Amarillo Police Hold Man Who Admits Killing Two

VEGA, Tex., Feb. 11 — UP — A body presumed to be that of a missing North Hollywood, Calif., engineer was found by officers near Vega Saturday after confessed killer David Cooper Nelson had described the arroyo into which he had dumped the man's body.

The sheriff's office at Amarillo, said the search party of officers was returning the body to either Vega or Amarillo, depending upon which county it was decided the slaying occurred in.

The victim was thought to be Kenneth Short, 36, who disappeared while driving a new automobile from Flint, Mich., to the west coast early last month.

Hands Were Tied

A group of 12 peace officers led by Sheriff Paul Gaither of Amarillo and Sheriff Day Thompson of Vega found the body about 12 miles west of Adrian at 2 p.m. near a small creek bed.

The body was covered by three feet of snow and was lying face up with the hands tied across the chest. It was uncovered by Deputy Sheriff Mule Ramsey of Tucumcari, N.M.

Nelson apparently gave officers a good description of where he killed Short because officers went almost directly to the area, although they had to use a tractor to get through the snow and mud.

He Admits Shootings

Nelson, a 36-year-old Las Vegas, Nev., sheetmetal worker, admitted shooting Short, as well as another Californian, Ralph Henderson Rainey, 48, of Santa Monica, whose body he dumped beneath a culvert on US 66 west of Albuquerque, N. M.

Nelson told officers that he marched Short about 20 yards off of the same highway about "35 miles west of Amarillo," tied his hands and feet then shot him through the head with a .38 caliber revolver.

The search for the body had been delayed for a week by the heavy snow which piled up on the Plains in this area last week.

He Repudiates Another

Nelson allegedly admitted committing another murder in Nevada but later repudiated this confession. He has also been questioned about one other hitchhiker murder along US 66 which occurred in 1954 and which remains unsolved.

Nelson was arrested last month by Nevada authorities driving the new car Short was driving to California. His fingerprints were later found on Rainey's automobile which was abandoned in Utah.

His attorney, Orlando Matteucci, meanwhile, demanded that the state allow Nelson to be examined by a psychiatrist of his choosing.

'Decided to Kill Him'

Nelson said he killed Short on Sunday morning, Jan. 22, several days after North Hollywood engineer had picked him up in Oklahoma. At first Nelson said he did not intend to kill Short, but was just going to leave him tied up face down in the gully.

But when Short lay down, Nelson told officers in Tucumcari, "I just decided to kill him. I couldn't have him running loose, knowing about those banks." Nelson explained to Sheriff Gaither from his New Mexico jail cell that he had discussed plans of robing three Nevada banks with Short and thought he could steal a total of $750,000.

"I knew they couldn't hang me any higher for that killing," Nelson told Gaither. "I had already killed another man."

Gaither said that Nelson laughed when describing the murder and termed Nelson "the most cold blooded man I've ever talked to."

Most Alabama Students Vow No Violence

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 11— UP— Eighty per cent of the University of Alabama student body was reported pledged Saturday to a "no violence" policy if Negro Autherine Lucy returns to classes. But the possibility arose that "cold war" might replace physical demonstrations.

"Most of us are strong segregationists,' said Walter Flowers, president of the student body. "But we're not for violence."

University President O. C. Carmichael's promise that Miss Lucy will be reinstated if federal court so directs at a Feb. 29 hearing was backed, indirectly by Gov. James E. Folsom.

Governor Promises Help

Carmichael said police reinforcements may be needed to assure the 26-year-old coed full protection. The governor said he would do all in his power to prevent "mob rule" which could be taken to mean he would send the militia if that is what it takes for the Negro to attend classes in safety.

Miss Lucy was suspended last Monday after rioters stoned her automobile and tried to grab her. Carmichael said the suspension was a safety measure and loudly denounced Miss Lucy for going to court Thursday with a charge that the college used "cunning strategem" to bring on the riots and provide an excuse for her exclusion because of her race.

But now, after five days of campus calm, most of the student body realizes "that mob rule will accomplish nothing in the long run," student leader Flowers said. An estimated 80 per cent were reported to have given verbal pledges that they would have no part of violence. Despite some criticism that they are attempting a "brainwash," Flowers and other student leaders were attempting to recruit "more impulsive" elements to the "peace drive."

It was reported, however, that some students were debating possible "passive resistance" if and when the Negro returns to the campus. This might take the form of a partial boycott of the classes in which she is enrolled or of the dining table where she eats and the dormitory where she sleeps if she obtains those privileges.

Ike Undergoes Physical Check-Up

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—UP —President Eisenhower spent an hour and 10 minutes in Walter Reed Army Hospital Saturday afternoon undergoing a series of medical tests that will help him decide whether to run for a second term.

Results of the tests will be announced Tuesday.

It was his first full-scale physical checkup since December, and his last before he makes the big decision which he expects to announce by the end of this month.

Mr. Eisenhower drove directly back to the White House after the examination. He planned to spend a quiet weekend there, awaiting the report from his physicians.

Pick 2nd pgh The tests

The tests included X-ray and fluoroscopic examinations, electrocardiograph readings and blood chemistry analyses. All were aimed at measuring, with as much scientific precision as possible, the extent of the President's recovery from his Sept. 24 heart attack.

The White House said the results would not be announced until after a consultation of the Chief Executive's physicians Tuesday. The physicians, including Boston hearts specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White are expected to give at that time their verdict on how well Mr. Eisenhower has stood up under the strain of a fairly full load of presidential activity for the past month.

He'll Decide Himself

Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference last Wednesday that the doctors' report will be an important — but not necessarily decisive — factor in his decision whether to run for reelection. He indicated he expects to announce that decision by the end of this month.

Emphasizing that the final decision will be his own, Mr. Eisenhower told reporters:

"I think I will probably trust my own feelings more than I will the doctors' reports. A doctor... doesn't have to think about the things I do in trying to solve this

Texan Handled Case Gift

Personal Funds Of Californian

By JOHN W. FINNEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—UP— Howard Keck, millionaire California oil man, testified Saturday that the $2500 political contribution offered Sen. Francis Case came from his personal funds but that he had nothing to do with the offer.

Keck was the day's final witness at a select Senate committee's investigation of the contribution. Case, South Dakota Republican, requested the inquiry last Monday after he had refused to accept the money. He questioned whether it was an attempt to influence his vote on the then pending natural gas bill.

Keck, president of the Superior Oil Co., Los Angeles, denied this as did preceding witnesses.

Says Texan Handled It

The committee traced the money to Keck through Elmer Patman of Austin, Tex., and John M. Neff, attorneys for Superior Oil Co. Keck also is a director of the Gulf Interstate Gas Co., City National Bank of Houston Tex., and the Canadian Superior Oil Co.

Keck said the contribution came from a fund handled for him by Patman. Patman paid out the money—25 $100 bills — to Neff. Neff said he gave it to E. J. Kahler, Sioux Falls, S. D., newspaper executive who in turn handed it over to one of Case's political associates in that state.

Keck said Patman handled the personal fund because "I am quite busy; there has to be somebody to help expedite matters."

Says Just Few Thousand

Patman had testified that he kept no written record of such disbursments. Instead, he said, he reports orally to Keck from time to time. The fund, he added, is never more

Wedgeworth Honored By Soil District

The board of supervisors of the Gray County Soil Conservation District has selected E. O. "Red" Wedgeworth as the business man who has rendered the greatest unselfish service to soil conservation in the district.

His story will be entered in the "Save the Soil and Save Texas" awards program in Fort Worth. The nomination for this honor reads in part, as follows: "We could go on with the accomplishments and promotions of Mr. Wedgeworth, but they are too numerous to evaluate. . .any program for the benefit of conservation or agriculture, he gives his time, promotes it in a big way, and at alltimes it is a success."

Wedgeworth came to Pampa in 1945, becoming general manager of the Chamber of Comerce, a position he has maintained up to the present time. Upon his arrival one of the first activities started was the organization of the Top o' Texas Hereford Breeders Association. This was followed by the Top o' Texas Junior Livestock Show, starting with one county, and now embracing six counties.

Other activities in which Wedgeworth has participated and aided in organization, include: the Top o' Texas F.F.A. Judging Contest, and the Top o' Texas Rodeo and

Lincoln Day Speakers Laud Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—UP— Republican orators Saturday lauded Dwight D. Eisenhower as the greatest President since Abraham Lincoln and voiced earnest hope that he will run for re-election.

Comparison of Mr. Eisenhower with a Civil War president was the theme of dozens of speeches at traditional GOP Lincoln Day celebrations across the country. Many speakers also alluded to Mr. Eisenhower's forthcoming decision about a second term.

Harold E. Stassen, the President's disarmament adviser, said at Winston Salem, N. C., that "the vast majority of the people of our country hope and pray with us that our country may continue to have in the years ahead in the White House our present great Republican President."

'Best for His Country'

Kevin McCann, White House aide who helps prepare the President's speeches, said at Paterson, N. J., that Mr. Eisenhower is wrestling with "by far the most difficult personal decision ever to confront a President."

"He will make it, without regard to his own personal inclinations or desires, in the light of what is best for his country and humanity," McCann said.

County Drys Hear Address, Organize

A determined group of Gray County citizens with a positive goal in sight now, heard Rev. O. F. Dingler, associated executive secretary of Texas Alcohol Narcotic Education, Inc., talk in support of the current move to hold a local option election on the sale of alcoholic beverages in the county.

Behind a chorus of strong amens, Dingler brought forth the reasons the group was seeking the election. He said that the issue must be brought to a level of what is right and what is wrong. Citing several illustrations to prove his point, Dingler pointed out that liquor was responsible for many traffic accidents, at least 49 per cent of traffic deaths, he said, were because of a drinking driver.

Dingler said the liquor industry was willing to ruin the character of the country's youth in order to sell alcoholic beverages, that the industry had a $350,000,000 budget for publicity in 1955.

Dingler said Texas took in $20,000,000 in revenue from the sale of liquor last year and spent $585,000.000 collecting it, including increases in insurance because of driving accidents, financing of the liquor control board and other expenditures. He said the liquor in-

U.S. Planes Rush Aid To Europe Cold Victims

LONDON, Feb. 11—UP—Scores of cargo planes and helicopters took off Saturday on mercy missions to aid victims of Europe's worst cold wave of the century.

All of Europe braced for new hardships brought on by the blizzards and sub-zero temperatures that already have claimed at least 300 lives.

Dozens of planes nosed through pea-soup fog and swirling snow to carry food and medicine to isolated areas, while others scoured the seas for floundering ships and stood by those known to be in trouble.

Pilots of two Royal Air Force helicopters braved a blizzard in the English Channel to pluck 10 men from a battered tug minutes before it sank.

France Reports 28 Dead

France reported 28 new deaths from the cold to put her at the top of the fatality list with 82 dead. Italy was next with at least 71 dead.

New snowstorms cut communications again Saturday with scores of villages in southern Italy which rescuers had just dug out of tons of snow.

The number of isolated villages in the Chieti province in Central Italy, which was down to 30 Friday night, jumped to 85 again Saturday.

Incomplete estimates said at least 120 villages and hundreds of hamlets were again cut off from the world throughout Italy's Abruzzi region.

Food and medicine were running short in the Sangro Valley, where some communities have been isolated for 11 days.

Rescue teams and helicopters rushed supplies to villages that could still be reached before heavier storms descended from the north.

A pack of hungry wolves attacked a doctor returning from a farm near Penne. Armed Carabinieri (federal police) frightened the pack away.

Six-Foot Snows Hit Japan Area

TOKYO, Feb. 11—UP—Blizzards buried western Japan under six feet of snow Saturday while floods plagued tropical Indonesia thousands of miles to the south.

Heavy snows which started Thursday continued falling along the Japan Sea coastal area of Honshu, the main Japanese island. Weather forecasters predicted the storm would keep up a few more days.

In Indonesia, the worst floods in 15 years spread over several districts of Java, the young republic's main island. Authorities evacuated 15,000 persons from their homes.

Muddy waters broke dikes and covered entire villages above the rooftops.

Line-Up Set For First Primary

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 11—UP —The deadline for entering New Hampshire's first - in - the-nation presidential primary came Saturday with four Democrats and three Republicans, including President Eisenhower, in the final lineup.

Pitted against Mr. Eisenhower on the Republican side were Sen. William F. Knowland of California, Senate minority leader, and Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren.

On the Democratic side in the March 13 voting will be Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Adlai E. Stevenson, and Govs. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Averell Harriman of New York.

Kefauver was the only one of the seven candidates to campaign actively in the state. One delegate pledged to Warren was entered without his knowledge and Williams and Harriman supporters filed notice of candidacy without telling the two governors beforehand.

Republicans will choose 14 delegates, with one vote each, to the GOP nominating convention. Democrats will elect 12 delegates to share eight votes at their party convention.

Air Service For Pampa To Be Sought

An effort to obtain scheduled airline service again for Pampa will be made in the immediate future as the result of a joint meeting of the Gray County Airport Board and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce aviation committee.

Conferences with the C. A. B., Continental Airlines and Central Airlines regarding such service will be set up. Pampa once had Central Airlines service but the service was abandoned several years ago because of lack of business.

The committees voted to invite the All-Texas Air Tour to schedule an overnight stop in Pampa this year instead of the 30-minute stop made here in the past.

W. M. Alford, manager of Perry LeFors Field, and Demaris Holt were named as a committee to supervise two projects, the first to select two suitable Pampa buildings for air markers, the second to erect a large flagpole at the field.

Kindly Old Maid May Have Doubled Brink's Take

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 11—UP— The kindly old maid bookkeeper of a savings firm, dipping into the till over the years for charity, friends and kinfolks, may have made off with more than double the Brink's loot, auditors indicated Saturday. They said losses may run to $2.8 million.

Miss Minnie C. Mangum, 52, also may have set a record for the amount of an embezzlement, federal accountants said. They said her former firm, the Commonwealth Building and Loan Assn., placed in receivership immediately when they found its entire reserve fund of $2.1 million apparently drained.

For 20 years, Miss Mangum headed-up the bookkeeping department of Commonwealth, picking girl assistants right out of business college "to learn my system." But her system backfired just before Christmas when one of her young women recruits publicly challenged her entry system and put a federal auditor who overheard her on the spinster's trail.

A quick audit showed the firm might be as much as $900,000 short and Miss Mangum was charged specifically on Dec. 29 with a $100,000 theft. She was released in bail while a more complete 30-day audit was taken. That check showed that the reserve fund had vanished and the auditors began another 30-day examination which is still going on.

Some bank officials estimated the total losses to the loan association, including interest and earnings from the period "years ago" when Miss Mangum began embezzling, may run as high as $2.8 million.

The gang that looted the Brink's depository in Boston in 1950 got only $1.1 million in negotiable cash. The gang was rounded up by the FBI recently.

She Admits Dabbling

Miss Mangum admitted when the auditors confronted her with the original shortages that she had started taking money from the firm "years ago," but had no idea how much.

She lived modestly in a $100,000 house but examiners found she had bought lavish homes for relatives at fashionable Virginia Beach, contributed heavily to church and charity and was known as a "soft touch" for anyone she took a liking to. She was devoted church worker.

Since her arrest authorities have been searching out and attaching her various properties and interests including $50,000 in cash and securities. It was not yet known how much could be recovered.

LINCOLN

Leonard W. Hall, speaking at Springfield, Ill., said President Eisenhower's "Lincolnesque philosophy of government" is so popular with the American people that he expects the Republicans in 1956 to "score a landslide victory that will even overshadow the sweeping success of 1952."

Attacks 'Inconsistent Walls'

Hall denounced "inconsistent and partisan wails of some Democrat politicans" who, he said, have accused Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of being "warmongers and appeasers of communism at one and the same time."

"Let me suggest," said Hall, "that bringing this country into a foreign war and aiding predatory world communism are two subjects on which the present leadership of the Democrat party might well maintain complete and contrite silence."

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said at Akron, Ohio, that "President Eisenhower, in his basic policies, his attitudes toward his duty, his basic philosophy, reflects more purely the vision of Abraham Lincoln than any President since Lincoln's time."

Dingler said that today he walked down a street in Pampa behind a man carrying a quart bottle of liquor. Carroll Ray of the Central Baptist Church, president; Travis Lively of Pampa Hardware, vice president; and Wesley Bruce, of Bruce and Sons Transfer and Storage, secretary-treasurer. Dr. E. Didn't Know Case

Patman, a soft-spoken man, testified that he has been a full-time lawyer for Superior for 13 years. He said he has never seen Case but has known Neff more than 25 years and had hired him on several occasions.

Patman testified that he had not asked Neff to go to Sioux Falls, S. D. last November to inquire about Case's position on the gas bill. Nor, he said, had his company asked Neff to go to Washington when Neff tried unsuccessfully to see Case.

Patman said that sometime during the Christmas holidays Neff had called and informed him that he had made inquries in South Dakota and believed Case favored the natural gas bill.

Patman 'Very, Very' Pleased

"I will be frank to say that pleased me very, very much," Patman said.

Patman testified, however, that Neff was not employed by Superior to do anything about the natural gas bill. The scope of Neff's duties for Superior he said, were limited to legal problems arising in Nebraska.

Kid Pony Show. The former started from an original eight teams and now, includes all of Area 1, north of Lubbock, with about 50 teams participating. The rodeo, which started on a shoestring, now has an average yearly attendance of 30,000, and the pony show is one of the major shows of the southwest.

The Soil Conservation District movement was started in late '46 and early '47. Organization of the district was pushed by Wedgeworth and the Chamber of Commerce, J. P. Smith and the extension service, and several others. "Red" had a big part in organization of this district.

In May of 1947 organization of the Gray County Soil Conservation District was assured. One of the first needs of the district, a grass drill, was provided through the efforts of the chamber. Now the district owns seven grass drills, two manure spreaders, one sweep, one fertilizer, one land leveler, and an inner row legume seeder.

Wedgeworth and the Agriculture committee inaugurated the Livestock agriculture achievement Day, a six-county program, to give special recognition to outstanding members of 4-H Clubs, FFA, and Home Demonstration Clubs. A tour of the district was held for the past two years showing the accomplishments of stubble mulching, diversions, terraces and proper use of grazing land.

The "Save the Soil and Save Texas" award program was held in Pampa during the last Livestock Agriculture Achievement Day.

Two Men Die In Plane Crash Near Dumas

By UNITED PRESS

Two men were killed in a West Texas airplane crash Saturday, four more were missing aboard another in deep South Texas, and there was a report of still another crash near the Texas-Louisiana border.

Paul Cantrell and J. E. Kibbin, both of Cactus, Tex., were killed when their private two-place plane went into a spin shortly after taking off from the Dumas airport and crashed into a snowbank near Dumas.

CANADIAN — (Special) — One of the passengers aboard a private plane from Houston, reported missing on a flight to Brownsville, is Gene Mills, former resident of Canadian. Mills and his wife, the former Kathleen Carr, lived in Canadian in 1948 where she was a school teacher in 1940.

Dumas Sheriff John Easley said the two men, both about 35, worked for the Phillips chemical plant at Cactus. Their bodies were still fastened in their seats by safety belts.

A twin-engined military plane was believed to have crashed in flames shortly before noon Saturday in Lake Sabine, near Texas-Louisiana border. Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Snyder of Port Arthur told authorities they were driving along the lake when they saw a big plane on fire dive into the lake.

Mrs. Snyder said she distinctly saw a parachute open under the plane.

Texas Highway Patrolman J. S. Moses reported he saw a twin-engined military plane flying towards the lake from the direction of Orange, Tex., several minutes before the Snyders reported seeing the plane on fire.

The 47th Air Rescue Squadron at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston said it knew of no military planes in the area, but it was checking out the report. A rescue boat also was sent onto the lake by the Coast Guard.

A Houston contractor's report of a low-flying airplane that roared over his automobile in a blinding rainstorm touched off a widespread aerial hunt along the Mexican border in the Brownsville vicinity.

Burglars Hit Perryton Firm

PERRYTON — (Special) — Burglars entered the Foote Truck and Tractor Co. sometime Sunday night and made off with a valuable rifle and other firearms.

C. W. Foote reported a new Model 70 Winchester with scope sight was missing, along with a .38 cal. Spanish pistol, an antique pistol and an electric drill.

Sheriff Ray Phagan said the building was entered by breaking out a rear window and then prying up the inside door to Foote's office.

Tracks in the deep snow indicated that two men were involved.

These tracks led across the highway to the road leading to the sale barn, where other tracks indicated they had parked their car.

Footprints and tireprints were recorded, the Sheriff said.

There was a small amount of money in the cash register, but this was not disturbed. However, the office was ransacked thoroughly, Sheriff Phagan reported.

THIS ONE OUGHTTA' DO — So says Coy Palmer, co-owner of Radio Station KPDN as he selects a record fro m the large library kept at the station. The library makes over 28,000 selections available for use by his announcers. (News photo)

Radio Station's Big Record Library Is Elaborate Set-Up

By JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Staff Writer

Ever wonder what the radio announcer meant when he said, "This program transcribed," or "Portions of the preceding program were recorded?" Probably so.

Did you ever wonder what all was involved in the playing of a single selection of music over the radio? Probably not, but Coy Palmer of radio station KPDN, could talk for hours on his elaborate record library and the record catalogue that makes thousands of selections readily available for his announcers, at no small cost in time, effort and money to himself and partner Warren Hasse.

The elaborate record collections and transcriptions at KPDN is the result of a great deal of pride, care and accurate planning.

With over 28,000 selections to choose from, including popular hits, western, hill billy, classical, spiritual, novelty and sound effects, how does an announcer ever find the one song he seeks?

A very particular announcer, Jack Scott, set up a reference catalogue that shamed the "pick-and-peek" method previously used at the station for that very reason.

In 1952, at cost of approximately $2,000 to the bosses, Scott began to set up the catalogue. First, he made a card index for every selection in the house, one for each side of the record, and more on long-play bits.

Each selection was given a number and the card has the number, the title and the composer on it. The cards are indexed and cross-field in three ways, by title, by artist and by type (popular, western, etc).

The records themselves bear the number and are filed accordingly.

Palmer estimates that it takes 15 minutes to file one record, but thereafter, the record is readily available.

The library has some records that are at least 30 years old and an old, unsightly box near the library wall contains several transcribed programs from the early days of KPDN.

Transcribed? Oh, yes. Anything transcribed, music, a commercial, story or what, is cut for one specific purpose and is not for sale except to the radio stations. A record is cut for sale to the general public.

In order to play any one record, KPDN must pay a licensing fee to one of three licensing companies which buy copyrights to the songs. The license is a blanket license, fee contingent upon the business the station does, and covers each record played. KPDN pays well over $1,000 a month in order to play the records it desires.

The station subscribes to all major recording companies and takes all records they release. The firm pays a flat fee each month for the records they get.

They usually get between 45 and 150 releases each month and these come from 10 days to 4 weeks before they are released for sale. The station has received as many as 500 records in a single month.

The library is quite complete. It includes the complete works of some artists, among them Russ Morgan, Eddie Howard and others.

The library includes records in all three speeds, 78, 45 and 33 rmp. Of these, approximately 5,000 are 78s. Less than two years ago, KPDN started receiving 45 rpms and now, Coy says, that is about all they get. 2,173 of 45 rpm records are catalogued now and over 300 more are about ready.

The library includes many old albums by long-remembered artists such as Bing Crosby, Glen Miller, Guy Lombardo, several old marches and others. Any type song may be found in a matter of a few minutes.

The firm also subscribes to the World Library, which, when it sends a record or transcription, it is exclusive, to be used only by KPDN in Pampa. On one occasion in 1953, the station had to go to the courts to stop a rival radio station from using an exclusive bit they had received from the World Library. They have over 12,000 selections which are exclusively KPDN's in Pampa.

When the three-speed craze hit, KPDN went to considerable expense to adapt its equipment. Now, the station can not only play 78, 45, and 33 rpm records, but microgroove, regular and vertical as well.

The library includes several numbers recorded especially for KPDN. Among those are Coy's own, "There Ain't No Indians In Pueblo;" "The Wolf of Wolf Creek Pass," by Pete Smythe; "In No Time At All," written by Jim Dean and Palmer; several numbers by Jimmy and Marvin Bond and some by Helen Blocker.

Sound effects for almost any conceivable sound are also available at the station. Anything from a baby's cry to a woman's scream and back can be found in the sound effects department. Other sounds include Indian yells, explosions, mixed screams of terror and mixed boos, wild animals, airplanes, auto horns, sawing or chopping trees, thunder and rainfall, bowling alley noises, laughs, boat whistles, crickets, frogs and many, many more.

The Harvesters' state championship basketball games are also recorded and kept at the station.

With all these selections to choose from, announcer Jack Scott is desperately seeking another. His record of Leon McAuliffe's "Panhandle Rag" is becoming scratched. It is theme song for his disc jockey show, Panhandle Platter Party, and the records are not being sold now.

With such a large and complete library, the station is often approached by individuals and groups wanting to borrow a certain selection. For a while, the station went along with the borrowing but several valuable selections were never returned and so the policy was changed.

Palmer's three "on the air" disc jockeys, who make use of the library, are Jack Scott, Bob Parkinson and Ed Young, whose nightly dj show reflects the scope and variance of the library.

ADA Leader Cites McCarthy 'Downfall'

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Feb. 11 —UP—Joseph L. Rauh, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said Saturday night the Senate investigation of alleged subversion at the Army Signal Corps' Fort Monmouth, N. J., laboratory "was the turning point in the downfall of McCarthy."

He referred to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) who was chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigating committee in 1954 when the Fort Monmouth inquiry plunged the Army and McCarthy into a bitter feud.

"The beginning of the Fort Monmouth hearings posed the problem of risk for all employes concerned," Rauh said in a prepared address to a Roosevelt Day dinner.

"There was the risk of more than a job. There was the risk that some action or expression of opinion, properly distorted, could be used to destroy one's reputation. There was the risk that denial would be met with the testimony of unknown informers and a perjury indictment might follow. How can a man be sure when he is fighting phantoms?"

Rauh then congratulated the Fort Monmouth workers, who were vindicated after McCarthy's investigation, "for their willingness to pay those unseen and incalculable costs of defending our freedom."

Mrs. Adlard knew just what to do Five years ago sister Terry, now seven, had a similar mishap with an identical rocker. No knowing what to do at the time, Mrs. Adlard called her husband home from work. He freed Terry by sawing out the back splat So when Gail got stuck, her mother just ran for the trusty saw Above, the sisters show there is no more danger in putting their heads through the chair backs.

Many New Construction Features Due In Homes

By ROBERT F. MORISON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 — UP —The home buyer and his wife can look forward to many glittering new gadgets and construction features.

Some of the products are on the market now, others are in the process of being accepted. Still others are being tested.

Many are on display here at the National Housing Center. They range from a central vacuum cleaning system to tile for bathrooms and kitchens made of steel with a ceramic finish.

The cleaning system, somewhat similar to types long in use in office buildings and schools, has a built in unit and a 60-foot hose. A button on the metal handle controls the length of the hose, letting you reel in or out the amount you need at the touch of a finger. The cleaner is connected to a drain and the dirt taken up is carred away by water.

Steel Partitions

Also on display is a new steel frame partition on which wall board can be attached. An advantage here is that electric wires and pipes can be passed through the framework without the boring of holes and slots.

One of the builder's long standing problems has been the installation of windows. A sashless window has been developed that may solve the problem. The glass panes simply slide horizontally in a simple frame, eliminating the innumerable braces and fittings of conventional types.

A tongue and groove sheathing has come out. This, if accepted by the builders, should save time. It permits joints to be made anywhere along a wall without worrying about each piece ending at a stud for nailing. Do-it-yourself home-fixers could find this of value.

Another product is foam rubber-backed carpeting, mounted on heavy paperboard squares. These are laid like tile and nailed to the sub-flooring. When laid no joints show. Experts point out that use of this not only gives the house carpeted floors, but saves money by eliminating the need for expensive hardwood floors which may later be covered with wall - to-wall carpeting.

Sliding Wall Plugs

For future and present home owners, there are such items as flat wall safes, soil resisting preparations which can be applied to almost any surface to make it tougher for dirt to stick to the very smooth surface, less expensive plastic pipe for radiant heating systems to replace copper and other more expensive materials, and baseboard electric outlets which slide on a track from one part of a room to another.

It takes four or five years "after the bright guys starting using them" before new products really are accepted by the Public, construction experts say.

Even so there are other hurdles they must clear before becoming established in the market. Mainly these are acceptance by the mortgage lender and conformity with building code practices.

Youth, Family Roundtable To Be Held

A roundtable on Youth and Family Concerns will be conducted by the Optimist Club and the Adult Education Group of Pampa at Lovett Memorial Library on Feb. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

This meeting is the outcome of a survey made by a committee on Youth, which was formed at the Midwinter Forum of the West Texas Council for Adult Education, held at Texas Tech on Dec. 8-9, 1955. The results of the roundtable will help to form future programs of educational activities among adult.

Four basic points will be considered in the decision. They are: 1) what we are trying to accomplish with youth in Pampa and what the objectives are; 2) what we are doing to achieve these objectives; 3) what are the shortcomings; and 4) what facts are needed to be gathered in oredr to answer these questions fully.

Tentative answers to these questions will be sent to the regional conference to be held at Texas Tech, Feb. 19-25. A regional committee will apply the ideas and concerns into a suggested program outline for this region.

DO-IT-YOURSELF MOTOR SLED—This motorized sled is the pride of Joe Zagony and his nine-year-old son, Stevie. Zagony, of suburban Cleveland, Ohio, rigged up the contraption after two years of experimenting for "something that would be fun for Stevie and me in the winter." It's an eight-foot sled propelled by a motor-driven rear wheel. The sled will whiz along at 30 m.p.h. It's equipped with a hand brake, a steering wheel and seats. Motor has a one-quart gasoline tank. The rear wheel is cleated for traction. Zagony says the finished project cost him $200.

Most Popular Agriculture Booklets Are For Women

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—UP—The 10 most popular publications turned out by the Agriculture Department are designed for women.

Eight of them concern food — its selection, nutritive value, storage, and preparation for the table. The other two tell how to remove stain from fabrics and how to grow roses.

Here are the publications in order of their popularity judged by the copies of each distributed by the department in 1955:

1. Family Fare (cookbook)—484,704.
2. National Food Guide — 237,304.
3. Freezing combination Main Dishes—223,100.
4. Stain Removals — 186,900.
5. Meat for Thrifty Meals — 176,600.
6. Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables — 134,600.
7. Roses for the Home — 117,500.
8. Egg Buying Guides — 117,158.
9. Green Vegetables for Good Eating — 114,350.
10. Egg Dishes for Any Meal — 95,250.

Distributed Free

The department sends the publications free to individuals who request them, and distributes them for members of Congress. State extension services also distribute them free. The government printing office will provide them for a small fee.

Last year's best-seller — Family Fare, with recipes and tips onfood management — has been a front runner since its publication in February, 1950. Its 96 pages are packed with all sorts of information on cooking, recipes, and tips to help ease the housewife's cooking burden.

Richard A. Hollis, head of the department's publication distribution service, predicts it will become, in time, one of the most popular books ever published by the agency. Family Fare is the successor to another famous department cookbook — "Aunt Sammy's Radio Recipes Revised," first issued in May, 1931.

"Aunt Sammy's," now out of print and a collector's item, brought together 400 of the most popular recipes and 90 of the menus included in "Housekeepers' Chats," a radio program the department used to sponsor. Before "Aunt Sammy's" disappeared, the department distributed 1,835,000 copies of the 142-page cookbook.

Food Guide Most Popular

The all-time popular publication by the department is the National Food Guide, issued in 1942. Some 13,614,450 copies of the eight-page leaflet have been distributed. It lists seven basic food groups and provides a guide to good eating.

Other farm developments:

Surplus on credit — The Commodity Credit Corp. will now sell surplus farm commodities for export on credit. Heretofore, except for barter transactions, all surplus farm commodities sold overseas have been for cash. CCC said the new policy is expected to step up export sales.

CCC holdings — The government's investment in price-supported commodities on Dec. 31 was some $8.6 billion. Of this total, the commodities owned outright by the government were valued at $6.1 billion. Outstanding loans on commodities pledged for collateral but still held by producers totaled about $2.6 billion. On the same date a year ago, the government's investment was $7.1 billion.

Two Livestock Events Slated In Perryton

PERRYTON — (Special) —The two big livestock events of the year for the Perryton area will be held next week and plenty of participation is assured. The Junior Livestock Show is scheduled Wednesday, while the 10th annual sale of the North Plains Livestock Show, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be staged Thursday.

There are 58 4-H Club and FFA boys who will exhibit calves, sheep and swine in the show. The judging begins at 9 a.m. Wednesday and will conclude that afternoon. The sale of stock will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday, first time in the history of the show for a night sale.

The physical arrangements committee, headed by John King, has promised that adequate seating and heat will be available for the spectators at the show and sale. Other members of this committee are George Yates, Dan Newman and Virgil Devers.

There are 52 head of registered Herefords in the annual show and sale which opens at 10 a.m. Thursday with the show. The sale will begin at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

The number of animals to be shown in the Junior Livestock Show is not as great as in previous years, due to a new rule that no boy may sell more than one animal in each division, but the quality is said to be the best ever.

There are two divisions in Hereford and Angus beef calves, with the champions of each division competing for the grand championship of the show.

The Swine division is in two classes, with a separate purebred gilt class.

There are five divisions in the sheep judging, with prizes and ribbons in each.

Boys and girls competing in the show include the following:

Calves: Bill Jines, Dan Gum, Bobby Hall, Jerry Peirson, Jeanene Frantz, Cheryl Frantz, Don Wagner, Marlene Wagner, Billy Pletcher, Glynn Sell, Garland Sell, Jerry Jines and Ernestine Jines.

Stubble Will Increase Snow On Ground

By TONY WELKER
Soil Scientist

About two inches of snow fell in Pampa and surrounding area on February 1, accompanied by a 30-40 mph. wind. Field observations on 8 inch sorghum stubble showed a measured average snow depth of three inches on the ground with a soil temperature of 34 degrees; and on clean tilled land the cover was only a trace with a soil temperature of 26 degrees.

About 13 more inches fell February 4, and 5 in a 25 mph. wind. Measured observations again made, showed a 15-inch snow depth on the stubble land with a soil temperature of 38 degrees; and a five inch snow depth on clean ground with a soil temperature of 33 degrees. Some snow was lost to drifts in protected places when the stubble became covered.

These are measurements made of conditions that anyone can observe when driving through the country after a snowfall. The pattern is clear; the more of a windbreak we have on the ground surfaces, the more moisture we receive when it falls in the form of a wind-borne snow, and the more moisture we receive, the better crops we make including more stubble to catch the next year's snow. The increase in soil temperature with the insulating snow cover serves several purposes; less damage is done to roots by freezing, more plant growth on winter wheat takes place when above freezing, microorganisms in the soil are more active in releasing plant food to the roots and the thawing that takes place from below brings more of the snow moisture into the soil, thus allowing less to be evaporated for the snow surface.

This practice of allowing as much stubble as possible on the ground is one of the most important conservation practices of the Soil Conservation District in this area; it is called stubble mulching. It provides many other benefits such as lowering soil temperature in the summer, increasing water penetration in the soil, decreasing evaporation, and reducing both wind and water erosion. These have been observed by tests run a tthe experiment stations.

Although the amount of snow collected by stubble may seem small in some years, records at the Amarillo Weather Bureau show that our average seasonal snowfall is more than 20 inches and the moisture received is about 2 inches. According to data received from the Amarillo Experiment Station, only about one-fifth of the annual precipitation in an average year becomes soil moisture. Snow could contribute a good part of this quantity besides having the qualities of containing more nitrogen, sulfur and other plant foods.

This is only one more reason to become a Conservation farmer by farming the practical way.

WEEKLY GRAIN ROUNDUP

FORT WORTH —UP— USDA— Weekly grain:

Most cash grains brought higher prices at Southwest markets this week, the Agricultural Marketing Service reported Saturday.

Wheat led the upturn with a 4c a bushel gain. White corn followed with a 2 to 3c advance, milo with a 2c gain, and yellow corn, with a ½ to 1c rise. Barley and oats were exceptions to the trend as the market closed steady to 1c a bushel lower on barley and ¾ to 1¼c lower on oats. All changes are from Friday through Friday and are based on bulk carlot quotations at Texas common points.

Here's the way the cash grain market closed this week: No. 1 hard wheat was quoted at $2.39½ to $2.49½ a bushel, No. 2 white corn, at $1.6 to $1.70, No. 2 yellow corn, at $159 to $1.62½, . No. 2 white oats, at 83½ to 86½, and No. 2 barley, at $1.21 to $1.24 a bushel. No. 2 yellow milo was priced at $2.17 to $2.22 per 10 pounds.

Grain prices were also higher at Oklahoma country elevators this week. For example, wheat finished mostly 2c a bushel higher, with country prices ranging anywhere from $2 at Guymon and Hooker to $2.06 at Bison and Hennessey.

Milo prices went up 3c at Guymon but held steady at other Oklahoma country points. Closing quotations ranged from a low of $1.60 at Guymon to a high of $2 per 10 pounds at Ada.

WASHINGTON —UP—The Senate Wednesday night confirmed the nomination of Frank D. Yturria to be customs collector for district 23 with headquarters at Laredo, Tex.

Texas Poultry Unchanged To Cent Lower

AUSTIN —UP— Texas Poultry markets closed this week with prices unchanged to one cent lower, the State Department of Agriculture reported Saturday.

South Texas closed at 21 cents, unchanged to one cent lower; East Texas, 20-21, mostly 20 cents, unchanged to one cent lower; Waco, 20 cents, mostly one cent lower; and Corsicana f.o.b. plant, 21½-22 cents, unchanged to one-half cent lower.

Comparable prices a year ago were 25 cents at all points. The South Texas market opened weaker, held steady until the close and closed fully steady. The undertone was steady to firm. Supplies were short at some points, adequate at others. Demand was fair. Some growers were reported holding for higher prices. Trading was moderate for the week, with some processors and buyers off the market during the week.

East Texas opened slightly weaker and then held steady through the close. The undertone was steady. Supplies were adequate for a fair to good demand. Trading for the week was moderate.

The Waco-Corsicana market opened weaker and then held steady through the close. Supplies were fully adequate for a slow to fair demand. The undertone was weak, and trading was normal.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported 1,886,000 chicks were placed on Texas farms for the week ended Feb. 4, up four per cent from the previous week and 41 per cent above placements for the corresponding week a year ago.

Ike Maintains Opposition To Rigid Farm Price Props

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON —UP— The administration has sounded a sour note over the rigid farm price props contained in the omnibus farm aid bill passed by the Senate Agriculture committee.

President Eisenhower has not changed by "one iota" in his opposition to the rigid farm price supports, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Friday.

And Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said the committee aid bill is a mixture of "good and bad." He expressed hope the full Senate would "strike the bad features and retain the good."

Some Rejublican senators predicted the President would veto the bill if it contained rigid supports.

Benson said the soil bank feature —originally proposed by the administration—"would empty our warehouses" of crop surpluses. However, he added that "90 per cent of parity (supports)would fill them again."

He said "Congress will have to decide which way it wants to go; we cannot go both directions at the same time."

The bill, passed Friday by a 12 to 3 vote, included a $1.1 billion "soil bank" and a return to 90 per cent price supports on corn, cotton, peanuts and millable wheat.

The high price supports barely squeaked through 8-7. They face a hard fight when the Senate takes up the bill about Feb. 20. The House narrowly approved 90 per cent supports last year.

No Bids Made On Wolf Creek Dam

PERRYTON — (Special) — Five inquiries, but no actual bids have been received on the Wolf Creek Dam construction projects, County Judge H. R. Slaughter reported.

Tuesday, Feb. 21 has been set as the date when the bids will be opened on the project.

Construction firms in Beaver, Woodward, ampa, Borger and Perryton have made inquiries, Judge Slaughter said.

The construction job will include tearing out part of the old dam, putting in new earth fill and concrete spillway. Voters of Ochiltree County voted $150,000 to put the dam back into operation.

If the bids are right, and a contract is let, it is expected that work will begin in the early spring.

Bad Penny

BEAVER DAM, Wis. — UP —A copper token, given out by the O. M. Hardware store here in 1863, returned home after 93 years. Paydon Johnig, Britton, S. D., sent the advertising token—which could easily be mistaken for a penny—to the chamber of commerce.

Evening In Rome Theatre Is Exciting

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written for United Press

ROME—Witnessing an explosion in an ornament factory would be an anti-climax after an evening in a Roman theater.

Italian women, unlike their foreign sisters, have long realized that while sitting in a theater the only portion of the anatomy visible is from the shoulders up, and so this is where they concentrate their effort. Sensible, no?

That headgear! It can't always be called a hat. Ostrich plumes, egrets, jewels, furs, flowers, bauble, veils, ribbons, and something that looked like lavender Kleenex were all in beautiful evidence the other night when I attended Luchino Visconti's production of "Uncle Vanya."

Reigning Figure

Count Visconti, a member of the Milanese nobility with pioneering spirit and impeccable taste, has become the reigning figure of the Italian legitimate theater. He first brought American and French contemporary plays to Italian audiences, among them "A Streetcar Named Desire," "The Glass Menagerie," "Death of a Salesman," "The Crucible," and the soon to be premiered "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

As a director the count insisted upon the highest order of acting, ruthlessly eliminating all the breast-pounding, knuckle-cracking and arm-flailing that have unfortunately come to be associated with the Italian stage technique.

"Senso," his latest film starring Valli and Farley Granger, will arrive shortly in America.

Like a Revue

I should like to mention, too, several dark-age delicacies now laboring on Roman platforms. They fall under (you may take that literally) the classification of a "revue." What is offered up as entertainment, though visually equaling Ziegfeld's best efforts, could not pass muster on a 4 a.m. talent program!

Two local stars of the fair sex have seen fit to name themselves Dorian Gray and Mercedes Mozart. But the queen of them all was a lady who came out one evening with a microphone creamed into her decolletage and a bottle of liquid make-up concealed in a bouquet for on-stage repairs. Wearing a 40-pound gown, she inadvertently crashed into the orchestra pit!

All I can say is that if a Roman spectator wants to vie with that she'll just have to wear last season's Christmas tree on her head.

Alan Ladd, Robinson At LaNora

Alan Ladd, Edward G. Robinson and Joanne Dru are teamed in the new action drama, "Hell On Frisco Bay," opening today at the La Nora Theatre.

"Hell On Frisco Bay," a new Warner Bros. film, is the story of an embittered ex-cop on a relentless vengeance - hunt for the man who framed him for manslaughter.

The film marks the return of Alan Ladd in an action-packed role in the style of his earlier films.

Starring opposite Ladd in "Hell On Frisco Bay" are Edward G. Robinson and Joanne Dru. The film, in CinemaScope and Warner Color was under the direction of Frank Tuttle. It is a Jaguar Production for Warner Bros.

US Defends Weather Balloons

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 11—UP—The United States told the United Nations Saturday that protests from the Iron Curtain countries about American balloons flying over their countries were "based on a misconstruction of facts."

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. submitted a note to Secretary-General Dag Hamarskjold's office in reply to protests received earlier this week from Albania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia.

He referred to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' Feb. 8 note to the Kremlin explaining that the balloons were weather balloons engaged in a meteorological survey gathering information for the International Geophysical Year in 1957.

"Further statements by the government of the United States do not appear to be required at this time," Lodge said.

All the protesting countries have termed the balloons a menace to aerial navigation and Hungary contended they were responsible for two air crashes, one involving fatalities.

Lodge's note said the protest from Albania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia "resemble a note previously received by the U.S. government from the Soviet Union."

"All of them are based on a misconstruction of facts" it went on.

Police Traffic School Set

A Traffic School for Pampa Policemen will be conducted by the Amarillo Department of Public Safety for two weeks, beginning Monday.

The 20-hour school will begin at 4 p.m. Monday with the instruction of traffic law, a 9-hour course, to be taught by Lt. Jack Higginbotham of Amarillo. This course will continue through Thursday.

On Friday, Feb. 17, two one-hour courses will be offered on case preparation and directing traffic, to be instructed by Capt. Blackwell. The following Monday an hour course will feature traffic law and accident investigation, to be conducted by Sgt. Brookshire.

The course in accident investigation will continue through Friday to be followed by an hour course in public relations.

Schools of this type are held all over the state for law enforcement officers. Instructors have received special training and experience, and several of them have worked with the Bureau of Education, a branch of the Department of Public Safety.

NAACP Leader Says Adlai Could Swing 'Rights' Bill

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 11—UP—A Negro leader said Saturday night if Adlai E. Stevenson, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, would throw his weight behind Civil Rights legislation Congress would pass it.

But, he added, "The chief roadblock is the abject surrender of some liberals in Congress, most of whom support the Stevenson candidacy."

The speaker was Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington bureau of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He addressed association members from California, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Alaska.

"In its present state," Mitchell said in his prepared remarks, "the Democratic party represents a serious threat to national security. Democrats suffer from a native disease, with Sen. James O Eastland (D-Miss.) as the 'chief microbe' poisoning the blood stream of the nation."

Eastland is a leader of a congressional bloc fighting to prevent desegregation of Southern schools.

Mitchell said the Democrats "shape their solutions to national problems to fit a kind of ox-cart reasoning." He went on to charge that:

The military reserves bill was withdrawn from the House floor "to make it palatable to those who put love of segregation above love of country."

That Sen. Walter F. George, (D-Ga.), "in spite of years of service and even an anti-Civil Rights record, is ever aware of the fact that an upstart in his state is standing ready to stab him in the back with the dagger of racial tolerance."

That "the real reason some liberal Democrats oppose the NAACP school construction amendment is because they fear inclusion of it may bring about defeat of Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.) who is the chief Senate sponsor."

That the Republicans "are not a national party because whenever they try to run candidates for office onthe plaform of Abraham Lincoln their candidates are defeated in the Southern states."

Bar Group to Hear Nixon

DALLAS —UP— Vice President Richard M. Nixon will address the ninth annual Inter-American Bar Association conference at the Southwestern Legal Center April 14-21. Other speakers will include former President Herbert Hooper, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., and Henry F. Holland, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

● JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

How would you play today's South hand at a contract of three no-trump? West opens the five of diamonds, and you win the first trick with the queen. How do you proceed from that point?

You have eight tricks in top cards, and you can easily develop a ninth trick by successfully guessing the location of the queen of hearts. If you make a mistake by taking the finesse in the wrong direction, however, you will go down.

A good guesser needs no advice. If you occasionally, misguess a queen, however, you can find a better way to play today's hand than by trying to make your ninth trick in hearts.

Take three rounds of clubs, cash the ace of diamonds, and then let West take his diamond tricks. You can discard a spade on the fourth round of diamonds and a club on the fifth round. Dummy has no problems, of course, since two spades can be spared. You carefully refrain from cashing a fourth club in order to have this safe discard available at this time.

Having taken his diamonds West must now lead a spade or a heart. In either case his lead must guarantee your ninth trick. Bridge is an easy game when you can make your opponents take your guesses for you.

Pampa, Borger Tie For 1-4A Title

Harvesters Topple Sandies After Trailing First Half

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters, despite the scoring drive of Gene Brown, trailed at the halftime, 27-25, but came back in the third quarter and held the Amarillo Sandstorm almost scoreless to topple the upset-minded T. G. Hull-coached quintet 50-42 before a near - capacity crowd.

Gene Brown may have set a district record as he dumped in the first 16 points for the Green and Golders and counted for all the Harvesters' 12 points of the first quarter.

With Dickie Mauldin covered well in the first quarter, Gene Brown got loose and scored almost at will and dumped in the first 16 points for Coach Clifton McNeely's cagers Friday night.

The Amarillo Sandies scattered their scoring well during the course of the game with Bob Taylor taking the Amarillo scoring honors with 15 points. Taylor has been sitting the game out for the last two contests and other boys have started.

Borger slammed the Lubbock Westerners to the bottom of the heap with an 86-65 trouncing to remain tied with Pampa for the loop crown.

The teams, Borger and Pampa, will meet at Canyon for the crucial contest Monday night at 8 with Borger designated as the home team.

Pampa's Harvesters and Borger's Bulldogs finished the district play with five victories and one defeat. The Pampa five dropped Borger for its only loss and Borger stopped Pampa for its loss also.

The Bulldogs, favored to sweep the crown earlier in the season, dropped Lubbock and Amarillo in their four other victories while the Harvesters completed their fifth other win with the Sandies.

Pampa came through with flying colors as they downed the Sandies for the 15 time in 16 meetings although they trailed during the first half.

The Green and Golders scored first as Gene Brown sank a pair of free tosses. He then dumped in four fieldgoals before he got another chance from the gratis line.

The score at the end of the first quarter was tied at 12-12, but the Sandstorm gained a fieldgoal on the Harvesters for a 27-25 lead at halftime.

The Sandies, who had hit 10 of 23 during the first half, were held to a pair of fieldgoals in the third period although they put up 20. Jerry Ziegenhorn mossed two shots from the free throw line which left the Amarillo five trailing by 11 points early in the last frame.

The Sandies' longest lead of the night was four points while Pampa led by 11 at one time.

The score was knotted 10 times during the contest and was a "nip-and-tuck" contest until the Pampa defense stopped the Sandies cold after the halftime.

Brown and Mauldin were the top scorers in the game as they registered all but three of Pampa's points. Brown was the high point man of the night with 24 points while Mauldin was close behind with 23. Jerry Gee, who was top scorer against Borger in the first game, counted for the remaining three.

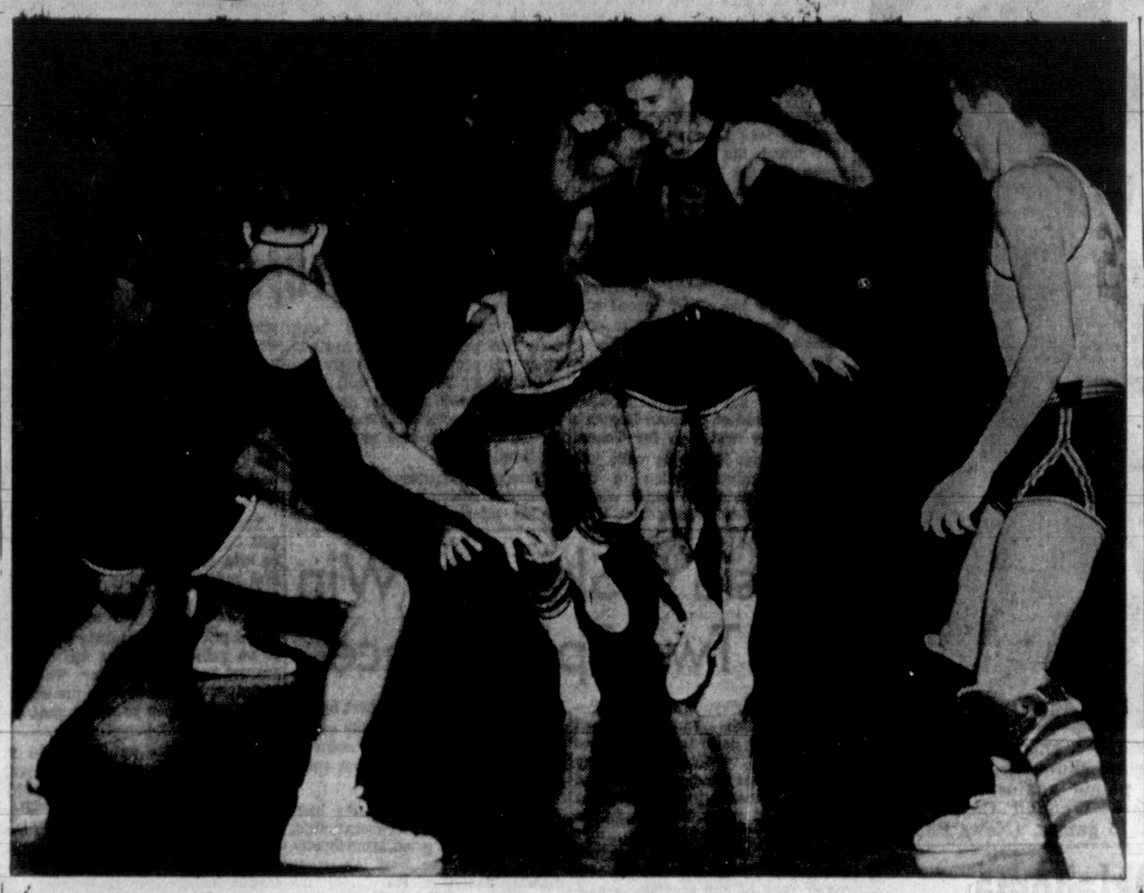

Although the Green and Golders were outscored from the floor their all-important free throw accuracy was the difference in winning or losing. It was the fifth straight game they trailed in fieldgoals made.

Brown dumped in seven fieldgoals for Pampa while Mauldin counted for six. Brown had a perfect night from the foul line as he made 10 points. Mauldin tried 12 times from the line and counted for 12. Jerry Gee made one of three attempts and the Harvesters set a new district record for the least number of free tosses missed in a single game. Borger previously held the record with four misses.

MISTAKES HURT — Court mistakes haven't plagued the Harvesters in district play this season but Dicky Mauldin, who scored 23 points for Pampa Friday night, is shown here as he looses the ball on the way in for a lay-up. The other Harvester is Gene Brown, 22, who scored 24 of the 50 Pampa points. Sandies are Bob Taylor, 20, and Albert Henry, 18. The Harvesters' 50-42 victory put them in a tie with Borger for the District 1-AAAA crown. The playoff will be held in C anyon at 8 Monday night. (News Photo)

District Playoff Contest Set Monday At Canyon

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The fighting Pampa Harvesters defeated the upset-minded Amarillo Sandies in Harvester fieldhouse, 50-42, and the Borger Bulldogs dropped the Lubbock Westerners, 86-65, Friday night to pull into a deadlock for first place as the district play came to an end.

The two cage quintets will have a single - game sudden-death playoff Monday night at West Texas State College at 8.

The final arrangements were made Saturday morning as the officials of both schools met in Supt. Knox Kinard's office.

The Borger School principal, J. C. Knowles, and Jack Edmondson met and recommended that Canyon be selected as the site and both coaches were relieved as neither would have to play on his opponents' home court.

"We beat them once in Borger and I'd just as soon play them there again," was the comment of one of the Harvesters following their notification of the site selected.

School business officials designated $1 as the admission for adults and student tickets would go for 50 cents.

Pampa business manager, Roy McMillen, will have 500 adult and 500 student tickets on sale for the game at the school business office Monday morning. Sale of the tickets will begin at 9 a.m. A few tickets should also be available at the door.

Coach Tex Hanna and Coach Clifton McNeely were both slightly nervous as the principals re-entered the roo mafter a brief private conversation about where the game would be played. A sigh of relief seemed to issue from each as the decision was announced.

Jack Edmondson flipped a coin and Tex Hanna called it "heads" and won the right to be called the home team.

The Borger five will be wearing white with the Harvesters clad in Green. Borger fans will sit on the north side of the gym.

The regular starting lineups are expected to be in top physical shape for the contest as no member of either team is ill.

The contest will be the second in two years where the Pampa Harvesters were tied with another team for the championship. It will be the fourth time in four years that the Harvesters have either been tied for the crown or won it without a playoff.

Pampa and the Sandies had a sudden death playoff last year on the Amarillo court and the Harvesters took the game. The Sandies and the Harvesters played their final game of the 1953-54 season in Canyon and Pampa won that contest after trailing until the last seven seconds.

Pampa won the district championship in 1952-53 without a playoff game and went on to take the state title. Borger won the district crown the two years prior to that and if the Borger quintet wins the title this year it will give the two teams three each in the last six years.

The starting lineups for the two teams will be the same as their season starters with Tommy Gindorf at center for the Pampa Harvesters. Jerry Gee and Gene Brown will be holding down the forward spots and Dicky Mauldin and Buddly Sharp will get the nod for the guard posts. Jerry Pope will probably see some action against the Borger five as they won't be towering over the Pampa cagers too much.

Borger's starters will be Jerry Hall and Max Miller at the forward spots with Jerry Selfridge at the center. Jerry Gilley and Jim Hines will hold down the guard positions.

Gene Brown and Dicky Mauldin are the top scorers for the Pampa cagers while Jerry Hall and Max Miller are tops for the Bulldogs.

Pampa dropped their first contest with the Bulldogs by a 63-57 score and came back to upset the favored red and white clad Borger five 66-65 in an overtime contest.

Jerry Gee was the high scorer for the Harvesters in the first encounter with Borger with 18 points while Mauldin and Brown were held to 14 and 12 points respectively.

Jerry Hall paced the Borger five in the first contest with Pampa as he dumped in 26 points. His closest rival for scoring honors was Max Miller with 17.

The second game found Dicky Mauldin and Gene Brown scoring higher than any of the Borger players as Mauldin dumped in 22 and Brown sank 19.

Each of the Borger players counted 10 or more points but were unable to count that all important free throw that would have made the difference in the game.

Dicky Mauldin drove in for a layup and Jerry Gilley came in to stop his shot. Each player fouled and the game was tied with a single point try due each squad. Gilley failed to make his and Mauldin came through with the winning point.

Borger is evidently a first half ball club as the Harvesters trailed nine points in the first contest and by eight in the second. The Harvesters, on the otherhand, are known as a second half club since they trailed in each contest at the halftime. Pampa trailed by 10 in the first game and cut that to six before the game ended. They were behind three points at halftime in the second game and came through to win by a single point in an overtime.

This contest will be the last of the 1-AAAA district since the teams will be in a new district next season. If the Harvesters can win it they will have dominated the 1-4A district since its organization. If the Bulldogs come through the two teams will be tied for the honors.

Ted Kroll Shoots 11 Under Par; Takes Lead In Tucson Tourney

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 11—UP—Ted Kroll, veteran Fort Lauderdale, Fla., pro, came out of the pack Saturday to take a one-stroke lead after three rounds of play in the $10,000 Tuscon Open golf tournament. Kroll's 54-hole total was 199 — a brilliant 11 strokes under par.

Kroll shot a 66 Saturday to add to his earlier rounds of 65 and 68. He took the top spot from Gardiner Dickinson of Panama City Beach, Fla., and Stan Leonard of La Chote, Canada, who were tied for the lead after 36 holes. Leonard shot a 70 for a 201 and Dickinson soared to a three-over-par 73 for a three-day total of 204.

Controversial Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., who predicted he would "win the tournament in a breeze" complained of the late afternoon cold after shooting 69 for a 201 total. He said Friday he would shoot no more than a 63 Saturday. The 69 left Bolt tied with Leonard for third place.

In second place behind Kroll at 200 were the sensations of the tournament, young Don January of Abilene, Tex., who is playing in his second major tournament, and Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio. January, who said he felt pressure on every stroke and Finsterwald both carried 68s.

Grouped at 202 in fourth place were Art Wald Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., Lionel Hebert of Erie, Pa., and Paul Harney of Bolton, Mass.

Others still given an outside chance were Gene Littler of Palm Springs, Calif., Jim Turnesa, Spring Valley, N.Y., and Jack Hardin, El Paso, Tex. All had 54 hole scores of 203.

Kroll credited his iron shots and putting for his dash to the front. "I putted extremely well today," he said. "And except for a few shots, I hit my irons much better."

The best 72-hole score of Kroll's career, a 275, was recorded here three years ago.

January, former captain of the North Texas State golf team, said the pressure was terrific during his entire round.

"I'm not used to it like these other boys," he said.

ANXIETY RULES — Coaches Clifton McNeely, right, and Borger's Tex Hanna are seemingly relaxed as they await the decision of where the district play-off game will be played. School principals, Jack Edmondson and J. C. Knowles, recommended Canyon as the site and the coaches and other officials accepted their proposal. The game time is set for 8 p.m. Monday with Borger as the Home Team. (News Photo)

Air Force Lt. Sets Indoor Shotput Mark

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—UP—Lt. Parry O'Brien, former Southern California Olympic champion now in the Air Force established a new world indoor record of 59 feet 9 inches in the shotput Saturday night to open the New York AC games before 10,000 fans.

O'Brien, who also holds the world outdoor record and is the only man in history to flip the 16-pound shot over 60 feet, clipped three and one half inches off his own indoor standard with a heave of 59 feet, 9 inches.

The burly, blond Californian's heave also eclipsed the New York AC games record of 58 feet, 3 1-3 inches, set by Yale's Jim Fuchs in 1951. O'Brien smashed his indoor mark of 59 feet, 5-1 inches on his fourth toss, after being only one inch short on his third attempt.

Harry Bright the slender former Seton Hall star competing for the New York Pioneer Club, took over with two laps to go and won the 1,000-yard run in 2:13.8.

Illinois Tops Ohio State 111 To 64

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 11—UP—Illinois came within two points of setting a Big Ten scoring record Saturday by romping over Robin Freeman and Ohio State, 111-64, before a national television audience.

Illinois, with its sharpest defense of the year, held Freeman, the nation's leading scorer, to 12 points on three field goals and six free throws. It was the lowest scoring game in Freeman's collegiate career.

The Ohio State ace had been averaging 34.3 in seven Big Ten games and 33.9 over the season in 15 games.

It was Illinois' 13th straight victory and seventh against no losses in the Big Ten.

The Illini came within two points of setting the conference record of 113 points which Indiana hit against Purdue Feb. 23, 1953.

Illinois, third ranked team in the nation, never was behind and the score was tied only once at 2-2.

NCAA Television Meeting Is Set

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 11—UP—The television committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association will meet in Chicago Monday through Wednesday to put into final form a plan for the national control of college football telecasting in 1956, Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, announced Saturday.

The 50th annual NCAA convention voted to continue the control of live television of college football next fall and authorized the television committee to prepare a specific plan and submit it to the membership in a mail referendum requiring approval of two-thirds of the member institutions voting.

A tentative timetable established by the committee at its organizational meeting last week calls for the proposed plan to be submitted to the NCAA membership approximately March 1. Byers said the plan, as finally drawn by the committee, will be announced at the time it is mailed to the membership.

Heavyweight Champion Bout Set For Wednesday's Card

Howard Threatt, the president of Pampa Shrine Club, has been successful in getting a Junior Heavyweight Champion match for Wednesday night's appearance at the Top o' Texas Spotsman Club.

It will be between the colorful champion, Gentleman Ed Francis, and Bob Geigel in a 90 minute, two out of three falls affair.

The championship belt will be at stake.

This should be one of the very best matches that has ever been presented here. Bob Geigel, a rough and tough fighter, is very capable of taking care of himself against the best. Geigel held the Southwest Champion belt at one time and he is very anxious to win the world belt. Francis has no desire to lose the belt, so look for a good match.

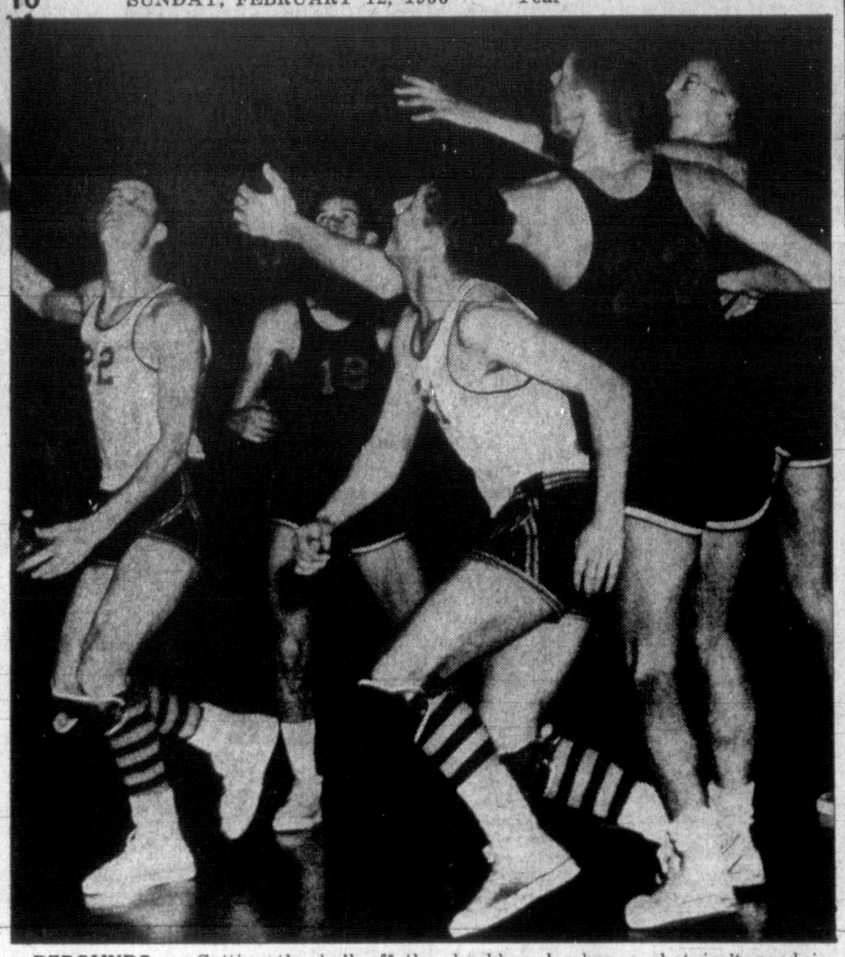

There have been advance tickets sold already, as the Shriners started talking about this match as soon as they heard about it, so if you want to be sure to have a seat, go to the Modern Pharmacy or call 4-6858 for ringside seats.

Mr. Howard Threatt is trying to get Tokio Joe and Dizzy Davis on this card also.

In order to get this match, we have to advance ticket prices to $1.75 for ringside, $1.50 for reserve bleachers $1.25 general admission and 50 cents for children.

All proceeds go to the Pampa Shrine Club Crippled Children Fund.

Texas U. Downs TCU; Out Of SWC Cellar

AUSTIN, Feb. 11—UP—The University of Texas came back in the second half Saturday night to beat Texas Christian 74 to 67 before 7,800 fans at Gregory Gym and pull out of the Southwest Conference cellar.

Texas held only a one-point 34-33 halftime lead after a first period that found the score tied seven times and the lead change hands five times. But on the strength of Raymond Downs 31 points and the rebounding and feeding of Kermit Decker the Longhorns gradually pulled away to their second win in eight SWC games.

TCU now has a 1-7 record and is tied for last place in the conference race with Baylor .

Dick O'Neal, TCU's 6-7 center, lost high point honors to Downs by two points, but his 29 point total was far ahead of Norman Hooten's 17, who was next high for Texas.

O'Neal hurt his ankle with just over two minutes gone in the second half, and was out of action for six minutes. During that time Texas pulled steadily ahead and the closest the Frogs got after that was two points, 67 to 65 with four minutes to go in the game.

Both teams hit on 33 per cent of their shots from the floor, but Texas held a 48-47 advantage in rebounds.

Downs hit on 19 of 21 free throws in piling up high point honors. He hit 18 straight charity tosses before missing a pair in the last minute of the game.

Outside shots by Billy Taylor kept TCU in the game most of the way, and it took a pair of free throws in the final seconds of the first half by Jiggs Buchanan to give Texas their slim intermission margin.

Oilers Spring Training To Start March 18; Games 28

The Pampa Oilers will begin their 1956 baseball season April 17. They will probably open their season with El Paso and will probably be on the road for the first week or two with their home opening date undetermined at the present time.

Manager Grover Seitz has scheduled spring training to start for his pitchers March 18 and remainder of his club will begin workouts March 21.

All contracts have been mailed out to the ball players and several have already been returned and Seitz indicates that with the addition of two veterans to his squad the Oilers should be a better class ball club than they were last season.

Ticket sales for the home games will be on sale shortly. They will be sold at both banks and be several members of the board of directors of the Pampa Oiler Community Baseball Association.

The price of the tickets will have to be raised from the $20 of last season to $35 this year. The association lost money on the cheap books and hopes to offset that by the increase in price.

Tickets at the game will be 85 cents this year and "Prices will not be reduced," confirmed Pinky Branson, president of the POCBA.

Ballinger has been added to the Southwestern Class "B" league, which will make it a 10 team league for the coming season.

The exhibition schedule for the Oilers has been prepared and Southwestern Weatherford Oklahoma College will be the first out of town game scheduled for March 28 and Clovis will play here March 31 and April 1. Weatherford College will then come to Pampa April 4.

The Oilers will travel to Clovis March 7 and 8 and to Plainview 13th. Roswell will be their next opponent for the spring training as the Oilers play there March 14 and 15.

Other games may be scheduled later.

Optimist Fighters Head For State Title Bouts Tuesday

Raul Ramirez and Tommy Lamar will be leaving Pampa Tuesday morning for the state golden glove tournament in Fort Worth. Both boys were selected as alternates for Regional tourney victors.

Kenneth Wood, Optimist regional winner, was unable to get off work to make the auornament and Tommy Lamar was chosen to take his place with the Amarillo regional team.

Jerry Perez, Plainview, was the winner of the 118-pound open region championship and due to illness in his family he will be unable to make the trip. Ramirez was selected to take his place.

Raul Ramirez, known by most people as "Rabbit", is 18 years of age, and stands 5'5" and weighs 118. He has been a boxer for six years and has won 52 of his 71 fights.

Ramirez has been regional high school champion one time and has been runnerup twice. He has won district championships five times and has been runnerup four years.

Ramirez is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Ramirez, 310 W. Atchison and is a Junior at Pampa High School.

Lamar has been fighting for several years and has won all of his 65 fights with the exception of three this year.

The 135-pound senior at Pampa High is in his first year of open fighting and lost only to Kenneth Wood, regional champion, and Scooter Darden.

"Tommy gave me the toughest fight I ever fought," said Darden, following the Borger district tournament.

Wood defeated Lamar in the Pampa tournament and again in the regional matches.

The boys will be handled by Marian Guana, Amarillo Boxing Club coach, and will be two of the eight fighters representing the Amarillo open team.

Others fighting for Amarillo in the State finals will be LeRoy Hernandez, 112; Tom Crump, 126; Bill McFarland, 147; Merl Johnson, 160; Carroll Stafford, lightheavy; and Herman Betke in the heavyweight division.

World Bids 'Farewell' To Connie Mack

PHILADELPHIA — UP — Baseball said "farewell" to Connie Mack Saturday.

Amid the quiet tears of family members, baseball men and throngs of old personal frields, the 93-year-old "grand old man of baseball" made his last earthly journey.

His body was taken from the Oliver Bair Funeral Home to St. Bridget's, his parish church in the East Falls section of the city, for a solemn requiem mass before being entombed in the family mausoleum at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Among the honorary pallbearers were baseball executives and government officials, many of whom paid their final respects at a crowded viewing Friday night. Thousands of mourners filed silently past the bier of the man whose managerial deeds made history in the American League.

Among them were major league club owners, ballplayers young and old, youngsters who never saw Connie's great teams, society matrons, nuns, police, firemen, and Archbishop John F. O'Hara of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Archdiocese.

Among them were many of the stars of Connie's teams—including J. Franklin (Home Run) Baker, Rube Walberg, Joe Boley, George (Mule) Haas, Edmund (Bing) Miller, and still-active Bobby Shantz, one of the last of Connie's stars. And baseball officials like General Manager Bill DeWitt of the New York Yankees. And Jimmy Dykes, the man who finally succeeded Connie as A's manager in 1951.

Among the thousands of condolences was a telegram from President Eisenhower.

Baaks of Flowers

Mack's body lay in a bronze, velvet-lined casket placed among banks of ferns and lilies. The funeral parlor was filled with scores of floral displays bearing cards from the American and National Leagues, the individual teams, government officials, leading figures from all parts of the sports world, and from old friends of the Mack family.

The tall, slender member of baseball's "Hall of Fame" died Wednesday afternoon, with his advanced years and the strain of a broken hip suffered in a fall at his home last Oct. 1 contributing to his general decline.

The baseball patriarch died 15 months after his beloved Philadelphia Athletics were sold and moved to Kansas City.

For 50 years, from 1901 through 1950, Mack was the only manager the Athletics had. His teams won nine American League pennants and six world championships.

N. Carolina Cage Star Is Suspended

RALEIGH, N.C. —UP— Basketball star Cliff Hafer left North Carolina State College Saturday on a one-semester suspension for violation of the student honor code.

A review board Friday night upheld the action of the all-student judicial committee which "tried" Hafer and ordered the suspension. Dr. Carey H. Bostian, chancellor of the college, said the review board found "no error in the proceedings of the judicial committee and no new evidence."

The six-foot, five-inch star junior forward from Middletown, Ohio, will be allowed to return to school for the summer session if he wishes. If he returns to school he will be eligible for basketball next season.

The review board had no authority to set aside the judicial committee's verdict. It could have either recommended a new hearing or upheld the decision.

The judicial committee voted, 8-1, Wednesday night to find Hafer guilty of preparing a make-up examination at an unauthorized time and place. Hafer had missed the mid-term examination because of a basketball trip to South Carolina and Clemson.

After returning, it was learned, Hafer went to the professor's office to take the examination. When he did not find the professor in his office after several calls, he prepared the exam in the office and left the examination book on the professor's desk.

Seven will be on the East team and seven on the West. Three more non-Olympic players will be selected to round out the 10-man personnel for each team.

The Olympic trials will be in Kansas City on April 2-4 involving the 14 collegians on one team, a military service team and two AAU teams with the winner to represent the U.S. in the Melbourne games next December.

Walker Gives Final 'No' To Alma Mater

DALLAS —UP— Doak Walker squelched any hopes his alma mater may have had of luring him back into football togs as a coach Friday by giving Southern Methodist a final "no" to an offer that he help coach the Mustangs.

Walker was originally offered the job of head backfield coach upon the resignation of Bo Hagen last month to go to Rice Institute. Then SMU hired Henry Stram of Purdue for the task when Walker turned down a full-time job.

Walker's final refusal of a part-time position Friday was made because "he just doesn't have the time to work with us," said head Coach Woody Woodard. The former SMU All-American retired from professional football this fall after six years with the Detroit Lions.

Shamrock's record for the year is 10 wins against 12 losses. Coach John Bond feels that the team will better its record next year since only one member will graduate this spring.

The roster includes: Ed Francis, captain of the team who is a senior student and plays forward; Donald Wayne Burkhalter, jr., f; Donald Davis, jr. c.; Gaston Tarbet jr. g.; Troy Mac Jolly, jr. g.; Jim Putnum, sophomore, g.; Curtis Wyatt, jr. g.; Billy Turnbow, freshman, g.; Bobby McPherson, soph. f.; Frank Weatherby, jr. f.; orc.; and Jim Tom Neely, jr. f.; Tim Tindall, a junior, has just been added to the team from the "B" squad and will travel to Hereford. Runner up in the district and the only major threat to Blackhawks supremacy will be the Dumas team according to records of performance this season.

PANHANDLE OUTDOORS

By S. V. WHITEHORN

There has been much said about habitat improvement for the wildlife here in the Panhandle but not nearly so much done about the situation. As has been said many times, the carrying capacity of the bob white quail range in Top o' Texas area can easily be doubled or tripled. But up to now I have not seen any appreciable amount of work performed on the farms and ranches in the Panhandle.

Hunters and outdoor sportsmen will keep from one to a dozen bird dogs the year round, spend days in the field with them in training, not to count driving a hundred miles or so in order to enjoy a good day's hunt, but usually they don't spend one tenth the time or money towards improving the situation of the upland game birds, so that successful hunts for the future will be insured.

This isn't the fault of the hunter. It is rather a fact that just exists. It might as well be acknowledged. What to do about the situation and how to go about it is one of the larger problems.

There are always several local authorities that can tell you exactly what and how to get things done but whether or not the advice is worthwhile is worth considering. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent during the last 50 years doing research on habitat improvement and many valuable ideas have been discovered.

Outstanding Biologist

The Texas Game Dept. and the outdoor sportsmen of the Panhandle have one of the most outstanding wildlife biologists in the Southwest stationed at Canadian. This is A. S. Jackson. Mr. Jackson has studied the habitats, trends, and behavior of these game birds for more than 25 years. He has lived in the field with this specie, checked them from mating season on through to maturity and then back to mating season through the years.

All of this careful study has not been in vain. The facts that have been uncovered are at your disposal as well as a vast amount of technical recommendations. Part of this knowledge can be passed on to you through your local game warden. The Panhandle game wardens had a short course on habitat improvement and had the pleasure to study under Mr. Jackson last summer.

What we think is needed for the improvement of the wildlife plight is for groups or individuals to team up with cooperative landowners and put some of the correct practices into effect. The Texas Game Dept. in your area will give you its full cooperation if you have any ideas toward putting into effect some corrective practices.

Field Trials

According to P. H. Harrison, Stinnett, and Myron Blackburn, Canadian, the Panhandle Birddog Assn. will stage its semi-annual field trials near Canadian the second week end in March, at the State Game Management area.

This area is fast becoming one of the outstanding field trial grounds in the Southwest. One of the main reasons being that there are birds there. We have heard of several noted trials that have been conducted where there weren't over a few dozen birds moved during the entire trial. You can easily understand and that a birddog man simply doesn't have a chance to show his canine if the range is dry of game.

This doesn't happen at Canadian. Last fall, in three days of running, there were over 1,000 bobwhite quail moved. Conditions weren't ideal but, nevertheless, the birds were on the range. It is not a pleasant occasion when a hunter will drive several hundred miles, then run his favorite bird-finder on a dry course.

The Panhandle trials will draw handlers from all parts of the country. Dr. Scales, from as far south as Kingsville, will probably be up to display his group of English setters. One prominent physician (we can't recall his name at the moment) from Denver will be on hand to receive his share of the prizes. Many of the contestants are from Oklahoma. One of the club members remarked last fall "if it wasn't for the boys from Oklahoma, we wouldn't have a trial."

With the winter snow falling as it has, we will, in all probability, have the No. 1 trial of the South this March.

Predator Control

Predator control plays an important part in any game management program. I have, the last few weeks, placed a few steel traps in some of the heavy game areas and the results have been good. Note five bobcats that were recently taken of the turkey range. To date the traps have produced a total of eight cats plus some skunks, 'coons and other predators, however, not a coyote.

The traps set last week near the deer kill, mentioned in last week's column, haven't produced. Seems as if coyotes are the most difficult of the predators in this area to catch.

South's Fight Against Racial Integration Just Beginning

EDITORS NOTE: The first major violence in the Deep South over efforts to integrate the races in education has erupted at a major state university, not in the public grade schools which were covered by the U. S. Supreme Court's sweeping segregation ban of 1954. Why did this happen ca-loosa? This traces the und of the crisis.

By JAMES W. RUSSELL

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 11—UP—A fight to maintain strict racial segregation in this industrialized university city may have just begun with the student riots over the admission of Autherine Lucy as the University of Alabama's first Negro student.

Strong pro - segregation feeling which lay largely dormant until the celebrated Lucy case aroused it, has spread like wildfire in this city which federal cavalry literally burned during the Civil War.

The case is talked about at length in downtown barber shops and in campus fraternity houses; at drug store soda fountains and in university lecture halls.

Since the wave of demonstrations of the past week, most of the students appear to have adopted a solemn "no violence" pledge.

"Riots are not helping the situation," said Louis Rawls, a pre-law student from Birmingham.

Mostly Outsiders

"Most of the students were just spectators, not participants," said Gerald Waddell, a freshmen from Monroe, La., in describing the outbreaks of violence.

"There were shouts of 'lynch her' and 'kill her'," said Prof. C. E. Bounds, head of the department of journalism, "but they came mainly from outsiders, not students."

Among some segments of Tuscaloosa's 56,000 population, that feeling still persists. A tourist court manager and a service station manager, in separate comments, spoke of "killing" Autherine Lucy.

What is behind it all? Why should Tuscaloosa suddenly be the site of anti-Negro demonstrations when racial integration has been quietly taking effect on a gradual basis in a number of southern colleges and universities?

The city itself is more than a college town. It is typical of the growing industrial south, expanding with the help of northern industry.

Its name derives from an Indian chieftain, Tuskaloosa and the Black Warrior River which runs along the city's edge. In the language of the Creek Indians, "Tuska" meant warrior, "Lusa" meant black.

Some 7,000 Students

Rubber, coal, chemicals, oil refining, and paper are in Tuscaloosa's industrial picture, employing some 8,500 workers. The university student body numbers about 7,000.

Its past has been turbulent. Soon after the little village of Black Warrior became the city of Tuscaloosa, it was the capital of Alabama. Severe storms in 1842 and 1847 wrecked many of the city's buildings and the capital moved to its present location at Montgomery. But its present has been serene. There are no white citizens councils here, nor organized segregationists.

The Civil War left a violent mark on the city, particularly the university, which was burned and pillaged by federal troops in 1865. But the school rebuilt and reopened in 1869 and attained a ranking among the South's foremost educational institutions by the time the racial riots erupted last weekend.

Student leaders and faculty members alike were shocked by the wild protests and egg-throwing touched off by the admission of the Negro student.

"Has our campus become the physical battlefield for those wishing segregation and those wanting desegregation?" asked the student weekly newspaper, the Crimson-White.

Pleads for Order

The newspaper took no stand on the segregation versus desegregation issue, but pleaded for order, as have done numerous student groups in recent days.

"The majority of students are pro-segregation and anti-violence," said Graham Harper, an engineering student from Birmingham.

Harper — as well as several other students questioned—said many students doubted that Miss Lucy's motive was to gain an adequate education. They thought she only wanted to be a test case.

A spot survey of University of Alabama students shows a variety [illegible] from that of a woman art major, a native of Alabama, who said "they should let Autherine in," to that of a commerce student who remarked: "It's going to start all over again if she comes back."

Even among the moderates, that latter opinion strongly prevails despite all the talk of non-violence. The students, by and large, and many townspeople think the current court-declared truce in the case is pust a lull before another storm.

Peg's youngsters were quite thrilled over it all . . . it's probably the most snow they've ever seen at one time . . . and the vacation from school was quite a lark . . . for them . . . THIS IS THE BIRTHDAY of Abraham Lincoln . . . one of America's truly great men . . it might be nice to pause sometime today in tribute to his memory . . . this makes me think of the wonderful book . . .can't remember the author, but its title is "Prince of Players" . . . it's a biography of Edwin Booth . . . brother of John Wilkes Booth . . . part of it deals with the event and influences that led up to John Wilkes Booth's assassination of Lincoln . . . and its effect on the lives of the Booth family . . . this week also brings Valentine's Day . . . this makes Peg think of one of her favorite poems . . . Elizabeth Barrett Browning's "Sonnet to the Portuguese" . . . couldn't put my finger on a copy right away . . . but the first lines are very appropriate for Valentine's Day . . . "How do I love thee? Let me count the ways." . . you husbands who have been taking your wives for granted all these years, might stop Tuesday and count the ways" . . and vice versa . . . girls, let's not forget that "light of our lives" either . . . sentimentality may be oldfashioned . . . and ridiculed by some . . . but it has its place . . . and the world would be a much worse place without it.

THE VALENTINE PARTY at the Country Club not too long ago was really lovely . . . it was planned by the Ed Dunigans . . . the Lynn Boyds . . . and the Roy McKernans . . . all the decorations were outstanding . . . but Peg liked the hall arrangement best . . . a huge heart formed from sweetheart roses . . . had a lot of fun singing . . . with Larry Jarrett at the piano . . . just "oldies" . . . none of these new-fangled tunes . . . among the many there were Dorothy and Fred Neslage . . . Rilla and Larry Jarret . . . Frank and Mildred Smith . . . Lorene Locke . . . Teed and Doc Hicks . . . Alice and Howard Federer . . . Louise and Floyd Imel . . . Doris and Bob Johnson . . . Ruth and Harold Meador . . . Norma and Gene Fatheree . . Audrey and Doc Schwartz . . Margaret an dAubrey Steele. . Louise and Jack McCrery . . . Lulu and Ray Kuhn . . . DO YOU REMEMBBER Capt. Richard S. McCutchen, who won $64,000 on that wonderful television show by answering questions about cooking? . . . well not too long ago he gave some of his recipes in an article in t national magazine . . here's one of them . . . Banana Flambe . . . which sounds simple . . . and oh, so good

BANANA FLAMBE

6 ripe bananas
sugar
butter
dark rum

Split each banana lengthwise, dot with sweet butter and sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar, place on a cooky sheet or in a shallow cake pan and put beneath a medium broiler flame to brown. When golden, remove from the pan and arrange on a heated platter or in a chafing dish, spooning over them all the butter and juices. At the table pour in half a cup of warmed rum, set aflame with a match and ladle the flaming nectar over each banana.

THE BETA SIGMA PHI sweetheart dance Thursday night was a success . . . quite a crowd there to prove it . . . the two sweethearts looked so nice . . . Grace Henry really looked in the Valentine mood in her red ballerina - length gown which went so well with her brunette hair . . . Nicki Lyon had on a short print formal . . . They were presented by Viola Jordan . . . and the pretty flowered crowns were placed on by their husbands . . . Others Peg spied were Bev Fancher looking stunning in a blue sheath . . . and her blond hair looked especially nice . . . Bert Luther was chic in a black cocktail dress . . . Thelma Bray and her twin sister, Mrs. Kenneth Lard, were there . . . and they sure do look alike . . . Betty Tom Riddle was so attractive in pink . . . and Tommie Bell had on a gorgeous white formal with a red corsage . . . It certainly was nice . . . really got you in the Valentine mood . . . as did Betty Lou Hogsett's vocal numbers . . . cute little Ramona Hudgins played appropriate dinner music on the organ, adding to the party mood.

WELL THAT'S ALL. Peg knows for this week . . . now don't forget that one-and-only on Valentine's day!

Sentimentally yours,

Council Of Clubs Plans Tea In March; Is Given Vacuum Cleaner By SS Class

Committees and their chairmen were announced for the "greenback" tea to be held in March by the Council of Clubs to raise money for the furniture fund.

Those chosen were Mrs. H. H. Butler of Varietas Club and Mrs. Julian Key of Parent Education Club, co-chairmen of the decoration committee to be assisted by the Dale Carnegie Club; Mrs. J. B. Maguire Jr. of Twentieth Century Cotillion and Mrs. Harold Wright of El Progresso, co-chairmen of the refreshment committee, to be assisted by Twentieth Century Culture, Beta Sigma Phi, Altrusa Club, Civic Culture Club, Epsilon Sigma Alpha, Delta Kappa Gamma and Pampa Art Club.

Other committees included Treble Clef Club, entertainment; Mrs. Nicholas Kadingo of AAUW, publicity chairman, to be assisted by Miss Jean Chisholm of Beta Gamma Kappa, and Mrs. F. M. Culberson of Twentieth Century Club serving chairman to be assited by B& PW Club, VFW Auxiliary, Kappa Kappa Iota and American Legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Jullian Key, council president, announced the committee chairmen will meet at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the City Club Room, to make plans for the tea.

R. L. Edmondson, representing the Everyman's Bible Class which meets in the club room, presented the Council with a vacuum cleaner as a gift from the class. He congratulated the group on its rededicating of the club room and expressed the class's appreciation.

During the business session, Mrs. Key announced the B&PW Club had authorized the Council to sell the old furniture in the club room for which the council received $53.

Mrs. Clifton McNeely of the Beta Sigma Phi city council spoke to the group on the selection of the Women-of-the-Year, who will be honored at a tea in April. She asked each club in the Council to submit the name of a woman to be a candidate for the women-of-the-year title. The list will be compiled by a BSP committee and the final vote will be taken in the three local BSP chapters.

She stated a nominee must be a resident of Pampa and should have been an "outstanding woman during the past year." She asked each club to list their candidate's qualifications for the title, and pointed out that no one previously chosen should be nominated. She asked the clubs to turn in the name of their nominees to Mrs. Joe Fischer before March 1, adding that the candidate need not be a member of the club doing the nominating.

Mrs. Bert Arney, council representative to the YMCA survey committee, reported she will contact the president of each club to find out its activities for Pampa youth. She explained the survey is aimed at coordinating the various youth activities.

Mrs. Hattie Holt told the group of the B&PW guest-day program, a book review by Mrs. Otis Nace, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the City Club Room.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Six types of married people who fail their mates are listed in the current Redbook Here's how they are compiled by the University of Chicago's Family Study Center:

The interpreters who always know how their mates feel about everything; the wives who say, "Ed just hates to go out nights, don't you, dear?"

But they don't limit this domination to Ed. They're also the parents who say, "Joan can't stand the brawls the young crowd is giving at the club, can you, dear?" meaning, "Better not want to, if you know what's good for you my girl."

The romantics who hide almost bank ignorance o feach other behind display of baby talk, public kissing and the protest, "We have the Ideal Marriage."

But as parents, these people know nothing about their children either.

The squelchers who smack you down before somebody you want to like you with some devastating criticism, like, "Oh, I didn't know you read a book, honey."

But your youngsters don't escape the squelcher's needle any more than you do. He's the father who sneers, "If your grandmother had seen you crying over that cut last night, she wouldn't think you were such a big boy."

The ammunition-collectors who ask, "Can you imagine a grown man wanting to chase a little ball around a field?" —and having betrayed you into innocent comment, use what you've said to reinforce attact on their mates' favorite pastime or hobby.

But the wives who ask this question are, sure as little apples, going to be the mothers who also ask, "What do you think of a 12-year-old girl who still expects somebody else to make her bed?"

The women-haters who laugh off all their wives' opinions as too feminine and flighty to be taken seriously but who get very serious indeed if you question their male superiority.

But the men who laugh off women's opinions as too feminine to matter also laugh off children's as too childish to matter—and are the fathers who scoff, "Oh, so you've picked your political candidate, have you? Ha, ha, ha ha."

The self-sacrificers who get everything they want by keeping their spouses under perpetual obligation for "all that I've done for you."

TENSE MOMENT — A dramatic moment in the senior class play comes when Roger McWaters, left, playing Dr. Sanderson, is reprimanded by Dr. Chumley, portrayed by Dan Teed, right, for admitting Elwood Dowd's sister, Veta, for psychiatric treatment instead of Dowd. Veta was bringing Dowd to the sanitarium of which Dr. Chumley is head psychiatrist, because Dowd insists on the authenticity of his friend, Harvey, an invisible six-foot rabbit. (News photo)

Senior Class Play, "Harvey," Slated For Presentation Feb. 20 And 21

Fourteen members of the Pampa High School senior class will complete rehearsals Feb. 20 for "Harvey," their class play. Written by Mary Chase, "Harvey" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1945 and has been successfully presented on Broadway and on tour.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. Feb. 20, and 21 in the high school auditorium. Tickets being sold by class members, are 75 cents for adults and 30 cents for students.

The play concerns an eccentric gentleman, Elwood P. Dowd, played by Ted Swindle, who has an imaginary six-foot white rabbit, Harvey, for a companion.

Doud's sister, Veta, played by Myrna Montgomery, becomes irritated by the embarrassing situations Harvey causes for her and her daughter, Myrtle, and tries to install Dowd in a sanitarium. The doctor at the sanitarium confuses the case and locks up Veta instead.

This throws the situation into chaos which is sparked by a misguided love affair between the doctor, Roger McWaters, and a nurse, Sally Cahill.

Myrtle, played by Nickie Lewter, keeps the humor alive with her attraction to Wilson, a sanitarium attendant, played by Melvin Romaine.

"Cold beer and a cottage in the middle of beautiful green maple trees" is Dr. Chumley's idea of complete bliss. Dr. Chumley, the head psychiatrist at the sanitarium who finds himself believing in Harvey, is portrayed by Don Teed. Sheila Chisholm plays the part of the doctor's wife, a cheerful person who thinks Mr. Dowd is "perfectly charming."

Others in the cast are Margaret Miller playing Miss Johnson, the maid; Duggan Smith, a cab driver who believes crazy people are much nicer than ordinary human beings; Lucy Jo Neely as Mrs. Chauvenet, a society lady who is introduced to the invisible Harvey; and Larry Cox as Judge Gaffney.

Miss Helen Schafer is director of the play and Carol Henry, senior, acts as assistant director.

Dale Largent is stage manager; Ronnie James is in charge of lights, and Frank Outhier manages sound effects.

Lawanna Andrews, Carolyn Miller and Helen Steward are in charge of advertising, and Dixie Sue Rhoades and Cynthia Cantrell arranged an assembly on the play.

Jowannah English and members of the Thespian Society will be in charge of makeup, and hand properties will be managed by Carol Carnes, June Smith and Carole Miller. Alvin Dauer, Skipper Bogard and Wayne Smith are in charge of stage properties.

Manners Make Friends

Mothers are often better about teaching their daughters to write thank - you notes than they are about teaching their sons that gifts, courtesies and hospitality should be acknowledged with thanks. Yet there is nothing sissy about a thank-you note.

It is just as important for a boy to know the courtesies expected of a gentleman as for a girl to know what is expected of a "lady."

COOK'S NOOK

Butterscotch Cottage Pudding Called Uncomplicated Dessert

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

"Take it easy" has delicious meaning in the home of Mrs. Irma Chilcote of La Jolla, California. A widow with four children, she holds a job and keeps her family well fed and happy. "Uncomplicated dishes, easy to prepare" is her rule.

One of her favorite desserts is made with a new instant butterscotch cake mix. It is served with a tangy lemon sauce.

Butterscotch Cottage Pudding

One package instant butterscotch cake mix, 1 cup water, 2 eggs unbeaten, 3/4 cup raisins chopped, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind.

Empty cake mix into bowl. Add remaining ingredients. Beat 3 minutes until smooth and creamy. Pour batter into 13x9x2-inch pan, which has been lined on bottom with paper. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Serve cake either warm or cool with hot Lemon Sauce.

Special Lemon Sauce

Combine 2-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch and 1/8 teaspoon salt in saucepan; mix well. Add one cup boiling water gradually, stirring constantly. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Boil 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Note: This amount of Lemon Sauce is enough for 6 to 8 servings.

A hot sandwich of sausage and apples is a satisfying luncheon entree that's quick and easy to prepare. Shape sausage meat into patties about ¼ inch thick. Fry and remove from pan but keep hot. Core unpeeled red Washington Winesap apples and cut in thick slices. Saute apple slices in a little sausage fat. Place a sausage patty and a slice of apple on buttered toast. If desired, garnish with bacan curls and serve with cole slaw.

Beef is way up in the list of abundant foods for February. To get the best value, it's important to learn how to purchase it. The United States Department of Agriculure gives the following advice—Even the most inexperienced homemaker can select food quality meat by using the federal grade stamp as a guide.

Beef of the higher grades has a high proportion of meat to bone. The lean is firm, fine-textured, and bright red in color. It is well marbled with fat. The bones are red and porous.

U. S. Prime and U. S. Choice are tho top grades. Prime meat comes from young, well-fed, beef-type cattles. The meat is juicy, tender, and flavorful. But actually, beef that is well marbled is very juicy and rich tasting.

Meats graded U. S. Choice are of high quality but have less fat than Prime cuts. For that reason, Choice grade is often preferred.

Beef of Good grades will please those who want beef with little fat. Although these cuts lack the juicfness of the higher grades with more fat, the relative tenderness and high proportion of lean to fat makes them the preference of many people.

Beef Birds (5-6 servings)

Two pounds beef round steak, ½ cup chopped celery and leaves 1 onion chopped 4 tablespoons fat, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste, herb seasoning, if desired.

Use round steak about ½-inch thick. Cut it into strips 2 to 3-inches wide, about 4-inches long. Pound to flatten and help make more tender. For stuffing: cook celery and onion in 2 tablsepoons of the fat for a few minutes, add bread crumbs and seasonings, mix thoroughly. Put stuffing on each strip of meat, roll, and skewer or tie in place. In the remaining 2 tablespoons of fat, brown the birds slowly on all sides then cover and cook until tender in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) — allow about 1½ hours. Or finish the cooking on top of the stove. Serve the pan drippings with meat.

State Department School Coaches Wives Of Diplomats Who Are Going Overseas

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When the wife of an American diplomat is kissed on the hand by a high and maybe handsome official of a foreign country, it's not because she's atractive.

It's because her husband represents one of the two most powerful nations in the world.

Disillusioning as this may be, it's how Harold B. Hoskins, Director of the State Department's Foreign Service Institute, likes to illustrate the important position a diplomat's wife holds today.

She's a gal who's in a position to play a vital part in the destiny of the nation. Sometimes her role is even more importat than her husbad's.

The question is, can she come up to this responsibility?

As head of the FSI, Harold Hoskins is one man who is determined to equip wives of U.S. officials abroad to better handle their share of foreign policy.

He's now launching an extensive training program for these women. It's part of a high-level policy by the State Department to give the distaff side more recognition.

"We look upon the husband and wife as a team," says Hoskins. "And now we're giving the other half of them more emphasis. Our approach is coldblooded. We want to train wives so they can assist their husbands as much as possible."

As a result, a two-week course called "Foreign Service Orientation for Wives" is just getting under way at the Institute. The course will be given every month.

With their husbands, and other persons headed overseas for the first time, wives attend morig and afternoon sessions. The skull work ranges from language training to briefings on the latest Communist strategy.

The course of greatest interest to the women, however, is called "Social Usage." It answers many strictly feminine questions.

Its instructor is Mrs. M. W. Blake who has been a foreign Service wife for 16 years in nine countries. Before his death last winter, her husband was General at Dakar, French West Africa.

"A lot of wives are natually hesitant about pulling up roots and going abroad," explains attractive Mrs. Blake. "I try to give them guidance and advice based on my own experience."

Entertaining is one of the things that most worries women leaving the U. S. for the first time. They want to know what is expected of them.

"No matter who you entertain, it's usually official," says Mrs. Blake. "You always have to remember you're a representative of the U. S. Learning, or at least attempting to learn, the local language is very important. Your guests appreciate the effort. And it certainly makes it easier to direct servants."

She also suggests wives should try to lean names by some system. She used to remember a minimum of two names at a party and then write them down afterwards.

Another question that arises is what kinds of clothes to take abroad.

"Don't make the mistake of leaving clothes behind that you feel are too old or out of style," she says. "You'll be seen by an entirely new group of people, and you can always have a local dressmaker bring you up-to-date."

As a rule-of-thumb, she also advises dressing conservatively. Women should be careful not to offend local customs by wearing slacks or shorts in the wrong places.

Other problems Mrs. Blake discusses are introductions, seating arrangements, social calls, cooking, and care of children, to mention a few.

Most Girls, Even Models, Wear Modest Bathing Suits, Declares Noted Designer

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK — UP — A week in Manhattan:

Anybody who thinks American girls are immodest in revealing too much of their figures just doesn't know bathing beauties, a California expert said on a visit here this week.

"Don't judge the average girl by the few sensation hunters," said Rose Marie Reid, a red-haired former swimmer who now designs 90 bathing suits each summer season and manufactures, 5,000 a day the year around.

Next summer's 90 include only one two-piece suit, which Mrs. Reid says should be worn only by women with "a small rib cage." The rest are modest one-piece suits, firmly constructed to stay up at the top and down at the hip.

Even Models Want Covered

"Even models whose bodies are so beautiful they can wear almost nothing and look lovely want to be covered when they go to the beach," Mrs. Reid said.

"From the beginning I said the Bikini would never go here, and it didn't. American women are too modest."

Mrs. Reid adopted certain evening dress principles when she began designing bathing suits, because she didn't think women should feel self conscious at the beach.

"The severe lines of the old bathing suits required a perfect figure to look good," she said. "I decided women are the least self conscious when they wear an evening dress—so I used that as my starting point."

Now she sprinkles sequins on suits (one next summer's suit has 5,000 irridescent pink sequins), embroiders them and molds the tops with evening-dress type drapes.

Plastic Rocks for Homes

A Brooklyn firm run by two ex-GI's is about ready to sell plastic rocks to the nation's rock-less homeowners.

They come in three delicious colors—pink, blue and white — and cost approximately $3 for a set of 10.

"It was just an idea we got one day when we were trying to think up some new products," Harold Schwartz, a former Air Force radio operator, explained. He and another Army buddy set up the Eagle Roll Leaf Stamping Co., in Brooklyn after World War II with a combined investment of $1,500. Until now they have made mostly indoor items, such as coasters and ash trays.

The first major New York store to advertise the rocks this week reported a surprising number of orders. The plastic rocks, five and one-half inches across, are mounted on two-inch prongs to anchor them into the ground.

Brides can burn toast in style now. The Toastmaster Co. just announced a 24-carat gold-plated toaster which will be in stores later this year for approximately $60. It marks the 30th anniversary of the pop-up toaster.

A child's tiny puffed sleeve needn't be ironed. Smoth it around a burnt-out lightbulb of the right size when it's damp. Let it dry that way — puffy and pretty.

BSP Sweethearts Are Presented At Banquet And Dance

The Beta Sigma Phi Sweetheart Dance, presented by the three local chapters, was held recently in the Moose Lodge, with a dinner preceding the dance.

Highlight of the banquet program was the presentation of the sweethearts, who were Mrs. Norman Henry of the Upsilon chapter and Mrs. Dwaine Lyon of the Rho Eta chapter. They were presented by Mrs. Rufe Jordan. A flowered crown was placed on the head of each sweetheart by her husband.

Kay Fancher served as master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Bill Bridges, president of the exemplar chapter, welcomed the guests. Ken Huey gave the response.

Miss Ramona Hudgins provided dinner music on the organ and Miss Betty Lou Hogsett presented sevearl vocal selections.

For the banquet, the tables were covered with white cloths centered with heart-shaped arrangements of red and white carnations. Other decorations included red tapers in heart-shaped holders. Placecards were miniature red hats decorated with doilies and ribbon, with the name of each person inscribed on the ribbon.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ken Lard of Amarillo, brother-in-law and twin sister of Mrs. Thelma Bray of the Upsilon chapter.

Music for the dance was provided by the Mello-Aires. Abou 65 persons attended the event.

GRACE FRIEND

Grace Friend

My husband and I have several bills. Our payments do not come on the same date of the month and pay day for some of the payments comes too late. I want him to go to the bank and see if we can borrow the money to pay all of the bills. Then we would only have to pay the bank.

I have my rings and they are good rings, and I have a good pin that I think we could get money on. Now my husband doesn't think we can borrow money at the bank on my rings and while he asks friends if they think we can, he will not, and he won't let me ask at the bank.

Will you please tell me if it is possible for a person to borrow money on rings if the rings are really good. If possible tell me just how I should handle this if it can be done.

M. H.

Dear M. H.

Some banks will lend money on jewelry and some won't. The only way to find out whether your bank will is to take the jewelry in and ask your banker. Chances are that you can get the loan if the banker knows you and the jewelry is of value.

Often times people who have good jobs and have been employed for some time at one place can borrow money by having their employer sign their note. Ask your banker about such an arrangement also.

NEEDS HELP

Dear Grace Friend

I read your column every day and seeing you have seemed to help others I hope you might print my letter. My problem is that I need some middle aged lady who would like to come to live in my home permanently and be Mom to my husband and me and granny to my baby.

We are a young couple with a 17 months old baby and I am expecting another in April. The doctors have reason to believe that I have T. B. of the skin which may mean I shall have to go into a hospital for some time.

I have no one with whom I can leave my child and I will have to have someone to care for the new baby when it arrives as I won't be able to keep it at the hospital.

We can't afford to hire someone as our first child was born with a harelip and cleft palate and has to have operations at intervals which are quite expensive.

We can offer room and board and a small salary which might increase as we can afford it. We are Christians and my husband is a called minister but doesn't have his own church yet.

Hoping someone will be interested and thanking you for your time.

Mrs. D.G.

Creole Magic Flavors Foods

THE gaiety of the Mardi Gras season is whirling this way and serves as a grand reminder that famous New Orleans recipes can put an indefinable deliciousness into daily meals.

Culinary gems from the French Quarter are the genius of those people of French or Spanish descent, the Creoles. Dishes of these nationalities, so famous for their table delicacies, were spiced by African cooks with secretive, mystifying seasonings.

When Negro Mammies added their tropical touch, they put New Orleans cooking on a glittering stage, far above any other Creole cooking in the world. Specialties of the Bayou are still undergoing changes due to pressures of modern times and influences of other nationalities. But Creole sparkle will compliment any dish . . . and to prove it, here is Italian spaghetti given the Louisiana touch.

Creole Chicken Spaghetti

1 cup bread cubes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
½ medium green pepper, sliced
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
1 can (5-ounce size) boned chicken
1¼ cups cooked thin spaghetti (¼ pound uncooked)
1 cup cubed process cheese

Brown bread cubes in butter; remove from pan and save. Add onion and green pepper; cook until brown. Stir in soup, chicken, spaghetti and cheese; simmer until cheese is melted and flavors blend. Top with browned bread cubes. 4 servings.

Stuffed vegetables are typical of Creole gastronomy and that includes Stuffed Green Peppers. To prepare them, first wash and core peppers; remove seeds. Simmer together in butter . . . whole kernel corn, and chopped pimiento. Salt and pepper to taste. Stuff green peppers with corn and bake until tender. Creole Baked Bananas are a unique New Orleans specialty. They originated as a quick substitute for pie. To make them, roll peeled whole bananas in sugar and cinnamon. Wrap them individually in pie crust. Bake at 450° F. until pastry is brown.

If you're ready to move Baby from the crib to a youth bed, the first step is to give him a real made-up bed in his crib. Get a fitted top sheet and a good-sized blanket and let him learn how to sleep under the covers without shifting, end to end

Mothers who choose to allow their Babies to toilet train themselves late, find it difficult to locate snap-crotch overalls in the larger sizes. It is possible to cut closed trousers open and install snaps with a kit.

Best carrier for Baby's diapers, toys, plastic bag, eating dish, cup, spoon, blankets and all the whatnots for an all-day visit is a wicker or raffia basket. This has the good quality of ventilation. It is also light and flexible.

THEY TASTE BETTER to children if the shape matches the holiday. Hearty chocolate flavoring doesn't hurt, either.

Romanian Ghivetch Requires Artful Use Of Herbs, Many Types Of Vegetables

Ghivetch is made from all the vegetables the Romanian woman can find. With an artful use of herbs she has become famous for this tempting and delectable vegetable dish. The artistry with herbs and seasonings makes a meatless dish of health vegetables not only inexpensive — but truly delicious.

A very large baking dish is used in Romania for making ghivetch. Ghivetch can also have fish, pork chops, lamb chops or other meat added. A soup stock or bouillon cubes will add still more flavor.

Romanian Ghivetch might also have eggplant, turnips, parsley, okra, green pepper and even grapes. A good deal of leeway can be taken in preparing the dish as there is no exact recipe. The Romanian women are true artists of the kitchen and put their hearts into their cooking. It's this cooking from the heart and the novel use of herbs and seasonings that makes such tasty food. Romanian cookery can have a character all its own. It is flavorful, stimulating to the appetite, light and savory. It is usually done with simple, even primitive equipment. The Romanian housewife, even when following a recipe, personalizes her dish by adding seasonings by the old "pinch of this and a pinch of that" method.

½ cup butter or margarine
1 medium onion, sliced (about 1 cup)
1 cup chopped celery
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 carrots, sliced crosswise (about 1 cup)
1 cup fresh, frozen or canned green peas
1 small yellow squash, sliced (halve large slices)
½ small head cauliflower (separated into small flowerets)
½ cup uncooked white rice
1 cup cut-up fresh, frozen or canned green beans or lima beans
1, No. 303 can tomatoes
2½ cups water
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
2 bay leaves
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate

Melt the butter or margarine in a saucepan over a low heat. Add the onion, celery and garlic. Cook, stirring occasionally, until the onion is tender and yellow. While the onion and celery cook, prepare the vegetables. Place the carrots, peas, squash, cauliflower, rice and green beans in a greased 3-quart oven dish.

After the onion and celery cook, add to them to the tomatoes, water, salt, black pepper, bay leaves, thyme and monosodium glutamate. Bring to a boil. Pour this mixture over the vegetables in the oven dish. Cover and place in a preheated 400 degrees F. oven. Bake for 1 hour or until most of the liquid is absorbed and the vegetables are tender and succulent. Add more water if necessary. This recipe makes 12 servings.

Lucky is the wife—

Whose husband has the happy faculty for getting fun out of life right now, today, instead of being such a slave to ambition that his only interest in life is "getting ahead."

Whose husband enjoys his children. (He's a guy who isn't a harsh disciplinarian, sure that they aren't going to amount to anything unless he is forever cracking the whip. Beware the one who is always having to be protected from the children's noise and demands.)

Whose husband likes people as well as she does and doesn't have to be "dragged" to parties or reminded of his responsibilities as a host.

Whose husband is as proud of his wife's accomplishments as she is of his. He isn't ashamed to let others know he is proud of her.

Whose husband can explain things to his wife in the manner of one talking to an equal instead of being impatient or condescending. Whose husband shows thought and imagination in the present he chooses for his wife and thoroughly enjoys her pleasure in the things he buys for her.

Whose husband enriches family life by making interesting friends and drawing them into the family circle.

Whose husband brags about her meals and does his part to make the dinner hour a pleasant and happy time.

Whose husband speaks the words "I want you to meet my wife" with pride in his voice.

Whose husband is amused, rather than irritated, by his wife's purely feminine attitudes and notions.

Whose husband occasionally does the unexpected and so keeps living with him from becoming cut and dried dull routine.

Whose husband's immediate reaction to trouble isn't "Why don't YOU do something about that?"

In fact it's a lucky woman whose husband has only a few of the above mentioned qualities that women set such store by—after they are married.

Bright red-and-white centerpiece for a St. Valentine's Day party is simple enough for a teen-ager to make. Inexpensive materials used are readily obtainable.

Centerpiece Vitality Spells Difference Between A Party And A Get-Together

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

One of the bright spots midway through a drab winter is the youthful red, white and lace paper touch of St. Valentine's Day. It's a fitting and favorite occasion for a party especially for the preteen or young teen-ager who is charmed with the old-fashioned romance surrounding the exchange of pretty valentines.

As a neighbor of mine, a mother of two popular young daughters, remarked recently, the difference between a "party" and the usual get - together is often no more trouble than fixing up a pretty table and taking extra pains with the refreshments.

Entertainment varies between movies, ice - skating, sleding and dancing, depending on the weather and the time of day. But putting the "party" label on the affair does impress to a certain extent her daughters with their roles as hostesses and the "gang" with their social responsibility as guests.

To dress a Valentine's table, choose a centerpiece your daughter herself could make. Such a one might make use of cardboard, red paper, lace doilies and chocolate kisses. Use a round hat box for the base, trimmed down to a four-inch height and covered with red crepe paper or red shelf paper.

Turn upside down and cover top with more red paper, taped in place for the sake of speed and smoothness. Festoon the sides with scallops cut from lace paper doilies. Then tape foil-covered kisses to the sides.

Cut a hole in the center of the top. A cardboard tube (from a wax-paper roll) wrapped in red paper can be pushed into the base. Top the tube with a small square box.

On the sides, tape an ace, king, queen and jack of hearts from an old deck of playing cards and finish off the top with a crown cut from a scrap of gold paper (possibly left over from Christmas wrappings).

Using up the tag-ends of ribbons, add a further dashing touch with fluffy bows tied and taped around the base of the tube.

Pimiento, Cheese Spark Casserole

Chopped whole pimientos, California wine, and cheese triple star today's special recipe. Descriptively named for its famed flavor trio, Pimiento - Cheese - Wine Casserole was developed as a welcome to National Pimiento's long "Week" February 10-20.

Color styled for Valentine's Day and Washington's Birthday, this dish - of - the - day is a wonderful entree for an early Spring luncheon or Sunday night supper.

PIMIENTO-CHEESE-WINE CASSEROLE

1½ cups scalded milk
2 cups crushed soda crackers (14 to 16)
2 eggs, separated
2 cups grated sharp American cheddar cheese
1 can or jar (4 oz.) whole pimientos
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¾ cup California Sauterne or other white table wine
Salt to taste
Dash of nutmeg

Soak the cracker crumbs in the milk, heat over low flame, and stir in the cheese until it is melted. Add the beaten egg yolks and stir until the mixture is smooth. Chop the pimientos and add them, together with mustard, wine, salt, and nutmeg. Let the mixture cool while beating the egg whites stiff, but not dry. Fold in whites into the cool mixture. Pour into a well-greased baking dish and bake at 350 degrees F., for 30 to 40 minutes or until firm, but springy, when touched. Serve at once.

To prevent fruitcake from crumbling when slicing, use a sharp straight-edged thin bladed knife. The knife should be dipped in hot water then used with a solw, sawing motion.

State Classes

We haven't been given any satisfactory definition of what constitutes a "poorer state" but President Eisenhower's attempt to make two classes of states through his federal aid to education program ought to be bitterly resented by every state.

Under the presidential formula for aid, "wealthier" states would put up two dollars and get one back while "poorer" states would put up one dollar and get back two. This obviously is discrimination of the worst sort and ought to be resented by both classes of states — the rich states and their residents because they will be asked to do something that is not right and the poor states for the same reason plus the shame that goes with being set apart as a recipient of charity.

It was a pitable bit of political chicanery that Eisenhower attempted to pull off when he said in his message to the Congress that the plan "should be considered only as an emergency measure designed to help states and local communities overcome the nation's critical classroom shortage within five years."

"Emergencies" are a ready-made excuse for government to step in and take over control — one that has been used successfully by the Russians on a number of occasions — and in this instance Eisenhower's own White House Conference on Education said that there was no state that could not take care of educational finances if the proper effort were made. If there is a critical shortage, and there is lots of good argument that there isn't, then running to the federal government is exactly the way to bring about a still greater shortage. Certainly whatever condition exists today did not come upon us as an "emergency" but by their own words has been building up for a long time — and will take a long time to dissipate and a still longer time to pay for the money that is proposed to be spent.

That there will be bitter dispute in the Congress over the President's message on education aid is almost certain. He very carefully avoided any mention of the controversial anti-segregation ruling of the Supreme Court. Last session of Congress was split on whether federal "aid" should be granted to those states that did not comply with the high court ruling. The same feelings exist on both sides in this Congress and Eisenhower's failure to meet the issue has again thrown the fight wide open in the Congress. If the recalcitrant Southern states get the aid, and they are supposedly the "poor" states, the New Dealers of the north are going to scream bloody murder. If the northern states get the money and the South doesn't because of the Supreme Court ruling, then there will be more howls of discrimination and a further strengthening of the "states' rights" feeling in the South.

And as is usually the case, no where will there be any realistic recognition of the fact that, regardless of what is said at the moment, where federal money goes, there goes control. If we are so foolish as to delude ourselves into thinking that the federal government is going to hand out a lot of money (taken first from the states which are to get it back) without control we are ignoring all history and all precedent. There have not been any instances wherein federal control has not followed federal handouts and there will not be any difference if the handouts go to school authorities.

SOLON'S DILEMMA
(The Wall Street Journal)

When Solon, the wise lawgiver of antiquity, was asked by his critics if he thought that he had given the Athenians the best laws he could devise, he replied:

"No. But the best they will accept."

And Plutarch observed rather sadly that this, ever since, had been the last defense of even the wisest of law-givers. So we suppose it is hardly surprising if it becomes about the only defense that can be made for Secretary Benson's newest plan for an agricultural law.

With the Athenians the problem was to turn more of the farmers away from tillage into craftsmanship so that the emerging republic could prosper from trade with the islands of the Aegean. The law proposed was to ban the export of farm products in order to make food cheaper for the Athenians and to encourage farmers to take up other tasks.

But the law-givers had to reckon with the olive growers. An exception was made for them in the Assembly, with the result that so many took to growing olives that only the most astute could survive. Perhaps it was no coincidence that Solon grew weary before his time and retired.

The problem of Mr. Benson is not unlike that of the Athenians. In a moment of unguarded frankness one of his assistants stated the problem succinctly: "There are too many people who want to stay in agriculture." Everywhere the warehouses are bulging with crops which the State has brought up at prices set unnaturally high so that the marginal farmer can be kept in business. Today, too, there is pressure to dump the crops abroad.

Mr. Benson, being a clear-sighted man, knows that the farm subsidy is the root of the trouble. So long as the Government guarantees the unnatural prices there will continue to be too much production. Even the poorest farms will keep farming. And the other citizens will continue to pay for their farm crops twice over, once in taxes for the subsidy and again in unnecessarily high prices.

Mr. Benson would like to reduce the subsidy. But Mr. Benson knows that he must reckon, if not with olive growers, with the growers of wheat and corn and cotton. They have been so long protected they would receive with ill grace any law that diminished the protection.

So Mr. Benson favors something called a "soil bank." Under this plan, farmers who take some of their land out of production of the major crops and put it into grass or trees will be paid fixed sums out of the public treasury. He hopes this will ease the pressure for a return to still higher price supports.

It is a plan that will solve nothing. The shrewd farmer will "bank" his poorest land, pocket his Government money and seek ways to boost production on his other land. It involves a rather blatant handout, and like all handouts will start political squabbles that will create new headaches for the politicians. But more importantly, it will leave the marginal land and the less efficient farmer still comfortably sheltered. There will be no incentive to change.

But it has, we suppose, some small virtues. It is better than returning to rigid ninety - percent-of-parity. It might be a device for someday ending altogether the whole price support scheme, with all its dislocations of the market place. If we are going to subsidize the farmers out of the Treasury, there is something to be said for doing it frankly and directly. That would be more honest. It might also well prove cheaper. The proposed law can't be defended as the wisest law for the farmers. The most that can be said is that it may be the best they will accept.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

$500 Million Tax-Free Propaganda Fund

III

Here is more from the union pamphlet on the 21-month Kohler strike at Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

The unions contend that the men that have not been working for 21 months in the Kohler plant must be reinstated with their seniority and the workers that the Kohler Company has hired and promised steady jobs must be fired, if necessary, or demoted in seniority before the strike can be settled.

With that as a condition the strike never should be settled. The Kohler Company has been taking the only stand that can be taken if we are to preserve what we have left of the free enterprise system.

And by the way, the Kohler Company is entitled to the support and encouragement of every worker in the United States who believes that each man is owner of himself and all he produces — no more, no less.

In other words, the Kohler Company is making a courageous fight against terrific odds to preserve the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for all men, not just those with special privileges. They are attempting to prevent the cast-system from being established in America. Our hats are off to industrialists of this kind. Would that there were more men like those operating the Kohler Company.

Listen to this absurdity: "Make no mistake about it, Kohler Co. wanted this strike." It's nonsense to contend that any employer wants a strike. He wants the right to manage his own property so that he can benefit his customers, his employees and his stockholders. Of course if a strike is necessary in order to do that, he will take a strike but he is not crazy enough to want a strike because he is willing to take a stirke rather than submit to promoting collectivism and destroying the American way of life.

The pamphlet says: "Actually Kohler wokers had no choice but hitting the bricks."

The only reason the Kohler workers took a stike was becuase they did not believe that other men had an equal right with them to sell their services to the world's highest bidder. They took a strike because they had exhalted themselves to believing that the employer did not have equal rights with them. They, of course, know that they have a right to quit if anyone in the world will pay them more, but they deny the employer the right to quit employing them if any worker will pay them more for the employer's dollar.

Comparative Wages

The union seems to think that they have a great point because they contend that the Kohler Company's rate of pay is less than their competitor. They admit that Kohler Company is paying $1.48 an hour for sweepers, $1.53 for stock clerks, $1.50 an hour for elevator operators, average laborer $1.60 per hour, truck driver $1.80 per hour, electrician $2.08 per hour and tool and die worker $2.06 per hour.

They point out that "a competitor, Briggs Beautyware is paying from 93½ cents to $1½ cents more for various jobs. Of course they do not point out that labor is worth more in certain places than in others; that it is governed by supply and demand. Nor do they point out that the Kohler Company might have to pay for more freight received and sent when located out of the metropolitan areas where labor is invariably higher because it costs more to live in metropolitan districts far from food supplies and where the worker has to go farther to his job than he does in smaller communities.

Nor does this brochure make any effort to set down any principle or rule that should govern how wages should be arrived at different places and different times.

Those that believe in the competitive system contend that the worker should be selected on the basis of the worker that will do the most for the compensation paid. But all unions deny this principle. But they will not tell how workers are to be selected. They will not answer these questions: Are workers to be selected by lot? By seniority? By the worker's needs? By rotation? By favoritism? By whim? By force or intimidation? Otherwise, by what measurable, impersonal, eternal rule are they to be selected?

One union man in attempting to answer this question said he would have a committee do the selecting, but when asked what rule the committee would use, his answer was, "God only knows."

And, of course, when they do not follow the law of supply and demand there is no rule. So they use intimidation and coercion.

The last page is written under Emil Mezey, Secretary - Treasurer of the UAW-CIO International Union. Mezey writes:

"Kohler workers have made their fight because they have had to. Freedom has always been won by people who have been ready to fight for it and maintained by those willing to stick their necks out to protect it.

"In a sense the Kohler workers fight is the fight of all freedom loving people for they are giving up more than a year of their lives to the effort to make democracy work. Their goal is to win a better life for the years that remain to them, but even more important to win a brighter future for their children."

Strange Idea of Freedom

Mezey and every believer in labor unions has a strange concept of freedom. They are not fighting for freedom. They are fighting for special privilege for the right to receive more than other human beings are able to receive for the same production. It is the Kohler Company that is fighting for freedom and for the dignity of all man. The labor unions are fighting for the right to be master over others; the right to have an exclusive right to determine what wages shall be; the right to boycott other human beings with dignity; the right to hate their neighbor rather than love their neighbor as themselves.

How can any labor union man contend that he loves his neighbor as himself when he contends that he does not have an equal right to a job because of seniority established by those that are in the group to keep those that are out, out?

Seniority is nothing by the caste system.

This is the way labor unions are spending the $500,000,00.00 of tax free forced collections.

Consumer Revolt To Bring Lower Prices On Everything

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—An inchoate and unorganized consumers' revolt has made the long - suffering and patient purchaser of high-priced goods the most popular man of the year on and off Capitol Hill. With or without remedial legislation, a lower retail price level on everything from automobiles to the housewives' weekly food basket seems assured.

Legislators, manufacturers, local distributors have been influenced—in fact, frightened—by the widespread protests against allegedly excessive living costs. Measures for indirect control of profits and prices have been advanced, if only as a threat and in response to constituents' complaints. Letters on this problem balloon Capitol Hill mailbags.

Manufacturers have hurriedly reduced their prices to dealers in order to meet the discount houses' challenge lest their trade names lose their economic appeal and validity. Only one great electric appliance maker is now resisting this pressure. Dealers are demanding more equitable contracts from suppliers, hoping that savings will invite more customers by lowering retail charges. They expect to find compensation in volume sales.

As recently noted here, several Federal agencies are investigating the huge "spread" between production costs, industrial and agricultural, and the ultimate consumers' bill. This differential has been increasing year by year. It has grown unchecked in a Topsy-like manner.

Although the Administration has kept hands off this movement, it has assumed a sympathetic attitude. In his economic report to Congress, President Eisenhower dwelt heavily on the fact that the purchasing dollar had maintained a fairly high degree of stability within the last few years. It will be a bright feather in the GOP's political cap, if that condition continues through next November.

On the other hand, the Democrats on Capitol Hill have been the most vocal and active in demanding relief for consumers.

More than 10,000 local automobile dealers have just concluded a national convention here that was marked by almost riotous protests against certain manufacturers' practices, including what they denounced as one-sided contracts. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat and antimonopoly champion, egged them on.

They complained particularly about freight charges whichc boost retail prices. Although cars may be assembled only a few miles from the site of a sale, they groused, makers in Micchigan and elsewhere base the transportation charges on shipment from Detroit. They also protested against what they termed "excessive financing charges" by the big firms.

Pro-dealers and pro-consumer changes in the contracts, they declared, would enable them to lower prices and sell more cars.

The farmers' griping about falling income has been a benefaction to retail buyers. It has awakened housewives to the size and meaning of the "spread." Butchers report that never have they listened to so many questions on why meat and other foods remain so high, in view of the decline in the original producers' receipts for for cattle and hogs, corn and wheat.

Housewives have become economists. Reading newspaper reports of the farm problem, they buy pork when the price falls, or lamb or beef in turn. They are exercising a direct effect on the price level by this selective shopping.

The Senate "gas" debate has made consumers more conscious of certain idosyncrasies in the price of this fuel, as well as rival heating products like coal and oil. Incidentally, both proponents and opponents of Federal regulation of independent gas producers contend that their only concern is to save money for the ultimate users.

Here again, consumers think they have a just complaint against the "spread".

Although it costs only 12 cents at the well to produce gas for homes in Washington, D.C., the user pays $1.37 for it. The difference is made up by payment of 29 cents to the transporting pipeline companies, and 96 cents to the local distributors. Similar figures for New York are eight cents at the well, $2.08 for the consumer, 23 cents for transportation and $1.77 to the local distributor.

The CRACKER BARREL

If there is such a thing as world government (through the United Nations) then it logically follows that there can be such a thing as treason to that government. And ussia admits she has committed it when she supplied arms to the North Koreans and Red Chinese to help them resist a United Nations army that was fighting to stop aggression. Nehru's India approves of Russia's treason by China to the UN and the United States rewards India with foreign aid! Therefore the United States supplies troops to the UN and rewards the friends of the traitors who kill them. How mixed up can we get?

Answer to Today's Puzzle

Down South

Real Question In Race Issue Is State Rights

By Thurman Sensing

The real question about integration is not the mixing or association of the races, in schools or otherwise — it is whether the states have the right, under the protection of the Constitution, to govern their own affairs.

This makes the question just as important to the states of New England and the Pacific Coast as it does to the states of the South. All states want to decide for themselves how to conduct their own affairs. In this particular case, if the people of Iowa want integration, that should be all right; if the people of Virginia do not want integration, that, also, should be all right.

The underlying question, therefore, is, What is the Constitution? Is it whatever the justices of the Supreme Court say it is? Or is it what it was when the states first ratified it in the belief that it reserved to them their full 'local rights'?

If the Constitution is whatever judges say it is, then we have rule by men instead of rule by law. And this, of course, was the case in the integration decree. The members of the Supreme Court threw aside all judicial precedent and based their decision on sociological and psychological textbooks written by socialists and leftwing sympathizers, thereby betraying the safeguards set up by the founding fathers.

The men who established our Government recognized this danger. To guard the states against this usurpation of their powers, they subscribed to the doctrone of interposition. Under this doctrine, whenever a state perceived a "deliberate, palpable and dangerous encroachment upon reserved powers, deeply and essentially affecting its interests," the people had the right to interpose the sovereignty of their state in whatever manner seemed required by the circumstances.

All the states must subscribe to this doctrine, else they have no protection against encroachment by the Federal government upon their reserved powers. Since the states reserved to themselves all powers not delegated to the Federal government, it must follow that only the states — not the Supreme Court — can decide in the final anaylsis what powers the Federal government actually holds. They must do this under the framework provided in the Constitution — but this they have the right to do. In other words, the Constitution cannot be amended by the Supreme Court; it must be amended by constitutional process.

Day in and day out, over the years, the people of the United States have been pretty well able to depend upon the judgments of the Court. But this was because its decision were generally rendered on long established constructions of the Constitution and legal precedent. When these were deliberately ignored, as in the case of the integration decree, it was the clear right and duty of the states not in agreement to bring into play the doctrine of interposition. The states doing so have both right and reason on their side, and if the people generally would forget the emotionalism of the agitators for a moment, they would realize this is so.

It is to be believed that support of the doctrine of interposition in this particular instance will grow in the days ahead, that it will gain increasing favor not only in the South but among other states as well. If it does not, then we do not have the kind of government we have always thought we had.

The people of the Southern states referred to are to be commended for their unwillingness to accept the Supreme Court integration decree lying down. In fact, to have done so would have been a betrayal of our whole philosophy of government.

There are those who will say to us, "Integration is inevitable; we had just as well accept it." They are wrong. It is not inevitable; it does not have to be accepted. Nothing is inevitable that is controlled by the will of free men. They had just as well say — and we have heard it said — "socialism, or communism, is inevitable, whether we like it or not; we had just as well accept it." This is the do-nothing doctrine, this is the doctrine of craven submission. In fact, it is the doctrine of cowardice, for, as Abraham Lincoln himself very well pointed out, "To sin by silence when they should protest, makes cowards of men."

Before The Dishes Are Done

By BETTY KNOWLES HUNT

"HAVE A HEART?"

The American Legion is quoted in the morning papers as "strongly opposed" to some Hoover Commission's recommendations for cutting the cost of veterans' benefits. Among other things, the Legion says: "Too great stress has been given the dollar cost. Too little attention has been given to the humanitarian side of the question. . . ."

It just so happens that in the current Reader's Digest, the very first article is a very pertinent one called "The Rising Cost of Veteran Aid — Where Do We Go From Here?" It should be must reading for all Americans, including Legion spokesmen, for their "have a heart" argument simply does not answer the gigantic questions raised by this factual article.

The opening paragraph reads: "The grinding burden of aid to war veterans that we willingly assumed ten years ago is rubbing sore spots in the nation's economy. Last year we spent more than four billion dollars on veterans' benefits — the third largest item in the federal budget after defense and interest on the public debt. That staggering sum is only a fraction of the annual bill in the foreseeable future. In 30 years, if the same benefits remain on the books, the appropriation for veterans will be 20 billion dollars a year, and still rising. (Total expenditures for the World War II veteran program may eventually exceed the cost of prosecuting the war itself.)"

The author adds: "What we owe veterans must, after all, be controlled by how much we can afford to pay. And 'we' includes veterans, since with their families they comprise 40 percent of the population and must bear their share of the taxes."

Most of us do not have the vaguest conception of either the cost or the time element in this "have a heart" veterans aid program. For example, the article cites how the last surviving widow of a Revoluntionary War Soldier was carried on the pension list as late as 1906! There are 6700 dependents of deceased Civil War veterans who are still receiving pensions, and the original cost of the Spnaish-American War has now increased six-fold!

With 21 million veterans today, (which is being increased by some 700,000 a year) it won't be very long before half of our population is obliged to help support the other half! Such facts simply cannot be dismissed by the Legion argument that "too great stress has been given the dollar cost" and "too little attention given to the humanitarian side of the question . . ."

No country in history has ever been so "humanitarian" toward its veterans, or so completely indifferent (or perhaps ignorant) to its "dollar cost"! The Hoover Commission is not being "inhumanitarian" in its recommendations. It is merely trying to insert some fiscal common sense into a snowballing burden which is running out of all reasonable bounds. Among other things, it recommends that veterans should assume some liability for "nonservice connected" disabilities.

Again, most Americans do not realize that about 60 percent of the hospital cases now are of "nonservice connected" disabilities, including such purely "civilian" ailments as "accidents in homes" — to which veterans are no more subject than everyone else. The Legion also opposes the recommendation that "a veteran's statement of inability to pay for hospitalization be subject to verification", — although on what grounds, it is difficult to imagine, since everybody else would be expected to "verify" such a statement. Americans are also unware that "the peak of a war's hospital load comes about 40 years after the war, with the infirmities of old age — a period just approaching for World War I servicemen."

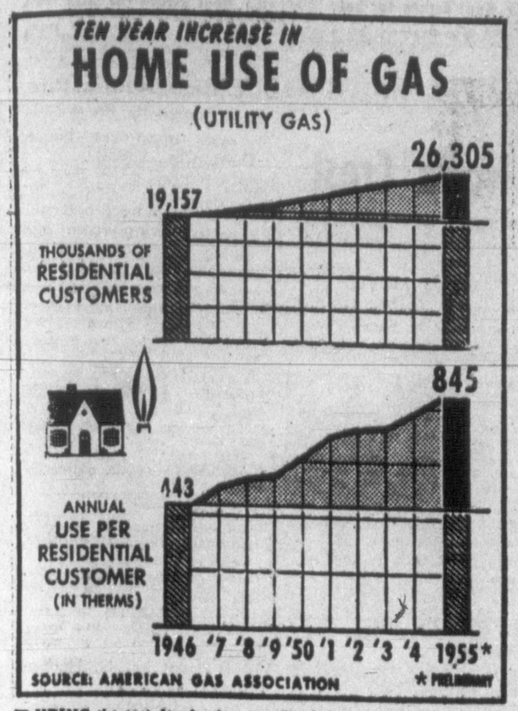

Right now, we have about 580,000 veterans over 65 years old, "but there will be seven million by the end of the century!"

The article concludes: "Since World War I, Americans have consistently opposed economies at the expense of veterans, even in the depths of the depression. But a showdown cannot be postponed indefinitely, for the 48 billion dollars we have spent in the last decade on veterans' benefits is petty cash compared to what's ahead if the present program is maintained."

The American people have certainly done their "humanitarian" best. It is high time that The American Legion and all veterans gave some thought as well to the nation's economic future, and the burden it is piling up for their children — as well as ours!

MOPSY

DURING the past decade, the gas utility industry added an average of 750,000 new residential customers a year, a total increase of 41 per-cent. In this period, use per customer almost doubled, reflecting increased demand for gas for house heating and such newer uses as clothes drying, incineration and air conditioning.

New Pricing Formulas Are Seen If Gas Bill Made Law

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 — UP —If President Eisenhower signs the controversial natural gas bill into law, the Federal Power Commission is expected to move swiftly to set up new gas-pricing formulas.

Willard W. Gatchell, FPC general counsel, is carefully analyzing the bill's legal aspects before giving the five-man commission a guide on what it can and can not do. The commission itself will make no formal statement until Mr. Eisenhower has acted.

The bill, which Congress sent to the White House, exempts all independent producers from federal price controls—in effect since June 7, 1954—but makes more complex the commission's job of determining what prices interstate pipelines can charge their customers, the local distributors.

Requires Fair Field Price

If the President signs the bill, these charges legally would have to be based on a so-called "fair field price competitively arrived at" by the producers. The commission would then have to decide whether the field price is fair to the pipeline.

This is why industry officials look for the commission to adopt some standard formula, probably varying as to producer regions, to provide both producer and pipeline with price-range guides.

All this is contingent on Mr. Eisenhower's signing the bill. He said Wednesday he was weighing his decision on two opposing considerations—a state's right, without federal interference, to regulate its own gas resources as against the need to protect "captive" consumers from unreasonable price increases.

Mr. Eisenhower is an ardent state's rights advocate. But against this are 30 million consumers whose mayors, congressmen and political organizations bombarded the White House week-long with appeals for a veto.

Oil state legislators are confident the president will sign.

FPC Controls Pipelines

They pointed out that the FPC still has price-policing powers at the pipeline level and thus can hold the line against price-gouging at the consumer level. They believe this is all the assurance Mr. Eisenhower will require.

It is certain, meantime, that if the bill becomes law producer-pipeline sales contract negotiations will enter a new area. An industry source said no contract would be signed until the commission had given advance approval of the rates proposed.

This would mean rates predetermined and approved on the basis of commission hearings. I also means no producer or pipeline would be stuck with a contract whichh might backfire and cost its stockholders.

Another problem facing the commission is existing contracts. Industry spokesmen said it will have to work out a system to prevent price squeezes on pipelines with escalation contracts.

"It will be difficult to devise an over-all system," one spokesman told the United Press, "but once it's worked out I look for a smooth operation."

Just Change Work Load

As to the commission, a spokesman said there will be no change in its work load and thus no staff reduction. The commission simply will throw out thousands of pending rate applications and revise its price-policing rules on the basis of the fair field price formula.

Its biggest headache will be deciding what exactly is a fair field price.

Opponents of the legislation foresee numerous lawsuits over what is a "reasonable field price." They also look for challenges on constitutional grounds. What Congress did was surrender federal jurisdiction over independent producers even though their gas is sold in interstate commerce and despite a Supreme Court decision that producer prices must be regulated.

1 Card of Thanks 1

And we know that all things work together for good of them that love God, to them who are called according to His purpose. (Romans 8-28)

In God's design of life for us
That He Himself has planned.
There are so many hidden things
We do not understand;
But He would have us know His plan
Is such a wondrous one,
That when we do not understand,
To say: "Thy will be done!"

Joseph Wedge

We take this means to thank all those who in any way helped us to bear our sorrow in the loss of our loved one. To the membership of the First Baptist Church in Skellytown and the First Christian Church in Pampa for the many thoughtful deeds in our behalf and to our good friends and neighbors in Skellytown, White Deer, Borger, and Pampa, we are very grateful. We especially wish to acknowledge the kindnesses of the Masonic Lodge and Eastern Star Lodge of White Deer, the Skelly Oil Company employees, the Reverend Eugene Brown of Skellytown and to Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home for their services. God bless each of you.

Today is another Multiple Drill Day at the National Guard Armory, east of Pampa. All of the Local units will meet today, still in preparation for the State Maintenance for the latter part of this month. Inspection dates will be moved back because of the weather. It's been quite a problem trying to keep vehicles in shape and clean, with weather such as we've been having here at the Top o' Texas for the past week or so. It has also been difficult for the inspection teams to get around in this weather. There may be a change in the inspection dates, which we'll report when we get that information.

This Sunday's drill is a make-up for at least part of the units in Pampa, they were scheduled to meet last week until the snows came, and the drill was rescheduled for this week.

Service Battery and the Medical Detachment of the 474th are scheduled to receive a couple of honors today. Our new Armory advisor, Major Warren J. Beale will present the Medical Detachment with a Gold Certificate for proficiency at Summer Camp this past summer, and Service Battery will receive the Silver Certificate. These are the two highest awards offered to National Guard Units for summer field training.

Headquarters has welcomed new officer this past week, he is Capt. Doc F. Cagle, who recently moved to Pampa to go into business here. Capt. Cagle is a former member of the 648th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, and has been assigned as liaison officer with the 474th 2d Lt. Monty L. Cotter has been reassigned within the Battalion Staff, Lt. Cotter will move from Battalion Motor Officer to Forward Observer.

While we are talking about people, we had a visitor from Wichita Falls with us at the Armory last week. Major Hendrix, the Army Advisor from Wichita Falls, dropped in to say hello.

The schedule at the Armory is really getting full. There are three National Guard Units meeting in the Armory, and now there has been another unit added. Approval has been recieved for the Pampa unit of the Marine Corps Reserve to meet in the National Guard Armory on Tuesday Nights.

Something we want you to keep an eye out for is the 'one day' recruiting drive which will be held Nationwide by the National Guard in the near future. Be watching and listening for news about it. It is hoped that with this drive and others, the strength of the National Guard wil be built up to nearly 28,000 men. Watch for it, and always help "Keep Your Guard Up."
