

C-C Public Relations Study Under Way Here

The Collingsworth Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring this week a public relations course, designed for business and professional people and their employees.

Teaching the course is Jule Thomas, retail training specialist on the staff of the University of Texas division of extension.

The course is being held at the high school library and is open to those wishing to attend. It will continue through Friday April 15 and will be at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

A course similar to this is sponsored each year by the chamber of commerce in co-operation with the University of Texas.

"The goal of all business is to gain and hold customers," N. M. Higdon, chamber of commerce manager, pointed out. "This can be accomplished if you and your employees know what public relations is, what it does, and the individual's role in public relations. It is toward these things that the course we are offering aims."

Thomas is widely known in this state as an authority on direct selling and on his ability to pass this information on to the members of his classes.

Thomas is a graduate of Ouachita College, Arkansas.

Oklahoma Seeks all Major Waters from the Panhandle

Oklahoma has made a bold bid for the waters of Salt Fork, claiming that through the proposed Mangum dam, they are necessary as an auxiliary supply to the Altus-Lugert project.

It further asks that all flood control detention dams on Salt Fork in Texas be built without storage, and that Texas agree to permit no impoundment for any other purpose.

These proposals were made in a letter from Guy H. James, Oklahoma member of the Red River Compact Commission, to the Texas member, Buster Cole, a Bonham lawyer. A photostatic copy of that letter, dated March 9, 1960, was turned over to The Wellington Leader Monday, April 11.

John Coleman, water district chairman, and Paul Spillman, legal advisor, went to Bonham to see Cole and were told by him he was not giving away any Texas waters.

In the meantime, survey and core drilling work progressed on the two proposed sites for a dam in Collingsworth county, and a check was begun on the irrigation possibilities for the old Plymouth Flat area, south of Samnorwood.

James suggests that Texas retain only the right to all the waters of Prairie Dog Fork (Red River north of Childress) Lebos Creek (a usually dry draw south of the Hollis highway), Buck Creek and Elm Creek.

Coleman and Spillman turned over to Cole an engineering report on the proposed Salt Fork dam construction brought him up to date on progress being made.

Spillman reported that Cole told them Texas will not sign any type of water compact without the federal government first signing a waiver clause that they could be sued at any time in the future by the federal district court. This stand reverts to a Texas-New Mexico misunderstanding on the waters of the Pecos river.

Cole was not aware of the salt beds on Elm Creek until

April 15 Final Date on Stickers

Friday, April 15, is a date to remember, especially if you do not have your vehicle operator's sticker for 1960.

Stiff penalties during the past two years will, no doubt, send many people hurrying to inspection stations. More important, however, is the fact that accident tolls have been dropped in recent months on Texas' highways — and the inspection system is given credit for a portion of this drop.

Requirements for securing the stickers are comparatively small and, generally speaking, practical. They cover adequate brakes, lighting equipment, horns, mirror and windshield wipers. All of these things without doubt do contribute to general highway safety.

If more people will view the little stickers as a means of helping them get back home without an accident, instead of a mandatory state requirement, we feel sure that not one single vehicle will appear on the roads after April 15 without meeting the requirement.

Boat Bug Bites Area Residents

Bankers keep telling us from time to time that they consider loans on small pleasure boats as good collateral; better, perhaps, than automobiles.

Out in this country, miles from adequate water to float such craft, the conclusion is confusing, especially when it comes from a hard-boiled banker. Mostly, they say, it boils down to a matter of sincere desire by the owner to keep his boat.

"People will pay off their boat," declared one banker. "They just won't let it go back. Besides, if they did, a boat is one of the easiest things to move, due to heavy demand."

"Boats in this area are, without doubt, luxury items. They are expensive to own, operate and maintain. Despite all of this, you'll find more than 100 privately owned boats in the community, along with more proficient water skiers than probably any other area in Texas (when computed on a per capita basis). Furthermore, the fad is spreading, and so long as the bankers continue to look favorably on boat loans the fad will, no doubt, keep right on booming.

Committee Studies Reds in Puerto Rico

The House committee on un-American activities has wisely moved to get a court decision on the power of Congress to investigate possible subversion in Puerto Rico.

The unique status of Puerto Rico as an autonomous commonwealth freely associated with the United States raises certain questions. But the mere fact that the island is not a part of the United States mainland is no ground for denying that power to Congress.

More than half a century ago the United States Supreme Court declared in a case involving Puerto Rico that the Constitution follows the flag. That was shortly after our armed forces carried the flag to Puerto Rico by capturing it from Spain.

Being neither state, federal territory nor a dependency of the United States, Puerto Rico is undoubtedly free from interference by Washington in its purely domestic affairs. But its people are all citizens of the United States, fully as much as people in Texas or Hawaii. Thus on matters affecting the security of the United States as a whole, the power of Congress to investigate threats to the nation that might exist in Puerto Rico will probably be upheld by our courts.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where Congress has decided to reduce taxes on night clubs and cabarets, on account of the 20 per cent levy has worked a hardship on musicians and entertainers.

My tax-wracked neighbor says he is glad the people-pluckers have commenced to notice that high taxes can cause hardship, even if it is just money, as Senator Johnson mentions merrily. Says he would like a little tax cut himself, and if the lawmakers can't feel sorry for anybody but hardshipped musicians he will gladly take up the piccolo.

I see where the matter of the government paying medical expenses for old folks is being discussed in Congress and elsewhere these days.

My non-veteranized neighbor says folks paying taxes and higher prices for goods are already giving free doctoring to employees of big corporations, and to President Ike and other people overseers.

But says he guesses that raising living standards for foreigners, etc., is costing so much we can't hardly afford deferred and supervised dying for mill-run citizens.

I see where the White House Youth Conference experts came out in favor of federal aid for schools without strings attached.

My factual neighbor says he can understand the school people's hankering for some of that cure-all Potomac salve, but they ought to know the stringless type is very scarce.

Says right now only members of the foreign blackmailers union are getting U.S. money without strings, but a school might qualify if it would secede from Washington or declare war on same.

I see where somebody is all the time complaining about the rulings meted out to us by the people-engineers on the U. S. Supreme Court.

But my stoic neighbor says we will luck out some day and get us a set of matching justices on this Court, with all nine of them being able to read and understand the Constitution.

Says we are moving in that direction already, and in most cases four or five of the incumbents get the right answer, which is at least more dignified than settling legal issues by rolling dice.

Nothing near Chevy's size and price can match the Full Coil cushioning of its ride, or the fine, finished workmanship of its Body by Fisher. That even applies to some cars that cost a lot more. Fruit Trees Should Have First Spraying Orchard owners who plan to spray their trees should make the first application to apricot and peach trees now, County Agent Bob Lynch has reminded.

A spray now will kill cat-facing insects, those that cause deformed fruit, as well as curculio worm and brown rot. All these can be taken care of with one spraying, Lynch said.

For small home orchards, the county agent recommended methoxychlor with wettable sulfur, which can be bought locally under several commercial names. It is to be mixed by directions on the container.

Large orchards may be sprayed with a mixture of one pound of 25% wettable dieldrin and six pounds of wettable sulfur in 100 gallons of water.

Peaches, apricots and plums should be sprayed when 75% of the petals have fallen. The second spraying should be ten days later and the third from 10 to 14 days after that.

The last spray should be applied at least 30 days before the fruit is gathered, Lynch said.

Now Retired

Nevels Cited for 36 Years Express Work

George Nevels, who retired a few months ago as agent for Railway Express, last week received a certificate of service from that company, upon the completion of 36 years work.

Mr. Nevels came to Wellington July 17, 1939, from Durant, Okla. Six years ago, he was transferred to Childress, but continued to make Wellington his home, and this will remain his home in retirement.

At the time he joined Railway Express in 1923 at Sulphur, Okla., Nevels was driving for a transfer company. Before going to Duncan, he did relief work and stayed for short periods at Sulphur, Seminole, Ada and Okema, Okla.

Nevels is a native Texan, however, born at Sulphur Springs.

"I went to the Indian Territory when I was a little bitty fellow, about 1903 or 1904. My father worked for the Santa Fe," he said. He is a veteran of World War I.

Nevels' present plans are to take it easy for a while, hoping it will help his arthritis. Later he will do some other type of work.

Three hobbies help fill his time. One of these he refers to as "my fancy work," handwork in which he specializes in making a type of woven table runners and scarfs. His other interests are fishing and hunting.

Mr. Nevels has one step-son, and he and Mrs. Nevels have reared their grandson, 17-year-old Charles George Nevels.

"WHY WELLINGTON SHOULD HAVE A CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN"

Editor's Note: This essay by Lynn McLain, Wellington 9th grade student, placed first in the Chamber of Commerce sponsored contest, "Why Wellington Should Have a Cleanup Campaign." He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen McLain.

By LYNN McLAIN

The appearance of a book may not be sufficient evidence to pass judgment on the book within the cover, but nevertheless, being human we all arrive at a quick opinion on the condition of the book.

Like the cover on the book, the beautifications that cover a town reflect the civic pride and moral standards which the citizens of a community strive to maintain in their daily lives.

Briefly, I believe a clean town leads to clean habits, clean minds and a more beautiful and progressive community in which to live.

I think each organization in the community should undertake an improvement project to achieve and maintain during the coming year. If each church, club, Scout unit, civic club, American Legion and other organizations would each offer their services, I feel sure our parks and other public places would take on a much more beautiful appearance.

I think special attention should be placed on keeping the vacant lots free of weeds and paper throughout the year. This should also be done to our streets and alleys.

I generally think of the churches, schools, and public buildings in a community as being the cleanest spots. I think these areas should receive our first attention.

Furthermore, I believe we should assist the business and property owners along the highways to clean up and beautify their yards. There exists very little if any landscaping along the highway routes, and since most out-of-town people see this drive first, and in many instances this drive only, I believe a large number of these persons will tend to form unfavorable opinions of our community.

In summary, I believe we as a progressive community should unite into one group with an energetic desire to "See Wellington Clean."

SALT FORK SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

H. H. Word near Ring, Olan Farris of Dodson, T. C. Fike and Ray Peoples of Wellington signed Great Plains Conservation contracts during March.

By signing these contracts, they have applied for technical assistance and cost sharing in carrying out a complete conservation plan on their entire farms. Technical assistance will be provided by technicians of the Soil Conservation Service, assisting the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District.

One of the main parts of the Great Plains program is seeding Class VI cropland back to grass and overseeding rangeland. The following people have been seeding grasses the past month: Frank Kennedy of Quail—bluestem mixture; A. S. Whitson of Lutie—side oats grama and bluegrama; Polly O'Neil of Dozier—bluestem mixture; L. A. Gilmore of Wellington—switchgrass, side oats grama and bluegrama, and a bluestem mixture; Mrs. Mary Sugg of Wellington—bluestem mixture, side oats grama and blue grama; P. E. Starr—bluestem mixture; and James Doneghy—bluestem mixture at Ring.

Technical assistance was afforded Roland Bryan on a water store facility. Richard and A. J. Peters have built a fence under the Great Plains program on their place northeast of Marrella. Their fencing will improve their grazing distribution and grass by permitting deferred grazing.

An additional limited amount of money has become available for this county to use on the Great Plains Conservation program. Those farmers and ranchers interested in signing up are urged to contact the Soil Conservation Service in Wellington as soon as possible.

Conserving Soil and Water Many co-operators of the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District are in the process of building conservation structures this month. Among those building terraces are A. R. Clay of Dozier, who has built one mile; J. H. Wood of the Fresno community with four miles; and Garland Hightower of Dodson, who built about two miles of terraces. J. D. Wilson of Wellington built three miles of terraces; G. L. Roberts at Rolla, four miles; and Hugh Grogan near Pleasant Mound, four miles.

Interest is increasing in ponds for livestock water and fishing. Oran Starkey has just completed a damless tank, and S. D. Posey of Memphis has completed a pond near Rolla. Mr. Posey's pond is a relatively large one, having a surface area of nearly five acres. This pond was constructed at a near-ideal location with a drainage of 160 acres of range land with a natural spillway and storage for about 20 acre feet of water. It replaces a windmill that went dry.

Waterways are increasing as a result of people's recognizing the definite need for them in this country. J. G. Hunt of Rolla and L. A. Gilmore of Wellington have just built waterways to control excess outside water and stop gullies in their fields. Wayne Reynolds has just finished seeding his waterway to Caucasian bluestem.

County Students Get Shots and Vaccine

Shots and vaccinations are now being given students of the Quail, Samnorwood and Dodson schools, Mrs. Cal Sugg, nurse for the three schools, reported this week.

One hundred and seventy-six students have received the typhoid inoculations and 71 the combined whooping cough and diphtheria shots. Twenty-four were given diphtheria shots alone, having received whooping cough shots earlier.

Part of these were booster shots, but a number of students received them for the first time, Mrs. Sugg said.

Smallpox vaccinations have been given 138 boys and girls, many of them in high school.

Mrs. Sugg explained that while a surprising number had never had a smallpox vaccination, others were receiving second vaccinations, as two vacnations that have taken are now recommended by the State Health Department. Part of these are students who had vaccinations in preparation for going away to college next fall. Altogether, 372 students have been included in this program, Mrs. Sugg said.

Hollis Missile Will be "Weapon of Anger"

Hollis' Atlas missile will be "fired only in anger, only in retaliation. It will not be tested. It is strictly a deterrent weapon, and it will be fired only at an aggressor," Ed McGowan, project engineer for the ballistics section of the Corps of Engineers assured Wellington Rotarians in an address at the luncheon meeting Tuesday, April 5.

Introduced by Jack Sanford, McGowan gave a fact-packed talk about the missile launching pad to be built four miles east of that town. He is now stationed at Altus.

The Hollis site is one of nine in the Altus Air Force Base area.

"These sites are completely underground," McGowan said. "About all you can see is a concrete parking area."

"The top will open on huge hinges to receive the Atlas missile, and then close and stay closed until it has to be fired."

An 18-story building could be put inside the underground shell, which will be 52 feet in diameter with walls from two and a half to 9 feet thick.

McGowan set three years as the time expected to complete construction and instruct personnel in the firing of the Atlas. The number of workers on the project will vary with the type of work and the maximum probably will be around 100.

"The Atlas will be from 74 to 85 feet long. . . . It will have a 360,000-pound thrust — five times all the power generated at one time by Hoover dam — more power than 190 ten-engine B-36s," McGowan declared. "It will burn enough fuel in one minute to send an auto around the world. It will go from a temperature of minus 293 degrees to plus 5,000 almost instantaneously. So you see there are lots of problems to be worked out."

When the Atlas missile is fired, it will rise to the surface on an elevator, which can be used again.

The last 27 seconds of the countdown is automatic, and when the Atlas is fired, it will go one-fourth around the world in any direction, and in 40 minutes with an accuracy that will place it in an area less than five miles square.

During construction, McGowan said that as far as he knew, the public would be allowed to visit the sites, making arrangements with the engineer in charge of each project.

M. L. Phillips, Former Dozier Resident, Dies

Word was received Friday, April 1, of the death of M. L. Phillips of El Paso, former Dozier man.

Funeral services were conducted Monday, April 4, at 2 p.m.

Although Mr. Phillips had been in failing health for several years, and had been hospitalized for the last month, it was not thought that his condition was grave, and his death was unexpected to relatives and friends here.

Monnie Lawrence Phillips was born March 21, 1898, at Henderson. He is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Jane Phillips of Dozier and the late J. S. Phillips. He came to Dozier with his parents in December 1917, and as a young man he farmed there. On February 29, 1924, he was married to Miss Zera Shields at Dozier. For five years he operated a grocery store there and was postmaster.

In 1931 he and his family moved to New Mexico where he had farming interests near Bard, and in 1940 he moved to San Jon, where he owned and operated the San Jon Courts, worked as a building contractor and was also employed for a time by the state in a capacity connected with interstate traffic inspection. He was active in community affairs and church work as long as his health permitted.

Mr. Phillips was elected the first mayor of San Jon when it was incorporated, he was a member of the school board for several years and took part in many other activities. He retired and moved to El Paso two years ago.

He had been a member of the Church of Christ 35 years.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Phillips is survived by two sons, James D. and Royce, a daughter, Mrs. Verl Bass, and four grandchildren, all of El Paso; his mother, four sisters and two brothers, Miss Irene Phillips, Miss Beatrice Phillips, Miss Leona Phillips and P. W. Phillips of Dozier; J. H. Phillips of Plainview; and Mrs. M. L. Caperton of El Paso.

Phillips was a brother-in-law of Bill Shields and Worth Shields and Mrs. C. H. Caperton, and the son-in-law of Mrs. A. J. Shields Sr. of Dozier. Mrs. R. L. Roberts of Shamrock is a niece.

County Teachers Banquet

Texas Needs 5,000 New Teachers Yearly

Texas teachers receive lower beginning salaries than those of any of the five adjoining states, Charles B. Hamilton, state consultant for the Texas Student Education Association, told Collingsworth teachers at their annual banquet Monday evening, April 11.

Hamilton then went on to the problem of recruiting new teachers in Texas, and the shortage of qualified teachers the state faces.

It takes 5,000 new teachers each year in Texas alone to replace those who are retiring or quitting the profession, and this does not take care of those needed for new schools or the fast growing enrollment, he declared.

During the business session, conducted by Kenneth McClenodon of Dodson, president, Bob Dwight was elevated from first vice president to president for the coming year. Other officers elected were: Jack Davis of Wellington, first vice president; Ted Parker of Dodson, second vice president; Frank Kennedy of Quail, re-elected treasurer. The secretary is to be appointed.

Outgoing officers, in addition to McClenodon, Dwight and Kennedy were Mack Bush of Wellington, second vice president, and Mrs. Tolbert Painter of Dodson, secretary.

At the banquet, J. D. Wilson gave the invocation and Bennett Goodloe the benediction.
