

Hired Hand The Curse Of Old King Tut By Glenn Shelton

In the current issue of Reader's Digest is an article entitled "King Tut's Golden Hoard." It is a fascinating yarn about the "greatest archeological find of all time."

It tells how Archaeologist Howard Carter and others found and opened an antique door into the tomb of an Egyptian pharaoh, and of the treasures therein.

The article was especially interesting to me because my own uncle, Dr. William Arthur Shelton, was a member of that fortunate archeological team, and a victim of the eerie and fortunate things that happened to them later.

The Reader's Digest article speaks but briefly of the famous "curse." But on the doors of King Tut's tomb was a warning of disaster to befall "any who molest the bones of King Tutankhamen."

My uncle, an expert in Semitic languages, had foul luck for the balance of his long life. He died about two years ago in Birmingham, Ala.

Johnson To Seek $50 Million For Aid To Alaska

Federal Agency Being Created To Help Rebuild

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will ask a $50-million emergency earthquake appropriation and is creating a Federal Reconstruction and Development Planning Commission for Alaska.

Other sources described the $50 million of proposed new disaster-relief funds as a first step measure to help restore vital roads, bridges, utilities and other publicly owned facilities.

As for the half-billion-dollar estimate of eventual federal help, Bartlett and Gruening said the big figure was their personal estimate and did not commit Johnson to ask Congress for any specific sum.

Goulart Promises To Keep Fighting

By EDGAR MILLER RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Brazilian rebel forces drove leftist president Joao Goulart out of Rio de Janeiro

Wednesday, but he scoffed at their victory claims and flew early Thursday into Brazil's deep south, vowing a fight to the death.

Olney Man Dies, Second Injured In Plane Crash

By DAN COLEMAN AND NATHAN FAIN R. D. (Bob) McKinney of Olney, Tex., died about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday when a chartered, single-engine aircraft plummeted to earth eight miles southeast of Wichita Falls in an open field.

Goulart, accused by rebel leaders of planning to turn Latin America's largest country into a Cuban-type Communist satellite, fled first to Brasilia, the inland capital 600 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

Then, late Wednesday night, he took off for Porto Alegre in his home state of Rio Grande do Sul where his brother-in-law, former Gov. Leonel Brizola, was reported in control of the 3rd Army.

Seriously injured in the crash was passenger Eddie Carroll Cooper, 35, a well service operator for the Southwest Chemical Co. in Olney, co-owned by McKinney and his father-in-law, F. M. Johnson.

A Goulart spokesman said his wife and two children had flown with him but planned to continue to a foreign country to await the outcome of the crisis.

Goulart's dramatic flight and vow to wage last-ditch warfare climaxed a day in which rebel chiefs proclaimed Goulart's fall and installed a new president, Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli, president of the Chamber of Deputies and constitutionally in line for the job.

Loyal staff members were with Goulart and his family in the Viscount turboprop airliner that took off from Brasilia shortly before midnight. The group had been forced to Brasilia in a Coronado jetliner which developed engine trouble in a first attempt to reach Porto Alegre.

Hectic victory demonstrations under clouds of confetti and ticker tape had erupted in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo at the first broadcast word that Goulart had been ousted.

Then came a broadcast from Brasilia, that Goulart would make a stand there.

The departure for the south apparently changed that decision.

The third army in Rio Grande do Sul is by far the strongest of Brazil's four armies. However, rebel leaders here reported that one of its strongest units, garrisoned at a rail center near the Uruguayan border, had revolted against Brizola.

McKinney's first wife died in a light plane crash a year ago Wednesday in Bakersfield, Calif. Funeral services for the 40-year-old man are pending at Lunn Funeral Home in Olney. Cooper was being treated Wednesday night for multiple abrasions and contusions about his body and a small laceration on his forehead. He was hospitalized in Wichita General Hospital, in satisfactory condition.

McKinney apparently crashed minutes after chartering the airplane, a white Cessna 182 trimmed in red and black, from the Ray Gardner Flying Service at Kickapoo Airport, Wichita Falls.

McKinney was making a low flight over the Stedman house, the oil field pumper said, when the accident occurred. Stedman lives on an L. T. Burns lease three miles east of the Jacksboro Highway on the Carter McGreggor Ranch.

Carl Taylor, vice president of the chartering service, said the airplane skidded about 300 feet before coming to rest at the top.

Big Vote Total Eyed At Haskell

HASKELL, Tex. (Special) — Mounting interest in next Tuesday's municipal election in Haskell, with the issues becoming more clearly drawn as voting day nears, indicates the possibility of a record turnout to choose a mayor and three city councilmen, veteran observers said Wednesday.

Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. at City Hall here, the only voting place. The election judge will be Virgil Sonnemaker. His assistant will be Tom Rhoads.

Less than 20 absentee ballots had been cast with the deadline for voting absentee but two days away, City Secretary T. J. Arbuckle reported Wednesday. Absentee ballots may be obtained from him and all ballots post-marked before midnight Friday will be counted, Arbuckle said.

Mayor J. E. Walling Jr. and three incumbent city councilmen, Otho Nanny, R. L. Stephenson, and Raymond Davis, are seeking reelection.

The only other candidate for the mayor's post is Dr. J. G. Vaughler, a former city councilman, native of this area, and practicing dentist, civic, and religious leader in Haskell for more than 30 years.

Also seeking posts on the council are Wayne Bradford, partner in Frazier's Appliances; R. L. (Bob) Dulaney, grocer; and Jimmy D. Browning, former Haskell High basketball coach and now an area farmer.

Rule Cemetery

Fund Drive Starts

HASKELL, Tex. (Special) — Members and directors of the Rule Cemetery Association have initiated a drive to meet perpetual care requirements for their community cemetery, and discussed imminent designation of a townwide holiday to be devoted to work on and improvement of the cemetery.

A financial report was given by Mrs. Nona Norwood, secretary-treasurer of the association in which contributions of $4,026.50 have been totaled since Oct. 18, 1963. The association has repaid funds for cemetery improvement borrowed from banks and the Chamber of Commerce, she reported.

Perpetual care requirements include a fence, water, and at least two lines in order to reach all cemetery property. These are the immediate aims and objects of the association, Mrs. Norwood said.

AMERICANS NOT HARASSED BY SPECIAL ANXIETY AGE

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Relax—we're not harassed by some special age of anxiety, two psychology experts said today.

There may be less anxiety among people now than in the past, despite H-bombs, the population explosion, social pressures and rapid change, said Dr. James G. Miller, professor of psychiatry and psychology at the University of Michigan.

The amount of total anxiety has been reduced by lessened fear of sudden death and malignant illness through medical research, by better control over "lawless terrors of the past," and by education which has reduced superstitions malign supernatural powers has receded," Miller told a symposium commemorating the 10th anniversary of tranquilizer drugs.

The United States and Great Britain were found to have the lowest levels of anxiety among 10 nations he has studied, said Dr. Raymond B. Cattell, research professor of psychology at the University of Illinois.

The greatest anxiety was found in underdeveloped nations such as India, "where standards of living are lower and where a country has cultural and political crevasses separating its peoples."

"With America and Britain lowest on these lists, the view that we live in an unusually anxious culture and age is scarcely supported," he said.

Newspaper editors and writers are the Americans living with the most anxiety, Cattell said. University administrators are the least anxious of all professional people, he added.

Cattell described anxiety as "a lack of confidence, a sense of guilt and worthlessness, an unwillingness to venture, a dependency, a readiness to become fatigued, irritable and discouraged, an uncertainty about oneself and a suspicion of others and a general tenseness."

There's still enough anxiety to make tranquilizers "one of our most important medicinal agents," said Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, professor emeritus of pharmacology at Ohio State University.

Dr. Frank Berger of Wallace Laboratories, who discovered one of the first tranquilizers, meprobamate, called for research to develop a drug that "will free our minds from the tyranny of inhibition and self-consciousness."

Arthur Lichtenberger announced Wednesday night he will resign in October as presiding bishop of the 3.5-million member Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States because of bad health. Lichtenberger, 64, was stricken with Parkinson's disease last fall. In a letter to the church's bishops he said his efforts to overcome speech difficulties, resulting from the disease had not succeeded. His resignation will be formally submitted at the church's national convention starting Oct. 12 in St. Louis. A successor will be chosen by the House of Bishops during the convention.

Federal Court Asked To Act In Cases Of Demonstrators

By JOE MCGOWAN JR., ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Three attorneys, charging that civil rights are being violated in this ancient, segregated city, asked a U.S. Dist. Court Wednesday to take over the cases of 200 white persons and Negroes jammed into its jails. U.S. Dist. Court Judge Bryan Simpson continued the hearing until 10 a.m. Thursday on the petition of attorneys John M. Pratt and William Kunstler of New York City and Tobias Simon of Miami. One petition is for a habeas corpus writ to turn over to those arrested to federal court. Another would remove the cases completely from the state courts. Five Witnesses The judge said he would hear up to five witnesses, and the state agreed to produce that number at the hearing. "We want to show the court

WASHINGTON ROUNDUP

Johnson Catches Up On World Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington: Press secretary George Beedy said there was a "rather far-ranging review of the world situation" but gave no specifics. He declined to specify what points of the world might have been highlighted. Johnson also talked with William Attwood, U.S. ambassador to Kenya, home for consultations. Attwood brought a personal message from Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta. Its content was not disclosed. RED CROSS CHIEF: Gen. James F. Collins took over Wednesday as president of the American Red Cross. Collins, who was commander in chief in the Pacific prior to his retirement from the Army in February, succeeded Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, who retired from the post Tuesday. The board of governors of the Red Cross last October chose Collins for the $30,000-a-year job. AMPUTEES: The Interstate Commerce Commission proposed Wednesday a change in regulations to permit amputees to pass certain tests for driving trucks in interstate commerce. The commission allowed 30 days for receipt of written comments regarding the proposed change. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., who lost a leg in a traffic accident several years ago, protested to the commission last fall that present regulations disqualify all amputees as interstate truck drivers are unfair in view of technological advances in the use of artificial limbs. Ullman said his attention had been directed to the ICC regulation by an Oregon amputee who had been driving a lumber truck in Oregon for 14 years but was barred from driving the same truck from Oregon into California.

Brazil's New Leader Veteran Lawmaker

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli, named by revolutionaries as new president of Brazil Wednesday, has had practice in the job. The veteran legislator and chairman of the Chamber of Deputies served as acting president four times. At one time leaders of the army, navy and air force tried to get him to stay in office and block Joao Goulart, the man he succeeded Wednesday, from becoming president. His installation was regarded as an effort by rebel revolutionary leaders to maintain what they called the "regalistic" nature of their revolution since Mazzilli was constitutionally next in line to Goulart. Brazil has had no vice president since Goulart moved from that post to the presidency. Mazzilli's most dramatic term of office previously began Aug. 26, 1961, when Janios Quadros quit after seven months in office. Goulart, the vice president, was on a mission to Communist China, so Mazzilli took over as called for by the Constitution. There was constant pressure on him from military chiefs to keep the job, but he warmly embraced Goulart when Goulart came home Sept. 5 and took over. Mazzilli, 53, son of Italian immigrants, is considered a cautious, conservative politician. He was born in Caconde, Sao Paulo state, became a lawyer, and was first elected to Congress in 1951. He was elected chairman of the Chamber in 1958 and has held the office ever since.

Message From Nikita

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reported Wednesday that President Johnson has received a message from Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the Alaska earthquake. Press secretary George Beedy said no decision has been made as to whether the message will be made public.

WORLD NEWS ROUNDUP

Russian Scientist Says Mars Has Life

In the news from around the world: MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet chemistry professor has decided the planet Mars is inhabited, mostly by ocean creatures and the type of life that exists in the thin air of the earth's mountain peaks. Tass reported this in a Moscow dispatch Wednesday after a five-year study by Prof. Vasil Kesarev on the origin and development of planets. Kesarev said the chemical evolution of matter controls the formation, development and disintegration of planets. He said Venus also may have been inhabited in the remote past when, according to his theory, the temperature of the sun was lower. KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia, (AP) — Tunku Abdul Rahman, architect of the Malaysian Confederation, was quoted by the government-run television station in Kuala Lumpur Wednesday as having said he will resign after his next term as prime minister. That term, his third, will end in 1969. The station announced Rahman, 62, had told an election rally at Kuala Lumpur, 300 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, that he intends to make way for a younger man. This could be Deputy Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, 42. PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, said Wednesday he cannot become a Communist and has no intention of signing an alliance with Peking. According to an unofficial translation of a speech he delivered before agricultural students, Sihanouk said his neutralist nation must avoid "a Western trap." He said Western nations are waiting for Phnom Penh to sign an alliance with the Communist Chinese and then would attack Cambodia. Sihanouk threatened for several weeks to seek from Mao Tse-tung's Red regime a guarantee of Cambodian frontiers if the United States and Britain continued to oppose his demand for a Geneva conference on Cambodia's neutrality and territorial integrity. Last Monday, however, he decided not to go to Peking and to maintain the status quo until he returns from a spring visit to France. FUJINOMIYA, Japan (AP) — The Sokagakkai, an organization of Japanese Buddhist laymen Wednesday dedicated a new $4.5-million temple to the Nichiren Shoshu, the 700-year-old sect it supports. The huge structure was paid for in less than a week by contributions from 4,430,000 of the highly organized group's claimed 10-million members. BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A special luxury plane was reported standing by in Saudi Arabia Tuesday to fly seven of King Saud's disgruntled sons into exile after Crown Prince Faisal's assumption of supreme power in the oil kingdom. Unconfirmed but persistent reports said the seven sons, who had tried to overthrow Faisal, were being ordered to leave Riyadh. In all, Saud has 27 sons. Informed sources said King Saud, 62, who Tuesday signed decrees naming Faisal regent, will take up residence at a health resort in Europe.

Injunction Against LCB Is Suspended

AUSTIN (AP) — The Third Court of Civil Appeals dissolved a court order Wednesday, thereby placing liquor exporters along Texas border from Brownsville to El Paso under the requirements of a 1963 legislative act. The law requires the liquor dealers to purchase a $750 permit each year, and places them under the regulation of the Texas Liquor Control Board. At present, the businesses are operated from U.S. Customs bonded warehouses and do not pay federal excise or state taxes on distilled spirits. The federal charge is $10.50 per 100-proof gallon, and the state tax is $1.68 per gallon. The board contends that the new law, which went into effect last September, was designed to prevent the dealers from selling liquor to customers within Texas border towns. The businesses operate under the contention that they will sell liquor only for exportation to Mexico. The court's ruling Wednesday suspended a trial court's temporary injunction against the board which, in effect, had prevented regulation of the liquor dealers until a final decision is handed down in the case, originated by Amnux Warehouse Co. of Laredo and others. The liquor dealers contend that unless the board is restrained, their businesses will be destroyed pending final appeal. The order modifying and extending the temporary injunction is void, the appeals court said, because it defies the state's right by appeal to supersede the final judgment of the trial court.

Salesmen are needed for general goods and motor vehicle parts. Technical jobs include final assembly inspector, maintenance machinist, greaser, operating engineer, mechanical draftsman, machinist and three trimming line technician. Miscellaneous employees needed are carpet layer, cocktail waitress, live-in companion, chambermaid, asphalt paving machine operator, machine presser, baker, telephone survey workers, waitresses and domestic cooks. Mrs. Peabody's son, the Rev. G. L. Peabody of New York City, visited her in her cell Wednesday morning and said she was "quite impatient" to be arraigned and to get out of jail so she could make a statement to the press. He said he had come to help and offered her no instructions because "in our family, we don't direct each other." Her jail quarters were clean, he added, and she was well-treated. Mrs. Peabody was arraigned before County Judge Charles C. Mathis and pleaded innocent to three counts on two charges. Mathis set bond at $1250 on each of the three counts — violating Florida's undesirable guest law and two counts of trespass after warning and conspiracy. She did not post bond and was returned to jail. Asked whether she would make the bond, she said she was waiting for advice from her attorney.

Chairman Asks Market Pursuit

David Clinton, chairman of the agriculture development action group of the chamber of commerce, Wednesday stressed the importance of a continued investigation and pursuit of a farmers market and food fiber processing plant in Wichita Falls. Clinton further urged Noel Sharp, chairman of the food fiber processing committee and Bob Long, chairman of the farmers market committee, to continue their investigation and use every means and facility available in bringing these two projects to a close. Lester Brooks of the Iowa Park Experiment Station, said the potential for a farmers market and a food fiber processing plant was present and his belief was this matter should be pursued. Rufus King said he had cold storage facilities available which could be used for the storage of vegetables and fruits. Gad Garland, chairman of the 1964 Junior Broiler Show, said the program had 42 sponsors and would have 52 by the show date of May 9, 1964. The show will be held in the 4-H Center. LeRoy Overstreet and Leon Deaton have set the next Coastal Bermuda hay field day for July. The next meeting of the group will be May 6.

Communist and non-Communist unions, called the strike after the breakdown in negotiations with the government on their demand that nonunion port workers be barred from stevedore operations. Some Italian shipping firms prefer to have their own employees handle loading and unloading work.

Body And Soul Relation

By MORTIMER J. ADLER
Dear Dr. Adler:
Man has often been divided into "mind and body," "psyche and soma," or "spirit and flesh." In medicine, a psychosomatic or psychophysiological approach to the patient has been introduced to attempt to bridge this gap. What is the origin of this dichotomy, and what do the writers of the great books have to tell us about it?

Paul J. Schwab, M.D.
8525 South Woodlawn
Chicago 19, Illinois

Dear Dr. Schwab:
Even those of us who deny the existence of the soul or the usefulness of the idea of the soul in explaining our experience, show by our denials as well as by our everyday speech that we have a fairly definite notion of the meaning of the term "soul." When we reject the idea and scornfully dismiss the notion that there is such a thing as a soul, we usually mean by it some immaterial principle, substance, or essence, which is distinct from the body and the whole material, sensible world. Yet when, despite ourselves, we use the term in our daily speech, we consider "soul" a mark of worth and dignity, and being "soulless" a most degrading state.

If we compare our present day connotations of "soul" with those of the past, we will find some similarities, but a great deal else besides. Many eminent thinkers, for instance, have believed that all things have souls, while others have limited possession of a soul to living matter, or to animals, or to men alone.

Thinkers who accept the distinction between "soul" and "body" as valid attempt to explain their distinctness as well as their union. Plato, for example, held that the soul was an eternal, pre-existing thing, which is immured for a time in the alien and noxious prison-house of the body, from which it is freed for an independent existence by the death of the body. In sharp contrast, Aristotle held that the soul is the animating principle of a living body. For Aristotle, body and soul exist in an organic unity; the soul cannot exist independently of the body which it animates and actualizes.

The great modern thinker, Descartes, however, maintained that it was erroneous to include under the term "soul" functions which we share with plants and animals, as well as the specific human function of thought. It was to the latter alone that Descartes restricted the term "soul." Man is a thinking substance, in Descartes' view. He is a soul (or "mind" or "spirit") rather than has a soul.

For Descartes, then, there was no problem as to the capacity of the completely spiritual soul to exist apart from the body. The problem for a thinker like Descartes, who acknowledged the reality of both the body and the soul, and their distinctness, was to account for their coexistence in the same being. The individual man as a whole seems to be one being, but according to Descartes, he is really two distinct beings—a soul and a body.

Most of the religious thinkers in our tradition have been averse to the view that human nature is split into two separate parts—body and soul, or flesh and spirit. In the Old Testament, we not only have animals as well as men referred to as "living souls," recalling Aristotle's notion of soul as the animating principle of any living thing; but also the sense of the body-soul unity is so strong that it enters even into the expression of man's relation to God. "My heart and my flesh cried out for the living God," sings the Psalmist, and he speaks of the flesh, as well as of the soul, longing for God.

The New Testament proclaims a way to the eternal salvation of the individual soul, but this is ultimately the salvation of a soul that is to be reunited with its resurrected body after death. Hence Augustine, that most Platonic of great Christian thinkers, contended against the Platonists that man is both body and soul, and must be saved and perfected as a whole.

What is most unusual about the book is Dr. Sayre's candid account of his reactions at every stage of the ascent. There is nothing here of the formal officialese which makes most climbing books such stodgy reading. When he is thrilled, or worried, or afraid, he says so. All this comes through vividly. It will be a long time before I forget his cry to his fellow-climbers as he began his 1,000 ft. fall down the mountain. "Be seen! you," he called out as he tumbled past them.

In considering why he did it all, Dr. Sayre spends several pages of his closing chapter trying to avoid giving Mallory's famous answer. His score or so of personal reasons make good practical sense (e.g., the scenery, the solitude, etc.), but added together they don't equal the most celebrated cliché in mountaineering history—"Because it was there." When you look at Dr. Sayre's unforgettable photograph of the setting sun on the peak at Everest, you'll understand better what Mallory meant.

ed as "a thing of both flesh and spirit." Hence also Aquinas, that most Aristotelian of great Christian thinkers, interpreted Aristotle's view of the soul-body relation to mean that the soul might exist separately from the body, but that it is united to the body—either in ordinary natural life or in an ultimate resurrected state. He would have agreed with Augustine that the man who praises the soul as good and condemns the flesh as evil "assuredly is fleshly both in his love-of the soul and in his hatred of the flesh."

You can win a 34-volume set of the Great Books of the Western World by writing a letter, not to exceed 150 words, incorporating a question of general interest for Dr. Adler in this column. Each week he will select as first prize winners the writers of the three best letters. He will use ONE of these letters as a basis for a future column and will answer it in terms of the intellectual heritage of the Great Books—443 works by 74 authors, spanning 30 centuries of thought. Address the letters to Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, in care of this newspaper.

Books In The News

The Amateurs

FOUR AGAINST EVEREST, by Woodrow Wilson Sayre. Prentice, $5.95.

By JOHN BARKHAM

To clear the air at the start let me say at once that this book is not about the American expedition which climbed Everest last year, but about a strictly amateur American effort which came to within 3,000 ft. of the summit the year before. It is an exhilarating chronicle, which, despite its failure to achieve its objective—or perhaps because of it—strikes a refreshingly different note in the annals of Himalayan climbing.

Lay this directly to the author, a grandson of President Wilson, who, between climbs, teaches philosophy at Tufts University. Dr. Sayre is an amateur in the finest sense of the word, who climbs not to grab glory for his country but simply because he enjoys mountaineering. He takes a dim view of the huge, lavishly equipped expeditions, representing this or that country, which have assaulted Everest in recent years. This goes, too, for the American expedition led by Norman Dyhrenfurth, which successfully ascended Everest last summer.

Sayre's group ("expedition" is too grandiloquent a word) comprised four part-time climbers, three Americans and one Swiss. They used Sherpas only up to 20,000 ft., and thereafter went on alone to 28,000 ft., carrying their own supplies. Oxygen was not used. Dr. Sayre, in fact, vigorously contends that Everest can be climbed without oxygen. The fact remains that fatigue, brought on by the rarefaction of the atmosphere, defeated his own attempt. To this day no climber has reached the summit without oxygen.

What the author and his colleagues attempted was in fact to restore the strictly amateur approach to Himalayan climbing, and it's too bad they didn't make it. Bone-crushing fatigue, which he graphically describes, followed by a fall of about a thousand feet, forced them to turn back with the summit so near. Their route was the north face of Everest, which lies in Tibet and has never yet been climbed. To get there, the four of them, alone, had to make a risky detour without-permission through a remote Tibetan pass. It involved an incredible journey up and down numberless crevasses, which the author likens to "walking up and down ladders from Boston to Albany."

What is most unusual about the book is Dr. Sayre's candid account of his reactions at every stage of the ascent. There is nothing here of the formal officialese which makes most climbing books such stodgy reading. When he is thrilled, or worried, or afraid, he says so. All this comes through vividly. It will be a long time before I forget his cry to his fellow-climbers as he began his 1,000 ft. fall down the mountain. "Be seen! you," he called out as he tumbled past them.

In considering why he did it all, Dr. Sayre spends several pages of his closing chapter trying to avoid giving Mallory's famous answer. His score or so of personal reasons make good practical sense (e.g., the scenery, the solitude, etc.), but added together they don't equal the most celebrated cliché in mountaineering history—"Because it was there." When you look at Dr. Sayre's unforgettable photograph of the setting sun on the peak at Everest, you'll understand better what Mallory meant.

Governor Praises Redistricting Rule During Surprise Visit Wednesday

Texas adopts a valid statute by Aug. 1, 1965.

The court's order said that unless the statute is held unconstitutional is replaced by valid legislation future congressional elections will have to be held on an at-large basis.

The court delayed the effective date of today's order until 11 a.m. on April 7. Associate Justice John Brown of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said this would give all parties sufficient time for appeal.

Brown said time does not permit written opinions by each of the three judges. But immediately after reading the order the three judges began dictating to the court reporter their reasons for signing the order.

Statement
Gov. Connally said he was "gratified" the court had held that congressional redistricting could be handled in an orderly manner at the next regular session of the Legislature.

He issued this statement: "The court's decision," he continued, "is an equitable solution to a very serious and complex problem. It will permit us to proceed with this year's congressional elections which are already under way."

"The court has rightfully pointed out the necessity for redistricting, with which we all agree, and I reiterate my position that this matter will have the highest priority in the next session of the legislature."

"Every attempt will be made to have a thorough redistricting consistent with the opinions of the Supreme Court and of this court."

Connally paid tribute to Rhea Howard, president of the Times Publishing Co., for his confidence and faith in the continued growth and development of Wichita Falls and North Texas.

Leading Vanguard
"Wichita Falls and North Texas are one of the finest regions in Texas and you and your company are leading the vanguard as always," the governor told Howard.

Howard told the state's chief executive the Times Publishing Co. had constructed the new facility because it believed in serving on an expanded basis the growing news and advertising needs of Wichita Falls and this area.

Connally termed the new building as a "tribute to a lifetime of newspaper work in Wichita Falls" by Howard.

Commenting briefly upon his current campaign for renomination as the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, Connally said he is running upon the 1962 state Democratic platform adopted in El Paso and upon his record since becoming governor.

He said progress has been made since then in the industrial development of Texas, upon the tourist program, on the small loans associations, and in the field of education.

"I think that is the true basis upon which my tenure as governor should be judged," he said.

Citing the state's fiscal situation, Connally said he expected a state surplus at the end of this biennium would be about $38,000,000 although some thought that it could reach $100,000,000.

On Industry
In discussing the industrial development program in Texas, the governor said that during 1963 this state ranked second in the nation in acquiring new industrial plants.

He said that Texas acquired 317 new industrial organizations last year and that only New York paced this state with 325.

He pointed out that the National Industrial Association had awarded Texas an award for its industrial expansion program during 1963.

Connally declared he believes that, although great progress had been made in the educational field since he became the state's chief, "I think we can make a great deal more progress in the next two years."

Dropout Problem
One of the greatest problems, as far as education is concerned is the problem of dropouts, he added. He said special surveys are being made and special programs being undertaken that are aimed at possible solutions of this problem.

He said an monumental task is ahead for Texas in the proper development of its parks and recreational programs and said that despite stepped up activity recently the facilities are still not ample to meet ever-growing needs.

Connally praised Rep. Graham Purrell of the 13th congressional district and his record in Congress, declaring that "he is following in the footsteps of some great congressmen from this district."

The governor, who spoke at an appreciation dinner in Quannah Tuesday night for retiring State Sen. George Moffett of the 23rd district, said he was glad to be in Moffett's home district.

He termed Jack Hightower of Vernon, who is seeking Moffett's State Senate seat, as "an old friend of mine."

Connally also said it pleased him to be in the home town of State Representatives Maurice Duke and Vernon Stewart.

Olney Man Dies, Second Injured In Plane Crash

of a hill, both men thrown from the craft.

The engine was found nearly 600 feet from the mangled wreckage in a small creek. There was no explosion.

Luther Stodman, a friend of the plane's pilot and the only witness to the fatal crash, said the aircraft was making a low-level pass over his house only about 100 yards from the crash scene.

The oil lease pumper said the plane must have hit a downdraft which slammed it to the earth, where the left wing ripped up several yards of turf.

"I was behind the house, working on the lease, when the plane came over. As he came over the house he banked off to the left, and the plane just slid down. It bounced across the field and when it stopped, the motor tore from the plane, flew about 200 yards through the air, ripped the tops from several trees and fell in a small creek. Both men were thrown from the wreckage," he said.

Wings Sheared Off
The Cessna landed in a field completely surrounded by power lines, and about 50 feet from a petrochemical tank installation. The fuselage was bent double and both wings were sheared from the body.

The airplane's altimeter was jammed at 500 feet and one gas tank was full, the other empty. The plane was equipped with radio and radio-directional instrumentation.

Joe Field, justice of the peace from Archer City, pronounced McKinney dead at the scene. Texas Highway Patrolman Otis C. Elmore, of Wichita Falls, investigated the accident.

Both men were taken to Wichita Falls in ambulances from Owens & Brunley Funeral Home.

McKinney, who lived at 910 Bluebonnet Drive in Olney, leaves a widow, Mrs. Mildred McKinney, and five children—Mrs. Ben Kee of Frederick, Okla., and Mrs. Marvin Swaim, Robert, Judy and Mike McKinney, all of Olney; his mother and two brothers, Mrs. John Mosely and O. C. and Kenneth McKinney, all of Woodland, Calif.

Industry Tour Set In Bowie

BOWIE, Tex. (Special)—A group of civic leaders and other interested citizens will tour eight industries here Thursday morning as the concluding highlight of the Olney Industrial Week observance.

They will see Olney activities as diverse as highway building and aircraft construction.

led by Freddy Horany and Lynn Rieves, tour co-chairmen, the group will leave the chamber of commerce offices at 9:45 a.m. to visit the Dr. Pepper Bottling Company, Bill Lisle Drilling Co., Holiday Boiler Works, Thomas-Milford Cementing Co., Olney Cementing Co., A & A Contractors and the Snow Aeronautical Company.

The tour will be completed by noon and is being sponsored by the chamber of commerce industrial committee headed by Howard Rast-Chamber directors and members of the Olney Industrial Foundation will be among the delegation.

Tuesday's activities included a downtown parade and dedication of the Haggard Plant, Olney Manufacturing Co., with Governor John Connally giving the dedicatory address.

Wichitan Receives Real Estate Title

The Society of Real Estate Appraisers has awarded the Senior Residential Appraiser designation to Leroy O. Wilkins, 4804 Danberry.

Wilkins is a member of the society's Fort Worth chapter, and has had seven years of experience in appraising residential and commercial properties. He is a graduate of Southern Technical Institute, a past district governor of the Texas Real Estate Association, and former president of the Wichita Falls Board of Realtors.

Yarborough Dinner Slated

Simultaneous announcements were made here Wednesday night of an appreciation dinner to be held for Texas' Senior Senator Ralph Yarborough April 11 at the Woman's Forum here and the acceptance by Mrs. James V. Allied, widow of the former Texas governor, of the honorary chairmanship of the Wichita County campaign for Yarborough's re-election.

Announcement of the dinner, to be attended by supporters of Sen. Yarborough throughout North Texas, was made by the senator's county re-election campaign co-chairmen, Tom Huckaby and Mrs. Dorothy Wise, and state staff assistant Harry O'Connor.

Sen. Yarborough will deliver the principal address at the $10-a-plate affair, and his workers here are anticipating a sell-out crowd.

An appreciation dinner in Austin in October for the Senator was attended by some 6,000 supporters.

Prior to Yarborough's arrival in Wichita Falls Saturday, April 11, he will dedicate the newly-completed Proctor Dam near Comanche, Tex.

"The people of Wichita Falls will take this opportunity to express their appreciation to Senator Yarborough for his six years of hard work and dedicated service as Texas' senior senator," Mrs. Wise and Huckaby said.

The co-chairmen said tickets may be obtained by calling Huckaby at 322-3171 or 723-7636 or Mrs. Wise at 767-3170.

Pointing out that ticket sales already are under way, Huckaby said groups who plan to attend and wish to be seated together at the dinner should make reservations immediately to guarantee special seating.

Noting Mrs. Allied's acceptance of honorary chairmanship of Yarborough's re-election campaign in this county, Huckaby said Yarborough served as assistant attorney general under the late Governor Allied and ran his first political race in attorney general during Allied's term.

Senator Yarborough took office April 29, 1957 and was re-elected in 1958. In the Senate he serves on the Commerce, Labor and Public Welfare Committee, Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Special Committee on the Aging and President Johnson's Special Committee on Economy.

The senator heads subcommittees on Veterans Affairs, Freedom of Communications and Civil Service and is a member of subcommittees on Communications, Surface Transportation, Health, Postal Affairs, Health Benefits and Life Insurance, Health of the Elderly, Federal, State and Community Services, and special subcommittee on poverty.

Several representatives of the campaign staff for Sen. Ralph Yarborough also were introduced, and members were told of plans for an appreciation dinner for the senator April 11 at the Women's Forum. Tickets will be $10 a plate, Richie said.

Richie also appealed to coalition members to vote in Saturday's school board race. "We've always taken a great interest in the city races. I hope we'll begin talking that same interest in the school board race," he continued.

About one-half the U.S. strawberry crop is processed as frozen food, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Third Meeting Coalition Declines New Endorsements

Members of the Wichita County Democratic Coalition, composed of labor union representatives, residents of the east side and leaders in the Latin American-PASO movement, voted Wednesday night to make no endorsements as a group of candidates in the April 7 municipal election here.

Gene Richie, Wichita Falls attorney who presided, told the 15 persons attending the meeting, "I know everyone here is interested in the elections. I hope you all get out to vote."

The general consensus of our opinions about the candidates are fairly close. And I want to say this about the team: We all know who the team is, we just want to know the identity of the coach."

Richie referred to a recent public announcement that J. Winston Wallander, candidate for mayor, and Harry Campsey, A. J. Otte, Leroy Daniel and Pete Clayton, candidates for council seats, were running as a team or slate.

Candidates and representatives of candidates in other races which the coalition has officially endorsed were present at the meeting, held at 918-Indiana, campaign headquarters for Don Yarborough, candidate for nomination as a Democrat for governor.

The annual event was held in the Livestock Barn at the Quannah Municipal Airport.

Wednesday grand champion honors in the fat steer division went to Tony Quisenberry. In the barrow division, Woodie Northman captured the grand champion ribbons and Eddie Northman won reserve honors. The two Quannah, Tex. brothers also won championship ribbons in all swine divisions.

YMCA Schedules Handball Tourney

The Central Young Men's Christian Association's ninth annual invitational handball tournament, scheduled Friday, Saturday and Sunday, has received entrants from cities throughout the Southwest. With competition for singles and doubles in A, B and masters' classes, the event will be a single elimination contest with a consolation bracket.

Tournament Chairman Jackie Watkins said Wednesday that Bob Lindsay, ranked eighth nationally in doubles competition last Saturday in St. Louis, Mo., will be the favored contender, with the singles championship slot anyone's guess.

Auto Licenses Still Available

Wichitans who failed to buy automobile license plates by the deadline Wednesday midnight may still purchase the plates without penalty, said Bill Carnes, county tax assessor-collector.

However, citizens are warned not to drive their vehicles in public until they have installed the 1964 plates.

No estimate of sales could be determined Wednesday night, but Carnes said traffic was "light" when he closed his courthouse office at 7:30 p.m.

Sales were expected to exceed the $100,000 mark by week's end. The tax office in the county courthouse will close at regular hours Thursday, as will substations at Electric, Iowa Park and Burk Burnett.

Other substations in Wichita Falls are located at Parker Square Savings and Loan Assn. and Levine's in Southgate Shopping Center.

Bill Owens Said 'Satisfactory'

Bill Owens, veteran vendor of the Wichita Falls Record News and Times, was reported by Bethania Hospital in satisfactory condition Wednesday night.

Attendants at the hospital said the well-known newsboy had been resting well and had arisen for some exercise during the day. They also said he was eating well and gaining strength but that no further word had been received from physicians on a possible time for his release.

Wellington Airman Assigned Sheppard

Airman Jerry R. Belew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Belew of Wellington, Tex., is being re-assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base for technical training as a United States Air Force missile facilities specialist.

Airman Belew completed basic military training at Lackland AFB.

The airman is a graduate of Wellington High School and is a former student at Wichita (Kan.) University.

Auditorium Work Begun Wednesday

Work on phase one of remodeling of Memorial Auditorium under the $6.9 million capital improvements bond issue approved by the voters last June was launched Wednesday as employees of M. A. Vordenbaum & Son, prime contractors, began moving equipment to the site.

The first phase will consist of remodeling the auditorium proper, installation of new seats, lighting, air conditioning and acoustical improvements, and installation of a freight elevator.

Phase two will consist of remodeling of the office portion of the building to provide more efficiency in use of space for municipal offices, City Manager Jack Davis said.

Bids on phase two are scheduled to be received in September, and completion of both phases is scheduled in the summer of 1965. Estimated cost of both phases is $795,000.

RIDICULES RED CHINESE

Khrushchev Says Prosperity Only Worthwhile Objective

By JOHN O. KOEHLER
BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Wednesday, "Prosperity is the only thing worthwhile to struggle for."

The Soviet leader ridiculed Red China for offering nothing but revolution in its campaign for uprisings around the world in the name of hard-line communism.

"If we could promise people nothing better than revolution," Khrushchev told 5,000 workers at a Budapest electrical equipment factory, "they would scratch their heads and say: 'Isn't it better to have good gou-lash?'"

Target Apparent

The Soviet leader did not cite Red China by name, but the Hungarians recognized his target as the giant ideological adversary of the Soviet bloc.

They applauded enthusiastically. Perhaps they remembered it was Peking that gave Moscow the final push to use troops to smash the Hungarian uprising of 1956.

"There are people in the world who call themselves Communists and Marxists-Leninists and at the same time say that we should not strive for a better life but make revolution," Khrushchev said.

"But what would have happened in Lenin's days when the peasants and workers were called upon to overthrow the rule of the capitalists if they had only been promised a revolution? That would not have been enough for them. Prosperity is the only worthwhile thing to struggle for."

Khrushchev, who was accompanied by Andrei Gromyko, told the workers to work harder to overtake the West. He presented them a big plaster bust of Lenin.

In general, the workers gave Khrushchev a polite reception, warmer than the one he received in 1958 just two years after the ill-fated revolution. At that time, he spoke to coal miners at Tatabanya and became furious when thousands drifted away before he had finished.

Confers With Leaders

Khrushchev and Hungarian party leaders met again, apparently to work out details on how to counter the increasingly vicious Red Chinese attacks on Moscow's brand of communism and on the Soviet leader himself.

Premier Janos Kadar and his deputy premier, Gyula Kallai, led the Hungarian side while Khrushchev was assisted by Gromyko and Yuri Andropov, a Central Committee member responsible for relations with other Communist parties.

Khrushchev arrived here Tuesday, ostensibly for celebration on the 19th anniversary of Hungary's liberation from Nazism by the Red army. Rumors that a summit conference of top European party leaders would be held while Khrushchev was in Hungary—rumors which had been previously discounted—cropped up again Wednesday.

Meeting Unlikely

A Communist source said such a meeting would be held sometime next week, somewhere outside Budapest. But Western experts on Eastern affairs paid little attention, saying such a meeting in Hungary would lower Khrushchev's prestige.

"It would be like the Pope calling a conclave to be held on the French Riviera," one said. The betting among Western diplomats here was that a summit meeting will be held in Moscow about April 17, when top European Communist party leaders are expected to gather to celebrate Khrushchev's 70th birthday.

Friendship Club Hears Candidate

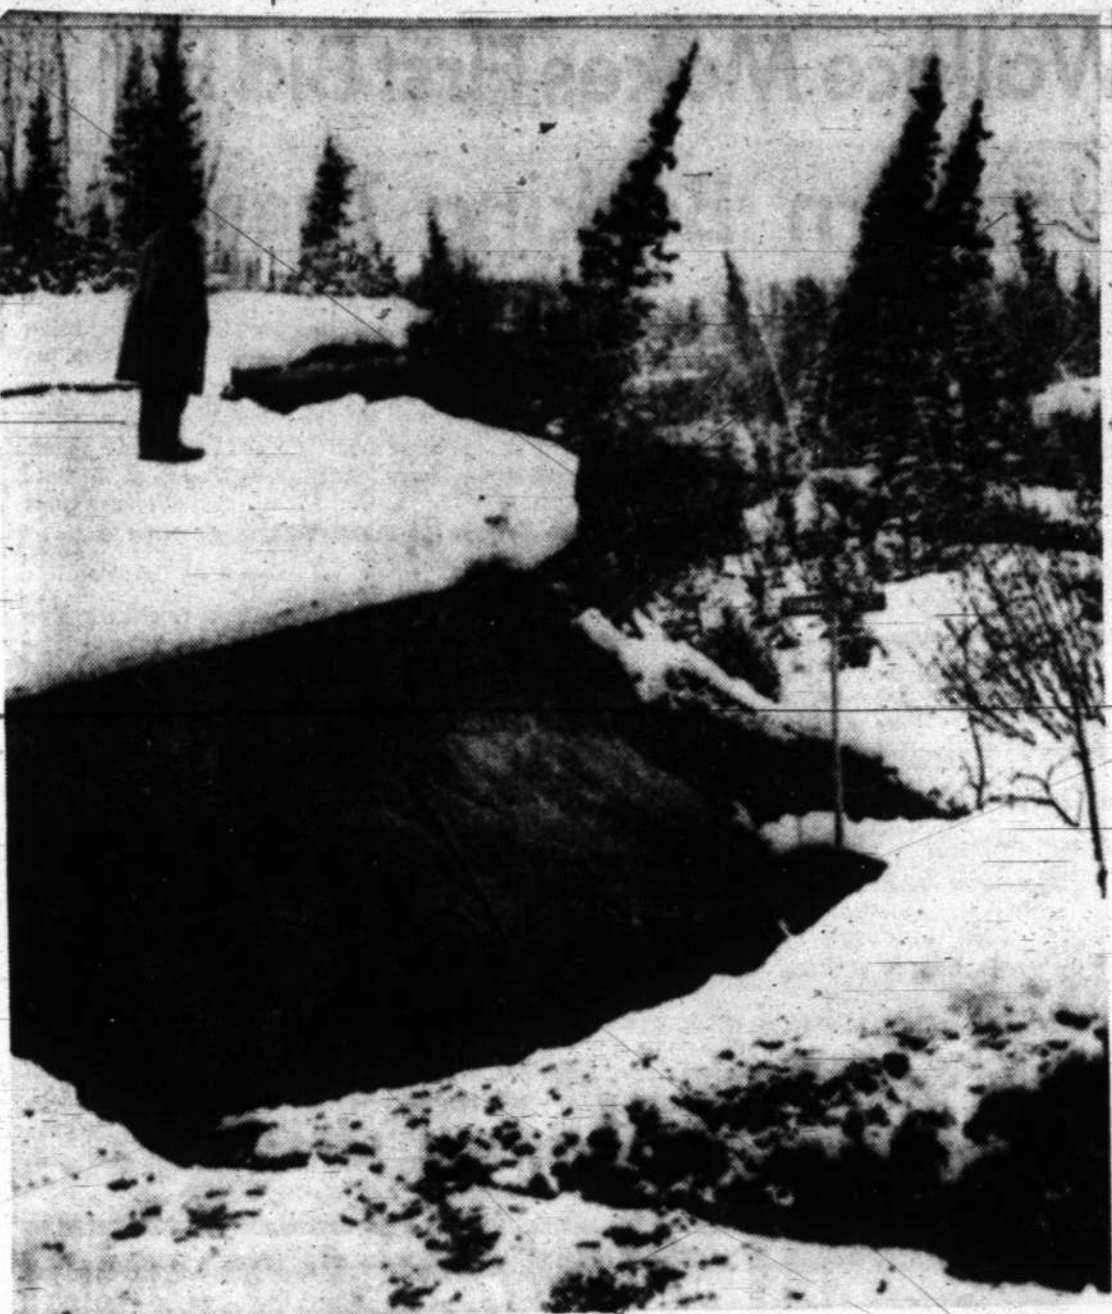

At a luncheon meeting of the Friendship Club Wednesday George McMackin gave a brief talk on the qualifications necessary in the county tax office.

A question and answer period followed.

In response to the question, "Will you abolish the 'snap-out' tax form now used by the tax collector in the ad valorem division?" McMackin stated that he was in sympathy with the use of snap-out forms where practical.

McMackin further reminded the group that he had started the use of "snap-out" forms in another department of the court house some six months before the ad valorem department began their use.

Members present at the home of Mrs. F. C. Paul were Mmes. W. E. Brownrigg, W. E. Baxter, J. E. English, R. L. Owen, C. O. Smith, Mae Thomas and J. L. Webb.

DIRKSEN DISCUSSES DOZEN AMENDMENTS — Washington — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois, talks to newsmen about the civil rights bill. The senator said he will offer a about 12 amendments to improve, not "emas-

MECHANICAL HOUSEWIFE TO TAKE OVER CHORES?

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — The wife of the man who has invented a mechanical housewife laughed off the suggestion Wednesday that her hubby's robot may drive housewives from their homes.

"I realize that the thought of a robot clanking around the house might horrify some women," said Margaret Thring, "but it shouldn't. They should welcome the mechanism with outstretched arms and hymns of praise."

"Because it will free women from so many of the dull repetitive, back-breaking chores that can make their lives so dreary," she replied.

The mechanical housewife — or Thring's "Thing" — was invented by Dr. Meredith Thring, professor of fuel technology and chemical engineering at Sheffield University.

Among other things, Thring's Thing is designed to: scrub floors, clean carpets, wash windows, clean the bath, wash and iron clothes, set tables and make beds — even change the sheets.

The professor has made a small, simplified model and he's convinced the life-sized real thing will definitely become a reality.

Judge Shell Back At Work

Judge Temple Shell, 7th District Court in Wichita Falls, returned to his bench Wednesday after recovering from a heart attack suffered seven months ago.

Breckenridge Judge Floyd Jones had been acting in Judge Shell's absence. Wichita County judges helped in Judge Jones's duties in 1956 when he suffered a similar disability.

Relieved of his duties in the 7th District Court, Judge Jones will hold court for Judge Arthur Tipps in 30th District Court for three days while the judge enjoys a brief vacation.

DOWNTOWN OPTIMISTS CELEBRATE 40TH YEAR

The Downtown Optimist Club celebrated its 40th anniversary with a Founder's Day program Wednesday with Dr. Earle Crawford speaking on the meaning of anniversary. Three charter members were honored.

Wives of Optimists, members of the Optimists Club and past presidents were honor guests.

The club was formed in 1924 and is almost half as old as Wichita Falls Dr. Crawford noted. He said the age 40 has several meanings. There's the proverbial "Life Begins at 40," but the one to be most concerned is that it is a "hardening age."

Dr. Crawford urged flexibility to meet the challenge of changing times, to survive and progress. He said optimism really means that the good overbalances the bad and it is the outlook that the future will come out all right.

These type people are found, said Dr. Crawford, in service clubs; these clubs are important adjuncts to any city their members serve. Members of these clubs are among those called "they," those who do something about things, keep things going faster than the pace of tradition and make sure things reach the future state.

Wallace Makes First Bid For Northern Backing Tuesday

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama makes his first bid for Northern support next Tuesday in Wisconsin's Democratic primary, temporarily shifting attention from the race for the Republican presidential nomination.

The segregationist governor, who says he is running mainly to protest the administration's civil rights program now before the Senate, has a slate of delegates pledged to deliver him Wisconsin's 46 votes at the Democratic National Convention next August.

Opposing them is a delegate slate headed by Gov. John W. Reynolds, who is pledged to support the nomination of President Johnson.

Republican State Running unopposed is a Republican slate of delegates pledged to Rep. John W. Byrnes as a favorite son candidate for the GOP nomination.

Wallace also is entered in Democratic primaries in Indiana on May 5 and Maryland on May 19. He also has pledges of support from all candidates for delegate in the May 5 Alabama Democratic primary.

The Wisconsin primary is only the second of 19 scheduled for this spring. The first, in New Hampshire March 10, was won by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge on the Republican side and Johnson on the Democratic side, both as write-ins.

Deadline Passed

The deadline for entry has passed in all but South Dakota, New York and the District of Columbia.

Most attention now is being focused on the Oregon test May 15 and the California vote June 2. Those are the only two states with clear-cut meaningful contests among major GOP hopefuls.

Texas Republicans have set a preference poll on all announced candidates for May 2 but its results are not binding on delegates to the national convention, most of whom are expected to favor Goldwater.

Listed on the Oregon ballot are Goldwater, Rockefeller, Lodge, former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton.

Not Announced Candidates

Lodge, Nixon and Scranton are not announced candidates, but under Oregon law their names can be placed on the ballot without their consent.

The outcome of the preference primary is binding on the state's 18 Republican delegates chosen in an accompanying primary.

Rockefeller, Goldwater and Stassen are entered in California. There is no preference poll, but each man has slates of delegates pledged to support him in the convention, and the delegates' choice appears on the primary ballot. High man wins all of the 96 votes.

Death Penalty Given To Cuban

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Cuban Supreme Court sentenced a Communist youth to death Wednesday in the climax of a trial that made public an apparent split in Cuba's Communist party.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro testified for 4 1/2 hours during the trial and accused the defendant as charged. Castro scolded old-line Communists but in the end called for unity.

The verdict, announced by Havana radio monitored in Miami, seemed to have no bearing on the outcome of the apparent party fight since Castro was believed to have been trying to maintain unity.

The youth, Marcos Rodriguez Alfonso, 26, was convicted of betraying four revolutionaries to police during the regime of Fulgencio Batista. The four were killed in Havana in 1957.

Reports circulated that testimony in the first trial had been suppressed to spare high-ranking old guard Communists in the Castro government. The prime minister then intervened and demanded the new trial. Proceedings were carried by the Cuban radio network.

Officer Selection Announced Mike Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Ford, 2006 Santa Fe and president of the PASF of WFHS announced to club members a new system by which the officers for the coming year will be chosen.

The new system will be based on the selection of candidates for officers as in the State organization of PASF.

This system means that each student who is nominated by the nominating committee for an office will be interrogated as to the duties of his office, qualifications and his proposed platform. Each candidate will be questioned by the person who is presently holding the office.

Council To Assist Members of the Spanish Council will attend the interrogation and then help to formulate a final slate of two students, each seeking one of the eight offices.

After the final slate of officers has been chosen, each PASF member will vote by secret ballot for the candidate of his choice.

Ford also announced a new office, photographer, which will be appointed by the president.

The photographer will be responsible for getting photographs of all the club's activities and will collaborate with the historian in making the next year's scrapbook.

Most Of Belgium's Doctors On Strike

By JOHN SWAELENS BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The ill and the injured had to be emergency cases to get medical attention in Belgium on Wednesday night. Most of the 10,000 doctors in this nation of nine million were on strike. The strike's target was a government revision of Belgium's state-controlled, tax-supported health insurance system, part of a social security regime instituted 10 years ago. Reforms ordered into effect Jan. 1 for a one-year probationary period were intended to broaden the coverage and to help make the system, which is operating in the red, financially self-supporting. However, free treatment is ordered for widows, orphans, chronic invalids, and the aged.

Between their spokesman and the government. Premier Theo Lefevre told newsmen his regime has prepared measures to remedy the strike. He did not elaborate. Some doctors, expecting a move toward conscription, have never returned home from Easter vacations. Dr. Maurice Thone told newsmen the doctors "promise to fight until the end to assure the triumph of human rights." He is president of the National Federation of Medical Chambers, a professional association. Urgent Cases Only Emergency medical services set up in hospitals handled only the most urgent cases, though Social Affairs Minister Edmond Leburton told newsmen, "Many services are functioning normally." Everybody concerned — the doctors, the government and trade union leaders concerned about protection of their members — moved cautiously to avoid any serious incidents. Many doctors who declined to treat private patients voluntarily manned the emergency hospital services and responded quickly to urgent calls. Union men peacefully picketed some doctors' homes. Belgian political sources said there was talk of mediation by parliamentary leaders — House President Achille Van Acker, who helped to establish Belgium's social security system after World War II, and Senate President Paul Struyve. The feeling in Brussels was that the strike could not last long, because of both the health issue and administrative problems.

Three Children Are Abandoned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three girls came from out of the rain into a police station here late Wednesday night. A letter they carried said they were from East St. Louis, Ill. "Auntie Carol let us off," was their only explanation. The oldest identified herself as Patsy, 7. Her sisters, she said, were Yvonne, 5, and Margie, 2. A two-page handwritten letter she handed officers at the Venice Police Station said in part: "Dear Sir: I am leaving the kids in your care. I have had them for two weeks and I was baby sitting them. I don't know what to do with them. They are from East St. Louis, Ill. Their Dad just left them with me. I don't know where their father is. His name is Bill Fosnock. I don't know about their Mom but she is in East St. Louis somewhere." The letter ended: "They need lots of love. God be with them always. Please take good care of them." The letter was unsigned. Officers said the children were clean and warmly dressed. They were taken to McLaren Hall, a juvenile home in nearby El Monte.

Attempt To Orbit Gemini Spacecraft Slated Tuesday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After months of delay, the space agency announced Wednesday the Project Gemini flight test program will start next Tuesday with an effort to orbit an unmanned spacecraft. The launching is one of two unmanned tests planned before two astronauts ride into space together in the same capsule. If no hitches develop, the first manned flight, a three-orbit trip, will be made in November or December. In announcing the Tuesday firing, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration termed Gemini a bridge between the Mercury program and the Project Apollo manned lunar landing mission scheduled late in this decade. Mercury ended last May 16 with the 22-orbit, 34-hour flight of astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr.

HOLLYWOOD and VINE
by HEDDA HOPPER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—We haven't had a singing cowboy since Gene Autry and Roy Rogers, but one's on the way.

Straight out of Nashville, Tenn., comes Leroy Van Dyke, who is number two on the country western hit parade. His "Auctioneer" sold 2 1/2 million. "Walk On By" sold a million and a half.

He is 6-feet-1, a wholesome, solid type. Van Dyke formed his own motion picture production company with Gene Nash; tees off with "Singing Partners." Country music is big business.

In 1962 the recording artists in Nashville sold 42 million dollars worth of their wares.

When Charles Laughton's estate is settled, Elsa Lanchester may tour the world with their art collection. Museums all over are asking for it. Elsa's one-woman show at Hollywood's Ivar Theatre is a sell-out.

Gypsy Rose Lee Face Lift
Many stars have had face lifts but won't talk about it. Leave it to Gypsy Rose Lee to give you the facts. Six months ago she got the works.

Four days afterwards she took off for New York where her pals said, "That California climate is sure great for you, Gyp—you look wonderful."

Gypsy thinks anyone who tares and can afford it should give themselves a treat.

"We spend fortunes on clothes, diet ourselves silly, wear wigs, false eyelashes, fingernails, expensive face creams, perfume," she declares. "All the doctor does is adjust the outer skin."

Samuel Taylor is in town putting the finishing touches on "Three on a Couch," but Columbia Studios' headman, Mike Frankovich, says it isn't being tailored for any star.

"First we get it on paper, then we start casting," he explained.

Frankovich is back from a one-week tour of his picture productions on location — "Lord Jim" in London and "Behold a Pale Horse" in Paris. He went to Rome to discuss "The Bible" project. They have another big one on the fire, "Richard the Lion-Hearted."

Beach Bore Star
Vera Miles says it may be chic to live at the beach but they can have it.

"I don't like sun, sand, and that ocean roar," she confessed. "Five years ago the barefoot and jeans routine was O.K. Today give me the cosmopolitan look."

Her husband, Keith Larsen, paid Frank Capra his last penny some 15 years ago for a place at Malibu Beach and it was his dream to live there with his family.

"You can't shatter a man's dream," Vera said. "So we were there two years. I wasn't the one who cried uncle. One day Keith said: 'I can't stand this. I want to go where there's some action.' We moved immediately."

Vera, with a new Helen Rose wardrobe, returned to Kansas for the first time since she was named "Miss Wichita" and took off for the "Miss America" contest and Hollywood. She is touring the midwest for Walt Disney's "A Tiger Walks," in which she appears.

Burton's Best Man

Richard Burton's best man at the wedding was Stanley Baker, a boyhood friend, also the son of a Welsh coal miner.

Their lives parallel in interesting fashion. Both probably would have wound up working underground like the rest of their families had it not been for the interest of school teachers. Baker's first stage role was "The Druid's Rest" starring Emyln Williams. He and Burton played two young Welsh boys.

Why all this rush over who will star in "Virginia Woolf"? Ernest Lehman, who is writing the script and will produce, hasn't even arrived in Hollywood. I'll bet when the film is made Bette Davis will star.

Bob Hancock writes from Clinton, Va.: "I admire Rosalind Russell and Geraldine Page, but I can't visualize them as the she-devil (to put it mildly) Martha. This is the role Bette Davis was born for."

John Ford's wife, Mary, home from Honolulu where she supervised the new decor for their boat, said, "I think no more of getting on a jet and flying to Hawaii than I do of going downtown."

"I asked if she would accompany Ford to Ireland where he will make his next picture."

"Not if the Dodgers are here," she said. "I'd forego a trip around the world to see them and I don't know one of them personally."

"Teacher says she's goin' to give me a chance to get better marks next year. She's putting me down two grades."

Pentagon Order: Turn Out Lights!

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon workers have been told to lower their office window blinds before leaving for the day — apparently so passing citizens won't notice lights that are left burning.

One aim, judging from a new memo, is to help "project a favorable public image of government buildings."

The memo, circulated by the office of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, also is intended to get the Pentagon into line with President Johnson's save-on-lights campaign.

Anybody driving by the Pentagon at night had been able to see light streaming from many of its 7,600 windows.

Some of this light, of course, came from the offices of people on duty. Some came from offices being cleaned by a small army of charwomen and maintenance men.

Some obviously came from lights left burning carelessly — and the memorandum is aimed at trying to cure this.

Early today it was a different story, indicating the new order was being observed. From nearby highways, no lighted windows could be spotted.

Dated March 30, the memorandum says:

"The General Services Administration is making a concerted effort to achieve economies in its building management program and to project a favorable image of government buildings.

"To this end, they have requested that defense employees 'turn out lights and lower and tilt the slats of venetian blinds (on exterior windows) before leaving their offices at the end of each day.'

"For those working evenings, weekends and holidays this is particularly important since the char forces are not available to turn off lights which have been overlooked."

Asked about this, a GSA spokesman said the reason for the admonition about lowering and tilting venetian blind slats was to conserve heat and thus save on heating bills.

Why mention only "exterior windows" — the ones facing the highways? What about the thousands of windows which look out on courts from the Pentagon's inner rings, away from public view?

The mention of outside windows wasn't GSA's idea, that agency's spokesman said.

The Pentagon has 65,000 light fixtures. They require 1,000 replacement electric bulbs each day.

So, questions of public image aside, a campaign to get people to click off the lights is bound to save money.

Greer County Sets Pioneer Reunion

Other officers of the association are Gerald Trout, vice president, and Mrs. H. L. Dowdy, secretary.

"For the past several years, the reunion has been held in conjunction with the Old-Greer Rodeo. However, the rodeo is scheduled for May 14-16 this year."

LITTLE BOY AND LARGE LOBSTER — Corpus Christi — Freddie Potts, 8-day old child, posed at the Corpus Christi Museum with this large lobster. The lobster was caught by fishermen about 4 months ago in Corpus Christi Bay. Dr. Aalbert Heime, curator of the museum,

Plan To Cut Traffic Death Toll Outlined

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council has called for action to cut the nation's record traffic death toll in half. Fatalities could be slashed 50 per cent, the council said Wednesday, if states and cities make effective use of known corrective measures.

That means about 22,000 lives could be saved annually—about half of the 44,300 fatalities recorded in 1963.

The council reckoned the cost of corrective measures at more than $500 million a year. But, it submitted, the losses caused by accidents would be halved if the program attains its goal. That would mean a saving of $3.5 billion — half the current annual total losses of more than $7 billion.

"Unless the recommendations of the council are carried out," Howard Pyle said, "by 1975 traffic fatalities could approach the 100,000 mark each year." Pyle is council president.

Among the recommendations:

- Add 24,400 men to state and local police forces at an annual cost of about $217 million. That would be an increase of about 20 per cent in the 118,000 officers now assigned to traffic work.
- Spend an additional $92 million a year on driver education in public schools. Teen-age drivers are increasing at a rapid rate.
- Put an additional 1,130 men at an annual cost of $9 million on traffic engineering duty in the states, and assign an additional 600 persons to full-time traffic engineering in cities at a cost of $3.5 million.
- Increase man days of maintenance of state traffic control devices — signs, signals, markings — by a total of 239,212 days per year at a cost of almost $6 million.
- Earmark $150 million more each year for improved driver licensing procedure, motor vehicle inspection, more accurate record keeping and improved safety programs.

Goulart Dislikes Capitalism

Politically, too, he leans to the left. His demands for sweeping constitutional reforms and legalization of the outlawed Communist party have made him a target of revolt.

Goulart, 46, is a wealthy rancher and former cowboy with a professed love for the Brazilian working man. The chief of state of a nation which has received about $2 billion worth of American aid since World War II, he dislikes U.S. capitalism.

"Foreign companies," he has said repeatedly, "suck the lifeblood out of the Brazilian economy and are the chief reason for the impoverishment of our people."

Quiet and rather plain, in street clothes he looks like a working man dressed up on a day off. He seems uncomfortable in a suit and tie and often his tie is loosened and pulled down under an open shirt collar.

Goulart got into politics through one quirk of fortune and achieved the presidency through another.

First came his acquaintance in the 1940s with a neighboring rancher in Rio Grande do Sul, dictator Getulio Vargas. Getulio Vargas. They became fast friends. The old man and the younger talked politics for hours at Vargas' home. Vargas schooled Goulart so well that he made him labor minister in his last administration.

When Vargas committed suicide—he said he was driven to it by foreign economic forces—on Aug. 24, 1954, Goulart became his political heir and president of the Vargas-founded Brazilian Labor party.

He was elected vice president under President Juscelino Kubitschek in October 1954 and was re-elected by a narrow margin in October 1960, as the running mate of Janio Quadros.

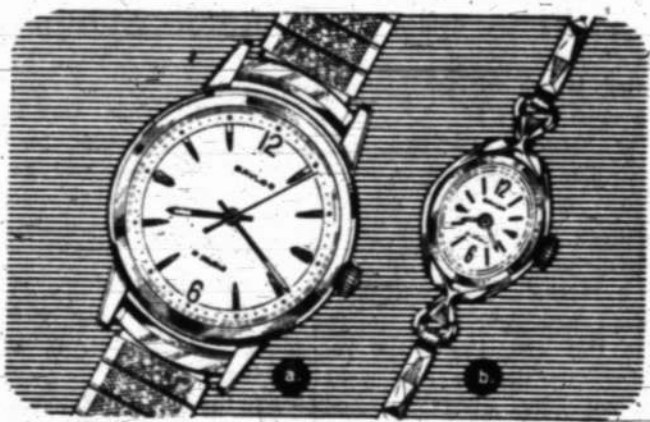

Fortune smiled on him a second time when Quadros unexpectedly quit the presidency in August 1961.

Over stiff opposition in Congress from conservatives suspicious of his political philosophy, Goulart was seated as Quadros' successor.

As vice president, Goulart was a traveler. He had visited the Soviet Union and Red China and was still in the Far East when Quadros stepped down. He told a Hong Kong news conference it was his personal opinion that Red China should be admitted to the United Nations.

A Texas A&M graduate, he had completed 38 years with the company, and retires on April

Lengthy Debate Seen For Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the majority leader, said Wednesday the Senate may not vote on the civil rights bill until fall.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant majority leader, said it is conceivable a continuing Southern filibuster against the bill cannot be broken for months, but said he is optimistic it can.

"I think we can get this bill passed in reasonable time if we just buckle down and work," he said.

Their comments highlighted another day of debate on the administration's House-passed civil rights plan, marked also by charges by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., that Negroes are denied voting rights in the South, in many cases, simply because of the color of their skin.

Available Laws
A counterclaim by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that the government has not used available laws permitting criminal prosecution of election officials who deny voting rights. He said the reason probably was that in a criminal trial "you have to prove what you claim."

A proposal by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., that postmasters or other local federal officials be made voting registrars "whenever it is found that state or local election machinery is supporting voting discrimination."

Mansfield, talking to newsmen, said he feared the civil rights debate would continue through both major party political conventions this summer—the Republican in San Francisco in July, and the Democratic in Atlantic City, N.J., in late August.

Brief Recess
"I wouldn't be surprised if we go through both conventions on this bill," Mansfield said. "If this happens the Senate probably will recess briefly for the party meetings."

Keating, in a Senate speech, denied contentions that apathy is the cause of low Negro registration in the South.

"The voting-age Negro population of Mississippi is over 500,000," he said. "Yet there are 14 counties in Mississippi in which not a single Negro citizen is registered."

Keating said he would like the bill's voting provisions strengthened: to apply its provisions to state as well as federal elections; to implement a constitutional provision for reducing a state's congressional representation in proportion to the disenfranchised voters it has; and to permit immediate appointment of temporary registrars when a voting suit is filed.

Ervin questioned Keating for 2 hours and 15 minutes, challenging the New Yorker's arguments, and suggesting that apathy was the reason for much of the low Negro registration.

Hart, also in a Senate speech, said the bill's voting provisions are modest and he would personally prefer a more direct approach, then outlining his plans for postmaster and other federal or local registrars.

"It is the patience of the American Negro which in many respects is the most remarkable fact of all as we look at the civil rights revolution of the 1960s," he said.

Only 8.3 per cent of all voting-age Negroes in 100 counties of 8 Southern states were registered in 1962, he said. In 1956, the figure was 5 per cent. This pace would require 100 years to get even a majority of them registered, he said.

Johnson Asks Congress For Panel To Probe Food Prices

By JAMES CARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress on Wednesday to create a 15-member commission to determine why producers are receiving less and consumers are paying more for food products in the United States.

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of a Senate Commerce subcommittee already checking pricing and marketing practices of the big food chains, promptly stated the new investigation could become one of the most important of the century.

Johnson announced at his ranch in Texas last Saturday he would ask for the legislation.

Following this up Wednesday, he sent letters to House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Senate President Pro Tem Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., asking that the bipartisan commission be set up.

Study Changes

He said it should study and appraise the changes taking place in the American food industry. The letters made no reference to the spread in prices between producers and consumers.

But in Texas last Saturday he had said: "We have some commodities today, where the producer is receiving 25, 30 per cent less and we have the housewife who is paying 25 or 30 per cent more."

The commission would have five members named by the House, five by the Senate and five by the President. Their job, the President said, would be to compile sufficient information upon which to base an informed judgment of the effect of recent changes in the food industry.

Low meat prices received by cattlemen are one of the chief areas of concern.

Proposal Introduced
McGee introduced Johnson's proposal in the Senate, and said: "On this day the Congress, the administration and indeed the entire American public have taken the first step in what may be one of the most important investigations of this century."

Johnson's plan, if approved, would set in force "a sweeping investigation into the pricing, marketing, distribution and competitive practices of the giant food chains," he said.

McGee used his own resolution for a similar inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission as a vehicle for getting Johnson's proposal before the Senate and his subcommittee.

The subcommittee's hearings, which have been in recess, will be resumed, he said, and will focus on Johnson's plan, with particular emphasis on the meat industry.

$2-Billion Loss
"The beef industry has suffered a $2-billion loss in the past two years," he said, "while the price of beef to the consumer has not been reduced at all."

"The chains also have the ability to retaliate against those (producers) who speak out against them," McGee said, "to exercise an unwarranted control over red meat prices at the producer's end of the marketing process."

Hearing Date Set By FTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first of a series of public hearings on charges of unfair trade practices against Furr's, Inc., a grocery chain, was set Wednesday to start April 21 in Lubbock, Tex.

Federal Trade Commission officials said. Examiner Walter Johnson will conduct the hearings. Other public sessions were scheduled for Denver, Colo., and Washington, D.C.

Furr operates more than 60 stores in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado. Company headquarters are in Lubbock.

A complaint filed against Furr's last June 28 by the FTC accuses the chain of obtaining payments from supplying companies in return for special advertising campaigns which Furr's put on and in which products of the supplying companies were exhibited.

The FTC said such payments were not accorded to Furr's competitors and that this put the competitors at a disadvantage. The charges have been denied by attorneys for Furr's.

The opening session in Lubbock will continue to May 1. The Denver hearing will be held May 4-8. The Washington hearing will be held May 13-15.

Johnson said the government will present its case in this series of hearings, with company attorneys cross examining witnesses. The company then will put on its own witnesses at hearings to be held here May 20, in Denver May 26-27, and in Lubbock May 28 to June 3. Rebuttal arguments are expected to be heard June 4-5.

Some 40 witnesses are expected to be called at the opening sessions in Lubbock, most of them Furr's officials. They will come in from El Paso, Oklahoma City, Denver, Houston and Albuquerque.

Minister Offers To Remove Phones

ELKHART, Tex. (AP)—A rural telephone rate squabble has become a question of who will remove the equipment of the Texas Telephone & Telegraph Co. from homes and businesses that want them taken out.

The Methodist minister leading a protest over rate boosts, the Rev. Colin Furr of Elkhart, said Tuesday he will assume responsibility for customers of T&T who want to disconnect their own phones if the company refuses to do so.

A company spokesman in Houston said willful destruction of its facilities would result in prosecution under federal and state laws.

The telephone controversy has been going on since Feb. 1, when the company raised rural rates from $4.50 to $6 a month. It serves 13,500 subscribers in 22 East and Central Texas counties.

Spokesmen said the company was forced to raise rates for maintenance and to meet payments on a $10 million Rural Electrification Administration loan.

The Rev. Mr. Furr and members of the Telephone Subscribers Association maintain a 33 1-3 per cent increase is too much and assert they would rather do without phones than pay it.

The minister said 2,600 subscribers have signed termination slips to have their phones removed.

"If the company wants to punish anyone, I will take full responsibility, since I issued the directive as head of the association," he said. "They can sue me or send me to prison if they want."

Francis Winters of Houston, executive vice president of T&T, said the company will not remove any phones until requested to do so individually by customers.

He said 85 per cent of the subscribers are satisfied and the company will stand firm on its rate increase.

Missionary From Brazil Is Speaker

HASKELL, Tex. (Special) — Miss Maybelle Taylor, a Southern Baptist missionary to Brazil, has been visiting in Haskell, her home town, while on furlough from her duties in Aracaju, State of Sergipe, Brazil.

Miss Taylor gave a report of her work in Brazil to two circles of the First Baptist Church. She told of the fight against illiteracy, poverty, superstition and ignorance. The need of Christianity is far greater than material and physical needs, Miss Taylor said.

The missionary is state director of the Girls' Auxiliary Department and is state general chairman of the Woman's convention and principal of the Baptist School in Aracaju. She has been serving in Brazil for 26 years.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Tape Holds Toothbrushes In Place In Cupboard

By POLLY CRAMER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY — I made the sort-of-toothbrush holder I wanted for our bathroom. A strip of white twill tape was thumb-tacked to the inside of the bathroom cupboard door. The tacks are placed just far enough apart for a toothbrush to hang in between two tacks. We now have a holder which works satisfactorily.—MRS. R. H.

DEAR POLLY — When we change our furnace filters, we write the date on the new filter as it is put into the furnace. White crayon does the job and lets us know when it is time for another new one.—MRS. M. A. McP.

DEAR POLLY — Your column is the topic of conversation among all my friends. May I suggest that when mothers of small children go visiting for dinner that they take along a plastic roll-out rug (the type sold and used for protecting rugs in inclement weather) and put it under the dining chairs the children use. The children can then drop and spill to their hearts' content and nobody worries. Your hostess will appreciate this — I know from experience. Any large piece of plastic would do.—MRS. F. L. C.

DEAR POLLY — My friend is for the mothers of babies who are about to graduate from a crib to a regular bed. Put a pillow or pillows along the edge of the bed, between the mattress and springs, and baby will not fall out. I used this trick for both of my children and it really works.—MRS. R. O'C.

GIRLS — Pillows along the edge do seem to make just enough of a slope in the mattress so that baby would have to roll "up" before falling out and still there is not enough slope for baby to be uncomfortable.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A nut pick makes a perfect awl for metal eyelet holes. Force the pick through the belt or garment twice and the eyelet slips in perfectly.—MRS. R. E. B.

DEAR POLLY — Drill a hole in the top of a small white plastic top of a spray can to replace a broken plastic tassel on a venetian blind. The hole should be the size of the cord which is run through the top and knotted underneath.—MRS. C. P.

DEAR POLLY — I have found a good way to clean my collection of etched crystal glasses so they sparkle. First, I wash the crystal as I do my other glasses, dry them and polish with salt on a cloth. A crystal cutter told me this does not harm the crystal.—MRS. E. J. GIRLS—The salt does get into the indentations in etched crystal. I dampened the cloth so salt would cling to it. I see no particular advantage using it for plain crystal.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When melting butter in a tin measuring cup, I have saved burning many a hot pat by using a clothespin for removing the cup from the heat. I hope my tip helps someone else as much as others have helped me.—CAROLYN GIRLS—I like this, but do be sure to hold the clip clothpin tightly shut and up close to the clip as there is danger of a spill when holding by only the open ends.—POLLY

LUCI SAYS

Living In White House Has Some Disadvantages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Baines Johnson, 16, daughter of President and Mrs. Johnson, thinks the "bad points" of living in the White House may outnumber the "good points."

"Maybe I just don't appreciate the good points to the extent that I may someday," Luci told reporters at an informal news conference following the White House musicale at which she and her 20-year-old sister, Lynda Bird, presided Tuesday. "I don't really realize I am a president's daughter and that I represent American youth," she said. "If I did, I would go out of my mind trying to represent the best of American youth."

She said it's best to "be yourself" even "if you sometimes make mistakes as I may be doing right now talking to you."

Luci said she doesn't always like what she reads about herself in newspapers — especially reports that her great love for dogs is reflected in the stuffed animals she has in her room. "That just isn't me," she said. "I like dogs but just the same as everyone else likes dogs."

She said also that sometimes when she thinks she is talking privately she finds her remarks in the papers.

Another bad point, Luci said, is that "I am not politically oriented as my father, mother and sister are."

As the President's daughter, Luci said she wants to present "a good image to the public" but she doesn't want it to be "so sweet and goody-goody, it isn't me."

Asked about her scholastic and career interests, she said: "I am basically interested in science. I'd like to be a laboratory technician, but you know there are the haves and the have-nots. I'm among the have-nots scholastically."

She said her grades are good in science but not in math.

But when a reporter suggested she get a tutor in math, she replied: "Oh, I'm not that bad."

Miss Niebruegge, B. R. Barnes To Wed In May

SNYDER, Okla. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Niebruegge, Mountain Park, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Gay, to Bennie Richard Barnes. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Barnes, also of Mountain Park.

The wedding will be May 29, with vows to be read in the First Baptist Church of Snyder.

Miss Niebruegge is a sophomore in Oklahoma State University. She is a member of Pi Omega Pi, Orange Quill, Beta Upsilon Sigma and is on the Dean's Honor Roll.

Barnes will be graduated in May from Oklahoma State University with a BS degree in Agricultural Education. He is active in the Collegiate Future Farmers of America, Black and Bridle Club and NCATA.

Simpson-Clark Engagement Told

HASKELL, Tex. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edwin Simpson of Rule have announced the engagement of their daughter, Tommie Jo, to Charles Robert Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark of Sagerton.

The announcement was made at a tea Saturday at the home of the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. O. Cole.

Miss Simpson was graduated from Rule High School and business college in Abilene and now is a student at Howard County Junior College, Big Spring. The prospective bridegroom also was graduated from RHS and is a student at Howard County Junior College. The wedding will be June 21.

Denham To Live In Wichita Falls

Mr. and Mrs. Don Denham are residing at 1913 Taylor following their marriage Saturday evening in Fairway Baptist Church.

Mrs. Denham is the former Miss Linda Kaye Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gordon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Guy Denham, 4032 Gossett.

The Rev. Bill Pemberton officiated at the ceremony attended only by families of the couple. Miss Cathy Beekman was maid of honor and the groom's father served as best man.

It is not until either the top or bottom tray, at least, is full. Many people do this so that is not my pointer.

To avoid confusion as to whether or not one of us has washed the dishes, we keep a rubber band around the handle of the dishwasher and remove it when we turn on the machine. Then if the dishes are not removed immediately after being washed, we can tell instantly (by the absence or presence of the rubber band) whether they are clean and sterile or unwashed. This has been a great help to two people whose minds are on far more important things. Thank you for your "service."—MRS. M. M. G.

MRS. JAMES BRYANT THOMPSON

Thompson-Campbell Vows Are Exchanged In Bowie

The First Methodist Church in Bowie was the setting for a ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Linda Lou Campbell of Irving and James Bryant Thompson of Dallas. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Doyle L. Campbell of Bowie and Mrs. Bertha Thompson, 1311 Thirty-seventh, Wichita Falls. Officiating in the candlelight ceremony Saturday was the church pastor, the Rev. Jerry D. Delleney.

An archway of greenery and carnations flanked by basket arrangements of white carnations formed the nuptial background.

Clarence Prewitt, vocalist, provided a program of music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown accented with appliques of lace extending the length of the cathedral train. Her veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of pearls.

Miss Ovella Bruner of Irving was maid of honor. She was attired in a dress of light blue organza over taffeta. She carried a nosegay of violets. Bridesmaids were Misses Sherry Kime of Oklahoma City, Marjorie Dods-worth of Fort Worth and Norma Sue Baker of Arlington. Their ensembles were identical to that of the honor attendant.

Horace Wayne Thompson of Mullin, Tex., served as best man for his brother, Bill Campbell, Tommy Powers and Tommy Borders of Dallas, Joe Pat Latham of Lufkin and Bobby McKinley of Fort Worth were ushers and groomsmen. Serving as ring bearer was Milton Carr of Bowie.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The refreshment table was covered with a white tulle cloth and centered with an arrangement of white roses. Assistants were Misses Genevieve Lockley, Judi Latham of Lufkin, Jane Bull of Dallas and Jerri Southward of Bowie and Mmes. Jean Southward, Evelyn Rickey and Ann Robertson.

The former Miss Campbell is a 1962 graduate of Oklahoma University where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

A 1963 graduate of Southern Methodist University, the groom was a three-year member of the varsity basketball team of which he was co-captain his senior year. He was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

The newlyweds reside in Dallas.

Secrets Of Charm Dietetic Foods Are Real Boon To Dieters, Too

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS
Dietetic foods, now offered in great variety in supermarkets everywhere, are meant for people whose physical conditions demand special diets, such as cardiatics and diabetics. But some of them, especially those foods prepared without sugar, can be boons to someone on a reducing diet.

There are cookies, candies, dessert mixes, dressings, fruits and vegetables, meats, soups, breads, crackers and soft drinks. Nonfat dry milk is probably the most useful and popular item, equally suitable for dietetic regimens, reducing diets and normal menus.

Labeling on dietetic foods is very specific, so that doctors, dieticians and consumers can all understand and be sure of the contents. The absence of salt or sugar is most carefully noted. The calorie count is exact. So are percentages for each nutrient contained in the special product.

The ordinary dieter doesn't require all this information, unless charting her meals by the milligram happens to be a hobby of hers. Since it's not advisable for her to go "all-dietetic" in her weight-loss efforts (nor is it necessary unless her doctor is also treating her for a side-condition), she can select whatever she fancies, to give her meals a little low-calorie margin.

She will probably find that reading the labels, however, can clue her toward products that are high in protein, low in carbohydrate. In foods like these, nutrition weights over calorie count.

Some of the dietetic foods may not appeal to palates accustomed to strong flavors. They may seem bland, tasteless, watery. It's just a matter of adjusting to the new tastes, as cardiatics and diabetics must (and are very content to do).

GET YOUR PURSE SIZED, EASY-TO-READ CALORIE GUIDE to more than 200 foods! It's FREE for a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to John Robert Powers, in care of the Record News. Ask for "Your Diet and Calorie Guide."

ENGAGED—Bowie, Tex. (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Rhoades announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Geneva, to Ronald Partridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Partridge. Miss Rhoades is a senior at Bowie High School and Partridge is employed by Gary-Nees Lumber Company. The wedding will be June 24 at Union Hill Missionary Baptist Church.

A. C. Elliotts Make Home On Ranch

ELECTRA, Tex. (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Alvin C. (Skipper) Elliott Jr., who were married March 21 in the home of the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Miller of Dundee, are residing on the Jack Parker ranch near Dundee.

The bride is the former Miss Linda Wylie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wylie of Holliday. She is a senior student in Holliday High School.

The bridegroom is a son of Alvin C. Elliott Sr. of Wichita Falls and the late Mrs. Reba Miller Elliott.

The Rev. Paul Trammell, pastor of the Holliday Baptist Church, performed the ceremony.

POLITICIAN'S MATE Many Changes Apparent Among Washington Wives

EDITOR'S NOTE: Not long ago a woman who married a politician was expected to stay quietly at home, out of the limelight, except for social appearances by his side. It was best if she were a little dowdy, so the women wouldn't envy her, and the men wouldn't resent her. How much have times changed?

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Ellen Proxmire is one of the new breed of political wives.

They're the intelligent young women who are going to Washington, in increasing numbers, on the arms of their duly elected husbands.

Equally adept at running a home and a campaign, equally knowledgeable about handling children and constituents, they are the greatest political aides a man can have. And they don't cost the party a cent.

Mostly they're pretty. For example, Mrs. Proxmire, wife of Wisconsin's Bill Proxmire, is sometimes asked by the young elevator operators in the Senate office building, "What'cha doin' tonight?"

"And I've got a daughter ready for college," says the youthful senator's wife.

But she admits there's a trend. There has been a great influx of younger people in Congress the last six years," she says.

"That means it's a team effort, in the home state. So many wives helped campaign, as opposed to the old guard, who didn't approve in the first place of women working."

"More and more wives are informed, active assistants to their husbands."

When the Proxmires met, each had been divorced and had two children. She was the Democratic Party's only paid employe in Wisconsin. He was a three time loser for the governorship.

When she became his campaign manager and wife, he made a successful race to fill out the unexpired term of the late

Sen. Joseph McCarthy and then was re-elected for a full term. Now she's written a book called "One Foot in Washington" with a sub-title, "The Perilous Lie of a Senator's Wife."

"The reason I wrote the book," she says, "is that there's a real gap between the reality of the life of a politician's family and the public's conception of what we do and why we do it."

"The polls show that no one wants his child to go into politics."

"The few who abuse the public trust are always news. Those who are interested in public service as a career are the norm. NOT the unusual. I thought if people knew more about it, their demands would be more thoughtful."

"You see, politics and government touch everyone on every level of existence. Good people should go into the field—and do. Yet they're discouraged at the way they're treated. They're giving their life's blood for this, doing the best they can."

"I often sit in the senate gallery and look down at the 100 men. They're all different, but there's something tremendous about each one of them."

One of Mrs. Proxmire's most hilarious incidents occurred her first dinner at the White House, certainly the most sought-after invitation in Washington.

The Proxmires hadn't been

Surprise Party Honors Mrs. Homer

More than 80 friends and relatives surprised Mrs. A. F. Homer of Rhineland with a birthday dinner Sunday. She was 80 years old. The celebration was held in the Knights of Columbus Club.

The honoree, one of the first settlers in Rhineland community, has nine children and all were present with their families.

Among those present also was Rev. Herman Laux, O.S.B., Rhineland.

able to attend the first time they were invited because Ellen had just given birth to Douglas, now 2. A second invitation came along, and this time to a dinner honoring Andre Malraux, the French minister of culture, she was determined everything would go smoothly. Her husband would come home early, they would dress in unbuttoned ease, they would arrive at just the right time.

Instead, when she put on her only long dress, a red brocade, the zipper came to pieces. Her 15-year-old daughter, Mary Ellen, was frantically sewing her in when her husband arrived, late.

Then he couldn't find his black bow tie. Precious minutes fled as they searched the house. He raced to the car, drove to a store to buy one, came back to pick her up.

They were the last of 150 guests to arrive.

And all through the evening, whenever they weren't seated, she made her husband stand close behind her lest the sewed-up zipper plaque give way and cause a scene. Too horrible to mention. In spite of which, she admits, she had an awfully good time.

Children, husband and office do take up quite a bit of time, but to keep really busy energetic Mrs. Proxmire acts as an official greeter, escorting visitors from home around the capital, meets with the Senate wives Red Cross group to fold bandages for local hospitals; and works with the Congressional Circle for Friendship House, an interracial day care center for 75 children, aged 3 to 10.

"Participating in active politics is a surefire cure for overweight, overpopulation and overconfidence," she says.

Now you have analyzed the lead and reviewed the bidding. You count 10 winners and three losers provided you can make three diamond tricks. There are nine winners and four losers if West can get in a diamond ruff.

Since you have decided that West's lead was a singleton you must take that first diamond and go after trumps.

If East has the ace of spades nothing is going to do you any good, but West has it and you wind up losing one spade, one heart and one diamond.

Foot Suffragette Wants More Freedom In Shoes

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Men may not believe this, but fashion is liberating women from their own vanity.

Let them argue it out with shoe designer Margaret Clark. She'll convince them. And while she's at it, she'll have them tugging the modern shoe, (just as she'll have women groveling thanks to it) for having also freed the feminine foot.

She gets to you — this mite-sized artist with blue-gray hair, gray eyes and false mink lashes.

Dramatically garbed in Robin Hood hat, flaring tweed cape over blue velvet suit and wearing plum-colored pumps with jeweled buckles, she's a colorful fashion suffragette. Only now a winner, she has been 15 years trying to liberate cramped toes and knotted calf muscles.

Feet Pinched

"My feet always pinched a little," she recalls her humble beginnings. "I think all designers have to have a basic resentment against what exists. Not anger, that's not a good mood for creativity. But certainly dissatisfaction."

Unfortunately, pretty Margaret Clark was so far ahead with her roomy-toed shoes in her free-the-feet program that the average woman did not have the courage to accept them. They did not until fashion writers drummed away at the folly of tottering heels and pie-shaped toes.

During those first five up and down years, her boss, Jerrold Miller, happily was sympathetic and knowledgeable about the exigencies of avant garde fashion. Margaret speaks of the lean, shaggy-haired Jerry lovingly, for they've been married 15

MRS. STEPHEN L. MEEK

Meek-Beall

Vows Are Read

SEYMOUR, Tex. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. A. Oren Beall announce the marriage of their daughter, Ysleta Kay Beall, to Lt. Stephen L. Meek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meek, Arlington, Va.

The couple was married March 28 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church by the Rev. W. R. Karkalitis, pastor.

The bride wore a white silk suit and carried gardenias on a white Bible. She is a 1963 graduate of Baylor University, where she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority. She is teaching in Connally School in Waco.

Lt. Meek attended Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa. He is stationed at Connally Air Base, Waco.

Visiting Firemen Get Real Thing

ELECTRA (Special) — During the practice civil defense alert Tuesday in Electra, involving fire fighting units from Burkburnett, Electra, Iowa Park, Sheppard Air Force Base and the State Hospital — there was a fire.

While all five of the fire fighting units were busy with a mock situation, a real fire alarm was turned in from a heat treating device at a storage tank on the Winfrey lease on the Burkburnett Ranch, about seven miles southeast of Electra.

The alarm was answered by all five units. The fire was extinguished and damage was held to a minimum.

Fred Huffstutler, Electra fire chief, who was in charge of the practice alert, opined, "A fine time for a fire."

years, have been manufacturing partners for nine, and are parents of a 13-year-old non-shoe-minded son.

Struggles Behind Her

The struggles are now behind Margaret Clark today holds the coveted Mercury Award for her aesthetic contributions to the shoe industry. And her utterly quotable quotes of shoes, men, women, and things are even more significant. For example:

"Women bound their feet and tottered around on spoke heels to please men. Fashion lowered the heel so women could run at last if they wanted to. The lowered heel came much ahead of the new, active lives of women."

"Women are beginning to understand they must not dress for themselves but for the people who look at them. This thoughtfulness has liberated them from their own vanity."

"Fashion is like food. You have to consume it before you know whether you like it. Sometimes new style ideas are so over-market-tasted they die adorning."

"Women are so careful, too much so, about spending money for a new fashion. That's like reading yesterday's newspaper all the time."

"The average shoe wardrobe is three pairs. That's all right if these are beautiful and exciting, not neutral nothings. I'd rather go barefoot than have just one pair of black pumps for everything."

"We're so self-conscious about how much our lives need variety. Yet this appetite for variety must be natural. Otherwise cooks would not create thousands of recipes."

"Design interest has returned to the surface of things. The era of the beatnik ended overnight with that play, 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?' Now we're clean and romantic."

BRITON IS SPEAKER

Perkins Lectures To Open April 12

An outstanding English churchman, Rev. A. P. Tremlett is 1964 speaker for the Perkins Lectures at First Methodist Church.

Tremlett will be the fourth Briton to deliver the Perkins Lectures since they were established in 1943 by the late J. J. Perkins and Mrs. Perkins.

This year's lectures will be delivered Sunday, April 12 through Wednesday, April 15, morning and evening. A nursery will be provided in the educational building of First Methodist Church for each of the services.

Tremlett continues the fine tradition established by the Perkins Lectures of representing every facet of Christian experience. He himself is a member of the Church of England, which is a part of the Anglican Communion which includes the Episcopal Church in America.

He is vicar of St. Stephen with St. Aphra in Westminster, London, a church near the heart of British government, the Houses of Parliament. He has held this post since 1958.

He was Morton exhibitioner at King's College, Cambridge, and received an honors degree in history in 1936. He went to Cuddesdon Theological College in 1937 and in 1938 was ordained to the parish of St. Barnabas, Northolt Park — a huge new housing estate in the diocese of London.

In 1941 he became an Army chaplain and was for three and a half years chaplain to the Sixth Guards Brigade (mentioned in dispatches in 1945). He is still officiating chaplain at Wellington Barracks.

He was domestic chaplain to the Bishop of Trinidad from 1946 to 1949; chaplain of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, from 1950 to 1958; and a select preacher at the University of Cambridge in 1955 and 1956.

Tremlett was examining chaplain to the Bishop of London from 1952 to 1956, and commissary for the diocese of Trinidad from 1953 to 1960. He has been commissary to the archbishop in Jerusalem since 1952; is an examining chaplain to the bishops of Norwich, Guildford and Portsmouth; and is on the board of inspectors of theological colleges for the Central Advisory Council of Training for the Ministry, and on the recruitment committee of the same body.

Troll...Danish good luck doll

1.00 each

According to a recent issue of NEWSWEEK magazine: The "Troll" is ugly, jut-eared and potbellied, the eyes are as glassy as its grin, and the head stops just above the eyebrows, where it gives way to a floor-length hand of combed sheep's wool. Yet everyone from Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson to thousands of college girls find it loveable, and the "Dammit" doll is fast replacing the rabbit's foot as the No. 1 good-luck charm. The name is taken from a poor Danish wood-cutter named Thomas Dam. A few years ago, it is said, Dam could not afford to buy his teen-age daughter a birthday gift so he carved her his vision of a troll... one of those chubby, elusive little characters who, according to legend, scamper about the Nordic mountains and bestow eternal good fortune on humans who catch them. Dam's good fortune started immediately after his daughter dressed the doll and showed it about the village. It became popular at once. Now Dam operates troll factories around the world. For good-luck during 1964, get yourself a troll doll now for only 1.00 with blonde, white, brown or black hair. Available downtown and Parker Square.

Too Many Meetings

At long last, a businessman has had the courage to speak out against that great and sacred American custom, the Constant and Continuing Conference and the Marathon Meeting.

The name of this hero was not revealed in the news story which told of his valor. He was identified only as an official of the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co.

Whoever he is, many a weary meeting-attendee will salute him.

More and more, the average businessman tries to do his job these days in frantic spurts between and around conferences and meetings. These endless powwows not only are hard on those who have to attend but also are murder for those who try to reach the people who are always meeting.

It wouldn't be so bad, perhaps, if the conferees could meet, do what they have met to do, and go back to work.

But this is practically impossible for the simple reason that at every meeting there is at least one character who obviously hates to return to his desk.

So he takes a molehill and expertly develops it into a mountain. He asks questions, raises points, requests additional data, demurs and delays.

So far, no better way has been devised to knock a day's work into smithereens for a group of people who just must have something better to do.

Now that a voice has been found to lead us, maybe we can do something to discourage such nonsense.

How shall we start? Let's call a meeting!

The Net Results

It was bound to happen, perhaps, and it did.

A 17-year-old factory worker in England got his Beatle haircut caught in a machine.

So the British Safety Council has put out 50,000 safety posters urging industrial workers to wear hairnets if they affect Beatle hairdos.

We're strong for safety, but we don't believe this is going to work. It has taken American safety workers several years to persuade even a minority of drivers to wear seat belts, and we suspect by the time English Beatle buffs have been persuaded to wear hairnets the Beatles will have disappeared from the scene, hairdos and all.

Washington Rift Rumor Nonsense

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — The principals in this thing (President Lyndon B. Johnson and Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy) are behaving like complete professionals.

"It's the camp followers who are causing the trouble." Thus spoke one official who now has strong ties to both men.

The matter of the relations between the two has become the subject of some of the most bizarre speculation to arise in this capital in many years.

The rumors simply will not die. They not only have Bob Kennedy continuing to promote himself for the 1964 vice presidential nomination but fostering a pro-Kennedy, anti-Johnson cell in the White House as well.

To seasoned, top echelon administration men who insist they have a good political gauge on both men, these reports are sheer nonsense.

In fact, they regard as akin almost to insanity the notion that a man of Kennedy's acknowledged political acumen — or anyone else — would try to pressure Johnson heavily on the vice presidency or any major question.

"You just don't issue ultimatums to the President of the United States," was a summary comment.

Similarly, these sources indicate that the top bracket White House holdovers from the John F. Kennedy regime are giving the new President their total loyalty. Says one such man:

"Some of us offered him a continuing commitment. We gave him our word. We would not be worth much as men if we went back on it." Another holdover found the idea of a "Kennedy cell" preposterous.

"We're not here serving just some rival politician. We are working for the President." It is felt that Johnson would be less than human if he did not suffer some twinges of doubt as a result of the incredible welter of rumor and suspicion that engulfs Washington. No one forgets the prenomination bitterness of 1960.

But the President is viewed by key Kennedy holdovers as a tough realist who will make the vice presidential choice this August with the same cool judgment John Kennedy exercised in picking Johnson.

The belief is that neither the President nor the attorney general will allow rumor-mongering camp followers to poison the waters seriously.

If Johnson thinks Kennedy the best choice, a leading Democrat says, he will name him—even though the two may never indulge in a public love feast.

"The list the President will choose from will be small," this source adds. "Inevitably, however, Bobby will be on it."

Not, this man suggests, because Kennedy will be pushing for the job, but because he, like all the surviving Kennedys, is the beneficiary of a truly astonishing popular ground swell of interest and open affection. Where a Kennedy walks today, there go crowds.

"This is something that may be uncontrollable," the Democrat says. "It could present the President with a unique situation when the time for his choice comes."

Example of the ground swell's force: United Auto Workers' President Walter Reuther barely was able to "put the cap" on the union's explosive urge to endorse Bob Kennedy for vice president.

If the great tide rises higher, obviously rumor will go on tracing its source to tremors generated in the attorney general's office. The sober correctives offered by hard-eyed Kennedy and Johnson professionals may never quite catch up.

Finding The Way Faith Versus Doubt

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Easter is past, and we remember those who had—and have—their doubts. What does a man do with his doubts? In this world of rapidly changing ideas, some of the old words don't have the same emotional pull. So a man begins to doubt. What then?

Such a one is the central figure in a novel, "The Martyred," by Richard Kim. This story of martyred Korean pastors and of the two who were not killed is a drama of a contemporary Job. Here are torturing doubts, unrelenting tragedies and the searching for the truth as though these were waves breaking against the fact of Easter.

One man, refusing to bend beneath his doubts, yet never quite believing, could plead, "We must fight despair, we must destroy it and not let the sickness of despair corrupt the life of man and reduce him to a mere scarecrow."

So one man takes his doubts and wears them as though they were a crown. He was hoping against hopelessness. Yet the answer to doubt is not this kind of hoping; it is another kind of seeing, or recognition, and experience. It is acknowledging that one does not know everything before one can act.

Centuries ago men thought that God wanted them to annihilate the enemy; there came another who doubted this and talked of a God of love.

Centuries ago men talked of the subjugation of various races as being inferior; there came those who doubted this and brought a new understanding of our humanity and our godly dignity.

Centuries ago there were those who thought you could keep God in one spot, run out on him—even entomb Him; there came the doubter who discovered that you cannot elude the presence of God. Honest doubts never stand still; they move to a new kind of faith!

It was a new faith that spoke of the God of love, that understood the dignity of man made in the image of God, that understood the living presence of God.

The problem of doubt is that faith should be ruled out as a possibility. This is always the most disturbing situation to confront after Easter. Simone Weil, the French mystic, has written, "The danger is not lest the soul should doubt where there is any bread, but lest, by a lie, it should persuade itself that it is not hungry."

The Korean pastor said, "We must dare to hope against despair because we are men."

It would be better if we would hope against despair because we know that God is there, even when we have not understood that presence. Easter presents a continuing search, a faith that, beyond the despair, there is a very certain reality!

MEDITATION

JESUS LOVES YOU — John 15:12. That you love one another as I have loved you. "We are so thankful Lord Jesus for your constant love all the time." Today I will try to love others as Jesus loves me.

Fulbright's Advice Ignored By Kennedy

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — During the first few days of the Kennedy Administration Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., now in the headlines over foreign affairs advice to the Johnson administration, gave some less headlined, private advice to the Kennedy administration.

He advised the new President that then was the time—the winter of 1961 — to run with the ball on Berlin.

Fulbright pointed out that Premier Khrushchev obviously was in a friendly frame of mind toward Kennedy, had offered to send a special ambassador to Kennedy's inauguration, had released the American RB-47 fliers, had sent a glowing letter of congratulations to JFK, was giving various indications that he wanted to get along with the new regime.

Fulbright pointed out that since Berlin had been ranking relations between the United States and Russia for over a decade, and since Berlin was bound to come up anyway, it was best for Kennedy to grab the ball and run with it.

The new President got similar advice from Adlai Stevenson, Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow, and Chester Bowles, then under-secretary of state. But, busy with a new Congress, and faced with negative advice from part of his State Department, Kennedy delayed.

That delay may have been one of his most serious foreign policy errors. For with the delay came the Bay of Pigs disaster when American prestige fell to its lowest ebb. It was only after this that Kennedy met with Khrushchev in Vienna — a Khrushchev who was irritated over being snubbed, and who obviously felt he had the whip hand as a result of the Bay of Pigs. The meeting was a disaster.

Near War With USSR — There followed more disastrous events; including the Berlin Wall, the maneuvering of U.S. and U.S.S.R. tanks on both sides of Berlin, together with the showdown over Cuban missiles which brought the two most powerful nations in the world closer to war than at any other time in history.

It has taken two years of patient, careful diplomacy since then, including the Test Ban Treaty, to ease the two countries back into a position of better understanding. Much of this might have been avoided if the Kennedy administration had followed Fulbright's advice.

Came the advent of the Johnson administration on Nov. 22, 1963. Immediately Khrushchev sent his No. 2 man, Anastas Mikoyan, to Washington for the funeral. Long lines of Russians filed through the American Embassy in Moscow to pay tribute to the dead President. There were outpourings of genuine grief all over the communist world — except in China — and it looked as if the tragedy of Dallas might have forged a link of sympathy between the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R.

Some diplomats predicted that John F. Kennedy might achieve in death what he had not been able to achieve in life.

A few days after Kennedy's death, President Johnson received from the Soviet its confidential file on assassin Lee Oswald, who had lived in Russia. Johnson sat down and wrote Khrushchev a letter of thanks. Thereupon Secretary of State Rusk advised him not to send the letter.

Johnson argued that the United States had never turned over a confidential file to a foreign government as did the Russians in this case, and felt that the United States should acknowledge this Soviet gesture. He insisted on sending the letter. But before it was finally sent, the State Department took out all of the warmth and cordiality.

Castro Woos U.S.A. — At about this time, the Russians began dropping hints that the United States should patch things up with Fidel Castro, that the Soviet didn't want to continue there indefinitely, that it was was much better for two old friends — Cuba and the United States — to make up.

This may sound like an amazing overture from a government supposed to be engaged in a cold war with the United States; but it was true. Furthermore, Sen. Fulbright had known about these overtures, and this is one reason he made his dramatic speech last week urging the United States to forget the boycott and make peace with Castro.

What Fulbright also knew was that Fidel Castro himself, while visiting Moscow last May 1, made a surprising speech that Cuba wanted to resume relations with the United States. Most Americans don't know he made the speech, but he did — right in Moscow. President Dostoevsky has also stated to various ambassadors in Havana that Cuba must patch up relations with the United States, that the two countries have been too close in the past, are too essential to each other to remain apart. He even said Cuba would be willing to pay the United States for property it seized.

Simultaneously Russia has continued pulling its troops out of Cuba until only those manning the surface-to-air missiles are left. Simultaneously, when the United States was criticized all over Latin America for the Panamanian riots, Moscow newspapers buried the story. There were no critical editorials accusing the United States of bloody imperialism.

These are some things the American public hasn't entirely known about which Sen. Fulbright knows in detail and which were behind his toric speech urging the Johnson administration to scrap the boycott and patch up relations with Cuba.

Many friendly diplomats who watched Kennedy miss the boat on Berlin when Khrushchev held out the olive branch in the winter of 1961 fear Johnson will miss the olive branch on Cuba in 1964.

Inside Report Goldwater Leads Georgia

By ROWLAND EVANS

And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Draw a picture of the new Republican party in Georgia and the unmistakable profile of Sen. Barry Goldwater emerges.

This may be fine for the Senator's ardent backers at the Republican National Convention in July, where he'll get most or all of Georgia's 24 convention votes under a binding pledge flatly opposed by the regular Republican leadership.

But the cost to the Republican movement here and in some other Southern states could be very high in the long run.

The reason for this paradox is that many of the hot-eyed types who forced the county and district Republican conventions here to bind their delegates to Goldwater belong not to the Republican party but to a personality cult, that might be called the Goldwater party. No matter what happens at San Francisco, the Republican party here may soon find itself swallowed up by the Goldwater party, acting quite independently of the Senator's own wishes.

If Goldwater should win the nomination, that would be logical enough: A party tends to follow its candidate. But if, as now seems probable, Goldwater doesn't win the nomination, control of the party by Goldwater men, in the opinion of oldline Republican leaders, will convert the party into a haven for extreme segregationists.

In Mississippi and Alabama, where all-out segregation is the gospel of both parties, the ascendancy of the Goldwater party won't make much difference. But in Georgia, and perhaps such other states as North Carolina and Tennessee, the Negro vote has become crucial in winning elections.

Rodney Cook, an Eisenhower

Republican on the Atlanta Board of Aldermen, will probably run for Congress this fall against moderate Democratic Congressman Charles Weltner of Atlanta. The Atlanta Negro vote could well be decisive in a Weltner-Cook race (as it was in the election of Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen).

Both Cook and Weltner rate high with Atlanta's swelling Negro vote, which equals about 1/3 of the city's total vote.

But Cook's Republican party in Atlanta is now threatened by a Goldwater takeover led by extremists. Many of these extremists, in contrast to Goldwater himself, are all-out segregationists.

The regular Republicans are desperately fighting to prevent this takeover. Led by outgoing National Committeeman Robert Snodgrass and Fulton County (Atlanta) Republican Chairman Randolph Throver, the regulars mailed an extraordinary appeal to 4,000 Republicans in Fulton County just before the recent county convention.

"Extremists... seem to be calling the shots (for) the Goldwater leadership," they said in their "urgent call for you to help save the Republican party in Georgia." The letter charged that "an alien and extremist group using the Goldwater guise is seeking to gain control of the party."

But the county convention—one of many held all over the state to select delegates to district and state conventions — disregarded the appeal of the regulars and instructed its delegates to vote for Goldwater until released by him. If cooler-headed Goldwater leaders had not intervened, the all-out Goldwater forces might have submitted their own man as temporary chairman of the county convention in place of Randolph Throver, the regular Republican chairman.

These details are essential to an understanding of the power fight now taking place in the Republican party as a result of Goldwater's fanatic following in the South. Chief Goldwater strategist in the 11 Southern states is John Grenier, Alabama State Republican Chairman and a shrewd political organizer. Grenier's job is to deliver some 250 delegates to Goldwater. And the way it looks today he will be spectacularly successful.

What concerns the regular leaders like Snodgrass and Throver is not that the 250 delegates will vote for Goldwater. What they fear is that, despite Goldwater's probable defeat in the convention, control of the party machinery will be seized by the pro-Goldwater extremists, with the help of disenchanted right-wing Democrats. In the long run, this could permanently alienate Dixie Republicans from the growing Negro vote and their brother Republicans in the North.

On World Affairs Diversity's Place

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

WASHINGTON — Those whose aim is to make the world "safe for diversity" rather than for the United States, or who believe that the two are synonymous, can rejoice.

They are well along toward their goal. Thanks to the Eisenhower-Kennedy-Johnson policy of encouraging the independence of any tribe, group, or so-called nation that demands it (naturally outside Red Russia and Red China, which put up with no such nonsense when it concerns them), the world of 1964 is diverse enough to satisfy anybody. As Adlai Stevenson puts it, "The myth of monolithic blocs is giving way to a bewildering diversity among nations."

There is diversity within the communist bloc. But with a difference. Whereas the governments of some non-communist countries are frequently found on the side of the communists, communist governments never really side with the United States.

Among non-communist, pip-squeak dictators are flourishing. Although largely launched with American funds, they are now enjoying their ability to tell off the United States. Bo Sukarno of Indonesia just told the American ambassador in Jakarta, "To hell with your aid."

Fascism Flourishes — Also we have made the world safe for fascism. Many of us imagined that once we had defeated the Rome-Berlin Axis of Mussolini and Hitler, fascism would be a thing of the past.

Not at all. At least a dozen of the new states have adopted fascism. Those who do not recognize this have never understood the nature of that plague. Fascism is the communist structure without communism. This means a one-party socialist state under an inspired Duce or Fuehrer who not only knows everything but knows it better. Subjects are occasionally herded into booths to vote for the single party but those whom they elect have no power. For as Mussolini boasted, in his Italy everything was for the state, nothing was outside the state—and he was the state!

Et voila; as the French say. Among today's fascist Fuehrers, Nasser of the United Arab Republic and Redeemer Nkrumah of Ghana are outstanding. To call this any sort of "democracy," as some professors do, is to prostitute speech. After all, Hitler called his regime "German democracy."

Diversity Means Many Things

But diversity means more. It means having the U.N. Assembly under the control of a majority of new "un-states" many of whom are not even self supporting—with more to come. These un-states have already subverted the U.N. Charter (with the aid of the late, by me unlamented, Dag Hammarskjold) to establish the principle that aggression is only aggression when practiced by democratic white people, never when carried out by the U.S.S.R., Red China, Indonesia, or any of the un-states.

Diversity also means that just when the more civilized peoples were turning toward recognizing some sort of international authority, the new states have succumbed to a frantic, half-baked nationalism which makes the U.N. unworkable.

Diversity also means, to the chagrin of some American diversifiers, that President De Gaulle of France goes it alone; something they feel only the United States should be privileged to do.

And finally, diversity as advocated by Arkansas's pride, Senator William Fulbright, can mean a decision by the United States to lay off and make the world safe for further communist revolution.

Here, I submit is diversity in its pure form. What a mess and how unnecessary!

Lavorante Dies From Year Old Ring Injury

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Alejandro Lavorante, former Argentine heavyweight champion, died Wednesday in Mendoza as the result of a ring injury suffered more than a year and a half ago. He was 27. Lavorante never fully recovered consciousness after a freak knockout by Johnny Riggins in Los Angeles on Sept. 21, 1962. He underwent three delicate brain operations, the first only hours after the knockout. In time he learned to speak a few words, to walk from a wheelchair to his bed and to eat his food unassisted. He was taken home to Rosario, Argentina, after eight months in a Los Angeles hospital and seemed to understand where he was going. But doctors never held out hope for his complete recovery.

by former light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore in 10 rounds March 30, 1962. Cassius Clay, now world heavyweight champion, knocked him out in the fifth round, July 20, 1962. Lavorante's death came the day after Ed Lassman, president of the World Boxing Association, told a U.S. Senate committee that federal control of boxing was needed to help prevent needless deaths. Lassman cited the title bouts that were fatal to welterweight champion Benny Paret and featherweight champion Davey Moore. Paret died in 1962 after a knockout by Emile Griffith and Moore in 1963 after being knocked out by Sugar Ramos. Before his first knockout defeat, to Moore, Lavorante had beaten such fighters as Zora Folley, Willie Besmanoff, Alonzo Johnson and Von Clay in 1961 and was rated fifth in the heavyweight class.

the fifth, Riggins landed a solid right that made Lavorante hang on. At the start of the sixth Riggins landed two more rights and referee Tommy Hart quickly stopped the fight. Hart said later Lavorante appeared to tire near the end of each round. Moments after the knockout, Lavorante slumped off his stool unconscious. He was taken to a nearby hospital where an operation was performed to remove a blood clot on his brain. Later, when his temperature soared to dangerous heights, a 3-by-5 inch section of his skull was removed to relieve pressure. The piece bone was restored in a third operation after the brain swelling subsided. Early in 1963 the boxer's father, Alejandro Lavorante Sr., permitted the moving of his son back to Argentina. The journey was made about three months later on June 30, after his parents had settled a claim for $9,878 in unpaid income taxes.

Riggins Kept Praying SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I just kept hoping and praying he would come through. He was a good fighter and could have gone up," said Johnny Riggins when he heard of Alejandro Lavorante's death in Argentina. Riggins knocked out Lavorante Sept. 21, 1962, and the Argentine heavyweight never recovered from the injuries he received. "I knew when I fought him that Archie Moore and Cassius Clay already had knocked him out. But I couldn't tell it the way he fought that night," Riggins said. "He was real sharp. In the sixth round I landed two shots on his jaw. He hit the ropes but didn't go down. So I figured he was just hurt and landed a chin shot. He never got up." Riggins, employed at a San Francisco paper company, said he has had two fights since meeting Lavorante, "but I wasn't very lucky in them."

LAVORANTE DIES — Alejandro Lavorante, former Argentine heavyweight champion, died Wednesday after being virtually unconscious since Sept. 21, 1962 when he was knocked out by Johnny Riggins in Los Angeles. Cagers Shoot For Olympics This Weekend

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Olympic basketball trials open Thursday with an eight-team tourney—a tourney in which the scores mean nothing and individual performances everything. It is on the basis of individual performances in the three-day tourney at St. John's University that the Olympic Selection Committee will pick the 12-man squad, plus six alternates, that will represent the United States in the Tokyo Olympics this fall.

Henry Iba of Oklahoma State, who will coach the Olympic team, will be an interested observer. He can make recommendations, but the final word is left up to the committee.

Their choices will come from the following field of all-star teams; three from the NCAA, one from the NAIA, two from the AAU and two from the armed services. Each team will play three games during the tourney.

The schedule calls for four games Thursday, starting at 4 p.m. EST. The Friday and Saturday slates are split, with the losers playing in the afternoon and the winners at night.

The Thursday line-up has the NCAA Reds against the Armed Forces Missiles in the opening game; the NAIA All-Stars, representing the nation's small colleges, vs. the AAU Stripes; the Armed Forces Jets vs. the NCAA Whites; and the NCAA Blues vs. the AAU Stars in the final game.

Most of the All-America and Little All-America selections are in the field and, while no player is assured of selection, these are among the top candidates:

Wally Hazzard of UCLA, Lucious Jackson of Pan American College, Dave Stallworth of Wichita, Bill Bradley of Princeton, Wally Jones of Villanova, Mel Counts of Oregon State, Cazzie Russell of Michigan, Cotton Nash of Kentucky and Willie Murrell of Kansas State.

The teams, which have played a series of exhibition games throughout the country, took brief practice sessions at St. John's Wednesday afternoon.

They'll be playing under relatively unfamiliar international rules, which differ slightly from the rules governing the game in this country.

The principal differences involve a slightly heavier ball, elimination of the half-court stripe, a wider free throw lane and the awarding of free throws. Under international rules free throws are awarded only when a player is fouled in the act of shooting and misses the shot.

Top AAU players include Larry Brown and 7-foot-1 Mike McCoy of Akron and Larry Pursifull of Bartlesville, while key armed service operative include Al Saunders of the Army and Kin Pichette and Don Lotz of the Air Force.

Best Field Ever, Boasts Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament, boasting one of the strongest fields in its 27-year history, opens Thursday at the Sedgfield Country Club.

The 140 pros in the field of 150 include 22 of the top 25 money winners on last year's list and 25 of the current top 40.

It's the last stop before the Masters classic next week at Augusta, Ga., and Arnold Palmer, still without a victory this year, will be returning to competition after a week's layoff. A playoff loss to Gary Player at Pensacola, Fla., and two thirds are his best finishes so far this year.

Arrayed against him will be such threats as Julius Boros, Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper, Mike Souchak, Doug Ford, Dow Finsterwald, George Bayer, Jack Burke, Al Bessellink, Tony Lemay, Art Wall, Ken Venturi, Tommy Jacobs, Lionel Hebert and Doug Sanders.

Then there is Samuel Jackson Snead, who has won here seven times, including the inaugural back in 1938.

The tournament runs through Sunday over the par-72 course measuring about 7,000 yards.

The winning pro will get $65,500 from the guaranteed purse of $35,000.

As the tour moves into Greensboro there have been 15 different winners in the last 15 PGA tour events, stretching back to late last fall.

Duren Afraid To Allow Run

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—"They've got so many pitchers around this camp, I'm afraid to give up a run or two," says the one-time New York Yankee flame thrower, Ryne Duren.

Duren now works for the Philadelphia Phillies, a club with possibly the deepest pitching staff in the National League.

"Duren, who as a relief ace helped the Yankees to a couple of their many American League pennants not too long ago, has a spring earned run average of 0.00.

In plain English, that means he hasn't given up a run in seven innings of pitching.

The bespectacled right-hander can't see his nose in front of his face without the spec-worked one inning Tuesday against Cincinnati and faced three batters—all outs. He received credit for his first exhibition victory.

Judge To Consider Butts' Judgement

Letter Indicates Someone Interested

Ted Leach

On several occasions since last December we have been asked what, if anything, has been done about the rule changes we proposed in regards to punt coverage in football.

Recall, if you will, the proposal was carried as an open letter to the NCAA rules committee which at the time was meeting in Florida.

Briefly it concerned extra and unnecessary contact on punts when it was obvious that the receiving team was making no effort to field or return the football. Examples of games involving Surray and Lefors and Graham and Corsicana were used to point out that something should be done about the matter.

One fellow called, asked for us and began his conversation with a question.

"Do you know Jim Acree?" he wanted to know.

We admitted that we'd heard the name several times in the past.

We could feel the knife and were getting the message.

"Do you believe that Acree teaches dirty football?" came the next question.

It's debatable. Under the present rules, Corsicana was following the letter of the rule if not the intent. Who are we to judge? We just reported the facts as we saw them.

The conversation drifted on and became a little more friendly. Were we trying to do something about changing the rules, or just blasting Corsicana and its football coach? Was something going to come out of all this?

It was admitted that there was a sincere effort to try and impose a change by pointing out fallacies in the present rules. We didn't know at that time what would happen insofar as the matter had just been called to the attention of the rules committee.

The younger Hardin holds the best times among those entered here for both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 440-yard intermediate hurdles. He has been clocked at 13.9 for the highs and 52.7 in the intermediates.

That 13.9 time matches a 25-year-old mark set in 1939 by Fred Wolcott.

Preliminaries in the highs will be held Friday at 1 p.m. and the finals Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Those entered with Hardin and their best times include Ed Renfrow of Arkansas, 13.9; Bobby May of Rice, 14.3; Steve Sansom and James Cooper of Texas Tech, 14.3.

Among fine athletes from out of state who haven't competed outdoors this season are Gale Sayers of Kansas, Herman Gary of Southern Illinois, Gary Woods of Oklahoma City, Rocky Bilbo of Oklahoma State, Jack Hooker of Kansas State and David Bonds of McMurry.

Top billed with Hardin in the 440-yard intermediate field are Udel Cason of Drake, 53.5; James Cooper of Texas, 54; May of Rice, 54.5; David Bonds of McMurry, 55.1; Gary Collins of NEWNAN, Fla. (AP)—A federal judge took under consideration Wednesday a Curtis Publishing Co. motion for a new trial in the libel judgment of $3.06 million granted by a jury to Wally Butts, former Georgia football coach.

U. S. Dist. Judge Lewis R. Morgan promised a ruling as soon as possible.

Attorneys for Curtis based the motion on the claim that testimony of two key witnesses for Butts was false. They also cited a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision overturning an Alabama court ruling in a libel suit.

Morgan upheld the libel verdict but ruled that $3 million of the sum awarded for punitive damage was excessive. He cut the libel judgment to $460,000.

Butts agreed to the "cut but asked the court to restore the $3.06-million award after the Post appealed.

Welborn B. Cody, an attorney for Curtis, said he had reviewed the testimony of Dr. Frank A. Rose, president of the University of Alabama, and Bryant and "I can't help but come to the conclusion we are dealing with a couple of premeditated liars."

Cody said Rose had stated things in depositions taken for a libel suit by Bryant based on the same article, which Curtis settled out of court for $300,000, which the Alabama president denied, on the stand at the Butts trial.

"To grant a motion for a new trial on the grounds of perjury wouldn't there have to be an indictment?" the judge asked.

Cody read from several federal decisions and said a new trial "must be granted if the judge is convinced a verdict was based on evidence he considers false."

William Schroder, attorney for Butts, said, "Without any emotion whatever, I personally resent having Mr. Frank Rose and Mr. Paul Bryant called unmitigated liars."

"That motion is totally without substance," Schroder said. He added that he found it hard to believe that "they come over here and make a noise like they are making claims these two people are lying when they paid out $300,000 perfectly good dollars on the basis of those depositions."

Cody claimed the testimony of Rose and Bryant had tended to discredit several Curtis witnesses and that "had they known they were liars," the outcome of the trial might have been entirely different.

The other major point concerned the Supreme Court decision overturning an Alabama court ruling in a libel suit by Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan of Montgomery against the New York Times. Sullivan was awarded $500,000.

The Supreme Court ruled that actual malice must be proved when a public official sues a publication for printing defamatory falsehoods.

Cody's associate, Harold Abrams, claimed Butts was a public official and subject to the Supreme Court's standards. Schroder's associates, Allen Lockerman and Gerald Thurmond, argued that he was merely a paid employee.

In taking the motion under advisement, the judge said he would search other rulings for a more specific definition of a public official.

Hurdles Feature In Texas Relays

AUSTIN (AP)—Two names involved in the 37th Texas Relays this weekend raise memories of hurdles record setters of the late 1930s.

The University of Texas track coach, host to the meet, is Jack Patterson, who won two national hurdles titles while at Rice.

And one of the star attractions at the relays Friday and Saturday will be Billy Hardin of Texas. He's the son of former Louisiana State hurdler Glenn Hardin, who set world marks while in college.

The younger Hardin holds the best times among those entered here for both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 440-yard intermediate hurdles. He has been clocked at 13.9 for the highs and 52.7 in the intermediates.

That 13.9 time matches a 25-year-old mark set in 1939 by Fred Wolcott.

Preliminaries in the highs will be held Friday at 1 p.m. and the finals Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Rice, 54.6; Bill Tittle of Sul Ross, 55.2, and John Collins of Texas A.M., 56.3.

City Seeks State Fem Keg Tourney At Midland Friday

Two plane loads of city officials, trailed by the Coyote marching band, prepared to take off Thursday afternoon for Midland, Tex. in a bid to secure the 1966 Texas Women's Bowling Tournament for Wichita Falls.

Heading the Chamber of Commerce led delegation is Harold Shappell, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Activities Group. Shappell will make the city's final bid in a speech at the tournament banquet scheduled for Friday night.

Midland is the scene of this year's annual Texas Women's tournament and convention. The windup of the eight week affair comes with the selection of the 1966 tournament site.

The Coyote band will provide the campaign atmosphere as the Wichitans make their bid. A hospitality suite has also been set up to entertain delegates.

Longhorns Get 2 From Graham

GRAHAM — Mike Lochner and John Matzinger, members of the Class AAA state championship basketball team from Graham, have signed with the University of Texas.

Both were accepted for all-tournament honors in the state meet. Graham defeated defending champion Clear Creek, 60-50, to capture the championship. The team finished with a 22-3 record.

Lochner, a 6-8 center, was the leading scorer and rebounder for the Steers through the season. He scored 26 points in both state tournament games and averaged almost that much throughout the regular campaign.

Matzinger, 6-3, was Graham's biggest outside threat. A sure ball-handler, he averaged in double figures over the route.

Injuries Worrying Boston, Cincinnati In Playoff Showdown

BOSTON (AP)—Oscar Robertson's throbbing if unbroken right wrist and the Jerry Lucas mystery haunt Cincinnati, already one down to the Boston Celtics in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Robertson, most valuable player of the NBA, canceled plans Wednesday for X-rays of the wrist from which he launches his shots. But the painful tendon bruise is a handicap for the Big O going into the second game of the best-of-seven Eastern Division finals Thursday night.

Coach Red Auerbach, whose Celtics seek their eighth straight division playoff crown, has a headache of his own. It's a pulled hamstring muscle on the right leg of co-captain Frank Ramsey.

Ramsey, retiring next month, hurt the leg in an Easter week-off and aggravated it shortly after entering Tuesday night's 103-87 victory over the Royals.

"We missed Ramsey," Red said. "We need him in this type of game and against this type of team. It's got me plenty worried. Ramsey's value is that when we are just standing around out there he gets us running again."

Ramsey, who had the same kind of injury two years ago, and spent most of the playoffs joggling up and down corridors trying to loosen up, is taking two lengthy whirlpool treatments Wednesday and Thursday before the game.

Trainer Buddy Leroux says Ramsey won't be able to go full speed for several weeks so he'll be prepared to play as best he can.

Neither Ramsey nor Bill Russell dressed for practice as both teams held drills at Boston Garden Wednesday.

"If we win this game and go back home with a split we'll be all right," said Cincinnati Coach Jack McMahon. "But we don't have much future unless Lucas can break out of his slump. The whole pattern of our team is based on his rebounding."

"I don't know what's wrong with him. He tells me he's hurt at the base of the spine. I don't know what to expect of him."

Boston's Tommy Heinsohn was wondering about the league's rookie of the year too. "Lucas isn't going to the boards as he used to. Either he's tired or he's hurt," Heinsohn said.

Robertson, a 33.8 scorer against Boston when the Royals posted a 7-5 series edge, was held to 20.

MARTIN GETS MESSAGE

Since the first of the year this column has been inactive—appearing only on occasions when there was a time out between travels, basketball games and state tournaments — and there was little chance to delve deeper into the matter.

However, the caller and others who have asked can rest assured that something is being done. The following letter, received Jan. 27, explains things.

Dear Ted:

I received a copy of your message to the NCAA towards the latter part of our rules meeting. At that time I could not bring it up on the floor, as

NOT IN BEST INTEREST

Since the letter was received, we have talked with Martin about the proposed rule change on punt coverage. He was frank about the matter when he said that nothing had ever been done about it because nothing of this nature had ever happened in college football, to his knowledge.

Later it was reported to us that Acree, Corsicana head coach, had been lecturing at a coaches clinic. After he finished his talk, he opened the floor for questions.

One coach wanted to know his theories on punt coverage. Another wanted to know why some of his backs wore the numbers of linemen, and vice versa.

Acree became angry, we are told, and didn't answer either question.

We are of the opinion that Acree was in full command of the Corsicana team that nosed Graham in the semi-finals of the state playoffs. We don't say he coaches dirty football, but we will say that the type of ball the Tigers played in that contest was not in the best interest of the sport.

That rather narrows it down, doesn't it?

Dempsey Hits Sl With Suit

'Loaded Gloves' Story Brings 3 Million Action

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, charged in a $3 million suit Wednesday that he was libeled in an article published in Sports Illustrated last Jan. 13 which said he won the title from Jess Willard in 1919 by using "loaded gloves."

In an action directed against Time, Inc., publishers of Sports Illustrated, Dempsey said: "In truth and in fact, my gloves were not 'loaded' when I defeated Jess Willard and won the heavyweight boxing championship of the world. I won the championship fairly and the published matter was, and is, false, malicious and defamatory."

Dempsey defeated Willard at Toledo, Ohio, on July 4, 1919. In his complaint, Dempsey said that the cover of the disputed magazine bore the headline "Dempsey's gloves were loaded," and a sub-headline which read "Doc Kearns' own story of the bloody Willard fight."

The story, the ex-heavyweight champion said, was titled "He didn't know the gloves were loaded," by Jack (Doc) Kearns with Oscar Fraley. Kearns died in July, 1963. Dempsey said that the story charged falsely that his gloves "were improperly and surreptitiously weighted with plaster of paris when he fought Jess Willard."

Henrietta Takes 11-A Eastern Title

HOLLIDAY, Tex. (Special)—Henrietta took a clean sweep in the H-A eastern half tennis meet here Wednesday.

The Bearcats' netters won the right to represent the eastern half in the district 11-A playoffs April 8.

Eastern half teams include Archer City and Holliday.

Margaret Schick swept through the singles by defeating Debra Crane of Archer City and Shirley Campbell of Henrietta.

The doubles team of Linda Duewall and Janet Parker took out the teams of Sheryl Haigood and Jane Wright of Archer City and Judy Yarbrough and Melissa Kincaid of Holliday for the crown.

Jimmy Duewall grabbed the singles title by downing Bo Toner of Holliday. Phillip Wells and Richard Plumlee took out the teams from Archer City and Holliday for their win.

Tonight Bolo, Clancy Try Soviet Champions

Thursday's 8 p.m. wrestling program at the 4-H Arena, Hampstead Lane, will probably be like a stock market quotation: plenty of ups and downs with much pain.

California's Great Bolo, one of this area's best known wrestlers who usually wears a mask, will team with former world's junior heavy champion, Irish Mike Clancy of Boston against the Southwestern Tag Team Champions, Karol Krauser of Russia and Stanislaw Pulaski of Poland in the Thursday main event.

This bout is slated as a non-title bout as the Reds termed Bolo and Clancy as "no competition and undeserving of a title shot."

Because it is not a championship bout, matchmaker Bob Clay is calling for the bout to be two falls out of three with no time limit. A title bout must have a 90 minute time limit.

Last week, Krauser and Pulaski defeated Danny Hodge and

Lorenz Grabs Atlanta 500 Pole Position

ATLANTA (AP)—Fred Lorenzen grabbed the pole position Wednesday for the Atlanta 500 stock car race Sunday by setting a qualifying speed record of 146.670 miles per hour.

The Elmhurst, Ill., speedster, who has won the last two Atlanta 500s, captured his first pole position for the race with a 1964 Ford.

About 20 minutes prior to his qualifying run of four laps, Lorenzen almost lost his speed charge when he missed a retaining wall by inches on the third turn, of the 1 1/2-mile Atlanta International Raceway. "I went in too deep and came out too strong," Lorenzen said.

"I could have gone a little faster but I guess I got a little shook up on that practice run and ended off a little bit," Lorenzen said. "That long sideways ride didn't help me out any."

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., also in a 1964 Ford, was second with an average speed of 145.867 m.p.h. Paul Goldsmith of Mexico City, Mex., was third at 145.670 m.p.h. in a 1964 Plymouth.

"Plymouth won the Daytona 500 but Fords have made a pretty good comeback," Lorenzen said. "And I believe we are going to be in it all the way Sunday."

Ten of 28 drivers on hand for Wednesday's qualifying rounds grabbed positions. The other positions will be filled Thursday Friday and Saturday.

Lorenzen also set the fastest single lap as he turned 146.898 on his first whirl. "Since I have never set on the pole here, this honor is a special one for me," he said.

Goldsmith and Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., had been favored to take the pole position in the semi-charger powered Plymouths, which won at Daytona. Goldsmith took third and Petty eighth.

Wednesday's qualifiers, including fastest lap and average speed:
Fred Lorenzen, Elmhurst, Ill., 1964 Ford, 146.670.
A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., 1964 Ford, 145.867.
Paul Goldsmith, Mexico City, Mex., 1964 Plymouth, 145.670.
Billy Wade, Spartanburg, S.C., 1964 Mercury, 145.200, 144.830.
Bobby Isaac, Catawba, S.C., 1964 Dodge, 144.887, 144.715.
Parnell Jones, Torrance, Calif., 1964 Mercury, 144.555, 144.195.
Richard Petty, Randleman, N.C., 1964 Plymouth, 144.115, 143.922.
Junior Johnson, Roanoke, N.C., 1964 Dodge, 143.540, 143.445.
Larry Frank, Greenville, S.C., 1964, 143.196, 143.179.

Braves Win 10th; Nationals 3 Of 5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Continuing the National League's domination of play during the exhibition season, the Milwaukee Braves won their 10th consecutive game from American League opposition Wednesday by riding Hank Aaron's fifth spring homer to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The National League won three of five games with the American League on the day's program, building its edge to 2-1 in inter-league competition. National League teams have won 66 games, AL Clubs 33.

The Milwaukee victory lifted the Braves into the No. 1 spot in inter-league competition with a 10-1 record. The Braves lost their first game to Washington. The New York Yankees have the best record in the American League against NL opposition, 6-4.

Only one other club—the Chicago White Sox—has a 500 record. The remainder of the AL Clubs are below .500 against NL competition.

Only two NL teams are under .500 against the AL—Philadelphia and the Los Angeles Dodgers, who pulled their record to 4-5 by beating Minnesota 7-3 as Tommy Davis collected three hits.

Besides the Braves, the San Francisco Giants have an imposing record against AL teams. Despite a 10-7 defeat by the Los Angeles Angels, the Giants are 15-2 against the AL. Even the lowly New York Mets can handle AL opposition—they're 6-2.

The worst inter-league record belongs to Boston, defeated by the Chicago Cubs 8-7. The Red Sox are 1-11 against NL teams.

One other inter-league game was played Wednesday, with Baltimore blanking Pittsburgh 4-0 behind the combined two-hit pitching of Robin Roberts and Harvey Haddix.

In other games, the other half of the White Sox' split squad belted Washington 12-7, the Yankees got homers from Johnny Blanchard and Tony Kubek in a 4-2 victory over Detroit, the New York Mets shut out Cincinnati 3-0 behind Tracy Stallard's six-hitter and St. Louis edged Philadelphia 6-5 on Johnny Lewis' three-run homer.

Complete Listings of Stocks on New York Exchange

Market Pulls Reverse, Ends With Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market pulled a pleasant April Fool's joke, reversing an early decline and mounting a smart rally. Trading was active.

The market turned on a dime during the normally lackluster noon hour and continued rising until the final bell. No particular fresh news accounted for the reversal, analysts said.

Wall Street comment was that buy orders underneath the market were touched off by the gentle decline, disclosing the underlying technical strength of the stock list.

In addition to the generally encouraging atmosphere, the market had the benefit of news of rising prices for sulphur and zinc; higher earnings for American Telephone and other companies; and prevailing confidence in the economy.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 2.79 to 816.08. Volume rose to 5.53 million shares.

Airlines, after a day of sharp profit taking following their upsurge of Monday, soared again. Four were on the list of 15 most active stocks.

Chrysler, which reported 19 per cent higher output in March than a year ago, paced a vigorous rebound by motors. Steels moved moderately higher. Utilities were the only big group to show a higher tone in the morning when the rest of the list was ragged. Helped by American Telephone's bullish earnings report, they remained higher.

Coppers, cigarettes, aerospace issues and mail order retailers were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 9 to 302.0 with industrials up 1.8, rails off .5 and utilities up .8.

Of 1,357 issues traded, 630 advanced and 470 declined. New highs for the year total 123 and new lows 39.

Texas Supreme Court To Rule In Land Case

AUSTIN (AP)—A West Texas land dispute, involving a complicated series of transactions with bankrupt promoter Billie Sol Estes at their center, will be decided by the Texas Supreme Court.

The court agreed Wednesday to rule in the case and set arguments for May 6.

The suit tests ownership of a section of land in Reeves County, where Estes lived at Pecos. Estes allegedly bought, sold and then leased the land.

In 1961, Mrs. Wilson authorized a trustee's sale of the land, and she regained the property for $20,718. The records of the suit show.

Vance and the three other men won a Pecos district court verdict setting aside Mrs. Wilson's deed, claiming her right to order sale of the land expired when she recovered the $18,500 from Estes in the Wichita County case.

Later that year, the records show, Estes conveyed the property to Clyde R. Vance and three others, then leased it back.

The El Paso Court of Civil Appeals struck down the Pecos decisions and said "title and possession of the property should have been granted to appellant (Mrs. Wilson)."

March Cigaret Sales Higher

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP)—The president of American Tobacco Co. said Wednesday that March sales of cigarettes will be substantially higher than a year earlier.

And, said Robert B. Walker, in a report to the annual stockholders meeting, sales for the first quarter will not be far below last year's.

His statement took into consideration a slump in cigarette sales in late January and February after a U.S. surgeon general's report that cigarettes were a hazard to health.

Exact sales and earnings figures for American Tobacco, second largest cigarette maker, will be announced later this month.

Walker said the tobacco industry is living through a period of storm and added, "I believe the current anti-tobacco storm, like most waves of hysteria, is motivated in large part by frustrations of one kind or another."

"There is first of all the frustration of those who are unable to explain certain ailments which have accompanied our lengthening span of life on earth and who see in tobacco a convenient scapegoat."

"I may turn out to be a poor prophet," he added, "but perhaps we may begin to hear more of the good effects of our product than some of our anti-tobacco campaigners would like."

Water Study Due In Montague, Wise

BOWIE, Tex. (Special)—Montague and Wise counties will be included in a project for making a study of the state's ground water resources, the Texas Water Commission has announced.

Purpose of the study is to determine the quantity and quality of subterranean water in Central Texas held in certain water-bearing rocks and sands called the Cretaceous aquifers.

The area of study is to encompass all or parts of 35 counties between the Red and Colorado rivers.

The area has been subdivided into northern and southern sections.

Study of the Trinity sands in the northern region will commence as the research of the southern region nears completion.

Counties in the northern region are Montague, Cooke, Grayson, Pannin, Wise, Denton, Collin, Hunt, Parker, Tarrant, Dallas, Rockwall, Kaufman, Navarro, Ellis, Johnson and Hood.

Initial emphasis will be placed upon investigation of the highly productive Lower Cretaceous Trinity Sands of the southern sector. Counties in the southern region

Carter noted that a detailed study of this type will require at least three years to complete and will provide valuable information to all cities, industries, and other water users in this area.

Shortly after the study is completed, the commission will publish a report of the findings, available to the general public upon request.
