The SDN Column

A few questions have been asked, but no serious protests have been indicated concerning the realignment of county commissioners precincts in Scurry County.

The realignment is decreed by the Constitution, which says it shall take place following each federal census. This, of course, is done to keep the precincts balanced population-wise. The same thing is required of the state, which is responsible for establishing the legislative districts, both state and federal.

On the surface, it sounds like it would be a simple task. A look at the census and how the population is deployed, then some lines that divide the people equally among the precincts, or the districts should fulfill the Constitutional requirements.

But it is much more complex. Even the county commissioners' precincts must be approved in Washington before the local authorities take action themselves. And merely dividing the people equally won't cut it.

So, Scurry County Commissioners must send their proposal for the new precinct boundaries to the Federal Election Commission for approval before they can give them their own okay.

But a simple map with the lines drawn in will not suffice. We asked Beverly Ainsworth, county clerk, and Preston Wilson, county judge, what type of information was needed in addition to the map and the population figures in each proposed precinct.

Plenty, they said. It ranges from copies of the county's voting records for the past 10 years, to names and nationality of all candidates. But you are not supposed to ask candidates about their nationality.

Actually the list of information runs for several columns in a magazine, and that is the "short version." It will require a good sized box to hold all of the information that must be sent to Washington with the proposed new precinct maps, Mrs. Ainsworth said. And it is going to require some time to get it all assembled.

They hope they can get it ready in time for a decision by the first of the year.

The agency requiring this red tape should make a good target for President Ronald Reagan's expense-cutting operations.

Annual Scurry Fair Preparations Continue

Activity was picking up this morning at the Scurry County Coliseum as opening day for the annual fair approached.

The carnival has moved in and set up on the coliseum grounds, and representatives of various organizations, business firms and individuals were busy today preparing exhibits.

Judging of fair entries is scheduled for Thursday morning, and the fair will be open to the public at noon Thursday.

At the same time the fair is going on, the third annual Scurry County Reunion will take place with various activities planned by the Scurry County Historical Commission and Historic Scurry County, Inc.

There will be stage coach rides, a domino tournament, a tour of of local sites of historic interest, a chili cookoff sponsored by the Tejas CowBelles, and special entertainment on the coliseum stage.

Texas Sinkhole Grows Dramatically

DAISETTA, Texas (AP) — A sinkhole dormant for more than a decade grew 220 feet overnight, swallowing clumps of earth, trees and abandoned trucks and panicking residents of this Southeast Texas town perched atop the nation's largest underground petrochemical storage dome, authorities said.

PREPARING FOR FAIR—Gwen Herring, left, and Jacqueline Wills, both of Fluvanna, were busy this morning setting up exhibits in the junior textiles division for the annual Scurry County Fair, which opens tomorrow. (SDN Staff Photo By Pat Burney)

The cone-shaped depression, first discovered in 1969, grew from 30 feet to 250 feet wide and sunk from 15 feet to 30 feet deep, authorities said.

Sinkholes in the West Texas town of Wink and in Florida also have nibbled away dirt, trees, telephone lines, swimming pools and anything else in their paths.

A state government agency monitoring the Daisetta crater says it doesn't know what caused the sudden collapse, but the town's 1,100 residents and Gulf Oil Co., have their own ideas.

"It's not an abyss or anything. It's like a sloping valley," said Gulf spokesman Mike Kumpf.

A Gulf contract worker noticed the enlarged hole in this oil field town east of Houston last Saturday while checking a salt water disposal well on a four-acre tract owned by Gulf. A road leading into the facility sunk about one foot and was crisscrossed by large cracks.

Celestine Fregia, 31, who now lives about 30 feet from the sinkhole, said she was awakened by yells to "get out because everything is caving in."

As she and her husband started to leave, Mrs. Fregia, the driveway sank about a foot, cracks appeared about the perimeter of her yard and a natural gas line broke.

Authorities said there have been no ground shifts other than "some rumblings" on Sunday, but the experience left residents feeling uneasy.

"I can't rest and relax at night since this happened," said Doshie Sims, 55, a vacuum-truck company dispatcher, who lives 12 yards from the huge hole.

Inspectors from the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the state's oil and gas industries, have been watching the sinkhole since Saturday but still do not know what caused the ground to cave in.

"We haven't been able to relate it to any oil or gas or saltwater disposal at the moment. It could have been a natural occurence. We just don't know," said Inspector Roy Gann.

Residents are convinced saltwater from the brine disposal well about 30 feet from the crater may have caused the ground to collapse by washing away some of the soil below the surface.

But Kumpf said the incident probably was a natural occurence.

"We feel most likely it was a natural phenomenon which caused it, such as underground water aquifers washing out subsurface structures," he said. "You have to realize that the sinkhole has been just sitting there since 1969 until Saturday, and we've had a disposal well near that site since 1925.

He said that if the disposal well would have caused the collapse, the ground would have sunken further because the well begins several hundred feet below the earth's surface.

In the meantime, he said, Gulf has shut down the well indefinitely.

Cutting Defense More Is Not The Solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — While agreeing an additional cutback in defense spending is not the solution for balancing the budget, Republicans and Democrats on the Senate Budget Committee aren't seeing eye to eye on other alternatives.

"I think you ought to get off this idea that you can find (the answer) in defense," Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said after a closed meeting of committee members with Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger Tuesday.

Weinberger is backing a $13 billion reduction from previously announced increases in defense spending over three years.

After the meeting Hollings and Sen. Oary Hart, D-Colo., suggested that President Reagan postpone for up to two years the recently enacted 25 percent tax cut to balance the budget by 1984.

Reagan is to address the nation about budget cuts Thursday night.

Death Claims Geral Greene

Geral G. Greene, former Scurry County Tax Assessor-Collector and father of District Attorney Lealand (Pete) Greene, died at about 9:30 a. m. today in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Greene had been admitted to the hospital earlier this morning after he was stricken ill at his home.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Ask Us

Q.—When is the city going to put the new garbage containers in areas where the old type is still in use?

A.—That is a project for the new fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1, and City Manager John Gayle says he plans to ask the council to order enough new containers to complete coverage in residential areas next month.

Snyder Man Killed In Truck Crash

Kirk Birdsall Kimmel, 22, Route 1, Snyder, was killed in a truck crash shortly after 3 a. m. today on Interstate 20 in Sweetwater.

Kimmel was driving a Midwestern Trucking Co. vehicle which was in collision with another truck that was parked on the shoulder of the road, it was reported. The other truck was unoccupied at the time of the crash.

Funeral service for Kimmel has been set for 10 a. m. Friday at Colonial Hill Baptist Church in Snyder. The Rev. Miller Robinson will officiate. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Lubbock, he attended high school in Livermore, Calif., and graduated from Pacific High School in Pacific, Mo. While in high school, he was active in rodeos and riding clubs, and he was a graduate of the Oklahoma Farrier's School.

Surviving are his wife, Sonia Kimmel of the home; a son, Kasey Lee Kimmel of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Kimmel of Snyder; a brother, Kris Kimmel of Snyder, and grandparents, J. H. and Dixie Kimmel of Snyder and Weldon and Dottie Birdsall of Pagosa Springs, Colo.

School Budget Okayed; Tax Rate Is 26½ Cents

Snyder School Trustees last night gave final approval to a 1981-82 budget of $8,765,147 for the school district and set the tax rate at 26½ cents per $100 valuation. Last year's tax rate was 28 cents.

The action was taken following a budget hearing that attracted only school officials and personnel, two oil company tax representatives and news media representatives.

The 1981-82 budget is an increase of $1,147,746 over that of 1980-81, with approximately two-thirds of the increase attributed to salary increases granted by the state. Other increases are mostly in maintenance, including electric power costs, and revamping of school facilities. The budget includes $250,000 for construction and remodeling, which school officials said is designed to reduce power requirements and to keep buildings in good shape.

"We have reached the point where our school buildings are 25 to 30 years old and they require more upkeep," said Supt. Bill J. Hood. The school district spent $160,000 in this area during the past fiscal year.

Carlton Meredith, representing oil producers in the Sharon Ridge area, and Bill Vick of Chevron, USA, both asked several questions about the budget, but expressed no disagreement.

The tax rate of 26½ cents is based on 100 percent valuations totalling $2,497,443,000. The valuations are up by some $400 million over last year. The tax rate is expected to yield $6,641,147. The remainder of the budget is expected to come from the per capita apportionment, grants and a carryover of about $525,000 from the past year.

The total tax levy represents an increase of 10.4 percent over last year, and a hearing on the tax rate has been scheduled for Oct. 1.

Bill Seale, board president, presided at the budget hearing and the special session to set the tax rate. Other board members attending were Joseph D. Hinton, G. A. Parks Jr., Mike Reed, Roy McQueen and Jerry McWilliams.

White House Guard Charged

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 29-year-old White House guard has been charged with robbing a bank in a Washington suburb, the FBI says.

John Arthur Bachmann Jr. of Laurel was released on personal recognizance Tuesday after a bond review before U.S. Magistrate George E. Burgess in Hyattsville. A criminal complaint charging Bachmann with the armed robbery Monday of the Citizens National Bank in Laurel was filed earlier in the day.

FBI agent Edward D. Hegarty said Bachmann is a member of the Secret Service uniformed division in Washington.

Protest Dwindles

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities sent home 750 National Guardsmen and Highway Patrol officers as the number of demonstrators at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant dwindled to only a few hundred.

The number of arrests stemming from an attempted blockade of the plant rose to 1,493 Tuesday, topping the record 1,414 arrests set four years ago at a demonstration at the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear plant.

May Propose Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's national security adviser says the administration may try to impose limits on the use of the controversial AWACS radar plane proposed for sale to Saudi Arabia.

However, Richard V. Allen acknowledged at a briefing for reporters on Tuesday that there is no "absolute guarantee" the plane would not be used in an Arab-Israeli conflict.

Allen left open the possibility the administration will try to restrict the flight area of the Airborne Warning and Control System planes.

Arguments Begin In Murder Trial

Closing arguments were to begin in 132nd District Court this afternoon in the murder trial of Alton Don Durst.

While the judge's charge to the jury was being prepared, it was learned that Geral G. Greene, father of District Attorney Pete Greene, had died following an apparent heart attack.

District Judge Wayland G. Holt offered to delay the proceedings, but the district attorney said he preferred to complete the trial this afternoon.

Testimony had begun Monday afternoon in the trial of the case in which Durst is charged with the shotgun slaying of Billy Norris Cobb last Nov. 28 in Smith's Cafe.

Several witnesses present at the scene, along with peace officers who investigated the case, were called to testify by the prosecution.

The defense attorney, Lance Hall of Sweetwater, sought to establish that Durst's brother, Gary Durst, had been threatened by Cobb.

About two months prior to the slaying, Cobb had been charged with shooting Gary Durst in the face.

The case was expected to reach the jury by mid-afternoon.

Ignored 15-Year-Old...

Slain Robbers Made Big Mistake

HOUSTON (AP) — The U-Totem at 1010 Edgebrook had been robbed three times in the past year, but when armed bandits showed up for the fourth time they made a fatal mistake, homicide Lt. G.A. Mason says.

They ignored the small, 15-year-old Vietnamese refugee sitting behind the counter next to the young Oriental woman working as cashier. They did not know that the woman was the boy's sister and he was there to protect her.

"The kid was sitting down in a chair. The guy (with a gun) just didn't pay that much attention to him, I'm sure. He just kind of walked by him," pulled a .25-caliber pistol and ordered cashier Loan Nguyen, 21, to open the cash register, Mason said Tuesday.

When she did, the gunman shoved her aside, reached in and grabbed several handfuls of cash. That's when the youth, who stands only five feet tall, opened fire with a .32-caliber revolver, hitting each robber in the chest.

They fled on foot, but collapsed and died a short time later, one just outside the store and the other two blocks away.

No one else was hurt, and Mason said the stolen money was recovered from one of the robbers.

Officers said three robbers were involved, but one of them did not enter the store and ran when the shooting started. He remained at large Tuesday.

Mason said the bandits entered the store about 9 p.m. Monday. He said during the hold-up a customer entered the store, and the gunman covered his pistol but kept it aimed at Miss Nguyen.

"His attention was divided. That's when the kid picked up his pistol," Mason said. Then the robber "started grabbing money from the cash register and the kid opened fire."

The men slain in the shooting were identified by police as Kenneth Anthony Cadriel, 20, a convicted burglar on probation, and Choon Duk Chung, 19.

Something has come out about air traffic controllers that needs to be ventilated, however unpleasant.

They got written into law in 1974 a change in the Federal Employees Compensation Act.

Since then any air traffic controller could retire anytime at 75 percent of his full pay--TAX FREE.

He had only to say that he suffered a job-related disability.

And it's not difficult to find a doctor to support such a claim.

Go from one doctor to another long enough you'll find one who can be bought. Studies at Purdue University and the University of Delaware reveal what's happened since.

The result was an immediate floodtide of disability claims.

In 1975, 870 air traffic controllers claimed disability.

The next year that number jumped to 1,257.

There is evidence that some controllers purposely allowed planes to get too close together--so that they could cite their mistake as evidence they were cracking up.

This will help you understand how come and why you heard and read so much about what a strenuous occupation theirs was--how much stress, resultant nervousness, sleeplessness, alcoholism.

They had to make and try to justify such claims in order to get that happy-ever-after retirement bonanza.

And this will help us understand official reluctance to forgive and forget.

The law, begging to be amended, still invites controllers to "have a nervous breakdown on us."

Strikes and strikers are losing public support.

No doubt about it.

Many factors contribute to the disenchantment with this heretofore popular remedy for inequity.

First, it's an extension of Reaganomics to consider inflation our nation's worst enemy--and to recognize that higher wages driving prices higher is counterproductive.

Americans now see themselves in competition with the world and realize that car buyers now get more car for the money from Japan and Germany because Detroit's auto workers got greedy.

Then when baseball players struck it brought into sharp focus the public indifference to the grievances of the already overpaid.

And when the air traffic controllers struck it was the American public which rallied behind the president.

A professional observer sees the Reagan New Horizon as significant as was the FDR New Deal.

A time for recovering fumbles.

As industry's tycoons of the Thirties got their wings clipped, labor's leaders in the Eighties are getting their wings clipped.

Not because of any class-related antagonism, but because any excess, ultimately, inevitably is its own undoing.

Opening lead: ♥2

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North's jump to three notrump is a normal, good bid. With just eight high-card points opposite an opening notrump, he does not see much future in trying for an 11-trick game. But with a probable six club tricks, he is delighted with the idea of trying for the nine-trick game.

West has no really attractive lead and no real hope of beating any contract that North and South arrive at. Still, when no one tries for a slam East is marked with some high cards and there is no reason for West to give up. He decides to lead a major suit. North did not use Stayman and it is very unlikely that he will have four cards in either spades or hearts. So West decides to avoid the lead of his best four-card suit, diamonds.

Then West opens the deuce of hearts. The seven is played from dummy and East is tempted to play the eight. It is a temptation he should resist firmly.

East knows that his king of clubs will be a winner. He is looking at the 10-9-8 of spades in dummy and K-Q-J-7 in his own hand. He can knock out the ace of spades and be sure of three spades, one club and one heart. A sure thing is a sure thing. He rises with his ace of hearts, leads the king of spades and defeats the game.

Tenor Enrico Caruso gave his final performance in 1920. It was at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Peach Pie with Pecan Crust

PEACH PIE WITH PECAN CRUST

This is the easy kind.

¼ cup butter

¾ cup fine honey graham-cracker crumbs

½ cup chopped (medium fine) pecans

Heavy cream whipped with sugar and vanilla to taste

Fresh peaches, peeled and sliced

In an 8-inch skillet melt the butter; off heat stir in the crumbs and nuts. Press over bottom and sides, but not over rim, of a 9-inch glass pie plate. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned — about 8 minutes. Cool completely. Just before serving, fill pie shell with layers of the cream and peaches, as lavishly or sparingly as you please.

'Temptation' Is Unappetizing Novel

THE TEMPTATION OF EILEEN HUGHES. By Brian Moore. Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 211 Pages. $11.95.

"It was a wet afternoon, drizzling and dark, the sort of afternoon that would make the Garden of Eden look a misery ..."

That abbreviated sentence is taken from the text of Brian Moore's latest novel and it pretty well sums up the way a reader feels after having made a forced march through the soggy pages of "The Temptation of Eileen Hughes."

Moore writes well, there's no quibble there, but what he has to say is something else again. In this book the message seems to be that it takes all kinds of people to make a society, even uninteresting grotesques.

The grotesques put on display here number three. First in line is a chap named Bernard McAuley. Although still in his early 30s, McAuley, thanks to an accident of birth, is a very wealthy businessman in Lismore, a Northern Ireland backwater near Belfast. Second is his wife Mona, a sexually frustrated beauty with a penchant for picking up strange men in bars. Eileen Hughes, an unbelievable 20-year-old innocent, completes the triangle.

The three are in London for a week's holiday. At least that's what Eileen who works for the McAuleys, thinks. But it isn't long before she finds McAuley has other plans for her, and Mona has plans of her own.

What follows is attempted seduction, seduction, attempted suicide, suicide, as well as a spiritual crisis on McAuley's part. Unappetizing stuff by itself, but combine it with unsympathetic characters and its deadly. PhilThomas AP-Books Editor

WTC Rodeo Team Opens 81-82 Season At ENMU

The Western Texas College men's rodeo team opens its 1981-82 quest for a return trip to the College National Finals with an NIRA rodeo at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales beginning tomorrow.

Western Texas finished 11th in the nation last year and second in the Southwest region under Coach Bob Doty, and returns five of the seven who made the trip to the finals in Bozeman last summer. They include Dave Appleton, who was last year's all-around runner-up and fourth in the nation in saddle bronc riding; Gary Hickox, calf and team roper from Lawton, Okla.; Troy Reynolds, calf roper and steer wrestler from Hudson Falls, N. Y.; James Garlick of Van Horn, bareback and saddlebronc rider, and Tim Gradous, saddle bronc riding specialist from Hephzibah, Ga.

Also returning are two tough hands who could have replaced nearly any of the team members last year: James Zant, calf roper from Odessa who was alternate to the finals last year, and Larry Williams, top bull rider from Denver City.

Bob Doty, rodeo coach, also hopes to get points from improved bareback riders Brad Fincher and Grant Thompson from Colorado City and Sweetwater, respectively.

Doty gained some outstanding new recruits this year who may make the six-man teams at some rodeos this year. These include time event hands Todd Whatley, AJRA finals rodeo all-around champion from Comanche; Brandon Edwards from Stamford; Russ Smith from Hobbs, N. M.; Guy Moberley from Spade; Travis Rhinehart from Gail, and Kyle Rowland from Sweetwater. Rough stock riders new at WTC are Kelvin Knight of Hawley, Jimmy Poyner from Odessa and Larry Dawson from Westbrook.

Freshmen to participate at ENMU this weekend will be Whatley, Edwards, Smith, Rinehart and Rowland. Grant Thompson will also be entering the bareback riding.

This week's designated team will be Williams, Gradous, Reynolds, Zant, Garlick and Appleton.

All of the girls' team will be at their first college rodeo. Entering the barrel race, goat tying and break-a-way roping will be Gayla Newton from Gail, and entering the barrel race and break-a-way roping will be Angie Casbeer of Midland and Deborah Lewis of Dell City.

Rodeos to follow the season opener in Portales are a WTSU-Frank Phillips rodeo in Canyon on Oct. 1-4; the Sul Ross Rodeo on Oct. 8-11 in Alpine, and the Texas Tech University Rodeo in Lubbock on Nov. 19-22.

The ENMU Rodeo will conclude with a finals go-around Sunday afternoon.

HEADED FOR PORTALES – Western Texas College Rodeo Team will compete in its first NIRA Rodeo of the season this weekend as Coach Bob Doty's bunch travels to Portales, N.M. Representing WTC will be the team of individuals above, from left, Angie Casbeer of Midland, Deborah Lewis of Dell City, Gayla Newton of Gail, Larry Williams of Denver City, Tim Gradous of Augusta, GA, James Zant of Odessa and James Garlick of Apple Valley, Calif. Trevino Achieves Fame; Golfing Great Inducted

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - Lee Trevino figures he's halfway to the end of the rainbow.

"There's two things every athlete dreams of when he's starting out," Trevino said. "One is going to heaven when he dies. The other is making the Hall of Fame in his sport. Those two things are the end of the rainbow.

"Well, I've got one of 'em now. We'll just have to wait and see about the other, and I'm in no hurry to find out."

Trevino, along with veteran pro Ralph Guldahl, were inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame Tuesday,.

"It's a great honor, a great thrill to have your name up there along with people like (Ben) Hogan, and, of course, Gary," said Trevino, who was inducted by South African Gary Player, one of the original 13 inductees in 1974.

"It's always nice to be remembered. I'm thrilled to death about it. It's been a great life for me," said Guldahl, 69, who won the U.S. Open in 1937-38 and the Masters in 1939.

Trevino scored his first pro victory in the biggest tournament of them all, the U.S. Open in 1968.

Cards Plan Homecoming

HERMLEIGH -- Hermleigh has double-action football planned for its homecoming festivities, to be held Thursday and Friday this week.

Activities start when the Cardinal junior high team tests Borden County at 6 p.m. Thursday. A bonfire will be held immediately following at the baseball park.

Friday, the Cardinal varsity takes on Guthrie at 7:30 p.m. Following the game will be a dance in the high school gym for exes, students and parents.

Hadley Lewis and the Country In-Betweens will provide the music.

Westerners Slate Game Thursday

Western Texas College's Westerners will play an intrasquad game 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the college gym, Coach Larry Dunaway has announced.

"This will be our first real competitive test of the season," said Dunaway, who urges the community to attend. "We'd like to invited all of the people out to see the team.

"It will be a full-game situation with officials, score keeper, everything," Dunaway added.

There will be no charge for the game.

Despite Mediocre Performance...

Snyder Clips Ector For Record Win

Sometimes even record-setting performances aren't very pretty. At least they get the job done.

Snyder's Tigers nailed up their 50th straight district volleyball victory here last night, defeating Odessa Ector in lackadaisical fashion, 15-2 and 15-12. The local JV also won, 13-11 and 15-1.

"We played a good first game. The second game wasn't so hot," panned Coach Joyce Elrod, who was pretty warm herself over the Tigers' performance.

Snyder easily won the first game, but made a basket full of mistakes in the second. Momentum swung Ector's way before the Tigers reasserted themselves and pulled it out.

"It wasn't so much the girls off the bench who were making mistakes, it was our veterans. We were thinking, we've got this one, so we let down. At first, the girls were laughing at their mistakes, but after a while it wasn't funny anymore," added the coach, who took her troops to the dressing room for a stern talk immediately after the final point.

"It was just a lack of communication, both from the bench and on the court. About the only thing you can say is we won."

The victory means Snyder is one win away from securing at least a tie for the 2-4A round-one championship. The Tigers can lock that up with a win over Lake View, 7:30 Thursday in San Angelo. A junior varsity match will precede the tilt at 6:30.

Serving for points last night were Kathy Northcott with 7, Becky Harrell, Becky Pylant and Shana Koonsman with 6 each, Sabrina Robinson with 3 and Sherri Rich with 2.

Serving for points in the junior varsity match were Tracy Fortune with 12, Lisa Loyola with 7, Carri Walker with 4, Wendy Hodge with 3 and Susan Brim and Mona Green with 1 each.

Thursday's contest at San Angelo could be an unpredictable one, said the coach, because this is Lake View's first year to participate in varsity competition.

"This is their first year of varsity competition and they've got nothing to lose. They don't know to be afraid of anybody," said Elrod, who has guided Snyder to five straight conference titles. "So they'll go into it to win. It (inexperience and determination) makes them unpredictable. I expect a pretty good ballgame from them."

The Maidens are coached by Dale McClellan, Lake View's girls basketball coach, who had a strong program several years ago at Highland.

In other volleyball action to be played Thursday, Snyder freshman travel to Big Spring for a 5 p.m. match and the local eighth grade hosts Levelland at 5:30 and 6:30.

Season Tickets

The school administration office reminds Tiger football fans that a number of people have paid for their season tickets but have yet to pick them up.

Snyder varsity plays its first home game of the season at 8 p.m. Friday, hosting District 2-4A rival Sweetwater.

Cats Confront Rival Ponies

Snyder underclassmen challenge Sweetwater in football action this week, on Thursday and Saturday.

The local seventh and eighth grade teams kick off the excitment as they host the Ponies in a four-game series tomorrow at Travis Field. Play is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. with a pair of seventh grade contests. Following will be two eighth grade tilts, expected to begin between 6 and 7 p.m.

Snyder freshmen, 1-1 on the season, will travel to Sweetwater Thursday afternoon for a game at 5:30.

Saturday, the local junior varsity plays in Sweetwater at 10 a.m.

All the action centers around the highlight game of the week when Snyder varsity welcomes the Mustangs in their first home game of the season, 8 p.m. Friday at Tiger Stadium.

Transactions

GREEN BAY PACKERS--Announced that they had reached contract agreement with John Jefferson, wide receiver, to complete last Thursday's trade in which Jefferson was obtained from the San Diego Chargers for Aundra Thompson, receiver, and the Packers' No. 1 draft choice and two No.2 picks between 1982 and 1984.

KANSAS CITY CHIEFS--Placed Mike Williams, fullback, on the injured reserve list. Signed Curtis Bledsoe, running back, to a free-agent contract.

OAKLAND RAIDERS--Placed Mike Davis, safety, on the injured reserve list.

Seattle Slaps Rangers As Clay Finds Victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Ken Clay, Shane Rawley and Rene Lachemann all said it was more important than just another baseball game in another mediocre Seattle season.

Clay saw it as a turning point, Rawley viewed it as another step on his personal road to recovery and Lachemann said it was a ray of hope for the future.

In the record books, however, it will only be a 3-2 Tuesday night win over Texas.

Clay, 1-6, earned his first major league victory since Aug. 25, 1980 - 13 months ago. He suffered nine straight losses in that span.

Clay stifled Texas on four hits until the eighth, when Rawley came on to log his fifth save of the year, but only his first save in nine opportunities since the end of May.

Rawley stilled a Texas rally, allowing only one hit in the last 1⅓ innings.

The losing pitcher, Texas rookie John Butcher, deserved a better fate, according to his manager.

Butcher, 0-1, held Seattle to just three hits until the Mariners put together a walk and four feeble singles to score three runs in the seventh.

Seattle touched Butcher and reliever Steve Colmer for bloop singles by Ritchie Zisk, Joe Simpson, Paul Serna and Terry Bulling in that seventh inning, wrapped around a walk to Jeff Burroughs. Simpson, Serna and Bulling each got credit for driving in one run.

Texas scored once in the fourth when Al Oliver singled in Buddy Bell, who had doubled - the only extra base hit of the game. The Rangers added another run in the eighth when Mickey Rivers reached base on a force out, scampered to second as Bump Wills grounded out and scored on a single by Tom Poquette.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My middle-aged husband has been in the hospital three times in the last year. Each time he spent between eight to 10 days there, and always in the same section so he became quite friendly with the nurses.

I have always trusted my husband, but listen to this. One of his night nurses (an R.N.) jokingly told me that she came into my husband's room at 1 a.m. every morning with some 7-Up, which they would mix with vodka. (My husband's brother had brought him a bottle as a gift.) My husband didn't deny these little "nightcap" parties; in fact he bragged about them.

Now that my husband is home, this night nurse has been calling to ask him how he is getting along. It bothered me, so I listened in on the extension and I heard her ask him when he was going to meet her in the city. (We are farmers and own a lot of land.)

I asked my husband to talk to our priest or see a marriage counselor, and he flatly refused to do either. A divorce would crush our children, but it is not my intention to continue to live with a man I cannot trust.

What should I do?

ANONYMOUSLY YOURS

DEAR ANON: Talk to your priest and accept his counsel. Don't rush into anything. Divorce is a heavy penalty for what may be a minor offense. Never cut what you can unravel.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for "Family Feud," who wrote in to complain that her daughter-in-law insisted on being in the family portrait: Put her on the end of the group, and when the photograph is printed, she can be easily lopped off.

Newspapers do this frequently when an unwanted subject insists on squeezing into the picture.

RALPH IN LITTLE FALLS, N.Y.

DEAR RALPH: Thanks. But what does one do when the pushy one "squeezes in" in the middle?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: How do I tell my very loved husband that the shirt size he has worn for years no longer fits him? I don't want to come right out and say, "You need a larger size."

A few times when I have bought him shirts (larger size) I've fibbed, saying, "These were on sale, and although they may be a little big, they were so good-looking I couldn't pass them up." Another time I told him that the salesman said that the new shirts ran a bit small and suggested I buy a larger size.

Abby, my husband knows he's overweight and has every intention of dieting, but he never seems to get around to it.

I don't want to hurt this dear man, so what do you say? Should I just keep my mouth shut?

LOVES MY MAN IN CALIF.

DEAR LOVES: You do your man no favors by pretending not to notice that he's overweight while you buy him bigger shirts and fib about the reason. Perhaps a rude awakening — such as being unable to button the top button on his shirt (or trousers) — is what he needs to motivate him to lose weight. If you love him, level with him.

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (35 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Robot Used For Research...

MechanicalMan Stuns Audience

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — He chatted with admirers, tipped the skycap and professed love to a ticket agent and a metal detector. Then with a blink of his lights, the most high-powered business traveler Newark International Airport ever had was on his plane to Miami.

The first person to cross his path was a stunned-looking ticket agent handling passengers for Eastern Airlines Flight 7.

With lights flashing from his head, Sico, a 6-foot-1 aluminum and fiberglass robot, booked two seats in first class, saying his companion would be along shortly.

Then, to the shock and delight of the passengers in the airport Monday, the robot said to a passing ticket agent:

"You are beautiful and I will never forget you. I mean that from the bottom of my main transistor."

As the onlookers hurried to take pictures, Sico told a man trying to change film rolls: "I know how difficult cameras are to handle. I used to date one. I think her name was Polaroid. Boy was she fast."

Off the robot rolled on its four wheels down the boarding ramp and into a waiting plane. Sico took a seat in row 1-A, and was followed shortly by the rest of the Miami-bound passengers, including Robert Doornick of New York, the man behind the machine.

Sico is one of four robots, worth an estimated $250,000 each, created by International Robotics Inc., a 5-year-old New York corporation. Doornick said his company is developing the robots for use in research laboratories. Among other things, the robots are designed to handle dangerous chemicals.

The company also hopes the robots may be useful in coaxing autistic children to communicate.

To get research money, the corporation leases the robots for promotional campaigns. Sico was on his way to a performance before automotive executives at the Miami Convention Center. The airport performances also help publicize the machines.

The robots travel with controllers such as Doornick, whose clothing conceals buttons for 90 commands, including walking, moving the head and arms and emitting appropriate beeps, buzzes and sentences.

Some of the speech is recorded, but Doornick can transmit sounds to a computer in the robot by speaking softly into a hidden microphone in his shirt cuff. The words are passed through a synthesizer that turns human-sounding talk into the voice of a robot.

By now, Doornick said, Sico is a veteran of airports.

Typically, he said, the robot is dropped off at an airport door with its luggage. Remaining within sight of Doornick, it then calls for a skycap to take the luggage to the ticket counter. Once at the counter, the robot hands the skycap a few dollars from one hand and the ticketing agent a credit card from the other.

If the agent, who usually is warned in advance of the visit, asks for a signature, the robot suggests the receipt be placed on the floor for an identifying "tire mark."

At Newark, one man circled the robot muttering: "I don't get it."

"Don't be confused, I can't figure out you humans either," Sico said.

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

September 24, 1981

This coming year you are likely to establish two new and important friendships. One will be with a person who could help you materially. The other will be with one who inspires you to be more creative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In talking to others you might come up with several new and better ways to handle a matter you deem important. Just don't get carried away and ignore the cost. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have extremely sharp instincts regarding ways to better your lot in life. However, what's good for you might not be so for someone else. Don't push your ideas on another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your thinking is perceptive. You seem to have the answers to problems plaguing others, yet you may fear their reaction and could mistakenly keep mum.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Gains can occur through a shared interest today because collective ideas work well. When any individual becomes singleminded, however, then progress ceases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Partnership matters today can have more advantages for you than usual. Team up with those who are productive. Avoid erratic types.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your possibilities for achieving your aims are very good today, but there is a danger you may oversell or overdo and thereby nullify what you've gained.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't judge too hastily an individual you may chance to meet today socially. This person could make a greater impact on you than you might first imagine.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A changing condition can have some unique benefits to offer you and your family today. However, much to your surprise, one member might not view it as such.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Suggestions offered you by your companions today can be adapted to fit your present circumstances, but only if you follow the guidelines exactly. Don't improvise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A set of unique circumstances may open a blocked channel for you today, but it is meant for you alone. If you bring along a passenger you could be refused entry.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be in a gregarious mood today, perhaps even desiring to do something unusual. If family members don't wish to tag along, don't get upset. Go it alone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Follow your instincts as to how you feel about a personal situation. Don't let intruders stick their noses into it. Keep your ideas to yourself.

Problem is motivation

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I weigh 175 pounds. I have read that you can lose inches and not lose weight. Is that true? I know exercise is good for you but I don't have much time to run. By the time I finish my work I am tired. I do lots of walking some days. I don't walk slow but fast. What do you think of walking?

DEAR READER — People usually make time to do the things they really want to do. Your problem is motivation and you are not alone.

Since your main goal seems to be to lose weight you don't need to run or jog. You can walk. To lose calories, distance is the most important factor. You don't need to walk fast and be uncomfortable either. If you walk a mile fast or slow you will use about 60 calories more than you would if you were sitting still. Since you weigh more than 150 pounds you will lose a little more. It doesn't matter much if you walk four miles an hour or only two. Use distance, not time, as your guide.

Yes, you can lose inches and not lose pounds. Why? Because pounds are pounds of everything you put on the scales, whether it is body water, fluid, fat or muscle. When a person exercises and improves the size of the muscles, the muscle weight increases. If he is using more calories than he consumes he will lose fat. As muscles increase and fat decreases the waistline may shrink as the arms or legs increase, changing a person's proportions but not the weight on the scales.

A pound of lean muscle contains only about 600 calories because it is more than 70 percent water but a pound of fat contains about 3,500 calories. So you could gain weight while losing calories simply by growing muscles while losing fat.

I think walking is wonderful and am sharing my thoughts on it and how to use it effectively with you in The Health Letter number 18-4, Walking to Health, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Almost everyone can walk. You can use your pulse as a guide to how much you are doing. Also you can break it up into short walks. I believe if everyone would walk just four miles a day we would have far fewer health problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column on alcohol you gave the wife some good advice in suggesting she seek help from Al-Anon, but you missed the boat in regards to her husband the alcoholic.

His only, and I mean only, help is with Alcoholics Anonymous. He has a three-fold illness — physical, mental and spiritual. Please tell the woman to get AA involved with him. Get him involved with a friend who is on the program or his doctor if he adopts AA or his minister if he understands the illness. He must hit his bottom, but with AA looking in on him once in a while he may get to the program. I'm a recovering alcoholic.

DEAR READER — Thank you for wanting to help. No one knows more about how AA works than a person who has been through the program. Congratulations on your effort.

Of course, I would like to see all alcoholics use programs such as AA that help them. And I am sure that Al-Anon, which is for the families and friends of alcoholics, will advise anyone who comes to them how to best get their relative or friend involved with AA. Both organizations are useful.

To Shuttle...

Agency Assesses Damage

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The space shuttle Columbia, hampered by problems and delays prior to its first successful launch in April, has had its second journey postponed for as much as a month or more following a fuel spill on the launchpad.

The delay of the scheduled Oct. 9 launch could last from a week to more than a month depending on the extent of damage to tile bonding material and whether propellant leaked into the spacecraft's maneuvering system, launch operations director George Page said.

In the predawn mishap Tuesday, several gallons of nitrogen tetroxide, an oxidizer, spilled on an area at least 18 to 20 feet long and two to six feet wide on the orbiter's nose near the cockpit. At least 67 heat-protective tiles fell off or were removed, and up to 250 may have been affected, Page said.

The silica tiles themselves did not appear to be damaged, he said, but adhesive attaching them to the space plane's aluminum skin was destroyed or rendered ineffective. Page said he hoped the tiles could be reset while the shuttle remained on Launchpad 39A.

If the spill damaged the inside of the orbiter, extensive repairs could be required. The shuttle would have to be rolled back to the Vehicle Assembly Building, taken apart and towed to its hangar, Page said.

The oxidizer was still emitting toxic fumes Tuesday night while a half-dozen workers clad in protective suits tried to find how far the spill had reached. Scaffolds were to be erected to reach some areas of the spacecraft as soon as the launch site was free of danger.

The accident occurred after the shuttle completed its last major tests successfully and it looked as though everything was on schedule for liftoff.

The five-day mission will be the first time the Columbia has carried a payload, a package of scientific instruments. A 50-foot mechanical arm will also be stowed in its cargo bay and tested in space. The shuttle is designed to be used over and over.

Lions Club Sets Seafood Sale Thursday

The Snyder Lions Club will sponsor a truckload seafood sale Thursday on the parking lot at the former location of Gibson's on College Ave. just north of 37th St.

Seafood ranging from Alaska salmon to shrimp will be on sale from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The Snyder Lions Club's proceeds from the seafood sale will go to Girlstown at Whiteface to help replace dormitories destroyed by fire.

Advance orders for seafood are being taken by Glenn Polk at 573-9322 and Mac McCown at 573-0748. Orders may be turned in by telephone and they may be picked up and paid for at the truck tomorrow.

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations merged in 1955.

New Hall Of Fame Planned In Canton, Ohio

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Cooperstown, N.Y., has the Baseball Hall of Fame. Canton, Ohio, has the pigskin counterpart. Now it's Elkhart's turn.

To honor what is billed as Indiana's fastest-growing industry, people here are promoting this town as the site of the nation's Recreational Vehicle-Mobile Home Hall of Fame.

"Indiana now is the largest producer of RVs in the nation and the third-largest producer of mobile homes after Texas and Georgia," said Bud Lachman of the Indiana Manufactured Housing Association.

Lachman said the people who manufacture, distribute and service RVs and manufactured housing in Indiana add up to almost 40,000, the state's second-largest workforce after the steel industry. Elkhart is the main manufacturing center.

Police Probe Accidents

Five traffic mishaps, one resulting in injuries to three persons and two involving hit and run incidents were investigated Tuesday by the Snyder Police Dept.

Two trucks were damaged in a collision reported at 5:21 p. m. in the 700 block of the Old Lubbock Highway. Jose Ysidro Lara was listed as driver of a 1979 Mack truck and James Earl Edwards was listed as driver of a 1975 Kwnworth truck. Both drivers and Abel Gonzales, a passenger, were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Scurry County EMS. Edwards was treated and released, while Lara and Gonzales were admitted to the hospital for treatment of injuries.

At 12 noon Tuesday, a minor mishap was reported at 27th St. and College Ave. Involved were a 1975 Oldsmobile driven by James Ray Palmer and a 1979 Toyota driven by Reba Graham Davis.

Anderson Davis Jr. reported at 12:30 p. m. that his 1981 Cadillac had been hit by a vehicle that left the scene at 1106 30th St.

At 1:47 p. m., another minor mishap was reported at 2806 Ave. Q. Involved were a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Earl George Browning and a 1974 Oldsmobile driven by Clyde O. Reynolds.

Robert Braziel reported to police that his 1969 GMC pickup truck had been hit by a vehicle which left the scene at 3400 Ave. M.

Police arrested a man suspected of driving while intoxicated at 1:47 a. m. today in the 100 block of the East Highway.

Former Bowie Commissioner Denies Accepting Kickbacks

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Former Bowie County Commissioner Bernard Brown denies accepting $14,000 in kickbacks and bribes from 1977 to 1980 and says the county received all the road equipment it paid for during his three years in office.

Brown, 63, testified in federal court Tuesday that four former road equipment salesmen leveled the allegations against him after they became caught up in a continuing federal investigation into corruption among county officials in Oklahoma and East Texas.

"They all have one thing in common," Brown said under cross-examination by special prosecutor John Hannah Jr. "They're caught up by you (Hannah), and the FBI ... they're fighting for their lives ... and they'll say anything," Brown said.

Brown is the first of several East Texas county officials to face trial in the continuing federal investigation into allegations of misconduct.

He faces four counts of extortion, two counts of conspiracy and 32 counts of mail fraud. Four other county officials are awaiting trial on similar charges.

If convicted, Brown could face maximum penalties of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each extortion charge, five years in prison and a $10,000 fined for each conspiracy accusation and five years in prison and a $5,000 fine for each mail fraud charge.

The key prosecution witnesses, Dallas Thompson, 78, of Arlington; Sharron Griffin, 32, of Farris, Okla.; Ms. Griffin's mother-in-law, Dorothy Griffin, also of Farris; and J.F. (Jake) Lands, 66, of Atlanta, Texas, testified they handed Brown bribes and wrote bogus invoices that included charges for equipment that was never delivered. They split the excess payments with Brown, they said.

Solar Energy Research Chief Likes Low Profile

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — With its budget slashed by more than half, its staff cut almost a third and its activist director dismissed, the Solar Energy Research Institute would seem to be just a shadow of its former self.

That's just the way Dr. Harold Hubbard, the acting director, wants it.

The new emphasis for the federally funded SERI is on lab work, not public advocacy of solar energy.

"We're going to produce a yeasty research and development environment here — one that won't be confused with an advocacy group or a special interest group," Hubbard said.

"We believe national energy policies should be set — we just don't think that a laboratory is the place for that kind of work."

Under Hubbard's direction, SERI better reflects the policies of the Reagan administration, which wants to end direct federal subsidies for the solar energy industry.

Congress founded the institute in 1974 in an effort to spur solar energy research. But it was not until 1977 that the Kansas City-based Midwest Research Institute formed SERI and actually began work here, under contract to the Department of Energy.

A good way to illustrate the differences between the "old" SERI and the new is to look at the difference in philosophy between Hubbard, the scientist, and ex-director Denis Hayes, the lobbyist.

Hubbard, in a recent interview in his office overlooking the Rocky Mountain foothills, declined to comment on the Reagan administration's emphasis on nuclear energy and its cutbacks in spending for solar power.

"That's all politics, and I don't feel qualified to weigh the relative merits of one philosophy over another," said Hubbard, who has a doctorate in analytical chemistry from the University of Kansas.

"There are many ways to encourage the development of solar energy without direct subsidies. We will do the best here with what we have. My job is to make effective use of our resources and do useful things. I think SERI should cease to be a political animal."

Hayes, on the other hand, has made a career of being a political animal. A history graduate of Stanford University, he helped organize Earth Day in 1970, headed the Solar Lobby and the Center for Renewable Resources and worked as a senior researcher with the Worldwatch Institute in Washington, D.C.

In 1978, he planned Sun Day to increase the nation's awareness of solar energy. The following year brought him to the $60,000-a-year post at SERI.

Wearing blue jeans and cowboy boots, Hayes sat crosslegged on the floor of his unfurnished office not far from SERI and described himself to a reporter as "a Ralph Nader-type of guy."

Under Hayes, who was asked to resign from SERI in June, and his predecessor, Paul Rappaport, SERI did solar research but also spent much time and money producing demonstration projects and voluminous studies of the social and economic impacts of solar energy.

"We thought it was in the national interest to push the country into solar energy at a faster rate, and that's what we tried to do," Hayes said. "Our goal was to get someone on the producer side to make solar technology, and then get someone on the consumption side to use it."

For instance, Hayes said, the institute paid a glass company to make a sort of heat-resistant glass for contractors and greenhouse operators, who in turn had tested it and reported the results to SERI, said Hayes.

SERI also spent $100,000 to build 12 solar homes in the Denver area that 100,000 people visited in a single open-house weekend. The houses were sold and SERI now monitors their dual solar and [illegible] power systems.

But all that was before the election of November 1980.

Secretary of Energy James Edwards has made it plain he has no use for SERI's demonstration projects, objecting to the "pressure" put on contractors to build solar homes. "This administration is not going to distort the marketplace with demonstration projects," he told Hayes this spring.

Hayes began running into trouble with the Reagan administration early on. One major source of friction was a SERI study he commissioned on future federal energy policies. Its conclusions were vastly different than those of the administration, and the Department of Energy criticized its methodology.

"After that I said in a speech that having the DOE criticize our methodology was like being called ugly by a frog," he said. "In retrospect, I realize that might not have been a wise thing to say."

Hayes was forced out soon after the speech. Since then the budget has been cut from $120 million to $50 million and staff reduced from 950 to 650, eliminating a department that was studying alternatives to fossil fuel.

Hubbard said SERI will concentrate on the development of photovoltaics, banks of silicon cells that convert radiation in the sun's rays to electricity. The institute will also work with windpower and to develop wood and liquid fuels.

Schooling Provided For Fishermen's Children

By CAROL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP) — While snapping hooks and cleaning fish for a living, Travis Goodrich teaches himself math, science and English. Not bad for an 11-year-old.

The Port Townsend youth is among 60 students in a migrant education program for fishing families. The students now take their studies to sea, instead of dropping out of school for weeks or months at a time.

The migrant correspondence school program offers relief to families who follow the West Coast fisheries for a living.

"In the past, a lot of families weren't able to take the kids, so it was a mad scramble to find places to put kids and dogs and cats and plants while Mama and Papa went out fishing," said Anita Fraser, whose 7-year-old son accompanies his father on occasional trips.

Mrs. Fraser says she could keep her son home all the time, but she likes to get him involved in the family business.

"I feel good about the fact that my child knows what Papa's doing when he's gone," she said.

Travis and his parents go to Alaska during the summer for the halibut and salmon seasons. The sixth-grader hopes to get much of his year-end studying out of the way during the trip from Washington's Olympic Peninsula to Alaska's Bristol Bay.

Travis said he was saving some of his fishing income so he could go to college and become a naval architect.

Some of the students in the federally funded program live on boats year-round, stopping in port only to make repairs and replenish supplies. For those students, migrant education teacher Penny Kelley devises an individual program that can be self-taught with help from parents.

Other families live in port most of the year, but have to take their children with them for the spring and summer fishing seasons.

For those students, Ms. Kelley works with the regular classroom teacher to find out what the student will miss during the season. She packages lessons designed to help the student keep up with the rest of the class.

Education was hit-or-miss for some fishing families before the Title I Migrant program was introduced to the peninsula.

Don Rasmussen, a 15-year-old Chimacum sophomore, used to miss the last week of school every year to accompany his father to Alaska. Last spring he tried enrolling in an Alaska correspondence program. He didn't get his study materials for three months, and when they arrived, they were for the wrong grade level.

This season, he is in the Port Townsend program, which is open to anyone in the United States whose family fishing business interferes with normal school enrollment.

"I don't really like doing it myself," Don said of the at-sea study, adding he sometimes has trouble motivating himself to study when there is fishing to do. But he wants to finish high school and take a trade-school course in brick masonry so, like his father, he will have another skill to fall back on.

"On some boats, the kids are actually a working part of the crew," said Ms. Kelley. "It would be a hardship if they couldn't go."

Port Townsend schools started the migrant program after a fisherman in the area was threatened with jail because he took his children from school each spring, said Janet Fudala, director of special education for the district.

Ms. Kelley sends packaged lessons with the students when they cast off, and as the students complete the work, they mail back their papers for grading.

The student returns to the regular classroom when the fishing season is over, theoretically having kept up with the rest of the class, Ms. Kelley said.

If students are behind in certain subjects, she tutors them until they catch up.

Divers Spot China Cases

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two former Navy divers battling shifting sands to get at the 80-year-old wreck of the four-masted bark Sindia believe they spotted cases of china, but were unable to salvage them because sand filled holes made by pumping equipment.

Michaud and Michael Kenney, both 27, of Columbia, Md., were working during the weekend off Ocean City's 17th Street beach where the 329-foot ship ran aground during a storm Dec. 15, 1901. Estimates of the value of cargo on board range between $200,000 and $2 million. Michaud is particularly interested in two large bronze scultpures believed aboard and estimated to weigh between 7 and 12 tons.

Yields Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities are at their lowest level in two months, after declining for the second straight week in Monday's auctions.

About $4.5 billion in six-month bills were sold at an average discount rate of 14.129 percent, down more than a half point from the 14.657 percent of Sept. 14.

Expanded Knowledge Merely Clouds Issue Of Life-Death

NEW YORK (AP) — A team of doctors in Rhode Island struggles to save the unborn child of a woman hurt in an auto accident, but fails.

A court considers whether the driver of the other car can be charged. Was the fetus a person? The court says yes.

At the same time, a 23-yearold woman lies quietly in a Connecticut hospital bed. Her skin is warm, her heart is beating and she is breathing, but a court says she is legally dead.

Life support systems are disconnected, and her breathing stops.

With science steadily expanding its probes into the biological process, we know more about birth and death than ever before. But the more we know, the harder society finds it to draw the fine line between who's alive and who isn't.

Doctors are treating diseased fetuses inside the womb, and they are able to keep patients alive for years after the patients' brains have died.

The legal status of abortion is clouded. If a fetus is a person at any stage of development, it would come under the protection of the law and the Constitution.

The Supreme Court, in its 1973 ruling, said that the states could prohibit abortions only after the fetus was "viable" — able to survive outside the womb.

The fetus is usually thought to be viable at about six months, but advances in the care of premature infants are pushing that point back.

That decision didn't come close to ending the debate, however, and the birth of a number of "test tube" babies has further complicated things.

Test tube babies are the product of a human egg fertilized in the laboratory and then implanted in a woman's uterus to develop normally.

For now, re-implantation is essential to develop the fetus, but eventually scientists may be able to incubate the egg in the laboratory until the fetus matures and is ready to be born.

Does that mean that the fetus is or will be "viable" from the moment of conception?

Earlier this year, a congressional subcommittee headed by Sen. John P. East of North Carolina thought it would try to answer that question.

East held hearings on a bill that would establish that "present-day scientific evidence indicates a significant likelihood that actual human life exists from conception."

A number of scientific and medical organizations quickly lined up in opposition.

But Dr. Bernard Nathanson, an obstetrician who had campaigned actively for women's right to abortions, told the committee he had changed his mind.

The reason, he says, is that medical knowledge has shown in recent years that a fetus has many of the attributes of a human being, even when the fetus is merely a small cluster of cells.

"Even that small number of cells is capable of responding to changes in its environment, and capable of reproduction at a very early stage," he says.

"At two or three months it's sticking its thumb in its mouth. It's absolutely mind-boggling."

Dr. George Ryan, president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, argues, however, that giving the fetus the legal rights of a person would create insurmountable difficulties for doctors.

"This bill would create two persons in one body, and their interests are not always the same," he says. "When their interests diverge, what do you do?

"We might debate whether abortion should be legal or not," he says, "but this bill should be opposed by everyone, regardless of their feelings about abortion."

Nathanson, despite his opposition to abortion, says he would perform an abortion to save a mother's life. "I do not adhere to the line that there are no exceptions," he says.

The human life bill was approved by East's subcommittee and sent to the full Judiciary Committee, where it will remain until after consideration of a proposed constitutional amendment banning abortion.

In the meantime, scientists have not stopped working. Recently, doctors operated successfully on a fetus inside the womb, and they have also successfully treated a fetus by giving drugs to its mother.

Such developments are making it harder than ever to decide when the fetus has its own independent right to life, the Journal of the American Medical Association noted in a recent editorial, adding that "improvements in fetal therapy will establish a stronger ground" to protect it.

In July, the President's Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical and Behavioral Research recommended that laws be changed to allow death to be declared when the entire brain has stopped working.

The commission looked at the records of seven hospitals and found that 17 percent of the patients being sustained on respirators had lost all brain activity.

It proposed a Uniform Determination of Death Act, which read that "an individual who has sustained either (1) irreversible cessation of circulatory and respiratory functions or (2) irreversible cessation of all functions of the entire brain, including the brain stem, is dead." The American Medical Association and the American Bar Association quickly endorsed the proposal. Twentyseven states have already passed laws incorporating some version of the criteria.

One of the few to raise a dissenting voice was Rev. Edward Bryce, head of the U.S. Roman Catholic Bishops' Committee on Pro-Life Activities. He says that the proposed definition of death could leave the door open for euthanasia — mercy killing.

Bryce says he is afraid that these efforts to define death would be confused with the push for "death with dignity," and that's where the danger of legalized mercy killing would arise.

The Catholic church, he says, does not require doctors to use extraordinary means of preserving life when there is no hope of recovery, but it does forbid mercy killing — deliberately taking the life of a patient with a painful or incurable disease.

The question of a patient's right to die with dignity is not directly related to the definition of death.
