Bertha moves in on Carolinas

250,000 flee hurricane's path

SUNSET BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Heavy rain and high surf lashed the Carolina coasts today as a revived Hurricane Bertha spun closer to land, with top winds increasing to 105 mph after passing over the Gulf Stream.

Hurricane-force gusts of 98 mph were recorded at an automated offshore weather station about 20 miles south of Cape Fear. On land, gusts as high as 64 mph hit near Wilmington, N.C., and 58 mph in Myrtle Beach, S.C., where waves pushed up the steps of the boardwalk at high tide this morning, and whitecaps stretched to the horizon.

The warm Gulf Stream waters energized Bertha and pushed the center of the storm on a more northward path, making it more likely that the storm's eye would cross east of the North Carolina line this evening.

"It's had a chance to rewire itself just before landfall," said Steve Lyons, a meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Earlier, landfall had been predicted farther southeast in South Carolina, between Charleston and Myrtle Beach, near where Hurricane Hugo came ashore in 1989 with winds of more than 130 mph.

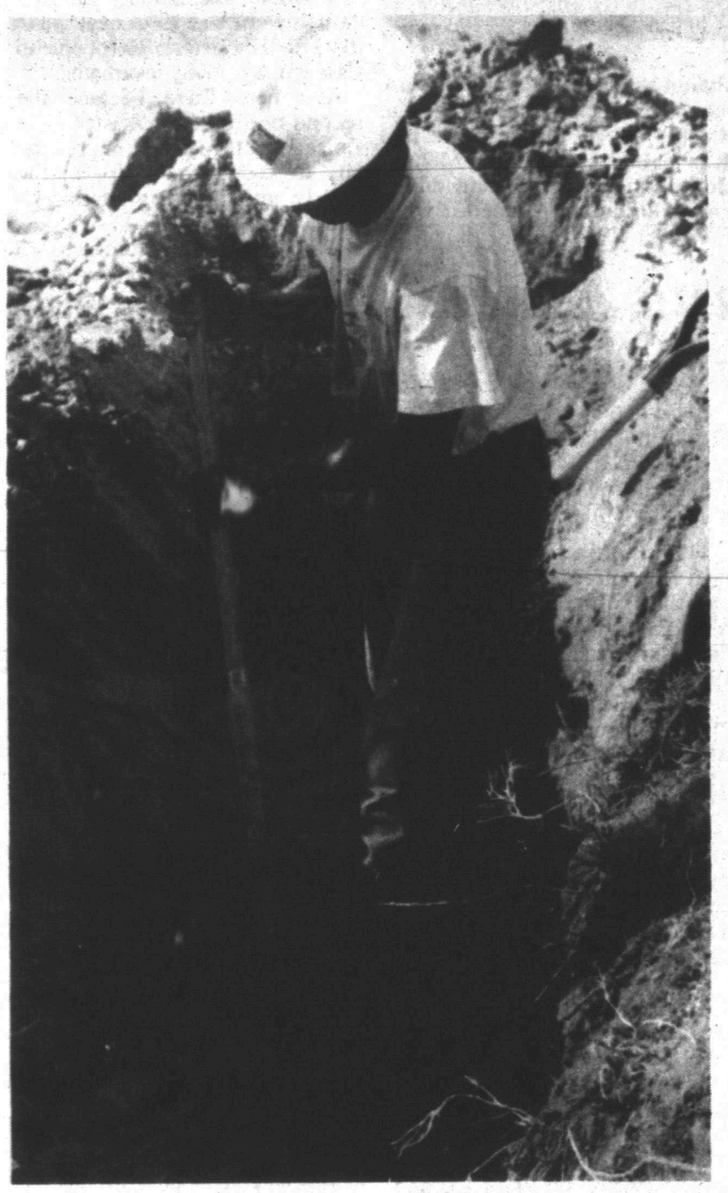

"Wherever the eye crosses is not really relevant," stressed hurricane center meteorologist Fiona Horsfall. "The worst part of the storm is to the east of that." The stronger eastern section of the storm could make North Carolina's fragile barrier islands more vulnerable, forecasters said.

The storm sent more than 250,000 residents and vacationers fleeing inland on clogged highways. Almost 14,500 people stayed in Red Cross shelters overnight.

Tom and Martha Curry of Wilmington tried to avoid the storm's fury at Trask Middle School, glad to be out of their trailer.

"We've experienced hurricanes in Florida and New Orleans, and they weren't any fun, so when I hear one's coming, I start looking for a safer place," Mrs. Curry said.

About 7,000 people remained in 50 shelters in North Carolina and South Carolina today, as hurricane warnings remained in force from Savannah, Ga., to the Virginia line.

WORK CONTINUES — 30th Street is a busy place these days as Sammy Garcia and others are completing infrastructure work on the widening project before the Texas Department of Tranportation lets the contract for paving early next month. Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Pondering ways to keep budgets down is not limited only to public entities in Scurry County.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram reports that the city council there is looking at the costs of providing school crossing guards in some 37 locations.

One option being reviewed is the use of non-paid, "volunteer" crossing guards.

The Hereford Brand reports that leaders in Deaf Smith County are trying to get more citizens involved in attracting new jobs.

The Hereford Economic Development Corporation has introduced The Ambassadors Program to broaden business recruiting efforts. The program is designed to encourage local citizens who travel to assist in bringing new payrolls to the area.

The economic development corporation has announced that it will pay up to $15,000 for help in recruiting a new business.

The Lamesa Press-Reporter indicates that voters in Dawson County have approved a bond issue to build a new lockup.

The old county jail failed to pass state standards, and the county is having to pay neighboring counties to house their inmates.

Still to be decided is a location, but county officials are hoping to work out an agreement with property owners on the east side of the square.

The San Angelo Standard-Times reports on a new element in the juvenile curfew law there.

Young people who violate the curfew law will find themselves in an eight-hour life-skills class. The class will address values, attitudes, behavior and work ethics as well as employment and living skills.

Also, the class will cost offenders an additional $50 to take. The San Angelo law, which requires juveniles to be off the streets by 11 weeknights and by midnight on weekends, carries a $100 fine for the first offense. Repeat offenders are fined $500.

Lamm claims...

Reform party needs new face

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Ross Perot may have the big name and the big money, but it's a new face the Reform Party needs in the fall presidential race, former Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm says.

"I think that America needs somebody that doesn't lust for the office," Lamm said Thursday during a one-day presidential campaign tour in Minnesota.

Four years ago, Perot spent $60 million of his own money and took 19 percent of the vote. Lamm has modest personal resources and just $6,000 in his campaign coffers. Perot has said he would run again for president if nominated by the Reform Party at its convention next month.

"I don't think it's best for the party that he runs, but listen, he built this party. Who am I to say?" Lamm said.

Lamm provided no specific strategy on how he would defeat the Texas billionaire, saying only that he would do it the "old-fashioned way."

Lamm was back home in Denver today, where he pressed the need for changes in health policy at a conference on managed health care. "We've got a problem and some dramatic change has to take place," said Lamm, who has been critical of rising government costs for Medicare and other entitlement programs. "The role of health care is not to produce the best medicine but the best health."

Perot has said he is best qualified to be the Reform Party's presidential nominee.

"There's a lot of people in the Reform Party that honor him ... but don't think he's the best person to take it to the next stage," Lamm said of his opponent.

Lamm said he has the support of five of six party leaders in California and was courting Minnesota's leaders. He already has the strong support of Dean Barkley, Minnesota's Reform Party chairman and a candidate for U.S. Senate.

"I think Minnesota and California are the two places that are the harbinger of the new political movement," Lamm said.

Lamm received lukewarm support at a rally at a suburban hotel. The party leadership carried Lamm signs, but many of the rank-and-file members said they turned out to gather information rather than support him.

ISD board gets look at budget, approves resignations, hirings

Snyder ISD trustees were presented with a balanced budget for 1996-97 during a combined workshop and monthly board meeting Thursday.

Final approval of the budget is not expected until the board meets in August.

Business manager Lee McNair presented the $16,850,000 budget, which drew only a few comments from board members. Trustees had their first look at the proposed budget during a June workshop. At that time, expenditures exceeded revenues by $35,000.

McNair made note of some major increases in the coming year's budget, including some $400,000 in state-mandated salary increases for teachers and another $120,000 in salary increases for other employees within the school system.

Depending on where a teacher is on the district's salary schedule, raises will range from zero to $3,450. Twenty-eight teachers will receive the maximum raise while five teachers are not listed to receive a raise. These teachers will make $32,980 next year. Of those receiving the maximum increase, one teacher will make $36,000 per year while all the others will make $36,510. Other raises range from $350 to $3,430.

Base teacher salaries in the district range from $21,490 for a beginning teacher to a maximum of $36,510.

An additional $75,000 was budgeted for substitute teachers. The district also plans to purchase two buses and a Suburban at a cost of $100,000.

The district has cut more than $300,000 in personnel salaries through attrition and combining some teacher posts. Some $275,000 in salaries will be saved as they will now be paid with federal funds.

The proposed budget is based on $1.50 per $100 valuation — up from the present $1.47. The tax rate is also expected to be set when trustees meet next month.

During the regular meeting which followed the budget workshop, trustees approved five resignations, including those submitted by high school instructors Walter Wright, industrial technology, and Sandra Wright, librarian. Others were submitted by Marla Rigsby, computer science teacher at Snyder Junior High; Louise Taylor,

HMOs see profit squeeze

NEW YORK (AP) — Unexpectedly high medical costs are slashing the once-vaunted profits of health maintenance organizations, prompting analysts to predict price increases and new restrictions on treatments and drugs.

United HealthCare Corp., an industry leader, on Thursday became the fourth HMO in a month to predict disappointing second-quarter earnings, accelerating a deep plunge in HMO stocks to levels not seen in almost a year.

"Unless we can get the industry as a whole to adopt some fairly demanding quality measurement systems, we're all in peril," said David Lansky, president of the Foundation for Accountability, an HMO watchdog group that is developing such systems. "The health care organizations don't want to introduce changes that harm people, but they will have no way of knowing."

Many HMOs have kept their rates unchanged this year, anticipating stable costs and facing drastically increased competition in the fast-growing industry.

Minneapolis-based United said its costs have risen 3 percent to 4 percent so far this year because doctors are spending more money treating patients and prescribing drugs.

As a result, United said its second quarter earnings will fall to about 40 cents to 45 cents per share, down from 51 cents in the same quarter last year. Wall Street analysts had expected profits to rise to 65 cents.

United joins three other HMOs that have reported a similar financial squeeze — Louisville, Ky.-based Humana Inc., which serves the South and Midwest, Mid Atlantic Medical Services in Rockville, Md., and RightChoice Managed Care Inc., serving St. Louis.

Analysts predicted HMOs would redouble efforts to weed out doctors whose care is too expensive, cut doctor pay and further limit patient choices of drugs. They say this can be done without harming care, but others aren't so sure.

Dr. Robert Graham, executive vice president of the American Academy of Family Physicians, said recent studies have shown that limiting some drugs makes people sicker in the long run.

And Dr. Mack Lipkin, associate professor of medicine at New York University medical school, is concerned that HMOs will stop reminding patients to seek preventative care such as mammograms.

1995 heat crisis still haunts Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Mary Ann Koranek was too small and her cousin, Joseph O'Brien, too weak with arthritis to haul their air conditioner upstairs from the basement on a sweltering July day.

When Koranek returned home from an errand, 58-year-old O'Brien was dead. "It happened so fast," Koranek said.

O'Brien was among the first casualties of the 1995 heat wave that killed more than 700 people in Chicago by many estimates.

The heat wave became the second-deadliest disaster in Chicago history and prompted the city to keep better tabs on the elderly and other isolated residents who succumbed.

The heat wave taught the city an important lesson — "that creating a sense of a community isn't just a nice thing, it's a critical thing. People have to depend on each other," said Lisa Boulden, a spokeswoman for Mayor Richard Daley.

On July 13, 1995, temperatures soared to 106 in Chicago and the humidity made it feel more like 125. The stifling heat lasted nearly a week, and was blamed for more than 1,000 deaths across the East and Midwest.

But no city suffered like Chicago, where bodies overflowed from morgues into refrigerated trucks and residents more suited to wind and sub-zero cold fended without fans or air conditioners.

Like O'Brien, many of those who died were frail, frightened or alone. Some died behind boarded windows, their fear of intruders contributing to their demise. Others succumbed when no one came to check on them.

After hundreds had died, Chicago officials instituted a heat emergency plan. When the heat index reaches 90 for three days, phone banks go to work, calling residents at risk and taking them, if necessary, to air-conditioned relief centers.

The city also recruited volunteers to keep in contact with frail people who live alone and are suspicious of strangers.

Daley's office was criticized for being slow to react. In turn, his administration cast doubt on the body counts provided by Cook County Medical Examiner Edmund Donoghue, who included deaths in which heat was a factor, not the sole cause.

Donoghue was prepared to defend his figures after watching the controversy that erupted over heat-death calculations in Philadelphia, which reported 118 heat-related deaths in 1993.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention upheld Philadelphia's count and later upheld Donoghue's.

Steven Whitman, the Chicago Department of Health's director of epidemiology, tallied deaths two ways: those certified by Donoghue's office as heat-related and those in excess of the number of expected deaths. He counted 726 deaths, about 200 more than were officially certified as heat-related.

Whitman's review of decades-old death statistics uncovered a surprising fact: Four decades earlier, a Chicago heat wave in July and August killed 885 people.

A check of newspaper archives found no evidence that residents realized such a tragedy was taking place. "It must have happened very gradually and people must not have noticed," Whitman said.

The pain remains very real for Koranek, who keeps O'Brien's driver's license picture propped on his old dresser. "I blame myself" for leaving the house that day, she said, eyes brimming.

The pair would regularly drive to the cemetery on Sundays to visit family graves. Koranek will visit the cemetery alone on Sunday — the one-year anniversary of O'Brien's death.

"I miss him horribly," she said.

Charles, Diana Agree to divorce by Aug. 28

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles and Princess Diana announced today that they have agreed on a swift divorce, after 3½ years of separation and public sniping and a decade or more of misery.

The split, which their lawyers said would be final Aug. 28, brings an end to a soap opera of tears, betrayal, bulimia and the odd suicide attempt.

Diana, 35, relinquishes any claim to one day being queen of England. But she will still be a wealthy princess living in a palace, free to pursue her dream of being "a queen in people's hearts."

Charles, 47, the heir to Queen Elizabeth II, could become the first divorced English king since George I, who reigned from 1714 to 1727.

He's also free, if he wishes, to marry Camilla Parker Bowles, the old flame that Diana despised. Mrs. Parker Bowles returned to the marriage market in March 1995 when she and her husband divorced.

The announcement came just ahead of Charles's and Diana's 15th wedding anniversary on July 29.

Their financial agreement was not announced, but published reports recently had suggested that Charles had offered a lump sum of at least $15 million plus a generous annual allowance.

Diana will retain her apartments at Kensington Palace, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

She agreed to relinquish the title of "Her Royal Highness," to be known in future as Diana, Princess of Wales. Theoretically, she would be obliged to curtsy to her sons — Prince William, 13, and Prince Harry, 11 — who both carry the HRH title.

That issue apparently was a difficult one for a court whose mentality, in significant ways, remains locked in a time of powdered wigs, hoop skirts and strict deference to rank.

After a glittering wedding at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29, 1991, the marriage quickly soured. Charles reportedly found Diana temperamental and manipulative, and resented her great popularity. She regarded Charles and his family as cold and uncaring.

Husband's behavior is pushing the limit

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband of over 20 years suddenly told me he can't live with me any more. Six months ago he moved out, he's changed his way of dressing and his hair style. He swears that he doesn't feel he's getting old and he blames me because I'm trying to make him old. He appears confused, depressed, nervous, tired and moody. He seems to have lost all of his stability. Financial support has been there, but normal everyday problems are being left up to me with our five teen-agers at our home. Could he be going through a mid-life crisis or could he have a hormonal imbalance? I feel as if I'm going out of my mind and I need help.

DEAR READER: Your husband is not experiencing the usual type of mid-life crisis or hormonal imbalance. I'm concerned that he may be suffering from a serious emotional disorder, such as depression — or he may be cleverly manipulating you so that you'll want to end the marriage. More about that later.

Many men in their 40s suddenly realize that they're getting older. They don't like this, so they try to compensate by changing hair and dressing styles, picking a younger "new cookie," buying a sports car, and generally behaving as though they were in their teens and 20s. They incorrectly believe that they can halt the aging process (and gain longed-for youth) by attempting to turn back the clock.

However, confusion, nervousness, instability and moodiness are usually not factors that are associated with the syndrome. Similarly, so-called "hormonal imbalances" (meaning diminished sexual ability) may cause panic and behavioral changes — but not the emotional changes you describe.

Thus, there may be something else going on here. For example, your husband may be inappropriately trying to deal with depression, or he may be suffering from early dementia that can cause inappropriate behavior. He should see a doctor for a complete examination and testing, such as blood analyses and a CT scan of his head, to rule out a treatable disorder.

On the other hand, he may be giving you a message that the marriage is over, for whatever reason. He could be consciously adopting a lifestyle and attitude that he knows full well will antagonize you and force you into divorcing him. He may already have a new, younger "friend."

No matter what the cause is for his obvious changes, professional help is mandatory. As I mentioned, medical evaluation is in order — or you might consider marriage counseling, if he will agree to it. Regardless of his mental state, you and the children have to tend to your own needs.

Get a good lawyer to protect your interests. Try to persuade your husband to seek professional attention. Get your own house in order so that if the situation completely deteriorates, you'll be protected.

To maintain your own balance, you should see a psychologist or psychiatrist. In this way, you'll be able to cope with the difficult situation and maintain your perspective. In short, get help — even if he won't. You owe it to yourself and your children.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Mexican media said Seanez died after suffering a brain embolism. She had been hospitalized in this northern city since Monday.

Modern Parable Teaches Lesson About Gratitude

DEAR READERS: To my delight, I learned that world-famous evangelist Billy Graham quoted from my column in Minneapolis recently. I have run the letter several times, but here it is again:

DEAR ABBY: A young man from a wealthy family was about to graduate from high school. It was the custom in that affluent neighborhood for the parents to give the graduate an automobile. "Bill" and his father had spent months looking at cars, and the week before graduation, they found the perfect car.

On the eve of his graduation, his father handed him a gift-wrapped Bible. Bill was so angry that he threw the Bible down and stormed out of the house. He and his father never saw each other again. It was the news of his father's death that brought Bill home again.

As he sat one night going through his father's possessions that he was to inherit, he came across the Bible his father had given him. He brushed away the dust and opened it to find a cashier's check, dated the day of his graduation — in the exact amount of the car they had chosen together.

BECKAH FINK, TEXAS

DEAR BECKAH: I hope Bill read the Bible cover to cover, for it contained much that he needed to learn: "A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her who bore him." (Proverbs 17:25)

DEAR ABBY: I have to get something off my chest. If I don't, I'll continue having migraines from pent-up anger. My husband and I have an exceptional relationship — or we did have until he took a business trip with his associates.

The first day he was gone was filled with tours, audits, business meetings, etc. In the evening, he called me since I was home with the flu. While I appreciated his thoughtfulness, when he explained the plans for the evening, I became upset. I wasn't happy about his going to a strip show, but I couldn't talk him out of it. (He said he had to go along with the boss's plans so he wouldn't be branded a henpecked husband.)

About 1:30 in the morning, he called from the club and tried to convince me that the "good ole boys" conduct their business this way, and if he wanted to advance with the company, he had to follow suit. He was not exactly sober when he called.

I trust my husband, and I know that strippers don't date their customers (besides, I'm pretty good-looking myself), but I think it's disgraceful that wives have to put up with this kind of trash in the name of doing business. My husband argues that I don't understand the corporate world, and don't have a clue about what it takes to succeed.

Abby, am I out of touch, or is my husband trying to sell me a bill of goods?

TIRED OF OUT-OF-TOWN MONKEY BUSINESS

DEAR TIRED: You are not out of touch, and your husband is trying to sell you a bill of goods. Tell him you're not buying.

Perot wants wide open nomination race

DALLAS (AP) — Regardless of whether Ross Perot says he wants the race for top billing in the Reform Party to be open, his name alone will appear on more than half of the state ballots.

Perot, who made it clear he will run for president on the Reform Party ticket if he is tapped by party members, said Thursday on ABC's "Good Morning America," that he wanted the Reform Party's nomination race "wide open ... and I don't want to do anything that will tilt this thing in my favor."

So far, he has been joined by former Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm, who announced Tuesday that he was seeking the nomination.

No matter who is selected as the candidate at the party's Aug. 18 convention in Valley Forge, Pa., Perot's name will automatically appear as an independent candidate on more than half of the state ballots.

That's because party supporters have gathered petitions across the country in different ways: to get the party recognized in the state or to get Perot declared an independent candidate. As of Thursday, the petitions had been certified in 23 states.

The Reform Party has repeatedly said Perot's name on the ballot does not mean he will be the candidate, but that he is merely acting as a stand-in until the nominee is selected.

In some states like Florida and Texas, officials say it'll be Perot or no one from the Reform Party.

"The only way for him to get off our ballot is to withdraw," said Becky Pestana, a spokeswoman for Texas' Secretary of State. There is no method for another name to be substituted, she said.

"There is no such thing really as a stand-in candidacy," Ms. Pestano said.

Florida State Secretary Sandra B. Mortham also has said no substitutions. The Reform Party has filed a federal lawsuit challenging Florida's rules.

"We believe we should be able to substitute," said Russell Verney, Reform Party national coordinator. "There are many states where they will accept substitutions. Most state laws are silent."

Verney said if substitutions are a problem, "We'll leave Mr. Perot's name on the ballot and Ross will release all electorates."

When Perot ran for president in 1992 he garnered 19 percent of the popular vote, but did not receive any electoral votes.

A second difficulty for a candidate other than Perot, is money. The Federal Election Commission said Perot would be entitled to $32 million in federal funds based on his 1992 showing, but commissioners have indicated it is unlikely another nominee would qualify. No final decision has been made.

Lamm spokesman Eric Anderson said Thursday he wasn't able to comment on whether the money and ballot issues created hurdles for Lamm.

But some political insiders say they're more likely to create road blocks.

While Reform Party leaders in several states have encouraged Lamm and said it would be best to nominate someone other than the controversial Perot, the Reform Party hierarchy is dominated by Perot loyalists and he pays its employees.

"That has all the trappings of a fixed pro-wrestling match. I think we know who is going to win and who is going to get pinned to the mat," said Earl Black, a political scientist at Rice University.

"Maybe Mr. Perot is just looking for some way to create drama," he said. "You wonder if Governor Lamm thinks it is likely he's going to beat Perot in Perot's own party."

Don't fear the worst

By Phillip Alder

When you play in a team tournament, you and your partner sit, say, North-South at one table, while your teammates are East-West at the other table. It is the purest form of bridge, with the luck element as low as possible.

In today's deal, South, despite having only two losers, decided to open with one club. He wasn't too pleased when it was passed out! He was even less happy when he found that six clubs was laydown. Plus 170 looked like either six international match-points (IMPs) away if the opponents stopped in five clubs, or 13 IMPs out if they reached six clubs. No profit was possible.

At the other table, South did the normal thing, opening two clubs, strong, artificial and forcing. A moment later, he was in six clubs.

West led the heart nine. After winning with the ace, South drew trumps in two rounds. Now, though, instead of continuing with three rounds of spades, South led his club four to dummy's eight. Then he ran the spade jack. Happily, West won with the queen and cashed the diamond ace: one down. So, instead of losing IMPs, our "heroes" won six!

South misplayed six clubs. His line gains only when West has specifically nine-doubleton of spades. Ruffing works whenever spades are 3-3 (or East has the doubleton nine-seven and South somehow guesses it). This is five-and-a-half times more likely.

The natural reaction after a bad result is to try to get the points back on the next deal. This usually results in more IMPs being lost. Fear the best, not the worst.

Jury convicts Rodney King

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — Rodney King was convicted of running over his estranged wife but acquitted of abuse, reckless driving and assault with a deadly weapon — the car.

King, 31, whose 1991 beating by Los Angeles police led to trials of four officers and rioting after their acquittals in state court, was ordered Thursday to return to court Aug. 6 for sentencing.

King faces up to a year in jail and a fine up to $10,000 for the misdemeanor hit-and-run conviction. Defense lawyer Edi M.O. Faal said he doesn't expect King to get jail time.

Prosecutors argued that King's wife, Crystal, was injured after King tried to force her out of his car during a fight in July 1995. She testified she suffered arm and head injuries when King drove off as she reached back into the car to get her purse.

Faal argued that Mrs. King filed the charges in a bid to get money from King, who received a $3.8 million settlement from Los Angeles to settle his beating case. Mrs. King denied the claim.

"I feel good and I'm going to Disneyland," a smiling King said outside the courtroom.

Reducing smoking goal by year 2000

ATLANTA (AP) — Blaming cheap cigarettes and nicotine's powerful hold, the government acknowledged it won't be able to meet its goal of reducing smoking to 15 percent of adults by the year 2000.

A national survey by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found that smoking among American adults rose to 25.5 percent in 1994, up from 25 percent the previous year, officials said Thursday. The percentage has held steady at around 25 percent during the 1990s after dropping from 42.4 percent from 1965 to 1990.

I GOT IT — Issac Ramon (33) makes the catch for an out Thursday in the 10-year-old District 5 Little League tournament in Abilene. Play tonight at 7...

Juniors defeated by Abilene North

ABILENE — A grand slam in the top of the first and a two-run homer in the second by the Abilene North Junior all-stars seemed to haye stunned Snyder here Thursday as North took a 15-6 victory.

The loss moves Snyder into the loser's bracket for a 7 o'clock game tonight against Abilene Southwest. The Snyder-Southwest winner will face North in the finals at 7 p.m. Saturday while the loser will be eliminated from the District 5 Junior Little League tournament.

Despite the early deficit, Snyder fought back to score six-runs over the last three innings. Matthew Grimmett smacked a three-run homer in the bottom of the fifth to cut the Abilene lead to 10-4. Grimmett finished the night two-for-three with five RBIs.

In the fourth, Grimmett doubled, driving in Josh Arizmendi who reached first on a walk. Heath Pinkerton then singled, but was left standing on second.

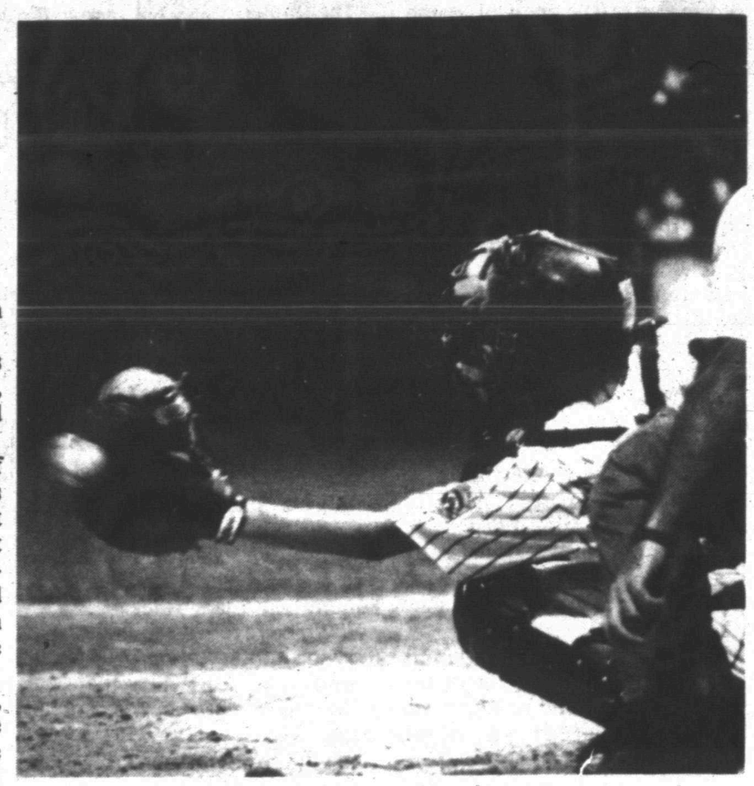

In the fifth, Levi Mandrell was hit by a pitch. Two batters later, Arizmendi got on with a walk and then Grimmett cleared the bases.

Snyder's rally in the bottom of the seventh fell short. Marcus Diaz and Jessie Haines both got on with base on balls. Grimmett then hit into a sacrifice fly, scoring Diaz. Daniel Highfield knocked a single, driving in Haines for what turned out to be the final run for Snyder.

Abilene scored four in the first, three in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth, two in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Arizmendi was credited with the loss on the hill. In six innings of work, Arizmendi gave up 14 runs on eight hits, struck out eight and walked six. Diaz came in relief in the seventh and gave up one run on one hit.

Snyder finished the game with six runs on six hits.

Snyder's rally falls four runs short

ABILENE — A five-run sixth inning rally fell short for the Snyder 10-year-old all-stars here Thursday as they were eliminated from the District 5 Little League tournament by Abilene Lone Star, 11-7.

Lone Star opened the game with two-runs in the top of the first inning on three hits. Snyder came back with one in the bottom of the first.

Lead off hitter Kris Hatley got on first with a walk and was later able to cross the plate.

In the second, Lone Star increased its lead with two runs on one hit and added a run in the third on one run and a hit.

Snyder cut the Lone Star lead in the third. With two outs, Blake Grimmett singled and would score. Jake Barnes also picked up a base hit in the inning, but Lone Star still maintained a 5-2 lead.

Lone Star added one-run on two hits in the fourth and put the game out of reach in the fifth with five-runs on three hits. The Abilene all-stars sent 10 batters to the plate in the inning and took an 11-2 lead.

Snyder rallied in the bottom of the sixth. Mikey Martinez and Marcus Villarreal both reached base, Martinez on an error and Villarreal with a walk, to lead off the inning. The two would account for runs number three and four.

Hatley got on with another error, followed by Cody Wall with a single and Issac Ramon with the third error in the frame for Lone Star. All three base runners scored to cut the Lone Star lead to four, 11-7.

Jake Barnes and Clint Blume hit back-to-back singles, but were left stranded as Lone Star retired the side.

Other all-stars with base hits for Snyder included Blume with a single in the second, Hatley a base hit in the fourth and Blake Grimmett a one-bagger in the fifth.

Snyder pitchers, starter Ty Collier and reliever Issac Ramon, gave up 11 runs on 10 hits, struck out four and walked six.

For the game, Snyder came up with seven runs on eight hits.

There are now three teams remaining in the tournament. Eastland will face Lone Star in an elimination game tonight at 7:30. The winner will face Clyde at 7:30 p.m Saturday in the finals.

XXVI COUNTDOWN TO ATLANTA

XXI Olympiad 1976 Montreal

In 1970, when Montreal was named to host the Summer Olympics '76, organizers estimated it would cost $310 million to stage the Games. However, due to political corruption, mismanagement, labor disputes, inflation and a $100 million outlay for security to prevent another Munich, the final bill came to more than $1.5 billion.

Then, right before the Games were scheduled to open in July, 32 nations, most of them from black Africa, walked out when the IOC refused to ban New Zealand because its national rugby team was touring racially-segregated South Africa. Taiwan also withdrew when Communist China pressured trading partner Canada to deny the Taiwanese the right to compete as the Republic of China.

When the Games finally got started they were quickly stolen by 14-year-old Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who scored seven perfect 10s on her way to three gold medals.

East Germany's Kornelia Ender did Comaneci one better, winning four times as the GDR captured 11 of 13 events in women's swimming. John Naber (4 gold) and the U.S. men did the East German women one better when they won 12 of 13 in swimming.

In track and field, Cuba's Alberto Juantorena won the 400- and 800-meter runs, and Finland's Lasse Viren took the 5,000 and 10,000. Viren missed a third gold when he placed fifth in the marathon.

Four Americans who became household names during the Games were decathlon winner Bruce Jenner and three future world boxing champions—Ray Leonard and the Spinks brothers, Michael and Leon.

The Unites States finished second in the medal count behind the Soviet Union. The U.S. won 94 medals (34 gold, 35 silver, 25 bronze) while the USSR won 125 (49 gold, 41 silver, 35 bronze).

The American athletes set 14 world records, 12 in swimming alone.

Officer testifies Irvin's prints found on 2 plates

DALLAS (AP) — Testimony in Michael Irvin's felony drug trial was delayed today for a hearing on how much testimony of an ex-policeman's girlfriend jurors can hear.

Topless dancer Rachelle Smith's highly anticipated testimony, expected later today, was the subject of a pending hearing on evidence procedure.

The hearing was planned outside the jury's presence. Prosecutors have argued that Smith can tell jurors about Irvin's relationship with Angela Beck, one of two topless dancers found with him in a police raid and about her connection to drugs seized there.

Smith is the girlfriend of Johnnie Hernandez, a former Dallas policeman who was arrested June 27 on a charge of trying to hire a hitman to kill Irvin.

She is also a friend of Beck and Jasmine Nabwangu, the second woman found with the Dallas Cowboys receiver and former teammate Alfredo Roberts during the March 4 bust at an Irving motel.

Irvin's defense lawyers today told State District Judge Manny Alvarez they will try to impeach Smith's credibility as a witness.

Attorney Kevin Clancy late Thursday subpoenaed records from the woman, including names of alleged prostitution clients and those of any police officers with whom she had sex. He also demanded motel records along with telephone, bank and tax documents.

On Thursday, jurors heard that Irvin's fingerprints were the only ones identified on plates containing cocaine and marijuana.

Will Walker get the rings he helped Dallas earn?

IRVING (AP) — Shortly after Herschel Walker said he's returning to Dallas because he wants a Super Bowl ring, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones was asked whether he was giving Walker the three he owes him.

It was meant as a joke and Jones took it that way. Yet it wouldn't be such a bad idea considering there's no way Dallas would've won three of the last four Super Bowls without Walker — that is, without having traded him.

The Cowboys sent Walker to the Minnesota Vikings for 12 draft picks and players on Oct. 12, 1992, in what quickly became known as "The Trade."

Dallas parlayed its end of the deal into stocking its roster with many of the key players that have led their turnaround, including Pro Bowlers Emmitt Smith and Darren Woodson.

Walker, meanwhile, didn't lead the Vikings to the title. Subsequent stops in Philadelphia and New York also ended short of his goal.

After the Giants released him last month, Walker decided again to focus on a team that could finally make him a champion. On Thursday, he picked the Cowboys, who were eager to give him a supporting role.

"I looked around to see what team I felt had a chance to win the Super Bowl because that's what I want: a Super Bowl ring," Walker said.

Walker wouldn't say which other teams he considered, but San Francisco and Oakland were considered front-runners. Cowboys owner Jerry Jones smiled at the notion that he kept Walker from going to the 49ers, Dallas' archrival.

Mexican police horse arrested

MORELIA, Mexico (AP) — Horsing around in these parts can land you in the hock — especially if you're a horse.

Police in the capital of western Michoacan state have arrested a horse for allegedly kicking a car, and the animal has been charged with causing damage to private property, the government news agency Notimex said Thursday.

The horse was tied up on a street in Morelia when a car parked nearby, said police spokesman Ariel Arroyo Barriga. The horse allegedly kicked in the grill and destroyed the headlights.

The name and owner of the horse were not known, so officers took it into custody at the state's Public Security and Transportation headquarters, Arroyo said.

ONE OF DAVID'S MIGHTY MEN!

ABISHAI WAS A SON OF DAVID'S HALF SISTER ZERUIAH, BROTHER OF ASAHEL AND JOAB, KING DAVID'S GENERAL (II SAM. 2:18). IT WAS ABISHAI WHO STOLE INTO KING SAUL'S CAMP IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT WITH DAVID AND FOUND SAUL AND HIS SOLDIERS ALL ASLEEP! Air Force jet crashes into Florida home

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — An Air Force F-16 fighter plane trying to make an emergency landing crashed into a house Thursday, setting the home on fire as pieces of the jet scattered through the neighborhood.

A 4-year-old boy was killed and his mother was severely burned, authorities said.

The pilot, Capt. Frederik G. Hartwig, ejected safely after the jet's single engine failed 20 miles north of Pensacola and he could not reach Pensacola Regional Airport, said Air Force spokeswoman Maj. Monica Aloisio.

The F-16 was one of 50 Air Force planes being evacuated from the East Coast because of Hurricane Bertha.

Robin Cannon, 31, was pulled from the burning house by neighbors.

"She just kept saying, 'I want my baby, I want my baby,'" said Linda McDonald, who works two blocks away. "The guys ran back to the house to see if they could get in, but it was well engulfed by then. One of the neighbors came out with wet towels and wrapped them around her."

Firefighters found the remains of Cannon's 4-year-old son, Shawn Cannon, inside the demolished home, said assistant police chief Jerry Potts.

Robin Cannon was in stable condition with severe burns at the University of South Alabama Burn Center in Mobile, Ala., after being flown there by helicopter, said Bernie Grappe, a spokesman for West Florida Regional Medical Center in Pensacola.

A witness, Yvonne Griffith, said she was in her car at a stop sign when the jet plunged into the house less than a block away. Griffith said when she went to help she saw a child inside the house as it burned.

Neighbor Malissa Rodgers said she saw the jet smash into the house.

"The house exploded into a ball of fire and pieces of airplane went scattering everywhere," she said.

Authorities evacuated a three-block area around the site and an Air Force team was dispatched to investigate.

The board approved the nomination of Jerry Williams of Trent to the board of trustees of the Texas Association of School Boards and approved the payment of bills and minutes from previous meetings.

Smashing Pumpkins' backup musician found dead in room

NEW YORK (AP) — A backup musician with the alternative rock group Smashing Pumpkins was found dead in a hotel room of an apparent heroin overdose today, and the group's drummer, Jimmy Chamberlin, was charged with heroin possession, police said.

Chamberlin was with Jonathan Melvoin when he overdosed, a police source who spoke on the condition of anonymity told The Associated Press. Police confirmed the arrest but did not immediately confirm the source's account.

No other arrests were expected, the source said. Pumpkins lead singer Billy Corgan was brought to a police station this morning, but was not arrested.

Earlier, police Deputy Inspector Wayne Bax said the 34-year-old Melvoin, who was not a regular member of Smashing Pumpkins, and another band member shot heroin late Thursday, then passed out in their room at the Regency Hotel.

The other band member, whom Bax would not identify, woke up at about 3:30 a.m., could not wake Melvoin and called 911 for help. Melvoin was pronounced dead at the hotel at about 4 a.m.

Bax wouldn't say what was found in the room. Laboratory tests will determine if the drug involved was definitely heroin, he said.

Several years ago, the Smashing Pumpkins came near to kicking out Chamberlin because of his recurring drug abuse, Rolling Stone and other publications reported.

The band's regular members are Corgan, Chamberlin, guitarist James Iha and the bassist, who goes by the single name of D'Arcy.

The Chicago-based band, which first came to national prominence about five years ago, combines various rock music styles in a multilayered sound, with lyrics expressing Generation X discontent. Their albums are

Sierra Club seeks legal action now

AUSTIN (AP) — The Sierra Club has upped the ante in its bid to limit water being pumped from the Edwards Aquifer during the ongoing drought.

After filing a class-action lawsuit last month in federal court against all pumpers of the aquifer, the Sierra Club on Thursday asked Senior U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton III of Midland to take immediate action by granting a temporary restraining order. A hearing is scheduled for July 17.

San Antonio Mayor Bill Thornton, whose city relies on the aquifer as its only source of drinking water, was outraged.

"At this time of drought, putting (animal) species ahead of the health and safety of people is irresponsible," Thornton said.

Two suspects waited for German tourist outside adult entertainment club

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Two men were charged with murder Thursday in the deadly carjacking of a German tourist outside a Florida nightclub.

Police said 19-year-old Alfred Rhiner, caught driving the stolen Mercedes-Benz 800 miles from the crime scene, confessed to taking part in the shooting and implicated a second man. Jamie Lee, 23, who was arrested Thursday at his home in Florida.

Rhiner and Lee were both charged with murder, grand auto theft and robbery in the slaying of lawyer Gerd-Ulrich Ladwig, 50, in Fort Myers, Fla. Rhiner, arrested Wednesday, waived extradition from this mountain resort town.

Rhiner told police he and Lee had waited in the parking lot of the club and decided to rob the most expensive-looking car that drove in. Ladwig became the target when he drove in just after midnight Monday in his 1989 silver Mercedes-Benz.

Police said Ladwig was forced into the trunk and driven to an isolated location, police said. He was stripped, robbed and shot repeatedly with a 9 mm handgun, police said. Gatlinburg police found a gun in the glove compartment of the Mercedes after they took Rhiner into custody on Wednesday.

Ladwig, 50, of Hanover, Germany, was on vacation since June 30 with his wife, Sylvia, and their 12-year-old son. The family was staying at the Fort Myers home of Mrs. Ladwig's brother, Dr. Heinz Dieter Vogtland, who was on vacation overseas.

Ladwig told his wife he was having trouble sleeping and left shortly before midnight Monday to have a drink at the upscale restaurant Peter's La Cuisine in the city on Florida's southwest coast. He never showed up.

His body was found in a remote area on the outskirts of the city Tuesday morning, and police said blood found at the scene suggested he was shot there.
