During the first quarter of 1925 oil producers and oil companies in Wichita county paid into the state of Texas over $54,000 in taxes on an oil production approximating a wealth of $2,550,000 on the basis of figures made available exclusively to the Record News Tuesday morning. The total collected by the gasoline tax of one cent a gallon paid by refiners and wholesalers in Wichita county for the same period amounted to approximately $25,000.

Ford May Eenter In Coast-Wide Trade, Says Detroit Paper

DETROIT, Mich., May 26.—(AP) The Detroit Free-Press in a copyrighted story in its morning editions of tomorrow says that Henry Ford may enter coast-wise commerce on a large scale shortly, with a fleet of ships equipped to bring fruits from South America and the South Atlantic seaboard to the United States and northern markets.

The story continues to say that William B. Mayo, of the Ford Motor company, expects to visit the east next week to inspect seven of the 14 refrigerator boats fitted for such trade which are a part of the idle fleet of the United States shipping board.

If examination of the vessels show that they can be refitted at a nominal cost, Ford proposes to buy them, the article says.

WHITE OIL CO. AGAIN GIVEN A NAME CHANGE

Crown Central Organization May be Consummated Today

Organization of the Crown Central Petroleum company, which has been in a more or less embryo stage for the past few weeks is expected to be completed today and some 200,000 shares of no par value stock issued for public sale, according to dispatches emanating from New York last night.

The company is to be a combination producing-refining - marketing property, with various producing properties throughout the southwest, two refineries and the business of the Acewood Petroleum company listed in the combination. The producing properties combine about 22,000 acres undeveloped with some 5,000 more developed and credited with about 4,300 barrels a day gross production. The two refineries are those at Clarendon, Pennsylvania, and on the ship channel at Houston.

How It Looks Here.

The combination is seen in Wichita Falls as one step further in the progress of the old White Oil corporation, recently reorganized and named the United Central Oil corporation, now reorganized once more, combined with several other firms and given the dual name of a subsidiary and the second parent concern, the Crown Central Petroleum company. P. J. White, oil producer of Wichita Falls and formerly president of the old White Oil corporation, is expected to be a director in the new concern, as will also W. A. Wiliams, present head of the United Central.

The 200,000 shares of no par value stock are to be issued through New York and Philadelphia banking houses this week. $12.00 a share will be asked.

Properties Included.

The properties to be included in the consolidated company, after all details incident to its organization have been completed, will include 5,000 acres of producing leases in the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana and Arkansas, and 22,000 acres of undeveloped leases. The developed leases, on which are located 308 wells, are credited with a gross production of 4,300 barrls daily and a net production of 3,400 barrels, not including flush production.

The new corporation also will own two refineries, one of the Houston ship canal and the other at Clarendon, Pa. Through the Houston refinery the company contemplates handling the foreign oil busines which will be carried on through the Acewood Petroleum company. In addition to its refineries and producing properties the new company will operate 700 tank cars, of which 260 are owned outright and equipment capable of storing 1,000,000 barrels of crude and refined oils.

The new company will have an authorized capital of 840,000 shares, of which 580,750 shares including the current offering, will be outstanding. The balance sheet after giving affect to the proposed new financing gives total assets of the company at $40,646,119, including current assets amounting to $1,303,743. Current liabilities are listed at $131,944.

The board of the new company will

AMUNDSEN NOT LOST SAYS A FRIEND IN WF

Visiting Newspaper Writer Has Faith in Scientist's Skill

HE'LL BE BACK

Curtis Dunham Counts Explorer's Safety Assured To The World

"To anyone who has had the advantage of personal acquaintance with Amundsen, lack of news concerning his latest great polar adventure is far from implying that the career of this most experienced, learned, most scientifically calculating and coolest personality in the entire category of explorers of icebound regions, past or present, has ended in tragedy. That Captain Roald Amundsen may not come back — as usual — seems incredible."

This is the impression stated yesterday by Curtis Dunham, for many years a newspaper writer and editor of New York City, who is spending several days in this city in connection wit hParamount picture interests which he represents throughout the state of Texas. Visiting the office of the Record News to get the latest advices concerning the fate of Amundsen and his party of fliers to the North Pole Mr. Dunham said, further:

Met Him In Gotham.

"My first meeting with Captain Amundsen was on his arrival in New York following his discovery of the South Pole. He was, of course, the incomparable hero of the hour, beseiged by officers and members of scientific bodies and overwhelmed with attentions from smart society leaders. He was stopping—as always when in New York—at the Ritz-Carlton, and was easily the most distinguished appearing of the well-dressed throng accustomed to meet there in a social way. In dress and manners he might have been mistaken for a foreign diplomat—in fashionably cut English clothes.

"Although it was mid-winter and a freezing afternoon, he was in light tweeds. He had just entered the hotel from a long walk up Fifth Avenue, carrying gloves and a stick in his hand and wearing no overcoat. Afterwards he told me that he rarely wore an

Amundsen

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP)—The North American Newspaper Alliance announced through the Associated Press at 9 o'clock tonight that it was still without word from the Amundsen-Ellsworth north pole expedition.

It is now five days since the two planes started from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, headed for the pole.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur declared today he regarded as "remote" any chance of sending the dirigible Los Angeles or Shenandoah into the Arctic in search of the Amundsen Polar expedition.

The present intention, he added, is to await the departure of the MacMillan expedition to the north next month, and if the explorer has not reported by that time, to see what can be done by scouting with the airplanes of that party.

BEAT FROM SCRATCH

American Good 10 Yards Ahead of His Opponent at Tape

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., May 26.—Alan Helffrich, Penn State star, gave Paavo Nurmi his first defeat from scratch in this country at a half mile here tonight.

Helffrich ran the noted Finn into the ground on the last turn and in the stretch, reaching the tape a good ten yards in the lead. Thousands of spectators climbed to their seats and cheered the United States' first real conquest over the great Finn.

The American attempted a slow pace at the start and Nurmi soon took the lead, staying out for three-quarters of the distance.

The time was 1:56 4-5 as compared with the American mark of 1:52 1-5 made by Ted Meredith, May 13, 1916.

Albin Stenroos, another of the supermen of Finland, conquered ten Americans in a race of one hour. He also broke the record of 10 miles 1,492 yards made by Charlie Pores of the Millrose A. A. on June 1, 1919.

Carl Christiernson of the Newark A. C. equaled the world's record for the 100-yard hurdles when he defeated Herb Myer and Tom Farrell of his own club in 13 1-5 seconds.

THAW'S MONEY ROARING AGAIN IN ROARING 40S

Back to The White Lights Comes Harry, Unafraid Of Ghosts

"HAIL THE LADIES"

19 Years After White's Blood Ran, His Slayer Renews Paces

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP)—Harry K. Thaw, whose re-entry into the night life of Manhattan for the first time since the evening he killed Stamford White, is the present sensation of the White Light district, said tonight he might remain in the city "half an hour or three weeks." He was found at the Hotel Roosevelt and admitted his identity.

"I'm simply here on business and I'm going to attend to that business and leave," he said over the telephone. "What do you want to pester me for?" he complained, "Lots of people come here. If something happens I'll let you know." He did not say what he expected to happen.

On Sunday Night.

Thaw was first discovered in New York Sunday night, when he appeared at Texas Guinan's night club in the Roaring Forties, accompanied by Fawn Gray, a dancer, and lavishing tips on the cabaret staff and flowers on the women in the place. Although gray haired, he is reported to have shown great zest over being again in New York among the lights and music and well dressed women. The cost of his evening, including a $500 tip to the orchestra, is estimated at $1,500.

Two New York papers today say that Harry K. Thaw has appeared on Broadway again lavishing tips in a cabaret.

"Somewhere," says the New York American, "he had found champagne and had shared several bottles of it with a man companion and with pretty little Fawn Gray, a dancer, who graced his table."

The New York World says the man companion was a former policeman who now acts as Thaw's secretary.

Texas Guinan's new club in the Roaring Forties is given as the scene of Thaw's appearance for the first time since the quashing of kidnaping indictments removed an obstacle to his visiting New York. Recently he has been a gentleman farmer at Winchester, Va., having been released from an asylum in Pennsylvania after a series of sensational legal battles that began when he killed Stanford White in Madison Square Garden, 19 years ago.

Flowers to Women.

Every pretty woman received a costly corsage bouquet at the club late last Sunday night, the stories relate. A five hundred dollar tip went to the orchestra. Tens, twenties, fifties and even hundreds went to the waiters. The cost of his evening is estimated as at least $1,500 and invitations to future entertainments are said to have been extended. He is said to have marvelled at changes in the style of chorus rainment.

Resident of Clay County Dies Sat.

Elijah Philips died at the home of his niece, Mrs. A. W. Lndsay, who lives west of here a few miles in the Carmichiel neighborhood; deceased had never married, and for the past twelve years had made his home with Mrs. Lindsay most of the time. He was 73 years old, and was highly respected by those who knew him.

The funeral was held at Hope cemetery Sunday afternoon, Rev. L. D. Shaver officiating.

ROOSTER ATTACKS MAN; INJURES HIS ANKLE

DALLAS, May 26.—W. H. Langston, 38, of Oak Cliff, told doctors at the Emergency hospital that a rooster was responsible for injuries to his ankle. Langston was working in his henhouse when the rooster suddenly attacked and spurred him in the ankle.

What Will State's Star Witness Say When She Testifies

HASKELL, May 26. — What will Mrs. Frank Woods say when she recovers sufficiently to take the witness stand in the trial of Mrs. Frank Collier?

This is the all absorbing topic of conversation in Haskell.

Has she a knowledge of the killing hitherto not known?

Why is James V. Allred counting so much on her words?

Did she hear Mrs. Collier say anything in connection with the love affair of Buster and Mary Francis?

If so, what was it?

Did Mrs. Wood hear somebody prophesy Buster's death?

Breathlessly, the crowds which are attending the trial here await her reappearance.

Almost without exception tragedies have their sensations, even after the first shock of news of the killing. True indeed has Mrs. Collier's trial had a sensation. That sensation is Mrs. Frank Woods.

PERRYVILLE, Mo., May 26.—(AP)—John J. Carey, 39, surrendered to the sheriff here today and asserted he was the slayer of Dr. William A. Dillon at St. Louis, April 30. The sheriff and prosecuting attorney doubted his story, but held the man for investigation.

The man, who said he was a former soldier, declared the killing resulted from a quarrel over narcotics which he desired to obtain from the physician. His story agreed with known facts as detailed in newspaper accounts with the exception that he said he fired only one shot. The physician was wounded twice.

Sudden Illness Of Mrs. Woods Cause of Order

About Ready to Resume Testimony She Gets Sick When Twice Called to Stand; Each Time State's "Surprise" Unable to Come to Court

HASKELL, Texas, May 26.—The Focal point of interest swung swiftly in the trial of Mrs. Frank Collier today and settled this afternoon on Mrs. Frank Woods of Wichita Falls, scheduled to be the last and most important witness for the state in the case against the wife of the former mayor of Wichita Falls. This frail 17-year-old girl now holds the center of the state and upon her physical condition within the next day or two may hinge the entire course of future events.

A day of inactivity in the courtroom was matched by one of equal business in a private residence here where Mrs. Woods is now in bed. She was removed there from a hotel early in the afternoon and tonight a deputy sheriff was on guard at the house to see that she was not approached by anyone.

The picket was posted after District Attorney James V. Allred asked Judge Bruce Bryant for a court order directing that Mrs. Woods was not to be visited by Frank Collier, Mary Francis Collier Robertson or Mrs. A. R. Duke. The Colliers appeared at the home where Mrs. Woods is recuperating late in the afternoon but did not see the patient.

Centers On Mrs. Woods.

Progress of the trial first started to center around Mrs. Woods Tuesday morning when she was called as the first witness of the day. She had been on the stand but a few minutes when she fainted and fell to the floor. She was carried to her hotel by her husband, who was in an ante-room, and a physician summoned. After three other states witnesses had been called court was adjourned until one o'clock in the afternoon, at which time

HASKELL COURTROOM SEES TEARS OF MRS. ROBERTSON THEN HEARS A JAZZ BAND

HASKELL, Texas, May 26.—(AP)—The little courtroom in which Mrs. Frank Collier is being tried on a charge of killing her son-in-law, Elzie (Buster) Robertson, was the scene of emotions of sorrow and joy within a few hours yesterday. In the afternoon Mrs. Hattie Robertson, mother of the slain youth, sobbed her story of his death. In the evening, after court adjourned the room was put in the possession of a brass band, composed of Haskell young people, and the sounds of their practicing clearly floated from the room.

Monday night was their regular practicing night and they use the courtroom regularly.

Mother-in-Law Sued For Alleged Injury To Wife's Character

HOUSTON, May 26.—Charging alienation of her husband's affections and injury to her name and reputation, Mrs. Marie Smith St. Clair, Tuesday filed a petition in district court asking $50,000 damages from her mother-in-law, Mrs. Adele St. Clair.

In her petition she asserted that on April 6, 1915, she was lawfully married to Osmond L. St. Clair, and went with him to live at the home of his mother, Mrs. Adele St. Clair. She claims that her mother-in-law cursed her, abused her and talked about her to the injury of her reputation.

She says that her mother-in-law accused her of adultery because she was not married by a priest, and caused her to lose her husband's love and companionship.

Farm Mortgage Rate To Remain the Same

HOUSTON, May 26. — (AP) — There is to be no lowering of rates on farm mortgages in Texas by the federal land bank of Houston, it was stated here today. The rate will remain 5½ per cent.

The Houston bank recently sold $2,500,000 of 4½ per cent bonds and the law requires that loans be made at 1 per cent increase over bond rate.

The bank has loaned $120,000,000 to 41,700 Texas farmers since organization in 1917 and has sustained no losses. A total of 21 foreclosures have been made, which is said to be the lowest of any of the banks of the system.

"LOVE DEATH" OF ELZIE HAS EAR OF TEXAS

Bruce Bryant's Court At Haskell Crowded to Hear Collier Case

HASKELL, Texas, May 26.—Haskell county, like its neighbor to the northeast, seems to have taken a consuming interest in what has come to be known as "the Collier case."

No less than did Wichita Falls when Frank Collier was tried last March for the murder of Buster Robertson has Haskell brushed up in its court attendance and flocked to Judge Bruce Bryant's court room to hear what it may of Wichita county's biggest tragedy. The opening day of the trial Monday brought a court room jammed to capacity, while Tuesday was an exact duplicate. As was the case in Wichita Falls during the 10-day duration of the first Collier trial, standing room here has been at a premium. And, as was also the case in Wichita Falls, women composed a large part of the audience.

No Sandwiches Yet.

Thus far no one has had the temerity to bring a paper bag filled with sandwiches to last through the noon recess, but seats nevertheless are objects greatly to be desired before time for convening hour.

The Haskellites, too, have been more or less demonstrative. Not a few of them bent mist-laden eyes on Mrs. Hattie Robertson when she was on the stand Monday afternoon; and most all of them tittered when, during the opening hours, Judge Murchison and Jimmy Allred went to bat on some legal point. The frequent and strenuous objections of the defense, usually made by Judge Murchison, gave material for levity until Judge Bryant grew wrathful at one time and in no uncertain terms promised to clear the court house if another outburst was forthcoming.

Plainly interested but also apparently unconcerned, the principal figure in the case—Mrs. Collier herself—has sat through the trial without a show of emotion. During the selection of the jury she and her husband occupied seats just inside the rail and directly behind the table occupied by her counsel. When taking of testimony started Collier, who is a witness, was placed under the rule and required to leave the room. Mrs. Collier then sat by herself and paid close attention to proceedings as they were unwound with many a knot of legal red tape to be untied. She kept an eye on Mrs. Hattie Robertson when the latter was placed on the stand Monday afternoon, but apparently took little interest in the testimony of R. W. Windham who was the first witness called.

Mrs. Collier Comes Early.

Mrs. Collier has been early at the court house each morning. Monday she and her husband were in the court room nearly an hour before time to convene. Mary Francis, her daughter, was with her mother and father for a time the first day but did not appear in court again. The Colliers drove down here Sunday afternoon.

The other principal figure of interest, Mrs. Robertson, has kept in strict seclusion throughout the hearing. At the appearance she has made thus far, however, she held herself well in hand and bore up much more steadily than at the time of her examination in the trial of Mr. Collier in Wichita Falls. She wept almost continuously and was visibly affected, but at that was more calm than formerly. The strain through which she has gone since the death of her son has told on her. She

Ye Editor Complimented On "Old Home Week" And Given Co-Operation By Thomas Meighan

Mr. Frank Baldwin,
Editor Record News.
Dear Frank:

I noticed the mayor's proclamation in your Sunday morning's paper regarding the observance of an "Old Home Week" and the articles regarding the efforts you intend to put forth to make the week a success.

I think this is a splendid idea and if given the co-operation which I am sure it will be given by commercial and social bodies it will be a big thing to Wichita Falls and should be the means of bringing a great number of out-of-town visitors in during the week.

It so happens that the Paramount Pictures corporation have produced a picture entitled "Old Home Week" starring Thomas Meighan. The story being written by George Ade, the famous humorist and writer. After reading your articles Sunday morning I immediately got in touch with the Paramount Pictures exchange in Dallas and by changing some of my play dates was fortunate enough to get "Old Home Week" picture booked for a run at the Olympic during Old Home Week.

I trust this will be in keeping with your plans and if there is any way I can aid in the Old Home Week movement please consider me at your service.

Sincerely yours,
H. S. FORD
D. F. & R. Enterprises, Inc.

THE spirit of Wichita Falls is gripping about Old Home Week.

Co-operation from the Ford theatres is the latest link in the chain of support given to the event proclaimed last week by Hizoner the Mayor R. E. Shepherd. Dates of the week are May 31 to June 6, and an invitation has been broadcast over a wide area for Wichita Falls, West Texas and Oklahoma neighbors to visit the city at that time.

"The Old Home Week" is a splendid idea and if carried out as it should be will prove beneficial to Wichita Falls business men," says Fred L. Haskett, assistant manager of the Wichita Falls bamber of commerce.

"It costs no money and not a great deal of effort for every business and professional man in Wichita Falls to extend a glad hand to former citizens who may come to the city. Now and then the boys, and girls for that matter, return here and are inspired with the manner in which their old home town has progressed during the past few years. The merchants, I feel sure, will lend a helping hand and have the show windows speak words of welcome from every nook.

"The Old Home Week" idea is not new but few cities have accepted it for its value. Perhaps Baylor university at Waco has done more for that city than any business firm there because it has made Baylor Home Coming Week nationally known.

"Wichita Falls should join in helping make 'The Old Home Week' a success. No doubt many former citizens who now live in nearby cities and towns will be glad to return for a short visit with loved ones or friends."

"COMIN' HUM."

Mayor R. E. Shepherd is getting letters from Wichita Falls folks who have strayed from the city limits regarding Old Home Week. Here's a typical one from Dell Brashea up in Tulsa:

"Shep: Thanks to the mayor, I'll be there. Get the old home quartette lined up and we will have a little harmony. Just read your proclamation."

Old Home Week is May 31 to June 6 inclusive.

Everywhere this New Delco-Light has won an Instant Welcome

A month ago we announced a new Delco-Light electric plant—Delco-Light at a new low price—Delco-Light so inexpensive in cost that it could bring the blessings of electricity to every farm home in America.

Thousands of farmers have found, in this new Delco-Light, the thing they've always wanted—a genuine Delco-Light plant that they could have, completely installed on their farms, at a cost that was really low. Thousands of farm women have found the Delco-Light that would lighten their burdens and bring new happiness to their families—all at a very economical cost.

We Want You to Know About It

Here is a brief description of the new Delco-Light, and some general information about our remarkable new plan of complete installation and easy time payments. Read every word of this information. And then write or telephone immediately for the details of our complete offer.

A 600-Watt Non-Storage Battery Plant

The new plant is a genuine Delco-Light in every respect—full 600-watt capacity, strong, sturdily built economical in operation. It is equipped with a standard Delco starter and an economical starting battery. And its price is only $195 f. o. b. Dayton—the lowest price and the greatest value ever offered in a Delco-Light electric plant.

Complete Installation at a Remarkably Small Cost

In addition to this, special arrangements have been made whereby the Delco-Light Dealer in your community will install your plant and wire your house for five lights to be located wherever you specify. You will receive with the plant five beautiful spun-brass lighting fixtures complete with bulbs.

And all of this—plant, installation, wiring, fixtures, everything ready to turn on the lights—will cost you only $53, in addition to the price of the plant itself.

A Small Down Payment—Balance on Easy Terms

Finally, we have arranged that this new low cost for Delco-Light, completely installed, can be paid on terms so easy that anyone can take advantage of them. The total cost is only $248, including freight (a little more west of the Mississippi). But you make only a small down payment. The balance is payable on easy terms, arranged to suit your convenience.

Ask for Details

Never before has such an offer been made. Never before has Delco-Light cost so little and been so easy to buy. It means that any farm home—your home—can have Delco-Light today.

At the bottom of this advertisement appear the name and address of the Delco-Light Dealer for your community. Call on him, write, or telephone for full information—specifications of the plant, illustrations of the fixtures that come with it, details of our complete installation and wiring plan and the figures that show how easily you can now get Delco-Light.

PLANS OF MA ARE OPEN TO CONJECTURES

Jim Has Been Conferring With Senators And Big Officials

AUSTIN, Texas, May 26.—Are the Fergusons now preparing a concrete tax and appropriation plan, to be presented in complete and final form to a special session of the legislature next winter?

Numerous conferences with legislative and administration leaders, including the presiding officers of both houses, and marked reticence of the members after talking to Gov. Ferguson prompt this inquiry as to what seems to the most logival and most likely answer.

Not less than a dozen senators have been in long conferences at the governor's office in the past two weeks. Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller and Speaker Lee Satterwhite have talked to the Fergusons at length.

The Ferguson administrations, first and last, have followed a well-defined policy of having important proposals for legislation drafted in complete form, down to the text of the bill, before they are made public. They, the administration, "spring" a projected law, only when they have it down just as they want it. Witness the amnesty statute, the tick law.

All likelihood that the legislature would be convened in June or July to revamp the schools and departments torn up by vetoed appropriations, seems to have passed. Speaker Satterwhite says his opinion is the session will occur next November. Other legislative leaders of both houses, friends of the administration, say they see no occasion for a session before next winter, and some say they now see no reason for having any special session—think this two-year term may set a brand-new record of there being but one 62-day session and no special convening of the solons by the governor.

Everywhere this New Delco-Light has won an Instant Welcome

A month ago we announced a new Delco-Light electric plant—Delco-Light at a new low price—Delco-Light so inexpensive in cost that it could bring the blessings of electricity to every farm home in America.

Thousands of farmers have found, in this new Delco-Light, the thing they've always wanted—a genuine Delco-Light plant that they could have, completely installed on their farms, at a cost that was really low. Thousands of farm women have found the Delco-Light that would lighten their burdens and bring new happiness to their families—all at a very economical cost.

We Want You to Know About It

Here is a brief description of the new Delco-Light, and some general information about our remarkable new plan of complete installation and easy time payments. Read every word of this information. And then write or telephone immediately for the details of our complete offer.

A 600-Watt Non-Storage Battery Plant

The new plant is a genuine Delco-Light in every respect—full 600-watt capacity, strong, sturdily built economical in operation. It is equipped with a standard Delco starter and an economical starting battery. And its price is only $195 f. o. b. Dayton—the lowest price and the greatest value ever offered in a Delco-Light electric plant.

Complete Installation at a Remarkably Small Cost

In addition to this, special arrangements have been made whereby the Delco-Light Dealer in your community will install your plant and wire your house for five lights to be located wherever you specify. You will receive with the plant five beautiful spun-brass lighting fixtures complete with bulbs.

And all of this—plant, installation, wiring, fixtures, everything ready to turn on the lights—will cost you only $53, in addition to the price of the plant itself.

A Small Down Payment—Balance on Easy Terms

Finally, we have arranged that this new low cost for Delco-Light, completely installed, can be paid on terms so easy that anyone can take advantage of them. The total cost is only $248, including freight (a little more west of the Mississippi). But you make only a small down payment. The balance is payable on easy terms, arranged to suit your convenience.

Ask for Details

Never before has such an offer been made. Never before has Delco-Light cost so little and been so easy to buy. It means that any farm home—your home—can have Delco-Light today.

At the bottom of this advertisement appear the name and address of the Delco-Light Dealer for your community. Call on him, write, or telephone for full information—specifications of the plant, illustrations of the fixtures that come with it, details of our complete installation and wiring plan and the figures that show how easily you can now get Delco-Light.

PLANS OF MA ARE OPEN TO CONJECTURES

Jim Has Been Conferring With Senators And Big Officials

AUSTIN, Texas, May 26.—Are the Fergusons now preparing a concrete tax and appropriation plan, to be presented in complete and final form to a special session of the legislature next winter?

Numerous conferences with legislative and administration leaders, including the presiding officers of both houses, and marked reticence of the members after talking to Gov. Ferguson prompt this inquiry as to what seems to the most logival and most likely answer.

Not less than a dozen senators have been in long conferences at the governor's office in the past two weeks. Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller and Speaker Lee Satterwhite have talked to the Fergusons at length.

The Ferguson administrations, first and last, have followed a well-defined policy of having important proposals for legislation drafted in complete form, down to the text of the bill, before they are made public. They, the administration, "spring" a projected law, only when they have it down just as they want it. Witness the amnesty statute, the tick law.

All likelihood that the legislature would be convened in June or July to revamp the schools and departments torn up by vetoed appropriations, seems to have passed. Speaker Satterwhite says his opinion is the session will occur next November. Other legislative leaders of both houses, friends of the administration, say they see no occasion for a session before next winter, and some say they now see no reason for having any special session—think this two-year term may set a brand-new record of there being but one 62-day session and no special convening of the solons by the governor.

Crown Jewels of Russia Still In Russia---Soviet Officials Display Them

MOSCOW, May 26.—(AP)—Foreign ministers and ambassadors stationed here today saw the Russian crown jewels.

The display was dazzling. The estimated value of the collection was given as the equivalent of $50,000,000. The soviet authorities, it is said, intend preserving the jewels as evidence of the lavishness and extravagance of the preceding imperial regimes.

THE RIGHTS OF THE GOVERNED.

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of the American Revolution, and the present state of things in Russia, jointly cal lto mind some observations of Edmund Burke upon government. Burke, courageous defender colonies in the English parliament, defined government as a contrivance of human wisdom to provide for human wants.

Men have a natural right that these wants should be provided for by this wisodm, he be lieved.

Among wants he reckoned the want, out of civil society, of a sufficient restraint upon their passions.

"Society requires not only that the passions of individuals should be subjected, but even in the mass and body, as well as in the individuals, the inclinations of men should frequently be controlled and their passions brought into subjection.

"This can only be done by a power out of themselves; and not, in the exercise of its function, subject to that will and to those passions which it is its office to bridle and subdue.

"In this sense the restraints on men, as well as their liberties, are to be reckoned among their rights.'

But, Burke knew, as the liberties and restrictions vary with times and circumstances, and admit of infinite modifications, they cannot be settled by any abstract rule.

However, it is clear that the moment you abate anything from the full rights of men, each to govern himself, and suffer any artificial, positive limitations upon those rights, from that moment the whole organization of government becomes a consideration of convenience.

Burke allowed that whatever each man can separately do, without trespassing on others, he has a right to do for himself; and he has a right to a fair portion of all which society, and its combinations of skill and force, can do in his favor. In this partnership all men have equal rights; but not to equal things.

As Burke explained it, "He that has but five shillings in the partnership has as good a right to it as he that has five hundred pounds to his larger proportion. But he has not a right to an equal dividend in the product of the joint stock; and as to the share of power, authority and direction which each individual ought to have in the management of the state, that I must deny to be amongst the original rights of man in civil society."

One of the fundamentals of civil society is that no man should be judge in his own cause. By this each person has at once divested himself of the first right of uncovenanted man, that is, to judge for himself, and to assert his own cause. He abdicates all right to be his own governor. He inclusively, in a great measure, abandons the right of self-defense, the first law of nature.

Men cannot enjoy the rights of an uncivil and a civil state together. That he may obtain justice, he gives up his right of determining what it is in points most essential to him. That he may secure some liberty, he makes surrender in trust of the whole of it.

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

One of the most remarkable careers in military history was brought into public prominence by the death of Earl of Ypres at Deal, Eangland, at the age of 73 years. The Earl, better known as Field Marshal French, won the highest honors in the British army and received from the king a foreign title celebrating his most outstanding achievement. Yet, though he became so famous, he never distinguished himself by any master stroke of generalship of conquering strategy. It would be difficult today to say in what particular talent he was superior to other generals of his age.

But it is unquestionable that French possessed the ability to rise to great occasions. If he did not quite conquer circumstances, he did meet them. This ability constituted, perhaps his title to greatness. He was continually emerging from obscurity to serve adequately where others had failed. Hence, he came to enjoy the reputation of being unusually lucky. "French luck' is said to have passed into a common expression in the British army. Such good luck as came to him, always followed upon ill luck, and thus appeared almost magical because it was so unlooked for.

At the age of 41 French had the misfortune to be placed upon the retired list to make room for younger men. He was only a colonel of cavalry, and seemed unlikely to attain any greater honor. His service in India, however, was remembered when a revision of cavalry drill was contemplated. He was recalled from obscurity to write the new regulations. Performing his task with decided credit, he was promoted to the post of assistant adjutant general of cavalry to aid in effecting the reforms which he had so well expounded. In army maneuvers and during the Boer war he won fresh promotions, although his successes were always unexpected and never immediately recognized.

The world war found French already a field marshal, and he was given command of the British expeditionary forces. At Ypres he assured the safety of the channel ports and made England secure against possible invasion. But the significance of his victory was not at once realized, and instead of receiving commendation he was subjected to criticism for permitting the Germans to entrench themselves and winning his successes at a tremendous cost of life. Actually superseded by Sir Douglas Haig after sixteen months of strenuous fighting, he received the meaningless title of commander-in-chief of all the forces in the United Kingdom. Later he was made lord lieutenant of Ireland. When he retired from this position the king gave him an earldom, but not until almost a year had passed was that fact gazetted and properly announced to the world.

FLOGGERS MUST DO TIME.

Floggers, masked otherwise, if convicted must do time in the penitentiary of the state. This is the decree of the court of criminal appeals of Texas in the last of the Williamson county flogging cases. It may be fun for a flogger to hunt a d whip a victim, but it is hell when the law runs down the flogger and puts him behind the bars—that is, it is hell for the flogger.

THE OUTLOOK.

Every man should raise his eyes once in a while from his immediate work and see what lies around him.

The only use we can find for the sky is to furnish us an outlook.

There is something inspiring in a distant view, and there is something inspiring too in looking at the world and at what other people are doing that have no concern with us. This enables us to keep our proper bearings. We do not magnify too much the work in which we are engaged, but we see it in its proper relation to other things.

Very frequently when the mind has wandered into the fields round about it returns refreshed to its immediate task.

A man must have not only something to do, some task to which he is devoting his best efforts, but he needs some diversion. Occasionally the mind is rested by devoting it to something else.

We should study concentration and attention, but such things should not be overdone.

In looking for something it is better to look around rapidly and promiscuously than to look steadily in one place.

The world, we are told, is "full of a number of things," and there may be something that will crop up that will be of great benefit to us.

We should not only watch our job, but we should have an eye on events.

In this as in most things there is a balance to be maintained. We must devote a certain energy to the task in front of us and devote some attention to the things around us, and these must be kept properly balanced.

Very frequently a man gets an exalted opinion of himself. He thinks of himself too highly when he does not look at the world around him. To observe the stars and to think that we are inhabitants of just a little speck floating in the vast heavens impresses upon us our nothingness.

Every cult and sect is apt to consider itself the most important thing in the universe. It is one of the advantages of travel that shows us how many other things the world is concerned in and how many different kinds of people the great Ruler of the universe has to manage.

A man should think of himself and of his own affairs as having some importance, but he should not give them too much importance. There is the world to be thought of and one's relation to it.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION ARRIVES.

A great constructive step in commercial aviation was taken the other day, with the organization of the Naitonal Air Transport, Incorporated, in Chicago with $10,000,000 capitalization. Three aircraft companies are brought together in the new corporation, two pioners and one of the latest concerns. The units absorbed are the Curtis Aeroplane & Motor company, the Wright Aeronautical corporation and the Aircraft Development corporation. A score of the nations leading business men are said to be interested in this consolidation. Colonel Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, who has had charge of the government's air mail service, is to head the new organization.

With such able direction, solid backing and sound organization, private enterprise will launch aviation on its commercial career. The establishment of many different lines for carrying express and freight is contemplated. Immediately in view is the important line from New York to Chicago. It is expected that this line will be in operation by the coming autumn. Planes will make the night flight over lighted airway from New York to Chicago, starting at 9:30 p. m. Letters and documents, stocks and bonds can be transferred from one great business center to another without loss of any part of a business day.

Uncommon Sense

TIPS.

Not long ago a man with whom I have a very casual acquaintance dropped into the seat next to mine on the train and began to talk about oil wells.

"I have just turned up a great chance," he said. "I have found a company that has struck oil within the last few days, and kept it quiet. Their stock is way down now, but pretty soon it will be worth three or four times more than par. I thought I'd tell you about it."

"Why me?" I inquired.

"Well, we have mutual friends, and I know they'd like to have you let in on it."

"Are your mutual friends taking any of the stock?"

"They will, I'm sure."

"Are you taking any of it?"

"Oh, yes, all I can afford."

"Do you know that this company has struck oil?"

"Absolutely."

"Then why is it willing to sell the stock for a song, when by hanging on to it the men in the company could make fortunes?"

"Well, they need outside capital to develop the properties. So they are just selling enough stock to get it."

That is the sort of a conversation that people hear every day from kindly gentlemen who want to let them in on a good thing and make them rich.

The man who knew all about this oil well and the company that owned it ddin't take any of the stock apparently, for he went through a bankruptcy court the other day.

And our mutual friends must have known him so well that they were afraid of his, as I was.

It may be taken for granted that a man who has got an absolutely sure tip based on inside information that a stock is going up will keep it to himself until he has made some money out of it. It wouldn't be human nature not to.

But the world is full of men who do not like to work, and who therefore are glad to help others get rich in a hurry—for a commission.

Talking is easier than sitting at a desk keeping books, or swinging a hammer or a pickaxe.

And always there are enough people whose greed can be appealed to to give them victims.

There is something about the prospect of an unearned fortune that gives every imagination a little filling when it is talked of.

But to the sane man, who has had to work for his money, it goes no further than that. He thinks over all the circumstances, and decides that money that was worth working for is not worth risking on wildcat schemes.

And even if one man in a million does happen to make a "clean up" in some unheard of stock he doesn't worry. He is sure that he probably would have picked some other unheard of stock, and have lost his savings on it. So he keeps out of a market about which he knows nothing whatever. And he never regrets his decision to keep out, either.

Irrigation

Some Irrigation Taxes.

Yesterday we spoke of the low taxes paid for water on the irrigation project and compared them with taxes for water at the same price, $35 per acre, as it used to be twenty years ago.

Here there is no practical limit to the amount of water a farmer may use. A farmer can have just as much water as he wants if he can make a reasonable excuse for asking for it. On most other porjects a limited amount is furnished called free water. This rarely exceeds more than one and one-half feet per acre. Here it is all free water.

The U. S. reclamation projects were built as well as skilled engineers and unlimited supplies of government money could build them. The better built a project is the lower the operating cost should be. Therefore the government projects should have a low tax for upkeep.

In 1921 the acreage that could be supplied with water on the Elephant Butte project at El Paso was 109,000. The maintenance cost was $230,-019.98 or over two dollars per acre.

In 1922 the Carlsbad project in New Mexico showed in their report that they could supply water to 24,-990 acres. Their maintenance charge totaled $58,291.14 or about $2.30 per acre.

In 1922 the Huntley project in Montana could supply water to 31,-964 acres. Their total maintenance charge was $67,222.88 or over two dollars per acre.

The maintenance charge here is supposed to be only $1.05 per acre. This certainly compares most favorably with any of the government projects.

Of one hundred children perhaps more than five are susceptible to diptheria—but those five should be detected and protected.

Diptheria should not be released from isolation until three cultures, on succeeding days, show the throat to be free of the germ. A few patients, after recovery, continue to carry and dissemminate the disease.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

Gemini.

The planetary aspects of today are, until noon, quite unfavorable, and nothing of any great importance should be either attempted or done during this period. Only routine work should occupy your attention, and no correspondence involving big issues should be either dictated or written. After noon, conditions reveal a slow but steadily increasing improvement, and this is an excellent opportunity for reviewing work that has already been done, or working out plans for future development. It is not, however, favorable for any very aggressive action. In the evening, the aspects are benign, and presage a contented and tranquil atmosphere, especially in the home ot family circle.

A considerable amount of infantile sickness is indicated for the child born today. Serious results can be avoided by regular nutrition and an abundance of outdoor air. This child's temperament will be nervous and excitable, while its character will be exceedingly difficult and complex. It will never be willing to wait to cross a bridge until reaching it, but will always anticipate trouble, and conjure up a thousand catastrophes that might, but never will, happen. It will never be a cheerful companion, but, at heart, will be very loyal to its friends and associates. It may be rather unconventional in its mode of living, as, possessing very decided opinions of its own as to what is right and what is wrong. It will disregard expediency and show little consideration for the feelings or wishes of others.

Is today your birthday? If so, you are stubborn and self-willed, and love to have your own way in everything, not so much because of any benefit you may derive, but for your own satisfaction. No one who knows you ever charges you with selfishness, although many, some of them misguided, admire your quality of getting that for which you strive. Your material success has been proportionate to your intelligence, and, if you have only secured mediocre results, the cause is not lack of unrelenting persistency, but limited ability.

In spite of your failings, you, although making friends slowly, retain those you make, and these friendships are reciprocally loyal and constant. You are quite exacting but no matter what you may do, you are always pleasant and agreeable in speech, and are very devoted to your home and family.

HOW IT STARTED

"Chew Your Ear Off."

"If everything isn't all right, I'll come back and bite you ear off"—or "chew your ear off" you have perhaps heard a petulant lady threaten. It is a form of violence threatened, usually, by a facetiously inclined woman, yet it is in the historic act of a man and a philosopher that it had its origin.

The phrase takes us back to that episode of Greek lore which tells of the punishments of an ancient philosopher, who was ordered by the command of Nearchus to be pounded to death in a mortar. Despairing of his life, according to the story, he determined on at least one taste of revenge. Pleading near-death, he pretended to have a communication of great importance for Nearchus, and when the latter bent an ear low to receive it, he bit it off.

More Truth Than Poetry

NOT SO BAD

The neighbors of rich men remark,
"They never could gather that wealth
Save by ways that are evil and dark,
And plunder and arson and stealth.
It is easy to see that the plutocrat class
Are under the average mentality,
And never could possibly fortunes amass
Except by the aid of rascality."

But the rich ride about in their cars,
And sail in their yachts o'er the seas,
And smoke their imposing cigars
Serenely and calmly at ease.
With pleasures abundantly strewn in their way,
The envy of others can't flurry 'em—
And the things that less fortunate people can say
Have not any power to worry 'em.

When rich men pass forth from this life,
Their children—if any they had—
Engage in a violent strife
And swear—in the courts—they were mad.
They say that of reason they long were bereft,
That they had neither heart nor humanity—
And they furthermore showed, by the wills that they left
That they suffered from hopeless insanity.

We would look upon wealth as a curse,
Except for the fact that it's clear
That the man with a well padded purse
Has a pretty good time while he's here,
And after he's dead, though he may be attacked
By his heirs and the legal fraternity—
He happily isn't aware of the fact,
But sleeps on to the end of eternity.

LOCAL TALENT WILL APPEAR WITH MALLOCH

Wichita Singers Are Placed On Program With Poet

MUSICAL numbers offered by the Musicians' club Thursday evening at the recital of Douglas Malloch, "the business man's poet," who appears Thursday evening at the Junior college, will be of the highest quality in compliment to the distinguished speaker.

Wm. E. Young, baritone, will appear as soloist, and the mixed quartette of the First Presbyterian church will sing.

From Kentucky.

MR. YOUNG, who is soloist for the First Baptist church and financial director of that institution, is a Kentuchian, and after finishing Georgetown college and studying voice with B. M. Beausong, took charge of his first choir in 1919 at Ashland Avenue Baptist church in Lexington. A soloist since 1916, he gave his first recital program in 1921 and came to Wichita Falls and the Baptist church here in February, 1922.

He is a pupil of W. J. Arkwell of New York City and of William S. Brady of New York, with whom he studied last summer, taking special work also in the Chicago Musical college. Besides solo work, Mr. Young studied extensively choir and chorus work and conducting at the Moody Bible institute, where he specialized in church music, and then followed his study with two years of evangelistic work in the southern states.

A soloist of the first rank, Mr. Young holds a prominent position in musical circles of the city and his appearapce Thursday evening is heralded as a musical treat.

Mixed Quartette.

THE First Presbyterian mixed quartette is composed of voices of exceptional training and beauty that blend smoothly for ensemble work, and includes Mrs. T. C. Brownell, soprano; Miss Dorothy Iola Burks, alto; Glenn Law, tenor, and Alva Willbus, bass.

Mr. Willgus, choir director and business manager for the First Presbyterian church, is a student of the Musical Conservatory at Baker university, Baldwin, Kan.; Moody Bible institute; Chicago Musical college, and has done extensive evangelistic singing. During the war, he was director of music for the six southern states for the Y. M. C. A. He possesses a baritone voice of rich power and sweetness.

Miss Burk's, pastor's assistant, and contralto soloist for the church, is a singer of ability, and a pupil of Mrs. Louella B. Thompson. She received her musical education at Trinity university and is active in local musical organizations.

Mr. Law, who has been in the city only two months, arriving from San Antonio, possesses a remarkable tenor voice, and will be remembered as "Robin Hood" in the opera as it appeared here two years ago. Last year, following his opera tour, Mr. Law did concert work with a mixed quartette, and has now come to the city to make his home, singing as soloist with the First Presbyterian choir.

Mrs. Brownell.

MRS. BROWNELL, noted soprano, has lived in Wichita Falls for the past four years and has taught the past two. Her appearances are anticipated with pleasure by local audiences. Receiving her musical training in London and Berlin, Mrs. Brownell has done concert work for many years, and in 1915, at the Panama Pacific exposition, won first prize among 30 international sopranos for her rendition of "I Will Extol Thee" from Costa's "Eli," in the Welsh Eisteddfod, or international song festival.

With this pretentious array of local talent, the Musicians' club offers musical numbers Thursday evening of the highest quality.

SOUTH SIDE COMMUNITY HOUSE BEING ERECTED.

THE new community house for the South Side is now under construction, according to an announcement received Tuesday afternoon following a meeting of the South Side Civic league, who are sponsoring the building of the house.

Two hundred dollars in subscriptions have been given towards the building of the house. All donations have been greatly received and according to Mrs. W. S. Martin anyone interested in the community or the things they are doing are asked to contribute towards it. If there is anyone who might feel that they could spare a day or several days on working on the house they are asked to call Mrs. Martin at 6843.

The screen for the stage has been designed and all advertisement space for it has been sold. A good sum was realized from the advertising which will go towards the building and furnishing of the house.

A membership drive will be started some time in June for new members for the South Side Civic league. LAZINESS RUINS BODY

Mrs. Booth Knows Rules For Beauty

DO you know how to exercise away the extra tissue and breathing so that they function properly?

Do you know how to get rid of that ugly bump on the back of the neck and create a graceful shoulder line?

* * * *

DO you know ho wto exercise away the extra tissue and fat of the abdomen walls and eradicate this surest sign of age and laziness? These are some of the questions to be answered by Marie La Salle Booth, famous beauty culture expert of the Pacific coast being brought to Wichita Falls under the auspices of The Wichita Falls Record News, for a course of six free lectures. Mrs. Booth will appear Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings of next week at ten o'clock at the Olympic theatre through the courtesy of Manager Sparks. Evening lectures will be given at 8 o'clock for business and professional women at the Y. W. C. A. through the courtesy of Mrs. Iva Austin.

* * * *

MRS. BOOTH is a womn of education, poise and charm. She is an experienced lecturer and her lectures alone provide an hour of profitable entertainment. Most women realize the importance in this age of not only retaining a youthful point of view, but of developing latent talents and latent charm so as to grow more lovely as the years pass. Mental alertness, a certain amount of exercise, and right motives are considered the main essentials. Into her preaching of the gospel of exercise, Mrs. Booth weaves a wholesome philisophy and she deplores mental laziness just as much as she advises against indifference to physical development. Men are invited to all these lectures.

KATZ PUPILS PLEASE IN MONDAY RECITAL.

ARTISTIC talent and ability developed to a high degree of excellence was displayed by a charming array of youthful performers at the Junior college Tuesday evening, May 26, when Ernest Katz presented his younger pupils in piano in a closing recital for the season. Highly trained, with skillful and beautiful interpretation, the young artists impressed the large crowd of friends and relatives in the audience with their marked ability, with the manner in which they played the well chosen selections appearing on the program.

Finished preparation, the quality in a recital performance that stands out above the difficulty or brilliance of a selection, was noticeable in last night's program, and made the evening of music a truly enjoyable concert. The performers played with ease and pleasure that did themselves and their instructor credit.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an overworked little drudge in her father's inn.

Landis Ridgeway her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

Florence Ridgeway, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

Stevie Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage, and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beolved Landis.

Landis finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed — to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris meanwhile Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. The two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Landis continues philandering with Lydia while Rosilyn to help forget the pangs of jealousy, allows Briscoe to pay her more flattering attention. The next day the latter drives her to the station where she is to meet her husband before they leave for their country home.

"Lydia, you've never looked more enchanting than at this moment!"

She bowed merrily, at the same time catching a glimpse of herself in a strip of mirror set into the wall. The Rolls was open to the sunshine, and a becoming mauve-tinted light filtered through the charming Paris hat to make a delicate radiance on her face.

Her voice was low, and had an ineffable sweetness as she said:

"All I care about, Landis, is to be lovely in your eyes!"

"D'you mind if I smoke? I'll be awfully careful of your gown. And will you have a cigarette too?"

She shook her head.

"You go ahead. I don't mind. Let me light it for you."

With a pretty gesture, she applied the match. She saw, with satisfaction, that the long brown fingers which held the cigarette trembled.

"Pleased to see me, Landis?" She moved the fraction of an inch nearer him. The faint, intoxicating fragrance rose to his head, like incense.

"Lydia! What a question! I've been literally counting the hours—"

She raised her beautifully pencilled brows.

"Until you could break loose from matrimony? Somehow, Landis—she gave her tinkling little laugh, just like a bird's song—"I can't see you in that role!"

"Don't Lydia!" The restless light was in his handsome eyes again. "Don't rub it in! Today let's just be happy!"

She took the cigarette from his lips, giving it a dainty puff or two. "Here—take it back again."

Their hands touched for a magic moment. Her usually cold veins responded to his fire.

"It's wonderful to see you again, Landis. Somehow, at the last minute, I though you might be detained at Royal Cliff. Or I thought perhaps the car might be required.

Under his tan he flushed at the insinuation of servitude.

"Rosilyn is generous," he said stiffly. "The car is mine. She has her own."

"And goes her own way?" supplemented Lydia archly.

He bit his lip.

"Shall we change the subject?" She saw her tactical error.

CHAPTER XLV.

"I love you all the more for being loyal, Landis." Lydia edged nearer him, looking up into his handsome, moody face.

"Loyal?" He gave a short, harsh laugh. "I wouldn't call it that. I feel—a cad—often. Disloyal to Rosilyn. Unfair to you. And yet—it's hard—so hard—"

She snuggled closer, forgetting for the moment the glories of her brand new gown.

"Let's go on drifting, and never mind tomorrow. Introspection's fatal to happiness. And today we're going to be amazingly happy, you and I."

Her voice was low and full of sweetness.

The car sped on, and soon New York was left behind. They were out in the open country, which never had looked lovelier. Buttercups and daisies dotted the green fields, and as they neared their destination, masses of rhododendrons, red, white and purple, edged the road.

They parked the car and walked towards the stands.

Under a sky of delicate blue flecked with snowy little cloudlets, the course and lawns of the rendezvous were a veritable dream of beauty. Women's exquisite toilettes in every tint imaginable formed a kaleidoscope of color, changing as they moved hither and thither on the green sward.

Smart men, flowers in their buttonholes, were escorts to these lovely women.

"Isn't it heavenly?" breathed Lydia as she and Landis strolled across the lawns. This was her metier—the life she loved.

A cloud came upon Landis' former mood of gaiety. The gorgeous toilettes all about him brought—in sharp contrast to his memory the picture of a small, pale girl with wistful eyes who had lavished money generously upon him—the girl whom he had left at home, all heedless of her happiness.

She had been very simply dressed, that girl, and yet never had she looked so appealing as when she had bade good-bye to him, and told him—with that wistful, little smile of hers that held such a mystery—how much she hoped he would enjoy himself, and that he wasn't to hurry back on her account.

"You wouldn't care to go to the races?" he had said, tentatively, and at the same time wondering what on earth he should do if she accepted.

"No, thank you," she had answered, the little smile in evidence, but the mystery deepening in her really lovely eyes, "I shouldn't do you credit, Landis. All the beauties will be there and all the Paris gowns. I'd be awfully out of place, I can assure you."

"You'd be like a sweet little moss rose among the tiger-lilies and the orchids!"

She had laughed and flushed at that.

"The tiger-lilies and the orchids are more suitable, in any case. So please excuse me, and enjoy yourself."

Lydia chattered at his side. Every now and then friends and acquaintances stopped them for a word or two. Gay badinage was all about them.

"And where's the bride?" he was asked several times.

"Down at our country place. One or the other of us has to be always there just now, until the decorations are complete."

"Let's get over to the stand! I'm sick of these bores!" commanded Landis, steering Lydia away.

This advertisement tells you of an opportunity to become a partner in Cities Service Co. We believe it will pay you well to read every word on this page and to act promptly when the time comes.

Your Partnership in Cities Service Company will have Far Reaching Good Results

If you use electricity, gas, heat, water or ice, supplied by any Cities Service subsidiary—or if you buy Cities Service gasoline, oils or other petroleum products, you are a customer of the Cities Service Organization, and have a special right to share in the earnings you help to produce. You can become a profit-sharing partner in the Company by the purchase of Cities Service Preferred stock.

You Gain Most

You gain, first of all, through Customer Ownership, a safe, sound place to put your money.

You gain by getting good wages for your working dollars. At the present price of Cities Service Preferred, you get about $7.00 per year for each $100 you put to work. You get every month, a dividend check for the earnings on your money. Your money is in a constructive business, which helps you and thousands of other people to get more enjoyment and satisfaction out of life.

Some of the properties ofwhich you are part owner are near your own home, so you can see at almost any time how your money is working.

If you need to get your money out, our resale department is at your disposal. No brokerage charge is made for selling your Cities Service stock, providing you have given your order to an employee.

You can pay for your shares on the monthly investment plan, if you wish—$10.00 down and $10.00 a month per share.

Your Community Gains

When you become a part owner of Cities Service Company, you are one of the scores, hundreds and thousands who are helping to provide good service to meet the community's need. The progress of every community depends largely on service and products, such as are supplied by the Cities Service organization.

You help to widen the great friendly circle of stockholders and employees of the Cities Service organization, which promotes good service, co-operation and progress.

Our Company Gains

When you become a shareholder in Cities Service Company, you become more interested in the Company's welfare—you buy Cities Service products, recommend them to your friends, and make valuable suggestions for improving products and service.

We get wider distribution of our securities. It is better to have one hundred customers and friends own ten shares each of Cities Service Preferred Stock, than to have ten speculating capitalists own one hundred shares each. Many capitalists are inclined to buy and sell for speculation—the customer-owner holds his stock as a safe investment. This helps stabilize the price of the security.

Our local company does not raise a cent of new capital, or make a cent of profit on your purchase of Cities Service Preferred Stock, as the shares we offer in this campaign must first be bought in the open market, usually from large holders, for the purpose of replacing them in the hands of the largest possible number of investors—people like yourself, who invest for safety and steady yield.

We believe you will agree that Customer Ownership is a movement which benefits many people—and that you can gain by placing some of your savings in Cities Service Preferred Stock.

The letter that will be mailed to every customer of our company will give full details of our partnership offer.

If you do not get your letter promptly, we suggest that you get in touch with an employee of our company—or you can telephone or call at our local office, for any further information you may need.

B. C. Forbes

Writing in the New York American, December 1924 SAYS;

"America has more 'customer-owners' of securities today than the total number of security owners in the whole country ten years ago.

"During 1924, electric light and power companies alone have sold nearly $200,000,000 worth of their securities through 'customer ownership' campaigns to approximately 225,000 individuals.

"In my humble opinion, no industry in this country is destined to expand and progress more than the electrical industry. The age of electricity is upon us."

Geo. T. Hughes

In the Albany (N. Y.) Evening News SAYS;

"Probably there is no field in which the investment opportunities this year are as promising as that of the public utilities. The demand for the service of these companies is greater than it ever was before, and there is no limit in sight.

"The customer ownership campaigns have been very helpful in familiarizing investors with the merits of public utility preferred stock.

"One of the big insurance companies never buys a public utility security without first inquiring whether the company has 'customer-ownership.'"

Roy Dickinson

In Printers' Ink SAYS;

"Public utility companies are doing a real work in helping turn the customer into a thrifty, happy investor, who makes his locality a better place to live and do business in.

"Customer ownership campaigns educate the public to the value of good investments near home, which build good citizens. The work of the great public utility companies is a good example."

Ed Hughes' Column

The absence of the knockout punch is almost a pretty sure sign of absence of "class," too. There hasn't been a knockout attached to the changing of the bantam title in the last three years. Which is significant, in view of the fact that three champions of the class have come and gone, and a fourth—Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg—is now with us.

It was not like that in the olden days, when some unfortunate young man took a public nap as the regal purple was jerked from his frame. Measuring from the time of George Dixon, Lil' Chocolate, we find that the bantamweight championship changed hands but five times in sixteen years. And that in each instance, save in the case of a retirement, the winner of the title achieved his glory with a good, old-fashioned knockout.

Quite a variety of blows have been delivered to compass the long string of royal downfalls which now makes it possible for Charlie Rosenberg to tote the crown which once ornamented the dusky dome of George Dixon. Rosenberg's left jabbed his way to Eddie Martin's title. The jab, as you will remark, has been something of a favorite weapon of others to garner a title.

Dixon himself, as a matter of fact, utilized this punch to clinch his right to the world's bantam championship. That was when the little colored marvel fought the clever Briton, Nunc Wallace, in London. The first six rounds were entirely in favor of the Englishman, whose defence as well as his attack nettled George.

Wallace, indeed, was a warm betting choice until the tenth round was under way. It was in this period that Dixon began unleashing a left jab which Wallace could not avoid. Dixon jabbed and jabbed—to the face and to the stomach. So fast and so accurately did George send them in that Wallace was at a loss for a defense. At the end of the fourteenth Wallace was very wobbly. In the eighteenth Dixon jabbed one more to the stomach and thus hustled the Briton in a corner.

There he belabored Wallace about the head and the stomach until the Briton threw up a glove in token of surrender.

Dixon's jabs had dynamite in them.

BARRY AND TERRY

Jimmy Barry, of Chicago, succeeded Dixon as bantam champion when Lil' Chocolate stepped into the featherweight division. Barry claimed Dixon's forsaken honors, and to prove his rights encountered Casper Leon, the dangerous New Yorker, one of the finest fighters that failed to win a title.

Barry was something of a wonder. He began fighting professionally in 1893. Two years later he was a champion. Barry was an excellent boxer and he could punch, too. He and Leon fought at Lamont, Ill., September 15, 1894. Barry's extraordinary gameness carried him through to victory. For 20 rounds the fight was all Leon. And here again, we find the playing a stellar role. Leon's jabs had practically closed both of Barry's eyes. However, Jimmy didn't despair. And in the 20th round connected a heavy right swing to Leon's jaw. The punch turned the tide.

Next comes Terrible Terry McGovern. No jabs here, you! After Barry had retired undefeated, McGovern claimed the title and met the widely heralded Pedlar Palmer, champion of England, for the world's crown in the class.

McGovern scored one of his characteristically sensational victories. He knocked the brilliant English boxer galleywest in exactly two and a half minutes. In this case it was McGovern's savage body punching which paved the way for the knockout. The deciding blows here were a terrific left hook to the pit of the stomach, followed by a right to the jaw as the little Britisher caved in.

This engagement was staged in Tuckahoe, N. Y., September 12, 1899, the youngsters scaling 116 pounds ringside.

After Terry McGovern had grown too heavy for the bantams one Harry Forbes, of Chicago, arrived to govern bantam roose. Forbes was a remarkably skilled boxer. He met all comers with splendid success from 1901 to 1903, when he ran afoul of a genuine little fighting man—Frankie Neil of California.

LEFT TO STOMACH.

Neil was noted for his deadly left hook to the stomach. He had knocked out dozens of rivals with it, but not so many were prepared to see him add the clever Forbes to his list of victims. Forbes, however, was soon reduced to fistic ashes. It was a short but thrilling encounter. Neil weakened Forbes with jarring lefts to the head in the second and then swept the champion from his pins with a wild right to the jaw. Forbes arose shakily and Neil walked in to finish him. Instead, he himself was nearly cashiered. Forbes banged Frankie on the chin with a whizzing right and the challenger went to the floor for nine.

Neil, however, finished Forbes in the next flying mix-up. A left to the stomach, followed by a left to the jaw, dropped the Chicagoan senseless.

The left jab again inserts itself in the kaleidescope of the bantam champions. Joe Bowker, talented, or, as he quaintly puts it, "useful," English champion, is the next to ascend the throne. Frankie Neil underrates the prowess of the clever little Britisher. Bowker, after being worsted in the opening ten rounds, cooly proceeds to jab Neil dizzy for the remainder of the combat.

Jimmy Walsh, of Boston, and Digger Stanley, another Briton, make sundry claims to the title. But Johnny Coulon is the next one. Coulon, a sturdy two-fisted fighting man, whipped Kendrick, the Englishman, for the title. No particular punch turned the trick, however.

Kid Williams, the Baltimore Wolf Boy, crushed Coulon with a right to the jaw, after severely manhandling the then ancient Coulon for two and a half rounds. Pete Herman beat Williams on general science. Lynch defeated Herman with smart applications of the "one-two" an almost simultaneous left and right.

Johnny Buff beat Herman with aggressiveness and constant punching more than anything else. Goldstein's left jab beat Joe Lynch. Cannonball Martin's "bulling" whipped Goldstein.

Charlie Rosenberg's gifted left jab bumbled Martin. Dixon, Bowker, Coulon, Herman, Goldstein also called on the punch to win. It's rather a "useful" wallop, as Bowker would say.

Cats and Bears Beat Exporters And Shreveport

Cuban Twirls Wacoans To 8-2 Victory Over Steers

BEAUMONT, May 26.—Fort Worth popped the offerings of Jacobus, veteran spitballer here Tuesday afternoon, for 14 hits and nine tallies, beating the Exporters, 9 to 1. "Lefty" Johns hurled an air-tight game for the Cats, allowing but seven hits and not issuing a single pass. The Exporters slapped three doubles in succession in the sixth inning, but only scored one run, as Leach's hit looked as if it would be nabbed by Edington, but dropped safe. The score:

WACO, May 26.—Oscar Tuero made his debut as a starting hurler for the Waco team today and the Dallas team could do absolutely nothing with his spitter, which he controlled in a manner which bordered on the sensational. Waco hitting Eberhard hard and timely to win the game, 8 to 2. Nto a run was earned off the delivery of Tuero, and the contest was never in doubt. The hitting of James Galloway featured, Waco's veteran obtaining a double and a single off the delivery of Eberhard and smacked a long homer off Love in the seventh. He accounted for four runs. Kahdot turned in the most sensational fielding play of the game when he robbed Wilson of a hit in the sixth by a diving stop. The score:

Although hit hard throughout the seven innings Ronie Glidewell was invinsible in the pinches and the American Refinery nine won from the Wichita Falls Electric company crew by the score of 9 to 4 Tuesday afternoon on the Twilight diamond. Ronie was in the hole in almost every inning, but pulled through nicely.

Glidewell, also league leading batter, increased his margin with four safe knocks in as many times at the bat. Coolidge also hit four out of four, one of his going for three cushions. Medfor dand Riley soaked three out of four.

The Americans scored one in the first inning. Windham was passed to first. Andree sacrificed him to second with a neat bunt to the pitcher. Cannon whiffed, but Dudley Skeen came through with a screaming hit into right field and Windham scampered home.

Clever work by Glidewell robbed the Electrics of a score in the first. Whatley singled to center. Glidewell picked him off first with a quick throw. Coolidge followed this with a triple to left. Blue hit to Glidewell, who nailed Coolide at the plate. Norwood forced Blue at second.

In the second Glidewell pulled out of another hole with but only one run marked against him. Riley singled to left. Ramsey walked, and all hands were safe when Glidewell took Ivey's grounder and tried for Riley at third. Reese hit to Francis who forced Riley at the plate. Patterson hit to Medford who stepped on the base nad threw wild to the plate. Ramsey scored, Ivey took third and Reese second. Glidewell fanned Whatley.

Andree opened the third with a walk and stole second. Cannon's grounder took a high bounce over Whatley's head and went for a single, Andree scored.

Singles by Coolidge, Riley and Ivey, Spliced in with a hit batsman netted the Electrics another pair in the third inning.

The American then took a wild spree through the fourth and fifth, and counted for six tallies. One error, a pair of singles supplied by Glidewell and Windham, a triple by Medford, and a balk netted the first three in the fourth. A walk to Hefner, and singles by Francis, Medford and Glidewell, with a pair of men scoring on an infield out netted the final three.

A single by Coolidge, an error by Windham, and a single by Riley shoved another over in the fifth for the Electrics.

A walk and singles by Medford and Glidewell put over the Oilers' final counter in the seventh.

Speed Records Go In Rapid Succession As Race Kings Tune Up

SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 26.—(AP)—Speed records of the Indianapolis motor speedway were bowled over in rapid succession during the qualifying trials today by Earl Cooper, Harry Hartz, Pete DePaolo and Leon Duray. Duray capped the record smashing performances by finishing the ten-mile qualifying dash in five minutes, 18:03 seconds an average speed of 113.96 miles an hour.

Shortly before Duray's performance, DePaolo had gone the ten miles in 5:18.35 an average of 113.08 miles an hour. DePaolo's mark had just displaced set by Hartz, whose time was 5:20.19, an average of 112.43. The time established by Hartz had broken the record established only a few minutes before Cooper who started off the program by qualifying in 5:25.53, an average of 110.48 miles an hour.

The record for the qualifying trials previous to today's record had been 108.04 miles an hour and was established last year by Jimmy Murphy.

In addition to upsetting the record for the ten-mile dash, Cooper, Hartz, DePaolo and Duray also bettered the best time for one lap which was 108 miles an hour and was established in 1923 by Tommy Milton.

One American Left To Try for English Amateur Gold Title

WESTWARDHO, England, May 26.—(AP)—Al lthe favorites and almost all the foreigners had been eliminated from the British amateur golf championship when the third round was completed late this evening.

Only four invading amateurs, none of them top-notch, made a bid for the title this year. One of them was eliminated yesterday and the other three were beaten today.

From the start, with an entry of only 151 players, golf critics have written that one of four men, Sir Ernest Holderness, Roger Wethered, C. J. Tolley and E. F. Storey would walk away with the championship.

Holderness and Wethered were eliminated yesterday, before they had fairly begun their battles; Storey and Tolley were put out today by almost unheard of golfers.

Dukum Scores Knockout Over Clark in Second

Seven Fast Bouts Staged On Denton Benefit Card

By BLONDY CROSS.

Wichita Falls fight fandom didn't turn out very heavily for the Joe Denton benefit card staged by the American Legion Tuesday night, evidently fearing that the exhibitions wouldn't be so good. Fandom was wrong. The crowd that did show up went away well pleased with the entertainment.

Denton, by the way, was taken to the hospital again Tuesday morning The stricken boxer, in dire shape since his fifth round knockout by Clyde Hull week before last in one of the legion main events, has been suffering with occasional touches of amnesia and intermittent headaches Denton has been bedridden since the knockout.

Seven four-rounders were pulled off, and every bout was good. Couple of midgets, Young Trammel and Kid Byers, fought the curtain raiser to a draw. The Kid probably had the better of it.

Renato Torres, Mexico City welter, put on an exhibition with Vincente Aguilar, Monterey light heavy (his weight, however, was announced at a mere 154 pounds). The Mexicans staged a nice mill with eight-ounce mitts, but neither became angered at any stage. It was a draw. Aguilar looks like he might give Moco Carpenter a good battle as long as such a bout would last.

Wildcat Monte, the Amarillo feather, had the better of Kid Murdock of Sulphur in two rounds. The referee lost his count and cut the scrap short by mistake. Some fans thought he was stopping it because Murdock was the smaller and supposedly no match for Monte. This was another error.

Tabby Levine, Wichita Falls feather, and Blas Rodriquez fought a no-decision four-rounder. The referee, a Mexican, refused to call it either way, evidently believing his countryman possibly deserved the shade. Ringsiders were 50-50 on the verdict. Tabby had the better of it, but it appeared that had the fight been several rounds longer Blas would have toted the grapes away.

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth killer, stopped Billy Clark, Dallas welter, all sudden-like in the second round with a hook to the mid-section which was followed by a glancing right off the chin.

Sam Riley, Altus welter who, we doubt, weighs an ounce under 160 pounds, was given a draw with Clyde Hull, St. Paul welter. Sammy was willing, but too heavy footed. It was nothing more than an altruistic spirit that caused the third man in the ring to call it an even verdict.

Hull fights Torres Thursday in Vernon over the ten-round route.

All England Waits Running of Famous Derby Race Today

Lord Astor's Crossbow, since winning the new market stakes, has advanced steadily in the public favor and was the first choice in ante-post betting at 5 to 1 against. Manna, to be ridden by Steve Donoghue, dropped to second, at 7 to 1, as a result of a rumor of having been injured. Lord Derby's Conquistador, had shortened to 9 to 1, and other quotations were Solario, 100 to 8; Ptolemy, 100 to 7; Stbecan, 13 to 1, and Zionist, 20 to 1.

COLLIER

it was planned to bring her back to the stand. At that hour, however, she was still unable to appear and was removed to a private residence while an attendant was placed in constant attendance. Court was recessed again until 3:30 when it was again anticipated she would be able to testify. Again she was unable to appear. District Attorney James V. Allred spent much time at the home in conference with her husband. Attorney C. I. Francis, leading counsel for the defense also appeared at the residence once.

Late in the afternoon Dr. J. C. A. Guest, of Wichita Falls, arrived in Haskell and shortly afterward appeared at the home where Mrs. Woods was being nursed. He said he had been informed by Mr. Francis she was there. He made no minute examination of the patient, but said later when questioned by reporters that Mrs. Woods did not appear to be in a serious condition and, in his opinion might be able to resume the stand Wednesday morning. He said it would be inadvisable for her to attempt to appear in court again Tuesday.

Judge Visits Witness.

Judge Bryant visited Mrs. Woods late Tuesday afternoon but merely inquired as to her condition and expressed the hope she would fully recover by morning. He personally directed, however, she was not to be disturbed. District Attorney Allred, District Attorney Tom Davis, of Haskell, and County Attorney Clyde Grissom of Haskell county asserted tonight they would ask that court be recessed and the jury held a week or more if necessary to allow Mrs. Woods opportunity to testify. This is taken to mean that evidence that she will give is of extreme importance to the state in its case against Mrs. Collier. On the stand Tuesday morning Mr. Allred had just started to question her regarding her acquaintance with the defendant and of any conversations she may have had with Mrs. Collier regarding Mary Francis and Buster Robertson, for whose death Mrs. Collier is now on trial. The witness had proceeded only far enough to say that she knew Mrs. Collier and that on one occasion she had talked to her at some length about Buster and Mary Francis. The fainting spell overtook her there and she was unable to continue.

While Mrs. Woods was being nursed back to health business was at a stand still in court. Judge Bryant convened an afternoon session but immediately adjourned it and a capacity crowd settled for the tedious wait. As the afternoon wore on however, and it became more apparent that nothing more would develop today, the audience gradually left the court room.

Long Technical Argument.

Precedents set by the courts and interpretations of arbitrary statutes which law down the "thou shalts" and the "thou shall nots" of the legal profession moved to the foreground here Tuesday morning in the murder case of Mrs. Frank Collier. In the hour and fifty minutes in which court was in session a more than half of that time was consumed in argument of counsel on technical points. The jury was out of the room at the time. Evidence introduced by the state was largely of a superficial nature, although a fainting spell which stretched Mrs. Woods full length on the floor in front of the witness chair terminated what might have led to hitherto unrecorded facts in the Collier case.

Mrs .Woods, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hobbs of Wichita Falls, was the first states witness called. She had been in the chair about five minutes and was being questioned by District Attorney James V. Allred relative to a conversation she said she had had with Mrs. Frank Collier about Mary Francis and Buster Robertson, when she swooned and fell flat on her face. Her husband, attorneys and court attaches rushed to her assistance and she was carried to her hotel after first aid treatment in the court room failed to revive her. She rallied under a physician's care but was unable to appear in court again in the morning and the session was cut short to allow her time to fully recover.

Mr. Allred has announced that when her testimony was completed the state would probably rest its case.

Other Debates Promised.

What may be the forerunner of other equally technical debates yet to come loomed up Tuesday morning in argument of defense counsel on the question of whether or not testimony offered by Mrs. Collier at the habeas corpus hearing of her husband in Wichita Falls last March was admissable a sstates evidence in the present trial. Judge Bruce Bryant, after characterizing the argument as "ingenious but not applicable in this case" held that it was and allowed the district attorney to read the stenographic report of Mrs. Collier's tetsimony at the habeas corpus hearing. The defense of course, resedved a bill of exception.

Briefly, Judge B. Y. Cummings, C. I. Francis and W. H. Murchison, counsel for Mrs. Collier, held that in order for the present jury to convict Mrs. Collier of murder, it must know that her husband was guilty of the same offense. Because his three-year conviction for manlaughter is on appeal, it was argued he is not yet convicted and that hence the statute prohibiting a wife from testifying against her husband could be invoked on grounds that anything Mrs. Collier might say or may have said could be used against her husband. Furthermore, it was argued by Judge Cummings that regardless of whether this statute was waived, testimony from one spouse against another was expressly forbidden and that even though Mrs. Collier testified for her husband in the habeas corpus hearing, that same testimony when introduced by the state as incriminating evidence was in violation of the statutes.

Cite Many Authorities.

A long list of authorities and cases were cited, none of which, however, convinced Judge Bryant that the state was not permitted to use the testimony it wished.

This testimony related to events at the home of Mrs. A. R. Duke, Mrs. Collier's sister, on the night of February 14, just prior to the time Buster Robertson was shot. It told how Mrs. Collier, learning her daughter had talked to Buster and that the latter intended coming after her to take her to his home, took a pistol from a drawer in her sister's dresser and made the threat "if that boy comes here I'll blow his brains out."

District Attorney Allred's success in getting this before the jury was regarded as a point heavily in the state's favor.

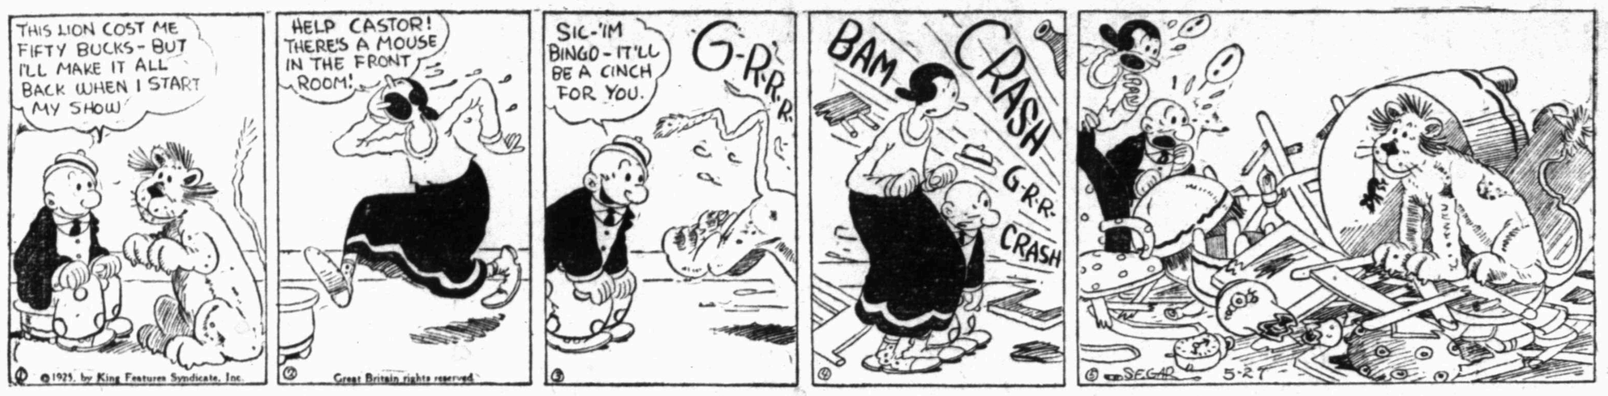

Three other witnesses, C. E. Bates John McMahan and Archie Smith were called by the state Tuesday morning. Bates, a deputy sheriff under Sheriff Fred K. Smith, identified a pistol and some shells turned over to him by Special Officer Bob Windham who brought Mr. Collier to the court house after the shooting.

Mr. Smith, an undertaker with the Merkle Undertaking company, described to the jury the bullet wounds in Robertson's body and pointed out where powder burns were found on the boy's coat.

John McMahan, a school boy friend of Buster, related the "crank incident" in which a short time prior to the shooting Mr. Collier accosted Buster and Mary Francis at the home of Bernice Gohlke and how Buster fled before the former mayor, who had an auto crank in his hand. He said Mrs. Collier was with her husband that night and called Buster to the machine.

It appeared from Tuesday morning results that the case would drag along for several more days with introduction of testimony. The defense has indicated its evidence will be lengthy, and court room rumor has it that several surprises are in store.

appeared to have lost considerable weight and was wan and pale.

Speculation has been rife here the last two days concerning the time to be required for completion of the case. Refusal of the defense to cross examine state's witnesses speeded things up greatly in the early periods, while defense counsel has indicated its direct examination will not be of extended duration. Arguments, of course, will require a day or more and after that it is a matter of debate as to how long the jury will be out. Plainly, however, the case will be dispensed with much sooner than was generally anticipated.

overcoat, not even in Norway. From the healthy pink in his cheeks and the vitality which seemed to radiate from his whole body one sensed that many long winters spent in polar regions had rendered outer garments a burden where the descending mercury stopped short of a dozen degrees below zero.

Above All—Confidence.

"But in spite of Amundsen's amiable and gentle manners, one could no' fail to see in his steady eyes and strong features the remarkable capacity for and habit of command, together with the inspiration of confidence which satisfies men obediently to follow where he leads, without thought o fpossible tragedy lying ahead. When talking for publication his diction is that of a scientist—learned, yet clear-cut, every word falling in its proper place. You realize that he is a deep student of every angle of the subject to which he has devoted his life; and that, if he adventures more boldly than any other living man, he takes no chances that are not discounted by the most careful study and by practical experience. This same realization is reflected in his fellow explorer's Nansen's, statement recently published:

"'Nobody in Norway is anxious regarding the fate of Amundsen. He is capable of handling himself under difficulties and hindrances of any kind. There is no reason to feel nervous about him.'

"It was my good fortune to spend three memorable hours with Amundsen in New York on the last day of the equipment of the vessel which carried him to Norway there to await a propitious year, month and day for setting forth on his present astounding adventure. He was immersed in detail of the most exacting sort. When I called at the Ritz-Carlton to invite him to meet the celebrated engineer - explorer of North Hudson Bay regions, Robert J. Flaherty, and witness a special showing of Flaherty's motion picture of Eskimo family life entitled 'Nanook of the North,' Amundsen reached for his hat and stick, saying:

Enter Flaherty.

"'I couldn't spare a minute for anything else in the world. But to meet Flaherty, and to see his wonderful film—yes, immediately.'

"Flaherty, the carelessly dressed, blue-eyed blond giant, and the immaculate Amundsen, melted into each other's cosmos at sight. Each had read the other's scientific works on subjects familiar to both. Their minds were eager to get into closer contact. Half a dozen men at the top of the film industry—men accustomed to think in terms of millions of dollars—were present in the small projection room. But when they saw Amundsen and Flaherty sitting aloof with their heads together, oblivious to everything but the unfolding scenes of that wonderful film and their perfect agreement on its fidelity to the actual life and habits of a representative Eskimo happy family, they realized what a tactless and useless act it would be to try and 'butt in,' and didn't.

"With Nanook and his family safely 'igloved' from the Arctic blizzard at the final 'fadeout,' Amundsen grabbed his hat and fled back to the details of equipping his ship. But, as evidence of the great polar explorer's never-failing courtesy, was his act of turning for an instant at the door with a beaming face and shooting at me the invaluable statement which I most desired to hear:

"'It is the greatest picture in the world!'

"Amundsen's indorsement of Flaherty's great Eskimo picture epic — which, as intended, was widely published—was instrumental in launching the blond and blueeyed giant and a shipload of raw film, cameras, projecting and developing apparatus and other supplies upon the most significant picture-making enterprise ever yet conceived. For while Captain Roald Amundsen was forcing his ship into the edge of the North Pole icecap, Paramount's expedition commanded by Robert J. Flaherty was voyaging in the opposite direction, to the Soloman Islands, there faithfully to film tropical savage life, as he had done in the case of the North Hudson Bay Eskimos.

"Word has been received that Flaherty has accomplished his difficult, even dangerous, task, and is returning. It is probable that he, like Nansen, would reject the thought that Amundsen will not prove equal to all the emergencies of his latest and greatest adventure."

—about the care of a motor
It is now recommended to change the oil in your crank case more often.
Don't add fresh oil to the old oil already in your car. Crank case oil should be entirely changed every 1,000 miles in summer and every 500 miles in winter. Draw off the oil when the engine is warm as the oil then flows more freely. (Never flush the crank case with kerosene), then refill with the correct grade of

SANTA FE TO FIGHT DENVER ROAD PERMIT

Commerce Commission To Consider Protest Of Railroad

Hearing before the interstate commerce commission at Washington will start within a few days relative to the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railway, a subsidiary corporation of the Fort Worth and Denver City Railway company, to build 1,923 miles of new railroad from Childress to Plainview, Lubbock, Silverton and Dimmitt. The Santa Fe has entered protest against issuing a permit to build this line, which was filed Monday with the commission. The Santa Fe intends to make a strong fight to prevent the Denver road from entering its territory but it is believed in rail circles that the fght will be useless.

Much of the territory to be served by the new railroad is without railroad facilities. The territory lying below the caprock has more than a million acres of rich and undeveloped agricultural lands, which is far distant from a railroad. Some of the towns in this territory are as far as 50 miles from the nearest railroad point. The building of this new line means much to Wichita Falls jobbers and industires.

The Santa Fe's argument against the permit is as follows:

Territory Already Served.

The Santa Fe points out that Hale, Lubbock and Swisher counties are fully served by it. The further statement is that Briscoe and Floyd counties are divided by the so-called "cap rock" extending north and south about eight miles east of Silverton, and sixteen miles northeast of Lockney and ten miles east of Floydada. The South Plains lie above this cap rock and extends to the westward. The South Plains country in these two counties, says the statement, is and will be adequately served by the Santa Fe line from Plainview to Silverton, while the territory east is properly tributary to the Santa Fe and its proposed branches.

Says Line Not Necessary.

The document points out that the Santa Fe, main line and branches, is the shortest to Houston, Galveston, Wichia, Kansas City, Chicago, New Mexico and points west, and for the greater part of the territory, in connection with the Texas & Pacific is shortest to Fort Worth and Dallas. The Santa Fe contends that the Denver's proposed line above the cap rock is not of the least necessity and practically of no convenience even for a limited portion of the South Plains country.

Referring to the movement of freight out of the territory, the Santa Fe says that the general trend of live stock is to the Missouri river markets and the spring movement to Oklahoma and Kansas pastures; and, cotton and grain move to Texas mills and to the Gulf ports and Atlantic seaboard. From the Plainview district, says the Santa Fe's document, is the only place where the Denver has an advantage in distance.

Says East Gets Business.

It points out that Fort Worth is not the principal market for agricultural products nor live stock, as the tonnage shows, and that the small increase in distance via the Santa Fe has no real effect in determining the market for these products. Furthermore, the statement adds, the bulk of the merchandise to the South Plains country moves from Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis and points east of the Missouri river, in spite of the fact that class rates from Dalas and Fort Worth are lower and the service quicker.

"Therefore, it is evident," says the Santa Fe's answer, "that the fifty-mile saving (by the Denver) to a limited territory could have little effect even in such a territory," and, certainly, would have no effect in the larger part of this territory (from) where the new line would be longer than the existing line."

Labor Immigration From Mexico Issue At Labor Sessions

AMARILLO, Texas, May 26. — Mexican labor immigration became the outstanding issue before the Texas state federation of labor convention here today. Reports of representatives of the American Federation of Labor indicated the influx of laborers from the southern republic is becoming a menace to organized labor in this state.

While most of the Mexican laborers ostensibly are farm hands and other unskilled workmen, it is charged the classification is used by many skilled craftsmen as a cloak by which to slip into the country during harvest season. After they have been here some time, it is said, they emerge as skilled artisians and even professional men.

A few months ago, according to C. N. Idar, of San Antonio, organizer for the national federation, thousands of Mexican laborers were on the border trying to get into the country and last year, he said, the Mexican government turned back 30,000 of its nationals from entering Texas.

After spending a day in recreation Canyon near here, where they visited the great J-Y ranch of Mayor Lee Bivens of Amarillo, the delegates were prepared to get down tomorrow to the real business of the convention, the consideration of resolution. Among these are resolutions demanding unionization of fire departments, endorsing old age pensions, bringing stenographers within the woman's 54 hours week law, advocating a boiler and machinery inspection law, and providing a "buy-a-union-garment" week. Nomination of officers also probably will be made tomorrow and the election will be Thursday. The delegates plan to adjourn Friday noon.

INTERURBANS CLASH.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 26.—One motorman was burned to death, another probably fatally burned and a dozen passengers were injured when two interurbans crashed head-on and caught fire on a trestle near here tonight. Early reports said that one of the cars fell from the trestle.

Beg Your Pardon

In an article in Tuesday's Record News, quoting E. F. Griswold on the voluntary bankruptcy proceedings instituted by the corporation bearing his name it was stated that Mr. Griswold said he believed "a majority of the stockholders will find that they will have been fairly well taken care of when the legal machinery now set in motion runs its course." Instead of stockholders, the word "creditors" should have been used.

CREDIT MEN DEBATE OVER "CHARGE IT"

Texas Merchants Argue Over The Merits Of Charge Accounts

AUSTIN, May 26.—Trust in the public, the salaried man and the wealthy man, was expressed by Texas credit men representing the largest stores in the state, after a long discussion and argument in the afternoon session of the Retail Credit Men's association this afternoon.

While a three-cornered debate between credit managers of the three largest stores of Dallas developed humor and valuable points in arguing for each side, the audience of credit men who decide whether credit will be advanced when it is asked by a customer, listened intently, to take the discussion for use in their future work.

Adam R. Johnson, Austin merchant opened the argument by a talk on "Is Soliciting Charge Accounts Profitable?" saying that as long as a discriminate soliciting of charge accounts was followed, the credit business would be profitable. He advocated soliciting charge accounts while the credit record was good.

Max Rosenfield, who meets applicants for credit at Sanger Brothers in Dallas, told merchants to open accounts only with people who are known to be good credit risks, and to be wary of soliciting any "Tom, Dick and Harry". Sam Hines, credit manager for Tiche Goettinger company, of Dallas, followed by telling of two types of solicitation for two types of people; the man known to be safe is told an account has been opened for him without question, the other who has no specific rating, is asked to come to the store office for a visit when the soliciting letters are sent out.

DALLAS PASTOR WILL ADDRESS YOUNG PEOPLE

Methodist Association To Hear Everett Street Minister

Rev. W. H. Wallace, pastor of the Ervay street Methodist church in Dallas, a rising young minister who is noted for his magnetic personality, and his exceptional appeal to the young people in his audiences, will address the Methodist Young People's association and their friends Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church, south, in an inspirational meeting which forms an important part of the activity of Young People's week as presented by the youth of the three Methodist churches of the city.

Well Known Here.

Rev. Wallace is well known in Wichita Falls, having served as assistant pastor for First Methodist church during the first days of the oil boom in 1918-19, when Rev. S. A. Barnes, now of Floral Heights church, was pastor there. It is said that during the terrible epidemics of influenza those two hard winters when so many Wichita Falls citizens lost their lives, that Rev. Wallace was the only minister in the city who stood up successfully under the strain of overwork and sickness, and that he preached daily many funeral sermons.

"He never once got sick," a church worker who knew him then declared, "and kept going through all the epidemic, the boom, and the bad weather. An undertaker needing a minister to officiate got so he called on 'Bill' first, and his boundless energy, his cheer and his tireless courage found him always ready."

Young People's Work.

Rev. Wallace is known over the state for his far reaching work with young people. He is regarded in church circles as a "live wire," with his effective appeal, and his first-hand understanding of the views, the aims and the ideal of modern young people. Himself just thirty, the young minister has won the esteem of his church officials through his vigorous and productive work as a pastor. His sermons, though not preachments, are vital lessons, that he is able to teach, by means of his exceptional ability, and make his audiences like them. A cordial invitation is extended by the association to the general public to attend the Wednesday service.

To Talk Here

REV. W. H. WALLACE

of Dallas who will address Methodist young people of Wichita Falls Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church.

DETOUR ROAD TO HENRIETTA READY TO USE

Highway Said to Be in Better Condition Than Old One

A good road to Henrietta has been discovered by Manager U. L. Pistocco of the Vendope System. The road is only three miles longer and can be traveled in from twenty to thiry minutes less time than the old highway, which is being torn up preparatory to hard surfacing.

The Vendope company has sent its truck over the detour route and got most of the culvert approaches in good condition. Markers have been put up leading to Henrietta and in a few days other markers will be posted pointing the way to Wichita Falls.

The detour starts one and one-half miles east of Wichita Falls on the paved road. A post has been set up and a number of markers are on the post reading "wetour to Henrietta." These markers are painted black and white. At this point turn to the left and go east to the Waurika railroad tracks but do not cross, then swing to right and follow the arrows, and you will make no error. There is only one bad approach to culvert and that will be fixed within the next day or two. The detour road is only three miles longer than the old highway that follows close to the Denver road tracks.

Manager Pistocco says the detour road takes one through a beautiful farming country where orchards, trees and pretty scenery prevail. There are no chug holes and bad places that are now so often encountered in the old road to Henrietta. The Vendope System has marked the new road without charge, also doing considerable work in preparing approaches to culverts.

Shepherd Trial Is Facing Rocks When Third Panel Called

CHICAGO, May 26.—The Shepherd trial at adjourment today found itself set back a week through disqualification of one of the four jurors sworn last Friday.

Three jurors, one venireman tentatively passed by both sides, one questioned briefly by the state and seven who had not been examined for the jury box at adjournment today after eight days of questioning had resulted in 139 men being excused from jury duty.

The third special venire of 100 men was in court today.

Harold Pillar, the "baby" of the four young jurors sworn in last Friday, discovered last night that he was biased against the state, had an opinion and was prejudiced against capital punishment. As a result the 22-year-old chauffeur was ordered dropped from the panel by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.
