Heroin Traffic Suspects Arrested

Fuel Stops Blocked By Truckers

By The Associated Press

INDEPENDENT truckers blockaded truck stops and brought traffic to a crawl on major highways Thursday in a geared-up wildcat protest over rising diesel fuel costs in at least 14 states.

The truckers gained strongest support in the West and Midwest, but truck stop blockades and other protests also occurred in Connecticut and Florida.

Police in Milford, Conn., arrested six truckers who left their rigs parked and locked for six hours in front of pumps at the Mayflower Truck Station Inc. They were charged with criminal trespass and breach of peace.

"There was no violence," said Howard Merk, executive vice president of the truck station. "The independent truckers have a very, very valid point. We sympathize with them."

Merk said the price of diesel fuel at his station has increased 21 percent since Jan. 1 and is now selling for 87.9 cents a gallon.

The Independent Truckers Association has not sanctioned the strike, and the truckers termed their action a wildcat protest over the price and shortage of diesel fuel, the 55-mph speed limit and other grievances.

In Indiana, truckers parked 300 rigs four abreast across a one-mile section of the Indiana Toll Road, near Gary, blocking the toll road and a section of Interstate 94.

The truckers began lining up about midnight and remained until shortly before the morning rush hour Thursday, state police said. The protest came after officials slapped a 25-gallon ceiling on diesel fuel purchases, down from 50 gallons, along the toll road this week.

"We just can't make a living on 55 mph," one trucker said. "Our pockets

50 Indictments Returned Here

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LOCAL, STATE and federal officials Thursday afternoon began arresting the 50 Lubbock area residents named in sealed indictments alleging conspiracy to distribute heroin in Lubbock County.

But by late Thursday, only 12 of those named in the indictments returned by a 99th District Court grand jury had been arrested. A jail official said two of the suspects were released on bonds.

Indictments Set Record In Texas

The 50 indictments, according to Criminal District Attorney John Montford, represent the largest group ever charged under Texas's organized crime statute.

While the persons named in the county grand jury indictments were from the Lubbock area, Montford said the alleged conspiracy extended to Robstown, Snyder, Corpus Christi and San Antonio. Those cities were alleged pick-up points for the $175,000 per month worth of heroin that was brought into Lubbock during the 10-month investigation.

Arrests Due Elsewhere

Montford said arrests are expected in those cities, but added that he did not expect as many persons to be charged there as were in Lubbock.

A federal grand jury in San Antonio has been investigating organized crime activities in that region and across the Western Judicial District.

"We intend to share any information we have if our information is of any benefit," Montford said of the San Antonio probe. "However, we can't say that it is at this point."

Montford added that investigators who were responsible for gathering the heroin conspiracy evidence for the county panel had cooperated with investigators looking into an alleged cocaine distribution ring across the South Plains.

Federal Jury Reports

A federal grand jury resumed its investigation into the cocaine trafficking allegations this week. That panel also reported its indictments Thursday.

The county grand jury indictments, Montford said, are the result of an investigation headed by the Department of Public Safety Narcotics Division. Also cooperating in the investigation, begun July 25, 1978, were officers from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, Lubbock County Sheriff's Department, Lubbock and Slaton police departments, the state Attorney General's Office and the Criminal District Attorney's Office.

DPS Narcotic Division Capt. Jimmy Don Sturdevant said the alleged heroin ring "has been going on quite a long time" and that all agencies involved consider Thursday's indictments just part of "an ongoing investigation" into local narcotic trafficking.

Sturdevant said authorities believe most of the heroin brought into the Lubbock area for distribution is from Mexico, but he and other officials declined comment on any physical evidence seized in connection with the investigation.

Persons indicted Thursday under the provisions of Texas' organized crime statute will face a prison sentence of five to 99 years if convicted. Thomas Clinton, 99th District Court judge, set bonds for those indicted on the conspiracy charge ranging from $5,000 to $15,000.

An additional five sealed indictments also were returned by the grand jury charging those named in the indictments with delivery of a controlled substance, specifically heroin. Montford said, however, there was no evidence that those additional five persons were connected with the alleged heroin trafficking ring during the time of the investigation.

129 Indictments Returned

The 55 sealed indictments were part of 129 true bills returned Thursday by the county grand jury.

Two involuntary manslaughter indictments were returned against Marcelo Palomo Jr., 25, of 229 Beech.

Palomo's indictments stemmed from the May 31 deaths of Kenny Ray McDowell of 1506 E. Sixth St. and Greg Wilson of 902 Quirt Avenue.

The two boys, ages 10 and 9 respectively, were killed when the bicycle they were riding in the 1400-block of Parkway Drive was struck by a vehicle allegedly driven by Palomo.

The grand jury also returned an aggravated assault on a peace officer indictment against Harrel Edward Qualls,

Judge Mum On Federal Indictments

AFTER WEEKS of speculation, a federal grand jury Thursday reported its somewhat anti-climactic findings to U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

More than 50 persons had been subpoenaed to testify before the 18-member panel which in part was considering a reported widespread cocaine trafficking ring on the South Plains.

However, shortly before 6 p.m. Thursday, the grand jurors returned only seven indictments for the Lubbock Division of the Northern Judicial District.

Six of those indictments were sealed, and federal authorities refused comment on what the indictments charged. However, the grand jury reported that five of the sealed indictments listed "multi-counts."

The seventh indictment was against Manuel Martinez, who is being held in Plainview. He was indicted on a charge of being an escapee from a federal prison.

Reporters Turned Away

Although Woodward indicated in court he would set bonds and issue warrants on the sealed charges, reporters who attempted to verify the federal panel's indictments with the district clerk were asked by U.S. marshals to leave the federal courthouse "because it's past business hours."

The panel also returned a four-count indictment against a man in the Amarillo Division of the judicial district. But in reporting the indictment in court, jurors did not elaborate on what the counts included.

Additionally, when presented with the Amarillo indictment by the grand jury foreman, Woodward noted that the indictment sheet was "improperly filled out."

He instructed U.S. Attorneys David Bass and Roger McRoberts to "make sure this is corrected and properly filed with the magistrate in Amarillo."

Free On Bond

Bass told the judge the man named in the Amarillo indictment already has had charges filed on him and is free on bond.

Following the brief grand jury report, Woodward asked Bass to meet with him in his chambers.

When contacted later about the possibility of mistakes on the indictments filed for the Lubbock Division, Woodward declined comment. Bass could not be reached for comment.

Because of the number of witnesses called to testify before the federal grand jury, which will remain empaneled through February 1980, many observers had speculated that a large number of indictments concerning the alleged cocaine trafficking would be returned.

McRoberts told Woodward, "we have additional evidence" for the grand jury, but did not elaborate on what that evidence might concern. He added that no date has been set for reconvening the federal panel. — KAY BELL

Carter Keeps Economic Sanctions On Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Thursday he will retain economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia, but suggested he might change his mind if there is progress "toward legitimate majority rule" in the African country.

Carter said he doesn't think the recent elections there "were either fair or free" and declared his decision "is a matter of principle to me."

The announcement brought immediate reaction from Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Zimbabwe Rhodesia's first black prime minister, who called it an "inhuman decision."

Carter spoke to reporters with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance at his side. Vance said the administration would send a representative to Zimbabwe Rhoesia to "observe progress that is made ... toward true majority rule."

Vance said the administration observer has not been chosen.

Carter acknowledged that his position probably will be opposed by a majority in Congress. He said he will report monthly to the House and Senate on moves toward broader democracy in Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

Vance said he will testify on Carter's decision next week before House and Senate committees.

Members of the House and Senate have expressed strong sentiment for lifting the sanctions since the newly elected Zimbabwe Rhodesian government took power last week. Carter conceded, "I do not have a majority of support in the U.S. Senate.

"My guess is that in the House we would have difficulty," but added: "I intend to do everything I can within my power to prevail on this decision.

"It means a lot to our country to do what is right, what is decent, what is fair."

Giving reasons for his decision, Carter said, "I am absolutely convinced that the best interests of the United States would not be served by lifting the sanctions.

"Secondly, I am equally convinced that the best interests of the people of Zimbabwe Rhodesia would not be served by the lifting of the sanctions. Finally, it is clear to me that although there has been some very encouraging progress made in that country that the action taken has not been sufficient."

The president said his stance will help the United States retain friends in black Africa and elsewhere and will

"limit the oppportunity of outside powers to take advantage of the situation in south Africa at the expense of the United States."

Carter said elections in Zimbabwe Rhodesia were held under a constitution drafted and approved by the white minority and that black citizens never had a chance to vote for or against the constitution.

The president said the constitution preserves "extraordinary power" for the white minority, giving it continued control of the army, police and civil service. At the same time, Carter said, the constitution banned opposition from the political process.

"I cannot conclude that the elections were either fair or free," Carter said. "We will of course continue to keep the observance of sanctions under review. I sincerely hope progress can be made rapidly ... toward more legitimate majority rule."

Congressional sources had said earlier the president would try to forestall congressional pressure to lift the sanctions immediately by promising to reconsider the matter later this year.

The decision against lifting the embargo is likely to result in an immediate effort by Senate conservatives to remove them without further delay.

Next Tech President Likely To Be Texan

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE NEXT president of Texas Tech is likely to be a Texan and may be in office before Christmas.

Regents will meet a week from today to discuss in a closed session the method of choosing a new president and whom to appoint as interim president.

Dr. Cecil Mackey, Tech president since 1976, was named Thursday as president of Michigan State University. Mackey will assume the MSU post no later than Sept. 1, but is expected to arrive in East Lansing by early August to enroll his two younger children in Michigan schools for the fall semester.

More than one regent has expressed an interest in choosing a president who has close ties with the state. Tech alumni probably will be included in the list of candidates.

Speaking personally, not as a spokesman for the board, regent chairman Robert Pfluger said, "My personal feeling is that we need a man from this area. I hope we could select a Texan or a man who can relate to Texas and West Texas."

Another regent expressed a similar view, saying that perhaps in the past Tech exes were overlooked.

And regent Lee Stafford said, "The most important (quality for Tech's new president) is to have roots in Texas."

Stafford said the candidate would not have to be a Texas resident, but "have a feeling for Texas and Texas people."

Of the nine members of the Tech board of regents, seven are Tech alumni and the other two, Stafford and Dr. Nathan Galloway, are both Texas natives.

Although the last search for a Tech president, after Dr. Grover Murray resigned three years ago, required eight months of screening and interviewing, Pfluger said, "We are going to try to expedite the process."

Pfluger said he hopes a new president will be chosen within three to six months.

He stressed that an interim president won't necessarily be named at the June 15 meeting, but consideration of naming someone is on the agenda.

Pfluger said regents normally choose an acting president from the vice presidential level of a university administration, but he declined to be specific about any persons he has in mind.

Surgeons Reattach Girl's Severed Hand

NEW YORK (AP) — A surgical team working to save the severed hand of a talented 17-year-old flutist and pianist reported Thursday night that the hand had been reattached and blood was flowing through it.

However, the 12-man team of surgeons at Bellevue Hospital said the operation would continue into early this morning.

Renee Katz was rushed to Bellevue after she was pushed under a rush-hour subway train in a midtown Manhattan station and her right hand severed at the wrist, officials said. She was to graduate in two weeks from the city's prestigious High School of Music and Art.

The surgery started at 10:30 a.m. and originally was expected to take 10 to 12 hours, but the surgeons later extended their timetable.

Bellevue oficials said many donors had appeared at the hospital to offer blood for the numerous transfusions needed during the surgery. They called the volunteers "a great help."

Police were looking for a teen-ager.

MISSILE PLANNED

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to move into full-scale development of a huge new mobile missile designed to foil any Soviet surprise attack on the U.S. land-based striking force in the 1980s and beyond, administration officials said Thursday night. The plan calls for mounting 200 missiles, each with 10 powerful nuclear warheads.

Sheriff's Slayer Given Life Term

A-J Correspondent

MATADOR — Larry Carnell Fortenberry pleaded guilty to the murder of Motley County Sheriff Jaimar "Jinks" Wilson and was assessed a life sentence after Thursday's hearing at the Motley County Courthouse here.

The sentence was assessed by 110th District Court Judge George Miller of Floydada after plea bargaining between Fortenberry's court-appointed defense lawyers, Joe Cox and Steve Hurt, both of Plainview, and District Attorney Randy Hollums of Floydada.

The life sentence will run concurrent with a 20-year sentence Fortenberry is serving for the theft of a car at gunpoint from a Motley County resident and with a 15-year sentence for the armed robbery of an Amarillo service station attendant. Fortenberry, 30, of Mount Herman, La., is serving the sentences at the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

Hollums also asked the judge Thursday to dismiss a third charge pending against Fortenberry involving the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in Motley County.

If Fortenberry is released on parole from the Texas sentence, he still faces a life sentence in Louisiana.

He was being held late Thursday in the Hale County Jail in Plainview and is scheduled to be taken back to Huntsville sometime before Wednesday.

Fortenberry was convicted by a Hale County jury in 1977 of killing Wilson and sentenced to death.

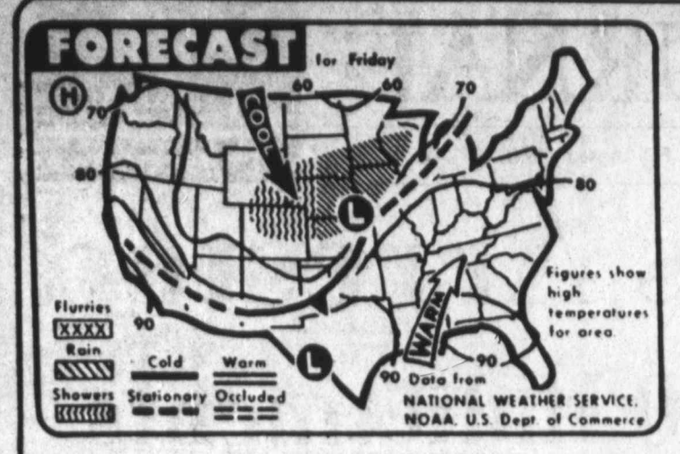

The conviction was overturned in March by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which ordered the case retried because Miller failed to instruct jurors properly on the corroboration needed to convict a suspect on the basis of an accomplice's testimony.

That ruling was made in reference to testimony against Fortenberry by Stacy Albert Carter, who was Fortenberry's alleged companion when Wilson was killed. Carter testified that Fortenberry knew Wilson was a sheriff when the defendant produced a shotgun and shot the sheriff twice.

The higher court ruled the district judge should have told the jurors that Carter's testimony was not sufficient evidence to prove that Fortenberry knew Wilson was a law officer.

Previous trials of Fortenberry and Carter cost Motley County $57,500, which was paid through a Criminal Justice Council grant. Hollums said Thursday that the retrial for Fortenberry would probably have cost Motley County an estimated $35,000.

A pre-trial hearing for Fortenberry had been scheduled for this morning at the Floyd County Courthouse in Floydada.

Oil Shortage Benefits Builder Of Gas Tanks

FARMERS BRANCH (UPI) — The gasoline shortage and service station closings may make Mike Burkhart a very wealthy man.

Prior to the latest shortage, Burkhart's Auxiliary Gas Tanks Co. had little trouble meeting orders for extra fuel tanks. His usual clientele was truckers and an occasional recreational vehicle owner.

But as long lines began forming in front of the gas pumps and service stations began closing on weekends and at night, Burkhart and his employees found even 15-hour workdays — and a seven-day work week — wasn't enough to meet the demand for his company's service.

"We have four phones ringing off the hook," Burkhart said. "By 10 a.m. we have to take some off the hook. Otherwise we'd never get any work done.

"We can't take appointments. We have all the work we can handle by 11 a.m."

Truckers are no longer his main clientele. His workshop is now jammed with vans, pickups, motor homes and even cars.

"People want to do the same things they did last year," he said. "They want to get there and back on their weekend outings. They don't want to be trapped by the side of the road when they take their weekend jaunts."

Burkhart's tanks — which he also manufactures and sells to other outlets — add an extra 15 to 150 gallons of fuel capacity, depending on the vehicle and the number of tanks. And they aren't inexpensive. The minimum charge is $120.

"I could sell about four times what I do now if I could make that many tanks. We could sell everything we made to California. That's where it's worse."

Despite his success, Burkhart said he doesn't plan to expand his operation.

"I went through this once before," he said. "When they get the price up, the availability of gas will also be up. Our business will be slow again."

Storms Skirt City After Torrid Day

A line of heavy thunderstorms skirted to the east of Lubbock Thursday night after dumping rain and some hail over the Brownfield area.

Thursday afternoon Lubbock residents experienced unseasonably warm temperatures under partly cloudy skies, as did many West Texas cities.

The mercury soared to 94 degrees at 4 p.m. and temperatures stayed in the 90s most of the evening.

Abilene's high temperature Thursday was a scorching 99 degrees, with Wichita Falls right behind with 97. The high in both Dallas and EL Paso reached 95 degrees.

There is no rain in the forecast for Lubbock and vicinity this afternoon and temperatures again are expected to climb to the 90s.

A nearly stationary front that is expected to move back across the Hub City tonight should cause a drop in temperatures Saturday. However, weather forecasters do not expect any rain to fall over the area this weekend.

Today's high should be near 90, with southwesterly winds at 15 to 20 mph. Tonight's low is expected in the mid 60s, and the high Saturday should be in the mid 80s.

Summer-like temperatures in the 90s baked many portions of the state for the first time in several days Thursday, although scattered showers were reported across wide sections of East Texas and the Rio Grande Valley, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents near the Sabine, San Jacinto, Guadalupe and Nueces rivers Thursday were warned to be on the lookout for rising water from heavier rains which drenched the area earlier.

More rain is expected in South Texas today, with temperatures expected to remain in the 80s and 90s under partly cloudy skies.

Clements Studying Cuts In Spending

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he can trim $200 million to $300 million from the $20.7 billion state spending bill sent him by the 66th Legislature but it won't be easy.

"It's not a simple task," Clements told his weekly news conference about his vow to veto as much as he can out of the general appropriations bill passed by the session that ended May 28.

"The legislators made it as difficult as possible. By deliberate intent they covered up as much as they could ... It's like hunting Easter eggs."

Clements, who had said earlier he wanted to give taxpayers $1 billion back in tax relief, said he will make up his mind on the 1980-81 state spending bill some time next week. June 17 is the deadline for him to approve or veto bills and resolutions approved by the Legislature.

"I'm looking at everything anyone can think of," he said.

Clements said earlier he had 35 to 40 persons going through the 350-page bill that allocates spending from major income sources, including federal money, for operation of state governmental operations.

The governor said he had not decided yet on several controversial bills sent him by the 181 legislators for final action.

They included:

— Reorganization of the State Board of Control. "I'm looking at this closely but I won't want to reshuffle something just for the sake of shuffling,' he said. "We have been trying to find out what the problems are with the old Board of Control and so far we have not uncovered anything of any significance." Clements noted that he had appointed Bob Dedman, Dallas, as chairman of the board "and I think he will bring an entire new view to the Board of Control."

— The bill reconstituting the State Bar of Texas.

— The bill supporting Southwest Airlines efforts to fly out-of-state from Dallas Love Field. He said the mayors of Dallas and Fort Worth would meet with him next Tuesday to tell their side of the controversy. He has talked previously with Southwest Airline officials and Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, author of the bill.

Clements said he had chosen two new members of the State Commission of the Blind, which he hoped would "straighten out what I have said before was a mess." He said the new members would be Emmett Moore of Houston and Susan Fisher of Dallas. A new chairman of the commission will be elected shortly, he said.

Jury Returns Guilty Verdict

PLAINVIEW — A 242nd district court jury pronounced Clifford John Clark, 22, of Plainview guilty of manslaughter in the slaying of Mario Alberto Alejandro, 27, of Lubbock.

The jury assessed a 10-year prison sentence at about 6:20 p.m. Wednesday after deliberating two hours and 45 minutes following a guilty verdict during the first phase of the trial.

Governors To Discuss Aliens

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he hopes to reach agreement with governors of Arizona, New Mexico and California on solutions to the problems of illegal aliens, drug smuggling and energy shortages.

Governors of the four states will meet June 21-22 near Brownsville.

Clements said his office had circulated alternative position papers on the undocumented workers who flow into border states from Mexico. He refused to discuss details of his proposals until the conference.

"We want to establish a position for all the states and take that position into Mexico for meetings with our Mexican counterparts," the governor told his weekly news conference.

"We are keeping them (Mexican officials) informed now, and neither is our State Department uninformed," he added.

"We are going to document the undocumented workers," he said of the illegal alien problem. "I'm talking about documenting them on both sides the river. Mexico is just as interested in this as we are. At issue is how do we do it."

ANCIENT MURDER SUSPECT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A 109-year-old former slave who allegedly killed a farmer he claims attempted to kidnap his granddaughter, has asked a court to free him because he was acting in self-defense, his attorney said Thursday. Delio Cezar, attorney for Joao Soares de Almeida, said his client told a judge in a pre-trial hearing in the southern city of Londrina that he shot Antonio Dario de Matos in 1977 because he and his granddaughter were in danger. Cezar also said his client contends he is really 136 years old, but was given an incorrect birth certificate by authorities.

Five Hospitalized After Area Crash

Five area residents remained hospitalized, late Thursday, as a result of a car-pickup truck collision that injured six persons Wednesday afternoon on Texas 214, about 11 miles north of Muleshoe.

Laura Jesko, 11, of Muleshoe remained in critical condition Thursday night at Methodist Hospital with head injuries suffered in the crash. Her 16-year-old sister, Angelea, and her mother, Brenda Collier Jesko, 35, both were listed in satisfactory condition at Methodist.

Another sister, Ginger, 7, remained in good condition late Thursday in Muleshoe's West Plains Hospital.

The driver of the pickup, Joe Nanez, 51, of Friona, was listed in good condition at the Muleshoe hopsital. His 9-year-old son, Jessie Manuel, was treated and released from the hospital Wednesday.

Department of Public Safety reports show that the vehicles, both traveling on Texas 214, collided almost head-on about 350 feet north of the highway's intersection with FM 145.

Tech Summer Enrollment Shows Slight Increase

Late enrollment for the first summer session term at Texas Tech will end today.

University officials report that 7,485 students have signed up for summer classes, up from last year's first-day registration figure of 7,431.

Official enrollment last year for the first summer term was 7,713 and registration officials expect this year's final total to be about the same.

Controls--Here We Go Again?

MORE AND MORE, the hints are being dropped that "if everything else fails, we may have to go to mandatory wage and price controls..."

That refrain, usually heard from economists, business leaders and lower echelon politicians, now finds a degree of credibility among some of the Carter Administration's top officials.

With the recent court decision striking down the administration's "punitive" punishment of firms which do not go along with the President's "voluntary" guidelines, the talk has increased.

PART OF THE basis for the talk is the continuing high rate of inflation, now running at near 14 percent on an annual basis.

The Carter Administration had predicted the rate for this year in the vicinity of 7.4 percent.

In mid-May, however, Treasury Sec. W. Michael Blumenthal admitted that the administration had miscalculated in its initial prediction. He raised the estimate to at least 8.5 percent.

Privately, however, some top White House people have been anonymously credited with saying that the nation would be lucky to attain even that goal, high by historic standards.

IN ADMITTING the administration's "goof," Blumenthal held little hope for a quick change.

"We can look forward to bad inflation figures for several months," he said, while insisting that "real improvement" would be apparent by early fall.

There are many, both in the political and private sector, who still expect President Carter to order some sort of mandated controls despite his oft-repeated opposition to such a move.

It is argued that the President, either late this Fall or early in 1980, could impose controls on a "limited" basis. The freeze on wages and prices would be in effect during the 1980 Presidential election campaign. And while an obvious issue, at least Mr. Carter would have the fact that the price rise would have been stopped temporarily.

WHILE THIS might be a dubious ploy, most nationwide polls in recent weeks have shown that a majority of the public either expects or favors mandatory controls.

The surveys show that most consumers anticipate even higher living costs in the months ahead. The spiraling price of gasoline hasn't soothed ruffled budgets.

Actually, much more is involved than rising prices. The cost of government itself, thus the added fuel for more inflation is at issue. The fact that mandatory controls have seldom, if ever, worked in 4,000 years of recorded history—and they have been tried many times during that doesn't seem to deter modern "fixits" or the masses.

AN EDITORIAL:

Buying A Piece Of Freedom

IT MAY SEEM repetitious, but a ceremony observed this week on the shores of Normandy in France is one which should be perpetuated and forever kept in the minds—and hearts—of Americans everywhere.

We refer to the ceremonies marking the 35th anniversary of the American D-Day, the invasion to liberate Europe from the scourge of Nazism June 6, 1944.

This year, the man in immediate charge of those who scaled the beaches and craggy cliffs, many giving their lives, was on hand to salute their memory.

HE WAS GEN. Omar Bradley, "the soldier's soldier."

"It took more than guts to climb those cliffs," Bradley said from his wheelchair at Pointe du Hoc, France, Wednesday. "Let us pay honor to those men and pray that there will always be people prepared to do the impossible. Theirs was a wonderful operation."

He was referring specifically to a raid by the Ranger Battalion to silence German guns thought to be threatening the Allied landing forces.

Today, in the wake of the Korean conflict and the Vietnam War, patriotism seems to be a commodity in short supply among some people in this nation.

There are those who not only question the wisdom of the Southeast Asian conflict, but any war, past, present or future.

We have no argument with the thesis that war, per se, is wrong and should be avoided at almost all costs. But, we do not hold that all wars as fought by this nation would have better been avoided, even the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

The problems there were not in seeking to fight for something, or against a threat to freedom even far removed from our shores, but the manner in which it was conducted.

IN THIS DAY of nuclear weapons and instant annihilation, the Ultimate War is unthinkable.

But, if this nation and its citizens are ever again given the choice of surrendering their birthright, their freedom, their way of life, their right to a choice of what sort of government they want, then the price of resistance indeed must be accepted. In brief, we must defend this nation, and all it stands for.

Had others not done this, including those on the beaches at Normandy, none of our lives would be the same today. That, in brief, is what those men "with guts" bought with their lives.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Quota System Really 'Social Engineering'

WASHINGTON—What do you do when government breaks the law?

The problem, as Victor Lasky put it, didn't start with Watergate. And it didn't end with Watergate, either. In fact, whole segments of the Federal government have been involved in breaking the law on a daily basis for upwards of a decade, as a matter of deliberate and conscious policy.

The law in question is the Civil Rights Act of 1964, hailed as a great advance for human liberty when it was written, but blandly ignored, in key particulars, ever since.

The official action made illegal by this statute is the imposition of racial, ethnic and other quotas, or any form of "racial balance," in the name of civil rights.

As we know, such concepts are promoted continuously by Federal courts and bureaucrats, in the form of racial balance busing in the public schools, and through "affirmative action" programs in hiring and admissions policies.

ZEALOUS PURSUIT of quotas by Federal courts and agents of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has caused tremendous turmoil across the country. Local communities have been torn apart by busing controversies.

Bitter legal wrangles, as in the Bakke and De Funis cases, have wracked the world of higher education. Colleges and businesses have complained that hiring and other policies are virtually being dictated by the Federal government.

All of this is "quotas," pure and simple. The courts and executive agents promoting such things dress up their conduct in the language of "affirmative action," "relieving discrimination," "goals" and "timetables," but changing the name can't change the substance.

For better than 10 years now, the Federal establishment has been pursuing quotas and racial balances by every avenue available to it.

As Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, reminds us, this social engineering policy is directly contrary to the law of the land as written by the Congress. In a recent presentation to the upper chamber, Hatch rehearsed the legislative history of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the very act that is cited by the Federal bureaucrats as authority for their behavior.

HE OBSERVED that the text of the law, and the numerous comments of its sponsors, made it crystal clear that quotas and racial balance formulas were specifically to be rejected.

Among the sponsors denouncing the idea of quotas, and stressing that the law would prohibit them, were Sens. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, George McGovern of South Dakota, Jacob Javits of New York, Clifford Case of New Jersey, and Reps. Emmanuel Celler, John Lindsay, and Charles Goodell, all of New York.

Rep. Celler, then Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a leading congressional liberal, put the matter this way:

"(A Federal) court could not order that any preference be given to a particular race, religion, or other group but would be limited to ordering an end to discrimination.

"The statement that a Federal inspector could order the employment and promotion only of a member of a specific racial or religious group is therefore patently erroneous."

SIMILAR ASSURANCES were given by other sponsors of the bill—all of which have since been blasted galley-west by the performance of the bureaucrats. So, how do we make the government obey the law?

Sen. Hatch believes he has an answer: A bill (S. 575), which could spell out in no uncertain terms that present executive orders aimed at achieving quotas are illegal, and that henceforth all "goals, quotas, timetables or other numerical objectives" are forbidden as tools of Federal policy in civil rights disputes.

The Hatch proposal is a good, if limited, idea. It is confined to executive agencies and does not involve the courts. And it is focused chiefly on employment rather than on education.

It is, however, an excellent beginning toward solution of the problem, and if adopted could take us far toward restoration of respect for law.

"ON ENERGY ... IT IS NECESSARY TO STOP AGGRAVATING THE PROBLEM BY BLAMING ONE ANOTHER..."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Carter's 'Last Chance'

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A daring scenario to save Jimmy Carter's presidency is being sketched by high officials in his administration who glumly concede chances are he would never accept it.

This scenario for survival would have President Carter go on nationwide prime-time television in the very near future and say, in effect:

This country can ill afford dependency on Persian Gulf oil, subject to OPEC's constantly rising prices and the politics of Arab sheikhs.

The only real alternative is coal, but that requires radical relaxation of the environmental standards. Therefore, tonight I am suspending the Clean Air Act for four months and asking Congress to suspend it for a full five years.

Even if Congress went along, the proposal would enter a thicket of state environmental regulations. No details for this hazardous journey have been worked out.

But the dramatic impact is undeniable. Carter could declare that by unleashing this nation's potential as the Saudi Arabia of coal, he had struck a blow for U.S. freedom, both economic and diplomatic.

Over those five years, coal would yield the equivalent of millions of barrels of oil. The American people at long last would be making a practical sacrifice with a concrete payoff.

Instead of being begged to limit trips to the supermarket to no avail, they would be asked to endure more air pollution in order to enjoy great benefits.

If frosting be needed for this rich cake, the President might accompany it with a cabinet reshuffle, putting new faces in charge of economic and energy policy. A new-look Economic Policy Group is, therefore, part of the scenario.

THIS SCENARIO, or one quite similar, is regarded as essential to the President's survival by knowledgeable cabinet members, presidential advisers and well-wishers outside the administration. Nor is there much room for variation, coal is the only answer, and that means environmental relaxation.

Yet, pessimism pervades among them that the President will act this way at all, much less in time. The reasons help explain Carter's present fix.

The heart of the problem is Jimmy Carter himself, the fact he is so many persons at once.

While by instinct a conservative and by education an engineer who can appreciate the coal-environmental-energy equation, he is also a populist—and an environmentalist. Air pollution would be too high a price for Carter the environmentalist to pay.

THE PRESIDENT'S aides agree, partly because they—perhaps alone in all the world—simply do not see the need for drastic action. There is a sense of lethargy, not energy at the White House, reveals one insider who sees the aides there as "worn-down" and "desensitized."

Moreover, these aides stubbornly insist that Carter's principal peril lies within the Democratic party and, consequently, requires that liberal constituency groups be handled with care.

Yet, all evidence is that these groups are [illegible] him now. In Democratic congressional cloakrooms, Carter is savaged not by conservatives and moderates, but by liberals.

This is what up-and-coming Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma tried to tell the President in a half-hour private meeting May 25. Having shared the agony of one Democratic President a decade ago as an aide to Lyndon B. Johnson, Jones told Carter he is committed to the success of Presidents—especially this one.

WHILE CARTER is denigrated by liberals, Jimmy Jones honestly believes he can be an excellent President—if Carter puts his faith in his own policies and in moderate conservative supporters such as Jones.

The starting point, in Jones' opinion, is for the President to truly embrace oil decontrol and the accompanying excess-profits tax as originally proposed.

But Carter the populist collides here with Carter the conservative. He originally turned down recommendations from three cabinet members—James Schlesinger (Energy), Michael Blumenthal (Treasury) and Cyrus Vance (State) for a dramatic, immediate decontrol, opting instead for a gradual plan.

Then, taunted by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter virtually invited Congress to undo his own plan.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

The Hess Story...

RUDOLF HESS, Nazi deputy fuhrer under Adolf Hitler, parachuted from his plane near Dungavel, Scotland, May 10, 1941. It was World War II's most astounding and mysterious news story.

My newspaper sent me to see Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Privately, he told me the facts—although not for publication at that time.

After the No. 2 Nazi landed in Scotland, Churchill had Hess transported to London. Churchill told me: "I fought off like a tiger my curiosity to see Hess personally. If I myself saw Hess, Stalin never would have forgiven me. Too suspicious."

Instead, Churchill selected as interrogator Foreign Office Official Ivone A. Kirkpatrick, second under the ambassador at Britain's Berlin embassy. Kirkpatrick found Hess excited and voluble, but not insane. Churchill remarked: "He was as sane as you or I."

CHURCHILL SAID: "Hess, 47, a competent pilot, had 50 hours flying time in advanced aircraft. He was due May 1 for a refresher course at Willie Messerschmitt's aircraft factory at Augsburg, near Munich.

"By coincidence, a secret Messerschmitt experimental fighter, converted for long-range reconnaissance, shared the hangar with Hess' own plane—Messerschmitt telling Hess it made a record-breaking flight to Barcelona.

"Hess saw the secret aircraft daily, building up the pressure behind his dreams. Finally, on Messerschmitt factory stationery, he wrote Hitler and his wife. In both letters Hess stated that if he (or Hitler) could 'explain things to Britain's leadership,' England would stop fighting the Nazis and turn against the Soviet Union."

HITLER, ALWAYS brushing aside Hess' dream, repeatedly tried to talk him out of it. But by the ninth day the pressure, and the secret Messerschmitt's ability to reach Scotland, caused Hess to pull his rank on the two patrol officers and fly it off.

Churchill told me that Hess flew too low for detection by Britain's radar. Hess could not risk landing at a Royal Air Force airport. He bailed out, landing in a clump of trees.

Churchill said Hess had in the cockpit only a map circling Dungavel in red crayon and a loaded revolver. The Nazis claimed subsequently that Hess' fuel ran out on a secret mission to the Nazi's Dublin consulate. This was false.

Hess, uninjured, encountered a Scot farmer, asking him to take him to the Duke of Hamilton's estate. The Duke, the only important person Hess knew, was completely baffled by Hess wanting to see him.

THE U.S. not yet in the war, my newspaper sent me from England to Germany to find Frau Hess. I located her with her children outside Berlin.

Frau Hess told me that Hitler, learning the news, immediately summoned her to Berchtesgaden. She said Hitler thought her husband had defected, his first words being: "Why was Rudolf unhappy? I would have given him anything he wanted."

Hess' flight saved his life. By leaving Germany so early, he was detached from enough Nazi war crimes to escape the death penalty at the Nuremberg trials.

Hess, now 85, is the only inmate left in Spandau Prison.

JAY HARRIS:

The New Mood...

HAVE THE American people given up on themselves?

Has the nation, with its vast bureaucracy and diverse demands made upon it, reached the point where it is ungovernable?

Is President Carter the cause or the victim of a society whose aspirations are muddled by an unwillingness to make the necessary sacrifices to survive?

Or is the Average American—those who make up the middle, mostly silent majority—just waiting for some Moses to lead them out of the wilderness?

In view of what is happening on a number of fronts, and has happened in recent years, those are legitimate questions. A lot of people, from those in the White House to those in line at the corner gas station, have a stake in the answers.

IN THE HIGH mountains of New Mexico or the Shangri-la like setting of India's Kanha National Park, the problems of the world seem far away.

But, only a stone's throw away from such quiet moments with nature, we have heard an oft-repeated phrase of late. It runs thus:

"It doesn't do any good to worry about things. There's nothing that can be done about them anyway..."

The comment usually punctuates the end of a conversation or observation about the state of affairs in the world in general, U.S. relations abroad, the Carter Administration and government bureuacracy, the energy crisis and inflation.

In brief, no one has concrete answers for what ails us. That in itself is untypical of America.

BUT, SUCH a defeatist attitude can be found almost around the globe today.

In the past few days, several major publications and pundits have examined what The Wall Street Journal refers to as "The Decline-and-Fall Mood." Predictably, everyone from Newsweek to The WSJ to Time and U.S. News & World Report arrive at different conclusions.

But, not as different as one might suppose.

In examinging the mood of America in this summer of discontent the prevailing opinion seems to be that while things are bad, they have been worse, and may get that way again.

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., the Pulitzer Prize winner who still holds to the argument that liberalism and Democrats per se aren't bad, had his say. The issue, he says, is plain enough: "We have the problems, but we don't have the solutions. Or rather the solutions at hand don't work."

THE MAN WHO knew the Kennedys probably as well as any "outsider," makes the point that all too often we diagnose the available remedy rather than the problem.

He argues that while these aren't the best of times, neither are they the worst. The Great Depression, Pearl Harbor, "even the Vietnam War" were worse. In some wys, he makes a good case. But, while he makes the point that the nation has the resources and leadership to right itself, he negates it by casting doubt that the private market alone can "solve our perplexities" or that heavy federal spending is a major culprit in inflation.

The WSJ takes a somewhat different tack, arguing that President Carter may be caught between the horns of two dilemmas...

On the one hand, Mr. Carter is perceived by a majority of the electorate as a flawed President, incapable of setting and holding to a true couese. On the other, "Jimmy Carter is a good man and skillful politician who is the latest victim of an ungovernable society."

THE PRESTIGIOUS financial paper says there there is considerable truth in both statements.

To us, President Carter's major problem is that he tries to steer too many courses, please too many people, achieve too many goals, some of which are unrealistic—such as his "human rights" crusade—and that he makes promises that he knows, or should know, can't be kept.

In brief, Mr. Carter has been defeated by the very bureaucracy which he had hoped to conquer or change.

Also, the WSJ makes a key point, which should be remembered when election time comes around. The paper says, "Mr. Carter has had a very special problem that has very little to do with the difficulties of governing or the matter of reconciling differences. He is, after all, a Democrat, the choice and nominal leader of this nation's more liberal party, the natural home of the proponents of governmental expansion, more sweeping social programs, income redistribution, social regulation and all the other initiatives that have made government so big, powerful and costly. He is his party's President at a time when the party's traditional stance has lost favor with the voters."

BUT, THE real problem goes much deeper.

It is true that we have faced much worse times and challenges, including war and depression. It is also true that although America remains a land of affluency and promise, some major changes in the way we live is in order.

But, the major problem seems to be a growing belief that this nation may have hit its peak, that western civilication as we know it is headed downhill and that truly there is nothing the individual can do about it.

Part of that feeling, we think, has been brought about by the fact that for some 30 years, at least, we have not had strong leaders, really great statesmen, with an exception or two. A people, to aspire to greater things, must be made to feel those goals can be accomplished.

There is no question but that we face major problems. A nation which refuses to inject discipline and sacrifice into its personal and national life style cannot survive. All of the problem is not with our leaders. An informed, responsible citizenry also has a role to play. If it doesn't, then the worst forecasts of the doom and gloom soothsayers may become a reality.

Muzorewa Criticizes Carter On Sanctions

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Methodist clergyman who is this nation's first black prime minister, said Thursday a decision by President Carter to continue economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia was an "inhuman decision" by a "committed Christian."

Muzorewa, who took office last week, discussed the future of his embattled southern African land in an interview with The Associated Press.

He expressed disappointment about a newspaper report quoting congressional sources as saying Carter would recommend against lifting the economic sanctions. Later, Carter announced he would keep the sanctions in force because he did not believe the recent Rhodesian elections "were either fair or free."

The Carter administration's decision "seems to discourage the democratic way of life which I believe I learned from your country," said Muzorewa, who had five years of religious training in the United States.

"To be honest and frank with you, it's very unfortunate and most disappointing if that's going to be his decision," Muzorewa said.

The prime minister, a bishop of the United African Methodist Church, said he was most disappointed that "a committed Christian like him (Carter) .. would reach this unfortunate decision, one I would almost call inhuman in the sense that this country is suffering because of sanctions against its people."

The sanctions against economic dealings with Rhodesia were imposed by the United States and other countries after the all-white Salisbury government unilaterally declared independence from Britain in 1965. The U.N. Security Council called on all nations to impose such embargoes.

BISHOP ABEL MUZOREWA

The Post report said Carter might reconsider his decision if the new government gained a wider base of support.

The Carter administration rejected the April elections, in which Muzorewa's United African National Council won a majority of seats in the new 100-member Parliament. U.S. observers endorsed the election, which brought an end to almost a century of white-minority rule.

Black nationalist guerrilla leaders operating from guerrilla bases in Zambia and Mozambique were invited to join negotations for transition to black majority rule, but refused. They have vowed to topple the government because it reserves more than one-quarter of the Parliament seats for whites and leaves whites in control of the security forces, courts and civil service.

Seated at a table in the large Salisbury office he inherited only a week ago from Ian Smith and seven other white prime ministers before him, Muzorewa defended the legitimacy of his government and spoke harshly of his critics.

The prime minister, dressed in a blue suit and tie, in contrast to his usual clerical collar, lashed out with strong criticism for another clergyman, Andrew Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Muzorewa said Young, the Carter Administration's most outspoken opponent of the new Salisbury regime, is "absolutely out of base, just intoxicated with emotionalism."

"He's appeasing Africa and especially appeasing Nigeria," Muzorewa said, adding sarcastically: "Perhaps he has been bribed by Nigeria. We don't know, because there is a lot of bribery there."

Young is an ordained Congregationalist minister.

Muzorewa branded the Carter administration and other critics of the first cross-border raid by the new government into Mozambique this week as "nothing but hypocrites." He indicated such attacks would continue.

The prime minister said that after his election he had sent offers of peace to neighboring states and guerrilla leaders, but had received no reply.

"I extend the hand of friendship to my neighbors and say, 'Let us live peacefully. The response I get is intensification of attacking my people, who have got their elected government, so I find myself in the position of self-defense," he said.

Muzorewa also criticized the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, once Muzorewa's partner in the preparations for a black-majority government. Sithole pulled out of the government, charging the April elections were rigged.

"I think he's a totally confused man ... as far as I'm concerned he's deteriorating very fast to a spent force," the prime minister said of Sithole.

Muzorewa declined to comment on allegations made by his minister of law and order, Francis Zindoga, that widespread detentions of Sithole followers were related to an assassination plot against the bishop. "I'd just like to say," he added cryptically, "just keep your ears open."

Service Stations Face Scrutiny Of Conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — Service stations that sell gasoline to preferred customers or require motorists to purchase products or services to get fuel may be violating federal pricing regulations, the Energy Department said Thursday.

Regulations prohibit special treatment to preferred classes of customers, such as credit card holders, cash-paying motorists, or regular customers, said David J. Bardin, head of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration.

Also barred are tie-in sales that require a motorist to purchase car washes, food, auto accessories or repairs in order to get gasoline, said Bardin, who added that his agency is investigating such practices.

Jerky, or jerked beef, is a corruption of the Chilean word "charqui," meat cut into strips and dried in the sun.

Guerrillas Battle With Guardsmen

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas surrounded national guard garrisons in three cities Thursday and battered them with heavy gunfire, residents said. The growing civil war threatened to embroil at least seven other Latin American nations.

The guerrillas claimed over their clandestine radio station they had the capital surrounded and controlled seven Nicaraguan cities. The broadcasts also claimed guerrilla forces in the south had killed 300 national guardsmen and brought down five guard warplanes in five days of fierce fighting.

A national guard source said a relief column, trying to reach the beleaguered garrison at Leon, the country's second largest city 54 miles northwest of Managua, was called back to the capital because fighting erupted in Matagalpa in the north and Masaya in the south.

"A new offensive is being planned to retake Leon, but it will be a much larger force," the guard source said. He declined to be identified.

Leon, Masaya and Matagalpa residents reached by telephone said Sandinista rebels, fighting to topple President Anastasio Somoza, had bottled up guard forces in their garrisons and controlled the towns.

The rebel Radio Sandino claimed the guerrillas controlled Matagalpa and Leon, as well as the western cities of Chichigalpa and Somotillo and the northwestern cities of Esteli, Chinandega and Ocotal. They also claimed to control parts of the jungle province of Nueva Segovia on the east coast.

The rebel broadcasts, monitored in San Jose, Costa Rica, warned commerical airlines to stop flying over Nicaragua while the fighting continues and to cancel all stops at Managua's international airport. Another broadcast asked citizens to begin digging air raid shelters and to black out their homes at night.

The rebel radio also reported heavy fighting in the southern cities of Granada, Diriamba, and Jinotepe but it could not be confirmed.

Telephone communication outside of Managua, paralyzed by a general strike, were difficult and most roads leading out of the capital city of 500,000 people were blocked.

Journalists who tried to enter Masaya were driven back by sniper fire from national guardsmen in the cathedral tower.

An armored car's cannon boomed from in front of the garrison and automatic weapon bursts could be heard. Bullets fired by the guard snipers ricocheted off walls in the street.

Woman Falls Victim To Couple's Assault

A woman found lying in front of a house early Thursday morning told police she was forced into a car and driven out of the city, where she was raped by a man and sexually assaulted by the man's female companion.

The 21-year-old woman said she was walking on 34th Street shortly before midnight Wednesday when the man drove up, jumped out of his car and forced her inside the vehicle at knifepoint.

The man and a woman also in the car then drove the victim to a dirt road off FM 1585, about two miles east of Quirt Avenue. The victim told police the man raped her in the back seat of the car while the other woman watched.

Then she said the man held her while his female companion sexually assaulted her. The woman said that after the man assaulted her again, she was driven back into the city and let out of the car.

The woman was examined at Health Sciences Center Hospital. She described her male assailant as black, between 36 and 45, tall and muscular. He wore a black leisure suit, black floppy hat and dark shirt.

The woman assailant was described as a young Mexican-American, tall and of medium build. She was wearing a blue satin jumpsuit.

Several thefts of hubcaps and tires were reported to police Thursday. A Lubbock man said that the four hubcaps from his car, valued at $400, were stolen Wednesday evening while he was inside a club on North University Avenue.

Charles W. Johnson, 48, of 2417 E. 28th St. told police the hubcaps from his car, valued at $450, were stolen between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. Thursday while the car was parked at his residence.

A Ralls man told police Thursday that someone loosened the lug nuts on his right front tire of his car while it was parked at 1700 Ave. G Wednesday evening. When Oscar Esparza, 24, drove off with the loosened tire, he said he heard a loud scraping noise and then a loud crack when the wheel spindle broke. Damage was estimated at $200.

Boy Drowns After Falling From Bridge

An 11-year-old Lubbock youth drowned Thursday evening when he fell from a small bridge into one of the Canyon Lakes.

Reginald Williams, son of Beatrice Williams of 2105 E. Fourth St., No. 28, fell into the lake at 23rd Street and Oak Avenue at about 7:10 p.m. Thursday.

"We were walking across the bridge when he slipped into the water," said Williams' half brother, William Davis, 8. "We tried to pull him up, but we couldn't reach him."

The boy said his half brother knew how to swim, but that he didn't surface after he fell in.

One of the four boys who were with the drowning victim ran to nearby Mae Simmons Community Center, where police were called.

Fire Department Rescue team members and divers from Rescue and Recovery searched the lake for 40 minutes before Williams' body was found — directly under the walk bridge.

"The fire department had already searched under the bridge once, but they concentrated their search mostly with the current to the east of it," said one of the divers who found the boy's body. "We found him in a little pocket under there."

The boy was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy. The body was taken to South Plains Funeral Home.

'Dead' Airman Found Alive, Lost Again

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Air Force sent agents to the Galveston area Thursday to investigate missing Staff Sgt. Wilmer W. Higgs Jr. — a man who is officially dead as far as military authorities are concerned.

Meanwhile, legal officers at Lackland Air Force Base here are dusting off unused regulations in an attempt to determine exactly how to declare Higgs alive should if Force authorities find him alive and decide to press desertion charges.

And to top it all off, FBI officials — no longer officially involved in the matter — said Thursday they don't know where Higgs is any more.

The whole mess began Wednesday when local and federal authorities said Higgs is living and working in the Galveston area, 18 months after he mysteriously disappeared New Year's Eve 1977 from the all-night Exxon station where he moonlighted. San Antonio police had considered it a robbery-homicide.

A statewide search, bolstered by a $1,000 reward from Exxon, turned up the sergeant's car in the San Antonio River, but never uncovered a body. The Air Force declared Higgs "officially deceased" on Jan. 20, 1978 and an undetermined amount of death and insurance benefits was later paid to his "widow," Carolyn. A memorial service was held for him April 24, 1978 in Vidor.

The FBI agent who began the investigation two months ago said Wednesday that he's convinced Higgs is alive and working in the Galveston area as a carpenter. The agent, who asked to remain anonymous, traced Higgs through at least two other jobs in Southeast Texas in which the missing sergeant allegedly used the name, "Johnny Newman."

If Higgs is indeed alive, he could face theft charges in San Antonio and desertion charges from the Air Force. Military authorities must also determine if fraud was involved in connection with the money paid to Higgs' "widow."

The whole thing might be academic, however, if Higgs is found and it's determined he has been suffering from amnesia, said an Air Force spokesman who also requested anonymity.

The Air Force's Office of Special Investigations sent two agents to Southeast Texas on Thursday to consult with local and federal authorities to determine if Higgs is alive — the first step or the Air Force, said Lackland spokesman Joe McAnally.

He could be apprehended as AWOL while still officially dead, but must be declared alive again before any prosecution on desertion charges, added McAnally.

The problem, meanwhile, is that no law enforcement authorities had actually apprehended Higgs by Thursday afternoon. An FBI official, who also asked to remain anonymous, said, "We no longer know of the current whereabouts of this man. We are no longer involved in this investigation, although we may be asked to get back in it."

The FBI, the official said, backed out after determining Higgs was alive and submitting its findings to the U.S. Attorney's office in San Antonio. The spokesman said Justice Department officials ruled there is not yet an apparent federal violation falling under FBI jurisdiction. The FBI, therefore, turned the case over to San Antonio police and military authorities.

The police, at the request of Exxon, are waiting to see what the military plans to do before deciding if any theft charges should be filed, Sgt. O.J. Meissner said Thursday.

"Officially he's dead," McAnally said of Higgs. "Our legal people are now studying ways to declare him alive. It might have happened before in the Air Force, but not to any of us."

Higgs wife and the couple's two daughters lived in the Vidor-Beaumont area during the time the FBI report said Higgs was wrking in that vicinity, according to the manager of apartments where he woman lived. Higgs father, W.W. Higgs Sr., who also lives in Vidor, confirmed that.

Mrs. Higgs, who moved to Hawaii last summer, said Wednesday night when contacted about it, "I found out this morning, but I am just too upset right now to talk about it. I have no comment to make.

She refused comment to other questions and hung up.

In Vidor, Higgs father, when asked point blank, said he had not seen his son since the disappearance. He also said he wasn't aware of any contact between his son and daughter-in-law during that time.

"I'm extremely happy. Frankly, I never felt he was dead. I never had given up on him. If the law has found him, I would certainly like to know where he is," added Higgs.

Higgs said his daughter-in-law had received death and insurance benefits, but said he didn't know exactly how much. Death benefits for a staff sergeant, said Air Force officials, are about $3,000. That does not include any life insurance policies.

Multinational Voting Begins In Europe

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Europeans began voting Thursday in the world's first multinational election, choosing a continental Parliament many have dreamed of for years as a first step toward a United States of Europe.

The voting was light, apparently because of apathy and ignorance of the issues involved.

Violence struck on the first of three days of balloting when terrorists lobbed a hand grenade into a school being used as a polling place in Belfast, Northern Ireland. Police said the attackers also raked the building with gunfire, but there were no injuries.

Authorities blamed the attack on the outlawed Irish Republican Army, long opposed to British and Irish membership in the European Common Market.

More than 180 million voters are eligible to elect the new Parliament, an advisory body of the Common Market. Voting Thursday were Britain, Ireland, Denmark and the Netherlands.

Greenland — which recently gained home rule but is part of Denmark for purposes of the election — votes Saturday. Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy and Luxembourg vote Sunday.

Individual nations' representation in the 410-member Parliament is in approximate proportion to population. Counting begins late Sunday and results are not expected to be known until Wednesday.

Some famous names in the running include Willy Brandt, former chancellor of West Germany; Otto von Hapsburg, son of Austria's last emperor and member of the rightist Christian Social Union of West Germany; Bernandette Devlin McAliskey, who campaigns against British rule in Northern Ireland, and Enrico Berlinguer, chief of Italy's Communist Party.

The European Parliament replaces a 198-seat organization whose members were nominated by individual governments.

The latest opinion polls carried out jointly in the nine member countries indicate socialists will be the larget group in the new assembly, but no single group is expected to gain an overall majority.

The dreams of such men as Sir Winston Churchill for a united Europe one day, patterned after the United States, seem not to have infected most voters.

But former British Prime Minister Edward Heath appeared to rise to the occasion, saying, "I can think of no greater step taken in the lifetime of our generation. Europe is making history and the world is watching us."

When North American Indians played lacrosse, up to 1,000 players would take part in a single game.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My wife and I are 40. We both work and have what I am sure is considered "above average" income. But, because of taxes and cost of education — two children in college, two younger — we can't get ahead. We do have $15,000 in savings certificates, due to mature in two years.

I am considering borrowing from the bank where we have the savings certificates. The interest cost would be two percent more than the interest the bank is paying on the certificates. We would then use the borrowed money to buy municipal bonds, which pay tax-free interest.

After paying the interest on the loan and deducting it on our income tax return, we would come out ahead — because we would not have to pay tax on the interest from the municipal bonds. Is there any flaw in my plan?

A. Unfortunately, yes. If you get caught doing what you plan, you'll be in big trouble with the Internal Revenue Service. You are not allowed to take a tax deduction for interest on money borrowed to buy tax-free municipal bonds.

The revenooers get very sticky on this subject. Not so long ago, the IRS proposed that no one should be allowed to take a tax deduction for any interest on any loan — even a home mortgage — while collecting tax-free interest from municipal bonds.

That caused such an uproar that the IRS pulled in its horns about any such blanket action. But the tax collectors can and do crack down on individual situations.

Your plan wouldn't hold up, if the revenooers come calling. The money you used to buy municipal bonds could be directly linked to the money you borrowed. The interest on your loan would be disallowed as a tax deduction.

Q. A year and a half ago, I purchased 300 shares of one stock and 150 shares of another. The broker holds my stock and sends me a monthly print-out statement. I can't tell if I am paying for this "service." How can I find out? Also, can I hold my own stock and have the dividends sent directly to me?

A. You can find out if you are paying a fee by either asking your broker or studying those statements carefully. If there is a charge, it has to be listed someplace — most likely on your year-end statement.

You have left your stock in "street name" — with the certificates registered in the name of the brokerage firm. Some brokerage houses charge for that. Some don't. Most charge for holding street name stock of "inactive accounts" — people who don't buy and sell often. Chances are, you're being charged.

Sure, you can hold your own stock. Just tell the broker you want the certifioates registered in your name and delivered to you. When you get them, put them in a safety deposit box or some other secure place.

Q. Friends of mine tell me that some banks issue relatively small denomination "bearer type" savings certificates, of which there are no records of the owners or the interest paid. I have not been able to locate them. Can you help?

A. Nope. Those things are no longer available. Face it, they were tax-dodges. After coming into being, about a year ago, they were banned.

Q. Am I correct in thinking that, if the U.S. Treasury defaulted on its Treasury Bills, there wouldn't be a banking system or a stock market left intact — meaning that the Treasury Department would be the last to go?

A. Yes, I'd call that a correct statement. Let's hope you're not all that worried. The world of investment and finance is not about to come to an end. Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Financiers Enter Guilty Pleas In Oil Stock Fraud

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men pleaded guilty Thursday to violating federal securities laws in a fraudulent scheme involving trading of shares in a Texas oil drilling firm.

The pleas were entered in U.S. District Court, Manhattan, by Francis Orofino, 74, a Manhattan financial consultant, and Frank Coppa, 37, of Staten Island.

It was alleged that the men gained a controlling interest in Tucker Drilling Co., of San Angelo, Texas, in 1974 by setting up a worthless "shell" corporation and later merging it with Tucker.

Both pleaded guilty to failure to disclose the fact that Tucker shares they traded were unregistered. They also admitted having paid bribes to brokers to induce them to push sales of the over-the-counter shares.

The prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney John S. Siffert, brought out that Tucker's management was among the innocent victims of the scheme. He said the defendants stopped trading in Tucker shares in 1975 and since then the company's stock has risen in value.

Orofino and Coppa face prison terms of up to two years and $10,000 fines when they appear on July 24 for sentencing by Judge Charles H. Tenney.

Stock Exchange President Hall Resigns Position

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert C. Hall has resigned as executive vice president of the New York Stock Exchange and will become president of a domestic communications satellite venture, it was announced Thursday.

Hall, 48, will become president and chief executive officer of Satellite Business Systems, a partnership sponsored by Aetna Life and Casualty Co., COMSAT General Corp. and IBM to establish an advanced domestic communications satellite system.

The NYSE said its board of directors "accepted with regret" Hall's resignation, effective July 16.

Hall was a vice president of Control Data Corp. before he came to Wall Street, where he played a key role in the computerization of the securities industry.

He was the first president of Securities Industry Automation Corp., a joint venture of the NYSE and American Stock Exchange, a post he held from 1972 until May 1977, when he became executive vice president of the NYSE.

"In the seven years he has been on Wall Street, Bob Hall has made an invaluable, indeed, pioneering contribution to the exchange, to the securities industry and to the investing public," said NYSE Chairman William M. Batten. "He will be greatly missed."

Crash Clouds Future Of DC-10 Builder

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern is growing over the future of McDonnell Douglas Corp., the maker of the grounded DC-10 plane.

In the aftermath of the Chicago crash that killed 275 persons two weeks ago, most Wall Street analysts assumed the DC-10s would be quickly back in the air and memory of the crash would fade rapidly.

But that hasn't happened. It now seems possible, although unlikely, that the crash will deal a fatal blow to the DC-10 and even to McDonnell Douglas' participation in the commerical aviation market.

"The whole thing really is a major blow to the company," said Wolfgang Demisch, who analyzes the aerospace industry for the Wall Street firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham.

"It's a little like Three Mile Island," he added. "Things keep getting worse and we keep getting canned public relations statements like, 'Nothing can go wrong, go wrong, go wrong.'"

The stock market has shown increasing concern over the DC-10, with McDonnell Douglas stock, which sold for as much as $40.50 a share during the last year, sliding from $28.25 the day before the Chicago crash to $20 at the end of trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchnge.

With the Federal Aviation Administration having suspended the DC-10's airworthiness certificate, Demisch and others think McDonnell Douglas may have to spend months, and millions of dollars, redesigning the engine pylons that have shown a tendency to crack.

There are some signs that substantial numbers of passengers were afraid to fly the plane during the brief period between the initial groundings and the latest FAA order. The pattern of reassurances being followed by new problems is similar to the early days of the nuclear accident at the Three Mile Island power plant in Pennsylvania, and Demisch thinks that could lead to worse problems for McDonnell Douglas.

No airlines have canceled orders for DC-10s yet, and it remains possible that McDonnell Douglas will emerge from its current problems with a plane certified as safe by the FAA and a net cost from the incident of under $20 million, including direct damages from the crash not covered by insurance and the cost of a simple fix. The costs could rise much higher.

Airlines now using the DC-10 have good reasons for sticking with it if they can. Replacing the 277 DC-10s now in the possession of the world's airlines would cost about $11 billion.

Even not buying more DC-10s would be costly for airlines that now own the planes, since they would have to duplicate service and spare parts facilities and pay to train crews on airplanes bought as substitutes.

The first challenge for McDonnell Douglas will be getting approval of a change to fix the problem. Then it and the airlines that own DC-10s will have to decide who will pay to fix each plane.

If and when that is done, it will be passengers who will largely decide the future of the plane. "After a period of time, when the publicity stops, people won't be willing to wait three or four hours just to not fly on a DC-10," predicts Robert Joedicke, an analyst for Lehman Brothers.

That may depend on whether the public comes to conclude the DC-10 problems are signs of poor design. The DC-10 suffered two previous fatal accidents, one in France when a cargo door latch failed and one in Los Angeles when two tires blew out during a takeoff attempt.

McDonnell Douglas would be highly profitable if its commercial aircraft operations vanished, but ending them would be expensive. Permanent grounding of the DC-10 would force the company to write off $500 million or more and bring lawsuits from airlines stuck with worthless planes.

Last year the company lost $60.3 million on commercial aicraft while making $23 million on military contracts. It is the largest defense contractor in the nation.

Besides the DC-10, the only commercial aircraft it is now producing is the DC-9.

Sales Tax Proceeds Get Breakdown By Bullock

AUSTIN (AP) — Individual consumers pay 38 percent of all sales taxes collected in Texas, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday.

The legal impact of the sales tax falls on retailers, who make the actual tax payments, Bullock said, but the portion of taxes paid by individuals has remained constant in the last four years.

Businesses pay about 58 percent of all sales taxes, he added.

Bullock said his estimates were based on an analysis of combined sales tax collections, which is the state's chief source of tax revenue.

Trustbusters Move Against Pipelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government trustbusters took a first step Thursday that could lead to ordering major oil companies to give up their petroleum pipelines.

The Federal Trade Commission decided to seek public comment on a request from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that it prohibit oil companies from owning the pipelines. The public comment will come before any FTC antitrust regulation.

Major oil companies now own most of the nation's petroleum pipelines, which move oil from wells to refineries and then to markets. They have vigorously opposed past proposals to remove the pipelines from their ownership.

Kennedy praised the FTC action, which he called "an extremely important step on behalf of the American public."

Kennedy, who as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee has been urging tough antitrust measures, said, "For over 70 years the pipeline ownership issue has been explored in report after report and study after study. The cost to consumers in excessive rate charges, inefficiency and loss of competition have been repeatedly documented. The resolution of this isse has been postponed too long."

Mike Waters, a spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute, took issue with Kennedy's statement that oil company ownership of pipelines affects prices paid by consumers for gasoline.

He said transportation by pipeline is one of the cheapest forms anywhere. "The price of sending one gallon of gasoline from Houston to New York is one-tenth as much as sending a one-ounce letter the same distance," he said.

The spokesman for the oil industry group said banning oil company ownership of pipelines would reduce competition in the field. In addition, he said regulation of rates insures that they are held to reasonable rates.

The rule requested by Kennedy would declare oil company ownership of pipelines to be "an unfair method of competition" and illegal under the antitrust laws. The FTC said it would like public comment on this position.

After the public comment, the commission staff is expected to report to the commisssion by the end of this year on what action it recommends.

Even if the commission issues a regulation barring continued oil company ownership of petroleum pipelines, appeals could be carried to the federal courts.

Kennedy has said federal regulation on profit rates on pipeline operation is a failure because the government does not say how big the pipeline can be. Kennedy contends this allows oil companies to build pipelines of a size that maximizes profits for the oil companies.

"Because pipeline capacity is not regulated, owners can evade rate regulation," Kennedy said in his January petition to the FTC. "The effect of such evasion is to raise prices to consumers and to discriminate against non-owner shippers by depriving them of adequate capacity and equitable rates," he said.

The FTC staff told the four commissioners in a memo that to issue the regulation Kennedy wants, the agency would have to have data showing that pipeline ownership enables oil companies to reap monopoly profits.

The staff also held that the commission has the legal authority to issue the regulation, which would be the FTC's first industry-wide regulation in the antitrust area. Previous industry regulations have been for consumer protection and the agency has pursued antitrust cases only against specific companies.

The Federal Register notice, approved unanimously by the commission, is expected within a week.

Board Gets Gas Well Request No. 10,000

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has received its 10,000th application to set pricing standards on natural gas wells under the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act.

Under federal Energy Regulatory Commission guidelines, the state agency must assign a price ceiling to all oil and gas wells in Texas.

Wells are assigned to a price category according to their location, production and other factors.

For example, the maximum June price on gas from new onshore wells drilled after Feb. 19, 1977, is $2.04 per thousand cubic feet (mcf). Wells drilled after that date and completed at a depth below 15,000 feet can bring prices of up to $2.19 per mcf.

Hearings have been conducted on 3,610 of the 10,000 applications.

Administration Backs Slurry Pipelines Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, seeking new ways to reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil, Thursday endorsed a controversial proposal to ship coal across state lines by pipeline.

White House support of a bill to clear legal obstacles blocking construction of such pipelines was announced at a news conference held by congressional advocates of the project.

Slurry, which is pulverized coal mixed with water, would be pumped from western coal fields to plants in the Southwest.

Supporters said coal could be burned at industrial boilers in the Southwest, helping to divert oil and gas to other parts of the nation and reduce overall petroleum consumption. "Unless you can get coal to the Southwest, where oil and gas are used as industrial fuels, you're not going to get that oil and gas to the rest of the nation," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas.

Similar coal-slurry legislation died during the last session of Congress. Sponsors blamed that defeat on White House indecisiveness and a heavy lobbying campaign by railroads, who view coal pipelines as unwanted competiton.

On Monday, President Carter reportedly told key congressional leaders that his administration is willing to support a variety of measures in Congress that would help boost U.S. energy production and reduce the nation's dependence on oil imports.

The coal-slurry bill is one component of this effort, the legislation's backers said.

The bill would grant coal pipeline companies eminent domain powers to acquire rights-of-way across federal and private lands, giving coal pipelines authority now accorded oil and gas pipelines.

Although the administration nominally supported the slurry bill last year, it insisted that the Energy, Interior and Transportation departments each have veto power over creation of such lines.

A squabble between Congress and the White House over agency jurisdiction helped kill the bill.

"I commend the president for his leadership in putting aside past positions and agreeing to support this legislation," said Eckhardt. He said a proposed Wyoming-Texas pipeline could be built by the early 1980s, if the measure is approved.

Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Texas, told reporters it costs as much as $18 a ton to ship $7-a-ton Wyoming coal by rail to San Antonio.

"This railroad monopoly should be broken," Kazen said.

Meanwhile, energy was a chief topic for discussion, Thursday, as Carter invited GOP members of Congress to a White House breakfast.

The president asked the Republicans for help on his energy program and legislation to implement the Panama Canal treaties, said House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona.

"No commitments were made. It was a good and useful meeting," Rhodes said.

Tank Truck Haulers Given Rate Increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission approved a 5 percent rate increase Thursday for about 60 motor carriers of tank trucks.

The vehicles haul mostly liquid petroleum products, petroleum by-products and petrochemicals.

The Texas Tank Truck Carriers Association and the Texas Bulk Carriers Association requested as much as a 7 percent rate hike on behalf of the truckers.

Signs Suggest Nation's Gas Crunch May Be Slacking Off

MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

Americans hitting the road this weekend probably won't have any major problems finding gasoline. Although many gas stations will be closed Saturday night and Sunday, those stations that are open should have plenty of gas.

And there are signs that the gas crunch is easing a bit.

On the whole, government and industry officials say the weekend will probably not be too much unlike the last couple of weekends, with sporadic spot shortages but no major problems.

"This weekend will be just like the last five or six weekends," said Bill Bell, president of the West Virginia Gasoline Dealers Association.

"There's nothing in the way of supply to make this weekend any different than the last several," said spokesman Lee Johnson of the federal energy office in Seattle.

The situation is not good in all areas. Most gas stations in Washington, D.C., will close Sunday, and Glenn Lashley of the Washington-area branch of the American Automobile Association said "availability is tighter, the tightest we've had."

Officials in many farm states say supplies of diesel fuel continue to be extremely tight as the delayed planting season sends diesel-powered tractors into the fields.

But in Connecticut, Michael Klein, a spokesman for the state chapter of the American Automobile Association, said "This may be one of our easier weekends."

One reason for that is that oil companies' inventories of gasoline rose by an unexpectedly large amount last week, according to the American Petroleum Institute, even though production fell off slightly.

This was partially expected because gasoline distributors were building up supplies in preparation for the beginning of June deliveries, and analysts say that those deliveries will probably mean that inventories will drop dramatically this week.

But it could also signify that Americans are staying off the roads, thus decreasing consumption of gasoline. Should that trend, which many analysts predicted on the basis of unusually light Memorial Day weekend traffic, continue, it could make gasoline relatively plentiful this summer.

One of the reasons for the drop in demand has been the steady increase in Saturday night and Sunday closings of gasoline stations. Close to two-thirds of the nation's gas stations will be closed for the weekend by 6 p.m. Saturday. They'll close because dealers are trying to spread their gas supplies through the month and because many dealers have found that business is so good during the week that they can take Sunday off.

Most oil companies have cut deliveries to stations in June to about 75 percent of what they were last year. Although percentage allocations in May were higher, dealers may get more gallons of gas in June than last month because gallon volume in June 1978 was higher than in May 1978.

Most dealers have been imposing some sort of self-rationing in an attempt to stretch the reduced supplies throughout the month, but there are fears that unless the demand slowdown continues, supplies could become tight again at month's end.

"If you're going to have any problems, they'll be during the last week of the month," said Harold Grindle, manager of the Northwest Ohio Gasoline Dealers Association. "That's the logical time for them to happen. But I don't anticipate any significant shortages then because most stations plan to limit their hours all month."

Schlesinger Sees More Gas In June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring any unforeseen disruptions in oil imports, gasoline supplies should increase this month, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Thursday.

"Gasoline supply availability will ease slightly from what it was in May," the secretary told reporters at a news conference.

Schlesinger attributed the increased supplies of gasoline to two factors:

— Refineries operating at 87 percent of capacity rather than 84 percent, as they were during the May shortage.

— Increased crude oil imports. They totaled about 5.8 million barrels a day recently, but this month will reach about six million to 6.2 million barrels a day, he said.

Schlesinger said gasoline supplies should be from 95 to 96 percent of the amount available in June 1978, he said.

"The world oil supply situation continues to be the driving force behind the domestic problem," he said.

"If we can operate at 87 percent of refinery utilization capacity, we should be able to have adequate supplies of gasoline this summer," he added.

At the same time, the secretary warned that the long-term outlook is bleak.

"We are going to have serious energy problems in this country in the 1980s" when petroleum supplies become increasingly tight, he said.

"Without extensive use of coal, we cannot make it. Without extensive use of nuclear fuel, we may not make it."

By not "making it," Schlesinger said the nation would experience severe problems caused by the inability of the economy to continue operating with a fairly high level of employment.

Dallas Man Elected To Lead Boy Scouts

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dallas businessman John D. Murchison was elected president of the Boy Scouts of America Thursday.

A member of the organization's executive board and most recently national vice president for administration, Murchison becomes the top ranking volunteer in the 4.5 million member youth organization. He will serve a one-year term.

Other new officers elected by the executive board were Thomas C. MacAvoy of Corning, N.Y., vice president of operations; Reuben R. Jensen of Northville, Maine, vice president for administration; and Paul Miller of Cleveland, assistant treasurer.

Re-elected were John K. Sloan of Los Angeles, vice president for program; and Bland W. Worley of Charlotte, N.C., treasurer. All will serve one-year terms.

Gulf Of Mexico Test Well Blows Out

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An offshore test well that caught fire in one of Mexico's richest oilfields is still blowing out of control and may not be capped for the next three months, a Mexican state petroleum monopoly spokesman said Thursday.

"We will have to drill a second or so-called relief well and that may take more than three months — at least," Petroleos Mexicanos spokesman Miguel Tomassino said in a telephone interview.

The well, 80 miles northwest of Ciudad del Carmen in Campeche Bay, caught fire near daybreak Sunday and has been spewing 30,000 barrels of very light crude oil daily and equally huge amounts of natural gas.

Experts called it the biggest blowout to date in the Gulf of Mexico.

"It goes to show how rich that oilfield is. This is the first test well we sank," Tomassino said.

A special crew has been assembled and is preparing to start drilling the relief well, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, two collector boats with a capacity for 5,000 barrels each are scooping up 15,000 barrels of crude oil a day and storing it in a tanker anchored nearby.

Another 15,000 barrels a day is unrecoverable because of the heat. It is allowed to burn together with the natural gas.

"The oil that is coming out of the well in the Campeche field is very light and very volatile. So there is that additional difficulty," said Tomassini.

The well was being drilled under contract to Pemex by Perforadora Marina del Golfo S.A., a private company.

Engineers had bored 10 meters into the oil and gas-bearing strata under the seabed when so-called "control fluid" started leaking from one of the pipes. Gas at high pressure followed, came in contact with electric motors working the pumps and set the entire drilling platform on fire.

The 63 men on board were rescued without injury.

Witnesses on the scene said the $22 million platform was partially damaged, but tugboats managed to douse the fire and drag it out of the area the next day.

The water is an average 50 meters deep in that spot and engineers had drilled 3,616 meters below the seabed when the accident occurred.

Mexico is one of the world's potentially richest oil nations with combined oil and gas proven reserves totalling 40.1 billion barrels. One-third of that amount is gas. Probable combined reserves are estimated at 46 billion and potentially as 200 billion.

Gas Price Parley Proceeding Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations with Mexico over natural gas sales are proceeding slowly, but have not stalled, State Department officials said Thursday.

The talks have been "educational," delving into the background of each country's policy, one official said. But negotiators have yet to bargain directly on the touchy problem of natural gas pricing.

President Carter and President Jose Lopez Portillo agreed to resume the talks after Carter's visit to Mexico early this year. Two sessions have been held; the third has yet to be scheduled.

Carter and Lopez Portillo, meanwhile, have decided to postpone their own meeting from sometime in midsummer to late September, when the Mexican leader is scheduled to address the United Nations.

State Department officials said there was no link between the slow pace of the gas negotiations and the meeting's postponement.

NUCLEAR WASTE PROTEST

HONOLULU (AP) — Environmentalists and anti-nuclear groups have gone to federal court, seeking to prevent a ship carrying 70 tons of nuclear waste from entering Honolulu Harbor as scheduled Friday. The Pacific Fisher is carrying used fuel rods from Japanese nuclear power plants to Europe and is scheduled to spend six hours here refueling. Opponents say they will stage a symbolic blockade at the mouth of the harbor with small boats if the ship comes into port.

Official Alleges Overcharging For Gasoline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of Americans are being illegally overcharged at the gas pump, a federal energy official said Thursday.

Douglas Robinson, acting deputy administrator of the Economic Regulatory Administration, testified at a hearing by the House Small Business Committee's energy subcommittee.

He said that since the Department of Energy, the parent of Robinson's agency, started a "hot line" for consumer complaints, calls have been pouring in at the rate of 2,500 a week. The department has sent out 12,000 inquiries about the complaints, he said.

Agents personally went out for 2,600 "on-site investigations" at the service stations, he said.

"Of this number, 1,137 have been cited for alleged violations and, of that number, 757 have signed consent orders agreeing to lower their pump prices."

Robinson said the number of people overcharged is difficult to estimate. Some of the 1,137 stations found in apparent violation could have been overcharging for months and others a few hours. Some could have had only a few customers before the complaint was followed up, and some could have had hundreds, he said.

Department of Energy statistics showed retail gasoline prices rose an average of 13-15 cents a gallon — depending on the grade and type — the first five months of the year. The retailers' profit margin represented 3.5 to 5.7 cents of that, he said.

Robinson said the wholesale price increases come from foreign prices and thus are beyond enforcement officers' control. Moreover, the margins to the refiners seem "in line" with their new costs, he said.

But the retail prices are something else, he added: "The average three-to five-cent increases in dealer margins are not in all cases in line with what we estimate the average dealer's pricing flexibility to be under the current regulations."

Taking unleaded gasoline for example, he said prices last year were right on the line of the allowable profit margin. But since the beginning of this year "they have increased their margins ... by an average of 3.7 cents per gallon, suggesting the possibility of substantial overcharges."

Robinson said investigators are trying to keep up with wholesale and spot market violations as well as retail problems.

One major shift in enforcement has been from refiners' charges in prior years to their price and allocation deals now, he said.

"Among the questions we hope to answer by these audits is whether the major oil companies are deliberately or unnecessarily withholding potentially available product from the marketplace in order to increase prices and eliminate competition," Robinson said.

He called "hogwash" a statement attributed to a major refiner that refiners do not get enough profit to produce all the gasoline they can.

SEA MINING URGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. industry should invest heavily in deepsea bed mining "before all environmental research" on the activity's impact is completed, the head of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Thursday. Richard A. Frank told a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee that to await the end of such research could delay mining efforts.

Tech Law Dean Possible For UT Job

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The name of Frank Elliott, dean of the Texas Tech University law school, is being mentioned as a prospect for law school dean at the University of Texas at Austin, Elliott's alma mater.

When contacted by The Avalanche-Journal, Elliott said he was not aware his name had been submitted until a friend in Austin contacted him Wednesday when his name appeared in an Austin American-Statesman story.

Elliott said he isn't a candidate for the job and that he doesn't expect to get it.

Yet alumni reportedly want someone with a "Texas flavor" and one Austin observer said Elliott is a "top contender."

When asked if he would ask for his name to be withdrawn from consideration, Elliott said, "I've never turned down a job I haven't been offered."

The search committee earlier submitted the names of four candidates to UT president Dr. Lorene Rogers, who asked the committee to give her a "broader range" of candidates.

The four candidates are Mark Yudof, George Schatzki and Maurice Sharlot, who all hold endowed professorships at the UT law school, and Robert Mnookin of the University of California at Berkeley law school.

Dr. Rogers reportedly asked the committee to add three names to the list: Elliott, Morris Arnold, associate dean at the University of Pennsylvania law school, and John Sutton, a UT professor and candidate for UT law school dean in 1974.

Elliott has strong UT-Austin roots, having received his bachelor's degree and law degree there. He was on the law school faculty for 19 years before moving to Lubbock in 1977 to become the second dean of the Tech law school.

The 48-year-old Elliott was a Fulbright and Jaworski professor at the UT law school and knows many of the persons involved in the search for a dean, including search committee chairman Roy Mersky.

Ernest Smith, UT law school dean since 1974, announced in October that he will resign Aug. 31 to return to full-time teaching.

The search committee will meet next week to decide whether to accept the three new candidates. Dr. Rogers request to add names has met with some controversy, not over the names, but because "alumni felt they should have been on the selection committee" a regent said.

But sources say Elliott would be a pleasing candidate to alumni.

Elliott told the A-J, however, "I have the best law school dean job in Texas (at Tech)."

Knowing Elliott's strong ties to Austin, where he lived for 23 years, and the reputation of the UT school, one observer said if Elliott were offered the job, "He would be crazy not to take it."

Elliott admitted the UT law school is "probably the most prestigous in the Southwest," but he added, "No, it wouldn't be ridiculous for me to turn it down. I don't want to say why. It's a combination of personal and professional reasons that I'm very happy where I am right now."

Civic Center Sign Board Design Due

By PHILIP BRASHER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Civic Lubbock Inc. board member Al Rosen told the board Thursday he will present final designs next month for a civic center message board compatible with city sign ordinances.

At the board's request, city planner Jim Bertram attended the meeting and told board members any message center the board recommends to the City Council should adhere to the regulations.

Several members, including Rosen, have wanted to erect a sign taller than that allowed by city and urban renewal requirements.

City and urban renewal regulations require the proposed message center to be constructed with materials similar to those used in the entrance fountain and limit the sign's height to six feet.

Nevertheless, several members protested the limitations.

"I hate to see us pay a lot of money for a six-foot sign," Matt Malouf said.

Another member, Dub Malaise, agreed.

"Why couldn't we be the only ones (with a taller sign)?" he asked.

"I don't understand why we couldn't put up a sign that we want," Malaise added. "Why can't we impeach that law."

Civic Center director Dottie Townsend told the board she would support any message center proposal which conformed to the regulations.

After hearing Bertram and Townsend, Rosen, the message center's main proponent, said he would make a final proposal at the board's next meeting.

In other action, the board agreed to co-sponsor with Texas Tech University productions of the opera "Faust" and musical "My Fair Lady."

John Gillas, Tech music theater center director, presented the board budgets of $17,760 for "Faust" and $29,070 for "My Fair Lady." Civic Lubbock will split production costs with Tech.

PLENTY OF ALMONDS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Although the California almond crop this year is expected to be 35 percent smaller than last year's, it is estimated at 205-million pounds shelled weight, enough to satisfy current demand. An industry spokeswoman says the reduced crop resulted from inadequate pollination of blossoms by bees and unexpected rain in some growing areas at harvest time.

Senate Sub-Panel Approves Bill To Revive Draft Registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would renew military draft registration for all men aged 18 through 26 was approved Thursday by a Senate subcommittee. The issue might reach the Senate floor for debate next week.

The measure, passed on a 4-3 vote in a closed meeting of the Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee, was the first action in the Senate this year on the politically controversial subject of the draft, which was abandoned in early 1973 at the end of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War.

A draft registration bill already has been approved by the House Armed Services Committee and awaits action by the House.

The Senate panel's version would reinstitute registration on Jan. 2, 1980 — a year earlier than provided in the House bill.

But the Senate version would cover a greater portion of the population by requiring all men between the ages of 18 and 26 to sign up. The House panel's bill only would affect men who turn 18 after Jan. 1, 1981.

Both bills, by excluding women, would invite legal challenges from critics who say a male-only program is discriminatory.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., a subcommittee member, said he believed exclusion of women would pass a constitutional test if "Congress can give a legislative history" to support the idea that "inclusion of women by law is not in the best interest of the military services."

The House had been expected to act first on registration legislation, but it appears the Senate may consider it as part of a $49 billion military weapons bill that is scheduled for debate Monday.

David Landau, a spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union, complained the Senate panel held only one hearing at which opponents of draft registration could be heard.

"There's been no debate essentially," he said. "It's such a major step."

The Senate bill would revive registration under provisions of the Military Selective Service Act, which also would require young men to be classified according to their eligibility for service.

However, the bill would suspend classification until Jan. 1, 1981, unless the president deemed it was necessary and in the national interest.

The subcommittee said the parent Armed Services Committee is expected to consider the bill "early next week," probably Monday.

That is when the Senate is to begin debating the military arms bill that is regarded as a possible vehicle for a draft registration amendment to be attached on the floor.

The Senate bill also would require the president to submit recommendations by July 1, 1980, on how to conduct classification and other registration details. The measure also would require an annual assessment of manpower mobilization capabilities.

The subcommittee's vote was not announced, but sources said those voting for the bill were Sens. Harry Byrd, Ind-Va.; Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Warner and Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa. Voting against the bill were Sens. John Culver, D-Iowa; William Cohen, R-Maine, and James Exon, D-Neb.

Islamic Inspectors Urged For Diplomats

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A newspaper columnist has suggested the government appoint "inspectors" to police the behavior of Saudis abroad and ensure they abide by the laws of Islam.

Writing in the 45,000-circulation Saudi daily Al Madina, the female columnist this week said, "Saudi diplomatic missions abroad should appoint inspectors to check on nightclubs and similar places to arrest those found guilty of violating the laws of our religion."

Price Drop Shown In Wholesale Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest decline in wholesale food prices in more than three years in May gave hope to consumers Thursday that the torrid pace of inflation is easing, especially at the supermarket counter.

The government said overall wholesale prices increased just 0.4 percent in May, down sharply from the first four months of 1979 and the smallest monthly increase since August. Prices had increased 0.9 percent in April.

In another encouraging report, the government said the nation's businesses plan to increase investment spending by nearly 13 percent this year, or 4.5 percent after discounting for inflation.

"It enhances our confidence that we'll be able to avoid a recession," said William Cox, the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist.

President Carter, in a speech before the newly formed United Food and Commercial Workers International Union, vowed once more that he will not resort to mandatory wage and price controls in the battle against inflation.

"I will not slap mandatory government controls on wages and prices just through the 1980 elections and then later watch inflation skyrocket out of control," the president said. "I will never fight inflation by deliberately throwing millions of Americans out of work."

In its monthly wholesale price report, the Labor Department said food prices declined 1.3 percent in May, the sharpest drop in any single month since February, 1976. The price of beef and veal fell 6.9 percent, reversing five consecutive months of increases.

Although prices of fuel and non-food goods were up sharply again, Carter administration economists said the decline in food prices, if it continues, should restrain the overall rate of inflation for the remainder of this year.

"Finally Showing Up"

"The long-awaited decline in food prices is finally showing up, and obviously offsets in substantial part the rise in energy prices, which continued unabated in May," Cox said. He said the decline is continuing in June and should be reflected soon in food prices charged to consumers.

"It's bound to have some effect at the retail level," agreed John Early, chief of the Labor Department's division of industrial prices. "Most food changes pass through very rapidly."

The decline in the price of beef and veal more than offset increases in the previous three months. However, wholesale beef and veal prices still were 22.2 percent above a year earlier.

Other Lower Prices

There also were lower prices for pork, fresh fruit and eggs. Pork was down 10.1 percent, and was 5.3 percent below a year earlier.

However, prices of consumer goods other than food rose 1 percent in May, with energy prices up sharply again, reflecting a combination of oil shortages plus higher prices declared by oil exporting countries.

Gasoline prices were up 4.2 percent in May alone, for an increase of nearly 12 percent in the past three months. Fuel oil was up 5.4 percent, or more than 18 percent since February.

Prices of consumer non-durable goods, other than food, rose 1.6 percent. The report said prices in this category, which includes fuel products, plastics, tires, shoes and clothing, increased at an annual rate of 20.1 percent in the past three months, the fastest rate since mid-1974.

Prices At Three Levels

Wholesale price changes are included in the Producer Price Index, which reports prices at three levels: the wholesale or finished goods level, when goods are ready for sale to the final user; the intermediate level, where they have received some processing, and the crude level, where goods have not yet received any processing.

Wholesale prices were up 10 percent for the 12-month period ending in May. The Labor Department's Producer Price Index stood in May at 212.4, meaning that goods priced at $100 in 1967 had risen in cost to $212.40 last month.

If wholesale prices continue to rise for the next 12 months at the same rate they did in May, the annual increase would be only 4.9 percent. Wholesale prices had increased 1 percent in each of the first three months of this year.

Price Rises Listed

The Labor Department report said prices rose 1 percent at the intermediate level and 0.8 percent at the crude level in May.

Carter and his advisers have been saying that food price gains should taper off after mid-year, leading toward a reduced overall rate of inflation. Consumer prices have increased at an annual rate of nearly 14 percent in the January through April period.

The Commerce Department report that businesses are planning to increase plant and equipment spending by 4.5 percent in real terms this year.

Truckers Block Fuel Stops, Snarl Traffic

are emptied every time we fill up our tanks."

In Wyoming, a convoy of a dozen rigs slowed to 25 mph on Interstate 80 at Rock Springs on Thursday before dispersing without incident. The convoy was passing through desolate section of Wyoming known as the Red Desert, where the 55-mph speed limit is frequently ignored.

"It's kind of ironic," said one Wyoming highway patrolman. "It's the first time any of those truckers ever observed the speed limit. Maybe they should have raised the price of fuel before."

Independent haulers in Oregon blocked two large truck stops in the Portland area on Thursday, and Dave Crandall, organizer of the protest in the state, said a planned shutdown was gathering steam.

"We feel like we're being effective," said Crandall. "We feel that by this weekend we should have the whole West Coast shut down."

Truckers staged protests at several truck stops in Minnesota, but two major stops on Interstate 90 were both pumping fuel.

"There are some stations still open," said Rick Leistico, one of nearly 40 truckers blocking pumps at Clearwater Truck Plaza on Interstate 94, south of St. Cloud. "But we're hoping to have them all covered before long."

Rodney Nelson, one of the protesters at a truck stop near Rochester, Minn., sad he would remain "until something finally happens, until we get some attention so that they know in Washington."

"If I go out and drive, I'm not going to make any money. I'm just wearing out my truck," he said.

Colorado truckers blocked about half the pumps at a truck stop on Interstate 70, west of Denver, but stations were operating throughout the state. At several stations, the independents were trying to drum up support from fellow truckers who stopped to refuel.

A major north-south truck stop in central Florida, near Wildwood, was blockaded by 30 to 40 four independent truckers until mid-morning Thursday.

Sumter County sheriff's deputies said they maintained order at the Union 76 Truckers' Paradise station but reported there were a couple of incidents between angry truckers and motorists. One trucker ran the blockade, knocking over a light pole and ripping a hole in the side of his refrigerated rig.

Independent truckers' spokesman in some states said the protest had reduced truck traffic significantly.

"I have received calls from all over the state that traffic is down," said William Finch, president of the Montana chapter of the Independent Truckers' Association.

"Truck stops are doing very little business," Finch said. "Once the politicians discover that nothing is moving, they will get the idea that we mean it."

Elsewhere, the protests ranged from reports of reduced truck traffic to scattered truck stop blockades.

Southwest Zone Shift Refused

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Residents of Ranch Acres were successful Thursday night in getting the Planning and Zoning Commission to deny a zone change request permitting a real estate office adjacent to their neighborhood.

Bob Gilliam had requested the commission to approve a zone change permitting a real estate office south of 69th Street and west of Slide Road.

He requested a change from single-family residential (R-1) to apartment-medical specific use (A-M) to allow him to use a former residence as a real estate office.

Gilliam had contended that the office would enhance the residential area.

However, Bill Cox, representing the views of six homeowners in the area, said he believed Gilliam's request was a "loaded gun" to open the area to further commercial development.

"There are other ways of re-zoning the property without having to go commercial," Cox said.

In other action, commissioners approved the request of Superior Steel Buildings for Bob Montgomery to change the zoning from commercial (C-4) to C-4 specific use on property east of Avenue H and south of 22nd Street.

Representatives of W.D. Wilkins, located across the street from the proposed change site, had argued that construction of the steel miniwarehouses would defeat what they are trying to do to upgrade the area.

A Wilkins spokesman said he believed there are other areas in town that are more suitable for miniwarehouses.

However, the commissioners disagreed that steel buildings would downgrade the area. The group voted unanimously to approve the steel buildings, with the condition they have 30 percent brick facing on the side facing the street.

Sam Williams, owner of Kineticon Corp., was denied his request for C-4 zoning on an R-1 tract north of Baylor Street and west of Avenue Q.

Williams, who has a distributorship and warehouse for dock lights on the site, which is a non-conforming use of the property, sought the zone change to make the warehouse legal.

However, the commissioners voted against the change because the site is included in an area slated for Urban Renewal re-development. Also, planning director Jim Bertram warned against having a spot of commercialism in a residential zone.

In other business, the commission:

—Approved the request of Raymond Hogan to change property south of 35th Street and east of Avenue H from C-4 specific use for miniwarehouses to C-4 to permit a used car lot.

—Approved the request of Burl Masters, representing Trigon Corp., to change property north of 68th Street and west of Slide Road from restricted local retail (C-2A) to C-2 for small shopping center.

—Approved the request of Dale White, for White's Pump Service, for a change from C-4 to light manufacturing (M-1) on property south of Clovis Road and east of Waco Avenue to bring the building into compliance with the current zoning ordinance.

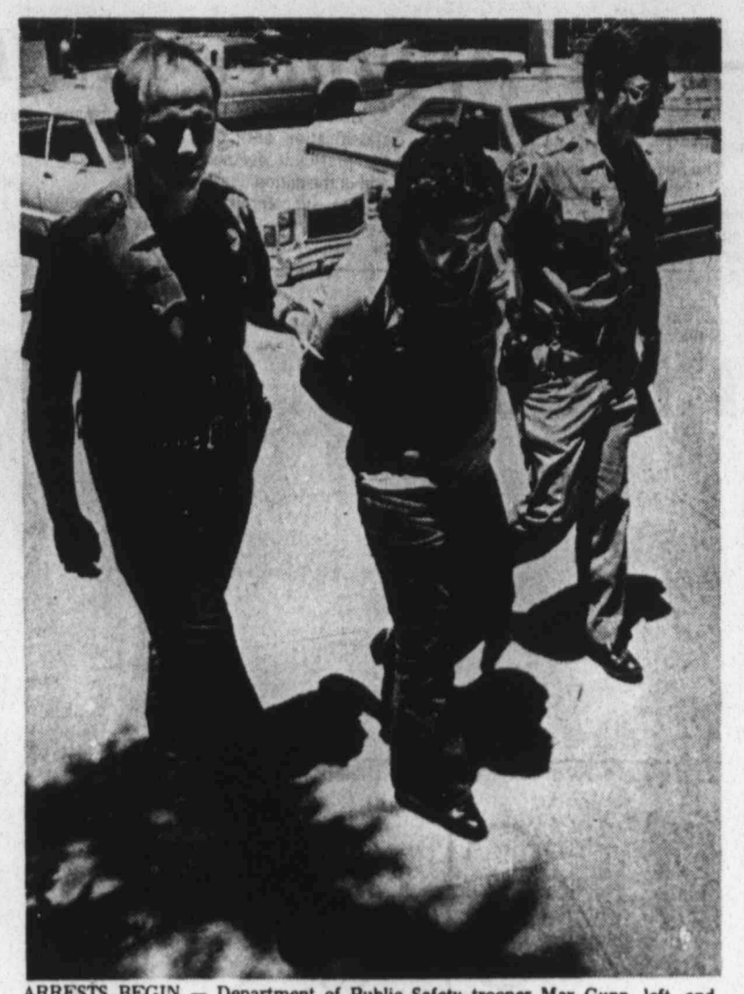

—Approved the request of Harold Harriger, for Jess Stinson, to amend the site plan for a proposed two-story office building south of 52nd Street and east of Indiana Avenue.

—Denied the request of Buddy Ramsel, for GEBO Distributing Co., for a change from C-4 to M-1 specific use to allow the business to store merchandise outside on property south of 50th Street and west of Avenue A.

—Approved the request of Pearl Brown, for a building permit in the Yellowhouse Canyon addition, to add on rooms to her home.

49, of Route 6, Box 744, Lubbock.

The charge was filed against Qualls after he was involved in a May 16 shootout with Slaton police Lt. Jerry Eaton.

Eaton and two other lawmen had gone to a trailer house near the intersection of Tahoka Highway and FM 1585 to serve a warrant to Doyle S. Suttle, 52, of Slaton.

Suttle was charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting incident earlier May 16 in Slaton.

Eaton said when he approached the trailer, Qualls confronted him with a pistol. Eaton pulled his gun, shots were exchanged and Qualls was wounded in both hands.

Shortly after the shooting, Suttle turned himself into Lubbock County deputies. The grand jury returned an attempted murder indictment against Suttle Thursday.

Jesse Alvin Glenn, 32, of 6203 Elgin Ave. was re-indicted Thursday on an aggravated assault charge.

An earlier grand jury had returned an attempted murder indictment against Glenn in connection with the Dec. 3, 1978 1978, shooting death of Clay Dodson, 21, of Tahoka.

However, a 140th District Court jury deadlocked May 25 during the conviction phase of Glenn's trial.

Norman Eldon Sterling, 44, of Route 6, Box 732, Lubbock, was no-billed by the grand jury in connection with the May 7 shooting death of his younger brother, Gary Dan Sterling.

The elder Sterling said his 36-year-old brother, of Route 9, Box 5, Lubbock, had threatened to kill him and then tried to enter his house.

Sterling said his brother was armed with a pistol and fired once before being fatally shot.

The grand jury also no-billed five other persons, refusing to indict Royce Dan Thorne, 17, and Isaac Ray Mahuron, 25, both of 3004 Baylor St., on forgery charges; David Webster, 25, of Carlisle on a burglary of a habitation charge; and Rudy Martinez, 20, of Anton and Clinton J. Hill, age and address unavailable, on separate charges of aggravated assault.

The grand jury did not consider a charge of carrying a prohibited weapon filed against Natividad Carrizales, 20, of 1701 Ute St. The charge was refiled as a misdemeanor.

DC-10 Flaw Sought By Inspectors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aviation experts in four cities ran computer tests, probed engine wreckage and checked documents Thursday in an effort to determine if there is a basic design flaw in the engine mounting of the grounded DC-10 jetliner.

"It's a long, slow, plodding process of sifting and re-sifting through the evidence," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar.

"We're trying to find out what happened, what is causing the cracks in the engine mounts, was something overlooked in the certification process, is there a basic flaw in the system?" he said. "It's arduous work."

FAA chief Langhorne M. Bond suspended the certificate of the DC-10 Wednesday, saying there might be a design defect in the engine mounting assembly.

Travel Plans Disrupted

The action grounded all 138 DC-10s operated by U.S. airlines. Although the order does not apply to 143 foreign-registered DC-10s, the FAA said Thursday that all foreign carriers that operate the aircraft had voluntarily taken their planes out of service.

The moves disrupted travel plans for tens of thousands of persons around the world.

The grounding was the fourth for the troubled plane since the May 25 crash of an American Airlines DC-10 in Chicago that killed 275 persons in the nation's worst aviation accident. An engine fell off the big plane as it was taking off and the aircraft plunged to the ground and burned.

Bond said DC-10s will remain on the ground "until the problem is found, analyzed and cured." He said that would take at least a week, and perhaps several weeks or months if a major redesign is required.

Going Over Documents

FAA inspectors concentrated their effort at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach, Calif., where the DC-10 is manufactured. They were going over documents used in the process that led to certification of the DC-10 as airworthy in 1971.

Bond said Wednesday that the FAA wants to learn if a design defect might have slipped through the process.

The investigation has centered primarily on the two under-wing engine mounts, or pylons, where numerous cracks have been discovered in inspections conducted since the Chicago crash. The pylon that fell off the plane in Chicago, along with the engine, had a 10-inch crack in its aft bulkhead. Investigators have determined that the crack existed before the accident.

Working Elsewhere

National Transportation Safety Board specialists also worked on the investigation in Long Beach and in Washington, Tulsa, Okla., and in Texas.

The safety board team that conducted the on-site investigation in Chicago has returned to Washington and is studying reports on the accident and conducting metallurgy tests on parts of the downed aircraft.

In Tulsa, experts are tearing down the remnants of the three engines on the crashed plane, trying to locate any problems there. Early indications are that the engines functioned properly.

At Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, a flight simulator is being programmed to try to duplicate the final seconds of the doomed plane's flight in an effort to learn why the aircraft did not continue to fly on its two remaining engines as it was designed to do. The leading theory is that the plane's hydraulic systems — both prime and back-up — were disabled when the engine broke off, making the craft uncontrollable.

Order Extended

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. Wednesday extended from June 11 to June 15 his order that U.S.-registered DC-10s be grounded until the cause of the Chicago crash has been found and corrected.

Regardless of any FAA action, the planes cannot fly while the restraining order is in effect. Robinson extended the order after attorneys representing the FAA and the Airline Passengers Association, a consumer organization, agreed on the additional time. The consumer group filed the original suit in an effort to ground the planes.

Carter Keeps Economic Sanctions On Rhodesia

these senators contend that the new biracial government headed by Muzorewa has met the test imposed by law for the lifting of the trade embargo.

Helms, after a briefing by the president, called Carter's action "the wrong decision for the wrong reasons." The senator described it as "a bad mistake, harmful to this country and other countries."

Another opponent of Carter's decision, Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., predicted that "things are going to go down the drain right now ..."

Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., who heads the congressional Black Caucus, said she was "pleased with the president's decision," which she said was "based on what is best for our nation."

Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee on African affairs, predicted that in the House, "if the president is prepared to fight for his policy, he will prevail."

Carter is required by the Case-Javits amendment, adopted in 1978, to lift the sanctions if he determines that free and fair elections have been held in Zimbabwe Rhodesia and that a good faith effort has been made to negotiate a peace settlement at a conference attended by all of those involved in the strife there.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., co-author of the amendment, said the president "is likely to have bipartisan support" but that it remained to be seen whether opponents had the votes to lift the sanctions — and enough to override any presidential veto of such a measure.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Carter's best argument with Congress is that it "would be a grave mistake" for the United States to be the first government to lift the sanctions.

The emissary to be sent to the African nation will be the first American diplomat assigned to Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

The Senate went on record in a 75-19 roll call last month as favoring the lifting of the trade embargo.

Pope Celebrates Mass In Former Nazi Death Camp

AUSCHWITZ, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass Thursday amid the ruins of Hitler's most infamous death camp and appealed for peace and justice in the name of all nations whose rights are violated.

Speaking from a wooden railroad platform from which millions were herded to their deaths, the pontiff drew his greatest applause when he quoted his predecessor, Pope Paul VI: "No more war, only peace!"

A crowd of several hundred thousand stood close to barbed wire, left standing as a grim reminder, near the ruins of brick barracks where prisoners of 28 nations were confined by Poland's Nazi occupiers during World War II.

Joining the pope were 200 priests, all former inmates of concentration camps. Lay men and women who had survived the camps were present, some dressed in blue-and-white striped prison garb.

Also among concelebrants of the Mass was Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia.

"Auschwitz is a place where everyone should visit," the pope said. "And during the visit one should ask, 'What are the limits of hatred, what are the limits of destruction of man by man?' "

As he recalled the suffering that took place a generation ago, young boys climbed the barbed-wire fence to get a view of him.

John Paul, who studied for the priesthood in secret while working in a German forced-labor project, singled out the sufferings of Jews, Russians and Poles, who made up most of Auschwitz's victims.

"The very people that received from God the commandment 'Thou shalt not kill' itself experienced in a special measure what is meant by killing," the pope said of the Jews.

Of the Russians, he said: "We know the role this nation played in World War II. They fought for freedom."

The Polish-born pontiff said he is "the son of a nation that in its history has suffered many afflictions from others." But he said he was "speaking in the name of all the nations whose rights are being violated and forgotten."

The pope, who helicoptered here after a joyful visit to his hometown of Wadowice, said Mass on the site of the former Birkenau camp, an extermination center where an estimted 4 milllion people died. It was the largest of 36 camps in a complex known collectively as Auschwitz.

"It was impossible for me not to come here as pope," he told the worshippers. He reminded the gathering that he had made other visits to the camp when he was archbishop in nearby Krakow, where he is staying now during the last part of his nine-day trip to Poland.

The pope changed vestments for the Mass in a small building where 35 years ago the camp staff decided which new inmates would be put to work and which would go to the gas chambers. As many as 85 percent of the arrivals from some distant countries were sent straight to the gas chambers because they were so weakened by the long train ride here.

After changing, the pope walked to a white platform near the ruins of crematoria used to burn the bodies of victims killed in the gas chambers. Red and white carnations covered the old tracks over which trains brought Jews, Gypsies, Slavs and others here.

After the Mass, the pope laid a wreath at a memorial flanked by the flags of the 28 nations whose sons and daughters perished here.

In the Mass he spoke of the "rights of nations" to freedom and independence, and of the horrors of modern war. "Never the life of one at the cost of another, at the price of the enslavement of another, at the price of conquest, of outrage, of death!" the pope said.

Above him stood a large wooden cross decorated with a symbolic ring of barbed wire. One arm of the cross supported a banner of prison gray and black. It bore the number 16670, the number assigned to Father Maximilian Kolbe, a Polish Catholic priest venerated for volunteering to die in another prisoner's place.

The pope had earlier prayed at the cell where Kolbe died in a smaller Auschwitz prison camp, and had stopped at an execution wall in a cellblock courtyard to pay homage to camp victims.

At Birkenau, the pontiff called the camp "a place built on hatred and contempt for man in the name of a crazed ideology." He added that the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights must "have all its just consequences drawn from it," to give fruit to "Oswiecim's (Auschwitz's) great call and the cry of man tortured here."

The pope has been visiting his native land since Saturday, making the first papal journey to a communist country.

On Thursday morning, he returned to the yellow stucco house in which he was born in Wadowice, and he prayed at the font where he was baptized.

Church bells pealed for 10 minutes when he arrived in the town, thousands crowded about to sing, and the pope's high-school religion teacher greeted him with "Habemus papam!" — the Latin announcement of "We have a pope."

Pope Returns To Hometown

WADOWICE, Poland (UPI) — "Look," cried Pope John Paul II like any other small-town boy back home after a long time away. "That's my old school. That's where I used to learn.

"Do you remember," he said to an old classmate, "that the best desks were at the back of the room?"

Memories tinged with nostalgia dominated the day Thursday when the man who left Wadowice as a student named Karol Wojtyla came home as John Paul II, leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics.

There were old faces to kiss, old friends to hug, buildings full of reminders of the 18 years he lived and studied in Wadowice and played pranks in its streets, shared poverty and hardship and happiness with its people.

In Wadowice, more than elsewhere, Poles have a right to call John Paul II "our own pope."

"In my mind and heart, I go back to those who grew up with me, the boys and the girls who were with me in school and to our parents and teachers," he told the 30,000 people — double the town's population — gathered in the market square and the surrounding streets.

The pope first went to his old parish church and kissed the baptismal font where he was christened 59 years ago.

It took him several minutes to climb a half-dozen steps to the door of the domed church. Every inch of the way he paused to touch a shoulder or clasp a friend's hand.

When he could finally speak he apologized to his townspeople. "When that problem with the new pope cropped up, an avalanche of news reporters poured into Wadowice," he said. "My friends told them better things about me than I deserved."

"I don't think I took life so seriously in those days," John Paul remarked to one friend. The Rev. Antoni Planury, a classmate, remembered it the same way. He said Karol was a religious lad "but always full of fun."

Father Marian Cegla, a local priest, recalled a poignant story about the house John Paul had pointed out as his.

The pope's father, a Polish army captain, used to buy toys for the infant Karol from a shop in the house the elder Wojtyla would eventually buy for his family.

Toy-seller Icek Balamut sold Wojtyla the house and moved his family elsewhere. The Balamuts were Jews. Every member of the family but one died in the Nazi death camp at Treblinka.

Dear Hemphills,

Administration Endorses Pipeline Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, seeking new ways to reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil, endorsed a controversial proposal Thursday to ship coal across state lines by pipeline.

White House support of a bill to clear legal obstacles blocking construction of such pipelines was announced at a news conference held by congressional advocates of the project.

The coal, after being pulverized and mixed with water, would be pumped from western coal fields to plants in the Southwest.

Supporters said coal could be burned at industrial boilers in the Southwest, helping to divert oil and gas to other parts of the country and reducing overall petroleum consumption.

"Unless you can get coal to the Southwest, where oil and gas are used as industrial fuels, you're not going to get that oil and gas to the rest of the nation," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas.

Similar coal-slurry legislation died during the last session of Congress. Sponsors blamed that defeat on White House indecisiveness and a heavy lobbying campaign by railroads, who view coal pipelines as unwanted competiton.

The House Ways and Means Committee began work Thursday on another Carter administration plan, which would impose a "windfall-profits" tax on the oil companies. The panel bogged down almost immediately on the complex plan, which aims to take away some of the billions that will flow to the oil companies because of President Carter's plan to gradually remove controls from oil prices.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the committee, said the panel plans to complete work on the tax by June 14. But even as the committee began work, Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the panel, accused Democrats of trying to shut the GOP out of the decision-making process.

The issue is too important to be used by those who want to whip the oil industry, Conable said. "You're not going to get our help if you try to make all the decisions in advance," he added.

Conable's anger was stirred by stories disclosing that Ways and Means Democrats had met behind closed doors Wednesday to discuss Carter's tax and an alternative offered by Ullman.

Meanwhile, on the other side of Capitol Hill, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., urged a 2-cent limit on the difference between leaded and unleaded gasoline.

In a letter to Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Hart said only if the price difference is narrowed will drivers cease using leaded gasoline in cars with air pollution devices called catalytic converters.

So-called fuel switching, which is illegal, has increased as the supplies of unleaded gasoline have diminished in comparison of leaded fuel. When leaded fuel is used in cars intended for only unleaded gasoline, catalytic converters are destroyed.

On Wednesday, Carter reportedly told key congressional leaders his administration is willing to support a variety of measures in Congress that would help boost U.S energy production and reduce the nation's dependence on oil imports.

The coal-slurry bill is one component of this effort, the legislation's backers said.

The bill would grant coal pipeline companies eminent domain powers to acquire rights-of-way across federal and private lands, giving coal pipelines authority now accorded oil and gas pipelines.

Although the administration nominally supported the slurry bill last year, it insisted that the Energy, Interior and Transportation departments each have veto power over creation of such lines.

A squabble between Congress and the White House over agency jurisdiction helped kill the bill.

"I commend the president for his leadership in putting aside past postions and agreeing to support this legislation," said Eckhardt. He said a proposed Wyoming-Texas pipeline could be built by the early 1980s, if the measure is approved.

Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Texas, told reporters it costs as much as $18 a ton to ship $7-a-ton Wyoming coal by rail to San Antonio, Texas.

"This railroad monopoly should be broken," Kazen said.

Meanwhile, energy was a chief topic for discussion Thursday as Carter invited GOP members of Congress to a White House breakfast.

The president asked the Republicans for help on his energy program and legislation to implement the Panama Canal treaties, said House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona.

"No commitments were made. It was a good and useful meeting," Rhodes said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, meanwhile, said the House would attempt to pass President Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on oil companies before July 4th.

And O'Neill said Senate leaders had promised to try passing the tax by August.

THE PAST IN THE PRESENT — The windmill and tree still standing at the corner of 50th Street and Indiana Avenue are dubbed longtime landmarks for the Lubbock area as well as reminders of the West Texas heritage. Historic Windmill In Operation Again

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The windmill standing at the corner of 50th Street and Indiana Avenue is turning in the breeze once again.

The windmill, a longtime landmark in the Hub City, was damaged this year when a severe winter sandstorm blasted across the South Plains. But this week, Chapman & Co., owner of the buildings at Winchester Square, dished out several hundred dollars to put the historical device back into operation.

The company spent the money to keep the old mill running "because it's a landmark and a long-going trademark for the shopping center," said Harold Chapman.

Although the windmill hasn't pumped water in years, it and the well below it are capable of pumping "the best water in the county," according to W.R. Caraway, owner of the land Winchester Square stands upon.

The owners of the mill, after some searching, located Don Ballard of Crosbyton who repairs windmills across the South Plains. Few masters of the trade exist, said Caraway.

Monday, Ballard and his workers began repairs to the wooden tower that supports the mill, marking the original homeplace or ranching headquarters of the Skillet Ranch.

The fan was replaced Tuesday with a new one painted red white and blue, said Caraway, who carried home the old, worn one in the bed of his pickup truck.

The well from which the windmill draws water existed in 1891 when Caraway's grandfather purchased the land for his horse ranch. J.K. Caraway later changed his ranching stock to cattle.

The house built by J.K. Caraway was five miles from the courthouse and the nearest neighbor was half a mile away, reflects Caraway. "My granddad set that tree (standing next to the windmill) out in 1892 as a little twig."

The original tower was replaced in 1936 with the tower still standing near the busy intersection today, he said.

"My dad (Rob Caraway) and I were born in the house that used to stand just northeast of the mill," reflects Caraway. "Then 50th Street and Indiana Avenue were just dirt roads.

"I can remember when my uncles used to talk about killing antelope between there and town in the late teens and early 20s."

Construction Industry Problems Spotlighted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special Labor Department task force has been formed to focus on occupational safety and health problems in the construction industry.

Eula Bingham, head of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said Thursday, "Construction has an injury and illness incidence that is among the highest for U.S. industries — two-thirds above the national average rate in 1977."

Supper Club Offers Night On Town Sans Smoke, Liquor

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Diners seeking a night on the town without booze and cigarettes need look no further than the Christian Supper Club.

Since its inception nearly two years ago at the Memphis Union Mission, the "no-smoking, no-alcohol-drinking" club has featured performers such as opera singers Marguerite Piazza and Ruth Welting to draw a dinner crowd.

Mission Director Verla Petit said she established the club to give people in Memphis a place to go where they would not have to worry about smoking and drinking.

Mrs. Petit said she came up with the idea after her mother, who suffered from emphysema, had difficulty finding a place to go where she was not bothered by smokers.

The mission's 215-seat auditorium is transformed into a nightclub on Friday nights. Jimmy Earle, mission superintendent, sets up a buffet dinner table at 6:30 p.m. where an average of 150 persons pay $4.95 each for dinner and an hour-long show.

"We never had an occasion when anyone even attempted to light up a cigarette," Earle said. "We don't have a bit of trouble with alcohol either. The people that come here are all good, Christian people."

Earle said hostesses from the Victory Valley Women's Auxiliary help serve coffee and tea before the show.

Mrs. Pettit said she first thought about setting up the club at the mission after she discovered a booklet on an airplane about a Christian Supper Club in Atlanta.

"I thought: 'Lord, that sounds like a good idea,'" Mrs. Pettit said. "I know his response was: 'Yes, it is.'"

At Wit's End...

Erma Bombeck is on vacation this week. This column is a repeat of one of her most popular columns. She will return next week.

By ERMA BOMBECK

"What in heaven's name is that hanging over your dirty clothes hamper?" asked Mother. "It looks like a basketball hoop made out of a bent coat hanger."

"It's a basketball hoop made out of a bent coat hanger," I said.

"It looks terrible."

"That's easy for you to say," I said. "You don't have to run through dirty underwear in your bare feet or find the laundry before you can do it. When the boys improve on their hook shots I'll have it made."

"What's this?" she scowled.

"You mean that bar in the door you just cracked your head on? It's an exercise bar so the boys can build up their muscles."

"And this ironing board," she persisted. "Don't you ever get tired of falling over it? Want me to take it down?"

"What for?" I asked. "We're not moving."

The trouble with Mother is she has forgotten what it is like to live in a house furnished in "Contemporary Children." I used to fight it, too. At one time I was so naive I thought only edible things belonged in the refrigerator, bicycles without wheels should be discarded and if you had eight people to dinner, all the glasses had to match.

I went crazy trying to keep an antiseptic house in a wet-shoestring world. Then one day I was doing cafeteria duty with a mother of six children, who said a curious thing. "I wonder how my kids will remember me? Will they remember me as a mother who never had rings around the bathtub or will they remember the popcorn we ate in the living room?"

"Will they remember how many committees I chaired, or will they remember the fresh doughnuts in the kitchen after school?"

"Will they remember how cleverly I coordinated the blue in the sofa with the pillow cushions or will they remember I hung the outline of their hand in the living room like it was an original Renoir?"

"It's funny," she said, "I came from a large family and I can't even remember what color my bedroom was or if there was mud in the hallway or fingerprints around the light switches. All I can remember is the laughter, the love and a crazy basketball hoop my mother made out of a bent coat hanger and put over the clothes hamper."

I don't know how my kids will remember me. Only the other day I knocked on the bathroom door and said, "It's your mother," and a voice said, "Mother who?"

A lesson taught with tenderness will never be forgotten.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting fed up with your "forgive and forget" garbage. Why should a woman take a man back after he has cheated on her, lied, spent money on little chippies — even had them in her bed? You've got to be crazy.

My aging Casanova grew tired of his last dolly and dumped her. She thought she'd get even by coming to my house and telling me how he had pursued her. She even showed me some of the jewelry she got from him. I stopped her cold with: "You're boring me, dear, I've heard it all before."

I threw the bum out after 23 years of marriage and three children, and I've never been happier. Sorry I didn't do it ten years sooner. — Free At Last

Dear Free: My "forgive and forget" advice is not for everyone — only for special situations — where the man has been discreet, is fundamentally decent (not an alley cat), is genuinely contrite, and wants a fresh start.

And not all wives are alike. Some are kvetches, others are nags, or they run their husbands down. And don't forget the Headache Queens. There is no standard solution to the skirt-chaser syndrome. Each case must be dealt with individually — and that's what I try to do.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a good man for eight years and have been pretty happy. I am 26 and he is 36. The problem is his 13-year-old daughter by his first wife. He is now in a court fight trying to get custody of the child. How can I tell him I don't want her here?

All summer long and every weekend and holiday is all I can handle. The girl can't get along with her teachers, schoolmates or the neighbors. She is very good at picking fights with me. Her father always takes her side, says, "She's just a child. You should be able to deal with it." My husband's ex-wife is mentally ill. Her mother lives with them and has legal custody of the girl. I am in desperate need of your advice. How should I tell him? — Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: Don't. This is a no-win situation and could cost you the marriage.

You need counseling to learn how to handle the problem. The girl needs counseling, too. She is obviously maladjusted and troubled. Look in the phone book under Mental Health. There are several agencies you can contact. From your letter it is clear you have no insight into the situation — and it's a mess.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was taking medication for high blood pressure. A friend told me to take garlic pills instead, so I did. A month later I went back to the doctor, and he said I was almost normal. When I told him about the garlic he said, "Well, garlic pills do reduce high blood pressure in some people." Are you familiar with this? — Mrs. S.J.

Sure, it's Documented Garlic Cure No.( ). You fill in the number.

Garlic will do as much for your high blood pressure as it will for your social life. Your experience is not unusual.

Blood pressure can fluctuate widely from one testing to another, as much as 30 to 50 points. Relaxation, rest, activity, stress, strain — many factors enter into it. I can't tell from your letter whether you have high blood pressure or not. You need to be checked for two or three monthly visits to find out. If it turns out, after such consecutive examinations, that your pressure is elevated, you will need an effective control program — salt restriction, weight control or blood pressure pills. You may even need this now.

If your friend is counting on garlic pills to control his problem, pass on this item.

Many "unusual cures" involve ailments that have fluctuating symptoms — that come and go. For example many "hair restorers" gain popularity because of the simple fact that hair loss and regrowth may occur normally. If a person happens to use "hair restorer X" in one of the in-between periods, he or she is bound to credit the medicine with any future regrowth. Tribal medicine men drag out their most potent medicines during an eclipse of the sun. Sure enough, the sun reappears.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please help me decide what to do. I have hemolytio anemia and have been taking Prednisone for a year. I take eight pills a day. My doctor doesn't like me taking this much because of possible side effects. Doctors in one Midwestern clinic recommended removal of my spleen. At another clinic I was told that my spleen was perfect, but doctors there, too, said it should be removed.

Doctor, I am 67 and want to know if there is a valid reason for going through with this surgery, especially since I am also told I'll still need the medicine afterward.— Mrs. B.D.

You have gone to two respected centers and have been given what I consider good advice.

Hemolytic anemia means your red blood cells are being destroyed faster than your bone marrow can produce them. Normally, the spleen enters this picture in its role of removing "worn out" or abnormal red cells from the blood. For some, the spleen may tend to destroy more cells than it needs to. Thus, its removal can help.

You should get along nicely without a spleen. A plus for your doctor is that he might then be able to reduce your Prednisone (cortisone) dosage. There can be undesired side effects from prolonged high dosages. Spleen removal (splenectomy) is major surgery, so your general health (except for the anemia) would be a factor in the decision.

In certain types of hemolytic anemia spleen removal won't help at all. Since you have had such expert attention I assume yours is the kind that would likely be helped.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I hear the word "etiology" used frequently by doctors on talk shows and in articles. What exactly does it mean? Just guessing, I figure it means what causes a disease. Right? — Mrs. P.R.

Close enough. A closer definition would be a "sequence of events and conditions that are known to cause a specific ailment." For example, you can have a skin rash, but there might be several possible unrelated etiologies — reasons for it.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: Who can I write to to get information about lupus? — J.A.

The latest address I have of the American Lupus Society is 23751 Madison Street, Torrance, Calif. 90505. They publish helpful material related to this mystery disease, which affects the body's "connective" tissue.

South's four-spade contract is not only an ambitious one, it is also almost impossible to make, but South is lucky. West opens the fourth-best heart and South can win with the queen over East's jack.

Suppose he then draws trumps with two leads. Next he leads a club from dummy and plays his king after East follows with the deuce.

An alert West takes the club trick with his ace and shifts to a diamond, whereupon the defense will add three diamond tricks to its one club and set declarer.

Now let's go back to trick one. South can make a really fancy play and win that heart with his ace. Then draw trumps and lead that same club to his king and West's ace.

If West is looking at all the cards he can proceed to set South two tricks, but West sees only his own hand and dummy.

Also, West is sure that his partner holds the heart queen. It won't occur to him that South has tried a swindle. West leds a low heart to put his partner in. Now swindler South scores his queen of hearts, cashes the jack of clubs, enters dummy with a trump, chucks two diamonds on the good clubs and winds up with game, rubber and an overtrick.

CHICKEN LIVERS

It's economical to use chicken livers for a main dish, as in Chicken Liver Stroganoff. Saute 1 cup of thinly sliced onion and a 2½ ounce jar of sliced mushrooms, drained in ¼ cup (½ stick) butter, until tender, about five minutes. Add 8 ounces of chicken livers, cut in half; brown on all sides. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until livers are tender, about ten minutes. Stir in 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1 teaspoon paprika and salt and pepper to taste. Heat through and serve on hot rice or noodles for four servings.

A New York reader asks what a "tierce" is.

Tierce is an almost obsolete term used to describe any three-card sequence.

Israel Issues Series Of Stamps To Celebrate 'Hapoel' Games

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Every four years Israel hosts its "Hapoel" Games — a series of athletic competitions involving participants from all over the world.

This year, the 11th "Hapoel Games" were the highlights of Israel's 31st anniversary celebration, and a series of three new stamps have been issued to hail the occasion.

The designs of the new Israeli stamps feature stylized drawings of wrestling and gymnastics. Each stamp bears a tab showing a silhouette of a hurdler. Above the illustrations is the inscription "Hapoel Games 1979" in English and Hebrew, according to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

The games were divided into four major segments — international competition, workers' sports competition, spectacular displays and mass participation events. The workers' competition included tennis, table tennis, wrestling and gymnastics. The international events had more than 1,000 athletes from 24 countries.

Also issued by Israel was a stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of Rotary in Israel. Rotary, the international men's voluntary organization that promotes good will and fellowship among its members, is composed of 17,600 clubs in 152 countries. There are 40 Rotary Clubs in Israel.

Speaking of sports, the 1980 Olympic Games will be a philatelists' dream.

Countries throughout the world will be issuing stamps to honor the occasion. The Soviet Union, host for the summer events, has already announced several new stamp sets. The United States, site of the Winter Games at Lake Placid, N.Y., has revealed the most comprehensive package of issues ever dedicated to a single undertaking.

Previously reported in this column are the designs of 10 U.S. postage stamps, three postal cards, a stamped envelope and an aerogramme. They will be released between September of this year and February 1980, opening of the Winter Games.

The large number of items planned by the U.S. Postal Service overshadows the total of 12 stamps honoring previous Olympics: three in 1932, one in 1960, four in 1972 and another four in 1976.

Plans also include the sale of a new book entitled "The Olympics Mint Set," which will include mint Olympic stamps and stationery. The new mint set will be availale at a number of selected philatelic outlets throughout the United States and by mail order from the Postal Service Philatelic Sales Branch in Washington.

Jesse Owens, U.S. gold medalist of the 1936 Games in Berlin, helped unveil the cover design of the Olyinpics Mint set at the Postal Service National Postal Forum in San Diego, Calif.

Here are some notes on the 1979 Summer Stamps issued by the Netherlands. Two stamps were devoted to music and two marked the near completion of the restoration of St. John's Church in Gouda, famous for its stained glass.

The St. John's windows date back to the 16th century and the designs featured panels numbered 12 and 25 in the collection. Panel 12 dates from 1564 and is devoted to Mary and the Birth of Christ. Panel 25 dates back to 1603 when William of Orange was in power.

The four semi-postals are available at your local stamp dealer or department.

Clogged Main Soil Line Likely Backing Up Water

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — Every once in a while, the double tubs in our basement get several inches of water in them even though the faucets haven't been turned on for days. This water seems to be backing up from the two drains in the tubs. At first, I put a chemical drainer in the tub, but this didn't do any good. I also tried using the rubber plunger, again without results. I even cleaned out the traps at the bottom. No matter what I do, the water stays in the tubs for several hours then drains away. I know the backing up isn't coming from a cesspool or septic tank because we are connected to a reglar sewer. What can be causing this?

A. — It is almost certain that your main soil line leading to the sewer is clogged just enough so that the water goes through it under ordinary conditions but backs up when too much water is sent into it at one time. You are going to need professional help to unclog it — either a plumber or a company that specializes in that type of work.

Q. — I saw an explanation some time ago of what is meant by a performance code in regard to the construction of houses, but lost the clipping. Can you explain it to me?

A. — For many years, building codes specified exactly what materials could be used in construction work. This prevented the use of new materials. As more and more builders and engineers complained, states began to change their codes to permit the use of a wide variety of materials provided they could pass certain performance tests. In other words, if a material can do the job, it can be used. State inspectors check the product, both at the factory and at the site of construction. Unfortunately, some states still haven't changed the old codes.

Q. — A few years ago I put down vinyl tiles on a floor that had been covered with sheets of hardboard underlayment. It looked swell, but after it had been walked on a couple of weeks, some of the adhesive began to ooze up at the joints. I have to do a similar job now. How can I avoid the trouble I had last time?

A. — There are two general causes for this. One is the application of too much cement. Using a notched spreader can help prevent this. The other is sliding the tiles into place. Instead, lay each tile in place without any sliding motion.

(Complete instructions and drawings for installing floor tiles are included in Andy Lang's booklet, "Resilient Floor Tiles," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answerd in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Photography Helps Man Adjust To Changes

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Dear Readers: Photography has brought me a multitude of personal friends since I started writing this weekly column 31 years ago.

Photography, for each of us, is a special hobby, art or profession which you share with others and which multiplies its pleasures, excitement and sense of creativity as it passes along.

Recently, I discovered again how much photography has enriched my life through the friendships formed with camera fans, column readers, professionals and colleagues in the photographic industry. Three events occurred in the past year which changed the heretofore normal path of my life, and in each case photography played a major role in making a drastic change easier to adjust to.

First, in the early part of 1978, my wife, Gertrude, died. She had been my photographic companion, partner and subject for 40 years, an integral part of everything I did in photography. Mother of our three daughters, she provided me with the most compelling magnet for pictures: children and their endless parade of photogenic activities.

Though she is gone, the memories of 40 years remain in precious images that bring solace and comfort, not only to myself, but to my children and grandchildren. Thanks to photography, the pictures are our "roots," permanently fixed and perennially flowering.

The second event was a decision to uproot myself from New York, the city in which I was born and lived. After living in an eight-room house for 26 years accumulating thousands and thousands of photographs, it was a monumental task to take along only enough for a small condominium in Delray Beach, Fla.

Part of the problem was solved by offering the vast amount of material and photographs involved in the writing of this column to New York's International Center of Photography. Director Cornell Capa accepted the material for the center's archives as a possible source for study for students in the future after proper cataloguing.

An even greater collection of negatives and pictures was turned over to the American Museum of Magic in Marhall, Mich. I have been photographing magicians in action for more than 40 years, and museum director Robert Lund says it is an important historical collection in magic, probably the largest photographed by one individual in the world.

The tremendous job of disposing of a house and possessions and moving to another part of the country involved a transition period requiring all my time and effort. That's when old friends in photography came to my aid and offered their help as guest columnists.

Among the first was Walter Chandoha, whom I had met about 25 years ago on the photo lecture circuit. In those early years he had established a national reputation as a photographer of cats. As our families got to know each other better, his reputation expanded and he excelled in photographing dogs, horses and other animals. Finally, he's also become an expert in the farm, gardening and agricultural areas.

Another volunteer was Authur Goldsmith, formerly with the Famous Photographers School and at present editorial director for Popular Photography. Contributor Alex Siodmak, a professional photographer when we first met, now teaches high schoolers the practical aspects of photography. Harvey S. Zucker, formerly president and honorary life member of the Photographic Historical Society of New York, wrote about collecting photographica and how to differentiate between daguerreotypes, ambrotypes and tintypes.

Just as the transition period of moving to Florida was resolving itself, unexpected event number three took place: an auto accident in which I was a victim and which kept me hospitalized for one complete month.

As word of my predicament spread, my friends in photography rallied to keep my column going and speed my recovery with personal visits, cards and flowers which made my hospital room look like an annex of the botanical gardens.

Cornell Capa bounced in after returning from Venice with a complete report of the photographic miracle which he conceived and organized for that city for the next three months — "Venezia '79."

Other hospital cheerer-uppers were David Eisendrath, one of this country's most authoritative photographic technicians and consultants; Marty Forscher, the nation's top camera repairman; and Yale Joel, Life magazine photographer and author of the newest "photo card" teaching system of which you'll hear more about.

Just talking about photography proved to be a revitalizing force in recovery, I found.

Meanwhile, other guest columnists kept the weekly deadlines on schedule. There's Ed Hannigan, whom I first met as edotor of U.S. Camera magazine and who introduced me to Irish coffee at Shannon Airport in 1956. That was our first trip to "Photokina," Germany's famous world's fair of photography. Hannigan is now dean of the School of Modern Photography in Little Falls, N.J.

Other bylines were by Bernie Hoffman, now teaching photojournalistic techniques in his home workshop school in Freehold, N.J.; Chuck Kurtak, director of the Nikon Gallery; and Jack Jeffers of Lyndhurst, Va., a strongadvocate of fine art photography using time-tested rules of composition, mood, taste and archival printing integrity.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Now that warmer weather is on the way, I know everyone's catching on to the trick of filling a large water jug with fresh water and ice at the beginning of the day so the kids can easily get a drink and the refrigerator gets less of a workout.

But I've found an even easier way of providing that cool drink. And, believe me, with four kids my brain works overtime trying to figure out shortcuts and fewer steps.

Fill a clean, empty 2-liter plastic soft drink bottle to within an inch or so of the top with water (removing the black bottom if there is one). Put it into the freezer.

When ready to ice the jug of water, put the frozen water, bottle and all, into the jug. The water stays cool all day.

When you have an occasion to use fruit-drinks or tea for picnics, using this method the drink won't become diluted as the ice melts. Better yet, at the end of the day just put the bottle baok into the freezer for tomorrow.

Love your column and you. — S.L.C.

Now that's one I hadn't thought of, but your brain deserves a rest after thinking up this goodie. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I bought a new set of rugs for my bathroom but the one that goes around the commode didn't fit properly.

Since this is the second set with the same problem, I figured it must be the shape of the toilet.

After cutting a cardboard pattern of the base of the commode, I proceeded to trace it onto the back of the rug. I then took my cutting knife and cut around the lines.

Wow! What a fit I got! No more rug sitting up on the base of the toilet. — Judi L.

I was wanting to put some type of protectors on the bottom of my desk chair because it was scratching my hardwood floor something terrible.

Workshop At LCC Hears Novelist

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Good fiction writing mirrors the richness of life, weaving inspiration and beauty along with pain and ugliness into the context of a story, and English teachers must use those stories to excite the senses and stir the imaginations of students.

Novelist, teacher, mother and wife, Robin Brancato, speaking Thursday at the Lubbock Christian College Summer Workshop, "Strategies for Teaching Secondary English," said the dual responsibilities of writer and teacher can be burdensome.

"I believe as a writer in faithful reproduction of language in life. As a teacher, though, I abhor lazy, unimaginative language," she said.

She added that her recourse was to try to take the middle path, using improper grammar and profane language if imperative, but always underlining the importance of words to life.

Speaking of the central characters in her soon-to-be published fifth novel, "WHUP," Mrs. Brancato said: "They share a belief, with most of my other protagonists and with me, that words matter, that if we can use words, we can communicate and work things out."

She cited the example, however, of one eighth grade student in Wisconsin who recently took exception to her philosophy of realism.

In a December 1978 letter to the author on the subject of her third novel, "Winning," a story of the response of a high school boy to a paralyzing football injury, the student said he enjoyed the book, but was offended by the language.

She told the assembled area teachers she wrote the Wisconsin student and explained that while she dislikes "bad language," many people use it. To refuse to use profane language in writing for adolescents would be to ignore a large segment of society, many of whom are "good and worthy of love," Mrs. Brancato said.

Her remarks were the first at the three-day workshop that will end Saturday afternoon. Still to speak are P. Allen Briggs on "Teaching with Newspapers," Gene Michelon on "Some Practical Tips in Successful Writing," Ann Jenson on "Teaching Language and Composition" and columnist M. Stanton Evans on "Teaching Responsible Citizenship."

The workshop, which is being planned and coordinated by the LCC English department and funded by the LCC Center for Business and Economic Education, is designed to improve junior and senior high school English teaching.

Following Mrs. Brancato's speech, one local teacher said she recently took a classroom poll which indicated that nearly all the students use profanity and dislike G-rated motion pictures.

'Battlestar Galactica' Marks Early Work Of British Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Moviegoers' fascination with outer space seems insatiable, so Universal Pictures is releasing another space adventure, this one slightly used.

"Battlestar Galactica" was hailed as the most expensive television series ever made, the most promising new offering for the 1978-79 season. Alas, the Universal-ABC show ran out of gas after 23 segments, and will not be returning next season.

Movie patrons will be able to see "Battlestar Galactica" this summer, thanks to merchandizing strategy of the Universal salesmen. They achieved good results with a theatrical release of "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," a television pilot for a series which will appear on NBC next season. So why not a theater go-round with the pilot film of "Galactica"?

The movie has Sensurround to jolt viewers with the vibrations of space vehicles. It also has Jane Seymour, an English actress with delicate beauty and rare sensitivity.

Her feeling about "Battlestar Galactica" are mixed.

"I did the two-hour pilot film a long time ago," she remarked. "I thought the role was rather promising: A kind of Jane Fonda character who leaves her son with her husband and goes of to pursue her career as a television newscaster (on the planet Capricaz. The lady was dying of cancer, and I had some poignant scenes.

"But when the pilot was tested before sample audiences, the kids cried and said, 'You can't do this to us.' So instead of having the character die, the role was cut down so it was hardly visible."

She returned to the series to appear in another two-hour adventure, but she declined to be one of the regulars. They were Lorne Greene, Dirk Benedict and Richard Hatch. Making guest appearances in the movie are Ray Milland, Lew Ayres and Wilfred Hyde-White.

For Jane Seymour, "Battlestar Galactica" marks another boost in a career that started 15 years ago in England. Born in Bristol the daughter of a surgeon, she started dancing ballet at 13, made her acting debut shortly afterward in a Chef Boyardee commercial aimed at American TV.

She enjoyed some success in British-made films "Oh What a Lovely War," "Young Winston" and "Frankenstein, The True Story" with Michael Sarrazin and James Mason. Her biggest attention came as the virginal Solotaire in the first of the Roger Moore-James Bond epics, "Live and Let Die." The exposure was good, but she realized that not much happens to the careers of the Bond beauties.

Two years of classics in the English theater helped provide background for more diverse roles. When she came to Hollywood for a TV movie, "King David," producer Renee Valente told her: "If youd lose your English accent, you'd never stop working in this town."

Seymour tried it with a dialogue coach. No luck. She found the solution by working in British radio: "We have so many dialects in England, and the programs are set in various regions. I had to learn each dialect. After that it was easy to pick up American. I Was able to talk with a New York accent in 'Seventh Avenue,' like a Bostonian in the 'The Captains and the Kings' and with a Midwest twang in 'The Awakening Land.'"

She recalled her arrival here three years ago:

"I came with only 300 pounds, which is all the British government would allow citizens to take out, with a six-week return plane ticket and no work permit. Within a day I had my first role, in 'Captains and Kings' and I managed to get a permit to work."

Even though she eschewed series television, she has been working steadily ever since, — "and in nothing but American roles." She admits to being "allergic to ham British theatrical acting" and prefers the American style. She is contmplating U.S. citizenship after the necessary five-year residence.

Her biggest break comes next: Starring opposite Christopher Reeve in his first post-Superman film. It is "Somewhere in Time," a Univeral-Rastar production directed by Jeannot Szwarc (Jaws II). Said Jane: "It's a beautiful love story, and I get to play an English lady."

Artist Needed To Head Program

The City of Lubbock needs a young artist to conduct and coordinate a summer arts program in area parks.

The position will be funded out of the CETA Summer Youth Program, which stipulates the artist must be under 21 and economically disadvantaged.

The program would be based on whatever talents the artist has and is able to coordinate, be it drawing, painting, sculpting or weaving, according to Vaughn Hendrie, the city's public information officer.

Hendrie and members of the Human Relations Commission recently came up with the idea to create opportunities for minorities to participate in the arts.

The idea originated from Lubbock's recent arts festival which, Hendrie said, did not draw many minority participants or visitors.

The Human Relations Commission currently is seeking interested artists and hope to implement the program this summer.

If the program begins as planned, HRC members hope to switch the position to another funding title to ensure that funds for a qualified instructor are available year-round.

The Parks and Recreation Department has funds for materials, Hendrie said, adding it would be a "worthy addition to the parks department."

"What is mainly offered now in the parks department is handicrafts primarily for elementary school children," he said.

Having a hand in the creation of the arts program satisfies the HRC charter in terms of promoting opportunities for all citizens to fulfill their talents and abilities, HRC chairman Theron Cole said.

NO DC-10S FOR MILITARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military personnel and their families due to fly aboard civilian DC-10 planes under defense contract will be shifted to military transport planes for such trips, Pentagon officials said Thursday. Spokesman Thomas B. Ross said World Airways has been flying military personnel and their families in DC-10s between the U.S. East Coast and Europe on a daily basis, but that Military Airlift Command C-141 transports will take over that task while DC-10s are grounded.

Veteran Network Correspondent Reviews Career Since Going 'On The Road'

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Kuralt has been "On the Road" for CBS News since 1967, and in that time, that most genial of correspondents has talked with thousands of people.

"The country has changed, to be sure, since '67, with Vietnam and all," Kuralt said the other day. "I think it's become a more just and humane country since we started."

Civil rights and human rights and concern for the environment have helped change peoples lives, and their relationships with one another, Kuralt says.

Nonetheless, most of Kuralt's "On the Road" features for CBS' "Evening News" are as crisp and appealing as the day they were broadcast, and he's just put together another of his periodic anthologies, "On the Road with Charles Kuralt," to be broadcast by CBS at 10 EDT Friday.

"I've really got no philosophy about the stories I do," said Kuralt, trying to explain the lasting quality of his work. "I am sort of looking for eternal themes, like the man who fights city hall.

"But even then," Kuralt said, "I'm not looking for specific stories, I'm just looking for interesting yarns."

Kuralt recently took on a regular assignment as anchorman for CBS' "Sunday Morning" news show, after assurance it would not inerfere with "On the Road." He appears to be a man who truly enjoys life on the road.

"We get paid for driving along," he says at the start of the "CBS Reports" special, "looking out the window and sending back whatever we see to Walter Cronkite to use on the 'Evening News.' We keep our eyes open. Our ears, too."

Charles Kuralt joined CBS as a news writer in 1956, and spent time as a political reporter and foreign correspondent. He helped put together documentaries, including "Mayor Daley: A Study in Power," "You and the Commercial," and "Destination: North Pole."

In 1977, he was a reporter for CBS' short-lived 'Who's Who" prime-time seriesm

Kuralt has been accompanied for several years on the road by cameraman Isadore Bleckman and soundman Larry Gianneschi Jr., and the three, with producer Bernard Birnbaum in New York, put together the latest hour-long special. They've worked together on others before.

Kuralt's search for "On the Road" is for the offbeat, perhaps eccentric American like 103-year-old Miss Lula Watson, who's paid to cheer up old folks, or Gordon Bushnell, the retired farmer who's building a 191-mile road between Duluth and Fargo. Or Alex and Mary Chandler of Prairie Valley, Miss., sharecroppers who sent their nine children to college.

These people, and others, Kuralt says, "have different accents and different persuasions and they live in different parts of the country.

"You might say that what they all have in common is that each of them is an American original."

And, they're all pleasant, compassionate people.

"People who are mean are usually news stories," Kuralt said, "and I'll call '60 Minutes' about them.

"I don't know what 'On the Road' ought to be," he said, "but it ought not to be news stories."

'Wanda Nevada' Puts Normal Minds To Test

"Wanda Nevada." Screenplay by Dennis Hackin. Directed by Peter Fonda. Photographed by Michael Butler. Edited by Scott Conrad. Art direction by Lynda Paradise. Stars Peter Fonda, Brooke Shields, Luke Askew and Ted Markland. Rated PG. Stars today at the South Plains Cinema.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Peter Fonda said during a recent A-J interview that he wanted to make "Wanda Nevada" because he likes fairy tales, but what he comes up with instead is a well photographed bad dream. Whereas most moviegoers hit the concession stand upon walking into a theater, the folks who sit through "Wanda Nevada" will probably want to belly up to the bar afterwards and order a large soft drink and a small bag of peyote buttons. It's that type of movie. Simplistic, but nonsensical. Lyrical, but lacking direction. The sort of film the normal mind won't comprehend.

A-J FILM REVIEW

Indeed, this has to be one of the more contrived, ill-conceived pictures of the year, filled with ghosts and convenient plot devices and dialogue like, "He shot me in the back. She stabbed me in the chest with an ice pick. I liked to bled to death from a broken heart."

As the picture opens, our favorite pretty baby, Brooke Shields, is donning lipstick and trying to put on the seductive routine once more. But it IS an act this time. The 13-year-old beauty wanders into the backroom of a dusty barbershop, where a heated poker game is progressing toward its final hand. The local stud throws Miss Shields into the pot when he's $50 short of calling con man Beaudray Demerille (Fonda), and the money and girl are both soon won by Fonda, thanks to an extra ace up his sleeve and an extra gun under the table.

From the first moment these two set off together, though, they're griping and grating on each other's nerves — which movie buffs of long standing naturally recognize as the preliminary indications of a lasting relationship. Sure enough, the bond between the two strengthens and they act as a team.

The goal of this team is to find gold in the Grand Canyon. At least that's what the two decide to do after happening upon a map drawn by Texas Curly, a grizzled old prospector (all prospectors are grizzled and old in these movies) played by Paul Fix who flashes nuggets in the local bar and talks of a lost mine guarded by Apache ghosts. The conflict comes with a couple of criminal types, Luke Askew and Ted Markland, cutting the throat of Texas Curly (Fix was never so rudely treated when wearing a badge as Micah on TV's "The Rifleman") and then trying to kill Wanda and Beaudray and recover the treasure themselves.

Now this much we can keep up with; it's not terribly original, but it is easy to comprehend. We can even tolerate screenwriter Dennis Hackin's insistence upon such "authentic" 1951 Southwestern dialogue as "polecat" and "buzzard bait." After all, as Miss Shields tells us, "Everybody's gotta have a dream. Even a yahoo like you."

But somebody — either Hackin or Fonda, the latter also serving as director — had to be dreaming to think audiences would be entertained by the subsequent trek through the Canyon. Characters are thrown in for absolutely no reason. They serve no purpose. Henry Fonda has a publicized cameo as an old prospector named Dutch.

HUNTING GHOSTS AND GOLD — Brooke Shields, left, and Peter Fonda take a break while searching for gold in the Grand Canyon, the treasure supposedly guarded by the ghosts of Apache warriors. The scene is from the new film "Wanda Nevada," an obscure sort of fairy tale currently playing at the South Plains Cinema. It is rated PG.

He gets to spit tobacco. Big deal. Severn Dardin makes a strange and useless appearance as an ornithologist named Bitterstix, a chubby bird lover who makes ludicrous advances toward Miss Shields and then becomes the first to die by way of a glowing ghost arrow.

Then there's Fiona Lewis as a Life Magazine photographer, tossed in so someone can offer Brooke a womanly chat.

And let's not forget our two villains, too bumbling for adult viewing and too sadistic to be suitable for children's eyes. One minute they're murdering an old drunk or pumping bullets into a rubber Indian (excuse me, I'm told by friends that was supposed to be a ghost), and the next they're reliving their World War II experiences or worrying about being drafted into the Korean conflict. Is this supposed to be funny? Peculiar thing, though: Practically every star in this film talks about the war at least once. It got to the point where a few members of the audience at an advance screening started joking that the Indian ghosts were probably really "Krauts in disguise."

Peter Fonda's direction of "The Hired Hand" in 1971 made ample use of character study and effective photographic techniques. And though "Wanda Nevada" is much more of a cartoon and thus doesn't demand such introspective work, Fonda and cinematographer Michael Butler still do an excellent job with the visuals. The aura of danger and cheap booze is established through the murky lighting of the barbershop's back room; the splendors of the hot Grand Canyon are captured, and the moving silhouettes filmed in long shot are reminiscent of old John Ford westerns. But that's where the similarities end.

Death is not pretty to look at in "Wanda Nevada" and yet gun battles are played for slapstick laughs. There isn't enough cohesion. That's initially Hackin's fault, since it quickly becomes obvious the actors are hindered by poor writing, but Fonda is not able to break the evil spell as a director, either. Instead, he relies on convenience. One person brings up the war, and the listener says, "Hey, I lost a loved one there too." An orphan complains about her lot in life, and the listener says, "Hey, I'm an orphan too." A hat blows away and comes to rest on top of a vital clue.

It's all too pat.

This amateurish riding of the easy trails in "Wanda Nevada" is what rapidly turns the picture into laughable material, and the constant introduction of totally unnecessary minor characters transforms our laughter into confused chuckles. It's impossible to comprehend Fonda's sense of purpose in this dumb little diversion, which doesn't manage to succeed as fairy tale or romance or even mystery. Indeed, if you're looking for a label, call it "buzzard bait" — because the plot wanders off and dies soon after the picture opens.

JAM NOTES — For the numerous Lubbock residents heading off to Dallas for tomorrow's Texxas Jam at the Cotton Bowl, here is an updated request from the promoters and the Dallas police: "Persons attending the rock concert should use the Fitzhugh Avenue entrance, coming across town from Central Expressway and leading directly to a large parking area at the back of the park. Those traveling Interstate 30-West from Garland or Mesquite should exit at Barry or Carrol to connect with Fitzhugh. An alternate recommended route exits Interstate 30-West at Fair Park-Second Avenue exit, and follows Second to Pennsylvania where extensive parking will be available."

Now, if you manage to find the Cotton Bowl, the first act goes on stage at 1 p.m. A crowd of 75,000 is expected.

TV Show Reporter Rossi Gets Bids For Newspaper Articles

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You might say that it was a vice arrest that got Robert Walden the role of reporter Joe Rossi in "Lou Grant."

An explanation: Walden played a vice officer who arrested Rhoda in an episode of that CBS show in the mistaken belief she was a streetwalker.

Walden's vice officer was abrasive, and even when he was proved wrong about Rhoda, he couldn't bring himself to apologize. That was the element the people at MTM Enterprises were looking for as they cast the Rossi character, and they offered Walden the part in "Lou Grant," then in the planning stages.

"After the experience I had on 'Rhoda,' I told Jim Brooks and Allan Burns there was no one I'd rather work with than those guys," Walden said. "But I told them I was getting other offers for series and they'd better hurry.

"They couldn't make an offer then because the first script hadn't even been written, and a lot of people had cast approval. So they gave me holding money to turn down the other series. I took that as an act of faith. As it turned out, the role was offered to two other actors prior to my getting it.

"I think it's important to keep reminding people of that so they don't think this is a Cinderella-land where people don't get hurt," Walden said. "It's not smooth, and it's alway painful. I Still have the scar of being third — and keep in mind this was a role written for me."

He said he may have inadvertently sent the producers looking for a younger actor because of a remark he made. Burns came to see him backstage at the Mark Taper Forum, where he was performing, and told him he was worried because the character was so unlikeable and overbearing.

"I told him the only thing forgiveable in someone that obnoxious is if he's young and has a chance to grow," Walden said. "But if he's in his 30s you may be in trouble. I may have hurt myself because they tried two younger actors. So I decided to play him younger.

"I'm 35 but I play him in his 20s. It's important for him to be young because he had no redeeming features, no admirable qualities. His ambition was out of control."

Since "Lou Grant" premiered two years ago, Rossi has mellowed somewhat. Walden has played Rossi as vulnerable, and his aggressiveness never is belligerent.

Walden is frequently invited to visit newspapers and attend newspaper meetings. He said everywhere he's gone he's been told about prototypes of Rossi.

"I've been introduced to a lot of them," he said, "and many of them are introverted. But their eyes are alive. They were quiet but driven. That's what makes them good reporters. The people who presented them to me always did so with affection. That made me feel good."

Walden has played numerous roles in movies and television, but he said he found being a reporter the toughest.

"It's harder to come up with some behavior unique to the profession," he said. "Every reporter has a different style. I couldn't find anything other than drinking, and I already knew how to do that.

"I couldn't find anything generic like in 'Hospital,' when I played the senior resident with George C. Scott. The thing I noticed about doctors is the chronic fatigue. They're always leaning on things. They're tired, their faces are less mobile. All reporters are different so it made it hard. Other than enormous egos, I couldn't find a handle."

Walden now finds himself occasionally called on to actually write for newspapers. He spent some time at the Washington Post and wrote a piece for that paper. The New York Times has asked him to write an article on the media's reaction to "Lou Grant." He wrote a guest column for New York magazine on scalping hockey tickets.

Week Added To Skylab Re-Entry Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — The giant Skylab space station now is expected to stay in orbit until at least July 4, with July 16 the most likely re-entry date, the space agency said Thursday.

The report is based on tracking information gathered by the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) which is keeping track of the 77-ton satellite from its command center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

NORAD predicted in its weekly Skylab report that there is a 95 percent probability the station will fall to earth between July 4 and July 28 and a 50-50 chance it will come down July 16.

It was the second successive week NORAD has added a week to Skylab's expected life. Last week it predicted re-entry between June 28 and July 21, with July 9 the most likely day.

The rate at which Skylab falls is affected by outbursts of radiation from the sun. Solar radiation heats up the atmosphere, causing it to expand and increase atmospheric drag on orbiting satellites.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said most of Skylab will burn up from atmospheric friction during re-entry, but 400 to 500 pieces should survive and hit the Earth. The agency said the chance of injury or damage to individuals is slight because the area over which Skylab flies is 75 percent water, while most land is uninhabited.

Refugee Smuggling Case Brings Guilty Plea

HONG KONG (AP) — The captain of the battered freighter Huey Fong on Thursday changed his plea to guilty to conspiring to smuggle 3,318 Vietnamese into Hong Kong last December.

Crown Counsel Peter Duncan told Victoria District Court that the plot to deceive the Hong Kong government was hatched with the active participation of the Vietnamese government.

Duncan produced about 50 cables that he said contained a code in which the Huey Fong was referred to as "the bride," its arrival date in Vietnam as the "wedding date" and the passengers as "frozen ducks."

Pro Sports Ask Ban Of Cable TV Broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Professional baseball and basketball asked the Senate Thursday for a statutory ban against cable television outlets retransmitting the programs — particularly sports events — of distant stations without consent.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told the Senate Commerce subcommittee on communications that cable broadcasts seriously threaten home attendance and "Congress should not await an autopsy" upon his sport before acting.

A similar protest of cable television's pickup of sports programming without permission or negotiated payment was aired by a representative of National Basketball Association Commissioner Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Each commissioner had given similar testimony to a House subcommittee earlier.

But Robert Schmidt, president of the National Cable Television Association, countered that "there is no business in this country that has as much control over its product as professional sports, control made possible under the terms of numerous antitrust exemptions.

"The fact that consumers all over this country are willing to pay for the program diversity available on cable is simple proof that cable is providing a service the public wants," Schmidt said.

The Senate panel, like its House counterpart, is considering various proposals aimed generally at the deregulation of the broadcast industry. However, each of two Senate bills would preserve the current system, which allows cable operators to retransmit the programs of distant local stations, provided the copyright owners of the shows are later reimbursed under a statutory fee schedule.

The major networks, professional sports and other program producers have argued that the fixed fees are far too low and that cable operators should be forced to bid for shows in the open marketplace as do other broadcasters.

"As any other entrepreneur who has created a product at great personal risk and expense, a major league baseball club should have the right to control the distribution of its telecasts and to negotiate for their use based upon a fair value," said Kuhn.

"Under the current statutory arrangement, cable has been able to expropriate the 1,400-odd local non-network baseball telecasts and carry this programming across the country without the consent — indeed over the objections — of the clubs concerned," he said.

Schmidt disputed the attendance complaints leveled by Kuhn, noting that baseball established an overall gate record last year, with six teams attracting more than two million fans. As for Pittsburgh's experience, he said, there are "many reasons for poor attendance, including poor team management and the lack of parking facilities."

As evidence that cable was not a factor, Schmidt pointed out that "in several of the past years, both cable penetration and home game attendance increased at healthy rates," and only last year did the Pirate gate fall off.

Chinese Congress Sets Opening Work Sessions

TOKYO (AP) — The Standing Committee of China's National People's Congress opened a meeting in Peking Thursday to prepare for a session of the full Congress, China's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported.

Xinhua did not give the date of the full Congress session.

It said the Standing Committee would discuss a proposed new criminal code and a draft criminal prosecution law. Small group discussions will begin Friday, it added.

The last full Congress session was held Feb. 26-May 3 last year.

Florida Freshwater Fishing Abounds

By AL HACKETT
Florida Division of Tourism

Summer vacationers in Florida will find that no matter where they stay, good freshwater fishing is practically at their door.

And, since fishing in the Sunshine State is a year-around sport, visitors have a built-in bargain: they can go fishing any time the mood strikes them. The only requirement is a freshwater fishing license, easily obtained for a nominal fee.

Northwest Florida's numerous rivers — including the Blackwater, Yellow, Choctwhatchee, Ocklockonee and lower Apalachicola — offer excellent possibilities for largemouth bass, bluegills, shellcracker and catfish.

Small lakes dot the countryside. Among the most popular are those in the sand hill country inland from the Panama City area, including Gap, Greenhead, Hicks and Blue lakes.

At the upper end of the Apalachicola River is Lake Seminole, behind Jim Woodruff Dam. On the opposite end of the river, near Wewahitchka, is Dead Lake, and a few miles west of Apalachicola is Lake Wimico.

Many fine fishing resorts and camps encircle the lakes, offering accommodations, bait, tackle and knowledgeable fishing guides.

Few lakes in the country can match the quantity of large bass taken out of Lake Jackson just north of Tallahassee. More than 400 fish in the six-pound-and-over category have been caught by anglers each year for the past decade.

Anglers in the Tallahassee area also will find Lakes Talquin, Miccosukee and Iamonia excellent waters for bass and panfish catches.

Southeast, around Gainesville, are Lakes Newman, Orange, Levy and Lochloosa. Farther south, near Leesburg, are Lakes Eustis, Dora, Griffin and Harris. All offer consistently good summertime fishing.

Ocala National Forest, just north of the Leesburg lake chain, is a popular summer recreation area. Vacationers who seek refuge under its leafy shade will find numerous lakes and ponds, large and small, offering good fishing possibilities.

Anglers should not overlook Lake George, on the St. Johns River, or the series of lakes in the same river south of Sanford and extending almost to Melbourne. All boast good fishing reputations.

Along the Kissimmee Waterway, two lakes — Kissimmee near Lake Wales and Tohopekaliga at Kissimmee — are the newest Florida lakes to gain national recognition for their large bass.

Both lakes were drawn down to expose the lake floor and kill noxious weed growth, When the lakes were refilled, anglers put on their waders, since both lakes have extensive shallow areas.

ANOTHER KEEPER — The clearwater lakes and streams in Florida number in the thousands. Most of the water sites provide black bass fishing, considered the best anywhere by many anglers. (Photos by Florida Department of Commerce)

On the Florida West Coast, north of Clearwater, are a number of streams and lakes offering fine summer fishing fun: the Withlacoochee, Crystal, Homosassa and Chassahowitzka rivers; Lake Tsala Apopka and Panashoffkee, near Inverness; Lake Tarpon, east of Tarpon Springs; and Lake Seminole, between Largo and St.Petersburg.

In the southern portion of this coastal area, visitors can try their luck in the Braden and Manatee rivers near Bradenton; in the Myakka River east of Sarasota; and in the attractive Peache River, from Bartow southward past Fort Meade, Zolfo Springs and Arcadia into Port Charlotte.

Practically all of South Florida is an anglers' paradise. This is the portion of the state encompassing famed Lake Okeechobee and the watery wonderland of the Florida Everglades.

Lake Okeechobee is not noted for large fish, although lunkers can be taken. It offers, instead, a dependable place to fill a string, whether it be with bass, bluegill, speckled perch (crappie) or catfish.

Nearby and to the southeast, near Fort Lauderdale and Hollywood, are three sections of the Everglades turned into conservation primarily to hold water. The areas also hold a lot of fish.

As for tackle, Florida fishing requires no special gear. All a bass angler needs is a good rod, reliable spinning or casting reel and 10- to 12-pound test line. A cane pole, line, sinker, bobber and hook baited with either earthworms or crickets will bring action for the panfisherman.

Florida's summertime visitors will find it difficult to match the thrill of playing a lunging largemouth bass or listening to the cries of pleasure of a youngster struggling with a scrappy bluegill.

DISCOVERY

DEPENDABLE ACTION — Florida's tropical vegetation and year-around warm climate assure good fishing in most areas of the state every season of the year — including the "dog days" of summer.

Brochures Detail Fishing, Camping

Florida has 600 varieties of fish in its offshore waters and freshwater fish in 30,000 lakes. A non-resident annual fishing fee is $10; 14-day, $7; 5-day, $5. No license is required for saltwater fishing.

A brochure, "Enjoy Florida Sport Fishing," may be obtained by writing to the Florida Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Education and Information, 922 Crown Building, Tallahassee 32304. The same address will provide a free color brochure, "Florida State Parks Camping."

Many of the state parks have camping facilities, but be warned that pets are not allowed overnight at the facilities, according to the Mobil Travel Guide.

Details on accommodations and resort facilities may be obtained by writing to the Florida Dvision of Tourism, Visitor Inquiry, 402 Collins Bldg., Tallahassee 32304.

The average mean temperature statewide during the summer is 80 degrees Fahrenheit; in the Keys the average mean temperature is 83 degrees during the summer months.

Big Spring Policemen Kicked Off Task Force

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Both members of Big Spring's Major Crimes Task Force are back in patrolmen's uniforms following allegations that they "were not doing the job expected of them," according to police chief Stanley Bogard.

The transfer represents a demotion for John Burson, who had been a task force member since the group was formed last year. Gilbert Limon, on the task force for about two months, was placed in the position on a probationary status and the move will not affect his salary. But Burson's pay will be reduced an estimated $50 a month.

"In my opinion, and in the opinion of their immediate supervisor (Capt. Jim McCain), they were not doing the job we expected them to," Bogard said. "They are good officers and capable of doing a better job."

Monthly reports from the task force claim that 64 cases have been worked and cleared by the force since the beginning of the year, according to McCain.

"A review of the cases in our files shows that only 24 cases were actually worked and cleared," McCain said. "Of these, several have been made by patrolmen. The majority of the cases are misdemeanors."

Both Burson and Limon have requested the assistance of Joe Gilbreath of the Texas Council for International Brotherhood of Police Officers in Austin.

Gilbreath was in Big Spring this week to meet with the officers and to begin preliminary appeals proceedings.

"When and if all the appeal channels are exhausted, we will take this thing to court," Gilbreath said.

He countered the department charges, saying that Burson and Limon had received inadequate training and supervision.

Burson is president of the local IBPO chapter and he has been active in organizing a petition drive to have civil service standards apply to the Big Spring Police Department.

Bogard denied that the demotion was in retaliation for those actions. "If this had been retaliation, it would have occurred a long time ago when all this union business started," Bogard said.

Bogard said the program will continue "with the hope we can justify its existence by August." Former detective David Spilman and former patrolman Mike Eggleston will replace the Burson-Limon team.

The Major Crimes Task Force, which began operation in October 1978, investigates all major crimes, including rape, murder and large burglaries.

"The main objective of the force was to cut down on the number of drug-related crimes in the city," said McCain.

People With Problems Offered Help

Worry, alcohol or drugs can't hold a candle to self-help when it comes to getting it all together, in the view of one Texas Tech University professor who will direct a workshop this summer in rational self-counseling.

Participants will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m., June 12, 14, 19, 21, 26 and 28. The workshop is offered through Texas Tech's division of continuing education. The fee is $30, and Dr. Paul Knipping of the Texas Tech health education faculty is the instructor.

Knipping and two colleagues have described their research in rational self-couseling in an article appearing in the January-February issue of "Health Values Achieving High Level Wellness." His co-authors are Dr. Maxie Maulsby Jr. who is the author of the book, "Help Yourself to Happiness," and Dr. Thomas C. Timmreck. Maulsby is a member of the psychiatry faculty at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. Timmreck is on the Center for Health Services staff at Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff

One of Maulsby's video tapes, demonstrating his work with an alcoholic, will be a part of the workshop.

Knipping said the workshop will deal with applications of rational self-counseling to problems involving divorce, obesity, alcoholism, and other stress management.

"It is especially helpful," he said, "for persons with cardiovascular problems brought on by mismanagement of stress. Rational self-counseling is an effective way to minimize anger, anxiety, jealousy and other nonproductive emotions. While it works for postoperative heart patients, it should also provide a useful preventive approach to all pathology having an emotional base."

In their recent article the three authors urged that rational self-counseling be taught in public schools, as an approach to good mental health.

"Our TV-addicted society is probably the best informed, yet most dissatisfied, of any generation," they said. "The young and old both demonstrate their dissatisfaction with frequent illegal, immoral, antisocial and-or self-destructive behavior.

"Of the 150 million new prescriptions written each year, over half are for tranquilizers. Not surprisingly, the alcoholic beverage industry is one of the largest and most profitable in our country."

Their solution is to teach students "skill in the healthy use of their inner resources, skill in creating rational self-concepts and skill in making rational decisions and in formulating rational values and goals."

The workshop Knipping will teach will expand upon these concepts. To preregister or for more information, contact the division of continuing education at Texas Tech.

HEARTLINE: My mother has had to rent or purchase certain items for use at home for my father, due to a recent accident he had. Will Medicare Part B help pay for a wheelchair, crutches, a hospital bed, orthopedic stockings and a walker? — H.W.

If the items are medically necessary and prescribed by the doctor, and the Medicare Part B deductible has been met, then Medicare will help to pay for or rent all those items except the orthopedic stockings.

For more information on other medical and health aids which Medicare will cover, we have available our guide to Medicare. To order, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. This book is fully guaranteed for your satisfaction and can be returned for a full refund of the purchase price.

HEARTLINE: My father will be 64 next month. He is on Social Security. Lately his hearing has been deteriorating. We have been thinking about purchasing a hearing aid for him. Can you give us any advice on this? — S.C.

Effective selection of a hearing aid is something of a problem. In some cases, hearing loss can be corrected by medical treatment. In other instances, use of a properly selected hearing aid will improve a person's ability to hear. There are also cases in which neither medical treatment nor a hearing aid will help the individual hear better.

Since Aug. 15, 1977, hearing aids may be sold only to people who have been examined by a licensed physician within six months before the aid is purchased. It is possible, however, for people 18 years of age and older to waive the requirement by signing a statement indicating they know why medical examination is advisable.

The Food and Drug Administration advises a person to try to find a dealer who will let him use or rent a hearing aid on a trial basis to make sure that the hearing aid will actually help to improve hearing. The FDA reports that the average price for a hearing aid is between $300 and $450. Since a hearing aid can be an expensive investment, we suggest you check with your doctor first.

Your father's loss of hearing may be a symptom of another medical problem, or be something as minor as wax buildup in the ear. Your doctor may refer you to an ear specialist to make sure the loss of hearing can be improved with the use of a hearing aid.

HEARTLINE: My wife and I are both 65. We have been drawing Social Security for three years. We are planning to move to a state with a warmer climate. We have heard several times that Social Security benefits are different in each state. Is this true? Also, what do we do about a change of address for our benefits? — N.B.

Regular Social Security retirement, disability and survivors benefits do not vary from state to state, so the move will not affect the amount of your benefits. You will continue to receive the same benefits. You must notify your nearest Social Security office, as well as the post office, of your change of address. If you are using direct deposit of your benefits to your bank, then the bank usually handles the change of address.

Death Row Inmate Gets Additional Murder Trial

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese district court decided Thursday to reopen the trial of a death-row inmate 29 years after his arrest and 20 years after he was convicted.

Shigeyoshi Taniguchi, 48, was arrested in 1950 at the age of 19 and accused of stabbing a 63-year-old rice dealer and stealing $36 dollars. Taniguchi was convicted in 1959 and ordered hanged, but the case has been on appeal since.

Taniguchi's long trial is not unusual in Japan, where criminal cases have been known to last three decades.

Marshall Files New Suit Against City

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

City Hall critics James G. Marshall and Robert Lee Isom Jr. lost their attempt Thursday to have a validation of $9.5 million in City of Lubbock bonds set aside, but Marshall announced he has filed yet another suit against the city over bonds.

Marshall and Isom had filed a petition for a bill of review last month, asking 137th District Judge Robert C. Wright to set aside his December, 1978, judgment validating the general obligation bonds.

However, city attorneys were successful in challenging the court's jurisdiction over the request for a bill of review and Wright dismissed the case.

In the petition for the bill of review, Marshall and Isom claimed they were being forced to pay more than their share of the court costs for the validation proceedings and, ironically, Wright again ordered the pair to pay court costs for Thursday's hearing.

The hearing was punctuated by an exchange between Marshall and Wright about Marshall not being represented by an attorney.

Marshall, who represented himself in the validation action, asked Wright to continue the hearing until Marshall could hire an attorney.

However, Wright denied the request, telling Marshall he had been notified of the hearing in enough time to hire an attorney.

Isom was represented by attorney Floyd Holder, who originally also was representing Marshall.

Holder told Wright he had been fired by Marshall, but Marshall said Holder withdrew from the case.

"I need a lawyer and want a lawyer," Marshall said. "I beg the court for time to get one."

"The court never precluded you from getting a lawyer and in October, 1978, this court suggested you do so," Wright said. "You had ample time to hire a lawyer."

Don Vandiver, representing the city, said the petition for a bill of review was an attempt "to obtain what could not be obtained in a trial on the merits."

Vandiver also said none of the requirements for a bill of review had been met.

Holder said Wright's court did not have jurisdiction over the validation action because another suit challenging the validity of the bonds was pending in 237th District Court.

However, attorneys for the city denied that case was pending and City Attorney John Ross said the question of jurisdiction had to be settled through an appeal to a higher court — not through a bill of review.

State law establishes a specific route of appeal which Marshall and Isom did not follow, Ross said. If a decision is not appealed within a certain time, state law says that ruling is "forever binding," Ross said.

Marshall and Isom had claimed the appeal bond, raised at the request of the city, prohibited them from appealing the case to a higher court.

Marshall said he had refiled a suit in 237th District Court which challenged the city's handling of bonds.

The suit is identical to one filed in April 1978 attempting to halt the sale of $1.73 million in airport revenue bonds.

Marshall voluntarily dropped that suit after a letter was filed with the court spelling out what the airport bond ordinance said on how bond funds would be spent and accounted for.

Marshall interpreted that letter to mean the city had acquiesced to his demands in the suit, but city officials denied they had agreed to anything.

The refiling of the airport bond suit puzzled city officials, because the bonds already have been sold and roughly three-quarters of the bond funds already have been spent on a two-story parking building expected to be finished this fall.

However, Wright's ruling should clear the way for a planned Aug. 21 sale of $8.82 million in capital improvement bonds to finance water, street, sewer and fire fighting system improvements.

Swedish officials hope to make wood the nation's main source of fuel within 10 to 15 years.

ANNOUNCING A DATSUN EXCLUSIVE... ONLY SMALL PICKUP WITH ONE-TON PAYLOAD.

DATSUN WE ARE DRIVEN

HEAVY DUTY

*$5196. Does not include taxes, transportation charges, license and title fees.

Here it comes. The first small pickup with a one-ton payload! And that's more carrying capacity than any other small truck.

This is one tough, solid, little truck. It's got a heavy-duty, nearly 7 1/2 foot long-bed that's solid steel. Plus eight-ply white wall tires, a heftier gross axle weight rating and four-leaf rear spring suspension that'll take on just about anything.

Result: 43% more cargo and passenger capacity than ever before. Now that's a lot more payload than you'll find in even some bigger rigs. Plus you get some standard features not available on other small pickups.

What's more, this new Datsun truck runs on regular gas. So you get more out of it, without putting more into it.

Come in and put our tough little pickup to the test. Let us show you how they're built to last and last. Compare our prices. Then get set to deal. We are driven to give you the best heavy-duty small truck your money can buy.

Leslie Cops Elite Honor

Lubbock Christian College first baseman Tim Leslie was selected to the all-America baseball team, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) announced Thursday.

Leslie was named to the NAIA's first team for the second consecutive year. He is the tenth all-American selection from LCC in the school's history.

During the 1979 season, Leslie batted .390 for tha Chaparrals, including 19 doubles and 15 home runs. He had 64 RBIs, and his fielding average was .987 as the Chaparrals posted a 42-24 record.

Through three seasons at LCC, the former Lubbock Monterey standout has hit 49 homers and has 212 runs batted in. His career average is .368.

"Leslie is what I consider a true all-American. His stats prove it," said LCC coach Larry Hays.

Previous all-Americans from LCC were Jesse Benavidez (1973-74), John Harris (1974-75-76), Buddy Davis (1976), and Darius Copley (1977-78).

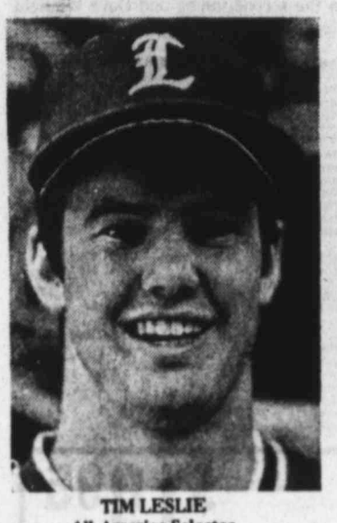

Grand Canyon College, which failed to qualify for the national tournament after winning the Area 2 action because of a champagne incident in the dressing room, Southeastern Oklahoma and Lewis-Clark State of Idaho all placed two players on the All-American team.

Catcher Erice Rasmussen and outfielder Ray Alonzo were selected by the coaches committee from Grand Canyon. Pitcher Gary Benton and outfielder Billy Jack Bowen from Southeastrn Oklahoma, and outfielder Al Lopriore and designated hitter Doug Blume were schosen from Lewis-Clark.

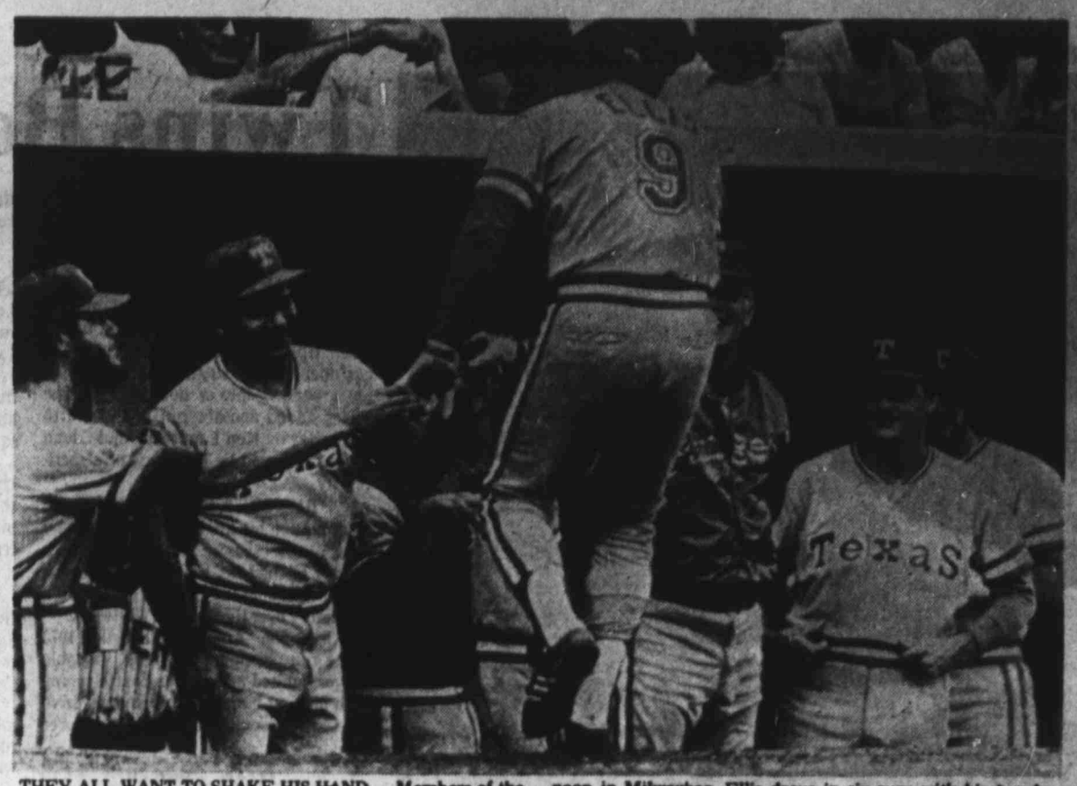

The other two pitchers named to the 15-man squad were Wilson Kilmer of Emporia State in Kansas and Jack Skaggs of William Carey in Mississippi. Stan Thomas of Southern California College was named to the squad as a catcher.

The rest of the infield includes Jack Champagne of Northweood Institute (Michigan), Glenn Eddins of David Lipscomb (Tennessee), Paul Serna of Azuza Pacific (California) and Mike Wilson of Francis Marion (South Carolina).

The other outfielder named to the first team was Phil Baskerville of Elon in North Carolina.

THEY ALL WANT TO SHAKE HIS HAND — Members of the Texas Rangers come out of the dugout to welcome John Ellis after he hit his second home run of the day Thursday afternoon in Milwaukee. Ellis drove in six runs with his two homers and a double as the Rangers defeated the Brewers 7-1. (AP Laserphoto)

Texas Halts Skid

MILWAUKEE (AP) — John Ellis drove in six runs with a pair of homers and a double to back the two-hit pitching of Ferguson Jenkins as the Texas Rangers captured a 7-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday. The victory snapped a three-game Ranger losing streak.

Jenkins, 7-2, got the only runs he needed when Al Oliver singled with two out in the first inning and Ellis lined an opposite-field homer off Moose Haas, 3-5.

(For Thursday's Baseball Results See Page 2, Sec. D)

Another single by Oliver — his third hit — and Ellis' fifth homer of the year made it 4-0 in the sixth.

Jenkins allowed only one hit, an infield single by Cecil Cooper with two out in the first inning, and retired 16 consecutive batters until Jim Gantner tripled leading off the Brewer seventh. Gantner scored on an infield grounder by Cooper.

Ellis got his last two RBIs in the eighth when his ground-rule double followed singles by Buddy Bell and Bill Sample.

Texas' John Grubb extended his consecutive-game hitting streak to 20 with a line-drive single in the ninth inning after going hitless in his first four at-bats.

The start of the game was delayed two hours and 20 minutes because of rain.

Jenkins struck out eight and walked none.

The Rangers scored their final run in the ninth on a triple by Nelson Norman and an infield grounder by Bump Wills.

Rockets Hire Head Man

HOUSTON (AP) — Del Harris, assistant coach of the Houston Rockets for the past three years, officially replaced Tom Nissalke as head coach Thursday and said he hopes his nice guy image gets around.

"So many people have commented that I'm too laid back and too nice a guy to be a head coach," Harris said. "But I'll tell you, there's a lot of turmoil going on under all this white hair. My parents will be glad to know I've learned to control my temper."

The prematurely gray Harris became the first personnel announcement of new owner George Maloof, an Albuquerque, N.M. businessman.

Harris said he was coaching under a one-year agreement and added,"I'm thankful to Mr. Maloof for giving me the opportunity to coach this team."

Harris said his new role will call for some adjustments in his relationship with the team now that he is pulling the strings.

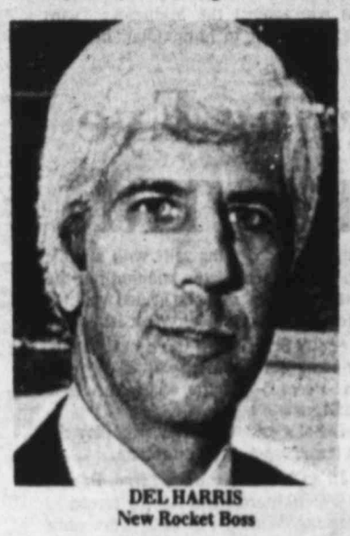

"There'll be times when the players will be upset with me instead of Tom when they have to come off the floor," Harris said. "There will be some adjustments to being the head coach after working with the team as an assistant.

"But I intend to be the same type of person I was. I'm not going to change my personality to fit what someone else thinks a head coach should be like."

The question of a general manager remained unanswered following the new conference.

Nissalke, National Basketball Association coach of the year two seasons ago, has been offered the position by Maloof but has not accepted and speculation is strong that he will not.

"I aven't head anything from anybody," Nissalke said. "I'm just relaxing and playing some racketball and being with my family for a change."

DEL HARRIS
New Rocket Boss

Current General Manager Ray Patterson now is back in the picture.

"We are fortunate at this point that Ray Patterson is still with us," Harris said. "I hope they can convince him to stay on."

Nissalke led the Rockets into the NBA playoffs in two of his three seasons as Rocket coach and compiled a 124-122 record.

Harris, 41, compiled a 79-36 record during five years of high school coaching and had a 175-70 record at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind. Harris also previously was an assistant coach with the Utah Stars in the American Basketball Association and at the University of Utah.

Unlike Nissalke who preferred a patterned offensive attack, Harris likes a running game.

"I prefer the running game but a coach makes a mistake if he determines that his preferred style is the only way to win," Harris said. "I think it's better to have a good knowledge of the game and adjust to the situation."

WHEN TIME AND space run short. . . Dallas could be the halfway point, but Raider wide receiver Brian Nelson plans to go to Big D sometime next week and work out details for his contract with the Minnesota Vikings who drafted him. Meanwhile, Godfrey Turner, who worked the other flank for the Raiders last year, has signed as a free agent with the Atlanta Falcons. . . They're stuffing them with smarts at LCC. Thirteen Chaparral athletes made the Dean's List, when you gotta have a 3.5 grade-point average to be mentioned. Tennis player Steve Joiner and trackster Kyle Smith went perfect 4.0 (all A's), volleyballer Karen Kaufman 3.91, and another volleyball player, Helen Ford, had a 3.88. . .

If you go to the Astrodome this summer, get ready for a bit more heat. The thermostat has been raised from 72 degrees to 80, in a gesture of energy saving. But the real heat is coming from the Astros themselves, who appear to be surprising even themselves with their first-place altitude. . . The Rangers' Ferguson Jenkins, already in the top ten in alltime strikeouts, looked back on his 15-year career, when he played for eight managers. Even with Billy Martin on the list, Leo Durocher made the biggest impression. "He was a brow-beater." But, "He instilled a lot of confidence because he left me out there longer than usual." . .

THE HIGHER YOU'RE drafted, the more money you make — usually. So, Arkansas lineman Dan Hampton, drafted first by the Chicago Bears, made known his price: "I want $6 million, a dollar a year for six million years." . . Cecil Coleman, who was fired at Illinois earlier this spring, is reported to have been interviewed for the AD job at the University of Houston. . .

Aggie basketball coach Shelby Metcalf hasn't changed his nonconference theory: College-level teams at home and lots of tournaments. Next winter, the Aggies' only nonconference games at College Station will be against Texas Lutheran, Vermont, Sam Houston State and East Texas. But, on the road, the Farmers will play tournaments at Anchorage, Alaska; Provo, Utah; Las Vegas, and Minnesapolis. It's worked, though; Shelby won 24 games last winter and has averaged more than 15 wins a year for 16 seasons. . .

CAN YOU BELIEVE it? There is some talk of putting the NFL draft on TV — in prime time, yet. Remember the industry moguls tried to hype up the Heisman Trophy announcement for TV a couple of years ago and it lasted but one time. But, Maybe the draft will go over; should draw more viewers than Championship Knitting. . .

Maybe some folks saw the success Rex Dockery has had in switching people (James Hadnot from TE to FB, principally) and decided to try it. In spring drills just past SMU and the Aggies made ten major position switches each. .

THIS PITCHER HITS—New York Yankees Cy Young Award winner Ron Guidry squares off in the batting cage at New York's Yankee Stadium Thursday morning. Guidry is 6 and 4 for the season with his win against the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night. The Yankees lost to Minnesota Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Twins Beat Yankees

By The Associated Press

Geoff Zahn, Mike Bacsik and Mike Marshall scattered eight hits and pitched the Minnesota Twins a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Minnesota jumped in front against loser Jim Beattie, 3-3, in the first inning when Hosken Powell and Butch Wynegar opened with singles and Roy Smalley grounded into a double play. The Twins added another run in the fourth on singles by Ken Landreaux and Glenn Adams followed by Ron Jackson's sacrifice fly.

RED SOX 9, WHITE SOX 2

Jim Rice hit his 10th and 11th home runs of the season and rookie Chuck Rainey pitched his second major league shutout, leading the Boston Red Sox to a 9-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Rice, the American League 1978 home run champion and Most Valuable Player, ignited a three-run fourth inning with his first homer, a tremendous drive off Chicago southpaw Ken Kravec over the screen beyond the high wall in left center.

ORIOLES 3, ROYALS 1

A bases-loaded single by Gary Roenicke, following an intentional walk to Lee May, drove in two eighth-inning runs and gave the Baltimore Orioles a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Roenicke connected on a 3-2 pitch from Renie Martin, 0-3, who had relieved Steve Busby in the sixth and squelched a Baltimore threat.

Al Bumbry and Rich Dauer, who was trying to sacrifice, drew walks to open the eighth and advanced on a sacrifice bunt by Ken Singleton to set up the intentional pass.

GIANTS 12, CARDINALS 10

Mike Ivie's three-run homer capped a five-run ninth-inning rally that lifted the San Francisco Giants to a 12-10 victory over St. Louis, snapping a seven-game Cardinal victory streak.

The Giants' Willie McCovey reached milestones with a home run and two runs batted in. The homer, his sixth of the season, was the 511th of his career and moved him into an 11th place tie with Mel Ott on the all-time major league list.

CUBS 4, PADRES 3

Mike Vail's pinch-hit sacrifice fly scored pinch-runner Sam Mejias with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

After Barry Foote hit his second double of the game to open the inning, Mejias was sacrificed to third by pinch-batter Steve Dillard before Vail flied deep to center to score Mejias.

Lynn McGlothen, 6-6, was the winner for the Cubs and Bruce Sutter, who pitched the ninth, picked up his 12th save. Bob Shirley, 2-6, was the loser.

The Padres grabbed a 2-0 lead when Fernando Gonzalez hit his sixth homer in the second inning and Dave Winfield slugged his 14th in the third.

Pepperdine To Meet Hogs For Series Title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Sam Favata drove in the go-ahead run in the fifth inning and Mickey Palmer collected a record-tying five hits as Fullerton State beat Pepperdine 8-5 Thursday night to move into the championship game of the 33rd College World Series.

Fullerton (59-14), rated third nationally, will meet seventh-rated Arkansas (49-14) for the national title Friday night. Fullerton outslugged Arkansas 13-10 Wednesday night.

Eighth-rated Pepperdine, a 5-4 loser to Arkansas in the first round, finishes the year 54-17.

The Fullerton-Pepperdine showdown lasted 3½ hours, featured 24 hits and was spiced by a seventh-inning argument that resulted in the banishment of two Pepperdine players and an assistant coach.

With the score tied 3-3 in the fifth, Mike Garcia reached first on a fielder's choice, Glenn Robertson singled and Favata drove in Garcia with a base hit. Palmer singled in Robertson and Favata came home on an error.

Palmer, who also drove in a run in the eighth inning, had four other singles to tie a single game series record shared by four other players. The last player to accomplish the feat was Ron Hassey of Arizona in 1976.

Pepperdine's Tim Gloyd tied the series record of seven stolen bases with a pair of steals.

Jim Sutton (10-2), the second Fullerton pitcher, was credited with the victory and Tony Hudson earned a save.

Fullerton went ahead in the top of the first on Matt Vejar's two-run double, but Pepperdine's Walt Steele hammered a three-run homer in the same inning. Fullerton tied it in the third when John Christensen walked, took third on an error and scored on Tim Wallach's single.

Spring, Sterling Eye AAAA Baseball Title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fastballer Mike Capel struck out 11, including the final two batters, on Thursday to pitch Spring to a 2-0 victory over Carrollton Turner in the Class AAAA semifinal of schoolboy baseball.

Spring will play Baytown Sterling, a 5-2 victor over Brazoswood, for the 4A championship Friday night. Sterling got its winning runs on a 350-foot home run by Lloyd Hollister and two-run triple by Jamie Galloway.

Capel, streching his season record to 14-3, allowed only a lead off single to Clifton Welch in the first inning and a single to Mike Wood with one out in the final inning. With Wood on first, Capel sealed the victory by throwing third strikes past Peter Diffen and Packy Malone.

Spring got only three hits in six innings off Keith Wood, but scored one in the third when Malone bobbled a ground ball and another in the sixth on a passed ball by Diffen, the catcher.

Wood had 10 strikeouts in losing his sixth game against 10 victories.

Wes Walker of Sterling gave up two first inning runs on a walk, Bobby Williams' double and single Benny Dunn, then checked Brazoswood on three singles to raise his record 12-2.

Hollister led off the second with his homer over the left field wall and Craig Cervanka drilled a single. After two popouts to first, Greg Kellogg singled to right and Galloway boomed a triple on two hops to the 400 foot sign in right center.

Sterling scored two insurance runs in the sixth on an infield hit by Hollister, Williams' wild throw to first on a ground ball by Gary Lamb and a single by Frank Hernandez.

Brian Miles pitched five and one third innings and was the loser for Brazoswood.

In a class AAA semifinal game Lance Shipp ignited a tying rally with a triple and DeSoto scored the winning run the next inning on a bases loaded walk to defeat South San Antonio-West 3-2.

Scotty Self slashed three straight hits, including a two-run triple, as Cleburne beat Pecos 5-2 in the other AAA first-round game.

DeSoto and Cleburne will play for the championship this afternoon.

In a Class B semifinal game, Palmer set a state tournament scoring record by thrashing Windthorst 24-2. The game was stopped after five innings because of the ten-run rule.

The most runs that had been scored previously by one team in a game was 17 by South San Antonio in 1964. This is the first year, however, for classes B, A and AA to play in the tournament for a state title.

Britz Takes LPGA Lead

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Jerilyn Britz, who did not qualify for the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour until she was 31, shot an opening 8-under-par 64 Thursday for a 4-shot lead in the LPGA Championship.

Britz was a whopping nine shots in front of defending champion Nancy Lopez, bidding for her fourth consecutive victory this season. Lopez, a record 13 under par in this event last year, struggled to a 1-over-par 73, well back in the pack.

The 36-year-old former Minnesota school teacher matched a women's tour record with nine birdies and posted the lowest score ever in the 25 years of this major event.

Her round over the Nicklaus Golf Center was the lowest opening score on the 1979 LPGA tour by three shots. Pam Higgins, Debbie Meisterlin and Judy Rankin had fired opening 67s earlier this year.

The startling performance drained the non-winner's emotions. Britz buried her face in her hands and wept before regaining her compusure starting a news conference.

"I'm still on a high," she apologized. "I'm very nervous. I praise God for it."

The game's big names ran afoul of afternoon rain. It rained so hard at one point that Lopez pleaded unsuccessfully with officials to halt play.

Lopez managed the only eagle of the foul day with a 3 on the 460-yard 14th hole, but she posted four bogeys to more than offset the eagle.

Penny Pulz, with a 4-under-par 68, was the closest challenger for Britz. Pulz played 10, 11 and 12 in heavy rain and gusting winds and still dipped 1-under-par in that crucial stretch.

A pair of two-time former U.S. Open champions, JoAnne Carner and Donna Caponi Young, were among the six contenders sharing third place at 69, 3 under par on the 6,313-yard layout just north of Cincinnati.

Also at 69 were Amy Alcott, the 1978 LPGA runnerup to Lopez; Amelia Rorer, Shelley Hamlin and Bonnie Bryant, the only current left-handed player on tour.

WATCHING IT DROP — Jerilyn Britz reacts as she watches her birdie putt drop in on the 17th hold of the first round of the LPGA Championship tournament in Mason, Ohio, Thursday. Britz broke the course record with a 64 to take the lead in the tourney. (AP Laserphoto)

Britz' play came as no surprise to her closest pursurers. "She's such a good player, it was just a matter of time. She's so strong," said Young.

A putting lesson from Buffalo, N.Y., pro Pete Sartino last week reaped Britz early dividends.

"He gave me some good pointers," said the leader. "I'm taking my practice stroke very slow on my putts now. It calms me down, I used to be very quick," she said.

The methodical play on the soft, quick greens helped Britz to 27 putts. She 1-putted nine greens with four in a row in one stretch. Seven of her birdies came on putts of eight feet or closer.

Her birds tied the women's tour record shared by six others and came within two shots of Mickey Wright's all-time low of 62. Her total erased the LPGA Championship record of 65 Lopez shot in winning on this same course a year ago.

Lye Holds Atlanta Advantage

ATLANTA (AP) — Mark Lye played one string of eight holes 8 shots under par, finished with a 9-under-par 63 and established a 4-stroke lead Thursday in the weather-delayed first round of the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

The slender, 26-year-old Lye has never before challenged for a PGA Tour title but won two foreign events — in Australia and Switzerland — before he gained his American playing rights.

Lye, packing only 160 pounds on a 6-foot-1 frame, played late in the hot, humid day that was punctuated by a couple of showers and started his round from the 10th tee.

He made his big move with a birdie on the 17th hole and an eagle-3 on the 18th before turning to the other side. And he started that with three consecutive birdies, made a par and followed with two more birdies.

Lye finished off his round with a 6-foot, par-saving putt from hiscross-handed style.

His effort was within a single stroke of the record on the 7,019 yard Atlanta Country Club course, which features the toughest, most leg-wearying hills on the tour and was particularly difficult in the strength-sapping heat.

But it appeared to bother Lye not at all.

"I've got a new, aggressive attitude I've never had before," Lye said.

"I guess the other players brought it on," Lye said.

"We've been having these extremely low scores on the tour. You know, Craig Stadler shot 10 under last week and then Jerry McGee shot 11 under on a harder golf course than this.

"I was just wondering to myself, 'well, who's gonna shoot 10 under today?' I've just kind of set my sights, my goals on that kind of score."

MOVES INTO FINALS — A two-handed backhand from Chris Evert Lloyd of the United States was one of the weapons she used to defeat Australian Dianne Fromholtz, 6-4, 6-3 during a semifinal round of the French Open tennis tournament Thursday in Paris. Chrissie Gains Finals Of French Net Tourney

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd was back in her best clay court form Thursday and outstroked Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-1, 6-3 to gain the women's final of the French Open Tennis Championships.

In Saturday's final she will meet another Australian, Wendy Turnbull, who defeated Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-3.

In the four previous rounds, Miss Fromholtz had not dropped a set and only had lost only 13 games. But against Mrs. Lloyd she was outclassed completely.

Mrs. Lloyd recently lost to Tracy Austin in Rome after 125 straight victories on clay. After disposing of Miss Fromholtz, she held a news conference and gave a little lecture on how to play on clay courts and where the Australian went wrong.

"She went for a lot of winners and on this kind of court you have to be more patient," Chrissie said.

"I think I was the patient one out there. When Dianne is losing she doesn't change her game. She just hopes her shots will start going in, and that is not the way to play on this surface."

Mrs. Lloyd went through the first set with scarcely a single unforced error. From 4-1 she had a run of 14 points and went on to lead 2-0 in the second set.

Miss Fromholtz then caused a brief turnaround by winning three games. She passed Mrs. Lloyd at the net several times in this spell, and the American played a few loose shots.

But the Australian's success ended suddenly with two double faults and a wild forehand over the baseline, and Mrs. Lloyd settled back in the groove and resumed her march forward.

She fought off three game points to capture her opponent's service for 5-3 and then served out to love.

The other semifinal was a dull affair. Miss Marsikova was the last contender from a strong field of young Czech players, but showed little mobility against Miss Turnbull. Both women struggled to hold their services on the slow surface in a blustery wind on the center court of Roland Garros Stadium.

Miss Turnbull won five service games out of 10 and Miss Marsikova won only two out of nine. The Australian, who moved around the court more briskly, stepped up her game to hold service three times out of four in the second set, and that took her to victory.

Mrs. Lloyd said she looked forward to the final, which carries a first prize of $30,000.

"Wendy is an aggressive player and that presents a challenge to me," Chrissie said. "I think it will be a more exciting final than if you had two baseliners."

The men's semifinals are scheduled for today. Bjorn Borg of Sweden, the defending champion, plays Vitas Gerulaitis. Jimmy Connors faces Victor Pecci of Paraguay, who has come through unseeded and upset Guillermo Vilas in the quarter-finals Wednesday.

Nicklaus 'Sharp As Ever', Despite Poor '79 Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Golfer Jack Nicklaus, honored Thursday night as Athlete of the Decade, said his physical skills are as sharp as any time in his long career and good for another 10 years.

"I am hitting the ball better than ever," added the 39-year-old emperor of the fairways. "If my game has deteriorated at all — and I am sure it has — it is in another area — the area of desire and dedication.

"But I am positive I can still win. If I didn't, I would not continue. After being a winner, it would be difficult to become just a participator. When I feel I can't go that extra mile, when I am sure I cannot compete at the highest level, then I will quit.

"Maybe that's soon — but it isn't now."

Nicklaus has played in eight tournaments this season without a victory. Yet his 18-year record includes 66 tour triumphs, 17 major championships and more than $3.3 million in prize earnings.

Golf historians regard his 17 major titles, four more than won by the late Bob Jones, a mark that likely is never to be equalled.

Nicklaus was the second winner of the Athlete of the Decade Award, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, following the election last year of heavyweight ring champion Muhammad Ali.

Ali was not eligible to repeat in the poll of selected sportswriters and broadcasters. Nicklaus won by a sizeable margin over baseball's Rod Carew, football's O.J. Simpson, hockey's Bobby Orr, basketball's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, tennis' Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert, Olympians Bruce Jenner and Mark Spitz and jockey Willie Shoemaker.

Presented the handsome trophy at a black tie dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, the golden-haired native of Columbus, Ohio, said he was "honored and humbled" but refused to subscribe to the suggestion made by some critics, the most recent a commentary in the Christian Science Monitor, that golfers cannot be identified as athletes.

"Comparing golfers with athletes of other sports is like comparing apples and oranges," he said. "Even in baseball you can't compare a pitcher with a hitter, in football a passer with a runner.

"But I certainly consider golfers athletes. There is no physical abuse. The sport calls for a different kind of training. But it requires a lot of endurance, work, mental strain and sacrifice."

Nicklaus pointed out that golf was as demanding as other big time sports in time and dedication needed for refining skills and competing.

"Golfers don't play 2½ hours once a week as football players do, or three hours five or six times a week as baseball players," he said. "They play four hours a day for four days. They train hard, practice before and sometimes after each round.

"Unlike tennis and boxing which are one on one, golf is one against 140 other guys plus a golf course. The concentration has to be intense. You have to make the body do what the mind wants it to do.

"I've seen outstanding players of other sports be completely whipped after a round of golf. Athletes? Sure, golfers are athletes."

Locals Picked During Pro Baseball Draft

Two Lubbock players were chosen in the professional baseball draft for Class A teams.

Brooks Wallace, shortstop for Texas Tech, was selected by the New York Mets in the seventh round; and Steve Brigante, second baseman for Lubbock Christian College, was chosen by the Texas Rangers in the 14th round.

A total of 16 Southwest Conference and Texas Athletic Conference (LCC's division) players were picked.

Texas second baseman Andre Robinson Toronto drafted Texas Longhorn second baseman Andra Robinson in the first round, with four more Southwest Conference players chosen in the second round. In the second round, William Walker, pitcher, Texas; Ronn Reynolds, catcher, Arkansas; Mark Thurmond, pitcher, Texas A&M; and Allan Ramirez, pitcher, Rice; were picked.

Wallace, who has started three years for the Raiders, had only .258 last season but finished the 1978 campaign with a .310 average.

The junior shortstop from Plano didn't miss a starting assignment last season and led the team in assists with 117. His fielding average was .910.

Brigante, also a junior and three-year starter, has been All-Conference and All-District 8 (Texas colleges) for three seasons.

Last year for the Chaparrals, the Albuquerque athlete batted .345, with 14 doubles and 14 home runs among his 78 hits. Brigante drove in 63 runs and stole 41 bases.

Jockeys Take Over Belmont Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — Spectacular Bid is expected to shine in the Belmont Stakes but it was his 19-year-old jockey, Ronnie Franklin, who was in the spotlight Thursday.

The major topic of conversation at Belmont Park was Franklin's fight with Angel Cordero Jr. in the jockeys' room after the fourth race Wednesday at Belmont Park.

Meanwhile, nine 3-year-olds, suprisingly , were entered against heavily favored Spectacular Bid for Saturday's 1½-mile Belmont. They included three colts who chased Bid in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness — Golden Act, General Assembly and Screen King — and Coastal, who will run for a supplementary payment of $20,000.

ANGEL CORDERO

RON FRANKLIN

Patrol films show Si Pats, ridden by Cordero, swerved to his left and collided heavily with Lorine, ridden by Franklin, at the start of the race for 2-year-olds. "I guess he tried to drop me," Franklin said Thursday at Bid's barn.

"Back in the room I walked up to him," said Franklin, recalling the confrontation. "He took a swing at me. I think I hit him a couple of times.

"He threatened my life. He said in Spanish, 'I'm going to kill you.'"

Jack Mann of the Washington Star, who was present, said that he told Franklin that he heard Cordero, a 37-year-old Puerto Rican, use the Spanish word meaning "to kill" three times.

Cordero, who will ride General Assembly in the Belmont, would not speak to the news media Thursday.

Harry Meyerhoff, co-owner of Spectacular Bid, said he had received assurances from the stewards that the Belmont would be run fairly. "The horse and jockey are more important than the Belmont," said Meyerhoff, adding that there was no thought be given to scratching Bid from the race.

But after watching the film, Bid's trainer, Bud Delp, said, "He wanted Franklin buried. That's what Cordero did in my opinion. He wanted him on the ground. He made no effort to take the horse off the boy."

Delp said he felt Cordero should receive at least a 30-day suspension.

The stewards levied $250 fines against each jockey Thursday for fighting.

Bad feeling between Franklin and Cordero began developing after the Florida Derby won by Bid after a trouble-plagued ride. After the race, Franklin accused Cordero, aboard Sir Ivor Again, of helping cause his problems by forcing him extremely wide on the first turn and on the backstretch.

Franklin accused Cordero, riding Screen King, of forcing Spectacular Bid wide in the Preakness but then said Cordero "was just race riding."

Trouble or not, Spectacular Bid has won 12 straight races, all stakes. He is the early 1-10 favorite to make the Belmont No. 13 and become thoroughbred racing's third consecutive Triple Crown winner. Seattle Slew won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont in 1977 and Affirmed won them last year.

If all 10 start under 126 pounds each — there is the possibility of a couple of scratches — the race will be worth $283,000, with $163,800 to the winner.

Others entered were King Celebrity, Quiet Crossing, Gallant Best, Picturesque and Mystic Era.

Golden Act, General Assembly, and Screen King not only are underdogs to Spectacular Bid but they are rated behind Coastal.

Jazz Move To Salt Lake Expected

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — What started as an upbeat riff has become a dirge for transients — a discordant chorus for a team that set National Basketball Association attendance records despite futility on the court.

NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien is expected to announce today that the league has approved moving the New Orleans Jazz to Salt Lake City, Utah.

The Jazz finished 23-59 for the initial season in 1974-75, 38-44 in its second season, 35-47 the next year and just missed the playoffs with a 39-43 record for the 1977-78 season.

Star guard Pete Maravich missed the second half of that season with a knee injury that required post-season surgery.

Last year, the Jazz tailed off to 25-56, opening camp with forward Truck Robinson a holdout and never getting much use out of still-hobbled Maravich.

Robinson was eventually traded away, with Coach Elgin Baylor finding out about the move only after the fact. With Maravich seeing only spot duty and Robinson gone, the team staggered and the fans became disaffected.

The Jazz set a single-game regular season attendance record with 27,383 fans in the 1976-77 season, then broke that mark three times, with the high being 35,077 in November, 1977.

It all began on March 7, 1974, when a group headed by Fred Rosenfield and including Sam Battistone, both of California, paid $6.5 million for the NBA franchise.

Two months later, the team traded a bundle of draft choices to Atlanta for Maravich, who led the nation's collegiate scorers while playing for Louisiana State University just 80 miles up the road from New Orleans.

After the Maravich trade, the team picked 15 players in an expansion draft, and Rosenfeld said the team wound up with "the best back court in the NBA" with Maravich and Stu Lantz.

The Jazz wound up having to play in the Municipal Auditorium and the abandoned Loyola University field house — neither with a capacity of more than 7,500 — when the Superdome was not finished on schedule.

Don't just buy a roof. Call out the Guard.

Glassguard.

GLASSGUARD®. MADE WITH LONG-LASTING FIBER GLASS.
A Glassguard fiber glass based asphalt roof really has what it takes to resist the elements.

For example, a Glassguard roof won't blister, curl, warp, expand, shrink or absorb moisture—some of the problems associated with conventional roofing.

Glassguard is installed with a special sealing strip that assures a positive and long-lasting weather seal.

And you end up with a roof that's going to look great—and last for a long, long time.

GLASSGUARD. IT CARRIES THE TOP RATING FOR FIRE PROTECTION. CLASS "A".
Glassguard fiber glass based shingles have literally proven themselves under fire.

In a torture test in which burning brands were placed directly on Glassguard and conventional shingles, the conventional shingle burned through. Glassguard only scorched before burning itself out. And subsequently earned the highest U.L. rating possible —Class "A".*

GLASSGUARD. A LONGER-LASTING ROOF DESERVES A LONGER WARRANTY. 20 YEARS.
A Glassguard roof offers you an extra bonus—peace of mind.

In addition to fire resistance, every Glassguard roof is also U.L. rated for wind resistance.

Flames Hire New Coach

ATLANTA (AP) — Al MacNeil, who in 1971 as an interim coach took the Montreal Canadiens to the National Hockey League Stanley Cup title, was named coach Thursday of the Atlanta Flames.

Contract terms were not released but it was termed a multi-year pact.

"I'm very happy that Al MacNeil has decided to come to Atlanta. I know it was very difficult for him to leave the New York Yankees of the hockey world and come to Atlanta," Atlanta General Manager Cliff Fletcher said in making the announcement.

"Though many names have been mentioned for this position, Al MacNeil is the only man I had in mind," Fletcher said.

MacNeil becomes the third Atlanta coach in their 7-year history.

He succeeds Fred Creighton, who was fired recently after the Flames failed for the fourth consecutive season to advance past the preliminary round in the NHL playoffs.

Creighton had coached the Flames for 4½ years after succeeding Bernard "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, Atlanta's coach when the expansion club entered the league in 1972.

MacNeil and Atlanta General Manager Cliff Fletcher have been close friends from their days together when they worked in the Canadiens front office.

Fletcher, whose Flames had four consecutive winning regular seasons under Creighton, decided a coaching change was necessary after Atlanta was eliminated from the playoffs in two games by the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Flames made the playoffs in five of their seven seasons but flopped each year in post-season play, recording only one victory in 13 games.

Groves Leads At Dragway

Trades Hit Year's Peak

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy issues led the stock market higher for the fourth consecutive day Thursday as trading volume reached its highest level of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, ahead by nearly 5 points before noon, finished the day up by 1.47 at 836.97. Gainers led losers by about 2-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume rose to 43.38 million shares from Wednesday's 39.83 million. The day was the busiest since last Nov. 1, when 50.45 million shares changed hands.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, was 49.13 million shares.

The Dow average retreated when it neared the 840 level, where "there apparently were a lot of sellers among institutions," said Charles Jensen of MKI Securities.

But "the broad market didn't have such a problem," he said. "Anything with gas, coal or oil — even uranium — was ahead. The whole group really caught fire."

Charter gained ⅛ to 24¼ in active trading, while Texaco advanced ⅜ to 26¾.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

"WE'RE WELL PLEASED WITH THIS session — agriculture got a pretty fair shake."

That's the way Carrol Chaloupka, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, sums up the recent 66th regular session of the Texas Legislature.

He said farmers and ranchers were "most pleased" with the passage of the tax relief package bill which included a provision limiting ad valorem taxes on agricultural land.

Valuation of such land now is to be based on productive value rather than speculative value.

"PASSAGE OF THIS TAX RELIEF BILL will save farmers and ranchers of Texas an estimated $40 million a year now and, more importantly, will guarantee that they will be taxed fairly, not unjustly, in the future," Chaloupka said.

Chaloupka said final passage of the measure culminated efforts of more than a decade to obtain tax relief for some farmers whose "oppressive ad valorem taxes were forcing them out of business."

The bill, signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements last week, will be in effect for 1979 unless local taxing authorities choose an option of postponing it until 1980. Public hearings would have to be held, however, before such a local resolution could be passed.

In order to have the agriculture-use provision applied to his land this year, a farmer or rancher must apply with his local tax assessor by July 15. If the landowner is not satisfied with that valuation, he may choose fair market valuation.

Chaloupka said legislation passed this session provides dollar-for-dollar reimbursement to school districts for any funds lost to agriculture-use valuations.

A BILL WHICH WOULD HAVE MADE TEXAS part of an interstate compact on grain marketing was opposed by the TFB and was defeated.

The measure would have permitted a regional grain marketing compact by five or more states and would have created a commission with powers to regulate and subpoena records of grain sellers and buyers.

It was sponsored by Sen. E. L. Short of Tahoka and Rep. Betty Denton of Waco and was supported by the American Agriculture Movement and the Texas Farmers Union.

The AAM issued a statement saying Sen. Bob Price of Pampa "went against the advice of the farmers and aligned himself with the insurance-oriented Farm Bureau and the powerful Texas Grain and Feed Dealers Association" to help defeat the bill.

Ted Godfrey of Spearman, AAM spokesman, said the bill would have allowed Texas to join the other compact states, if enough approve the plan, in "looking into marketing problems which have the effect of artificially depressing grain prices to the producers.

"For instance," Godfrey said, "boxcars seem to disappear at critical times, resulting in grain supplies backing up at country elevators and causing prices to drop. We also would like to know why wheat farmers are forced to sell American wheat at $3 per bushel."

IN ADDITION TO THE GRAIN COMPACT bill, the Farm Bureau was "instrumental" in helping to kill two other "dangerous" bills, both related to farm labor, Chaloupka said.

One, which passed in the House but was not considered in the Senate, would have removed the farm and ranch labor exemption from workers' compensation laws so that agricultural employers would have been covered. This issue will be back in the 67th Legislature, Chaloupka said.

Another, which would have set up an Agricultural Labor Relations Board similar to California's, died in subcommittee.

Farm Bureau favored two bills dealing with transportation of agricultural commodities which passed.

One bill allows hauling of such commodities without a "certificate of convenience and necessity" from the farm to the first processor, if not more than 75 miles. The other allows motor vehicles hauling cotton modules to exceed previous length, width, and weight limits.

TWO GASOHOL BILLS WERE APPROVED. One creates a new permit allowing the manufacture of denatured alcohol for mixing with gasoline to make gasohol. The second authorizes state-backed loans for establishment of gasohol plants. Total loans are limited to $15 million.

Farm Bureau also favored a bill which sets up a prepaid permit on nonhighway diesel fuel. The bill modernizes the motor fuel tax laws by authorizing a diesel tax prepaid user permit instead of the bonded user permit. A person whose purchases of diesel fuel are predominantly for highway use does not qualify for the new permit.

The AAM supported the Farm Security Credit Act, which was approved and which movement spokesmen said will help young people to enter farming.

An amendment to the Texas Water Code will allow feedyards to renew waste control permits without public hearings. The measure, sponsored by Rep. Bob Close of Perryton and Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, was supported by the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

COTTON FUTURES AT NEW YORK closed 15 to 33 points lower Friday in active months after reducing losses on speculative short covering, floor brokers said.

Early selling pressure by the trade inspired commission house selling in a thin market to losses of nearly one cent in near July. Volume approximated 6,300 lots.

Telcot had computer problems and only about 700 bales were traded.

Area Cotton Growth Varies

Influenced By Weather, Disease, Insects

JAMES R. SUPAK
Area Agronomist — Cotton

Growth stages of cotton in the southern High Plains vary from just planted to the third true leaf stage.

Rate of growth and development has been greatly influenced by weather, seedling diseases and thrips. The cool, wet, overcast conditions prevelent during the latter part of May and early June slowed normal plant development and were conducive to the build up of root and leaf attacking pathogens.

Comparisons between the rate of development of cotton planted May 10, 1978 with cotton planted May 10 of this year were recently made with a computer model developed by Dr. Don Wanjura, U. S. Department of Agriculture ag engineer at Lubbock. The results indicated that due to temperature differences alone, the 1979 crop (planted May 10) is about five days behind the 1978 crop.

The weather has been conducive to the development of seedling disease problems throughout most of the area. Recent estimates indicate that a million or more acres are affected and that damage is sufficient to warrent at least some replanting. At this point in the season the decision to replant, especially in the counties north of Lubbock, must be weighed heavily.

Objective evaluations of stand losses due to the disease (and associated factors such as sand and wind damage) are a must. A good evaluation procedure is to pull or dig up all the plants in a three-foot span of row at a number of locations in the problem field.

Examine the root system of these plants and discard those that are obviously dead or dying, those with excessive "big shank," those with dark, watery lesions on parts or all of the below ground portions of the plant, and those with sunken lesions that effectively girdle the stem near the ground line.

Also, take a hard look at the plants with darkened but "firm" taproots; if the darkened area is no longer "watery" and there is firm, white ("woody") tissue under the dark layer, the plant will probably survive and produce normally.

Count the number of plants that will survive at each location. If the count averages 1.5 to 2 plants per foot (or more) and the stand is fairly uniform throughout the field, save it.

Data prepared by Dr. L. L. Ray, cotton breeder with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, shows that a uniform stand of 20,000 plants per acre (about 1.5 plants per foot) has about the same yield potential as the optimum stand of 40,000 plants (three per foot).

Another reason for not replanting is that at this time of year the "penalty" for replanting in an average year ranges from around 15 to 40 percent of the yield potential anticipated from a May 10 planting.

One final comment regarding crop evaluation: a number of producers have reported cotton dying from static electricity and leaf disease. Field and plant inspections indicate that much of this foliar damage can be attributed to sand, Ascochyta (wet weather) blight and thrips.

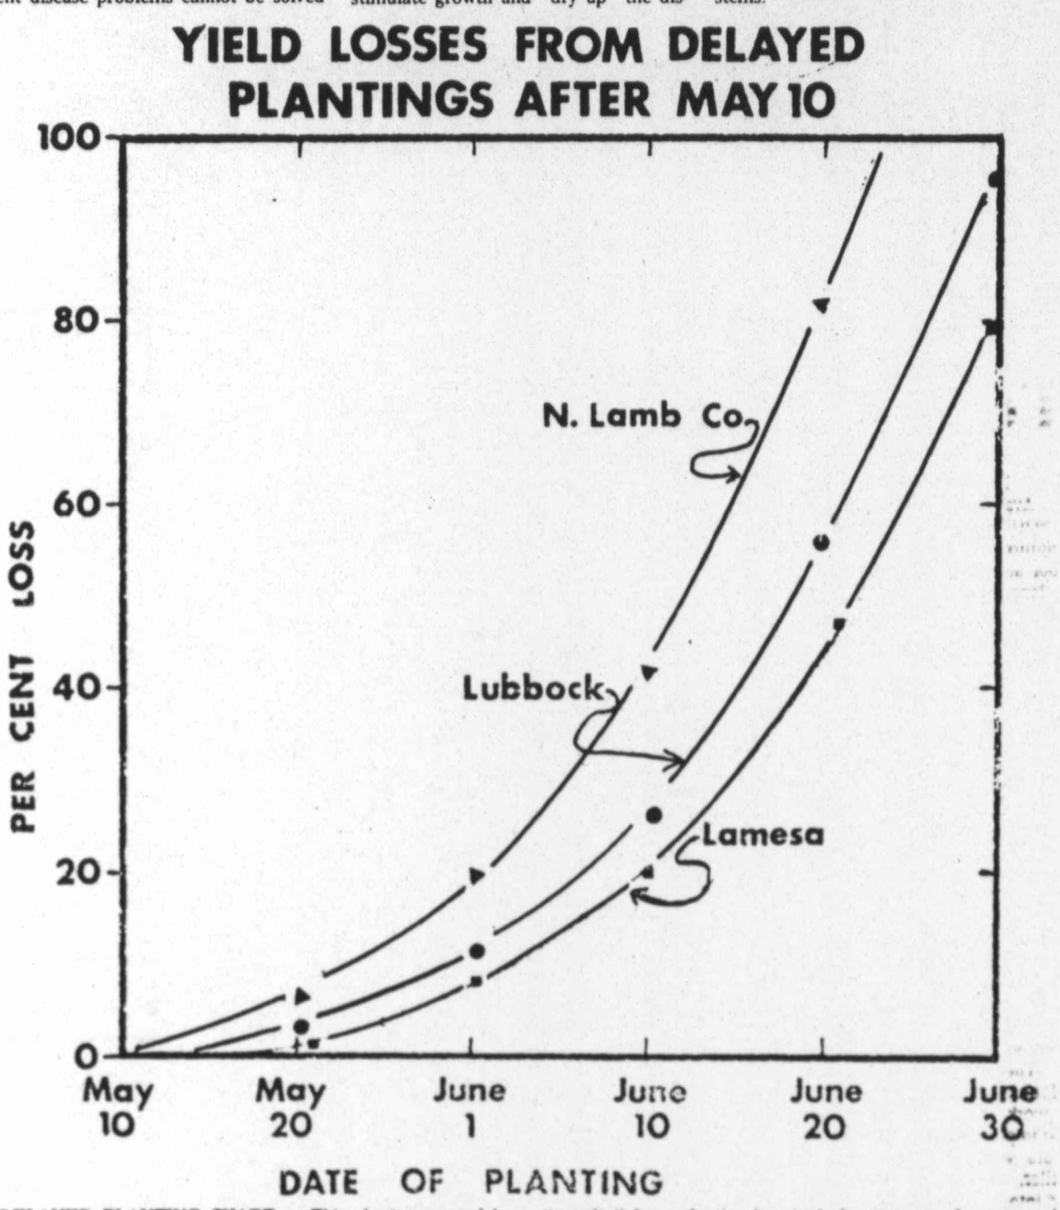

Shortly, many of the blight (and sand) affected leaves will probably dry up and fall off, having only a tuff of gnarled green leaves in the terminal.

Altough this cotton looks bad, if the plant has live buds and the root systems are intact, it will survive.

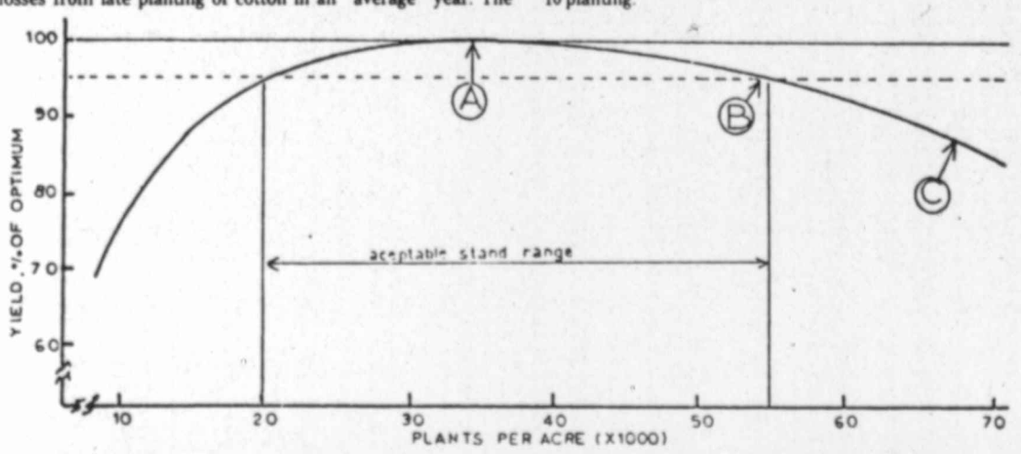

Dr. Bob Berry, extension plant pathologist, maintains that Ascochyta blight alone (without the aid of seedling disease or wind and sand damage) kills relatively few cotton plants, although it can make a field look like a total disaster from the windshield of a speeding pick-up.

Slow plant development and the current disease problems cannot be solved with foliar application of fertilizers, fungicides or even the various canned (or bottled) "miracle" potions that are available.

Warm, open weather is needed to stimulate growth and "dry up" the disease problems. Growers can help by taking steps to prevent sand damages and running rotary hoes or similar tools to provide aeration and drying in the top inch or so of soil surrounding seedling stems.

DELAYED PLANTING CHART — This chart, prepared by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, shows losses from late planting of cotton in an "average" year. The "penalty" for replanting in a typical year ranges from around 15 to 40 percent of the yield potential anticipated from a May 10 planting.

COTTON STAND CHART — This chart, based on data prepared by Dr. L. L. Ray, cotton breeder with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, shows that a uniform cotton stand of 20,000 plants per acre (about 1.5 plants per foot) has about the same yield potential as the optimum stand of 40,000 plants (three per foot). The data show the yield-stand relationship for 40-inch row irrigated cotton on the High Plains.

Cattle Futures Post Sharp Advances

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 67 to 147 points higher led by August and October just under a limit level advance Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 32,203 cars.

The market rallied after brief loss of 20 in distant August.

The commission house with a cash belly connection was an active buyer with the cash cattle connected house on both sides and on balance a seller. Support was generated on belief that beef prices were bottoming out, although an anticipated mark-up at noon did not materialize.

Deliveries total 41 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 99½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a three-month low. Cash cattle were steady to up $1 with the best top $70 per hundredweight at Sioux Falls. Slaughter was 116,000 head. The major terminals are expecting about 2,450 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 42 to 100 higher led by March at the day's high.

The market rebounded after slipping 65 to new lows on the current move. Volume was estimated at 3,939 contracts.

Much of the buying spilled over from live cattle futures on improved tone to beef although anticipated advances failed to materialize. There was also technical support after the sharp break this week. Demand came despite continued easiness in cash feeder cattle and escalating feed grain prices.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $102.50 per hundredweight at Louisville. About 1,225 head are expected today at the major markets.

Hog futures closed 62 to 150 higher led by distant July after February and April also posted limit gains. Sales totaled 6,164 lots. The limit advance followed a limit loss Wednesday.

Much of the support spilled over from cattle futures and came despite weakness in cash hogs and most pork products at noon. Uncertainty over truck shipments of hogs and meat tended to keep shorts on the defensive. Truckers have been protesting high fuel costs and speed limits.

There have been 12 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were off 2 to up ½ at 58 to 64 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the lowest since April 1977. Cash hogs were off $1 to up 50 cents with the best top $42.75 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 331,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 20,200 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 97 to 200 higher, with February through July at the limit. Volume was 6,687 contracts.

The market rallied after a limit loss Wednesday but not until February fell to new season's lows twice. August also set a new season's low.

Much of the support was technical after prices slumped to the lowest since March 1978. Some support spilled over from other meat pits and higher cash bellies with selling generally on weakness in cash hogs.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up ½ at 38 to 40 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the lowest since December 1975.

International Wheat Agreement Extension Soon Deemed Likely

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — While it probably won't be regarded as world shaking news in grain markets. Congress sometime in the weeks ahead likely will approve an extension of the 1971 International Wheat Agreement.

If it doesn't, the current agreement will expire on July 1.

Continuation of the agreement in its present form-that is, without any price-fixing arrangements, world reserve programs or production controls-may almost seem anticlimatic considering the long international debate on such ideas that ended in a stalemate.

Also, currently in limbo are efforts to establish an export cartel with the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina as potential participants in a price-fixing effort.

The present International Wheat Agreement, with 53 nations as signatories, both exporting and importing, serves primarily as a forum on world cooperation on wheat trade and also performs a service of gathering information on the world grain situation which is disseminated around the globe. In addition, the agreement includes a plan in which certain donor nations share in the distribution of wheat to needy countries.

The International Wheat Agreement operates from an office in London which is called the International Wheat Council. It has an executive secretary, John H. Parotte, and a relatively small staff.

An important function of the council is a monthly report on worldwide wheat and other grain conditions covering such things as supply, demand, the export trade, and ocean freight rates. This report is prepared by an advisory subcommittee on market conditions which consists of technical representatives from five exporting and five importing countries. The exporting countries are the United States, Argentina, Australia, Canada and Spain. The importers are Egypt, European Economic Community, Japan, Portugal and Switzerland.

The International Wheat Agreement has a 30-year history. It started back in 1949 when, shortly after World War II, some countries were concerned about reliable export markets, while importers sought assurance on reliable supplies under certain price limits. In essence, the first agreement provided that at specified minimum prices, importers always would buy certain quantities of wheat, while the exporters agreed that at certain maximum prices, they always would sell specified quantities.

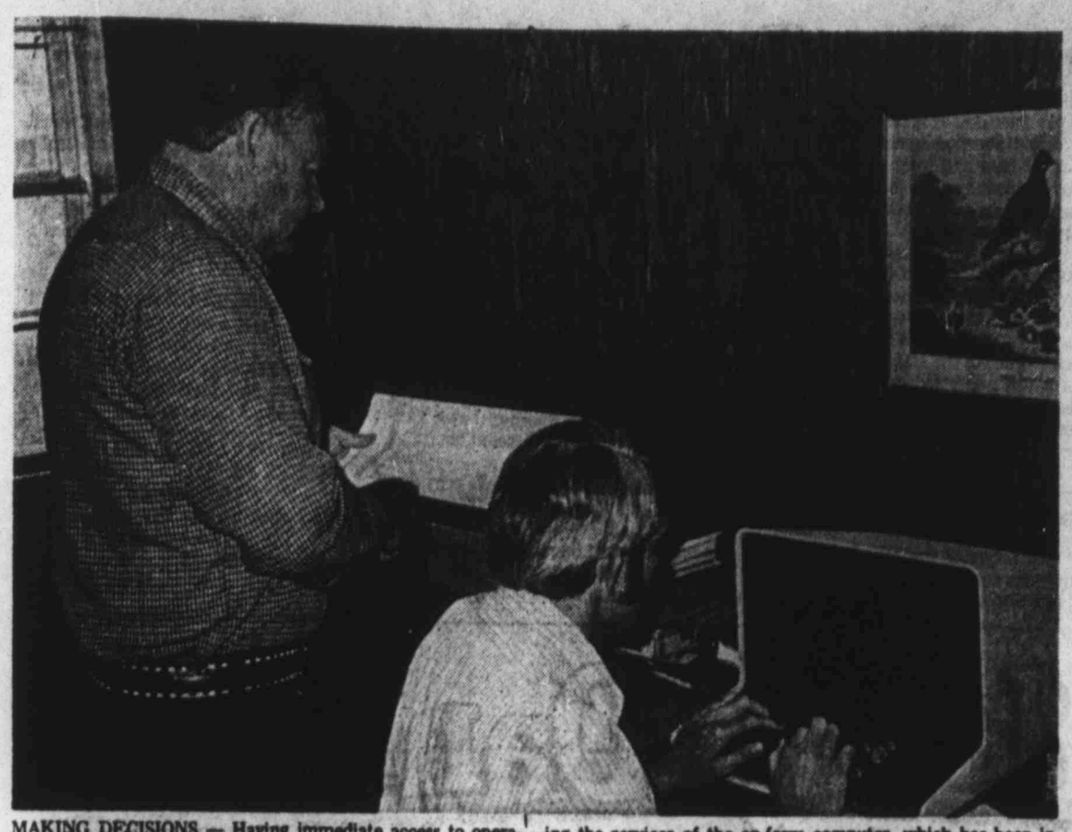

In effect, the agreement established a price range under which a certain amount of trading always could take place. While not everybody liked the idea, the range was wide enough to permit general trading, but prices were not fixed within the range.

The original agreement was renewed several times until 1967 when important influences were brought to bear to involve the wheat agreement in an international price-fixing effort. In that year, the International Wheat Agreement became the International Grains Arrangement.

Under the new "arrangement," exporting countries agreed to a minimum export price which was 23 cents a bushel above the minimum under the old agreement and also over current world market prices.

Simply, the exporters, including the United States, pledged as they signed the arrangement that they wouldn't sell any wheat at less than the stated minimum. But within time it was learned that most exporters found ways through freight discounts, delivering higher quality grain than called for in the contracts or some other device to undercut the market. They got the business. The United States insisted it was losing business in attempting to comply with the arrangement. Eventually, the United States gave up too and became competitive on the world markets. That, in effect, ended the International Grains Arrangement. The U. S. grain trade still recalls it as a fiasco.

In 1971, a new International Wheat Agreement was entered into with no price-fixing features, no trading range or anything of the kind. About the only feature retained from the 1967 "arrangement" was the plan under which several developed nations agreed to participate in aid to needy countries.

Farm Operators Use Computer To Tally Cost Of Production

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

SOUTH PLAINS — "West Texas agriculture was built on the basis of cheap labor and cheap energy, two things that no longer exist," said Don Marble, oldest of a three-brother farming partnership here. "So farmers must find ways to meet with the changing times."

To do that, Don, Keith and Fred Marble, whose 27-year-old partnership began with 200 rented acres and borrowed equipment, have installed a computer at the farm office.

The on-farm Sycor 440 computer consists of a central processing unit (CPU), a cathode ray tube (CRT) that resembles a small teleision set with an alphabetic keyboard at the base, and a printer.

While the payroll is the only system currently in the computer, the ultimate goal of the brothers is to develop a complete inventory of all commodities produced on their more than 60 farm units stretching across Castro, Hale and Floyd counties.

"The daily time cards provide all the information about the location and type of work done, the power of equipment and implement used, as well as the total hours worked in each area," Darrell Miller, controller, said. "These items, fed into the system, determine an hourly rate for each item used to pinpoint production, supervision and overhead costs, to name a few."

"Using the labor or time cards on a daily basis," Don noted, "is important because that information is all tied into the full cost of production."

As the salary level increases, he said, it becomes obvious that some of the "small jobs" that farmers have a tendency to use workers for are no longer economically feasible.

"By using cost information from the computer," Don explained, "we can surely see that we can't afford to keep weeds manicured away from telephone poles and borrow ditches, for example. So, other, less obvious cost data will show up, too."

Not only does the information obtained from the time cards produce immediate results to be used for time and money saving management decisions, but the amount of manpower it takes to complete the payroll for more than 60 regular workers has decreased.

"It took two or three people about three working days a week to do the payroll manually," Miller said. "Since the computerized payroll was initiated in March, one person can do the complete payroll in about eight hours during the week, typing the information from the daily time cards directly onto the CRT."

The brothers decided to implement the computer at the office for access to instant information.

"Not having information on the spot is like closing the gate after the cattle have gotten out," Don reasoned. "Farming can change so fast, that it is necessary to know today what it cost yesterday to operate."

The oldest brother, who oversees the office, said the partnership utilizes a computer system by a private firm for accounting purposes, but the information received from that outlet is mainly a history book.

"In farming, the only information really worth anything is immediate information," Don noted. "We just don't have a month to make a decision. It must be made today."

Having an on-farm computer might also be necessary if an operation has a unique set-up or a large number of employees, Don said.

"In our partnership," he explained, "it's like three brothers running three different farms, raising many different commodities.

"This factor, along with the large number of employees, makes it useful to have a computer to keep records."

Installing the computer was very easy, physically. The only real problem, according to Miller, was developing a system to meet the requirements of a farm operation.

"At present, there are no systems for farming so we had to buy a manufacturer's program and modify it," Miller said. "The manufacturer's system dealt with piece work, units of products and departments. We had to redefine and revise those terms to designate farm and crop units, power of tractors and implements."

The controller suggested a farmer considering a computer should find the programs that will fit the needs of his operation before deciding on the computer because the "language" used by different brands of computers is not interchangeable.

"A person could have a $1 million computer," Miller stressed, "but it would be worth nothing if he didn't have the program to go with it." Miller said it costs from $35 to $50 per hour to hire a programmer to construct a program for a business.

As more farms begin to use computers, Miller believes, more farm programs will be available. The hindering factor in farm programs, he said, is that there are so many types of needs — every farm operation is different from the next.

The Marbles selected the Sycor computer because Agro Systems Corp. Southwest in Lubbock, the computer firm that handles their accounting, uses that brand. By using the same type, on-farm data can also be transmitted to Agro, thus coordinating the systems.

Renting the machine for more than $800 a month from Northern Telecom Systems Corp. of Ann Arbor, Mich., Don says, does not look like much of a savings of outlay, but the savings is felt with management of the business and expanding the operation.

"You can tell how much is spent hoeing one patch of cotton immediately," Don explained, "and use that as a determinant for hoeing other fields."

In addition to daily listings, a printout, or detailed list of the time spent and where, is prepared each week as the checks are processed. A wrap-up is printed every month. Other printouts can be made to reflect any desired data as needed.

"As I look over the information," the oldest brother said, "I can see areas that need attention. I can either telephone the farm manager or send him a copy of the report, depending on the urgency of the problem."

One advantage of the system, he added, is the better definition of what the real costs are in irrigation versus dryland.

"For example, with good underground moisture this year, experts said a two to four-inch rain in the planting season would put conditions at an optimum level.

"With that information, we decided not to pre-plant irrigate on a large portion of our acreage. However, we ran a test irrigation on some acres, keptclose computer records on labor and fuel, and found it cost more to water than we thought," Don said, noting it cost about $15 per acre for labor and energy for one pre-plant irrigation.

A three-inch rain May 21, luckily provided the much needed moisture for the dry fields, Don said with releif. But calculated risks, he added, are becoming a must as the costs of energy and production rise.

Miller is in the process of developing a computer inventory for all commodities produced in the brothers' operation.

"A detailed list of every bale with such information as bale number, grade, staple and mike, weight, where it is being stored, to whom it is sold and date of purchase is already being used," Miller said, flipping through the thickly stacked printout obtained from the Lockney Co-op Gin. "We will expand this in our own system to make use of exception reports, highlighting problem areas and making it more automated as in finding which bales haven't been sold, graded or receipted.

"You never know what type of cotton is going to be in demand at a given time," Miller explained, "so it will be of value to keep a running tally of what type of cotton we still have on hand and be able to select specific bales for sale to maximize price."

Don said the system is used as a way of accounting for the products from various farms to assist in accounting for the products to the landlords. Since the brothers market most of the commodities for the landlords, Don said, it is a great benefit to have a detailed printout of product sales to show the landlord.

Accounts payable are another system that is being developed at the farm office for the computer, Miller said.

Regardless if a farmer is large enough to have an in-house computer, all the computer companies and accounting services available to area farmers today, Don said, could make management of farming operations easier now than ever.

"The only way a person can afford poor management today is to be a terrific operator in other areas," he opined. "And as the size of the farm increases, the farmer must use some type of system to keep up with where the costs are going.

"It is hard for anyone who has been farming for a while to make any real significant changes," he added, "but by watching the breakdown of costs on a computer sheet, the farmer can visualize ways to cut expenses."

Food Production Rule Revisions Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration Thursday proposed revisions of rules governing more than 77,000 food processing, manufacturing and warehouse facilities nationwide.

One revision, FDA spokesmen said, is aimed at strengthening the ability of firms to retrieve products during a recall. It requires that each product be coded with a lot number and mark identifying the plant where it is made.

Farm Bureau Officials Mull Arab Oil Barter

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American farm leader has an unusual solution for the diesel shortage — buy oil directly from Libya.

If the quiet negotiations succeed, farm cooperatives will import oil and sell wheat, corn, farm machinery and other agricultural products to the militant Arab state.

"What we would like to do is to develop a contract for continuing supplies," Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said in an interview.

The deal apparently is without precedent, although General Dynamics had a similar and brief arrangement with Iran to purchase oil in a swap for airplanes.

Last month, the State Department, concerned about an expansion of Libya's military capability, recommended cancellation of a proposed sale of Boeing 747 jetliners to the country.

But department officials said they did not think there would be an objection to the deal Grant is trying to work out to ease farmers' shortage of diesel fuel.

"The only restriction we have is military related sales," said one official who asked that he not be identified.

In fact, he said, "with the balance of payments deficit, we want to encourage deals."

Last year, the United States ran up a deficit of about $3.3 billion in trade with Libya, mostly because of rising oil prices.

Imports cost $3.7 billion while exports, including some food, were worth about $425 million.

Libya is one of the most radical of the Arab states. Led by Moammar Khadafy, it is a bitter foe of Israel and Egypt.

Libya is reported to have financed terrorist raids against Israel, fought a brief border war with Egypt in July 1977 and has led Arab "rejectionists" in condemning Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for signing a peace treaty with Israel.

In deliberations of the oil cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Libya is one of the most hawkish, and Libyan oil is among the most expensive — and highest quality — in the world.

Contacted by telephone in Saw Mill Creek, Ohio, where he was attending a board meeting of the Farm Bureau, Grant said he met first with a visiting Libyan delegation in Miami and then flew to Tripoli last month for talks with Ahmed Shahati, a top official in the Khadafy government.

The farm leader said he will fly to Libya again in a few weeks to try to complete arrangements.

The Libyan oil would be bought by cooperatives in the farm federation, which has more than 3 million American farmers as members.

On Thursday, the federation confirmed the substance of the Associated Press account.

"This is not an attempt to reach an agreement to trade a barrel of wheat or any other grain for a barrel of oil," it quoted Grant as saying.

"We are talking about a number of separate possibilities — about the direct purchase of oil for farm needs and about selling high quality grains at market prices."

The farm chief described the status of the negotiations as "very preliminary." He also described the Libyans he had talked to as "extremely cordial."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures set new season's highs in most trading months Thursday at the Chicago Board of Trade on continued talk of possible new export business.

But prices subsided to close 8 to 8 cents a bushel below the day's highs after exporter buying faded. Prices for contracts covering the new 1979 soybean crop to be harvested this fall made the sharpest gains in response to talk that the heaviest potential buying by the Soviet Union would probably be of new-crop beans.

Rumors of Soviet soybean purchases were unconfirmed by the close.

A parallel rally in wheat and corn futures faded late in the session, and wheat closed lower while corn futures were mostly steady to slightly higher. Trade talk of Soviet wheat purchases continued, but prices waned as no confirmation came.

Some commercial buying in corn supported prices, despite a pickup overnight in cash sales in the country and Midwestern rains improving growing conditions for the 1979 crop.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JUNE 8, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 12, 23, 35, 46, 58, 69 ..... Be extra careful today
Highs: 13-22, 36-45, 59-68 ..... Hop to it, it's your day
Lows: 1-11, 24-34, 47-57, 70-75 ..... Lethargy prevails

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 6, 20, 34, 48, 62, 76 ..... Avoid confrontation
Highs: 7-19, 35-47, 63-75 ..... You are positive today
Lows: 1-5, 21-33, 49-61, 77-85 ..... A blue day

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 3, 19, 36, 52, 69, 85 ..... Not prime time for decisions
Highs: 4-18, 37-51, 70-84 ..... Tackle problems
Lows: 1-2, 20-35, 53-68, 86-95 ..... Ponder choices carefully

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Plague Strikes New Mexico Man

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (UPI) — State health officials Wednesday confirmed a 19-year-old man from the Las Vegas, N.M., area had contracted plague and was in criticial condition at an Albuquerque hospital.

The young man, who was not identified, is believed to be suffering from pneumonic plague, a form of the disease which can transitted to other humans by airborne germs.

Chief State Medical Officer Dr. Jonathan Mann said efforts are underway to identify all persons who came in contact with the man since Tuesday when he became ill.

It was the second case of plague in New Mexico this year. In April, a 76-year-old western New Mexico woman died of pneumonic plague.

Mann said the latest plague victim was brought to Albuquerque early Wednesday from Las Vegas. He said about 25 persons in Albuquerque, mostly hospital staff members and members of the victim's family, had come in contact with the him.

"None of the contacts appear to be ill at this point, which is obviously a good sign," Mann said.

Mann said investigators had been dispatched to Las Vegas to attempt to identify area residents who may have had contact with the man. Mann said his staff suspects that about 25 more persons came in contact with him around his hometown.

"We suspect he acquired the disease in the vicinity of his home, based on the information we got from him and his family," Mann said. "This looks like flea transmitted plague, in which the disease is transmitted from a flea on a wild animal or on a domestic animal which has been in contact with a wild animal."

Most common carriers of the plague-infected fleas are wild rodents or rabbits, Mann said.

There have been 85 confirmed cases of plague in New Mexico since officials started keeping records on the disease 30 years ago. Thirteen persons have died from the disease.

Massachusetts Due Tough Abortion Law

BOSON (AP) — Massachusetts, once known for its liberal welfare benefits, is getting ready to sharply reduce the number of state-subsidized abortions. The move could affect not only low-income women but tens of thousands in the middle class as well.

A bill on Gov. Edward J. King's desk tightens existing state law by eliminating financial aid for abortions sought by rape and incest victims. Under the new measure, the state would finance only those abortions necessary to save a mother's life.

King, a conservative Democrat who won office last fall campaigning against abortion, crime and taxes, plans to sign the bill within a few days, according to his legislative aides.

If the new law survives court challenges planned by its opponents, it will have an impact that extends far beyond those women who depend on the state to pay their doctor bills. Besides curbing Medicaid abortion benefits, it also forbids all state and local government employees, including teachers, from receiving health insurance coverage for voluntary abortions.

Although Massachusetts has had an anti-abortion law on its books for nearly a year, implementation has been delayed by federal lawsuits brought by birth-control clinics. While the legal battles continued, the state Welfare Department was under federal court orders to keep providing abortions whenever a doctor believed the mother needed one for her physical or psychological health.

That language has allowed Medicaid to pay for more than 5,000 of the 36,000 abortions performed in Massachusetts in the past year.

Supporters of the more stringent restrictions contend that poor women can obtain discounts or installment financing of abortions without turning to the state for help. At full price, the cost runs from about $150 for early-term suction abortions done in clinics to $1,300 or more for saline abortions that require hospitalization.

According to a study issued by Rep. Deborah Cochran, R-Dedham, more than 1600 abortions were performed in Massachusetts last year at reduced or spread-out cost, and some hospitals even made them available free of charge.

However, Jean Weinberg, spokeswoman for Massachusetts Organization for the Repeal of Abortion Laws, contends that free or big-discount abortions are rare.

Repeal of the rape-incest provision sparked emotional debate in the Legislature, but Miss Weinberg said that change, by itself, is relatively minor. She said she did not know of a single case where a woman had applied for a Medicaid abortion under that loophole.

Far more significant, she said, would be the shift from the lenient "medically necessary" standard now in force to the "mother's life at stake" rule.

"If we lose in the courts, we'll be very lucky if we can get five abortions a year funded under this new language," she said.
