in English for the Holliday High School.

Delma Ligon will teach Spanish and coach athletics. Mr. Ligon is also a product of the North Texas State Teachers College. He starred two years on the Denton high football team, and played both football and basketball in college.

The elementary school faculty includes: Delma Ligon, sixth grade; Miss Annie Ground, North Texas State College, fifth; Miss Clara B. Hudspeth, A. B., University of Oklahomt, fourth; Miss Loreign Russell, Wichita Falls Junior College, third; Miss Gladys Johnson, A. B., Abilene Christian College, second; Miss Chloe Ramey, C. I. A., first grade. Thomas R. Van Winkle of Holliday will teach the Phillips school

The trustees are sparing no expense in providing the necessary equipment for the school. The entire five-acre campus is being fenced with steel woven-wire fence, steel lockers are being installed, various playground equipment is being provided, and two new encyclopedias have been purchased for the library. The members of the board of trustees are: R. C. Brewer, president; Mrs. J. M. Hawley, secretary, J. C. Thomas, A. M. Carter, J. W. Stegall, B. W. Finnell, and W. W. Hahan.

DESERT FRUIT MAN'S MEAT

Plant Pathologist Says Cultivation Will Work Wonders

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Fruits of the desert, delicacies of bleached plains, are yet to be enjoyed by the white man, so says J. M. Del Curto, state and federal plant pathologist.

One of the latest products of the cactus, probably known long ago to the Indians, to be brought to the attention of epicures, is that delicious trude from the dark skin. When grows in southwestern Texas.

This fruit of this species of low growing cacti is about the size and shape of a small peach and is very sweet, having a flavor similar to a combination of ripe figs and peaches. A few small clusters of spines protrude from the dark skin. Wren peeled, the luscious fruit shows small seeds of the appearance of fig seeds.

Of all the cacti that grows in southwest Texas, this species is, the most ornamental, although it rarely grows taller than three feet, while other cacti rear 20 feet into the air, to spread in fantastic attitudes in valleys of drifting sand, on dry washed rock hills and mountains.

Mr. Del Curto said that the Petaya cactus would be a fruit-producing, effective and ornamental hedge, and that it would grow any place between a line running south of San Antonio south to Laredo, and west to the border of Texas. He believes that some day energetic persons will capitalize this fruit, as the plant grows wild, is easily gathered, and is hardy enough to withstand long shipments.

"No hotel could offer a more pleasing delicacy than the fruit of the Petaya," he said. "The Mexicans pick this fruit, and sell it in the markets of Mexico. There is no reason why we shouldn't enjoy this delicacy."

Desert plants store large quantities of water and in the old days Indians never worried about their water supply as long as they saw cacti. This water has food value, and a man can be sustained by this water alone for many days, Mr. Del Curto said. Certain species of the cacti produce a vegetable meat which is edible.

French Town Is Disrupted by War Over Monkey Farm

PARIS, Sept. 11. — (AP)—The town of Menton is in the throes of a bitter zoological and medical controversy. Dr. Serge Voronoff, of monkey gland fame, has asked the city fathers to give him permission to build a monkey house for 300 simians inside the city limits. Listening to Dr. Voronoff the officials saw visions of turning their quiet town into a famous center for medical research. But listening to the representatives of the S. P. C. A. delegates from the churches and to groups of mothers who feared that 300 monkeys would be dangerous to the children they decided that permission would be held up pending further examination into the scheme.

Dr. Voronoff claims that the Rivera is the only part of Europe where he can successfully raise monkeys. Already three other cities have refused him permission to establish his farm within their limits.

Harrold Farmer Brings First Bale

ELECTRA, Sept. 11.—Albert Kohl, a prominent farmer living six miles north of Harrold, has the distinction of bringing the first bale of cotton from the 1926 crop to Harrold. This was brought in Thursday and ginned Friday by the Harrold Farmers Gin company. The bale weighed 482 pounds and is of middling cotton. The citizens of Harrold presented Mr. Kohl with a bonus of $20.50 made up Friday. It is said that the patch that produced the first bale on the Kohn farm will make one-half bale to the acre and has been troubled very little with cotton worms and other pests. A second bale of cotton ginned Friday by the Harrold Farmers Ginning company.

MUSSOLINI IS ACCUSED OF INTRIGUE IN THE BALKANS

SOFIA.—Adherents of the proposed Balkan federation charge that Italian influence, directed by Premier Mussolini, is balking their efforts. # ANDY'S ART A REAL MARVEL

Mellon Surprises French With His Knowledge of Painting

PARIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—When Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the United States treasury, left Paris for England, it was with the reputation firmly established in official and near official circles of being an art connoisseur. He also gave those with whom he came into contact an opportunity to judge for themselves of his skill as a financier.

Mr. Mellon's call at the Quai D' Orsay lasted exactly half an hour, nine minutes of which were given over to foreign Minister Briand. The remaining 21 minutes were spent by the American secretary admiring the priceless goblins in the foreign office.

Mr. Mellon stawed an hour with the ministry of finance. He chatted with Premier Poincare for ten minutes and then, at his own request, followed by an usher, he visited the Louvre Museum in another wing of the ministry building and stood for many minutes before each of the famous paintings there.

"He is a real art expert," said the ushed when he became aware of the identity of the visitor, "I don't believe a man who takes such pleasure in admiring beautiful works of art can be a man to drive an impossible bargain on the French debt. He must have been maligned."

FIRE IS SPREADING

Utah Canyons Seething Mass of Forest Flames

EAST CRESCENT, Utah, Sept. 11. (AP)—Moving toward the ridge which separated Bells and Cottonwood canyons a froest fire which started Monday morning seems likely to spread from the slopes on this side of the mountain to heavily wooded country beyond the ridge.

It is estimated that the fire has already burned over ten or fifteen square miles and has caused enormous damage to the Draper watershed.

WANT NEW CANDIDATE

BARABOO, Wis., Sept. 11.—(AP) Demand that an independent candidate who will support the eighteenth amendment be placed in the field for election as United States senator from Wisconsin was made today by the State Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The call was occasioned by the wet support given both John J. Blaine, republican nominee, and Thomas M. Kearney, democratic nominee.

CHARLESTON SPREADS

Basque Coast Resorts Take Up The Yankee Dance

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Basque coast resorts are Charleston-mad. From Biarritz to San Sebastian every second dance in the Casinos is a Charleston. It has displaced the tango, even with the Spanish and French pleasure seekers, who do the Charleston with wild abandon.

Most of the orchestras have American musicians who sing the English words of popular Charleston tunes and the guests of various nationalities soon learn the words and join in the choruses. Many hotels have posted notices asking visitors not to practice the Charleston in their rooms because of the havoc it plays with lighting fixtures and plaster.

SEVERE RAIN IN JAPAN

20,000 Houses Flooded as Result Of Storm

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Reports to the vernacular newspapers today from Hiroshima say that a severe rainstorm flooded the city, submerging 20,000 houses. Twenty persons are reported dead and a number injured and missing.

Railway communication between Kobe and Shimonoseki has been suspended as several bridges were swept out and numerous landslides occurred. The city is described in the dispatches as "a sea of swirling mud." Most of the telegraph and telephone lines in the region are down and news of the disaster is extremely meager.

If It's a Rat Catcher You Want--He's a Bear And Rough On Rodents

Who said' rats?

Shagg, the boat-rowing, tight-rope walking bruin of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus has a speaking vocabulary that is limited to "Woof," "Sniff" and "Gr-ruff."

But when it comes to understanding things—"he's a bear."

He's the only rat-catching shaggy-wag in captivity. The Pallenbergs who have charge of the bruin portion of the big show program, carry twelve bears along with the circus. But Shagg is the only one that can be counted on to be rough on rodents. He learned the trick around the training quarters at Bridgeport, Conn.

"All you have to do is to holler, 'Rats'," says Emil Pallenberg, "and Shagg will leave his high-bike or pile out of his cast-iron auto to look for them."

Five troupes of seals, five herds of performing elephants and 350 trained horses are among the dumb actors to be seen here with the Big Show Wednesday, September 29.

Besides there will be 800 aerialists, bareback riders and gymnasts. Big, grandiferous tournament to circle the big-top too, with knights and kings and such like all mixed in with gold-painted tableau floats, some with baby elephants riding on top of 'em and others pulled around the hippodrome track by zebras and llamas and camels hitched up in silver harness.

ALTUS PUPILS AWAIT SCHOOL

Many Leaving to Attend Classes in Out-Of-Town Institutions

ALTUS, Sept. 11.—September and school seem to be synonyous words. For more than 35 Altus young people the word "school" spells exciting trips to far or nearby towns, university of college campuses familiar and unfamiliar, old friends and new ones to be made—in fact, about the happiest time of the whole year.

More than 17 of the young people will attend the University of Oklahoma at Norman. Robert Taylor will be a junior there this fall. Julia Taylor, who attended the Oklahoma college for women at Chickasha last year will accompany her brother to the state university this year and will be entered as a sophomore. Weldon Ferris plans to leave September 15 for the same school. He will be a sophomore.

Russell Fagin will be a sophomore at the university. Albert Reid will enter there as a freshman and Theodore Bland will be a senior. Juanita Gary plans to attend the same school for her first year and Glenn Russell will leave the 15th to enter his junior year.

Miss Pauline Bailey and her brother, Travis, will leave the 14th. She will be a sophomore and Travis will be a junior. Everett Johnston, Phillip Ashcraft and Vernie Kirk will enter school there this year. Miss Dorothy Wright will be a freshman and Miss Lucy Jarboe and Coy Abernathy are planning to go there to school.

Dale Mogsett and Lloyd English intend to go to school at Norman the second semester.

Some to Texas.

Other state schools have an attraction for some of the Altus young people. Edna Lloyd plans to go to the College Industrial Arts at Denton, Texas; Horace Sissions to Southern Methodist university at Dallas; Ivan Stout to the University of Texas at Austin; Miss Wilma Sanderson will leave the latter part of October for Horner Institute and Kansas City Conservatory at Kansas City, Mo.; and Miss Kathleen Aldridge left Sunday for Lindsburg, Kan., where she will study piano at Bethany college.

Miss Mildred Starns will attend Ward-Belmont at Nashville, Tenn., her first year. Miss Doris Clay Robinson will return to Cottey college, Nevada, Mo., where she will be a senior.

Oklahoma schools, however, will be well represented this year by the Altus young folks. Miss Hazel Raley plans to attend the Phillips university at Enid; Miss Opal McGregor, Miss DeMate White, Miss Aline White and Miss Winifred Livermore will attend Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college at Stillwater. Miss Livermore left Saturday for that place and will visit in Chickasha on the way. The others left Monday.

Miss Edris Abernathy left Sunday for the Oklahoma Baptist university at Shawanee. Others who will attend there are Miss Lucile Newton, sophomore; Miss Eula Mae Fears, junior; Howard Smith, junior, and Kenneth Kimbell, Thornson Burton, seniors.

Four Altus girls will attend the Oklahoma college for women at Chickasha. They are Miss Beulah Faye Harris, Miss Loraine Ingle, Miss Georgia Mae Wright and Miss Dorothy Bidwell.

Miss Opal Gilbert left Monday for Bethany Peniel college, Nasarene church college at Oklahoma City. Miss Ruth Wilks left September 2 for the same place where she will be a teacher in the grades at Bethany college.

OPPOSED TO WAR

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Santos Dumont, "grand old man of aeronautics," has refused the honor of becoming Brazil's first general of the air. Aerial warfare does not appeal to him. He says he does not desire to see the navigable balloon he invented made a medium of destruction.

Brazil acting through her ambassador in Paris has renewed her contract with the French government for the retention of the services of the French aviation mission which is training Brazilian army fliers.

Just a Song At Midnight —By James J. Montague

This upset the balance of the chair, and I came down in a long arc.

We had decided to start on our tour at daylight, in order to avoid the traffic on the highways. It was after midnight when the packing was done. That left five hours for sleep, not much, but enough if your sleep is sound. In this case sound sleep seemed assured. We were all exhaused. So out went the lights, and into their several beds went the members of the family.

I fell immediately into the blissful doze which precedes a restful slumber. But just as consciousness seemed about to ebb there came from somewhere overhead a sound like that of a very distant airplane. It was—at first—a lulling sound, like the song of a brook on a riffle, or the sun on the beach. Then it came nearer, and took on a more shrill and strident quality. I sat up in bed—wide awake. I knew what it was now.

When I had switched on the reading light and began to seach for its source. But the noise had subsided. I listened intently. I could hear nothing. Drowsiness was upon me, and I switched out the light again and resumed my couch. Hardly were my eyes closed than the song was renewed.

I turned on the light again and began to patrol the room. Round and round I walked, with my head bent back so that I could fix my eyes on the ceiling. With a magazine I had caught up from a table and folded into an oblong, I made several swipes at dark spots on the plaster. None of them moved. They were the mortal remains of the relatives of the vistor who had dropped in to spend the night serenading me.

Walking about a room without looking where you are going—which you cannot do if you are looking directly upward is risky business. You collide with chairs and tables, and are astonished when you hit them to find how rapidly you are moving when you think you are barely crawling along. Moreover you presently get a cramp in the back of your neck which is unendurable. But nothing is as bad as trying to get to sleep with that song about your ears, and waiting apprehensively for the sting which sooner or later will accompany it.

By and by, after the seventh or eighth lap around the room I detected a spot which had not been there a moment before. I stood directly under it and gazed at it more fixedly. There could be no doubt about what it was. My songster had come to rest.

Very quietly I put a chair directly beneath him, but a stool on the chair, took the magazine firmly in my hand, and mounted toward my prey. The mosquito watched me warily, but did not move. Conservation of energy is a doctrine which they practice constantly. They have not much strength, and they must make it go as far as possible. When, as I supposed, I was firmly planted on my pedestal, I set myself for the swing and struck savagely upward. At the same time my quarry shifted his position just enough as to make it necessary for me to reach out further than I had meant to. This upset the balance of the chair, and I came down in a long arc.

After I had explained to the quickly assembled family that I was not hurt—which wasn't true, and that I was merely trying to kill a mosquito, I went back to bed. I could see that there was something in their argument that it would be better for one of us to be bitten once or twice than for all the rest to be scared out of their senses. They appeared to have thought the house was falling down about their ears.

I returned to bed, penitent, and determined to submit to the fangs of the enemy rather than arouse the household again. After all what was a mere mosquito bite, and what kind of a he man would allow the song of a tiny insect to interfere with his rest? Moreover the creature was probably so terrified by the commotion he had created that he would cower in a corner for the rest of the night. Out went the light again.

I lay for half an hour, sleepless, and wondering what was keeping me awake. Presently I knew. I was waiting for the song to begin. I closed my eyes and put it out of my mind. Sleep once more came creeping into my veins and then "Zi-i-i-ng." He had come back.

Silently I awaited him. It was my purpose to lull him into a false sense of security by keeping quiet, letting him alight on me and make ready to insert his bill, and then fell him at a blow. I waited and he came. I cuffed, and he continued to sing.

For what seemed five minutes I belabored various parts of my person with blows, but the song continued unabated—now falling, now rising, like the hum of a distant threshing machine.

By this time I was thoroughly indignant. My resolution not to disturb the family any more faded into thin air. I turned on the light and resumed the hunt. This time the mosquito did not take refuge on the wall, but continued to fly in wide circles over my head, necessitating more craning of my neck, and more resultant cramps. Just as I would get my eye on him and make ready for a swat he would suddenly become invisible. This is a curious power possessed by these insects. You can see them plainly one instant, a rebulous dot before you, the next they disappear utterly.

At last I plainly saw him fly through the bath room door, which I promptly slammed behind him. I returned to my bed, exulting in the thought of what a fury he would be in when he found he was a prisoner, with his dinner out of reach.

I don't know how he got out. He may have crept under the door. He may have worked his way through the screen into the open air, and then wriggled back through another screen into my room. I do know that he was voicing his sinister song in my ear half an hour later when I had just fallen into a real sleep.

By this time I was desperate and determined. I turned on all the lights. I shut the doors. I divested the bed of all its clothing and put the covers into a closet. I took down the pictures. There was no place in the room which could afford him shelter.

Then I began a patrol which was to be final. If he was there I would get him. If I got him he would sing his next song in another world, and the other world to which mosquitos go, will, I am certain singe them to cinders in a very few seconds.

There was now no song to guide me. Continually I strained my ears, but I heard nothing. However I knew the habits of my adversary. If genius is infinite patience he had it. He was wating me out.

I was not as quiet in my preparations for slaughter as I had hoped to be. From various parts of the house came complaints and remonstrations. But nothing could stop me now. The thing must be done.

About dawn I saw a slight movement behind the picture rail. I stood a chair on the bed, stood myself on the chair and made a closer observation. There he was regarding me defiantly. I made a slap at him and hurt my fingers. He moved half an inch out of the way and continued to glare at me. Then he disappeared.

Another hour I hunted, but in vain. It was now too late to sleep, so I took out a book and sat down to read until the family should arise. Soon I felt a sharp pain on the nape of my neck. "Bite away," I said, "fill up, you glutton, and you'll die. My blood is poisoned with rage, and you'll never survive drinking it." He took a sip out of my neck, then came around and perched on my wrist. I watched him sink his bill under my skin. I watched him grow larger and larger as he gorged himself. And then, to my infinite satisfaction I watched him fall over on his side, kick up his filmy heels and pass out. It was a great moment for me. I had conquered him.

Roaming The Air

If you twirl your dials on the night of September 15 to anyone of the following 33 stations you will be a member of one of the largest radio audiences ever assembled for one program: WEAF, WJZ, WRNY, WLWL, WMCA, WFBH, WHNY, WAHG, WBOO, WNCY, WOR, WBZ, WGY, WNAC, WNAB, WEEI, WODA, WJAR, WEAN, WGR, WRC, WCSH, WTAM, WWJ, WOO, KSD, WTAG, WCAE, WCCO, WOC, WGN and WLW. These stations will broadcast the activities of the third annual banquet of the radio industries. The speaker for the occasion will be Vice President Charles G. Dawes, and the entertainers include a list of more than 200 artists, many of whom are known to listeners already and many others who have stepped into prominence through their phonograph selections.

The audience on this occasion will number about 15,000,000 persons, it is estimated, and this is far larger than any previous audience. The largest chain of stations will participate in the affair, breaking the previous record of 27 broadcasters which were linked together for the Coolidge inaugural.

The Atwater Kent radio hour through WEAF and associated stations, which was cut to a half hour during the summer months, will be back for a full hour every Sunday night after October 3. It is announced that at the same time a number of additional stations will join the WEAF hookup for he feaure. Other coming feaures to be heard from the various stations in the hookup include the return of the "Viking," who will broadcast for 45 minutes each Tuesday night after October 5. Unusual programs in the nature of travelogues with musical settings will be given, with the first program, depicting the corporation of the King of Norway. The Balkite hour will be resumed October 23 with an ambitious schedule for the winter months. Walter Damrosch, leader of the New York Symphony orchestra, is arranging the programs.

WPG will present an unique program of musical selections given by beauties who competed in the 1926 contest for the title of Miss America on Sunday night, September 12. At 10:30 o'clock the beauties will be gathered in Marine studio to present a program of piano, violin and vocal solos. The winning beauty will be a guest of honor during the broadcast and will address the radio audience.

Fans who tuned in on the proceedings of the beauty pageant at WPG last week heard Norman E. Brokenshire of station WJZ as the master of ceremonies and official announcer. This is the first time that a radio announcer has been chosen for the important post. In the past it has been given to noted theatrical stars, and the announcement of Mr. Brokenshire's selection was hailed as foreshadowing the time when stars of the stage and screen will have to share the limelight with the statillities of the microphone.

From WLW comes the announcement that when the new superpower station is opened for the winter months practically all of the favorite features of the Cincinnati station will be continued and many more will be added to cater to the increased audience which the station is expected to reach. One of the new features will be the woman's hour at 4 o'clock each Thursday afternoon. Half hour talks for farmers will be broadcast on Tuesday evenings. A ight opera company is being formed to present favorite musical comedies, operas and plays. A series of talks about the many stories of the Bible will be given a weekly place on the revised program. Setting up exercises, Sunday school lessons, church services, dance music and organ recitals will be continued as in previous years with the addition of several new artists from time to time.

Promise that fans in the United States this winter will be able to hear regularly programs from Europe is held in a communication from David Sarnoff of R. C. A. fame, who is now in Europe to arrange for closer interchange of radio programs between England and the United States. Through special arrangements popular English entertainers will broadcast programs especially for foreign consumption and at hours when they are most likely to be heard in the United States. Mr. Sarnoff announced for a starter that the Savoy bands will broadcast from 2 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock (London time) in order that their programs may be received here at the proper time for Americans to dance to the strains. The bands will play in London in an empty restaurant and the programs will be at such a time that there will be no audience, either real or etheral, listening in England.

Announcement just made by WOK, Chicago, states that after broadcasting for a year on 5,000 watts a new station will be erected which will send programs out on 20,000 watts. The height of the antenna towers will be doubled and it is the belief of the owners that WOK will take its place among the half dozen most powerful stations in the country. They predict frequent reception in Europe during the winter. The new station is expected to be on the air within a few weeks. In addition to the 20,000 watt transmfitter an 8,000-watt set has been built for use in emergencies and for experimental work.

"Midnight," the one-act radio play which won third place in the first national radio play contest of WLS, Chicago, and the drama league of America, will be presented by the KMOX players through their home station on Saturday night, September 18. The scene of the play is in a lonely farm house at midnight and plenty of thrills for the listeners are promised. The play will start at 9 o'clock.

Another radio personage has been bitten by the writing bug. Terese Nagel, interviewer and arranger of women's programs at WGBS, is working on a book on radio, to be known as "Please Stand By." It will be written in collaboration with Lillian Eichler, another broadcaster.

Claimant for Share of Vast Estate Has Case

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Sophie Meier, farmer's wife of Gumbo, St. Louis county, claimant of a daughter's share of the $76,000,000 estate of William Edenborn, Louisiana capitalist and railroad owner, gained a point in federal court today when Judge Ferris refused to enjoin her from prosecuting her claim in circuit court.

Application for the injunction had been made by four nieces and nephews of Edenborn who contended that the claim should be prosecuted in federal court, if at all, because the chief defendant, Edenborn's widow, is a resident of Shreveport, La.

SHEFFIELD WITH CAL

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 11. (AP)—James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico, conferred with President Coolidge at the executive offices of the summer White House today, but what phase of Mexican affairs occupied their attention was not disclosed.

It has previously been indicated, however, that various matters concerning the oil and land laws of Mexico were the principal ones being given attention by the Washington government at this time with referende to Mexico.

LEGS MADE OF GLASS.

WAUKEGAN, Ill.—Miss Catherine Murray was arrested when she was found lying in the street here and told the officer she couldn't walk because her legs were made of glass.

STRAND GETS INGRAM FILM

"Mare Nostrum" Great Epic Of Screen Coming Here Friday

"Rex Ingram has produced a magnificent picture, both powerful and poetic.

"Blasco Ibanez wrote, and Rex Ingram has filmed a story of love, many loves. There is the love of the sailor for the sea, love that is the blood, that cannot be forgotten. There is love of the father for his son, the child of whom he dreams. And there is the love of a man for a woman. These three have been woven into a story which moves with the calm, inevitable sweep of the sea itself. The first half is slow, serene. Then it bursts into a storm of drama.

"Antonio Moreno and Alice Terry head a splendid cast. No one could have been finer than Miss Terry as the reluctant spy. She brings to a difficult part a rare grace and sympathy. Moreno is handsome and dashing in a strong characterization.

"'Mare Nostrum' has something for almost everyone, those who like drama, poetry, spectacle, characterization or beauty of setting. It has them all, with a strong plot to hold them all together. This is decidedly another Metro-Goldwyn production that everyone should see."

The picture appears at the Strand next Friday.

ENGINEER INDICTED

Is Alleged to Have Entered Plot In Restraint of Trade

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Joshua Atwood, an engineer in the highway department of the city of Boston, was today indicted by the Suffolk grand jury on charges of conspiring with the Warren Brothers compan and the Central Construction company to aid in a monopoly in restraint of trade.

Both companies named in Atwood's indictment were indicted by the grand jury Thursday on charges of conspiracy to defraud, conspiracy to maintain a monopoly and conspiracy to destroy the trade and business of certain corporations and individuals.

HE MAKES THE GRADE.

L. A. Downs Started at $15 a Week; Now Ie President.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A large amiable man who came as an Indiana youth to the Illinois Central railroad here 30 years ago at a salary of $15 a week returned today as head of the Illinois Central system.

He is Lawrence A. Downs, named to succeed Charles M. Markham, September 15, as president of the lines. Markham will become chairman of the board of directors, a recent illness having compelled him to give up the arduous duties of the presidency.

WATCHING DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The proposed reductions in the Frenech army have created considerable interest in Geneva, indicating to the minds of many of the delegates to the league of nations that countries will lessen armament burdens without the need of written convention.

The spokesman of the German delegation declined to comment upon the significance of the French project and allowed it to be understood that the Germans were more immediately interested in the French intentions regarding the forces of occupation in the Rhineland than in the size of the French national army maintained on her own soil.

PROTECTION ASKED.

PEKING, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Seeking the protection of foreigners for whom they have litle fritendship in time of peace, 150,000 Chinese have crowded into the British, French, Russian and Japanese concession districts of Hankow to escape the wrath of the Cantonese red armies who took their city a few days ago after a fortnight's siege.

Straw Hat Blaze Ends Bond Sales

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Cape Girardeau closed the straw hat season last night as one of the features of the boisterous celebration that marked the close of the campaign for funds for a traffic bridge across the Mississippi river here. At fair ground park where 10,000 persons gathered following the longest parade ever seen in southeast Missouri a large bonfire was blazing. One enthusiastic man threw his straw hat into the blaze, the act being a signal for the destruction of every straw ha tin the crowd. At times the air was filled with straws sailing from the grandstand, to be picked up and thrown into the fire by boys.

In the five-day campaign $388,000 of stock in the $1,600,000 bridge was sold locally, beating the expected quota by $88,000.

DIES FROM INJURIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP) Stewart Johnson, charge of the American legation at Cario, Egypt, died last night in Alexandria, Egypt, from injuries sustained in an automobile crash. The state department was advised that death occurred while surgeons were operating. He was born in t. Louis, Mo., and his home was Winnetka, Ill.

GILDA GRAY IN STRAND FILM

Famous Dancer to Appear In "Alonia" at Local Theatre

Bob Holden, a young English hero, reported dead, returns from the world war to find his pal, Van Templeton has married Sylvia, the girl they both loved. Not knowing Templeton tricked Sylvia, Bob goes to the South Seas with Sylvia's uncle. There he dissipates and stirs up so much trouble that the uncle sends him to a hut in the jungle. Aloma, a beautiful native girl dancer who loves him, goes as housekeeper.

Nuitane, native lover of Aloma, kills any white man who wants to harm Alamo, but Bob treats her with respect. Aloma uses all her charms to win Bob. She does the dances for which she is famous. But being too square to take her love, he says he will marry her. Before the marriage, his sweetheart, Sylvia, comes to the island and discovers him alive. Her husband, being a rotter, tries to make love to Aloma. Nuitane solves the tangled love problem by taking the husband out in a boat during a storm. The sharks get him, Bob wins Sylvia and Nuitane persuades Aloma that he, a native, is the proper husband for her.

That, in brief, is the story Gilda Gray has been endowed with as her first Paramount starring vehicle "Aloma of the South Seas" comes to the Strand Theatre tomorrow. Warner Baxter, Percy Marmont, Julanne Johnson and William Powell are featured in a Maurice Tourneur production.

Popular Flapper Has Chief Role In Picture at Gem

"Undoubtedly one of the screen's most popular flappers" said a famous director recently referring to Pauline Garon. The lovely little star is advancing to international fame by leaps and bounds. Her pert face and hazel eyes are recognized by movie fans everywhere, and her "natural" acting makes flappers see themselves on the silver sheet.

The whole secret of Miss Garon's success is this: She really is a flapper and very, very glad she is, too. Listen to this little bundle of pep.

"Act?" said Pauline. "Never! Why act when I can just be myself and get better results. Anyway, I'm sure I'd make a botch of acting."

But Miss Garon knows very well, in spite of what she said, that the whole secret of fine acting is to be absolutely natural. The little star never bothers her head about such matters as technique, stage-craft or other high sounding phrases, but all the same she manages to hold her audiences interested, and frequently delighted with her charm.

Of late Miss Garon has been co-starring with William Fairbanks in the Perfection series of speed dramas released by Columbia. She is an ideal partner for "Big Bill" as he is known to thousands of fans. Every small girl dreams of a "tall, dark man," and every sizable man seems to be fondest of the type of diminutive blondness portrayed by Pauline.

And so everybody is pleased and Miss Garon goes on increasing her following and fan mail. One of the latest thrillers in which Bill and Pauline hurry about risking their necks in every sort of machine from a speed boat to an airplane is Columbia's latest Perfection Production, "The Great Sensation," which comes to the Gem theatre on Tuesday.

DOG RESCUES BOY

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—A retriver jumped into Lake Michigan and rescued 7-year-old Allen Moore, grasping the lad's jersey with his teeth and dragging him to shore unaided.

Bill Hart's Wife in Reno Seeking Divorce Decree

Winifred Westover Hart, estranged wife of William S. Hart, greatest two-gun man of the movies, has joined the Reno, Nev., divorce colony, and friends of Mrs. Hart state she will reside there until she obtains her freedom from Hart.

Vigorous Tale Of West to Appear On Garden Screen

A vigorous tale, to be sure, is "No Man's Law" in which Bob Custer again appears at the Garden Theatre.

Rugged in the open spaces which provide its colorful background, stalwart in the character of its better men and women, it makes entertaining and uplifting screen fare for all classes.

Custer, a real son of the far flung ranges, can ride with the best of them. Moreover he reveals far greater facility and depth of feeling as an actor than most of the so-called Western stars.

The plot is meaty and compact, with a note of freshness which is welcome in productions of this character.

Custer, however, is the outstanding figure and carries his responsibilities with distinction.

MAN UNDER BED

CHICAGO.—Miss Elizabeth Matthews loked for many years to be sure there was no man under her bed. She found one at last, but he was an intoxicated lodger who got into the wrong room.

DROWNS ON FISH SWIM.

ISLAND HEIGHTS, N. J.—Coming here for his first swim since 1921. James Colvin drowned in sight of his father.

PALACE OFFERS BEST BAD MAN

Fox Feature Film To Be Exhibited At Local Theatre

Directed by J. G. Blystone and featured by some of the most thrilling sequences ever enacted for Fox Films, "The Best Bad Man," starring Tom Mix and his priceless Tony, will open at the Palace theatre today. The story adapted from the novel by Max Brand. Lillian Hayward wrote the scenario.

Surrounded by an excellent cast, the moderen Buffalo Bill is thrust into action from the moment the story opens, in colorful old New Orleans, until its smashing climax in the great open spaces of the west. Tony, put to the hardest test of his equine career, acquits himself nobly and saves two lives in one of the most dramatic scenes ever photographer for the silver sheet.

In addition to Tim Mix, the cast includes Clara Bow, Judy King, Frank Beal, Paul Panzer, Cyril Chadwick, Tom Wilson, Buster Gardner, Tom Keonnedy and the hard-riding and straight-shooting Mix cowboys.

Pre-view critics have pronounced this one of the most thrilling pictures Tom Mix has ever made. There are no dull moments and the fun is enhanced by the blackface antics of Tom Wilson. From a photographic standpoint, the picture abounds in beautiful sequences. Much cranking was done in central California, not far from the trail of the Argonauts.

DEER ATTACKS CYCLIST

PLATTSBURG, N. Y.—A deer attacked E. H. Martin, when he was motor-cycling near here and Martin was badly hurt when thrown from his machine.

COOLER WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Weather outlook for the week beginning Monday:

West gulf states: Partly cloudy with showers at beginning and again toward latter part of week. Temperatures will fall over the northern portion at beginning of week followed by warmer weather about Wednesday or Thursday; temperatures will be normal or above over southern portion.

Wichita Falls Offers Music, Dancing, Voice and Expression

With the opening of school and the return from vacationing and play to studies, the minds of fond parents turn to toughts of cultural education, and most of them ask themselves "Are my son and daughter getting the benefit of the better things of life? Am I helping them by cultivating their special talents?" Which Wichita Falls parents have no need to work, for education is provided in the lines of music, expression, art, dancing and voice.

Most of the studios of Wichita Falls teachers are either open of will be open immediately. Some of the teachers who are offering the benefit of their years of training and experience are:

Mrs. J. S. Pitman, teacher of expression and dramatic art, studio at 1904 Bluff.

Mrs. J. E. Wilson, teacher of kindergarten and first grade, school at 1657 Elizabeth.

Miss Delta Fern Wisdom, teacher of violin, studio at 700 Taylor.

LOOK WHO'S HERE

5-Cent Cigar Staging Spectacular Comeback.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The 5-cent cigar is staging a spectacular comeback. Chewing tobacco is on the toboggan.

July production of cigars selling at 5 cents or less was larger than for any month except one during the year 1924 and 1925. The output was 281,555,115. The trend appears to be steadily upward for these, department of agriculture experts said today and also for cigars selling at more than 8 cents but not more than 15 cents.

CENSORSHIP

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Bertha Fuller charged that Miss Rose Curtin's language was "unfit for cuts to hear," so Miss Cutin drew a $50 fine.

Hot Dog Signs Ruining Our Roads

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The haunts of the seductive hot dog have desecrated the highways of the nation to such an extent that the American Automobile association has launched a country-wide campaign to restrict the operations of venders along the roadsides.

In an effort to restore the beauty along highways officials in every state were requested by the association today to "formulate plans whereby the thousands of unwashed, unpainted and unsanitary hot dog stands and lunch counters would be brought under decent regulations."

Wichita Falls Students Start Long Trek To Winter School Work

MANY LEAVING FOR SCHOOLS OUT OF TOWN

Texas University Heads To Draw Large Quotas From the City

Schooltime, inspiration of the poet and dread of the small boy is here again and Monday will see

"The whining schoolboy, with his satchel and shining morning face, Creeping like a snail, unwillingly to school."

Nearly 10,000 children, willing or unwilling, will go to various schools in Wichita Falls Monday, beginning the fall term of the scholastic year. From tots of seven to the all-knowing sophomores of Junior college, all will prepare for another nine-months' term.

However, Wichitans are interested not only in the thousands who are receiving knowledge in the local schools, for a large number of students are leaving in response to the summons sent out from the colleges and universities of the land. Along with the appearance of cooler weather and the beginning of winter social activities, there is also the flurry of "getting the children off to school." Besides those students attending local schools, there will be representatives from Wichita Falls in nearly all of the largest and best-known schools in the United States.

Big List to Texas.

Texas university heads the list in number of Wichita Falls representatives, the following being some of those going: Wilton Wade Elizabeth Couper, Annabel Couper, Doris Brown, Leo Baldwin, Leo Haney, Gerald Coffee, Sam Gashara, Joe Bashara, Clifton Clay, Loebert Catter, W. D. Nelson Dorothy Rugely, Ray Bland, Bascom Nelson, Alma Willis, Janie McCallister, Stella Winters, Pierce Langford, Inez Ewing, Jonnie Jobe, Helen Knotts, Lillian Randle, Ruth Moore, Elizabeth Carrigan, Margaret Smith, Wilbur Presson Alfred Bennett, Curtis Beaty and probably a few others.

The state school for girls, College of Industrial Arts, at Denton, will claim a number of Wichita Falls girls. Misses Gladys Faye Johnson, Ruth Frank, Virginia Walters, Doris Bradley, Corrinne Allen, Ruth Downing and others will enroll there.

Simmons university at Abilene will be attended by several Wichita Falls boys and girls. Misses Edna Rundell, Margaret Morris and Emma Elizabeth Miller are three who will be there. Other denominational universities will also have Wichita Falls representation. Miss Lillian Hirshi being one of several going to T. C. U., and Miss Gene Nelson and Mary Touered, two of many attending S. M. U.

R. E. Lee Shumake Baber, Vernon McGee, Oscar Powers, Margaret Browne, Albert Pattillo, Aileen Willis and Gaylord Swarts will attend the Baylor university at Waco, and Miss Marguerite McCord will take up laboratory work at the Baylor Medical school at Dallas.

Five to Missouri.

Lindenwood college, a girls' school at St. Charles, Mo., will be attended by at least three Wichita Falls girls, Misses Dorothy Dale, Marjorie Bright and Katherine Marcus. Castle-on-the-Hudson, another girls' school, will also have a Wichita Falls representation in Misses Faye Fisher, Thelma Fisher and Frances Boyd. Misses Dorothy Shamburger and Marguerite McDonald will enroll at National Park school in Washington.

Other state universities than that of Texas seem to almost equal it in popularity. One Wichitan, William Powers, will attend the University of Virginia, and another, Miss Frances Mulligen, will enroll at Missouri university. Charles Weeth, John Ebner, Orion Daniels and Steve West are to take up studies as juniors in the University of Colorado at Boulder, Colo., and a large number, as usual, will attend the University of Oklahoma at Norman, Okla. Some who have announced their intentions on entering O. U. are Faye Cameron Herold Carter, Georgia Maxwell, Wilbur Carter and others.

Those who deplore the new "jelly" order should take note of the many survivors as listed in the enrollment at the various military schools. Carroll Johnson, who is now home on a 30-day leave, will return to the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, Md., to complete his work there this year. David Perkins is Wichita Falls' only representative in the U. S. Military academy at West Point, and this year T. P. Duncan will enroll at Virginia Military institute and Henry Tandy will enter the Suwanee Military school in Tennessee.

Of course there are many others, some probably even farther from than those mentioned, and many who have not decided where and when to go.

IS MADE ADVISER.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Dr. Otto Fischer, director of the State Art gallery at Stuttgart, has been made honorary advisor of the Chinese federal museums and art gallleries with headquarters at Peking. As such he has access to the costliest collection of Chinese art and antiquities in the world, an honor which it is claimed has not been achieved by any other European or American. Dr. Fischer is on a year's study tour of China and Japan.

MAYORAL CUPID QUITS

BATH, Eng.—The mayor of Bath, after finding a bride for a Queenslander, turned down five other requests because the cupid business took too much of his time.

Row Your Own

Now it's the landskiff. There's the chance that America, choked with motor cars, may welcome this new vehicle which is the invention of an American resident in Munich. Several completed machines, which are rider-propelled with a rowing action, are now in this country. Two chasses and a finished car are seen here in Central Park, New York.

Takes Command of Scouting Fleet

Rear Admiral Ashley H. Robertson, commandant of the 11th Naval District, Calif., has been transferred to the eastern seaboard as head of the Atlantic scouting fleet.

MOTHER SELLS CHILDREN

BUDAPEST.—Famine in the Debrescin district has caused many mothers to sell their children to work for peasants so they can buy food for themselves.

BABY LENT FOR A MONTH

DULUTH, Minn.—"We are lending you our baby for a month," said a note pinned to the clothing of an infant abandoned on the steps of J. C. Clouwer.

MAIL ROBBERY BRAINS HUNTED

Officials Search for Men Who Engineered Big Chicago Job

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)— The ghost of the $500,000 Dearborn station mail robbery in 1921 stalked today among investigators of the second railway robbery in Illinois within 36 hours.

In the faultless moves of the three gunmen who took a shipment of $135,000 in currency from a Grand Trunk mail car yesterday detectives professed to see a touch of the cunning that planned the Dearborn mail robbery five years ago.

They sought among others, Harold Watkins, upon whose head ever since has been a price of $5,000 as the one uncaptured principal in the Dearborn plot. "Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader, lately returned from prison, was one of several sentenced to Leavenworth for the holdup, and Watkins was called Murphy's aid.

There was, investigators said, a suggestion of an "inside job" in that the bandits demanded the currency sack by its official number. If they had known another number they might have obtained $150,000 more in a sack which John Kelly, veteran railway mail clerk, kicked into a corner.

Kelly and another clerk were held up on the southwestern outskirts of the city and the sack, containing paythrown to waiting accomplices. A few roll money for banks in Harvey, was minutes later the trio jumped as the train slowed down for a station and sped toward the city in a waiting motor car.

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Clyde Reese Bachelor and Hayes Leonard, negro, today were sentenced to be hanged on Friday, October 22, for the murder of Judge Lamar C. Smith, Bachelor's father-in-law. They were convicted at separate trials, Leonard testifying that he shot Judge Smith at Bachelor's instigation. The state contended Bachelor wanted to inherit the judge's money. Each filed notice of appeal which automatically stays execution.

Chuck Your Seven League Boots

IF YOU, like Hop o' My Thumb, had seven league boots, you too would chuck them for a telephone.

For even with seven league boots, traveling was tiresome and took time, and you never could be sure of finding your party at home. Anyway, they probably didn't wear well either.

Now, with a telephone, you can reach across the street—across rivers, deserts, forests, mountains—to the far corners of the continent, with almost equal ease and quickness. You can give or get your message without leaving the comfort of your own home.

Who wouldn't want a telephone!

The King was glad to employ him, for, by the help of his magic boots, Hop o' My Thumb would carry news more quickly than could have been carried in any other way—Except by Telephone.

OAKLAND PUTS OUT 906 CARS

Single Day's Record Is Broken In Factory Production

All Oakland production records for a single day were shattered last week when the huge factory at Pontiac built 906 Oakland and Pontiac cars. The best previous day's record was 843.

The Oakland Motor Car company ever since the introduction of the Pontiac Six has stepped into the limelight with record breaking production, in fact every day sets up a new record for production of any new make of car during the first full year's production. In fact a new record is made almost every minute of the day as Pontiac Six cars are being produced at about that rate.

The popularity of the Pontiac Six is attested by the fact that production has increased every month since it was placed on the market last January when daily production was only 60 per day. By July 23, more than 39,000 Pontiac Sixes had been built and sold, a larger number has been produced by any other new automobile during its entire first year of production.

Due to the phenominal increase in sales and production attained by the Pontiac and Oakland Sixes, Oakland has forged ahead to place among the ten leading automobile manufacturers. This has been due not alone to the success of the Pontiac Six because the Oakland Six, during the fiscal year ending July 31, registered an increase of 100 per cent in sales and production.

In an effort to meet the rapidly mounting demand for both Pontiac Sixes and Oakland Sixes, more than 1000 men already are at work on construction of the new $7,600,000 Pontiac Six plant which will be ready January 1.

Hup Stamina Is Shown in Foreign Reliability Tours

Hupmobile has had a most successful year in the European as well as South African road racing competition, winning five important contests in which the entries included the prominent makes of both American and foreign cars, according to correspondence from the Hupp Motor Car corporation to Hupmobile dealers in this section.

"Long endurance runs are a favored sport in these countries. They attract the attention of the motorists in the United States, particularly because these contests have not been popular here for many years despite the fact that our road conditions are far superior to those in the territories here where the most exciting races are staged.

"One race won by a Hupmobile six with five passengers in the car took place in South Africa. The distance was five hundred miles and in winning Hupmobile demonstrated its fitness to stand-up under the hardest tests. On part of the 500-mile route, roads (as we know them) are practically nonexistent, and the climate very trying both on the driver and on the car mechanism. The greatest hazard is sand. There are several kinds; yellow river sand, red sand, light and heavy sand. The Hupmobile six pulled through all of this without balking even in crossing the dunes of loose red sand or river beds of heavy yellow sand with hidden stones to make it worse. In winning this race, H. P. Rose, driver of the car, won the grand national cup, other prizes for leading at different stages of the run.

"Greece has also taken to automobile racing. It was expected that they would since the people there were the originators of the contest and have always been ardent devotees to sporting games. As they formerly tested athletic and physical prowess they now test the endurance of motors. The first official race sanctioned by the Greek Touring club was staged between Athens and Monemvassia and return, a distance of 700 kilometers (437 1-2 miles) a Hupmobile stock car took first place over a large field of the finest cars.

"Other achievements of Hupmobile that have come to our notice include a victory in Southern Sweden in a run sponsored by the Royal Swedist Automobile club, Scanian division; the driver of the car, Hans Sjodahl, meriting the 'Pratt Cup,' given to the best class 'A' driver. Also a Hupmobile six placed first in the Roumanian Grand Prix touring, mention of which has already been made in news columns.

Buick Keeping Its Quality Products In Front of World

With the introduction of the models for 1927, the Buick Motor company's policy of keeping its cars abreast of competition has met with even greater success than other announcements of recent years.

This has been made possible by utilizing its many engineering and experimental facilities, which are organized and designed to completely cover every phase of automotive development.

The process of bringing out a new Buick model begins with a large service engineering staff. This staff keeps in personal touch with all the large branches, distributors and dealers. There in turn keep a constant check on all their sub-dealers. Service clinics are constantly being held throughout the country.

In this manner an inquiring finger is kept on the public pulse. The things that the public wants in an automobile are instantly revealed to the service engineering staff. This staff is constantly informed, too, as to the operation of more than a million Buick cars in the hands of owners.

All this information is gathered by the service engineering staff and is passed on to the engineering and experimental departments — groups of world-famous engineers gathered together during the twenty-two years of development through which the Buick product has gone.

Each of these men is a specialist in his line, concentrating all his ability and energy on some particular part of the car. These specialists are under the guidance of men who have won places as foremost engineers in the industry. In all, these engineering executives have under their direction a corps of three hundred experts.

With these facilities, advanced engineering principals are developed to a production standpoint in a remarkably short time.

Detroit Baseball Star Gets Cadillac In Recognition of Batting Record

H. M. Stephens, general sales manager of the Cadillac Motor Car company, congratulating Harry Heilmann, Detroit's batting star, during Heilmann day ceremonies on Navin field, Detroit.

Before an audience of 40,000 persons, the largest which has assembled on Navin Field, Detroit, during the present season, Harry Edwin Heilmann, three times batting champion of the American League, was honored recently for his service to baseball and sport by the presentation of a new Cadillac five-passenger sport sedan, a diamond and platinum pin and a Great Dane dog. The occasion Heilmann day for Ty Cobb's Bengals.

The car was the gift of Lawrence P. Fisher and other friends and admirers of Heilmann at Cadillac and a number of other Detroit friends.

The presentation speech was made by Mayor John W. Smith of Detroit; the title to the car was delivered by Joseph A. Schulte, Cadillac Detroit branch general manager, and the keys were presented by H. M. Stephens, Cadillac general sales manager. The presentation of the pin was made by Ruth Mae Fowled, the "Miss Detroit" of a recent beauty contest, and the Great Dane was the gift of Patrick Sexton.

The car is one of the new sport models just announced by the Cadillac company. It is finished in light gray with "chasseur red" disc wheels. Two extra wheels rested in wells in the front fenders. The interior is upholstered with a special mohair of an entirely new design.

DODGE BUILDS 1,750,000 CARS

Million and Three-Quarter Mark Passed in Detroit Plant

Dodge Brothers Motor Car No. 1,750,000 rolled from the assembly lines Monday, August 23, at 3 o'clock p. m., just 11 years, 9 months and 9 days after the first Dodge Brothers car was completed. During this period the plant at Detroit has expanded from a scant 30 acres of floor space to over over 130 acres to which additions are constantly being made to care for increased demand.

Car No. 1,750,000, an all steel special sedan, is the crowning achievement of nearly 12 years devoted to the constant improvement and refinement of a sound basic design. The dates when Dodge Brothers output passed important production figures show clearly the continuously accelerated demand for the product. The first car was completed November 14, 1914. Two years, lacking 19 days, were required to build the first 100,000.

Car No. 500,000 was completed June 30, 1920; car No. 750,000, July 21, 1922 and car 1,00,000 on December 12, 1923. One million cars had been produced at the end of nine years and one month.

The last 250,000 cars were built in seven months and nine days, the first 250,000 in 41 months and 12 days.

Car No. 1,500,000 left the line on January 14 this year and was shipped to the Albertson Motor company of Los Angeles to take its place in the famous "Scout Fleet" consisting of cars Nos. 200,000, 600,000, 900,000 and 1,200,000. These cars are in constant service on the highways of California laying out and rechecking tourists routes and investigating road conditions for newspaper and automobile clubs. The Albertson Motor company has a standing order for each 300,000th Dodge Brothers car.

Many other dealers have filed advance orders for cars which mark the completion of large round numbers in production.

Car No. 1,750,000 was shipped to Frank Van Syckle, Dodge Brothers dealer at Perth Amboy, N. J.

A record of having built 1,750,000 motor cars in 11 years 9 months and 9 days invites attention to Dodge Brothers production and sales policies. Undoubtedly the most important of the policies to which their success should be attributed is the one which always comes to mind at the mention of their name. "Constantly improved, but no yearly models."

Chrysler Denotes Speed By Number In Its Serial Line

With the belief that motor car designations should convey a real meaning to the motoring public, the Chrysler corporation has standardized and simplified the naming of its models, just as it has standardized the quality of its four lines of cars which supply the four great markets.

The Chrysler organization believes the public is most greatly interested in these points regarding an automobile: Appearance, quality, comfort, value, performance and dependability. It believes that the best method of indicating the capacity of its motor cars is the simplest, and, it has, therefore, designated its models the "50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

These numbers mean the speed capacity of each car in miles per hour and are an index to the abilities of each. Miles per hour has a significance far beyond mere speed alone.

Comparatively few people, for instance, may care to ride as fast as 70 miles an hour; but the power in the "70" which is indicated by 70 miles plus represents acceleration and smooth performance, as well as in sheer speed.

It means the highest possible quality in design and materials and the finest of precision manufacture. It means a soundness and a stability that assure unequaled Chrysler performance for the entire long life of the car.

OLDS FILTER IS AID TO OIL

Crank Case Dilution Is Cut To Minimum by New Device

Motor oil need be changed but three or four times a year in the latest Oldsmobile, due to the introduction of crankcase ventilation and dual air cleaners and the addition of an oil filter in the series "E" Oldsmobile announced in mid-July. This announcement was made today by the engineering department of Olds Motor Works.

Three oil changes a year are ample in the Oldsmobile series "E", under average driving conditions after the car has been driven its first 500 miles. Four changes are advised for those who accumulate a great deal more annual mileage than does the average driver. Exhaustive tests on the General Motors proving ground have demonstrated that this number of oil changes is amply sufficient.

"Frequent oil changes heretofore necessary in motor cars were required to overcome the effects of dirt, grit, raw gasoline and water which found their way into the lubricant," explained H. C. M. Stevens, chief engineer of Olds Motor Works. "These destructive elements are either kept out of the oil in Oldsmobiles or removed from it through the use of the dual air cleaners, oil filter and crankcase ventilation as developed by Oldsmobile.

"Lubricating qualities of engine oil are destroyed by crankcase dilution. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. Also, water is formed by condensation in all internal combustion engines. This unburned fuel and water vapor, passing into the crankcase, form what is known as crankcase dilution.

"Oldsmobile eliminates excessive dilution by crankcase ventilation. Approximately one-third of the air that passes through the carburetor is drawn through the crankcase from a breather port on the left side of the engine. This air, cleaned of dust and injurious substances by an air cleaner on the breather port, sweeps through the crankcase before entering the carburetor. The vacuum action of this air draws off with it water vapor and unburned fuel that may have passed into the crankcase.

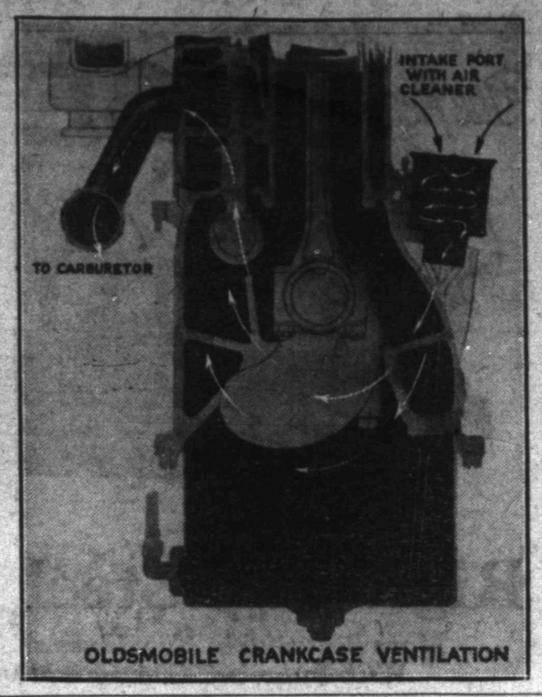

"This air, as it comes from the crankcase, also carries with it a small amount of oil vapor which aids in more efficient lubrication of pistons, upper cylinder walls and valves. The minute particles of water which enter the combustion chamber tend to prevent gas-knock and carbon formation.

"In addition to the air cleaner at the breather port there is a second air cleaner on the main carburetor intake. This assures only clean air entering the engine. Both air cleaners remove all dust and dirt from the air by centrifugal force.

How Oil Is Saved

Success of Light Cars Brings Announcements Of Imitating Types

Following the announcement of the European type light car, the Whippet, made a few weeks ago by Willys-Overland, Inc., another large manufacturer has presented a remodeled type of four-cylinder car in the light car field and other announcements are expected to follow.

It is stated in the automobile trade circles that the Whippet type of light motor car is the forerunner of a general trend in this direction by a number of manufacturers but it is expected that the Whippet will remain the only truly European type light car built in this country for some time to come.

That a tendency on the part of other manufacturers to lighten the weight of their cars will be evidenced in the new production seems inevitable to the better informed in the industry, but it is generally conceded that it will be some time to come before other engineering departments will be in a position to thoroughly Europeanize their products.

In the meantime the usual discussions regarding a product as revolutionary as the Whippet in its field, may be expected.

Reports from Willys-Overland show that better than 18,000 of the Whippet models are already in use and that these cars are exceeding all expectations of the manufacturing company in the performance records they are establishing for owners throughout the country.

A statement from the sales department of Willys-Overland, made in anticipation of the argumests of manufacturers concerning the use of European principles of design says, "The Whippet is an Americanized version of the European type of light car which has been conceded first place in mechanical efficiency for the past several years.

"It is the only American built light car with a motor which shows a developed brake horse-power 100 per cent in excess of its rated horsepower. It is the only American built light car with the typically European feature of construction which eliminates piston slaps by building the cylinder walls so deep that the piston never drops below the bottom edge of the cylinder walls.

"Elements of design include a crankshaft as large in diameter as that used by one of the most powerful multi-cylinder cars on the market, a camshaft of equal dimensions, and an oiling and cooling system which is the duplicate of that used on the finest built cars in this country.

"Of course on a car that accelerates as rapidly as does the Whippet, that has sustained speed capacity found in the Whippet, four-wheel brakes are an absolute necessity. It is just as essential that the owner of a light car be able to stop quickly as it is for the larger car driver.

"Claims made by other manufacturers that the European type light car sacrifices smoothness, power, hill climbing ability, durability, comfort and even appearance, are not borne out by the history of the European light car in this country. American owners of this type of car, imported from Europe are paying prices as high as $2,000 for their cars.

Pierce Leads On Way Over Bridge

With the formal opening and the dedication of the new 400-foot causeway across Big Lagoon on the Redwood highway, recently, driving time was reduced over 20 minutes and 3.6 miles of narrow, crooked, rough road was forever eliminated, according to the Redwood Highway association

A Pierce-Arrow, series 80 sedan, carried Miss Redwood highway through a silken barrier which was held by Miss Lauretta Griffin (Miss Trinidad) and Miss Vina Hufford (Miss Orick) at the dedication exercises.

Their official car was driven by one of the oldest and best-known residents of the Redwood empire—Burr F. McConnaha, who 30 years ago started the first horse stages through the then almost impenetrable wilderness of th Redwood empire—over the turnpikes which now form the route of the Redwood highway.

Today his stage line, now a part of the Pickwick Stage System, takes in practically the entire Redwood highway and the equipment is made up of modern Pierce-Arrow de luxe coaches, serving all parts of the Redwood empire.

Standardized Quality makes FINER PERFORMANCE and LONGER LIFE Mechanically Inevitable in the CHRYSLER "60"

The Chrysler "60" is the product of Standardized Quality—a new and higher order of manufacture which actually makes any deviation from its exacting and superior standards mechanically impossible.

Obviously, because the Chrysler "60" is a car produced under such a plan, quality is built in and the Chrysler "60" must therefore also stand up immeasurably better under the strain of hard service.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour; get-away of 5 to 25 miles in 7¾ seconds; gas economy of 22 miles and more per gallon; characteristic Chrysler beauty; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

Come in and see the new lighter six, Chrysler "60". Drive it—get the thrill of its smooth performance and comfort, then compare it with any low-priced lighter six-cylinder of ordinary manufacture.

We are confident you'll be convinced that nowhere will you find a six at its price that can begin to compare with this great Chrysler achievement.

Talk with any Hupmobile Eight owner who has owned other fine and far more costly cars. You will discover a unanimity of opinion about the Hupmobile Eight—a definite, deep-rooted conviction that it is different from and superior to anything which has ever been produced in America.

Owners will tell you that the Hupmobile Eight is the greatest performing car they have ever driven.

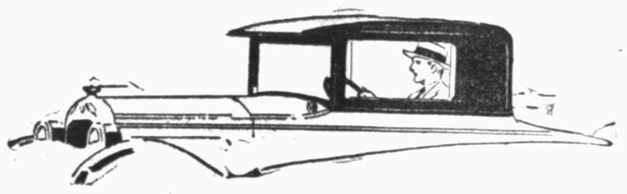

They will tell you, too, that no car in their experience was so smooth, so quiet and handled with such amazing ease.

Even on traffic-crowded streets, driving the Hupmobile Eight is not a job—but a joy.

You should expect these and many other fine results from the Hupmobile Eight.

For thoughtful and analytical engineers, looking for a car to compare with the Hupmobile Eight, find only one—that is an eminent Italian eight, built in the painstaking European method, and priced several thousand dollars higher than the Hupmobile Eight.

If you have never experienced the difference between the finest eight-cylinder performance and the best of other kinds of performance, one real test of the Hupmobile Eight will conclusively establish its performance—will show you why the Hupmobile Eight is sweeping on to ever-growing success.

Added Refinements Make It A Pleasure for All Drivers

Probably few of the thousands of persons to whom the motor car has become an essential part of every-day life ever pause to think of the features of comfort and convenience incorporated in modern automobiles which were undreamed of by the motorist of a few years ago. Considering the present-day luxury of motor travel, the drivers of twelve years ago seemed heroes, indeed.

Even after the introduction of the self-starter, which was dawn of the day of the woman driver, motoring was not without its complications. Automobiles were bulky and maneuvering them called for real skill. And, then, there were the "mysteries." Drivers sought a solution to the question of the amount of gasoline in the tanks with lighted matches—to their sorrow; many an engine, run short of oil, was ruined; many a fan belt broke and the radiator boiled before discovered, pistons were scorched or worse; short circuits in wiring developed and batteries ran down unnoticed, to leave motorists stranded far from home. And the question of speed was frequently left to the justice of the peace for solution.

It was no joke, but it seems just a bit ludicrous when contrasted with present-day driving. Consider Mrs. Motorist at the wheel of her new Studebaker Big Six Custom Brougham on her way to an afternoon of bridge at the country club. A glance at a neat group of instruments on the dashboard tells her virtually everything she wants to know about her car. She has four gallons of gas left, her motor is functioning perfectly as is evidenced by the engine heat indicator; oil pressure gauge and ammeter, and by maintaining speed at the present rate she will reach her destinaton in plenty of time.

The road is none too smooth, but Mrs. Motorist is scarcely aware of its irregularities, for balloon tires, supplemented by snubbers, have taught her that all roads "feel" alike. She turns in the narrow gate and meets another car coming out, but does she blanche? Rather not. Instead she lightly presses her four-wheel brakes pedal and what might have been a bad collision is easily averted.

On her way home dusk and a shower overtake her, but the automatic windshield wiper clears the windshield. Another car approaches and although a few years before Mrs. Motorist would have had to dim her lights and "grope" to keep out of the ditch, she now touches the headlight two-beam control on the steering column and the shaft of light in full density is deflected, adequately lighting road and ditch, yet not confusing the oncoming driver.

As a result of these improvements Mrs. Motorist uses the family car a lot more now than she formally did.

Chevrolet Will Build 1000 More Cars in One Day

Preparing facilities for manufacturing 1,000 more cars per day in 1927, the Chevrolet Motor company is proceeding rapidly with additions to its plants and equipment in the United States.

These additions are being made under the $10,000,000 expansion program announced recently by W. S. Knudson, president and general manager of the company.

The addition to the huge motor plant at Flint is now well under way. New machinery for making cylinders, cam shafts and small parts is arriving daily and extensive enlargements are being made at the Flint sheet metal division. A building 206 feet long by 134 feet wide is under construction to increase production at the Toledo transmission plant. Enlargement of the heat treat department of the Bay City small parts plant will provide additional facilities there.

In Detroit the building known as General Motors Truck company plant No. 7 has been purchased for manufacturig axles and small parts and will be merged with the gear and axle plant.

New buildings and the erection of 37 steam forging hammers at the Detroit forge plant will make this plant one of the largest forging centers in the United States.

Chevrolet factories at Cincinnati, Janesville and St. Louis will be extensively enlarged under the program. Fisher body plants at these cities are to be augmented, providing manufacturing facilities for 750,000 closed bodies and 250,000 open models. A proportionate increase in employes will follow the completion of these plant additions.

Willys Beauty A By-Word Now In World Auto Marts

The acceptance of the Willys-Knight great six as a car of unusual beauty is evidenced by the comments which have been received regarding the appearance of the various models in which it is presented, from women who are notable in the realm of art and social culture.

Among those who have voluntarily expressed outspoken favor for the Willys-Knight are Mrs. Oliver Harriman, a recognized leader in New York social circles; Mrs. Elsie de Wolfe, the interior decorator whose reputation is international; Mrs. Napoleon Bonaparte of New York and Washington, and Ethel Barrymore whose name is one of the most illustrious on the American stage.

These women are judges of good taste and distinction. Their comments regarding the beauty and quality of appointments of Willys-Knight great six have been exceptional in the praise they offer.

Charles Dana Gibson, whose opinion in the world of art is eagerly sought, has also voiced unqualified praise of this car.

In the mechanical world, Lee DeForrest, father of the radio in this country, has voiced equal endorsement while from Europe, the chief engineer for his royal highness King Alphonso of Spain has sent word that the performance of the Willys-Knight has been personally endorsed by his majesty.

The lines developed by the body engineers of Willys-Overland for the great six model are conservative in modelling with a distinct touch of European influence. Coloring is harmonious with the body development being distinctive and rich.

Pontiac Shows Its Engine Flexibility In Rigorous Tour

The Pontiac Six, which recently established several speed records on long endurance runs, gained new laurels in August by a startling high-gear nonstop economy performance, on the 1,039-mile round trip between Portland, Ore., and Boise, Idaho, demonstrating the high gear reliability of this popular six-cylinder car.

The car, a Pontiac Six sedan with the gear shift lever removed and left in Portland, averaged 31.5 miles to a gallon of gasoline and used only one pint of oil, the figures being attested by Frank Reusswig, safety division engineer of the Oregon State Motor association and representative of the A. A. A., who acted as official observer during the trip. The two drivers were Joe Kohler and C. Pritchett, amateur pilots, who alternated at the wheel every 100 miles.

Before the car started from the salesroom of the R. Knox Roberts Motors, Portland, Mr. Reusswig filled the gasoline tank and set the speedometer at zero. During the trip he measured carefully every replenishment of gasoline. He also locked the car in high gear and removed the gear control lever which was left in Portland.

Although the route included 100 miles of travel through the Blue mountain district, 28 miles of freshly-laid gravel and much other "rough going," the drivers encountered no inconvenience due to the absence of the intermediate and low gears.

The driving time was 42 hours and 19 minutes, or an average for the entire nonstop trip of more than 24 miles per hour, and is added proof of the remarkable performance of this car even under the handicap of no gear shifting.

ELOPING PRINCESS BEGS HUSBAND TO FORGIVE HER

BUDAPEST.— Princess Madjide, eloping wife of Prince Abdul Kadir, who was exiled from Turkey with the Sultan, his father, has written her husband begging him to forgive her and take her back. She fled to Constantinople with a rich Hungarian merchant, whose love for her is said to have wanned very quickly. The elopement was precipitated by the Prince's discovery of a letter written by the merchant in which he addressed the Princess as "my coronet of diamonds." The couple went to Turkey, knowing they were safe from pursuit there. As the prince is having such a good time here it is said that he will ignore his wife's plea.

DETROIT USES MORE COACHES

Graham Brothers Machines Ordered For Heavy Street Duty

The department of street railways of Detroit has ordered 50 additional Graham Brother 21-passenger motor coaches, bringing the total number in use by the street railway system up to 198.

Eighteen coaches, according to the contract, are to be delivered within 12 days of receipt of order and the remainder at the rate of 15 per week. Only as a result of Graham Brothers extensive and advanced production methods was it possible to meet the urgent need for quick delivery.

The first 80 Graham Brothers Motor coaches were placed in service early in 1925. In September 64 more were added. Many of the individual units have traveled in the excess of 60,000 miles. The total mileage of the first 148 coaches recorded on June 30 was 6,240,26 with over 21,500,000 passengers carried.

The new units are to be operated on Woodward and East Jefferson avenues, Detroit's two busiest streets, to supplement with high speed express service he transportation furnished by the electric lines. In this field of supplying more rapid service the competition in Detroit is not to such an extent with the electric lines as with privately owned seven-passenger touring cars operated as "Jitneys."

In the interest of supplying the best possible high speed service parallel to the existing car lines, 21-passenger coaches were selected in preference to larger units because the lower investment per unit and lower cost of operation permits more frequent service and the superior ease of handling and more rapid acceleration make faster schedules possible.

"This high speed express service on the same streets with existing trolly lines which has been inaugurated by the street railway in Detroit," declares Julian McFall of the McFall Brother, local Dodge Brothers dealer, "opens a new and wide field of service in which motor buses will soon be found in operation in cities both large and small throughout the country. In Detroit these buses are regarded with favor because of the safe, frequent, rapid economical service they are rendering the public. The opinion of the street railway officials is clearly reflected in the fact that this is their sixth order and that during the last year all orders placed for motor coaches of this capacity have been with Graham Brothers. The ability of these Graham Brothers buses to run on schedule with heavy loads through congested traffic, snow and other unfavorable operating conditions is convincing evidence that embodied in Graham Brothers buses are the endurance and stamina long recognized in all Dodge Brothers products."

AMERICAN CROOKS MASSING IN LONDON FOR CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK.—Constant surveillance over criminals by federal agents and local detectives has sent many of America's most cunning crooks abroad. According to word received here, they are gathering in London for a winter campaign. Many of these crooks are said to have reached England via Mexico and Holland, thus escaping the efforts of Scotland Yard to turn back such undesirable guests. As a result the English police are preparing to deal with an extensive crime wave.

NEW FEATURES OF KNOWN VALUE IMPROVEMENTS OF KNOWN WORTH

Crankcase Ventilation

In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all the fuel on starting. This water and liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and form crankcase dilution. Excessive dilution is eliminated by crankcase ventilation. One-third of the air in the carburetor is drawn through a breather port. This air, cleaned of dirt by a second air cleaner, passes through the crankcase before entering the carburetor. It draws off water-vapor and unburned fuel that pass into the crankcase, and a small amount of the oil vapor, created in the crankcase, aiding in efficient lubrication of pistons, upper cylinder walls, and valves. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives the engine longer life.

Harmonic Balancer

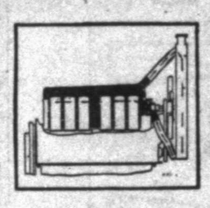

The Harmonic Balancer counteracts vibration and gives a smoothness you will quickly recognize. It is simple and never requires adjustment.

Known to all the motoring world is the definite, decided value of such features as Oil Filter and Air Cleaner.

Clear to every automotive engineer are the advantages of such improvements as Crankcase Ventilation, Two-Way Cooling and the Harmonic Balancer.

And the merits of these, and every other improvement now found in Oldsmobile Six, stand proved on General Motors Proving Ground. These improvements add still more to the value of the car already conceded to "ask no favors, fear no road".... they return to you the benefits of manufacturing advantages and economies created by the greatest year in Oldsmobile history. They typify a policy pledged to progress but which adopts no feature till its worth is known. Come in..see it..drive it..know its added value.

["... that the American family may have, at a moderate investment, a car that gratifies their finer tastes as well as satisfies their every need ..."]

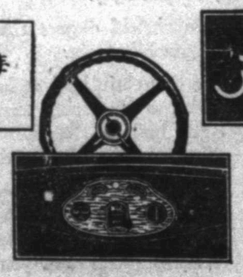

Two-way Cooling

Oldsmobile has been praised for its ability to be driven relentlessly for hours without the slightest over-heating. "Two-way" cooling incorporates the best features of the two accepted types ... pressure cooling and thermo-siphon cooling. Parts are cooled by the manifold method of circulation, while the slower thermo-siphon type of action maintains sufficient warmth about the cylinders for efficient operation. Here is a new type of cooling design incorporating the best features of all past engineering in even temperature cooling control.

Dual Air Cleaning

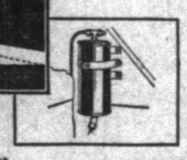

Two cleaners purify all air before it enters the carburetor and crankcase, resulting in much longer life.

Twin-Beam Head Lamps

The light, thrown at a downward angle, protects the oncoming driver. The control switch is a neat lever on the steering wheel.

Oil Filter

An oil filter has been added to this Oldsmobile, prolonging still more the life of the engine and the useful life of the oil. Should the filter become clogged with sediment, the lubricating system functions in the common manner.

Greater Driving ease and Security

Behind the unit-grouped dash panel, indirect lights illuminate each instrument.
A reliable instrument board fuel gauge indicates the supply of gasoline. The engine cannot be started when the key is in the new anti-thief lock. Turning off the ignition positively locks the car. The ignition key also operates the door locks.

PRODUCT of GENERAL MOTORS

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

"NUNS" JAILED AS SMUGGLERS

Four Women Arrested As Result of Customs Investigation

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 11.—(AP) Four women claiming to be nuns of the order of Franciscan Sisters from convents in Fall river, Boston and New Bedford are under arrest here in an alleged plot to smuggle a quantity of drugs and more than $5,000 worth of fine lace into the United States from Canada.

They gave their names as Sisters Isarr and Perfetu Locoro of St. Anthony's convent, Fall River, Mass.; Sister Sagrado of the convent of Our Lady Glorida, New Bedford, Mass., and Sister Oliva of the convent of Our Lady of Good Hope, Boston.

The four were arrested on the Canadian Pacific Montreal-Boston sleeper at Richford early today by customs authorities who were inspecting passengers.

$150,000 Libel Is Asked of Paper

CANTON, O., Sept. 11.—(AP)—John Burris, deposed member of the Canton Civil service commission, today filed a $150,000 libel suit in common pleas court against the Canton Daily News alleging that it falsely reported statements concerning him during the reinstatement hearing of S. A. Lengle, deposed police chief, September 8.

The suit declares that the newspaper "with wicked and malicious intent" published an item purporting to quote testimony in the hearing that Burris at one time received from "the underworld," $2,000 during a previous Lengle reinstatement hearing and that shortly thereafter "the underworld" was informed that the deposed chief would be restored to office.

Burris declared that the testimony was falsely quoted. Burris was opposed by Don R. Mellett, slain publisher of the Canton Daily News. At the time Mellett was slain Lengle had a 850,000 libel suit pending against the News.

BULL KILLS MAN.

WEST UNION, Ia., Sept. 11.—(AP)—A desperate battle with a pitchfork by his wife, and a 16-year-old daughter failed to save William R. Wickham, 54, from a vicious attack by a bull at their farm near here yesterday. Wickham died a half hour after the attack. The animal's head had crushed his chest.

History Made When Lardner Swam the Hudson —By Ring Lardner.

ALTHOUGH RIVER WAS ONLY 28 FEET WIDE AND KNEE DEEP RING RECEIVED ENCOURAGEMENT WITH WHITE MAN'S ORCHESTRA.

Chapter 11 of Ring Lardner's Autobiography.

The holidays were over and it was time to go back to Yale, then located, as I have said in a previous chapter, at Lancaster, Pa. The first hazard was the Hudson river, which was quite difficult to cross in those days of no boats. I asked a handsome big traffic policeman how to set about it.

"Take the Desbrosses Street ferry," he advised.

At Debrosses Street and the River, however, I learned that no ferries were running because no boats of any kind had yet been invented. I found out afterwards that the traffic policeman was none other than A. D. Lasker, famous two years later as the designer and builder of the first boat. At the time he spoke to me, he was doubtless so full of his dream of boats that he thought they were already actually in existence.

On the corner of Hudson and Spring Streets, I asked directions of a friendly looking vendor of shoe laces.

(Editor's note: This was undoubtedly Mary Lewis).

(Author's note; No it was a man).

How the Crawl Started.

He told me to walk way past Troy on the East bank of the river, and look for a Ford. After that seemed to me a rather tedious stroll, I passed through Troy and began looking all over for a Ford, but couldn't find one—or any other kind for that matter, I told my troubles to a farmer, who laughed heartily and said:

"Mon, mon! (He was a Scotchman) Ye are long before ze day of ze automobile. When your New York friend said 'Ford,' he meant a place in a river where it may be crossed by wading.'"

Whiteman's Orchestra, Which Accompanied Me In a Tug.

"Mon, Mon! (He was a Scotchman) Ye are Long Before ze day of ze Automobile.

Embarrassed and chargined, I walked down to the river bank and removed my shoes, stocking and plasters, as this seemed as narrow and shoal a point as any other.

"What's the idea?" inquired a deep voice which I discovered belonged to a white-haired old fisherman who was dredging for chocolate covered almons.

When I told him my plan, he tried hard to discourage me.

"You will never make it. No Yale man ever has, and only five Princetonians."

"What Princeton can do, so can Yale!" I replied, and sang two stanzas of the Yale Song—"Beulah, Beulah!"

Covering myself from head to foot with grease, I stepped boldly into the treacherous stream, which at that juncture is twenty-eight feet wide and knee deep. In less than half a day I was on the west bank, but wish to state that I owe my success quite as much to the encouragement given me by Whiteman's orchestra, which accompanied me in a tug, continuously playing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" and "Abide With Me", as to my fine physique and mastery of the crawl stroke.

(Editor's note: Mr. Lardner was the first to employ the crawl stroke, covering the entire twenty-eight feet on his hands and knees).

Unable to break off the habit all at once, I crawled down to Albany and caught the night boat back to New York.

(Editor's note: Boats had, by this time, been invented).

Poor Memory Cost Boys a Game.

From New York, I crossed to Jersey by ferry and decided to enter Princeton, as it was closer and I heard there were vacancies there on the hockey team and the mandolin eleven. Also I was attracted by the promise of an occasional glimpse of my late host's daughters, Very and Bera Grudge, co-eds at Old Nassau.

Our hockey season began inauspiciously. In the first place, the athletic association had neglected to provide a Puck and the local news-stands had sold out. On the opening night of practice we played with a copy of Godey's Lady's Book, but it proved unwieldy. Moreover, it was an open winter in New Jersey and the lake was not frozen over.

"There is no ice," I said one evening to Bera Grudge, who had inquired how we were doing. "We ought to have some ice."

"Ring for the bellboy," was her view of the episode.

Perhaps I ought to explain, before proceeding that hockey was not played quite the same in those days as it is now. The players numbered only two and their positions were, respectively, Go Way Back and Sit Down. The records will bear me out when I say that I was the best Sit Down Princeton ever had, not even barring F. Scott Fitzgerald. In fact, I could hardly stand up during my collegiate career.

Our first big game that season was with Wesleyan and we lost it by default, both my teammate, Carson Hull (later known as Big Bill Edwards), and I forgetting all about it. Some of the undergraduates got very angry at us for this and for many days, every time we would appear on the campus, they would point at us and shout: "You bad men, you!"

Auto Birthday Held in Berlin

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The fortieth anniversary of the invention of the German automobile, was fittingly celebrated by students of Hanover Tech. They hauled out the original machine from the school museum, filled the tank with gas and drove 270 miles from Hanover to the home of Dr. Karl Benz, the inventor, in Bandenburg. Dr. Benz is now 83 years old.

The trip was made without a single mishap. The car at times attained a speed of 21 miles an hour with two passengers. Instead of the skeptical jeers which greeted Dr. Benz on his first ride in the same car, the student drivers received an ovation along the route. Tears were in the aged inventor's eyes and thousands of his townspeople cheered as the machine chugged up and stopped in front of his house.

BRIBE CHARGE MADE ON COPS

Kansas City Police Under Fire for Alleged Misconduct

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Charges that Harry S. Roberts, police judge, and Frank M. Wisdom, chief of police, accepted bribes from him are contained in affidavits made to Charles B. Griffith, attorney general of Kansas, by Alexander Apple, professional bondsman. The affidavits were made public today by Mr. Griffith.

The sworn statements brought the name of Police Judge Roberts into the investigation of law enforcement conditions here for the first time.

The affidavits will be sent to Topeka to become a part of the record in the attorney general's ouster suit against Mayor W. W. Gordon. Mr. Griffith said, and will be filed in the supreme court as a part of the ouster evidence.

Rock Island Men In Day of Play

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 11.—(AP) Four hundred employes from 13 division points of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad are competing here Saturday for championship in various sports. Among the states represented are: Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, New Mexico, Arkansas and Kansas.

Championships of the system are to be decided in tennis, bowling, golf, trap shooting, checkers track and field events and baseball. First aid and tug of war contests also are scheduled. Trophies include district and division cups offered by President J. E. Gorman and gold, silver and bronze medals.

New "Miss America" Is Pretty, But Oklahoma College Has a Lot More Too, Grinning President Declares

Tulsa Girl Who Wins Atlantic City Beauty Revue to Consort with Other Buxom Queens When School Opens in Chickasha Monday

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Sept. 11. (AP)—Norma Smallwood of Tulsa, Okla., is Miss America of 1926.

This year's specifications for perfect beauty as indicated by her measurements are:

Height, 5 feet, 4 1-2 inches.
Weight, 118 pounds.
Neck, 12 inches.
Bust, 33 inches.
Hips, 33 1-2 inches.
Waist, 24 1-2 inches.
Thigh, 19 1-2 inches.
Calf, 12 1-2 inches.
Ankle, 7 inches.

The 18-year-old successor to Fay Lanphier, Californian last year's Miss America, was selected from 73 contestants from as many cities last night by ten out of 15 artists and illustrators who were the judges. Miss Washington, Marjorie Joesting, won the other five votes.

Blue Eyes.

The slim beauty has blue eyes and long chestnut hair. She was chosen not only for perfection of face and figure, but for personality, intelligence and poise. She won first prize Thursday night for appearance in evening dress. Last year Fay Lanphier took third place in this event.

Miss Smallwood is an art student, a sophomore in the Oklahoma college for women at Chickasha and plans to continue her studies there. Later she may accept some motion picture contracts.

Miss Lanphier is credited with having earned $50,000 on the stage and otherwise since winning last year.

An Atlantic City newspaper "scooped" the judges by appearing on the streets a few minutes before the official announcement with a story of Miss Tulsa's selection and with a full page length photograph of her.

Walks to See.

Charles A. Whiteshot, 67-year-old Spanish war veteran from Tulsa, reached the million dollar pier where judges voted just in time to see Miss Smallwood crowned. He said he walked all the way from Tulsa to root for her.

Miss Smallwood was born in Bristow, Okla., where she lived until six years ago when she and her mother moved to Tulsa. Her father is dead.

Two years ago she graduated from Kidd Key college at Sherman, Texas.

She has a younger sister, Lucille, 16, also a beauty, who several weeks ago after a brief and romantic courtship eloped and is now Mrs. Alfred Simpson of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The new "Miss America," is a dancer of exceptional ability and has won several Charleston contests.

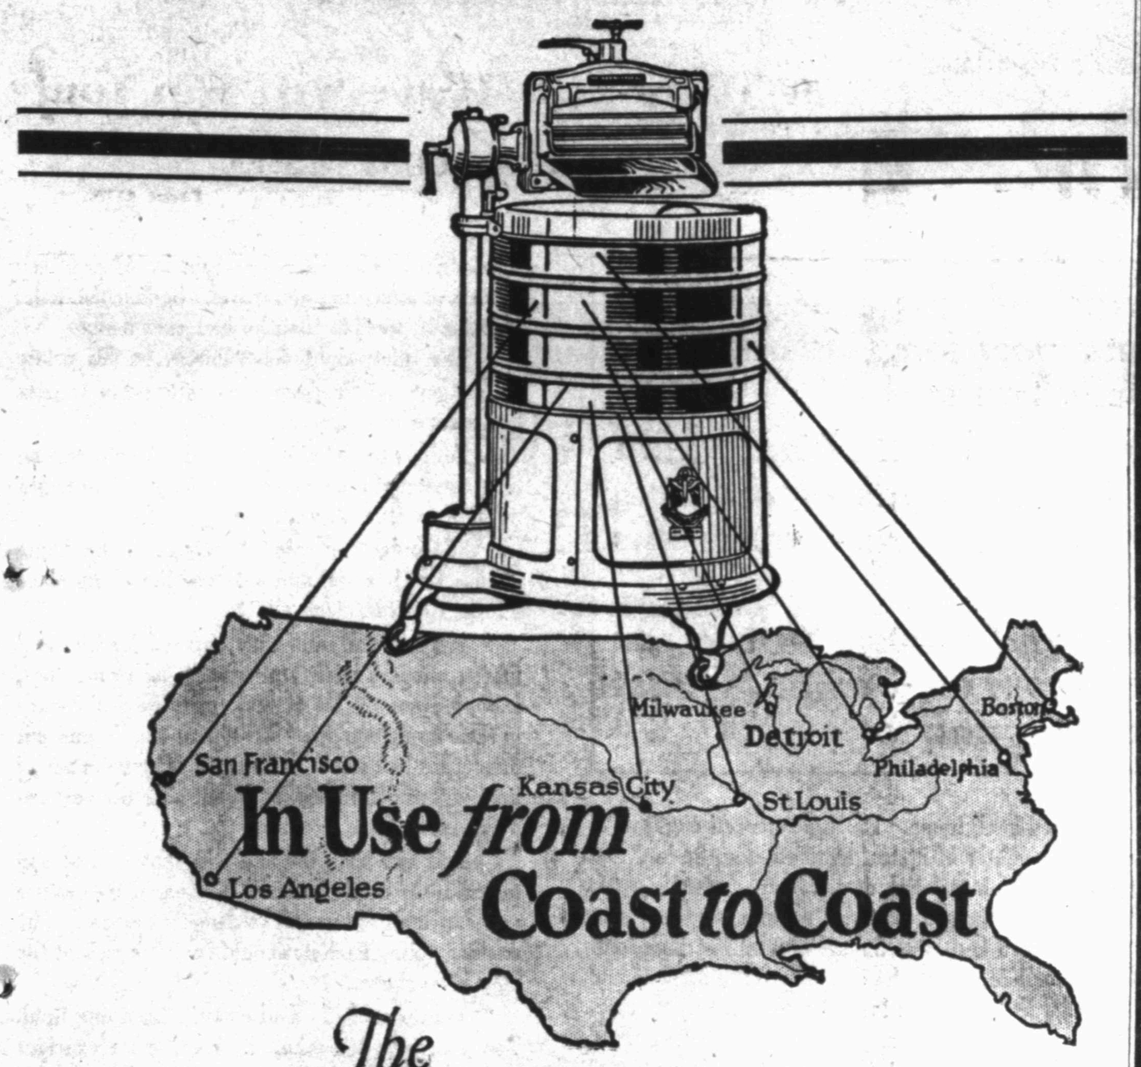

CHICKASHA, Okla., Sept. 11.—(AP)—There are many more pretty pretty girls in Oklahoma, Dr. C. W. Austin, president of the Oklahoma college for women, said today when informed that Miss Norma Smallwood, a student of the college, had been adjudged "Miss America," in the beauty contest at Atlantic City.

"That's fine," he said. "Monday morning we'll have about 799 just like her. We could ship them a boat load of O. C. W. girls just as pretty.

"I sincerely congratulate Miss Smallwood upon her success. She is a fine student and we look forward with a great deal of pleasure toward her arrival here. I am indeed gratified that an Oklahoma girl and especially a student of the Oklahoma college for women should be chosen as Miss America."

ATTACK BLUE LAW.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the Pennsylvania "blue laws" of 1794 is attacked by the Philadelphia American league baseball club in a reply filed today in the Dauphin county court to proceedings instituted by Attorney General Woodruff to halt the playing of baseball in Philadelphia Sunday.

And it was astonishing with what rapidity and adaptability Tod rose to the demands of his new station. Tod Hunter let no grass grow under his feet.

But it took two years and travels to the far corners of the earth to show Tod—what? Just how true and how blue were a pair of eyes.

ONE of those fantastic strokes of fate, fortune, or call it what you will, happened to Tod Hunter, and overnight, as it were, transported him from the humble role of trainer in one of the largest private racings in America to the ownership of those very few stables and the thousands of magnificent acres that contained them.

Not only that, the eccentric old hand that willed these estates to Tod at the same time conferred upon him a personal fortune in bonds and holdings that amounted to over eight hundred thousand dollars.

It had all come about like a scene in a melodrama.

One of the most amiable, personable chaps in the world, Tod, seated one day in his riding togs outside the training stables, leaped out into the road suddenly just in time to save a tot named Geney from being ground down under the wheels of a motor car which was whirring around a bend in the drive without blowing its horn.

The youngster belonged to Anna, a pretty seamstress who sometimes came to the great house to sew curtains and the like. A sad-faced girl whose husband had been shot down at Argonne. On the estate sentimentality ran high because Tod, suffering a broken collar bone, a broken leg and some bad facial cuts, had risked his life to save little Geney.

Old man Van Ornum, who owned the racing stables and who had long entertained a real affection for the genial, well-intentioned young fellow, wrote a codicil to his will that very night, and before he could have time to change his mind, which to the distraction of his lawyers he did weekly, died of heart failure in his chair one evening at dinner, dividing his vast holdings between Tod Hunter and his only remaining relatives, two nephews out in Australia. As every one said when the news broke, at least it did one's heart good to see this stroke of fortune fall to a fellow like Tod.

He was the best-natured chap in the world. Free, easy and a good mixer. Generous to a fault. Fond of animals, children and pastimes in moderation. If he had an enemy in the world, nobody, including Tod himself, knew of him. Orphaned from early childhood, a child of fortune if ever there was one, he had whittled out his own destiny and, because of his ingrained love of animals, drifted merrily, good-humoredly, into the work that was ultimately to yield him this great stroke of fortune.

He came into it with wholesome and characteristic amazement. Bowled over that life had handed him this luscious plum. Grateful. A little dazed. Thrilled to his finger tips.

He was a great, six-foot fellow, fine of figure, ruddy faced, with a shock of strong, sand-colored hair, legs that looked magnificent in riding puttees and a quick, acquisitive mind.

Great things were predicted of Tod Hunter when he came into his fortune. "He'll set the world on fire," said the colleagues and friends who had known him about the stables.

Hardly that, but it was astonishing with what rapidity and adaptability Tod rose to the demands of his new station. He took over the mastery of the new estates with a quick, sure hand. He escaped the dangers of antagonizing his erstwhile stable companions and instead won them over, as his willing aides. He took lessons in such cultural subjects as language, history and literature, and spent his evenings acquainting himself with some of the vast store of books that lined his library walls.

Tod Hunter let no grass grow under his feet.

Inside of a year he had conquered an amazing number of stumbling blocks that inevitably lay in his way.

At the end of another year, he was more or less master of the situation. A lord of his manor. A genial host. A gentleman of affable and delightful personality. The owners, and not the lodge-keepers of the neighboring estates, began to call. Tod joined a country club. Tod learned golf. Tod subscribed to local charities and sent three of the children of parents who worked on his estate, including the very little Geney he had rescued, to vocational schools to be educated.

Tod was becoming a person. More than that he was becoming a "catch".

And the folks who had predicted great things for him were more or less being justified.

The third year Tod started on a trip around the world.

The estates, the racing stables, the big house itself remained open and under the excellent supervision of the corps of servants who had learned enthusiastically to accept his genial dictatorship rather than to reject it, as might so easily have happened.

Tod had achieved great things, and greater were expected of him. His tour around the world lasted fifteen months. Newspaper stories of him drifted back home. He was rumored engaged to the daughter of a steel magnate who he had met on board a palatial ocean liner. Sunday rotagravures showed pictures of him at the Ascot with Lord and Lady So-and-So and one persistent rumor had it that the daughter of an ancient and titled French house looked upon him with favor.

Scarcely a month passed that the household back home did not titillate with this and that rumor of its personable master.

Tod Hunter puts up diamond and ruby trophy for the winner of the women's tennis singles at Cannes.

Tod Hunter accompanies Lord and Lady Dunwaring in midnight aeroplane flight across channel.

It was certainly never dull having Hunter as head of the enormous holdings on Long Island.

Suddenly, and without so much as a telegram in advance of him, Hunter returned. After fifteen months of adventure and travel. Sunburned, hale, heartier if possible than he had ever been.

The thirty-eight subordinates on his estate turned out with a deep-born enthusiasm to give him a rousing welcome.

Tod, in feudal manner, made them a speech from the top of the marble entrance steps, but with nothing of feudal spirit.

"Friends," he said, "I'm glad to be home again. I've been far and wide and there's no place like it, God bless you all."

That was all, and they cheered for him and fifteen minutes later Tod was in his riding togs, snooping among his stables, greeting his friends in their finely equipped stalls, browsing in and out among his live stock, thrilling to their whinnies of greetings and ambling in and out with the enthusiasm of a boy.

Tod had been far and wide now. Tod had tasted of the best. And now only one more gesture was expected of him. The climatic gesture. The dashing young bachelor could have his pick of the land if he chose.

Who was she? Tod was the marrying kind. Too generous, too whole-hearted, too gregarious and full of love-of-life, to be willing to carry on his varied existence alone. Who was she?

Yes, Tod had been far and wide. He had tasted of the good things of life. He had learned the verities. The real from the sham. And this is who she was:

Coming home from his rovings that had taken him far and wide, Tod chose Anna, the pretty seamstress who sometimes came to the house to sew curtains and the like, and whose daughter Geney he had saved from the motor car that memorable day.

She had the truest, bluest eyes! Tod's meanderings over the face of the earth had taught him just how true and how blue they were.
